City water still needs conserving

Public Works Director Tom Decell said this morning he noticed a significant increase in water consumption yesterday, despite the city's request that citizens voluntarily conserve.

He again asked that citizens whose house numbers end in an even number water grass on even days while those whose addresses end in an odd number water on odd days.

The voluntary watering regimen is expected to remain in effect for at least another 10 days while workers get an alternate pump system on line, he said.

The added pumps will boost the city's water moving capacity, which is now hampered by a malfunctioning valve. Decell said earlier this week.

Group likes downtown plan

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer
The Downtown Steering Committee gave approval this morning to Bob Lima's plan of creating an "incubator zone" for fledgling businesses to reverse the disintegration, both structural and economic, of the city's downtown.
That proposal, deemed Main Street Inc., and a few other ideas were presented by city planner Lima at a Downtown Steering Committee meeting this morning. He was hired in June by the committee to draft a "master plan" for revitalizing Big Spring's downtown and main corridors.
After showing the committee a survey of the city's demographics,

Proposal calls for 'incubator zone'

retail base and property status, Lima made the pitch for incubator space, more elderly housing near downtown, and making the railroad a downtown design element.
"I'm impressed. I like what I see," said Downtown Steering Committee Chairman Troy Fraser. Fraser said he has been approached by several people in town wanting to know affordable ways to get into business.
The idea, phase two of a six-point plan, entails dividing some of the city's 138,000 square feet of vacant downtown space into small, affordable units for specialty shops.

And for those who can't buy overhead of 500 square feet or so, Lima kept the door open with the idea of small, uniform carts left outdoors and leased by the city.
The carts, he said, would let small entrepreneurs sample the market with a minimum investment.
The city, he said, could be a focal point for out-of-town business looking to test market products.
Lima said his demographic studies indicated "a brain drain" occurring in the city. The city's young, he said, are migrating elsewhere looking for opportunity.

With Main Street Inc. — Inc. for incubator — an opportunity would exist for young people to stay in Big Spring to nurture their businesses or professions.
He explained that with the stone dropped in the downtown business pool, the city may see a "rippling effect" into other parts of town.
"I think it's a good thing," Mayor Cotton Mize said of the plan. "I think they're on the right track."
Lima projected the town's population would be 22,000 to 26,000 in the year 2000.

If trends hold, more elderly people will live here than ever before, he said. Between 1970 and 1980, the city's elderly population jumped from 5.5 percent to more than 13 percent.
For that reason, Lima advised that housing for the elderly be located near the downtown district, giving them easy access to shops there and providing stores a new source of customers.
Lima said the incubator space could be obtained for a minimum investment, because more than 20 downtown buildings are vacant and appraised value of many of the area's buildings is low.

White calls for special session

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White has summoned state legislators to a special session Aug. 6, but top lawmakers say no agreement is in sight on the best way to reduce a budget deficit that could top $3 billion.
Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said he and House Speaker Gib Lewis "do not agree on a plan, but we are both confident that we can reach agreement as we move closer to the opening date."

White called the special session Thursday night, saying the oil price drop has devastated the state treasury.
"This is the most difficult time in this state's history, at least in this century," White said.
In a speech televised live from his private Capitol office and at a later news conference, White said Texas has been placed at the mercy of Saudi Arabia as it glutts world oil markets.

"The times that we face today are extremely critical because we have very little control over the price of oil. If the price were at $20 a barrel, where all the prognosticators said it was going to be just a few months ago, then we wouldn't be here today," he said.
To solve the dilemma, White said more cuts in state spending will be needed.

He pledged there would be no state income tax and said he hopes to avoid layoffs of state workers or cuts in spending for education.

However, White did not offer specific details for lawmakers to follow in dealing with the crisis.
He said he is working with legislative leaders and watching the actions of House and Senate committees as they hunt for areas where spending can be reduced.

"We're working every day on formulation of a plan... That plan is being worked on in the committees that are meeting now. They're talking about the cuts. That will be the first step in the plan," White said.

Cuts must come first, he said, before any increase in the sales tax is considered.
"First, we're going to see how far the cuts will carry us. Then we will take into account the other alternatives," White said.

White also refused to be specific when asked if he would accept a

Schools may use drug dog

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer
A drug-detecting dog may be employed in Big Spring schools if a plan presented to the school board Thursday afternoon is approved.
Superintendent Lynn Hise presented the proposal at the board's regular meeting.
Hise told board members he saw a demonstration of the service, performed by Narcotic Consultants Inc., July 1. The consultants will be in Big Spring to give another demonstration for all Howard County school officials Thursday, he said.
If the service is purchased, the dog would be taken to the schools unannounced to detect drugs by sniffing school lockers and other possible hiding places.

The purpose of the service is not to "catch students with drugs," but to keep the drugs out of school, Hise said. "It's a good, positive approach."
The dog is not vicious, but is friendly with children, Hise said. A demonstration of the dog's abilities would be given to students before the service is employed.
The cost of the service would vary according to the number of schools participating, Hise said, but it will be in the neighborhood of $16,000 a year.
In other business, the board:
• Approved application of $80,356 in federal special education funds.

The funds will go toward salaries of three special education aides, physical and occupational therapy consultation, and instructional material, including computer software.
One-fourth of the funds were set aside, as regulations require, to provide residential services if such services become necessary this year.
• Approved the revised discipline management plan. The original plan, approved in November, was rejected by the Texas Education Agency.
The revised plan more closely follows the TEA format, Hise said.

Chain removes rock 'n' roll items

Staff and wires reports
Officials of Wal-Mart stores have decided to stop selling certain rock 'n' roll magazines and record albums after evangelist Jimmy Swaggart criticized the sales in a nationally broadcast sermon last month.
Big Spring manager Jody Glover said he does not now carry the material that corporate headquarters ordered pulled from the shelves, but he would not say whether the books and record albums were usually stocked.
"I'm not in a position to comment on anything," Glover said this morning.
A spokesman for Arkansas-based Wal-Mart also declined comment today on the discount chain's decision.

"The issue is not major for us. We don't plan any comment," spokesman Jim Von Grep said from the headquarters in Bentonville, Ark. Wal-Mart operates about 900 stores in 22 states, including the store in Big Spring.
Wal-Mart spokesmen had previously said the removal of albums and magazines was unrelated to pressure on stores by some religious groups to take the products from shelves.
The Washington Post reported in today's editions that Swaggart, whose ministry is based in Baton Rouge, La., said on Wednesday that he mentioned Wal-Mart in a sermon delivered June 1 in New Haven, Conn.
Swaggart, cousin of rockabilly singer Jerry Lee Lewis and country singer Mickey Gilley, said the sermon was broadcast in southern markets on June 22 — 10 days after Wal-Mart circulated an internal memo ordering store managers to remove 32 magazines. A memo in May ordered removal of some record albums.

Among the rock music magazine titles listed as objectionable in the June 13 memo was Rolling Stone, which has a circulation of 861,000.
Hope Henning, a spokeswoman for Rolling Stone, said, "At this point, we're declining to comment."
Gerald Rothberg, publisher of Circus, was in meetings and unavailable for comment, according to a receptionist in his office.

David Scott, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Scott of Route 3 Box 329, ties on a cowboy hat over his cap Wednesday at a book-readers party at the Howard County Library. Participants in the summer reading program who read at least 50 books were awarded the "I Read Texas" hats. See story, Page 2.

JULY 1986

Names in the news

By The Associated Press
LOS ANGELES — Nearly four years after the accident occurred, film director JOHN LANDIS and four co-defendants will go on trial Monday for the deaths of three "Twilight Zone" movie actors.

Superior Court Judge Roger Boren set the date Thursday, and said he has ordered a panel of 200 prospective jurors. Pretrial motions will take up most of the Monday and Tuesday sessions, with jury selection expected to begin late Tuesday or on Wednesday, Boren said.

Wednesday will be the fourth anniversary of the July 23, 1982, "Twilight Zone" helicopter crash that killed actor Vic Morrow and two children, Myca Le, 7, and Renee Chen, 6.

The trial is expected to last four months. Prosecutors allege that Landis, associate producer George Folsey Jr., special effects coordinator Paul Stewart, production manager Dan Allingham and pilot Dorcey Wingo conspired to disregard laws protecting actors in their efforts to achieve realism in the film.

"We intend to see that the truth will come out," Landis' attorney,

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Columbia Records has decided to drop

JOHNNY CASH, who spent 28 years recording country music for the label.

"This is the hardest decision that I've ever had to make in my life," said Rick Blackburn, head of Columbia-Epic-CBS Nashville. Cash, 54, has not had a solo Top-10 hit since "The Baron" in 1955. His earlier hits include "Ring of Fire" and "I Walk The Line."

Lou Robin, Cash's manager, said Tuesday that talks were under way to sign Cash to record under a different label.

"We don't know where we'll be going," Robin said. "Other people are talking to us. There's a lot of places where they're interested in somebody like Johnny Cash."

Cash has recorded country music for Columbia since 1958, but records gospel under the Word-Nashville Records label, which just released his "Believe In Him" album.

Cash, who began his career at Memphis' Sun Records in 1955, participated in the "Class of '55" Memphis reunion album with Jerry Lee Lewis, Roy Orbison and Carl Perkins.

He also has had duet hits with Waylon Jennings, including "There Ain't No Good Chain Gang" in 1978 and "Even Cow Girls Get The Blues" this year.

He also was a member "The Highwaymen" quartet with Jennings, Willie Nelson and Kris Kristofferson. That tune was released last year.

Children wear costumes to last activity unusual; Chris Jimenez, funniest; and Teri Chester, most original.

Cinema Theater pass, a Pizza Inn noodle buffet certificate and candy. Members who read at least 50 books were awarded a white cowboy hat.

This year's contest theme was "Celebrate Texas," featuring presentations on West Texas history, cattle branding, Texas Rangers, cotton production, rodeo clowns and the Statue of Liberty, Jackson said.

Members who completed certificate requirements but were unable to attend the party may pick up their certificates and prizes any time at the library, she said.

 plan that would only cover the state's cash-flow problems until the regular legislative session in January. Treasurer Ann Richards has indicated she might have to write hot checks by year's end because of the slowdown in tax funds coming in.

"We're going to solve the cash-flow problem at the same time we're solving our budget problems," the governor said.

Pressed by reporters for more specifics about what he would like lawmakers to do, White replied, "We're not going to go out there and lay out a plan that everybody starts tearing apart ... This is the plan that we're going to follow, and that's to work with the House and Senate leadership."

That leadership wasn't in agreement as White called them to Austin for the special session.

Members of the generally more conservative House want to make up the entire deficit through spending cuts. Senators have said they would prefer a combination of cuts and increased taxes.

Lewis, D-Fort Worth, continued to insist that the House wants the deficit to be made up through lower spending.

Crew had no warning

WASHINGTON — The crew members of the space shuttle Challenger were unaware they were in danger in the final moments before their spacecraft exploded, according to NASA's preliminary analysis of a newly restored tape recording from the flight.

The tape, recovered from the ocean floor with the orbiter crew cabin six weeks after the Jan. 28 accident, gives no indication the seven astronauts knew the shuttle was in trouble, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said in a statement Thursday.

Detroit seeks action

Philadelphia Mayor W. Wilson Goode threatened to fire striking garbage collectors who continue to disobey a back-to-work order, and a judge planned to rule today on Detroit's argument that a walkout by 7,000 workers is illegal.

Philadelphia trash haulers, told to be on the job at 9 a.m. Thursday, showed up at six garbage truck depots but refused to report for work, said the city's deputy managing director, Ken Arrington.

In Detroit, the 3-day-old strike by 7,000 workers, including clerks, garbage collectors, mechanics and others, has halted bus service for 200,000 commuters. Garbage has begun mounting up in the streets at a rate estimated at 5 million pounds daily, the zoo has been closed and water and sewer services may be affected if the strike drags on, city officials warned.

House OKs money bill

WASHINGTON — The House approved a $12.3 billion appropriation bill to run a variety of federal agencies in the 1987 fiscal year while abolishing the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

The scaled-back appropriation to operate the departments of State, Justice, Commerce and related agencies was approved Thursday night on a 269-66 vote following lengthy debate. The bill now goes to the Senate.

Before adopting the bill, the House voted 213-125 to cut 5.03 percent from all programs covered in the appropriation, except the FBI and the Drug Enforcement Administration.

Porn star causes uproar

LOS ANGELES — The discovery that a girl performed in dozens of hard-core sex movies while a minor prompted a nationwide alert to sex film distributors to pull her movies off the shelves to avoid prosecution.

The girl, an Ohio runaway who billed herself as Traci Lords, turned 18 two months ago, but has been making explicit sex films for three years, police said.

"She's the hottest thing in the industry right now," police Vice Capt. Jiffi Docherty said Thursday. "She's a real big star."

"And everything she's done is against the law."

Editors shot

Workers say newspaper will continue

MATAMOROS, Mexico — Reporters and editors at El Popular, an anti-corruption tabloid in this border city, were used to harassments and threats.

In fact, they expected it because of what they printed: Names and charges of corrupt government officials, drug traffickers and murderers.

Up until two months ago, publisher Ernesto Flores Torrijos had a body guard traveling behind his 1985 Ford Bronco to deter harassments.

Assignments editor Norma Moreno Figueroa's daily column, "Looking for Roads," criticized officials in the name of the people who could not fight for themselves.

A flyer distributed several weeks ago showed Ms. Moreno Figueroa's picture and had derogatory comments about her.

Early Thursday, Flores Torrijos, 47, and Ms. Moreno Figueroa, 24, who lived in the same apartment complex, went to work together as they frequently did. As they stepped from Flores Torrijos' vehicle, they were met with a barrage of .45-caliber and 9mm bullets.

No one really saw who fired the more than 26 rounds of bullets. Witnesses questioned later were unable to give police much information, other than two joggers were seen fleeing on foot.

"The police know, but they aren't going to do anything," Torrijos' wife, Amelia Gil Zaragoza de Flores, said as she held back tears shortly after the shootings.

"The whole world threatened him because he told the truth, but a lot of people also loved him," she said. "The people of Matamoros know what he has done for this city. That's why they're out there. That's why they're dead because they were valiant."

The slayings came a month after another Mexican border town newspaper publisher was killed. On June 17, 46-year-old Dr. Jorge Brenes — an allergy specialist, chairman of the board of a university in Reynosa and publisher of El Rio in Rio Bravo and Frontera in Reynosa — was attacked by an assailant in a motorcycle helmet.

A policeman investigating the slaying was killed and police have yet to make an arrest in the Brenes slaying. Some police officials believe the newspapers' stance against corruption led to Brenes' shooting at his home on June 17. Newspaper editors, who were with Brenes when he was shot, have vowed to continue publishing his border newspapers.

Meanwhile, El Popular, with its 9,000 to 10,000 street circulation, among the largest in Matamoros, about 60 miles east of Reynosa, published on Thursday afternoon.

It carried an article on the slayings, pictures of the publisher and editor and condolences from their families.

Highways blockaded

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico — Thousands of supporters of the main opposition party blocked a major highway outside this border city for two hours in another peaceful protest against alleged state election fraud.

Today, the fourth day of protest by the conservative National Action Party, or PAN, drivers were to stop their cars at 2 p.m. MDT, pull their hoods open and honk their horns for about 10 minutes, as they have been doing daily since Tuesday.

Alleging ballot stuffing and the disappearance of ballot boxes, PAN asked the Mexican government on Wednesday to annul July 6 elections in the state of Chihuahua, which borders New Mexico and Texas.

Missionary released

MARAWI, Philippines — An American missionary was released unharmed today by his Moslem captors after six days in captivity on the southern Philippine island of Mindanao. No ransom was paid, a negotiator said.

The Presbyterian evangelist, Brian Lawrence, 30, of Madison, Wis., was brought to Marawi by Moslem Princess Tarhata Alon-Lucman, who negotiated his release.

"I have to say my kidnapers always treated me well," he said. "There were times when I was threatened... that if the military would operate (in a rescue attempt) I would be killed."

Reporter held in Peking

PEKING (AP) — New York Times correspondent John Burns has been detained by police, and the newspaper reported today he was being investigated on suspicion of espionage and entering an area of western China that is off-limits to foreigners.

Burns, 41, a Briton, was stopped by police at the Peking airport Thursday morning as he tried to leave China with his family for a vacation, said his wife, Jane Scott-Long.

Sister to go to Damascus

NICOSIA, Cyprus — The sister of kidnapped journalist Terry Anderson said today she will go to Syria to seek the help of senior government officials there in freeing her brother and four other Americans abducted in Lebanon.

The sister, Peggy Say, told a news conference at a Nicosia hotel that Syria has granted her a visa and she will fly to Damascus, the capital, on Sunday. Mrs. Say said she requested the visa several months ago.

Anderson, 38, the chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, was kidnapped in west Beirut March 16, 1985. Islamic Jihad, a pro-Iranian Shiite fundamentalist group, has claimed responsibility for abducting him and other Americans.

Ruling is unfair to the disabled

Air travel is wearing enough for most persons. But for the disabled, it involves some particularly vexing obstacles and a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling only makes this unfortunate situation worse.

If you're one of America's 36 million handicapped, an airport promises uncertainty and difficulty.

Even when booked far in advance, disabled persons often are notified only at the last moment whether they must be accompanied by an attendant. Then, there are hazards and indignities: Expensive and delicate wheelchairs are thrown in with luggage; blind persons are forced to sit on blankets because airline officials fear they are incontinent.

The disabled don't ask for first-class treatment as air travelers, but they do deserve some idea of what to expect at the boarding gate.

That's why the Paralyzed Veterans of America brought suit against the Department of Transportation to force the airlines to develop a uniform set of procedures for dealing with the disabled.

The DOT subsidizes the airlines by paying for air traffic control at the nation's airports. And, the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 forbids discrimination against handicapped persons involved with federally funded programs.

Yet, in a 6-3 ruling, the justices decided that, because the airlines don't receive direct federal funding, they are exempt from the guidelines of the Rehabilitation Act.

The decision is maddening. True, the airlines don't receive actual federal payments. But air traffic control — which costs $2 billion a year — is critical to airline operation. Moreover, the airlines are airport gatekeepers: They should be impelled to provide service to all those with tickets.

The Paralyzed Veterans now are seeking Congressional help to amend a DOT directive, the Adequate Service Act, that would ensure the disabled access to flight.

Failing that, it is imperative the DOT codify a set of rules for disabled persons who fly. If there are costs borne by the airlines — for the construction of storage facilities for wheelchairs, for example, or special seating — disabled persons probably would not mind paying a nominal extra ticketing fee. Observes Cynthia Jones of Mainstream, a national magazine for disabled consumers, "I think it's appropriate to pay for the services you receive."

It's doubtful that air carriers, in the wake of the Supreme Court's misguided decision, will attempt to discourage disabled persons from air travel. In fact, some airlines are solicitous of the needs of the disabled. The problem is that now, they don't have to be.

I want to thank all my friends for their kindness, and all offers to help during my illness. A special thanks to the members of the local police department — particularly Joe Russell, Mike Pearson, Victor Brake, Stan Parker and Danny Crawford.

I cannot express how I felt the day these five officers came to my home with mowers, edgers and other tools to clean my yard.

I want all my friends and associates to know I am now on extended sick leave and unable to perform my duties as Municipal Judge.

One weekly not intimidated by the Mexican government

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — Proceso is a Mexico City weekly magazine, a courageous and respected exception to the longstanding rule that the Mexican government controls the media through intimidation and bribery. It was born 10 years ago this week, virtually at the point of a gun.

As Mexico's ruling party for 57 years, the Institutional Revolutionary Party, known as PRI, has always regarded stability as its primary objective — which has discouraged the kind of irreverent, inquisitive press that we're accustomed to north of the border.

The party has some subtle but highly effective methods of controlling the press. The government has a monopoly on newsprint; it can, and does deny paper to publications that get too critical of the regime. In addition, advertising by government agencies provides 60 percent to 80 percent of all ad revenue for newspapers and magazines; the ads are simply withheld from troublesome publications.

On top of these persuasive mechanisms, the government also pays to have favorable articles printed and gives monthly payoffs, or "embute," to compliant editors and reporters.

If threats and bribes don't do the trick, the government has the full force of the police and the army to enforce its wishes — and journalists know it. In the past, erring* journalists have been beaten up for writing stories critical of the government. Some have even been murdered.

This background is what makes the story of Proceso so remarkable. It has survived — even thrived — while fearlessly exposing PRI corruption and blunders.

Proceso's publisher, Julio Scherer Garcia, was for years the influential editor-in-chief of Excelsior, Mexico City's largest daily paper. The personal courage of Scherer and his team brought the wrath of then-President Luis Echeverria down on them.

First he tried leaning on Scherer, urging him to fire several reporters and columnists. Scherer refused.

Jack Anderson

Echeverria's men then quietly bought the support of enough employees of the newspaper — a cooperative — to stage a coup. On the evening of July 8, 1976, about 200 liberal Excelsior journalists were unceremoniously thrown out on the street by police in plainclothes. They weren't even allowed back in to retrieve their files.

Some of the fired employees were eventually taken back, properly chastened, but the hardheads started a news agency in the fall of 1976, using a building generously loaned by Pages Llergo, editor of the news weekly Siempre.

Echeverria came to regret his rash ouster of Scherer, and, in a series of personal meetings with the editor, he agreed to turn Excelsior back to the Scherer team. But the deal fell through when The New York Times broke the story prematurely.

On Nov. 6, 1976, Scherer and his loyalists began publishing Proceso as an independent weekly magazine. The new government of President Jose Lopez Portillo tolerated Proceso — but barely. By 1982, the last year of his term, the president had had enough of the magazine's critical articles and cartoons. He stopped all government advertising and sent a clear message to other advertisers that they should do likewise.

Despite this body blow, Proceso has continued to lead the Mexican press in tough but fair investigative reporting, exposing corruption in government and labor unions. Its circulation is about 90,000, making it the largest political weekly in Mexico. It's tough subsisting almost exclusively on circulation revenue, but Proceso has hung in there. Congratulations are in order.

Footnote: The 1976 coup at Excelsior also led to the birth of other publications. Uno Mas Uno, an influential left-leaning daily, was started the following year by a group that split off from Proceso. And in 1984, a splinter group from Uno Mas Uno founded a magazine, La Jornada.

FOGGY BOTTOM FOG: When State Department bureaucrats refused to turn loose a batch of documents we requested, we took them to court and got the papers released. One of them was an unclassified memo that told how the embassy in Sofia, Bulgaria, gets its communications equipment: "In sealed diplomatic pouches. This is no secret; every country has done it for years. Maybe the boys in Pettifoggy Bottom were hoping the Bulgarians would think the embassy found its code machines under a cabbage leaf."

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: Intelligence sources warn that disorders may recur in Egypt similar to those of February, when thousands of Central Security Force conscripts pillaged luxury hotels and mansions of the wealthy. The reason is that these policemen's lot is not a happy one, and nothing has been done to improve it. Their wages rarely exceed $8 or $10 a month, a small sum even by Egyptian standards.

MINI-EDITORIAL: In case any lingering doubts remain about Mikhail Gorbachev among woolly-headed wishful thinkers, his recent speech to the communist faithful in Warsaw should make it perfectly clear that, when push comes to shove, he's a hardnose on the Stalin model. He congratulated Poland's military dictator Wojciech Jaruzelski, for crushing Solidarity without having to call for Soviet troops. But he assured his puppet that the Kremlin is ready to send in the tanks whenever they're needed, as it did in Czechoslovakia, Hungary and East Berlin.

Around the rim

Pageant is a growing experience

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Why would someone from Big Spring enter a beauty pageant hold my interest?

Or for that matter — make me tingle inside when I read or hear about her.

Because it refutes the too often used excuse voiced by the young here about "nothing to do or go to in Big Spring."

It's a great complaint to use while endlessly driving up and down Gregg Street — "the drag" as they like to call it.

Apathy and complaining, however, have no room in Kimberly Beckham's life.

She's ready "to go for it" in her pursuit of a career in theatre, she told me this week.

The 20-year old daughter of Richard and Linda Willadsen, Gail Route, Box 196, competed last week in the Miss Texas pageant competition at Fort Worth after several months of training.

Her daily regime consisted of waking at 4:30 a.m. to exercise and watching morning news shows such as "Good Morning America" to keep informed on current events.

She also rehearsed many hours to win an award for her comedic monologue as Vera Carp, a character she created from the play "Greater Tuna."

Her efforts resulted in a $50 scholarship prize for being the most talented actress. But she didn't finish amongst the final contestants, and one wonders if she didn't feel a little disillusioned after all the effort.

Hardly. She recognizes her efforts led to self-improvement.

"I gained things that I will continue to do," she said, "I want to go out in the world more than ever."

The world awaits you, Kimberly. It waits long periods for persons such as you.

CORRECTION

This column previously reported that an informed source said during the June 30-July 1 trial of Charles Briscoe that a person named "Danny" was not arrested in connection with the alleged marijuana dealing incident.

Records show, however, that Danny Hull, 22, 708 E. 17th, was arrested May 30 by police — for delivery of marijuana on Nov. 27. Grand jurors indicted him on the charge this week.

The earlier report, from a courtroom source who said that Danny was not arrested and charged, was in error.

Today

Today is Friday, July 18, the 199th day of 1986. There are 166 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On July 18, 1964, the great fire of Rome began. It would last several days. Contrary to popular belief, Emperor Nero did not play a fiddle as the city burned.

On this date:
In 1536, the authority of the pope was declared void in England.

In 1872, Britain introduced the concept of voting by secret ballot.

In 1918, during World War I, American and French forces launched a counteroffensive against the Germans between the Aisne and Marne rivers in France.

In 1932, the United States and Canada signed a treaty to develop the St. Lawrence Seaway.

In 1938, pilot Douglas "Wrong Way" Corrigan arrived in Ireland after leaving New York with the stated intention of flying to California.

In 1959, a car driven by Edward M. Kennedy plunged off a bridge on Chappaquiddick Island in Massachusetts. A passenger in the car, Mary Jo Kopechne, drowned.

In 1984, a gunman opened fire inside a McDonald's restaurant in San Ysidro, Calif., killing 21 people before he was shot dead by police. That same day, Walter F. Mondale won the Democratic presidential nomination in San Francisco.

DALLAS — Former Gov. Bill Clements recently resigned from a multinational corporation several Texas oilmen say is trying to drive Texas firms out of business by drastically undercutting prices, the Dallas Morning News reported today.

Clements resignation from the board of directors of Schlumberger Ltd., a multinational corporation and the world's largest oil well service company, was submitted in a letter mailed six weeks ago to the company's executive committee, Clements' campaign press secretary Reggie Bashur said.

Judge takes case under advisement

HOUSTON — A district judge is taking under advisement a challenge to the controversial no pass, no play law, a lawyer said.

Several witnesses testified this week in a lawsuit challenging the no pass, no play law, which plaintiffs claim discriminates against minorities and handicapped students.

The law, part of a statewide school reform package, prohibits students who fail a course in a grading period from participating in extracurricular activities during the ensuing six weeks.

Lockjaw kills San Antonio man

SAN ANTONIO — Tetanus, popularly known as lockjaw, claimed its first San Antonio fatality in five years when it choked the breath out of a 94-year-old man who slashed his hand while gardening, officials said.

The death was called a "waste" by a top federal health official because proper immunization is 100 percent effective in preventing the disease.

The muscle spasms that characterize the disease ravaged the elderly man within five days after he suffered the gash and was infected with the soil-borne bacteria, officials said. He died three days later in mid-June.

Health officials withheld the victim's name. The death was not publicized until this week, when officials were certain tetanus was the cause.

CBS dominates emmy awards

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Young and the Restless" won three awards, including best daytime drama for the second consecutive year, in helping CBS dominate the 13th annual Daytime Emmy Awards on Thursday.

CBS took home half the 14 performance awards during the ceremony, broadcast live by NBC from New York's Waldorf-Astoria. ABC won three awards, two for "All My Children," while NBC won two.

Besides best series, "The Young and the Restless," which is about the residents of the fictitious Midwestern city of Genoa City, also was honored for best direction and best writing. "Young and the Restless" was the second-ranked daytime series this past season; the No. 1 show, ABC's "General Hospital," was shut out of the awards Thursday.

The "All My Children" awards were for best actor, David Canary, who plays twins Adam and Stuart Chandler, and for outstanding younger leading man, Michael E. Knight, who plays Tad Martin. Erika Slezak, who plays Victoria Lord Buchanan of ABC's "One Life to Live," won for best actress.

In other drama awards, John Wesley Shipp, who plays Douglas Cummings in CBS' "As the World Turns," won for best supporting actor; Leann Hunley, who plays Anna Di Marco in NBC's "Days of Our Lives," was best supporting actress; and Ellen Wheeler, who stars as Marley and Victoria Love of NBC's "Another World," won for best ingenue.

Phil Donahue won again as outstanding talk show host, his eighth such honor and the fourth in the last five years. His syndicated "Donahue" show won best talk show in non-performance awards announced Sunday.

Public television's "Sesame Street" won for best children's program for the seventh time. In 17 years, the education-minded series for pre-schoolers has won 28 Emmys, including three non-performance awards on Sunday.

CBS' "The $25,000 Pyramid" dominated the game-show category for the second consecutive year, winning for best game show and for best host, Dick Clark.

The outstanding children's special was CBS' "Babies Having Babies," which had won four Emmys on Sunday.

CBS dominated the non-performance awards, winning 13, to ABC's seven and NBC's four.

NBC's fast-paced awards broadcast included clips of the presenters, all daytime performers, and a steamy opening of passionate bedroom and shower sex scenes, to the accompaniment of Jennifer Lewis singing "Addicted to Love."

NBC, No. 3 in daytime, used the program to promote some of its daytime serials, particularly "Santa Barbara."

Jury to begin sentencing deliberations

KERRVILLE (AP) — Law enforcement officers testified in the sentencing phase of an organized crime trial they had received complaints from hitchhikers for years that they were forced into slavery at a Hill Country ranch.

But none of the drifters was willing to file a complaint until three men were abducted and forced to work on a chain gang at the ranch in 1984, officers testified Thursday.

The testimony came in the sentencing phase of a trial involving Hill Country rancher Walter Wesley Ellebracht Sr., 54, his son Walter Wesley Ellebracht Jr., 33, and former ranch foreman Carlton Robert Caldwell, 21.

A jury Wednesday convicted the three of conspiring to commit aggravated kidnapping and murder in the case, which included the cattle-prod torture death of one hitchhiker.

The three could face up to life in prison. The jury was to begin deliberating sentencing today after final arguments were delivered.

Charges against the three stemmed from the alleged abduction of Travis Boyd, Robert McCafferty and Ed Blanton, three hitchhikers picked up on Interstate 10 west of San Antonio in March 1984.

Boyd and McCafferty testified they went to the Ellebracht ranch after they were promised jobs. When they asked to leave, they were forced at gunpoint to dig ditches on a chain gang.

Both men testified they were shocked with an electric cattle prod.

Woman follows God's calling

By CARLEEN EVERETT

June Strickland, an ordained minister with the Church of God, says her favorite part of being a minister is preaching. "I feel I'm most gifted at preaching. And funerals and weddings are the best," she said. "I'm excited about the ministry because it's eternal."

JUNE STRICKLAND
...Church of God minister

Strickland of Forsan, who considers herself a basically shy person, says her ability to preach is a gift. "It's not my ambition, it's what God wanted me to do and I feel anointed of God."

Raised in Middletown, Ohio, Strickland said she felt "a divine call to the ministry" at 16.

Her calling was "a consciousness of God's claim on my life that I could not get away from," she said.

Strickland says she resisted the calling for two and a half years, waiting until she was at college before deciding to become a minister.

She received her bachelor of theology degree at Gulf Coast Bible College in Houston, now Mid-America Bible College in Oklahoma City, she said.

During her college years, she was the only female in her classes, she said. "My male peers were very supportive and I made a lot of lifetime friendships."

"I've been in pastoral care for 18 years. It's been very challenging," she said.

During her years as a minister, Strickland has served in Atlanta, Tex., Dallas and Ira.

She also admits that "it's harder for a woman."

Generally, Strickland says that she has been accepted as a woman minister, except for some individuals "who haven't accepted me."

The women's movement has created pressure for women who want to go into the ministry, Strickland said.

"I was a minister before it (women in ministry) was an issue. I think it will be an issue for some time," she said.

Fifty years ago, the Church of God had just as many women ministers as men, she added.

For the past 13 months, since living in Forsan, she hasn't been a full-time pastor, she said. But, she has been conducting revival meetings, seminars and high school Bible classes at the First Church of God in Big Spring.

In September, she also will have a conference in Ridgecrest, N.C. or S.C.

Being a woman in the ministry "has worked for my benefit," Strickland said. "I'm not compared to other ministers. I'm me."

She said she also benefits by being the only woman, because she is highly visible and well remembered.

"I've always been the exception. I've been in a room or meeting many times when they've said 'gentlemen and lady.'"

Strickland often is amused when people say 'you're a woman minister.' "They don't say 'you're a man minister' to men," she laughed.

She also has been stereotyped, she said.

"When I was younger, they (other ministers and congregations) thought I'd be older," she explained.

When she was 23, she was the assistant of a church and, at 25, she served her own congregation, she said.

"At that age my tool was to love the people. I didn't have all the answers, but I could love them and listen to them. Most people just want someone to listen to them."

Serving as a minister is just one of Strickland's duties. She also has served on the executive council for the Church of God for 12 years and has been a member of the Texas Ministerial Assembly of Church of God since 1968.

She is a mother of two: Mrs. Aaren Cox, 19, and Amy Middlebrooks, 13. "They're a blessing and a delight," she said.

"Being a minister is a grave responsibility, you have to have it in your mind and heart all the time. You need the strength from God to perform it," she said.

When asked about sacrifices she's made, Strickland said, "Not begrudgingly, but I'm sure there have been some. My daughters would probably say yes."

Her husband, Elbert Strickland, is very supportive, she said.

"In the near future, I'd like to go back into the ministry full-time. My husband is willing to make the break from his welding business — which he has had in Forsan for 27 years — to go where God wants me to go."

Strickland says women often ask her for advice about going into the ministry. "I just tell them if God calls you he will place you. If you have the divine call and know you do, it doesn't matter what people say. Just be sure you're called of God and really love people."

Christian parents' court battle for alternative texts continues

GREENEVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Parents who say a school district's textbooks violate fundamental Christian beliefs opened their court battle for alternative texts Monday by charging that lessons drawn from the "Wizard of Oz" undermine religious education at home.

Vicki Frost testified that her children's teachers use reading books steeped in the occult, humanism and the supernatural, and that the texts contained lessons on evolution, and that the readers tell children to be skeptical of religious beliefs.

"I didn't think I was sending my children to school to be taught moral judgment," Mrs. Frost said. "I thought they'd learn to have good English and grammar and do their other work."

She and members of six other families have sued to force the Hawkins County school board to provide their children with alternatives to the 1983 Holt, Rinehart, Winston reading series. The school system has refused, saying it would be too expensive and cumbersome.

In opening testimony in the non-jury trial before U.S. District Judge Thomas G. Hull, Mrs. Frost objected to the way teachers used the "Wizard of Oz" to teach that courage, love and wisdom are personally developed traits rather than gifts from God.

She said such material erroneously teaches humanism — that man can save himself.

The trial, which is expected to last two weeks, comes 61 years after the Scopes "monkey" trial in Dayton, 100 miles down the Tennessee River, in which the question of teaching evolution in schools was argued by William Jennings Bryan and Clarence Darrow. The trial ended with teacher John T. Scopes being fined $100 for teaching Charles Darwin's theory.

In this trial as well, the theory that man is descended from the same ancestors as apes is hotly contested.

"Evolution teaches there is not a God-Creator and that violates my religious beliefs," said Mrs. Frost. "God created humans separate from animals — they don't have common ancestors."

Mrs. Frost testified that stories which describe imagination as a "third eye" inside the head are occult teachings.

Furthermore, the textbooks emphasize the imagination too much and have caused confusion among her children, two of whom are plaintiffs in the case.

"The textbooks are asking my children to use their imagination beyond the authority of Scripture," Mrs. Frost said. "Our children's imagination has to be bounded."

Other objections raised Monday included passages that Mrs. Frost said advocated a one-world government, the equality of animals and humans, pacifism and rebellion against parents.

Stories which taught children to question hunters' willingness to kill animals wrongly elevated animals to the same stature as humans, she said.

The courtroom was crowded, but the town otherwise appeared only mildly interested in the case. There were no demonstrations or signs as in the 1925 trial in Dayton.

The plaintiffs expect to take about a week to present their case. Witnesses include children of Mrs. Frost and Bob Mozert, another parent seeking different readers for his children, as well as expert witnesses who will discuss reading and the learning of values.

Minister, 73, to retrace bike route

WICHITA FALLS — Dr. Gerald Ward's legs may be 50 years older, but his determination remains undaunted.

Ward, 73, a resident of Lethbridge, Alberta, plans a bicycle trip this summer from Canada to Fort Worth. Ward will pedal the distance to commemorate a similar ride he made in 1936.

"In 1936, we were in the midst of the Depression, and money was hard to come by," Ward said by telephone last week from his home in the southern part of the western Canadian province. "The cheapest way was by bike."

In the summer of 1936, Ward undertook the 2,500-mile journey from his home to the seminary he was to attend, Southwestern Theological in Fort Worth.

He made the trip in 19 days. The cost: $10.52.

When the Baptist minister visited his great-nephew, Lynn Shaw, in Wichita Falls two years ago, he said officials at Southwestern in Fort Worth challenged him to make the ride again. They noted that Ward rode his bike to Texas during its centennial year, and that the 50th anniversary of his trek falls during Texas' Sesquicentennial.

At first, Ward didn't take the idea seriously. "But I didn't completely dismiss it," he said. And now, he said, people are making pledges for the ride, with benefits going to charitable organizations in Canada and a seminary fund in Canada.

The trip will be a bit different this time, though. Ward will be riding a 10-speed; in 1936, he rode a one-speed bicycle. And he will be accompanied by relatives along the way and has scheduled 28 days for the journey. He plans to leave Vancouver, British Columbia, on Aug. 17.

Ward remembers someone offering him a basement to sleep in when he stayed in Wichita Falls. And he recalls Texas' "hot winds."

"He's in tremendous physical condition," said Shaw, his nephew. "Unless his knees give way, I don't have any doubt he'll make it."

Drug testing draws praise as well as pains

DEAR ABBY: I totally agree with your objections to mandatory drug testing for everyone. I am in the military, and we take urinalysis tests at least once a month. Since I have never used drugs and I never plan to, I was not afraid of these tests. That is until recently.

Abby, I am one of the unlucky 10 percent who have never used drugs but came up positive on the test for the use of marijuana, and you would not believe what I have been going through. I had planned to make the military my career, but my chances are ruined. I have lost the respect of my seniors in command and lost some of my so-called friends. My family and fiancée have been harassed. And I have been branded a liar.

The military is very strict on drugs, and they should be. However, when innocent people are found "guilty" of something they never dreamed of doing, there is something wrong with the system.

I came up positive in March. It's now July, and I am still fighting the charge. I was told it would be resolved in six months. Meanwhile, I am up for special courts-martial, and if convicted I will have a federal record and go to jail! They can take my rank, my pay and I will be discharged under less than honorable conditions.

I was always proud to be a Marine, but how can I be proud when I am terrified of losing everything I have worked for?

HEARTSICK IN HAWAII

DEAR HEARTSICK: I, too, am heartsick. However, in the interest of fairness, I present an opposing view:

DEAR ABBY: Your recent column on urine testing for drugs in the workplace repeats a common and dangerous myth: the unreliability of urine testing. While it is true that a single unconfirmed urine test can be wrong for many reasons, such errors are not common and they are, in any well-run program, irrelevant.

A few years ago, when some companies did use unconfirmed tests to discharge employees, there was a serious problem. Today virtually all companies using urine testing have improved their techniques to assure reliability. First, positive tests are confirmed using a different method of analysis. The possibility of some non-drug substance causing a "false" positive under such circumstances is virtually zero. In addition, companies routinely keep samples which test positive for subsequent analysis so that if an employee protests that his test results were in error, the company can retest the same sample. Thus, when urine tests for drugs are done correctly, there is no problem with reliability.

Another problem has sometimes been used by opponents of testing to undermine public support for urine testing at work: the fact that drug use off the job can show up as a positive test in urine samples taken on the job. The fact that a urine sample taken on the job contains a prohibited drug or its breakdown product shows conclusively that the employee brought the drug to work in his body. In other words, urinalysis does not test for "past use" — it tests for drugs present in the body at the time of the testing.

The vast majority of workers do not use illegal drugs. They have a stake in establishing a drug-free work environment. After working with hundreds of drug users who came to treatment when they were "caught" at work, I can say without exception that they came to appreciate those who said "no" to their drug use.

There is no alternative to urine testing to ensure that the workplace is drug-free. Testing deserves your understanding and support.

Stimulant drugs may help a hyperactive child

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I haven't seen you write about drugs for hyperactive children. We have a problem youngster. He's 8, healthy in all physical respects. His third grade teacher, however, doesn't think he will be able to handle next year's work. He is inattentive in class, doesn't complete his assignments, and is disruptive. He isn't slow, really, but hyperactive. It's been a problem at home.

The teacher now has the feeling that perhaps drugs will help him. We hate to think of this. She says we should take the matter up with the doctor. If it's the only way, we are willing, but we'd like your comment. — Mrs. H.A.

Controversy has always surrounded this kind of therapy. Stimulant drugs to help the hyperactive youngster are being used in selected, carefully-diagnosed cases. I can agree with the teacher that you should visit the boy's doctor.

The doctor will want a detailed history, including his teacher's notes and comments, as well as your own description of his behavior. Often, what is viewed as hyperactivity by some is something quite different to an uninvolved professional. Bizarre school behavior might be a reaction to unsettling domestic or other events, for example. So the diagnosis has to be somewhat subjective.

And drugs are not the total solution. Most often, such drugs are suggested when the goal is solving a specific problem, in this instance school performance. That is an important problem to be faced. And in this regard there have been quite good results, including improvement of basic skills like writing, reading, etc.

The therapy requires close cooperation among parents, teachers and the prescribing doctor. Many schools may object to schooltime use of such medications, and the child himself may be uneasy about it. He will have to take medicine about midway through the school day. Perhaps, his school nurse would be an important part of the program.

Stimulants should be discontinued at the earliest opportunity, for example at the end of the school year. Then re-evaluation can be done prior to the start of the next term.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Why is it that when I get a bad head cold my sinuses clog up and cause me weeks of distress? It lasts long after the cold itself has apparently gone. — A.S.

Any upper respiratory viral infection, which is what a cold is, can cause this. The infection interferes with action of the cilia, the hair-like projections from the nasal surface that are the first line of defense against foreign invaders. That disturbance, combined with the swelling of tissue and the fluid accumulation, eventually disrupts normal flow of mucus. The sinuses then become prey to other infections, perhaps from opportunistic bacteria.

North Central exits from tourney

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

The Odessa North East Texas All-Stars got a strong pitching performance from Stephen White and good production from the top half of their lineup to defeat Midland North Central 6-2 last night in District III Little League Tournament action.

The loss eliminated North Central from the tournament. It exits the tourney with a 4-2 slate, good for fourth place. Odessa North East Texas advances with a 4-1 record. It will take on the Big Spring American League tonight at the National League park at 8 p.m.

The winner will advance to the championship round against undefeated Odessa Jim Parker Saturday at 8 p.m. at the American League field.

White used a good fastball and excellent control to handcuff the hard hitting Midland team. Not an overpowering pitcher, he scattered seven hits without allowing a walk. He and Odessa loser Allen Chase went the distance.

Chase also allowed seven hits while walking four. He was touched for five runs in the first three innings. After that, he settled down and pitched scoreless ball until the final inning.

Led by right fielder Kyle Johnson and third baseman-center fielder Billy Ramirez, Odessa's top four hitters accounted for five hits and five runs. Johnson and Ramirez got two singles each.

Midland jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first inning with only one hit. Two errors cost Odessa dearly. Leadoff hitter Johnson bunted safely and eventually scored when the Midland right fielder dropped Steve Aguirre's fly ball.

Stormy Case and Ramirez walked and moved around on wild pitches. Case scored from third on a wild pitch and Ramirez scored moments later on a bad throw from the catcher to the pitcher at the plate.

Odessa added two more runs in the third. Jason Holloman reached base on an error by the shortstop and moved to third on a single by Ramirez. He scored on a sacrifice fly by Aguirre.

Ramirez came across with run number five when Perry Sanford grounded out to second base.

Culpepper scored the final

Midland run on a sacrifice fly by Chase.

Odessa added an insurance run in its last at-bat. Jason Gothran singled and scored when Case tripped to center.

In Midland's last turn at bat, White struck out the side to end the game.

Going to Ranger

Sherman's brother, Eric, a 1983 graduate of Big Spring High School, recently signed a football scholarship to attend Ranger this season.

Soviets dominating boxing competition

MOSCOW (AP) — With 19 boxers in the finals, the Soviet Union, which has dominated the inaugural Goodwill Games from the start, is set to steamroll through the competition's final days.

The Soviet Union dominated the games again Thursday, sweeping both gold medals awarded and controlling the boxing competition.

The Soviets won golds in women's team gymnastics and in judo's 189-pound division, raising its gold-medal count to 73 and its overall medal total to 167.

The United States was a distant second, with 35 gold medals and 116 overall. The multi-event games are set to end on Sunday.

The biggest American disappointment came in the boxing ring, where light-heavyweight Harvey Richards, unexpectedly handed a second chance at the gold medal, was stopped by Andrei Karavaev of the Soviet Union at 1:06 of the third round.

Earlier in the day, tournament officials overturned a referee's ruling that had disqualified Richards on Tuesday.

U.S. boxing officials said it was the first time in memory that a referee's decision was overturned at a major international event.

The ruling, by a four-man jury of the competition, was based on a protest filed by the American team after Richards was disqualified on a low-blow call.

The jury consisted of U.S. team manager Pat Duffy and three Soviets. The decision was approved by Col. Don Hull of the United States in his capacity as president of the International Amateur Boxing Association.

Sixteen fights were held in eight weight division Thursday, and the Soviet Union had one boxer in each bout.

The only fights they lost were in the middleweight class, as Parker White outpointed Andrei Akulov, 5-0; in the lightweight class, with Romallis Ellis decisioning Yuri Savochkin, 4-1; and in the light welterweight division, as Hengels Pedroza of Venezuela won by a walkover against Ehrlik Khakimov.

The loss by Richards was the only knockout of the eight-bout evening session.

The 22-year-old American didn't think he was going to get reinstated, because such action is rare in international boxing.

"It (the controversy) takes a lot out of you," he said. "It hurts a lot."

"I really wasn't expecting it (reinstatement), because this was the first time they have done anything like this in an international bout."

Richards was so pessimistic about being reinstated that he spent a leisurely day shopping, watching the changing of the guard at the Kremlin and playing cards with teammates.

"I was doing little things to get my mind off what was going on," he said.

In the ring, he met a big opponent in Karavaev.

"He hit me with a nice shot," Richards said. "He hurt me."

Saturday's 12 finals will feature all-Soviet matches in seven weight classes, and three Soviet-U.S. matches.

Only two other countries placed fighters in the finals, Venezuela and Mongolia, with one each.

In gymnastics Thursday, the Soviet Union, led by Elena Shushunova, easily took the women's title, with a total of 196.10 points. Bulgaria edged China for the silver medal, 190.60 to 190.25.

In judo, the Soviets placed 1-2 in the 189-pound class, with Alexander Sivtsev defeating Vitaly Pesnyak on a referee's decision for the gold medal.

British Open starts on cold, windy note

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP) — Only Welchman Ian Woosnam could match par with a 70 Thursday in the opening round of the 115th British Open golf championship on Turnberry's treacherous Ailsa course in biting cold and howling wind.

His feat surprised even Woosnam.

"I didn't expect to shoot 70. I thought 77 or 78 would be a good score. I was just trying to stay in contention," he said.

Instead, he is leading the oldest of golf's championships, and a disarrayed corps of the world's finest players was left to mutter about what might have been.

"Pars were great, birdies fantastic, and if you managed to salvage par from the rough, that wasn't too bad either," said Nick Faldo of England, tied for second at 71 with Robert Lee and Gordon Brand, both of Britain, and Anders Forsbrand of Sweden.

Lee, Brand and Forsbrand all finished in the gathering gloom of early evening after the winds off the Firth of Clyde subsided.

"Four days like this and the winning score might be 320," said Seve Ballesteros, the Spaniard who came into this tournament with four consecutive victories and shot an opening 76.

The course, as much as the weather, was the problem. The rough was waist-deep in spots. The fairways were extremely narrow.

In sunny, windless weather in 1977, Watson and Nicklaus played the last two rounds of the Open at Turnberry with scores of 65-65 and 65-66, respectively.

On this dismal day, Watson shot a 77. Nicklaus broke 80 only on the strength of an eagle-birdie finish.

There was Norman, one of the world's longest hitters, striking driver-driver into the teeth of the wind to reach a 427-yard par 4.

There was Lee Trevino, shivering to an 80.

Sam Randolph, a former U.S. amateur champ who turned pro last month, was the leading American at 72.

He was tied with West German Bernhard Langer, Ian Stanley of Australia and Andrew Brooks of Scotland.

Gary Koch was tied at a 73 with Vaughan Somers of Australia and Rick Masters of Britain.

Andy Bean and Bob Tway were in a group with Norman at 74.

None of the holders of the Big Four titles was even close.

Nicklaus and Floyd had their 78s. PGA champ Hubert Green shot 77. And Sandy Lyle of Scotland, the defending champion here, had a 76.

Fuzzy Zoeller, Johnny Miller and John Mahaffey, 75; Mac O'Grady 76; Peter Jacobsen and Ben Crenshaw, 77; Tom Kite and Roger Spain's Seve Ballesteros (left) has words with his American caddy Nick de Paul during action at the British Open. Ballesteros shot an opening day 76, six strokes off the pace.

Maltbie, 78; Mark O'Meara, 80; Corey Pavin and Larry Nelson, 81; Craig Stadler, 82.

Woosnam also appeared headed to a big number, too, when he played the front in 39, 4 over par.

Toronto race track ready for action

TORONTO (AP) — Bobby Rahal says there is a very simple way to keep out of trouble on the street circuit built for the inaugural Molson Toronto-Indy race.

"Don't hit the barriers," Rahal said, only half-joking.

The circuit, which will be opened to the Indy cars today for practice and provisional qualifying, is a 1.78-mile course winding through Exhibition Place — a giant fairgrounds with several permanent buildings including Exhibition Stadium, home of baseball's Toronto Blue Jays and the Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League.

The track continues out of the Prince Gate entrance to Exhibition Place and onto Lakeshore Boulevard, where speeds on the circuit's fastest straightaway are expected to get above 180 mph.

And those dangerous concrete barriers, just a little taller than the low-slung Indy cars, line virtually the entire circuit.

Rahal has been critical of temporary circuits in the past.

"Not this one," he said. "It looks super. It's not Mickey Mouse, that's for sure. It's good for racing because there's more than one (racing) line through the corners. But it's awful fast."

"All I've done is gone around it in a street car," said Michael Andretti, the leader in the CART-PPG Indy-car series going into the eighth round on Sunday. "But it is wide open. There is lots of room and a lot of fast corners."

"I think we're going to be averaging somewhere around 125 (mph)," said Mario Andretti, Michael's father and one of the long-time stars of Indy-car racing as the two waited Thursday along with Rahal and several other drivers for the start of a pit stop contest on a downtown Toronto street.

Michael interrupted, saying, "No, I really think it's going to be faster than that."

"Michael could be right," the elder Andretti said. "It's got lots of places to pass and I'm sure it'll be the fastest by far of the street courses we run on."

The race, which will be telecast live by ESPN beginning at 1:30 p.m. EDT, carries a $600,000 purse, with the winners expected to take home about $100,000. A sellout crowd of 60,000 is expected.

Soviets, Americans in title tilt

MADRID, Spain (AP) — The Soviet Union and the United States, who haven't met on a basketball court in four years, will play Sunday for the World Basketball Championship.

The confrontation came about because of some last-minute heroics by the Soviets and the Americans' ability to run.

In Thursday night's semifinal games, the Soviets beat Yugoslavia 91-90 in overtime after overcoming a nine-point deficit with less than a minute left in regulation and the United States held on to beat Brazil 96-80 after taking a 26-point lead in the first half.

The Soviets will seek to defend the title they won in 1982 when they beat the United States by one point in Cali, Colombia.

"We have a great rivalry with the Soviets, not only in sports, and it would be a great ending to beat them for the gold," American guard Kenny Smith of North Carolina, who scored 15 points against Brazil, said.

Smith and 5-foot-3 Tyrone Bogues of Wake Forest led a running offense that gave the Americans a 60-37 halftime lead after shooting 69 percent from the field.

"We love the transition game," Bogues, who scored 12 points and had a game-high four assists and five steals, said.

Oscar Schmidt, Brazil's 6-8 forward, went to work in the second half, scoring 30 of his 43 points.
