Clerk Ray tells of advances

By SCOTT FITZGERALD Staff Writer

Howard County clerk Margaret Ray, recently honored as clerk of the year by the County and District Clerk's Association of Texas, has seen a lot of changes during her 33 vears of county service.

"We didn't even have air conditioning," she said about working in the old Howard County courthouse. The old building was torn down when the present courthouse was erected in 1952, the same year she began working in the county clerk's office.

Ray said one change she considers a blessing is the advancement of technology with photocopying methods.

'That machine (Photostat) was a monstrosity," Ray said about the unit that use to be located in the county courthouse basement.

Every Friday, Ray said she laboriously took the machine apart to clean it. The following Monday, she would pour chemicals from large vats into the machine for another week's service.

The machine was removed from the basement in 1967 because parts were no longer available, she said. It wasn't until 1967 that her job of recording court documents on an old Photostat was eliminated with the arrival of new Xerox equipment.

The Xerox photocopying method enabled documents to be recorded in narrower books. Stacking two thinner books on the shelf instead of a cumbersome and bulky volume freed more office space, she said.

"We would have run out of space long before we did," Ray said. The updated methods of recording documents helped keep abreast of the larger volume of work at the office.

'We have a bigger volume of work. We have to do a lot more

"We collected $138,603 in court costs for 1985," Ray added. Even though an increase in the county's population has not occurred, an increased amount of ex-ing transfer of liens has also lead to the increased volume of work.

'As time goes on, there will be more reportings and more tasks to fulfill," Ray said. "Our challenge is to be a better office than we were

Although some Texas cities are having problems getting liability insurance for fireworks, that is not the case in Big Spring, said chamber executive vice president LeRoy Tillery.

John Richard Sparks, who is in charge of the celebration, is already insured, Tillery said.

"Since he's in the business of doing fireworks, it's easier for him to get insurance," he said.

Settlers reunion cancelled

By SPENCER SANDOW Staff Writer

The 62nd annual Howard County Old Settlers Reunion scheduled for Aug. 1. has been cancelled because of a lack of money, reunion president Pat McNew said Saturday. "If something would come up" the reunion could still be held, but "right now I don't see any way,"

The group needs $3,500 to pay for food, the band, the dance hall and hired help, McNew said.

The funds for holding the reunion have in the past come from private donations, she said. But big contributors, especially oil companies, say the economy is too sour this year to donate any money to the reunion, she said.

"I sure hate to see it not go on," right." McNew said she has been involved with the reunions since she was a young girl.

But the group's vice president, Mac Underwood, is not giving up.

'I'm going to do my best to save it," he said. "I'm going to see how many people I can find that think it can still be done in time. We still own a lot of the equipment.

"I've heard people say, 'for goodness sakes, don't let it drop. It's the longest-running thing in Howard County.

Most of the money donated buys some 200 meals, given away free to people over 70, he said. Some 250-300 people usually attend the reunions, he said.

The food used to be cooked by volunteers, who would stay up all night to prepare it. But most of them died, he said, and the group had trouble finding new cooks.

So three to four years ago, she said. "It just won't seem organizers began having it catered, which added to the cost. A lot of the settlers have been in the county since the 1890s, Underwood said. Prizes are given for the oldest native at the reunion and the one that has travelled the furthest.

Underwood remembers the first reunion, held in 1924. He was 10 years old, and he helped serve tea. He has been vice president for five

'When I lived in California, I planned my vacation around it so I could be here," he said. That was during the 1950s when Underwood said he won several of the furthest distance travelled awards.

The first reunions were held in an old cottonwood park near where College Park now stands, he said. adding that it was "the biggest shade there was in the county. Now the reunions are held at the Old Settlers Pavillion at Comanche Trail Park. Although the reunion has been called off this year, there's still hope for next year, McNew said.

Blacks gain GOP strength Hispanics present a united front

DALLAS (AP) - Black Republicans, once a political rarity in Texas, are gaining a higher profile in the party, although they haven't made the kind of gains enjoyed by Hispanics, black leaders said Saturday.

At the state GOP convention here this weekend, Hispanics are presenting a united front, riding the momentum of attorney general candidate Roy Barrera's highprofile campaign.

'We have the typical problems. In Dallas there are about 250 black Republicans. You don't see a one here this morning. They didn't have one candidate running (for statewide office). That's part of our problem," said Reby Cary, president of the Black Republicans Council of Texas.

disgrace to the legal profession. "I am going to bring you the political skin of Jim Mattox," he vowed.

Barrera said Mattox has accused him of not being a "real Mexican."

'Well, Mr. Mattox, come November, this jalapeno pepper is going to burn your buns," he said, drawing a hearty bout of applause.

At Saturday's black caucus, Cary said one of the council's problems was that it wasn't aware of some blacks campaigning in the

He said the scant attendance was partly due to the busy convention schedule and also to the fact that some black Republicans choose not to affiliate with the council.

'There are some brothers right here at this convention who said, 'I don't want to be part of this caucus,' " Cary said. They want to be recognized just as Republicans.

But he said black Republicans must recognize they do have special concerns

We have to set up the mechanism," said Jim Bowie, an alternate delegate. "I don't worry about them (whites) keeping me out because legally they can't do that. We need as a group to have one objective."

A sell-out audience of more than 1,600 people gave a thunderous standing ovation to the Italian opera company and Pavarotti, who sang the role of the young writer Rodolfo — the part he made his debut in 25 years ago in Italy.

Italian soprano Fiamma Izzo D'amico, 21, one of the singers Pavarotti helped pick in an international voice competition last fall in Philadelphia, sang the part of Mimi, Rodolfo's doomed lover.

Pavarotti, 51, performing in China for the first time, gave a solo recital Tuesday to an ecstatic audience and was scheduled to give another after three more performances in "La Boheme."

He and his entourage of more than 200 people will travel to other Chinese cities, but will not perform outside the capital. They were invited by the government.

AUSTIN (AP) — State Sen. Carl Parker, who maintains he has been victimized by the present grand jury system, says he will propose changes in the grand jury system to the 1987 Legislature.

The Port Arthur Democrat testified Friday before a House subcommittee examining grand jury procedures.

Parker was indicted in 1984 and 1985 on charges that included perjury, distribution of cocaine and promotion of obscenity and prostitution. Those indictments eventually were dismissed and a third grand jury refused to indict him again.

Parker told the subcommittee he believes there are areas of grand jury abuse that can be corrected through procedural changes. But many of those proposed changes were killed during the 1985 legislative session.

Parker said his first goal would be to allow a witness to bring his attorney with him when appearing before a grand jury. Now, attorneys must remain outside the

Forecast

By The Associated Press

West Texas - West Texas should have mostly sunny days and fair nights through Monday with scattered thunderstorms. Lows will drop to the upper 60s and climb to near 100 in the afternoon. In South Texas, skies will be partly cloudy through Monday with widely scattered thunderstorms in the southeast. Lows will be in the 70s and 80s, with highs in the 80s and 90s.

Strong thunderstorms developed over Northeast Texas and along the Red River Saturday, prompting the National Weather Service to issue a severe thunderstorm warning and flash flood watch.

Meanwhile, other showers and thunderstorms hit the Big Bend area. A southerly wind continued to pump hot moist air into the state, which had mostly fair skies elsewhere. High temperatures were mainly in the 90s, with a few readings in the 80s in far West Texas. Extremes at 3 p.m. were 74 degrees at Texarkana and 99 degrees at Childress and McAllen. The wind was generally from the south or southwest at 10 miles an hour. Gusty winds blew in the area of thunderstorms and a light and variable wind hit far West Texas.

The North Texas forecast calls for a slight chance of thunderstorms on Sunday. Otherwise, it will be fair with hot afternoons through Monday. Overnight lows will be in the 70s with afternoon highs in the 90s.

Reagan attacks

House-passed trade legisation today as a throwback to the era of protectionism and complained it would hamper his power to deal with foreign nations in trade

Reagan, in his weekly radio address delivered from his mountaintop California ranch, appeared to aim his appeal at the Republicancontrolled Senate, which is likely to consider the House-passed bill this summer. In recent weeks, Reagan aides have said the president was almost sure to veto the measure. The president said the measure would ignite a trade war, destroy export markets and eliminate jobs. "The danger is approaching.

Should this bill become law, foreign governments would respond and soon the vicious cycle of trade barriers would jeopardize our hard-won economic prosperi-

"The pattern is exactly the one you see in those pie fights in the old Hollywood comedies. Everything and everybody just gets messier and messier," said the president, a former Hollywood star.

The difference here is, that it's not funny. It's tragic. Protectionism becomes destructionism. It costs jobs," Reagan warned.

Four Germans attend Spring City Rodeo

If you heard people speaking German at the rodeo this year, it was not your immagination. It was likely four members of the Lazy-S Western Club of Oerlinghausen, West Germany

Ewe Baumert, Lisa Aurenhammer. Michael Ludemann and Andre Eweler timed their Sesquicentennial tour of Texas to coincide with the Big Spring celebration. They landed in Texas June 12 and have been touring the southwest part of the state.

Lazy-S, or Long S, was the brand of the legendary C.C. Slaughter

Ranch that spread from north of Big Spring into New Mexico in the 1890s, encompassing more than a million acres at one time.

Several years ago, Baumert wrote the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce that the Lazy-S Western Club had been formed in Oerlinghausen. The letter was referred to Joe Pickle, who assured Baumert that no copywrite infringement existed from using the old ranch name and supplied her with information about the historic ranch.

A correspondence began, and Pickle suggested that if any of the club members planned to come to the U.S., the Sesquicentennial would be a good time for the visit.

Eight killed in wreck

RAPID CITY, S.D. — Two cars and a van pulling a boat collided in a fiery crash, killing eight people, seven from the same family, officials said Saturday

Police believe the cars collided and the van crashed into them on a state highway near Hermosa late Friday, about 20 miles south of Rapid City, said David Hodgson, a paramedic acting as Pennington County deputy coroner. The seven related victims, from Rapid City, were all in one car, while one person from out of state died in the second car, he said. Two people in the van were treated at the scene. Names of the victims were not immediately

100 protest clinic

CINCINNATI (AP) - About 100 antiabortion protesters marched outside an abortion clinic on Saturday, and 21 people were arrested for violating a court order that limited picketing of the center.

Two hours after the demonstration began across the street from the Sanger Center, run by Planned Parenthood of Cincinnati, about two dozen protesters crossed the street, prompting the arrests.

Hamilton County Common Pleas Judge Thomas Crush earlier this year limited picketing immediately outside the clinic to no more than five people after Planned Parenthood officials claimed the pickets were harassing patients. Seven people, some of whom were arrested Saturday, were charged with contempt of court earlier in the week for violating Crush's order on June 21.

Army unit to keep tabs

NEW YORK (AP) — Administration officials plan to send the Army's anti-terrorist Delta Force to New York out of concern that terrorists might find the Liberty Weekend festivities an inviting target, a newspaper reported Saturday.

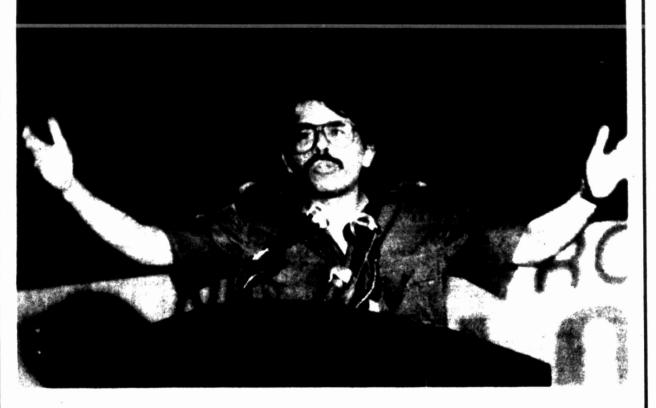

The New York Times quoted officials as saying it was a good idea to have members of the force present for the Statue of Liberty centennial events, July 3-6, in case they are needed to rescue hostages or counter a terrorist attack.

The soldiers, based at Fort Bragg, N.C., would be held on alert and not on the streets, it

Ortega condemns House vote for Contra aid

By ANDREW SELSKY Associated Press Writer

MANAGUA, Nicaragua - The vote by the U.S. House of Representatives to send $100 million in aid to Nicaraguan rebels is a "declaration of war by the United States against Nicaragua," according to President Daniel Ortega.

'War ... will be met by war," he told an estimated 20,000 people at a rally Friday night in Managua's Ana Maria Plaza.

He said his Sandinista government "has the right, the moral obligation, to give to the Nicaraguan people all the arms necessary to defend the revolution.' Ortega's speech was frequently interrupted by chants of "Here, there, the Yankees will die."

The House on Wednesday approved President Reagan's request for $70 million in military assistance and $30 million in non-lethal aid for the rebels, known as Contras. The Senate earlier approved its own version of the aid package.

Ortega also praised a decision by the International Court of Justice condemning U.S. support for the rebels. The court, based in the Hague, ruled Friday that the U.S. aid was a violation of international law. The court "has indicated with all clarity who is the assassin, who is at fault, and has pointed to the government of the United States for its terrorist policy against Nicaragua," Ortega said.

In its ruling, the court also said the United States must pay reparations to Nicaragua.

The decision ended 26 months of court proceedings, which the United States announced in January 1985 it would ignore. The court, an agency of the United Nations, has no enforcement powers and depends on voluntary compliance with its rulings.

Ortega said that in the five years the rebels have been battling the government, 14,000 fighters on both sides have been killed. "Of that number, 4,303 were combatants defending the fatherland" and the others were rebels. He made no mention of civilian

The Sandinistas came to power in July 1979 after defeating the rightist government of President Anastasio Somoza

Ortega defended his government's decision Thursday to close La Prensa, Nicaragua's only opposition newspaper, and to strictly enforce the 4-year-old state of emergency

"There is too much blood, pain and sacrifice to remain tolerant of those who ... in the name of pluralism and freedom of the press, try to open an internal front in favor of aggression," he said

Ortega added that if Reagan "has so much love for the newspaper La Prensa, for some political groups, private enterprise or for some cardinal or bishop, he should stop his hostilities against Nicaragua.

A number of Roman Catholic church leaders, including Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, the archbishop of Managua, and Bishop Pablo Antonio Vega in central Chontales province, have frequently criticized the government.

25,000 seek sanctions

LONDON - Tens of thousands of people demonstrated peacefully Sunday in favor of using economic sanctions to pressure South Africa's white leaders to end apartheid.

The protesters listened to speeches in Hyde Park, then marched en masse to Clapham Common, about four miles away, for a sevenhour rock concert to benefit the anti-apartheid campaign. Boy George, Elvis Costello, Billy Bragg and Sade were among the scheduled performers.

Police estimated that 25,000 people took part in the rally. The Anti-Apartheid Movement, which organized the demonstration, put the number at 100,000.

"This demonstration has been organized to put pressure on the British government and the EEC (the European Economic Community, or Common Market) to bring in total economic sanctions against South Africa.

Spain bombing kills 1

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain - Three bombs set off by remote control exploded on a road near this northern Basque city Saturday, killing one member of the Civil Guard and wounding six, four of them seriously, police said.

No group claimed responsibility, but authorities blamed ETA, the Basque guerrilla group fighting for an independent Basque state in three northern provinces.

U.S. soldier killed

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras — A Honduran soldier who killed one U.S. Army sergeant and wounded another during military maneuvers said Saturday that he defended himself after the two attacked him.

Miguel Angel Castro Flores, 24, told reporters that the Americans grabbed him while he was filling his canteen with water from a river.

"A little after that, they tied me up with my own shirt and a towel so they could ... hit me without justification," Castro Flores said in an interview at the Juticalpa jail where he is being held.

According to a U.S. account, the Honduran attacked his captors with a knife on June 21 during joint U.S.-Honduran war games. It said the Americans were escorting the Honduran to a detention point after taking him prisoner in the maneuvers near Juticalpa, 125 miles east of Tegucigalpa. The U.S. Army identified the slain American as Staff Sgt. Timothy D. Hudgens, 28, of Morristown, Tenn.

Tower leaning more

PISA, Italy — The Leaning Tower of Pisa tilted nearly 2 millimeters (.08 inches) in the past year, one of the biggest increases recorded, a professor said Saturday. "The change was unexpected," said Geri an average of a little more than 1 millimeter (.04 inches) a year, but it slowed in recent years, said Gero.

Revitalization must be within

We're concerned that some local citizens may not have a realististic idea of what can be accomplished by the revitalization program planned by the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce.

We suspect some residents have a misconception about how the program will work.

As we understand it, the plan is to improve the appearance of the downtown area — to make it more attractive. It addition, we understand it will help property owners to remodel and renovate, both to improve present facilities and to attract occupants to vacant properties.

The desired result, of course, is to attract more patrons to sustain more businesses and offices in the downtown area. We believe all that can be accomplished.

But if local citizens think it will be done by luring new businesses and light manufacturing from outside this area, we believe they need to think again. Revitalization of the downtown area will be accomplished as a result of local commitments first — not by commitments

It will require commitment by people in this area who open or develop specialty shops, restaurants, entertainment parlors and professional offices in the downtown area.

The professional offices should involve attorneys, doctors and dentists, accountants, stock brokers, architects and engineers.

National trends during the past couple decades have shown that these are the types of operations that provide revitalization to downtown areas — not businesses that are lured in from elsewhere.

When Big Spring is successful at attracting some large employers, they probably won't locate in the downtown area.

And businesses that are lured to the downtown from outside this area most likely will be attracted because the revitalization already is in progress — because the local commitments had been made and the appropriate atmosphere

We're concerned that some people may be putting the cart before the horse — believing that operations will be lured here simply because revitalization is being discussed and planned. Seldom does that happen.

We believe that Troy Fraser, although he lost the mayor's race, made the right observation when he noted that 80 percent of a community's development occurs as a result of actions by the people already within the area.

The heyday of large retail outlets downtown is gone. It has been replaced with businesses opened by local people who provide services that they know the community must have. That's how the revitalization will happen.

Unemployment statistics only paint partial picture

By DARRELL BERKHEIMER Almost every time I read about the national and state unemployment rates, I get disgusted.

I get disgusted because I know that the statistics compiled and reported by our state and federal governments fail to tell the complete picture.

That's simply because most of us have trouble relating cold numbers to warm bodies.

To many of us, it means little whether the unemployment rate is 12.7 percent or 8.3 percent unless we're involved personally or emotionally.

What we seek to know, of course, is a comparison — whether unemployment is going up or coming down. Because it's the only simple gauge we have for understanding the jobs market.

Even when one of us or a close friend is unemployed, the jobless rate still has little significance to our personal and emotional situation. For instance, when a neighbor is unemployed, does it make him feel any better to hear that the national or state unemployment rate has dropped? Probably not, because his situa-

It might raise his spirits, however, if he is in the depths of a depression and is searching for any tidbit of good news. Then news that the jobless rate is dropping might hint that his situation is better than hopeless.

know — because I was in that situation one time.

Meanwhile, if another neighbor has a good job, does it make her sad if she sees the unemployment rate rising?

Probably not, unless she thinks her own job is threatened if the rate continues to climb. Our interest in the jobless rate is no different than anything else. It rises and falls in direct proportion to our personal involvement in unemployment. And there lies the reason for my

I think all of us — particularly those with good jobs - periodically need to be shaken from our complacency into realizing that the jobless statistics are real people, not just numbers.

These are people struggling to pay bills with little or no income. Even if they know they have a check coming this week or this month - from unemployment benefits or a temporary job pay the rent or buy food next week or next month Government statistics just can convey such considerations. But that isn't all that prompts my dismay

Government statistics fail to tell us the complete picture because the numbers are incomplete. They include only those who filed for unemployment benefits.

Perhaps you've heard someone ask: "What about the folks who have used all of their benefits and no longer bother to file?'

Don't large groups of such people artificially lower the jobless rate when they're no longer counted?

I want to know the answers to those questions. And I wonder if the find a way to include such people in the statistics.

state or federal government can't

In addition, I want to know how many dependents are affected by bread-winners who are out of work. Can't the government get that information whenever someone files for benefits?

Only when we include such data can we get a truer picture of how many people actually are affected by the unemployment situation.

Even then we still need something to help us comprehend the frustration experienced by someone who can't find a job. One of the best efforts I've seen at doing just that came from Louis

L'Amour, the Western writer, in his book "Bendigo Shafter."

Bendigo, the hero, is listening to another man tell his story as they struggle together with adversity.

"It's my fault," the man says. "I wanted to come out West. Pa said I was a fool, and my wife didn't want to leave. I just figured I'd do better. wasn't making anything back there, just workin' sunup to sundown."

"It will be the same here," Bendigo tells him. "Wherever a man is, there is work to do. That's the best part of it.'

"The best part?" questioned the

'The very best part," responds Bendigo.

'My friend," Bendigo adds, 'there is a hell. It's when a man has a family to support, has his health, and is ready to work, and there is no work to do. When he stands with empty hands and sees his children going hungry, and his wife without the things to do with. I hope you never have to try it.'

Democrats facing loss of Hispanics

A number of befuddling factors surrounding the Mark White-forgovernor campaign need resolution — not the least of which is a lack of co-ordination regarding the South Texas, mostly Hispanic,

The result of the disorganization is that the spectacular outpouring of voters in 1982 is not likely to be repeated

Without another record turnout among Mexican-Americans in November throughout the state but specifically in South Texas

White simply stands only to lose. A half-hearted attempt to replicate the 1982 effort orchestrated by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and to focus on this major bloc of voters was conducted two weeks ago, with the major Democratic campaigns represented.

But only two Mexican-Americans and a third, who did not stay through the whole time, were invited to attend the meeting. Others — with experience the like of which can make or break campaigns in South Texas - were ignored

The 1982 campaign included Mexican-Americans handling the South Texas region for every major candidate. These organizers met every week, kneading their efforts into the larger campaigns. The result was the greatest outpouring ever of Mexican-American Democrats at the polls.

But this is not the case this time around.

This short-sightedness comes at a time when two major, potentially distruptive forces are at work to unhinge the Mexican-American vote from its traditionally Democratic moorings.

The obvious, of course, is the candidacy of San Antonio District Judge Roy Barrera Jr., whom the Republicans have made their nominee for attorney general. The guessing game as to how many votes Barrera will peel from the Democratic totals in November started the night of his smashing victory in the Republican runoff election.

In contrast to the Barrera candidacy, the Democratic leadership lags in marshalling the votes which could make the difference again for White in his rematch with former governor Bill Clements.

These short-term thinkers within the Democratic Party leadership may be overshadowed in the long run by extensive but discrete Republican efforts to recruit Hispanics into their party.

In a manner similar to a highly successful effort in California, the Texas Republican party has targeted 50 Hispanics to bring into the GOP camp for possible leadership positions

In contrast, state Democratic party officials continue to count on the amalgam of separate interest groups to serve as the arenas in which Mexican-Americans show off their wares

In fact, White's top political operative in South Texas is not a Mexican-American. Subsequently, more than a few significant office holders in heavily Hispanic areas are totally unexcited about the governor's race — creating the possibility of a downward drag on the rest of the ticket.

If the state Democratic leadership had engaged in leadership building programs years ago, their present predicament with Barrera's candidacy might be more manageable.

Supreme Court Judge Raul Gonzalez, for example, would have had the political muscle to ward off potential challengers before the filing deadline for the May primary election. As it was, Gonzalez eked out a victory in a runoff while Barrera soared to victory.

If I am correct in assessing a distinct lack of interest in the coming general election similar to the yawns we saw in the primary elections in May, then what we may be seeing is the Democratic party sinking below an invisible but important threshold of support in the minds of many Mexican-

BRIONI, Yugoslavia (AP) — Most of OPEC's 13 members agreed Saturday to cut the cartel's overall oil production in order to push prices up to at least $17 a barrel, but three dissenters blocked a final accord, officials said.

Oil ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said they would try again Sunday a unanimous decision. Still ... resolved was the even stickier question of how any overall produc-tion ceiling would divided among "The road is still full of stones and holes," said Mana Saeed Oteiba, the oil minister of the United Arab Emirates.

Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, said most ministers agreed OPEC should limit its production to 17.4 million barrels a day this summer and 17.9 million barrels a day during the year's final quarter.

The aim would be to drive prices up to a range of $17 to $19 a barrel and keep them there for about two years, Yamani said.

OPEC's current production rate of about 19 million barrels a day has helped keep prices at the depressed level of $11 to $14 a

The cartel's president, Rilwanu Lukman of Nigeria, refused to say if the cartel would seek to enforce a majority decision in the event that the dissenting members - Iran, Libya and Algeria - remained outside the fold.

Iran's oil minister, Gholamreza Aghadazeh, told reporters after Saturday's two-hour session that he had no intention of going along with the majority.

"We have not any hope that with this production ceiling we would solve the problem of (depressed) prices," he said through an interpreter.

Aghadazeh, backed by Libya and Algeria, has pressed for bigger production cuts in hopes of driving prices up to the $28 a barrel level that prevailed last November.

The majority favor keeping production closer to current levels in order to preserve for OPEC a "fair share" of the world market, Lukman said.

Saudi Arabia oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani, right, sips Arab coffee Saturday with Mana Saeed Oteiba, oil minister of the United Arab Emirates during a break of OPEC's Ministerial Conference on Yugoslavia's Adriatic island of Brioni. A majority of ministers have agreed on new production quotas designed to push oil prices to about $17 to $19 per barrel.

In the recent past, OPEC had sought to reduce its production as low as necessary to prop up prices. But that strategy failed because most members failed to adhere to the limits and undercut each other

Last December, OPEC decided to abandon production controls, a move that triggered the largest price decline in history.

The resultant loss in income, expected to reach $60 billion for the cartel this year, has persuaded most OPEC members that they should reimpose production

Lukman said the ministers had asked Indonesian Oil Minister Subroto to propose production quotas for the individual OPEC countries at Sunday's meeting.

He said that agreeing on quotas would be difficult, and conference sources said they saw little chance that this key part of the package would be settled during the current series of meetings.

Lukman said OPEC remained hopeful that non-OPEC oil producers, such as Mexico, Britain, Norway and Egypt, would help the cartel restrain production.

"We're in the same boat," he said. "OPEC and non-OPEC must cooperate to stop the ship from sinking."

Cotton acres set aside

Farmers in Howard and Borden Counties are among cotton growers in 25 counties who have signed contracts to enroll almost 96 percent of their cotton bases in the 1986 acreage reduction program, according to Plains Cotton Growers. Of the 114,491 total base acres in Howard County, 113,426 have been enrolled in the program. Of 818 county farms, 777 of them are taking part in the acreage reduction program, according to a news

In Borden County, 32,724 of 33,829 base acres are a part of the program while 177 out of 193 farms have signed up to reduce the amount of land planted for cotton.

A final report from the State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service at College Station shows an aggregate base for the 25 counties of 4,707,266 acres, of which, 4,508,066 were signed into the program.

Producers ageed to idle at least 25 percent of the enrolled areas in return for access to non-recourse loans and deficiency payments if the 1986 average price to U.S. farmers falls below an 81 cent target.

Deficiency payments will equal the difference between the target price and the 55 cent base loan of the average farm pri cè for the year, which ever is less. January through May prices to the farmer have averaged below the base loan, and prospects for improvement are dim, so most producers are assuming the deficiency payment rate will be the maximum 26 cents per pound. Payments are based on the payment rate times farm program yields times planted acres, with a $50,000 payment limitation, Plains Growers says.

Although the base and enrollment figures are the obvious starting point for projecting planted acres, the task is more than a little complicated.

The 25 percent acreage reduction requirement of the 1966 program would permit a maximum planted acreage on the Plains of just over 3.38 million or 75 percent of the enrolled acres, according to Plains

But based on the ratio of maximum permitted acres to actual planted acres seen under the program with similar provisions last year, that figure logically can be reduced by about 5 percent to 3.2 million. Then comes the hard part. There is a new provision of the current law under which producers permitted acres and still qualify for 92 percent of deficiency payments.

How many producers will take that option, which remains open until the final acreage certification date July 15 is a big question. Some are estimating that the 50-92 program feature may reduce planted acreage by another 5 percent, down to over three million

Meanwhile, thousands of planted acres have been destroyed by hail, wind, heavy rains, seedling disease and Ascochyta blight.

Some will be replanted, some won't. Which leaves observers at a loss to project anything like a firm figure on acreage that will be left

White jabs at Clements during party rally

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Mark smile but they can't make him White told an applauding Texas Democratic Party convention Saturday that Republicans can make former Gov. Bill Clements smile "but they can't make him

The stinging 35-minute attack on Clements' four years as Texas' first GOP governor this century sparked the first show of mass enthusiam by the 5,000-plus delegates in their two-day convention.

Party officials have made it clear they wanted the convention serene and harmonious in support of White and other statewide Democrats on the November

White also stirred interest from the convention with an apology to Texas teachers for competency tests given them.

billion short of current spending. White announced later Friday he would call a special session to deal with the shortfall as soon as legislative leaders present him a plan.

"We are facing some bad problems in our state budget right White told the state conven-"I assure you I propose to take whatever steps are necessary to see us through. I also assure you the leadership of our Legislature is dedicated to that task.

"But one thing we are not going to do is turn back on Texas' future," White said.

White carefully pointed out that a number of the state's present problems existed while Clements was governor from 1972-78, including schools, roads and water systems. 'Didn't he care?

What did the Republicans do with all the oil revenue pouring in four, six and eight years ago?" White asked.

White also struck out at the Reagan administration for not helping Texas farmers and ranchers, but making substantial loans to Argentina and Equador to help cattlemen and oilmen there.

The Democratic Party needs to send a signal to Washington that the American government should take care of Texas farmers first, Texas workers first, and Texas businessmen first. We'll have plenty of time to take care of the rest of the world right after that," he said.

YOU, ME AND THE PRESIDENTS As we think of July 4th and the nistory of our country, would you like to know what many of us have in common with U.S. Presidents? Vision problems — that's what George Washington was near-sighted and couldn't see well even with his glasses. Abraham Lincoln was farsighted, had crossed eyes, eye coordination problems and was embarrassed to wear his glasses. And then there was James Buchanan who was near sighted in one eye and farsighted in the other. Cataracts affected John Adams. John Quincy Adams, James Madison and Andrew Jackson. Theodore Roosevelt and Harry Truman could not see without their glasses. Eisenhower's glasses never fit well. He was once counted pushing them up 35 times during one press conference. James Buchanan suffered eye muscle paralysis. Thomas Jefferson wrote his own eyeglass prescriptions and liked to have several pairs handy as did Teddy Roosevelt who took 12 pairs of prince-nez with him to the panish American War. Lyndon Johnson was the first president to wear contact lenses. He had dif-ficulty with them but Presidents Carter and Reagan have both worn stacts successfully. Today, U.S. dents receive their vision care and eyeglasses or contact lenses from the government as a job benefit, SHUCKS! I knew there was something you, me and The Presidents didn't have in common.

Appelton big winner at rodeo

Sports Editor

Dave Appelton came away the big winner at the 53rd Annual Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo which was concluded last night at the Howard County Rodeo Bowl.

The final night of the rodeo was started off with the grand entry followed by the crowning of the Rodeo Queen. Coahoma's Colleen Fowler was named the 1986 Rodeo Queen. The 16-year old competed in the contest three years ago and finished first runner-up. Shawn Davies of Big Spring was first

But it was Appelton who stole the show from all the rodeo contestants. The Arlington cowboy left Big Spring with two high finishes. He finished second in the bareback bronc competition with a score of 78. Only Randy Taylor's 81 was better. Taylor hails from Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Appelton added some more Professional Rodeo Cowboy's sociation money by finishing in a tie for third with Jess Knight in the saddle bronc competition. Both riders scored 75's. The event was won by Azle cowboy Joe Belkham, who scored a 76

One of the top performances of the rodeo came on the first night from Bronx, NY cowboy Bobby Del Vecchio. He scored an excellent 83 to win the competition going away. Ricky Bolin of Mesquite finished second with a 80 and Cody Custer placed third with a 77.

Red Sox tearing up league

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Editor

Bill Diaz and the Big Spring Red Sox are trying new things and having success at it.

The local semi-pro baseball team, that has played as an independent for the first nine vears of its exsistence, switched to a league format for the first time this season. In return, Diaz, who's been manager for team to the top.

Right now the Red Sox currently sport a 16-2 record, good for first place in the Western Division of the Central Texas League.

The closest team to the Red Sox is the Ozona Royals, who have a 14-8 record. Other teams in the Western Division are the Sterling City Braves, Sonora Red Sox, Eldorado A's and the

San Angelo Astros. In the Eastern Division, where Diaz says some of the tougher teams play, the Ballinger Bearcats are in the lead. Others teams in the east include the San Angelo Angels, San Angelo Rangers, San Angelo Cardinals, San Angelo Brewers and the Eola Sun Devils. Diaz is one of the charter members of the Red Sox. He started as a player when the team began in 1976 under the direction of manager David Cruz. Back then the team was called the Tiger-Cubs.

"Those were the rough years back then," he recalled. "All of the top players were on the Cardinals (Big Spring semi-pro team). We had some young, inexperienced players back then and we let eveyone play. We didn't win very many games," he said with a laugh.

Diaz took over the team in 1980 and has gradually turned the Red Sox into winners. Now he is a one-man manager, owner, public relations director and travel agent. He accepts he responsibilities with enthusiasm.

"When I first joined the team as I player it was the first time l had played organized baseball, I had always played street ball. I found out I really enjoyed playing organized ball. I just as fun being a manager as as player. This is my own little hobby and I'm having fun."

So are the Red Sox. "We've really gotten it together over the past three years, he said."

Records don't lie. In 1984 the Red Sox went 27-7, last season they finished with a 29-3 slate.

Diaz says he thought his team would be just as successful playing in a league. "We haven't played all the top teams in the league yet, but overall I think this year's schedule is not as hard as the independent one we played last year.

But playing in a league has its advantages. "We had a scheduling problem as a independent team. We really didn't have any guaranteed games as in-dependents. In the league, if the team doesn't show up it's a forfeit and nobody wants that in league play.

If the Red Sox keep up their success it could mean a spot in the league playoffs. The first two teams in each division ad-Red Sox page 2B

'White Shark' devours Canadian golf course

OAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) — Greg Norman flirted with the 50's and finished with a spectacular 10-under-par 62 Saturday, moving within one shot of the third-round leader Bob Murphy in the Canadian Open Golf Championship.

"With two par-5s still to play, I was definitely thinking 59 when I made the eagle on 13," said the White Shark."

That figure - the all-time PGA Tour scoring record — was beyond him, however, and he had to settle for simply the best round of his career — a round that included 10 birdies, an eagle and two bogeys.

"I've had a 62 before, but considering the course, and considering I made two bogeys, this was a better round," said Norman, who completed three trips over the Glen Abbey Golf Club course in 210, six shots under par and one back the veteran Murphy.

Murphy, 43, whose last victory came 11 years ago, played almost four hours behind Norman and birdied the final hole for a 68 and a 209

Mac O'Grady, the controversial figure who is appealing a $5,000 fine and a six-week suspension for conduct unbecoming a professional golfer, and rookie Davis Love III tied Norman for second at 210.

O'Grady came on with a thirdround 69 in the warm, sunny weather, and Love shot 70.

struggled to a 74 and was tied with five others at 212, leaving a dozen players locked within three strokes of the lead going into Sunday's final round.

Also at 212 were three-time Canadian Open champion Lee Trevino, South African Bobby Cole, Canadian Dan Halldorson, Pat McGowan and lefty Ernie Gon-Trevino, Halldorson and Cole all had 69s. McGowan shot 70 and Gonzalez matched par 72.

Jack Nicklaus, not yet a winner of this title but a 7-time runner-up, had to work hard for a 70 that left him at 213, four off the pace.

Murphy matched par over the front side and made his move when his putter came to life on the back.

The chunky veteran dropped a pair of 20-footers on the 11th and 12th, then got a share of the lead with a 4-iron shot to within four feet on the 14th.

He preserved a piece of the lead with a scrambling par from a bunker on the 17th then took sole control of the top spot when got up and down from a bunker for a birdie-4 on the final hole.

Norman one-putted seven times, including a 20-footer for birdie on the ninth, over the front side, which he played in 5-under-par 30.

He missed a 7-foot birdie putt on the 10th, chipped in for birdie on the 11th then hit a 4-iron four feet from the flag on the 12th.

A 3-wood second shot set up an 18-foot eagle-putt on the 13th. At that point, he was nine under par for the day with two par-5s ahead of

Football player's death may be drug related

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Cleveland Browns defensive back Don Rogers probably died of a drug overdose the day before he was to marry, the pathologist said Saturday after conducting an autopsy on the football player.

In the absence of any evidence of disease or injury, Rogers' death of heart failure was likely caused by drugs, said Dr. Joseph Pawlowski.

"A leading contender is cocaine," he said. The results of tests on the athlete's body fluids and brain, which could reveal the presence of drugs, were not expected until Rogers, a standout second-year safety for the Browns, lapsed into a coma and died Friday, eight days after the cocaine-related death of 22-year-old Len Bias, an All-American basketball player at Maryland.

Rogers' lungs were severely congested with blood, an indication of drug involvement, Pawlowski said.

"The presumption is that there was some interference in the respiratory area of the brain," he said. "Any excess intoxication by a drug, even a legitimate drug, might have caused it I would say that cocaine is most suspect.

There was no indication of criminal activity or drug use at a bachelor party given for Rogers the night before he died, homicide Detective Dale Adam said earlier

Ken Easley of the Seattle Seahawks, a former teammate of Rogers at UCLA, said he "would be as surprised as any person on the face of this earth if (Rogers' death) is drugrelated, and I would certainly hope and pray to God that it

Paul Warfield, former Browns star and player relations director, said he spoke with Rogers by telephone about two hours before he collapsed

"Paul said Don sounded fine," said Kevin Byrne, a team spokesman. "He said he seemed excited about getting

Rogers, Cleveland's No. 1 draft pick in 1984 and selected by the Players Association as the American Football Conference's Defensive Rookie of the Year that season, collapsed Friday morning at a house he had bought for his mother in this city where he grew up.

Robert Fagan, who lives across the street, said he heard someone crying out for help.

"I was in my kitchen and I heard what sounded like pounding on the walls," he said. "I heard someone yelling, 'Help me,' and they kept yelling for a few minutes. I was getting ready to call 911 (police emergency) when the fire trucks and an ambulance came.

None of the six to eight people at the house mentioned the possibility of drug use, said Mike Meighan, supervisor for the ambulance crew.

"On behalf of the Browns, I can only express shock and anguish at the sudden and tragic death of Don Rogers,' said Browns owner Art Modell.

Rogers was scheduled to be married Saturday in Sacramento to 22-year-old Leslie Nelson

Otis Nixon of the Cleveland Indians, who lives in the same Cleveland condominium complex as Rogers, said he had "always known him as straight. I would have no idea

"This really hits home," said Golic. "You see this guy every day, and all of a sudden he's not around. It's scary in

"Here's a guy in top physical condition. He just had a physical back in May. These are very complete exams. How can a guy like that die?"

Continued from page 1B vance to the playoffs. A best two-of-three series will follow until the winner is decided.

There is not much money involved for the winners. Each winner gets two-thirds of $800, while the second place team receives the remaining money.

"It's not the money we're playing for, because we've put a lot more in it that we'll get Diaz said. "We do it because it's fun. I can't afford to pay my players, and I really don't think other teams pay their players.'

But the Red Sox manager is quick to point out his team doesn't have a one-way ticket to the playoffs. "Like I said, we haven't played some of the best teams yet and we still have three makeup double-headers. With a 44-game schedule there's a lot that can happen."

This year's team is a mixture of young and old. Of the 20-man roster, the oldest player is 39 and the youngest is 17. Counting Diaz, there are five charter members. Adam Yanez, Mechie Sarmiento, Earnest Garcia, Fernie Peradez and Vincent Garcia have all been with the team since it first started.

"Last year was a transistion season for us. We picked up a lot of young players and let some of the older ones go. Right now we have a good mixture of veterans and young players. This year they are learning each other's Diaz say that anybody has a chance to make the team. At the start of the season he welcomes all who want to tryout for the team. "We'll give them a chance to show what they can do. If they can earn a spot on the team, that's great."

Indicative of their 16-2 record, the Sox have had consistent pitching. Diaz uses five pitchers. He rotates two pitchers each weekend as starters and relievers. The fifth hurler is the "stopper", someone who comes in for a short stint to choke off a rally.

Tony Ontiveros, George Solis, Raymond Dominquez, Ron Finnell and Luis Rodriquez. Ontiveros and Solis show the top respectively.

Diaz's outfield trio of James Walker, Finnell and Ernie Garcia lead the way in the hitting department. Walker, who plays right field, is batting a hefty .571. Finnell, who plays center field when he's not pitching, follows with a .466. Left fielder Ernie Garcia is batting .364.

With six years of coaching under his belt, and being in a league for the first time, Diaz and the Red Sox are making steady progress. But there's still a few things he has his sights on.

"Right now we're building tradition, I want that tradition to get stronger. I want to win a league title. But most of all, someday I want us to get a field of our own.

Although the field is a longterm project, it seems the stronger tradition and league title could looms in the near future. Through it all, Diaz insists there's one objective that comes number one for his team. "We have fun, that's why we play.' But it's easier to have fun when you win most of the time.

Rangers drop Mariners, 5-2

SEATTLE(AP) - Jose Guzmanthrew a six-hitter and Tom Paciorek drove in two runs with a homer and a single Saturday night to lead the Texas Rangers to a 5-2 victory over the Seattle Mariners.

Guzman, 7-8, allowed just two walks and struck out five batters in his second complete game of the Paciorek hit his second homer in the fifth inning and then singled in a run in the seventh. He had three of Texas' 15 hits. Steve Buechele also had three hits, extending his hitting streak to 12 games.

The Rangers took a 1-0 lead in the third when Pete O'Brien tripled and scored on Pete Incaviglia's sacrifice fly

Seattle tied it in the bottom of the inning when Dave Valle led off with his first homer of the season.

In the fourth, Curtis Wilkerson singled, stole second, took third on a ground out and scored on a wild pitch by Seattle starter Jim Beattie, 0-3. Beattie, making his third start in his comeback from shoulder surgery, allowed 10 hits and three runs in five innings.

Paciorek's fifth-inning homer extended the Texas lead to 3-1.

Incaviglia singled with one out in the seventh, chasing reliever Lee Guetterman. Steve Fireovid relieved and misplayed Larry Parrish's grounder, advancing Incaviglia to third. Paciorek singled Incaviglia

Rookie hurler leads Astros over Dodgers

HOUSTON (AP) — After a rocky start, Houston rookie left-hander Jim Deshaies settled down to win his fourth straight game, a 6-4 win over the Los Angeles Dodgers Saturday night in the Astrodome.

Deshaies gave up a run in the first after loading the bases on three walks and then surrendered two doubles and another run in the

"I told myself in the dugout after giving up those first two runs that if I go out there and walk three guys an inning I wouldn't be out there very long," Deshaies said.

He lasted 8 2-3 innings, giving up nine hits, before Aurelio Lopez came on to record his third save of the season.

"I just started throwing strikes and letting the guys play behind me," Deshaies said. "I had been barely missing with my pitches early, I was trying to be too fine."

"Jim pitched a good game from the middle innings on," Houston manager Hal Lanier said. "I would have loved for him to have gotten his complete game but the win was more important at that point."

Houston's Kevin Bass continued his torrid hitting, slamming a home run and a double and driving in two runs, to raise his average to .312. It was Bass's second home run in as many games.

'My goals this season are to hit 300, steal 20 bases, and drive in 85 runs," he said. "If I keep going the way I have been I'll reach them." Terry Puhl also homered, in the fifth, for Houston. Bob Welch, 3-6, lost his fifth straight decision. He gave up five runs in six innings.

Jeff Hamilton's sacrifice fly gave the Dodgers a 1-0 lead in the first. Walks to Steve Sax, Bill Russell and Franklin Stubbs had loaded the bases with one out.

The Astros responded with three runs in the bottom of the first. Bill Doran singled, stole second and scored on Craig Reynolds' single. After Glenn Davis was hit by a pitch, Bass doubled in Reynolds. A walk to Jose Cruz loaded the bases and Davis scored on a walk to John

The Dodgers cut the deficit to 3-2 in the second when Sax doubled in Craig Shipley.

Houston increased its lead to 4-2 in the third on singles by Cruz and Puhl and Deshaies' single.

The Astros added runs in the fifth and seventh when Puhl hit his second home run of the season and Bass hit his 11th. It was Bass' second home run in as many nights. Steve Sax singled home two runs in the ninth, chasing Deshaies. The last time the Yankees lost nine straight games in New York, Woodrow Wilson was president and their home field was the Polo Grounds.

Lloyd Moseby homered twice and Jimmy Key pitched a sevenhitter Saturday as the Toronto Blue Jays beat New York 7-4, marking the first time the Yankees have ever lost nine straight at Yankee Stadium, where they have played for 62 years. They lost nine consecutive games at the Polo Grounds in 1915.

Joe Niekro, 7-6, was knocked out in the second inning, the fifth time in the last six home games that New York's starting pitcher failed to last three innings. Moseby hit his 10th homer in the first, after Rance Mulliniks singled, marking the eighth straight hoe game in which the opposition has scored on the Yankees in the first inning. New York opponents have 18 runs on 23 hits in 46 at-bats over that span.

The Blue Jays, who have won four straight, scored again in the second on singles by Rick Leach and Ernie Whitt, a walk and a wild pitch by Niekro. Mulliniks walked to reload the bases and a third consecutive walk, to Moseby, forced Whitt home.

Moseby's second homer came off reliever Alfonso Pulido in the fifth

In the nine-game home losing streak, Yankee pitchers have been tagged for 81 runs and 124 hits. They also have gone 12 games at home without holding the opposition to fewer than five runs.

Gary Roenicke knocked in three New York runs against Key with a two-run homer in the sixth and a single in the eighth. Key, 6-5, has a 2.37 ERA in his last eight decisions after going 0-3 with a 13.27 ERA in his first six starts.

Red Sox 7, Orioles 3 Ed Romero drove in three runs and Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd won his 10th game as first-place Boston defeated fading Baltimore.

Boston's 14th victory in its last 19 road games, coupled with New York's loss to Toronto, gave the Red Sox a seven-game lead in the AL East. The Orioles have lost 14 of Boyd, 10-5, won for the eighth time in 10 starts with relief help from Bob Stanley, who pitched the final 1 2-3 innings for his 13th save.

Tigers 8, Brewers 5 Darrell Evans hit a two-run homer and Kirk Gibson homered and scored three runs as Detroit defeated Milwaukee for its fourth consecutive victory.

Lance Parrish singled home Gibson to break a 5-5 tie with two outs in the bottom of the seventh inning. Evans followed with his 12th homer, giving Detroit an 8-5 lead, and Bill Campbell, 2-2, went on to pitch the final 3 2-3 innings for the White Sox 4, A's 1 Joel Skinner and Ron Kittle knocked in two runs apiece in the fifth inning, leading Chicago over Oakland.

Benefitting from four double plays, White Sox right-hander Richard Dotson, 6-7, allowed seven hits in eight-plus innings for the victory. Skinner had a two-run double and Kittle a two-run single to account for Chicago's runs.

Mets 5, Cubs 2

Ray Knight's tie-breaking tworun single in the ninth inning lifted New York over Chicago as reliever Roger McDowell picked up his seventh victory without a defeat.

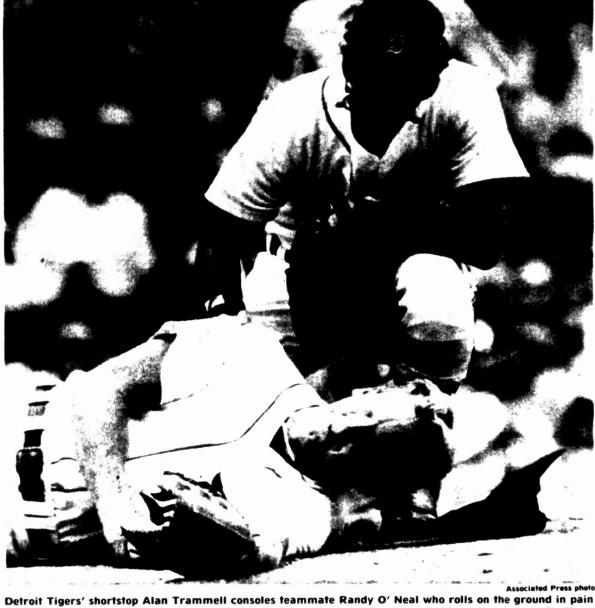

McDowell, who pitched the last two innings after starter Ron Darling was lifted for a pinch-hitter, became the first pitcher in Mets history to go 7-0 at the start of a season. Previously, Dick Selma, Tom Seaver, Jon Matlack, Tom Gorman and Darling all had gone

Giants 5, Reds 1

Pinch-hitter Candy Maldonado's single with the bases loaded in the ninth inning snapped a tie and Luis Quinones followed with a three-run triple Saturday night, sending the San Francisco Giants to a 5-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

With none out in the ninth, Maldonado — batting .409 this season as a pinch hitter — hit a soft single over the Reds' drawn-in infield. Quinones hit a liner to left that skipped off the wet turf and bounced past left fielder Eric

Frank Williams, 1-0, pitched the final two innings to get the win, after starter Mike Krukow allowed just five hits and one run over the first seven innings.

Clemens after Al record

BALTIMORE (AP) - Trying to keep up with Boston pitcher Roger Clemens may have been too much for the speed gun used by the Baltimore Orioles

It conked out in the ninth inning of Friday night's game after clocking Clemens through 11 strikeouts enroute to his 14th victory of the

But the Orioles didn't need the device to know that the 95 mile-anhour fastball of the still unbeaten Red Sox ace was difficult to hit. Even when they know what's coming, the task of hitting the pitch is somewhat overwhelming.

Clemens, who needed relief help in the ninth inning, ran his leagueleading strikeout total to 125. With one of Baltimore's runs unearned, Clemens maintained his earned run average at 2.18, also best in the

It was the fifth time this season that Clemens has struck out 10 or more batters in a game, and a walk he issued to Eddie Murray to open the ninth was only his 30th in 123 and two-thirds innings. He yielded consecutive hits for only the seventh time this season.

Murray hit two home runs, the only player to accomplish that feat against Clemens this season. His first solo shot in the second inning put Clemens behind in a game for the first time in eight starts.

Boston has averaged almost seven runs in the games started by Clemens, so there was no need to panic over a 1-0 score.

Clemens now ranks fifth on the all-time list for best winning streaks at the start of the season.

Rube Marquard of the 1912 New York Giants holds the record of 19, followed by Elroy Face of the 1959 Pittsburgh Pirates at 17. Dave McNally of the 1969 Orioles and Johnny Allen of the 1937 Cleveland Indians share the American League record of 15. For his postgame interview, Clemens was moved out of the clubhouse and into a room which houses replicas of lockers for players in the Orioles' Hall of

NCAA to crackdown on drugs

MISSION, Kan. (AP) Coaches, educators and the athletes themselves must do more to stop drug abuse on the college campus, in the view of NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers.

"I do not believe the higher education community has taken a strong enough stand against drugs," Byers said.

The NCAA will start the most comprehensive drug testing program in sports this fall, but Byers said in an interview, "I don't think it's an isolated athletic problem. It's a campus-wide problem. It's a national problem.

"I don't believe athletes are bringing drugs on campus. I think drug traffickers are bringing drugs on campus."

The problem came to the fore with the death on June 19 of Maryland basketball All American Len Bias. His death, after a night of celebrating in a dormitory and elsewhere with some teammates and friends, was attributed to cocaine intoxication.

University of Maryland Chancellor John B. Slaughter, chairman of the NCAA President's Commission, has since called for the NCAA to take a 'much more aggressive' stand against drugs.

Byers said that it was up to university leaders, coaches and the athletes to discourage drug use.

'We have talked to the FBI and it is clear that you can't stem the flow of drugs," Byers said. "There has to be a restraint of the appetite for drugs. That is the responsibility of the institution and the coaches. The student-athlete has to come forward and be a role model."

The NCAA will begin testing athletes for abuse of street drugs like sociative and mari-juana and for what it calls performance-enhancing drugs ike steroids at all championship events, beginning in November.

Athletes who test positive for any of 200 banned drugs would have their eligibility suspended for 90 days. A repeat offender would lose eligibility for one year.

A positive test for mariuana would result in a warning. A second positive test for marijuana would result in the standard first-offender sanctions.

The testing program was approved overwhelmingly by the NCAA membership at its January meeting in New Orleans.

"What the membership did last January in putting in our mandatory testing program is not only forthright, but no other domestic organization has taken such a strong stand against drugs," Byers said. "It sends a general message to all high schools and colleges that (drug use) is wrong, that this is not the way to compete. We want clean competition."

Since the program was approved, the NCAA has been drawing up strict guidelines on how to administer the tests, which will first be given at cross country championships in November.

The NCAA is confident the tests will be "99.99 percent accurate,'' said Ursula R. Walsh, director of research and sports sciences for the NCAA.

The tests will be expensive about $200 a sample because of the test for steroids, Walsh said. The test for steroids is important because many studentathletes feel pressured to take steroids because their competitors do, she said.

"It's a terrible thing if a student-athlete thinks he needs to put something in his body just to compete at something," Walsh said.
"They work hard and they don't want to compete with someone who has an unfair advantage because he's been taking a bunch of drugs.'

Two share Mayflower Classic lead

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Jan Stephenson shot a 3-under-par 69 to catch Sandra Palmer and earn a share of the lead Saturday after three rounds of the $350,000 LPGA Mayflower Classic golf

The leaders had an 8-under-par 208 for 54 holes and were three strokes ahead of Carolyn Hill and Stephenson, three strokes behind Palmer when the round began, started quickly with birdies on four of her first seven holes and made the turn with a 3-under 33.

Palmer played steady golf early and then had to overcome a shaky back nine that began with two con-secutive bogies, finishing the round with a par 72 that included three birdies and three bogies.

Palmer, seeking a 21st career victory that has eluded her since 1982, was one stroke up on Stephenson with three holes remaining and lost that advantage with a bogey on the 158-yard, par 3 No. 15 hole. The leaders then gained a stroke on the field with a birdie on the 17th hole and finished with a par.

Hill, who hasn't had a Top 10 finish since 1984, moved into a tie for third with Jones at 211 after shooting a 5-under 67 in the third round. Hill had six birdies on her

Palmer shot a 1-under-par 35 on the front nine with eight pars before running into trouble, bageying the 10th and 11th holes. The 45-year-old nearly had a third consecutive bogey when she hit a lengthy downhill putt on No. 12 about 10 feet past the cup, but saved par to remain 7-under.

There was a three-way tie for fifth at 4-under 212 between Chris Johnson, Judy Dickinson and defeading champion Alice Miller. Cindy Hill, Bonnie Lauer and Hall of Famer Kathy Whitworth, who had an eagle on the 15th hole, were next at 213.

Miller, chasing her first victory since her tournament-record sixstroke triumph last year, was three strokes behind Palmer when the leaders made the turn. But, she was unable to produce a change as she finished with seven pars and two bogies for a par 72.

Defending champs roll into fourth round

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Defending champions Boris Becker and Martina Navratilova, their games as hot as the weather, charged into the fourth round as the Wimbledon tennis championships ended their first week Saturday.

But the upsets that have haunted the tournament continued on this sweltering day when the temperature soared to 100 degrees on Center Court. Sweden's Stefan Edberg, the reigning Australian Open champion and No. 5 seed at the 100th Wimbledon, lost his third-round match to Miloslav Mecir of Czechoslovakia. And, Raffaella Reggi shocked No. 4 Claudia Kohde-

Kilsch of West Germany 6-4, 6-1 to become the first Italian woman to reach the fourth round at the All England Club since 1965 and only the second since World War II

Only seven seeds remained in men's play and nine in the women's singles. And an unseeded player is guaranteed to reach the men's semifinals for the 10th consecutive year, a string that began in 1977 when John McEnroe stormed out of the qualifying with his brilliant play and brash manner.

With McEnroe on a self-imposed hiatus from ten-men's singles this year, even though the field included last year's winner, Becker, and Czechoslovakia's Ivan Lendl, the world's top-ranked player who was coming off a victory in the French Open.

Edberg, one of the few Swedes who seemed to be comfortable on the fast grass surface, was one of those given a chance at winning. That chance was dashed Saturday by Mecir, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4. The Czechoslovak has beaten Edberg in all three of their career meetings.

"He played very well, unfortunately," Edberg said. "He played out of his mind and there wasn't too much I could do today. He was too good.

"I knew I had a good shot for the tournament if I played very well. Unfortunately, I played Mecir." Becker, seeded fourth, dropped a set for the first time in this year's tournament as he defeated

Australia's Paul McNamee 6-4, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4. Second-seeded Mats Wilander of Sweden downed Australian Mark Kratzmann 6-4, 6-4, 2-6, 6-1; No. 7 Henri Leconte of France stopped American Greg Holmes 6-4, 6-2, 7-6; No. 12 Brad Gilbert of the United States eliminated Czechoslovakia's Milan Srejber nis, there was no overwhelming favorite for the 7-5, 6-7, 6-3; and No. 13 Mikael Pernfors of Sweden ousted American Sammy Giammalva 2-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-1.

In the women's singles, Navratilova, the No. 1 seed, was joined in the fourth round by No. 2 Chris Evert Lloyd, No. 3 Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia, No. 7 Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia, No. 8 Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria, No. 10 Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina, No. 11 Carling Bassett of Canada, No. 15 Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden and No. 16 Kathy Jordan of the United States.

Navratilova crushed Kristin Kinney 6-0, 6-2 and Lloyd stopped Kathleen Horvath 6-4, 6-1 in all-American matches.

It was Mandlikova over Czechoslovakia's Iva Budarova 6-2, 6-0; Sukova over Australian Anne Minter 6-1, 6-4; Maleeva over Australian Elizabeth Smylie 7-6, 6-1; Sabatini over American Barbara Gerken 6-2, 6-1; Bassett over Marie Calleja of France 6-4, 6-2; Lindqvist over Australian Elizabeth Minter, Anne's sister, 3-6, 7-6, 6-3; and Jordan over American Melissa Gurney 6-4, 6-1.

The fourth round will finally see seeded players facing each other, although with the number of upsets during the first week, only one men's match will pair seed vs. seed.

Becker will meet Pernfors, the surprising French Open finalist whose game was honed at the University of Georgia.

"I'm at the point now where I put a little more pressure on myself, knowing that I can play on this surface," Pernfors said. "Otherwise, it feels just as well as it did in the French Open."

Asked about his dropping the first set against Giammalva, Pernfors said:

"I had problems concentrating at the beginning; which I haven't had in the other matches. I definitely won't lose the first set against Becker."

In the women's singles, Bassett will face Mandlikova and Jordan will meet Lloyd in the only fourth-round matchups between seeded players. Jordan upset Lloyd at Wimbledon in the third round in Two Australians reached the men's fourth round as Pat Cash, a semifinalist at both Wimbledon and the U.S. Open in 1984, defeated American Jay Lapidus 6-1, 6-4, 6-7, 7-5, and John Fitzgerald upended Australian Wally Masur 7-6, 7-6, 5-7, 6-4.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) -Sun dresses and short sleeve shirts have replaced umbrellas and raincoats this year at the Wimbledon tennis tournament

As play began Saturday, the temperature on Centre Court was 100 degrees, and forecasters were calling for a continuation of the week-long heat wave.

Air temperatures were in the high 80s, with only a summertime haze to block the sun, and record crowds at the All-England Championships were altering their habits about what to eat and drink.

"With this heat, there's bound to be some change in what's selling," said Richard Tear, director of Town and County, the concessionaire for the tournament.

Hot weather means more people buying ice cream, soft drinks and lager bear, Tear said. They stay away from the traditional English bitter, he said. "That's too heavy for warm weather," according to Tear. Strawberries and cream, the staple of Wimbledon food, are selling very well, Tear said. Even with the heat, the cream stays fresh, he added.

"The strawberries go too fast for the cream to curdle," said Derek Johnson, chairman of Town and Officials reported no major heatrelated problems. Peter May, superintendent of the St. John Ambulance Brigade and the head of first aid at the tournament, said about 70 percent of the 225 people treated at eight infirmaries on the ground by mid-afternoon had suffered from symptoms related to the weather.

"No life-or-death stuff," said. "The number is about average for the last few days. People are taking care of themselves.

Officials of both the Association of Tennis Professionals, which represents the men's tour, and the Women's International Tennis Association said they had not heard of any players having trouble with the heat.

Late June and early July in southeast England can bring the best - and the worst - of weather. Last year, torrential rains plagued the first week of the tournament, flooding Centre Court at one point and forcing huge delays in the playing schedule.

Those kinds of conditions have occurred so often during The Fortnight that they have become known as "Wimbledon Weather."

This year's tournament got off to a sodden start, with heavy clouds Monday morning turning to downpours by mid-afternoon, washing out most of the first-day matches

Since then, however, the weather has been near-perfect, with clear skies, warm temperatures and enough of a breeze to keep the heat from becoming too oppressive.

All of England is gripped by much-above-normal temperatures.

It's not even the hottest ever for Wimbledon.

three four-by-fours.' "After he butchered the cattle, he hauled them to Southern Ice House (in north Big Spring) to keep the meat cold. It was the only refrigeration they had at that time until 1916," Knappe said. "He delivered meat to his customers on Wednesdays and Saturdays in a hack."

A hack is like a wagon, but it's lighter and smaller and is pulled by two horses, he explained.

"We all grew up in the slaughterhouse," Knappe said. "We're all butchers. We worked all day and way into the night without lights - when it was freezin' cold."

The Knappes also were known for donating their butchering services at the annual Old Settler's Reunion for more than 30

They cooked beef, goat, beans and son-of-a-gun. Son-of-a-gun is a concoction of liver, sweetbread, mar gut (from the small intestine), plus brains, heart and salt and pepper.

"It's delicious," said Mrs Lydia Knappe, 90. "You had to be here for 20 years to go to the reunion," her son said.

In those days, the appearance of Big Spring was quite dif-ferent. "Everything was open. It was all ranch land," said Roy Knappe, 65, Carl's brother.

Roy Knappe, who now lives in Little Rock, Ark., reported the cattle were slaughtered on ground near where the Big Spring State Hospital is now. The cattle were fed where First Christian Church, 21st and Goliad, is located, he added.

"Everything is original in the slaughterhouse. Daddy built the building and the concrete was hand poured," Carl Knappe

During the '40s the four Knappe boys went into the service and their father worked the slaughterhouse by himself, he said.

The Knappe boys, Carl, left, and Roy, right, pose in the old slaughterhouse, which was built in the early 1900s.

"Everything in it is original," Carl says. Their father built it and poured the concrete by hand.

"I was so tickled. Four went in and four came back," Mrs. Knappe said. At that time, the Knappe home was located by the railroad tracks

The house was dismantled and moved "room by room from the tracks up here," Carl said.

"There are lots of memories in this house," he said. "I was born in the middle room.'

"I raised eight children in this house," Mrs. Knappe said. "Only six of them are living," she added.

Mrs. Knappe, originally from Merkel, moved to Knott Community and then to Big Spring in 1906. At 14, she married Alvis

"I helped butcher for 15 years," she said. "I didn't mind skinnin' the beef, but I didn't like the sheep and the goats. You aren't supposed to cut the meat, either, or they'd dock ya

"Daddy always told us, if you're gonna do a job, do it right or it ain't worth doin' it,'' Carl

(their pay) on that.'

Alvis Knappe died in 1968 when Carl took over, he said. "I use the slaughterhouse for deer now," he said.

Temple movie buff turns collection into museum

Movie buff Henry Allan Easterling recently poses in his Temple Texas movie museum. When Easterling was growing up, he didn't get to see any picture shows, but he did get a chance to see the billboards. These movies and billboards fascinated him and in 1970 he began collecting movie memorabilia.

TEMPLE, Texas (AP) - When Henry Allan Easterling was growing up between Hamilton and Evant, he didn't get to see any picture shows.

'We went to town on Saturdays and didn't have the time or the money to go to the show, but I looked at the billboards," Easterling said. He saw his first movie — "The Wizard of Oz" — in the third grade. "It was very impressive," he said. "I never saw another one until I came to Temple, and then I went bananas. I spent every dime I could get my hands on" going to the movies, said Easterl-

At that time, anyone under 12 could get in for 9 cents at the old Temple Theater on Saturdays and see a serial, six cartoons an a movie. It went up to 15 cents in 1954. Those movies and billboards fascinated Easterling, and about 1970 he started collecting movie memorabilia

'The first movie stuff I bought was Abbott and Costello," he said. J.R. Stone, owner of the Temple Theater, got him interested. "It's all Mr. Stone's fault," Easterling said. Another former theater owner, Tillman Bond, helps him collect, also. And it has snowballed from there.

'I'm what you call an ultimate collector," Easterling said. "I don't specialize in one thing and I collect other things, but movie stuff is my main thing. I collect anything to do with movies, but I like film and posters the best. However, anything to do with Texas especially interests him

Through his collecting and research, he has found 42 movies in which Texas is the first word of the title.

Fifty other movies have Texas in the title. He attributes this to the "Texas mystique."

'Anything with Texas sells all over the world whether it has anyting to do with Texas," he said. "I've gone to movies with Texas in the title, and I'd watch the whole show and Texas would never be mentioned

" 'Texas Chainsaw Massacre' had nothing to do with Texas - supposedly (it was based on) someone in Kansas, but 'Kansas Chainsaw Massacre' wouldn't sell at all."

In all his looking, he's only found one movie - a silent one — with Temple in the title. It was "Miss Temple's Telegram.

"I found it in a list in a silent movie book, but I've never seen it or anything about it.'

From what Easterling calls a "very complicated hobby" has come quite a collection, and he now is in the process of making an old rent house into a museum called, "Out of the Past — The Great Texas Motion Picture Appreciation and Preservation Society and Historical Museum.

He already has five shelves about 20 feet long filled with books dealing with nothing but movie-related topics. Those shelves contain only half of the books

He has movie soundtracks, posters, autographed pictures, file cabinets full of information on film stars and old movies and film reels

"I've got 1,200 file folders on stars," he said. He also has 9-cent and 15-cent movie tickets and is still looking for the old Temple theater pictures.

Tompkins-Graves

Tonya Tompkins, 2711 Ann, and Mike Graves, of Snyder, were united in holy matrimony June 28 at First Baptist Church with Dr. Kenneth Patrick, officiating.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Tompkins, 2711 Ann. Bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. W.C. Graves, of Snyder.

The couple stood before an altar decorated with matching nine branch candelabras graced with floral arrangements of pink, white and plum flowers.

Pianist was Julie Shirey and Joy Grimes was the organist. Vocalists were Brenda Shirey and Kenneth

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown with a bateau neckline of sheer reembroidered alencon lace studded with pearls and sequins forming a dramatic V'd waistline.

Sheer alencon lace and taffetta court sleeves formed points at the wrists. The bodice back featured a plunging V of alencon jeweled lace.

A fully gathered skirt of taffetta, appliqued with a pyramid of jeweled alencon motifs, featured the skirt edger bordered with alencon lace which cascaded into a cathedral length train.

A fingertip veil, flowing from a wreath of sequins and pearls with a illusion, completed her attire.

Maid of honor was Tricia Tompkins, sister of the bride, of Big Spring. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Gary Cain, of Snyder, and Lori Griffice, of Big Spring.

Flower girl was Cori Soldan, of Big Spring. Ring bearer was Colby Wegmen, cousin of the bride, of Big Spring.

Groomsmen were Greg and Guy Graves, brothers of the bridegroom, both of Snyder.

Ushers and candlelighters were Troy Tompkins, brother of the bride, of Big Spring, and Lawrence

NEW BUSINESS CLEANS UP BIG SPRING

If you drave a Rolls Royce would you be comfortable taking it through a car wash? You would if the car wash was Highland Shop & Wash. Highland Shop & Wash has only been in business for three months and has already washed and detailed over 5,000 cars including Rolls Royce Russ Rutledge, owner, and John (Pinky) Arnold, manager, began planning this state-of-the-art car wash in 1980. Russ and Pinky began by looking at the equipment they would need to bring the best service United States and found Hanna equipment to have the best track record.

The Shop & Wash is especially proud to have John Rodriguez in their detail department. John has over 20 years experience in detailing cars and boats, and is considered a craftsman by those in his field.

Highland Shop & Wash uses Culligan soft, warm water to get your car the cleanest possible and then the car is hand toweled with new lint free towels. They also offer hand waxing and buffing. Fabric interiors can be shampooed and scotchguarded and choose one of seven fragrances to make your car smell as good as it looks. Pinky also carries Multi-Mile, Goodyear, and Michelin tires and has fine Fina gasoline.

Come by and see just how clean your car can be!

Trenton woman, 68, still sings the blues

TRENTON, Texas (AP) -Kate Reed Estes sits at the piano in her living room — her right foot operating the pedals, her left kicked slightly out to the side, tapping in time.

Her fingers glide effortlessly across the keyboard, and she smiles. Whether it's one listener or one thousand, she still loves to entertain an audience.

And, after 68 years, the feeling is mutual.

Time with Ms. Estes is guaranteed to be entertaining a rich mixture of family history in Fannin County, scrappy Democratic politics or sublime renditions of jazz tunes improvised on her piano.

In a recent interview at her rural farm home near Trenton, Ms. Estes reminisced about how times and people have influenc-

"I've sort of had a threepronged career — politics, music and education," she explained. "I've made my living in education and music. Mostly, my politics has been a sidelight

Her home, set on the 160-acre farm, is an obvious source of pride to her. Her grandfather purchased the farm in 1898, and her house was built in 1925.

Inside the house, family heirlooms abound - including antique furniture, family portraits and political volumes that evoke political giants such as Lyndon Johnson and Sam Rayburn, the longtime U.S. House speaker who was a close friend of the family.

"Everything out here is an antique, including me," she quipped.

In the library are family relics, including 16 of her great grandmother's diaries, records of one of state's first women doctors.

"She would have been a great women's libber," Ms. Estes said. "She was about 150 years ahead of her time.

Ms. Estes herself, if not ahead of her time, has certainly kept up with it. Her name appears in the first edition of Who's Who in American Women, as well as in Who's Who in the South and Southwest, Who's Who in American Politics, the Texas Women of Distinction and Personalities of the South.

Democratic politics has been her passion since the days before the REA brought electricity to the farm.

"You know what I tell people?" she said. "When I look at some of those people - and know that they're getting in my pocketbook every day of their life and my life - I'm going to know what the hell's going on."

She has attended every state Democratic convention since 1954, except the 1984 convention, and intends to go this year.

As the only child of Burgher Reed and Lucille Morrow Reed, Kate learned about hard work at an early age. Her father operated a retail dairy at the farm from 1924 through 1934.

"And we did it the hard way without electricity," she said. So her father milked 30 cows by hand twice daily. Kate delivered milk house-to-house.

Her father helped organize the Fannin County Rural Electrification Administration 49 vears ago. The arrival of electric lights at the Reed farm was an occasion for celebration.

'We turned on every light in this farm and got in the car and drove up and down the highway to see what it looked like," she recalled. "We were so thrilled to get the lights."

Ms. Estes adored her parents and helped on the farm when she wasn't attending classes at East Texas State. "I've always felt that everybody who's a member of a family has to make his or her contribution to the good of the family," she said.

She eventually earned a bachelor's degree in English and later with a master's degree in elementary education administration and supervision. She spent 18 years as curriculum coordinator for all of Fannin County's schools — except for Bonham - before joining a textbook publishing firm. She dropped the consultant's job because of the extensive travel. "It was a real lonesome life," she said. But solitude wasn't a problem for long. After leaving the consultant's job, Ms. Estes' friend Dr. Gene Hall urged her to enroll in 1959 in the jazz program he had originated at North Texas State University. She enrolled as a freshman - the first woman to enroll in the school's lab band.

Her reception? "At first the kids were sort of . . . " she clinches her teeth and slinks back in her chair with mock uncertainty. "But they finally accepted me. And then I just had a ball with them."

Ms. Estes attended NTSU for just over a year and a half before leaving for Austin to work for then-State Sen. Ray

Her last full-time job was a three-year stint as an elementary school music teacher in Tom Bean. She retired in 1974.

Always a jazz enthusiast, Ms. Estes had played professionally for several years even before entering the NTSU program. She and several other area jazz musicians got together recently and backed the renowned Buddy Tate at his Sherman concert.

Tate, a Sherman native with a reputation as one of the world's foremost jazz artists, came home to perform a free concert - two days after receiving an honorary doctoral degree in music from New York University.

The performance capped an exhausting weekend schedule for Ms. Estes, who had played two preceding nights with the same group minus Tate: Dr. Gene Hall on saxophone; Bill Collins, trumpet; Perry Sandifer, trombone; Zeke Campbell, guitar; Frank Lively, drums; and Jack Stowe, bass.

Others she frequently plays with include Dr. Bob Houston, a drummer; Dr. Neill Humfeld, trombonist; Dr. Jim Deaton, clarinetist and saxophonist; and trumpet player David Ray.

Ms. Estes said she didn't even see Tate until the performance, and the show was staged without any rehearsal.

'That's what we call jamming," she said.

Ms. Estes, who plays without written scores, said she and her group still enjoy playing songs from the big band era for parties, wedding receptions and

She calls jazz "the only original true American art

Mother regrets decision to let child raise child

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of a teen-aged unwed mother. "Lucy" is 16. Her baby's father left town when he found out Lucy was pregnant. Lucy begged her father and me to let her keep her son. I felt he should have been placed for adoption, but I allowed my love for Lucy to overrule my good sense, so I let her keep the baby, stood by her and paid for everything.

As soon as the baby was born, Lucy reverted to being an irresponsible teen-ager and guess who is raising her child? We are!

Abby, we love our grandson, but we are 50 years old, and if we had wanted another child we would have had one 15 years ago. I know there is nothing you can do about our situation, but I need to say this: I was right in the first place. The child should have been placed for adoption, but it's too late now.

TRAPPED GRANDMA DEAR TRAPPED: It is not too late to sit down with your daughter and let her know firmly that if she does not accept the responsibility for her child, he could still be put up for adoption or placed in a foster home. If you and your husband feel that you are too old to raise a child, then you are. Better the boy should be in a home that considers him a blessing and not a burden.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend I see very often. She's a nice person, but she has a very irritating habit that drives me crazy. No matter what I start talking about, she always turns the conversation back to herself or someone in her family. If I start to tell her about my daughter, she doesn't even let me finish; she starts in about her daughter. Most of the time she goes on and on just talking about herself and her family and her experiences and her this and her that, and she doesn't seem one bit interested in anything I have to say. Maybe if you print this, she will meone else a chance.

they are too insensitive and egocentric to recognize themselves in this column. You say this friend is a "nice" person whom you see often, so why not be frank with her? Tell her you are hurt, and find it irritating when she always turns the conversation back to herself. You will be doing her a favor. And if your frankness damages your friendship, what have you lost? The company of a person whose insensitivity you find irritating to the point of driving you crazy.

A PRAYER FOR ANIMALS

Hear our humble prayer, O God, recognize herself, and give so- for our friends, the animals. Especially for animals who are suf-IRRITATED AND HURT fering; for any that are hunted or DEAR IRRITATED: There are a lost or deserted or frightened or hungry; for all that must be put to death. We entreat for them all thy mercy and pity. And for those who deal with them, we ask a heart of compassion, gentle and kindly words. Make us true friends of the animals and so to share the blessings of the merciful.
