Murders go before grand jury

By SCOTT FITZGERALD

Staff Writer Evidence gathered from two murders and an attempted murder were among 29 cases presented Tuesday morning to Howard County grand jurors.

They were expected to issue judgments late this afternoon.

The case load includes the sexual assault and slaying of 81-year-old Ara Erline Bohannon, who was found bound and gagged in her 1106 Howeli Lane home May 23.

Police arrested Andy Guzman, 20, 1501 Stadium Ave., and Joseph Gilbert Garcia, Jr., 18, 510 Donloy St., in connection with the murder. Assistant District Attorney Robert Morris said grand jurors would be asked to return an indictment on capital murder charges.

According to state law, a capital murder sentence can result in life imprisonment or death.

Grand jurors also were scheduled to hear evidence about the April 10 shooting death of 24-year-old Disidoro Canales Jr. of 800 Willia

According to police reports, Ricky Ornelas, 23, 503 N.E. 10th St., was arrested in connection with the murder after witnesses told police they saw a young man with a gun flee the scene on foot.

Canales was pronounced dead by Justice of the Peace Willie Grant at the murder scene outside 408 S.

She ruled that he died from multiple gunshot wounds.

Evidence concerning the attempted murders of Raymond Calderon, 40, 1512 Harding St., and Enrique Calderon, 32, 501 Abrams St. also was to be presented to grand jurors this morning. The two were shot on Easter Sunday at Comanche Trail JURY page 2A

Visitors Bureau has new director

By SPENCER SANDOW

Staff Writer Big Spring has a great potential for tourism, says Elizabeth A. Taylor, new executive director for the Convention and Visitors Bureau and the Cultural Affairs Council, divisions of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce. "There's a lot of enthusiasm and excitement in Big Spring," she said in a telephone interview this morning. "I'm excited about that. I see Big Spring as a growing part of West Texas.

Taylor, executive secretary of the Denton Convention and Visitors Bureau, will begin work in Big Spring Monday, said Chamber executive director LeRoy Tillery.

She will work with annual events and promote tourism and conventions, Tillery said.

She replaces John Weeks, who resigned in May under pressure from the Chamber directors. Weeks, who had been with the Chamber for three years, cited a personality conflict at the time he Taylor will work with annual events and promote tourism and conventions, Tillery said.

The new director said this morning that the downtown renovation project will be a tremendous help in establishing Big Spring as a main tourist stop in West Texas. Funding for the bureau and council, including Taylor's salary, comes from the city hotel/motel occupancy tax, Tillery said. The Chamber gets half the money the city collects for the tax.

The fund, however, is about $20,000 short of expectations this year. The chamber had planned a $120,000 budget, Tillery said, but actual funds are estimated at $100,000.

The shortfall results mainly from the bankruptcy of the Homestead Inn, he said. Other factors are fewer people staying in motels and the consequent lowering of room rates, he said.

Tillery said the shortfall will slow activities down for the rest of this year, but fortunately most major events already have taken place. As for next year, it's too early to tell, he said. Taylor said she's not surprised about the budget shortfall because it appears to be happening all over Texas. She plans to work to maintain motel occupancy to prevent future problems. Taylor has been executive secretary of the Denton Convention and Visitors Bureau since June 1983. Before that she was executive secretary of the Denton Chamber of Commerce.

She has a master's degree in public relations from North Texas State University and a bachelor's degree in radio, television and

Legislator pushing lottery

AUSTIN (AP) - A state legislator representative is urging passage of a state lottery to help erase Texas' growing budget

Gov. Mark White has said he would call a special session of the Legislature to deal with the budget crunch as soon as lawmakers come up with a plan to cut spending.

But Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, said Tuesday the state should look for ways to raise money, not cut programs. Wilson is a long-time backer of a state lottery.

"The timing has never been better for us to take a long look at a state lottery than now. If we go into session in August, we can have a constitutional amendment on the ballot in November. The lottery can be instituted in a few months and more than likely we'd be taking in revenue before the regular session was completed" in May, he

Wilson told a news conference a lottery could, eventually, mean as much as $600 million a year for state government.

He wants the special session to at least place the lottery idea on the November ballot as a non-binding referendum. State Comptroller Bob Bullock is working on a revised revenue forecast that will peg the deficit at more than $3 billion. The new forecast will be announced late this month, after July sales tax collections are reported, said Tony Proffitt, a spokesman for the comptroller's office.

"All Bullock says is he is sure it's over $3 billion, but he has not set a number to it," Proffitt said.

In February, as oil prices plummetted, Bullock predicted a $1.3 billion shortfall in the current budget period, which ends Aug. 31, 1987. Last month, he raised it to $2.3 billion.

"It's going to be reflective of what's happening in the Texas economy in unemployment, construction and manufacturing and the other sectors in the last six months," Proffitt said.

U.S., Soviet nuclear test talks to resume

Delta jet's crew blamed for crash

WASHINGTON (AP) - The crewmembers of a Delta Air Lines jumbo jet which crashed and killed 137 people at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport last Aug. 2 should not have attempted to land, even though they had no knowledge that the thunderstorm in their path contained brutal winds, federal investigators ruled.

The National Transportation Safety Board said Tuesday the Lockheed L-1011 jumbo jet had flown into wind shears created by a microburst - a complex, severe downdraft - and was unable to recover before plunging to the ground 6,000 feet short of the runway

The board acknowledged that neither the crew nor flight controllers on the ground knew of the severity of the storm, and expected the plane would break into fair weather, as forecast, before actually touching down. But it said the crew's decision to stick to the glide path rather than play safe and turn away after encountering lightning was a principal

'probable cause'' of the crash. The agency also faulted crew training for handling wind shears, or sudden changes of wind direction, and the lack of "definitive" weather information as contributing reasons for the accident.

Martin Speiser, right, an air safety investigator for the National Transportation Safety Board, addresses a meeting of the board in Washington Tuesday to discuss the investigation of Delta Air Lines flight 191, which crashed in Dallas Aug. 22, 1983. Pilot's widow files suit

WASHINGTON — The first damage claim filed by a family of one of the seven Challenger astronauts alleges NASA ignored advice of engineers "that the space shuttle would likely blow up with the loss of all persons abourd."

And at least one other astronaut family is negotiating through a lawyer with Morton Thickol, the manufacturer of the shuttle's botater rockets, for compensation as a result of the Jan. 28 explosion.

The damage claim, filed by the widow of pilot Michael J. Smith, asks $15 million for wrongful death and $100,000 for personal injury. It also raises an issue the National Accounties and Space Administration has never publicly addressed, alleging that Smith "was thrown about in the spacecraft and in the few seconds preceding his death, knew of his impending death."

Gene test spots cancer

BAR HARBOR, Maine — By hunting down a faulty gene before birth, doctors can accurately predict which babies are likely to get an inherited form of eye cancer so they can move quickly to save the youngsters' sight and lives.

This form of cancer, known as retinoblastoma, is very rare. But experts believe that similar strategies might someday be used to predict the odds of other, more common kinds of cancer that run in families.

The eye cancer is often passed from generation to generation. If one child is born with it, the mother often wants to know whether her next child will get it as well.

Litton to plead guilty

PHILADELPHIA — A subsidiary of Litton Industries Inc. faces what a prosecutor said is one of the largest penalties ever assessed against a military contractor after agreeing to plead guilty to charges of defrauding the government of $6.3 million.

Clifton Precision, Special Devices Division, of Springfield, Delaware County, Pa., agreed to plead guilty to all 321 counts on which it was indicted and to pay $15 million in criminal and civil fines and restitution, U.S. Attorney Edward S.G. Dennis Jr. said.

Dennis said he believed the sum would be one of the largest settlements ever paid by a military contractor accused of wrongdoing.

NEW YORK — The ceiling of the Murray Hill theater collapsed on theatergoers, injuring four moviegoers during the climax of "Psycho III," police said as cleanup crews continued cutting through the debris today.

About a third of the ceiling hit the balcony and fell into the orchestra section, said Charles Smith, city commissioner of buildings.

It could not be determined early today why it happened, he said.

Cocaine hearing

Crack is new 'fast-food' of illegal drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The lethal and highly addictive form of cocame knows as crack is the fast-food of illegal drugs: cheap, quick and available to almost anyone, former addicts and researchers told Congress.

"Anybody can buy it and anybody can smoke it, Cocaine is no longer a rich man's drug," said a reformed addict who used to prepare doses for customers.

The man, who assumed the name nuclear Taylor for his vestimony, spoke from behind a partition at a Senate subcommittee hearing Tuesday, saying he feared retaliation from cocaine dealers for telling his story.

But others, once ravaged by their dependency on the drug, were easer to relate their stories publicly, urging government action on what many called an epidemic jeopardizing schoolchildren and young athletes as well as adults.

Lee Ann Bonanno, 20, of the Bronx, said she first tried drugs at age 12, moved to pills and cocaine and graduated to crack at age 18½.

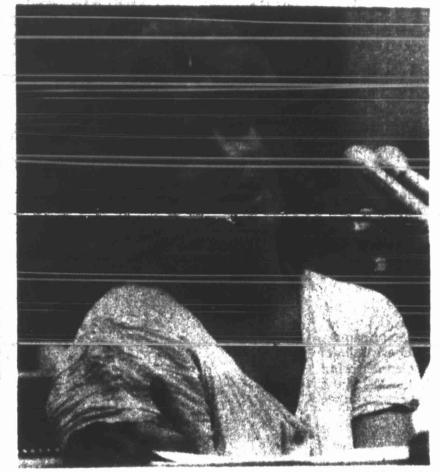

"I began to rob and steal. I robbed gas stations for money," she said. "I would even rip the dealers off to get crack."

The hearings by Senate and House panels Tuesday were the first since last month's cocaine-related deaths of Len Bias, a University of Maryland basketball star, and Don Rogers, a defensive back for the Cleveland Browns. The deaths drew national attention.

Officials cited figures showing that cocaine-related deaths have risen from 195 in 1981 to 600 last year. Emergency room treatments for cocaine use tripled to nearly 10,000 in that period.

"Those who are using are using more cocaine and using it more frequently," said Dr. Jerome H. Jaffe, director of the addiction research center of the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

Rep. Peter Rodino Jr., D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee and a member of the House Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control, said crack was "on the verge of becom-her life while using crack.

Crack, a particularly potent and addictive form of cocaine which is smoked, costs about $10 a dose, and is so available it has outstripped government efforts at drug-abuse prevention, said Dr. Robert Byck, professor of psychiatry and pharmacology at Yale University Medical School.

"It's already prepared and ready to go," he said. "It's available at a price that kids can pay."

Taylor, 29, told the Senate Governmental Affairs subcommittee on investigations he had worked as a "cook" at houses and apartments around Washington, D.C., preparing the drug that is the base form of cocaine with other substances removed. He said young teenagers and occasionally children as young as 10 work as lookouts and many eventually succumb to the drug's lure.

"I have seen crack users spend all their savings, lose their homes, sell their furniture and TV and radios and, in the case of women, offer their bodies — all for more crack," he said.

Kevin Grevey, former player with the Washington Bullets basketball team, told the House narcotics panel that athletes are sometimes drawn into drugs as youngsters because they find themselves on a fast track in an increasingly competitive world.

"After a while, you expect to get anything you want," he said. Ms. Bonanno said some of her friends "died or committed suicide" because of their drug problems. She said she talks to

U.S. to assist in raids

LA PAZ, Bolivia — About 140 U.S. Army troops, along with helicopters and transport planes, have begun arriving in Bolivia to aid the country's drug agents in a campaign to wipe out dozens of clandestine jungle-based cocaine labs, officials said.

U.S. officials who spoke Tuesday on condition of anonymity said the narcotics raids will be staged with the help of six U.S. Army Black Hawk assault copters, which were airlifted with their pilots to Santa Cruz, about 200 miles east of La Paz, on Monday.

The operation is being conducted at the invitation of the Bolivian government, said Mark Jacobs, press attache for the U.S. Embassy. He confirmed late Tuesday the arrival of the U.S. nelicopters, four transport planes, and an unspecified number of "support personnel."

12 trapped in cave-in

BRISBANE, Australia — A cave-in today at a mine in one of Australia's major coal fields trapped 12 miners almost a mile underground, and efforts were being made to rescue them, officials said.

An official for the Queensland State Mines Department, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said the accident occurred at the Moura No. 4 mine, located in central Queensland's coal field.

The coal field covers over 600 square miles in northeastern Australia, and the precise location and depth of the No. 4 mine were not immediately available.

Evacuees to be moved

MOSCOW — The newspaper Izvestia, contradicting previous reports that the radiation danger from the Chernobyl accident had lessened, said thousands of families evacuated from the area of the power plant will be moved farther away.

The Ukrainian atomic power station's No. 4 reactor exploded and burned April 26, releasing radiation that spread over Europe and eventually around the world.

According to the most recent official report,

According to the most recent official report, issued early last month, 26 people died in the accident and its aftermath.

Izvestia, the Soviet government daily, said Tuesday that new houses for evacuees will not be built in areas just north of the evacuation zone, where the people now live, but in regions farther from the power plant.

Cosmonauts end mission

MOSCOW — Cosmonauts Leonid Kizim and Vladimir Solovev returned to Earth today after more than four months in space.

The official news agency Tass said the two cosmonauts landed northeast of the city of Arkalyk in central Kazakhstan, about 1,800 miles east of Moscow. Both men were "feeling fine" after their 125-day mission, Tass said.

Congress must reduce the debt

Born out of longtime frustration and legislative irresponsibility, the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget act has expired after only eight months.

In a 7-2 decision, the U.S. Supreme Court declared one of the measure's key enforcement provisions to be unconstitutional. Yei, this ruling shouldn't prevent Congress from making the tough spending cuts mandated by the act.

From the beginning, Gramm-Rudman seemed too good to be true. It set annual deficit reduction targets and promised a balanced budget by 1991. If Congress failed to reach those targets through the normal legislative process, the politically messy job of making the cuts would fall to the U.S. Comptroller General.

This official is appointed by the president but can be removed by Congress, a situation that gave rise to the constitutional snag. The justices ruled that Congress cannot confer what amounts to executive powers — estimating and ordering the budget cuts - upon the comptroller general, who is answerable to Congress.

The ruling wasn't a surprise.

The comptroller general's acquisition of this awesome budgetary responsibility was considered constitutionally suspect when Gramm-Rudman was approved last December. A special three-judge panel said as much a month later. That's why the Gramm-Rudman act had a fallback measure: A requirement that Congress make the cuts through a joint House and Senate resolution.

Despairing that Congress has the courage for such bold action, Senators Phil Gramm, R-Texas, Warren Rudman, R-N.H., and Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., have designed a new version of their landmark legislation. It would make the comptroller general independent of the president and Congress.

Few dispute that Gramm-Rudman was a colossal abdication of Congressional budgetary authority. But it was the only game in town during a time, to paraphrase former budget director David Stockman, when $200 billion deficits ranged as far as the eye could see.

Today, the deficit is shrinking but the momentum for a balanced budget remains unchecked. Whether a new version of Gramm-Rudman is passed, the Supreme Court correctly underlined the fact that Congress can't hide from its responsibility to make the painful decisions required to reduce the national debt.

Now, with basic water rates at over $3.50 a thousand gallons and reduced demands, the system is very unreliable as indicated in the last two months' performance.

HUD secretary turns down offer to take Scalia's place

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — The only black member of President Reagan's Cabinet, Housing and Urban Development Secretary Samuel R. Pierce Jr., was recently offered a federal appellate court seat. But he politely turned it down, evidently hoping that he will be named to the Supreme Court before Reagan leaves office.

Pierce is we'll regarded at HUD and the White House after nearly six years in the Cabinet. But when he was first appointed, he was so unassuming that Reagan mistook him for one among a delegation of big-city mayors invited to the White House. According to congressional sources, the offer of an appellate judgeship was made in a telephone call to Pierce on June 26 from Sen. Strem Thurmond, R-S.C., chair man of the Senate Judiciary Committee. The senator asked Pierce if he would be interested in appointment to the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington, D.C., which faces a vacancy with the nomination of Judge Antonin Scalia to the Supreme Court. Pierce declined the offer and joked to Thurmond that he was holding out for a seat on the high court. Neither Pierce nor his press spokesman would comment, but sources told our associate Lucette Lagnado that Pierce's lighthearted response cloaked a serious hope that he will get a Supreme Court nomination. His decision to decline is clearly a gamble. The White House certainly has a "short list" of possible replacements ready for the next high court vacancy, and Pierce may not be on it. Thurmond may have been trying to signal Pierce that an appeals court seat was the the appellate judgeship, therefore,

Jack Anderson

One knowledgeable Supreme Court watcher told us it would have been wiser for Pierce to have accepted the offer of an appellate judgeship, which historically has been a solid steppingstone to the highest court. Even a brief tenure on the appellate bench would make him an attractive choice for the Supreme Court — especially if he had breezed through his earlier Senate confirmation, as Pierce could have been expected to.

At 63, Pierce has more than ethnic and political considerations going for him. His intellectual and professional background is distinguished.

He graduated Phi Beta Kappa from Cornell in 1947, and from the law school there in 1949. He served as a first lieutenant with the Army's criminal investigation division during World War II.

During the Eisenhower administration. Pierce became the first black to serve as assistant to an undersecretary of labor; during the Nixon administration, he became the first black to be general counsel to the Treasury Department.

Pierce served as an assistant district attorney and assistant U.S. best he could hope for anytime attorney in Manhattan, and was twice appointed to interim New York state judgeships by the late Gov. Nelson Rockefeller. He lost two campaigns for full 14-year judgeships, running in a heavily Democratic district.

Pierce was the first black to become a partner in a major New York law firm, when he joined Battle, Fowler, Jaffin & Kheel in 1961. He was earning a six-figure income at the prestigious labor law firm when he left to become HUD secretary in 1981.

Unbeknownst to Pierce, a high FBI official in the 1960s suggested that he be put forward in a secret scheme to replace the late Martin Luther King Jr. as the nation's top civil rights leader.

BUREAUCRAT BUMPED: The State Department has been rebuffed in its bid to get a chauffeured limousine for its chief of protocol and seating arrangements at Foggy Bottom functions. State argued that the job, currently held by Selwa Roosevelt, requires partying into the wee hours, but the comptroller general was unimpressed. Is the game for all-stars or old stars?

By HANK MURPHY Staff Writer

Baseball fans do two things with their hearts — cheer their beloved teams and vote for all-stars.

And, as in many matters of the heart, the results aren't always fair. Such is the case with all-star selections

After the voting procedure was returned to fans back in the early '70s, the July spectacle has been played less by the boys of summer than by men of seasons past.

There's no question that great players still prowl the outfield, and flash their spikes with hard slides into second base. But the all-star game was meant to be played by guys having great years, regardless of what they had done in past years. Suddenly, 12-year veterans who aren't hitting their weight are starters in the all-star game. Meanwhile, guys with more RBIs than Georgia has peaches and batting averages in the ozone layer are riding the pines.

Something has run amuck. A half season's statistics take a back seat to what a guy did four, five years ago.

For instance, this year's starting third baseman for the American League is Kansas City's George Brett. Certainly Brett's a great player, but he's only hitting .290. Boston's Wade Boggs, an incredible hitter, is batting .365, yet he finished second to Brett. Managers polled chose Boggs 7

-to 1. Then there's the fans' choice for the National League shortstop another poor selection. St. Louis Ozzie Smith, better known as "The Wizard of Oz," was selected to play the backbone of the infield. He's nitting .285 with no homers.

The man Ozzie outpolled was Montreal's Hubie Brooks, who's batting a nifty .333 with 14 roundtrippers and twice as many RBIs as Smith. The list goes on.

If the contest is continued under its current rules, it's best to change its name. Because it's no longer an all-star game. It's a popularity contest. The choice of who should start in the all-star game should be made by those who know best. The players and the managers.

Fans might cry in their beer for awhile, but they can be consoled by knowing what they see every July truly is an all-star game, not a cheap substitute.

Ruling keeps Puerto Ricans ignorant

The government of Puerto Rico, which doesn't think its residents need to be protected from access to gambling casinos, does think they need to be protected from being encouraged to take advantage of that access. Casinos are allowed; advertising of them, except when aimed at tourists, is not. Puerto Ricans aren't trusted to weigh the information provided by advertisements and make their own choices. By legislative decree, they are kept ignorant.

This is the kind of state interference in the realm of ideas that the First Amendment might be presumed to prevent. But five justices of the Supreme Court say no — a ruling that invites Congress to ban ads for other legal but controversial products, notably tobacco or alcohol. The opinion, written by Chief Justice-designate William Rehnquist, devalues free discussion and mandates an alarming

Ten years ago, the court granted a startling but welcome recognition of the value of commercial speech, which is traditionally distinguished from political speech. Striking down a law that blocked pharmocists from advertising the price of prescription drugs, it said a state may not 'completely suppress the dissemination of concededly truthful information about entirely lawful activity.

The court later backed off a bit from that position, but this ruling carries the retreat further. It concluded that the ban was permissible because it had a legitimate pur-- to discourage Puerto Ricans from gambling in casinos and was tailored to that purpose. But Rehnquist's opinion didn't stop there. It stressed that, since the government "could have prohibited casino gambling" entirely, it has the "lesser power to ban advertising of casino gambling," and the service of all one of the grandling

This is a sweeping and dangerous doctrine. It overlooks the many instances where the government's does not confer the lesser power (to allow, with any restrictions it chooses). As University of Chicago law professor Geoffrey Stone puts it, the fact that a city may decide not to have public parks, where people could engage in free speech, doesn't mean it may provide parks but forbid free speech in them. A state doesn't have to provide public housing, but if it does it may not limit its occupants to Republicans.

Rehnquist's logic, if followed consistently, would mangle constitutional freedoms. It offers a blind endorsement to government encroachments on basic liberties, which is what the Bill of Rights, if not the entire Constitution, is designed to restrain.

The decision is wrong on other counts, too. There are admittedly sound reasons for giving commercial speech less constitutional protection than political speech. For example, full protection would impair regulation of fraudulent and deceptive advertising. But the exceptions should be drawn so as not to interfere with the free dissemination of information and

The ban on casino ads wasn't drawn that way. Its point is not to prevent the island's residents from being harmed by fraudulent ads, but to protect them from being pergreater power (to ban entirely) suaded by accurate ones. The idea that might be propagated by casino ads, namely that playing 21 or roulette is enjoyable and potentially lucrative, is dangerous because it may prove persuasiave. So it must be suppressed. Justice William Brennan, who dissented, aptly characterized the restriction as "a covert attempt by the state to manipulate the choices of its citizens, not by persuasion or direct regulation, but by depriving the public of the information needed to make a free choice." It contradicts the premise of the First Amendment that the antidote to bad ideas is not suppression but debate. In essense, it is no different from banning radical political ideas on the ground that they may attract public support.

That is a fit practice for dictatorships, but not for free nations. The basis of our entire system of government is the confidence that men and women exposed to the free discussion of ideas are fully capable of making responsible choices, both individually and collectively. This ruling rests on the illiberal and paternalistic idea that a benevolent government is better able to decide for them.

Vivisection may be useful but it's mainly barbaric

DEAR ABBY: I ran across something you wrote some time ago, and I must say God bless you for your stand on vivisection. It took great courage to speak out against inflicting endless torture experimenting on living creatures. Continued success in your work and in your life. My family and I thank you. Please run the item enclosed. ALICE PIEL, NEW YORK

DEAR ALICE: I think it's worth repeating:

DEAR ABBY: How do you feel about vivisection, which is defined as "the cutting of or operation on a physiological or pathological in-living animal, usually for vestigation; animal experimentation, especially if considered to cause distress to the subject"?

FOR ANIMAL RIGHTS

IN NEW YORK DEAR FOR: The late George Bernard Shaw expressed my feelings perfectly when he said: "You do not settle whether an experiment is justified or not by merely showing that it is of some use. The distinction is not between useful and uscless experiments, but between barbarous and civilized behavior. Vivisection is a social evil because if it advances human knowledge, it does so at the exnense of human character."

DEAR ABBY: Re: the meaning of "No calling hours" when someone dies:

I work for a newspaper and write the obituaries, and when I get a call from a funeral home concerning a funeral, everything has already been decided by the family. If they say "No calling hours," they mean they do not want to have anyone visiting the funeral home

Sometimes, it is changed to "No visitation will be observed." but it means the same thing — the family does not wish to have people come to the funeral home.

This might have been the deceased person's wishes. I know that I do not want to be viewed when I die.
And I hope my family will carry out my last wishes.

NO VIEWING, THANK YOU

DEAR NO VIEWING: And if they don't, there's no forgiving, so better tell them while you're living.

Morning sickness seldom serious

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have always heard of morning sickness, so I wasn't surprised when after about a month I started with it. What a miserable feeling to wake up to it! Mine has persisted now for over two months. I wonder just how many women go through this? How long does it go on? — Mrs. U.F.

About half of pregnant women have some degree of morning sickness or vomiting in general. Usually it is harmless, although there is one possibility that must always be ruled out, that of hyperemesis gravidarum. In this, there is serious, unremitting vomiting that causes dangerous weight loss. Women with this usually must be hospitalized for protection of their health and that of the fetus.

An extensive study on the subject of vomiting notes that 56 percent of all healthy women vomit at some time during the first four months. At four months, only 9 percent continue

With the exception of the rare occurence of the serious condition I mentioned above, the vomiting is not related to any unusual effects in the fetus. So long as it does not interfere with the woman's normal nourishment it can be considered for what it is: the first trial of motherhood.

The study among pregnant women noted further that women are more likely to experience morning sickness in a first pregnancy, if they are young, and if they smoke. Vomiting is a bit more common in twin-birth pregnancies.

We're not sure why this phenomenon occurs. It is believed to result from that common denominator of so many female ailments, hormonal changes. If you are continuing to vomit, be sure you inform your doctor of it, its resting in bed a few minutes on awaking and munching on a dry

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: How common is depression after a person has a stroke? - S.S.

Recent statistics show that almost half of stroke victims have depression. The degree of depression is related to the severity of the stroke. Anti-depressant medicine can be helpful in relieving the condition in some.

The psoriasis patients who get along best are those who realize these facts and who cooperate in the established and effective therapies, such as your doctor is using. If you send along details of this "cure," I'll be glad to evaluate it.

Smithy doesn't worry about imported shoes

WASHINTON COURT HOUSE, Ohio (AP) — There is no foreign competition, imports or depressed wages in his shoe business, says Roger Lovett.

Few of his customers complain, but sometimes the young ones give him a hard time, adds Lovett, who shoes standardbred horses.

Lovett earns his living by fitting pacers and trotters with new shoes every three to four weeks. For $8, he also gives a horse a manicure by trimming the hoofs.

"If it were left to grow too long, a horse will go lame," Lovett says of the soft-tissue cartilage much like human fingernails, which is the

Noted horses such as Falcon Almahurst, Sydney Hill, Cornstalk, and Fair Chance Farm's Gifted Special are among Lovett's regular

He has been in the standardbred footwear business for nearly a decade and now works like an old pro. It takes an average of 45 minutes to trim and shoe a horse.

Pacers are generally fitted with a swedge shoe on their front feet and a half-swedge on the back feet, Lovett explains.

"While these horses are racing, the shoes get worn to a point where they no longer grip the track," he "The owners are better off having new shoes fitted rather than reset a pair of used shoes. With these new limestone track surfaces, the shoes wear out quicker because of the friction. There's just not as much wear on a dirt track, but the limestone acts like a grindstone on these shoes.

A very busy schedule

Talk about a busy man. That's just what Brian Mayfield will be Thursday through Wednesday.

The Big Spring High School junior will have a full schedule that'll range from gunning down jump shots and slam dunking to throwing fastballs and getting base hits.

Mayfield will start on Thursday by traveling to Houston to participate in a basketball tournament that starts Friday and ends Sunday night. Then the 6-5 jock-of-all-trades will catch a plane back to Big Spring so he can prepare himself for the Senior League sectional all-star tournament in Abilene, which begins Monday.

Playing in all-star baseball tournaments is nothing new to Mayfield. He's been on all-star teams since he was 11 years old. But this type of basketball tournament is something new, and last year's District 4-5A leading scorer is looking forward to the challenge.

Mayfield will be playing on a team of West Texas allstars in the Texas Junior Shootout at St. Thomas University campus. The tournament is sponsored by the Basketball Tournament International and is for the top returning high school prospects in the state.

More than 30 teams will be present, bringing the top 400 prep basketball players in the state together for what should be a superb tourney. Coaching the team will be Andrews County News Sports Editor Randy Nelson.

Brian Mayfield, shown here going up with one of his patented jumps shots last season when he was the District 4-5A's leading scorer, will be busy next week as he competes in all-star basketball and baseball

Nelson started the idea of fielding a team and contacted players from the area, so it's only fitting he be the coach. The University of Interscholastic League policy prohibits school personnel from being affiliated with the tournament.

Nelson, who's going back to school to get his coaching degree, says the team is a great way to get recognition for good players in the area.

"In the past a lot of players from our area have been overlooked because people think there's not any good ball players out here," said Nelson. "This will give us a chance to show what we can do.' Joining Mayfield on the team will be players from Odessa Permian, Andrews and Paducah. In fact, another ex-Big Spring player will be on the team. Bernard Williams, who played for the Black and Gold two years ago, will be playing a wing position for the squad. The 6-0

Williams took his talents to Andrews. Also from Andrews are 5-6 point guard Louis Clay and 5-9 wing Jim Bice. Todd Evans, a 6-3 wing, will represent Odessa Permian. Rounding out the squad are Paduach players Will Lemons, a 6-6 post, and forwards Stan Burns

(6-4) and Bryan Barnes (6-5). Mayfield says he looks forward to competing against Texas' best. "It's going to be lots of fun. We'll just go out there and play. There will be about 150 major college scouts at the tournament. That's one of the main reasons

Coach Nelson calls it one of the "biggest challenges in his life." Since he's had only three days to get the team together to practice, his coaching philosophy won't be too

"All of these guys on the team are big time players. They've been around the game for a long time so they know what to do. We just tried to get some continuity going during those three practices. We like the running game. We'll get the ball up and down the floor and play the transi-

Texas boys can play basketball.'

By EDDIE CURRAN Staff Writer

Big Spring National League pitchers walked 10 Odessa Salinas batters, four of which scored, and that proved the difference as the Odessa team eliminated the National League with a 6-4 win Tuesday night at National League park.

The Odessa team scored their six runs on but three hits, all of those in the first inning. Big Spring collected seven hits, including a home run, a triple and a double, but an error free game by the Odessa infield and some composed pitching by Alberto Baeza kept the Nationals in check most of the game.

National League fans had a lot to cheer about in the top of the first as Gerald Cobos singled up the middle with two outs. Joe Conaway, the big first baseman, followed with a hard line drive that sailed over the fence in left-center for a two run MUSCUW (AP) — While Soviet gymnasic made the trip to the medals podium a routine one in the men's competition at the inaugural Goodwill Games, a disappointing American squad, led by Olympic champion Tim Daggett, failed to win a single medal.

There were a total of 28 medals awarded in the men's gymnastics competition, 13 of which went to the Soviets, including every gold possible. Yuri Korolyev of the Soviet Union won a total of five medals, all golds, to become the athlete with the highest number of medals at the games.

In addition to Daggett, the American team included twin brothers Daniel and Dennis Havden, Brian Babcock, Phil Cahoy and Charles Lakes, the top gymnasts at last month's national championships in Indianapolis. Daggett, of West Springfield, Mass., won the overall gold in Los Angeles and was bronze medalist on the pommel horse. At this multiple-sports festival, Daggett failed to qualify for the all-around title and any individual apparatus

The United States finished a disappointing fifth in the six-team competition last Sunday, with the Soviets winning.

In the individual all-arounds, the Soviets dominated again, taking the top three places, with Lakes, Cahoy and Dennis Hayden finishing seventh, 13th and 21st, respectively. In the individual apparatus finals, American gymnasts managed only a fourth, two fifths and one sixth place.

"It has been very difficult for myself after the Olympic Games, because I do take part in other activities," Daggett said. "I am getting older and I have a life ahead of me, so I must prepare for that. If I did not prepare for that, after the Seoul (Olympics) in 1968, I would be 27 years old without anything in my pocket.

"Eastern bloc athletes, after they finish with their competition, they have made their success forever," said Daggett, a graduate of UCLA, adding: "If I did not think of my future after Seoul, I would be pennyless and jobless and who knows what."

Bart Conner, Daggett's teammate at the 1984 Olympics, who served as a commentator here for the Turner Broadcasting System, said he was "disappointed for

"Tim is a great gymnast and the leader of this team, but, unfortunately, we never got the ball rolling so he didn't get a a real chance here." Conner said.

Surprise: Americans win!

HOUSTON (AP) - Roger Clemens won his vaunted duel with Dwight Gooden as the American League paired precision pitching and the power of Lou Whitaker and pinch-hitter rrank white to beat the Na tional League 3-2 Tuesday night in baseball's 57th All-Star

Clemens, 15-2 for the Boston Red Sox after a 14-0 start, opened with three perfect innings and was voted the game's Most Valuable Player, while Whitaker and White hit homers to account for all the Americans' scoring. Whitaker's was a two-run shot in the second inning off Gooden, the New York Mets' 1985 Cy Young winner.

Clemens, Ted Higuera of Milwaukee, Charlie Hough of Texas, Dave Righetti of the New York Yankees and Don Aase of Baltimore, the major-league save leader with 23, held the NL to five hits, only one through the first seven innings.

The victory was only the second in the last 15 All-Star Games for the Americans, the last one in 1983. St. Louis' Whitey Herzog was the losing manager both times. It was also the first time the AL had won in a National League park since 1962 at Chicago's Wrigley Field. The Nationals still lead the series 36-20-1. Gooden, 10-4 but only 5-4 in his last nine decisions, worked the first three innings, giving up the two runs on three hits and striking out just two in his third All-Star Game. His relief, Fernando Valenzuela of Los Angeles, tied an All-Star record set by Carl Hubbell in 1934 by striking out five AL batters in a row en route to three scoreless innings. San Francisco's Chris Brown doubled to lead off the eighth, went to third on a wild pitch by Hough and scored from third when Boston's Rich Gedman let a Hough knuckleball get by on a third strike to Montreal's Hubie Brooks. Brooks went to second on a Hough balk and scored on a single to left by Steve Sax.

With one out in the ninth, Jody Davis of the Chicago Cubs singled off Righetti and pinch-runner Tony Pena of Pittsburgh went to third on a single by Dave Parker of Cincinnati. That brought on Aase in relief, who got Brown to hit a game-ending, double-play grounder to White.

Clemens, working in his first All-Star Game on just three days' rest, was untouchable, throwing 21 strikes in 25 pitches. While he struck out only two, he retired nine straight, the first pitcher since 1980 to throw three perfect innings.

After Clemens, Higuera worked three one-hit innings, and he was followed by Hough, in his first All-Star game at age 38.

Gooden gave up a hit to the first batter he faced, Kirby Puckett of Minnesota, but got out of that inning. Then, with two out in the second inning, Dave Winfield of New York doubled and Whitaker followed with the towering home run to right field.

White, pinch-hitting for Whitaker with two out in the seventh, hit an 0-2 pitch from the Astros' Mike Scott for his home run. The ball just barely cleared the wall in left-center.

There were two out in the second when Winfield doubled to the wall in right field. The ball hit the wall on a short hop, and Winfield cruised into second easily with the first extra-base nit off Gooden.

Gooden had two strikes on Whitaker, who had 12 homers at the break, three in the last four games. Catcher Gary Carter of the Mets called for a curve, but Gooden got the breaking ball up in the strike zone and Whitaker hit it up in the stands. The ball hit the facing of the mezzanine deck just behind and about 15-20 feet above the right-field fence, and the Americans led 2-0.

Clemens, meanwhile, strolled through all nine hitters he faced. He struck out Ryne Sandberg of Chicago in the first inning and the Mets' Darryl Strawberry, star of Monday's home run derby, in the second. The two besthit balls off Clemens were a slicing line drive to left by Gwyrn in the first inning, and a fly ball to deep center by Mike Schmidt of Philadelhia in the second. Then Ted Higuera of Milwaukee, a left-handed lookalike for Valenzuela, came on for the Americans. He pitched a hitless fourth and got Carter on a ground ball to lead off the fifth before Strawberry lined a first-pitch curveball into right field for a single, the NL's first hit.

Higuera then walked Schmidt on a 3-1 pitch, giving the Nationals runners at first and second. Dale Murphy of Atlanta popped out to center, bringing on Brooks to hit for starting shortstop Ozzie Smith of St. Louis. Brooks grounded to second. and the Americans held onto their 2-0 lead.

Valenzuela's consecutive strikeout victims were Don Mattingly of New York, Cal Ripken of Baltimore, Jesse Barfield of Toroto, Whitaker and Higuera. The string ended when Puckett grounded out to shortstop to end the fifth inning.

The string tied the record Hubbell set in 1934 when he fanned Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Jimmy Fox, Al Simmons and Joe Cronin in succession.

It also made Valenzuela the only pitcher in All-Star history to strike out the side twice. Le did it in the fourth inning in 1984 at Candlestick Park, when Gooden followed by striking out the next three to set the overall record for consecutive Ks.

Pokes missing from camp

THOSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Veteran strong safety Dextor Clinkscale was still missing and the three top draft choices still absent due to contract negotiations as Cowboys training camp continued in California.

Cowboys management said they did not know why Clinkscale had failed to show by Tuesday. In a press release on the day's camp, the Cowboys said Clinkscale had yet to notify them with a reason for his absence. Veterans were to report to camp Sunday.

Clinkscale's attorney, Paul Schoonover of Dallas, said that Clinkscale was not absent because of a contract holdout but declined to comment further, saying he left that option to his client.

The team's first three draft choices also were absent from camp Tuesday. Wide receiver Mike Sherrard of UCLA, running back Darryl Clack of Arizona State and defensive lineman Mark Walen of UCLA have not come to contract terms

The collective bargaining agreement between management and the players association says players are to report 15 days before the first preseason game. Cowboy veterans were asked to report Sunday - 21 days before the London game against Chicago.

But Coach Tom Landry said he agreed to hold only one workout per day in London if the team would report early. The Cowboys normally hold two practices a day.

Clinkscale is the club's player representative to the NFL Players Association.

McEnroe ready to get back on court

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) - After six months away from competitive tennis, a new and improved John McEnroe is ready to come back.

"I'm just going to have to get match tough," McEnroe said at a news conference Tuesday at the Forum. "I don't think that will take too long. It might take three or four months or it might take two weeks. It might come back fast. I hope it does. I'm just going to flow with it."

McEnroe has spent the last six months relaxing at the beach, taking in an occasional Los Angeles Lakers game, and "just clearing my head." He expects his game to show signs of rust in the beginning, but that he'll eventually play better than ever.

"I'm trying to prepare myself for the next couple of years." McEmroe said. "I'm not as worried about the

McEnroe will be sporting a new, more amiable

"You've just got to thank God every day and it's just wonderful. You just feel nice. It's almost going to be like I'm too nice. It's going to be scary.

McEnroe left tennis last January after winding up a disappointing year with a loss to Brad Gilbert in the Masters at Madison Square Garden. His game was in shambles, his nerves raw.

the Forum was engaging, displaying a wry wit and new-found maturity. He's happy about that, and he credits his 7-week-old son, Kevin, and his fiance, actress Tatum O'Neal, for his new outlook.

He denied reports that surfaced in British newspapers that he needed the time off to enter a drug rehabilitation center.
"That's absolutely wrong. What more can you say?

The only reason it happened was because I had not been seen around by the English press in a couple of months, so they sent people over to fish up things," he

At one point during his layoff, he went almost a month without picking up a tennis racket. Since Kevin's birth, McEnroe has been working out, and he McEnroe, who admitted he has always hated practicing, has even found his workouts to be more productive.

"I'm definitely working a lot harder," he said. "I'm trying different things. It's really exciting. I'm already in better shape. I'm probably in better shape than I was (in January).

McEnroe's first competitive match is scheduled for July 24 when he meets Ivan Lendl in the Forum Tennis Challenge Superfinals. He'll play in a tournament at Stratton, Vt., beginning Aug. 4, and maybe one other before the U.S. Open.

O'Grady gets to play in British Open

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP) -Mac O'Grady got one wish, not both. "I hope he makes it," O'Grady said on a flight from Boston to Scotland for the 115th British Open Golf Championship, which begins

Thursday. The he O'Grady was referring to was PGA Tour Commissioner Deane Beman, who was, at that moment, attempting to qualify for a spot in the world's oldest golf tournaments. Beman did, indeed, make it. "I hope we're paired together," O'Grady then said of the man who suspended him from the tour for six weeks and fined him $5,000 for conduct unbecoming a professional golfer.

But that won't happen. Beman, making a minicomeback as a competitor after more than 12 years as the chief executive of the American Tour, plays the first two rounds with two other qualifiers, both British professionals.

nament of his career last month at Hartford, plays the first two rounds with Mark O'Meara and an Irish touring professional, Ronan Rafferty. The suspension — over an incident between O'Grady and a female marshal at a tournament in O'Grady, who won the first tour-

New Orleans in 1984 — was upheld by a PGA Tour appeals committee last week but does not apply to the British Open because it is not a PGA-sanctioned event. O'Grady said there will be more moves, apparently legal action, before he returns to the United States next week. "There will be something out of the States the middle of this week, something important. I can't say what it will be, but it'll shake 'em up," O'Grady said. Until then, O'Grady — who plays right-handed and putts left-handed, who had to go through qualifying 17 times before gaining his American Tour playing rights, who speaks Japanese and runs marathons - is concentrating on his preparations for his first British Open.

"Is it something?" O'Grady asked. "I played in my first Masters this year. After attempting to qualify for 17 years, I played in my first U.S. Open. "And now, after attempting to qualify a zillion times, I'm going to be playing in my first British Open.

"I'm putting it all together in a book: How I Played the Grand Slam." he said. While his left hand-right hand playing style and his welldocumented battle with Beman will make O'Grady a figure of could be much more than that. The outspoken O'Grady, a deeply talented man with enormous potential and awesome length, is playing the best golf of his life.

Americans whip Yugoslavia

OVIEDO, Spain (AP) — The World Basketball Championships may come down to the United States against the Soviet Union after all.

After 10 days of up-and-down performances and near elimination, the Americans qualified as one of the top two seeds in the medal round by beating Yugoslavia 69-60

Casillas becomes very wealthy lineman

NORMAN, Okla. (A) — The facts show that an agreement between the Atlanta Falcons and firstround draft pick Tony Casillas came about in the hours after the former Oklahoma noseguard and his wife angrily walked out of a negotiating session.

But John Maloney, Casillas' attorney, says facts do not always tell the whole story. "If it wasn't for Tony and Lisa's emotions ... we wouldn't be standing here right now," Maloney said Tuesday, shortly after Casillas signed a four-year deal with the Falcons.

(Falcons officials) became so overly impressed with them that it softened them. I really do," Maloney Neither Casillas nor Maloney would disclose the amount of the deal. But one report put the value at

"In the meetings we've had together, I think they and annual salaries of $175,000, $200,000, $250,000 and $300,000. There was also a $1 million loan involved. In deciding to play with the Falcons, the former All-America in turn rejected a series of contracts offered by the Arizona Outlaws of the United States

$2.35 million, including a $1.43 million signing bonus

Football League. The Outlaws had offered Casillas contracts ranging from one to four years in length, with the four-year deal reportedly worth $2.5 million. "It's very frustrating to have worked as hard as we did and put the money on the table" yet not get Casillas, Outlaws owner Bill Tatham Jr. said.

Casillas would not say if the Falcons' contract was worth more than that of the Outlaws, but said they "did real well. They were in the vicinity." For a while, they were not.

After three hours of talks Monday with Falcons officials Tom Braatz and Taylor Smith, Casillas and his wife walked out of the meeting. Casillas said then it seemed certain he would sign with Arizona. "Everything with the Falcons has been negative,"

he said at the time. "They still have to convince me that Atlanta is the best place for us." Smith, Braatz and Maloney continued talking, for about six hours, until a more adequate deal was drawn up.

"In this negotiation, there were a number of things we thought were important," Maloney said. "One kev issue would fall at a time. After a couple hours, I felt it was going to sway in our favor."

Salinas.

play of the game. With the Nationals one out away from elimination, Jay Gresset walked, and Myrick followed with a single up the middle. Wooten stepped to the plate with a chance to atone for his rough night on the mound. He did just that, slamming a triple to right that scored Myrick. Gresset had already come in on a wild pitch. With two outs, a man on third, and the Nationals down by two runs, Michah Eppley stepped to the plate for the first time in the game. With the National League fans chanting "Rally! Rally!", Eppley connected for a grounder to short but the throw from Moreno beat him to first for the final out.

Baeza got the complete game win, and Odessa Salinas advanced to tonight's game against Odessa North East Texas at National League Park.

Odessa Jim Parker 4 Midland Western 2

At the American League park, Odessa Jim Parker scored three runs in the second inning, and held on to down the Midland Western All-Stars 4-2. Jay Johnson pitched a two-hitter to pick up the win for Jim Parker. Johnson struck out eight and walked six in his six-inning stint. Steven Wooten pitched four innings and took the loss for Western, which is now 2-1, in tournament play. Mike

Treving pitched the final two innings for Western. Along with the Big Spring Americans, Jim Parker is still undefeated in tournament play, with a 3-0 record.

County rules on indigent care

By SCOTT FITZGERALD Staff Writer

Howard County Judge Milton Kirby said this morning he will begin taking applications today for someone to screen patients for the county's indigent health care program.

The screening officer will be paid an annual salary of $18,000 and work in an office in the Health Department clinic, located next to Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, said James Luck, county sanitarian.

Commissioners also unanimously approved a motion that the county contract with the Howard County Health Department to handle indigent health care cases here.

The Legislature has ordered counties to begin paying medical costs for the very poor beginning Kirby's announcement came after commissioners unanimously approved Commissioner David Barr's motion that the county advertise for the position.

Commissioner O.L. "Louie" Brown was absent during this morning's commissioners court

The county is required by state law to budget 10 percent of its total budget for health care services to persons who qualify as indigents. County sanitarian James Luck told commissioners he would have job qualifications for the financial screener available Tuesday

Both Luck and Kirby said job applicants should have a background in screening individuals to see if they financially qualify for specific services.

Luck said the job applicant should have clerical skills and be able "to learn the different rulings and laws" applicable to indigent health care.

"We're hoping to have the position filled by Aug. i, Luck said. Luck will assist Kirby, county treasurer Bonnie Franklin and county auditor Jackie Olson in sign thanks commissioners for reviewing the applications.

Luck also said this morning that nothing final has been determined regarding hospital services for indigents.

However, he said a 12-person steering committee appointed by commissioners to review indigent health care has plans to use both Hall-Bennett Memorial and Malone-Hogan hospitals.

In other business, commissioners approved Teri Quinones' request for posting a "kickoff renovation project sign" in front of the county courthouse annex.

Quinones, Big Spring's Bill Crooker said. downtown coordinator, said the their reinvestment in the downtown area.

She said the county's remodeling of the former Woolworth's building is a tangible result for surrounding property owners to see what historical renovation is all about.

She said the county commissioners are "the trendsetters" in renovating downtown.

In this afternoon's session, commissioners were expected to discuss financing work on Natural Dam Lake, which would prevent the danger of overflow and flooding in Howard County, Commissioner

Spartacus ready to fight abuses in nursing home

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest the letter from "Helpless," who said she couldn't send gifts to her mother in a nursing home because they would be stolen. The management claimed that this was beyond their control and they could not be responsible for it, since it was "standard."

This is a lie. Theft is not a normal part of the aging process. The trauma for anyone to have a wedding ring stolen can be considerable. For an elderly widow or widower, it can be devastating. Unfortunately, theft is the least of the abuses that occur in nursing homes. Once you accept theft as "normal," it is easier to accept bedsores, rapes and broken bones from beatings as "normal."

I learned a great deal about nursing homes while doing research for "Amos," a television movie. I was horrified at the real-life abuses I discovered and spoke up. I received a flood of letters from the nursing home industry, vilifying me personally and telling me that I didn't know what I was talking about. I also received hundreds of heartbreaking letters from people who had had hideous experiences with nursing homes.

I turned some of these letters over to the authorities, and one - a murder — to the police.

Answering all that mail was difficult. It was like writing hundreds of condolence letters. I got a small taste of what it must be like to be Dear Abby. I respect your stamina.

"Helpless" said that her mother was "attached" to some of the staff. Of course she was attached to them; she's dependent on them. But they are stealing from her.

Over an 11-year period, a trusted

$173,000 from 32 elderly servicemen living at the U.S. Soldiers' and Airmen's Home in Washington, D.C.

Of course there are some good nursing homes. My mother, at her own request, spent her last seven years in one, and she was very well-cared for. But you don't have to be related to a movie star to be well-cared for. The non-profit nursing home where we filmed "Amos" had an excellent reputation, but it also had a three-year waiting list. I am sure those who operate good nursing homes are not happy about those in their profession who break the law and pass it off as standard industry practice.

"Helpless" is not helpless. Nursing home records are open to the public. Before deciding on a nursing home, you should go to your local department of health and ask to see the state inspection reports of the facility you are considering. These will include any complaints and fines for violations.

If you have a problem with a nursing home, contact the state ombudsman through your state's

This is a federal program in every state set up specifically to investigate and resolve complaints in nursing homes and in board and care homes. Many of the ombudsmen are volunteers - retired nurses, doctors or pharmacists. They do it because they care. They are confidential and discreet. In some states, such as California, not allowing the ombudsman into a nursing home is a crime.

The last week in June was "Elder Abuse Awareness Week" in Los Angeles. We need a "National Elder Abuse Awareness Week" -52 weeks a year.

Making the public aware of a bad situation is the only way to change it. Thank you, Abby, for bringing this hidden horror to light. You may use my name.

A new cassette tape tour of Big Spring and the surrounding area might do a lot for the community — perhaps more than what some people might expect.

It offers a driving tour covering 50 miles, beginning with downtown at the Potton House, and including nearby lakes.

The nearly half-hour tape is the product of brainstorming and research by members of the Chamber of Commerce Convention and Visitors Bureau, and a few local history buffs.

The tape is punctuated by sound effects, interesting historic sidelights about the people and places of this area, plus information on the animals and plantlife.

Narrated by Bob "Tumbleweed Smith" Lewis, the tape is the ideal tool to persuade visitors to lengthen their stay in Big Spring — particularly when no special festivities are scheduled.

A day-longer stay by each visitor would have a tremendous effect on improving the local economy.

Perhaps more important, the tape might do much more to build pride in the community among local citizens, including many who may not be aware of the attractions on the tape That seems likely because it's not unusual to talk to a longtime resident who hasn't even visited the Potton House.

Copies of the tape will be available for rent or purchase at The question, of course, is: How many residents will take advantage of the service and what the tape has to offer? But if each person who uses it tells others, perhaps it will have a mushrooming effect similar to the early chain letters.

Heel spur a sign of inflammation

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Last summer my doctor diagnosed heel spurs and recommended padding for my shoes. After experimentation. I finally found running shoes with replacement insoles. I've tried various over-the-counter remedies. Aspirin helps the pain, but I try ro' to ta e it regularly. I've gained verine partially because of ferred inaccivity, and by mags worse. What type of doctor do I see to have inserts fitted for my shoes? Does diet affect heel spurs? What about calcium? - J.I.M.

A heel spur is a sign that something has irritated the plantar fascia, a sling of tough tissue that extends from the heel along the bottom of the foot. Your body laid down deposits of calcium as a protection. That's the calcium part of the problem, and it has nothing to do with the calcium you eat. Diet certain it's not a factor. That's why has nothing to do with heel spurs.

And it isn't the spur that causes the pain, but the inflamed tissue I mentioned. You have to rest your heel. The padding will help. If you've been using foamed rubber kinds, switch to quarter-inch felt pads instead. You can find them in any drugstore. The foamed rubber is too compressible and doesn't absorb pressure well.)

The warm soaks you've been using (another part of your letter) are fine. Soak in warm water three to four times a day. That and sufficient rest should bring improvement

You've suffered a long time with this painful situation and to the point that it's interfering with your health. I'm speaking of your weight gain. It's one of those vicious circles - pain/inactivity/weightgain/more pain. You had better go back to that doctor. You may need special anti-inflammation drugs. or perhaps even cortisone injection into the pain area. Custom-fitted insoles are a great idea. A podiatrist or an orthopedist might help you

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Recently, I had a urine specimen analyzed via a mail order laboratory. All findings were normal, except they said "occult blood" was present. What is occult blood, and what does it signify? How serious could this be? I am no longer menstruating? I was advised to consult a physician, but have not done so. I would appreciate your opinion. - K.C.

I wrote about occult blood recently, but for your special circumstance, I'll go over it briefly.

Occult blood means blood that cannot be seen by the eye. The urine looks normal and it's not blood tinged. But when you view a

What would it be like if you couldn't tell red from green or brown from blue? Or if all colors were the same drabness, except for yellow one the excitement Ti mi. 9-year old Lobbi Calley exper ed den he saw his first rainbow only two months ago. "It was neat!" he said.

But just a week before that, Robbi told his mother that he didn't think it was fair that he couldn't see the colors, said Debby Calley, Robbi's mother.

Robbi also received a big treat this past 4th of July. "The fireworks were so pretty," he said. He told his mother he never realized fireworks were Robbi the son o Debby Calley of Sterling City Route, was color blind and dyslexic, his mother said.

"We never realized he had a problem until he was four. He was learning everything else he was smart -- but he couldn't learn his cotors," she said. He thought green and orange, blue and purple, pink and gray, and red and brown were the same colors, she said. "He thought giraffes were green."

The only color Robbi could see consistently was yellow, she said. Because yellow was the only color to him, it was his favorite color, she added. The Calleys took their son to many local doctors - Dr. P W. Malone, Dr. B.R. Owen and Dr. William B. Allensworth. "They all said there was nothing that could be done," his mother said. At age 6, the second problem dyslexia – became evident. She said Robbi couldn't tell a "9" from a "p" or a "b" from a When he saw the word "on," he thought it was "no," and he would read "was" as 'saw," she explained.

He also started writing on the right side of the paper and moved to the left, she added.

"We thought he was just slow. But, eventually, there became a pattern," she said. At Elbow Elementar was given diagnostic tests, which revealed his IQ was higher than what his work indicated his mother reported At the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, Robbi took Sensory Integrated Tests (SIT). They detected learning disabilities and the therapists helped him with his coordination, she said.

"Finally, Dr. Katnik, a neurologist from Lubbock. diagnosed Robbi as being color blind." she said. The dyslexia occupational therapist at the rehabilitation center suspected it, but he said he wasn't qualified to diagnose it, she said.

Robbi was learning to compensate, she said. "He was in special education at school and we worked extra hard at home. He learned that when you see a '9,' it's really a 'p.

After staying on that course for a couple of years, the Calley's found an answer, his mother said.

Then they saw an ad in the Spring Heraldfor a dyslexia clinic in Midland. "You try whatever there is to try - it's like gambling - and you take a chance," she said. About 200 people were at the clinic. First the children were tested his mother explained

"And the guy, (Dr. Carl A. Ferreri, a chiropractor), diagnosed all of Robbi's problems. I wasn't impressed," she

But the Calleys decided they would try it, she said. "We weren't sure it would work and it was relatively expensive."

As Robbi was treated, he began showing signs of improvement. So the Calleys continued to take Robbi to a chiropractor — Dr. Joe Boyd in Midland, she said.

"One day, after he had been receiving treatments for about a month, Robbi said he felt different, like his head was lighter," his mother said.

'He did his homework the next day and it was like a different kid had done it. His teacher was amazed. He was writing everything neater and correctly, too," she said. Dyslexia and learning disabilities are caused from a malfunction between what the eves see and the way the brain interprets it, Boyd said.

Boyd, who is affiliated with Dyslexia Centers of America, says the treatment works "on every learning disabled and dyslexic. There are no age limits. It works on the elderly, mid-life and newborns. The only time it fails is when the parent or the doctor fails.'

The treatment began four years ago, Dr. Boyd said. "It is an amalgamation of 12 to 15 different techniques. In a matter of 30 days, the learning disabled or dyslexic person's writing and verbal skills will improve.

"I don't understand it. I don't know why it works — but — you don't argue with success." Robbi's mother concluded.

There's no place like home

By EDDIE CURRAN Staff Writer

For most of us this year, the Fourth of July was a chance to forget about work for a day and enjoy the sunshine and fireworks.

We probably spent considerably more time appreciating the joys of a three day weekend than we did quietly pondering the meaning of our country's independance.

But for Big Spring gymnast Will Rutherford and his coach Ken Werner, the certain American peculiarities that we all take for granted — such as personal liberty, freedom of the press, and yes, even the right to eat a good pizza meant a little more on that day.

On the Fourth of July, the twelve year-old Rutherford and his coach returned to Big Spring from the mythical, cold and faraway land of the Soviet Union.

Will and Ken left for Moscow June 18 to participate in the first ever joint Russian American gymnastics training camp. As a member of the American National Junior Elite team, Will was one of 60 American gymnasts — of which only four were boys — selected to make the trip. So few boys went to Moscow because the team was chosen on Russian standards.

"They have 500, we have four," says Ken, laughing at the Russians' dominance.

Coach and pupil returned with stacks of photographs and many stories and anecdotes about the Russian gymnasts, people, and KGB agents. They also learned that to be competitive with the Russians, if it's possible, will take a lot of hard work and catching up.

"They work out all day, six hours a day, six days a week. We don't. That's why they're so good," Will explains.

And how good are they?
"Their ten year olds are doing what our 16 year olds are doing,"
Ken says, putting it into

Will also points to a different attitude as one of the reasons for their success.

"They (the coaches) wouldn't let them jump around and laugh and joke. They could pat each other on the back and say 'good' and that was all. I went over and played with them when the coach was gone, but when the coach came back, they shut up. 11

Werner noticed one particularly disturbing incident.

"I saw a little boy — nine or ten — doing forward giants. The first time he was on the high bar, he swung down to soon, and on his way down, the coach just slapped him down and knocked him off the bars. All day long the coach hit the kid every time he saw him, for that one mistake. I never saw that coach smile in two weeks." Ken says.

Ken says that the bey didn't cry when the coach slapped him because he was used to being knocked about. Both Ken and Will added that not all the coaches were so gruff so gruff.

Gymnast and coach began their Russian days with a 7:30 breakfast that didn't have the two Americans in the mood to reminisce. The usual fair was cheese and hard chewy bread, with a glass of warm, sour milk to wash it down. For variety, the American visitors were occasionally treated to oatmeal.

After chow, Will went to the gym and Ken to the auditorium for lectures.

Though Will says he learned a lot technically, he says most of his work was on conditioning and stretching. One Russian friend could do 40 pushups from the handstand position. Another exercise Will was exposed to sounds at least as difficult.

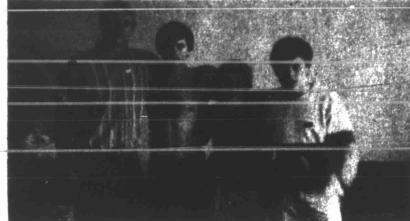

"We had to climb up the rope and keep our legs straight up. On the way down, we had to keep our legs straight and use one arm. You were finished, and the next thirty seconds you were going down again," Will says, and adds, "I got real sore."

At noon, Will and Ken ate with the group, then returned to workouts until 5:30. Will usually went sightseeing with the group at night while Ken stayed behind.

"I rewrote my notes and conked," he says.

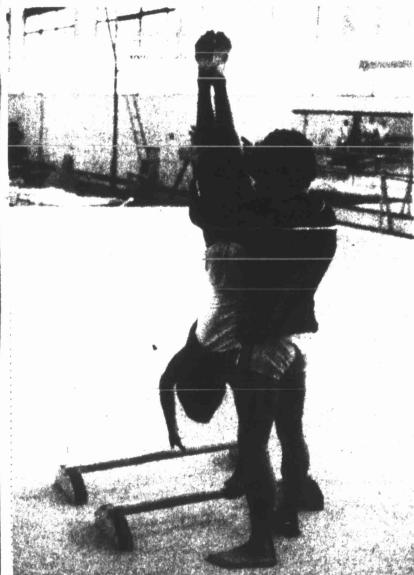

One of the highlights for both was the friendships they made with the Russian gymnasts. Will has several pictures of he and Ken with Dimitri Bolizerchev, the world champion, and Micha (hislast name was too dificult for them to remember), the top vaulter in the world.

"I got to be best friends with Micha," Will says.

Ceach Ken Werner, far left, and Will Rutherford, third from left, are flanked by two Russian gymnasts in the Americans' Moscow hotel room. Rutherford says the Russians weren't supposed to be there, and that they had to sneak past KGB agents.

Big Spring gymnast Will Rutherford gets some instruction and a little balance from a member of the Soviet Union's National Gymnastics Team during Rutherford's recent trip to Russia.
