Texas jobless rate hits high

DALLAS (AP) - The effects of collapsing oil and gas prices threw record numbers of Texans into the unemployment line in June when the state's jobless rate hit a recent high of 10.5 percent, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today.

The June rate marked an increase of 0.9 percent from May and was almost 31/2 points above the 7.1 percent rate for June

The unemployment rate is the highest recorded in Texas since the government began the present system of recording

Deven Dichie, regional commissioner for the bureau, said the increase was the result of a huge increase in the number of Texans unable to find jobs, as well as a drop in the state's total employment.

Richie said falling oil and gas prices would continue to drag down the Texas economy. "Clearly, the decline in business activity, especially since the first of this year has been linked to the rapid and significant reduction in oil and gas prices. They fell again yesterday," he said.

Richie said a record 846 000 neonle were unemployed last month in Texas - almost 200,000 more than the previous high in February 1983, during the last statewide

The number of Texans holding jobs dipped by 30,000 to 7,230,000, marking the first decline in total employment in the last 12 months, Richie said.

Problems facing the moribund oil and gas industry have now spread to other portions of the Texas economy, Richie said.

"Almost every sector of the state's economy is showing signs of weakness because there is this rippling effect. At this point, there are no indications of a turnaround," Richie said.

Richie said there was little hope of significant improvements in the jobless rate until petroleum prices stabilize.

The Texas unemployment rate now has been above 8.0 percent for five straight

Summerfest is two-thirds way to goal

By SPENCER SANDOW Staff Writer

Summerfest so far has raised $10,000, two-thirds its $15,000 goal, committee chairman John Sparks said this morning.

Proceeds from the July 4th celebration will go to the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center. Larry Bristo, director of the center, said most of the money comes from team registration fees, sponsorships and contributions.

Bristo and Sparks said 20 teams have registered for competition as of this morning. With eight members to a team, that's 160 participants in team even PLISTO said. Last year, he said, 18 teams participated.

The deadline to register a team has been extended through today, Sparks said. Registration will take place at 7:30 a.m. Friday at Comanche Trail Park. The $120 team fee includes a barbecue lunch catered by Big John's Feed Lot, said owner John Price. The public may also purchase barbecue, he said. Big John's will serve parpecue sand-

Couples events last from 8:30-9:30 a.m. Each team will divide into four couples, each couple participating in one of four events, Bristo said. The events will be horseshoes, washers, a football throw and tennis, he said.

Team events begin at 9:30 a.m. and will run throughout the day in about 30-minute intervals, Bristo said. Games will be a canoe race, an obstacle course, volleyball, and wheelchair and wheelbarrow

In the wheelbarrow race, one partner rides in the barrow while the other, blindfolded, pushes through an obstacle course in a relay, he said.

The Night Shift band will play throughout the day, beginning at 11 a.m., he said. The Big Spring Symphony will give a free concert at 8 p.m. in the park near the Dora Roberts Community Center, followed by a fireworks display at Day fireworks — especially bottle rockets - may partially or completely blind 1,000 Americans and injure 13,000 others, a Texas A&M University medical professor warned Wednesday.

But that figure could be drastically reduced if people wear protective goggles when handling fireworks, says Dr. R.D. Cunningham, director of Scott & White Hospital's ophthamology division.

"I cannot describe the tragic feeling when we have to remove eyes from children or adults and know the injury was preventable," Cunningham said. "Wearing protective goggles or glasses will prevent most eye injuries."

He said children should never be Based on 1983 figures from Arkansas, Georgia and West Virginia, the most frequently injured person is a 10-year-old boy setting off bottle rockets.

More than half of the 50 states have adopted a model law that limits the use of fireworks. The three-state study indicated that there were 10 times more injuries where no model law was in effect.

State prepares for new drinking age

Harte-Hanks News Service COLLEGE STATION — On Sept. 1, a 13-year-old experiment comes to an end in Texas. For the first time since 1973, Texans will have to be 21 years old to legally quaff a cold one in the Lone Star State. But except for some obviously disgruntled young adults, the impact may be minimal for most of the state. State Comptroller Bob Bullock's office, for example, is predicting that tax revenues on mixed drinks will actually go up 8.8 percent in

However, in college communities, the under-21 crowd is a significant factor, and any legislation reducing the numbers of those who can drink presumably will have a negative impact.

At Texas A&M University, for in- for many stance, about 11,000 students live on campus, and there are about that number of 19- and 20-year-olds health department and A&M enrollment statistics Jan Winniford, A&M's assistant director of student affairs, estimates that more than 80 percent of all-campus residents will not be able to legally drink come September. A favorite hangout for many of those young students is the Dixie Chicken, across from campus in Northgate.

Don Ganter, owner of the Chicken, hopes students will keep coming, even though the popular pastime of hefting a long-neck at a pool table will no longer be possible

Ganter said everyone will be carded on his busiest nights, and the over-21s will get a stamp that in Brazos County, according to will allow the bartenders to serve them alcohol.

The Chicken's food menu will be extended, and Ganter said he will offer non-alcoholic beer for those who still want to participate in the long-neck ambience.

In a youth-oriented area where 5 million mixed drinks slid down thirsty throats last year, the natural conclusion is that knocking two years off the drinking age should be a heavy blow to the local beverage industry

Perhaps. But perhaps not. Ganter said he doesn't expect any perceptible decline in revenues or crowds the Brazos Valley Restaurant Association, said he expects little direct impact at his Italian restaurant. But Fields also said if restaurants and bars that cater to the young start offering more food or going for an older market, he could feel some indirect impact. Local governments, like many of the restaurants, aren't expecting much of a drop in tax revenues from mixed drinks, either.

For every dollar in mixed drink sales, the state collects 12 cents tax. Each of the local governments gets 1.5 cents of that 12 cents for each dollar of gross sales in its jurisdiction; the state receives the Frank Fields, vice president of some 478,000 Texans who are 19 to 20 years old and who are currently drinking will lose the right to buy booze legally.

With almost half million potential new violators being created at the stroke of midnight Aug. 31, the TABC figures it will need 80 new agents statewide to stay even. Because of the state's budget crunch, it won't get them. Clyde Collins, head of the TABC unit in Brazos County, said the biggest enforcement problems for liquor control agents are in grocery and convenience stores, where the underage purchaser can get in and

Killers gain reprieves

STARKE, Fia. - Serial killers Theodore R. Bundy, a law school dropout convicted of a sorority attack, and Gerald Stano, who gave authorities details of 41 womens' slayings, both have won indefinite stays within hours of their scheduled executions.

Bundy, 39, whose case was the topic of a TV miniseries in May, won a stay from the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta after rejections in the Miami trial court, state Supreme Court and U.S. District Court. The appeals court will hear the case "in due course," said clerk Miguel Cortez. Stano was to be executed for the stabbing death of a Port Orange girl, Cathy Lee Scharf. 17, who was killed sometime between Dec. 14, 1973, and Jan. 19, 1974. He has been convicted of 10 killings and has confessed to 31 others.

Three killed in tornado

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. - A tornado tore into a mobile home park on the outskirts of town Wednesday night, killing three people as four of the homes were flattened, authorities said.

Ten other people were injured as the storm hit the area about 9:30 p.m. Other thunderstorms raked parts of the Carolinas and northern Georgia.

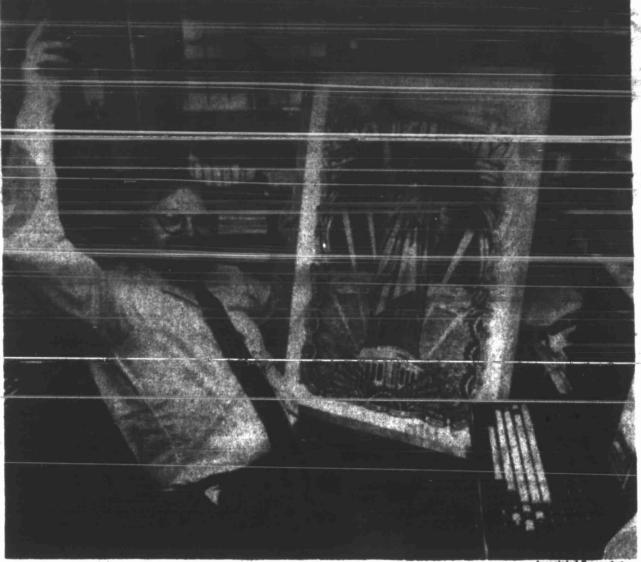

Four mobile homes in the park were flattened, a reporter said. Most of the residents of the trailer park were Marines, who live near a basic training camp.

Woman kills her family

COUMBUS, Ga. - A woman shot and killed her ex-husband and their two children during a five-minute rampage in which her 6-yearold son pleaded, "Mommy, don't do it," police and witnesses said today.

Un Hye Sharpe, 31, was overpowered Wednesday by a SWAT team that rushed her eight hours after she killed her family and barricaded herself in an apartment, said police Chief Jim Wetherington. The victims were identified as Dennis Sharpe, 29; Kevin Sharpe, 6, and Kathy Sharpe, about 4 months,

Military fails to end strike

SANTIAGO, Chile - The military rulers filed charges against 17 civic leaders, banned opposition radio newscasts, and kept hundreds of soldiers on street patrol but failed today to break an anti-government strike in which at least three people died.

Police reported that in addition to the three slumdwellers killed by gunfire Wednesday, 22 people were wounded and more than 200 demonstrators were arrested at the start of a two-day work stoppage by tens of thousands of shopkeepers, truckers and busdrivers.

Communist guerrillas claimed responsibility for bomb attacks that toppled three rural electric pylons after sundown Wednesday, darkening Santiago and parts of other cities in a 620-mile strip of central Chile from La Serena to Concepcion.  MARRIAGE...(part 2) For marriage to be good and successful it is essential that both companions in the marriage meet the 8 emotional needs that each person has as a normal part of their emotional make up. These are: (3) ACCEPTANCE...You enjoy accepting the person just like they are without pretending or making believe they are different from the way they really are. You don't have to put up a front or hide the way you are or the way you feel about things. Neither of you make demands the other cannot fulfill as a person and you are not desirous of "possessing" them. You feel liked, and you like them all the time even when they act different from the way and ideas of others. You accept them even if you do not always approve of their acts. You allow them, and they allow you, to grow and develop in your own way and their own way. (4) SELF-CONTROL...You strongly desire, out of your respect for them and yourself, to control yourself from doing things you know would hurt them. You seek to give of your-self in ways that build up and sustain them and make them feel important, but not "us-ing" them out of selfishness. (Part 3 next Thursday) Billy Patton

An inquiry panel may be answer

Controversy over the election of Kurt Waldheim as president of Austria is sure to continue, but it may be stretching things to interpret the vote as forgiveness for a Nazi past.

The question of Waldheim's past might best be settled by an international committee of inquiry as proposed by the distinguished Austrian Nazi-hunter Simon Wiesenthal.

Waldheim's campaign as candidate of the conservative People's Party was rocked by charges from the New York-based World Jewish Congress that he was involved in war crimes in the Balkans, where he served as a lieutenant in intelligence attached to the German army during World War II.

He admitted that for nearly four decades he had said nothing about his activities during three wartime years in question. But he repeatedly denied any wrongdoing. The WJC said he was lying.

So far, as Wiesenthal pointed out, no solid proof has been presented that Waldheim was involved in war crimes.

Even so, Waldheim's election had many negative reactions. Israel recalled its ambassador from Vienna. Austria's socialist chancellor resigned.

Wiesenthal, who works out of the Nazi Documentation Center in Vienna, criticized the WJC campaign against Waldheim, and expressed worry that if the Waldheim question is not settled conclusively, the credibility of Nazi hunters will be irreparably damaged.

Wiesenthal, 77, who brought more than 1,100 former Nazis to trial in the last four decades, urged that Waldheim's Balkan service be investigated by an international committee of military historians

The data is believed to be in the possession of Yugoslavian officials. "The military jargon in these documents is a language of its own," Wiesenthal said. "None of us can give an opinion.

Wiesenthal said he believed a prestigious committee of inquiry "would give us an expert opinion which everyone can

That sounds reasonable.

Sexual harassment can happen at home

The Supreme Court ruled last week that you could sue for sexual harassment in the office. It was a sweeping decision for the Supremes and I thought it would take care of sexual harassment once and for all.

Larry the lawyer thinks the decision was wanting. "They didn't say anything about sexual harassment in the home.

There is alot more than in the office," Larry said. "A recent survey showed that there was five times as much harassment where people dwell than where they

"How can you sexually harass someone in your own home?"

Larry said, "I represented a man last week in a very interesting case. One day he bushed and tired and sank into a chair. Then his wife started to sexually harass him." "How?"

"Well, first she undid his tie, and then started to rip off his shirt. My client begged her to desist. So she got mean and told him that if he wasn't willing to be a good sport he wouldn't get any dinner.'

"That's a big club to hold over a guy's head." While the wife was trying to take off the husband's shoes, he pushed her away and told her that whatever she thought, she had the wrong idea." "Then what did she do?"

'She refused to cook him dinner. It was too much for the husband. Having used this threat so often, he decided to sue the wife for sexual harassment in the home.'

"How did it go?" I asked him. 'It was a pretty interesting trial. The wife claimed that the husband encouraged her to make passes and on occasion even played Mantovani music in the bedroom. She testified that over the years, he had harassed her as much as she had harrassed him. As a matter of fact, on the very night when the crime took place, she said her husband had pinched her, which was their sign to each other.

'That's a tough defense," I said. "What did you do?"

"I had no choice but to hold up the ripped shirt. It was the key evidence that my client did not cooperate willingly in the sexual harassment. I then called a string of witnesses to testify that the husband was too seak and bushed to start anything. Then I called my client to the stand. He said that he never knew when he came home whether he would be harassed or not. He told of many instances when his wife ruffled his hair and tugged on his waist, and put her hands over his eyes so he couldn't see who it was.'

"Was the husband emotional?" I asked.

"Yes. His chin quivered all the time he gave testimony. I finally asked him the crushing question. Why, if he thought he was being harassed, did he keep returning home? To which he replied that he didn't know where else to go for dinner.

"That must have won everyone

"The jury ruled against my client and in favor of the wife." "How could they do that?" I said.

Your case was airtight. Larry the lawyer said, "The jury told me later that I had failed to prove intent. The wife could have been sexually harassing my client or she could just have been, by taking his tie off and ripping his shirt, preparing him for a great meal."

"Surely you're going to appeal?" "To the highest court in the land. Only a conservative court will appreciate the significance of a ripped shirt.

Administration working to insure pilots fit to fly

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON - The Federal Aviation Administration is scrambling to clean up a frightening problem: Auditors found that many doctors were giving sloppy or incomplete physical exams to pilots, especially those who fly small planes.

The Hercules in charge of this stable-cleaning operation is Federal Air Surgeon Frank Austin, a medical doctor and former Navy test pilot who flew in Vietnam and assisted in Mercury space flights. Since the auditors reported their findings last July, about 100 out of 900 examining physicians have been stripped of their authority to give FAA certification to pilots.

In addition, the backlog of faulty physicals awaiting investigation and correction has dropped from 100 in 1984 to fewer than 50 current-"I feel pretty happy about it," Austin told our associate Stewart

The Transportation Department auditors' unpublished report is enough to whiten the knuckles of the most devil-may-care air traveler. Though Austin assured us that 99 percent of the errors turned up by the auditors were clerical goofs, some were not. As a result, dangerously unhealthy pilots were certified fit to fly.

For example, on March 21, 1984, an FAA-certified military doctor in Pensacola, Fla., declared a retired naval commander healthy enough to pilot a small plane, even though he suffered from atrial flutters and cardiac arrhythmia — both heart conditions that can ground a pilot as well as gallstones, kidney stones and a hernia

Officials in charge of monitoring the physical exam records didn't get the pilot's file until 42 days later, when it arrived at the Civil Aeromedical Institute in Oklahoma City, Okla. By the time they got more test data on the excommander, it was too late: 60 days had passed, and under the law the medical certification was considered "affirmed" by the FAA.

Despite urgent pleas from the Aeromedical Institute, the pilot did fliers in 1983 contained errors of not relinquish his medical certification.

Another case: On Nov. 1, 1988, an FAA-certified doctor in Lagos, Nigeria, approved a pilot of fly commercial aircraft for another year. When the examination record arrived at the Aeromedical Institute three months later, officials were appalled to see that the medical exam was blank except for some eye tests. The medical examiner in Nigeria never replied to inquiries from the institute, which eventually dropped its attempt to get a complete physical examination on the record.

Based on a random sampling of the 56,500 fliers who passed FAAcertified annual physicals in 1983, the auditors indicated that roughly 5 percent should have been grounded or at least restricted for health reasons. Almost half the mistakes or omissions by the examining physicians involved significant areas such as vision, blood pressure and pulse, urinalysis and medical history.

The auditors found that generally the most errors were committed by physicians who gave the fewest medical exams. For example, at McGuire Air Force Base, N.J., the doctor with the lowest error rate (29.5 percent) gave 465 exams in 1983. A second doctor made errors on 65 percent of his 26 exams, and a third made mistakes on both the exams he gave.

Overall, the auditors estimated. 39 percent of all the exams given to

Austin said he has established new performance standards for FAA-certified physicians: Doctors with error rates above 10 percent are put on probation. He pointed out that only a handful of air crashes are caused by pilots' health problems

Building costs down again

By HANK MURPHY Staff Writer

Stymied by anemic commercial activity, building costs in Big Spring tumbled for the second straight month, city records show.

Based on 27 permits, construction costs in June dipped to $90,888. down from the $96,350 reported for May and far below the $287,853 spent on various projects in April.

Furthermore, June's cash outlay was 35 percent of the $263,315 in construction costs for the same time last year.

Businesses spent about $8,200 in June construction mainly for signs and fences. The $8,200 in total costs represents only about 8 percent of all construction spending in the city last month.

Almost a third of June's construction costs, $27,118, was paid out for building a private school at St. Mary's Episcopal Church, 118 Cedar Road.

White names panel member

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau AUSTIN -- Criticism hasn't speeded up Gov. Mark White's appointments to the panel that is supposed to help attract the proposed atom smasher to Texas, but he has named one member.

White's office revealed Wednesday that Jerome Johnson of Amarillo has been named to the nine-member panel. Other appointments are expected soon, an office spokesman said.

Meg Wilson, science coordinator of the governor's economic development staff, said last May 15 that the appointments were expected by June 1. Obviously, she said Wednesday, that deadline was not met, but she added that it didn't make much difference. Everything about the proposal, known as the Super-Conducting Super-Collider Project. federal budget considerations, she said.

"In Washington, everything has slowed down more than expected," she said, and there wouldn't be much for the commission to do now

Bill Clements, Republican challenger of the Democratic governor in the November election, has criticized White for delaying the appointments.

Peter McIntyre, a Texas A&M University physics professor who also has questioned the slowness in forming the commission, said Thursday that he was happy to hear about Johnson's appointment. Asked if he still is critical of the speed, he said the timing is up to the governor's office.

But McIntyre, who is spokesman for the Texas Accelerator Center.

> He said the U.S. Department of Energy had been expected to make a policy statement on the atom smasher by June 13 but didn't make the deadline. The statement is expected to set out whether the Reagan Administration believes that the multi-million-dollar project should be pushed despite the current budget crunch.

> If built, the project would accelerate protons by magnets through a large, circular pipeline buried about 20 feet under the ground. Scientists believe the project will enable them to discover more about minute particles.

Residents will gather Friday for the annual Highland South Fourth of July parade. The parade begins at 10 a.m. at the east end of Highland Drive and continues west to Goliad Street

Anyone can participate - just arrive by 9 a.m for the judging, said organizer Ellouise Swinney. First through third place ribbons walkers, tricycles, bicycles, wagons and strollers, motor driven vehicles and the elderly. Motor driven vehicles should be lawn mowers, golf carts and the like, Swinney said. Cars are discouraged because mainly children participate, she said. A mailbox decorating contest also will be held.

People from eight different countries, including India, Egypt, Hungary, Germany and France, will speak on "What America Means to Me."

Patriotic songs will be sung, and a barbershop quartet will perform. Hot dogs, drinks and watermelon will be served for lunch in the Shroyers' driveway at the end of the parade route.

We Will Be Closed FRIDAY JULY 4th CARTER'S FURNITURE 202 Scurry Street (Downtown) 9 A.M. 'til 5:45 P.M. Mon. thru Sat.

Restaurant sells coffee for a nickel

(AP) - People wouldn't give James Jones more than a nickel for the coffee he serves up at his barbecue restaurants.

But few have any grounds to complain.

Jones' cup of coffee has cost 5 cents since his first Circle J restaurant opened in the North Central Texas city of Weatherford four years ago. At the same time, the price of Brazilian coffee beans has soared because of crop freezes and other problems. "All my life, my dad talked about nickel hamburgers, nickel coffee and nickel pickles at the drive-in theaters," said Jones, who owns a restaurant chain with his wife, Earlene. "And we thought, wow, wouldn't it be nice to do something like it used to be," he

While some hotel guests in Dallas pay nearly $1 for coffee, patrons at all nine Circle J restaurants pay a nickel for a "bottomless cup." Jones said he would break even on coffee expenses if everyone had just one cup. But it's too good.

'We open in the morning and the old-timers come in while the employees are still prepping the food and start drinking coffee," said Jones, 30. "A lot of times, they have to make their own pots. But we have never had a complaint of it being too strong or too weak. They are just happy at the price.

He said the coffee prices draw customers who help sustain a small-town atmosphere. Restaurant employees get to know them personally, which helps business, he said.

"We have been told over and over, through the years, that what makes a good restaurant is homemade bread and good, cheap coffee. We have both," said Jones."We are in small towns where the workers' salaries are not what they are in the big cities. We try to do a lot of volume and make a little Employees brew as many as 25 pots of coffee a day at one restaurant, he said.

"We have heard every kind of fish story there is in that time,' he said.

Travelers who see the large wagon wheel and 4-foot-tall saw le cuttide the original Circle J on U.S. Highway 180 often are taken aback at the coffee price advertised on the restaurant

'They really are. Most of the time, the travelers come through and see the sign. It does grab their eye and they come in to see if it is a gimmick or not," he said.

It helps that Jones and his 26-year-old wife also are coffee drinkers. "I am, positively," he said. "I like mine black and she with cream and sugar, and we both drink vast quantities at night." The restaurants have resisted economic pressures to raise their prices, Jones said. "Hopefully, we won't have to go to 6 cents," he guipped. Joe Mize, 60, who patronizes the Circle J restaurant in Decatur said the coffee reminds him of days gone by "It is the best I've ever had," he said, "and the price reminds me of 50 years ago. I drink lots of their coffee, but I also like their barbecue. The barbecue restaurants cook and serve up half a semitruckload of brisket per week, using a sauce formula mixed up only by family members.

Quitting unhealthy habits helps the liver regenerate

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I've read fant the liver regenerates Itself and that it emerges good as new once a person has, say, stop-ped drinking after years of doing so. My husband drinks and has for years. He is planning to stop. Will his liver come back, as they say it will? - Mrs. M.E.

It probably will if there has been no cirrhosis to complicate the situation.

The liver does have great regenerative powers. Even with serious infections, like nepaulus, where many liver cells are damaged, new cells grow and the organ emerges good as new in most instances. But the word cirrhosis, is the key one. If a person damages liver cells and continues doing so for years and years, as in uncontrolled alcohol use, eventually the damaged area scars (cirrhosis). Now, new cells are not made in those areas, and the organ becomes less efficient and will remain that way, even when abuse stops. The degree of inefficiency depends on how great the damage has been.

But the cirrhosis provides even greater reason for discontinuing whatever is causing the damage, for the greater the injury the greater the chance that illnesses associated with liver failure will begin to appear. Your husband is making a wise decision.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: If calcium is important for good bones, and if vitamin D is important for use of calcium the body, couldn't a vitamin D deficiency be the cause of a person's bone pain?

That's correct. That might happen, especially in older people (women in particular) who may be housebound and getting inadequate nourishment. They may be missing vitamin D-rich foods (like milk and fish) and also missing out on the ultraviolet light (sun) source of the vitamin. Bone pain can be a sign of that. The booklet "Vitamins: Facts You Need to Know" is a discussion of various vitamins and their natural sources. Readers may order a copy by writing me and enclosing a long, stamped, selfaddressed envelope and 50 cents.

Wearing mother's ring creates havoc for woman

DEAR ABBY: My mother died last year and left me her Eastern Star ring, which she had proudly worn for over 45 years. Although I am not an Eastern Star, I loved wearing it. One day while shopp ing, I ran into a friend of Mother's in a shopping mall. We chatted a while, then she noticed my ring and asked if it was my mother's. When I told her it was, she asked me to take it off so she could get a better look at it. I obliged. She proceeded to rant and rave about how I was blaspheming the Eastern Star by wearing their ring when I was not a member. She said my mother should have been buried with that ring, and I had no right to wear it, and she was going to see that I was called before the council. Then she stomped off with my ring! I was stunned.

I went to the police and asked if this was a case of theft. They said, "Most definitely," and advised me to swear out a warrant if I wanted the ring. I did as they advised and finally got the ring back, but now I'm on the Eastern Star's blacklist and many of my mother's friends refuse to speak to me.

Now each time I look in my jewelry box my heart aches because I know my dear mother would have wanted me to wear the ring, bu I'm afraid to do so. What do you think about this?

NO EASTERN STAR DEAR NO STAR: I spoke with Mrs. Norma Gordon, the Worthy Matron of the Eastern Star in Santa Monica and Pacific Palisades, Calif., and she was outraged that a member of that fine organization would behave as your mother's friend did. She said there is no rule stating that a woman must be a member of the Eastern Star in order to wear the ring; neither is there a ruling stating that the ring must be buried with the member who owned it. Now you have it from an official, so take your mother's ring out of the jewelry box, put it back on your finger and wear it in the best of health.

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to put in my 22 cents (inflation, you know) about people who break their necks running to answer the phone, and just when they pick it up, the caller hangs up!

I would not even think of rushing to answer a telephone. There are times when I wish the caller would let the phone ring only three or four times - during my nap, when I'm in the shower, or just walking in the

Clemens misses record

BOSTON (AP) — Rube Marquard and Johnny Allen can rest in peace. Dave McNally can relax. Their records for the most consecutive victories by a starting pitcher at the start of a season no longer are threatened.

Roger Clemens, the Boston Red Sox' 23-year-old strikeout artist, finally came up short Wednesday night, losing to the Toronto Blue Jays 4-2 after going 14-0 to start the Clemens fell one victory shy of the American League record set by Allen with Cleveland in 1937 and tied by McNally with Baltimore in 1969. Marquard set the major league mark in 1912 when he went 19-0 for the old New York Giants.

There were no tears, no excuses, no complaints after the Blue Jays rallied for three runs in the eighth inning for the victory

'Sure, I'm a little disappointed, but things just didn't work out,' said Clemens, whose amazing streak included a major league record of 20 strikeouts in a victory over Seattle on April 29.

"I felt strong, pretty good in the cool (57-degree) weather and did exactly what I wanted, but came up short," the big right-hander

"Nobody wants something like this to come to an end, but it happens," he told a post-game news conference. "I'm just going to turn around and try to start another (streak) the next time out there."

Clemens allowed only one hit, a solo homer by George Bell in the fourth, over the first seven innings, but began to have trouble when he gave two walks in the seventh.

Then, he faltered in the eighth, walking the first batter giving up a single to Damaso Garcia and a oneout game-tying double to Rance Mulliniks. Clemens was replaced by Bob Stanley, who then was tagged for an RBI single by Bell and a sacrifice fly by Jesse Barfield.

Left-hander Jimmy Key, 7-5, allowed eight hits, including Marty Barrett's two-run homer in the fifth, before he suffered a twinge in his pitching arm with two out in the eighth. Key was the winner as Tom Henke retired four batters in a row, the last three on strikeouts, for his WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia and Boris Becker of West Germany are still gunning for each other at Wimbledon, where the quest for the 100th men's championship has developed into a battle of serve and nerve.

Nine days of sunshine have honed the grass courts into a serve-and-volley player's dream, with the result that the semifinal lineup features the topseeded Lendl against 6-foot-5 Yugoslav Slobodan Zivojinovic and Becker, the defending champion. against Frenchman Henri Leconte.

It is the first time this century that four Europeans have contested the Wimbledon men's semifinals By contrast, the women's semifinals today were expected to set up an all-American final between Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert-Lloyd. Navratilova, the No. 1 seed who is going for her fifth straight title, faced No. 10-seed Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina while the second-seeded Lloyd. who won the French title last month, meets U.S. Open champion and No. 3 seed Hana Mandlikova of Lendl was taken to the limit Wednesday by No. 10 seed Tim Mayotte, who was finally put away when, on match point, he missed a drop shot after 31/2 hours of slam-bang serves and volleys. Lendl triumphed 6-4, 4-6, 6-4, 3-6, 9-7 as Mayotte became the last American to tumble out of the tournament

Becker, who has dropped only one set in four matches in defense of his title, reached the semifinals with a 64, 6-2, 7-6 triumph over seed-slayer Miloslav Mecir of Czechoslovakia, who earlier knocked out No. 5 Stefan Edberg of Sweden and No. 12 Brad Gilbert of the United States

In a clash of two unseeded players, the big-serving Zivojinovic beat India's stylish but lightweight Ramesh Krishnan 6-2, 7-6, 4-6, 6-3. Leconte, the No. 7 seed, came from a set down to beat Australian Pat Cash, a wild-card entry rated by many fellow professionals as the top hope among the non-seeds.

After three hours of pulsating play, the Frenchman triumphed 4-6, 7-6, 7-6, 6-3 over a player who had an appendix operation only three weeks before the tournament started.

It was tense tennis all the way with one break in each set. Lendl yielded the second on a double fault and the fourth after losing his temper over a warning about wasting time. The fifth set contained the best tennis of the match with Lendl producing screaming returns off Mayotte's powerful serves. Becker, whose thundering aces and acrobatics helped him become the youngest and first unseeded player to win the title last year, attributes his successes this year to improved concentration. A rash of double-faults in his third-round match against Australian Paul McNamee cast doubts on his ability to maintain his high standard of serves.

Zivojinovic became the first Yugoslav to reach the Wimbledon semifinals since Nikki Pilic lost to John

A's hire LaRussa

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — It took a lot of convincing, but former Chicago White Sox Manager Tony LaRussa finally agreed to give up a visit to Mount Rushmore with his family to take over as manager of the Oakland A's

The A's haven't been nearly as exciting this season as the famous mountain in South Dakota, and LaRussa's decision was a tough

"My first priority is my family," he said after arriving in San Francisco Wednesday night.

His reluctance to give up the time with his family was overcome by the lure of a mountainous challenge: trying to end the season-long slide of the injuryriddled A's

"We're a down club, because nobody likes to get beat," he said. "We've got to try to turn that cycle around.

The former White Sox manager said he has no plans for immediate changes, but: "I'm going to watch them, evaluate what I see and try to get them competitive right away. Getting healthy would be a step in the right direction."

The A's are off today and begin a three-game series in Milwaukee Friday. LaRussa is in Oakland to hold a news conference and get his wife and two young children settled in a new home. LaRussa's new bosses realize

there's no urgency about rescuing this last-place team, so they have agreed to let him join up with the club in Boston after the weekend in The A's just hope the fiery,

41-year-old LaRussa, AL Manager of the Year in 1983, can keep the club from sliding deeper into the American League West cellar. LaRussa, fired by the White Sox on June 20, was the only candidate the A's talked to after firing Jackie Moore last week and will have "full authority to make changes on the club from the day he takes over,' said A's President Roy Eisenhardt. "No limitations have been placed on him."

LaRussa was avoiding specific comments about the A's players Wednesday night, saying he hadn't talked to any of them and that it was too early to make a comparison with the White Sox.

Unlike Moore and his predecessor, Steve Boros, LaRussa will have a multi-year contract, although the pact has not yet been signed. Billy Martin was the only other manager under the Eisenhardt regime to have a contract for more than one year.

LaRussa will bring with him longtime friend and pitching coach Dave Duncan.

Rangers for sale?

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Rangers agreed to give Gaylord the right of majority owner Eddie Chiles has agreed to sell controlling interest in the American League club to Edward L. Gaylord, head of an Oklahoma-based communications company, The Dallas Morning News reported today.

The newspaper said its report was based upon several sources close to the team. The purchase price for Chiles' majority interest was not disclosed, The News said.

"It's news to me," said Gaylord, contacted at his Oklahoma City office today. He declined to comment Chiles, who purchased the Rangers in 1980 from Brad Corbett, refused comment late Wednesday. "I have absolutely no comment to make," Chiles told the newspaper when reached at his home in Fort Worth. "First of all. you have no business calling me at this time of night. Chiles could not be immediately reached at his home or office by The Associated Press for comment. Chiles, head of Western Co. of North America, a Fort Worthbased oil drilling company, sold about a one-third interest in the Rangers and all the club's local Gaylord's television station in Fort Worth, KTVT, which is carried by many regional cable TV systems, has telecast Rangers' road games for the past two seasons

Team President Mike Stone also would not comment

"It's really Eddie's franchise," Stone said. "He's the majority owner. Whether he sell it, is thinking about it or has sold it is his story to tell."

According to The News, Chiles will remain with the club as chairman emeritus of the Rangers' board. However, Gaylord officials would have all the decision-making Recently, Chiles' drilling company has been forced to restructure and reschedule debt payments as the result of the collapse of world oil prices. However, Chiles said earlier this year that the problems facing Western Co. were unrelated to Ranger operations.

Gaylord, the principal owner of the Oklahoma Publishing Co., has a variety of interests, including The Daily Oklahoman of Oklahoma City, a television production company and the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville, Tenn.

hard for Marvelous Marvin Hagler to turn his back on the sport that made him rich and famous. But how much longer, he wonders, can he keep turning his back on his wife and children?

His two loves - boxing and family - clashed Wednesday. Hagler, a fearless fighter who hasn't lost in 10 years, reportedly began to weep as he wrestled with the choice.

Moments before appearing at a news conference, Hagler met with those close to him. He then stunned reporters by saying he was seriously considering retiring rather than defending his undisputed middleweight title against Sugar Ray Leonard.

"We were in the back room with Marvin," Pat Petronelli, Hagler's co-manager, said. "He sat down and we all had a drink together. We had a toast and he had tears in his ready to step away from the ring. "It really hasn't gotten right to that point," he said, "but it's coming and I do need a little bit more

His wife, Bertha, his mother and grandmother all have been eager for him to retire while healthy, he said. He is 32 and boxing has deprived him of time with his five children and his wife.

"As long as he's fighting, they (Hagler and his wife) are not hitting it off too well," Pat Petronelli said. "He's been away an awful lot. He's not around watching his kids. grow up.

"I have a lot of influence on him," Bertha Hagler said. "I think it's time for him to retire.'

"You really have to be a fighter to understand what I go through and also what the family goes through, seeing your brother or some member of your family or your loved one in there battling." Hagler said.

Thomas Hearns' manager, Emanuel Steward, said his fighter 'is so frustrated, he doesn't even know what to say.

If Hagler does retire, he will be two victories short of the record he co-manager, said he hoped a final had sought - Carlos Monzon's 14 cleanly.

World middleweight boxing champion Marvelous Marvin Hagler wipes his brow during a news conference in Brockton, Mass., Wednesday where he announced he is considering retirement from the successful middleweight title defenses. Hagler has fought off 12 challenges since taking the crown from Alan Minter on Sept. 27, 1980.

"I'd like to see Leonard fight Mugabi or Hearns or (Donald) Curry before he comes talking about fighting me," Hagler said. "Hearns really doesn't deserve a return match. I shut him out

Robertson renews contract

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) San Antonio Spurs guard Alvin Robertson has signed a new stx-year $3.6 million contract with the NBA franchise, his agent has announced.

Tom Seiakovich made the announcement Wednesday after a month of negotiations with Spurs President Angelo

Robertson, a 6-4 guard, had been scheduled to enter the third season in a four-year con-tract this fall.

"Six years comes and goes fast," Robertson said Wednesday. "Hopefully, we'll have a press conference again."

Robertson, the Spurs' top draft choice in 1984, was named Defensive Player of the Year and Most Improved Player of the Year. He also was named all-pro and given all-star honors.

USFL attorney Harvey Myerson said salaries of the five highestpaid players on each NFL team went up an average of 23 percent from 1984 to 1985, but nearly doubled in the USFL.

Myerson's chart showed that each NFL club paid an average itself into trouble.

an average total of over $612,000 in 1983 but that increased to $1,110,855

During his cross-examination Wednesday, Myerson also brought up one of his "smoking guns" that he mentioned in his opening arguments.

He referred to an Aug. 4, 1983 memo by NFL Management Council head Jack Donlan entitled "How to Spend the USFL dollar.'

That note said NFL clubs should "force the USFL to increase salaries or run the risk of losing (players). Each dollar spent on existing players is one they cannot spend on a draft choice."

Streaking Mets sweep hapless Cardinals

The New York Mets have a problem shared by every other team in the major leagues — they can't find five good starting pitchers.

What they don't have in common with other teams is that the first four are doing just fine.
Dwight Gooden, Sid Fernandez,

Bob Ojeda and Ron Darling are a combined 36-9. But the Mets' other starters are 3-5.

One of those extra starters, Rick the NL West. Aguilera, had another shaky outing Wednesday night, giving up eight hits and three runs in 4 2-3 innings. But that was no solace to the rest of the National League East as the Mets improved their record to 52-21 with a 4-3 victory over St. Louis, giving them an 111/2-game lead over second place Montreal.

Doug Sisk, 2-1, a much-maligned reliever, picked up the victory with 2 2-3 innings of three-hit pitching and Jesse Orosco got the last five outs for his 12th save.

Gary Carter had a sacrifice fly and a run-scoring single for the Mets, giving him an NL-best 56 RBI. The sacrifice fly gave him 11 for the season, one more than the previous Met mark of 10 set by Keith Hernandez last year. While the Mets posted their sixth straight victory, the defending NL champion Cardinals continued to games behind the Mets. They've suffered six series sweeps at he this season — two of them by the Astros 8, Padres 1 Houston's Denny Walling had the best day of his eight-year majorleague career as he knocked in six runs with two homers and a pair of singles against San Diego, helping the Astros recapture first place in

The victory, combined with San Francisco's loss to Atlanta, gave the Astros a half-game lead over the Giants. It was the fourth time since June 21 that the two teams have swapped first and second

Walling hit a three-run homer in the third inning, giving the Astros a 3-1 lead against San Diego righthander Andy Hawkins, 5-5. Walling added a sole homer in the fifth to make it 4-1 and he capped Houston's three-run eighth with a two-run single Astros right-hander Mike Scott, 8-5, pitched a six-hitter and struck out three to increase his majorleague lead to 151.

Braves 7, Giants 4 Atlanta knocked San Francisco out of first place as Omar Moreno hit a three-run homer and pitcher Zane Smith collected a two-run single in a six-run fourth inning

Smith, 7-8, held the Giants to eight hits and struck out nine in pit-ching his third complete game of the season.

Reds 4, Dedgers 3 Cincinnati climbed out of last place for the first time since April 26, taking advantage of an error by Los Angeles shortstop Bill Russell to win on Tony Perez's two-run

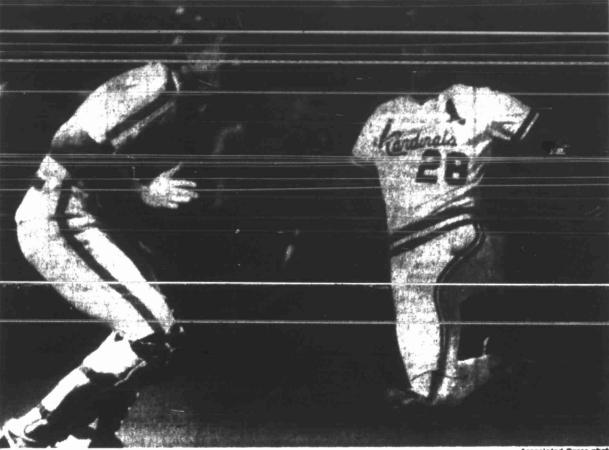

Cubs 1, Expos 0, suspended game Cubs 5, Expos 4, regular game Davey Lopes acknowledged he was going for a home run after his solo shot in the bottom of the ninth inning gave Chicago a sweep of double in the bottom of the 10th.

Montreal "I was trying to drive a pitch out of the park, and I was lucky because I guessed right on a changeup," Lopes said of his homer off Bob McClure, 0-1. "I was definitely trying to hit the ball out, but it was the count (1-0) that dictated my desire."

Jody Davis hit a two-out, runscoring single in the eighth to snap a 0-0 tie in the game suspended because of darkness on Tuesday.

Pirates 4, Phillies 3 Tony Pena hit a two-out, runscoring single in the bottom of the ninth and Rick Rhoden went 3-for-4 and pitched a six-hitter for his third straight complete-game victory as Pittsburgh beat Philadelphia.

St. Louis Cardinals' Tom Herr (28) begins his slide home as New York Mets' catcher Gary Carter waits for the late throw from Mets rightfielder Darryl Strawberry in the 5th inning of Wednesday night's game in St. Louis. Herr scored on a single by the Card's Curt Ford, but the Mets won 4-3.

Parrish bats Rangers past Twins

But Angels stay half-game back with 4-3 win over White Sox

By the Associated Press Mike Mason pitched six innings of two-hit ball and Oddibe McDowell and Larry Parrish each drove in three runs to lead Texas over Minnesota. Mason, 5-2, held the Twins to one run in his six innings, on an RBI double by Gary

By that time, the Rangers had built a 6-0 lead, five of the runs coming in the second off Mike smithson, 7-7. McDowell drove in wo runs with a double and the ther big blow was Parrish's twoun homer, his 12th of the season.

Tigers 8, Yankees 3 Alan Trammell and Darrell Evans drove in two runs apiece as Detroit handed New York's Ron Guidry his seventh straight loss. Larry Herndon rapped three high 16-hit attack against four LaRussa. Earlier Wednesday, ankee pitchers. Guidry, 4-8, continued the longest osing streak of his career. He asn't won in 10 starts since May 10. The left-hander pitched seven innings and gave up three runs on 0 hits. He left the game after the eventh, when Lance Parrish's iner struck him on the pitching

Dave LaPoint, 3-6, struggled through five innings for the vicfory, allowing five hits and five walks but only one run. Reliever Bill Campbell gave up a two-run single to Willie Randolph in the eighth, and Willie Hernandez got the last four outs for his 16th save.

Brewers 1, Orioles 0 Rookie left-hander Juan Nieves

unearned run stand up in pitching three in eight innings before Matt visiting Milwaukee over

Baltimore. The 21-year-old Nieves, 7-2, struck out eight and walked four in posting his second major league shutout. Only one Baltimore runner advanced as far as third base. Juan Bonilla, who opened the first with a single, moved up on two long fly balls, but was left at third.

Baltimore starter Ken Dixon, 6-7, pitched almost as well as Nieves, giving up four hits, but suffered his fourth consecutive defeat.

Indians 7, A's 3 Andre Thornton hit his sixth career grand slam in the first inning as Cleveland completed a three-game sweep in Oakland.

It was the fifth consecutive loss for the A's, who are awaiting the singles during Detroit's season- arrival of new manager Tony tion, less than two weeks after he was fired by the Chicago White

Thornton's 12th homer of the vear with none out in the first inning gave Cleveland a 4-0 lead. The A's have lost all six games against the Indians this season and 23 of their past 28 games. Mariners 5, Royals 3 Ken Phelps and Scott Bradley hit solo homers as Seattle defeated Kansas City and handed the Royals their sixth straight loss. The threegame sweep dropped the thirdplace Royals, last year's world champions, five games behind the

AL West-leading Texas Rangers. Mike Morgan, 6-7, scattered nine Young came on for his sixth save. Scott Bankhead, 3-2, was the loser.

Phelps hit his 12th homer of the season leading off the second and Bradley, a rookie catcher, hit his first major league homer in the fourth. Bradley's home run gave the Mariners a 3-0 lead.

Angels 4, White Sox 3 Reggie Jackson's first triple in almost two years drove home three runs in a four-run first inning for California. The victory - in a game in which all the runs were scored in the opening inning by the White Sox. Chicago is 7-3 DeCinces' sacrifice fly.

since Jim Fregosi replaced the fired Tony LaRussa as manager.

The California victory, which also dealt Chicago's Neil Allen his first loss in five decisions this season, kept the Angels within onehalf game of Texas in the AL West

Jackson's triple rallied the Angels from behind, as Greg Walker's three run homer off Mike Witt, his 10th, staked the White Sox to a quick 3-0 lead. After hitting his first triple in 245 games dating back to August, 1984. Jackson halted a four-game winning streak scored the winning run on Doug
