Lighter side

WAYNE, Neb. (AP) — Clucking and crowing like the king of the coop, farmer John Agler won the National Cluck-Off for the fifth straight year Saturday.

Agler scratched out the victory at the Wayne Chicken Show, this northeast Nebraska town's annual festival celebrating the chicken and the egg.

Agler won the Cluck-Off with an impeccable imitation of a rooster strutting around a barnyard.

"This morning is about all the practice I did," said Agler, who farms in the Wayne area. "I do crow once in a while in the shower or out on the tractor, just to prove I can still do it."

Agler said his competitors are getting better, and he plans to take a break from competition for a year or two. He said he wants to make sure someone else takes home the chicken-topped Cluck-Off trophy.

The Cluck-Off is the highlight of the Chicken Show, which also featured a parade, an egg-eating contest and an "Olympics" relay race competition.

Chris Headley, 8, of Wayne won the 12-and-under rooster division in the Cluck-Off. Schuyler Smith, 9, of Fort Worth, Texas, won the children's hen division.

Teen pregnancies in area rise

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

In response to growing concern over teen pregnancies, Planned Parenthood of the Permian Basin has established a branch advocacy council in Big Spring.

Big Spring is the location of the organization's third largest clinic, the first two being in Odessa and Midland, said Pam Black, Planned Parenthood director of community relations.

Black and other officials of the organization's headquarters in Odessa were in Big Spring Thursday for the council's first meeting.

The Permian Basin has the highest teen pregnancy figures in the state, according to the recent Planned Parenthood statistics.

The United States has the highest teen pregnancy rate of all developed nations in the world, and Texas ranks fourth in the nation, the statistics show.

One in five births in the Permian Basin is to a teen-age mother, according to Planned Parenthood literature.

But statistics show that Howard County has the second-lowest teen birth rate in the 17-county Permian Basin area, aside from Loving County, population 100, which had no births at all last year.

Howard County's teen birth rate was 18.3 percent last year, according to figures from Texas Bureau of Vital Statistics. The highest rate was in Terrell County, with 36 percent.

Teen-age child-bearing cost the nation $16.6 billion in welfare, food stamps, Medicaid and Aid to Families with Dependent Children last year, said Black.

Dana Frazee, executive director of the Odessa office, said each teen pregnancy and birth cost taxpayers $6,000 last year, compared to $70 taxpayer cost providing free and discounted birth control.

Lack of access to birth control and pregnancy information is a major reason the teen pregnancy rate is so high, Frazee said.

Local schools don't offer sex education, she said. In Big Spring, some information is given in home economics classes, but it doesn't reach a sufficient number of students, she said.

The new advocacy group plans to meet with school officials to encourage them to offer sex education courses, Frazee said. She added that Big Spring officials have been receptive to the idea.

Dam work may cost taxpayers

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Big Spring and Howard County may share with the local water district the cost of containing Natural Dam Lake, which prevented it from flooding low-lying parts of the county last month.

Howard County commissioners will discuss the situation Monday morning during a regular meeting beginning at 9 a.m.

The county and the city recently received dam progress reports from the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

CRMWD District Manager O.H. Ivie said Saturday afternoon the flood-prevention project is estimated to cost $30,000 to $65,000. He said "it has yet to be decided" how the costs will be shared among the city, county and water district.

"They're (water district) wanting the county to help them out with the cost of the project. It'll be split three or four ways," said Commissioner Paul Allen on Saturday.

Feds probing South Texas gun ring

By PHILLIP SWANN

Harte-Hanks Washington Bureau WASHINGTON — Federal officials have disclosed they are investigating a major South Texas ring suspected of smuggling more than 7,000 guns — from handguns to machine guns — illegally to Mexico.

The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, the federal agency responsible for investigating weapon violations, is preparing criminal cases against six gun dealers in Laredo, according to ATF bureau officials and records.

The dealers, who have licenses to sell weapons legally in the United States, have been under investigation since April 1965 for selling guns to Mexican residents, the records show. Federal law prohibits the sale of a firearm to a resident of a foreign country.

"I would hope that this summer that we would be able to shut down that operation," said Phillip Chojnacki, special agent-in-charge of the firearms bureau's Houston office which is spearheading the investigation. "We are trying to prepare the indictments now," he said Friday.

The Laredo probe is part of an intensified campaign by federal officials to crack down on what they call an alarming increase in weapons being smuggled to Mexico. ATF officials, who asked that the names of the Laredo dealers not be used, said Mexicans are buying the American-made weapons for a variety of reasons ranging from home security to drug trafficking. "Gun sales have gone absolutely berserk," Chojnacki said in an interview.

Texas, California and Florida are considered the nation's hotbeds for trafficking of such firearms as handguns, automatic rifles, machine guns and even Soviet AK-47 assault rifles.

One Laredo gun shop owner under investigation is believed to be America's number one weapons smuggler to Mexico, according to Robert Alley, the resident agent of the ATF's Corpus Christi office which is participating in the probe. Alley said the dealer is suspected of having sold more than 5,000 firearms to Mexican residents.

Although the Laredo ring may be the largest in the state, it has plenty of company. ATF offices in San Antonio, Houston, Corpus Christi and other cities report a dramatic rise in weapons violations.

"We currently have a tremendous number of investigations ongoing," said Alley.

Federal authorities said the Mexican demand for U.S. weapons has increased primarily for four reasons:

• Stringent laws in Mexico has made it almost impossible to legally purchase a gun there.

"Your large traffickers come to the United States where they can get guns very easily," said Jerry Turpen, who heads the firearms bureau's office in Washington on international arms traffic. "Illegal aliens in Texas will get a fake I.D. and buy guns from a legal dealer. ... It's not uncommon to see one individual purchase as many as 20 or 30 guns."

• The fall of the Mexico peso has prompted residents to seek handguns to protect what few assets they have left.

"It's home security," said Tom Hill, a bureau spokesman in Washington. "You want to protect yourself."

• A growing number of Mexican drug traffickers are looking for high-quality weapons such as semi-automatics which can be converted in seconds to automatics capable of firing 1,000 rounds per minute.

Firearms recovered in last year's killing of Drug Enforcement Administration agent Enrique Camarena by Mexican drug traffickers were later traced to Rafael Manzo, a licensed firearms dealer in Del Rio.

Manzo admitted selling the weapons, but denied knowing for what purpose they would be used. He pled guilty to one count of illegal firearms sales by a licensed dealer.

• Encouraged by the continued instability of the Mexican government, revolutionaries are stockpiling weapons for use during what they hope will be a future takeover.

A San Antonio woman, arrested last year for possession of a bomb, told federal authorities that she planned to smuggle weapons to Mexico to assassinate President

Miguel de la Madrid.

U.S. officials emphasized that Mexican law enforcement officials recently have been "very cooperative" in the U.S. campaign against the illegal sale of guns.

"They realize that they just don't need these guns floating around, being used in the commission of crimes," said Hill.

But there seems to be some evidence that officials on both sides of the border may be directly or indirectly involved in illegal arms trafficking.

Chamber festival planned for fall

The Cultural Affairs Committee of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce is planning a month-long October arts festival.

Patrons will see art exhibits composed of various artistic mediums and hear concerts during the festival, which was discussed at a committee meeting last week.

"Artfest" is an effort to bring together various arts organizations, said coordinator Doris Vierge. She is president of the Crossroads Fine Arts Association and a committee member.

"Hopefully as a combined group we can make a bigger impression — expose more people to the arts, expose more artists who may be well-known elsewhere" but not at home, she said.

Although still in planning stages, several events have already been scheduled, Vierge said.

A Big Spring Art Association membership art show has been set for Oct. 3-5, a Big Spring Symphony performance is on tap for Oct. 4, and a Crossroads Fine Arts Association invitational art show and arts and crafts festival is planned for Oct. 17-19.

Other ideas mentioned at the meeting include:

• Displays of sculpture and woodcarving.

• A showing of area art teachers' work.

• A reception for local writers and for artists who have paintings in the Howard County Library.

• A piano or music teachers recital.

• A drama production at Howard College.

• A formal ball to end the festival.

Also, a well-known illustrator, possibly one of children's books, may be brought in, Vierge said.

Funding for Artfest will come from the chamber's arts council, she said. Proceeds from ticket sales for the costume ball will go to reimburse the chamber, hopefully with some left over for future events, she said.

Vierge is looking for people to help with the festival, and for writers to spotlight, she said.

In addition to the festival, summer "starlight specials" were planned.

A feast night has been set for Aug. 9, and a country/western night, a gospel night and a beach school pep rally are on the agenda. Dates and details on the latter items have not been decided.

Grand Prairie beauty is Miss Texas

STEPHANIE SAMONE
...new Miss Texas

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Stephanie Samone, Miss Grand Prairie, was crowned the winner at the Miss Texas Scholarship Pageant Saturday night.

Miss Samone, 25, is a self-employed entertainer who was first runner up in last year's pageant. This is her fourth year in the Miss Texas pageant.

First runner up this year was Miss Arlington, Mary Theresa Atkins, 22, a part-time program analyst. Miss Dallas, 22-year-old Johnna Marie Ogden, took third-place honors.

Miss Duncanville — Leslie Evelyn Chambers, 21 — was third runner-up in the contest. Elizabeth Katherine Johnson, the 26-year-old Miss Hurst-Euleus-Bedford, was fourth runner-up.

The Miss Texas Scholarship Pageant is the nation's largest preliminary to the Miss America Pageant and includes 63 women from around Texas. Of those, 21 were pageant veterans.

Volunteers drink for DWI study

By SANDY BAKER
Mid-Cities Daily News
FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Karen Sanderson, 19, lifted the large Styrofoam cup to her mouth and took a long sip of a carefully calibrated rum and Coke. She was getting ready to have some fun.

"Maybe I'll learn something," the Haltom City cocktail waitress said.

Sitting directly across the table, Pauline Boyd, a state highway department worker, her cup filled with bourbon and 7-Up, said as she started to drink, "It's all in the line of duty."

It was a remark she repeated throughout the afternoon. Bill Jones, 54, a retired General Motors employee from North Richland Hills, sat next to Boyd and for three hours quietly drank nine bourbon and Cokes. He later would register a .127 on the Intoxilyzer.

"My wife volunteered me for this. I thought it would be educational if nothing else," he said.

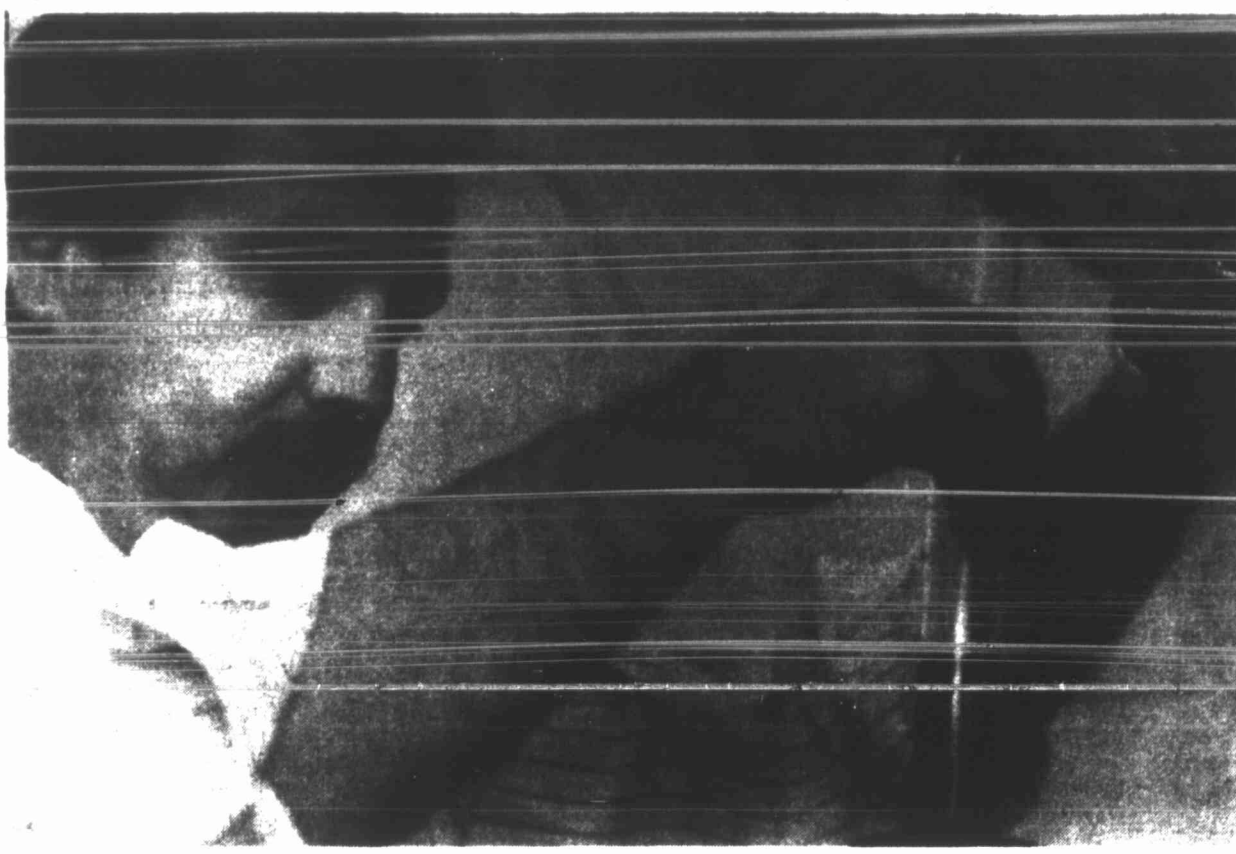

Ms. Sanderson registered a .132 after her nine drinks and Ms. Boyd a .122.

Vickie Eaton, 30, of Boonesville, a Tarrant County employee, got the drunkest of the group — at least legally. She clocked in at .141.

Funny thing about the mark, she quipped, "I'm like this when I'm sober."

Marcy Newman, 27, drank bourbon until she reached .102, just over the legal limit. "I'd be afraid to drive right now. I probably couldn't find my car keys at this point," she said.

For three hours the volunteers drank. They started out exchanging pleasantries, learning details about one another's jobs. The conversation slowly changed to talking about whether they would drive drunk, to not-so-clean jokes, to who would be the first to dance on the table.

Paul Battaglia pours a measure of liquor recently during a Tarrant County DWI task force session in Fort Worth. Exercises developed by Battaglia will be used as part of a new series of roadside sobriety tests.

Then they were tested by police officers to see if they could determine just how drunk they were.

The recent training sessions for police officers from Tarrant County were sponsored in part by the Tarrant County Driving While Intoxicated Task Force.

The exercises are part of a new series of roadside sobriety tests designed to detect the borderline drunken driver — the .10. A person is legally drunk in Texas when he or she registers a .10 on a breath test.

Three tests make up the new series, and to the driver suspected of being drunk they appear simple. But beware, officials warn.

"The tests are fairly foolproof," said Vernon With, National Highway Traffic Safety Administration program director, who conducted the program along with the Texas A&M University Law Enforcement Security Training Division.

"There really is no other way for these officers to develop skills," With said, except by using human guinea pigs. "What we now have is a battery of tests, good tests for laboratory use and good tests for roadside use."

For the first test, the officer tells the subject to stand with head straight, hands down at his sides and follow the tip of a pen with his eyes.

Sounds easy. But, With said, when a person is drunk or on drugs and their eyes are moved to the corners, they twitch. Only a sober person has smooth eye movement, he said.

The second test requires the driver to stand on a line, hands at his side, walk heel to toe counting out loud to nine, turn around and walk the line back.

Break-in attempt reported

Someone attempted to enter the residence of Dale Casey, 608 E. 12th St., at 11 p.m. Thursday, he told police Friday night. This is the second time someone has tried to break into his home, the police report stated.

A sexual assault occurred between 2 a.m. and 5 a.m. Saturday. Police are withholding additional information.

Police arrested Robert Gonzales, 18, of 407 N.W. Ninth St. at his home Friday night for fleeing to elude arrest and possessing alcohol while under legal age.

Robert Steven Cisar, 32, of Coahoma was arrested at 1904 S. Birdwell Lane Friday night on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. He was transferred to the county jail and released on $1,000 bond.

Kelly Dawn Bradberry, 18, of 622 Caylor Drive was arrested at Farm Road 700 and E. 11th Place early Saturday morning on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. She was transferred to the county jail and released on $1,000 bond.

Chamber calls for tax mail

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce is urging its members to flood Congress with letters on the final tax reform bill, urging Congressmen to support tax incentives for drilling.

Most Texas Congressmen already support the incentives, but those from other states must also, to win, according to a news release.

The chamber asked members to write as many of their out-of-state suppliers and customers as possible, pointing out the incentive's effect on their ability to do business.

"With a flood of mail to Washington in the next few weeks, we feel that we can make a difference," the release said.

The chamber also asked for copies of the letters sent, which will be compiled and taken to Washington in time for a Congress vote on the matter.

For the record

In Saturday's Herald it was reported that a society director, Dorothy Garrett, would donate $34,500 to pay a bank note for the Humane Society's purchase of a new animal shelter.

Humane Society president Margaret Lloyd said Saturday the donation is contingent on approval by the Dora Robert's Foundation.

Dam costs

Commissioner O.L. "Louie" Brown said Friday afternoon he thought the district would give a presentation to commissioners Monday. He said he had no idea of the costs involved.

"I don't know what's going to develop out of it," said County Judge Milton Kirby about the discussion. "We're all kind of involved."

The city also was asked to hear a presentation by CRMWD regarding the dam, Public Works Director Tom Decell said Friday afternoon.

He said his department would relay the information to City Council at its July 22 meeting.

Decell said he had not received an estimate from the district on the cost of the project.

Last month's heavy rains triggered a threat of the 32,000-acre-foot lake seven miles west of Big Spring spilling over and flooding low-lying areas of Howard County including Big Spring. In late June, county crews elevated portions of the earthen dam to prevent flooding.

Pregnancies

Another reason the teen pregnancy rate is high is lack of parental responsibility, said Dr. Bruce Cox of 205 W. 15th St., a member of the newly formed group.

"It's 10 o'clock. Where are your kids?" he said.

"Every child should be a blessed event, not a traumatic one," said Betty Lloyd, assistant cashier at Big Spring State Bank and chairman of the new council.

The council will be responsible for fund raising and public relations in Big Spring, Black said.

Because of state and federal budget cuts, the clinic must be more self-reliant and look more to private donations for funding, she said.

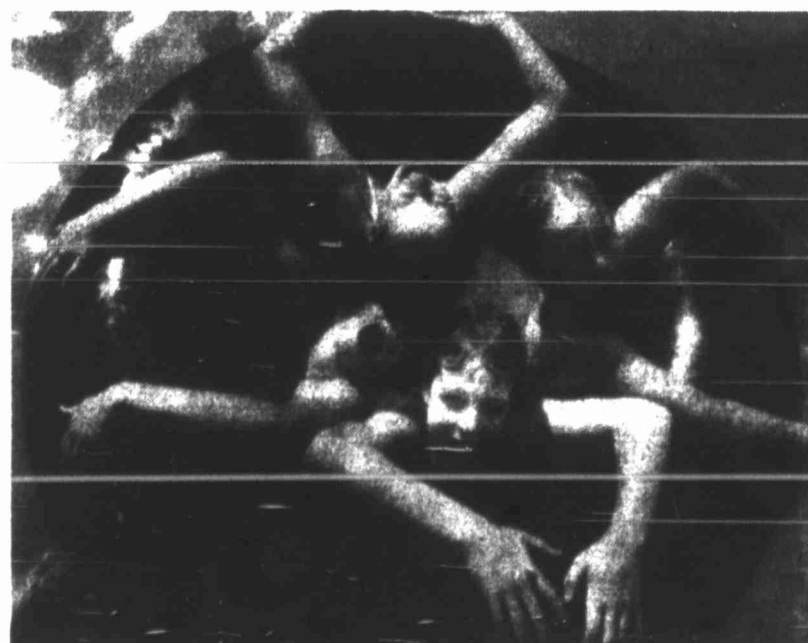

Part of the funds go to free and reduced-cost services for the poor at Planned Parenthood clinics.

A fund raising kick-off is planned for Sept. 11, with a performance by the "Esteem Machine," a teen theater troupe that uses drama to deal with adolescent problems.

In addition to Lloyd and Dr. and Mrs. Cox, Big Spring members of the new council are J.R. and Helen Bizzell of 3 Highland Cove, Carol Mize Pate of, daughter of mayor Cotton Mize, and Richard and Annette White of 2200 Cindy Lane.

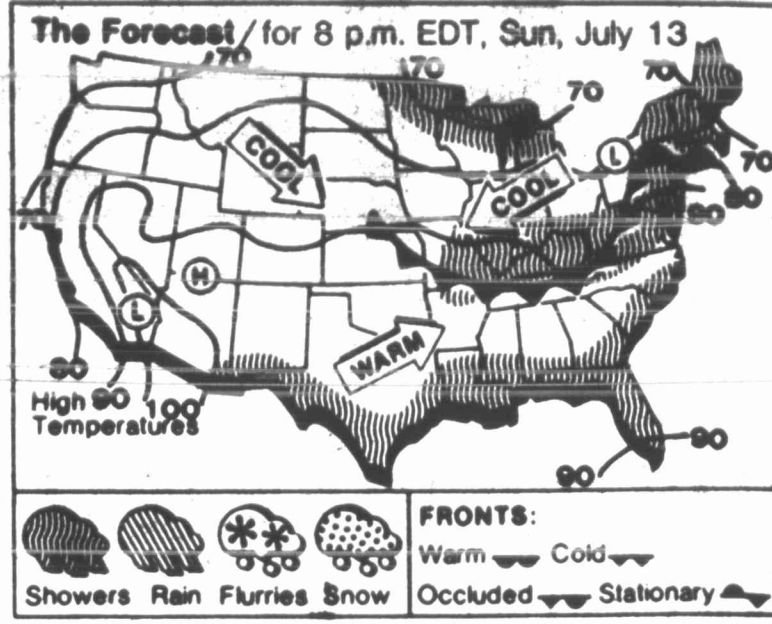

On the Planned Parenthood advisory board are Johnnie Lou Avery of 4 Bennett, Dr. Ron Cohorn of 1501 11th Place, and Myra Robinson, chief executive officer of Robinson Drilling Co. Trina Cavallos, family planning specialist at the Big Spring clinic, also attended the meeting.

Attorney General rules on local subdivision issue

Staff and wire reports
AUSTIN — Attorney General Jim Mattox, responding to a Howard County query, has ruled that a county clerk must record a properly acknowledged deed even if the deed subdivides land which the subdivider has failed to bring into compliance with statutes governing subdivision of land.

However, Mattox said, a city may require a subdivider to prepare and file a plat in compliance with article 6702-1, section 2.401 of state law.

The opinion was requested by Howard County Attorney Tim Yeats.

Howard County and city of Big Spring have recently had problems with developers subdividing land within the one-mile extraterritorial jurisdiction of the city and dedicating streets and alleys to the use of the public without securing approval of the city planning commission and the county, Yeats said in requesting the ruling.

Recently, the city notified area developers of its intention to apply extraterritorial jurisdiction to all land within one mile of city limits.

The notice culminates a push begun several years ago to have all developments within a mile of town built to city specification, said Public Works Director Tom Decell last week.

Decell said the city's reason for acting is to switch the burden of building streets, sewer lines, water pipes, etc. from the taxpayer to the developer should the development ever be annexed.

He also said recent complaints by citizens about Charles "Chris" Christopher's South Mountain development has helped spur city action.

400 march in Juarez to protest vote fraud

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — About 400 singing and chanting women marched through this border city Saturday in support of two men who have been on a hunger strike to protest alleged election fraud by Mexico's governing party.

The city, across the Rio Grande from El Paso, was otherwise calm two days after Mexican soldiers took over the Juarez police station, an act acting Mayor Miguel Agustin Corral said amounted to "undeclared martial law."

Voters in the vast mining and ranching state of Chihuahua went to the polls last week to choose a governor, 14 legislative seats and 67 mayorships, including that of Juarez. The results are due Sunday.

The conservative National Action Party, or PAN, has accused the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI, of massive fraud in the elections. PRI leaders have denied the allegations and suggested PAN accept its defeat.

The women's march was led by Hortencia Barrio, wife of Francisco Barrio, former mayor of Juarez who resigned earlier this year to run for governor on the PAN ticket.

Also at the forefront of the group was Clara Torres, a PAN candidate for state representative and daughter of Juarez PAN president Alberto Torres.

The march started at PAN headquarters, went through the main downtown street, momentarily blocking traffic, and paused at a city park where Francisco Villareal and Victor Manuel Oropeza have been on a hunger strike since July 1.

Oropeza, a medical doctor and columnist for one of the Juarez dailies, said he was protesting not only what he called government-instituted fraud in last Sunday's elections, but election laws passed last December.

"Those laws make it virtually impossible for there to be clean elections," said Oropeza, 55.

He said he is not a member of PAN, a conservative party, but favored more leftist groups.

"However, we must support PAN because it is the only instrument that will shake up the government's corruption," he said.

Oropeza said he has been offered the post of "secretary of ideology" for the PRI, but he refused it.

"God gives us our family, but we are free to choose our friends," he said.

Air Force pilot killed

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. — The Air Force parted its heavy cloak of secrecy today to identify the pilot killed in what experts believe to be the crash of an experimental stealth jet fighter in the Sequoia National Forest.

The Air Force identified the pilot killed in Friday's crash as Maj. Ross E. Mulhare, 35, a native of Fall River, Mass., who was married and had four children.

The Air Force said Mulhare lived at Nellis Air Force Base in Utah, the reputed test site for stealth warplane technology.

Military officials refused to divulge what kind of plane crashed, the base from which it took off, or its mission, but reports said the plane apparently was an F-19 Stealth fighter.

The secret experimental aircraft employs the latest electronic technology, materials and aerodynamic design to foil radar and infrared sensors.

Club snubs women

NEW ORLEANS — Lions Clubs International, which claims to be the world's largest service organization with more than 1.3 million members, voted Saturday against letting women join the club.

With about 6,600 votes counted of 7,500 cast, the proposed amendment failed by a margin of 59 percent to 41 percent, short of the two-thirds majority required to change the Lions' constitution, said elections chairman Joseph Camarda.

Calls prompt removals

Jell-O dry-mix dessert products were locked up in Chicago stores Saturday following threats of poisoning although no tampering had been confirmed, and the maker of Aquafresh toothpaste said it believes a threat against that product was a youngster's hoax.

General Foods Corp. ordered Jell-O dry-mix dessert boxes removed from grocery stores in the six-county Chicago metropolitan area after the company received a second anonymous tampering threat Friday.

The company also asked Kroger supermarkets to remove Sugar Free Jell-O gelatin products from Atlanta stores after police there received an anonymous contamination threat.

Trash strike continues

PHILADELPHIA — A striking white-collar workers' union approved a new contract Saturday but promised to honor a larger union's picket lines in the 12th day of a citywide walkout that has shut down garbage collection and closed many city offices.

The city entered a second day of accepting bids from private trash haulers to collect an estimated 8,600 tons of rotting garbage piling up at 13 temporary dump sites set up across the city.

Back in the USSR

Former president on 'fact-finding mission'

By ALISON SMALE

Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — Former President Nixon began a private trip to Moscow on Saturday that is to include a meeting with Anatoly Dobrynin, the former Soviet ambassador in Washington and the Kremlin's top adviser on relations with the West.

Nixon, 73, who was last in Moscow in 1974, refused to talk to reporters at Sheremetyevo Airport before he was escorted to a waiting Soviet limousine. He was driven to a government guest house in Lenin Hills, west of the city center.

The former president ended the Cold War with his policy of detente with Moscow and signed the first SALT treaty. His spokesman, John Taylor, said Nixon telephoned President Reagan before his departure Friday and discussed U.S.-Soviet relations.

In Washington, White House spokesman Albert Brashear confirmed the two men spoke, but said Nixon was not carrying any special messages for the administration. He said Nixon would report to Reagan at the end of his visit.

Taylor refused to say who initiated what he described as a six-day private fact-finding mission, and said he did not know if Nixon would meet Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

He said Nixon had not requested any meetings except with Dobrynin, who was ambassador in Washington for 24 years before recalled to Moscow in March to become a secretary of the Communist Party's Central Committee.

Taylor said Dobrynin and Nixon have known each other for about 20 years, and that Dobrynin was "intimately involved" in arranging Nixon's trip. He refused to say, however, who initiated the visit.

Nixon, the first U.S. president to visit Moscow, was last there in June 1974 for a summit with the late Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev. They reached agreements on cooperation in trade, energy, housing and the development of artificial hearts and called for a 10-year pact limiting offensive nuclear weapons.

Less than two months later, the Watergate scandal forced Nixon to resign. Although disgraced in his own country, Nixon never lost standing in the Soviet Union. Officials and state-run news media often contrast the relatively cordial U.S.-Soviet relations during Nixon's terms with the current tensions between the superpowers.

Former President Richard M. Nixon waves to reporters while leaving Sheremetyevo Airport in Moscow Saturday. Nixon is in the Soviet Union for a private six-day visit.

The Soviet encyclopedia's more than half-page entry on Nixon notes only that "on August 9, 1974, faced with domestic political necessity, connected with the so-called Watergate affair, Nixon went into retirement."

Taylor said that in a 15-minute telephone conversation Friday with Nixon, Reagan "simply said he wished him (Nixon) well and looked forward to talking with him upon his return."

Asked if Nixon had any mission to improve superpower relations, Taylor said, "He of course would like to do what he can," and will pass any "useful observations" on to Reagan upon his return.

Reagan is trying to set a date for a planned summit with Gorbachev in Washington later this year. The Soviets have refused to fix a date for the meeting, which was agreed to by the two leaders during their summit in Geneva last November.

The Soviets also have yet to reschedule a planned meeting between Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze. The two originally were to meet in May to make plans for the summit, but Moscow canceled the session after the U.S. bombing raid on Libya on April 15.

If Nixon met with Gorbachev, it would be the first meeting on Soviet soil between an incumbent or former U.S. president and a Kremlin leader since Nixon's successor, President Gerald Ford, met Brezhnev in the Far Eastern port of Vladivostok in 1975.

French criticize U.S.

PARIS — A new French-American row blew up Saturday with Paris accusing Washington of "unacceptable... regrettable interference in French affairs" by criticizing a French court's handling of an alleged terrorist said to be involved in the killing of a U.S. diplomat.

It is most unusual for an embassy to publicly attack decisions of its host country's legal system.

Foreign Minister Jean-Bernard Raimond summoned U.S. Charge d'Affaires William Barraclough to express the French indignation.

West Beirut blasted

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Assaults on motorcycles tossed sticks of dynamite at targets in Moslem west Beirut on Saturday, police said, and the blasts broke windows in a mile-wide area of Hamra commercial district, but no casualties were reported.

A police spokesman said officials believed the attacks were "part of a campaign of sabotage against Syria's military intervention to enforce a security plan in west Beirut."

Lebanon's three main Christian groups, including President Amin Gemayel's rightist Phalange party, issued a joint statement Friday night condemning the return of Syrian troops to Beirut as "illegal and infringing on Lebanon's sovereignty."

Boy George arrested

LONDON — Pop singer Boy George was arrested Saturday for questioning about alleged drug offenses, police said.

A Scotland Yard spokeswoman, who under police regulations spoke on condition of anonymity, declined to say whether he would be charged.

The 25-year-old singer, whose record company said he was undergoing treatment for heroin addiction, was examined by a police surgeon and declared fit to be questioned, a Scotland Yard statement said.

It said he was picked up by drug squad officers in Essex, the county east of London.

"He was arrested this morning at 10:30 a.m.," the Scotland Yard spokeswoman said.

Floods hit Bangladesh

DHAKA, Bangladesh — Floodwaters have left more than 30,000 people homeless in the last two weeks as the swollen Jamuna River carried off entire villages in northwestern Manikganj district, officials said Saturday.

District officials, reached by telephone, said the Jamuna, a major Bangladesh river, destroyed 13 villages, housing mostly farmers.

The officials said most of the homeless were sheltered in school buildings near Manikganj town, 40 miles from Dhaka, the capital.

Opinion

Salvation Army building timely

We applaud those workers and contributors whose efforts raised $840,000 for the Salvation Army's Big Spring chapter expansion and construction program.

Those efforts were transferred into action Friday when the Salvation Army's advisory board selected a contractor for the construction of its new building at Fifth and San Antonio streets — on property donated by the Dora Roberts Foundation.

Work on the 8,000-square-foot structure is scheduled to begin next month.

The selected bid, at $392,000, came in at about $16,000 below the architect's estimate.

With the remainder of the money, the Army plans to renovate its old building on Ayford Street and its thrift store on Third Street. In addition, chapter vice chairman G.C. Broughton reported an $80,000 maintenance endowment fund will be established.

Capt. Carrol Braun and Broughton reported the new building will house administrative and disaster services, expanded programs for youth and women, plus overnight accommodations for local residents suffering from tragedies and domestic troubles. In addition, it will house the holiday meals and toys programs.

Capt. Braun reported that the old building, when renovated, basically will be used to serve transients.

The expansion program is coming at a time when it is needed most — when the slumps in the oil and agricultural economies have taken a heavy toll in West Texas.

Probably all residents are well acquainted with the Salvation Army's international reputation for helping those in distress — particularly after help was refused by other agencies.

Expansion of the Army's local programs is welcome and area residents can be proud that they supported an operation that returns so much to the community and those in need.

Gramm halts fishing for press conference

By JIM CRAIG

Harte-Hanks Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — It was 5 a.m. last Monday in Alaska and Sen. Phil Gramm's alarm was rousing him out of bed on the first day of his week-long fishing vacation.

The plan of action had been established for days.

He would call Washington at 6 a.m. Alaska time (10 a.m. Eastern time) to learn if the Supreme Court had done what ABC-TV news said weeks earlier it would do: declare unconstitutional a key part of the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit reduction law.

Gramm had to call Washington because his aides couldn't call him. He was tucked away in the backwoods of Alaska.

The senator, trying to squeeze in some fishing with his two sons and wife, Wendy, in the cool breezes of Alaska while Washington sizzled in the hottest July in decades, couldn't be reached easily by phone.

The Waterfall Resort in the southern reaches of Alaska has only one phone. That phone is at the lodge's front desk and is manned beginning at 9 a.m. — 1 p.m. in Washington.

Should the justices rule on Gramm-Rudman-Hollings, the Texas Republican needed to know so he could get issue his response and have a press conference.

A press conference? In a remote area of Alaska?

There is a joke now worn thin in Washington that brings guffaws from Gramm's critics, chuckles from his friends and even forces a smile on his face. Perhaps it's appropriate to recall the line here: "The most dangerous place in Washington is between Phil Gramm and a television camera."

Back to Alaska.

Gramm had prepared for this day even though he wasn't sure if the justices would issue the opinion. He had his press secretary, vacationing in Texas, ready with a statement for a week. Larry Neal, the press aide, had returned to Washington just to issue the prepared statement, should it be needed.

On Monday, the senator made his 6 a.m. call from the fishing lodge and learned that, indeed, the Supreme Court had ruled as expected.

The statement was released by his Washington office. It told of plans to introduce Gramm-Rudman-Hollings II, a bill to reaffirm support for the original deficit reduction law, making one change required by the Supreme Court ruling.

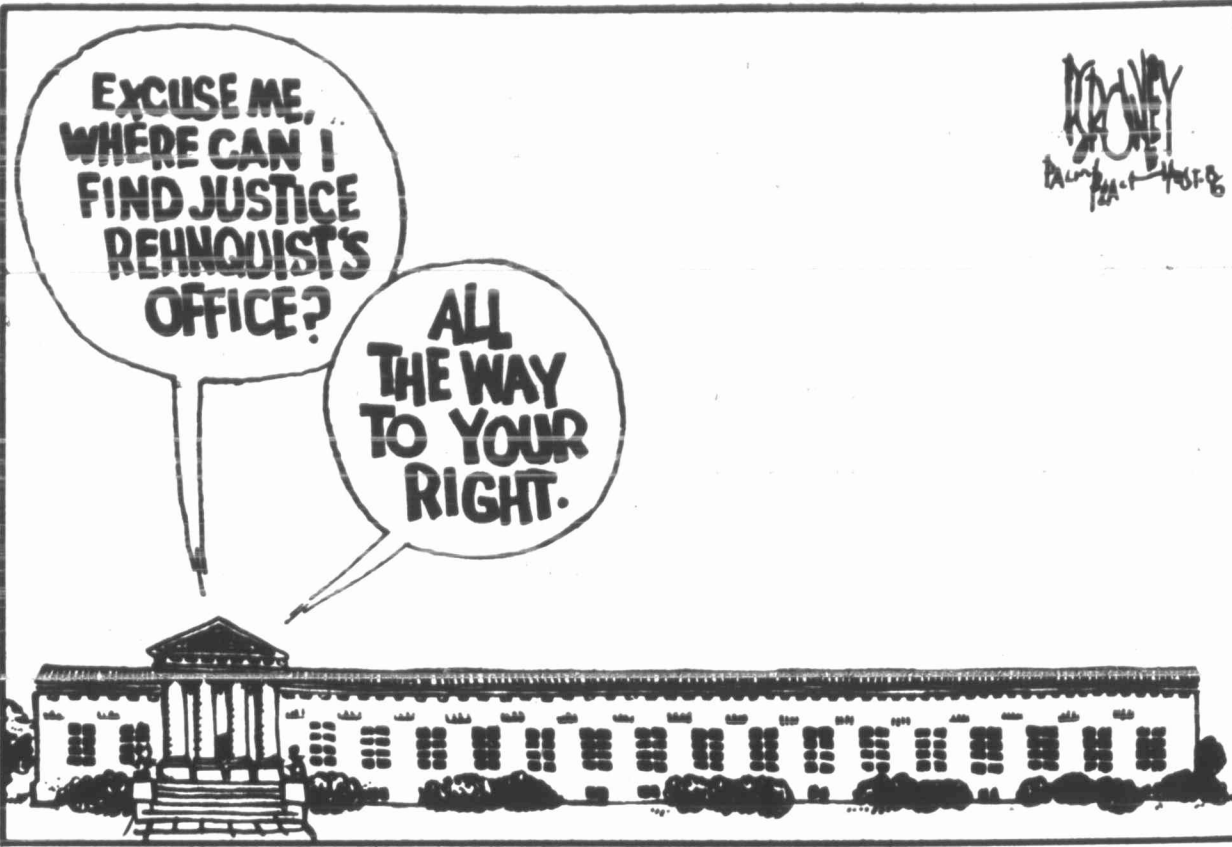

The high court ruled that the automatic budget-cutting mechanism violated the separation of powers provision of the Constitution. The comptroller general, empowered to trigger automatic cuts, was subservient to Congress, the court found.

Gramm, in his statement, said he plans to introduce a bill to make the comptroller independent, therefore eliminating the problem cited by the court. As the statement was being issued in Washington, Gramm was leaving his isolated fishing resort in search of television cameras.

Gramm flew to Seattle, where reporters were waiting for a press conference. The senator traveled 25 minutes in a seaplane from the fishing resort to Ketchikan, Alaska, where he took a commercial airliner to Seattle.

There, he had his press conference. (Co-authors of the bill, Sens. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., and Ernest Hollings, D-S.C. issued statements to the press in other locations.)

After the press conference in Seattle, Gramm boarded another commercial airliner for Ketchikan where he once again took the 25-minute ride on the seaplane back to his fishing vacation, far from the Washington hoopla politicians like to escape during congressional recesses.

Improving local coverage requires help of readers

By DARRELL BERKHEIMER
Managing Editor

We who work at the Herald are interested in doing a better job of reporting local news items. But we can't without the help of our readers.

Many people think the Herald has a half-dozen or more reporters and photographers available to send out whenever we're called.

That just isn't true. We have only four who do reporting full time, and one full-time photographer. But one of those reporters is assigned half time to sports.

Two other staff members do some reporting and writing — our sports editor and lifestyle editor. But they also have other duties such as editing, headline writing and page layout.

In addition, our news room produces a newspaper seven days a week. That requires two extra shifts — Friday and Saturday nights. And it requires a juggling of staff members, leaving the news room one or two people short on certain days.

In scheduling, we place a high importance on covering governmental agencies that spend tax dollars. We believe the public trusts news media with an obligation to keep citizens informed on how those tax dollars are spent.

That means we make a point to cover county commissioners and check frequently on what's happening in the various county offices. The same is true with attending city council meetings and checking with city offices.

Just as important is attending school board and Howard College board meetings — to keep readers informed on those taxing units.

And we attend certain court trials because we believe the public wants to be assured that no one is abusing the rights of either the victims or the suspects.

Mailbag

Ambulance issues raised

To the editor:
As a former employee of Lee Ambulance Service in Big Spring, I feel I need to voice my thoughts and feeling about the coming decision city and county officials will make in the next few months concerning the contract for ambulance service.

Why is there a need to change the system when it seems that Lee is providing the best possible service it can? After all, how many cities do you know of that have a full staff of paramedics on each shift?

How many people really know what a paramedic is capable of doing?

Since I have been associated with Emergency Medical Services, starting in 1979, the ambulance service has made several changes and those changes have really made the difference in life-saving efforts.

It has appeared to me that the news media, along with a few certain individuals, always seem to remember the times when things didn't go just right, but never take the time to say thanks for a job well done or for just being there when we needed you the most.

I often wonder how many of the city councilmen or county commissioners could answer a call to a drowning and work very hard to try and revive the young life that lies breathless and have a sheriff's deputy drive for you 20 miles to the hospital only to gain a few tears because all efforts failed. Then have to face the parents when they

Berky's babblings

In addition, we attend various community meetings called on special subjects, such as a downtown revitalization meeting called by the Chamber of Commerce.

With all those events to cover and seven work shifts each week, how thin do you think we can spread our four reporters?

It really means that rarely can we attend a club or organizational event unless something of broad community interest is scheduled.

It means that rarely can we accompany a local group on a trip to Austin or some other place. Because who's going to do the work that person leaves behind?

It also means that seldom can we answer a phone call and, on the spur of the moment, rush out to something.

Usually our reporters' time is well-scheduled or committed in advance. And we believe it should be a fairly major tragedy or catastrophe before we disappoint others by failing to keep our commitments.

In the sports department, it's quite difficult for one full-time and one half-time person to attend many events. Unfortunately, none of us has been able to master the trick of being in two places at one time.

Our one full-time photographer has the same problem.

These are the reasons we need the help of our readers.

If you think we did a poor job of covering softball and Little League action this season, it's because we must rely on league officials, coaches or other team members to get the information to us. When they fail, we fail.

The same is true for the golf and tennis tournaments, and the sports in other seasons.

It's the same for other activities as well, including awards, announcements, meeting actions and dates. If they're not sent in or brought to us — in advance when necessary — we can't get them into the paper.

And when those items are brought in, the information should be correct and clear with the right spellings. None of us likes to see our names misspelled or the information jumbled.

We want to publish the items, but we want to publish them correctly. We admit, of course, that we make plenty of mistakes on our own. Those are bad enough without having to take criticism for the mistakes of others. Unfortunately, the number of perfect people available is quite limited.

Even though we expect some errors, that doesn't mean we'll stop striving to eliminate those errors. That battle will continue.

But perhaps now you have a better understanding of the problems your newspaper faces. And we hope they explain why we can do a better job only when our readers give us lots of help.

Coaches will tell you that we all get better when we make an extra effort. We want to make that extra effort. Will you help us?

Berkheimer is managing editor of the Herald.

Procedure told in all-star picks

To the editor:
This letter is an open response to an anonymous letter I received in the mail.

There seems to be a misunderstanding of how the United Girls' Softball Association selects the all-star team. The all-star manager and coaches do not alone select the all-stars.

Each manager and head coach nominate four girls from the regular season teams. If they don't feel they have four that are capable and eligible to be an all-star, they can nominate a girl from another team.

In Division II, 28 names were submitted. Then each manager and each coach voted for the 12 girls they feel would make the best all-star team. The 12 girls that receive the most votes became the all-stars.

A particular girl's ability was questioned in this letter. This girl was nominated by a coach of a team for which she did not play on. This proves that years of experience, or who you know does not win over ability. There is a girl from all seven teams represented on the division all-star team.

When you have approximately 80 players to narrow to 12, it's very hard. Just ask the 14 managers and coaches from Division II.

Lamm's view of Hispanics called wrong

Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm is emerging as the leading proponent of stricter immigration controls. He's right in wondering about immigration's impact.

But discerning Texans should consider the ramifications on the state if Lamm's thinking dominates in the policy debate over issues concerning the future of our region.

Because Lamm sounds so logical, his perceptions pose more danger to the Southwest than those of North Carolina Sen. Jesse Helms. Helms' irresponsible statements of the last few weeks have been criticized by the Reagan White House, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and just about anyone who knows anything about the serious challenges the Southwest faces.

Lamm is a different matter. Because his beliefs spring from legitimate concerns about the environment and ecology of western states, Lamm's thinking appears more reasonable than Helms' hysteria.

But Lamm persists in arguing that immigrants pose a threat to the stability of the U.S.

Hispanics, in particular, he believes, comprise a danger to the country's southwestern frontier. In raising the spectre of a separate Hispanic identity resulting from immigration, he resurrects long-held fears in Texas that Hispanics are not becoming a part of U.S. society.

Writing in the New York Times last week, Lamm states flatly that the "warning signs of nonassimilation are increasing and ominous." He cites the separatist experiences of other countries — such as Canada and Belgium — as precursors for the Southwest.

But Lamm fails to understand that a peculiar social dynamo is at work here, converting and assimilating new immigrants. It's a powerful force — the same force that transformed the ethnics of earlier U.S. periods into what we call Americans today.

His use of Canada and separatist Quebec as warning signals do not apply. French Canadians joined the separatist movement as members of a class already holding positions of power and affluence and already enjoying equal social standing.

That's not so in the Southwest. To succeed, Hispanics must learn English. In so doing, they — unavoidably — learn U.S. culture.

This simple process has been repeated in the Southwest for many years, succeeding in areas where Mexican-Americans have dominated for decades. But English, not Spanish, is the language of the courthouse.

In counties where Hispanics recently have become the majority population — as many as 20 counties in Texas, with another 30 on the verge of becoming so — Hispanics are following the mainstream assimilation process.

On the issue of immigration itself, Lamm compounds his misunderstanding of Hispanics by asserting that "Hispanic political leaders" are out of step with the Hispanic community, which, he said, favors stricter immigration controls.

Lamm may be unaware that all 13 Hispanic members of Congress have stood up unanimously against the Simpson immigration bill each time it reached the floor of the House during the last four years. If these congressmen — each elected from districts with majority Hispanic populations — don't represent the Hispanic community, who does?

A New York Times/CBS News Poll released last week confirmed that Hispanics, in fact, do not favor stricter immigration controls. Sixty-one percent of Hispanics polled in the national survey believes current levels of immigration should be maintained or even increased.

Hispanics do not see the threat in immigration that worries Lamm. His fear-mongering, in fact, serves to trigger the very self-identification among Hispanics he fears.

'Cinderella' play to be staged here

A musical version of the children's classic, "Cinderella" will be presented in Big Spring Aug. 25.

It is sponsored by the Howard County Association for Retarded Citizens and Teen Aid to Retarded Citizens.

The performance is scheduled for 7 p.m. at the Big Spring High School auditorium. Tickets, which go on sale Monday, are $4 for adults and $3 for children age 12 and under. The show lasts 1 1/2 hours.

"Cinderella" is performed by World of Fantasy acting troupe, which is on its 20th annual tour of the U.S. and Canada, according to a news release.

The play will feature sparkling costumes, illusions and special effects. A huge pumpkin expands to become Cinderella's coach, and the heroine's rags turn magically into a ball gown in full audience view.

The traditional script has been altered to include several Disney-like characters, in addition to Cinderella, the handsome prince, the mean stepmother and ugly stepisters.

The play is produced by Phillip Morris, head of Morris Costume Co. of Charlotte, N.C. He has produced special effects and costumes for Opryland, the Six Flags parks, Ringling Bros. & Barnum & Bailey Circus and several Shrine circuses.

White racists, foes convene in Utah

HAYDEN LAKE, Idaho (AP) — White supremacists at the Aryan Nations Congress were urged Saturday to remember those who died for their cause, while Gov. John Evans, joining human rights advocates 10 miles away, denounced racism and prejudice.

About 150 white supremacists met at a wooded, 20-acre compound owned by the Church of Jesus Christ Christian-Aryan Nations in this town 10 miles north of Coeur d'Alene.

Meanwhile, Evans and others gathered in Coeur d'Alene, for a "Good Neighbors Day." Nearly 200 communities sent resolutions in support of that session, and governors of Montana, Washington and Oregon sent statements asking citizens to reject hate groups and racism.

"We want everyone to know that the Aryan Nations and other such hate groups do not represent nor do they speak for the people of Idaho," Evans told the racially mixed crowd.

The white supremacists' gathering was their first in the Northwest since an FBI investigation led to last December's racketeering convictions of 10 members of The Order, a militant, right-wing group blamed for two murders, more than $4 million in robberies, counterfeiting and other crimes.

Many Order members met through the Aryan Nations and its leader, the Rev. Richard Butler.

The 1985 congress was canceled because of The Order indictments and what Butler said were FBI threats against the Aryans.

The Order was smashed when its founder, Robert Mathews, died during a Dec. 8, 1984, standoff with FBI agents. Mathews was killed when a flare ignited his waterfront hideout on Whidbey Island, north of Seattle.

Many at the Aryan Nations meeting were dressed in combat fatigues. Pins bearing swastikas, crosses, and U.S. flags were popular, and one delegate wore a scarf patterned with a Confederate flag.

Guards patrolled the grounds with semi-automatic weapons they said were similar to M-16s.

State's super rich facing tough times

DALLAS (AP) — It was one of those typically Texas millionaire moments, when the rich once again proved publicly they are different from the rest of us.

Asked how much he was worth, Nelson Bunker Hunt told a congressional committee in 1980 he didn't know — but he did know "that people who know how much they are worth generally aren't worth very much."

Six years later, Hunt may have a pretty good idea how much he is worth, which is to say not nearly as much. Today, he and his billionaire brothers appear well on their way to mere millionaire status.

The plunge in petroleum prices, a series of soured investments and a $1.6 billion silver market bungle have placed one of the nation's legendary fortunes in danger, according to friends, bankers and business associates.

"I think it's (the losses) got to be a new record," said a prominent Dallas businessman and a friend of the Hunts, who asked not to be identified. "No one else had that much to lose."

Recent court filings and announcements have also made it clear the Hunts are not alone in their economic doldrums. The downturns in oil, commodities, real estate and other investments of the super-rich have battered many Texas fortunes, experts said.

Clint Murchison Jr., head of a $350 million empire that included far-flung real estate endeavors and the Dallas Cowboys professional football team, has a net worth of no more than $3 million after bankruptcy court reorganization.

Fort Worth industrialist T. Cullen Davis has watched eight banks force companies he and his brother control into bankruptcy reorganization.

Eddie Chiles, who made his fortune in the oil field service business and his name in politically conservative radio messages, recently had to auction equipment to raise cash.

And John Connally, the three-time governor and former Treasury Secretary who survived an assassin's bullet the day President John F. Kennedy was slain, admits he's fighting for his financial life because of soured real estate gambles.

"It's showing up in a lot of other people, too, but you just don't read about them," said Frank Crossen, chairman of Centex Corp. and a longtime Murchison friend. "It's true for a lot of people all the way down to the guy who had only $500,000."

While each case has its quirks, financial experts and business observers say some common threads bind the millionaires in their tumble.

Fearing inflation would run rampant for years, many eschewed securities and other paper investments — real estate, oil, farm land and commodities such as silver and coal.

"In early 1979, I became convinced that the economy of the United States was in a weakening condition. This reinforced my belief that investment in precious metals was wise ... because of rampant inflation," W. Herbert Hunt told a congressional committee looking into the 1980 silver fiasco.

Throughout Texas tycoon circles, that strategy was common, local businessmen said.

From 1977 to 1980, "everyone was buying tangible assets as fast as they could," said the Hunts' friend. "I got a call almost every day from someone wanting to sell me sugar or gold, or something like that."

When inflation turned to deflation, interest rates fell, and agriculture and petroleum prices dropped, the value of those investments fell, too.

Exams set for H-C students

Howard College has begun an assessment and placement program to assist students in achieving their educational goals with the least frustration.

All students entering college for the first time, or students planning to register for English or math, will be given placement exams in reading, English and math.

Students will be advised of which courses should give them an opportunity for success, based on the results of the exams.

The exams will be held in the Guidance and Counseling Office located in the Administration Building at the college. Test dates and times are July 28, 2 to 5 p.m.; July 30, 6 to 9 p.m.; Aug. 11, 2 to 5 p.m.; and Aug. 13, 6 to 9 p.m.

No fee is charged for the exams. For more information, call the guidance and counseling office at 267-6311, Ext. 271.

By The Associated Press
SAN FRANCISCO — Rocker JERRY GARCIA, lead guitarist for the Grateful Dead, was hospitalized but recovering Saturday from a diabetic coma caused by an infection which began in an abscessed tooth, a band spokesman said.

GARCIA, 43, was in Marin General Hospital, about 20 miles north of San Francisco.

"Jerry Garcia is improving and has stabilized. He's awake and alert and is being treated for diabetes," said Marin General spokeswoman Sandra Currie. She did not know how long he would be hospitalized.

Band spokesman Dennis McNally said GARCIA lapsed into a diabetic coma on Thursday.

"He's really sick, but he'll be OK," McNally said.

McNally and concert promoter Bill Graham released a one-sentence statement on Friday afternoon which said: "Jerry Garcia is in the hospital receiving treatment for a sudden onset of diabetes and a general systemic infection as a result of an abscessed tooth and exhaustion following a road tour."

The band has been playing together since 1965, and has thousands of devoted fans, known as Dead Heads. Two concerts had to be rescheduled.

MILWAUKEE — Actor ERNEST BORGNINE says he feels like a child again when he clowns around in the Great Circus Parade here.

Sunday will mark BORGNINE's fifth appearance as a clown in the annual march of animals, bands and antique circus wagons.

"I think it's one of the great wonders of the world," BORGNINE, 68, said Friday. "We're all children at heart. Milwaukee has this wonderful parade where everybody can (go) back in their childhood. It's a bit of Americana that makes it all worthwhile."

He first appeared in the parade in 1970 and said the only time he had been a clown elsewhere was as a teen-ager in a Boy Scout circus in New Haven, Conn.

"There's no set thing for me," BORGNINE said. "I just walk all over, and I have a ball."

PRINCESS MARGARET

VANCOUVER, British Columbia — Expo 86 may be the place to be for British bigwigs. Prime Minister younger sister of QUEEN ELIZABETH, toured the waterfront pavilion for 20 minutes Friday, escorted by a pair of Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Two dozen rock 'n' roll and country music performers were on tap Saturday at the 12th straight Charlie Daniels Band's Volunteer Jam concert, but their identities were a surprise.

Besides the five-piece CHARLIE DANIELS BAND, performers were not announced in advance, but the ALLMAN BROTHERS BAND of Macon, Ga., said in June that they would reunite at the concert. They haven't played together for about 10 years.

DANIELS, a fiddler-guitarist, was to host the concert. His band's hits include "The Devil Went Down to Georgia," "Long-Haired Country Boy" and "The South's Gonna Do It Again."

Performers donated their time, with DANIELS paying their expenses. Any proceeds were earmarked for United Cerebral Palsy.

One hour of the 10-hour concert was to be broadcast by the Voice of America to a potential audience of 120 million around the world.

ABC Entertainment Radio planned to tape the concert for a 90-minute special to be aired later this year and portions of the show were to be taped by The Nashville Network for a 60-minute special in October.

MARGARET THATCHER

MARGARET THATCHER was scheduled to be the guest of honor at the British national day ceremony at Expo 86 Saturday, a day after PRINCESS MARGARET visited the world's fair.

The 60-year-old prime minister, accompanied by her husband Denis, arrived here Friday and planned to visit Expo's Canada pavilion Saturday.

Father says daughter's killer asked him for forgiveness

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The father of a young girl slain 10 years ago in the mansion of industrialist Cullen Davis said last week that Davis recently asked his forgiveness "for what I did." Davis denies making such a request.

"Cullen did come to me and ask me to forgive him," Jack Wilborn told The Associated Press.

Through an attorney, Davis acknowledged the meeting with Wilborn but said he did not ask forgiveness for the slaying, nor did he admit any role in it.

The Davis case dates back to a summer night in 1976 when a "man in black" invaded the isolated hilltop Davis mansion and gunned down four people, killing two, including 12-year-old Andrea Wilborn.

Davis, then the richest U.S. citizen to be tried for murder, was acquitted in the child's death and was not brought to trial for the other shootings. He did not testify at the murder trial but asserted his innocence outside the courtroom.

Describing his exchange this spring with Davis, Wilborn said:

"He did not say, 'I want you to forgive me for murdering Andrea.' His words were: 'Could you forgive me for what I did?'"

Wilborn, a born-again Christian, said he replied: "Cullen, I forgave you a long time ago."

Authorities told the AP the Wilborn-Davis exchange has no significance legally as far as criminal charges are concerned.

"Cullen could stand up on the pulpit and admit the whole thing and there wouldn't be a damn thing we could do about it," said Tarrant County District Attorney Tim Curry, whose office prosecuted Davis.

Curry said that there is no statute of limitations on capital murder, but the state's "Speedy Trial Act" would preclude prosecution at this late date.

There are no criminal charges pending against Davis but several civil suits by Wilborn and others against the millionaire remain active.

Asked for what Davis sought forgiveness, Wilborn said, "The only thought I had was Andrea's death. There was no question about what he was talking about."

Wilborn's wife Betty, Andrea's stepmother, told the AP that Davis grabbed and hugged her and said, "Betty, I want you to know how sorry I am for all the pain I've caused you. Can you ever forgive me for what I've done?"

The Wilborns said the emotional confrontation occurred at the conclusion of a Sunday night, interdenominational church service in Dallas. The three wept openly, the AP was told.

"I had to forgive him to have any peace," said Wilborn, a Fort Worth car dealer. "It probably was the most difficult thing I ever did in my life. You know how much that little girl meant to me.

"I think of her constantly."

Wilborn, who once said he considered killing Davis, asserted that there is "nothing in the world that will destroy a person more than hate, and I had a lot of it."

In researching a story on the 10th anniversary of the mansion shootings, the AP heard reports that Davis met Wilborn this year in church and asked forgiveness. The AP obtained a first person account from Wilborn, who first declined comment before seeking legal advice.

Cotton growers: save bucks and beneficials.

TEST RESULTS ARE IN:

In an overwhelming majority of tests conducted in the Cotton Belt, in which Dipel biological insecticide was applied before conventional insecticides became necessary, increased yields and greater profits resulted.*

In 5 of the Texas tests fields were sprayed twice and adjacent check fields remained untreated until it became necessary to go to a conventional schedule. Dipel treated fields yielded more cotton and greater profits than the fields that received only conventional treatment.

It makes sense because low cost Dipel gets to early cotton worms without harming helpful beneficials. Thus, applications of harsher chemicals can be delayed and reduced.

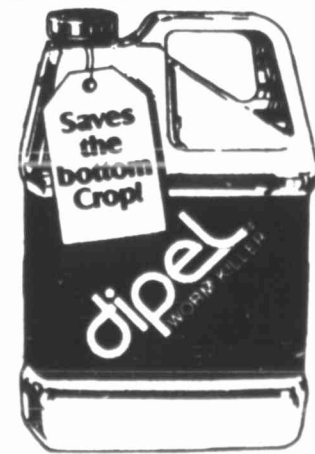

Dipel is a natural biological worm killer. One bite of treated foliage and worms stop feeding almost immediately and then die within a few days. Dipel has not shown worm resistance build-up, won't affect boll maturity, and is nonphytotoxic to cotton foliage. It's easy to use. In addition, Dipel has not shown harmful effects on man and his environment.

Dipel 4L and Cotton Seed Oil. The only microbial cotton insecticide that is compatible with cotton seed oil. Mix one pint Dipel 4L to one pint cotton seed oil and apply at one quart per acre total volume of spray.

*Rates, numbers of applications and methods of application varied. A grower's actual results may vary, depending on use and conditions.

One test in Rio Grande Valley and two in the Blacklands used Dipel alone at 1/2 lb. per acre. In a Rolling Plains test, applications of 1/2 lb. Dipel and 1/2 lb. chlordimeform per acre were made while 1/2 lb. of Dipel combined with 1/2 lb. chlordimeform per acre was applied in the Trans Pecos test. Aerial application was used for all tests except in the Rio Grande Valley.

Town hails "Animal" nab

GILMER, Texas (AP) — After the quiet capture early Saturday morning of a jail escapee called "Animal," crowds of cheering citizens Saturday packed the lawns of the Upshur County Courthouse to salute a woman the escapee had held hostage during his two-day flight.

The celebration had been planned in honor of the safe return of Rosalie Williams, a deputy sheriff who was taken hostage by Jerry Walter McFadden, a murder suspect and three-time convicted rapist, when he broke out of jail Wednesday night.

Mrs. Williams escaped unharmed from McFadden Thursday night.

McFadden, 38, who was armed with a .38-caliber revolver, surrendered quietly Friday night when police found him in a vacant house in the community of Big Sandy near here.

He was caught not far from the spot where Mrs. Williams escaped the night before after spending 16 hours captive in a boxcar with the fugitive.

Six convicted in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Six disabled people were sentenced to probated jail terms after a jury convicted one of them of using his wheelchair to block a bus during a downtown protest in February.

Robert Conrad of Denver was convicted of obstructing a passageway after jurors in Harris County Court-at-Law Judge Sherman Ross' court deliberated three hours Friday. He was sentenced to 30 days probation and assessed a $250 fine, which also is probated.

After Conrad was convicted, five other members of his group,

American Disabled for Accessible Public Transportation, entered no contest pleas to the same charge.

The group members said the purpose of their protest Feb. 12 was to call attention to the fact that wheelchair-bound people cannot ride regular Metropolitan Transit Authority buses.

Instead of equipping buses with wheelchair lifts, the city offers a separate system of vans. But the protesters complained that they must arrange for the vans 24 hours in advance and cannot always count on the system.

Most pass teaching exam

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Education Saturday set passing scores that mean about 80 percent of the people who took the state's first test for new teachers passed it.

Passing rates among minorities were considerably lower than those for whites.

The first Examination for Certification of Educators in Texas — EXCET — was administered May 24 to college graduates who want to teach. To get teaching licenses for the fall, graduates must pass the two-part exam.

The test includes a section on teaching methods and a section on the subject area to be taught. Thirty-four different subject tests were given, and the passing scores varied.

On most of the tests, the passing rate was above 80 percent.

The passing score for the comprehensive elementary school teacher exam was set Saturday at 67.5 percent. Eighty-seven percent of the 2,868 people who took that test passed it.

But only 52 percent of the blacks, and 62 percent of the Hispanics passed — compared to 94 percent of the whites, according to Texas Education Agency statistics.

Passing rates for blacks and Hispanics were lower than that for whites on almost every subject exam.

Emmett Conrad of Dallas, one of two blacks on the board, said the exam is an "unproven test."

"We are walking through uncharted jungles," he said Saturday.

He pushed for lower passing standards, complaining the exams included some skills not taught in school. But the board voted 10-3 to approve the passing scores.

More than 6,000 people took the tests. Among subject exams taken by at least 50 people, passing rates varied from a low of 68 percent in composite science to a high of 96 percent in a vocational education exam.

Here are some of the passing rates:

- Elementary school, 87 percent;
- English, 90 percent; math, 93 percent;
- life science, 89 percent;
- chemistry, 78 percent; physics 93 percent;
- biology, 73 percent; social studies, 73 percent; government, 83 percent;
- geography, 53 percent;
- economics, 48 percent; history, 74 percent;
- home economics, 95 percent;
- special education, 87 percent;
- bilingual education, 80 percent;
- kindergarten, 91 percent;
- and special education, 87 percent.

State board kills graduation plan

AUSTIN (AP) — By a one-vote margin, the State Board of Education Saturday killed a plan to let districts award "certificates of completion" to students who pass their courses but flunk the high school graduation exam.

Proponents said the certificate would reduce the drop-out rate and be a reward for slow learners who work hard but could not pass the test.

Opponents said school districts would use the certificate as a too-low goal for minority students.

A 7-6 vote shot down the plan that would have allowed school districts to hand out certificates of completion for 1987 and 1988 graduates who fail the state-level Texas Educational Assessment of Minimum Skills.

The 1984 Texas school reform act barred diplomas to students who fail that test, even if they have all credits needed for graduation. Lawmakers rejected proposals similar to the certificate of completion for students who fail the TEAMS test.

Jack Strong of Longview, chairman of a board committee that recommended the certificate plan, said the option is fair because it would mean a student had met requirements that were in place when the student began high school.

But board member Mary Helen Berlanga of Corpus Christi said, "This is opening up an area for the masses of students to graduate and not receive diplomas. The masses will be minority students."

"This is nothing more than consolation to administrators who feel compelled to give youngsters something after 12 years and some consolation to parents who want to see their children walk across the stage," she said.

Board member Rebecca Canning of Waco agreed with Ms. Berlanga that some districts might use the certificate as a tool to push minority students through school. Some districts, she said, are "looking for a fast way to write kids off."

But board member Geraldine Miller of Dallas said the certificate would be an important accomplishment for "slow learners" who cannot pass the exit test.

There's no place like home

Big Spring pair lived and learned in Soviet Union

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

For most of us this year, the Fourth of July was a chance to forget about work for a day and enjoy the sunshine and fireworks.

We probably spent considerably more time appreciating the joys of a three day weekend than we did quietly pondering the meaning of our country's independence.

But for Big Spring gymnast Will Rutherford and his coach Ken Werner, the certain American peculiarities that we all take for granted — such as personal liberty, freedom of the press, and yes, even the right to eat a good pizza — meant a little more on that day.

On the Fourth of July, the twelve year-old Rutherford and his coach returned to Big Spring from the mythical, cold and faraway land of the Soviet Union.

Will and Ken left for Moscow June 18 to participate in the first ever joint Russian-American gymnastics training camp. As a member of the American National Junior Elite team, Will was one of 60 American gymnasts — of which only four were boys — selected to make the trip. So few boys went to Moscow because the team was chosen on Russian standards.

"They have 500, we have four," says Ken, laughing at the Russians' dominance.

Coach and pupil returned with stacks of photographs and many stories and anecdotes about the Russian gymnasts, people, and KGB agents. They also learned that to be competitive with the Russians, if it's possible, will take a lot of hard work and catching up.

"They work out all day, six hours a day, six days a week. We don't. That's why they're so good," Will explains.

And how good are they? "Their ten year olds are doing what our 16 year olds are doing," Ken says, putting it into perspective.

Will also points to a different attitude as one of the reasons for their success.

"They (the coaches) wouldn't let them jump around and laugh and joke. They could pat each other on the back and say 'good' and that was all. I went over and played with them when the coach was gone, but when the coach came back, they shut up."

Werner noticed one particularly disturbing incident.

"I saw a little boy — nine or ten — doing forward giants. The first time he was on the high bar, he swung down to soon, and on his way down, the coach just slapped him down and knocked him off the bars. All day long the coach hit the kid every time he saw him, for that one mistake. I never saw that coach smile in two weeks." Ken says.

Ken says that the boy didn't cry when the coach slapped him because he was used to being knocked about. Both Ken and Will added that not all the coaches were so gruff.

Gymnast and coach began their Russian days with a 7:30 breakfast that didn't have the two Americans in the mood to reminisce. The usual fair was cheese and hard chewy bread, with a glass of warm, sour milk to wash it down. For variety, the American visitors were occasionally treated to oatmeal.

After chow, Will went to the gym and Ken to the auditorium for lectures.

Though Will says he learned a lot technically, he says most of his work was on conditioning and stretching. One Russian friend could do 40 pushups from the handstand position. Another exercise Will was exposed to sounds at least as difficult.

"We had to climb up the rope and keep our legs straight up. On the way down, we had to keep our legs straight and use one arm. You were finished, and the next thirty seconds you were going down again," Will says, and adds, "I got real sore."

At noon, Will and Ken ate with the group, then returned to workouts until 5:30. Will usually went sightseeing with the group at night while Ken stayed behind.

"I rewrote my notes and conced," he says. One of the highlights for both was the friendships they made with the Russian gymnasts. Will has several pictures of he and Ken with Dimitri Bolizerchev, the world champion, and Micha (his last name was too difficult for them to remember), the top vaulter in the world.

"I got to be best friends with Micha," Will says.

On several occasions Will and Ken snuck three Russian national team members past the 24 KGB guards at the hotel for some partying. According to Will and Ken, they partied deep into the night

Big Spring gymnast Will Rutherford gets some instruction and a little balance from a member of the Soviet Union's National Gymnastics Team during Rutherford's recent trip to Russia.

Coach Ken Werner, far left, and Will Rutherford, third from left, are flanked by two Russian gymnasts in the Americans' Moscow hotel room. Rutherford says the Russians weren't supposed to be there, and that they had to sneak past KGB agents.

Doing it the Larry King way

To read a Larry King column is to be sprayed with a barrage of opinions, facts and rumors. In the same paragraph, Larry's likely to tell you who's going to win the World Series, where the next pro football franchise will be, and what he had for dinner.

Much of it is nonsense, but his column makes for enjoyable reading because (1) King writes as if he's talking to you from across the table and won't shut up; and (2) he's talking sports rather than politics, so his ramblings are easy to digest.

His charm is his obvious love of sports. Anyone with that many opinions must have his head in a ballpark and his nose to the tube. In other words, he must be a pretty good guy.

The flipside on a King column is that little of what is read is remembered. He chats on about so many wildly various subjects that ten minutes after reading the column you can't recall what was said.

But King looks like he's having fun. And because nothing jumped out at me this week, and because I'm in the mood to ramble, here's my version of a Larry King column.

I've heard complaints, always heard this time of year, that the fans shouldn't be allowed to vote on the All-Stars. Fact: Since 1970, the fans have picked only three catchers, Gary Carter, Johnny Bench and Ted Simmons; Dale Murphy and George Brett, both having off years, were chosen this year; Jose Canesco and Hubie Brooks, having great years, were not.

Fact: ultra-popular Pete Rose and Reggie Jackson weren't elected by the fans and shouldn't have been; Wally Joiner and Tony Gwynn, deservedly, were; the all-star managers pick the reserves, and also choose the pitchers.

Conclusion: let the fans continue. They make mistakes, but they generally reward the best players. And having the fans choose is more fun than having the press, managers or players choose.

The funniest sportscaster in the business with the funniest sports show is Marv Albert on NBC's "This Week in Baseball" that precedes the Saturday "Game of the Week". Nothing is sacred to the irreverent Albert, and it's just a shame his show lasts but 20 minutes.

Several weeks ago, after talking baseball with Dodger manager Tommy Lasorda and just before saying goodbye to him, Albert asked Lasorda who he thought would win that night's Calgary-Edmonton game. Lasorda stammered, and didn't appear to have ever heard of Calgary or Edmonton, much less to be in a position to offer a prediction. The genuine look of confusion on Lasorda's face was priceless. Albert looked mischievously at the camera and said, "Nevermind Tommy."

Albert is one of the best. As for the worst, (please) take Bill McAttee, Bud Collins, the whole blown dried crew at Turner's SuperStation, and every oh-so-British golf announcer.

The above collection belongs in the Sportscasters Hall of Shame. When will the bigwigs realize that pretty boys, sentimentalist and aspiring poets only ruin the fun?

Joe Namath was none of the above, but he was graciously yanked by ABC. Joe, we love your smile, but your voice of God delivery was too much. Why did you have to ask us to take you seriously?

NFL players should be tested for drugs. Yes, testing probably is unconstitutional. But so is the NFL draft. Can you imagine coming out of high school or college and being told that you either work in Green Bay, Wisconsin or you don't work at all?

But, it's now apparant, many pro athletes are naughty boys. They have brought testing on themselves, though it remains difficult to defend from a legal standpoint. But the fact is, pro sports is a whole different world with entirely different legal guidelines than the world you and I live in. This may be changing, due to the...

NFL-USFL trial. If the USFL wins, the NFL will be financially strapped and there may indeed be two leagues. For the fans, this is bad news.

Neither of the last four Heisman trophy winners is in the NFL, though one, Bo Jackson, chose baseball. Also Jim Kelly, a great quarterback, is missed. I don't think the fans want two leagues, and because this USFL has done nothing but drain the NFL's talent pool, it's a detriment.

And the USFL's contention that NFL dirty dealings is the cause of their problems is nonsense. The USFL is in trouble because they overpay a few players, but more importantly, because springtime is basketball and baseball time. You don't watch football in the spring, and you don't wear sweaters in the summer.

Of course, the players are rooting for the USFL, and for good reason. A second league drives up salaries, and NFL players, though not starving, make much less than their fellow athletes in the baseball and basketball leagues.

Items: Bo Jackson will be in the NFL in two years after falling miserably at baseball. It's just a feeling I have...I miss John McEnroe...The Cardinals are terrible, and Whitey Herzog doesn't have a sense of humor...For dinner, I had Cambell's clam chowder. It's delicious, filling, and a bargain at $.79...

Holyfield desicions Qawi

ATLANTA (AP) — Evander Holyfield, "the uncrowned champion" of the 1984 United States Olympic team, won his title Saturday by defeating Dwight Muhammad Qawi in a split decision for the World Boxing Association junior heavyweight crown.

Holyfield scored repeatedly against Qawi, who kept plodding in on him during the 15-round contest. But only twice did he stagger the champion.

Judge Gordon Volkman scored it 144-140 and judge Neffie Quintana saw it 147-138 for Holyfield under the 10-point must system. Judge Harold Lederman scored it 143-141 for Qawi.

AL 'Stars hold off N. Central

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Both teams had big innings, but it was the Big Spring American League All-Stars that had the most productive one as they held off the Midland North Central All-Stars 7-5 last night in District III tournament action.

The American Leaguers, playing on their home field, scored six runs in the second inning to blow open a scoreless game. North Central staged a rally of its own in the fourth, scoring five runs. But John Kennedy saved the day by coming in in relief of Cort Petterson and handcuffing the Midland team for the remainder of the game.

North Central chased American League starter Jonathan Downey from the game in its big fourth inning. Up until then, Downey was in full control of the contest. He constantly baffled the opposition with his mixture of fastballs and curves.

But in the fourth, North Central caught on to Downey's crafty ways, and staged a five-run, two-out rally.

Downey was breezing along with a six run cushion and was out away from completing the fourth inning. Then the North Central team staged a rally that left a very vocal American League crowd on the edge of its seat.

Jim Patton brought across the first run when he singled and scored Ritchie Greth, who had also singled. Daryl Lucas walked and Jim Stanton singled, scoring Patton and Lucas. Dewayne Culpepper followed with a single, setting the stage for the final two North Central runs.

Mike Melzer hit the ball past the AL's first baseman and the ball rolled to the corner of the right field fence. Stanton and Culpepper scored, cutting the margin to 6-5.

Downey was lifted in favor of Petterson, who walked NC pitcher Allen Chase. Petterson was then lifted in favor of the 11-year-old Kennedy. Kennedy didn't have to get the next batter out because catcher Brian Gordon gunned down Chase trying to steal second, ending North Central's rally.

Clemens breaks losing streak

By The Associated Press

Roger Clemens broke his two-game losing streak with a five-hitter Saturday, outpitching fellow All-Star Mike Witt and leading the Boston Red Sox to a 3-2 victory over the California Angels with the help of a two-run homer by Bill Buckner.

Clemens, expected to start Tuesday for the American League in the All-Star Game at Houston, raised his record to 15-2.

He walked two and struck out eight, increasing his league-leading total to 146.

Witt, 9-7, gave up six hits — three to Buckner — and struck out seven. His strikeout total of 124 is second in the AL.

Clemens threw 124 pitches and spent much of the game cleaning his spikes on a rainy day.

Buckner helped the Angels take a 2-1 lead in the sixth with an error, but hit his 10th homer of the season in the bottom of the inning.

Buckner bobbled Jack Howell's grounder in the sixth, and Howell then stole second and scored on Wally Joyner's double.

In the bottom of the inning, Marty Barrett singled before Buckner drove a 1-2 pitch into the right-field bullpen.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

A's 5, Blue Jays 3

Jose Canseco hit his 22nd homer of the season and Mike Davis forced in the tie-breaking run in the sixth when he was hit by a pitch as Oakland snapped a four-game losing streak. With the score tied 1-1 in the sixth, Dave Kingman scored when starter Jimmy Key, 8-6, hit Davis with the bases loaded.

Royals 7, Tigers 4

Frank White knocked in two runs and Willie Wilson and Lonnie Smith each scored twice. White, the only All-Star among the world champion Royals, had an RBI single in the first and a sacrifice fly in the three-run fourth.

Rangers 11, Indians 6

Scott Fletcher led a 15-hit Texas attack with three hits, including a two-run homer, and Charlie Hough beat Cleveland for the eighth consecutive time. Hough, 9-4, left after 7 2-3 innings following homers by Joe Carter, Pat Tabler and rookie Cory Snyder, who has eight home runs in 103 at-bats.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Mets 10, Braves 1

Keith Hernandez tripled in two runs and Mookie Wilson and Ray Knight singled in two runs apiece as New York coasted to its second straight rout of Atlanta. Hernandez hit a two-run triple in the four-run third inning, during which the Mets sent nine batters to the plate. He circled the bases on the hit when the relay throw went into the stands.

Astros 4, Phillies 3

Rookie Tony Walker homered, drove in three runs and had three reasonably quiet the rest of the game.

The Americans added an insurance run in the fifth. Downey singled and eventually scored from third when Kennedy grounded out to the shortstop.

The win gave the Americans a 2-0 slate going into the second week of the tournament. North central falls to 1-1.

Big Spring Nationals 4 Lamesa 3

At the National League park, the Big Spring Nationals stayed in the tournament by nipping Lamesa 4-3. Joe Conaway got this second win of the tournament by outdueling Lamesa's Michael Lucio.

of Houston's 14 hits. Nolan Ryan, 6-6, won his third straight game, allowing three hits and five walks in six innings, striking out eight.

Giants 3, Pirates 1
Mike Krukow, 11-5, held Pittsburgh to seven hits and rookie Robbie Thompson hit two triples and a single Saturday as the San Francisco Giants downed the Pirates 3-1.

Storm halts women's open

KETTERING, Ohio (AP) — Betty King held a two-shot lead when a violent thunderstorm forced a suspension of play Saturday in the third round of the 41st U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship. King was two under par for the day — and three under for the tournament — through 14 holes when the storm swept over the NCR Country Club course at 3:28 p.m. EDT.

Players sought shelter from the high wind, heavy rain and lightning.

The rain "flooded the golf course," U.S.G.A. Senior Executive Director Frank Hannigan said, and raised the possibility that play might not be resumed until Sunday morning.

"There's a pretty good chance we won't be able to continue today," Hannigan said of the weather-plagued tournament.

In the event play could not be resumed until Sunday morning, "we" try to get them out early enough so we could go ahead on schedule, with the final round later in the day," the U.S.G.A. official said.

All the tournament leaders were on the course when the storm — the fourth in three days to lash the course — hit.

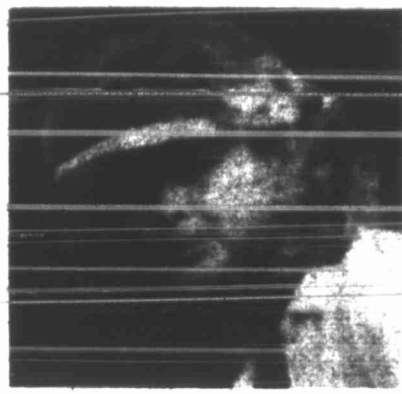

Tournament players and officials also have been subjected to noxious fumes from burning phosphorus that caused the evacuation of 30,000 people in nearby Miamisburg, Ohio, and early Saturday morning were jolted awake by an earthquake.

Ayako Okamoto, who birdied three straight holes shortly before the storm hit, held second place when play was halted. The Japanese player was two under par for the day and one under for the tournament — two strokes back of King — through 16 holes.

Judy Dickinson, who shared the lead after two rounds, was three off the pace through 14 holes. She was even par for the tournament and one over for the day.

Sally Little and Deb Richard were one over par for the tournament, Little through 16 holes, Richard through 15.

Jane Geddes completed a round

JUDY DICKINSON
...one of leaders

of 70 before the storm struck and was the leader in the clubhouse at 218, two over par.

Also at two over par were amateur Joan Pitcock (through 17 holes) and rivals Hollis Stacy and Amy Alcott, each through 15 holes.

Pat Bradley's hopes of a one-year sweep of all the ladies' Grand Slam events all but vanished. She did not make a birdie in a round of 74 that put her at 221, five over par with one round remaining.

The Nationals struck for three runs in the first inning behind a homer by Conaway. Lamesa tied it up in the third. The winning run came in the fifth when Shane Myrick stole home.

Myrick aided the cause with two doubles. Kenneth McCalister and Gerald Cobos also doubled.

The Nationals are 2-1 in tournament play while Lamesa exits the tourney with a 1-2 slate.

Odessa Southern 12

Big Spring Texas 8

At the International League field, Odessa Southern eliminated the Texas league All-Stars by a 12-8 margin.

Southern jumped out on top with three runs in the second inning. It blew the game open with a nine-run, fifth inning. The Texas Leaguers battled back for three runs in the bottom of the fifth, thanks to a homer by Steven Robles. They rallied for five more in the sixth, but it was too little, too late.

Eric Roman was the winning pitcher for Southern. Charlie Garcia was the loser for the Texas League.

The Texas Little league leaves the tourney with a 1-2 record. Southern goes into the second week with a 2-1 mark.

U.S. boxers continue to win

MOSCOW (AP) — Terrance Southerland and Ernesto Chavez, two last-minute substitutes on the weakened United States boxing team, made their international debuts with victories Saturday as five Americans won first-round matches at the Goodwill Games.

Diver Michele Mitchell of the U.S. and the American women's volleyball team won bronze medals, while the water polo squad defeated West Germany 7-5, clinching a medal.

Despite the U.S. successes, the Soviet Union continued to dominate at the games. Soviet athletes have collected 47 gold medals and 128 medals overall, well ahead of the United States' 31 golds and 90 total medals.

Southerland, a lightweight from Cincinnati who returned to boxing in 1985 after a four-year break, won a 5-0 decision over Ireland's Thomas Tobin.

Chavez, a welterweight from Garden Grove, Calif., wrapped up the afternoon competition by out-punching three-time Irish national champion William Walsh, 4-1.

Bernard Price of Muncie, Ind., won a medical walkover in the 119-pound class from no-show Mongolian Tserendorzhi Amarghargal. Middleweight Parker White of Richmond, Calif., scored a 5-0 decision over Brazil's Joze da Silva.

Light heavyweight Harvey Richards of Springfield, Ill., stopped Tanzania's Ruben Mkhere at 1:33 of the first round.

Five Soviet boxers also won bouts.

"I was really surprised, especially for Southerland," said U.S. Coach Roosevelt Sanders of the victories scored by the newest members of his squad.

Southerland had failed to make the team during training camp and was called on to fill in as a substitute just one day before the games opened when nine fighters who are in the military were barred by the Defense Department from making the trip.

Other team members chanted "U-S-A, U-S-A" from the stands at the Olympic complex arena as Chavez' bout came to a close. The sparse, Soviet-dominated crowd attempted to drown out the chant with whistles.

The U.S. wrestling squad defeated Turkey, 8-2 with Olympian Dave Schultz pinning opponent Burhan Sabanci at 4 minutes, 4 seconds.

The Soviet wrestlers were even more impressive, scoring their second consecutive shutout, this time over Japan 10-0. Eight of the 10 Soviet victories were by pin, including Adlan Varayev's 22-second victory over Yoshinobu Hirayama.

Mitchell said she was not satisfied with her third-place performance in the women's platform diving. She finished behind Soviets Andzhela Staszulevich and Olga Bliova.

"It's back to training again," Mitchell said, predicting she would defeat her Soviet rivals at the world championships in Madrid next month.

"The Russians have beat me and I have beat them, so it is a tug-of-war between us," said the Scottsdale, Ariz., diver. "The competition will continue in Spain."

For the first time in a competition where judges assign scores, an American coach complained about home-team bias for the Soviets.

Scott Reich, coach of the men's diving team, complained about diver Kent Ferguson's second-place finish in the springboard diving Friday.

"A lot of people would say Ferguson won that," he said.

Soviet Nikolai Drouzhzhin won the gold medal in men's springboard, with 646.14 points to Ferguson's 643.32.

No formal protest was filed.

The American women volleyball squad, unexpectedly defeated Japan 16-14, 15-6, 15-11 to finish 2-3 in the tournament and win the bronze. On Tuesday, the Americans lost to Japan in four games.

The Americans were trailing 13-9, when Deitre Collins of Lancaster, Calif., came on to the court wearing a leg brace and sparked the team into life.

Skippers, fans don't agree on All-Stars

By The Associated Press
Darryl Strawberry and Cal Ripken, the most popular players in All-Star voting, would not start in Tuesday night's game and neither would Ozzie Smith or Dale Murphy if managers picked the teams instead of the fans.

According to an Associated Press survey, two other starters in the 1986 All-Star Game, Dave Winfield and rookie Wally Joyner, also would be replaced.

Nine National League managers and eight in the American League responded to the survey, naming eight starters for their league. The other nine declined to participate, with Dick Williams of Seattle, Jim Fregosi of the Chicago White Sox and Gene Michael of the Chicago Cubs — all hired in midseason — saying they had not seen all of the clubs.

Strawberry, who drew more than 1.6 million votes, and Murphy would be replaced in NL outfield by Tim Lincecum and Dave Parker while shortstop Hubie Brooks would start in place of Smith, the survey showed.

Half of the AL's starting team would change if managers did the choosing.

(though Will went to bed a bit earlier than his coach) with the help of an interpreter. At their third and last party, all of which Ken says were "unsuccessful," a KGB agent caught them.

Fortunately, Will says, it was an agent they had gotten to know, but he told them in no uncertain terms that this was not to happen again.

At one party, Ken says, he accidentally crossed the boundaries of what he could say to his Russian friends.

"Without thinking, I said to Micha, 'I wish you could go back to the U.S.A. with us.' Instantly his eyes filled with tears and he had to wait a second and capture himself. He said, 'I want I want but I can't,'" Ken remembers, and pats his heart as the Russian did.

Though Will and Ken said that most Russians treated them with indifference, there were several occasions when the immense political boundaries didn't seem so big.

One day Will and a friend were sightseeing and entered a store. Will found an anti-nuclear pin, illegal in Russia, with a picture of a broken missile. Will bought it, and the store owner said to him, referring to the anti-nuclear message,

"You tell Ronald Reagan that."

In Zgorsk, the only city they visited besides Moscow, Will and Ken were approached by an old woman with three bells, which she called bells of friendship. She gave the bells to them and said "no matter what you hear on the news, ring those bells and think of friendship."

"When she said that, she started crying," says Will.

Will and Ken both noticed one less than endearing quality in the Russians.

"We were waiting in line for Lenin's tomb, and these two Russian people got in line and we had to move," Will remembers.

"In a word, they stunk," Ken explains. He says odor was a problem with the Russians, though the Russian gymnasts were taught hygiene.

After over two weeks of hard work, bad Russian food, good Russian friends and yelling "I hate the KGB" into hotel vents that may or may not have been bugged, Will and Ken returned home.

They are now home and glad of it. But they won't soon forget their friend with the tears in his eyes and the wish to be free.

Rain

By Catherine Overstreet
 What would it be like if you couldn't tell red from green or brown from blue? Or if all colors were the same? That's the way it was for Robbi Colley, a 10-year-old boy from Big Spring, Texas, who is color blind and dyslexic.

When he was 4, his mother, Dora Roberts, noticed that Robbi was having trouble with his schoolwork. "It was just a matter of time," she said. "I knew he was going to have a problem."

Robbi's mother said she never realized her son was color blind until she saw a rainbow. "I thought green and orange were the same color," she said. "I thought purple and blue were the same color."

The only color Robbi could see consistently was yellow, she said. Because yellow was the only color to him, it was his favorite color, she added.

The Colleys took their son to many local doctors — Dr. F.W. Malone, Dr. E.H. Owen and Dr. William B. Allenworth. "They all said there was nothing that could be done," his mother said.

At age 6, the second problem — dyslexia — became evident. "He said Robbi would tell a 'd' from a 'v' or a 'b' from a 'd,'" she said. "When he saw the word 'on,' he thought it was 'no,' and he would read 'was' as 'saw,'" she explained.

He also started writing on the right side of the paper and moving to the left, she added.

"We thought he was just slow," she said.

At 8 years old, Robbi was given diagnostic tests, which revealed he had a learning disability. His mother reported.

At the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, Robbi took Sensory Integrated Tests (SIT). They detected learning disabilities and the therapists helped him with his coordination, she said.

"Finally, Dr. Katnik, a neurologist from Lubbock, diagnosed Robbi as being color blind," she said. The dyslexia occupational therapist at the rehabilitation center suspected it, but he said he wasn't qualified to diagnose it, she said.

Robbi was learning to compensate, she said. "He was in special education at school and worked extra hard at home. He learned that when you see a 'b,' it's really a 'p.'"

After staying on that course for a couple of years, the Colleys found an answer, his mother said.

Then they saw an ad in the Spring Herald for a clinic, Elina J. Milam.

"You try whatever there is to try — it's like gambling — and you take a chance," she said.

About 200 people were at the clinic. First the children were tested, his mother explained.

"And the guy (Dr. Carl A. Ferreri, a chiropractor) diagnosed all of Robbi's problems. I wasn't impressed," she said.

But the Colleys decided they would try it, she said. "We weren't sure it would work, but it was relatively expensive."

As Robbi was treated,

When asked about the future, she said, "I don't know. I don't know what he's going to do. We like to see him through the school."

When asked about the future, she said, "I don't know. I don't know what he's going to do. We like to see him through the school."

Life at the Eagle's Nest is just plane delightful

MIDLOTHIAN, (AP) — It's six miles east of Midlothian: 163 country acres with a lake and plenty of shade trees. Birds chirp. Frogs croak.

Only the name gives the hint that this is not the perfect neighborhood for people who hate Love Field noise.

Eagle's Nest residents all have three things in common: they are pilots; they own their own airplanes; and they like to keep their planes at home.

Barry Millet, the man who formed Aerohome Development Co. to create this airpark, puts it this way: "Every pilot's dream is to have his airplane in his back yard where it belongs, not in somebody else's airport."

"We tell people up front Eagle's Nest is for pilots," says Millet. "If you can't live in peace and harmony with airplanes, you'd better find someplace else to live."

The centerpiece of this development is a 3,000-foot, paved and lighted runway. Each of the 109 building sites is connected to the runway by a 4,000-foot system of taxiways.

Ten of the sites have been developed. Two more are under construction and three are being designed. Most of these houses are on an acre-and-a-half of land. They average about 4,000 square feet and cost about $200,000 apiece.

The two main streets, Falcon Way and Eagle's Nest Court run parallel to the runway. The distinguishing feature of each house — other than the one that looks like a falcon when viewed from above — is the hangar out back. The hangars come in a variety of sizes, the largest being 3,000 square feet.

There's a jumble of small aircraft around the Millet hanger, a Cardinal, a Bonanza, a Cessna 152. Sophie Millet, who is also a pilot and Barry's wife, explains: "Everybody's been keeping their planes with us until they get their hangars built."

Most people build hangars before houses, she says.

Barry Millet buys and sells airplanes, so his inventory changes continually. Today his hangar is virtually filled by a twin-engine Piper Navajo, which is being repaired. Normally, this hangar holds three smaller planes and a helicopter.

Millet says he planned this community carefully. "Anybody can put a runway on Farmer Brown's field and call it a development," he sneers. "But I studied the mistakes made by other airparks, such as mixing aircraft and vehicular traffic, and avoided them."

Only airplanes use these taxiways, at least most of the time.

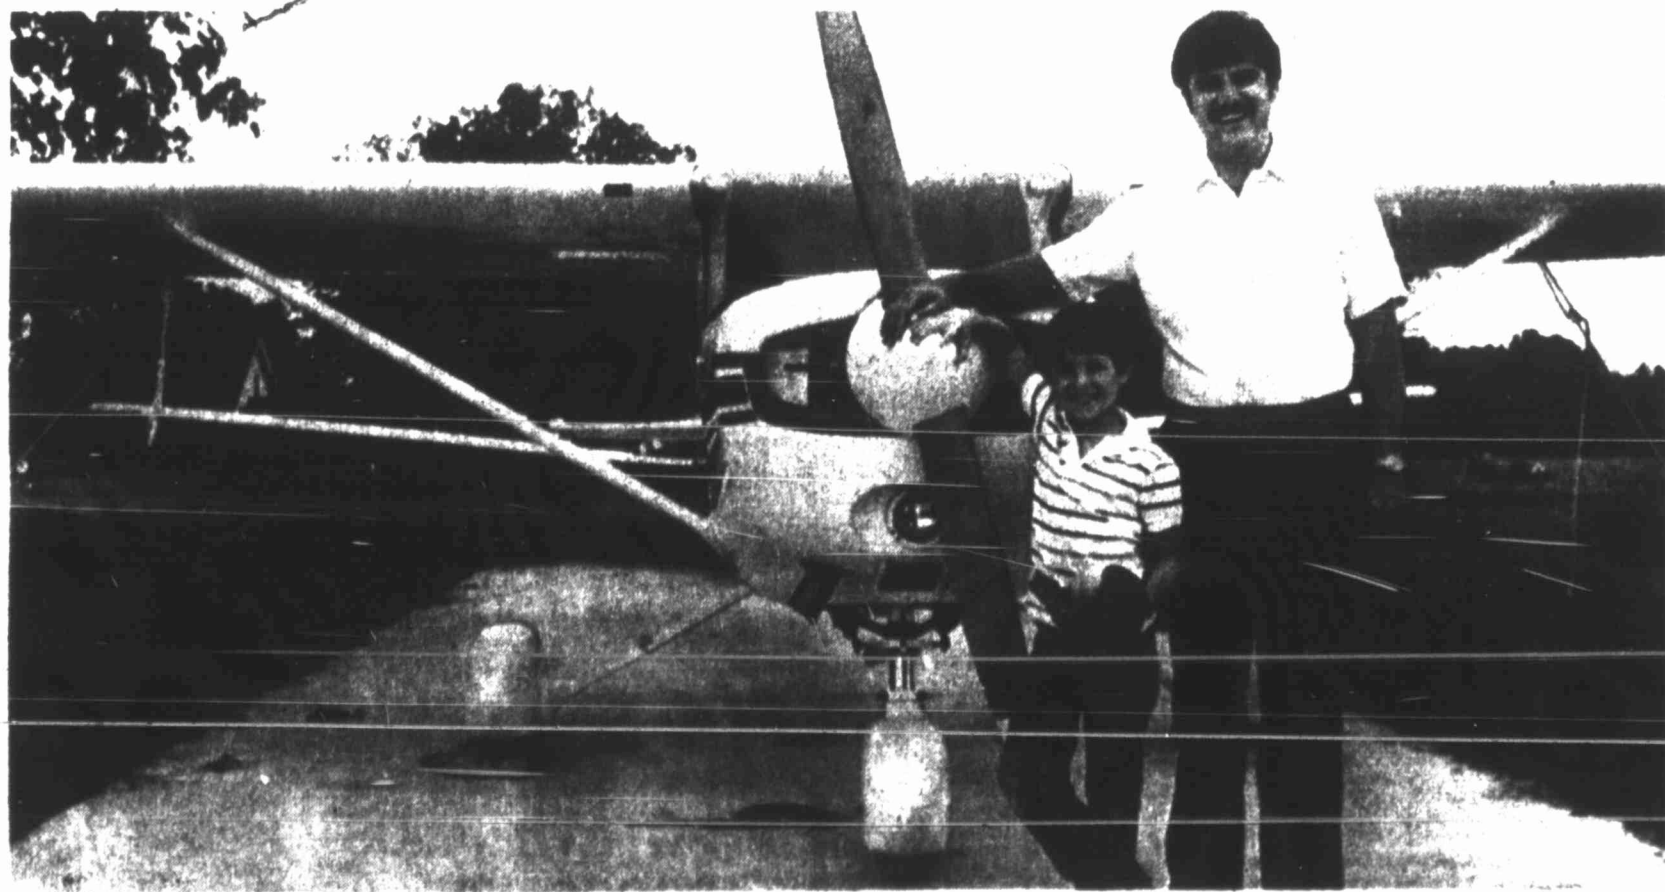

Sophie Millet recalls the afternoon a "van full of old people from a convalescent home" meandered along the taxiway.

"They were just out for their afternoon drive and didn't realize they were in an airpark," she says, adding: "We're getting more signs made."

Barry Millet describes Eagle's Nest as "a very neighborly community. If you're called away suddenly, you'll find when you get home that your mail and newspapers have been picked up and, if it gets high enough, your lawn will even get mowed."

Pilots live here, but not necessarily those who make their living from aviation. There's a high school principal, an antique dealer, a computer executive, an engineer. But aviation is the common link.

Larry and Shirley Voyles have Barry Millet and his son Scooter, above, pose with their plane at home in Midlothian about 25 miles southwest of Dallas. Millet, creator of Aerohome Development Co. created the airpark because "every pilot's lived here a year and still marvel about the peace and quiet. "We hear birds in the morning, and frogs at night," she says. Their home is just across the road from the lake.

Larry Voyles, who owns World Wide Aviation Technical Services, which manages aircraft for corporations, has been a pilot for 34 years. "I started flying when I was 16, owned my first plane when I was 17," he proclaims. That first plane was a Piper Club, which he kept in the yard of the Missouri farm where he grew up.

"Now I've got a plane in my back yard again," he says.

The Voyleses were actively searching for a place like Eagle's Nest. "We wanted to buy a farm and build our own airstrip," he says. When he first heard about Eagle's Nest and checked it out, he found only a few stakes. "They'd just started scraping the roads," he recalls.

Several months later, the Voyleses, still unable to find a farm, returned to Eagle's Nest. "The development was picking up," says Larry Voyles. "We never found the property we wanted, but this has worked out beautifully."

Voyles has two Cessna 182 Skylanes, one of which he plans to sell. His wife's pilot training has been delayed by high blood pressure, but she figures she'll soon be licensed.

Larry Voyles flies to local airports, where he catches larger flights for overseas business trips. "It takes me 11 minutes to get to Addison, seven minutes to Love Field," he says, grinning at the vision of freeway traffic.

Occasionally, a passing airplane roars through the peace and quiet. But that doesn't bother the Voyleses.

"It's music to our ears," says Shirley Voyles.

Wedding

Roten-Kinnett

Angela Marie Roten, 603 Bucknell Ave., became the bride of Michael Todd Kinnett, 104 W. 18th, at an evening ceremony July 12 at First Baptist Church Chapel with Ralph Caffey of Trent, grandfather of the bride, officiating.

Parents of the bride are Linda Russell, 603 Bucknell Ave, and Rodney Roten of Austin. Bridegroom's parents are Fran Brown of Dallas and Dan Kinnett of Midwest City, Okla.

Vocalist was Bee Haley of Los Angeles, Calif., accompanied by Kathy Chamblee, pianist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal-length white gown enhanced with pearls and lace.

She carried a bouquet of pink baby roses and baby's breath.

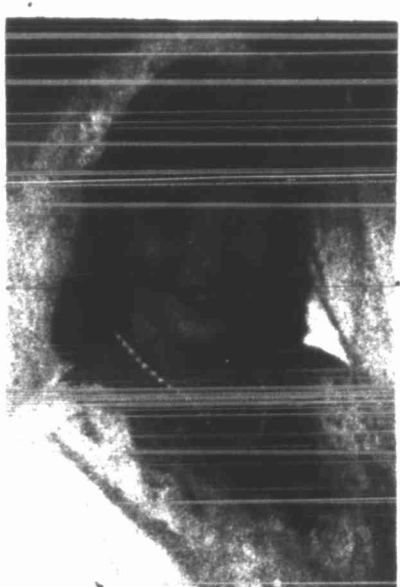

Maid of honor was Stephanie Roten, sister of the bride, 603 Bucknell. Bridesmaid was Charlotte Bellah of Midland.

Flower girl was Nicole Petersen, niece of the bridegroom, of Big Spring. Ring bearer was Tim Russell, brother of the bride, of Midland.

Best man was Danny Kinnett, brother of the bridegroom, of Dallas. Groomsman was Kevin Sneed of Big Spring.

Ushers and candlelighters were Trevor Roten, brother of the bride, of Austin and Johnny Haun of Killeen.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the First Baptist Church parlor. The bride's table featured a three-tiered white cake topped with a porcelain bride and groom.

Cheese balls and chocolate covered strawberries were served from the bridegroom's table.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School and will graduate from the Cosmetology department at Howard College at the end of July.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Midwest City High School in Oklahoma and attended Howard College. He is employed by Western Container and The Brass Nail Nightclub.

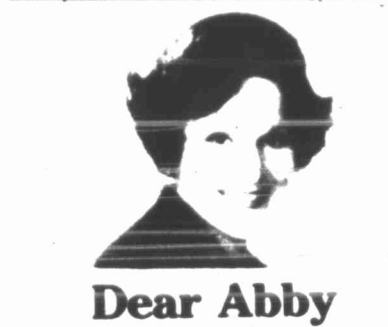

After a wedding trip to Ruidosa, N.M., the couple will make their home at 104 W. 18th St.

Wife throws water on husband's poolside chats

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I live in a townhouse built around a central swimming pool used by others in this complex. I'm 60, my wife is 57, we've been married 35 years and have grown children, all living elsewhere.

I like to sit around the pool to get a suntan. My wife complains that tanning will wrinkle my skin and make me look older, which may reduce my chances for working another 10 years. But that's a minor irritation. The major one is a 20-year-old girl who likes to talk to me at the pool.

My wife doesn't go to the pool because she fears the aging effect of the sun, plus the risk of skin cancer, but she has a view of the pool from our window and has a fit if she sees me talking to this girl. She says, "A man your age shouldn't talk to young girls, it looks bad. If she approaches you, tell her to go away, blah, blah, blah!" Abby, we talk about many things — nothing suggestive or indecent — and the people around us can hear every word we say.

Yesterday, while talking with this girl, my wife came down and a big fight ensued. What can I do about her unreasonable behavior? Believe me, I am...

INNOCENT IN ST. LOUIS
DEAR INNOCENT: I believe you, but that won't solve your problem. You shouldn't have to refrain from innocent conversation because of your wife's groundless suspicious. She needs counseling in order to help her deal with her inappropriate jealousy, which is probably rooted in her feelings of insecurity. Meanwhile, work a little harder to reassure her. She's hurting.

DEAR ABBY: After a 44-year marriage, my husband divorced me on the basis of "constructive abandonment" (translation: "no sex"). Are you laughing? I am not. We are both in our 70s. Last year I had surgery for lung cancer, and the prognosis was good. Anyway, I guess the future looked too dreary for him, so divorce was his solution.

We have many friends living out of state whom it will be necessary to inform, as I do not want to have to forward Christmas cards, anniversary cards, etc.

Please advise me of some format I can follow in writing such a note. I would like it to be brief but not terse. And I want to include his address in case they want to reach him.

SOMEWHERE IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR SOMEWHERE: How's this:

Dear Friends: After 44 years, (his name) has left me. If you wish to reach him, you may write to him at the address listed below.

Wedding

Wiggins-Copeland

Debra Lee Wiggins and Charles Kent Copeland, both of Midland, exchanged wedding vows July 12 at Baptist Temple Church with the Rev. Logan Peterson, officiating.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Gary Wiggins of Big Spring. Bridegroom's parents are Mrs. George Mosley of Levelland and Mr. Bill Copeland, of Tyler.

The couple stood before an altar decorated with candelabras, greenery and pink bows. Two arrangements of pink and white flowers, green plums and plants also were used as decorations.

Instrumentalists were Donna Thurmand, organist and Dawn Underwood, pianist. Vocalists were Aleisha Williams of Midland and Scott Underwood of Austin.

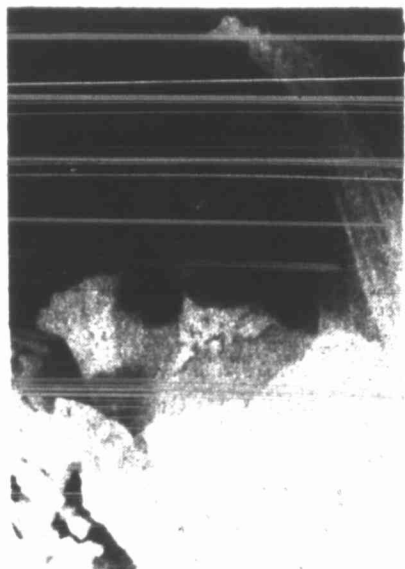

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal-length satin gown enhanced with chantilly lace, a Queen Ann neckline, Gibson Girl sleeves and a cathedral-length train. The basque waisted bodice featured a sheer yoke with lace and bridal pearls. The skirt and train were bordered with daisy and cutwork leaf appliques highlighted with sunbursts of seed pearls. The waltz-length veil of silk illusion edged with seed pearls fell from a lace Juliet cap.

She carried a cascading bouquet of pink and white roses, stephanotis, baby's breath and ivy.

Matron of honor was Patsy Norton, aunt of the bride, of Billings, Mont. Bridesmaids were Michele Ray and Susan Palmer, both of Big Spring.

Flower girl was Heather Duncan of Big Spring. Ring bearer was Austin Owens of Midland.

Best man was Richard Durrett, cousin of the bridegroom, of Paige, Ariz. Groomsmen were Gary Wiggins, brother of the bride, of Big Spring and Greg Owens of Midland.

Ushers were John Norton, uncle of the bride and Paule Vance, cousin of the bride, both of Billings, Mont.

Candlelighters were Elizabeth Mosley, sister of the bridegroom, of Levelland and Paul Vance, cousin of the bride, of Billings, Mont.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at Baptist Temple Church's fellowship hall. The bride's table was draped with cutwork lace over pink and featured arrangements of pink flowers, brass candleholders and pink tapers. A four-tiered cake, with a square tier beneath a pink fountain, was surrounded by a garland of white roses. It was accented with stairways on each side of the cake decorated with small pink flowers that lead to the ceramic bride and bridegroom at the top of the cake.

The bridegroom's table was draped with a gray underlay with pink fringed cloth and held a brass candelabra with pink tapers. A hexagon chocolate cake featured gold wedding rings.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School and Malone-Hogan School of Radiologic Technology. She is a CT technologist at Midland Memorial Hospital.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Lee High School at Midland. He is employed by TMBR Oil Company.

After a wedding trip to New Mexico, Colorado and Arizona, the couple will make their home in Midland.

Anniversary

The L.Z. Rhodes

In honor of the 50th anniversary of L.Z. and Zula Rhodes, their children and grandchildren will host a reception Saturday, July 19 at Elbow School Music Room from 2-5 p.m.

Rhodes was born in Corn, Okla. and Mrs. Rhodes, the former Zula Eleanor Gentry, was born in Wilmont, Ark.

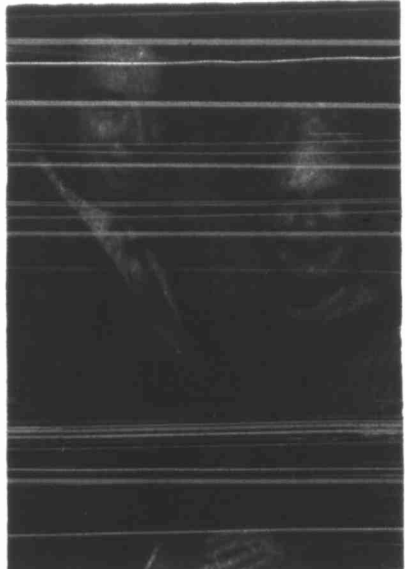

The couple met at a party in Sand Springs, Okla. in 1935. They were married July 17, 1936 at the home of Mrs. Rhodes' parents in Sand Springs, Okla.

Children of the couple are Geo. Ronald of Amarillo, Judi of Odessa and David Allen of Muskogee, Okla. They have six grandchildren.

During their marriage, the couple has lived in Oklahoma, the Texas panhandle and Howard County.

Rhodes, a retired oil field worker, retired in 1984. He enjoys hunting and fishing.

projects, Retired Senior Volunteers Service, Extension

Homemakers, and the Howard County Fair.

They are both members of the 42 Charity Supper Club and attend Central Baptist Church.

When asked to comment about their marriage they said, "We've been very happy and are blessed with children and grandchildren."

Friends and neighbors are invited to the reception. The couple requests no gifts.

Weddings

Hilton-Liccardi

Evelyn Louise Hilton and John Anthony Liccardi, both of Gail Rt. 153, were united in marriage June 21 at the amphitheater at Comanche Trail Park with China Long, justice of the peace, officiating.

Parents of the bride are Brenda Tallant of Big Spring and Larry Titsworth of Austin. Bridegroom's parents are Barbara Austin of Webb Mississippi and Lohm Liccardi Sr. of Creatville, Ill.

Instrumentalist was Patsy Tallant, sister-in-law of the bride. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white lace top and prairie skirt.

She carried a bouquet of pink and peach flowers with white lace and ribbons of white and pink.

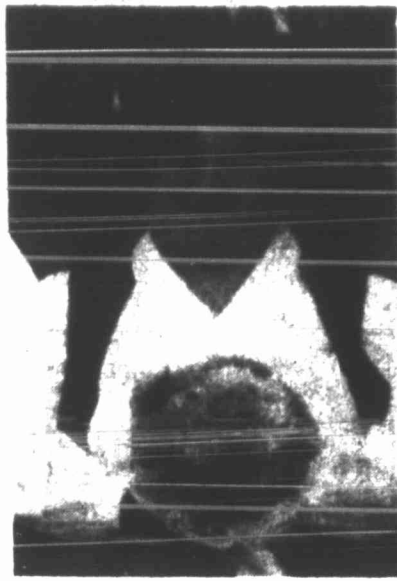

Maid of honor was Tammie Matile of Midland. Matron of honor was Brenda Tallant, sister of the bride, of Big Spring.

Flower girl was Amanda Hanson of Big Spring. Ring bearer was Charles Hawkins, nephew of the bride.

Best man was David Tallant, brother of the bride, of Amarillo. Groomsmen was Terry Tallant, brother of the bride.

Usher was Johnny Tallant, brother of the bride.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the Elks Lodge. The bride's table was draped with a pink cloth and decorated with

Weight training intensity is easy to figure

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Can you advise a young man about intensity levels he should use for weight training? He does it on his own at home. He tells me (his father) that he is at a kind of plateau and is "stuck" there. How does he know if he's getting the right intensity? — S.W.

The easy answer would be to suggest a couple of great training manuals around. But I think I can keep it simple for him.

Intensity in weight training has to do with the actual weight being lifted. Nothing could be simpler than that. But you have to have a baseline weight to begin. That is the heaviest weight you can lift at a single repetition, but one you would not care to repeat right away. That weight represents 100 percent intensity.

But you don't use that weight for training. You use a percentage of it. In the books you might see intensity of training expressed as percentage of "RM," which means percentage of maximum single rep.

Here's an example. We'll use 100 pounds as the maximum single rep. Heavy training intensity would be 90 percent of that, or 90 pounds. Moderate intensity would be 80 percent, or 80 pounds, and light intensity 70 percent, or 70 pounds. Wherever your son is in his lifting capability, he can figure out his training formula this way.

The gradations — heavy, moderate, light — permit you to stagger intensities throughout the days of a training week, heavy one day, moderate the next, and so on. You can vary the routine.

The important point is that training permits you to increase your maximum single rep lift. Then you have a new baseline from which to arrive at various training intensities.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: How long does it take for a pulled hamstring muscle to heal, and what can be done for healing it? I've had mine a month and heat doesn't seem to be helping. — J.S.

A pulled muscle is a strained muscle. It means some muscle fibers have been stretched and broken.

But strains vary in degree, from mild to severe. A severe strain is one where the muscle has been torn completely apart. That takes two to six months to heal. A mild strain, where there has been only partial tearing, takes from 10 days to three weeks to heal.

Based on your continuing problem, I would have to assume that you have one of the more serious strains, or perhaps something entirely different amiss in your leg. I think it is time to get it examined.

Heat and elevation will take care of most common strains. I'm assuming you have been staying off that leg. A premature return to activity for any kind of strain can set back recovery time considerably.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am 58 years old and have been doing aerobic dancing. Whether it's my age or what, I have come up with knee problems. I want to continue my aerobics program. A friend told me to take a tablespoon of cod liver oil and it will lubricate my joints. Is there anything at all to this? — M.M.

There's nothing to that idea. We're finding lots of interesting new qualities in cod liver oil, but joint lubrication is not one of them. If you could be more specific about your knee symptoms, I might be able to help a little.

FOR G.N.: — I don't know if you need iron. You shouldn't take supplements blindly. Female athletes are more likely to be deficient in iron from a combination of menstrual loss and exercise perspiration. But still, women shouldn't take iron unless it is determined they really need it. Excess iron can build in the body and be toxic. Men should be extra cautious about such supplements, since they don't lose it in the ways women may.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I exercised my arms and shoulders all winter in hopes of being a stronger pitcher this year than I was last. I can't say that it helped. I'm not throwing any faster (harder) than before. What am I missing? — S.K.G.

You say nothing about exercises to strengthen muscles of the legs, hips, abdomen and lower back. Power in pitching comes not only from the upper body and arms. It results from a linked muscle action beginning in the legs and hips and transferred through the midsection of the body and finally executed through the arms and shoulders.

I don't know many people who concentrate on just arms and shoulders who have been great pitchers. Once you concentrate on all the muscles involved you'll be throwing much harder.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What's a good pedaling speed for my stationary bike in order to get a good workout? — L.L.

About 85 revs a minute. Change gears when it gets easier or harder to maintain that.

FOR MRS. T.P.: — It is not uncommon for amenorrhea (absence of periods) to occur after a serious head injury. That can last several months. You should have your daughter examined for this sports injury.

Millions of out-of-shape men and women desire fitness. But shy away from formal programs because they think it's all too complicated and difficult. Dr. Donohue's newest booklet, "Introduction to Fitness," puts the esoteric terminology of aerobics into plain language and offers a fitness program anyone, regardless of age, can adapt. For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and $1.50.

Reid to attend FHA meeting

Angela Reid, a senior at Coahoma High School, will be one of the 200 delegates to attend the 1986 Future Homemakers of America National Youth Leadership Meeting July 20-24 in Orlando, Fla. Representing more than 50,000 members of the Texas Association, she will be among 2,000 delegates throughout the nation who will attend the four day conference.

She will be accompanied by her advisor, Barbara Justiss. Reid, who was elected State FHA President of Achievement at the state meeting, is the first state officer to represent Coahoma High School.

One of her duties as state officer is to involve members in the new growth program called the Power of One.

At the national meeting, Reid will attend workshops and assist state officers with the Texas display. She is also the Coahoma FHA chapter president.

CANADA

If you expect to visit anywhere in Canada, you'll be glad to know that any coverage provided by your Hartford Automobile Liability Insurance Policy is applicable in Canada. However, you will need a "Canada Non-Resident Inter-Province Motor Vehicle Liability Insurance Card" which certifies to Canadian authorities that you have the minimum auto liability limits required by law.

If you do not have such a card, and have an accident, your car may be impounded and your license suspended until you furnish satisfactory evidence of financial responsibility. The easiest procedure is to ask us for this card ahead of time. We will be glad to issue it and at the same time check your insurance to make sure it is adequate for Canadian requirements.

Spinner's Cottage™

Spinning is converting brushed wool from a shorn sheep into thread using a spinning wheel, a very simple wooden foot-operated device, commonly found in the parlours of the village house. In Spinner's Cottage a group of spinster ladies or widow women would congregate each day and spin furiously. The thread would then be sold to a merchant and eventually land up in another cottage industry, which would weave the thread into tweed on a loom, again a simple but extremely effective, albeit primitive tool.

Come in and enjoy the entire collection.

Local 4-H'er places in fashion show

By NAOMI HUNT
County Extension Agent Leigh Anne Wallace, 15, daughter of Jay and Jan Wallace of Big Spring, placed second non-tailored daywear division for 14-19 year olds at the District 6 4-H Fashion Show in Midland.

Wallace was one of 109 4-H'ers who competed for top honors. She is the alternate to the State 4-H Fashion Show this weekend in Austin.

Other 4-H'ers representing Howard County at the district event were: Courtney Fryar, daughter of Claude and Patsy Fryar; Jessica Geeslin, daughter of Gary and Cecilia Geeslin; Sandy Swafford, daughter of Marvin and Patty Spivey; Tonya Bridge, daughter of Mike and Ella Bridge; and Dennette Dick, daughter of Steve and Linda Dick.

Melynda Grifford, daughter of David and Toni Grifford, won top honors in the home accessories division of the textile project show which is held in conjunction with the fashion show.

Each of the contestants won their division in the county show, making them eligible for district competition. Four categories: daytime tailored, non-tailored, active sportswear, and evening/specialty wear were included.

Former resident wins twirling contest

First place winner of the Texas State Twirling Contest, Dedi Graves, above, will compete in the National Baton Twirling Association contest at Notre Dame Ind. July 22-26.

Dedi Graves, daughter of Nita Graves and the late Henry Graves, formerly of Stanton, now of Morgan's Point, won first place at the Texas State Twirling Contest in June at the University of Texas at San Antonio.

Graves won first in the senior beginner Miss Majorette of Texas pageant. For the event, she modeled in a formal length dress and performed a solo and a fancy strut routine.

She also won first place in open solo competition and second in open strut competition.

Her next competition will be at the National Baton Twirling Association contest at Notre Dame, Ind. July 22-26.

Graves is a 1986 graduate of Belton High School where she twirled for the Marching 100 for four years and served as head twirler her senior year.

Lions Club to install new officers July 14

New Lions Club officers for the 1986-87 year will be installed July 14 at 7 p.m. at Furr's Cafeteria.

Past District Governor, Jim Lemons of Big Spring will install new officers: Squeaky Thompson, president; Bob Noyes, first vice president; Al Valdes, second vice president; Bill Birrell, third vice president; Marshall V Day, secretary; Wally Christensen, tail twister; Albert Ramirez, lion tamer; Sonny Shroyer, two year director; Karly Schoenfield, two year director; Roy Rosene, one year director; and Vergil Long, one year director.

Dana Anderson will provide musical entertainment.

Rich ruby is the July birthstone

DALLAS (AP) — The ruby, a rich red stone representing passion, vitality and exuberance, is a brilliant way for July birthday celebrators to add more color to their lives, says Ray Zajicek, president of the American Gem Trade Association (AGTA) based in Dallas.

Called "ratnafaj," meaning "king of the precious gems," by the Hindus, the rich red ruby is the birthstone for July.

"The ruby has long been acclaimed by leaders and royalty such as the Mongolian Kublai Khan, rulers of the Peacock Throne and English royals," says Zajicek.

"Most recently, Prince Andrew of England chose a ruby engagement ring for Sarah Ferguson," he adds.

A ruby's value is determined by its size, clarity and intensity of color, Zajicek explains. Because large rubies are scarce and costly, the most prevalent sizes used in jewelry are one carat or less.

A ruby can be red only, but several colors can modify the body tone of the gem, he points out. A pink modifier can create the look of a "Burma" ruby, recognized by its "hot pink" shade of red. Other rubies can reveal a "redder" look, due to brown modifiers, or a purplish-red tone called "pigeon blood" ruby.

While modifying shades can affect the price of the gem, the ultimate decision of the customers should rest with the color that is most pleasing to their own eye and most complementary to their complexion, jewelry experts point out.

Blondes or those with ruddy skin tones may find the pink undertones of a Burma ruby most becoming, while those with olive or dark skin tones might prefer the brownish undertones of a "Thai" ruby.

Found in Burma, Thailand, India, Sri Lanka and Africa, the precious red gemstones in all tones and shades are very durable, Zajicek notes, making them an excellent choice for any jewelry creation — including rings, necklaces, pendants, bracelets and earrings.

Ancient cultures placed the ruby first among gemstones, dividing them into lots according to their beauty and flawlessness, AGTA researchers report. Superior stones were kept separate from inferior ones because contact was said to contaminate the better gem and diminish its magical powers.

Ivan the Terrible of Russia thought the stone purified the blood and was good for the heart, brain and memory.

Legend holds that the ruby protects the harmony, security and status of the wearer. Other legends surrounding the ruby say it has the power to give its wearer health, wealth and wisdom and to aid intuition.
