Statue

The Statue of Liberty replica in front of the Municipal Auditorium was not given by the Boy Scouts in 1950, but was dedicated to them. The statue actually was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Good of Borden County in memory of their son Jake Good, who died at age 14 in 1928, said Modesta Stokes of Borden County, daughter of the Goods.

Lighter side

BAWTRY, Engld (AP) — A young pup called Cindy has saved herself from death by becoming a foster mother for baby hedgehogs.

The unwanted mongrel was taken in by the Royal Society for the Protection of Cruelty to Animals at Bawtry, but with all the kennels full she was due to be put to sleep.

The center's manager, Caroline Chambers, 37, said Sunday that Cindy was saved when a man turned up with four hedgehogs — creatures similar to the porcupine — after finding their mother dead in his garden.

"It was amazing. Cindy took to them as if they were her own," Mrs. Chambers said. "She even lets them sleep with her and doesn't mind the prickles."

"She's just like a mother protecting her babies. More importantly, she also keeps them warm because baby hedgehogs have to be kept really warm even in the summer," she said.

School discipline broadened

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today significantly broadened the disciplinary powers of public school administrators, ruling that students may be suspended for using "vulgar and offensive" language.

By a 7-2 vote, the court upheld the three-day suspension in 1983 of a Spanaway, Wash., high school senior for giving an assembly speech filled with crude sexual allusions.

"Surely it is a highly appropriate function of public school education to prohibit the use of vulgar and offensive terms in public discourse," Chief Justice Warren E. Burger wrote for the court.

Matthew Fraser's one-minute speech in support of a friend's candidacy for student body vice president of Bethel High School contained no dirty words, but it caused a brief uproar among his fellow students.

In the address, Fraser described his friend as "a man who is firm — he's firm in his pants ... his character is firm ... a man who will go to the very end, even the climax, for each and every one of you."

His friend won the election by a wide margin. Officials at the school in suburban Tacoma suspended Fraser for violating the school's disruptive conduct rule in "materially and substantially" interfering in the educational process.

Now a student at the University of California at Berkeley, Fraser sued school district officials with help from the American Civil Liberties Union.

A federal judge ruled that Bethel High officials had violated Fraser's free-speech rights by disciplining him, and the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld that ruling by a 2-1 vote.

School officials were ordered to pay Fraser $278 in damages and $12,750 in legal costs.

Today, the Supreme Court said the lower courts were wrong.

The Reagan administration had urged the court to rule against Fraser. Justice Department lawyers argued that student speech may be restrained "if officials have a reasonable basis for the regulation grounded in the maintenance of an atmosphere of civility or the transmission of basic societal values."

They said such regulations should not be used to suppress "student expression of a particular political viewpoint."

Burger wrote: "The determination of what manner of speech in the classroom or in (a) school assembly is inappropriate properly

Fiscal ruling

Supreme Court strikes key provision of budget law

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today declared unconstitutional a key provision of a law requiring a balanced federal budget by 1991. The ruling jeopardizes congressional efforts to cut spending and reduce spiraling deficits.

The justices, by a 7-2 vote, said the central provision of the Gramm-Rudman Act — ordering automatic deficit reductions — violates the constitutionally mandated separation of powers between the executive and legislative branches.

The law wrongly empowers an officer of Congress, the comptroller general, to perform an executive function, the court said.

Gramm-Rudman contains a fallback provision that allows Congress itself to vote on a deficit-reduction package if the automatic feature were invalidated.

The much-anticipated ruling, on the last day of the court's 1985-86 term, came 22 days after ABC News reported that the court was about to strike down the law. That report touched off a flurry of speculation about the future of Gramm-Rudman and the source of an apparent rare "leak" providing advance word of a court decision.

The case provided one of the most significant constitutional confrontations in recent years between Congress and the White House.

To check what has been described as a spreading cancer of red ink threatening the nation's economic health, the Gramm-Rudman law established an automatic mechanism to align spending and revenue more closely.

The focus of the effort is the comptroller general, head of Congress' General Accounting Office, who is appointed by the president to a 15-year term and may be removed only by Congress.

The GAO, now headed by Charles Bowsher, is a watchdog agency that audits federal programs.

A special three-judge court last Feb. 7 ruled that Gramm-Rudman breaches the separation of powers between the executive and legislative branches because of the comptroller general's role.

That unsigned ruling was authored by Antonin Scalia, the federal appeals court judge selected by President Reagan for elevation to the Supreme Court.

The Reagan administration urged the high court to strike down the comptroller's general's role, even though President Reagan signed the legislation and has called repeatedly for reduced federal deficits.

The act was defended by the congressional leadership and the comptroller general's office.

The Supreme Court heard arguments in the case April 23, putting it on a fast track for a resolution. GRAMM-RUDMAN page 2A

Gramm-Rudman sponsors to address court's concern

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters of the law to force a balanced federal budget by 1991 said today they will move to restore a key provision of the statute ruled unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

"Those of us who have fought so hard to restore fiscal sanity will not allow Congress to get off the hook on its commitment to balance the federal budget," said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, one of the prime sponsors of the measure.

Gramm said that he and the other main authors of the law, senators Warren Rudman, R-N.H., and Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., would introduce legislation to address the problem cited by the court.

The justices, by a 7-2 vote, said the central provision of the budget-balancing law — automatic spending cuts to meet predetermined deficit targets — violates the constitutionally mandated separation of powers between the executive and legislative branches.

The law wrongly empowers an officer of Congress, the comptroller general, to perform an executive function, the court said.

Gramm said he would seek to make the office of the comptroller general similar to other agencies such as the Federal Reserve Board, which operate separate from Congress and the White House.

"Fortunately, the court decision affirms 95 percent of the powers" contained in the law, Gramm said.

The budget-balancing law was adopted as an amendment last year to legislation raising the government's borrowing authority. Similar legislation will be necessary again next month and Gramm indicated that measure would become the target for attaching the change in the budget law.

"As we raise the debt ceiling to pay the nation's bills, it will be entirely appropriate to reconstitute Gramm-Rudman-Hollings in response to the court decision," Gramm said.

Meanwhile, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said the court decision does nothing to change Congress' obligation to deal with federal red ink.

Arturo Tolentino, (center) former running mate of deposed President Ferdinand Marcos, announced today he will abandon the plush Manila Hotel at dawn Tuesday. Tolentino, who holed himself up at the hotel since Sunday, was given a 24-hour ultimatum by President Corazon Aquino to call off his challenge to her government.

Tolentino to end rebellion

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Arturo Tolentino, the running mate of Ferdinand E. Marcos who proclaimed himself Philippine leader with the support of hundreds of soldiers, said today he will end his rebellion within hours.

President Corazon Aquino earlier gave Tolentino 24 hours to end what she called a "desperate" challenge to her rule.

The 75-year-old Tolentino, who ran with the Marcos in the fraud-tainted Feb. 7 elections, took the presidential oath of office Sunday, saying he had been pressured to do so by Marcos loyalists. Marcos was deposed by a civilian-military revolt and fled the country in February.

After taking the oath of office, Tolentino took refuge with a cordon of soldiers in the Manila Hotel, but left by the fifth-floor fire escape today for a four-hour meeting with a government representative.

Tolentino said his political supporters still at the hotel will walk out early Tuesday.

It was not clear, however, whether the 100 or more soldiers at the hotel would go along. Tolentino said the question of whether soldiers will leave "will be taken up by the military among themselves."

Military men who took part in today's talks did not comment after the meeting ended at the Army-Navy Club, next to the U.S. Embassy on Manila Bay.

"The purpose of the rally was the oath-taking, and that has been achieved," said Tolentino, who was sworn in at the hotel before about 10,000 Marcos loyalists. "There are political issues to be discussed with the government, such as constitutionalism, democracy, the rule of law."

Tolentino said he received no assurances from the government it will not file charges against him, but said a meeting between the two sides was planned for noon Tuesday. No government official was immediately available for comment.

Mrs. Aquino said Sunday she would file sedition charges against Tolentino.

In a news conference earlier today at the presidential palace's guesthouse, Mrs. Aquino said she was not concerned about Tolentino's revolt, which she said had been "instigated by Mr. Marcos."

Marcos, in a telephone interview today from his exile home in Honolulu, Hawaii, said he could not yet make a "fair comment" on the situation because "I am not a personal witness to what has happened."

World population hits record 5 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world's population reaches the milestone 5 billion mark with the birth of a child sometime today. The Population Institute reports.

"Never before have so many people shared space on this planet," observed Werner Fornos, president of the private institute which studies population questions. "Five billion probably puts the world population about at its carrying capacity. It will be difficult to feed, clothe, shelter and employ many more people at more than a subsistence level of life," added M. Rupert Cutler, executive director of Population-Environment Balance, another population research group.

Rapid population growth has stretched the resources of the world and the prospect of future increases raises questions of how to cope with their growing needs, population experts generally concur. "Somewhere in the world a child will be born and the earth's population will reach five billion," Fornos said in announcing the date for the population milestone.

"The birth of a child is usually a joyous occasion and our fondest wishes and fervent prayers are extended to this precedent-setting newcomer to the world," he said.

"This particular baby will most probably need both and then some, for it is a sobering symbol of the shocking rapidity at which the world's population is multiplying."

Population experts tended to agree with Fornos' concern for the future, though not all would have selected the same date for the world to reach the 5 billion people mark.

"He may very well be right," said Carl Haub, a demographer at the private Population Reference Bureau. But, Haub

CHICAGO — Former President JIMMY CARTER and his wife, ROSALYNN, mark 40 years of marriage today as they begin a week of carpentry work on housing for the poor.

"I'm not an expert carpenter, as you'll see this week, but I work well under supervision," Carter said Sunday as he toured the construction site, which includes four single-family dwellings in a West Side neighborhood.

Daughter Amy, 18, will work with Carter, 61, Mrs. Carter, 58, and about 70 volunteers from Habitat for Humanity, he said.

Carter is on the board of Habitat, a nonprofit, ecumenical Christian housing ministry that builds housing for poor.

Former Watergate special counsel Charles Colson, founder and chairman of Prison Fellowship, also will work on the project.

Carter dedicated a completed Habitat project on the North Side in April and during the last two sum-

WASHINGTON — First lady

NANCY REAGAN got a custom-made saddle from President Reagan for her 65th birthday and expects to try it out when they go horseback riding at their California ranch next month.

The president surprised Mrs. Reagan, whose birthday was Sun-

The Reagans usually horseback ride daily during their stays on the 688-acre ranch north of Santa Barbara.

PEKING — LI ZHAO, wife of 71-year-old Communist Party General Secretary Hu Yaobang, has been described in a rare profile as a stylish fashion expert who is working to improve the looks of Chinese.

"Seeing people living happy lives and wearing pretty clothes makes my mood joyful," Li was quoted by the China News Service as saying at a garment design exhibition.

She is director of the Peking Garment Association, which sponsored the exhibition, the report said.

The wives of most Chinese leaders rarely appear in public and are seldom mentioned in the official press.

WEST TEXAS — Partly cloudy skies are forecast for today with no important temperature changes and widely scattered to scattered afternoon and evening thunderstorms through Tuesday. Locally heavy rain is possible tonight. Highs Tuesday will be mostly in the 90s, except near 102 in the Big Bend valleys. Lows tonight will be in the lower 60s in the mountains to mid 70s in the valleys of southwest.

State

A weak stationary front located across the Texas Panhandle and South Plains triggered showers, thundershowers and thunderstorms across a vast area of West Texas today.

Forecasts called for much of the same tonight and Tuesday.

Thundershowers were reported across eastern portions of the Panhandle and over the South Plains.

Showers and thunderstorms were reported at dawn near the Davis Mountains in Southwest Texas and along the coast in Southeast Texas.

Forecasts called for a chance of scattered showers and thunderstorms over the High Plains, the low rolling plains, Trans Pecos and along the Gulf of Mexico in Southeast Texas through Tuesday.

Lows tonight will be mostly in the 70s. Highs Tuesday will be mostly in the 90s, ranging to around the 100-degree mark in southern and southwestern portions.

Early morning temperatures were in the 70s over most of the state. Extremes ranged from 69 at Midland and Amarillo to 82 at Corpus Christi.

Other early morning temperatures around the state included 77 at Wichita Falls, 76 at Fort Worth, 75 at Waco, 74 at Austin, 76 at San Antonio and Houston, 75 at Brownsville, 74 at San Angelo, 73 at Lubbock and 71 at El Paso.

Nation

High water alerts were in effect today in parts of the nation's midsection and heat waves dominated much of the East and Alaska, but a high pressure cooled the northern Plains.

Showers and thunderstorms were scattered across New England, southern Florida, the central Rockies and west central Plains.

Thunderstorms also rolled across northern Oklahoma and northeast Colorado, while showers and thunderstorms ranged along a stationary front from eastern Iowa to the Texas Panhandle.

Flash flood watches were in effect for east-central Kansas and northwest Missouri. A flood warning was posted for the Big Blue River from Crete, Neb., to the Kansas border.

Thunderstorms on Sunday poured 11 inches of rain on Leavenworth, Kan. Rainfall records were broken at Kansas City, Mo., 5.08 inches, breaking a record 2.25 inches set in 1914; and at Key West, Fla., 1.65 inches, breaking a 1914 record of 1.38 inches.

The high pressure that lowered temperatures in the northern Plains into the 50s to 60s early today also cleared skies.

Record highs were set in several Eastern cities on Sunday, and New York's 98 degrees, the highest of the year, tied a record set in 1911.

rests with the school board." He was joined by Justices Byron R. White, Lewis F. Powell, William H. Rehnquist and Sandra Day O'Connor.

Justices William J. Brennan and Harry A. Blackmun voted against Fraser but did not join Burger's opinion.

Justices Thurgood Marshall and John Paul Stevens dissented.

Past Supreme Court decisions have established that students do have certain rights, but that those rights sometimes may be outweighed by the concerns of school administrators.

In 1969, a generally more liberal high court ruled in a case from Des Moines that high school students could not be barred from wearing black armbands to symbolize their opposition to the Vietnam war.

The court last year ruled in a case from Piscataway, N.J., that school officials have broad authority to search students suspected of carrying weapons or drugs.

The court on occasion has allowed the suppression of non-obscene speech.

In a 1978 decision, the court said the Federal Communications Commission could censor comedian George Carlin's "seven dirty words" radio monologue — not because it was legally obscene but because radio broadcasts of it would reach unsuspecting children.

In that ruling, Justice John Paul Stevens said, "When the commission finds that a pig has entered the parlor, the exercise of its regulatory power does not depend on proof that the pig is obscene."

In the case decided today, Bethel School District officials were backed, in addition to the Justice Department, by the American Association of School Administrators, the National School Boards Association and other groups of school officials.

Fraser was supported by the National Education Association and student rights groups.

At the American Federation of Teachers convention in Chicago, union president Albert Shanker hailed the justices' ruling.

"The Supreme Court was right. The schools are responsible for teaching civility as well as the 3 R's. The decision should encourage schools to act against verbal as well as physical," Shanker said.

Gramm-Rudman

which is within the range required by Gramm-Rudman.

The first $11.7 billion in spending cuts required by Gramm-Rudman took effect March 1.

The deficit now stands at around $200 billion, although some in Congress hope favorable economic developments will reduce it.

The Gramm-Rudman law requires the figures to be no higher than $144 billion for the next fiscal year, beginning Oct. 1.

If Congress cannot reach that figure through spending cuts and tax increases, Gramm-Rudman mandated across-the-board reductions, with half the money slashed from military spending and half from domestic programs.

Many feared that the absence of the automatic provision would leave Congress paralyzed in trying to reach a budget-cutting agreement. But others predicted that lawmakers who voted for Gramm-Rudman would have a tough time facing the voters if they balked at implementing the law's aims themselves in the event the automatic feature was stricken.

The law also was attacked by the National Treasury Employees Union, which represents retired federal workers who have a lost a cost-of-living increase in their pensions because of Gramm-Rudman.

The law takes its name from two of its three Senate sponsors, Phil Gramm, R-Texas, and Warren Rudman, R-N.H. The third sponsor was Ernest Hollings, D-S.C.

Today's vote of 7 to 2 was the same tally reported by ABC News three weeks ago.

ABC News also reported correctly that Burger would write the opinion.

But the network was incorrect in reporting that Justice Sandra Day O'Connor would write a separate concurring opinion. O'Connor joined in the majority today but did not write separately.

The only dissenters were Justices Byron R. White and Harry A. Blackmun.

ly passed, since there are simply no very good counts of the population in many countries, the Population Reference Bureau's Haub pointed out.

For example, Haub recalled that while population researchers hailed the Earth's 4 billionth person in 1976, later censuses helped determine that that event actually occurred as early as 1974.

What is known, though, is that the Earth's population has more than tripled in the last century and continues expanding rapidly.

"While the numbers are staggering, the consequences of such startling growth are even more so," said Population Institute head Fornos.

"The child very probably will be born in the Third World, where nine of every 10 babies are born today and where poverty, disease, hunger, illiteracy and unemployment make life a daily struggle for survival," he said.

Ruling party claims sweeping victory

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico (AP) — Opposition parties charged the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party with irregularities in the Chihuahua elections, and one leader blasted its claim of victory as a "joke and an insult."

"We've seen serious problems," Matias Mesta, a spokesman for PAN, the main opposition National Action Party, said during Sunday's state elections.

"The presidents of the polls have refused to allow our poll watchers into the polls. And one woman said the ballot boxes were already full when she went to vote," he said.

Shortly after the polls closed at 6 p.m., ruling party spokesman

Manuel Gurria claimed that Fernando Baeza, the Institutional Revolutionary Party's candidate for Chihuahua governor, had won the election, calling it a "legitimate triumph."

Gurria said the victory claim was based on reports made by party workers charged with bringing voters to the polls.

Ruling party candidates for mayor were also leading by "a considerable margin" in at least six other cities, Gurria claimed.

But Antonio Becerra Gaytan, gubernatorial candidate for the leftist Unified Socialist Party of Mexico, said the victory claim was "totally false. It's too early to have collected this information from all over the state."

Guillermo Prieto, PAN state president, called the victory claims by the Institutional Revolutionary Party "a joke and an insult to the people of Chihuahua."

Baeza's chief rival, Francisco Barrio of the PAN, said late Sunday, "We're just beginning to receive results from the voting. In a good part of the state, the voting continues."

State elections were also held in Durango, Zacatecas and Michoacan, but attention focused on Chihuahua, Mexico's largest state and the one in which the ruling party, known as PRI from his Spanish-language initials, faced its biggest challenge.

Alfonso Melo, a PRI spokesman, said that "in no manner" was fraud being committed. He said "three or four minor incidents" in which PAN representatives were refused entrance to polling places had been resolved.

The federal Interior Department issued a statement saying that "there were no major incidents" in the balloting.

In addition to the gubernatorial race, 87 mayoralties and 14 legislative seats in the state were at stake.

Chihuahua has 1.3 million registered voters among its 2.5

million residents, and no official results were available as of early today.

The PRI has ruled Mexico since the party was founded in 1929. Since then, it has never lost a presidential or gubernatorial election. Its victories are partly due to a strong grassroots organization that reaches into every city and village in the country.

Critics have accused the party of fraudulently winning some elections. In 1985 gubernatorial elections in the state of Nuevo Leon, ballot boxes were found full when the polls opened.

The PRI has repeatedly denied wrongdoing and accused the opposition of trying to damage its image and of being sore losers.

The 44-year-old Baeza is a former federal congressman and mayor of his hometown of Delicias. He campaigned on an anti-corruption platform.

There were a total of seven candidates to replace outgoing Gov. Saul Gonzalez Herrera who was not eligible to run for another six-year term.

The state judicial police reported that one man died in Ciudad Juarez when he was struck by a vehicle after being chased by PAN sympathizers. The man was identified as Victor Manuel Hernandez Romo, 57.

Plant to be sterilized

GLENVIEW, Ill. — Kraft Inc. officials say their plant in Richmond, Va., will be completely sterilized while searching for the cause of food contamination that may have sickened more than 160 people in seven states.

The sterilization was to begin today, said Kraft spokeswoman Randi Killian at company headquarters in this Chicago suburb.

U.S. Food and Drug Administration investigators and Kraft officials will be "taking apart parts, cleaning pumps and product services," she said Sunday.

Crew drifts for 2 weeks

HONOLULU — Six crew members who drifted in life rafts for two weeks after their fishing boat sank called it "a miracle, to say the least" that they were rescued.

One crew member died and another was missing.

The five men and one woman who were rescued arrived at Pearl Harbor on Sunday, a day after their two life rafts were spotted 400 miles east of here by the Navy intelligence ship Indomitable.

"They were in surprisingly good condition," said Don Smith, the Indomitable's captain. "The life raft rations had held up pretty well."

Texas death toll is 41

The final highway death toll for the long Independence Day weekend stood at 41, including the deaths of three Rowlett residents in the weekend's worst single accident, the Department of Public Safety said today.

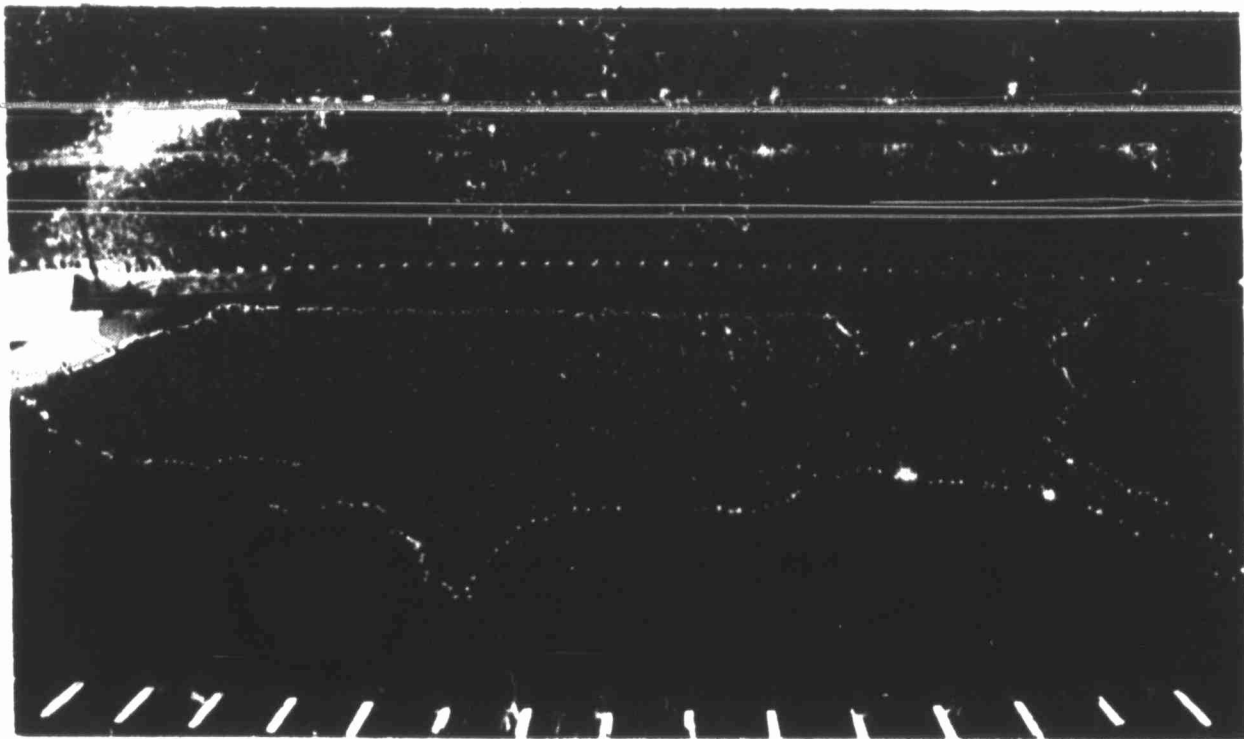

DPS officials had predicted 45 people would lose their lives on Texas highways before midnight Sunday. The traffic fatality count began at 6 p.m. Thursday.

Man kills one, hurts 9

NEW YORK — An emotionally disturbed man armed with a sword killed a woman and wounded nine other passengers on the Staten Island ferry today, officials said.

The attacker was taken into custody by a retired police officer who was riding the boat, the ferry Samuel I. Newhouse, from Manhattan to Staten Island, said police spokesman Joseph McConville.

The former officer, Edward Delpino, fired one shot, but no one was hit by the bullet, McConville said.

This was the scene at the closing ceremonies of Liberty Weekend at Giants stadium late Sunday. The cast formed an electric map of the United States, the performers and crowd sang "America the Beautiful," and fireworks, lasers and balloons decorated the sky.

Weekend leaves city with tons of trash

NEW YORK (AP) — What happens when millions of people are invited for a giant birthday celebration? As with any party, after the fun is over, the host is faced with cleaning up, and for the city the task is a mammoth one.

The Liberty Weekend bash resulted in a mess as huge and outrageous as the spectacle that spawned it. More than a million cans and bottles and hundreds of tons of debris were left behind by revelers attending the four-day festival of song, sail, and fireworks honoring the Statue of Liberty's 100th birthday and restoration.

In Battery Park alone, 500 tons of trash was collected during the first three days of the weekend, said Skip Garrett, a Parks and Recreation Department spokesman. Crews were expected to pick up another hundred tons of trash on Sunday, he said.

"We expect to have Battery Park shiny and bright again tomorrow (Monday) morning," said Garrett.

In Central Park, where 800,000 music-lovers gathered Saturday night for a star-studded concert, cleanup crews collected 300 tons of debris, Garrett said.

The Sanitation Department said it handled Liberty

Weekend cleanups according to plan, with the only hitch occurring because the crowd was so slow dispersing after Friday night's fireworks.

"We were scheduled to start at midnight, but we couldn't get our equipment onto those streets until 2 a.m.," said spokesman Albert O'Leary. "Then we had to compete with trucks that came in to resupply the food stalls for the street festival."

Figures on citywide debris tonnage have not yet been compiled, he said. The department scheduled 1,800 workers in excess of normal shifts for the before, during and after street-cleaning job, at a cost of $1,050,000 in overtime.

"For Sunday we had 450 men out in three shifts, a day when we normally don't do any street cleaning," he said.

In lower Manhattan, Harbor Festival cleanup workers collected more than a million beverage cans and bottles.

South Street Seaport, where many of the tall ships in town for the statue celebrations were docked and open for public tours, was overwhelmed by debris.

Two hanged in Malaysia

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia — Two Australians convicted of drug trafficking walked calmly to the gallows and were hanged at dawn today, becoming the first whites executed under Malaysia's tough anti-drug laws.

Brian Geoffrey Chambers Jr., 29, and John Kevin Barlow, 28, died side by side at 6 a.m., Manuel Ponnusamy, acting superintendent of Pudu Prison, told The Associated Press.

CIA agent acquitted

LONDON — A former CIA agent and Navy commander arrested in Britain on an espionage charge was acquitted today after the prosecution said he had duped the Soviets with useless information.

The prosecution was ordered to pay $7,500 in court costs.

Lawyers for the defendant, former U.S. Navy Cmdr. John Bothwell, formerly of Narbeth, Pa., said later he was considering a suit for wrongful arrest and malicious prosecution. The lawyers said the allegations ruined Bothwell's import-export business.

Earthquake shakes Tibet

PEKING — A strong earthquake shook northeastern Tibet today, China's official Xinhua News Agency said, but there were no immediate reports of any damage or injuries.

The quake, measuring 6.3 on the Richter scale, occurred in the northwestern part of Tibet's Rutog county, Xinhua quoted the State Seismological Bureau in Peking as saying.

The bureau was quoted as saying investigators had been sent from Lhasa to the area, but there was no word on whether the quake had caused damage or injuries.

Two make final plea

GENOA, Italy — Two defendants in the Achille Lauro trial made their final plea to the jury today, telling the panel they were not terrorists but Palestinian fighters.

Jurors then retired to begin deliberations on a verdict.

"Long live Arafat!" said one of the defendants, Ibrahim Fatayer Abdelatif, 20, as he finished his statement from his steel-barred courtroom holding cage.

Among the 15 defendants is Mohammed Abbas, also known as Abul Abbas, a leader of a faction of the Palestine Liberation Organization chaired by Yasser Arafat.

Ford raises prices 2.9 percent

DETROIT (AP) — For the second time in 10 months, Ford Motor Co. has increased prices on its 1986 cars, raising price tags an average 2.9 percent.

Ford also announced new buyer incentives that included auto loans at interest rates ranging from 6.9 percent to 9.9 percent or rebates up to $600.

The cut-rate interest and bonuses took effect Sunday and will apply to most cars and trucks purchased from dealer stocks by Oct. 1, the company said Friday.

Ford, the No. 2 U.S. automaker, said the incentives were intended to help it keep up with those of industry leader General Motors Corp.

GM announced last week that it would offer discounted interest rates of 5.9 percent to 8.9 percent on most cars and many light trucks. It increased prices in April. Chrysler Corp., the No. 3 U.S. automaker, has held its prices steady since last fall.

Ford already had increased prices by an average of 2.9 percent in September 1985, at the start of the 1986 model year.

"We tried very hard to continue to hold the line on car prices for the balance of the 1986 model year, but have concluded it is not practical to do so," said Louis E. Lataif, vice president for North American sales operations.

Lataif said the increases still left Ford car prices well below those of their Japanese competitors, which have raised prices several times this year because of the rising value of the yen.

Friday's price increases ranged from $179 on the Ford Tempo GL 4-door to $939 on the Lincoln Continental Givenchy, Ford said.

The percentage increases ranged from 2.4 percent on the Tempo GL, now listed at $7,687, to 3.5 percent on the Continental Givenchy, now selling for $27,899, Ford said.

The lowest-priced Escort L 3-door had a 2.9 percent increase and now lists for $6,513, Ford said.

Loans at 6.9 percent for 36 months will be available through Ford Motor Credit Co. on the Escort, except the GT model, and the Escort's Mercury twin, the Lynx, but not the Lynx XR3. Also covered are the Ford Tempo, Mustang and Thunderbird; Mercury Topaz, Capri and Cougar, and the Merkur XR4Ti.

The 6.9 percent, 36-month loans also will be available on most Ranger and Bronco II trucks, Ford said.

New manager stirs city hopes

A new face will be evident in Big Spring July 15 when B. Mack Wofford becomes city manager.

Wofford, 50, from Pampa, will be at a bit of a disadvantage when he begins his work, and will need the full cooperation of local citizens and officials.

Wofford doesn't know the city and doesn't know his staff, so he'll need to rely on the information that's provided to him. That information therefore needs to be complete and accurate for him to properly do his job.

His immediate task will be to establish himself as knowledgeable and competent while facing declining revenues, high unemployment and the need for a new police chief to deal with the rising crime rate and a deepening concern over narcotics traffic.

In addition, he'll be working with a populace leery about city government and some citizens who still have a bad taste in their mouths over the resignations of the former city manager, city attorney and police chief.

That's not exactly the best situation to begin a new job. He says he'll be active in community affairs and open with the news media.

But since it's the news media's job to keep the public informed, that really means that he's saying he'll be open with the public.

He's bringing 14 years experience as city manager in Pampa and additional years experience in city government. So he's not a tenderfoot.

Again, cooperation becomes the key word. But it works both ways.

We hope Wofford is given the proper time to establish himself, and we're also hoping for a new and better organization in city government.

In essence, his coming provides an opportunity — an opportunity for Wofford and all who will work with him to bring better government and a bright future to Big Spring.

Actions should match message

One of the latest novelties for new parents is to have a sign in the rear window of their car warning, "Baby on Board."

The implication is that other motorists should be extra careful. So be it. No one can blame parents for feeling this way.

What is mystifying, however, is the number of "Baby on Board" automobiles in which babies or young children can be observed standing on the seat, riding in the arms of adults or bouncing from seat to floor — instead of being secured in an approved restraint.

The dangers to unprotected babies and small children in a traffic accident are almost too horrible to contemplate. Tiny bodies become like missiles when a car is hit or comes to a sudden stop.

Sometimes they are forced through windshields or thrown through an open window.

Sometimes they are smashed against door posts or crushed against dashboards by the body of the adult in whose arms they were riding.

Using an approved safety seat or harness not only gives the child a better chance of surviving but also complies with the law in Texas and a number of other states.

A "Baby on Board" sign might help new parents share their feelings of pride with fellow motorists, but parents who really want to show that they care about their children's safety do so by making sure that the child is properly protected by safety restraints.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, July 7, the 188th day of 1986. There are 177 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
Five years ago, on July 7, 1981, President Reagan announced he would nominate Judge Sandra Day O'Connor of Arizona to serve on the U.S. Supreme Court. O'Connor became the high court's first female justice.

On this date:
In 1754, Kings College in New York City opened. The school later was renamed Columbia University.
In 1846, U.S. annexation of California was proclaimed as the Stars and Stripes were raised at Monterey after the surrender of a Mexican garrison.
In 1865, four people were hanged in Washington, D.C., after being convicted of conspiring with John Wilkes Booth in the assassination of President Abraham Lincoln.

In 1898, the United States annexed Hawaii.
In 1941, during the Second World War, U.S. forces landed in Iceland to forestall any Nazi invasion.

In 1958, President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed the Alaska statehood bill.

Ten years ago: the United States said that Soviet authorities had sharply reduced the level of microwave radiation beamed at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

Five years ago: British riot police broke up a third night of racial violence in the Toxteth district of Liverpool.

One year ago: Vietnam pledged to return the remains of 26 more American servicemen killed in the Vietnam War.

Restricted report details violations in energy office

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — An Energy Department official resigned last February while the General Accounting Office was investigating charges against her, but Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., doesn't want to let the matter end there. He wants the department to take action against the former official, Rosilee Douglas.

Douglas was appointed in 1981 to head the Energy Department's Office of Minority Economic Impact, a special bureau established in 1978 to study the impact of energy policies and programs on minorities, and to increase minority participation in the department.

A still-restricted GAO report to Dingell, chairman of the House Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, details several accusations made against Douglas — and the GAO's findings.

Our associate Lucette Lagnado obtained a copy of the GAO report. Here are the highlights:

- Examining records of 67 trips Douglas had made during her tenure, the GAO found that she took 15 trips to her home state of South Carolina at government expense. "Through some of these trips," pertained directly to ongoing OMEI program activities," others "did not appear directly relevant to her official duties."

For example, the auditors noted that she took one trip to Charleston to accept an award from a nursing group that "has no official business" with the Energy Department.

A former nurse, Douglas took two other trips to Charleston to address a nurses' alumni group and University of South Carolina medical students. On these trips she "remained in South Carolina through the weekend at government expense."

- Douglas, the GAO learned, made "numerous trips" to Puerto Rico, Nassau, the Bahamas, Las Vegas and Hawaii. "Mrs. Douglas made three trips to San Juan, Puerto Rico. Her itineraries show she arrived earlier and departed later at government expense than was necessary to complete her official duties," the report notes, explaining: "Her official business on these trips con-rise to the appearance of a conflict of interest."

Douglas also was found to have abused the Energy Department motor pool privileges. The auditors identified 11 trips between her home and her office and 49 trips that "appear to (have been) for personal business," out of 139 trips studied.

Footnote: Douglas declined to comment, as did Energy Department officials, who said they hadn't seen the GAO report.

UNDER THE DOME: A Dutch bank wants to take over some of the loans held by American farm banks. Officials from Rubbel Bank discussed the idea with Marvin Duncan of the Farm Credit Administration Board.

In testimony later before the Senate Agriculture Committee, Duncan said he believed the farm loan crisis would best be handled at home. He told Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, that Rubbel had been advised to talk with the farm banks directly; the federal agency would get involved later.

Harkin's concern is that foreign banks will buy only the sound loans and leave the bad ones for the federal government to handle.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Strange, isn't it, how eagerly some staunch conservative defenders of the Constitution will jettison the revered document when it suits their partisan purposes?

They're now claiming that senators have no right to object to President Reagan's court appointments on ideological grounds — even though they were admittedly chosen for their conservative views.

This is poppycock. The Constitution (Art. II, Sec. 2) states that the president shall have the power to appoint judges "by and with the advice and consent of the senate." Period. In other words, the Founding Fathers put restrictions only on the president, not on the Senate.

Jack Anderson's investigative report from Washington is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

On one trip to Puerto Rico, Douglas' hotel bill of about $500 was paid by a private organization financed by her office. The GAO pointed out that this "could give sisted of one-hour ceremonies," yet she stayed several days at public expense.

In May 1984, Douglas flew to Hawaii to visit two schools with department-related vocational programs. She spent an additional three days in Honolulu at taxpayers' expense. "Two OMEI staff members provided us with signed statements that they arranged the Hawaii school visits after Mrs. Douglas told them that she was going to Hawaii to visit her brother," the GAO reported.

At one point, Douglas proposed the elimination of the jobs of two women — one a black, the other a Chinese-American. The GAO stated: "Mrs. Douglas told us that she did not propose the (dismissals) to retaliate against two affected employees and we found no direct evidence that retaliation was her motive. However, we found substantial circumstantial evidence suggesting that retaliation may have been a significant factor."

Douglas took several trips to Las Vegas. One was to take part in a single afternoon workshop; she stayed three days. Another was for an energy seminar; she got there two days early. A third three-day stopover was "to attend a five-minute viewing of a crater at DOE's Nevada test site and a 45-minute briefing by tour officials," the GAO found.

On one trip to Puerto Rico, Douglas' hotel bill of about $500 was paid by a private organization financed by her office. The GAO pointed out that this "could give

How to twist words for getting dates

By TIM APPEL
Staff Writer

Before I met my wife, I was down on my luck when hunting a date. Maybe it was because I was such a hard-working person, and I just never had any free time. I refused to believe the rumors that all the girls in town hated me.

But times were desperate, and I had to resort to drastic measures. It was time to go to a computer dating service.

I went to a business named Comp-U-Duet, or something like that, where I was greeted by a friendly young lady. She was there to take the information that would be fed into their computer system.

The first question was easy. What was my name.

After I told her, she gave a painful look.

"No, that just won't do," she said. "I think we would get more results if I put down Slate Wellington. Now what about your occupation?"

I said I was a newspaper photographer.

She let out a woeful sigh. "You mean that's it? I'll call it optical engineer. Now what are some of the things in life that you like?"

I said that I liked cruising the strip, soul and funk music and sleeping.

I heard a gasp from the assistant that sounded as if it would be her last breath. "You're lucky, I'm here," she said. "I'll just fill in that you like driving race cars, listening to classical music and deep contemplation. How about foods?"

That was easy. Pizza and beer.

"Simply put, that's exotic foods and fine liquors you enjoy. What are some things you dislike in life?"

I told her straight out that I hated being so poor all the time.

"Great," she yelled. "You hate the world's poverty problem. Women love to hear that type of stuff. Now we'll just stick this information into our computer, and we should let you know what happens within the week."

After a few days, I received a awaited call. I was to meet an aspiring actress named Victoria Sanders at the downtown McDonald's that Saturday evening.

I wrote the rest of her biographical information, thanked the agency and hung up.

Saturday finally arrived and I went to our meeting place. I looked around, but saw no girl that looked like a Victoria — just a girl in faded jeans and a T-shirt.

"You're Slate Wellington?" she exclaimed as I asked her if she was my date. "Oh well, let's bust this joint and hit the skating rink," she said.

I think that was listed on her bio as enjoying alternative modes of transportation.

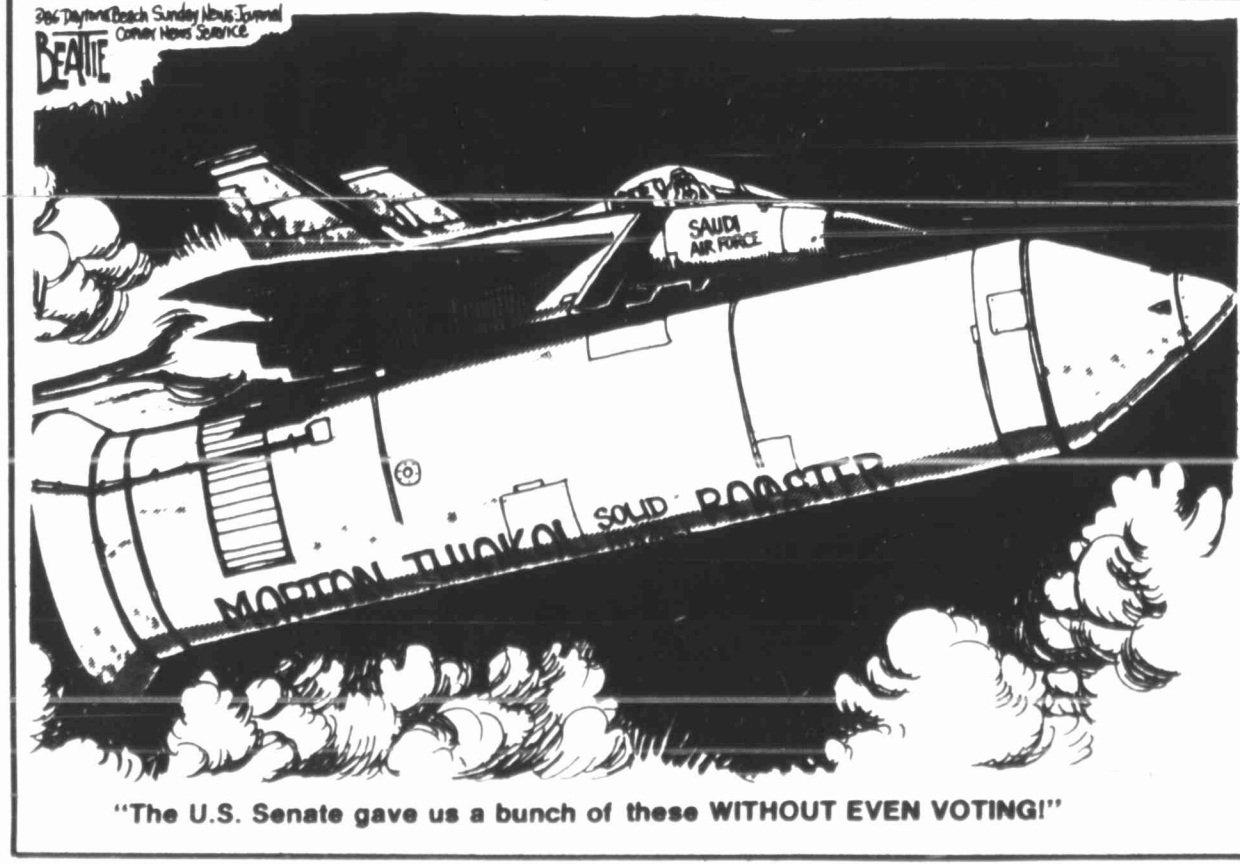

Opinions expressed in this column are those of the staff writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the newspaper's management.

He said in case of an emergency a citizen should call the water office during the day. And when an emergency occurs at night (any hour), call the night number at the water plant (3-8321) and the operator will call out a meter reader to shut the water off.

Also, when the emergency is fixed, the operator will call the meter reader back out to turn it on again.

This was set up mostly for the elderly and handicapped, who can't manage, otherwise.

Two seriously hurt by fireworks

PLAINVIEW — A boy lost his hand and a companion was burned when an undetonated aerial shell from an Independence Day fireworks show exploded after one of the boys lit the device, police said.

David Ponce, 11, underwent surgery at Central Plains Regional Hospital but doctors were unable to re-attach the hand blown off in the explosion, hospital spokeswoman Marcia Raines said.

The boy, who also suffered severe burns and extensive shrapnel wounds, was in serious but stable condition Sunday and was moved out of the intensive care unit, said nursing supervisor Diana Parker.

The other boy injured in the ex-losion, Fermin Barrera, 11, of Plainview, was treated for facial and body burns and shrapnel wounds, and was in satisfactory condition Sunday night in Lubbock General Hospital's burn unit, said nursing supervisor William Smith.

A third boy was treated and released at Central Plains for minor burns and ear injuries caused by the blast, hospital officials said.

Police said Sunday that the two boys were playing with the device Saturday on the front porch of a home in Plainview when it exploded about 6:13 p.m. It was likely they found the shell after the Friday night fireworks display at a city park, police said.

Woman claims torture, captivity

SAN ANTONIO — Police are investigating claims by a suburban woman that she was held prisoner for four months, drugged, tortured and forced to perform in pornographic movies.

Universal City Police Sgt. James Fulton said a 36-year-old Universal City man was in jail on charges of indecency with a child, but the other charges related to the woman's claims were still pending Sunday.

Universal City is a suburb of this city.

The woman showed up at police headquarters with her 10-year-old daughter Friday, saying she had managed to escape.

Police searched a motel apartment where they said they confiscated videotapes, pictures and photographic equipment Saturday. They said windows were nailed shut and a padlock was on the door.

Detective Sgt. Charles Dewey said the woman claimed she was drugged, tortured with a lit cigar and forced into sex acts that were recorded on videotape.

Marijuana going underground

RUSK — Marijuana farmers, already cultivating their illegal crop in East Texas forests, are moving underground to avoid airborne surveillance, authorities say.

A vast underground marijuana greenhouse, disguised as a horse barn, is just one example of the growing business.

The barn was hidden in Cherokee County, a mile up a dusty red clay road, behind a locked gate and a "no trespassing" sign, authorities said. Inside, officials found about 5,587 marijuana plants in trays, ranging in size from 18 inches to four feet, valued at about $2.8 million.

"This is the first time I've heard of an underground operation," Sheriff Allen Horton said of last month's discovery. "You wouldn't dream of going underground with marijuana — that's what surprised a lot of people."

A man thought to be the barn's architect was arrested and warrants have been issued for three others, two of whom are said to be Colombian nationals from Florida who bankrolled the project, authorities said.

Skeleton discovered near concert

MANOR — A human skeleton with a bullet hole in the skull found near the Farm Aid II concert site has been identified as a man missing since 1982.

The remains were identified Saturday as those of Todd Allen Lis, who was 19 when a friend last saw him in 1982, said Jim Hall of the Travis County Medical Examiner's office.

The death was ruled a suicide, Hall said.

The friend who had last seen Lis said he cared for Lis for three days after he was involved in a fight, Hall said.

Lis' parents, who lived in Amarillo when he was growing up and have since moved to New Mexico, had not heard from him since 1981, Hall said. It is likely that Lis' remains had been where they were found for four years, Hall said.

A .25-caliber automatic pistol and Lis' identification were found within 10 feet of the skull, and the fatal wound was from a .25-caliber weapon, Hall said. An autopsy was conducted Saturday.

Horns stolen from 'Herd of Cows'

ABILENE — A Dallas artist says he won't return the sculpture "Herd of Cows" — unless he gets his horns back.

One of Wayne Amerine's eight cow sculptures was stolen from a city park exhibit here Thursday, along with some horns and ears swiped from a few other cows. So Amerine packed up his exhibit and shipped it home.

The missing statue was surrendered by two young men Friday

— minus horns and ears. Amerine said Saturday if the stolen horns and ears are returned, he might consider putting the statues back out to pasture in downtown Abilene, where they were part of the city's annual outdoor sculpture exhibit.

But he added: "I just couldn't put pieces like that out and feel good about it. Without the horns and ears, they would look kind of stupid out there."

Exploding television kills woman

DALLAS — A 29-year-old Dallas woman bled to death when a television set exploded in her sister's bedroom and spewed out shards of glass that sliced through her throat, authorities say.

Cynthia Barrientos died Sunday night at Methodist Central Hospital, soon after the jagged glass from the set cut through major blood vessels in her neck, oficials said. The victim's sister, Beatrice Beltran, told police the television had been damaged earlier in the day during an argument Mrs. Beltran had with her husband, homicide investigator J.J. Coghlin said.

Ms. Barrientos came to the home to help her sister straighten the house up, and had turned on the TV to see whether it still worked.

File reveals information about murderer

AUSTIN — University of Texas tower sniper Charles Whitman ate amphetamines "like popcorn" and often spoke about hating his father before his shooting rampage that left 17 people dead, according to a file kept secret for 20 years.

The 9-inch-thick file was sealed in 1966 at the recommendation of a Travis County grand jury, but the Austin-American Statesman was granted access to most of it recently and reported on its contents Sunday.

"I think Aug. 1, 1966, was one of the most terrifying days ever in this country," assistant police chief George Phifer said. "With the terrorism that exists across the world today, it is important to remember what terrorism was like back then."

During the early morning hours of that day, the 25-year-old architectural engineering student killed his mother and his wife, Kathy, and then assembled an arsenal of seven weapons.

He hauled the weapons to the observation deck of the 307-foot tower, and began firing indiscriminately.

By the time police stormed the tower and killed Whitman with a shotgun blast to the head 99 minutes later, 16 people were dead and 31 were wounded.

The case stood for nearly 18 years as the largest mass murder by a single killer in one day in U.S. history until James Oliver Huberty killed 21 people and wounded 18 when he opened fire inside a McDonald's restaurant in San Ysidro, Calif.

The file shows that Whitman spoke frequently to friends and acquaintances of his hatred for his father, something the father said he was not aware of until last week when he was interviewed by the newspaper.

It is not known whether Whitman was under the influence of amphetamines during his shooting sprees, but the report reveals he was a frequent user of the stimulant.

Thomas Sewell, a friend of Whitman, told the FBI in 1966 that Whitman admitted using amphetamines.

"I eat them like popcorn. They won't hurt you," Sewell quoted Whitman as saying.

A metal tube full of amphetamines and aspirin was found in Whitman's pants pocket after he was shot, but investigators said an autopsy on Whitman wasn't performed until it was too late to determine if he was under the influence of the drug.

Lifestyle

P.i.'s say real life isn't like fiction

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Nancy Drew never trailed unfaithful wives and snapped photographs of them in secret embraces with lovers.

Joe and Frank Hardy never wound up with knives to their backs while questioning customers in a gay bar.

Real-life Odessa sleuths say the job requires close brushes with such aspects of life's underside. More often, it involves the tedium of knocking on door after door while chasing down a lead.

"I get a call a week from some dork who wants to become a PI because he's heard it's glamorous," said 27-year-old Cathy Griffin, one of Odessa's seven or so private investigators.

"When you sit up all night in a car and freeze with your binoculars — that's not glamorous," she said. "The one high-speed chase I ever had, I got pulled over."

"A lot of it is just beating the pavement," said Ms. Griffin, who started her one-woman operation in 1983 after seven years as a TV news reporter.

She works chiefly through Odessa attorneys who want her to investigate unfaithful wives or husbands or unsavory mothers or fathers for evidence to be used in divorce proceedings or custody battles.

Other jobs call for probing murder cases, locating missing people and, sometimes, helping businesses collect overdue bills, she said.

Ms. Griffin recalled that her father warned about her line of work. "When you go around snooping in people's business, you're liable to get killed," he told her.

"There's always that fear of getting yanked out of your car at night," she admitted.

Ms. Griffin's one close call ended safely after she talked her way free from a woman with a gun who didn't like being tailed, she said.

"When you're dealing in people's private lives, it puts you in a position for anything," she said.

Mike Perkins, chief investigator for the Odessa firm of Harper Inc., agrees that risk sometimes is present on the job, but it's usually overblown by television, magazines and movies.

"What we do is not necessarily dangerous," said Perkins, 41, who started the agency in 1982. "I don't even own a handgun."

He admits to two close calls, one in a gay bar in Albuquerque, N.M., when a man put a knife to his back as Perkins questioned the man's lover.

Perkins' partner flashed a gun, and the two detectives fled the bar unharmed, he said.

"High-speed chases — we've gotten into a few of those," he said.

In one, "we had three Hell's Angels trap us north of town," he said.

But Perkins' Corvette proved faster than motorcycles that night, he said.

Such incidents are few and far between, the detective said, and for the most part, "I pride myself on being able to talk myself out of anything."

With 60 to 70 percent of the agency's work done on criminal cases, Perkins and his five detectives work arm-in-arm with defense attorneys in preparing cases for trial.

Such investigations can involve visiting the crime scene, tracking down witnesses, evaluating autopsies in murder cases and helping select jurors and taking notes on courtroom testimony, he said.

Each staffer has an investigative specialty to offer, he said. Perkins is a self-taught expert on selecting sympathetic jurors, while other investigators know how to deal with product liability, child custody or business cases, he said.

But the key to each detective's knowledge is in locating the right people and getting them to talk about a case, he said.

Other skills include following cars, which Perkins calls "the hardest thing in the world" to do.

Watching houses and taking photographs also are part of the tasks, said Perkins. He said he has found himself climbing telephone poles and Dumpsters to get the right shot through an open window.

"We don't take dirty pictures as a normal thing," he said. These days, Perkins said, "I turn down more of that stuff than I take."

Child custody case investigations are among the trickiest, Perkins said. It's often the private detective's job to find out if a mother or father is involved in something unsavory, like prostitution or drugs, he said.

"They don't want you investigating them."

"There are times that I have thought this a scummy business," said Ms. Griffin.

But for the most part, she said, "I'm paid to do a job. I'm not personally involved in the situation."

"There have been some cases that I'm glad to be a part of," Ms. Griffin said. A recent South Texas investigation by Ms. Griffin ended with a 2-year-old being removed from a family that had a three-generation history of child molestation, she said.

Treatments ease douloureux pain

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Would you please explain the cause of tic douloureux? What is the medicine a person should take for it? — H.W.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I'm a female, 51, and in good health. I recently began having excruciating pain in my cheek and jaw area on one side. My doctor diagnosed tic douloureux, and has me on Dilantin, which helps some. He said he is looking into the possibility of surgery on the face nerve. Can you explain the problem? — Mrs. D.D.

I can sympathize with both of you. Tic douloureux is spasms of intense, stabbing pain. While fleeting, lasting from a few seconds to a minute or so, the pain can be discouragingly relentless, occurring sometimes as often as a hundred times a day. An irritation as slight as a breath of air against the cheek can trigger a spasm. The term, tic, incidentally, is part of the name because of the wincing of the victim during the fleeting pain.

Another name for this is trigeminal neuralgia, a reference to the nerve involved, the trigeminal nerve. Except for that fact, explanation for the pain is often unclear.

Some feel an artery may be wrapping itself around the nerve. Rarely, the cause can be a nerve tumor. Most often, we have to settle for the "I don't know" diagnosis and just try to control things as best we can with medicine. However, the theory of the pulsating artery wrapped around the nerve has led to one interesting treatment. In such cases, a tiny sponge can be interposed between the nerve and the artery as a buffer. This may be the surgery to which Mrs. D. refers.

But first, drugs are tried. Carbamazepine (Tegretol) often brings relief, as does phenytoin (Mrs. D.'s Dilantin).

I should mention still another non-drug treatment that has been tried. In it, a small needle is inserted into the facial nerve to deliver radio-frequency waves. Tic douloureux usually affects people in mid-life.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I went to the emergency room because I had heart flutter. My doctor had been treating me for low potassium. At the hospital they called my doctor, and he increased my potassium level. The bill from the hospital said, "hypokalemia ... and PVC." What did that mean? — Mrs. D.G.

Hypokalemia means low blood potassium level. PVC means premature ventricular contractions, a reference to your heartbeats that originate in the lower heart chamber, the ventricle. It's entirely possible that your irregular heart behavior was related to your low potassium level, since that mineral is important in muscle activity, including that of the heart. If so, correcting the potassium deficiency will correct the PVCs.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I found a small lump in my right breast. I am going to report it as soon as I can. I share the same doctor with some friends. They warned me that he is big on needle biopsy for these lumps. I am anxious about just what this entails. Is it painful? How long does it take to get results? Will he send it to a lab? Is needle biopsy reliable? — Mrs. O.L.

The needle biopsy is effective as a tool for determining the nature of a suspicious growth. It will not be painful. The doctor will paint the area with iodine, then inject at any amount of novocaine into the skin above the area to be punctured. He'll use a very fine needle to withdraw some cells from the lump. That will be sent to a laboratory and the results will be known in a couple of days at most.

The needle biopsy has advantages over regular incision-type. It carries less risk of disturbing tumor tissue unduly, and it can be done without hospitalization. It will take only a few minutes.

FOR J.T. — Yes, late in the day is the best time to buy new shoes. You then take into account swelling of the feet from the day's use. Experts also say you should wear new shoes an hour or two the first day, then add an hour each day thereafter, until they have been broken in thoroughly.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Comment, please, on complex carbohydrates for the insulin-dependent diabetic. — R.R.

You should emphasize the ones with high fiber. Some complex carbohydrate foods are better in that than others. Examples as pastas, wheat breads, legumes (like lentils, beans and peas). Other complex carbohydrates are not so good in fiber, like white breads and potatoes.

Fiber helps the insulin-dependent because it isn't metabolized so readily in digestion and has less of a blood-sugar elevation effect.

Diverticulosis is a bulge in the digestive tract. To learn more about it, write to Dr. Donohue for his booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You," care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and $1.00.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Statue of Liberty's crown symbolizes seven continents and seas

DEAR ABBY: Several weeks ago I wrote to you asking what the seven spikes in the crown of the Statue of Liberty stood for. You wrote back and suggested I write to the mayor of New York for an authoritative answer. You also asked me to let you know what the mayor said if I heard from him.

Well, I wrote to Mayor Koch, and here is his answer.

Mr. Louis Binns Forsyth, Mo. Dear Mr. Binns: Thank you for your letter and question.

According to the Statue of Liberty/Ellis Island Foundation, there is a twofold symbolism in the seven spikes in the Statue of Liberty's crown. They stand for the seven seas and for the seven continents: America brings together people from every continent, and they have to cross every ocean to get here — or they did before the airplane.

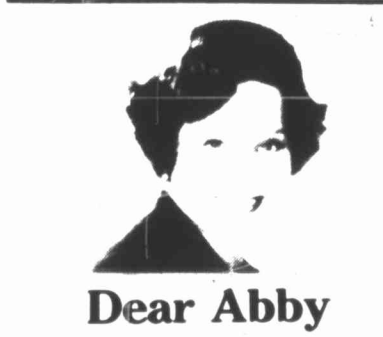

All the best. Sincerely, Edward I. Koch, Mayor, New York City

Dear Abby

I just had a heated argument over her new swimsuit. The top is OK, but the bottom consists of a string that goes around her waist — attached to a triangular piece of fabric that is no more than 4 inches wide in the front, and not much more in the back.

The trouble started when we went to the beach and I saw "Lisa" in her new swimsuit for the first time. I told her I thought it was too skimpy and no decent girl would go out in public like that.

She said I was living in the dark ages, and proceeded to point out other girls in similar swimsuits. I told her I didn't care if there were girls naked on the beach, as far as I was concerned, that didn't make it right.

I'm 24 and she's 22 and we're practically engaged, so I told her that wearing a swimsuit like that looks like she's advertising her body and inviting the attentions of other men. (Lisa does have a beautiful figure, and the men did look at her.) She told me she loves me and I'm a jerk to be jealous. Am I? Was I out of line to object to her skimpy swimsuit?

JEALOUS
 DEAR JEALOUS: You are not a jerk to be jealous; it's a natural reaction. You had every right to express your feelings, but having done so, it's Lisa's right to wear what she wants to wear. You seem insecure, possessive and threatened. Since you're not yet officially engaged, you and Lisa would be wise to resolve your differences now, and let it all hang out.

DEAR ABBY: I had to write after reading the letter from "Massachusetts Birdseed Lady" who had had a mastectomy and used birdseed in her bra to make her look "even."

Two years ago I had a mastectomy, and the cup size of my bra was a "D." I love to swim, but a prosthesis to equal a D cup is very heavy and pulled my bathing suit away from my chest, so I came up with the idea of using birdseed in a cloth pouch that could be pinned into the cup of my bathing suit.

This worked great at first. Then I began to notice that the pouch of birdseed was getting "tight," causing me to look like a one-sided Dolly Parton. Upon opening the bag, much to my surprise, I discovered that the birdseed had begun to sprout!

Needless to say, I had to do numerous "lumpectomies" on my bag of birdseed until I had my reconstructive surgery.

If you use my letter, please omit my name as I am well-known in this small town.

ANOTHER BIRDSEED LADY
 DEAR LADY: Thanks for writing. For those who need it — to avoid a bumper crop of embarrassment, change the birdseed after each plunge. (That stuff is for the birds, you know.)

 (Problems? Write to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, P.O. Box 38823, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. All correspondence is confidential.)

BIG SPRING TRAVEL TALK
 By Mary Vall

CRUISING FOR A SAVINGS

Comparing cruises and cruise ships is difficult. There are, however, some basic strategies that can provide a foundation for an intelligent selection. Size is important because it is generally true that the more space there is per passenger, the more comfortable is the ship. The number of crew members per passenger also is important. A wise traveler compares per-diem costs with the price of duplicating the itinerary by alternate means. This, one should compare the amount it would cost to fly to the same ports, stay at local hotels, and buy all one's meals. These figures and comparisons are available from your travel agent and are a good indication as to why cruises have become so popular.

Whether you have thought about your next vacation yet or not, we urge you to come to BIG SPRING TRAVEL, 608 Scurry. We will give you the ideas that will allow you to set sail for an exciting, enjoyable and memorable vacation. Cruises offer the best of all options. A hotel beneath you with exciting activities combined with interesting stops for nightlife and shopping at ports of call that will ring with familiarity. So put on your water wings and swim on over to BIG SPRING TRAVEL and let us hold an anchor and send you on a memorable journey. Tel. 263-0225. Open 8:30-5:30 Mon.-Fri.

 One of the prime lures of ocean travel is that the cost of a cruise is all-inclusive.

Becker destroys Lendl

Boris Becker reacts moments after beating Ivan Lendl 6-4, 6-3, 7-5 to repeat as Men's Singles Champion at Wimbledon on Sunday.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Boris Becker's first Wimbledon championship was marked with diving shots and remarkable recoveries. His second may be remembered for just one shot.

Becker was on his knees, the ball coming at him and the world's top-ranked player, Ivan Lendl, anticipating two chances to break the teen-ager's serve and keep his hopes for a first Wimbledon title alive.

But the 18-year-old West German flicked his racket at the ball and produced a winner while still horizontal.

It was a moment of Becker magic that all but assured a second successive Wimbledon triumph.

Less than a minute later, Becker had won the 100th Wimbledon men's championship 6-4, 6-3, 7-5 to ruin Lendl's first-ever final appearance.

"You can't describe it, you just do it," Becker said when asked to explain how he makes some of his shots. "There's no book to tell you how to do it."

The women's championship was again Martina Navratilova, who beat Czechoslovakia's Hana Mandlikova 7-6, 6-3 Saturday to gain a record-tying fifth consecutive singles title. In partnership with Pam Shriver, Navratilova also picked up the women's doubles for the fifth time in six years when they beat Mandlikova and Australian Wendy Turnbull 6-1, 6-3 Sunday.

But Navratilova missed out on a record-tying triple when she and mixed doubles partner Heinz Guenthardt of Switzerland were beaten by Americans Kathy Jordan and Ken Flach, 6-3, 7-6.

Sweden's Mats Wilander and Joakim Nystrom landed the men's doubles, beating Americans Gary Donnelly and Peter Fleming 7-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Becker proved last year's historic Wimbledon triumph — when he became the youngest and first unseeded player to win the men's championship — was no fluke.

"This year I really proved I can play well on grass, and proved I am a Wimbledon champion," Becker said. "You can't say after just two weeks that I am the best tennis player in the world. On grass, maybe I am the best in the world, but on other courts I am just one of the best."

Becker has two Grand Slam championships, both on the Wimbledon grass. He has never made it past the fourth round at any of the other three tournaments, on clay at Paris, cement at New York and a slower grade of grass at Melbourne. Lendl has won the French and U.S. Opens and reached the finals at Wimbledon and the Australian Open, and believes that overall strength means he should retain his No. 1 ranking.

Winner last month of the French championship and reigning U.S. Open titlist, Lendl admitted before and during the championship he badly wanted to add the Wimbledon title to his collection.

"I have to say I'm very disappointed and very tired at the moment," the 26-year-old Czechoslovak said after his defeat in the final.

He said he would rest, get himself back into shape and see how he could improve his game, although he was pleased with the way he played generally.

"Hopefully, by this time next year, I can play even better," he said.

Becker won the final with a typically awesome array of sledgehammer serves and blockbuster groundstrokes.

But, until the final game, the championship match appeared to be going by without his characteristic tumbles.

At 15-30 and 6-5 in the third, Becker was grounded as he produced a cross-court volley at the net.

"He (Lendl) got it and I thought he was going to play down the line," Becker said. "I went for it and suddenly the ball wasn't going behind my ears. Then I saw it fall in front of me."

"I thought maybe I'll go for it and I hit a cross-court winner."

Navratilova's victory over Mandlikova also was sprinkled with spectacular all-court play.

Mandlikova, the reigning U.S. Open champion, had beaten American and No. 2 seed Chris Evert Lloyd and threatened a repeat of her Flushing Meadow triumph.

Horner slams four homers

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta first baseman Bob Horner's four home runs in one game put him in a select company of the famous and the forgotten.

Most of the 10 other major leaguers to do it in the past 92 years were remembered for something else, if at all, but that didn't dim the jubilant Horner after he hit relief pitcher Jeff Reardon's fastball over the left-center field fence in the ninth inning for his fourth homer Sunday.

"I had a good week today," he said. "It was just one of those things that happens and you can't explain it. I didn't in my wildest dreams expect to do anything like that. I don't expect to do that again anytime soon but I have been hitting the ball hard for the last two weeks."

Despite the home runs, the Braves lost to the Montreal Expos, 11-8. A smaller than usual crowd of 18,156 gave Horner a five-minute standing ovation after his fourth homer.

"We were down by four runs and there were two outs and I figured (Reardon) was going to challenge me," Horner said. "He threw a fastball right there."

His homers were solo shots in the second and fourth innings, a three-run blast in the fifth and another solo shot in the ninth.

The first three came off Expos starter Andy McGaffigan, who was knocked out of the game when Horner's three-run homer capped a five-run Braves rally that made the score 10-7.

"The guy just got hot," McGaffigan said. "The ball was jumping today, but Horner's a good hitter who got hot. I didn't get away with a mistake."

Reardon said he mistakenly thought there was a runner on base after getting Dale Murphy on a double play grounder.

"I'm not a double play pitcher, so I was thinking there was a runner on base," Reardon said. "I thought about stepping off (the mound rubber) in the middle of my delivery, but I said, 'The hell with it.' And he hit it. Hit it good."

Horner wasn't sure it would clear the fence.

"I hit it hard, but it was a line drive and I wasn't sure it would get up enough to go over," he said. "I ran hard, and then it cleared the fence. I can't say I was thinking about it. But I did figure with a four-run (Expos) lead, two out and nobody on base, he'd come in with a pitch."

Horner recalled the order of the pitches he hit: "Fastball, breaking ball, breaking ball, fastball, in that order," he said.

Reliever Tim Burke, the winner at 6-2, was the only pitcher to retire Horner, on a pop up in the seventh inning.

No player has hit five home runs in a single game. Joe Adcock, of the Milwaukee Braves, came closest with four home runs and a double in 1954. The last time a player got four home runs was in 1976 when Mike Schmidt did it for the Philadelphia Phillies against Chicago at Wrigley Field in 10 innings.

Others to have hit four home runs include Willie Mays, Lou Gehrig and Gil Hodges, all baseball legends. More obscure are Bobby Lowe, the first man to do it in 1894, or Chicago's Pat Seery, who did it in 1948. Ed Delahanty is hardly a household name today, although he may have been when he hit four home runs in a game for Philadelphia in 1896.

Gehrig, Seery and Rocky Colavito were the three American Leaguers to hit four homers in a game. The seven National Leaguers were Adcock, Mays, Hodges, Schmidt, Lowe, Delahanty and Chuck Klein.

Horner now has 17 home runs this season.

Rozelle to announce mandatory random drug testing for NFL

NEW YORK (AP) — National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle is expected to announce today that all players will have at least two random drug tests during the 1986 regular season and could face lifetime suspension for a third offense, according to a report in the Dallas Morning News.

Rozelle scheduled a news conference today at which he is expected to announce the "new procedure for a leaguewide drug program," NFL spokesman Joe Browne said Sunday.

According to the copyrighted story in today's editions of the Morning News, the NFL Players Association is expected to file a grievance with the National Labor Relations Board. The NFLPA is opposed to mandatory urinalysis spot checks for all players.

An NFL official, who was not identified in the report, told the Morning News the exact details of the drug plan would be announced today, but said neither the teams nor players will be warned that a drug check scheduled. Parts of the NFL's drug program reported in the Morning News included:

- An appointment by Rozelle of an independent medical adviser who will supervise the testing. The urinalysis will not be conducted by the 28 teams, and the initial results will be kept confidential.

- Only if a player is found to need drug rehabilitation will the club be informed that he tested positive.

- The testing will be for "recreational drugs" — cocaine and marijuana — and not steroids, which are organic compounds used by some athletes to promote muscle growth.

- The first time a player tests positive he will be sent to a drug counselor.

- On the second offense, the player will undergo rehabilitation and fined four game checks.

- The third offense could mean a potential lifetime suspension by the NFL with a review that could result in reinstatement after one year. Reinstatement will be based on doctors' reports and the player's progress dealing with drugs.

The current contract between the players and the league — which expires in 1987 — allows teams to test players for drugs in preseason physicals and whenever a team doctor rules there is probable cause.

Rozelle said proposals for a new drug plan, which the league and the players' union would develop jointly, would be implemented prior to next season.

But Brian Holloway, vice president of the NFL Players Association, said in an interview last week that care would have to be taken to protect the rights of players. He warned that there must not be an over-reaction to the cocaine-induced deaths of Cleveland Browns defensive back Don Rogers on June 26 and University of Maryland basketball player Len Bias eight days earlier.

Kristiansen lowers mark

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Ingrid Kristiansen lowered her world 10,000-meter record by an amazing 46 seconds Saturday with a time of 30 minutes, 13.74, but Steve Cram and Said Aouita failed in other attempts to rewrite the record book. Cram captured the "Dream Mile," the final event on the program, in 3:48.31, two seconds off the record of 3:46.32 he set here last year. Aouita won his first-ever 10,000-meter race in 27:26.11. Kristiansen's world record was the 46th since 1924 at the storied Bislett Stadium.

Tigers cool streaking Rangers

Detroit Tigers Kirk Gibson steals second base before the throw reaches Texas Rangers shortstop Scott Fletcher during fifth inning American League play in Arlington, Texas on Sunday afternoon.

ARLINGTON (AP) — The Detroit Tigers proved again that the race isn't always to the swiftest nor the battle to the strongest.

The Tigers were outhit, outthundered, and to some extent outpitched by the Texas Rangers, but still came away with a 5-2 victory Sunday that snapped their own three-game losing streak and Texas' four-game winning streak.

Veteran Detroit left-hander Frank Tanana, throwing curveballs that the radar gun clocked under 60 mph, improved his record to 8-4 with a 7-hit effort over 7 2/3 innings. He walked two and struck out five and needed relief help from Willie Hernandez, who earned his 17th save.

The loser was Ranger rookie right-hander Bobby Witt, 4-7, who allowed only five hits and struck out a career high 14 in eight innings.

The only runs off Tanana were solo home runs by Scott Fletcher, his first, in the third, and Gary Ward, his fourth, in the eighth.

Ranger designated hitter Larry Parrish, who had one of the seven hits off Tanana, claimed that "Tanana just throws it up there and waits for gravity to take over."

"The 14 strikeouts don't mean anything," said Witt. "It just goes to show that it doesn't matter how many guys you strike out. I had one bad inning today and it cost us the game. I'm disappointed."

Tanana had one tense moment, in the seventh when the Rangers loaded the bases with one out and the score 4-1.

"We had some chances," said Valentine, "but Tanana got us to bounce into some big outs."

The loss cut the Rangers' American League West lead over California to one-half game.

Indians are red hot and 8½ back

By The Associated Press
The Cleveland Indians' record is better than any team in the American League West. In the AL East, however, it's only good enough for — SECOND PLACE?

That's right. The lowly Indians, who have finished higher than fourth just once in the last 26 years, are the closest challengers to the first-place Boston Red Sox following Sunday's 5-0 triumph over Kansas City, Cleveland's seventh consecutive victory and the world champion Royals' club-record ninth straight setback.

Despite Cleveland's 43-35 record, they are eight games from the top — although two percentage points ahead of third-place New York — while Kansas City, 37-44, is just seven games out in the AL West. But the Royals are fading.

"Everybody they throw out there, whether it's a knuckleballer (Candiotti) or fastballer, seems to shut us down," said Manager Dick Howser, whose team completed an 0-9 road trip. "I've been concerned since day one, since spring training."

Candiotti, 7-6, pitched a four-hitter in handing the Royals' a club-record 10th consecutive road loss. Loser Dennis Leonard was charged with all the Cleveland runs.

Chris Bando singled in the seventh and scored on Bernazard's double and the Indians wrapped it up with three runs in the eighth on RBI singles by Pat Tabler, Brett Butler and Cory Snyder.

Red Sox 7, Mariners 3
Tom Seaver, making his second appearance for Boston, allowed four hits and an unearned run in seven innings and won the 308th game of his career. The 41-year-old Seaver, acquired from Chicago on June 29, is 2-0 with Boston and 4-6 overall.

Seattle's Jim Presley hit a two-run homer off Joe Sambito in the eighth inning to make it 4-3. But Boston's Marc Sullivan hit a three-run homer in the bottom of the eighth off loser Mark Langston.

Langston had retired 12 consecutive batters when he walked Rey Quinones on four pitches to start the sixth. Marty Barrett's single and Wade Boggs' sacrifice loaded the bases when Langston's throw to third was too late to get Quinones.

Jim Rice walked, forcing Quinones home with the go-ahead run, another scored on an error by third baseman Presley and Tony Armas made it 4-1 in the seventh with his first home run in Boston since April 22.

Seaver, who struck out five, walked one and threw 96 pitches, said that after the sixth inning he told Manager John McNamara, "Keep an eye on me. After the seventh, I told him I was very wobbly. I was tired. I didn't throw that many pitches, but I was fatigued."

White Sox 5, Yankees 2
Julio Cruz and John Cangelosi hit two-out RBI singles in a three-run second inning off loser Doug Drabek. Wayne Tolleson hit a sacrifice fly off Bob Shirley in the third and Steve Lyons had a run-scoring single off Brian Fisher in the eighth.

Dave Winfield put the Yankees ahead 2-0 with his 13th home run in the first inning but Floyd Bannister, Dave Schmidt and Bob Jamas held the Yankees to two hits the rest of the way.

Angels 8, Blue Jays 2
Kirk McCaskill pitched a six-hitter, Gary Pettis and Wally Joyner had RBI doubles in the fifth inning and Bobby Grich hit a three-run, pinch-hit homer in the ninth. McCaskill retired the first 12 batters and finished with nine strikeouts in notching his sixth complete game and seventh victory in his last eight decisions.

The Angels nicked Dennis Lamp, who was making his first start since July 4, 1985, for a run in the first inning on singles by Jack Howell and Rob Wilfong around an infield out. Lamp was relieved by Mark Eichhorn when Ruppert Jones doubled with one out in the fifth and Pettis greeted him with an RBI double. Joyner also doubled, giving the Angels a 3-0 lead. Grich's homer capped a five-run ninth against Stan Clarke.

Orioles 1, Twins 0
Ken Dixon checked Minnesota on three singles in 8-2-3 innings to snap a personal four-game losing streak and Fred Lynn homered off Neal Heaton in the fifth. Don Aase came on for his 22nd save after Kirby Puckett singled with one out in the Twins' ninth.

A's 6, Brewers 3
Jose Rijo snapped a personal five-game losing streak and the A's gave Jeff Newman a victory on his last day as interim manager. The victory broke Oakland's seven-game losing streak and gave Newman a 2-8 record. Tony LaRussa is scheduled to take over as manager tonight.

Rijo scattered nine hits in 8-2-3 innings before Steve Ontiveros struck out Mike Felder with the bases loaded for his seventh save. Trailing 3-2, the A's took a 6-3 lead by scoring four times in the seventh. Singles by Jose Canseco and Bruce Bochte put runners at first and third with one out and chased Tim Leary.

Giants 8, Cardinals 3
Six runs in the eighth — on three singles, two sacrifice flies, a squeeze bunt and a two errors on the same play by St. Louis catcher Mike Heath — bailed out Steve Carlton.

Carlton, who was signed by the Cardinals last week, gave up three runs on eight hits in 3 1-3 innings.

The Giants trailed 3-0 when Carlton left, with two runners on base. Mark Davis relieved and got a double play. Davis, Greg Minton and Scott Garrelts, the eventual winning pitcher, combined for 5-2-3 innings of two-hit, no-run baseball.

Carlton threw 77 pitches while giving up eight hits and three runs, all earned. He walked two and struck out two.

He was in trouble early. The Cardinals put him behind 2-0 in the third when on three singles, an error by right fielder Chili Davis, and a walk. A relay that nailed Tito Landrum at the plate saved a third run.

St. Louis scored again in the fourth before knocking Carlton out. San Francisco cut the deficit to Boston Red Sox pitcher Tom Seaver tips his hat to the fans at Boston's Fenway Park Sunday after fanning a second inning scoring threat from the Seattle Mariners. The Red Sox went on to defeat the Mariners 7-3, giving Seaver his second victory for Boston since being traded from the Chicago White Sox last week.

3-2 in the seventh, when pinch-hitter Candy Maldonado singled in two runs.

The crowd of 40,473 was the fourth largest of the year at Candlestick Park. The Giants' half-season total of 857,840 surpassed their attendance for all of last year — 818,697.

Phillies 12, Reds 5
Philadelphia tied a major-league record last matched in 1949 with seven extra-base hits in one inning — the third, during which the Phillies scored eight runs and turned a 4-1 deficit into a 9-4 advantage.

Philadelphia had four doubles, a triple and two homers in the inning as they matched a record reached five times, the last in 1949 — also by the Phillies against the Reds.

Pinch-hitter Jeff Stone led off the third with a doubled and closed out the inning's scoring with a two-run homer. He finished the game 2-for-2 as a pinch-hitter. Ron Roenicke also homered in the third, for two runs.

The Phillies had 10 hits in the game — eight of those for extra bases, seven of those in the third.

Mets 5, Astros 3
Sid Fernandez became the National League's first 11-game winner. Fernandez, 11-2, won his sixth straight start. He gave up a run on six hits and five walks in 6 2-3 innings before tiring in the 96-degree heat. Doug Sisk relieved, and Roger McDowell got the last two outs for his eighth save.

USFL-NFL trial resumes

NEW YORK (AP) — After taking a break for the July 4th holiday, the United States Football League's $1.69 billion antitrust suit against the NFL resumes today with the older league on the offensive.

The USFL is trying to prove the National Football League sought to put it out of business by trying to bankrupt financially weak teams. The USFL also says the NFL has a stranglehold on network television.

Last week the NFL attempted to show that a change in spending habits caused the USFL fiscal difficulties.

Dick Daniels, a former Los Angeles Express official, testified that the USFL team may have spent as much as $12 million on player salaries and bonuses in 1984.

Daniels told of the contract the Express gave quarterback Steve Young, which he said, while valued at $40 million, worked out to between $5 and $6 million in present day dollars.

USFL attorney Harvey Myerson during cross-examination last Wednesday brought up one of his "smoking guns" that he mentioned in opening arguments.

He referred to an Aug. 4, 1983 memo by NFL Management Council head Jack Donlan entitled, "How to Spend the USFL Dollar."

That note said NFL clubs should "force the USFL to increase salaries or run the risk of losing (players). Each dollar spent on existing players is the one they cannot spend on a draft choice."

U.S. swimmers win gold at Goodwill

MOSCOW (AP) — The U.S. swimming team will be sad to see their competition come to an end in the inaugural Goodwill Games.

The Americans, represented by the "second-string" have surprised themselves as well as the rest of the competition by winning nine gold medals and with more expected to be added today.

While the events continued the controversy did too, as eight more American athletes, who are members of the military, were barred from the games by the U.S. Defense Department, a Soviet official said early today. Last week, the Defense Department refused to permit 10 boxers and one coach from traveling to Moscow for the games.

Today, Vyacheslav Gavrilin, deputy chief of the Soviet Sports Committee, said at a news briefing that a total of 13 boxers would not be participating. He did not make it clear whether the additional boxers were included in the group of eight.

As the swimming competition was winding down, the track and field competition was just starting to heat up, with heptathlete Jackie Joyner going into today's final three events of the seven-event, two-day program on a world-record pace.

And the women's basketball competition appeared to be heading toward a final-game showdown for the gold medal Thursday night between the United States and the Soviet Union.

The American swimmers, who are competing in the games with their second-string team because the first team is preparing for next month's world championships at Madrid, added three golds Sunday.

American victories were by Leslie Daland of Westlake Village, Calif., who clocked her personal best in the women's 1,500-meter freestyle, with 16 minutes, 15.88 seconds, and the 800 freestyle teams. The women's team was timed in 8:10.49 and the men in 7:21.75.

"We never felt like the second team, and in a way, it took a little pressure off us," Angel Myers, winner of two golds and one bronze, said.

Myers hoped to add to her medals in the 100 freestyle. Other events today were to include the men's 100 freestyle, plus the men's and women's 200 butterfly, 400 freestyle and 400 medley relay.

Soviet swimmers also won three golds Sunday, with Vladimir Salnikov capturing the men's 1,500 freestyle in 15:10.87, Igor Polyanski taking the men's 100 backstroke in 56.02 and Vadim Yaroshchuk winning the men's 200 individual medley in 2:02.83. For each, it was his second gold of the games.

Meanwhile, track and field, which got into full swing Sunday, was to continue today with 11 finals, including the heptathlon.

Joyner took charge of the event Sunday by amassing 4,151 points in four events, smashing the first-day world record of 4,065 set by East German Sabine Paetz in 1984, when she established the overall record of 6,946.

Joyner opened the heptathlon with an American record 12.85 in the 100-meter high hurdles, and followed with a personal best high jump of 6 feet, 2 inches, a 48-5 shot put and a 23.00 clocking in the 200 meters.

Today's closing heptathlon events were the long jump, javelin and 800 meters.

Just like in the pool, the U.S. and Soviet teams won three medals apiece in track and field Sunday.

In the most exciting race of the day, American Evelyn Ashford, the world record holder and 1984 Olympic champion, edged East German Heike Drechsler in the women's 100-meter dash.

Ashford, a last-minute substitute when Pam Marshall was sidelined with a groin injury, and Drechsler, who has broken or equalled world records in the 300 and long jump in the past two weeks, were timed in 10.91.

But, after looking at photos of the finish, the judges awarded the victory to Ashford.

"I thought I outleaped her at the tape," the more experienced Ashford said, after rallying in the final 30 meters against the front-running Drechsler, who had clocked a wind-aided 10.80 Saturday night at Oslo.

Ashford and Drechsler's times Sunday were the fastest in the world this year.

Greg Foster, the 1983 world champion and 1984 Olympic silver medalist in the men's 110 high hurdles, stumbled coming out of the blocks but overcame that poor start to win in 13.25, the fastest time in the world this year.

"I took at least 10 steps to the first hurdle, when I usually take eight," Foster said.

"When that happened, I thought about 1984 when it cost it me the race (in the Olympics)," he added. "So I just had to concentrate. By the second hurdle, I had regained my stride."

American record holder Tom Petranoff uncorked the longest javelin throw by an American this year, 273-10 in winning the gold medal.

In track and field, Robert Emmyan became only the sixth long jumper in history — and the fifth without the aid of wind — to surpass the 28-foot mark, going three inches further for a European record and breaking the European mark of 28-0, set by Lutz Dombrowski of East Germany in winning the Olympic gold medal in the Moscow Games six years ago.

Other winners were Belaine Dinsamo, a 29-year-old Ethiopian policeman, in the men's marathon in 2:14:42; the Soviet Union's Lyubov Gurina in the women's 800 in 1:57.52; Romania's Mariana Stanesco in the women's 3,000 in 8:38.83, and Romas Ubartas of the Soviet Union in the men's discus at 220-2.

Led by All-American Cheryl Miller's 26 points, the U.S. women's basketball team defeated Brazil 91-70. The other second-day scores of the single round-robin tournament were Bulgaria 79, Czechoslovakia 52, and the Soviet Union 63, Yugoslavia 52.

In the overall medals standings, the Soviets had a total of 47, including 14 golds, while the United States had 38, 12 golds.

Golf's bad boy wins at Hartford

CROMWELL, Conn. (AP) — If Mac O'Grady should lose his appeal of a six-week suspension and $5,000 fine meted out by PGA Commissioner Deane Beman, the 35-year-old golfer will have a $126,000 cushion to help him through any tough times.

With a decision on the appeal imminent, O'Grady shot a course-record 62 and beat Roger Maltbie in a one-hole playoff Sunday to win the $700,000 Canon-Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open and the healthy first prize.

Although O'Grady missed a four-foot birdie putt on the par-3 16th hole — the one where the playoff began and ended — Maltbie missed an even shorter putt for par to give O'Grady his first career victory.

It came a week after O'Grady met with a three-member PGA appeal board to present his side of the dispute with the PGA over O'Grady allegedly berating a tournament worker at the 1984 USF&G Classic. The penalties of the dispute, which has led to a running feud between the golfer and Beman, are on hold pending the appeal.

"I have a profound respect for everyone associated with the PGA Tour," O'Grady said Sunday. "I'm not trying to be a martyr or a heretic. I just feel there's been an injustice done to me and my wife."

Rather, O'Grady wanted to savor a victory that ended years of frustration, he said. It took him 17 tries at qualifying school before he made the PGA Tour and it was another four years until his victory.

Maltbie, who started the day at 10 under par, had six birdies and one bogey for a final-round 66. He birdied the 17th hole to force the playoff with O'Grady.

Maltbie missed a 45-foot birdie putt from the fringe on the playoff hole, then O'Grady missed his four-footer to apparently give new life to Maltbie. But Maltbie missed from three feet.

O'Meara, Scott Hoch and Paul Azinger finished in a three-way tie for third at 12 under par.

Tom Watson, who was the co-leader along with Ken Knox going into the final round, shot his second consecutive 70 and ended up four strokes off the pace. Watson has not won a PGA Tour event in two years.

Bull throws fool

A bull tosses a runner out of his way on the opening day Monday of the annual running of the bulls in the traditional San Fermin festival in this northern Spanish town. A dozen runners suffered minor injuries during the 2-minute and 40-second run.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JULY 8, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until noon don't try to force any issues for there are some deep frustrations of another person that can hold up activities. Show others you value them.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) There is a responsibility to handle in the morning before you can get another talent working for you later.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) There is a problem you have to solve before conditions there will improve. Invite friends over at night.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study well any contracts you have made. Drop a note to those you have not seen in a while.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You had better doublecheck on personal matters you have in mind. Find your true goals.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You can accomplish what you want easily. Invite your friends over in the evening. Count the cost, too.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You find it difficult to gain a vital wish. Formulate a plan that will please your mate. Show more affection.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Handle only personal matters today. You will get fine results. Friends are generous. Be philosophical.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Carry through with the interests that can further your career. An influential person can be of assistance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make sure you keep your word with one of importance. Make plans for the trip you want tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Work on plans for a new project. The evening can be romantic with the one you love. Show finesse.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Keep poised even though someone may throw a monkey wrench your way. Get good advice from partners.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan for recreation, but first delve into that pile of work. Take time to improve your health later.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she is apt to be overly emotional early in life, but there is also the ability to see the folly in this quickly. This will discipline the feeling for a potentially successful life and create a wider scope of ambitions. Teach to be objective early. Permit sports participation.

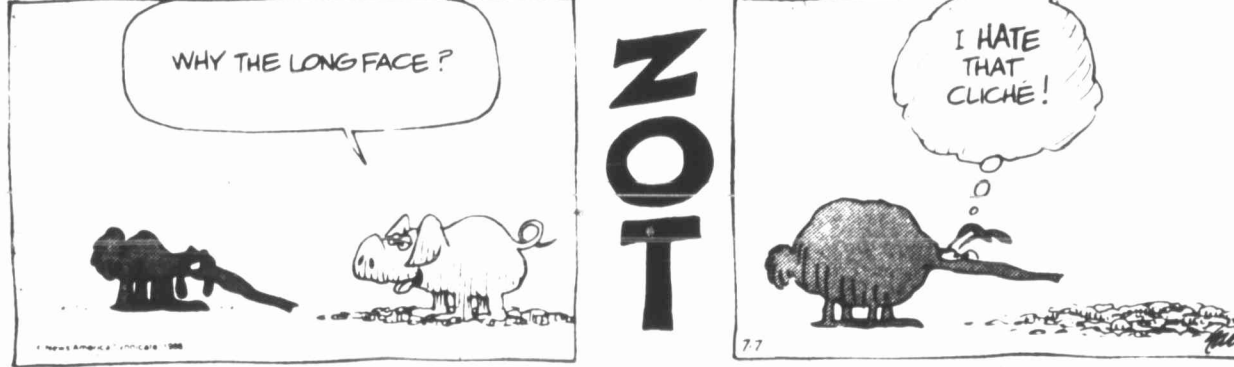

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
