Q. How much did it cost the city to send the mayor and two councilmen to three cities to interview city manager applicants?

A. Councilman Russ McEwen, who went on the trips, said the city did not pay for them. He, mayor Cotton Mize and councilman Harold Hall paid for their own meals, and the plane was provided by the Colorado River Municipal Water District, he said. The rest of the money came from a private source, he

Grand jurors to review accident case

By SCOTT FITZGERALD Staff Writer

An involuntary manslaughter case involving a pickup accident Sunday in which 16-year-old Tammy Marshall was killed will be presented before Howard County grand jurors next month.

Assistant District Attorney Robert Morris said Friday afternoon he anticipates an involuntary manslaughter driving while intoxicated charge will be filed against Stanley Steven Phillips, 19, of 1504 Kentucky Way for the death of Marshall, who lived at 3621 Hamilton Ave.

Phillips was driver of a pickup that ran off the road early Sunday morning on Farm Road 669 north of Big Spring. Marshall was thrown from the vehicle, then struck by it as it flipped over, according to the Department of Public Safety acci-

Morris said the charge applies when an intoxicated person causes the accidental death of a person.

The maximam prison sentence is 2-to-10 years with a maximum fine of $5,000, he said.

However, the case would be dismissed and charges dropped if grand jurors refuse to indict Phillips after hearing the evidence, Morris said.

The case was presented to the district attorney's office Friday morning by DPS Trooper Glen Redmor, who investigated the

The district attorney's office has statements from other passengers in the vehicle, Redmon said. They are Terri Lynn Catron, 16, of 1905 Nolan St.; Arnold Solis, 18, of 704 N.W. 10th St.; and Lisa Deanne Bacon, 17, of 2501 Morrison Drive.

Marshall was pronounced dead at Malone-Hogan Hospital at 1:20 a.m. Sunday.

Political parties convene in Texas

Democrats seek support

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas has always been a progressive state despite current Republican claims of traditional conservatism, U.S. House Majority Leader Jim Wright told the state Democratic convention.

"Texans will not let such a rich tradition as ours be corrupted by latter day divisionists," Wright said Friday night in the keynote address to about 6,000 frequently cheering delegates.

The cure to the solution, Wright said, is to re-elect Gov. Mark White and other statewide Democratic officials and congressmen.

'Some say Texas has always been conservative, but Texas was the first state to have the community property law. Texas had the first elected Texas woman governor. Our constitution protects our water and our beaches," Wright said.

'That's our tradition, a progressive tradition," the Fort Worth congressman said. "This is a progressive state and always has been. Wright, who is expected to be named House speaker in the next Congress, said White and other top elected officials "have demonstrated they are not just going to sit idly by and let the future happen to us ... These are the people to lead us into the 1990s," he said.

U.S. Rep. Tony Coelho, D-California, chairman of the national Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, said his group planned to spend at least $300,000 helping Texas Democratic con-gressmen get elected. "Texas will have the next speaker," he said. "Jim Wright

the United States.

"I believe Democrats are willing to listen, to learn and support the best can-didate," Lt. Gov. L. Douglas Wilder of Virginia, the first black elected to statewide office in the South since the Reconstruction, told a caucus of black delegates Friday afternoon.

"Politics isn't love and romance. The bottom line is who's got it, how to get it and how to spend it," Wilder told a cheering audience.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby introduced him as a "political trail brazers.

The Mexican American Democrats caucus heard a series of statewide officials seek their support while standing beneath a banner that read: "MAD Is the Difference in 1986.

Republicans stress platform

DALLAS (AP) - The Republican Party can survive squabbles and power struggles on either the Texas or national level so long as the 1984 platform is adhered to, U.S. Rep. Jack Kemp said Friday during an appearance at the annual Texas GOP convention.

Kemp would not comment on a developing rift among Texas Republicans. State chairman George Strake, who has the support of the mainline establishment, faces a strong challenge from vice chairman Diana Denman, who is supported by religious

However, Kemp said at a news conference that he does not think the struggle — and similar moderate vs. conservative battles on the national level — will weaken the party as long as the 1984 platform is followed

"I think that platform should be elevated above any internecine struggle," he said.

Kemp, one of four potential 1988 GOP presidential candidates attending the convention, said he wants to build on President Reagan's economic policy. He touted the tax reform bill, now being considered by Congress, as a pro-family, pro-growth measure and said he would tell convention-goers the legislation deserves their support

Kemp, Vice President George Bush and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole are among those scheduled to address the convention. A fourth potential presidential candidate, Gen. Alexander Haig Jr., spoke Friday morning at a caucus of Hispanic Republicans.

Kemp said he will decide in 1987 whether he will make a bid for the presidency in 1988.

Although the well-known speakers won a good share of conventioners' attention, the underlying question was the race between Strake and Ms. Denman

Sam Hoerster, an Austin minister also backed by religious conservatives, is a third candidate for party chairman.

Inside the Dallas Convention Center some delegates sported campaignin buttons supporting Ms. Denman or Strake, along with buttons that read, "God & Government" and "Pray For An End To Ms. Denman maintains she relies on widespread grass roots support and not iust the new fundamentalist members.

'My challenge is really from the floor," she said. She described the present struggle as growing pains brought on as new members join the party.

'Before, we were so small that it was able to be handled in the country club fashion." she said.

Ms. Denman said she offers the party a grass-roots approach in leadership and will seek to broaden its appeal.

Strake contends he still has the support of the majority of Texas Republicans, although he said he welcomes the new fundamentalist members.

At a press conference Thursday, several fundamentalist leaders endorsed Strake's candidacy. Bill Price, director of Coalition for Life, said Strake opened REPUBLICANS page 2A

Farmer's Market is making money

By HANK MURPHY Staff Writer

Early indications from Odessa and Midland show that county fruit and vegetable growers stand to make money by joining the area Farmer's Market, county agent Don Richardson said Friday.

There was a "tremendous turnout" of 300 to 400 customers in both the Midland and Odessa locations June 20 and 21 respectively, Richardson said.

He said about 15 Permian Basin growers sold out in several hours with all earning substantial profits.

Anyone who grows produce can join the Permian Basin Farmers Market Association for $10 by contacting either Richardson at 267-6671 or association president Joe Hollingshead at 267-1429. No peddler permit is needed for people within the Permian Basin, he said.

The market is open Tuesdays and Fridays in Midland from noon until dark or until the produce is sold out at the Wild River Canyon located at Princeton and Loop 250.

The remnants of Hurricane Bonnie caused locally heavy showers and thunderstorms Friday with up to 10 inches of rain over parts of the southern Plains, and thunderstorms also developed over the

During a 12-hour period, more than 10 inches of rain fell on parts of a region that included a large part of northwestern Louisiana, a small part of northeastern Texas and sections of southern Arkansas.

Near Waskon, Texas, 11.17 inches of rain fell while 10.20 inches fell south of Blanchard, La. Other amounts included 8.50 inches at Bossier City, La., 8.45 at Shreveport, La., and 7.67 inches at Keithville, La.

The heavy rain flooded many underpasses, streets and highways across northwestern Louisiana around the cities of Shreveport and Bossier City. Flash flood watches were posted across northwestern and northeastern Louisiana, southern Arkansas and a small part of northeastern Texas.

Two tornadoes were reported during the night in northwestern Louisiana. One touched down near Grand Cane and destroyed a mobile home and damaged an outbuilding. Another small tornado damaged a roof, knocked down trees and flipped over a plane near the downtown Shreveport Airport.

Heavy thunderstorms crossed southern Wisconsin and northern Illionis during the night, dumping more than 3 inches of rain on a few spots. In southeastern Wisconsin, Burlington got 3.50 inches and Lake Geneva recorded 2.65 inches. North of Chicago, Lake Villa got 3.11 inches while 2.90 inches fell at Waukegan.

More heavy thunderstorms developed during the day over western portions of the Ohio Valley and a severe thunderstorm watch was ssued for east-central Illinois, northern Indiana and parts of western

Elsewhere, showers and thunderstorms were scattered from New England and New York state across Pennsylvania and the central Appalachians to northern Georgia. A few showers and thunderstorms also were reported across southern Florida and the lower Gulf Coast region, from northwest Missouri across eastern Kansas to northwestern Oklahoma, and from the western Dakotas through the northern Rockies. Hot, humid weather across the central Plains prompted livestock advisories for all of Kansas and much of Nebraska.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 p.m. EDT ranged from 56 degrees at Augusta, Maine, to 108 degrees at Needles, Calif. The low for the day was 34 degrees at Houlton, Maine.

For Saturday, scattered showers and thunderstorms were forecast from New England and New York state across Pennsylvania, the mid Atlantic states, the lower Ohio and Tennessee valleys, through the Southeast, Florida and the lower Mississippi Valley. Scattered showers and thunderstorms also were forecast from the Texas Panhandle across Oklahoma, the middle Mississippi Valley, northeastern Nebraska and South Dakota through Montana and the northern Intermountain region.

Man files suit over broken wine bottle

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - A Dallas-based liquor distributor accused of breaking a bottle of vintage wine while trying to make room for a $2.99-a-bottle of wine could end up paying $20,000 for the mishap.

Johnny Gabriel, vice president of San Antonio Discount Liquor Inc., filed suit against Rick Yarbrough and American Wines and Importing Co. of Dallas over the 1900 Chateau Lafite Rothchild, which according to testimony broke when Yarbrough was making room for a 300-case display of Riunite.

The wine is considered one of the four best kinds of Bordeaux red wines in the world.

Yarbrough is accused of breaking the magnum-size bottle of expensive wine while moving a oneton, steel and wood wine vault without Gabriel's permission. The high-price wine suit has turned a little sour for Gabriel after a San Antonio wine expert John W. Casey III testified the wine despite being among the best ordinarily would go for only $1,000 to $3,000. 'Nineteen hundred is not the greatest year for Lafite," Casey testified. "When you look at $3,000 for 48 ounces of wine, it has to have something more going for it than just grape juice. But he said the price could rise above $3,000 at an auction.

Jeff Hawkins, attorney for American Wines and Importing, is contending in court documents that it was Gabriel's negligence - not the salesman's - that resulted in the broken bottle.

White may call session

AUSTIN — Gov. Mark White said Friday he would call a special session of the Legislature to deal with the state's financial crisis as soon as legislative leaders prepare a plan for spen-

White said he expected proposals that could be enacted to cover a $2.3 billion cash shortfall predicted Friday by Comptroller Bob Bullock to be ready in July.

The budget will be balanced by cuts, and not tax hikes, if at all possible, White said.

"We're going to work on the spending side first. I think that's the approach and we're not going to be considering increased taxes until we can see exactly how far along we can get with the reductions in spending," he said.

15 Teamsters indicted

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — Eight Teamsters union officials were among 15 people indicted Friday in a scheme to embezzle from union health plans, federal prosecutors said.

The charges stemmed from a three-year investigation that focused on handling of healthplan funds for 10 Connecticut locals and one in Springfield, Mass., according to an indictment.

Most of the accusations centered on reimbursements for false claims for medical and dental benefits from the health funds, prosecutors said.

The amounts taken ranged from about $1,100 to about $45,000, according to documents released by U.S. Attorney Stanley A. Twardy Jr.

State bans capsule sales

SEATTLE - A statewide, 90-day ban on the sale of over-the-counter capsule medicines took effect Friday, but officials hoping to cut the risk of cyanide poisonings warned that not all stores had removed the capsules.

Seattle-King County inspectors hoped to check about 450 stores Friday, after finding capsule medicines in about 30 percent of the 467 stores they checked the day before, said Dr. Bud Nicola, county health director.

The failure to remove capsules in about twothirds of the 120 stores was simply an oversight, said Chuck Kleeberg, chief of environmental health for the county.

Egyptians flee guards

MIAMI — Twenty-one people thought to be Egyptians bolted from their guards between international flights Friday at Miami International Airport, then struggled and shouted anti-American slogans at police attempting to recapture them, officials said.

Of those in the group, 12 were captured immediately, and police and guards were searching the airport for the remaining nine, said Perry Rivkind, district director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service. The group was in the care of a private company, United Safeguard, which is under contract with Eastern Airlines to watch over foreign passengers between international flights and prevent illegal immigration.

U.S. rejects ruling on Nicaragua policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, responding to the World Court decision favoring Nicaragua in its conflict with the United States, rejected on Friday the panel's opinion that American policy in Central America is inconsistent with international law.

The administration stated long ago that it would not consider itself bound by the World Court decision in the

Meanwhile, a lawyer for the Nicaraguan government said he expects that the Sandinistas will seek reparations from the United States in excess of $1 billion based on damages resulting from American backing for the Nicaraguan resistance forces.

At the State Department, spokesman Charles Redman restated the U.S. view that the court is "not equipped to deal with a case of this nature involving complex facts and intelligence information.' Redman said the court, while expressing some reservations about Nicaragua's innocence, "appears to have premised its opinion on a version of the facts similar to the incomplete and inaccurate version presented by Nicaragua. He said the United States considers its Central

The court, after 26 months of deliberations on a complaint initiated by Nicaragua, disagreed with that view and called on the United States to cease supporting the anti-Sandinista rebels. It said the United States must pay reparations to Nicaragua but, as Redman noted, the panel lacks enforcement powers. In January 1985, the United States officially withdrew from the case and later said it would not submit to compulsory jurisdiction of the court. The administration has maintained that the case concerns a political and not a legal issue.

Two American lawyers who represent the Nicaraguan government said that, with the question of American culpability now established by the court, they will proceed with a damage assessment which will be presented in U.S. courts.

Attorney Paul Reichler told a news conference at the Nicaraguan Embassy that five years of U.S.-sponsored warfare in Nicaragua have caused more than $1 billion in damage, for which he said the U.S. government is hable.

Abram Chayes, a Harvard University professor. said Nicaragua will base its claim for reparations on international treaties the United States has signed.

He called the ruling a "landmark case, a starting point for all thinking.' Chayes added: "I am confident this is a law abiding country. I am sure that in the fullness of time, the American people will reject a policy that involves the flouting of international law. Nicaraguan Ambassador Carlos Tunnermann said that, based on the court's opinion, his country has emerged as a "moral power." Redman said the issue involves differing interpretations of the facts. "That is whether one accepts Nicaragua's denial that it has attacked his neighbors or the facts repeatedly found and confirmed by the U.S. executive branch, Congress, the National Bipartisan Commission on Central America and others having full access to intelligence information," he said.

'Those bodies have repeatedly concluded that Nicaragua is engaged in a substantial, unprovoked and unlawful use of force against its neighbors. The United States has assisted the victims' response to Nicaragua's intervention.'

Government resigns

ROME - Socialist Premier Bettino Craxi today submitted the resignation of Italy's longest-running government since the end of World War II, the presidential palace said. Craxi submitted the government's resignation to President Francesco Cossiga following a Cabinet meeting of the five-party coalition. Cossiga asked Craxi to remain on as a caretaker premier until a new government is

The political crisis arose Thursday night when the centrist coalition lost a key parliamentary vote.

Formed on Aug. 4, 1983, Craxi's government has been in power longer than any of Italy's 43 previous post-war Cabinets.

Peru lets plane leave

LIMA, Peru - Peru ordered an American cargo plane to land at Lima for violating Peruvian airspace, and kept it in Lima for about 18 hours, the official news agency An-

Authorities at Lima's international airport said today the Boeing 707 left Peru at 7:40 p.m. Thursday to continue its flight from Mexico to Santiago, Chile, after the crew paid a $5,000 fine and $5,000 for ground services.

The authorities, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the plane, which was not carrying cargo, was ordered to land shortly before dawn Thursday.

MADRID, Spain - The government said Friday a Palestinian and a Spaniard have been arrested in connection with a bomb blast near the El Al check-in counter at Madrid's Barajas Airport.

The bomb, which was hidden in a suitcase, injured 13 people when it exploded Thursday, according to airport officials.

A government statement identified the suspects as Nasser Hassam el-Ali, a member of a Palestinian guerrilla faction, and Isaias Manuel Jalafe Jalafe, 32.

o shuttle launch before '88, says NASA

SPACE CENTER, Houston -The space shuttles probably will not be ready to fly again until early 1988 because of the testing required to qualify a new solid fuel booster rocket design, an authoritative NASA source said Friday.

The source, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said a requalification of the booster system may require three full-scale tests "that will extend the program out some number of months. The Rogers presidential commission which investigated the January explosion of the shuttle Challenger blamed it on a failed joint between segments of one of the two boosters and ordered that the whole booster system be analyzed and redesigned.

The source said engineers from the Marshall Spaceflight Center in Huntsville, Ala., and from Morton Thiokol, the Utah manufacturer of the rocket engines, have settled on two prime candidates for the John Taylor, a spokesman at Marshall, said he could not confirm that engineers had selected prime candidate designs for correcting problems with the booster. He said John Thomas, head of the NASA redesign team, would hold a news conference Wednesday to give a status report on the redesign work.

James Fletcher, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, announced earlier this year that the agency was aiming at a July 1987 target date for the first launch of a shuttle since the shuttle Challenger exploded in January But the NASA source said a redesign engineering team has determined that the work will take longer than first anticipated. "The July 1987 launch date is just not do-able," he said. "We could have delivery of the new boosters in the fall of 1987, which would probably put the launch into early redesign proposals call for incorporation into the rocket joint of a feature that would use the rocket's internal pressure to force the joint

The Rogers commission concluded that the booster could have failed because internal pressure from the burning solid fuel forced the joint open, causing failure of two Oring gaskets intended to seal the joint. Superheated exhaust gases jetting through the joint then sprayed against the shuttle's huge

According to the source, a joint design by Thiokol calls for adding a third O-ring inside the joint to receive the first burst of pressure when the rocket is ignited. This design also would have an extra metal lip that would lock the joint together as the rocket ignition pressure caused it to expand

A design developed by Marshall engineers also would include the metal lip, but would not add a third should be allowed to convict Whitworth without having to prove he knew the communications secrets he allegedly stole were being bought by the Soviets.

Closing arguments in the jury had been scheduled to begin Monday after 11 weeks of testimony and a one-week recess.

Earlier in the day, U.S. District Judge John Vukasin refused a request by Assistant U.S. Attorney William Farmer to reconsider his ruling on the Soviet issue or halt the trial to give the prosecution time to appeal.

Whitworth, 46, a former Navy radio code expert from Davis, Calif., is accused of being the chief supplier of Navy communications secrets for nearly a decade to a Soviet-controlled spy ring run by his old friend, confessed spymaster

John Walker Jr. Vukasin's ruling appeared to give the defense its only chance of acquittal on the most serious charges facing Whitworth, seven espionage-related counts carrying potential life sentences.

Whitworth also is accused of an eighth count of stealing a secret document and five counts of tax years for each of six counts. evasion on the $332,000 he allegedly got from Walker. With any other ruling on the Soviet issue, defense lawyer James Larson told Vukasin, the defense would be hard-pressed to present a credible argument to the jury. Even with the judge's ruling, prosecutors "still have a very strong case," Larson said.

If acquitted of espionage, Whitworth could still be convicted of the lesser charge of unauthorized disclosure of cryptographic secrets, punishable by up to 10

The judge's ruling involves probably the most important legal issue in the case: Whether the prosecution can prove merely that Whitworth had reason to know his disclosures would harm the United States or help another country, as the espionage laws state, or whether the "other country" must be the Soviet Union, as the grand jury indictment specifies.

Walker, the chief prosecution witness, testified he never told Whitworth about the Soviets' role, but instead suggested Israel, the

Mafia or a private intelligence organization was buying the

Walker also testified, however, that he thought Whitworth knew about the Soviets. The prosecution offered other evidence on the issue, including anonymous letters to the FBI, signed "RUS" and allegedly written by Whitworth, confessing involvement in a Soviet-backed spy Vukasin ruled Wednesday that the prosecution was bound by the language of the indictment.

anguage patterns signal beliefs

By TOM PETERS

Our language patterns are the best indication of our priorities and prejudices. Study your and your colleagues' phrases and jargon, and you will get a true bead on your actual business practices and beliefs. In fact, if we can learn to meticulously observe ourselves, we will be taking a big step toward more effective management of

For instance, at a recent seminar discussion about fostering innovation, all participants agreed that in order to enhance rather than suppress corporate entreprenurial zeal, it is essential to offer regular, public support to those who step out and take even small risks. But I was put on guard by one person's seemingly innocent suggestion that managers "take time out of their schedule to recognize innovative, risk-taking actions.'

This statement captured my frustration during recent years about the slowness of well-intended change programs. The phrase, "take time out of their schedule, touched a new nerve. Just what is this "schedule"? What is this encompassing thing that at best we "take time out of"? The language suggests the thing has a life and logic of its own, which we violate at our peril. We fear taking time out of the thing, breaking the thing's iron grip.

The language in this case recisely speaks to a major problem. Our schedules as managers are, in fact, somewhat randomly booked by a largely unseen bureaucracy. The real world — our top, strategic priorities — must be squeezed to fit into vacant nooks, if any, of the voracious beast called 'the schedule."

What does this beast demand of us? That we perform perpetual administrative chores; that we attend continual committee meetings in order to review endless presenthat; that we attend meetings to prepare for other meetings. The conscientious secretary is de facto charged with booking meetings until there's no space left on the calendar. Only then will we have fully met our obligation to "the schedule." In one buttoned-down firm, the secretary goes so far as to type little 3-inch-by-5-inch cards listing the next day's meetings and places them on the desks of all the managers before they arrive each morning. That way, the managers can push their mental transmissions into cruise control and chug off to meetings numbers 2,872 through 2,882.

If we agree, though, that our top strategic priority is, say, more innovation, and that the best way to two basic values, but for a very difmanifest this concern is by visibly recognizing innovators, is wringing a drop or two of time out of "the schedule" the right mindset? Shouldn't recognizing innovators (or calling on customers, suppliers and franchisees) be the wheat, and the other stuff - the endless meetings and administrative activities — be the chaff? Shouldn't managers say to would-be meeting givers, "I'll see if I can take time out of my store, factory, supplier, customer and innovation team rounds to attend your meeting?"

Managers seem to act as if they get paid by the meeting. I wish instead that they'd act as if they were paid by the number of customers they visit and the stops they make to chat with quality teams and would-be innovators.

Listen to yourself and your colyour words and actions truly reflect them? To what extent do you act and speak as if you were tied to and trapped by an inanimate schedule, resistant to all common-sense efforts to change?

Our language conveys what is important and what's not; our truest priorities. It also gives away our deepest beliefs about people. Later in the seminar, we discussed developing a succinct statement of business values. One participant proposed a limit of two basic values. Why? "They can only handle two," he avered.

Here we go again. "They?" I happen to agree with the limit of ferent reason. We can only live by and propound two. "We" are the problem, not "they."

The "they" language is so denigrating. An even worse term tha I hear very frequently is "my people," as in "I'll get 'my people' to do this or that." As former Dana Corporation Chairman Ren McPherson once said, "My people?' Who in the heck do you think you are? You don't own those people. They don't belong to you. They're not yours. If anything, you belong to them. If they work like the dickens and care about the product, then you get rich." Right on.

Here's another typical seminarending vow by senior managers: "I'm going to go back and really pump my people up!" Do "they's" come with little valve stems on their right forearm? Is that how you "pump" them?

I do not believe any of the above leagues carefully. You may think linguistics stem from maliciousness. Our phrases often belie our stated intentions, but they reflect long-term habits of mind and day-to-day practices and thus drive our actions. The automatic response to pleas for endless meetings eventually determines our "schedules." The people who work in the distribution center or reservations desk — those "they's" and "my people" who we think will respond to "pumping" - eventually act the part, to our detriment.

Listen closely to your peers. Ask them to listen closely to you. Our use of language is subconscious, yet it presents the most unbiased reading of our true beliefs and our true priorities. What does your language, and that of your peers,

The three-member band recently earned some opportunities for wide exposure. And for groups trying to reach stardom in the country music world - exposure can unlock the door to even more opportunities, says Mason-Dixon lead guitarist Jerry Dengler.

"In the last six months, we've had opportunities to do more because of television appearances," Dengler said.

Television exposure was offered to the group in different ways. Dallas television station WFAA-Channel 8 approached the group with an offer to have them perform sesquicentennial song adopted by the city of Dallas, Dengler said. The group incorporated the song with several other numbers commemorating the Lone Star State in its most recent album, also titled

"The Spirit of Texas." "Country music people are on the band wagon," Dengler said about another medium of exposure The Country Music TV Channel. "I think it's good," he said. "Video is wave of the future because you have numerous exposures."

Peter Max attempts to excite optic nerve

By EDWARD FROST

Associated Press Writer NEW YORK (AP) — The bright blues, reds and yellows exploding off Peter Max's paintings in a downtown gallery are the same raw colors he used as the pop art prince of the psychedelic '60s.

Max has always searched for "what excites the optic nerve," he said, but over the years his method has changed.

Gone are the stylized posters, filled with smiling figures in flowing clothes, trailing happy stars in Day-Glo colors.

In their place are such works as "Fauve Trees," works in which broad brush strokes create colorful abstract forms. Painted this year, the canvas shows two loud red trees, with red trunks, standing against a pink and blue sky.

For the first time in more than 10 years Max has a show in New York, running through July 30 at the Jack Gallery in Soho, with prices for his works ranging from $5,000 to $125,000, he said. While few critics have reviewed it, one gallery worker said buyers are giving it raves. "The show has really been tremendously received, and it's not just aging hippies. It's older people, conservative people," David Segal said. "Uniformly everybody likes the color of the work, the positive imagery.

There's so much gloom and doom around ... People are just tired of it." Max, whose hair is thinning and whose mustache is tinged with gray, works in acrylics, painting in a studio in the Riverside Drive duplex he shares with model Roseanne Vela.

His easel is flanked by tables holding dozens of brushes and 100 bottles of paint. Finished canvases are everywhere, leaning against sofas, chairs and tables and hanging on the walls.

"The colors are strong, sometimes loud, sometimes raw and sometimes harmonious, but always powerful, and the images are always on the side of the peaceful nature," he said in an interview. "I don't discuss in my paintings negative things, I don't dwell on it in my mind and don't dwell on it in my canvasses.

Peter Max was born 48 years ago in Berlin and raised in Shanghai. When he was 10 years around the world, from Tibet to India, South Africa, Israel and France. He came to the United States when he was 16 and later enrolled in art school.

Living in China sparked his love of color, because something gorgeous and beautiful was going on day and night, he said.

"They have something that strikes at the optical nerve in the human mind or human body," Max said. "That's part of their culture. There's always somebody doing something to awaken it.

After forming a design company, he marketed posters and

His business grew, at its height selling $1.5 billion worth of products in 72 lines, employing more than 50 people.

However, in the early '70s he closed it: He had become an international brand name.

'But what bothered me was I wasn't painting anymore," he surfacing periodically to design a stamp or border murals for the U.S. government, or to paint a Statue of Liberty series on the White House lawn. For the statue's centennial in July, he plans to paint 11 portraits of the monument, 10 of them during the celebration on Governor's Island.

While Max feels no need to apologize for his commercial success, it may have hindered his acceptance as a serious artist, said Gerrit Henry, a freelance art critic who has researched a book on the

"I think he's haunted by his success a bit, by his popular success, and he now wants to be a serious artist," Henry said. "He should be taken seriously. He's got a talent and it shouldn't be

A popular artist such as Peter Max often has trouble cracking the world of fine arts, Henry said. "He has to live it down a little bit to gain credibility in the hoity-toity art world's eyes."

So Max continues to paint, wielding his brush spontaneously, waiting to see what will emerge on the canvas.

"There's always a joy in the next stroke," he said, and his best paintings give him a glimpse into another, more mystical

"There is a higher thing guiding it all the time. I'm sort of being a witness to it," Max said. "If it wants to come out, I'm there for it.'

Poet returns home

By JEFF BAENEN Associated Press Writer

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - Before his protest songs became the soundtrack of the 1960s, Bob Dylan was a shy, small-town Minnesota boy who wrote poetry and pounded rock 'n' roll on the piano.

"He was a dreamer, like he was way out. He kept to himself," said Dylan's godfather, George Berman of Duluth. "He was writing poetry when he was 10 or 12 years old."

Dylan returned Thursday night for his first concert in his home state in eight years. He performed at the Metrodome in Minneapolis with Tom Petty and the Heart-breakers and the Grateful Dead. Their eight-week concert tour got off to a rousing start in San Diego

The older of two sons, Dylan was born Robert Allen Zimmerman 45 years ago in Duluth. When he was 6, his family moved to Hibbing. a mining town on northeastern Minnesota's Iron Range. It was there that Dylan showed a penchant for hammering the piano.

"He was into pretty heavy rock 'n' roll," said Hibbing Mayor Dick Nordvold, who attended high school with Dylan and graduated the year after he did.

In 1959 Dylan was kicked off the stage of Hibbing High School by the stage manager after the young musician broke the soundboard of a Steinway during a talent show rehearsal. He was doing an impersonation of one of his heroes, Little Richard, the flamboyant 1950s rock star known for his pounding piano him and were excited by his music," Nordvold said of Dylan. 'His audience was screaming right along with him." Music and poetry were Dylan's main interests as a youngster.

"Bob was quiet, retiring," said Berman's wife, Betty. "He always showed an interest in writing short stories, poems. He'd write poems to his grandmother who he vas very devoted to."

"He's always put everything into a beautiful rhyme," said Dylan's 71-year-old mother, Beatty.

After high school, Dylan attended the University of Minnnesota and played guitar in local coffeehouses. He changed his name one night before going on at the Scholar, a former Minneapolis coffeehouse.

He dropped out of college and moved to New York, where he honed the rough brand of singing and harmonica playing that became his trademark.

His first album, "Bob Dylan," was released in March 1962 and featured folk songs done in the style of Woody Guthrie, Dylan's idol. It also included a tune Dylan wrote, "Song to Woody.

Dylan had read Guthrie's memoir about depression-era America, "Bound for Glory," and he developed a deep attachment. Dylan made frequent visits to Guthrie when the legendary folk singer was hospitalized in New Jersey with Huntington's Disease.

A moral urgency crept into Dylan's music by the time his second LP, "The Freewheelin' Bob

"There were many that liked Dylan," came out. He sang against war and injustice with such songs "Blowin' in the Wind, "Masters of War" and "A Hard Rain's A-Gonna Fall." They became anthems of protest for the '60s. As did "The Times They Are A-Changin'," the title song of his third LP released in However, said Nordvold, "The Bobby Zimmerman I knew was the clean-cut, all-American kid, hardly the protester." Nearly 25 years later, Dylan's 28 albums have sold more than 35 million copies. He has started his first U.S. tour in five years after appearing at last year's Live Aid and Farm Aid concerts.

"He happened to be in the right place at the right time at his age," his mother said. "If he didn't have something to say, he wouldn't be here today.

"I think Bob would have done very well in anything he chose to. He's a worker and he knows how to work.'

Critics have tried to analyze Dylan's enigmatic lyrics. They've also tried to analyze the singer who has experimented with different musical styles - folk, rock, country, gospel - and religions.

Born a Jew, Dylan found Jesus in 1979 and converted to Christianity. He's now reportedly studying Orthodox Judaism. Although known for his reclusiveness. Dylan occasionally visits Hibbing, where his late father, Abe, ran an appliance and furniture store. His mother, who has remarried, lives in St. Paul.

results. Show you are indeed devoted to this person.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Even though impulsive, this may be the best way to gain a personal wish that has been eluding you and you gain it.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Bring your fine inventive ideas to the attention of an important person. Eajoy your family at home this evening.

Enjoy your family at home this evening.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Make those changes that appeal to you and get the right results. Don't argue with someone who is trying to help you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have a practical idea that should be discussed with a bigwig and gain backing for it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You can easily gain the assistance of a brilliant person to make your finest dreams materialize.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be more enthused about the work you are

SCORPEO (OCt. 23 to Nov. 21) Be more enthused about the work you are doing, and look for new gadgets that can increase your efficiency. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get into some hobby that you and your friends like and enjoy it very much. Try to be more acomomical. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You can easily change the situation at home can easily change the situation at home which does not please you and in the evening, do nothing that can irk your family.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Peb. 19) Look into new outlets that can be more pro-ductive during the daytime, but in the evening, don't let a secret anxiety upset

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can find more modern ways of gaining a greater abundance new, and in the evening, steef cler of pals who could cause you to spend unwisely. IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TO

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN IVE DAY...he or she will have every ability in understanding anything of a modern nature and how best to make them operate. An early start with the career is to be encouraged since the greatest productivity can come early in life. "The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, JUNE 30, 1986 GENERAL TEMPENCHES: Both today and tonight bring delays in your desires. Practical effects from your interests are important.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Pushing your ideas won't work. Avoid forceful friends. Steer clear of someone you owe

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Do nothing about limitations placed upon you. Don't be demanding. Exercise a lot

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Avoid annoying individuals. Be calm at night to help your possibly distressed mate.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Check worldly plans to avoid making errors later. Use care in going after personal gains.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) A newcomer could give you wrong information, so check on it. Have respect for higher-ups

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Business affairs are a little difficult to handle. Forget this. Be more concerned with your mate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Situations today may test your patience. It may be hard to keep any promises you make. Be happy at home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find a better way of improving morning routines. Don't argue with partner or co-worker. Avoid trouble.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)

Energy can make some project work well. Soothe an irate co-worker. Do the same with your mate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Strive for a more pleasant home situation. Make it more attractive and have some fun there.

AQUARTUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Soothe a troubled person you are corresponding with. Not a good evening for home entertainment.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Put aside financial affairs today. Take care that you don't have an argument with a neighbor later.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TO-DAY...he or she should have a thorough education, slanted along lines of investigation. Your progeny tends to be impulsive in the early years, so see to it that the diet is right and health habits are good.

Unknown pulls big upset

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Ramesh Krishnan, the son of a Wimbledon semifinalist, added to the list of early round upsets at this year's tennis championships today when he defeated eighth-seeded Joakim Nystrom of Sweden 6-7, 6-2,

Top seeds Ivan Lendl and Martina Navratilova easily advanced unusually warm day, Lendl into the fourth round on the men's side and Navratilova into the third round on the women's.

Other seeds advancing included defending champion Boris Becker of West Germany, American Tim Mayotte and West German Claudia Kohde-Kilsch.

Lendl, seeking his first major grass-court championship, defeated Amos Mansdorf of Israel 6-2, 6-4, 6-4, Navratilova, after her fifth consecutive women's title at Wimbledon, breezed past Jane Forman of the United States 6-0, 6-4. And Becker completed a match suspended Thursday because of darkness, beating American Tom Gullickson 6-4 6-3 6-2

Mayotte, the men's 10th seed. beat Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia 6-4, 6-2, 2-6, 6-2, in a third-round match, and Kohde-Kilsch, the women's fourth seed, defeated Alycia Moulton of the United States 6-2, 6-2, in the second

Also winning second-round matches were women's seeds Manuela Maleeva, No. 8 from Bulgaria, who beat Susan Mascarin of the United States 6-4, 7-6; Gabriela Sabatini, Catherine Suire of France 6-3, 6-3; and Catarina Lindqvist, No. 15 from Sweden, who beat Helen Kelesi of Canada 6-3, 3-6, 6-1.

But Nystrom, more comfortable on clay courts than the fast grass courts of Wimbledon, fell to the serve-and-volley game of Krishnan. His loss meant that half of the 16 men's seeds had been eliminated in the first three Krishnan's father Ramanathan Krishnan, reached the semifinals at Wimbledon in 1960 and 1961, and helped his son get interested in tennis. He was in the crowd at Centre

Court for the victory Friday. Playing on an outside court. Navratilova made short work of Forman on an afternoon where a heat wave, London style, had fans, players and the courts baking.

On Thursday, two seeded players from Sweden, No. 2 Mats Wilander and No. 5 Stefan Edberg, called on their experience and staying power to advance.

Seven other men's seeds, including Sweden's Anders Jarryd, have tumbled out of the tourney. But Wilander and Edberg are still there, along with fellow Swedes vstrom and Mike Joakim N Pernfors.

Wilander beat Britain's Andrew Castle 4-6, 7-6, 6-7, 6-4, 6-0 and only got in front in the final set.

Edberg, the reigning Australian Open champion, trailed 2-1 in sets in a see-saw second-round match before edging American Paul Annacone 6-4, 6-7, 4-6, 7-5, 6-0.

Castle is the product of the American college system and his only claim to fame back home was winning the British Under-12 title Wilander was thankful that, for him, the tournament hadn't come to yet another premature end. The Swede has never advanced further than the fourth round in five previous visits.

Wilander will meet 20-year-old Australian Mark Kratzmann, No. 6

Wanda Driver gives Big Spring a winner!

Six of the top ten bullriders in the world were on hand for Friday's night's rodeo, but the highlight of the third night's action was local cowgirl Wanda Driver's win in the barrel racing.

Driver blazed across the finish line in 17.21 seconds, slapping her horse with the reigns for an exciting stretch run that had the fans cheering. Driver was the second to race, but her time stood up for the win. Mitzi Mayes of Manor had a 17.25 for second place, and Mason's Wanda Bush's time of 17.65 was good for second.

The bull riding again provided the crowd with the excitement they came for. Cowboys twice got thrown and caught up in their ropes. Both appeared in serious danger, and both were saved by the clowns. Clown Michael Horton took a beating helping Chris Norman. who was being thrown about like a rag doll by Bad to the Bone.

Ricky Bolin of Mesquite won the night's bull riding with an 80. Rockdale, Louisiana's David FourSharp of Odessa was third with a Coahoma's Wacey Cathey received what was surely the biggest hand of the night, and the crowd was obviously disappointed with the judge's score of 72.

For the third night, the steers proved too elusive for most of the team ropers. Earl and Marty Acton from Ozona won with a 9.2 second roping, the only penalty-free run of the night. Mitch Copps of Dilley and John Wood of Midland were second with a 13.2, and a 13.3 from Mike Craddock of Medina and Glyn Hutto of Vanderpool was good for Big Springers E.P. and Skipper Driver were hurt by a five second penalty for a one heel rope, but were in the money until the last team edged them from the third spot. Toots Mansfield and Kenny Thomas were among the many who couldn't find the horns.

Mike Murphy of Corrigan won the calf roping in 11.5 seconds, and Colorado finished third with a 70.

nier's 75 was second, and Jim Bronte's Jeff Waldrop was close behind with a 12.2. Mike Lansford of Huntsville finished third with a 12.7 second run.

In rodeo's classic event, the saddle bronc riding, James Stewart of Andrews and Jim Sharp of Odessa both had high scores of 72. Dug Dugan of Azle and Tuff Hedeman of El Paso were given scores of 69 to tie for third.

Only three cowboys managed to wrestle their steers to the ground, as many of last night's steers took off too fast for the wrestlers to have a chance. Hereford's Steve McConnel won with a 7.1 second time, and Steve Bland of Trent was close behind with a 7.5. Stetson Lewis of Colorado City struggled mightily to bring down a big black steer, and finally did for a 13.3 second third place time.

Three Colorado cowboys finished one, two, three in the bareback bronc riding. Tied for first with 71's were R.C. Patterson of Kim, Colorado and Jeff Hart from Laporte, Colorado. Layne Morris of Wayne,

That is the plan revealed by Coach Carlos Bilardo as his team prepared for Sunday's World Cup final.

More than 200 reporters have flocked to the Argentine camp at the Club America sports complex on the outskirts of Mexico City in the days between the semifinals and championship game. They have come to pursue Bilardo and his players with a wide variety

The 45-year-old coach said his team was "technically and mentally prepared to beat the Germans, but we have to be very alert because we're dealing with a complicated enemy.

"The (West German) team always appears to have problems, but the hour of truth comes in the final." Bilardo said. "They work well together as a team. They're strong, vigorous and great athletes.'

Bilardo said he had "no worry at all" about the possibility of tight, man-to-man coverage on star forward Diego Maradona.

Clemens ups record to 15-0

Red Sox hurler within one win of record start

By The Associated Press

Unbeaten Roger Clemens, despit giving up two homers to Eddie Murray, won his 14th game Friday night and moved within one victory of the American League record for victories at the start of a season.

Clemens allowed seven hits and struck out 11 batters while pitching into the ninth inning as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Baltimore Orioles 5-3 in front of 52,159 fans at Memorial Stadium.

Only two AL pitchers — Dave McNally of Baltimore in 1969 and Cleveland's Johnny Allen in 1937 have ever started a season 15-0. The major-league record of 19 was set by Rube Marquard of the New York Giants in 1912.

In other AL games, it was Detroit 4. Milwaukee 2 in 11 innings; Minnesota 6, Kansas City 4; and Toronto 14, New York 7. Chicago was at Oakland, Texas at Seattle and Cleveland at California in West Coast night games.

In the National League, it was Pittsburgh 7, Montreal 1; Atlanta 5, San Diego 4; and Houston 5, Los Angeles 0. San Francisco at Cincinnati and Philadelphia at St. Louis were in extra innings and the New York-Chicago game was rained

Clemens walked Murray for his first walk of the game leading off the ninth and Cal Ripken followed with a single. Clemens then was relieved by Joe Sambito, who got one out before Bob Stanley forced a double-play grounder for his 12th

Clemens raised his AL-leading strikeout total to 125. He gave up only two earned runs, and kept the league's best earned-run average

Ken Dixon, 6-6, blanked the Red Sox until the sixth, when they scored three runs on consecutive RBI singles by Bill Buckner, Jim Rice and Don Baylor. Tony Armas hit his second homer off reliever Rich Bordi in the seventh for Boston.

NATIONAL LEAGUE Astros 5, Dodgers 0

Major-league strikeout leader Mike Scott pitched a two-hitter and struck out 11, leading Houston over Los Angeles

The only hits Scott, 7-5, allowed were singles by Ken Landreaux in the first and fourth innings. The right-hander, who now has 148 strikeouts, finished strong, retiring the last 16 batters he faced. Bill Doran and Kevin Bass homered for the Astros.

Pirates 7, Expos 1 Johnnie Ray's two-run double hightlighted a seven-run sixth inning as the Pittsburgh Pirates snapped a four-game losing streak by defeating Montreal

Rick Rhoden, 8-4, pitched a fivehitter and struck out a career-high 11 hatters for his sixth victory in his last seven decisions

Braves 5, Padres 4 Ozzie Virgil drove in Atlanta's winning run with a sacrifice fly in the eighth inning against Virgil's fly ball to medium center knocked in Dale Murphy, who earlier hit a three-run homer for the Braves. The winner was Gene Garber, 4-1, who got the final four outs after allowing a two-run single to Garry Templeton in the top of the eighth that tied the score.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Tigers 4, Brewers 2 Kirk Gibson hit a two-run homer into the right-field roof seats in the 11th inning, giving Detroit its victory over Milwaukee.

Gibson's homer off Dan Plesac, 4-5, made a winner of Willie Hernandez, 3-3, who took over for Tigers starter Frank Tanana at the start of the ninth. Twins 6. Royals 4

Kent Hrbek's RBI triple sparked Minnesota's three-run first inning, then the Twins survived a four-run Kansas City ninth to defeat the Mike Smithson, 7-6, allowed eight hits over 8 1-3 innings after taking a three-hit shutout into the ninth.
