How's that?

Daylight savings

Q. How did daylight savings time get started?

A. The daylight savings movement began in England in 1907, with the publication of a booklet titled "The Waste of Daylight" by William Willett, according to the Encyclopedia Americana.

Willett observed that in summer, morning daylight hours were wasted in sleep, while fuel was burned in the dark of the evening to light houses. He suggested turning the clocks back an hour in the summer as a remedy.

The movement was controversial, and England didn't go on daylight savings time until 1916. In the United States, a bill passed the Senate June 27, 1917, and went into effect the last Sunday of April 1918.

HOUSTON (AP) — The city's latest sightseeing stop already has had visitors from London and is expected to pack them in from around the globe.

The newest attraction in town is an engineering marvel said to be the world's largest submersible raw sewage pumping station.

Although it is being built with little public fanfare, the station, resembling a buried concrete silo, has already attracted British attention and is expected to become a regular stop for water engineers from around the world, The Houston Post reported Sunday.

London officials decided to build a similar pumping station after seeing the Houston operation, said Bengt Bjernfalk, chief of Flygt Corp., a Swedish-based company that designed and built it.

Unemployment fund empties

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas may have to borrow cash from Washington this week to keep its unemployment insurance trust fund afloat and unemployment checks flowing, officials say.

A giant jump in claims prompted by the state's sagging economy is taxing the fund, which is expected to give out in a matter of days, said Texas Employment Commission administrator Bill Grossenbacher.

With a balance of only $22.7 million, the fund is having to support daily payments of $6 million, and most of the employer taxes have already been collected for 1986, he said. An 80 percent increase in claims was caused by a weakened Texas economy that pushed unemployment to a record 9.6 percent in May, Grossenbacher said.

The situation is even worse in Louisiana, where dropping oil prices sent the jobless rate above 13 percent, the highest in the nation. Last week, its unemployment insurance fund reached a deficit of $585 million, said Dudley J. Patin Jr., Louisiana secretary of labor.

"We keep going into deficit to the tune of $100 million a year," Patin said. "It will take four to five years with a tremendous turnaround in the economy."

Oklahoma's unemployment insurance fund appears to be the healthiest of the three Southwestern states hardest hit by oil industry and related layoffs.

Although unemployment claims are up about 42 percent from this time last year, the fund's balance last week was $109.9 million, said Will Bowman, chief of research for the Oklahoma Employment Security Commission.

In the past six weeks, Oklahoma has been paying unemployment insurance benefits of about $5 million a week, Bowman said. "Any time our fund balance drops below $25 million, the next quarter we implement a surcharge to bring it back up again," he said.

For Texas, the unemployment fund's impending deficit is serious, but mechanisms set up to allow benefits to continue, Grossenbacher said.

"We're concerned, but not so much about the trust fund as we are about the economy of the state. What caught us is that we now have back-to-back recessions," Grossenbacher said, referring to the 1982-83 economic downturn.

Currently, the number of workers drawing unemployment benefits hasn't surpassed the levels reached during the 1982-83 recession, Grossenbacher said. "But the payout is higher because the nature of unemployment is different from the last time. More higher-income workers are being laid off, particularly in the oil and gas industry." During the 1982-83 recession, unemployment benefits averaged $4 million or $5 million a day, below the current $6 million a day, he said.

Midland Mayor Carroll Thomas, right, is welcomed home after a 14-day trip to the Peoples Republic of China by members of the Chamber of Commerce at the Midland Regional Airport. The trip was an endeavor to establish diplomatic relations with Midland's sister city Dongying, Peoples Republic of China. A delegation of 29 Midlanders made the trip in order to sign economic, educational and cultural agreements.

Midland group signs pact with sister city

MIDLAND (AP) — A business delegation from this West Texas oil town, where the slump in oil prices has ground the economy to a crawl, has returned from a trip to Midland's Chinese sister city hopeful that an outlet has been found for Midland's under-used petroleum expertise.

Dongying, with a population of 1.6 million, is about 15 times the size of Midland and lies near the Shengli oil field, the second largest in the People's Republic of China.

The Shengli field accounts for nearly a fourth of that country's oil production, said Richard Dunbar, who markets oil and heads the Midland Chamber of Commerce's International Affairs Committee.

The business leaders are hoping an agreement signed by Midland Mayor Carroll Thomas and his Dongying counterpart, Tang Shenghai, will be the boost Midland's petroleum industry needs. The pact calls for an exchange of technological data in oil and gas production, distribution and equipment.

"We have invited them to the oil show in October and we hope they come to see the cutting edge of oil technology," said Joan Baskin, president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

Thirty Midland representatives, including Thomas and Ms. Baskin, went to China June 13. Dunbar was on hand to greet Thomas, who arrived in Midland late Sunday night with part of the group. Othes are due to return Tuesday.

Although the travelers did not strike any firm business deals with their Chinese hosts, friendships were established and "the stage is set for future trade," said Roger Dameron of Dameron Petroleum Corp.

"It was a landmark trip in that we came to understand what the Chinese do in their oil fields," said Dameron. "They have a different approach to production because it's all under one ownership. Their technology needs improving. I'd say they're roughly 15 years behind."

The Permian Basin, of which Midland has been the financial center, currently produces about four to five times as much oil as the Shengli oilfield, said Dameron.

"I don't believe we're in competition with them," he said, adding that two large refineries are being planned in the Dongying area.

The people of Dongying also want to sell their wares to the West, including textiles and agricultural products, Dameron said.

"We were really impressed with the pragmatism of the government, who has decided to get joint ventures, foreign money, into China," said Ms. Baskin. "They're not doctrinaire communists."

The mayor talked with Chinese officials about sharing technology for shrimp farming and said a similar operation could be set up in Midland using brackish water.

"They work in five-year plans. Their goal by the 1990s is to increase oil production by 50 percent," said Thomas. "They now have 52 producing areas (in the Shengli field). They have some areas that need development, so they'll be a market for oil equipment."

Incorporated in 1983, Dongying is about 200 miles south of Beijing in eastern China, near the Yellow River and about 50 miles from the coast.

"It's very flat and very dusty, somewhat like Midland might have been in the 1930s," said Ms. Baskin. "Everything is being built and developed. It is not by any means a garden spot."

The two cities agreed to exchange by September a list of products and services each has available.

"We see tremendous potential there," said Thomas.

Some residents not receiving new UHF signal

By SPENCER SANDOW

Some Big Spring residents have been unable to receive the signal of the new KPEJ Channel 24 on their televisions.

Michael Walenta, operations manager at KPEJ, which broadcasts from Odessa, said the station has received calls from Big Spring residents who are unable to receive the channel or do not get a clear picture.

"We are having a slight signal problem" in Big Spring, he said, adding that Big Spring is the only area town that has the problem.

Walenta said station officials don't know yet what is causing the disruptions. He said he planned to bring electronic testing equipment into Big Spring today to determine where the signal is not coming through.

"It's one of those things you have to check after (instead of before) you get on the air," he said.

The signal problem should be fixed by the middle of this week, he predicted.

In an informal poll taken at the post office last week, five local residents said they haven't been able to receive the UHF channel, while three said they have been receiving it.

Both Jim Hamilton, 1905 Wasson Road, and Johnnie Lou Avery, 4 Bennett Circle, reported they have not been able to pick up the signal.

Rosaleen Hector, of the Oasis Addition, said, "Out where we live, we wouldn't (receive it) anyway." She explained she lives just off FM 700, behind the old airport.

Winnie Ansley of W. Fourth Street said she doesn't get the channel at all, and Jerry Myrick, 1703 Jennings St., said he doesn't, either.

In contrast, Pearl Wells of Hilltop Birdwell Lane said her television picks up the signal quite well.

Joan Haynie of Lomax said the reception is "almost good" at her home. "It's just not real clear, like you're used to when you have the satellite," she said.

Frank Wentz, who lives in the 1600 block of Runnels Street, said he can get the channel with a special attachment, a small round UHF antenna.

KPEJ, which began broadcasting several weeks ago, is based in Odessa. The signal is directed north as far as Seagraves, south to Crane and west to Kermit, according to a station map.

Big Spring is on the eastern edge of its coverage.

Prospective jurors fail to appear today

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

More than 70 percent of the 140 prospective jurors summoned to district court this morning failed to show, prompting the judge to order that they be contacted.

District Clerk Peggy Crittenden said 140 jury notices were mailed last week from her office, but only 40 persons responded.

Two 12-member juries were to be selected from the panel — one to hear a marijuana distribution charge brought against a former high school teacher. The other jury will hear a traffic accident civil suit.

District Judge James Gregg ordered the sheriff's department to contact by telephone those who failed to show.

Glenda Brasel, district clerk deputy, said this morning that persons can be fined for flagrantly disregarding the notices. She said, however, she does not recall any case where a prospective juror was fined.

Gregg excused two prospective jurors before attorneys Kevin Wright of the attorney general's office and Ivan Williams of Big Spring began questioning panel members.

A 12-person jury was selected shortly before noon to hear a civil trial involving damages in a 1980 truck accident on Interstate 20 in Howard County.

The jury pool was ordered to return this afternoon so a jury could be selected for the trial of Charles Briscoe, 26, a former Big Spring High School coach and teacher who will be tried on a felony charge of delivering marijuana.

The case was to begin this afternoon, Gregg said.

The trial of Briscoe, 1905 Wasson Road, stems from an April grand jury indictment charging he

New home sales hit two-year low

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales of new homes plunged 11.6 percent in May, the biggest decline in more than two years, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said that new single-family homes were sold at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 764,000 units in May, down from an April rate of 864,000 units.

It was the second decline in a row. Sales in April had fallen 5.7 percent following a giant 23.6 percent increase in March.

The 11.6 percent drop in sales was the biggest decline since a 13 percent plunge in January 1984.

Even with the weakness in the past two months, actual sales in the first five months of the year totaled 356,000 units, 20.7 percent ahead of the number of sales in the same period last year. The sales pace this year has been the highest since 360,000 units were sold from January through May of 1978.

The sales rate in May, while down sharply from the highs reached earlier this year, was still 12 percent above the sales rates in May 1985.

Housing sales have been strong this year because of a dramatic plunge in interest rates which has put mortgage rates at their lowest level of this decade.

The national average for a 30-year, fixed-rate mortgage fell below 10 percent in April. However, it has since risen slightly and last week stood at 10.62 percent, still well below the levels of a year ago.

The average price of a new home rose 3.8 percent in May to stand at $116,100. It has been above $100,000 all year.

The median price of a home fell, however, in May to $92,300, down from $92,500 the month before. The median means that half the homes sold for more and half for less.

The big decline in sales affected all parts of the country. The largest drop was a 22.5 percent decline in the West, where homes were sold at an annual rate of 193,000 units last month. The Northeast, which has been one of the hottest sales areas in the past year, suffered an 11.5 percent decline in May to an annual rate of 146,000 units.

The South, which traditionally accounts for about half the new homes sold each year, had a 6.3 percent sales drop to 330,000 units. Sales in the Midwest fell 3.1 percent to an annual rate of 95,000 units.

Senator may have committed suicide

GREENVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Sen. John East appeared cheerful despite lingering illness and was looking forward to resuming his academic career after his term expired, said stunned colleagues after learning that the staunchly conservative legislator's death apparently was a suicide.

"It's just a blow," Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., East's political mentor and a fellow champion of conservative causes, said Sunday. "I don't think I'll ever get over it."

President Reagan, vacationing at his mountaintop ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif., hailed his long-time conservative ally as a "true patriot."

"He was a quiet and effective legislator, who never wavered in his belief in principle and in his determination to keep our country strong," Reagan said in a statement.

East, 55, was found by an aide in the garage of his Greenville home shortly after 8 a.m. Sunday, police said.

Dr. Lawrence Harris, who conducted an autopsy, said the senator died of asphyxiation by carbon monoxide between midnight and 2 a.m. Sunday.

"The manner of death has all the appearance of suicide, based on the autopsy and the scene," he said.

"In my opinion, he took his own life. I have no question about it."

East was found lying on the floor beside the car, said police Detective Clifton Weatherington.

"A note was found at the scene, the contents of which are considered a personal communication between Senator East and his family," said the police statement.

The Washington Post today quoted a police officer as saying the note mentioned his health problems.

East was found by John Petree, an aide who had arrived to bring mail to the senator. East and Petree had left Washington by car

Saturday morning and arrived in Greenville sometime after noon, said Jerry Woodruff, East's press secretary.

East's wife, Priscilla, was in South Carolina visiting her mother at the time of his death. Survivors also include two daughters.

A memorial service will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday in Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church in Greenville by the Rev. J. Malloy Owen, his pastor, said Norman W. Wilkerson of Wilkerson Funeral Home.

The senator, confined to a wheelchair because of polio when he was 24, was hospitalized early in 1985 for hypothyroidism. He also was hospitalized for treatment of a low white blood cell count and a urinary blockage, and missed much of the Senate's work last year.

The hypothyroidism, a glandular condition that leads to imbalance in the body's hormones, may have led to his suicide, said Dr. T.K. Gray, a professor of medicine at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

"Hypothyroidism has a fairly strong connection with depression, and it's a fairly severe and chronic depression," Gray said. He added that drugs can often alleviate the depression.

At least one other U.S. senator has committed suicide. Sen. Lester Hunt of Wyoming shot himself in his office in 1964.

In a news conference Sunday, Helms said he had last spoken with East on Thursday night.

"He looked well, but one never knows what's inside of another person," Helms said. "I had no inkling whatsoever. He was in a good mood. He continued to be discouraged about his health, but not very much."

Helms called East's death "a tragedy of monumental proportions."

Woodruff said East had been making plans to go back to teaching and had been reviewing galley proofs of a book.

"It appeared to us that his health problems were behind him," he said. "His schedule was back to normal. He was looking good, and it seemed to us he was in a better mood all the time."

Helms said he had recommended East for a federal judgeship. But when East learned of the recommendation, he told Helms he preferred to return to his political science teaching post at East Carolina University in Greenville.

Nation

Heavy thunderstorms across the nation's midsection raised fears of flooding today after spinning off tornadoes, while other patches of storms dampened sections of the East and West.

Heavy rain prompted a flash flood warning in southeast Nebraska, while flash flood watches were issued for much of Iowa and east central Nebraska.

JOHNNY CARSON ...flooded with requests

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — An arts supply salesman wouldn't take 'no' for an answer and after flooding JOHNNY CARSON with requests finally got the part he had long dreamed of: bellowing "Heeeeere's Johnny."

JOHN SEARING, 36, of Caldwell, N.J., introduced Carson on "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson" on Thursday night.

He first wrote Carson in 1980, asking whether he could do the introduction, traditionally done by ED MCMAHON. He received a photo of Carson but that was it. He renewed his efforts in November.

"I knew more letters would be intercepted, so I had to do something a little bit creative, something a little bizarre, to get somebody's attention," he said Sunday. His attempts to win the role included sending 500 letters and a tape.

"They called me at work and said, 'John, what the heck are you doing? Why are you obsessed with doing this?'" Searing recalled.

Last week, Carson's production company flew Searing to California, and he got his chance.

PRINCE ...to perform in Sheridan, Wyo.

"It certainly was the highlight of my life, because I'd watched the show for so many years," said Searing.

SHERIDAN, Wyo. — Reclusive rock star PRINCE will be here Tuesday as promised for the premiere of his movie "Under the Cherry Moon" even though buses may have to be substituted for limousines, organizers say.

Buses may be used because it has been difficult to find limousines for the yet unidentified celebrities expected to attend the premiere, said Diane Abrams, of Warner Bros. Inc., who is trying to coordinate the hoopla.

Officials also have encountered some difficulties finding a place to roll out the red carpet at the Centennial Twin Theaters, she said.

The visit is the result of a Sheridan girl's telephone call to MTV, the music video cable television station. LISA BARBER was the 10,000th caller in a competition to serve as host for the premiere of the film and act as Prince's escort for the movie and a party.

Briscoe, who was released on $10,000 bond, pleaded not guilty to the charge last month. Lubbock attorney Alex LeFevre will defend him.

District Attorney Rick Hamby will prosecute for the state.

Unemployment

Continued from page 1A The amount of weekly unemployment benefits an individual can draw is directly related to his or her previous pay level. The average unemployment benefit check in Texas has been rising since January, Grossenbacher said. In January, the average weekly check was $149, and last month, the average payment was $180 a week.

The state's fund was in a deficit position in 1982 and 1983, and a temporary recovery in Texas' economy in 1984 and early 1985 allowed the state to pay back funds borrowed from the federal government. The trust fund remained in the black from August to January.

In March and April, the fund's balance dropped into a negative position only temporarily, because employer taxes were still coming into the state's coffers at a steady rate, Grossenbacher said.

To meet benefit payments through October, the Texas Employment Commission has applied for a $340 million line of credit at a 9.97 percent interest rate from the Unemployment Insurance Service, a branch of the Department of Labor.

Oil operations closed

NEW YORK — The presence of U.S. oil companies in Libya comes to an end today under orders from President Reagan. All five American oil companies still retaining Libyan interests said late last week that they would follow the administration's order and close down their operations in the North African nation by the deadline. "The law says we have to cease operations on June 30 and we fully intend to do that," said William Ryder, a spokesman for one of the companies, Marathon Oil Co., a unit of U.S. Steel Corp.

Offer to be considered

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration is seriously weighing a compromise offer from Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's on medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe, officials say. Gorbachev's proposal was contained in a private letter delivered last week to President Reagan by Yuri Dubinin, the new Soviet ambassador to the United States, according to an administration official who spoke on condition of anonymity late Saturday. Dubinin presented his credentials at the White House last Monday. The counter-offer will not be ready for several weeks and may not be delivered until U.S. and Soviet negotiators sit down in September for the next round of arms control talks in Geneva, Switzerland, said another senior official, also speaking anonymously.

Chicago Sun-Times sold

CHICAGO — The Chicago Sun-Times has been sold to Publisher Robert E. Page and a group of investors for $145 million, officials said today. Reports about the sale of the Pulitzer Prize-winning daily by Rupert Murdoch's News America Publishing Co. to the Page syndicate had been circulating in recent weeks. A closing was set for Wednesday in the sale of the nation's 11th largest newspaper and its assets, officials said. The possibility Page and the investors' group would buy the paper was first revealed June 25 in a story in the Sun-Times, which predicted the deal would be finalized by June 27.

Parades mark gay rights

"Gay-lesbian pride day" parades attracted throngs of supporters and some counter-demonstrators in several U.S. cities, marking the anniversary of the birth of the homosexual rights movement 17 years ago. No serious incidents were reported between pro- and anti-homosexual groups during demonstrations Sunday in New York; Columbus, Ohio; San Francisco; and Seattle, but three people were arrested in Chicago when fighting broke out among spectators at a Ku Klux Klan rally held to protest the nearby gay-rights parade.

Missing baby

Abduction of infant leaves town in fear

BRIGHTON, Ill. (AP) — The reported abduction of a newborn girl and the body of an infant found on the property of the missing baby's parents has baffled authorities and turned this quiet community into a neighborhood of fear and anxiety.

"It's just an unbelievable thing, unbelievable," Jersey County Sheriff Frank Yocom said, calling the June 17 disappearance of Lorelei Marie Sims his strangest case.

A week later, police found an infant's decomposed remains near the home of her parents, Robert and Paula Sims, but Yocom said the body has not been identified and authorities have no suspects.

Mrs. Sims, 27, told police a masked gunman forced his way into her home while her 34-year-old husband was at work, made her lie on the floor and then fled on foot with her daughter, then 12 days old.

"They could have stolen anything I own, they could have burned my house down," Sims said at the time. "But nothing could compare to this tragedy."

The abduction report sent what Yocom called a shock wave through this Southern Illinois village of 2,400 people about 25 miles north of St. Louis.

"We continually get calls," Yocom said Friday. "People with children are afraid, even little kids are afraid. They've got their own ideas about this thing."

"Those with small children, especially those with young kids, wish this were over, wish something was happening, wish it was ended. Those that don't have kids just want the whole tangled mess cleared up."

But the case is far from resolved and probably will not be until more is learned about the remains found on the Simses' property, the sheriff said.

"We're just more or less waiting," Yocom said. "It's up to forensics to do it, to try to develop cause of death if they can, age and sex, race and identity."

He refused to speculate on whether the remains were those of Lorelei Marie, but said X-rays of the skeleton showed the body to be that of a child approximately the same age as the missing baby. He said hair, bone marrow and tissue samples could lead to a positive identification — probably in a week.

Police used airplanes, tracking dogs and divers in their search for the girl and failed to find anything the first time they scoured the Simses' property.

Robert Sims, 34, and his wife, Paula, 27, embrace in the yard of their home. A masked gunman forced his way into their home June 17 and abducted their 13-day-old daughter, Lorelei. Searchers found the remains of an infant on the couple's property two days later, but the remains have not been identified. The case has baffled authorities and caused fear and anxiety in the community.

On their second effort, a trooper and dog from the state police canine corps found the body in a wooded ravine about 150 feet from the couple's house. It was so badly decomposed police could not even determine the sex, Yocom said.

"It (the missing girl's body) could have decomposed in less than a week, from what I understand from people who know," he said. "I thought that it was a little unlikely, but they've convinced me."

When a television report said police were considering the possibility there was no gunman, the Simses reacted angrily and volunteered to take polygraph tests, and Sims later told reporters they passed.

"He said they passed with flying colors, but they both failed. They both failed 100 percent," the sheriff said. "There are no suspects, but we haven't ruled out anybody."

The couple have an unlisted telephone and could not be reached for comment. But Sims' sister, Linda Condray of Cottage Hills, said her brother was hurt speculation.

"He feels deceived by everybody — by the police, who he thought were his allies, and by the press," she said. "He's just ready to give up. He feels like he's ready to die."

World

OPEC oil talks end

BRIONI, Yugoslavia — OPEC today ended a six-day series of oil talks without reaching full agreement on how to reverse the decline of oil prices, sources said.

The ministers of the 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries planned to hold another conference in late July, said the sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani, appearing briefly at a balcony outside the hotel meeting room, said a final communique was being written. He declined to give details, but said there would be no more sessions in the current talks.

Libya says body found

LONDON — Libya's official news agency reported today that the body of a U.S. Air Force pilot shot down during the American air strike on Libya in April has washed ashore in Tunisia.

A report Sunday on Libya's state radio, monitored in London by the British Broadcast Corp., had quoted the official news agency JANA as saying the body washed up near Benghazi. It provided no details.

However, the BBC today monitored another report in which JANA said it was correcting the previous story. It said the body actually had washed ashore "on the shores of Bin Qirdan, in Tunisian territory."

Union leader detained

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The head of South Africa's largest labor federation has been detained under the state of emergency, the union said today. It warned that the government crackdown could spark widespread strikes.

In Durban, two bombs planted on a pedestrian crossing spanning a freeway exploded early this morning, wrecking water pipes but causing no injuries, officials said. It was the ninth bombing since the state of emergency was imposed June 12.

The president of the mainly black Congress of South African Trade Unions was picked up at his home in Carltonville, a mining town west of Johannesburg, on Friday night, congress spokesman Frank Meintjies told The Associated Press.

Camp barricades leveled

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Leaders of five northern Lebanese towns asked Syrian soldiers to disengage warring militias, and bulldozers leveled fortifications at Beirut refugee camps today to consolidate a truce between Palestinian and Shiite fighters.

Peace moves on the two warfronts coincided with quarrels between Lebanon's Christian President Amin Gemayel and Moslem Prime Minister Rashid Karami, who renewed his demand that Gemayel step down.

Don't endanger Panama treaty

Panama is not like El Salvador. It is not like Nicaragua. It is not like them because those countries have considerably less strategic importance to the United States. Panama is different from all the rest of Central America because the Panama Canal is of great strategic importance to the United States. The canal is the sea link between oceans. It is vital for the Navy and for commerce.

The security of the Panama Canal has been guaranteed by a historic treaty, which turns control of the canal over to Panama in the year 2000, in return for U.S. vessels' freedom to pass through it forever.

The treaty helped avoid the violence that has swept over much of the rest of Central America. But the Panamanian signatory of the treaty, Gen. Omar Torrijos, was killed in a helicopter crash.

Torrijos' successor, Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, is being accused of having ordered the decapitation of a Panamanian opposition leader, whose body was found in a U.S. mail bag in Costa Rica last fall.

Unnamed sources in the CIA and the White House, quoted by The New York Times, accuse Noriega of selling U.S. secrets to Cuba, of exporting classified technology to Cuba, of selling arms to guerrillas in Colombia, of laundering drug money and of running a drug operation to the United States.

This is a rather extensive list of skulduggery, even for a Central American dictator.

The question is, why didn't the CIA blow the whistle on Noriega earlier? Does President Reagan, who opposed the Panama Canal treaty, want to undermine it?

That's Noriega's explanation. But there are two other plausible reasons for not blowing the whistle sooner.

The United States was using Noriega as a double agent in Cuba. And Noriega was giving the U.S. military wide latitude in his country.

Noriega's double-dealing appears to have finally tripped him. But the United States should deal carefully with Panama, not just leak accusations against its dictator.

The Panama Canal Treaty is based on countries, not on regimes. It means sovereignty to Panama. It means national security to the United States.

Let neither side endanger it. The violence of El Salvador and Nicaragua would be a sideshow compared to a war over the Panama Canal.

Details wanted on why Rick Turner was removed

To the editor:

I was hoping that someone, besides myself, would write a letter on this subject. It is very difficult for me to accept that no one came forward.

I will miss ex-Chief of Police Rick Turner because of the profound difference he made in the quality of many of our lives. It is still very unclear what it is he did or didn't do.

I approached my councilman and was given the same well-rehearsed speech that said nothing but smelled like so many other things in our city. Somebody is hiding something. I cannot accept the "politically volatile" answer. What does that mean?

I asked my friends to recall the city police under Jay Banks. One incident lives with me — a man being thrown on the ground, kicked, lifted by his hair, thrown on the hood of a car, his head banged on the hood until he was bleeding. All the time he was pleading for help.

It took five of Big Spring's finest to subdue him. And we watched this inhumanity because a simple "why?" would have directed the violence on us. Oh yes, I forgot to mention the man was handcuffed through it all.

Many local citizens can sadly recall other incidents. It can happen again.

At that time there were two sets of laws. Two identical crimes, two different ways of applying the law.

In today's (June 25) edition of the Herald, I read Hank Murphy's article about special interest groups. He is so right. Why don't we do something that interests and benefits all of Big Spring?

There is a sickness that affects everyone here. It affects some of those we love, and certainly all of us who pay taxes. It involves users who support their habits with thefts. Do we want to rid ourselves of this disease or do we allow certain elements to continue to spread it?

Rick Turner was serious about this. I believe he was getting too close to some in power. I also believe that his ability to interact with all segments of the community was also one reason for his dismissal. There are still those that consider that trait a taboo.

We needed to work with him, to support him in hitting all those involved from the lowest dealer to the highest. We either want to eliminate all of it or none of it. It cannot be a selective process. There were reports of unlawful arrests. I ask you this: Who issued the warrant?

Rick Turner opened the doors to communications — a practice never before done for certain segments of the community. I remember meeting him and listening to his high ideas on law. I recall laughing with him and telling him that a certain element in our community that would not allow him to promote those ideals.

I wonder how many of you that talked about all the wrong he did took the time to really know him. Or did you form an opinion from what you heard?

I personally plan to monitor the appointment of our new chief to assure we get a just one and not one that will do the bidding of just a few. I encourage the rest of you to do the same. Attend your council meetings. Not only when it affects your special interest. Our city will never get better till we all get in there and work together.

Mexico adds to bad image with soccer cup blunders

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — Mexico's political establishment probably hoped that by playing host to the World Cup soccer series it could improve its image, but it didn't reckon with the Mexican television executives who were entrusted with this assignment.

One good question, of course, was how Mexico, with a multibillion-dollar foreign debt that threatens to send it into bankruptcy, could afford to be host for the games, which originally were scheduled to be played in Colombia. Yet when Colombia dropped out because it couldn't afford the necessary expenses, Mexico was chosen.

This was arranged through the good offices of Joao Havelange, the Brazilian who heads FIFA, the federation that governs the world's most popular sport.

Mexican officials explained that the country could afford to be host because private business would pay for it. But it was the Mexican government that paid for the two new airports that were built to satisfy FIFA requirements for the nine cities where the games were played.

And it wasn't private businessmen who paid more than $25 million for the 50,000 Mexican soldiers and police who provided security.

While the influx of tourists would help to offset some of these expenses, it appears that the only outfit that really cashed in on the soccer games were Televisa, the Mexican entertainment conglomerate.

Interestingly enough, Havelange, the head of FIFA, has a financial relationship with Televisa. Furthermore, Guillermo Canedo, a Mexican who is vice president of FIFA and was the chief organizer of the games, is a senior executive of Televisa.

Even this hint of scandal might not have been enough to merit the headline stories in the European press about "disaster," "armed robbery" and "racket without precedent."

What infuriated the European press was that Televisa failed so spectacularly in its attempt to transmit the soccer games to its international TV customers.

Total blackouts occurred for

various periods in the United States, Brazil, Algeria, Austria, Belgium, Germany, Turkey, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia, Finland, Norway, Bulgaria, Holland, Ireland, Britain, Morocco and Nigeria.

Other technological blunders also were laid to Televisa's incompetence:

- Transmission of the games intended for one TV channel in France went instead to its rival channel.
- One game was broadcast in German to Canadian audiences.
- Colombia got commentary in Portuguese, not spoken in that country. West Germany got commentary in French, and British audiences were given Spanish audio to accompany some games.
- On the opening day, only seven of the 33 countries that had paid millions for the transmission actually received it.

In addition, journalists were angry and frustrated when they had to pay $850 just to have a telephone connected — and then discovered the phone often didn't work.

Television companies still are computing the tens of thousands of dollars in phone bills necessitated by Televisa's goofs. They had to patch together commentary for the games when Televisa's transmission blacked out or was provided in the wrong language.

Many of them are demanding their money back.

Even domestically, the soccer games were mishandled. Many of the stadiums have been half-empty, because officials set ticket prices higher than a day's wages for the average Mexican soccer fan.

WATCH ON WASTE: To give the Army ROTC a "new image," its name has been changed to the U.S. Army ROTC Command, and the promotion will cost the taxpayers about $300,000.

About 60,000 cadets and 5,000 officers will get new 63-cent shoulder patches to sew on each uniform: four for the cadets, six for the officers. In addition, each cadet and officer will get one new regimental crest costing about $1 each.

Meanwhile, the ROTC still has about $234,000 worth of the old insignia in stock. This inventory must be reduced somehow to $70,000 worth before the remaining patches can be destroyed.

ANXIETY IN THE ISLANDS: Intelligence sources say the communist rebels in the Philippines went into shock at the ouster of their old sparring partner, Ferdinand Marcos, and haven't recovered since.

It's almost forgotten now, but the rebel leaders rashly called for a boycott of the presidential election that led to Corazon Aquino's "people power" revolution.

The communists thought they could demonstrate their popular influence — but only a handful of Filipinos stayed away from the voting booths. Totally misreading the signs of Aquino's popularity, the rebel leaders are now in seclusion, trying to figure out their next brilliant move.

MINI-EDITORIAL: The embarrassing disclosure that 14 Democratic House members visited a coal mine for $2,000 apiece — offered by the coal company — was embarrassing only because it got too much publicity.

Caught with their hands out, several decided to refuse the "honorarium" or give it to charity (with a tax writeoff, presumably).

But no one in Congress seems to be bothered by the basic impropriety involved: Why should a lawmaker have to be paid extra to do his job? The whole system of honoraria for government officials is so close to legal bribery that it ought to be eliminated.

Jack Anderson's investigative report from Washington is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

When July yields views of Christmas

By TIM APPEL

It's that time of the year again. Once again, thanks to the modern miracle of television, the Christmas program specials will return next week, starting with a popular summer Christmas classic, "Santa buys a condo," followed by the tear-jerker, "Monahans: The city that Santa forgot on his road map."

Along with the traditional characters that I grew up with, such as Santa, Rudolph and Frosty the Snowman, more modern characters such as the Smurfs and Care Bears will entertain us with their thoughts about the meaning of Christmas.

How about a Rambo Christmas special?

Why not? Every plot in every Christmas special is the same: A villain like Winter Warlock or Axe-Murder Smurf wants to stop all the happiness, and it is up to our heroes to save the day. How boring!

And what about the animation on these specials? No matter where the scene, it always has snow for Christmas. When the special "Rudolph goes Hawaiian" comes out, it will show Honolulu buried in a blizzard.

Makes you wonder if the animators passed Geography.

But this trend of programming will continue so long as there is an audience to watch it. So what can we expect for the future?

A New York Christmas — In a unique way, Mario Cuomo announces his candidacy for president during this 30-minute special. Mario stops a PLO plot to blackout New York City while everyone does their last-minute Christmas shopping.

Concrete Shoes for Christmas — The Chicago Syndicate, wanting a bigger piece of the action, kidnaps Santa. But a mob informant, disguised as a snow-plow driver from Honolulu, saves Santa from being sunk in the Potomac, and Santa gives each member of the Mafia a lump of coal for Christmas.

A Present for Burger — A federal court judge rules that the Garbage Pail Kids cards are against the copyright of the Cabbage Patch Dolls. Millions of kids are distraught over the news, but Warren Burger saves the day.

On his last day as a Supreme Court judge, the Burger court decides that Santa Claus overrules all lower court actions, paving the way for Santa to deliver Garbage Pail Kids cards for Christmas.

Remember, with the Blue Law repealed, only 177 more shopping days 'til Christmas.

Opinions expressed in this column are those of the staff writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the newspaper's management.

Today

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, June 30, the 181st day of 1986. There are 184 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: Fifty years ago, on June 30, 1936, the Civil War novel "Gone with the Wind" by Margaret Mitchell was published in New York.

On this date: In 1834, the Indian Territory was created by Congress.

In 1859, French acrobat Emile Blondin crossed Niagara Falls on a tightrope as 5,000 spectators watched.

In 1870, Ada H. Kepley of Effingham, Ill., became America's first female law school graduate. In 1906, the Pure Food and Drug Act and the Meat Inspection Act became law.

In 1934, Adolf Hitler began his "blood purge" of hundreds of political and military leaders in Germany. Among those killed was Ernst Roehm, leader of the Nazi stormtroopers and Hitler's one-time ally.

In 1971, a Soviet space mission ended in tragedy when three cosmonauts aboard Soyuz 11 were found dead inside their spacecraft after returning to Earth.

Woman thinks vacationing parents should stay in hotels

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I would be writing to you, but I just had to after reading the letter from the mother who wanted to know how long was too long for a visit with her children. She kept saying how she was no trouble — she didn't need her own room, and liked to spend the day watching game shows, having morning coffee, reading, and going to movie and playing cards. Abby, she may think that is no trouble, but please read on:

Dear Abby

My husband and I live in a small two-bedroom apartment, 3,000 miles from my in-laws. They stayed with us for two weeks, and it was the worst two weeks of my life. They acted like they were on vacation and I was the hotel maid. I'm sure they felt that they were perfect houseguests, but that was not the case.

They stayed in the second bedroom and had the TV on constantly (and loudly), which almost drove me crazy, especially when I was trying to work or sleep. When they were not watching TV, they wanted us to go with them to places I had no interest in going to. If I said I did not want to go, they tried to make me feel guilty about it. Cooking for four is much more work than cooking for two. They offered to help after all the work was done. Let's not forget the digs about my working instead of staying home to clean, cook and raise a family.

Please, Abby, tell parents that if they want a vacation, the best place for them to stay is in a hotel. Sign me...

THE REST OF THE STORY

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Perplexed Mother" who heard through the grapevine that some of her children think she overstays her welcome in their homes: She should ask herself these questions, and be completely honest when answering them:

1. Does Mother invite herself? (It's natural to resent houseguests who come to visit when it's convenient for them without considering their hosts.)

2. Is Mother critical of her married children and their spouses? (Some mothers assume they have a right to criticize their children's cooking, housekeeping, child-rearing, clothing, friends, habits, etc. They refuse to accept their children as the adults they are.)

3. Is Mother inflexible in her habits? (If she cannot tolerate changes in her daily routine, she should stay home. It's unreasonable and rude to expect a whole family to alter its routines to accommodate her. By the way, this applies equally to children visiting their parents.)

4. Does Mother disappear once in a while to allow her children some private time together?

Please print this, Abby. I want to send it to my mother-in-law. She also insists that she's "really no trouble at all." If that were true, it wouldn't take us weeks to get over one of her "short" visits: So, "Perplexed Mother" — clean up your act, and your children will welcome you with open arms.

NOT PERPLEXED AT ALL DEAR NOT PERPLEXED: Read on for the slip side of that problem:

DEAR ABBY: For many years our family has used a code word to alert someone that his fly was open. Someone, my mother perhaps, had heard that Professor Einstein was notoriously absent-minded and had to be told that his zipper was open. Therefore, whenever a male in the family needed to be told to zip up his zipper, Mom would say "Einstein."

One day, at a family wedding, I noticed my husband's zipper was open. He was about 20 feet away so I said "Einstein" in a rather loud stage whisper. At least 10 men in his vicinity automatically looked down to check their zippers. Apparently, our "code word" had spread.

Pecans need special care during the summer

Pecans need special attention in the summer.

That means applying zinc sprays controlling aphids and scab, pruning and irrigating.

Pecan scab will likely be a serious problem due to recent rains. Fungicide sprays of Benlate, Topsin or Super Tin will prevent scab from overtaking the entire shock. Homeowners should use Benlate. Scab can develop on pecans in any part of Texas as long as the weather is wet and warm.

Pecan growers have had to worry about sticky, sugar-covered leaves every summer due to aphid infestations. Zolone or malathion sprays can give homeowners good control.

Summertime drought is a sure bet every year, and pecans will suffer if they do not receive at least one inch of water per week from June through September.

Actually, two inches is optimum. A mature pecan tree will use more than 100 gallons of water per day. If trees go more than three weeks without water, serious crop loss can occur.

Weeds and grass also use soil moisture, so keep competitive vegetation to a minimum under pecan trees. With shallow soil and vegetation under trees, a weekly irrigation will be needed.

On young pecan trees, weeds show down growth more than anything else, so use a contact herbicide such as Roundup to keep the limb spread area weed-free.

Pecan trees less than four years of age should have only one main trunk. If two, three or four trunks develop, simply cut the weaker ones out and leave the strongest one.

Young trees also should receive zinc sprays every two weeks to insure maximum growth. Make your final nitrogen application in June, because later applications can, and probably will, result in freeze injury in December or January.

Freeze injury is showing up in parts of Texas on mature pecan trees. Sometimes it is a limb or two, but occasionally, it is the entire tree. Warm winters mixed with an occasional cold spell are much more serious than a long, cold winter.

Varieties which were productive

For your garden

last fall such as Wichita or Mahan have been hit the hardest. Since the pecan has a short chilling requirement of only 400 hours, it can have active sap as long as weather is mild. Consequently, weak pecan trees did not go completely dormant, and when freezes do occur, freeze injury results. Homeowners should wait until mid-summer to prune out dead limbs to avoid removing limbs which may recover.

Shading the house can be cost effective

By NAOMI HUNT
County Extension Agent
Controlling cooling costs this summer really means controlling the effects of sunshine on your home.
How much the sun heats your house depends on your home's shape, orientation, insulation, color, materials, landscaping, and most important, — the shade it receives.

Focus on family

Trees, shrubs, trellises with climbing vines and landscaping cut cooling costs by keeping the sun's heat off your walls, windows and roof. So you might consider planting more trees and shrubs as an energy-saving investment as well as a way to beautify your yard.

long roof overhangs can reduce indoor temperatures from 8-15 degrees and lighten the air conditioning load by 25%.

Building overhangs, awnings, shutters, screens, reflective films, drapes, blinds and shades will also help reduce cooling costs.

Trees that cast a shadow across walls and roof can provide shading coefficients from .20-.70, depending on density and position.

How much of an impact these devices have depends on their shape and form, location near a window, color and the reflectivity of the materials used.

Exterior shading devices tend to be more effective than interior devices. For example, inside dark shades or blinds have a shading coefficient of .60-.90.

A "shading coefficient" is used to compare different shading options. It is a ratio of the total solar heat gain through a shading device or window combination compared with the total solar heat gain through a single-glazed, unshaded window.

So before you start your air conditioner and send the electric meter soaring, think about some ways to add shade to your home and lot.

A single-glazed, unshaded window has the highest value of one. The lower the ratio, the more effective the shading device.

BEFORE YOU BUY A ROOM AIR CONDITIONER
If a new room air conditioner is on this summer's shopping list, carefully consider your home's cooling needs before you buy.

The most effective shading devices are outside louvers, with a ratio of .10-.15 and outside overhangs or louvered shade screens at .25. Properly angled, Correctly sizing the unit to the area to be cooled is very important. Remember that an air conditioner not only cools the air but dehumidifies it as well, and the humidity of the air has a large bearing on your comfort level.

A unit that is too large will cool a room quickly and shut off before it can dehumidify adequately. That leaves the air feeling muggy and uncomfortable, so most people tend to waste energy — and money — by setting the thermostat a bit cooler in order to get adequate dehumidification. On the other hand, an air conditioner that's too small cannot cool or dehumidify satisfactorily.

To avoid these problems, make a list of shopping information including the size of the room and connecting hall to be cooled. The size, types and number of windows in rooms to be cooled, the electric outlets or circuits available (120 or 240 volt).

This information helps a salesperson determine the air conditioning needs (in BTU's) for a specific area. After finding units with a correct capacity for the room, check the energy efficiency rating (EER) displayed on the label attached to the appliance.

Air conditioners are available in high efficiency (EER of 7.5 or higher) or standard efficiency (below 7.5 EER) models. High efficiency models cost less to operate, but are somewhat more expensive to buy. If they are installed and used properly, most high efficiency models will lower operating costs enough to pay back the difference in purchase price.

Also consider and compare other features, such as intermittent fan operation, air direction controls, two or three fan speed, ease of installation, adjustable thermostat and warranty coverage, before you buy a room air conditioner.

Diego Maradona, star of the Argentinian soccer team, sits on the shoulders of fans as he holds up the FIFA trophy he and his teammates were presented with Sunday after beating West Germany to win the World Cup final 3-2.

Maradona gets help; Argentina wins Cup

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Sometimes even the best need help. Diego Maradona got plenty of it, which is why he and his Argentine teammates can call themselves world champions.

Maradona wasn't as magical on Sunday as he had been in previous World Cup games. But he set up two goals, including one by Jorge Burruchaga with six minutes remaining that gave Argentina a 3-2 victory over West Germany and its second world soccer title in the last three tournaments.

"Today you saw clearly that Argentina is not Maradona. It is instead a great team," the 25-year-old striker said after the Argentinians blew a 2-0 advantage in an eight-minute span of the second half. Then Maradona's brilliant pass freed Burruchaga behind the defense, and he beat goalkeeper Harald Schumacher from 12 yards for the Cup-clinching goal.

The emphasis throughout the Argentine camp was on the team victory. Though Coach Carlos Bilardo claimed once more that Maradona "is the best player in the world" — who could argue with him after this tournament — he paid special tribute to the camaraderie of his players.

Argentina controlled much of the first half and went ahead on defender Jose Brown's first goal was decidedly pro-Argentina. "They made a mistake by not pulling back more into defense after our second goal," Beckenbauer said of his players. "We gambled on defense in the end and we paid for it."

It was West Germany's third loss in its record fifth World Cup final. The Germans won the title in 1954 and '74 and lost to England in 1966 and Italy four years ago.

After Argentina had kept perfect South America's World Cup record in tournaments held in the Western Hemisphere — no European team has won the championship in Latin America — hundreds of fans poured out of the stands to surround the players. Maradona led the Argentinians to the presidential box, where Mexican President Miguel de la Madrid presented the trophy to the team captain. With tears streaming down his face, Maradona kissed the World Cup and passed it on to his teammates.

In Buenos Aires, where fireworks erupted in the air, virtually every major street was filled with caravans of trucks, cars and taxis, their horns blaring. On the sidewalks, people stood cheering and banging on pots and pans, while strips of newspapers, toilet paper and other makeshift confetti cascaded down from high-rise balconies.

Voeller then got free in the goalmouth and headed home a pass from Thomas Berthold off a corner kick by Brehme.

"When we scored the tying goal, I felt we fully controlled the game," Beckenbauer said. "But the crowd noise made it impossible to shout instructions to my players."

Cocaine deaths spawn enthusiasm for drug testing

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The deaths of football star Don Rogers and basketball star Len Bias, from cocaine overdoses just eight days apart may serve a strong warning to other athletes to stay away from the drug, sports figures say.

A toxicologist said Sunday that laboratory tests showed that cocaine was in Rogers' blood system when he died of heart failure on Friday, the day before the Cleveland Browns defensive back was to be married.

"Yes, there was cocaine found in the body," James Beede, toxicologist for the Sacramento County coroner's office, said. "Obviously, it was a lethal dose."

Rogers, 23, and Bias, 22, were alike in many ways. Friends, teammates and family of both players said that neither ever used drugs, that both were model athletes respected by their peers.

"We have to get away from the idea that only bad people use cocaine," Pawlowski said. "Good people use it. It's a problem that afflicts the whole society."

Rogers was a Rose Bowl hero for UCLA, a No. 1 pick by the Cleveland Browns in the National Football League's 1984 college draft, and the AFC Defensive Rookie of the Year. He was voted the Browns' hardest worker in each of his two seasons.

Bias was an All-American forward for the University of Maryland and a No. 1 pick by the Boston Celtics in the recent National Basketball Association draft.

In Washington, Houston Rockets forward Ralph Sampson and former NBA player Bob Lanier, an architect of the league's voluntary drug-testing program, said they favor mandatory tests for drug abuse.

"I tend to think that we might have to go towards that, only because it's very, very important right now," Lanier said on NBC's "Meet the Press." "When you see people dying, I think we have to clean our house."

Lanier, a former Detroit Pistons and Milwaukee Bucks center, was the player representative who negotiated a voluntary drug testing program for professional basketball players.

Sampson said he had seen drug abuse in the NBA and on the University of Virginia campus, where he went to school. A grand jury is investigating drug abuse at the school that reaches into the sports program, it was reported last week.

"I think there should be some sort of testing, no doubt," Sampson said. "Because you're going to have to have a way to prevent drugs (from getting) into sports so they can get their education. I favor some kind of testing for drugs, yes. It should be mandatory."

Astros sweep Dodgers to regain West lead

HOUSTON (AP) — On paper, the game figured to be a classic pitching matchup.

And it translated perfectly to the field Sunday as the Houston Astros scored two unearned runs in the seventh, edging Fernando Valenzuela and the Los Angeles Dodgers by a score of 2-1 and sweeping their weekend series.

The victory propelled the Astros back into first place in the National League Western Division with a half-game lead over the San Francisco Giants. It was a lead the Astros had relinquished after dropping four straight to the Giants last weekend.

The Astros' Nolan Ryan pitched six strong innings, striking out eight, walking three and allowing only three hits and a run-scoring double by Dodgers rookie shortstop Craig Shipley.

"I am throwing the ball real well and my arm is not hurting," said Ryan, who made his second start since returning from the disabled list.

Valenzuela, 10-5, pitched a complete game, his 10th of the year. He had a one-hitter going until the seventh inning, when the game fell apart.

Phil Garner led off for the Astros with a groundball to shortstop and reached second base when Shipley threw the ball into the dugout. Glenn Davis then struck out but reached first base on a wild pitch by Valenzuela with Garner taking third. Consecutive singles by Kevin Bass and Jose Cruz drove in the two Astro runs.

The winning pitcher for the Astros was Manny Hernandez, 2-3, who pitched one scoreless inning.

Twins blast Saberhagen early as Royals fall 9-4

(AP) Bret Saberhagen is following his storybook 1985 season with a nightmarish sequel.

Saberhagen, who was 20-6 and captured two World Series victories and the Cy Young award as a 21-year-old last year, gave up eight runs in one-plus innings Sunday as the Minnesota Twins defeated the Kansas City Royals 9-4 Sunday.

The horrendous inning dropped Saberhagen's record to 4-9 with a 4.13 earned run average.

Roy Smalley keyed Minnesota's five-run first inning with a three-run homer after Saberhagen hit Kirby Puckett with the first pitch of the game and Tom Brunansky singled. The Twins made it 5-0 in the first on Mickey Hatcher's two-run single.

Allen Anderson, 2-1, another 22-year-old, allowed nine hits and four runs in 7-3 innings for the victory in only his fourth major-league start.

Red Sox 8, Orioles 3
Boston won its eighth straight game on the road and increased its AL East lead to eight games by handing Baltimore its fifth consecutive loss.

Tony Armas hit a two-run homer and Dwight Evans had a run-scoring double and an RBI single, backing the pitching of Jeff Sellers, who scattered nine hits for his first victory since being called up from Pawtucket on June 3.

Sellers, 1-3, allowed solo homers by Lee Lacy in the third and Cal Ripken Jr. in the sixth, but got plenty of offensive support against Orioles starter Mike Boddicker, 10-3.

Blue Jays 6, Yankees 3
Cliff Johnson keyed a three-run outburst with a run-scoring single in the ninth inning, lifting Toronto to its fifth consecutive victory and sending New York to its 10th straight loss at home, the longest ever at Yankee Stadium.

Tony Fernandez added an RBI double and Garth Loy had a sacrifice fly as the Blue Jays handed the Yankees their third consecutive series sweep at home.

The Yankees, who gave up a first-inning run for the ninth consecutive home game, had a 10-game home losing streak once before, in 1913 when they played at the Polo Grounds.

John Cerutti, 3-1, who relieved Toronto starter Dave Stieb after six innings, pitched two scoreless innings for the victory. Brian Fisher, 4-5, was the loser.

Indians 6, Angels 4
California stayed in first place in the AL West despite the loss to Cleveland, which got a three-run homer from Joe Carter and solo homers from Brook Jacoby and Andre Thornton.

Ken Schrom, 8-2, scattered eight hits, including a homer by Brian Downing, in 7-3 innings before getting relief help from Ernie Camacho, who notched his 11th save.

Mariners 9, Rangers 3
Jim Presley drove in four runs with a two-run double, a homer and a groundout for Seattle against Texas, which remained a half-game behind the Angels.

Presley, who now has driven in 24 runs in his last 22 games, wiped out a 1-0 Rangers lead with his two-run double in the first. His homer leading off the seventh was his 16th of the season, and Mariners rookie Danny Tartabull hit a 464-foot homer in the same inning.

Mike Moore, 4-7, scattered eight hits, struck out seven and did not walk a batter to pick up the victory. Ed Correa, 5-6, was the loser.

White Sox 6, A's 5
John Cangelosi was hitless in eight at-bats in the three game series, but his sacrifice fly in the top of the 10th inning gave Chicago the victory over Oakland.

A's reliever Doug Bair, 0-1, loaded the bases for Cangelosi with one out by issuing two walks and yielding a single to pinch-hitter Jerry Hairston.

Chicago took a 5-4 lead into the bottom of the ninth, but the A's tied it when Jose Canseco doubled home Tony Phillips from first with two outs off Bob James, 3-4, who went on to post the victory. Ron Kittle and Carlton Fisk homered for the White Sox.

Tigers 9, Brewers 5
Milwaukee ended its five-game losing streak and Detroit's five-game winning run with the second-game victory.

Ted Higuera, 10-6, took a two-hit shutout into the ninth, but he was relieved by Don Plesac after giving up a leadoff homer to Kirk Gibson, his fifth in six games, and a single. Don Plesac got out of a bases-loaded, one-out situation to post his seventh save.

Charlie Moore homered for the Brewers off Jack Morris, 7-5, who pitched a complete game and struck out 10 despite the loss.

The Tigers won the first game as Darrell Evans collected two of Detroit's five doubles and drove in four runs. Lou Whitaker added a homer.

Rookie Eric King, 4-0, was the first-game winner, with relief help from Willie Hernandez.

Mets 7, Cubs 4
Dwight Gooden decided to go to the movies in an effort to regain the form that had made him the best pitcher in baseball. And the result was anything but a happy ending for the Chicago Cubs.

"I regained my rhythm," the 1985 National League Cy Young Award winner announced Sunday after the New York Mets downed the Cubs, 7-4. "I had watched some films with (pitching coach) Mel (Stottlemyre), and learned I had been turning my leg."

So much for a slump that had seen Gooden fail to win in his three previous starts. But in giving up 10 hits and striking out only six, the 21-year-old right-hander still looked mortal ... a far cry from the overpowering pitcher he had been in his first two major-league seasons.

He had plenty of help, however. Darryl Strawberry hit a two-run homer and drove in three runs and George Foster added a solo homer as the Mets maintained a 9½-game lead in the National League East.

Braves 3, Padres 1
David Palmer lifted Atlanta into third place in the West with his bat and his arm. He pitched a four-hitter and drove in the go-ahead run as the Braves completed a sweep of a three-game that moved them a game ahead of San Diego.

Palmer, 4-6, got as break when Tony Gwynn misjudged his liner to right field in the fourth inning. It scored Andres Thomas, who had reached on a two-out triple to center field.

The victory was the fourth straight for the Braves and their sixth in eight games.

Thomas and Ken Oberkfell also drove in runs for Atlanta.

Expos 6, Pirates 4
Tim Raines was his own hit-and-run man; with a single, double, triple and two stolen bases to lead a 15-hit Montreal attack. And he tried in vain for a home run in his last at-bat.

Andres Galarraga hit his eighth homer of the season and Floyd Youmans, 7-5, pitched five innings for his seventh victory in his last nine decisions. He left the game because of a bruised right thumb suffered while batting. Bob McClure got his third save for the Expos.

R.J. Reynolds supplied most of the offense for Pittsburgh, doubling twice, scoring two runs and driving in two.

Mike Bielecki, 4-5, took the loss for Pittsburgh.

Phillies 8, Cardinals 7
After watching St. Louis' Gold Glove shortstop Ozzie Smith make a rare second error in the same game, Juan Samuel was stunned.

But he got over it in a hurry, hitting a grand slam for the Phillies, who were down to their last out.

Smith's, had no excuse for the throwing error.

"The ball just didn't get there," he said of his wide throw to first base that just preceded Samuel's slam off Todd Worrell, 5-8.

Reds 4, Giants 3
Ron Oester was hearing the boos, so he did something about them.

Oester, whose fielding error led to a pair of San Francisco runs, redeemed himself with a game-winning single that scored pinch-runner Eric Davis in the bottom of the ninth inning.

"I heard the boos" after the error, Oester said. "I just wanted to make contact. I didn't care how I hit it or where I hit it."

Giants starter Mike LaCoss, 7-3, took the loss despite hitting his second home run in his last two at-bats.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"IF I CATCH A WHALE, WILL YOU HELP ME CLEAN IT?"

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"Aw, Mommy! You couldn't REALLY grow potatoes in my ears, could you?"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JULY 1, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you can get into the practical and materialistic aspects of your everyday affairs and work them out on a common sense basis by your own cleverness.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Seek out the right individual who can give you advice to make your business operate better.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take time to improve relationships with others. The evening is better spent at home with books or T.V.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't have a talk with kin that could cause an argument. Not a good evening to invite others to your home.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) A friend who is practical can give you the right idea to make a cherished wish come true.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Study your status in life and how it can be improved. An important person appreciates your efforts.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make worthwhile contacts during the daytime. Take no risks in P.M. concerning intimate matters.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Practical matters are easily handled. Do whatever will please your mate. Avoid demanding friends tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Come to the right agreement with associates. Not a good evening to be out on the town.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A practical stance yields successful business affairs. Spend the evening with those you trust.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Enjoy your spare time today. It's not a good evening to seriously talk with spouse.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Do something that kin desire of you before getting into outside matters of importance. Avoid egotistical people.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Safeguard your health in some way. Get into the hobby you enjoy so much and excel at.

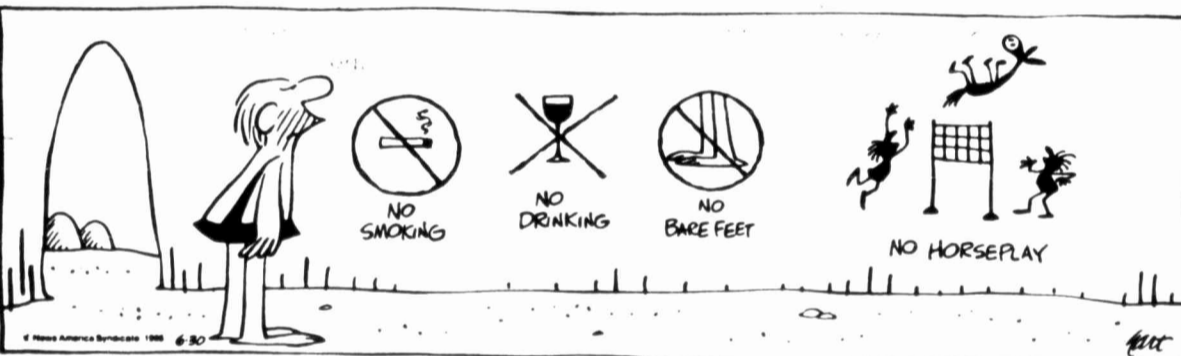

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be very good in business. Educate in courses like psychology and philosophy that will counter balance the purely materialistic. Teach early not to be so prejudiced and be happier with his fellow man or woman. Give good training in manners.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
