Water conservation

Q. Is it all right to water lawns now?

A. Public Works Director Tom Decell said this morning people can water lawns but he still urges citizens to be conservative in their usage. He had asked residents to conserve water over the weekend because of a danger that the city's reservoirs were draining faster than they could be replenished.

Calendar

Carnival

TODAY
• Big Spring Band Boosters will have a carnival today through July 19 at the College Park Shopping Center.

• The Colorado City Senior Citizens will have a dance at the Boys Club from 8 to 10:30 p.m. Admission is $2.50 per person. New air conditioning has been installed.

THURSDAY
• Two films on sexual harassment in the workplace and a film on how to give and receive criticism will be shown free at 7 p.m. at the Veterans Administration Medical Center.

• People certified for July may pick up their food commodities through the West Texas Opportunities Emergency Food Assistance Program at the National Guard Armory from 8:15 a.m. to 2 p.m. All recipients must have their certification cards. The West Texas Opportunity office in the Ventura Building will be closed today, the only day food will be given out.

SATURDAY
• The Big Spring Humane Society will have a flea and tick dip at Highland Pontiac on FM 700 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Doll Maker

A Kentucky farm woman is forced to leave her native hills to join her husband in the slums of Detroit, where she struggles to maintain dignity for her family despite the sordid world around them. The show airs at 7 p.m. on Channel 2. It stars Jane Fonda and Levon Helm.

Outside

Hot

Skies today are partly cloudy with a high in the upper 80s and southerly winds at 15 to 20 miles per hour. A lake wind advisory is in effect. Tonight will be partly cloudy with isolated thundershowers. Lows will be in the 60s.

Gov. Mark White agrees to debate

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White announced today that he has accepted an invitation from the League of Women Voters to participate in a gubernatorial debate prior to the general election in November.

Details have not been worked out, according to a statement from White's campaign office.

"Perhaps Bill Clements, if he accepts this challenge, will take this opportunity to finally divulge the details of his secret budget plan," White said.

There was no immediate response from Clements.

County rules on indigent care

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Howard County Judge Milton Kirby said this morning he will begin taking applications today for someone to screen patients for the county's indigent health care program.

The screening officer will be paid an annual salary of $18,000 and work in an office in the Health Department clinic, located next to Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, said James Luck, county sanitarian.

Commissioners also unanimously approved a motion that the county contract with the Howard County Health Department to handle indigent health care cases here. The Legislature has ordered counties to begin paying medical costs for the very poor beginning Sept. 1.

Kirby's announcement came after commissioners unanimously approved Commissioner David Barr's motion that the county advertise for the position.

Commissioner O.L. "Louie" Brown was absent during this morning's commissioners court meeting.

The county is required by state law to budget 10 percent of its total budget for health care services to persons who qualify as indigents.

County sanitarian James Luck told commissioners he would have job qualifications for the financial screener available Tuesday afternoon.

Both Luck and Kirby said job applicants should have a background in screening individuals to see if they financially qualify for specific services.

Luck said the job applicant should have clerical skills and be able "to learn the different rulings and laws" applicable to indigent health care.

"We're hoping to have the position filled by Aug. 1," Luck said.

Luck will assist Kirby, county treasurer Bonnie Franklin and county auditor Jackie Olson in reviewing the applications. Luck also said this morning that nothing final has been determined regarding hospital services for indigents.

However, he said a 12-person steering committee appointed by commissioners to review indigent health care has plans to use both Hall-Bennett Memorial and Malone-Hogan hospitals.

In other business, commissioners approved Teri Quinones' request for posting a "kickoff renovation project sign" in front of the county courthouse annex.

Quinones, Big Spring's downtown coordinator, said the sign thanks commissioners for their reinvestment in the downtown area.

She said the county's remodeling of the former Woolworth's building "is a tangible result for surrounding property owners to see what historical renovation is all about."

She said the county commissioners are "the trendsetters" in renovating downtown.

In this afternoon's session, commissioners were expected to discuss financing work on Natural Dam Lake, which would prevent the danger of overflow and flooding in Howard County, Commissioner Bill Crocker said.

The lake is seven miles west of town.

Congress to resume tax revision talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress returns today from a two-week July Fourth recess to resume work on sweeping tax-revision legislation that members and Reagan administration officials expect to be sweetened for middle-income Americans.

The first step in the process, which lawmakers hope to complete by Labor Day, will be the appointment of House and Senate negotiators to resolve the differences in the tax bills passed by both chambers.

On Sunday, Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., and Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, predicted that once the conferees are selected and begin meeting, they will quickly produce a compromise to effect the most sweeping income tax code changes in decades.

Both also said on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley" that they thought the final product will address two issues attracting attention among middle-income taxpayers: the deductibility of sales taxes and contributions to individual retirement accounts.

The Senate tax-revision plan eliminates these popular writeoffs. The House bill retains them, but calls for higher overall tax rates on individuals and a bigger bite on corporations.

The chief House negotiator, Ways and Means Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., says he will be pushing for more relief for middle-income people and is trying to keep the rich from "getting the lion's share."

Top Reagan administration officials such as Donald T. Regan, the White House chief of staff, said last week the administration is prepared to give ground on sales tax and IRA deductions to save the Senate's lower overall rates.

And Treasury Secretary James Baker, also appearing Sunday on ABC-TV, said there is room for trading in the House-Senate negotiations, but he cautioned against taking too much away from business to help taxpayers in the middle, saying that could impair economic growth.

"Our position is, we would be willing to give on IRAs ... in order to preserve these low rates because on balance the low rates are more important than those other things," Baker said.

In other major business facing Congress, the Senate is still embroiled in controversy over judicial nominee Daniel Manion, whose confirmation is in a strange parliamentary limbo.

Manion was tentatively confirmed to a seat on the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on a 48-46 vote last month. But a series of vote switches and parliamentary maneuvers left the situation in doubt. Democrats, arguing that Manion is unqualified, will be pushing for another vote on the conservative attorney.

The Senate also faces a choice over whether to continue televising its floor proceedings.

U.S. scientists place monitors at Soviet site

MOSCOW (AP) — U.S. scientists have installed the first Western monitoring stations at a Soviet nuclear test site, but say they have no assurance of being able to record any blasts once a unilateral Soviet freeze on testing expires next month.

Thomas Cochran from the Washington-based Natural Resource Defense Council said Sunday his group last week positioned about a dozen seismic devices around the Soviet Union's primary underground test site in the rugged hill country of remote Kazakhstan.

The non-profit council and the Soviet Academy of Sciences agreed May 28 to set up three monitoring stations near the Soviet site and at least one near the main U.S. nuclear test site in Nevada. The U.S. government has not objected to the idea.

Cochran said U.S. scientists have no assurance from the Soviets that they will be allowed to monitor any test explosions from the three stations once Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev's unilateral moratorium on nuclear testing expires on Aug. 6.

The Natural Resource Defense Council has said the aim of the project is not to monitor nuclear tests, but to calibrate seismic instruments by keeping a watch on seismic conditions in the area.

"We will certainly be allowed to stay there after Aug. 6," Cochran said. "We'll have to see if we'll be allowed to record their tests or not."

"Either way, we'd know that a test occurred. What would be lost if we're not allowed to monitor a test would be additional interesting technical information that could be useful in further calibrating the site," Cochran said.

Both the Defense Council and the Soviets say the experiment should prove that a moratorium on nuclear testing can be verified by on-site monitoring equipment.

The United States has cited difficulties in verification as the prime reason for not heeding the Soviet call to join in the nuclear test ban.

The Soviet test site is about 1,800 miles southeast of Moscow near the Kazakhstan city of Semipalatinsk, in rugged grassland marked by small hills and gulleys.

Probe detects abuses in transplant program

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The nation's transplant system is plagued with abuses and loopholes, some of which warrant criminal prosecution, according to the director of an eight-month federal investigation of the program.

"We heard all these reports over the past year on isolated problems in transplantation and ... as it turned out, these isolated cases were manifestations of a much larger problem," said Richard Kusserow, inspector general of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

"The government system of audit, control and reimbursement is so loose that you could drive a Mack truck through it," he told The Pittsburgh Press.

The Press reported in a copyright story Sunday that the department plans to release later this week the first of five studies outlining the system's problems.

According to the newspaper, the department found that some doctors profited by pushing foreigners ahead of Americans on waiting lists for organs, while others benefited by keeping kidney patients on dialysis.

The Press also reported that the department has asked U.S. Attorney J. Alan Johnson of Pittsburgh to prosecute a Pittsburgh transplant center on charges of criminal wrongdoing.

Johnson acknowledged the request and said Sunday his office is reviewing the department's findings.

"Unlike Mr. Kusserow, we don't comment on criminal investigations, absent extraordinary circumstances, which this isn't,"

Names in the news

GREENBRAE, Calif. — JERRY GARCIA, lead guitarist for the Grateful Dead rock band, was awake and alert after coming out of a diabetic coma, hospital officials said.

Garcia, 43, was continuing to improve Sunday at Marin General Hospital, said nursing supervisor Elsie Cramer.

He was hospitalized for treatment of diabetes, an infection from an abscessed tooth and exhaustion after a tour, Band spokesman Dennis McNally and rock promoter Bill Graham said Friday.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — The original ALLMAN BROTHERS BAND played their hit "Ramblin' Man" in an emotional reunion at the Volunteer Jam concert.

The seven members of the rock 'n' roll band who had not played publicly together for about 10 years reunited for an hour of performing Saturday that was broadcast around the world by the Voice of America, the far-flung radio network of the United States Information Agency.

Their performance was the highlight of the 11-hour Volunteer Jam rock-country concert, presented by more than 30 entertainers.

The concert was taped by the ABC Entertainment Radio Network and by The Nashville Network, a cable television network.

BRYANT POND, Maine — Former U.S. Sen. MARGARET CHASE SMITH, who once worked as a telephone operator, sat at the switchboard again as she helped to dedicate a museum for telephone equipment.

EDDIE MURPHY
...receives death threat

Mrs. Smith, 88, recalled her high school and post-high school days in her Maine hometown when she was paid 10 cents an hour as an operator. "I really knew what was going on in Skowhegan," said Mrs. Smith, a Republican who served in the Senate for 24 years.

The western Maine village of Bryant Pond is believed to be the last community in America where the old magneto-style crank phones remained in use in 1983, the year they were swapped for a modern switching system.

"The cranks may have been yanked, but the equipment has been maintained," said Doris Stevens, president of the Independent Telephone Pioneers of America, one of the groups responsible for the museum dedicated Saturday.

PITTSBURGH — A weekend performance by comedian EDDIE MURPHY was delayed after his life was threatened by an anonymous caller, police said.

Up to 400 people were evacuated from the Civic Arena shortly after a receptionist received the telephone threat around 5:55 p.m. Saturday, said Police Chief William H. Moore. The show was scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m., and most of the approximately 7,500 ticket-holders had not arrived yet.

Moore said the caller, believed to be a middle-aged man, told the receptionist that, "If Eddie Murphy goes on stage tonight, he'll be shot. He might as well cancel the show, he's going to be dead anyway."

Murphy, who was not in the arena when the threat was made, went on with the show, just a little behind schedule. He did not acknowledge the threat on his life and instead offered his own explanation for the delay.

"I'm sorry I was a little late. I was in the back watching a porno movie," he told the cheering crowd.

Police spokeswoman Margaret Rizza said Murphy's life has been threatened in other cities on his current tour.

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. — WOODY HARRELSON, who plays a bashful bartender by the same first name on the television series "Cheers," was beaten along with his brother in a fistfight, police said.

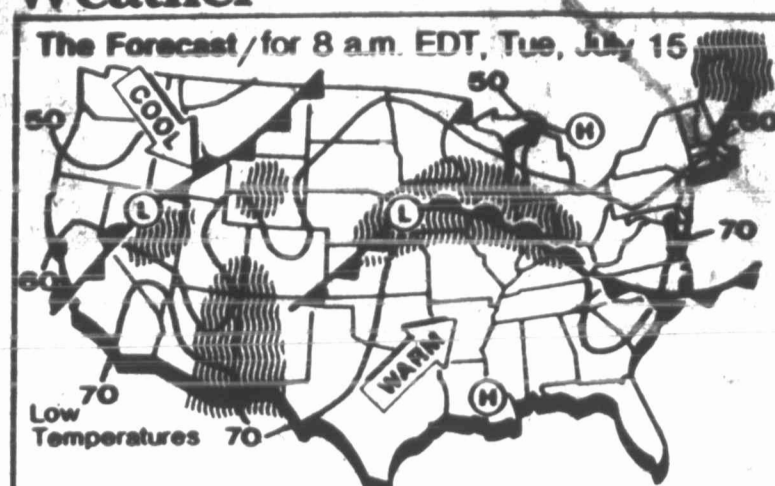

Harrelson, 35, was treated for facial injuries at Hilton Head Hospital and released, said rescue squad director Pat Lancaster.

His brother, Brett, 23, who was severely beaten, was treated for a fractured jaw, injuries to an eye and cuts on his face, Lancaster and a hospital spokesman said Sunday night. Further information was not available.

The Saturday night fight with the owner of a limousine service started over a disagreement about a fare, said Hilton Head Deputy Sheriff John Kistler.

Woody Harrelson, along with boxer Gerry Cooney, actress Lynda Carter and singer Donnie Osmond, were on the island during the weekend for the Gregg Russell Pro-Celebrity Offshore Powerboat Exhibition.

Forecast

West Texas: Widely scattered afternoon and evening thunderstorms, more numerous in the southwest. Little temperature change. Lows Panhandle in the upper 60s and highs near 90. Lows South Plains, Permian Basin, Concho Valley and far west near 70 to middle 70s and highs lower to middle 90s. Big Bend lows middle 60s in the mountains to middle 70s in the lowlands. Highs near 90 mountains to near 100 Big Bend valleys.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms developed over the Coastal Bend and Texas Gulf coastal waters early today, and forecasters expected additional rainfall later.

An isolated patch of fog shrouded the lower Rio Grande Valley, the National Weather Service said. Skies were mostly clear over North and Southeast Texas while high level cloudiness covered West Texas and the rest of South Texas.

Patchy low clouds dotted South Texas, the Rio Grande valley and the south plains as a high-pressure ridge over the Gulf pushed low-level moisture up across these areas.

Early-morning temperatures dropped into the 60s across the south plains and Trans-Pecos, with readings in the 70s most common elsewhere.

But isolated readings in the 80s were noted in North Central Texas and along the upper coast. Extremes were Galveston with the warmest at 83 and Marfa with the lowest at 63 degrees.

Southerly winds were dominant across the state at speeds generally in the 5 to 15 mph range.

Partly cloudy skies are forecast for most sections through Tuesday with widely scattered mainly afternoon and evening thunderstorms in the south and west.

Woman has quadruplets

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston woman, who took a fertility drug to help her conceive, gave birth to two-pound quadruplet girls Sunday, hospital officials say.

The four girls were born to Ruben and Irma Berner by Caesarian section at Hermann Hospital, and both mother and babies were in stable condition in the neonatal intensive care unit, hospital spokeswoman Rickie Rosenberg said.

Berner, 31 and Mrs. Berner, 29, had been told to expect a multiple birth, Ms. Rosenberg said. The girls are the couple's first children.

Transplants

Johnson told the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

Kusserow said the transplant field has grown so quickly during the past few years that "in some cases, it's fraught with abuses beyond the control of the national policies which govern it."

"It's these abuses that we must and will eliminate," he said. "We owe nothing less to the families who donate (organs) so the system can work."

The department's reports address the issues of foreigners receiving preferential treatment, patients being kept on dialysis even though they could receive kidney transplants, and the export of hundreds of U.S. kidneys for sale to patients at foreign hospitals, according to The Press.

The reports look at variations in fees charged for gathering kidneys and the overall cost effectiveness of the taxpayer-financed federal program, which pays for kidney transplants and dialysis, the paper said. The reports also address long waiting lists created by an organ shortage and the waste of organs, the newspaper said.

Nearly 100 of the 1,200 investigators and auditors assigned to Kusserow's office worked on the investigation, which involved transplant and organ procurement centers in 15 major cities, according to The Press.

The investigation is continuing, Kusserow said.

He said the Pittsburgh case is the first of several criminal prosecutions he will request from U.S. attorneys around the country.

If accepted for prosecution, it would be the first brought under the 1984 National Organ Transplant Act. The act forbids anyone to "knowingly acquire, receive or otherwise transfer any human organ for valuable consideration for use in human transplantation."

Violators face a maximum prison term of five years and a $50,000 fine.

"The transplant act is a new, untested law and therefore, it must be shown beyond a shadow of a doubt that someone really violated that law," Kusserow said. "But I can tell you that we have what we feel is a very strong package of evidence showing abuse of the transplant law ... in Pittsburgh."

Kusserow refused to identify the transplant center under investigation.

Presbyterian-University Hospital of Pittsburgh was the only transplant operation in the city when the HHS investigation began.

Presbyterian-University spokeswoman Ann Metzger said hospital officials have cooperated with department representatives requesting information.

Blaze guts mobile home

An early Sunday morning fire destroyed a mobile home south of Big Spring at Sterling City Route B Box 162.

No one was injured, but the Big Spring fire department set the loss of the trailer home owned by Kenny Duffer at $50,000.

Two city fire trucks responded to the blaze at 5:38 a.m. and arrived to find the home engulfed in flames, Assistant Fire Chief Burr Lea Settles said this morning.

Settles said the department had not determined a cause for the fire.

Hilly terrain blocks TV signal

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer
Big Spring's hills and valleys are preventing some local viewers from receiving TV station KPEJ, station management has concluded after a study of the situation.

Hills running north and south block the signal for those on the west side of the hills, said Michael Walenta, operations manager for the independent Odessa station.

Picture a garden hose on full strength spraying water over the top of the hill, Walenta said. Water will hit one side of the hill, but will miss the other side to land beyond it. That is what's happening with the KPEJ television signal, he said.

The UHF station began broadcasting a month ago out of Odessa and had anticipated Big Spring as a market. A signal study was undertaken when Big Spring viewers complained they were not receiving it.

The study, which took about a week, was done with a field strength meter that determines how strong a TV signal is in a specific area, Walenta said.

The information is then plotted on a map to determine the pattern of trouble spots, he said.

The only remedy would be to put the channel on cable TV, he said. KPEJ has approached Big Spring Cable with this desire, he added.

Cable systems manager Larson Lloyd has said the prospect has been discussed, but no decisions have been made.

No new channels can be added to cable TV without removing a station now broadcast, he said.

He said cable officials try not to take any channel off the air unless it proves unpopular, which has not happened with any channel now broadcast.

Lloyd added that he has gotten few calls from customers requesting KPEJ be added to the cable system.

Sheriff's log

Rooster reported stolen

Juan Arguello of Gail Route Box 275 told sheriff's deputies Sunday night that someone stole a rooster named Billy from his residence sometime between July 7 and July 13.

Billy is valued at $60, according to the sheriff's report.

Gary Anderson of Route 1 Box 384 told deputies Sunday night that someone burglarized his trailer house on Jalico Road, stealing $1,300 worth of stereo and personal items.

The burglary occurred between 3:30 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday night, according to the complaint.

Deputies recovered a motorcycle Sunday afternoon that Gale Kilgore of Terry Road in Sand Springs had earlier reported stolen.

The motorcycle was found on Interstate 20, east of Big Spring, according to the sheriff's report.

The theft occurred between Wednesday afternoon and Thursday night.

Daniel Ray Heckler, 33, of 2904 Stonehaven was arrested Saturday night by a Department of Public Safety trooper for fleeing from a Stanton police officer. He was released on $200 bond.

Mack Darnell of 301 N. First in Coahoma told sheriff's deputies Saturday night that someone siphoned $40 worth of gasoline from his pickup and stole $1,500 worth of tools between Thursday and Saturday.

The theft occurred while the pickup was parked at his residence.

A DPS trooper arrested Ronald Wayne Allen, 24, 1102 A Pennsylvania Saturday afternoon on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. He was released on $1,000 bond.

A DPS trooper recovered a vehicle Saturday afternoon that was reported stolen by the Ector County sheriff's department. The 1973 Chevrolet pickup, owned by Robbie Truelock of Odessa, was found abandoned at the intersection of Cauble Road and Interstate 20.

The installation of the seismic equipment marks the first time Western scientists have been allowed near the Soviet site or permitted to set up a monitoring station on Soviet territory.

Council chairman Adrian DeWind, in Moscow for a conference, said Sunday the Soviet government gave its official blessing to the project and that the State Department "has told us visas will be issued for the Soviet scientists to come to the United States."

Cochran said teams of seismologists and geologists from the University of California at San Diego brought in seismometers from the United States and installed them at three locations around the Soviet testing site in Kazakhstan.

The seismic stations are above-ground, he said, making them susceptible to interference from wind and movement of nearby trees.

The U.S. scientists plan to import more sensitive equipment to be installed in 300-foot-deep holes to reduce interference, Cochran said.

The scientists will calibrate the instruments to take into account local geological conditions and will measure earthquakes and other ground motion, Cochran said.

"Under a comprehensive test ban, one would want to set up perhaps 25 stations in the Soviet Union and similarly in the United States to monitor the entire country," Cochran said.

Police beat

VCRs stolen at Goodyear

Raymond Hattenbach of 2500 Carleton Drive told police Sunday afternoon that someone broke into the Goodyear store and stole four VCRs with a combined value of $1,675. The theft occurred between 1 p.m. and 4:45 p.m. Sunday.

Lawrence Lawson of 2107 Morrison Drive told police Sunday morning that someone stole his $600 1970 Ford, which contained $1,800 worth of hand tools. The car was stolen from outside his residence between 5 p.m. Saturday and 8 a.m. Sunday.

Joe D. Perez, 2206 Main St., told police Sunday that someone he knows struck him in the face and upper body and kicked him inside his home early Sunday morning. He was treated at Malone-Hogan Hospital for multiple cuts and bruises, according to police.

Bob Price, owner of Waterbeds Unique, told police Sunday night that someone caused $300 damage to a window at the store between July 3 and 8:30 p.m. Sunday.

Thomas Parras of 409 S. Benton St. told police late Sunday night that someone pointed a gun at him in the 600 block of W. 13th Street at 11:45 p.m.

Joe Rojo Buendia, 26, of 4202 Connally St. was arrested on local traffic warrants Saturday night.

Judge accused in child abuse scandal

B CYNTHIA BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A judge's arrest on a charge of sexually molesting another jurist's grandson at a conference on child victims may help focus attention on the "national scandal" of child abuse, judges said.

"The whole purpose of the conference is the issue of child victims of abuse. This certainly brings home the issue rather abruptly,"

Rhode Island Family Court Judge Thomas Fay, host of the conference, said Sunday following the arrest of Circuit Judge Jimmy Dean Sloan, of Anniston, Ala.

"If nothing else, this will help us focus on the issue and let people know this is a national problem," said Fay, the state Supreme Court chief justice designee. "We've been trying to explain to people that child abuse stretches across our society in equal percentages, from the educated to the uneducated, from the poor to the rich. There is no question about this, this is a national scandal."

Sloan, 42, was charged Saturday with first-degree child molestation for allegedly sexually abusing the 13-year-old grandson of another judge at a Providence hotel, state police said.

Sloan was released on $10,000 personal recognizance pending an Aug. 18 court appearance, according to Maj. Lionel Benjamin.

John Sheehan, a Providence attorney representing Sloan, said the judge is innocent of the charge but declined to elaborate. Sheehan said Sloan returned to Alabama on Sunday.

"He feels he'd be better off at home. He doesn't want to interrupt the conference and make a side issue of this," he said.

Sloan could be suspended or removed from the bench upon recommendation by an Alabama judiciary investigative panel, according to Kenneth Ingram, chairman of the commission.

Ingram said Sunday he would call commission members today to discuss whether they will investigate the charge immediately or wait until the case is resolved in Rhode Island courts.

According to Benjamin, the incident allegedly occurred about 10:30 p.m. Friday when the boy went to Sloan's room to ask for help in operating a television. Sloan allegedly forced the boy to perform oral sex, Benjamin said.

The boy was treated at Rhode Island Hospital and released. He was one of 40 children, ranging in age from 2 to 18, accompanying the 300 judges at the 49th annual conference of the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges. The meeting concludes Thursday.

Mother, son reunited

JEAN, Nev. — A mother and son who haven't seen each other for 25 years were reunited after he happened to get a job as a cook at the restaurant where she works as a waitress.

Bob Wright, 36, fought back tears as he told of the chance meeting Thursday with his mother, Clara Hunter, whom he hasn't seen since his parents were divorced and his father took his son with him.

"You don't know how great it feels to be able to call someone 'Mom' after 25 years," he said.

The reunion came hours after Wright began work as a cook at Whiskey Pete's Hotel and Casino, a popular stop near the California border some 40 miles southwest of Las Vegas.

18 hurt on jet flight

MIAMI — Two elderly women remained hospitalized today after being injured along with 16 other people when an Eastern Airlines jet bound from New York to Miami ran into violent turbulence.

The unidentified pilot hit the wildly irregular air currents Sunday while flying at 20,000 feet over West Palm Beach, and warned the 215 passengers to buckle their seatbelts, said Eastern spokesman Jerry Cosley.

But a few passengers said they didn't speak English and didn't know of the warnings.

Pepsi buys Seven-Up

NEW YORK — PepsiCo Inc., parent of the world's No. 2 soft-drink producer, said today it has bought the international unit of rival Seven-Up Co. from Philip Morris Cos. for $246 million in cash.

The company earlier had announced plans to buy both the domestic and foreign operations of Seven-Up for $380 million, but the Federal Trade Commission said it opposed the deal. Philip Morris subsequently ended that agreement.

PepsiCo said the purchase of Seven-Up's international operations, completed Friday, doesn't require government approval. Philip Morris still intends to sell Seven-Up's U.S. operations.

28 injured in wreck

BRINKLEY, Ark. — A tractor-trailer and a Trailways bus collided today on an interstate highway, and at least 28 people were hurt, officials said.

Details of the accident were not available, said Larry Gwyn, a state police dispatcher. He said it occurred at about 4:30 a.m. six miles west of Brinkley on Interstate 40.

There were no fatalities, said Alan Spears, administrator of Delta Regional Medical Center here. He said two of the injured were taken by helicopter to Children's Hospital and Baptist Medical Center in Little Rock and a third patient was flown to Baptist Hospital in Memphis.

An 86-year-old man was pulled from his downtown San Diego hotel room Sunday after the man was trapped most of the day beneath the books that fell on him when an earthquake struck about 6:46 a.m. Police said other residents of the hotel missed seeing the man and alerted authorities.

Elderly man hurt by avalanche of books

OCEANSIDE, Calif. (AP) — An avalanche of books buried and critically injured an elderly man and 14 others were injured when Southern California was jarred by the second big earthquake to rumble through the region in six days.

Residents along a 150-mile stretch of coast from San Diego to Oxnard swept up and assessed damage today.

"The way my bed was shaking it was like something out of 'The Exorcist,'" said Lorraine Jimenez, a cashier at an Oceanside market.

The man buried under the books, Anthony P. Cima, 86, who lived in a downtown San Diego hotel, was rescued by firefighters from beneath thousands of books that had been stacked floor to ceiling in his room.

He was in critical condition at University of California-San Diego Medical Center.

Meanwhile, a woman in the San Diego suburb of Chula Vista died of a heart attack that was thought to have occurred during the quake, officials said.

The quake, 5.3 on the Richter scale, was recorded at 6:46 a.m. Sunday. It was centered 28 miles southwest of Oceanside in the Pacific Ocean. Oceanside is 75 miles southeast of Los Angeles, but it was felt in Yuma, Ariz., 160 miles east of San Diego.

The tremor emptied shelves at several grocery stores, ripped an ornamental lion from a San Diego hotel and sent it crashing into a parked car, and damaged a terminal at Lindbergh Field, San Diego's airport, where hairline cracks were reported in walls.

The runways, however, suffered no damage and service continued uninterrupted.

Authorities estimated non-structural damages at $500,000, San Diego County Disaster Preparedness officer Lois Clark McCoy said Sunday.

"We have no reports of structural damage as yet, but we anticipate that that will change when people go to their workplaces (today)," she said.

The earthquake was the largest recorded quake in modern history in the immediate area offshore from the San Diego metropolitan area, said Jackie Parker, spokeswoman for the Scripps Institution of Oceanography in La Jolla. She said the previous record in that area was magnitude 4.3 on July 7, 1984.

No damage was reported in Los Angeles, but fire companies were put on an earthquake alert for an hour. Engine companies left their firehouses and parked equipment outside, away from tall buildings and walls.

On July 8, a quake 12 miles northwest of Palm Springs measured 5.9 on the Richter scale. It caused an estimated $5.75 million damage and injured 40 people. Numerous aftershocks, some measuring as high as 4.0 on the Richter scale, have jostled the area since then.

California Institute of Technology spokesman Dennis Meredith said the Oceanside quake was unrelated to the Palm Springs quake since they took place on different faults.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs.

Israel raids guerrillas

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Israeli fighter-bombers dodged surface-to-air SAM-7 missiles to demolish Palestinian guerrilla targets in the hills southeast of Beirut today, and officials said two guerrillas were killed and 12 were wounded.

The Israeli action was in apparent retaliation for pre-dawn rocket attacks on northern Israel.

Police and the Red Cross reported the casualties in separate communiques issued shortly after the 30-minute raid near the Druse towns of Aitah, Baysour, Shimlan and Ainab.

The attack, which began at 10:50 a.m., was staged by a squadron of 10 F-15 and two Phantom F-4 fighter-bombers in the central Lebanese mountain range overlooking Beirut, police said.

Vietnam names leader

BANGKOK, Thailand — Truong Chinh, a 79-year-old hardliner, was today named to head Vietnam's Communist Party, succeeding Le Duan who died last week, the Soviet news agency Tass reported from Hanoi.

Chinh is chairman of Vietnam's State Council and after Le Duan's death ranked No. 1 in the party's ruling Politburo.

Bomb blast kills eight

MADRID, Spain — A car-bomb exploded at rush hour today alongside a bus carrying civil guards through a residential Madrid neighborhood, killing eight of the paramilitary policemen and wounding at least 35 people, officials said.

The blast bore all the earmarks of ETA, the Basque separatist organization, police said, and was the most serious attack carried out by the group since it began its campaign of killing police, civil guards and military officers in 1968.

Shortly after the explosion at Dominican Republic square about three miles from the center of the capital, angry crowds gathered at the site littered by twisted metal, shards of glass and mangled cars and shouted anti-government and anti-ETA slogans.

Explosions hit Lisbon

LISBON, Portugal — An explosion at the Lisbon home of an army officer killed two youths early today, while four pre-dawn bombings in two district capitals damaged property but injured no one, authorities said.

"Right now, it looks like they were handling explosive material and it went off," police inspector Isidro Basofia said of the two people killed at the apartment of army Lt. Col. Joao Eduardo Miranda Relvas. He dismissed earlier reports a propane gas bottle blew up.

Police identified the victims as Joao Manuel Miranda Relvas, son of the army officer, and a friend, whose name was withheld pending notification of his family.

Troops hunt kidnappers

ZMBOANGA, Philippines (AP) — Soldiers searched a southern Philippine island today for a U.S. missionary and 10 Filipino nuns kidnapped by armed Moslem bands, but reported no contact with the missing or their abductors, an army official said.

Brig. Gen. Pedro Balbanero, deputy chief of the army's Southern Command, said officials also appealed to residents of Marawi, considered the capital of the Philippines' 5 million Moslems, for assistance in finding the 11 people kidnapped in separate incidents on Mindanao island.

The American missionary, Brian Lawrence, 30, of Madison, Wis., was abducted from his dormitory room at Mindanao State University in Marawi Saturday night.

Carol Ann Lawrence, the Protestant missionary's wife, was able to hide in a cabinet in the room before the kidnappers, about 20 heavily armed men, entered and dragged her husband away, Balbanero said.

On Friday, the Roman Catholic nuns, members of the Carmelite order, were abducted from their hilltop convent about two miles from the university, Balbanero said.

Witnesses said they saw armed men lead the nuns — the mother superior, six nuns and three novices — from their convent and take them away on two motorboats.

Balbanero, who is based in Zamboanga, 170 miles northwest of Marawi, told reporters the military has sent out five small teams of soldiers to hunt for the kidnappers and their victims. One army battalion is on standby, he said.

In addition, the governor of Lana del Sur province has asked the province's 37 mayors and their police chiefs to join the search, Balbanero said.

Many blacks stay away from South Africa schools

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Thousands of black students in some townships stayed away from school today while other areas reported normal attendance as the nation's 7,000 black schools reopened under tough security rules.

Meanwhile, black trade unions staged a national "Day of Action" that leaders said would include work slowdowns and sit down strikes to protest the detention of union leaders under the state of emergency imposed June 12.

In Durban, the Metal and Allied Workers Union argued in Natal Supreme Court today that the emergency decree was invalid.

As black schools reopened for the new term, a share of the 1.7 million students, especially in major cities, stayed home in a renewal of the protests that have disrupted black education for two years.

Most high schools in Soweto, Johannesburg's black township, and in the Alexandra ghetto were nearly deserted, residents said.

The government said official attendance figures would not be available until late in the day.

Sister plans trip for hostages

BATAVIA, N.Y. (AP) — The sister of an American journalist held hostage in Lebanon said she would make public and private appeals for the release of all hostages there while on a visit to Greece.

Peggy Say, sister of Terry Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, said she was invited to Greece by Margaret Papanreou, wife of premier Andreas Papanreou. She said she planned to depart today, accompanied by Charles J. Lewis, Washington bureau chief for the AP.

Mrs. Say said she talked to Mrs. Papanreou by telephone for a half-hour Friday.

Asked of her hopes for the trip, Mrs. Say said Saturday, "I think basically the families are pretty burnt out, myself included." However, she said she was acting on a promise made to her father and another brother, both of whom died earlier this year, that she would do all she could to free Terry Anderson.

She said the purpose of the trip is to appeal for the release of Anderson and all other American and foreign hostages in Lebanon. She said she hopes to get messages from hostages' families to the captors and receive word from the captives in return.

Anderson, 38, has been held for the past 17 months. The four other Americans missing in Lebanon are the Rev. Lawrence Martin Jenco, 51, a Roman Catholic priest; David Jacobsen, 54, director of the American University Hospital; Thomas Sutherland, 54, acting dean of agriculture at the university; and William Buckley, 57, a U.S. Embassy political officer.

Mrs. Say said Mrs. Papanreou has been holding "high-level meetings with influential people" about the release of the American hostages, but she said she could not identify those involved. She also said she could not identify the people she hoped to meet in Greece.

"We will be discussing methods and possible expansion of the trip when we get to Greece with the contacts aside from Mrs. Papanreou," she said.

She said her trip will last at least a few days. She also said she had no plans to travel to Lebanon.

Tape tour may help economy

A new cassette tape tour of Big Spring and the surrounding area might do a lot for the community — perhaps more than what some people might expect.

It offers a driving tour covering 50 miles, beginning with downtown at the Potton House, and including nearby lakes. The nearly half-hour tape is the product of brainstorming and research by members of the Chamber of Commerce Convention and Visitors Bureau, and a few local history buffs.

The tape is punctuated by sound effects, interesting historic sidelights about the people and places of this area, plus information on the animals and plantlife.

Narrated by Bob "Tumbleweed Smith" Lewis, the tape is the ideal tool to persuade visitors to lengthen their stay in Big Spring — particularly when no special festivities are scheduled.

A day-longer stay by each visitor would have a tremendous effect on improving the local economy.

Perhaps more important, the tape might do much more to build pride in the community among local citizens, including many who may not be aware of the attractions on the tape. That seems likely because it's not unusual to talk to a longtime resident who hasn't even visited the Potton House.

Copies of the tape will be available for rent or purchase at the chamber.

The question, of course, is: How many residents will take advantage of the service and what the tape has to offer?

But if each person who uses it tells others, perhaps it will have a mushrooming effect similar to the early chain letters.

Hymnal committee angers membership

The United Methodist Church has learned that the elitists on its hymnal committee are out of touch with church members.

The committee initiated a huge controversy when it decided on May 17 to take the traditional hymns, "Onward, Christian Soldiers" and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," out of its next hymn book. The 25-member panel reasoned that the songs were too "militaristic."

Not so, responded many members of the 9.4-million-member denomination.

Carlton Young, editor of the hymnal, noted that angry callers clogged phone lines at the United Methodist Church headquarters so thoroughly that church officials couldn't make an out-going call for 10 days.

Only about 40 of the more than 8,000 cards, letters and petitions sent to church headquarters agreed with the hymnal committee's decision. We're surprised it was that many.

Believes picture was warranted

To the editor:

I am writing this letter on behalf of the Summerfest team, the Jailbirds, sponsored by Danny's Bail Bonds (Danny Heckler), which captured the first place award for the second straight year.

Anyone who visited the Summerfest July 4th knows that it was blistering hot and that all of the teams spent from 7:30 a.m. until approximately 6:30 p.m., when the mud-pull was over, at the Dora Roberts Community Center.

My congratulations and utmost respect goes to all of the teams that participated in this very enjoyable and very difficult event. But my disappointment goes to the Big Spring Herald for not complimenting the Jailbirds, which won by an overwhelming score, with their picture in the newspaper.

Last year, after the Jailbirds received the first place award and no picture was in the Herald, we understood. But two years in a row is no coincidence.

Could it be that this newspaper may in some way be prejudice to our team for some reason? It is a senseless shame that the entire team who worked so hard to win should suffer because of this prejudice.

We are proud of the Summerfest, the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center for putting this event on, and our first place victory. As for the coverage by the Big Spring Herald, it was very, very poor.

Contracts can work better for feminists

By STEPHEN CHAPMAN
Marriage always has been regarded by some feminists as an oppressive invention. It was a Faustian bargain imposed by a patriarchal system.

In exchange for financial security denied by a discriminatory marketplace, marriage chained women to home and children.

With the women's revolution, all this was going to change. Anti-discrimination laws and a new self-reliance were expected to ensure women financial independence, making marriage a union of equals. The advent of laws making divorce easier to get was welcomed as a blow for freedom and equality, providing a sure refuge to women trapped in bad marriages.

But for most women, the change turned out to be no bargain.

The old laws required one partner to show that the other had committed a serious offense — adultery, physical violence — that made the marriage untenable. Spouses who merely wanted out of a miserable relationship often had to lie to get permission.

But the old laws at least usually gave the decisive leverage to the wronged party. If an innocent wife found herself abandoned by an unfaithful husband, she could demand a high price to let him have a divorce.

In these cases, a rough justice was served: In return for the career she had sacrificed to raise children and run a household, the injured wife would be assured of a decent financial settlement.

Justice, however, was less certain in cases where the wife was the victim of poor treatment by a husband who didn't want a divorce. There the villain would hold the high cards, forcing the wife to choose between escape and financial security.

But in money terms, women have done worse under no-fault divorce.

Stanford sociologist Lenore Weitzman, in her book "The Divorce Revolution," reports that "divorced men experience an average 42 percent rise in their standard of living in the first year after the divorce, while divorced women (and their children) experience a 73 percent decline."

The problem lies in the way assets are allocated. Courts may divide physical property equally, but they ignore the different earning capacities of the spouses. A man who has devoted 20 uninterrupted years to his career is probably at the peak of his earning power. A woman who left the labor force 20 years ago and re-enters in middle age starts at the bottom.

The wife also is likely to get custody of any children, meaning her financial obligations will exceed her ex-husband's. She may be owed money for child support, but in most cases she won't get it. Weitzman says that of the fathers ordered to support their children, fewer than half fully comply.

The answer isn't to restore the old approach. It had plenty of flaws, too. Weitzman and others propose sensible changes in the law, particularly to ensure more equal financial settlements, and stricter enforcement of child support orders.

A better route is marriage contracts — voluntary agreements that spell out in advance how, in event of divorce, the partners will divide their assets, both tangible and intangible.

If enforced by the courts, these could provide more reliable protection against the uncertainties of marriage. They also could facilitate agreement between spouses on decisions of great long-term importance — career interruptions, investment in education, responsibility for child-rearing.

Unlike the existing system and its predecessor, they provide wives both a needed escape route and a shield against penalty. For the modern woman, they could be a vital insurance policy.

Opposing party fighting Mexican state voting fraud

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — A traditional morale booster among Indian braves heading into battle was: "Today is a good day to die."

Their latter-day cousins south of the border who have run Mexico's ruling PRI party since 1929 have a less honorable, if more politically pragmatic, tradition: Stay in power any way you can; lie, cheat and steal, but win the elections at any cost.

There's little reason to suppose that they are not now using that dubious tradition as the "vote count" continues today in the border state of Chihuahua.

The opposition National Action Party, commonly known as PAN, has predicted the customary electoral chicanery, and made plans to prevent it.

PAN fielded candidates in all 608 municipalities of Chihuahua, and took steps to have observers at every polling booth to "try to ensure that residents do not vote more than once and that ballot boxes are empty when the polls open," as the Mexico City News explained.

These tactics — the blunt instruments of electoral fraud — are not the wild imaginings of a paranoid opposition. Even when their candidates were favored to win, according to intelligence sources, PRI bosses have resorted to a whole arsenal of dirty tricks to achieve overkill at the polls.

For example:
• Hundreds of teachers have stuffed ballot boxes the day before an election. Complaints, and sometimes riots, have been initiated when voters who waited hours to cast their ballots early found that the boxes were too full to hold even the first votes.

• Many known or suspected PAN supporters went to vote on election day only to be turned away because their names had mysteriously disappeared from the registration lists.

• Bottles of indelible ink that are supposed to be used to mark the thumbs of departing voters have been found unopened. This meant that PRI supporters were allowed to vote repeatedly — sometimes with the bizarre result that the vote total exceeded the entire population of the municipality.

• The drawn-out vote-counting process gives the best opportunity of all to rig an election. Opposition observers simply are ejected forcibly from the polling places by police.

No less a figure than the Catholic archbishop of Chihuahua, Adalberto Almeida y Merino, has spoken out this time in a pastoral letter denouncing vote fraud — while carefully not mentioning the PRI by name.

Electoral fraud, the archbishop told his flock, "emerges not only in falsification of votes, but also in all those reproachable methods that lead to weighting the results in favor of one party, going over the head of free elections by citizens."

President Miguel de la Madrid's vaunted "moral renovation" has been unable to curb the excesses of regional PRI bosses. Indeed, the CIA has concluded in a secret report that while de la Madrid did win the 1982 election, his majority wasn't what he and the PRI claimed.

On the other hand, the CIA also doubts that PAN, which was officially credited with only 16 percent of the vote, got the 46 percent it claimed.

What was the actual result of the 1982 election?

Our sources in Mexico say the PRI keeps two sets of books: the publicly announced official vote count and the true, untampered count (which it needs to gauge the depth of popular opposition). Figures reportedly slipped out of the high-level military office, where the second set of books is kept, showed that PAN had won 32 percent of the vote — an astonishing show of strength, but close to the CIA's estimate.

One of the most outrageous thefts of an election in recent years was the 1985 gubernatorial race in Sonora, where the popular mayor of Ciudad Obregon, Adalberto Rosas Lopez, seemed a good bet to win for PAN. So PRI officials simply charged him with vague crimes and convicted him.

They didn't quite dare put him in jail, and finally let him run in the election. But the PRI candidate won, and PAN claimed fraud.

MINI-EDITORIAL: There's been a lot of handwringing among professional viewers-with-alarm over the Garbage Pail Kids bubble-gum cards, those gross and disgusting cartoon collections that have caught the fancy of little stickies nationwide.

Ban them, the alarmists cry, before America's children are hopelessly corrupted.

We have more faith in 6-year-olds, and are confident they'll outgrow the fad.

Meanwhile, we'd suggest a more fitting candidate for clucking: the new Christian Dior perfume called Poison. That strikes us as sicker than any Garbage Pail Kid.

What does Dior plan next? Radiation? Toxic Waste? Attar of Swill?

Spartacus ready to fight abuses in nursing homes

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest the letter from "Helpless," who said she couldn't send gifts to her mother in a nursing home because they would be stolen. The management claimed that this was beyond their control and they could not be responsible for it, since it was "standard."

This is a lie. Theft is not a normal part of the aging process. The trauma for anyone to have a wedding ring stolen can be considerable. For an elderly widow or widower, it can be devastating. Unfortunately, theft is the least of the abuses that occur in nursing homes. Once you accept theft as "normal," it is easier to accept bedsores, rapes and broken bones from beatings as "normal."

I learned a great deal about nursing homes while doing research for "Amos," a television movie. I was horrified at the real-life abuses I discovered and spoke up. I received a flood of letters from the nursing home industry, vilifying me personally and telling me that I didn't know what I was talking about. I also received hundreds of heartbreaking letters from people who had had hideous experiences with nursing homes.

I turned some of these letters over to the authorities, and one — a murder — to the police.

Answering all that mail was difficult. It was like writing hundreds of condolence letters. I got a small taste of what it must be like to be Dear Abby. I respect your stamina.

Dear Abby

"Helpless" said that her mother was "attached" to some of the staff. Of course she was attached to them; she's dependent on them. But they are stealing from her.

Over an 11-year period, a trusted woman employee embezzled $173,000 from 32 elderly servicemen living at the U.S. Soldiers' and Airmen's Home in Washington, D.C.

Of course there are some good nursing homes. My mother, at her own request, spent her last seven years in one, and she was very well-cared for. But you don't have to be related to a movie star to be well-cared for. The non-profit nursing home where we filmed "Amos" had an excellent reputation, but it also had a three-year waiting list. I am sure those who operate good nursing homes are not happy about those in their profession who break the law and pass it off as standard industry practice.

"Helpless" is not helpless. Nursing home records are open to the public. Before deciding on a nursing home, you should go to your local department of health and ask to see the state inspection reports of the facility you are considering. These will include any complaints and fines for violations.

If you have a problem with a nursing home, contact the state ombudsman through your state's Department of Aging; he or she will refer you to the local ombudsman. This is a federal program in every state set up specifically to investigate and resolve complaints in nursing homes and in board and care homes. Many of the ombudsmen are volunteers — retired nurses, doctors or pharmacists. They do it because they care. They are confidential and discreet. In some states, such as California, not allowing the ombudsman into a nursing home is a crime.

The last week in June was "Elder Abuse Awareness Week" in Los Angeles. We need a "National Elder Abuse Awareness Week" — 52 weeks a year.

Making the public aware of a bad situation is the only way to change it. Thank you, Abby, for bringing this hidden horror to light. You may use my name.

KIRK DOUGLAS

DEAR MR. DOUGLAS: Thank you for an excellent, informative letter and kudos for caring enough to write.

(If you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say, send your name and address with a check or money order for $2.50 and a stamped (20 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letters Booklet, P.O. Box 30822, Hollywood, Calif. 90032.)

Heel spur a sign of inflammation

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Last summer my doctor diagnosed heel spurs and recommended padding for my shoes. After experimentation, I finally found running shoes with replacement insoles. I've tried various over-the-counter remedies. Aspirin helps the pain, but I try not to take it regularly. I've gained weight, partially because of forced inactivity, and that makes things worse. What type of doctor do I see to have inserts fitted for my shoes? Does diet affect heel spurs? What about calcium? — J.I.M.

A heel spur is a sign that something has irritated the plantar fascia, a sling of tough tissue that extends from the heel along the bottom of the foot. Your body laid down deposits of calcium as a protection. That's the calcium part of the problem, and it has nothing to do with the calcium you eat. Diet has nothing to do with heel spurs. And it isn't the spur that causes the pain, but the inflamed tissue I mentioned. You have to rest your heel. The padding will help. If you've been using foamed rubber kinds, switch to quarter-inch felt pads instead. You can find them in any drugstore. (The foamed rubber is too compressible and doesn't absorb pressure well.)

The warm soaks you've been using (another part of your letter) are fine. Soak in warm water three to four times a day. That and sufficient rest should bring improvement.

You've suffered a long time with this painful situation and to the point that it's interfering with your health. I'm speaking of your weight gain. It's one of those vicious circles — pain/inactivity/weight-gain/more pain. You had better go back to that doctor. You may need special anti-inflammation drugs, or perhaps even cortisone injection into the pain area. Custom-fitted insoles are a great idea. A podiatrist or an orthopedist might help you.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Recently, I had a urine specimen analyzed via a mail order laboratory. All findings were normal, except they said "occult blood" was present. What is occult blood, and what does it signify? How serious could this be? I am no longer menstruating? I was advised to consult a physician, but have not done so. I would appreciate your opinion. — K.C.

I wrote about occult blood recently, but for your special circumstance, I'll go over it briefly.

Occult blood means blood that cannot be seen by the eye. The urine looks normal and it's not blood tinged. But when you view a drop of it under a microscope, as they did in the laboratory, you see red blood cells.

So what does it mean for you? When you see those cells, you have to look for troubles in the urinary tract. Cancer, while it is far from being the most common cause of occult blood, is the most serious one, so you have to follow up to be certain it's not a factor. That's why you were advised to consult your doctor.

Don't be frightened. Just be prudent and do that. Most often, such a finding turns out to be nothing of significance. It might have been a transient irritation. Or it might have been an infection you had at the time. It may never show up on a repeat urine inspection. But the fact remains that you got this finding. Now you have to follow up on it.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: You mentioned sulfites as one trigger for a person's asthma attacks. Can one be tested to see if one is a person who reacts this way to sulfites? — Mrs. Y.H.

Yes, there are ways to test an individual for such a reaction. The test has to be done by a person experienced in this field, for it is not without dangers. If you speak from a personal experience, I suggest you see an allergist, who can tell you whether you react adversely to this substance.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am controlling my high blood pressure with medicine. My fear always has been of stroke. Will my blood pressure control make a stroke less likely? — J.D.

Evidence is overwhelming that controlling high blood pressure does significantly lessen the chance of having a stroke.

There's an old saying — If your feet hurt, you hurt all over. Dr. Donohue's booklet, "Relief and Care of Your Feet," shows you how to avoid and take care of foot problems. To get your copy, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and $1.00.

Dollie Kitterman, above, sits in front of her home near Cayuga, in East Texas, with a book she used to prepare for the General Education Development exam. Kitterman, 82, passed the exam in June, making her a high school graduate.

East Texas woman follows a long trail to education

CAYUGA (AP) — It's been a long, busy trek for Dollie Kitterman. From growing up in the cotton fields of northeast Arkansas to bringing up eight children in Grainola, Okla., to later visiting American cities coast to coast, Mrs. Kitterman has done and seen a lot of things most people only read about.

But because of her busy life, there was one thing she never got a chance to do — until this summer. Last month, Mrs. Kitterman passed her General Education Development (GED) exam and qualified for high school diploma.

Mrs. Kitterman is 82 years old. "I'm kind of proud of myself," she said, "At first I didn't want to do it but my son got me interested and the rest of my children were really enthusiastic."

As a young girl growing up in Arkansas, she hardly had time for school because she had to work in the cotton fields to help support her family.

When she was 17, her family moved to Osage County, Okla. There she discovered she was two grades behind everyone else.

"My dad wouldn't let me go back to school. He said I had enough education."

However, a short time later, she got a job as a cook at the local high school.

"I thought, 'with this job, I'll be able to go to school in the afternoons.'"

But between cooking, serving meals and washing dishes, she soon found she didn't have time to attend classes.

Shortly afterward she got married and before long, Mrs. Kitterman had a family of her own. Her hopes of getting a high school diploma were all but forgotten.

But in the fall of 1985, her son Charles, who lives in Fort Worth, rekindled that interest when he brought her a GED workbook so she could study for the test.

"I thought, 'this is going to be quite a challenge' and I decided I wanted to do it."

She began studying in November and was ready to take the exam in March. But she was told the wrong testing date, she said, and when she arrived at the Palestine Middle School testing site, she discovered the exam had already been administered.

Disappointed but undaunted, Mrs. Kitterman went back to the school in June and passed the exam with flying colors.

In fact, when her scores were compared to all other Americans taking the GED on those dates, she scored in the 88 percentile range on the social studies section. That means only 22 percent of those tested on those dates did better than Mrs. Kitterman.

What makes her performance even more remarkable is she did not attend any GED preparation classes.

Upon the advice of a neighbor who taught classes at the Texas Department of Corrections prison units, Mrs. Kitterman chose to study at home and forgo the structured class environment.

"I found out I could have passed the test without the book," she said. "I managed to send all my children through high school and I was able to help all of them with their lessons. I'm sure that helped, too."

Mrs. Kitterman said she is also an avid reader, especially of historical novels.

"My favorites are old English historical novels. You can't read books without learning something."

Her diploma should arrive from Austin in another three to four weeks. When it arrives, she said she plans to frame it and hang it on her wall — just like any high school graduate.

She said someone asked her if she felt any smarter since she passed her GED test.

"I told them I was so smart I could hardly stand myself," she grinned.

SOME PEOPLE BUY AIR CONDITIONERS LIKE THERE'S NO TOMORROW.

When it's time to replace your old air conditioner, it'll probably only take you a little while to find a new one that looks pretty good and doesn't cost much. But it'll take a lot longer to realize a quick bargain is likely to cause a slow burn on your wallet every month.

A high-efficiency air conditioner could make a difference in your cooling costs this summer and every summer. A high-efficiency choice means steady savings because you're getting the same amount of cooling using less electricity than with a low-efficiency unit. On top of this, you'll get a valuable rebate from your electric company if your central air conditioner or window unit meets our Energy Action standards.

See your recognized Energy Action air conditioning contractor or dealer for help in choosing a high-efficiency air conditioner or heat pump. Tomorrow, you'll be way ahead of the game.

Hot check warrants on rise

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's depressed economy is being blamed for an increase of more than 50 percent in the number of hot check arrest warrants being issued, officials said.

One Houston police precinct has served more than 9,000 fraudulent check warrants in the first half of this year, an increase of 53 percent over the same period last year, said Lt. Tommy Burnup.

Burnup said most of those coming through his office are first-time offenders who never have had trouble paying their bills.

"More people are hitting on hard times," Burnup said. "These people are not the professional hot check writers. Most of these people have not had trouble with hot checks before."

Don Chumley, chief of a precinct warrant division, said his office has issued 51 percent more warrants for fraudulent check writers during the same period in 1985.

"This is the biggest number it's ever been in this short period of time," he said.

His precinct has issued more than 32,000 fraudulent check warrants so far this year and a total of 71,000 in the past two years, he said.

Chumley blamed the area's economy, devastated by the collapse of oil and gas prices, for much of the increase.

Man electrocuted in pool

DALLAS (AP) — A 29-year-old man swimming in his apartment's pool was electrocuted when a wet towel that fell on exposed wires sent a charge into the water, officials say.

James Dennis Whittle of Dallas was apparently electrocuted Sunday afternoon by wires leading from a broken underwater pool light, said a fire department investigator who declined to give his name.

Power to the fixture had been disconnected, but when a wet towel came in contact with some bare wires outside the pool, the circuit was completed and current shot through the water, he said.

"I was sitting there with my girlfriend when I heard him holler," said Cliff Parker, 28, Whittle's roommate.

Parker said he ran over "and then I felt the electricity in my legs, and I said, 'My God, what's happening?'"

No one else was injured in the accident, officials said.

Court overturns conviction

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A military appeals court found insufficient evidence in the case of a Wilford Hall Air Force Medical Center resident accused of sexually assaulting a female patient and overturned his conviction.

The lawyer for Maj. Michael W. Beasley says his client served eight months of a three-year sentence at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. John Economidy said Beasley will be freed from prison this week. "They cannot prosecute him further," Economidy said. "He goes free."

Lt. Col. Bruce DeBey, a member of the judge advocate's office at Lackland Air Force Base, said Saturday that the Air Force could try Beasley again on the charge. DeBey said no decision had been reached on whether to pursue the case.

Residents return to normal lives

GILMER (AP) — Residents here and in neighboring East Texas communities used the weekend to recover from the fear that stalked their towns when escaped murder suspect and convicted rapist Jerry Walter McFadden eluded authorities.

Some, angered by McFadden's criminal record and his escape from the Upshur County Jail here, thought he should feel lucky to be alive.

"I think they ought to have scattered his brains," said Bobby Burgin, a sales clerk in Big Sandy where McFadden was captured Friday night. "It would have saved us a lot of money."

The 32-year-old McFadden, who calls himself "Animal," made his break by knocking out a deputy with a steel bar he had pried loose from his cell window and by taking another deputy as hostage whose car he used to get away.

The escape sent 200 law officers through wooded areas, accompanied by bloodhounds, three aircraft, men on horseback and volunteers.

Residents in Hawkins, about 20 miles southwest of Gilmer, were particularly unnerved by McFadden's escape. He has been charged with murder in the slaying of Suzanne Harrison, 18, a Hawkins woman found raped and strangled after going on a lake outing with two friends, who also were found dead.

"This brought it all back," said Mary Ann Harrison, the slain woman's mother. "I see his ugly picture on TV and just want to throw up."

Mrs. Harrison had been so frightened by the news of McFadden's escape, she went to stay with a relative in Big Sandy.

McFadden surrendered to officials Friday night in a vacant home in Big Sandy, about five miles east of Hawkins. The home was not far from the railroad barcar from which county Sheriff Williams escaped from jail when Thursday night.

He was returned to the Upshur County Jail late Friday as scores of residents gathered outside the courthouse.

On Saturday, Mrs. Williams, her husband and her 4-year-old son rode in a parade in Gilmer before a rejoicing crowd celebrating her escape and McFadden's recapture. But Mrs. Harrison was not part of the celebration.

"I hate Gilmer and Upshur County. That's where they found Suzanne," she said.

Mets get best report card at midterm

NEW YORK (AP) — If statistics are for losers, why are the New York Mets 20-25 at the All-Star break?

The Mets lead the National League in runs, homers, batting average and earned run average, and have four starting pitchers who could become the first quartet in NL history to win 20 games in one season.

As a result, the Mets lead second-place Montreal in the NL East by a whopping 13 games, the largest advantage at the All-Star break in the major leagues since divisional play started in 1969, eclipsing Cincinnati's 12½-game advantage in 1975.

As with most outstanding teams, the Mets' success starts with their pitching. Their top four starters — 1985 Cy Young Award winner

Dwight Gooden, Sid Fernandez, Bob Ojeda and Ron Darling — all have at least nine victories and an earned run average under 3.00.

Fernandez is 12-2 and 2.67, Gooden 10-4 and 2.77, Ojeda 10-2 and 2.24 and Darling 9-2 and 2.84.

Fernandez and Gooden both were selected for the All-Star team, joining starting fan selections Keith Hernandez, Gary Carter and Darryl Strawberry.

The 1920 Chicago White Sox and 1971 Baltimore Orioles were the only teams in baseball history with four 20-game winners. Both of those teams essentially worked with four starters, while the Mets' starting foursome has had Rick Aguilera or Bruce Berenyi working on the fifth day.

Two men new with the Mets have a unique ability to compare the current Mets and the 1971 Orioles. Manager Dave Johnson was Baltimore's second baseman in 1971 and Mets General Manager Frank Cashen was formerly an Orioles executive.

"The pitchers match up pretty well," Johnson said. "But the Baltimore pitchers were older than my pitchers and they were in a four-man rotation. They won 20 by being in a four-man rotation."

The Orioles, who finished 101-57 in 1971, 12 games ahead of second-place Detroit, had Dave McNally finish with 21 victories and Jim Palmer, Mike Cuellar and Pat Dobson with 20 each. All were established veterans, while only Ojeda of the Mets foursome has more than three years of major-league experience.

"The feeling was similar to what it is here; any or all of the four were capable of winning 20," Cashen said. "To say we anticipate our guys winning 20 would be incorrect. You know each one is capable of doing it, but you don't know if they will."

Johnson is giving no consideration to giving his Big Four more starts. On the contrary, he has high hopes for Aguilera, who allowed only five hits in seven innings Saturday for only his second victory.

"After yesterday, we know we have five starters," Johnson said Sunday. "We swept Atlanta in a four-game series and didn't use our No. 1 pitcher (Gooden)."

While Mets pitching is giving up barely three runs per game, the hitters are scoring nearly five per outing and are the only team in the majors that hasn't been shut out this season.

Len Dykstra, Kevin Mitchell and Wally Backman, all of whom are platooned, are hitting .349, .342 and .330, respectively. Strawberry is at .298, Ray Knight at .291 and Hernandez .284, while the team as a whole is leading the NL at .267.

Some of the Mets' success has been attributed to their deep bench. Only Hernandez has 300 at-bats as Johnson plays checkers with the batting order and defensive alignment almost daily.

The Mets are 35-11 with Rafael Santana as the starting shortstop, 13-7 with Howard Johnson at that position and 11-7 with Mitchell, a rookie who has played five positions, playing there.

Three LL games on tap tonight

Two of the four remaining undefeated teams, Big Spring American League and Odessa North East Texas, will collide tonight at International League Park.

In loser's bracket games, Midland Tower will face Midland Eastern at American League Park, and Odessa Alamo will play Midland North Central at National League Park. All games begin at 8 p.m.

Holifield 'Okay' after post fight hospital night

ATLANTA (AP) — Although it took Evander Holyfield a night in a hospital to recover from severe dehydration, he said winning the junior heavyweight championship in his hometown was a bit like his victories in the 1984 Olympics.

"It inspired me when I was running out of wind," said Holyfield, the first member of the 1984 Olympic team to win a professional boxing championship. He did it Saturday by taking a 15-round split decision from Dwight Muhammad Qawi in Atlanta's Omni for the World Boxing Association crown.

Saturday was the first time in 12 pro fights Holyfield went more than eight rounds. Afterwards, he checked into Crawford Long Hospital complaining of a severe headache, and it took nine quarts of fluids to rehydrate him, according to his personal physician, Dr. Ronald Stephens.

Holyfield lost 15 pounds during the fight, mostly in body fluids, Stephens said. Normally in a tough boxing match, damaged or dead cells release waste products which are expelled by the kidneys, the doctor said. But because of Holyfield's dehydration, his kidneys were unable to release the waste.

"If you don't get it cleared," Stephens said, "the kidneys will shut down." However, after a night of treatment, Holyfield was released Sunday.

"I feel good," Holyfield said Sunday, resting quietly at his College Park condominium. "I feel great."

Fuzzy roars back in front of home fans

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Midway through the final round of the $500,000 Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic, Fuzzy Zoeller looked up at the leaderboard and spotted the one ingredient necessary for him to win the tournament.

"Nobody was moving," said Zoeller, who began Sunday's play at three under par, five shots behind the leaders, and had moved to six under after nine holes.

"Nobody was going anywhere, so I figured if I just played my game, try to make a few birdies on the back nine, maybe eight under might win," Zoeller said. "That's what I was trying to shoot at was eight under. Then I got the ball close a couple of times and I went right by eight under."

Zoeller put together four more birdies on the back nine and finished the tournament with a 274 total, 10-under-par and two strokes ahead of second-place finisher Jodie Mudd.

"You're never dead. Five shots is not that much if you can get a little momentum," Zoeller, who earned $90,000 for his third victory of the year and 10th of his 14-year career, said. The purse boosted his 1986 earnings to $332,883.

Joey Sindelar was third at 277 after a 67 Sunday.

In fourth place, another stroke back, were Scott Hoch and Mac O'Grady, the winner last week at Hartford. Both shot 67s Sunday.

Zoeller's 7-under-par 64 came during a final round in which most of the leaders faltered under the humid, windy conditions on the 6,776-yard Kingsmill Golf Club course.

Third-round leader Richard Zokol, who was eight under after a third-round 67, swelled to a 79 Sunday and finished 10 shots behind Zoeller.

Also at 284 was Kenny Knox, who was tied with Mudd at six under after Saturday's play but closed with a 77.

"I've been flirting with a good round all week," Zoeller, who posted earlier scores of 70, 68 and 72, said. "I'm not really one of those guys that goes out and shoots a real low number, like I did today at 7-under-par. Even though it is in my golf bag, it just doesn't happen that often."

Zoeller birdied the par-4 first hole and both par 3s on the front side. He hit a pitching wedge to within three feet for a birdie on the par-4 11th, followed that with an 18-foot birdie putt on the par-4 12th, and added birdies at the par-4 14th and the 506-yard 15th.

The 427-yard 16th hole provided Zoeller his stiffest challenge of the day. After putting his drive into the woods, Zoeller decided against pitching onto the fairway for an unobstructed approach in favor of trying to blast the ball straight through the trees to the green 225 yards away.

"It went right through a gap between some little trees and right over the big trees," Zoeller said. "It was the kind of shot I play every day."

The ball landed on the green, Zoeller two-putted from 35 feet and parred the final two holes for the victory.

"It was not a great shot by any means," Zoeller said, "but it was one of those shots that, if you want to win a golf tournament, you've got to hit it."

Mudd, a winless four-year professional who shared the lead after the first and second rounds, closed with a 69.

"I gave it all I could today," Mudd said. "I just came up short."

Fuzzy Zoeller, of Williamsburg, Virginia, smiles as he walks towards his final putt on the 18th green during final round action of the Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic at the Kingsmill Golf Club in Williamsburg on Sunday. Zoeller won the $90,000 first prize with a 10-under-par 274.

This graphic shows the history of wins between the American and National Leagues since 1933. Graphic at upper right shows the official logo for the 1986 All-Star game to be held in the Houston Astrodome Tuesday.

HOUSTON (AP) — The American League is breaking out a new set of sluggers for the All-Star Game. Still, that may not be enough inside the Astrodome.

"This is a pitcher's park. It always has been," says Houston's Mike Scott, a member of the National League staff.

"Nobody hits well here," says starting NL third baseman Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia.

That was never more evident than the last time the All-Star Game visited Houston. In 1968, an AL lineup featuring Harmon Killebrew, Carl Yastrzemski and Frank Howard was held to three hits in a 1-0 loss.

On Tuesday night, rookies Wally Joyner and Jose Canseco will help the AL try to reverse a trend that has seen it lose 13 of the last 14 meetings and fall behind in the series 36-19-1. They'll have to do it against Dwight Gooden & Co. inside a place considered the worst hitter's park in the major leagues.

"You can throw a lot more strikes here," Scott says. "You don't have to be as fine. Unless you're facing a Mike Schmidt or a Dale Murphy, you don't have to worry as much about throwing a 3-1 pitch over the plate."

Home runs have been more frequent at the Astrodome since they pulled in the fences a couple of years ago. But, the slash-and-run style, something associated with NL ball, has always worked better than the hit-and-trot, an AL characteristic.

The top sluggers at the All-Star Game this year once again belong to the AL.

Canseco, an Oakland outfielder who is a reserve, leads the majors with 23 homers. California's Joyner, who will start at first base, has 20.

Starting catcher Lance Parrish of Detroit and reserve outfielder Jesse Barfield of Toronto have hit 21 each. They will be joined by Jim Rice, Don Mattingly, Cal Ripken and Dave Winfield.

Houston's Glenn Davis, a reserve first baseman, is the only player in the NL with 20 home runs this season. Schmidt is second with 18.

But, as the AL has found out all-too-often, big numbers do not win this ballgame. So what is the key ingredient?

Some say pitching. NL staffs led by Fernando Valenzuela and Gooden have held their rivals in check the past two years.

Others say attitude. After last season's game — a 6-1 victory for the NL in Minneapolis — several players on the winning side said their approach was more intense.

"It just seemed like in the National League, the teams were more enthusiastic. I don't know what to attribute that to," says San Diego reliever Rich Gossage, who worked the final inning of the last two All-Star Games for the NL. Gossage, not on the staff this season, pitched twice for the AL with the New York Yankees.

January wins Greenbrier tourney

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP) — Don January tapped in a 1-foot par putt on the first playoff hole Sunday to defeat Jim Ferree and capture The Greenbrier-American Express senior tournament for the second straight year.

January shot a final-round 1-under-par 71 to finish at 9-under-par 207. Ferree, five shots back when the final round started, put together a 6-under-66 that included a hole-in-one on the 177-yard third hole.

Soper leads Austin Open bowling

AUSTIN, (AP) — Two-time champion Butch Soper moved in front of the field by seven pins after the second round of the $115,000 Austin Open Sunday night.

Soper, of Los Angeles, averaged 227.5 for the first 12 games and had a pinfall total of 2,731. First-round leader Randy Pedersen missed a 10-pin his final frame of the night and fell to second place with 2,724.

Angels whip Red Sox before All-Star siesta

By JONATHAN VITTI
AP Sports Writer

The California Angels and the Boston skies added a stormy conclusion to the Red Sox's fair-weather first half.

Boston reached the All-Star break leading the American League East by seven games, but not before absorbing a 12-3 defeat Sunday at the hands of the West Division leaders.

After the game started, it rained Angels hits — 17 in all. Before the game, it rained rain. The game started almost three hours late and was played on a soggy field.

"That long rain delay at the start could have hurt," Angels Manager Gene Mauch said. "It's not easy for the players when their emotions are toyed with and they have to hang around for two or three hours like that. You don't know if you want to play or go home or what."

Dick Schofield homered and drove in three runs. Brian Downing hit a two-run homer. Doug DeCinces and Bobby Grich singled in two runs each.

The Red Sox countered meekly with five singles, a double and three walks. John Candelaria and Doug Corbett shut out Boston until the score was 10-0.

Schofield's homer was controversial at the time. The umpire said it hit the light tower in left, a home run. The Red Sox said it hit the top of the wall, a double. The hit made the score 2-0; 10 runs later, it was a less inflammatory topic.

"I'll always love this ballpark," Schofield said. "Not just because of that light tower, though. When my dad played for the Red Sox, I used to come here every chance I got," he recalled.

California reached the All-Star break with a 48-39 record, 1½ games ahead of Texas in the West. The 56-31 Red Sox, who are 34-15 against the West, didn't get that way by beating up on the Angels, who have won five of their nine games with Boston.

In Sunday's other AL games, Detroit beat Kansas City 5-0; Minnesota shut out New York 5-0; Oakland downed Texas 10-5; Chicago defeated Baltimore 7-0; Texas beat Cleveland 10 innings, 5-3; and Milwaukee blanked Seattle 5-0.

Candelaria, who had bone chips removed from his left elbow on April 16, has yet to allow a run in 10 1-3 innings since coming back. He gave up two singles and three walks in 5 1-3 scoreless innings Sunday.

"Candelaria's been a winner all his life, so it's hard to anticipate less than he gave us today," Mauch said. "A little later on in the season, when he's ready, he's going to be a big help."

Bobby Grich singled in California's first run against Boston starter Jeff Sellers, 3-4, in the second inning. Schofield hit his seventh homer in the fourth and his two-run double in the sixth made the score 4-0.

Downing made it 6-0 in the seventh inning with his 10th homer of the year, then the Angels scored four times in the eighth on two-run singles by Gary Pettis and DeCinces.

During the rain delay, AWOL pitcher Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd visited the Boston clubhouse and apologized to his teammates for his walkout, the Red Sox said. He will rejoin the team after the All-Star break. His three-day suspension concluded Sunday.

Tigers 5, Royals 0
Jack Morris threw his second straight shutout and fourth straight complete game with a four-hitter. He struck out a season high 12 batters and walked only two. Every man in the Royals batting order went down on strikes at least once.

Morris, 9-6, has thrown 22 consecutive scoreless innings.

"Jack's really got it going now," Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson said. "He just mastered them today. They never really had a threat all day. I hope the All-Star break doesn't slow up his momentum. If he continues like this we'll beat a lot of people the second half."

The world champions finished the first half of their season with a disappointing 40-48, fourth-place record. Kansas City's rookie starter, Scott Bankhead, dropped to 3-3 after winning his first three decisions.

Kirk Gibson and Lou Whitaker homered for Detroit's first four runs. Gibson hit a three-run homer in the third; Whitaker homered with the bases empty in the fifth. Alan Trammell's second double of the game drove in a run in the ninth.

Twins 5, Yankees 0
Bert Blyleven pitched a three-hitter for Minnesota's first shutout of the season. The Twins had lost five straight games, giving up 40 runs in the span.

Blyleven, 8-8, threw his 52nd career shutout as he ended the Yankees' four-game losing streak. He struck out eight and exceeded 100 strikeouts in a season for the 16th time in his 17-year career. He pitched his sixth complete game of the season for the Twins.

"Hopefully a game like today will get us over the hump," Blyleven said. "It's a good win for me and for the entire pitching staff. Hopefully all our pitchers will relax now and go out and pitch their games."

Roy Smalley homered for Minnesota and Greg Gagne drove in three runs, two with a triple and one with a single. Smalley, who had three hits, hit his 15th homer of the season in the first.

A's 10, Blue Jays 5

Mike Davis' triple sparked a five-run seventh as Oakland batted around and took advantage of a two-out error to score the inning's last two runs. Toronto first baseman Willie Upshaw dropped a throw from third base as the A's rallied, turning a 4-3 deficit into an 8-4 lead in the inning.

Mickey Tettleton singled in a run in the eighth, then Jose Canseco added his league-leading 23rd homer in the ninth.

"It's been a pretty good season, so far," said Canseco, headed for the All-Star game in his rookie season. "You just use your talent and let whatever happens, happen."

Tony Phillips homered for Oakland. George Bell hit his 17th homer of the year for Toronto.

White Sox 7, Orioles 0

Ivili Allen, 5-1, pitched a five-hitter in his first complete game since 1983, when he was with the St. Louis Cardinals. He struck out four Orioles, walked one, and allowed only one to reach third base.

Joel Skinner hit a three-run homer into the upper deck for Chicago. Greg Walker tripled twice for the White Sox and scored each time. Julio Cruz singled in two of Chicago's runs.

Rangers 5, Indians 3

Larry Parrish singled home the tiebreaking run in the 10th inning and a groundout by Steve Buechele brought Gary Ward in with an insurance run.

Mitch Williams, 7-1, pitched two innings in relief for the victory.

Geno Petralli and Ruben Sierra homered consecutively for Texas in the seventh. Brook Jacoby hit a ball 410 feet for his 11th homer in the fourth.

Brewers 5, Mariners 0

Rookie Juan Nieves pitched a four-hitter, striking out a season-high 12 batters, and Rob Deer hit a three-run homer, his 16th, as the Brewers broke their seven-game losing streak. Nieves, 8-3, threw his third shutout of the season, taking the American League lead. He walked five batters in completing his fourth game.

The 12 strikeouts was Milwaukee's team high for the year.

Milwaukee rookie pitcher Juan Nieves reacts after getting the final out Sunday night against Seattle at Milwaukee County Stadium. Nieves held the Mariners to four hits in the 5-0 victory. He also struck out 12.

Giants want to return to Big Apple

Because that's where the NL playoffs will be in September

By HESCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Giants, who left New York after the 1957 season, may be returning to the Big Apple ... for the National League playoffs.

The San Francisco Giants and the Mets, the team that brought National League baseball back to New York four years after the Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers went west, headed into the three-day All-Star break as division leaders although the Giants' are just one game ahead of Houston in the NL West.

The Mets? Their 13-game bulge in the NL East is the largest since divisional play began in 1969 and, says Atlanta Manager Chuck Tanner, "The only way they could lose this year is to have four of their starters break their arms."

One of those starters, Ron Darling, scattered nine hits Sunday as the Mets completed a four-game sweep of the Braves, 2-0. Montreal, a distant second, had its game with Cincinnati suspended by rain just after the Reds had taken a 3-2 lead in the top of the sixth. The game will be completed in Cincinnati on July 24, with Montreal as the home team.

The Expos have all but conceded the division race. "It's going to take a heavy-duty collapse by the Mets," Manager Buck Rodgers said. "We are not in a good position."

The Giants, meanwhile, are in their best position since 1978, the last time they led the division at the All-Star break. They trounced Pittsburgh 11-4 while Houston was losing to Philadelphia 5-4 in 11 innings.

The Giants, who haven't finished higher than third since winning the division title in 1971, were expected to be also-rans after a last-place finish a year ago, 33 games in arrears and a franchise-record 100 losses.

"I'm not surprised," Manager Roger Craig said after a 16-hit attack buried the Pirates. "I felt we'd be up there all along and I feel we'll be even stronger in the second half."

In other NL games, San Diego whipped St. Louis 13-6 and Los Angeles nipped Chicago 4-3.

The amazing Giants — sorry about that, Mets — got some unexpected punch from reserve first baseman Harry Spilman, who drove in four runs with a double and homer. Rookie Randy Kutcher and Chris Brown also homered and Mike LaCoss allowed three runs and five hits in seven innings.

Kutcher triggered a three-run first inning against Rick Reuschel with his sixth home run in just 24 major-league games. Spilman doubled home the final run of the inning and hit a three-run homer in the third. Brown homered in the eighth after Candy Maldonado's RBI single in the seventh tied the Giants' single-season record of 14 pinch hits by Duane Kuiper in 1982. "We looked up at the scoreboard and saw that Houston lost," Brown, who had three hits and is hitting .338, said. "Everyone felt an emotional high."

"This is a team game and all I've seen is everyone contributing in some way to our success," Craig added. "I really don't see any major disappointments but I'd like to see more consistency in our starters and relievers."

"But we've got to be doing something right. We're in first place and we haven't had a long losing streak. I felt all along that we'd be in contention. I scouted the National League all last year and I didn't see anyone that great in this division."

Mets 2, Braves 0
Darling got offensive and defensive support from center fielder Len Dykstra, who tripled and scored in the first inning and homered in the sixth after throwing out the potential tying run at the plate in the top of the inning. Loser Doyle Alexander allowed only two other hits.

"I remember having a hot streak like this once in the Carolina League, but I've never hit for power," said Dykstra, who is hitting .349 for the season and .643 (18-for-28) in his last seven starts with two homers, six doubles, a triple and seven RBI. "I just know I'm seeing the ball well, utilizing the foul lines and finding the holes.

The homers? They're just lucky." Atlanta, which has lost nine of 10 games, was blanked twice and outscored 28-2 during the four-game sweep. One of the Braves' two runs was unearned and they managed only 25 hits in the four games.

Phillies 5, Astros 4
Mike Schmidt hit his second home run of the game and 47th of his career in the top of the 11th inning off Houston relief ace Dave Smith. Schmidt also hit a three-run homer off Bob Knepper in the sixth inning and leads the NL with 66 RBI. Houston's Glenn Davis, the league home run leader, hit his 20th in the fourth inning.

"Home runs are hard to come by here (the Astrodome) but I shot straight today," said Schmidt, who will be the NL's starting third baseman in Tuesday night's All-Star Game in the Astrodome. "I got that last home run off a good pitcher, too. I went up there looking to hit a home run and win the game early in the at-bat. But after I missed a fastball by a yard and fouled a couple off I was just trying to get a hit."

Philadelphia pitcher Kent Tekulve, who has never started a game in his 11-year major-league career, pitched one inning and broke the NL record for relief appearances when he appeared in his 820th game. Tekulve erased the record of 819 set by Roy Face while pitching for Pittsburgh and Mon-real from 1953-1969.

Reds 3, Expos 2
Kurt Stillwell singled home a run to give Cincinnati the lead shortly before the game was suspended by rain with the bases loaded and one out in the top of the sixth.

Padres 13, Cardinals 6
Marvell Wynne had three RBI and three hits, including two doubles, while Steve Garvey had two hits during a seven-run fourth inning, San Diego's biggest of the season. Trailing 2-1 entering the fourth, the Padres scored the tying run on a bases-loaded wild pitch by loser Tim Conroy. Two runs scored on a throwing error by St. Louis second baseman Tommy Herr, then winning pitcher LaMarr Hoyt and Kevin McReynolds had RBI doubles and Garvey capped the outburst with a two-run single.

Dodgers 4, Cubs 3
Alex Trevino hit a two-run double off relief ace Lee Smith with two out in the bottom of the ninth inning, the first time in 35 games this season the Dodgers won a game in which they trailed after seven innings.

Steve Sax started it with a single and Ken Landreaux walked but Mike Marshall grounded into a double play. Len Matuszek walked before Trevino doubled off the glove of left fielder Jerry Mumphrey. Marshall hit a two-run homer in the fourth inning and Keith Moreland drove in Chicago's three runs with two doubles.

Women's U.S. Open headed for playoff

KETTERING, Ohio (AP) — The champion of the 41st U.S. Women's Open golf tournament was either a professional who didn't pick up a golf club until she was 17 or a seasoned veteran of competition on three continents.

The title was to be decided today in an 18-hole playoff.

Jane Geddes, a late-blooming 26-year-old who has never won a professional tournament, and Sally Little, struggling against illnesses and injuries which have stifled a promising career, were the only players left in the chase for the title after 72 holes over the 6,243-yard, par-72 NCR Country Club layout.

At stake was the $50,000 first prize and the most prestigious championship in women's golf.

Both players finished the rain-plagued 72-hole tournament Sunday with 1-under-par 287 totals. Geddes had a final-round 69 and Little shot a 70 to set up their head-to-head meeting.

"I'll just go out and play the golf course the same way I played it today and the same way I played it all week," Geddes, who didn't play golf competitively until she was 17 years old, said Sunday. "I'll keep the same plan and whatever happens, happens. It all comes down to who makes the most birdies."

Geddes, who has never participated in a playoff before, is winless in her four years on the LPGA Tour.

Boxing subs faring well at Goodwill

MOSCOW (AP) — One American fighter says the Soviet crowds at the boxing competition at the inaugural Goodwill Games don't like the U.S. team. The American coach, however, is quite pleased with the results of his depleted team.

"We feel we're doing a real good job so far," Coach Roosevelt Sanders of Colorado Springs, Colo., said Sunday after Americans had won five of 10 bouts. "In a lot of cases, we've been doing a lot better than I hoped for."

Sanders could not have hoped for much prior to the start of these multi-sports games when his team lost nine fighters because of a ruling by the Pentagon that barred competition by members of the military.

One of the boxers advancing into the semifinals Sunday was substitute welterweight Ricky Royal of Washington, D.C. Royal's 4-1 decision over Lukas Simola of Mozambique in the 147-pound class was unpopular with the fans.

"I don't mind if they like me or not," Royal said. "It just depends on what you do in the ring. They don't like the U.S.A."

The other American boxers who won quarterfinal fights were light middleweights Michael Moorer of Monessen, Pa., and Mylon Watkins of Tacoma, Wash., lightweight Romallis Ellis of Ellenwood, Ga., and flyweight Arthur Johnson of St. Louis.

The left-handed Moorer, an 18-year-old high school senior, scored the tournament's only knockout so far, flooring Makoko Matiko of Tanzania at 1:32 of the first round.

"I knew I was ready for the bout, but I didn't expect this," Moorer, the American Champion at 156 pounds, said.

Watkins stopped Rosen Ibishev of Bulgaria in the third round when the Bulgarian coach threw in the towel. Ellis scored a 5-0 decision over Jose Luis Perez of Venezuela in the 132-pound class and Johnson, the American champion at 112 pounds, outpointed Hamilton Rodriguez of Brazil, 5-0.

U.S. gymnast Tim Daggett takes a spill off a Soviet-made horse during team competition at the Goodwill Games in Moscow. The American squad finished fifth in the contest won by the Soviets.

Substitute fighters Terrence Southerland, a lightweight from Cincinnati, Ernesto Chavez, a welterweight from Garden Grove, Calif., and light flyweight Ysaías Zamudio of Blythe, Calif., were among the American fighters that lost. The others were light flyweight Ruben Navarez of Wichita Falls, Texas, and featherweight Vernon McGriff of Buffalo, N.Y.

Today was an off-day for boxing, and the semifinalists in the 139- and 178-pound classes will be decided Tuesday.

Meanwhile, the United States collected silver medals in platform diving and water polo, and one bronze medal in freestyle wrestling, for a total of 93 medals, including 31 golds, during the first 10 days of the games. The Soviet Union continued its march toward the overall title, earning golds in all four medal events Sunday. The Soviets now have won 132 medals, 51 gold.

In platform diving, Dan Watson of Ashland, Ky., finished second to the Soviet Union's Sergei Gurylev, 609.30 points to 593.34. Watson said a couple of "shaky dives" in the late rounds cost him a shot at the gold.

In water polo, the Soviet Union and United States finished 1-2, as the Soviets defeated the Americans 10-5 in the gold-medal match. The Soviets took a 6-0 lead and never were threatened by the American team, which included six members of the 1984 Olympic gold medal team.

"They caught us off guard in the first half," American goalie Craig Wilson, of Davis, Calif., said. "This is the best lesson we could have had to help us qualify for the (1988) Olympics."

The United States must finish in the top six at the next world championships to qualify for the draw for the 1988 Olympics.

In freestyle wrestling, the United States, led by Olympic medalists Mark and Dave Schultz, of Palo Alto, Calif., defeated Mongolia 8-2 for the bronze medal. The Soviets trounced Bulgaria 10-0 for the gold.

The Soviets got their other gold in men's gymnastics, capturing the team title with 290.15 points. East Germany was the runner-up with 284.95, and the United States was fifth with 281.70.

Zola Budd barred from Commonwealth Games

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) — The Commonwealth Games, already deep in controversy over the withdrawal of five African nations, has suffered another setback as South African-born British athlete Zola Budd and Annette Cowley have been barred from taking part.

The Commonwealth Games Federation, in an apparent effort to persuade other nations to ignore the spiraling boycott, ruled Sunday that Budd, a runner who has had a storied past on and off the track, and Cowley, a swimmer who competes for the University of Texas, were ineligible under the Commonwealth Constitution to compete for England in the 10-day event to be held in Edinburgh, Scotland, beginning July 24.

The decision on Budd, who has been the object of a number of demonstrations in the past, and Cowley followed an earlier announcement Sunday by Tanzania that it was joining Nigeria, Kenya, Ghana and Uganda in boycotting the games because of Britain's refusal to support economic sanctions against South Africa's white-led government.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, speaking before the Tanzanian withdrawal, defended her stand against mandatory sanctions.

Budd learned she was barred from the games while on her way home from a village fair.

"I am really disappointed," she said. "I really looked forward to it. But I had prepared myself for the decision. I did not really know it was going to run."

In a television interview with the British Broadcasting Corp., British Sports Minister Richard Tracey said many athletes, black and white, had told him they were "very, very unhappy at the use of the Commonwealth Games in a political way."

Cowley, a 19-year-old freestyle swimmer, inherited British nationality through her mother on her 18th birthday. She bought a home in England last year but rarely lives there since she studies at Texas.

Ex-Longhorn QB attempts comeback — in baseball

AUSTIN (AP) — Former University of Texas quarterback Donnie Little, whose pro football career ended with a knee injury in Canada, is working toward a professional baseball career.

Little batted .400 and pitched two no-hitters at Dickinson High School, but he did not play baseball again until recently signing on with the semi-pro Austin Collegiates.

At age 25, he has a lot of improving to do and not much time to do it.

"You can tell he hasn't played in a long time," said Charlie Smith of Austin, an Atlanta Braves scout.

"But he's definitely a gifted athlete. He's awful quick for a guy who's 6-foot-2 and 195 pounds. He has to really focus on baseball if he really wants to try to make a career out of it."

"He's got to do a lot and do it quick," he said.

Little said football and spring practice kept him from playing baseball for the Longhorns.

"I wanted to play, but being a quarterback, having to devote so much time to football," he said.

"With the position I played, I just don't think (football Coach Fred Akers) would be too liberal with me."

Little wrapped up his college grid career in 1981 as a wide receiver, a move some thought would help his chances.

But he was not drafted by an NFL team, and was cut after the Atlanta Falcons brought him in as a free agent. He later played for Ottawa in the Canadian Football League and caught 46 passes for 753 yards in 1983 before the knee injury.

So now Little plays semi-pro baseball. He also is taking a Spanish course and working for a heavy equipment company. He is a semester short of credits needed for a degree.

The ex-quarterback's first semi-pro hit, a clean single to left, came in a recent game. He is playing the outfield.

"The shame is he didn't play baseball when he was at Texas," said Smith, the Braves scout. "He just has to swing and swing and swing and swing."

Little knows the road to pro baseball is long.

"I'm out there to have fun. Nothing is guaranteed. If I had gone out for baseball in college, who knows? If someone came to me seriously and wanted me to consider it, with a decent contract, I would devote my time to it and polish my skills," he said.

Part owners seek to sell Cowboys' share

HOUSTON (AP) — Two owners of the Dallas Cowboys say they have retained a Houston man, who engineered the $72 million sale of the New Orleans Saints, to sell their 10 percent of the team, the Houston Chronicle reported.

"When we bought into the Cowboys, we were very interested in being a part of a group that would keep the ownership within Texas," said Brad Camp, who along with Foster Yancey, want to sell their share of the team.

"We thought the Cowboys were a good investment, and we bought them with the intention of selling them later. We think this is the time. We were honored to be part of the group that Mr. (Bum) Bright put together," he said.

Camp and Yancey are partners in a Dallas development business and each owns five percent of the team. They were part of the group, headed by Bright, that purchased the Cowboys in 1984 from Clint Murchison Jr.

Thomas C. Thompson, who spent almost two years working on the purchase of the Saints by John W. Mecom, said the Dallas businessmen contacted him six weeks ago about the sale.

"I guess they thought I did a good job with the Saints," Thompson said Friday. "We sat down and discussed how they wanted to go about it. I'm sure they want to keep the sale within Texas."

"We've had a couple of inquiries, and the other stockholders know Brad and Foster are interested in selling. I'm sure the partners have a last-look provision, but so far none has stepped forward," he said.

Thompson doesn't anticipate the Cowboys sale to take as long as the Saints.

"I think it should be easy to sell 10 percent of the Cowboys. I think it'll go pretty fast. More people want to buy 10 percent of a National Football League team than there are 10 percent of the ownerships available. There's something about the Cowboys mystique that makes this type of deal exciting."

Thompson said Mecom is not interested in buying into the Cowboys, however.

Bright is the largest single stockholder in the Cowboys, owning 17 percent. Ed Smith of Houston and J.L. Williams of Dallas own 15 percent each. George M. Underwood Jr. of Dallas owns 10 percent and his son, George M. Underwood III, has a 5 percent interest. There are five other owners, including Yancey and Camp.

The $80 million price tag for the Cowboys when they were sold in 1984 was the largest ever paid for a sports franchise. The $60 million broke down as $60 million for the club and $20 million for the right to run the lease at Texas Stadium in Irving.

Memorial held for Giant great Spider Lockhart

NANUET, N.Y. (AP) — Friends and former teammates of Carl "Spider" Lockhart remembered the New York Giants defensive back at a memorial service in Rockland County.

Lockhart, the NFL club's No. 3 all-time leading pass interceptor, died at a New Jersey hospital of cancer last Tuesday. He was 43.

During the ceremony Sunday at the Redeeming Love Christian Center here, ex-Giants coach Allie Sherman told the story of how Lockhart was given his nickname at his first training camp.

He said the North Texas State graduate was thought to be too small to play professional football despite his 6-foot-1, 170-pound physique.

Sherman remembered the late Giants defensive secondary coach Emlen Tunnell saying that Lockhart, "claws and he fights his way to the receiver and he spins that web around him." Hence the nickname "Spider."

Former Giants quarterback Fran Tarkenton also attended the memorial service.

A 13th-round draft choice of the Giants in 1965, Lockhart played cornerback his first year and then switched to free safety, where he became one of the NFL's most ferocious hitters.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JULY 15, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until noon you have a good chance to work out conditions with other persons and the only thing you need to watch carefully is a chance of misunderstandings.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) State what your public aims are. The evening is best for handling small personal tasks.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) There are several ways of getting ahead faster with work awaiting you. The evening should go smoothly.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan creative and romantic activities. Tonight you can handle those that require extra efficiency.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Show that you are loyal to your mate and have that necessary talk with a family tie.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Make sure you handle a matter very well, even though it requires much thought. Entertain nicely at home tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Go after the advice you need where money is concerned. Get your environment spanking clean.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Use that special charm you possess and get rid of that tiresome sinful situation that has been bothering you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Do whatever will help your mate out of a dilemma during the morning and later enjoy your friend's company.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Look to a good pal for assistance with a problem difficult for you to solve. Plan new actions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study well how to improve your position with the general public. Have fun with friends tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Gain more outside prestige. Make fine new contacts. Gain the approval of your employer tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Give attention to business affairs. Make interesting new contacts. Please your mate in a special way.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will want to be co-operative with others but teach early to study the motivations of others and to understand every detail of whatever project is assumed since the interest here could be a superficial one. Give as fine an education as you can afford.
