White to tell cash crisis plans

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White takes to the tube tonight to tell Texans his plans to summon lawmakers to Austin to solve the state's cash crisis.

White's staff would not reveal the special session date before the governor's live television address, but Speaker Gib Lewis warned reporters not to make plans for late August and early September.

"He's got some innovative ideas he wants to kick out and see what the response will be," Lewis said Wednesday after speaking with White.

The latest revenue estimate from Comptroller Bob Bullock showed a shortfall of $2.3 billion when the current budget cycles ends Aug. 31, 1987. Bullock is expected to raise the bad-news bottom line to more than $3 billion this month.

In June, White said he would call a special session as soon as lawmakers put together a spending cut plan. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said Wednesday no plan has been agreed on.

"But we're working on it. The process is under way," he said.

Hobby has said spending cuts and tax changes might be needed. Lewis and White have insisted cuts alone could get the job done.

"We're still waiting for the appropriations committee to go in and see what they think needs to be done as far as cuts and make some recommendations back to us," Lewis said.

Ann Arnold, White's press secretary, said the governor would lay out his plan tonight in a televised speech from his office at the Capitol. White will meet with reporters after the speech.

The address is being offered, at no charge, to television and radio stations. The production costs will be paid for out of White's officeholder account, according to Mark McKinnon, White's campaign press secretary.

An August session could come before the completion of major renovation in the House chamber. Rep. Mike Millsap, D-Fort Worth and chairman of the House Administration Committee, said representatives' desks probably would not be re-installed in time for an August session.

Oilmen ask commission for cuts

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas should take the lead and order oil production cuts in an effort to help end the worldwide oil glut, says an oilman who has asked the Railroad Commission to end a 10-year streak of full production.

The commission voted 3-0 Wednesday to order a full hearing of the request filed by H.S. Bennett and William Burrow, both of Dallas.

Commissioners have set a 100 percent oil and gas production rate since 1976. The rate has been at 100 percent — with the exception of two months in 1976 — since April 1972.

The allowable has been slightly lower in some fields where the commission felt PRODUCTION page 2A

Consumers may pay more at the pump

NEW YORK (AP) — Consumers will pay more for gasoline by the end of the year because the market will rebound, oil industry analysts say, but they differ on when prices will start rising and by how much.

"The risk to the consumers now is higher prices rather than another windfall of lower prices," said Sanford Margoshes of Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc. in New York. Dan Lundberg, publisher of the Lundberg Letter, which follows the oil industry, agreed: "I would not look for future tumbling of prices."

Predictions on increases range from a nickel-a-gallon by Labor Day and up to 17 cents later to just a few pennies by year's end.

Oil prices continued rising after a sharp drop at the beginning of the week. The price for Britain's benchmark North Sea Brent crude, which hit a record low of $8.75 per 42-gallon barrel in Europe on Monday because of fears about a market glut, was trading in the $9.40-$9.50 range by late Wednesday, about 10 cents higher than the day before.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, contracts for August delivery of the price of West Texas Intermediate, the best-known U.S. crude, closed at $12.58 per barrel Wednesday, up from Tuesday's closing of $12.11.

"This is one of the sharpest rallies we've seen in the market in quite a while," said Peter C. Beutel, assistant director of Elders Futures Inc. in New York. "I think there are those who could build a good case that the market has bottomed out."

The market rallied, some analysts said, largely because many traders bought oil to repay borrowed oil they had sold earlier at higher prices.

Lundberg said he expected that recent low crude prices could still result in cheaper gasoline, because the lag between the time refiners acquire crude and the time finished products reach gas stations usually ranges between 45 to 90 days. Thus, he said, "to some extent...there's about another 1.5 cents to 2 cents in the distribution system from the refineries that has not worked its way through to the pump."

Several analysts said, however, that by mid- to late-August, prices, which average 89.75 cents per gallon according to Lundberg's semiweekly survey, would start rising again.

Though some maintain that crude prices could still stay in the $8-a-barrel range, others predicted they could rise about $2 per barrel by Labor Day.

Most analysts said they believed the OPEC ministers would be ready to reach some sort of accord, mainly because, as Lundberg put it, "they are not making revenues."

Water district to review Stacy reports

Reports on the Stacy reservoir project will be heard at the July 22 meeting of the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

The board of directors will meet at 10 a.m. at the district office, 300 E. 24th St.

Water sales contracts and problems with Natural Dam Lake west of Big Spring are also on the agenda.

General manager O.H. Ivie will brief the board on progress of plans for the Stacy dam and a public hearing set for Aug. 5 in Ballinger on a proposed draft of a U.S. Corps of Engineers environmental impact statement, according to a news release.

Also on the agenda are source materials for Stacy Dam and replacement of equipment.

Directors will consider ratification of expenditures for cutting an emergency spillway around the Natural Dam that currently impounds more than 30,000 acre feet of water on Sulphur Draw.

A modification of water intake at Lake J.B. Thomas will be presented.

Extensions will be asked of water sales contracts with Gulf, Chevron and El Paso Natural Gas, with a new 5,000-bbls. per day sale to Mobil, out of non-potable sources.

Clarification of the 1985 San Angelo supplemental contract will be discussed, as will representation at the 70th legislative session.

Gwen Fair sits in her office in the municipal annex. She has been acting municipal judge since June 23, taking over for Judge Melvin Daratt, who became ill.

Judge Fair gives courtroom flair

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

When many hear the word judge, an image forms of a silver-haired man clad in a black robe.

But in today's America, that image and many like it are fading. With acting Municipal Judge Gwen Fair, Big Spring has done its part in dissolving stereotypes.

Fair, 45, has filled the role of municipal judge since June 23. She recently attended judge certification school in Midland and has been a clerk at municipal court for 10 years.

The judicial reigns were handed over when Municipal Judge Melvin Daratt became unable to work because of an ailing back.

Daratt was scheduled to retire Aug. 1, but instead opted to take accrued sick leave and will finish his stint with the city in October.

Of Daratt, Fair said: "I think he's a super gentleman as far as a man and as far as a teacher."

Besides points of law, "Daratt taught me that it's not the money you make, it is the compassion you can bring to the job, and I found that to be so true.

"There are hard times now and you have to kind of lean over a little bit. I'm just carrying over from where he left off."

Fair said the attitude that women lack judicial temperament has not surfaced here.

The black robe she wears and the bench on which she sits smotheres any disrespect, she said.

"I haven't received anything negative, really. I did (last) Monday from a gentleman who was in (her office) yesterday. But it was a surprise when he was 360 degrees different when we got to court."

Surprises come easily in municipal court when people, accustomed to Daratt, see a black woman ready to decide their case.

She said it's more the fact she's the "ticket lady" than that she is black that opens eyes a little wider.

Race, she said, has nothing to do with her work as judge.

"I look at a person as a person; that's the way I was raised," I said. "I never look at their color. I hope they look at me that way, too."

Born and raised in Washington, D.C., Fair came to Big Spring with her husband and kids in 1975 from Saline, Kan. Her husband, whom she divorced before he died two years ago, was stationed at Webb Air Force Base.

After arriving here, she said she noticed the people of Big Spring were special.

"In Washington, D.C., they have a tendency to be unfriendly or cold. But people in Big Spring, they just treat you like you've been here all your life."

Fair leaves no doubt about her desire to be municipal judge on a permanent basis. She already has

Chamber to be more conservative with funds

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

The Chamber of Commerce board of directors must adopt a more conservative posture in granting funds for unbudgeted local activities because of a possible shortfall in funds, said president John Arrick.

Arrick made the announcement Wednesday at the board's regular meeting.

Arrick said measures do not entail refusing "seed money" to fund activities, but that the Chamber will require more money to be repaid after the activity is held.

However, treasurer Glenn Fillingim said he doesn't anticipate the Chamber having to trim activities already budgeted.

"We're seeing what's coming in and spending accordingly," he said.

Net income for the Chamber so far this year has been $34,437 less than last year to date, he said. The shortfall is mainly because less money from the hotel/motel occupancy tax has been collected.

Tax money goes to the Convention & Visitors Bureau to fund activities to bring in tourists from out of town.

Although the Chamber expects to receive approximately $100,000 this year from the tax, only $20,267 has been collected so far, Fillingim said. That compares to $52,926 to date last year.

But for the Chamber as a whole, funds collected are right on target, he said.

Memberships have been down this year, he said, but that was expected, Fillingim said. So far, the Chamber has collected $61,985 of the $114,000 projected for memberships, which is "pretty well in line," he said.

Arrick said the decline in memberships reflects the general economy.

"We're losing some memberships by virtue of (them) going out of business," he said.

The Chamber also is hurting from delinquent membership payments, he added.

A possible fall membership drive has been discussed, he said.

In other business, the Chamber:

- Voted unanimously to support paramutuel betting in Texas, as opposed to a lottery. A letter will be written to the state representatives urging them to support the item.

County Judge Milton Kirby said the state should control the betting and keep the proceeds, rather than an outside party taking funds out of the state.

He said Arkansas funds about 90 percent of its school programs with the proceeds from its race track.

Board member Chris Christopher said paramutuel betting would create more jobs than a lottery.

In other business, board members:

- Voted to draft a letter to John Richard Sparks, thanking him for his efforts in coordinating the Summerfest July 4th celebration.
- Introduced 13 youths working in the CLEAN program this summer, cleaning and beautifying the area. The Chamber has received a $2,500 anonymous donation to pay for insurance for the program, executive vice president LeRoy Tillery said.
- Announced the Beautification Committee will begin choosing two residential and two non-residential Beauty Spots of the Month, instead of just one, because of the great number of candidates.

- Announced the next community luncheon will be Sept. 3 and will kick off the United Way fundraising campaign.
- Announced the Sesquicentennial Road Rally will make an overnight stop in Big Spring in October. The rally includes 200 cars. Each day, drivers will take a test about the history of the area they covered that day, as part of a point system.
- Announced that Crimestoppers has awarded five rewards, a total of $1,250. Cases solved were an armed robbery, a sale of heroin, a burglary and an equipment theft.

- Randy Franklin, 36, of 3611 Hamilton Ave. was arrested early this morning on suspicion of driving while intoxicated.

Production

full production could produce waste.

Bennett said the production rate should be dropped to 90 percent for oil and gas.

"The state, the country and the world is in the state of overproduction," he said in a telephone interview from his Dallas office.

"Texas could show 'some leadership to bring some order out of what is chaos in the oil and gas business,'" he said.

"The Railroad Commission could cut the allowable a reasonable amount that would not make much difference but would give a signal ... and in doing so might give OPEC a little encouragement that the states recognize overproduction and were trying to do something to alleviate the situation," Bennett said.

No hearing date was set by the commission.

Also Wednesday, the panel set a 100 percent August production rate for almost all Texas fields.

Railroad Commissioner Mack Wallace was on the panel in 1976 when the production rate was lowered to 99 percent for one month and 98 percent for another month as an experiment to determine if there had been any waste.

"We were in a shortage and we were blowing production in the U.S. wide open and we did not want to blow the Texas fields out. So we took that breathing spell to look at it. But our engineers looked at it and they said it indicated we could continue to stand the production we were doing at that time without damage," Wallace said.

"But that was a number of years ago. I think it's highly appropriate that we look at the production in the field again today through this hearing process," he said.

Wallace and Commissioner Jim Nugent said they could not determine if a cut in Texas production would have any effect on slumping oil prices.

Asked if production cuts might be an idea hatched by oilmen who think it could bolster prices, Wallace said, "I'm sure that is in the minds of some people. But in my opinion the Saudis can produce 100 years at their present rate without blinking their eyes."

Nugent reported Wednesday that crude and petroleum product imports into the U.S. averaged 6.5 million barrels a day in June, an increase of 1.4 million barrels a day from June 1985.

Forsan cheerleaders win first place trophy

The Forsan varsity cheerleaders returned from cheerleader camp with a first place trophy and several other awards.

The Dynamic Cheerleader Association Camp was June 23-26 in Las Cruces, N.M., on the New Mexico State University campus, said sponsor Terressa Smith.

Other awards the cheerleaders earned were best dance routine, super squad, outstanding jumps, stunts and mounts, two outstanding cheering skill ribbons, dedication certificates, and a squad spirit certificate.

The group received 194 out of a possible 200 points for various activities throughout the camp.

Members of the squad are head cheerleader Kim Evans, Kerry Rawls, Robin Soles, Julie Robertson and Lauri Roberson.

Second place went to Ruidoso, N.M.; third to Clint and fourth to Petersburg cheerleaders.

Liner to be examined

WOODS HOLE, Mass. — Deep-sea explorers plan to examine the damage done to the Titanic when it rammed an iceberg on its maiden voyage 74 years ago and slipped to the bottom of the Atlantic, taking 1,513 people to their deaths.

Robert Ballard, leader of the return voyage to the remains of the "unsinkable" steamship, told reporters Wednesday night in a ship-to-shore news conference that he wanted to examine the tear caused when the Titanic hit the sea bottom two miles down, nearly splitting itself in half.

Cola wars now in court

WASHINGTON — The nation's soft-drink wars have found their way to federal court, with a judge considering whether to halt Coca-Cola's proposed $470 million takeover of Dr Pepper.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell is considering a request from the Federal Trade Commission that he prevent the soda merger on grounds it would reduce competition and raise prices.

LTV files bankruptcy

PITTSBURGH — LTV Corp., parent of one of the country's largest steel companies, said today it has filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy laws.

"The reason for the filing is the continued weakness in the company's steel and energy business over the last several years coupled with operating and liquidity problems that developed unexpectedly during recent weeks," said David Carroll, a spokesman for LTV Steel Co., a principal subsidiary of the Dallas-based company.

Under Chapter 11, a company continues to operate but is protected from creditor lawsuits while it works out a plan to pay its bills.

The petition was filed this morning in New York, Carroll said.

Therapy battles leukemia

BOSTON (AP) — A new therapy that purges cancerous bone marrow of diseased cells offers the first real chance of defeating cancer for some victims of leukemia who don't respond to ordinary treatment, experts reported today.

Doctors at Johns Hopkins tested the experimental approach on 25 people with a form of the disease called acute nonlymphocytic leukemia. All had relapsed from earlier treatment.

The researchers said their results suggest that the new therapy "may provide long-term control of leukemia" for such victims.

In this approach, doctors remove a sample of the victim's marrow and treat it with high doses of a chemotherapy drug to kill the diseased cells. Then they use radiation to destroy the marrow still inside the victim's body. Finally, they replace it with the treated marrow.

City strikes

Philadelphia, Detroit may seek orders

By The Associated Press
Striking Philadelphia garbage collectors were ordered back to work today while 10,000 other workers continued a 2-week-old walkout, and Detroit's mayor planned to seek a court order against 7,000 workers whose leader vowed "to shut down the city."

Philadelphia Common Pleas Judge Edward J. Blake said Wednesday he agreed with city officials that the 35,000 tons of garbage piling up on streets were a "clear and present danger or threat to the health, safety and welfare of the public." He ordered the garbage collectors back to work this morning.

About 12,000 members of District Council 33 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees walked out July 1. Some 2,400 of them are sanitation workers.

AFSCME District Council 47, representing 2,000 white-collar workers, also struck July 1 but reached a settlement with the city over the weekend. The city estimates that roughly half of those have returned to work and the other half are honoring the blue-collar picket lines.

District 33 President Earl Stout had said before Wednesday's hearing that the union would not disobey a court order. But, he said: "I can't control what my people do. If my people don't go back, what do I do?"

Mayor W. Wilson Goode said workers who fail to heed the order could be cited for contempt of court, and could face dismissal if they continued to stay out. Garbage collectors would work around-the-clock to clear 15 temporary dumps opened during the strike, he said.

In Detroit, Mayor Coleman Young vowed to seek a similar court order forcing some of the strikers back to work to maintain vital city services.

AFSCME District Council 25, representing 7,000 workers, struck at midnight Tuesday after a mediator could not resolve differences between the union and nation's sixth-largest city. No new talks were scheduled.

"We expect to shut down the city completely tomorrow," president James Glass said Wednesday afternoon.

About 40 percent of the city's union employees who are not AFSCME members honored picket lines Wednesday, Glass said. He predicted that figure would increase to 80 percent or 90 percent today.

A Philadelphia resident unloads garbage onto a heap at a temporary dump site in Philadelphia Wednesday due to the strike by municipal workers. The strike is in its third week.

The city has about 18,000 employees.

The strike halted bus service for 200,000 riders as drivers refused to cross picket lines of the strikers, who included clerks, sewer plant and zoo workers, bus mechanics, and emergency telephone operators.

Four pickets were arrested at Detroit's waste-water treatment plant Wednesday on charges of disorderly conduct. A union spokeswoman who would not give her name said three people were hit by cars while picketing. Police said they could not confirm the incident.

At a news conference Wednesday evening, Young called the strike illegal and said union leaders were irresponsible.

"The demands of city workers, of AFSCME, have been literally in the stratosphere," Young said.

The union is seeking a 26 percent pay increase over three years, while the city has offered 2 percent the first year, with future increases based on the city's financial health.

Also Wednesday, Philadelphia officials and union leaders held their first formal bargaining session since Sunday. The negotiations recessed in the early evening with no word of when talks would resume.

The two AFSCME locals in Philadelphia, the nation's fifth-largest city, struck over wages and benefits.

American gives warning

MARAWI, Philippines — Kidnapped American missionary Brian Lawrence, in a letter to his wife released today, warned against any military rescue attempt, saying, "If the military tries to get me, I will be killed."

Lawrence, who was abducted from his apartment in Marawi on Saturday night and taken to the interior of Lanao del Sur province, said he was being kept in a straw hut where he could see "plenty of young rebels with arms and ammunition.... The fellows like to clean and work on their guns."

Car bombed in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A suicide car bomber today blew up an explosive-laden BMW in the main square of Jezzine, the largest Christian town in southern Lebanon, police reported.

They said the car was driven by a woman, and that she died in the 11:45 a.m. blast, which also wounded three civilians. Two cars were demolished and several shops were wrecked, police said.

The Syrian Social Nationalist Party, a leftist Lebanese faction backed by Syria, claimed responsibility for the bombing.

Mouse delays jetliner

BANGKOK, Thailand — A British Airways flight to the Far East was delayed for two hours this week after a mouse was sighted aboard the jet, the airline said in a letter today.

"When a rodent is present on an aircraft it can be a hazard both to public health and the safe operation of the aircraft," British Airways said in a written apology to the delayed passengers.

The stowaway mouse was spotted by a passenger Tuesday as the L-1011 was approaching Kuala Lumpur, the Malaysian capital, on a flight originating in London.

After inspection and fumigation, no hazard was found and flight BA32 proceeded to Bangkok.

There was no word on the fate of the mouse.

Church workers arrested

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — American, Canadian and Australian church workers arrested while accompanying war refugees into a restricted area without permission will be deported today, a member of the group said.

The group was made up of 19 Americans, two Canadians and two Australians, according to the church worker, who spoke on condition of anonymity in a telephone interview from Treasury Police headquarters in San Salvador on Wednesday.

The Rev. Miguel Campbell, an official with the Roman Catholic archbishop's office, said the religious workers had accompanied some 600 war refugees trying to return to their homes near Aguacayo, 29 miles north of San Salvador, on Tuesday.

Memory loss happens to all

The next time you feel like a doddering fool, unable to recall the name of someone you have known for years, try to remember this: it happens to all of us.

That reassuring conclusion comes from research by Ulric Neisser of Emory University, one of the leading investigators in the field of memory.

Studying more than 200 persons to determine what kind of lapses in memory occur most often, Neisser and his colleagues found that momentary forgetfulness happens in healthy people more often than most of us realize.

Even more comforting may be the kinds of memory loss that the researchers found happen most often — forgetting the name of someone you have just met at a social gathering, being unable to recall any details of a dream right after you wake and forgetting that brilliant observation you were just about to make in a conversation.

For those at the stage in life when having your mind go blank can be a real cause for alarm, the researchers provide this comforting thought: Volunteers aged 65 to 75 were much better at remembering to make a telephone call at a certain time than a group of college students.

Everyone's memory is different, of course, and sudden or severe memory loss may indicate the presence of a real problem. But the researchers found that most people's memories are really much better than they give themselves credit for, and memory loss is only abnormal when it causes major disruptions in your life.

Decision gives educators tool

Americans will agree with the Greek philosopher who said that only the educated are free.

The ruling lies behind a U.S. Supreme Court decision a few weeks ago giving school administrators broad disciplinary powers to protect students from the disruptive behavior of classmates.

Critics of the decision claim that it establishes a double standard for freedom-of-speech rights of students compared to adults. After all, it was not as if the central figure in the case had shouted "fire" in a crowded theater. The youth, a former high school senior in suburban Tacoma, Wash., had given an assembly speech that was laced with crude sexual allusions and caused an uproar among students.

But in the opinion by the 7-2 majority, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger wrote, correctly, we believe, the First Amendment's guarantee of free speech did not give "children in a public school" the same latitude as adults and did not protect the young speaker.

"The schools, as instruments of the state, may determine that the essential lessons of civil, mature conduct cannot be conveyed in a school that tolerates lewd, indecent or offensive speech and conduct such as that indulged in by this confused boy," the chief justice wrote.

Some observers believe that the decision was a sharp departure from the high court's 1969 ruling that students do not "shed their constitutional rights to freedom of speech or expression at the schoolhouse gate." That opinion concluded that students had a First Amendment right to wear black armbands as part of a non-disruptive protest to U.S. participation in the Vietnam War.

It was entirely proper that the new decision reaffirmed the 1969 ruling, Chief Justice Burger pointed out that the Washington state youth's case differed because his speech was disruptive, lacked any political viewpoint, had sexual content, was "acutely insulting" to teen-age girls and could be "seriously damaging" to 14-year-olds in the audience.

The new ruling upheld principles promulgated by the Reagan administration, which had urged the court to rule against the young man.

Secretary of Education William J. Bennett declared that the ruling "upheld the legitimate, indeed essential, responsibility of schools to maintain an environment and ethos conducive to learning. This decision reminds us that schools must possess the moral authority to prepare our young people for citizenship."

Most school officials will say that one of the biggest obstacles to educating their young charges is maintaining discipline in the classroom. The high court's decision gives them an important tool to achieve that end.

Scary report indicates a need to act

By SPENCER SANDOW, Staff Writer

I don't know if the experts meant to scare me or not, but they sure succeeded.

The experts suggest a mounting threat that terrorists could turn to nuclear measures to further their own ends.

The probability of a first-time nuclear terrorist attack is increasing, said a report by the International Task Force on the Prevention of Nuclear Terrorism.

The report identifies several ways terrorists could use nuclear devices to gain public attention for their cause.

They could seize and detonate nuclear bombs over heavily-populated areas; they could steal nuclear materials to make their own crude nuclear bombs; or they could sabotage a nuclear reactor.

That could produce another Chernobyl or Hiroshima. Sound encouraging?

An Associated Press story quotes the task force report as saying the danger of nuclear terrorism stems from several factors:

- Terrorist incidents are increasing and growing more violent, often to enhance shock value.
- Nations support and sometimes sponsor terrorism.
- The number of targets, such as nuclear reactors used to generate power or conduct research, is growing.
- Evidence is rising of black or "gray" markets in weapons-grade nuclear fuel or the technology needed to assemble a weapon.

Just talking about the danger brings more danger, the report says, noting that terrorists could get ideas from reading the report. It acknowledged, however, that most sophisticated terrorist groups already have those ideas.

The report suggests that governments could take a number of steps to prevent an incident, such as:

- Equipping nuclear weapons and reactors with anti-sabotage devices and tracking equipment, in case they are stolen.
- Intensifying intelligence services to detect and prevent nuclear terrorism, with increased cooperation between the agencies of the United States and Soviet Union.
- Designing reactors to use low-grade nuclear fuel rather than highly enriched fuel that also can be used in weapons.

We must encourage the government to adopt anti-nuclear terrorist measures such as those. If you are as concerned as I am, write to your Congressman. Timely action could prevent a disaster later.

Faulty drug test kits allow users to escape detection

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — When two competing government contractors get involved in a hissing match, the results can be unexpectedly revealing. That's what has happened in a controversy that has pitted two of the largest manufacturers of drug-testing equipment against each other in a battle for the lucrative Pentagon contract to test servicemen and women for illegal substances.

Syva Co. had the original contract to test military personnel with its EMIT urinalysis kits. But two years ago, responding to complaints that the laboratory results were inaccurate, poorly controlled and unfairly implicating innocent servicemen, the Pentagon reopened the testing contract.

Syva argued that the inaccuracies were due to bad lab work, not to its EMIT kits, but the Defense Logistics Agency awarded the contract to Roche Diagnostics Systems Inc. Its Abuscreen test kit was similar to EMIT, but relied on a slightly different technology.

Syva protested, but the General Accounting Office ruled early this year that the Pentagon had not been unfair in giving the test contract to Roche.

The legal documents filed by both sides have been reviewed by our reporters Brian Bloch and Donald Goldberg. They provided a fascinating inside glimpse of the drug tests now being administered by government agencies, schools and corporations across the country.

In fact, if what the two quarreling contractors claim is true, the urinalysis tests being given are not only inaccurate but cannot detect the difference between legal and illegal substances in many cases.

For example, Syva's claim — undisputed by Roche — is that neither the EMIT nor Abuscreen test can "distinguish between use of heroin or codeine," and would simply identify the presence of an "opiate" in the tested person's body. Heroin is highly addictive and illegal; codeine is a common ingredient of prescription cough syrups and other medications.

The documents show a similar

problem with testing for amphetamines. Abuscreen detects the presence of amphetamines, but doesn't single out the presence of "the abused drug methamphetamine," according to Syva. On the other hand, Syva acknowledged, its EMIT identifies methamphetamine but doesn't isolate other abused offshoots of the parent drug amphetamine.

In addition, neither test does well in singling out the presence of PCP, an extremely dangerous substance that has caused widespread crime and violence in many U.S. cities. Both tests gave positive results for "closely related analogs" of PCP, but also for high concentrations of a common cough medicine ingredient called dextromethorphan, according to a Syva document.

The company documents also detail other problems in drug tests, such as variations in testing temperatures and the presence of other substances in the bloodstream. For example, a pinch of salt added to a urine sample can neutralize the testing chemical and result in a "clean" test.

The problem revealed by the companies' documents is not that innocent parties will be wrongly identified as drug users, but just the opposite: Drug users will escape detection because of the (other company's) faulty test kit.

Furthermore, Syva claims that the steady decline in positives among Navy personnel — from 30 percent to 5 percent over the last several years — was due to a higher threshold decreed by the Navy. "Since only specimens with somewhat higher levels (of drugs) will be called positive, the confirmation rate will appear to go up, although the total number of confirmed drug users may appear to go down." This is because it's easier to detect a higher level of drugs, even with a questionable test.

Footnote: The Pentagon declined to comment.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: Artistic conception is a movable feast in Fidel Castro's Cuba. A State Department analysis lists the changing themes that form the boundaries within which artists and writers have been allowed to operate in the last quarter-century. In the 1960s, acceptable subjects were "heroic sugar cane cutters" and "pro-Castro exiles." In the 1970s, the officially favored topic was "revolutionary solidarity with the African people." Then, in the late 1970s, "socialist mysteries" were sanctioned. Spy stories chronicling the derring-do of state security forces in their battle against the CIA provide "a stimulus for more vigilance."

HISTORY LESSON: It's gratifying to think that one of our columns made it onto a presidential cue card. Two days after our reminder that Haitians fought and died in the American Revolution, President Reagan welcomed Haitian ambassador Pierre Sam to the White House and cited the strong ties between the two countries, "which go back to our Revolutionary War when Haitians fought alongside Americans in the Battle of Savannah." The column was widely reprinted in Haiti, and was evidently noticed on Embassy Row in Washington. A Dominican Republic diplomat called Sam and asked how his country might get similar positive publicity.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Politics makes strange bedfellows. Do Supreme Court decisions, too? We can't help wondering, in light of recent decisions, if the next protest demonstration outside the high court will see gay rights activists and anti-abortion militants marching arm in arm — or at least shaking their fists together.

Jack Anderson's investigative report from Washington is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Heterosexuals worried by sodomy ruling

The Supreme Court has just upheld a Georgia law making sodomy a crime. It is a landmark decision, and as with all landmark decisions, many citizens are very nervous. Not only homosexuals are worried by the court's ruling, but it has scared the pants off heterosexuals as well.

I know this because some of my best friends are heterosexuals and they confide in me a lot. Matingly said, "If homosexuals are not safe in the privacy of their homes, who will be next?"

"I believe you are unduly pessimistic," I said. "The court would never do to heterosexuals what it has done to homosexuals. Many of the justices are heterosexuals themselves."

"Nevertheless, their decision is a dagger aimed at the heart of anyone who believes in a private sex life. If the state can go into the bedroom and arrest two people performing an act which has been declared illegal, what is to prevent it from going into a room next door and rousting out a couple doing something that is considered twice as weird?"

"Why would the state want to do something like that?"

"Because the people who write the laws dictating what sex acts are legal and illegal would like to rule out everything but the missionary position. They want to tell us how to do it."

"No, they don't. No one has ever told me what to do in the bedroom."

"Then let me ask you how you feel about the pillow game."

"I don't know the pillow game." "You beat each other with pillows until there are no feathers left in the cases. They're talking about forbidding that in Virginia."

"You heterosexuals are so hysterical. The next thing you're going to tell me is that body painting your mate will be declared a crime in South Dakota."

"It will be if tickling is involved. Don't you understand that once the Surepme Court had gone through the bedroom door, there was no way of getting them out. Eight men and one woman are no substitute for one Dr. Ruth Westheimer."

"This is no time for panic. What you practice in your own home, whether it be the 'Jewel in the Lotus,' the 'Gift to the Ceiling' or the 'Corkscrew Motion,' will not be forbidden provided it meets the community standards of at least five of the nine judges. It is only homosexuals who can't practice these things behind closed doors. You heterosexuals should be happy that what you reveal in is not against the law, and that you live in a country where anything goes. In some societies, achieving the 'Great Delight of Enlightenment' with the large toe can get you 20 years in jail."

"But the Supreme Court has everyone cringing. If Georgia can pass a law against one type of lovemaking, why can't Arkansas enact one against another? Pretty soon there will be no positions left."

"Even if they do pass a law," I said, "your home is still your castle, and it would have to be very unusual circumstances that would allow the police to crash in."

"Possibly, but heterosexuals are very nervous people and just the knowledge that there may be someone on the other side of the bedroom door will inhibit us from engaging in the Yab-Yum positions."

"Why blame the Supreme Court for that?"

"Because when you start taking away the Yab-Yum position from one person, then you start taking it away from all."

Art Buchwald's humor and satire is distributed nationally by Los Angeles Times Syndicate.

Man could lose his wife for having too much 'brotherly love'

DEAR ABBY: "Rob" and I have been married for two years. He's 26 and I am 27. Eight months ago his brother, "Russ" (he's 24) got into financial trouble, and asked if he could stay with us for a while. Well, he's still here, and that's why I'm writing. I wouldn't mind, but Russ makes no effort to find a job. Instead he keeps borrowing money from Rob and spends it on drugs. I've told Russ I didn't want him doing drugs and smoking pot in our house, but I've come home from work to find him getting high with a bunch of strangers. He's even brought home women from the streets to sleep with him.

Dear Abby

MISERABLE

DEAR MISERABLE: First, you and your husband must realize that his brother has a drug problem, and the kindest expression of brotherly love would be to stop feeding his habit and get him into a treatment facility. Your husband is doing Russ no favors; in fact, he's compounding the problem by providing him food, lodging and money for drugs.

Russ needs professional help, and you need counseling in order to be firm enough to help him. Write to: NAR-ANON Family Group Headquarters Inc., P.O. Box 2542, Palos Verdes Peninsula, Calif. 90274. Enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for a reply.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing about "Arf Arf," who rented nude tapes while his wife was out of town and it got around to his wife, which put him in the doghouse. He said clerks in video stores should be just as discreet as doctors and lawyers, so he complained to the store manager and the clerk who blabbed got fired.

Your comment stated he was justified in reporting the clerk, and adults are free to choose their own entertainment.

My comment: In deciding to purchase nude magazines or tapes, attending a "girlie" show or patronizing a prostitute, one runs the risk of being found out. I think this gentleman was seeking to find someone to blame, instead of accepting the consequences of his own actions.

If I rented a nude tape, the consequences are that people may find out, including my spouse. The issue here really isn't renting a nude tape; it's being honest and aboveboard with your spouse and accepting responsibility for your own behavior.

MARI NELSON, ST. PAUL, MINN.

DEAR ABBY: In response to the letter signed "Arf Arf in Arkansas"; He shouldn't have watched, let alone rented the nude tape in the first place.

In computer language it's called "garbage in, garbage out."

In spiritual law what is digested and stored in one's heart is what will come out through the mouth (Matthew 12:33-37). We speak what we think, and we think what has been filed in our minds through what we see, hear and do.

For a truly happy and rewarding marriage, social and business life, man should be careful of what he allows his mind to dwell on — even for a fraction of a second.

CONCERNED IN ALASKA

DEAR ABBY: There is a coworker of mine who is having an affair with an old flame. He comes to me often to confide the details of this sneaky romance, then says he feels guilty because his wife is such a nice person and she just had a child (their third). I do not want to listen anymore, but we are good friends and he trusts me because he knows I would never tell.

Is there some way I can tell him that I do not want to be his confidant? He asks for advice, but if it's not what he wants to hear, he doesn't take it. (I told him from the beginning he should quit seeing this woman.)

I don't want to lose his friendship, but I do not like the role I am playing. I'm afraid he is going to hurt a lot of people. How can I get out of this without hurting his feelings?

GOOD EAR You may not be able to, but risk it anyway. Tell him you don't want to hear anymore about his affair, period.

If he's a good friend, give him some good advice and tell him to confide in a professional counselor before he breaks a lot of hearts — including his own.

DEAR ABBY: Please leave King Henry VIII at rest. The English learned their "strange eating habits" centuries before America was even born. So who is "wrong"?

The American tourists who thought the English need eating lessons should visit China and "teach" the Chinese to use a knife and fork, and throw away those funny little sticks they've been eating with for 5,000 years!

PROUD CANADIAN

Stress can raise the white blood cell count

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Can a white cell count of 16,000 be normal? I know that 10,000 or 11,000 can be normal. I have had several blood tests done, but it was just wasted time for me. The count was up the last time, but the doctor doesn't seem to be worried about this. It sure bothers me. Please put my mind at rest. — P.M.C.

Dr. Donohue

Some people have white blood cell counts as high as the one you cite and are not sick. Many factors can initiate a rise — exercise, excitement, smoking, for examples. But high counts that persist can also signal infection, tumor, or other illnesses.

And, really, a count of 16,000 isn't alarmingly high. Counts above 30,000 are definite indications of serious problems. You aren't approaching that level.

Because this finding is bothering you, I suggest you settle things with a visit to a hematologist. He is a doctor who specializes in blood chemistry and disorders related to that. It's reassuring, at the best, to get an "all clear" from a different doctor in such cases.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have a question for you concerning leg cramps and the drug, quinine sulfate. What is the quinine sulfate for? What does it do? My husband suffered leg cramps for 30 years. A friend recommended quinine sulfate and he had immediate relief. Why didn't my husband's doctor tell him this was possible? Please send the material you have on leg cramps. — Mrs. B.E.

Quinine sulfate works by quieting the twitchiness of muscles so they won't cramp. It doesn't work all the time, and for some it may not work at all. The best way to use it is to try it for several nights and then if you become cramp-free you can discontinue it. You don't have to take it all the time. That's in reference to your concerns about side effects.

I don't know why your husband's doctor avoided suggesting it. Your husband might inquire, because there are situations in which it is not prescribed.

Sometimes leg cramps can be handled without resort to medicines. Simple exercises to loosen leg muscles often suffice. Has your husband tried them?

Please don't ask me to run down the litany of side effects. Every drug has many potential side effects, a phrase I have used repeatedly here. It's true. If you wish, you can get a copy of that list from the prescribing doctor or the pharmacy. If I wanted, I could fill each and every column I write with full tabulations of side effects. It would serve no really useful purpose and would decimate my readership into the bargain.

I am sending on the booklet. Others can order "Hot to Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pain" by writing me and enclosing a long, stamped self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: When I was a senior in high school I had a sports physical. The urine test showed some sugar. I never had it repeated, although the doctor advised me to. My parents said there was no diabetes in our family and that it was unnecessary. I'm in my 20s now. Do you think I should have this checked out? — C.L.H.

It wouldn't be a bad idea, especially if it's weighing on your mind, which seems to be the case. I can think of lots of reasons why the first test might have showed sugar. Diabetes is only one. Simply eating a lot of sugar before the test could have caused it.

The urine test is misunderstood by a lot of people. It is a screening technique. If the urine is positive for sugar, it is a hint of diabetes, but only that, a hint. To find out for sure you have to test the person's blood.

Do you often have a "stomach ache"? If so, your stomach may not be the real trouble spot. The booklet, "Stomach and Other Abdominal Pains: A Checklist," tells you why. For a copy, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1.00.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Exercising tips for your dog

From BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS A Meredith Magazine

Dogs enjoy jogging with their masters, and most four-legged runners can benefit from the exercise — provided it's not overdone.

To ensure that jogging is safe for your dog, Better Homes and Gardens suggests you:

Consult a veterinarian first: A checkup will determine if your pet is ready to run. Older dogs and dogs with unsuspected health problems may be at risk. Pups aged 6 months and under usually are too young to work out.

- Walk before you run: Dog's footpads need to toughen up gradually.
- Run slowly at first: Your dog is just as likely to be as out of shape as you are. Some pets are so eager to please, they'll run themselves to exhaustion before quitting.
- Keep your dog leashed: Don't let a pleasant morning run turn into a Hollywood chase scene.
- Skip especially hot days: A dog perspires by panting, which is less efficient than the way humans perspire. Always stop if you notice your dog is panting extremely hard.

MARRIAGE... (Part 4) For marriage to be good and successful it is essential that both companions in the marriage meet the 8 emotional needs that each person has as a normal part of their emotional make up. These are: (7) PROTECTION... You feel safe and protected in their presence (and size has nothing to do with it). You feel defended from the world and other people that this person will guard securely your reputation and the inner thoughts you share with them. You are aware of a security that you can express your most private thoughts with them and you will still be accepted and they receive you as you were before you expressed it. (8) FAITH... You can trust the person you are married to, even if there are a thousand miles between you. You have confidence that because of the kind of person you believe that they are, and their feelings for you, that they will be faithful to whatever agreement that exist between you. You trust them as a person. They fulfill your need of trust and confidence in them as a person.

Defendants convicted of organized crime

KERRVILLE (AP) — A ranch owner, his son and a former ranch foreman face up to 20 years in prison after they were convicted of a slavery scheme that led to the death of a hitchhiker after a torture session with a cattle prod.

A seven-woman, five-man jury worked more than 19 hours before returning to the courtroom Wednesday and finding the three guilty under Texas' organized crime statute.

The jurors were to return at 1 p.m. today to consider sentencing for Hill Country rancher Walter Wesley Ellebracht Sr., 54, Walter Wesley Ellebracht Jr., 33, and Carlton Robert Caldwell, 21.

Under the organized crime statute, the state had accused the three of conspiring to commit aggravated kidnapping and murder.

But jurors made no specific finding in their verdict concerning the conspiracy to commit murder allegation, although they did address the kidnapping charge.

The charges stemmed from March 1984, when three men claimed they were picked up by the Ellebrachts while they were hitchhiking and went to their ranch when they were promised work.

The men claimed that when they asked to leave, they were forced to dig ditches in a chain gang and were tortured with a cattle prod. Then they were released on Interstate 10 north of Kerrville.

The charges also stemmed from allegations that Anthony Bates, 27, a drifter from Huntsville, Ala., was tortured to death with an electric cattle prod.

Prosecutors alleged his body was doused in gasoline and burned at the ranch.

The state's key piece of evidence was tape recordings of alleged torture sessions involving Bates. Witnesses identified voices belonging to the younger Ellebracht and Caldwell on those tapes, one of which began: "Live from the bunkhouse, it's shock time."

The defense did not deny Bates was abused or that he died, but they claimed he and other workers like Caldwell were free to leave the ranch and there was no conspiracy to commit aggravated kidnapping or murder.

In its verdict, the jury made a finding that the defendants agreed to release their victims in a safe place.

Such a finding, prosecutor Gerald Carruth said, means the defendants can draw sentences up to 20 years.

State

Man dies in bowling accident

HUNTSVILLE — A 25-year-old Sam Houston State University student was killed when he became entangled in a pin-setting machine at a bowling alley in what a justice of the peace called one of the strangest deaths he'd ever seen.

Jimmie Carroll Ward II, of Clute, died about 12:15 a.m. Monday when he became entangled in a pin-setting machine at the Huntsville Bowling Lanes, said Huntsville Police Lt. Gary Howze, who is in charge of the investigation.

An autopsy is pending.

Ward apparently tried to remove a bowling pin in the gutter underneath the machine by reaching through the arms of the machine, which contracted when the resetting action was somehow triggered, Howze said.

Apparently the bowling center had closed at midnight, but Ward and two other men had stayed to finish their games in progress.

Witness: Victim ran oil scam

FORT WORTH — Paul Reynolds would have faced criminal charges for four "boiler room" scams that cost oil and gas drilling investors had he survived the Delta 191 crash, a Florida prosecutor said.

"Based on what he had done until his death, there was sufficient evidence to satisfy me that he should have been brought up on criminal charges," Kent Neal, chief of the Broward County, Fla., economic crimes unit, testified in Fort Worth federal court Wednesday.

Jurors are expected to begin deliberations Friday in the trial of Kathy Ann Reynolds' lawsuit against Delta over the loss of her 32-year-old husband. He was one of 137 people killed when the Delta jumbo jetliner crashed in a violent thunderstorm at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport Aug. 2.

Milk removed from shelves

DALLAS (AP) — An anonymous letter to the editor, claiming that the writer had injected cyanide into cartons of Borden skim milk, caused Tom Thumb-Page to remove an estimated 2,500 to 4,000 cartons from grocery shelves throughout Dallas, company officials said.

Store executives, upon learning of the letter, immediately ordered the removal of the product Wednesday.

Police began investigating the letter, which said cyanide was injected into Borden skim milk cartons that would be on Tom Thumb supermarkets store shelves by Tuesday.

The letter, handprinted and postmarked Saturday in Dallas, arrived Wednesday at the Dallas Morning News, according to Burl Osborne, president and editor of the newspaper.

Tax writers work on final revision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty-two House and Senate tax writers, fresh from a White House pep rally with President Reagan, today began drafting the final version of the most thorough tax code revision in a generation.

They are agreed on lower rates, but undecided on how much to shift the tax burden from middle-income people to business.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., leading the 11 House bargainers, and Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., heading the 11-member Senate delegation, said before the negotiations began that the future of fully deductible Individual Retirement Accounts is the most controversial item facing them.

Meanwhile, Rostenkowski and Packwood said they hoped their difficult bargaining will not be complicated by daily meddling from the White House.

"We hope that the president will not be commenting on the bill day by day, section by section as we go along, and I think he will refrain from that," Packwood said after a breakfast session Reagan hosted at the White House for the bargainers.

Rostenkowski said he suggested to Reagan that he "withhold comment" on the day-to-day negotiations.

Rostenkowski and Packwood have tried hard to create an atmosphere of bipartisanship, goodwill and compromise.

Yet those good feelings could disappear quickly as the negotiators get beyond opening speeches and try to settle on a compromise version of the landmark tax legislation passed by each chamber.

The treatment of Individual Retirement Accounts is one of the pitfalls facing the negotiators.

"I think that that's an area that most members feel most pressure on," Rostenkowski said.

Packwood agreed there is "no question" that the Senate's plan to do away with the IRA deduction is the most controversial part of that chamber's tax reform package.

"That probably occupies more complaints than all the rest put together," Packwood said in a joint appearance with Rostenkowski on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America."

Noting that the IRA deductions cost the Treasury $26 billion in lost taxes, Packwood said, "You can't have your cake and eat it too."

The legislators, with aides, lobbyists and reporters looking on, gathered today in the cavernous meeting room of the House Ways and Means Committee, a room in the Longworth House Office Building that is so large it housed the full House of Representatives when extensive renovations were made to the House chamber in the Capitol in 1940, 1949 and 1950.

Drop 13-10 decision to Odessa team

Americans finally lose

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

An opportunistic Odessa Jim Parker team made the Big Spring American League All-Stars pay for their mistakes as the Odessa All-Stars remained undefeated by beating the American League 13-10 in a see-sawing slugfest at American League Park Wednesday night.

Wild pitches, walks and two costly errors allowed the Odessans to match runs with inning numbers as they scored three, four and five runs in those same numbered innings.

In the fourth and fifth innings the lead changed hands three times as pitching for both teams collapsed and the scorekeeper worked frantically to record the mayhem.

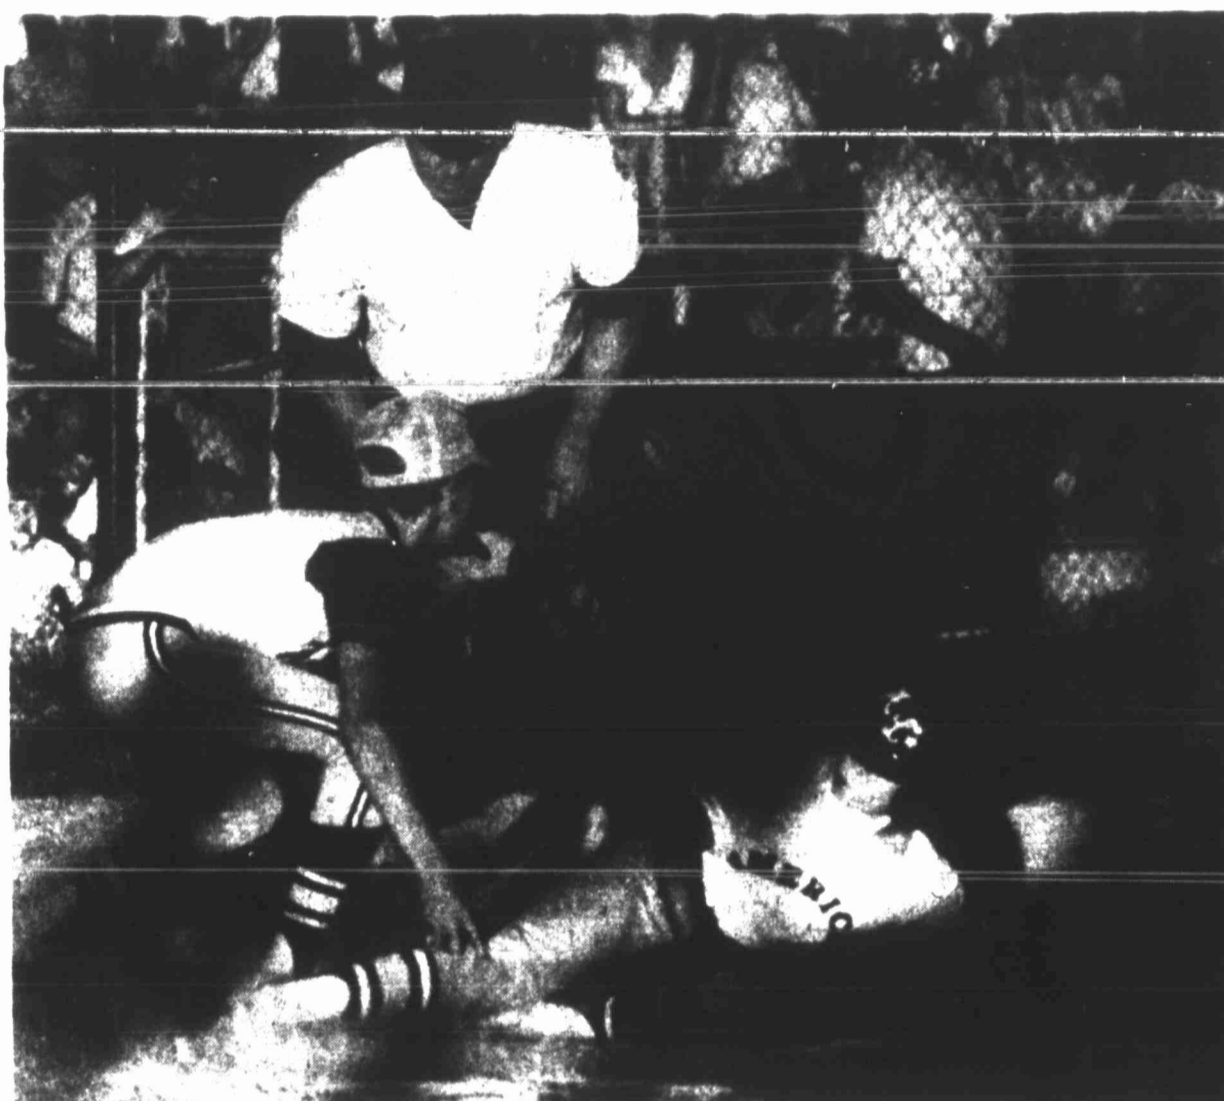

Tonight's Game

Odessa North East Texas vs. Midland North Central, 8 p.m.; American League field.

Jonathan Downey opened the contest with a single, and one out later Cort Petterson hit a Will Wagner pitch deep to center field. The blow might have been a home run if not for a strong southerly wind. Petterson settled for a stand-up double as Downey scored from second.

Petterson advanced to third and scored on two wild pitches. Brant Laster doubled, advancing pitcher Billy Bob Sumpter, who had walked. Scrappy shortstop Patrick Martinez, who reached base all four times he batted, singled to score Sumpter. Laster scored the last run of the inning moments later when an attempt to pick-off Martinez sailed into center field.

Sumpter, who started on the mound for the Americans, began strongly with an easy first inning, but started the second shakily by

Wagner grew stronger as the game progressed, allowing no runs in the second and third innings and one in the fourth when his shortstop bobbled a grounder, allowing Downey to score.

Three singles and three wild pitches scored Wagner, Chad Sandall and Jeff Thomason in the third inning as Odessa tied the contest 4-4 after three innings of play.

After the Big Spring team's lone run in the top of the fourth, Odessa bounced back as Jimmy Mulholland, Wagner and Jay Johnston knocked Sumpter from the game with a double, a single and a double. With two runs in, reliever John Kennedy faced Thomason with two outs.

Jury rules in favor of U.S. boxer

MOSCOW (AP) — A boxing jury ruled today that American fighter Harvey Richards, disqualified from the Goodwill Games by a Soviet referee, should be reinstated.

However, the ruling by the four-man jury of the competition, consisting of Pat Duffy, a manager of the U.S. team, and three Soviets, was only a preliminary decision. The final verdict will be made later in the day by the International Amateur Boxing Association, headed by its president, Col. Don Hull of the United States.

Richards was at the boxing arena to find out the decision, but when it was not made final, he retreated to his hotel room, without speaking to the media.

The jury's decision overturned the ruling by referee Yuri Frolov to disqualify Richards, a light heavyweight from Springfield, Ill., for a low blow during his quarter-final fight against Nils Hausgaard Madsen of Denmark on Tuesday.

If Richards is reinstated by the IABA, he would box in a semifinal tonight. "I would say it definitely looks like he will be boxing tonight," Duffy said, adding, "it's a very confusing situation."

In making the decision, the jury looked at official tapes of the bout and films provided by the Turner Broadcasting System, sponsor of the Games.

"The tapes showed he (Madsen) was fouled, but that's not a factor now," Duffy said. "The jury decided the action of the referee was premature."

While Richards' fate still was undecided, Madsen's was clear.

Duffy said that Madsen had retired from the competition, "by virtue of medical reasons." He did not elaborate.

On Wednesday, Richards said he had lost his will to fight.

"Even if I do get a chance to box, I don't really have any feeling or motivation now," the 22-year-old said.

After the disqualification, the American team filed a five-part protest to the IABA, claiming that the rules were not properly applied and that both fighters were ready to continue, said Omar Greene, the other manager of the U.S. team.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union increased its lead in the gold medals race, winning five of six golds awarded Wednesday and increasing its total to 71 golds and 160 medals overall. The United States collected one gold, for a total of 35 and 105 medals overall.

Greene said that while Richards' blow against Madsen may have been low, the American fighter should not have been disqualified unless his opponent was incapacitated, or the blow was ruled intentional.

"I think he got confused," Greene said of the referee's decision.

"Usually, when there's a disqualification, it's because of a deliberate blow," Greene added. "The referee didn't say it was deliberate, he said it was accidental."

Madsen said after the controversial call that he was ready to continue fighting when the referee stopped the bout.

American boxing Coach Roosevelt Sanders said he was "upset and dismayed" by the disqualification.

"I don't know the credentials of this referee, but it's not up to our standards," he said. "I would question his credentials. Was he ready?"

With Richards out of the tournament, the United States still had 10 boxers remaining in the competition.

The team had suffered a sharp setback before the games when the Pentagon refused to let nine military fighters compete in Moscow.

Caroline Kuhlman of the University of Southern California became the only American gold medalist Wednesday by defeating countrywoman Beverly Bowes 6-4, 7-5 for the women's singles tennis title.

Howe flunks drug test

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Steve Howe, who in six years went from Rookie of the Year to the lower minor leagues as he fought a recurring battle against cocaine addiction, may retire from baseball after failing to pass a drug test.

"I think I fought pretty good," the 28-year-old relief pitcher said Wednesday in the wake of his latest suspension. "But I think what I'm fighting may be too big."

A test administered Monday morning by the San Jose Bees of the Class A California League, for whom Howe has been pitching this season, came up positive. Another urinalysis taken Monday night by the Bees was negative, the San Jose Mercury-News reported.

He also took a third test, administered by the Baseball Commissioner's office. A spokesman there would not discuss those results.

Michele Klach, a spokeswoman for Syntex, the lab where the first test was done, said it was possible for tests 13 hours apart to have different results because of the time difference.

The Bees announced the positive result Tuesday and team President Harry Steve placed the former reliever for the Los Angeles Dodgers and Minnesota Twins on the 10-day disabled list.

But Joe Gagliardi, president of the California League, said he would suspend Howe because, "I don't consider that an injury."

While Howe, who had tested negative for cocaine eight times this season, denied renewed drug use, Bees owner Harry Steve said he was told the results of the first test showed a "99.9 per cent" certainty of cocaine use.

Howe, the National League's Rookie of the Year in Ex-Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher Steve Howe tested positive on his drug test administered by the California Minor League.

1980 when he was with the Dodgers, has a history of drug problems dating back to a 1984 suspension by then-Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Howe was suspended on May 15, followed a drug test supervised by Commissioner Peter Ueberroth's representatives. He was reinstated on June 24 when his lawyers negotiated a settlement with Ueberroth's office.

Rozelle to take stand again

NEW YORK (AP) — The NFL will complete its defense in the USFL's $1.69 billion antitrust suit against it with the same man the younger league called as its first witness — NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Rozelle is expected to take the stand today as the NFL's final witness to talk about a meeting he had with Donald Trump, owner of the USFL's New Jersey Generals, in March 1984. Trump testified that Rozelle offered him an NFL franchise; the commissioner's version of the meeting is expected to be substantially different.

The NFL may also call a former USFL official and an advertising executive to the stand. Then, after rebuttal testimony from the USFL; summations and the charge, the case may go to the jury of five women and one man as early as next Thursday.

Wednesday's testimony came from William Grimes, president of ESPN cable and Frederick Pierce, who was president of ABC Inc. until last January, who testified their decisions about the USFL were based solely on business considerations and not because of any influence by the NFL. Both networks televised USFL games in the league's three spring seasons, 1983, 1984 and 1985.

Their testimony was the same as

Neal Pilson of CBS, Boone Arledge of ABC and Arthur Watson of NBC as they continually replied "No, none at all," when asked by NFL attorney Frank Rothman if they had received or heard of any NFL displeasure about their dealings with the USFL. However, Jim Spence of ABC testified that he had heard comments from an NFL official and ABC commentator Howard Cosell testified that Arledge had told him that Rozelle was "all over him" about the network's decision to grant a contract to the USFL.

The television issue is a critical one in the 2-month-old trial. The USFL maintains that the NFL pressured the three major networks to deny it a contract for its switch to a fall schedule is asking that the NFL be barred from at least one of the three.

Both Grimes and Pierce spent little more than an hour on the stand Wednesday.

Grimes said that the USFL's move out of major markets caused "a negative effect" among advertisers that caused them to abandon ESPN's telecasts of the fledgling league's games.

Grimes said that when ESPN first signed the USFL — its first professional league — it considered it a "marquee item." And he testified that despite declining ratings in the first two years, the network was willing to sign a three-year extension for $70 million in 1984.

But Grimes said he and the network became disturbed when the league began moving out of major markets, particularly Detroit.

"It had a most negative effect because in the first two years a substantial amount of our advertising revenue came from the Detroit automakers," he said. "There was a substantial reduction in auto advertising after that."

Grimes also testified that at no time was he pressured by either the NFL or ABC, ESPN's parent company, to deny the USFL a contract.

Pierce, meanwhile, said he approved ABC's first contract with the USFL as "a risk," acknowledging under cross-examination by USFL attorney Harvey Myerson that he was pleasantly surprised when the package made money for the network. However, he did not discuss specifics of ABC's dealings with the league, noting that those were handled by Arledge and Spence.

But Pierce said he opposed giving the league a contract for its switch to the fall.

"I thought it wasn't in ABC's best interest," he said. "There just wasn't a market to support it."

'Oil Can' greased by the law

BOSTON (AP) — Suspended Boston Red Sox pitcher Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd threatened to shoot when Chelsea police stopped him to search his car for narcotics, says a detective.

"He kept insisting he had a gun and he was going to shoot somebody," Detective Sgt. Jack Phillips said of his encounter the previous evening with the pitcher in an interview broadcast Wednesday over Boston television station WNEV. He said a search uncovered no gun or drugs.

"At this point, we did just an immediate search of the area," said Phillips. "We didn't locate any gun. That was kind of our concern, especially when he turned his back and reached into his pockets."

"Weapons is the first thing you look for. Dope is secondary. We came up with nothing. He just became crazy. He kept screaming that he didn't have any dope."

Boyd, who walked out on the team last week when he was denied an All Star game slot, could not be reached at his home telephone or through the Red Sox office for comment on the sergeant's allegations.

Boyd was driving home Tuesday night to watch the All Star game on television when he was stopped by police tipped he might have drugs in his car.

"It was more an inquiry than anything else," Phillips told The Boston Herald in an interview published today. "I didn't anticipate this kind of problem with him."

Phillips told The Herald that he and his partner, Sgt. Kenneth MacDonald, tailed Boyd's Mercedes Benz in their unmarked car after spotting the pitcher in what they called a known drug area in Chelsea.

As a result, Boyd, 25, has been suspended indefinitely by the American League East leaders that need his 11-6 record, the police in the Boston suburb of Chelsea have filed a complaint of assault and battery on a police officer and disorderly conduct, and he complains the police twisted his money arm.

"I just want to pitch, man," Boyd said

Wednesday. "I can't pitch."

General Manager Lou Gorman said Boyd would remain suspended until "certain issues are clarified to the satisfaction of the Red Sox organization."

"Once we get certain issues clarified, certainly, he'll rejoin the team."

The Red Sox had suspended Boyd without pay for three games on Friday, one day after he angrily left the clubhouse after being left off the All Star team. The righthander was scheduled to pitch last Sunday.

Gorman, referring to drugs, added:

"There's nothing to indicate that's the problem right now."

Gorman said he didn't know if Boyd would be paid during his continued suspension but conceded that the Mississippi born pitcher was unhappy with the police.

"He feels he's being persecuted by them," said the general manager.

"I don't know," Boyd said when asked if his treatment has been fair as he darted out the back door of the Red Sox clubhouse Wednesday. "That's Boston."

Gorman said Boyd complained that police had twisted his right arm.

"He said his arm was bothering him," Gorman said.

"We are all concerned about his emotional stability in light of everything that has happened the last week," said Dr. Arthur Pappas, the Red Sox physician. "We can't force him to get help. We can advise it, we can encourage him to seek it."

Shortstop Rey Quinones, who lives with Boyd, said "a lot of police" were present Tuesday night when the car he and Boyd were in was stopped in front of their Chelsea condominium.

Quinones said both his and Boyd's arms were twisted. The shortstop was reluctant to comment further.

"I've got to change my clothes," he said at his locker. "It's not my problem. I see what the police are doing with a player."

"To be truthful, I can't comment other than generalities," Chelsea Police Chief Charles H. Wilson said. "Applications have been made to the clerk of court for an application to press charges of assault and battery on a police officer and disorderly conduct."

Red Sox attorney John Donovan talked with Chelsea police at about 6 a.m. Wednesday, Gorman said.

Fisherman caught

Tony Faulk, 21, of Flint, poses with a 122-pound flathead catfish caught by hand at Lake Tyler. Faulk, who originally claimed he caught the fish on a trotline, later admitted he caught the fish by "grabbling", which is illegal. Instead of a record-setting catch, he was fined $100.

Nehemiah switches back to track field

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Now that the International Amateur Athletic Federation has restored his amateur status, Renaldo Nehemiah — the world-record holder in the 110-meter hurdles — will begin training in hopes of competing later this summer.

An agent for the former San Francisco 49ers wide receiver says Nehemiah hopes to return to the track before the European season has ended.

"The timing was just perfect," Ron Stanko said Wednesday after the IAAF announced that Nehemiah can compete for the first time since 1982. "Renaldo says he now feels that he is in charge of his own destiny. He's very happy."

In 1981, Nehemiah set a record of 12.93 seconds in the 110-meter hurdles. He remains the only hurdler to break the 13-second mark in that event.

The ban against the former University of Maryland star was lifted Wednesday after Nehemiah pledged to give up professional football. He had lost his amateur status when he signed with the National Football League team.

A spokesman for the 49ers said Nehemiah's contract with the team had expired, and that no agreement could be reached on a new one.

"If he's giving it up, I guess the door isn't open anymore," team spokesman Jerry Walker, who said the team does not anticipate Nehemiah's return, said. "We wish him the best of luck."

"About two months ago we ran into a snag in negotiations with Renaldo over his new contract," Walker explained. "When we reached that snag, which was a big difference between what they were asking and what we were offering, we just withdrew our contract offer."

The 22-member IAAF Council said in a prepared statement Wednesday that Nehemiah's amateur status was restored on the basis of a written statement that he would "forego further pecuniary reward or compensation in the sport of football."

"It was agreed that this signed declaration now changed completely the former situation. The Council agreed to Renaldo Nehemiah's reinstatement forthwith," the statement said.

The IAAF, the governing body of international athletics, was holding a Council meeting in the Greek capital during the first-ever World Junior Athletics Championships, which opened Wednesday.

While Nehemiah chose track, another world-class hurdler, Willie Gault of the Chicago Bears, is sticking to professional football.

"It's great for him, for what he wants to do," Gault said Wednesday from the Bears' training camp in Platteville, Wis. "For me, I want to play football."

But Gault, who along with Nehemiah applied as recently as last year to have his amateur status restored, said he felt the ban was unjustified.

"It's unfair that I have to choose between the two (sports)," he said.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JULY 18, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You need to be alert today to accept some drastic changes for they can soon become stabilizing influences in your life. Be sure to plan sudden journey possibilities.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can gain many new ideas and are highly inspired so put them in motion quickly. Keep active.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You are aware of what will make your mate happier at this time, so carry through with your ideas.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A modern-thinking partner now has the right answers you need. Use the finest judgment possible.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Keep busy occupied at work and time passes quickly. Take advice from a fellow worker.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Buy a gift for your mate that will please this person greatly. Then you can be infinitely happier together.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If a home tie desires to do something different that usual, this could turn out better than you thought.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You like to be co-operative but today it is best you are more direct and a bit more demanding to get ahead faster.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have a sudden idea how to add to your assets so put it in operation quickly and gain benefits.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Your intuitive perceptions are usually quite accurate but even more so today. Be fair.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Show your mate that you are indeed devoted. Be fair and just with this person.

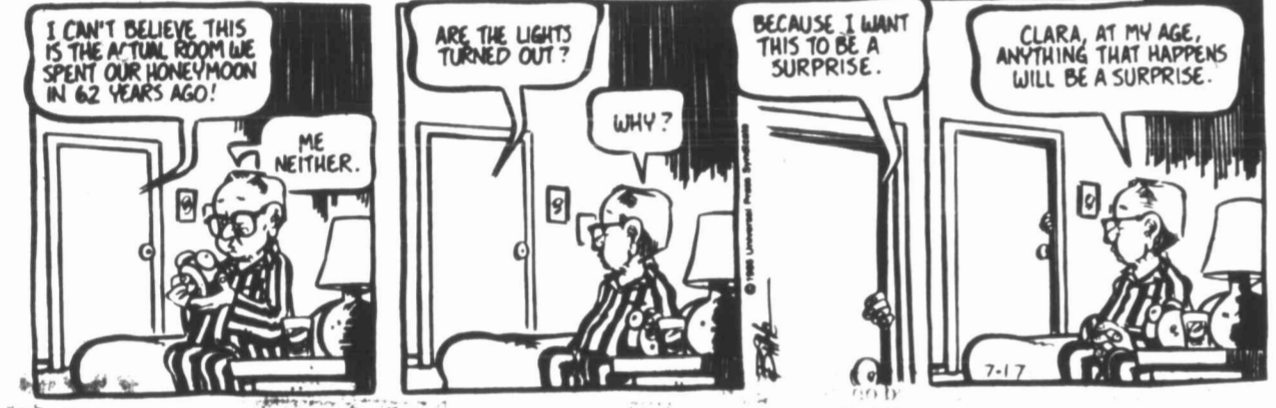

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You may suddenly hear from friends. You may feel tired and should rest. Judgment is not so good.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Put your progressive ideas in motion. Make a fine impression on the influential. Don't take chances.

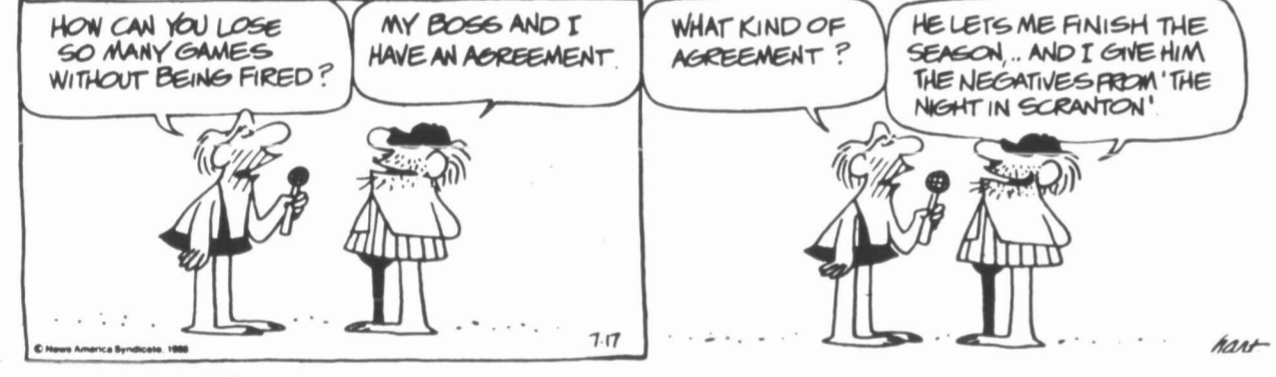

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be very ingenious and attentive, so listen to early ideas carefully since they could prove to be quite invaluable. The field of imports and exports could be ideal for your offspring, whether male or female, and a fortune could be acquired.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Witherspoon fit for title defense

LONDON (AP) — Tim Witherspoon, the World Boxing Association heavyweight champion, feels boosters of contender Frank Bruno shouldn't be concerned about the champion's condition, but should worry about their own hero's chin.

On Wednesday — four days before their fight — Witherspoon fueled speculation about his condition by refusing to expose his midsection to photographers.

"They think you've got to look physically a lot like Hercules to be fit," said Witherspoon, who will defend his title against Bruno in a 15-round bout scheduled to start about 1 a.m. local time Sunday at Wembley Stadium.

Witherspoon is a bulky man who stands 6-foot-3 and his torso reminds one more of a heavy punching bag than of a Greek god, which is exactly what the muscular Bruno brings to mind.

Witherspoon, even with the slight roll about the middle, feels he's in top physical condition and says he will weigh about 224 pounds for the fight, which will be televised live in the United States by HBO.

Bruno is expected to be 227 pounds, with not even a hint of an ounce of fat to be found on him.

But while the man who is trying to become the first Briton to win a heavyweight title in this century might look like he's made of granite, Witherspoon feels part of him is made of china.

"His chin won't hold up," Witherspoon said Wednesday at a news conference at his training camp in Basildon.

"His body might, but his chin won't."

The 24-year-old Bruno's one loss against 28 victories came when he was knocked out by James "Bonecrusher" Smith in the 10th round on May 13, 1984. He has been wobbled on other occasions, though.

Witherspoon, who beat Smith in a 12-round decision on June 15, 1985, has proven he can take a punch, and Bruno definitely can punch with power, scoring 27 knockouts.

While speculation on Witherspoon's physical condition remains, Bruno feels it's the champion's mental condition that could do him in.

"Sometimes his attitude is hot, sometimes it's cold," Bruno said Wednesday after training at the Royal Oak Gym in East London. "I think this time it's cold."

"I think Tim Witherspoon is underestimating me. He thinks I'm slow, that I can't take a punch."

But Witherspoon said he's well aware of Bruno's power, and he's taking nothing for granted.

"My career is on the line again," said Witherspoon, who lost the World Boxing Council title in his first defense and who would find himself all but pushed out of the championship picture if he lost to Bruno.

Witherspoon, who holds a big edge over Bruno in the area of tough opposition, has a 24-2 record, with 16 knockouts.

Sports briefs

American makes history

SUPERBAGNERES, France (AP) — Greg Lemond became the first American ever to win a mountain stage in the Tour de France cycling classic, but his French team leader, Bernard Hinault, kept the overall lead with another brilliant demonstration of power and tactics.

Lemond's victory came in the Tour's toughest single stage, over three major mountain passes in the Pyrenees, ending at the top of a fourth major climb.

Hinault kept the overall lead by just 40 seconds ahead of Lemond, after starting the day's stage with an advantage of 5 minutes and 25 seconds.

Cook struck only three times in the final game and overcame an open in the seventh frame to earn his 12th career title.

Cook added the $16,000 top prize to his winnings to take the PBA money lead and increase his total winnings to $108,380.

Placak swims to victory

TOKYO (AP) — Bob Placak of the United States captured six gold medals in seven events, while American Jim Montgomery broke five Masters world records at the first World Masters Swimming Championships.

A total of 903 foreign recreational swimmers from 19 countries and 2,552 Japanese participated in the five-day meet sponsored by the International Amateur Swimming Federation and Masters Swimming International.

Men's and women's swimmers competed in a total of 1,229 heats in 18 events at the Yoyogi Olympic Memorial Pool, site of swimming events in the 1964 Tokyo Olympics. The meet was classified in 13 age groups, starting at age 25.

Shriver in quarterfinals

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Top-seeded Pam Shriver cruised to the quarterfinals of the $150,000 Virginia Slims of Newport, crushing Tina Mochizuki of South Pasadena, Calif., 6-1, 6-1. Fifth-seeded Lori McNeil of Houston and seventh-seeded Wendy White of Atlanta also advanced.

McNeil struggled in the first set, but rallied to beat Caryn Copeland of San Gabriel, Calif., 6-7 (4-7), 6-2, 6-2. White coasted to a 6-2, 6-2 victory over Jennifer Mundel of South Africa.

Italian in cycling lead

LUCHON, France (AP) — Italy's Maria Canins won the sixth leg of the Women's Tour de France and maintained the overall leadership.

The victory for Canins, best known for her climbing skills, was no surprise on this rough 35-mile leg which took the riders over two mountain passes.

American Inga Thompson finished second and French star Jeannie Longo was third.

Top seed wins bowling

AUSTIN (AP) — Top-seeded Steve Cook of Roseville, Calif., edged rookie Rod Pasteur, 189-180, in the title game of the $115,000 Austin Open to win his fourth Professional Bowlers Association championship of the year.

tured the gold, downing Marian Vajda of Czechoslovakia, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.

The Soviets also swept the doubles crowns, with Sergei Leonyuk and Alexander Zverev taking the men's title, and Svetlana Parkhomenko and Larisa Savchenko winning the women's championship.

In judo, the Soviet Union also swept the golds.

Grigory Verichev pinned Steven Cohen of Palatine, Ill., at 3:07 to win the over 209-pound final, while Viktor Poddubryi won a judge's decision over Balzhinniam Oddvovon of Mongolia in the 209-pound final.

Cohen's silver marked his highest finish in an international competition.

"I would have liked to have won, but I am not ashamed," Cohen said. "He's a tough opponent, one of the toughest."

Cohen, a 30-year-old commodities trader, resumed competing again last year, after retiring in 1977.

"I got hungry, I guess," Cohen said of his decision to return to competition, despite trying to juggle a career and family. "And, I had a lot of people supporting me. I've been lucky."

Americans

maine Gonzales, last game's winning pitcher, dropped what should have been an easy out and the end of the inning. Johnson scored and Sandell scored moments later on a Candell single. The inning ended with the Odessans up 8-5.

Wagner lost his control in the top of the fifth, loading the bases by walking two batters and hitting another. Raul Samaniego took over, and Gonzales atoned for his error with a run scoring single. Downey followed with a two run single, and the bases were loaded after an error on a Kennedy chopper.

Petterson was hit by pitch, and Staffan Balderach, running for Gonzales, walked home. In one of the most exciting plays of the night, Odessa caught Petterson in a rundown, but Petterson kept the first and second basemen busy for long enough to allow Downey to score from third. After four-and-a-half, the Americans led 10-8.

In the fifth, Kennedy battled two Odessa batters to full counts, but had nothing to show for it as both walked. Downey came in in relief, and hit the first batter, loading the bases. All three runners scored in the disastrous inning and Odessa jumped to a 13-10 lead at the end of five.

The Americans needed at least three runs from the bottom of the order, and it was not to be. But with two outs and two strikes on Martinez, the little shortstop brought hope by staying alive with several foul tips and a good eye. He walked, but the game ended when the next batter grounded out.

The loss was the Americans first of the tournament, they now sport a 3-1 record in tourney play. Jim Parker is the only unbeaten team with a 4-0 record.

Midland N. Central 10

Midland Western 0

At the International League field, Brian Rounding fired a no-hitter as Midland North Central romped over Midland Western 10-0. The loss eliminates Western from tournament play with a 2-2 record.

Rounding won his second game of the tournament as his teammates played errorless ball. Meanwhile one Western batter reached third base, after getting a walk in the fourth inning.

For the second night, in-a-row Ritchie Greth blasted a home run for North Central. Juan Ramos took the loss for Western while pitching the first four innings. Joseph Martinez came on in relief. North Central is now 4-1 in tournament play.

In the other game at the National League field, Odessa North East Texas eliminated Odessa Salinas 16-12.

Salinas exits the tournament with a 3-2 record while North East Texas advances with a 3-1 slate.
