Murder

Q. What sentences were given to the men who murdered Ara Bohannon?

A. No one has been convicted of murdering 81-year-old Bohannon, who was found bound and gagged in her home at 1106 Howell Lane May 23. Two Big Spring men have been indicted for capital murder in connection with her death: Andy Guzman, 20, of 1501 Stadium Ave. and Joseph Gilbert Garcia, 18, of 510 Donley St. They will be tried at a later date.

Deficit soars to $3.52 billion

AUSTIN (AP) — With the state budget deficit now mushrooming to $3.52 billion, top legislative leaders still appear no closer to agreement on how to balance the books.

Comptroller Bob Bullock on Thursday released the latest deficit prediction, saying it could get even worse.

But House Speaker Gib Lewis and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby continued to urge different solutions.

Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said he remains opposed to a tax increase.

"The House will continue to examine alternative spending cuts and is not interested in any new tax proposals," Lewis said.

"I believe the majority of Texans feel we are taking the right approach and will not tolerate an increase in their existing tax burden given the depressed nature of our present economy," Lewis said.

Hobby, meanwhile, told state senators, business leaders and news reporters that a combination of spending cuts and tax hikes is the "responsible" solution.

By imposing spending cuts, rolling back the 3 percent pay raise previously given state employees, Hobby mapped out about $650 million in possible cuts.

"There are $650 million in reductions we can make here. We will continue to look at all the options. But much beyond that point and we trifle with the future of this state," Hobby said.

"It is my hope that the Legislature will meet this crisis with a combination of spending reductions and revenue increases," he said.

Gov. Mark White has called a special session of the Legislature for Aug. 6 to try to cope with the ballooning deficit.

White said that in light of Bullock's latest deficit estimate, "It is obvious that we must continue to slash state spending." He did not suggest where such cuts should be made.

White also issued an executive order tightening his previously ordered state hiring freeze.

Spiritual weekend planned

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Harald Bredeson, member of the board of directors of the Christian Broadcasting Network and author of "Yes Lord" and "Need a Miracle?," will be featured speaker at a countywide "spiritual renewal" weekend Aug. 8-19.

Bredeson has served as adviser and minister to heads of state, including Presidents Truman, Nixon, Carter and Reagan; Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin; Egyptian president Anwar Sadat; Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau; and the Shah of Iran, said organizer Everett Bender, who owns Miss Royale.

About 65 people from various segments of the community attended an organizational meeting at the county courthouse this morning.

The purpose of the event, called "A Community Under God," is "to remind ourselves of the Christian principles on which this country was based, to offer thanks for the blessings we have enjoyed as a result of these principles, and to commit ourselves to seek God for his blessings in the future," Bender said.

He said the event is based on 2 Chronicles 7:14, "If My people, who are called by My name, will humble themselves and pray and seek My face and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from Heaven and will forgive their sin and will heal their land."

Bender said he met Bredeson when he toured TV evangelist Pat Robertson's facilities in Virginia Beach, Va. Bredeson told Bender he felt directed to visit Big Spring, and the event "exploded out of that," Bender said.

Hundreds of Mexico's National Action Party supporters spent the night on the Mexican side of the Bridge of the Americas, one of four bridges linking Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, to El Paso. The Thursday night and Friday morning blockade is a part of their protest of alleged election fraud by the ruling PRI party during July 6 state elections. The blockade began at 8:30 p.m. MDT and was scheduled to continue for 24 hours. This photo shows protesters at dawn.

Protesters blockade bridge

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — About 5,000 people, mostly supporters of Mexico's main opposition party, blocked a bridge linking Texas and Mexico today to demand the annulment of an election they said was marred by fraud.

The blockade of the Bridge of the Americas began at 10:30 p.m. EDT Thursday and was expected to end 24 hours later. The bridge links El Paso and Ciudad Juarez, the largest city in the state of Chihuahua.

On the Mexican side, a helicopter briefly hovered over the bridge. On the American side, more than 60

U.S. Border Patrol agents, double the usual number, were posted.

At issue is the July 6 state election in Chihuahua, Mexico's largest state.

The governing Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI, was declared the winner in the governor's race, in all 14 state legislative elections and 65 of 67 mayoral races. The party never lost a major election in its 57-year history.

The National Action Party, or PAN, alleged that the election was marred by massive, government-instigated fraud.

The demonstrators had walked to the bridge from a rally at nearby Chamizal Park where 150 PAN women ended a 48-hour fast.

Francisco Barrio, PAN's gubernatorial candidate, said at the rally that the national government was stalling and not taking the party's demands for new elections seriously.

Barrio who resigned as mayor of Juarez to be able to run for governor said he met with government officials in Mexico City on Tuesday. He said they were not convinced there was enough proof of electoral fraud.

"If during the discussions all the proof we showed was not enough, then we are going to take measures of political pressure to defend our rights with the utmost energy," Barrio said.

Among those blocking the bridge were Barrio; his wife Hortensia who participated in the women's fast; Gustavo Elizondo, who ran for mayor of Juarez; and his wife Lourdes, who also fasted with the PAN women.

Sometime before midnight, about 500 additional people arrived at the bridge with a message of support from two men who have been on a three-week fast.

Public may help pick chief

An advisory group of private citizens may be appointed to help City Manager Mack Wofford screen police chief applicants, Wofford said this morning.

While the decision to form a citizen screening committee is not final, Wofford said he plans to seek advice from the City Council on appointing such a group to bring public input into hiring the next chief.

Fourteen men, including a local police lieutenant and a local businessman, had applied for the position as of Thursday.

The city will take applications for the position until Sept. 19. Applicants are preferred to have a college degree in criminal justice or a related field, five years experience in police administration and an advanced Texas certificate in law enforcement.

Although it's not essential, Wofford said he also prefers hiring a person with police chief experience.

Wofford said he wants a person with good communication skills, who can explain programs to the staff and community. The search for a new chief, unlike the city manager hunt, will probably be confined to the state, according to a memo from Personnel Director Emma Lee Bogard to Wofford.

Big Spring police Lt. David Spilman, 41, is one applicant.

Also, local businessman Arvin N. Henry, 53, owner of Midway Plumbing and Supply and a former police sergeant here from 1971-82, has submitted a resume. Others to apply for the position are:

• David L. Hudiburgh of Killeen.
• George M. Baucum of Gladewater.

• Richard Gilmore Doane, 41, of Odessa.

• David Arthur Lay, 38, of Houston.

• Barry W. Hooper of Canyon.

• Bryan Wasson, 53, of Bowie.

• Larry A. Roberts of Franklin, Ind.

• Donald Franklin, 32, of Plainview.

• Edward T. Laine, 42, of Austin.

• Michael Roy Harrison of Odessa.

• Joe E. Cook of Georgetown.
• Robert Riemenschneider, 51, of Marlin.

Homeowners may pay more

By DANA PALMER
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Property insurance for Big Spring homeowners will increase an average of 11.2 percent starting Jan. 1 if the State Board of Insurance adopts a staff recommendation.

Extended coverage also would increase by 11.5 percent.

The need for rate hikes can be attributed to severe weather problems over the last three years, said Rick Gentry, speaking for the Texas Insurance Advisory Association.

"Like it or not, 1985 was a banner year for property losses because of bad weather," he said.

Wind, hail and tornadoes last year led to 10 catastrophic losses in excess of $5 million each, Gentry said, adding that total property insurance losses for the year totaled $237 million.

In 1983, the state and property owners suffered because of Hurricane Alicia and severe winter weather, he said.

Estimates of what those proposed hikes might do to the cost of an average insurance policy won't be available until Thursday when the board meets to discuss the staff recommendation, as well as one from the insurance industry.

The tentative insurance industry recommendation calls for a 22.5 percent increase in homeowner's insurance and a 19.3 percent increase in extended coverage sold in the north-northwest zone, which includes Big Spring and much of West Texas.

Proposed north-northwest rates are higher than proposed rates for other zones, according to the staff and industry recommendations.

The staff is recommending that rates for homeowner's insurance in

Senate OKs tax treaty

WASHINGTON — The Senate voted 96-1 Thursday to ratify a tax treaty with China aimed at promoting U.S. investment by reducing or ending double taxation.

The treaty also is intended to promote U.S.-Chinese cooperation to prevent tax avoidance and tax evasion.

Only Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., voted against the pact. He did not explain his reasons.

President Reagan, who initialed the treaty during his visit to Peking two years ago, said in a letter sending it to the Senate that it would contribute to long-term economic expansion between the two countries "by providing clear rules as to the tax consequences of investing or working in the other country."

Nuns deplore threat

WASHINGTON — Eleven Roman Catholic nuns, formerly under Vatican fire for questioning church teaching on abortion, strongly objected Thursday to a church contention they had settled their cases by publicly backing down.

In a statement distributed in Washington, they deplored a continuing Vatican threat of action against two nuns, Barbara Ferraro and Patricia Hussey of Charleston, W.Va.

The dispute began in October 1984 at the height of the American presidential campaign when 97 U.S. Catholics, including 24 nuns and several priests and religious brothers, signed a full-page New York Times advertisement declaring church leaders' staunch opposition to abortion was not the only legitimate Catholic position.

Food prices increasing

Economic shock waves from Dixie's devastating drought already are being felt outside the South, as grocers and farm officials around the nation report that consumers will be paying more for produce and poultry.

The South's hot, dry weather has cost farmers more than $1.5 billion, forcing them to slaughter starving livestock early and killing more than a million chickens in the Southeast and mid-Atlantic states.

Poultry supplies have tightened up, said Celia Nix of Market News Service in Los Angeles.

Agreement reached

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Polaroid Corp., whose lawsuit pushed Eastman Kodak Co. out of the instant photography market, won't sue Fuji Film Co. to stop it from selling instant film, in return for some of the Japanese firm's secrets.

The agreement announced Thursday followed a Japanese Patent Office ruling that Fuji infringed on Polaroid's Japanese patent for integral instant film.

Espionage

Whitworth convicted on seven charges

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Former Navy radioman Jerry Whitworth is likely to spend at least 35 years in prison for his conviction as "the most significant player" in John Walker's Soviet-run spy ring, a prosecutor says.

Whitworth sat expressionlessly Thursday as a U.S. District Court jury convicted him of seven espionage-related charges in what authorities have said was the worst breach of U.S. military secrets since World War II.

"I am pleased with the verdict handed down today," Navy Secretary John F. Lehman Jr. said. "His treason did grievous harm to this nation. Fortunately for this country, it did not happen during a global war."

Lehman has said it will take years and perhaps $100 million to repair the damage done by the Walker family spy ring.

Jurors who deliberated 52 hours over 10 days found Whitworth guilty of selling vital code and communications secrets for $332,000 to the spy ring run by Walker, his longtime friend. He also was convicted of four counts of evading taxes and one of conspiring with Walker to hide the money from the government by using cash and cashier's checks.

The jury deadlocked on an eighth espionage-related charge, of stealing and copying a secret document found at Whitworth's home, a minor portion of a Navy contingency plan for the Mideast. The defense said Whitworth accidentally took the document home and never intended to give it to Walker.

Whitworth, 46, of Davis, was the last member of the Walker spy ring to be tried. Navy officials said the ring gave the Soviets invaluable information on codes, decoding equipment and satellite communications.

U.S. District Judge John Vukasin scheduled sentencing Aug. 28. The espionage and conspiracy charges are punishable by up to life in prison. The tax charges carry a total maximum penalty of 17 years.

A person sentenced to life is eligible for parole in 10 years, but U.S. Attorney Joseph Russoniello said Whitworth had no realistic chance of parole for at least 35 years. He said the case was "the most serious espionage case brought in the United States since World War II" and Whitworth was "by far the most significant player."

But defense lawyer James Lar-

Former Navy radioman Jerry Whitworth, right, is escorted by a federal marshal from San Francisco's Federal Building Thursday after he was convicted of conspiring to sell military code secrets to the Soviet Union. Whitworth was convicted on 12 of 13 charges against him in the espionage and tax evasion trial which was linked to the John Walker spy case.

son said the wrong person had been on trial.

"There was no public accounting for what he (Walker) did," Larson said. "Jerry is, at least in part, another one of Walker's victims." Larson would not say if an appeal was planned.

Whitworth's lawyers acknowledged that he sold secrets to Walker but contended he thought he was working for Israel and was unaware of the Soviets' involvement until nearly the end.

Walker, the prosecution's chief witness, said Whitworth was his main source of secrets from 1976 to 1983, when Whitworth retired from the Navy.

Walker, 48, of Norfolk, Va., pleaded guilty in October to spying for the Soviet Union for 17 years. He is to be sentenced to life in prison next month; his plea-bargain involved a reduced 25-year term for his son, Michael, a Navy enlisted man, who also pleaded guilty. John Walker's brother Arthur was convicted of spying and sentenced to life in prison.

Test ban talks begin

GENEVA — Superpower negotiations on a Soviet-proposed nuclear weapons test ban began today, with the United States and the Soviet Union disagreeing on priorities.

Negotiators from the two sides met at the U.S. mission. Two cars carrying the Soviet delegation entered the compound at mid-afternoon.

Reporters were not allowed inside the gates and did not have access to any delegation members.

The confidential talks are part of a series of U.S.-Soviet contacts which Washington hopes will help prepare a new summit meeting between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev, perhaps before the end of the year.

U.S. jet crashes at show

HAVERFORDWEST, Wales — A U.S. Air Force Phantom jet crashed into the sea after taking part in an air show Thursday, killing the two crewmen. A witness said it narrowly missed crowded Newgale Beach on the Welsh coast.

An Air Force spokesman said the plane, from the American base at Alconbury in Cambridgeshire, north of London, was returning to base after an aerial display. It plunged into St. Bride's Bay off the Brawdy Royal Air Force base near this town in southwestern Wales.

U.N. chief has surgery

UNITED NATIONS — With the election for U.N. secretary-general only months away, Javier Perez de Celler's sudden heart surgery raises serious questions about his availability for a second term.

Until his quadruple coronary bypass operation on Thursday, the 66-year-old United Nations chief had been viewed as likely to succeed himself — despite his own disclaimers of having second-term ambitions.

"Just about all the Western countries have told him they'd like to see him stay on," a Western diplomatic source said. "There is no visible alternative."

Extremists ambush bus

AMRITSAR, India — Masked Sikhs halted an intercity bus in Punjab state today, pulled off all the Hindu passengers and killed at least 13 of them in a hail of automatic gunfire, state police said.

Seven passengers were wounded and listed in critical condition at a hospital in Muktsar, a town 96 miles southwest of the Sikh holy city of Amritsar, police said.

The Sikh passengers aboard the bus were not harmed, police said.

According to police, the attack occurred at dawn at a railroad crossing outside Muktsar. The bus was en route to the state capital of Chandigarh, 140 miles away.

Prisoner not guilty of rape, pardoned

AUSTIN (AP) — The family of a 26-year-old Minnesota man being released from prison for a rape conviction prosecutors say he did not commit is being picked up from prison in style — a limousine.

Gov. Mark White on Thursday ordered the release of Steven Lynn Fossum of Mabel, Minn., after the state Board of Pardons and Paroles recommended that Fossum get a full pardon.

Fossum, who has been imprisoned at the Texas Department of Corrections Coffield Unit in Tennessee Colony since April 1984, was scheduled to be transferred to the TDC Walls Unit in Huntsville before being released about noon today, prison spokesman Charles Brown said.

Although Fossum is pleased about his pending freedom, he said it will be hard to forget and forgive the past.

"Yes, I'm happy as hell," Fossum told the Houston Chronicle. "It's going all right now, but it took two years for justice to work. I was just another Yankee in jail. You can't get further behind than being locked up here.

"I could go out for revenge, but I sure don't want to wind up back here," he said, adding, "Don't mess with Texas."

Waiting in Huntsville will be a limousine and Fossum's mother, an older brother and friends from Houston. Banners and balloons also will be on hand, Fossum's mother said.

"I was crying and laughing and excited," Delone Fossum said when she got the news of her son's pardon Thursday afternoon. "I thought I was going to have a heart attack."

Ms. Fossum said her son moved to Texas six years ago to find work.

Administration losing drug war

By most measures, the Reagan administration is losing its war on drugs and drug trafficking. The flow of illegal narcotics into the United States, most especially from Mexico, continues to increase. So does the domestic market for cocaine, marijuana, and heroin. Accordingly, it is difficult to understand the administration's apparent reluctance to expand its drug-interdiction campaign by using military personnel and equipment where appropriate.

Last April, President Reagan laid the necessary groundwork by signing a presidential directive defining narcotics smuggling as a threat to national security. The directive specifically authorized greater use of the military to assist in reducing the flood of drugs entering the United States.

In mid May, Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger approved specific measures, including the use of radars and surveillance aircraft along the U.S.-Mexican border. In late May, the plan was approved by Attorney General Edwin Meese III, the designated coordinator of the administration's anti-drug campaign.

Inexplicably, however, the White House's Office of Management and Budget is refusing to finance the program. No formal explanation beyond the obvious need to hold down spending is being offered for this most curious failure. But budget drafting is about nothing so much as establishing priorities and then allocating funds accordingly.

The program set forth by Mr. Weinberger and approved by Mr. Meese would cost perhaps $250 million, or less if more interdiction operations were used as part of normal training that would be necessary in any case. Somewhere in a $970 billion annual budget it must be possible to find $250 million for bolstering an interdiction campaign that is being overrun by the drug smugglers.

This should be especially true given the evident support in Congress for enlisting more military help in the battle against narcotics traffickers.

Much of the impetus for the plan accepted by Messrs. Weinberger and Meese came from Arizona Sen. Dennis DeConcini and Oklahoma Rep. Glenn English. What is more, Congress seems likely to appropriate funds for parts of the program even without cooperation from the White House.

Thus, for example, Congress probably will allocate the $78 million for buying and deploying six radars mounted on tethered balloons to cover the 1,800-mile border with Mexico. Coincidentally, the radars would plug a huge gap in the Pentagon's system of air-defense surveillance.

But absent the active cooperation of the administration, efforts to reinforce the drug-interdiction campaign can never be more than partially effective at best.

It is important to stress that this is not a plan to militarize the U.S.-Mexican border or to thoughtlessly throw the military at a problem that is principally a matter of law enforcement. But modest numbers of border radars, surveillance aircraft, helicopters and various other specialized units could make it dramatically more difficult for the drug smugglers.

As it is, the Drug Enforcement Agency estimates, for example, that only 10 percent of the aircraft flying narcotics into the United States from Mexico are being detected.

The Reagan administration won't start winning its war on drug traffickers until those odds improve.

To the editor: This evening I picked up the Big Spring Herald to find one-fourth of the front page covered with one article titled "High-rise life." The article had nothing to do with local, state, or national news. It was comparable to the recent front pages that showed one-fourth page of children and animals. One only has to scan other area newspapers to see that there is plenty of news of great interest. The Herald chooses to continuously insult its readers with insignificant filler. I am canceling my subscription.

Senate staffers are griping about diplomatic nepotism

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — By long tradition, American diplomats' wives — no matter how professionally talented they may be — have been expected to stifle any personal ambitions and serve as unpaid hostesses at their husbands' overseas posts. Recently, though, some Foreign Service wives have urged that diplomatic spouses be put on the payroll for the "unofficial" duties they perform.

This reasonable proposal is being put into practice in Washington — but at such a high and selective level that it has aroused grumbling on Capitol Hill about "nepotism." The employment of high-ranking State Department officials' family members smells like favoritism to some congressional staffers — and who could be more expert on the subject of jobs obtained by friends or relatives of influential persons? "Even if it is not illegal it is surely unethical," griped one Senate aide. "It clearly indicates bias, even if it is done on a merit basis."

Senate sources gave our associate Lucette Lagnado these examples of big shots' relatives who have landed well-paying jobs in Foggy Bottom:

• Phyllis Habib, daughter of special envoy Phillip Habib, the shuttle diplomat, is a support services officer in the State Department's family liaison office. She works on "staff evacuations, divorces and sundry other matters," a department spokesman said, and makes about $33,700 a year.

• Sheppie Abramowitz, wife of Morton Abramowitz, assistant secretary for intelligence and research, is a GS-14 in the department's office of emergency operations, earning $48,000 a year. She acts as liaison to volunteer agencies that administer emergency aid overseas.

In 1980, we saluted Sheppie Abramowitz for her (unpaid) volunteer work in Thailand while her husband was ambassador there. She and other (unpaid) embassy wives tore up their own sheets and linen to make bandages for Cambodian and other refugees flooding into Thailand.

• Marilyn Holmes is the wife of assistant secretary Allen Holmes, who heads the bureau of politico-military affairs. She produces training films for the Foreign Service, and is paid about $58,000 a year to make movies that help Foreign Service families cope with terrorism and other problems they'll face overseas. Asked what her qualifications as a movie producer were, a department spokesman said, "I know she is a professional."

• Sheila Platt, a trained social worker, is the wife of Nicholas Platt, the department's executive secretary. She works in the overseas-briefing center of the Foreign Service Institute. Her specialty there is stress management, dealing with Foreign Service employees and family members who are either on their way overseas or have just returned from a foreign assignment. Her part-time salary as a GS-12 is about $1,200 a month.

Senate staffers have other complaints about the State Department, which they believe is overloaded with elitists who are out of touch with the realities of fiscal restraint. One source noted indignantly that the department asked for a $400,000 increase in its entertainment budget this year. "We did not give it to them," the staffer said, adding in exasperation: "They spend their time overseas. They never heard of Gramm-Rudman."

State Department people, the Senate aide said, "think they are special."

LAUNDROMAT HUMMING? Unpublished Federal Reserve Board figures seem to show that money-laundering operations are still thriving in Florida. In the first five months of this year, the Miami Federal Reserve bank had a cash surplus of $2.9 billion. The figure for Jacksonville was well over $900 million. A Fed official cautioned, though, that huge currency surpluses don't necessarily translate into drug dealing or other criminal activity; it could simply mean wealthy businessmen in Latin America are moving their cash to the United States for safekeeping.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: Iran has steadfastly refused to sit down for serious peace negotiations to end the long, punishing war with Iraq. But our sources suspect that the financial drain on Iran is beginning to tell, especially with the collapse of world oil prices. Iranian cash reserves are estimated at anywhere between $3 billion and $7 billion.

Fashion show was something to remember

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

They hooted and they hollered. About 300 persons in all were at The Brass Nail Club Tuesday night as Fantasies from Midland presented a fashion show that enticed the beholder's eye.

Yes — it was a show to remember.

"We're a lingerie shop that specializes in the elegant and exotic for both men and women," said store manager Teri Bryant, a former Big Spring resident.

Bryant also is responsible for preparing show scripts, selecting wares to be modeled and choreographing the models through their movements.

Tuesday's show was especially satisfying for the hometown crowd as two Big Spring residents were among nine models who displayed wares that would enlighten anyone's bedroom.

Those residents were Debra Woods and Doug Peercy.

"We mainly wanted to show all the different varieties that we do have," Bryant said about preparing Tuesday night's show.

Some of that variety included men's silk bikini underwear, women's teddies, and nightgowns capable of converting night into day.

Bryant was hired to manage Fantasies by store owners Marion and Joy Snell of Ackery, who also perform as models.

Before that she was co-owner of The Fitness Club in the 600 block of Main Street.

Fantasies gets booked to perform three or four shows per month throughout the Permian Basin region, Bryant said.

They also perform shows every Friday at the store in The Courtyard at Midland Park located at Loop 250 and Midkiff Road.

Bryant said her troupe is hired regularly to perform for private clubs and parties.

They are scheduled to perform tomorrow night in Big Spring again at the Homestead Inn for the Big Spring Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Bryant said.

Does she ever worry perhaps of some ole boy getting carried away with what he sees?

"We've done so many shows, we don't worry about guys getting carried away," she said.

Wherever the Fantasies troupe performs, "everyone is kept under pretty good control," she said.

Drug tests are defective, unreliable

Mandatory drug testing of employees, which is practiced by a large share of American corporations and was announced recently by the National Football League, has stirred controversy over a variety of philosophical issues: the risks presented by drug use, the appropriate rights of employers and workers, the proper definition of personal privacy. What has been overlooked is the mundane secret that makes drug tests almost worthless: their unreliability.

Advocates of drug tests have cloaked them in an undeserved aura of scientific precision. The tests suffer from several defects. They sometimes implicate the innocent. They sometimes exonerate the guilty. Even when they accurately identify a drug user, the tests don't answer the question that should be of chief concern to employers: whether his job performance has been affected.

The National Football League has taken some trouble to minimize the errors, but even its scheme promises more than it can deliver. It plans to screen every player's urine for seven different substances — including marijuana, cocaine and amphetamines — with a widely used test known as EMIT. If a test is positive, it must be confirmed by a second, more sophisticated test.

One problem with the EMIT test is that it yields a high number of

Steve Chapman

"false negatives" — that is, it fails to detect drugs even though they are present. "You'll miss half the positives with EMIT," says David Greenblatt, chief of clinical pharmacology at the Tufts-New England Medical Center in Boston. And the NFL is bound to do even worse, since it has set the threshold for a "positive" at double the minimum amount of a drug that the test can detect. So a lot of drug users will probably escape detection.

The EMIT test also frequently detects drug use when there has been none. Greenblatt says that for marijuana, about 25 percent of the positives are erroneous. The NFL hopes to guard against mistakenly labeling players as drug users by requiring a second test when the first one is positive. For marijuana, it will use mass spectrometry, an expensive but virtually foolproof method.

But for the other drugs, it will use a less reliable procedure called gas-liquid chromatography. A spokesman for SmithKline Beckman, whose subsidiary will conduct the tests, says the chance of wrongly implicating someone "is zero." But Greenblatt says, "Gas-liquid chromatography has a small fraction of false positives. No one knows how many."

In some small fraction of cases, then, a player who is clean will be tarred as a drug user. The NFL expects to test about 3,000 players, which means that even a small fraction of false positives could mean a lot of careers damaged or ruined.

Besides the fallibility of the tests, there is the problem of human error in the laboratory. Drs. Hugh Hansen, Samuel Caudill and Joe Boone of the federal Centers for Disease Control, in a study of the reliability of the work at 13 different drug testing labs, found error rates of 100 percent for some drugs. Boone told one interviewer the labs might as well "have dumped the samples down the sink or tossed a coin." The SmithKline laboratory may be a good one, but the potential for error is alarming.

More alarming still is that a lot of employers don't exercise the same care as the NFL promises. Some rely solely on the inexpensive but inaccurate EMIT test — not bothering to check the results through other methods that are more reliable but also more expensive. EMIT's manufacturer cautions against relying on it alone, but the warning is often ignored.

The final problem is how to interpret the detection of a drug. Marijuana may show up in the urine if the person tested has merely been in the same room as someone smoking a joint. And the tests don't tell whether the drug user has actually been impaired on the job — whether it's tackling ballcarriers or screwing in bolts on an assembly line. Avoiding impairment is one of the few legitimate excuses employers have for using drug tests, but the tests aren't much help.

Aside from the obvious invasion of privacy and abuse of individual dignity, the tests carry the risk that important employer decisions will be based on ignorance — endangering the innocent and overlooking the guilty. Without the highest standards of accuracy, drug testing combines a false sense of security with pharmacological McCarthyism.

The term, nuclear sclerotic eye, does not refer to radiation that is your concern. The words mean a clouding of his eye in the center region. It's something to just about all of degree when we get doctor might have a "cataract" if he'd present a mild form of that.

Of course, there is annoyance when any vision is lessened; but this is your brother's problem. Sclerotic eye progresses; may never need cataract surgery. A cataract (the cloud removed only when with vision to the point of disability).

When and if that your brother and I consider options, I'll delay this answer, it does ease your mind.

Elderly develop nuclear sclerosis

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please, please answer. An ophthalmologist has diagnosed my brother (age 75) as having nuclear sclerosis of one eye. Will this gradually worsen? There is a blind spot in the eye, which is very annoying — never any pain. What exactly is this? Explain fully. — O.T.

The term, nuclear sclerosis, should not cause you alarm. It doesn't refer to radiation at all, if that is your concern. The two words mean a clouding of the lens of his eye in the central (nuclear) region. It's something that happens to just about all of us to some degree when we get past 65. The doctor might have used the word "cataract" if he'd preferred, for it is a mild form of that.

Of course, there is bound to be annoyance when any part of vision is lessened; but this does not mean your brother will go blind. Nuclear sclerosis progresses slowly, and he may never need cataract surgery. A cataract (the clouded lens) is removed only when it interferes with vision to the point of significant disability.

When and if that times comes, your brother and his doctor can consider options. I'm sorry I had to delay this answer, and I hope it does ease your mind somewhat.

While I'm at this, I might devote a few more lines to the subject. Cataracts are, as I said, clouding of the eye's natural lens, which is located squarely behind the pupil.

Dr. Donohue

If the lens is clouded, light cannot focus to the back of the eye, and you can't see. People for whom this clouding represents serious loss of sight can have surgery. In it, the entire lens is slipped out of its pocket. Then the person wears special spectacles or contact lenses to see from that eye, or may opt for the newer technique in which a plastic lens, the exact size of the removed one, is put in place.

Some cataracts can be inducted in part by ultraviolet light, so if people with cataracts spend a lot of time in the sunlight they would do well to protect their eyes with appropriate sunglasses, those that can filter out that kind of light ray.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I've never seen this in your column, and I've not heard anyone mention it. People I mention it to laugh or make jokes. I've been getting cramps, like charley horse, in my tongue of all places. I've gotten them in my hands and legs, etc., but never in my tongue. Could you tell me what would cause this? I'm 46, a woman. — B.E.B.

I'm taking your complaint seriously.

A cramp is a painful muscle spasm. Many theories have been offered to explain muscle cramps, but in all truth we just don't know why they happen. Fatigue and dehydration are common cramp producers in athletes.

Now, tongue cramps are unusual, but it, too, contains muscles, so isn't exempt. There are, in fact, "muscle diseases," the myotonias, where muscle spasms, even of the tongue, are part of the picture. Such cramps are most often painless, and occur spontaneously, or when a sustained muscle effort has been made. An example of such a spasms is the one a person may have when shaking hands. The spasms may make it difficult for him to extricate his hand from the other person's.

Your description isn't enough to raise the possibility of myotonia in my mind. But your story leaves me disturbed, and I want both of us to get to the bottom of it. Please tell me what your own doctor has to say, won't you?

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Effective parenting course offers tips on raising kids

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — Judy Carlson doesn't have a degree in psychology or in teaching. She doesn't have a degree in anything.

But she sounds savvy when she's standing in front of a class and talking about why children misbehave.

"Four reasons: attention, power, revenge or display of inadequacy," she says.

And how parents can keep from reinforcing misbehavior?

"It's hard for a parent to keep silent, but (you should) refrain from discussing at the point the child is misbehaving," she says. "Express your feeling and pick up the conversation later on when you're both calm."

And how to listen and communicate?

"Effective listening is reflective listening," she says. "Acknowledge the feeling, show the child his message is understood and the child will open up. Too often we respond in roles like commander-in-chief, moralist, know-it-all, judge, critic, consoler or psychologist."

And how to discipline?

"Not punishment and reward, but natural and logical consequences," she says. "Don't nag at the kid to wear his hat and gloves. Let him go out without them. He'll feel cold."

Carlson knows what it is to be a parent.

"A lot of parents will listen to me better than they would to a person who has — how should I put it? — higher status," says the mother of three teen-agers.

Twice a year, Carlson has led the Parent Teacher Association's nine-session STEP (systematic training for effective parenting) course in Joliet.

The rules of child-rearing have changed, Carlson said. Today's children won't accept, "Do it because I said so." They believe in democracy and social equality.

How does she know she's effective? She hears from parents.

She says she remembers the frustration on the faces of one couple at a first class. "During that first class the husband was looking at the wall. I thought, 'Oh, boy, I've lost this guy.' But they came back, and by the fourth class they came in arm in arm, smiling. The man told me the program worked not just with his kids, but with the people at work."

Without STEP, she says, "I probably would have made it through all right with my kids, but not as easily."

She offers an example of how she used the "I message" to communicate with her son the first time he kept the family car out later than expected.

When he returned, "I talked about my feelings, how I'd been pacing the floor," she says. "Now he calls every time to let me know when he'll be home."

Church to offer workshop

By CARLEEN EVERETT
Lifestyle Editor

"Church worship can be done well in any place," says Flynn Long, minister at First Presbyterian Church located at Eighth and Runnels streets.

To help make worship services better, First Presbyterian is offering a worship and music workshop for small churches, Long said.

"There are lots of workshops offered all over the country, but smaller churches feel intimidated," said Keith Ross, music director and organist at First Presbyterian. "They (those running the workshops) don't have time for a church with 75 people with no budget."

"We're trying to get a similar experience as the national workshops in a comfortable, caring setting," he explained.

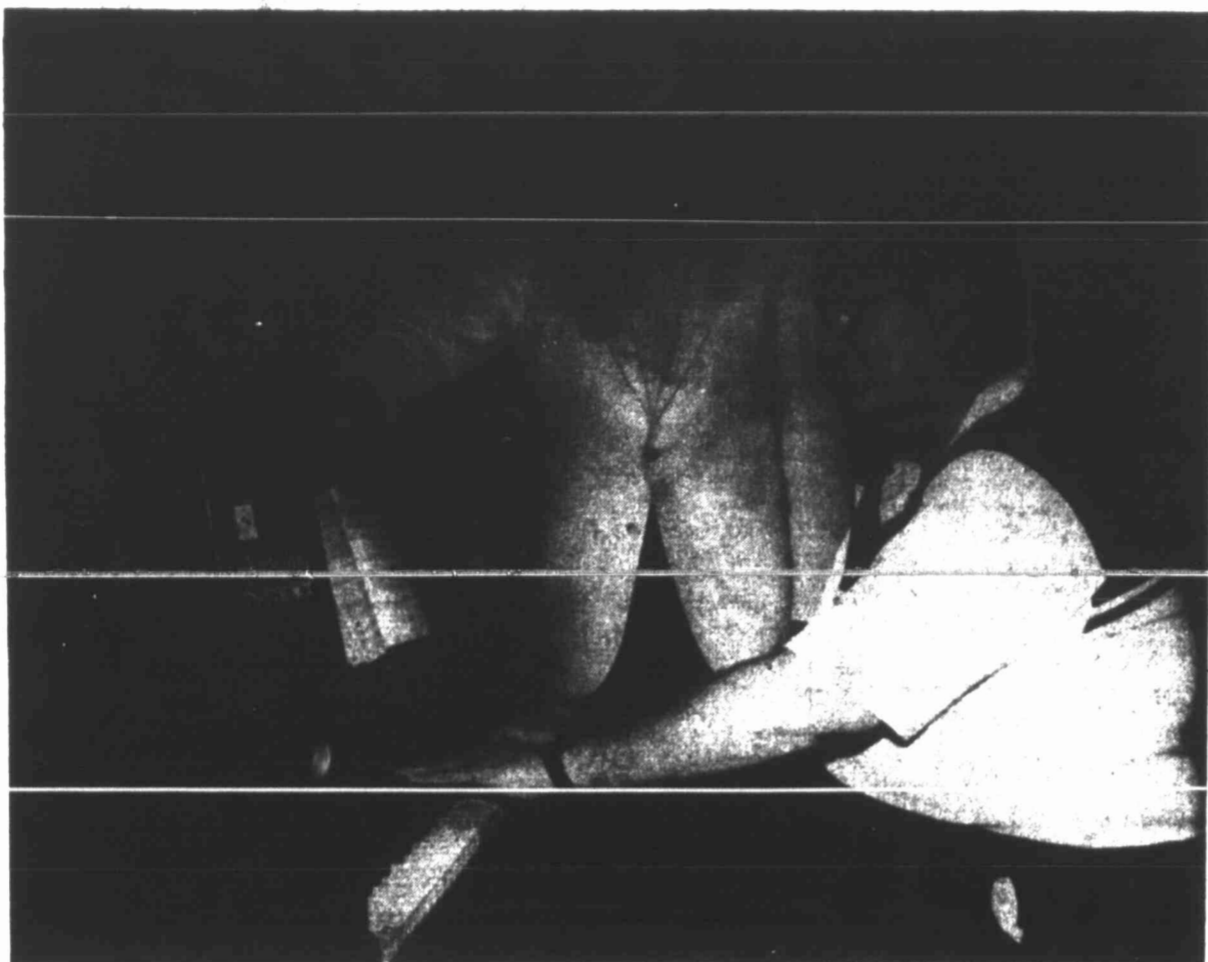

The workshop will benefit other denominations besides the Presbyterians, Ross said. "Catholics, Methodists, Episcopalians and Lutherans will also benefit."

The sessions are targeted toward ministers, musicians, choir members and church officers, Long said.

They hope to stress the importance communication plays between the minister and the musician, Ross said. "I feel if a pastor and a musician communicate and get their act together then their worship experience will be more meaningful," he said.

The three-day workshop will begin Aug. 1 at 5 p.m. for registration and a get-acquainted gathering, Ross said.

"We will offer two worship services, two hands-on practicum sessions, a panel discussion and a reading session," he said. The workshops will focus on topics such as planning worship services; how to find material for worship services — music and sermon resources; how to make the best of what you've got; how to run a program on a shoe string; and how to get the most out of your musical instrument (piano, handbells, organ, orff instruments and xylophones).

Flynn Long, minister at First Presbyterian, and Keith Ross, music director and organist, prepare for the workshop that will be offered Aug. 1, 2 and 3. Ross practices material that will be presented.

Featured speakers for the workshops will be Horace Allen, professor of worship and homiletics at Boston University and committee chairman of the consultation of common text; Lucille Hair, director of music/organist for University Church in Baton Rouge, La.; James Smith, director of music and education for First Church in Longview; and Stephen Farrow, organist for First Church,

Longview. "These people are top of the line leaders," Long said. "I'm very impressed that they're coming."

First Presbyterian is "in a unique position to offer the workshop, but we're not too overwhelming," Ross said. "We have a fine pipe organ, a Hammond organ in the chapel, two grand pianos, a spinet organ and handbells."

Volunteers give their time to build churches

MIDDLEBURG, (AP) — For the last four years, about 30 men from the Trussville, Ala., area have spent a week of their vacations pounding nails, cutting wood, laying blocks and raising walls. This year, they chose to ride a bus for 17 hours to Snyder County to help build the New Hope Baptist Church, Route 522, just east of Middleburg.

To the Men on Missions, members of the Southern Baptist Church, the annual trip is more than 12 to 14 hours of construction labor each day. It's good Christian fellowship, which they plan for more than a year in advance, according to spokesman Ron Townsend of Trussville.

A group of 57 men, from Southern Baptist churches in Trussville and Opelika, Ala., Bowden, Ga., and New Orleans recently helped build the roof at the New Hope Church. They choose a project each year from requests submitted to the Southern Baptist Church.

The Rev. James Osgood Jr.,

pastor of New Hope Church, said the 115 New Hope members now meet in Paxtonville. The new 21,000-square-foot church complex will include a sanctuary, gym and other multifunction facilities. The building should be operational by the end of this year and finished in the next year, the pastor said.

The new church is the culmination of more than nine years of meeting in various locations in the area. Osgood started a chapel Bible study fellowship in 1972, which met in the home of Donald and Jackie Graybill, Middleburg. Then Osgood left to study at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky. When Osgood returned to the area in 1977, the New Hope members began meeting in a mobile home in the Friendly Trailer Park, Middleburg.

However, the congregation quickly outgrew the mobile home, and purchased a storefront building in Paxtonville in 1978. Since then, the congregation has been meeting in that building, which was formerly a general store.

Bob Page, a self-employed carpenter from Trussville, said his group included volunteers 14 to 69 years old. Of the 57, only four are carpenters, he said. There are two high school principals, a nurse, pharmacist, engineer, retired pastor and students, among others.

Townsend, a senior gas controller with Southern Natural Gas Co., said it was difficult to explain why the men give up their time, leave their families, travel to a project and toil for at least a week. "Everybody feels the need and the calling through their faith," he said.

The Snyder County visit is the group's fourth annual work trip. In the past three years, they have helped with jobs in Wyoming, Connecticut and Illinois. Before each trip, committees are formed to arrange travel plans, lodging and meals. Workers' home churches provide food for meals during the trip. Also at home, Page meets with volunteers to describe the type of work they will do at the work site. He also holds training sessions if necessary. "Safety is emphasized and no one has been injured in the trips," Page said.

Ed Horsley, 68, a retired minister from Alabama, said, "This is what a mission is all about" as he guided his circular saw across a sheet of plywood.

Page said the volunteers not only helped congregations build churches by cutting labor costs, but they developed friendships among themselves. "We get to know each other so well on these trips. Now we'd do anything for each other."

Townsend said the men also enjoyed meeting people from other parts of the country. The group has had meals and spent time with members of the New Hope Baptist Church.

"We've already got two or three Yankees to eat grits," he said with a laugh.

Lutheran's vote not to allow women pastors

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Delegates representing 2.6 million Lutherans in the Midwest took less than five minutes to decide that women cannot be ordained as pastors.

The more than 1,100 delegates attending the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod made the decision by voting in a show of hands Wednesday.

The action followed a vote approving a resolution saying women can serve as officers and as members of boards and committees as long as it does not violate "the order of creation" by usurping authority over men.

On Tuesday, the delegates defeated a measure singling out women for training for special ministries.

"Women should be silent on preaching or teaching to men," delegate Harold Nansel of Waverly, Neb., said Wednesday, invoking Scripture. Gansel said women shouldn't have authority over men but can teach small boys, such as Sunday school pupils.

Richard Munding of Stillwater, Minn., was one of the few who voted for ordination of women.

"We're not giving the women as much due as they really should have. This resolution means that women should stay in the kitchen," he said.

"My reaction is to be deeply distressed by the decision not to ordain women," said the Rev. Joan Campbell, executive director of the U.S. Office of the World Council of Churches in New York.

Church briefs

New pastor to preach July 27

Reverend Gary Smith, his wife, Sue, and daughter, Brena, from Oskaloosa, Iowa, arrived in Big Spring Thursday to serve as pastor at the Church of the Nazarene, 14th and Lancaster streets.

Smith will conduct his first services Sunday, July 20 at 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m.

After the evening service, there will be an informal reception and pouncing in the fellowship hall to welcome him to the church.

Hillcrest to have bake sale

The youth of Hillcrest Baptist Church will have a bake sale on July 26 at the Highland Mall from 10 a.m.-4 p.m.

For more information, call Gary or Karan Phillips at 267-1639.

Parking lot/bake sale slated

Baptist Temple, 11th and Goliad, will have a parking lot and bake sale Saturday, July 26 from 9 a.m.-3 p.m.

All proceeds from the sale will go to the church's Mother's Day Out program, which will begin August 11.

Each Sunday two programs will be shown through the Discovery

Broadcasting Network System. The "Tri-Dimensional Success Hour" with Zig Zigler will be at 8:30 a.m. and the "Family Life Hour" with Dr. Tim LaHaye will be at 5 p.m.

Christian concert set July 27

"Celebration of Life" — a concert highlighted with visual effects — will be presented at the First Church of God, 2009 Main St. on Sunday, July 27 at 10:45 a.m.

Hope Harrington Kolb will perform contemporary Christian songs featured with a big-screen that will display images that are coordinated with the music.

Kolb has presented concerts in 40 states and throughout Canada for churches, business groups, high schools and colleges.

She has a bachelor of arts degree in music and is a seminary graduate with a master of arts degree in religion.

Kolb's husband, Reverend Jerry E. Kolb, is a co-designer of the program and an ordained minister

Lonely sailors salute you but may not have time to write you

DEAR ABBY: This is from a sailor abroad the USS Biddle. Last May you asked your readers to write to some lonely sailors who were out at sea for months at a time and starved for mail. Well, after that ran, we were swamped! All the guys read letters, letters and more letters, then we swapped with each other and read some more! Our youngest correspondent was 8 and the oldest was 92 with fond memories of World Wars I and II!

Dear Abby

Believe me, it did more for our morale than you will ever know. I personally feel more positive being on the front lines of defense for the citizens of the U.S. of A. My chest sticks out a little farther knowing how much you folks really care.

I hope those of you who wrote and don't get an answer will realize how much we appreciated your letters, but there were so many thousands of letters I don't know how we can answer all of them.

Thank you, Dear Abby, for what you did. When you get this, the USS Biddle will have pulled into home port in Norfolk, Va., and most of us will already have been united with our families. We want you to know we will all serve a little prouder knowing how much you Americans care.

CHRISTOPHER ROMIE, U.S. NAVY

DEAR CHRISTOPHER: Thanks for a great letter. What a shame that Clark Stephens, the shipmate who wrote to me requesting mail, wasn't able to share in all the excitement. His father became seriously ill, and Clark was airlifted off the Biddle and flown home to help care for his ailing father. Thanks to you, Clark, and I'm praying for your father.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Call Me Nothing" — whose daughter-in-law never called her anything.

Twenty-nine years ago when I was a bride, I never called my mother-in-law anything either. Although I loved her very much, I just couldn't bring myself to call her "Mother" or "Mom" and I couldn't address her by her first name.

Then one day she said to me, "I think it's time you called me something. You know, even a dog has a name."

I said, "Yes, I know. May I call you 'Fido'?"

Having no sense of humor, she said, "No, you may not — just call me Marjorie." So I called her Marjorie.

I have three married children now, and their spouses all were told to call me anything they felt comfortable with. One calls me "Mom," one calls me "Eleanor," and the third one doesn't call me anything yet. He's only been in the family since June, so I'll give him a little more time, and if he doesn't call me something, I'll suggest "Fido."

ELEANOR C. IN OMAHA
DEAR ELEANOR: If that doesn't work, how about if he whistled?

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with a wonderful girl for over three years. The problem is that when we go out to dine (two or three times a week), she purposely orders more than she can consume during that meal with me. She then takes a "doggie bag" in order to supplement her meals at a later date when she is not with me — either at home or at work.

She is not poor. I feel that she should order only what she wants to eat while dining with me. If food remains, then, of course, she may take a "doggie bag." I have told her about my feelings, to no avail.

What can I do? I don't want to lose her.

CHICAGO SCHLEMIEL, FROM SHERIDAN ROAD

DEAR SCHLEMIEL: Don't be such a schlemiel. If you don't want to lose her, she must have some redeeming features to offset this rather petty practice. There is no free lunch (or dinner), so either tolerate it or let her go, lover, and try to find a less acquisitive girlfriend.

(Every teenager should know the truth about sex, drugs and how to be happy. Division II All-Stars win two games

ANDREWS — The Big Spring Division II All-Stars had a good opening night in the United Girls Softball Association Regional Tournament, as they won both of their games.

In the first game they defeated Jal, N.M. 16-12. Karmen Morrow got the win as she came on in relief. She also aided her cause by turning a double play in the third inning and another one in the fifth inning.

Kristen Payer had the hot bat as she banged out three triples.

In the second game, the Division II All-Stars downed Andrews 20-14. Cassie Underwood was the winning pitcher. Payer again had the hot bat, hitting a inside-the-park grand slam homer in the third inning. The defensive star was third baseman E.D. Barnett, who turned a double play.

DIVISION I SPLITS

The Division I All-Stars nipped Jal, 10-9 in their opening game. Sandy Franco was the winning pitcher. Tawanna Ayalia came on in relief. Laurel Shelton, Franco and Toni Chester were the hitting stars.

In the second game they fell to Lovington, N.M. by a 11-3 score. Jackie Martinez was the losing pitcher. Martinez also hit an inside-the-park homer.

DIVISION IV WINS ONE

The Division IV All-Stars split in the opening day.

They dropped a 13-6 decision to Andrews in the opener. Jancy Cunningham was the losing pitcher. Lee Hamilton was the winning hurler for Andrews.

Big Spring bounced back with a 14-9 win in the second game. Amanda Solis was the winning pitcher. Sherri Mayrick and Cunningham came on in relief.

In Division III action, Big Spring defeated Ft. Stockton 9-1 and then dropped a 21-2 decision to Andrews. In their third game, Lovington won 18-13.

TODAY'S GAMES

The schedule for today, Division I played Andrews at 8 a.m. and Kermit at 11 a.m. Division II played Kermit at 11 a.m. and Lovington at 6:30 p.m.

Division III Played Jal at 9:30 a.m. and Kermit at 8 p.m. Division IV plays Kermit at 6:30 p.m. and Andrews at 9:30.

Mac is back!

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — In the six months since he walked away from tennis, John McEnroe raised a lot of questions about whether he could ever return to the top.

In one night, by playing the world's No. 1 player, Ivan Lendl, on near-even terms for three hard-fought sets, he answered almost every query.

McEnroe may have lost 6-4, 3-6, 7-6 (7-4), but he knew the match demonstrated something: "It proved that I'm back," he said. "It was an exciting match. I was excited (to be playing again)."

He had every right to be. Throughout the match, McEnroe reached into the dazzling arsenal of shots that had made him the No. 1 player in the world and did not come away empty-handed.

But, after not having played competitively since losing to Brad Gilbert in the finals of the Masters Tournament in January, McEnroe did lack the match toughness that has been his trademark. McEnroe tired in the final set, squandering a 4-1 lead and letting Lendl back into the match.

Lendl, who looked listless through most of the second and third sets before rallying, recognized that McEnroe was erratic.

"If it was the old McEnroe, it would have taken more to win," Lendl said. "I didn't know what to expect. Nobody knew what to expect."

Any expectations that McEnroe would not be able to regain peak form were dashed by a second set in which the left-hander overwhelmed Lendl, winning two games at love and a third while giving up just one point.

"I started out real tight — I didn't have any rhythm — and I got tired at the end," McEnroe said. "But I think I played well considering who I was playing."

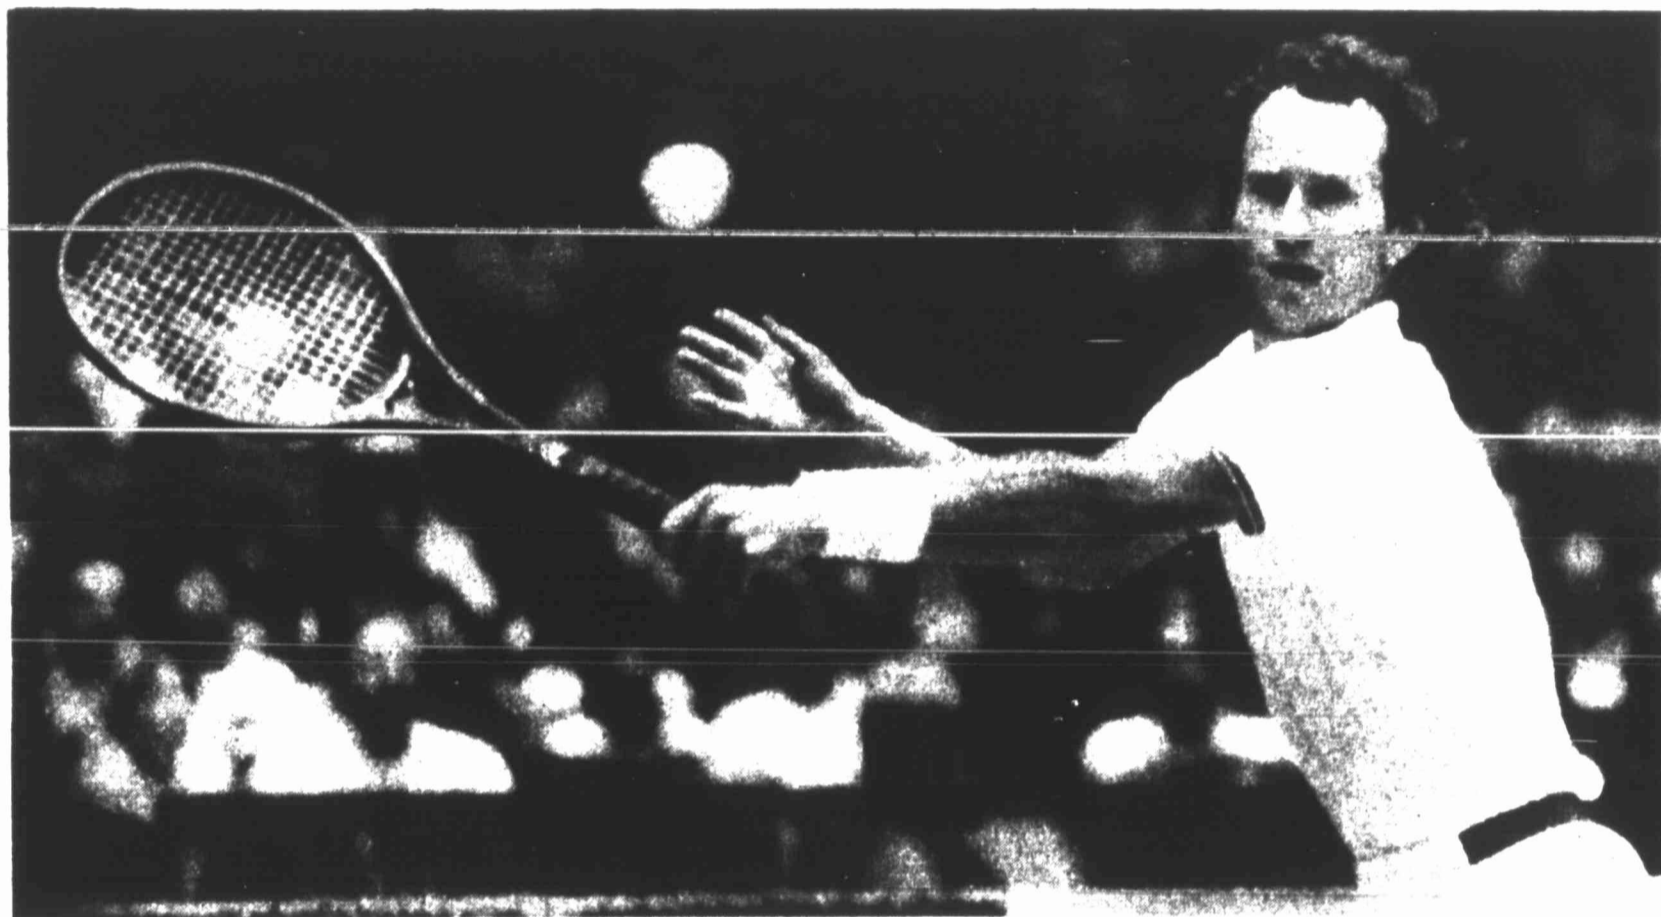

Lendl, who came into the match a winner of 100 out of 106 matches since the 1985 French Open, showed why he has risen to the top of the tennis world over the past two years.

He gave every indication he was done for through the second and most of the third set, but then came back, rallying from a 4-1 deficit in the third set and overcoming a 4-2 deficit in the tiebreaker.

A crowd of 13,856, which gave the match far more intensity than an average exhibition, was treated to more than 2½ hours of tennis that reached championship heights on numerous occasions.

All of which made it harder on McEnroe to make his first public appearance on a tennis court.

"I think this is a tough time for him to come back," Johan Kriek said. "I think he should have started in a smaller tournament

John McEnroe makes a backhand return to Ivan Lendl during their match at the Forum in Inglewood, Calif. Thursday night. This was rather than a spectacle like this."

Kriek defeated Jimmy Connors 6-4, 6-4 in an earlier match.

The victory over his arch-rival sat well with Lendl.

"I feel good, obviously," Lendl said. "It didn't look good for me there for a while. I didn't get the lead until 5-4 in the tiebreaker."

In the end, it was physical fitness that decided it. Lendl had been off just three weeks since his loss in the Wimbledon finals to Boris Becker.

McEnroe had been gone almost six months and he still has some work to do before he finds his top form.

"Most of it is physical conditioning," McEnroe said.

UM players found innocent

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Three former Minnesota basketball players victoriously exchanged "high fives" early today when a Dane County Circuit Court jury acquitted them of 12 counts of sexual assault.

Family and spectators rushed forward to congratulate the three as the verdict was read to the packed courtroom. Some spectators broke into applause.

Defense attorney Stanley Woodard said the University of Minnesota and the Big Ten "owe these athletes an apology," but said he doubted they would receive one.

Defense attorneys said the jury didn't accept the claims of an 18-year-old former art student that the players sexually assaulted her Jan. 24 in the room of a hotel where the team was staying.

All three engaged in sexual activities with the woman, but defense attorneys insisted the woman had consented.

"This was not some naive little girl," Woodard said.

"You've got three ex-basketball players who were ex-communicated from a school based upon the assumption that they were guilty," Woodard said.

The players — Mitchell Lee, Kevin Smith and George Williams Jr. — were kicked off the team shortly after charges were filed in the Jan. 24 incident in a downtown Madison hotel.

Coach Jim Dutcher, who resigned, said in Minneapolis he was "pleased that a long ordeal is over."

"It's a great relief, certainly for those young men and their families," Dutcher said.

Woodard, who had sought to have the trial moved from Madison to Milwaukee, said he had never "prejudged the jury." But during jury selection he asked those being screened if they approved of interracial dating.

The three defendants are black; the woman is white.

Williams wiped tears from his face as he embraced his father, George Williams Sr., 61, of Oakland, Calif., who had sat in the front row of the courtroom throughout the 10-day trial.

"They gave me my son back," the senior Williams said. "I'm so grateful. My family is and always has been my life."

Rookies leading Buick

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) With a name like Davis Love III and a golf swing that can easily drive a ball over 300 yards, you're bound to attract some attention.

And Love, who shared the first-round lead with Billy Pierot in the $500,000 Buick Open, was able to handle the situation like a veteran Thursday.

Love and Pierot started today's play at 7-under 65, one stroke ahead of Ed Fiori.

Love, 22, and the 30-year-old Pierot are both rookies on the PGA Tour, but Love has been on center stage almost all his life. Son of a well-known teaching pro, Love has been able to hit the ball a ton since he was young and parlayed that into an All-American college career at the University of North Carolina.

"I'm used to people," Love said. "They come to see me hit the long ball, though. They're not really looking for me to play good golf. It doesn't bother me, because I'm used to it, but sometimes it makes you feel like a bit of a freak."

Pierot spend four years playing in Europe and Asia, then the last two years on the Tournament Players Association circuit.

To win the Buick Open, a player must shoot birdies — lots and lots of birdies. The event is played at Warwick Hills Golf & Country Club, a rolling 7,014-yard, par-72 course south of Flint that is set up for the pros about the way it is for club members.

Fiori, a three-time Tour winner who hasn't struck paydirt since 1982, took advantage of the perfect summer conditions Thursday. He birdied six of the last seven holes, including the last five, for a back-nine 30 and a 66.

There were 75 rounds under par on Thursday. That means anyone who fails to break par after 36 holes will be getting a headstart to Oak Brook, Ill., home of the Western Open, next week's Tour stop and the warmup to the PGA Championship Aug. 7-10 at Toledo, Ohio.

Jim Colbert, who aced the third hole, was one of six players at 5-under. The others were J.C. Snead, Howard Twitty, Brad Faxon, Tom Byrum and Jim Rutledge.

Colbert, playing in the morning, used a 4-iron on the third hole. His shot landed to the right of the hole and bounced into the cup.

It was the second hole-in-one in two weeks for Colbert, who said he used the same club for an ace at his home course, the Las Vegas Country Club. Colbert's last ace in PGA Tour competition was in 1983 at the Scott Verplank putts on the fifth hole of the Buick Open in Grand Blanc, Mich. Verplank shot a par 72, seven strokes off the lead.

Texas Open.

Among the better-known players in the tournament, Hal Sutton was at 68, Lee Trevino and Ben Crenshaw were among a large group at 69, D.A. Weir was at 71 while Calvin Peete, Scott Verplank and George Archer were even par.

PGA veteran Dan Pohl, a local favorite who twice won the Michigan State Amateur in the 1970s, was disqualified for failing to sign his scorecard.

The winner of the Buick will earn $90,000 and use of an automobile for a year.

Howser's condition fair

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Kansas City Royals Manager Dick Howser has a lot of people pulling for him as he continues to recover from brain surgery.

Dean Vogelaar, the Royals' vice president for public relations, said Thursday that Howser is getting about 500 cards and 10 to 15 telegrams every day.

According to Vogelaar, Howser is resting comfortably in a private room at St. Luke's Hospital as he continues his recuperation. "He's very, very alert. He's visiting his wife, Nancy, and a few immediate family members and friends. He's very positive and upbeat," said Vogelaar.

Kerry O'Connor, a hospital spokeswoman, said Thursday that Howser's condition remained fair.

During a three-hour operation on Tuesday, doctors found a cancerous tumor in the left frontal lobe of Howser's brain. They removed only part of it for fear of damaging healthy brain tissue, and are awaiting results of further pathological studies before making a decision on treatment.

Vogelaar said the team hoped to have further word from the doctors before the weekend.

After Tuesday's operation, neurosurgeon Charles Clough read a statement saying that doctors had found and partially removed a tumor known as a glioma, but he would not answer questions.

Suzie Gibrion, wife of former Chicago Bears Coach Abe Gibrion, now a scout for the Seattle Seahawks, was among those who have written to the Howsers. She said her husband underwent brain tumor surgery 16 months ago.

In a telephone interview from her home in St. Petersburg, Fla., Suzie Gibrion said she felt her husband's sports background helped him in his recovery.

"I think sports makes you tough," she said. "You learn not to fall apart, because life goes on."

Clinkscale may play for free

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys' Dexter Clinkscale says he may play for free this season if he can't come to terms with team management on a contract dispute that has led to his no-show at the Thousand Oaks, Cal., training camp.

Clinkscale said he is trying to win some contract respect with the holdout, referring to himself as "Rodney Dangerfield" — the comedian who jokes he never gets any respect.

USFL suit in hands of jury

NEW YORK (AP) — After 11 weeks of testimony, the USFL's $1.69 billion antitrust suit against the NFL is finally in the hands of the jury.

After a 3½-hour charge by U.S. District Judge Peter K. Leisure, much of it highly technical in nature, the jury began deliberating just before 4 p.m. Thursday. The panel adjourned 1½ hours later, hardly enough time for it to wade through all the steps for considering the charges it must decide.

Deliberations resumed at 9:30 a.m. EDT today.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE TO BIDDERS
Sealed proposals addressed to the Honorable Mayor and City Council of the City of Big Spring, Texas, will be received at the office of the City Purchasing Agent until 2:00 P.M., Tuesday, July 29, 1986 for the City of Big Spring, Texas.

The project consist of the replacement and repair of all electrical wiring, lighting, new power panels, renovation of existing lighting fixtures, new stage lighting and dimming system and new power service. Bidders must submit a Cashier's or Certified Check issued by a bank satisfactory to the Owner, or a Proposal Bond from a reliable Surety company, payable without recourse to the order of the City of Big Spring, Texas, in an amount not less than five percent (5%) of the largest possible bid submitted as a guaranty that the Bidder will enter into a contract and execute bonds and guaranty in the forms provided within ten (10) days after notice of award of contract to him. Bids without the required check or Proposal Bond will not be considered.

The successful Bidder will be required to furnish a Performance Bond and Payment Bond, each in the amount of the contract, written by a responsible Surety Company, authorized to do business in the State of Texas, and satisfactory to the Owner, as required by Article 5180, V.A.T.C.S., as amended by H.B. 344, passed by the 56th Legislature, Regular Session, 1989.

The City of Big Spring, Texas reserves the right to hold all proposals for a period not to exceed 30 days after the date of receiving bids, to reject any or all bids and to waive formalities. No bids may be withdrawn, after having been opened, within the 30 day period set out herein.

Bidders are expected to inspect the site of the work and to inform themselves regarding all local conditions.

Information for bidders, proposal forms, specifications and plans are on file in the office of the Purchasing Agent, Big Spring, Texas, and at the office of Parkhill, Smith & Cooper, Inc., Consulting Engineers, 4010 Avenue R, Lubbock, Texas 79412, Phone 806-747-0161.

Copies of the plans, specifications, and contract documents may be secured at the office of Parkhill, Smith & Cooper, Inc., Consulting Engineers, 4010 Avenue R, Lubbock, Texas 79412 (Phone 806-747-0161) at $25.00 deposit for each set of documents. Refund of the deposit will be made as provided in the INSTRUCTION TO BIDDERS.

The successful Contractor must be a licensed Master Electrician in the City of Big Spring to obtain a permit and a permit is required to accomplish the work (I.A.W. Big Spring Electrical Code). Technical questions on the plans and specifications may be addressed to Fanning, Fanning & Agnew, Inc., 2555 74th Street, Lubbock, Texas 79423 (Phone 806-745-2533).

Attention is called to the fact that there must be paid on the project not less than the general prevailing rates of wages as set out in the SPECIAL PROVISIONS. However, the inclusion of such minimum schedule of wages does not release the Contractor from compliance with any State Wage Law that may be applicable. The Contractor must abide by the Wage and Hour Laws of the State of Texas and must pay not less than the rates legally prescribed or as set forth in the SPECIAL PROVISIONS, whichever is higher.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JULY 26, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a curious Saturday for on the one hand it is not advisable that you get into any arguments or confrontations, while working finds you achieving long-range plans.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get into creative work you like to do and gain more success with them. Show more affection for family.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Forget that little trip you want to take and get busy improving the conditions at your home.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Avoid arguments with anyone in business and get busy shopping, marketing, and handling correspondence.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Know what your practical aims are and go after them and don't let a partner tag along.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Avoid a co-worker who is in the mood to argue. Make some fascinating new contacts and learn new innovations.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Handle your practical affairs with the aid of a business expert. Tonight schedule a new course.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get into the outdoor activities that appeal to you. You can easily gain a favor from a prominent friend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Avoid one who is not a good, true friend and is demanding and could get you in some kind of trouble.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can get into some new project that can be profitable. Relax with some hobby tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You are in the mood for a big argument at home, but refrain from doing so. Be careful in motion of all kinds.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Show that you can overcome obstacles very easily and get much accomplished. Dine out tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A new acquaintance has ideas that are not to your liking, so steer clear of this person.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have every ability to comprehend whatever is of a modern nature and should have education slanted along such lines, so don't try to force your progeny to stick to old-fashioned methods and types of interests. It might waste a promising individual.
