Fire strains city water supply

Former Casa Grande building destroyed by evening blaze

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
and HANK MURPHY
Staff Writers

Firefighters drained precious water from the city's beleaguered supply Friday evening to extinguish a spectacular fire that destroyed the former Casa Grande building at N.W. Fourth and Lancaster streets.

The fire followed a city request that residents conserve water this weekend for fear reservoirs will run dry. A malfunctioning valve has hindered the water plant's ability to pump water into the storage tanks.

The two-story, half-block long structure was vacant when the fire broke out, and no injuries were reported.

The fire department received the call at 5:48 p.m., said fire Capt. Bob Myers.

Myers said by the time units arrived, flames were shooting from the roof. Soon the entire structure was engulfed in flames as thick, black smoke billowed hundreds of feet into the air. Searing heat could be felt in the vicinity of the burning building, as firefighters worked more than an hour to control the blaze.

Public Works Director Tom Decell said with dwindling water supplies, the heavy use of water by firemen "materially affects us."

Decell had earlier asked that citizens not water lawns or wash cars this weekend to conserve water. "We were in a precarious situation" before the fire started, he said.

The malfunctioning valve has left the city's water supply unit on line for several years that are draining faster than they can be replenished.

"We're playing musical chairs with water," Decell said. "We've diverted all the water available to this particular part of town in order to help the suppression of the fire."

Decell said the water to fight the fire came from the northside elevated storage tank, the water plant's pump station, and the Lancaster and city park tanks.

He could not estimate how much fighting the fire would drain the city's dwindling water supply, nor how long it would be until the water level returns to normal.

Mrs. Donald J. McCray, 402 Edwards, said Friday night the building was owned by her 85-year-old aunt, Mrs. V.A. Gomez, of the same address.

She said Assistant Fire Chief

Burr Lea Settles had spoken with her earlier in the evening about the possible cause of the fire.

"The only thing I could tell him," she said, "was that burns were breaking into it (the building)."

A witness, Langford Wood, said the fire started in the south center of the building. That's where he first noticed smoke, he said.

McCray said her husband visited the building weekly and boarded up windows and doors, but intruders had somehow gained entry.

"I'm just glad she (V.A. Gomez) wasn't there," McCray said, adding that her aunt moved out 2½ years ago, but left many of her personal belongings in the building.

McCray said she couldn't determine how much of her aunt's uninsured personal property was consumed by the blaze.

Several witnesses at the scene spoke about the history of the building.

Stephanie Sherman, 703 Wyoming, said trees surrounding the structure were known as the "trees of knowledge."

"That's where everyone came to party and now their party place is gone," she said. "You learn a lot of stuff underneath those trees."

Robert Sullivan, 100 N.E. Ninth St., said "a lot of history is going down," as he watched firemen battle the flame-ridden structure.

David Gomez, owner of Carlos Restaurant, said he remembered seeing the building in a picture in front of the building in the late 1920s with his father.

He said the building was known as the Casa Grande and originally was a night club with hotel rooms upstairs.

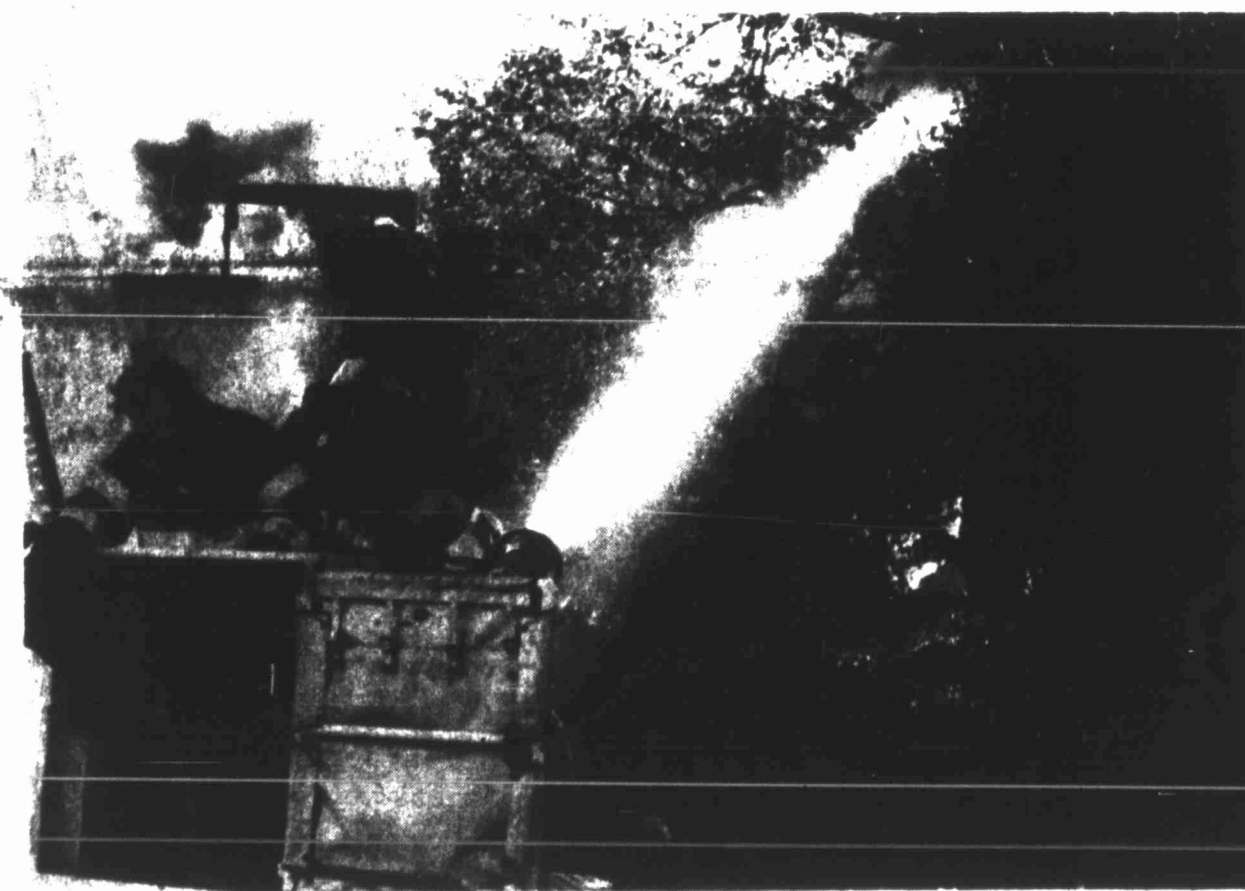

"They caught a still one time being used to make moonshine whiskey," Gomez said.

He said he looked at pictures of the building during Big Spring's recent centennial celebration. One of the pictures showed law enforcement personnel breaking open oak barrels of mash in the building.

Gomez's son, David Gomez Jr., said he was inside the building about two months ago and noticed certain rooms contained new furniture sets, silverware and old trunks.

An early Friday evening fire roars through the old Casa Grande building on the corner of Lancaster and N.W. Fourth streets. The structure was destroyed by the blaze that took more than an hour to get under control.

Firefighters shoot water into the inferno in an effort to contain the blaze that threatened adjacent buildings. The water used by the department further depleted low levels in the city's northside reservoirs.

Permian Bank investigated

ODESSA (AP) — Federal investigators are looking through the records of Permian Bank of Odessa, as part of routine closing activities, to see whether any wrongdoing was a factor in the bank's collapse, officials said Friday.

"There is no information available to us at this time that any criminal activity by the bank's current management caused the bank to close," said Jesse Craddock, closing manager for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

He said an FDIC investigator is looking at the bank's records to see if criminal activity led to the bank's July 18 closing.

"Our investigation is a standard operation. We come in with a special investigations team after every bank closure just in case there was a criminal act that caused the failure," he said.

Should the investigation uncover any evidence of wrongdoing, the results would be sent to the U.S. Attorney General's office for review, he said.

Former Permian Bank President Max Malone, 53, now a Lubbock car dealer, was sentenced May 28 to 24 years in prison after he was convicted by a federal court jury in Midland of making $1.1 million in illegal loans while heading the since-failed bank. Malone remains free pending an appeal of his conviction.

About 2,550 former Permian customers have collected more than $22.5 million from the FDIC this week, Craddock said. Those funds were in active accounts when the bank closed July 18.

Withdrawals to date represent about two-thirds of the institution's total depositors.

When FDIC officials began distributing the money Tuesday, people waited in long lines for their money, but there were few people waiting Friday morning.

"I anticipate that we have probably run through most of the people who could get off during the week to get their checks. And the ones who were unable to get off will probably be here Saturday," the closing manager said.

As of this morning, Craddock BANK page 2A

Kirby finds cop guilty of DWI

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

An Odessa policeman's refusal to follow instructions from Big Spring police was a major factor in his conviction for driving while intoxicated, Howard County Judge Milton Kirby said Friday afternoon.

Tony Suttles, 36, of Odessa was fined $300, ordered to pay $131 court costs and placed on a six-month jail sentence, probation for two years after Kirby found him guilty of the charge Friday afternoon.

Odessa Police Chief Alan Stewart told a Midland television station afterward that Suttles was dismissed from the police force and would turn in his badge Monday morning.

The 14-year law veteran had been placed on suspension without pay since the May 3 arrest, according to the television station.

Odessa attorney David Smith, who defended Suttles, said he probably will file for a new trial with the Court of Criminal Appeals in Eastland.

Smith said he was "real disappointed" with Kirby's decision.

The lawyer said he requested a trial by judge for his client as "a tactical decision," but declined to elaborate.

County Attorney Tim Yeats said the most damaging testimony was by two other Odessa police officers that Suttles "was drinking quite a bit of booze."

Odessa police Sgts. Ken Allaire and Maria Allaire had testified that they were with Suttles at Lake Colorado City prior to his 4:15 p.m. arrest and that the defendant drank no more than six beers and six ounces of Jack Daniel whiskey.

Yeats also commended Kirby for "conducting a good trial" and said he was not concerned about a possible motion to appeal.

A videotape taken while Suttles was being booked at the police station showed his refusal to answer when given the option to take a sobriety breath test.

Suttles told the judge Friday that he did not cooperate with Big Spring police officers Scott Griffin and Erwin Ballarta during the arrest and booking because he believed he was being "railroaded."

Police responded to a call May 3 from an employee at Rip POLICEMAN page 2A

NASA to leave Houston?

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — NASA Administrator James Fletcher Friday said recent news leaks from the Johnson Space Center have convinced him he must proceed with moving the space station program to Washington.

"It's an indication we don't have control of the centers as the Rogers Commission pointed out," said Fletcher in his first visit here since he resumed the NASA job in April.

Last week, space center Director Jesse Moore announced that up to 1,900 potential jobs could be lost if the complete space station program is moved from Houston as Fletcher reiterated Friday he plans to do.

The NASA administrator disputed those figures Friday and said only 300 jobs would be involved in the transfer of workers to Washington.

In fact, Fletcher said the Houston center would gain at least about 1,500 jobs during the development of the space station and possibly 1,000 more - if it proceeds.

He said the project still needs Congressional approval to move beyond the design phase, which could take more than a year if the current session does not act.

"I hope not, but it could happen,"

Fletcher said.

He said the decision to move the space center management program from the Johnson Space Center was part of an executive reorganization plan formulated to meet the recommendations of the Rogers Commission, which investigated the Jan. 28 Challenger accident.

The commission said NASA's major field centers have gained too much autonomy and that the Washington headquarters needed to exert new authority.

Texas leaders have lobbied for the program to stay in Houston as a NASA page 2A

More hay given to seared Dixie

Farmers coast to coast are donating tons of hay to the seared South, where a drought has caused more than $1.5 billion in damage, and cattlemen in Georgia waited more than 16 hours for feed for their starving livestock.

Scattered thunderstorms that dropped more than 4 1/2 inches of rain on Cornelia, Ga., within 70 minutes Thursday afternoon and kept temperatures below 100 degrees for the third straight day provided some relief from the drought and heat wave, which has been blamed for 43 deaths.

Georgia's governor has proclaimed Sunday a day of prayer for rain, and the mayor of Chattanooga, Tenn., proclaimed "Cool It Week" and urged residents to dress casually to keep cool.

President Reagan provided moral support during a barnstorming visit to Columbia, S.C., praising farmers for their mettle and promising "everything that our farm program will allow us to do."

Officials at the Atlanta Farmers Market were to begin distributing 100 tons of hay this morning. Farmers started arriving Thursday, 16 hours before the distribution was to start, and by 2:30 a.m. today, about 45 were in line.

"We've got a lot of hay coming in, which is great," said Tommy Irvin, Georgia's Agriculture Commissioner. "The calls we're getting now have picked up tempo, from coast to coast. That's the spirit of America showing now."

About 40 tons of hay donated by farmers in Illinois was distributed at the market Wednesday, but many farmers were turned away.

Hay also has been gathered for the South in Iowa, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, Michigan, Missouri, Connecticut, New York, Vermont, Oklahoma, Minnesota, and Wisconsin, with deliveries planned from as far as Washington state.

"One farmer always helps his neighbor if he can," said Richard Eymann, who is president of the Oregon-Washington Farmers Union and hopes to gather 200 tons that will be transported by train. "We see on TV pickup trucks in long lines owned by farmers taking animals to slaughter because they have no feed for them. We see animals jumping and fighting for food when they get feed thrown at them. So naturally, your heart goes out to the situation."

Reagan arrived in Columbia in time to watch a forklift operator transfer bales of hay from a cargo plane to a flatbed truck.

"Even when times are tough, you show your mettle," Reagan said at a fund-raising luncheon for Rep. Carroll Campbell, a Republican running for governor against Democratic Lt. Gov. Mike Daniel. "Everything that our farm program will allow us to do, we're going to try to do."

One South Carolina farmer who benefited from the haylift wanted to show his gratitude. "I would love to see a tag on these bales of hay ...

including the farmer's name that give this hay, 'cause I'd like to write him and thank him," said Calvin Koon.

In Washington, Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng announced that a special task force will help speed federal aid to drought-stricken farmers. He announced no new financial aid programs, but said existing programs will be tailored to help farmers recover from drought losses to crops and livestock.

Also, the USDA today was to begin operating a toll-free hotline to help farmers contact officials for answers to their problems. Lyng also said a fact-finding team will visit drought areas of Virginia, Maryland and Delaware next week.

Drought damage in Alabama is estimated at $750 million; North Carolina $400 million; Georgia $182.5 million; South Carolina $100 million; Maryland $89 million; Virginia $61.5 million; Delaware $40 million; and West Virginia $15 million.

Since July 1, the heat has killed 19 people in Georgia; four each in North Carolina, Missouri, Indiana and Illinois; two each in Kentucky and South Carolina and one each in Virginia, Louisiana, Michigan and Alabama.

Georgia Gov. Joe Frank Harris proclaimed Sunday a day of prayer for rain.

said, none of Permian's former customers had notified the FDIC that they wanted to receive their checks by mail.

Only two of 23 accounts exceeding the FDIC's insurance limit of $100,000 had been closed out by early Friday, he said.

Those two ex-customers received the guaranteed $100,000, 30 percent of each dollar in excess of that limit and a receivership certificate for the remainder, said Craddock.

Several of Permian's loan customers also have contacted the FDIC this week to question the status of their debts, he said. Many have chosen to use their Permian Bank deposits to pay off their loans, while others have asked other banks to assume their loans.

Craddock said the FDIC will not pay out deposit amounts to customers with outstanding loans until arrangements have been made to settle such debts.

Permian's loan portfolio as of June 16 included about 2,000 loans totaling about $28 million, according to figures released last week. On July 18, the FDIC reported Permian Bank had $38.8 million in assets.

After the bank's fixtures, equipment and office furniture have been appraised, the FDIC will auction off the items at fair market value, he said.

FDIC officials, meanwhile, have begun making plans to put the bank's building up for sale.

"We haven't had any hard negotiations at all about the bank building," he said. "We haven't sat down with anyone but we have had at least one inquiry."

Rep. Shaw here Thursday

Suttles testified that the motorcycle hit an oil spill on the parking lot pavement and "fell from under" him, pinning him to the ground.

When police questioned him at the scene, he told them he had consumed five or six beers, Suttles testified.

Suttles said the officers told him to go drink some coffee and "sober up." He said 15 or 16 persons had witnessed the scene, and he decided to go eat something at K.C. Steakhouse on the south service road of Interstate 20.

According to the police arrest report, Suttles was stopped one-quarter mile east of Exit 176 as he was traveling in the west-bound lane of I-20.

Ballarta testified that he specifically told Suttles to drink coffee at Rip Griffin's.

"I remember pointing towards the restaurant," Ballarta said.

magnet to attract new business in an economically depressed area.

But Fletcher said he must consider the nation's interests.

"We are not an organization that gives work out to people who are in distress," Fletcher said.

Included in that reorganization plan is to move all the work on the space station's habitability module to the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala.

The Johnson Space Center was to do part of the work but Fletcher said he wanted all the work in one contract to be more efficient.

He acknowledged that confusion has occurred over the pending move and other NASA decisions.

"It's not an image we want to project," he said.

Fletcher said he came here to talk to employees and hear their concerns.

Space center spokesman John Lawrence said many workers have been worried about the future of the center since Fletcher announced the space station move.

Employees are also concerned about a replacement to the Challenger orbiter being built soon, he said.

Fletcher said at his news conference that he is sure Reagan wants to proceed with constructing another.

"What we don't know is how we're going to pay for it," Lawrence said.

Bus hijacker shot

CARTHAGE (AP) — A 19-year-old man who commandeered a bus Friday and told police he had a bomb was fatally shot in the head by police, and the purported bomb turned out to be books, photographs and a map of Vietnam.

None of the half dozen bus passengers was injured, including a Houston woman who was handcuffed to the suspect through much of the ordeal, police said.

Billy Wayne Reid of Meridian, Miss., was pronounced dead at Panola General Hospital after he was shot about noon, ending an hour-long incident that began with a cab ride in Louisiana, said Carthage assistant police chief Duane Baushe.

Reid reportedly boarded a taxicab in Shreveport or Bossier City shortly after 11 a.m. After riding to East Texas, he released the cab driver unharmed near Panola, about 15 miles east of Carthage, Baushe said.

The suspect drove to Carthage and was spotted by Carthage police officers at the Trailways Bus station after the cab driver reported the theft of his car.

Dressed in camouflage pants and a T-shirt, the man purchased a ticket and boarded the Houston-bound bus. Baushe said he pulled a .22-caliber semi-automatic pistol when he saw officers approaching the bus.

"I don't think he intended the hijacking until he saw the officers there," Baushe said.

The man released the bus passengers except for Rita Brady, 42, of Houston, whom he had handcuffed to his belt. He told police he had a bomb in the trunk of the taxi with a timing device set to detonate the explosive at 12:19, Baushe said.

The officers convinced the man to leave the bus and either defuse the bomb or reset the timer.

Early tax cut sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — House negotiators united Friday behind a demand that individual tax rates be slashed next Jan. 1, six months ahead of the schedule in the bills approved by the House and Senate.

"There is a lot of concern about" the fact the rate cuts would come after deductions are reduced or eliminated, Rep. Donald Pease, D-Ohio, told reporters. The concern, he added, is about "actual fairness, perceived fairness and from the viewpoint of the economy."

"The economy is a little fragile these days," Pease said, and delaying the individual tax reductions "could adversely affect the economy."

Racism is alive in U.S.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The city that calls itself the birthplace of American liberty recently has found itself embroiled in racial violence, and one city official says the incidents prove "racism is still very much alive."

This week, blacks have been forced from their homes after firebombings and threats. Korean immigrants have been the target of angry protests because a group erected neighborhood signs in both Korean and English. Defense and prosecution lawyers reported that a white judge made racial comments about a black defendant.

The incidents come as the nation prepares to celebrate here next year the 200th anniversary of the U.S. Constitution, which guarantees equal treatment under the law for all.

"I think that these incidents provide sufficient evidence for us to understand that racism is still very much alive," Leah Gaskin White, executive director of the city's Human Relations Commission, said Friday.

Reagan seeks alternative

WASHINGTON (AP) — Faced with growing public criticism of his South Africa policy, President Reagan searched Friday for some unified action the United States and its European allies could take to express displeasure with the white-minority Pretoria government without imposing new economic sanctions.

One step under consideration is a move to freeze out white South African officials by denying them visas to travel to the United States or Western Europe.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes announced that Assistant Secretary of State Chester A. Crocker, the administration's top African affairs specialist, will travel to London next week to discuss possible joint actions with leaders of the European Community.

Hair bandit on the loose

NORWALK, Calif. (AP) — A scissors-wielding man, who stalks long-haired women has attacked eight women and girls, snipping off their tresses and then running away, an investigator said Friday.

Attacks by the so-called Hair Bandit have occurred regularly since February, said Detective Steve Manthorne of the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department.

"We have a very strong feeling it is a hair fetish," Manthorne said. "Our best estimation is that it's sexual gratification."

Robert Piazza, left, husband of brain-dead Donna Piazza; David Haddon, center, whose claim as father of her child is undisputed; and Daniel J. Craig, Haddon's attorney, listen in court to arguments before Richmond County Superior Court Judge William J. Flemming Jr. as to whether life support systems on Mrs. Piazza, 25, should be continued. Flemming ordered that they be continued to give the fetus a chance to survive.

Brain-dead mother kept alive so fetus can live

By ROBERT BYRD
Associated Press Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A hospital, caught in a dispute between the husband of a brain-dead woman and the father of her 21-week-old fetus, won a court order Friday to keep the woman alive so the fetus has a chance of survival.

Superior Court Judge William M. Fleming Jr. granted University Hospital's request for an order to continue life support for Donna Piazza, a 25-year-old Augusta woman hospitalized since an apparent drug overdose June 27.

Her husband, Robert Piazza, asked hospital officials July 16 to turn off her life support systems. But David Haddon, who claims to be the father of the fetus, asked them to keep the woman alive.

Doctors have determined that Mrs. Piazza's brain has stopped functioning, leaving her clinically dead. She is being kept alive by respirator and intravenous feeding, according to court papers in the case.

Ted Clarkson, an attorney for the hospital, argued during Friday's court hearing that "the only fundamental right" recognized by the U.S. Supreme Court's landmark Roe vs. Wade abortion decision is a mother's right to privacy.

"Tragically, Mrs. Piazza is dead," he said. "She has no more right of privacy, so it stands that the state may intervene. ... The state has an interest in the protection of human life."

The state, represented by Assistant Georgia Attorney General David Will, asked Fleming to dismiss the case, saying that the courts have no jurisdiction until the fetus is viable — sufficiently developed to survive outside the womb. Doctors testified that Mrs. Piazza's fetus has not reached that point. She is 17 weeks short of full-term pregnancy and four weeks short of the earliest point at which doctors consider a fetus viable.

Ibrahim Mashini, a University Hospital gynecologist, testified that Mrs. Piazza's fetus has a heartbeat, has developed eyes, arms and legs, and is moving, but its lungs are not developed and it is not viable.

Donna Hughes, senior neurology resident at the hospital, told the judge there is no way to determine the state of neurologic functions in the fetus.

In Georgia, paternity is not determined until the fetus is viable, Will said. Custody is not determined until after birth.

Fleming rejected the state's motion to dismiss the case and immediately granted the hospital's request for an order to maintain life support.

Will said later that the attorney general's office and the state Division of Family and Children Services will decide later whether to appeal. He said the state knows of no custody determination if the fetus survives.

Piazza, who concedes that he is not the father, left the Richmond County Courthouse after the 45-minute hearing without commenting. His telephone number is not listed, and he could not be located on Friday.

Haddon, who also attended the hearing, declined comment except to say, "Just right to life — that's what I say."

Hospital officials issued a statement saying they were pleased with the ruling, but said further comment, including details of how or when Mrs. Piazza might give birth, would violate a patient's right to privacy.

There was no discussion about Mrs. Piazza's medical bills in court, and the hospital has refused to discuss her case.

Neither Piazza nor Haddon spoke during the hearing, but Haddon's attorney, Daniel Craig, argued that the fetus' right to life is the paramount issue in the case.

Legally, neither the husband nor the father has standing in the case, and Mrs. Piazza cannot be a party because she is clinically dead, Craig said.

"There is no authority that says this child has no right to be protected," he said.

Sam Nicholson, an attorney appointed to represent the fetus, argued that Georgia's feticide law makes it a crime to kill an fetus that is deemed to be "quick," or moving on its own.

Shiites storm embassy

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Shiite Moslem zealots swarmed over the walls into the Moroccan Embassy on Friday, ransacked the building and burned portraits of King Hassan II to protest his meeting with Israel.

The commander of the Lebanese police guard said there were no casualties. He said the embassy's six-man staff lowered the big Moroccan flag and quietly slipped away in two cars half an hour before the attack, adding: "They must have anticipated what was coming."

Police said the assault climaxed an hourlong demonstration by about 2,000 men and women shouting "Death to America, the great Satan!" "Down with traitor Hassan!" and "Peres will roast in hell!" They were from the Hezbollah, or party of God, the most militant Lebanese Shiite group allied with Iran.

Chess champs matched

LONDON — World chess champion Garri Kasparov and his bitter rival Anatoly Karpov on Friday warily approached their title match and refused to predict a winner.

Kasparov, who dethroned Karpov as champion in November, reminded reporters that the challenger is a very strong player and added: "I can't be too sure about victory, but I will do my best to win again."

The two Soviet grandmasters met reporters at separate news conferences three days before the start of the match. It will be the first time two Soviet players have competed in a world championship final outside their country.

Venice police fine tourists

VENICE, Italy — Strolling beer drinkers and the underclad received $14 fines Friday as police began enforcing a new municipal dress and eating code, city officials said.

Tourists walking around this historic lagoon city shirtless or in bathing suits were fined, said municipal spokesman Bruno Padoan. He said others were fined for eating beer and sandwiches while wandering around St. Mark's Square, which is lined with outdoor cafes.

The fines are part of a municipal campaign entitled "Decorum and Cleanliness." But police generally warned tourists rather than fining them, Padoan said.

Under the new law, which went into effect Thursday, visitors are also forbidden to sleep outside, to swim in city canals, or play loud music from portable radios.

Sikhs kill 15 bus riders

AMRITSAR, India — Sikhs wearing masks seized a bus Friday, segregated the Hindu passengers and massacred them with machine gun fire, police said. One of the 15 people killed was a Sikh who was not wearing the traditional beard and turban.

It was the bloodiest single attack in the violent 6-year-old campaign by extremists who want an independent nation in Punjab, where most of India's 15 million Sikhs live.

Police said six other Hindus were wounded by the four masked men near Muktsar town, 84 miles south of this Sikh holy city. No women or children were harmed.

Local artist to present techniques

Local artist Jerry Provenza will demonstrate his photorealistic oil painting techniques at the Hobo Art Gallery at 2 p.m. Sunday in Big Spring Mall.

The one-hour session will deal with the artist's personal methods and a discussion of the aims and techniques of noted "Superrealist" or "Photorealist" painters. The public is invited free of charge, according to a news release.

This demonstration is the first in a series of workshops and events sponsored by the Crossroads Fine Arts Association to stimulate community interest in fine arts and to provide local artists with opportunities to meet and exchange ideas, according to the release. Big Spring newcomers and beginning artists are particularly welcomed, in the hopes of broadening participation in the local arts scene, the release stated.

Provenza is a professional artist whose realistic techniques have won numerous awards in area art exhibits.

Finishing touches are applied by Big Spring artist Jerry Provenza to his latest work, "Hardware." The artist will explain his methods in a free demonstration at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Hobo Gallery in Big Spring Mall.

His carefully detailed paintings are often mistaken for large photographs.

Because of the recent widening trend of ultrarealism, Provenza hopes to aid local painters wanting to experiment with this painstaking technique, according to the release.

'Aliens' star admits fear

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sigourney Weaver, who returns for another encounter with a man-eating monster in "Aliens," admits that she's chicken when it comes to watching science-fiction movies.

Miss Weaver, who starred in the 1979 "Alien," also stars in the newly released sequel.

She grew up in New York City, the daughter of British actress Elizabeth Inglis and Sylvester "Pat" Weaver, the pioneering NBC president responsible for the "Today" and "Tonight" shows.

"My mother read us 'Ben-Hur' and 'Robinson Crusoe,' which were pretty sophisticated stories for young children," she recalled. "As a result, I grew up terrified of cannibals and lepers. I would have these nightmares where the cannibals would run through Central Park, up to our apartment and would bang on the bathroom door, where I had taken refuge."

She said she recently watched a horror film on television and woke up in a cold sweat after a nightmare. "And those things were more silly than scary," she said.

Friedkin directs police thriller

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When NBC asked director William Friedkin to make a movie he thought immediately of a former Secret Service agent he worked with on the theatrical film "To Live and Die in L.A."

Gerald Petievich had written that book and screenplay based on his 15 years experience in the Secret Service.

"Seven or eight years ago he had formed the government's counterassault tactical squad," Friedkin said. "He still had all these stories and characters in his head. So when NBC asked me to direct a film I wanted to do something that was real. Not some guy with a magic car or a gun that shoots forever. I wanted it on the cusp of reality."

The result of their second collaboration is "C.A.T. Squad," which NBC will broadcast Sunday.

Ordinarily, summer is a time when the networks dump their losers, but NBC Entertainment President Brandon Tartikoff says "C.A.T. Squad" is part of an effort to introduce quality first-run material during this season.

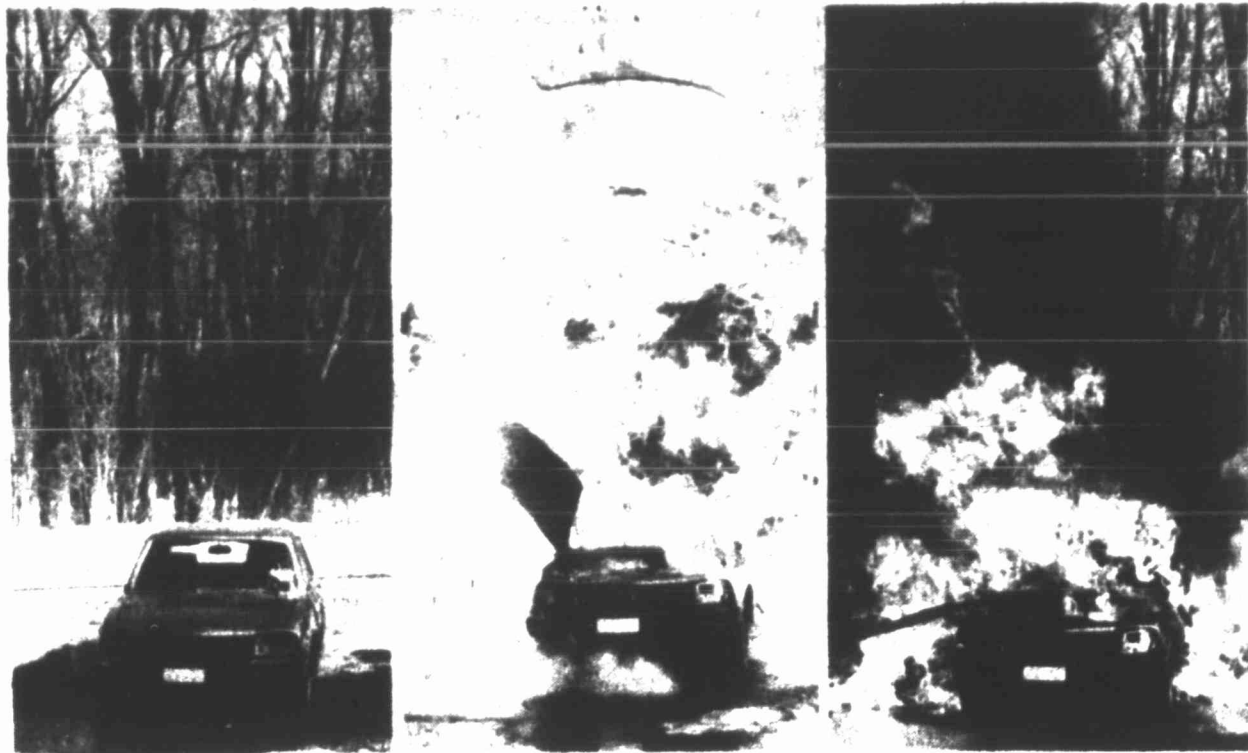

"We think there's an audience for quality programming in the summer if you give them quality programming," Tartikoff said. "This show could be the forerunner of the first summer miniseries."

Friedkin, who won an Academy Award in 1971 for "The French Connection," said police procedural films are the only kind of police stories he likes to do.

"I've never seen a better police show than 'Dragnet,'" he said, noting that Petievich's father, Zacko, was an early Los Angeles narcotics officer and adviser to Jack Webb on "Dragnet." His brother, John, is an L.A.P.D. detective.

"C.A.T. Squad" tells of the assault team that sets out to neutralize a terrorist who has been killing Western scientists involved in the development of a space-based laser weapons system. "The basis of the story is the elimination of Carlos," Friedkin said, referring to the international terrorist who was fictionalized in the novel and movie "Day of the Jackal."

Friedkin said he thinks the real Carlos was assassinated by the French Secret Service. Others believe Carlos to be alive, still eluding authorities and posing a terrorist threat.

The movie stars Joseph Cortese, Steven W. James, Jack Youngblood and Patricia Charbonneau, with Edwin Velez as Carlos.

Friedkin noted that terrorists recently killed a nuclear physicist in Munich, West Germany and the head of a French anti-crime squad in Paris.

Friedkin met Petievich after publication of "To Live and Die in L.A." He called the writer and they were soon working together on a movie version.

The movie was filmed on location in Montreal, Canada, and Mexicali, Mexico.

"Montreal is the only city in the world where you can do European and American locations," Friedkin said. "We used it for Bonn and Paris. It has a very Gothic feel, or it can look like Atlantic City."

"Mexicali, on the other hand, has a mysterious, depressing quality. I wanted to use it the way post-war Vienna was used in 'The Third Man.' The look of corruption just oozes out."

This is the first television show in many years for Friedkin, who got his start at WGN-TV in Chicago. He

"The Night They Raided Minsky's," "The Boys in the Band," "The Exorcist," "The Brink's Job" and "Cruising."

Violent movies waning

LOS ANGELES (AP) — At the beginning it looked like another violent summer in the movie theaters. But Americans decided they would rather laugh than watch musclemen with machine guns.

That's the message contained in the theater receipts this summer: The anticipated repeat of last year's smash of "Rambo: First Blood II" hasn't happened.

Warner Bros. and Cannon Films expected to sweep the market with Sylvester Stallone's new body-count film, "Cobra." The strategy was to release the movie in a huge number (2,370) of theaters on Memorial Day weekend and dominate the rest of the summer.

It didn't happen. The first weekend's take of $15.5 million was impressive, but the second fell 52 percent to $7.5 million. By the beginning of July, "Cobra" remained in 1,115 houses but the gross was down to $1.2 million, for a total of $48 million. At a reported production cost of $30 million, that's bad news.

The new releasing company of DEG (Dino Di Laurentiis) had hoped to ride the revenge-film bandwagon with "Raw Deal," starring Arnold Schwarzenegger as a former FBI agent at war with the Mafia.

Despite the first weekend gross of $5.5 million, the film dropped precipitously and so far has grossed only $14.8 million. An earlier release of "Murphy's Law," with Charles Bronson in his "Death Wish" guise, collected less than $10 million.

The seven leading grossers of the last weekend in June were primarily comedies or comedy adventures: "The Karate Kid II" (Ralph Macchio, Pat Morita); "Back to School" (Rodney Dangerfield); "Ruthless People" (Bette Midler, Danny DeVito); "Legal Eagles" (Robert Redford, Debra Winger); "Running Scared" (Billy Crystal, Gregory Hines); "Top Gun" (Tom Cruise, Kelly McGillis); "Ferry Beuller's Day Off" (Matthew Broderick).

'Fresno' is humorous miniseries

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The new CBS miniseries, "Fresno," is a sweeping saga of greed, lust and dried grapes.

Carol Burnett stars as Charlotte Kensington, the raisin matriarch, who is locked in a life-and-death struggle with Dabney Coleman over control of the raisin cartel.

It also stars Charles Grodin, Charlotte's power-hungry son, and Gregory Harrison as a mysterious drifter with a strange magnetic pull over the Kensington women through his honesty, his sensitivity and his bare chest.

If this all sounds like a sendup of "Dallas" and "Dynasty" and "Falcon Crest," you're right. It's the first funny miniseries. Well, intentionally funny.

Young architects make millions designing Sesquicentennial Park

By SALLY CANTU
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — A couple of styrofoam blocks and a dream turned into an $18 million project for three young architects who are designing a park honoring the city's 150th birthday.

Team Hou, whose name was taken from a Japanese architectural firm called Team Zoo, beat 118 other entries earlier this year in national competition to design Sesquicentennial Park along Buffalo Bayou in downtown Houston.

Architects Guy Hagstette, John Lemr and Robert Liner own the Houston-based firm.

"This is a young architect's dream," Liner said. "Architects become famous at 60, never at 30."

Estimated to be completed in two to three years, the waterfront park will stretch along five city blocks following the twisting banks of the bayou near the city's theater district.

The park, which is being built in honor of Houston's and Texas' 150th birthdays, will have monuments, walkways, an amphitheater and a recreational area on an island in the bayou.

"We did some research on the bayou's history and tried to incorporate some of its history and folklore into our design," Liner said.

Central Houston Inc., an agency funded by the business community, holds the contract on the multi-million dollar park with Team Hou. The two firms have scheduled groundbreaking for the end of the year.

The unseasoned architects have spent the past two months working 13-hour days on revisions to satisfy their client's specifications.

"This is happening very quickly for a project of this size and public importance," Lemr said. "But we'd like to get started by the end of the year, and we will."

Liner, 29, and Hagstette, 30, formed a two-man team when Mayor Kathy Whitmire's Buffalo Bayou Task Force announced plans for the architectural competition.

Tying with styrofoam blocks, the duo began building their envisioned park almost as a joke.

"We never really thought we'd make it to the finals," Hagstette said. "We just wanted to give it a try and see how well we'd fare against some of the nation's best architects."

At Hagstette's invitation Lemr, 26, joined the team early in the competition, adding a needed ingredient to Team Hou's unique chemistry.

"Our talents compliment each other," Hagstette said. "We come from different backgrounds, schools and have brought varying experiences and skills to this project."

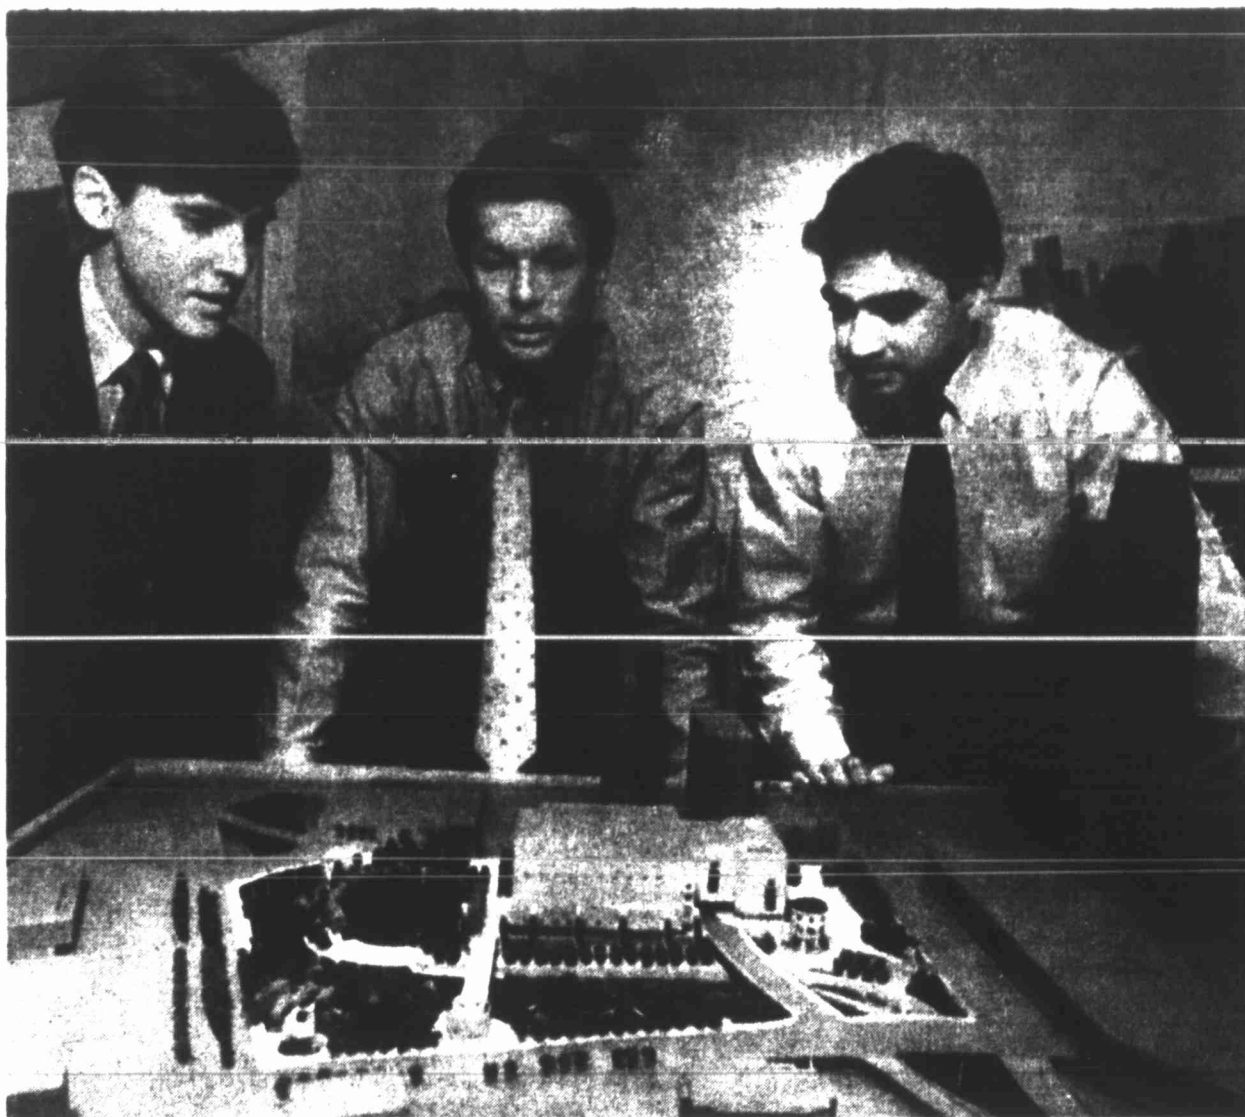

Hagstette, a native Houstonian, received his masters degree in architectural and urban design from Harvard. Lemr received his masters degree from Pennsylvania State University, while Liner graduated from the University of Tennessee.

When Team Hou was chosen as one of the five finalists in late 1985, the men took a leave of absence from their work to get some "good old fashioned critiques" from their college professors.

"In college, your professor will get down with you and take your design apart. And we knew they could give us a complete critique of what works and what doesn't work without taking over the design," Liner said.

The architects' different skills have allowed each one to concentrate on various parts of the project.

"The three of us get around one board and start drawing, adding something here and something there. And when we're finished, we're really not sure who did what," Liner said.

As the project's construction date nears, the architects are beginning to realize its magnitude. "We're too dumb to know we should be scared," Lemr said. "Actually executing the design is an almost unreal position, we've never done this before. It is an invaluable experience we'll never forget."

Drilling report

These are the latest oil and gas activity reports filed with the Texas Railroad Commission for the five-county crossroads country.

Howard County's part of the Howard-Glasscock Field saw a new producer come on line when the No. 4 Cole was finished by Samedan Oil 13 miles southeast of Big Spring.

It pumped 143 barrels of 31-gravity crude per day plus 96 barrels of waste water.

Samedan took the hole to a 4,250-ft. bottom and perforated for production in the Middle Clear Fork Formation, 3,118 to 3,984 feet into the wellbore.

In Howard County's Sara-Mag Field, A.K. Guthrie Operating has completed a flowing oil well known as the No. 2 Fern Winters "D." Location is one mile west of Vincent.

Flowing 80 barrels of 41-gravity oil per day, the well also yielded 97,000 CF casinghead gas on a 12/64 choke. Flow pressure registered 200 PSI.

The well probed to a 7,506-ft. bottom and was perforated to produce from the Canyon Reef Formation, 7,504 to 7,506 feet into the wellbore.

An ill-fated Howard County wildcat has been written off as a dry hole about 10 miles north of Coshoma. The explorer well was known as the No. 2 Viola O'Daniel. It was spudded last Aug. 16 and probed to a dry bottom at 8,347-ft. TD. It has been plugged and abandoned. Fairchild Petroleum, Inc. was the operator.

The No. 3 Roy Phillips "D" is scheduled for spudding in Howard County's Moore Field, about four miles northwest of Big Spring. Enduro Oil of Houston will be the operator. The operation is in a 100-acre lease in Sec. 34 of the T-1-N Survey. The venture is under authority for 3,000-ft. maximum hole.

Pumping 127 barrels of 32-gravity crude per day plus 35,000 CF gas and 277 barrels of water, the No. 97 W.L. Foster has been completed in the East Howard East Field seven miles southeast of Coshoma.

With Chevron U.S.A. as the operator, the well probed to a 2,226-ft. bottom and was plugged back to 2,890. It will produce from a set of Glenola-Clear Fork perforations at 2,523 to 2,774 feet into the wellbore.

A pumping oil has been finished in the Howard-Glasscock Field 15 miles southeast of Big Spring. Exxon is the operator.

Designated as the No. 4 E.W. Douthett "M," the well pumped 15 barrels of oil with 60 barrels of water daily on open choke.

It was drilled to a total depth of 3,900 feet and will produce from perforations in the Middle Clear Fork, 3,670 to 3,844 feet into the wellbore.

The No. 22 Chalk Estate has been brought on line in the Howard-Glasscock Field, about 13 miles southeast of Big Spring. Bottomed at a depth of 8,000 feet, the well showed it can pump 56 barrels of 40-gravity crude daily plus 35,000 CF casinghead gas.

Mobil Producing is the operator. Mobil perforated the Wolfcamp Formation for production 7,302 to 7,388 feet into the wellbore.

Additional pay will be the target when Amoco Production re-enters the No. 4 Peg's Hill in Borden County's Peg's Hill Field. The well originally was completed in early 1985 and potential at 150 barrels of oil daily from Ellenburger perforations at 9,080 to 9,096 feet.

The well was bottomed at a depth of 9,115 feet and was plugged back to 8,000.

Amoco Production is preparing to re-enter a 26-year producer in Martin County's Broadview Field. Shallow pay in the Sprawn Formation will be the target. Designated as the No. 2 A.F. Folkes, the well was completed flowing 677 barrels of oil per day when finished in October of 1960. First production was from the Devonian Era at 11,993 to 12,003 feet into the wellbore.

The lease is about 16 miles northwest of Tarzan.

In the South Breedlove Field, Amoco has brought the No. 2 F.D. Breedlove "H" on line eight miles southwest of Patricia. The well indicated ability to pump 18 barrels of 36-gravity oil per day on an open choke.

The well bottomed at 9,000 feet and will produce from a perforated interval in the Spraberry Formation, 9,258 to 9,387 feet into the hole.

The No. 1 Kemper has been bottomed at a depth of about 11,000 feet at a wildcat derrick in Martin County 12 miles northeast of Lenora. Davis Oil is the operator. The well had carried permit for 8,900 feet of hole. It was designated as the No. 3 J.F. Peters et al.

Showing ability to pump 32-gravity oil at the rate of 50 barrels per day, the No. 95 W.L. Foster has been completed in Mitchell County's East Field. Shallow pay in the Sprawn Formation will be the target. Designated as the No. 3 J.F. Peters et al.

In addition to oil, the well made a minor volume of casinghead gas and about 100 barrels of waste water per day.

Chevron took the hole to a 3,054-ft. bottom and perforated for production at 2,896 to 2,981 feet in the Clark Fork Formation.

A completion rig has been called on station at the No. 16 J.D. Fuller in Mitchell County's Sharn Ridge Field about three miles southeast of the Ira community.

Spudded on June 15, the well was taken to total depth of 1,940 feet with Mrs. W.M. Koch Jr. as the operator. It had carried permit for 2,100-ft. maximum drilling depth.

First production figures have been filed for a newly completed well in Mitchell County's East Howard East Field, nine miles southwest of Westbrook.

It is the No. 185 Mary Foster, showing ability to pump four barrels of oil daily along with 181 barrels of waste water.

Mobil Producing is the operator. The well was taken to total depth of 4,400 feet and was plugged back to 3,500. Production will be from the Clear Fork Formation, 2,464 to 3,130 feet into the wellbore. Oil tested at 30-gravity.

The No. 95 W.L. Foster is shut-in after being bottomed at a depth of 2,026 feet and perforated for possible production at 2,577 to 2,593 feet at a derrick in the Howard East East Field, Mitchell County. The lease is about 10 miles southwest of Westbrook.

Drilling and perforations have been completed at a trio of water injection wells in the East Howard East Field in Mitchell County, nine miles southwest of Westbrook. Perforations were made at intervals ranging from 2,587 to 2,593 feet in the Clear Fork Formation.

Mobil Producing is the operator.

Recruitment is the secret of success

By TOM PETERS

Ask any businesspersons the secret to their success. "Hire great people" is the most common response. I don't buy it. Instead, I find that the best firms have a real knack for hiring somewhat above-average people, and then unleashing an exceptional share of their potential.

Surprisingly, the knack begins with recruiting practices. The best follow three obvious tenets, unfortunately ignored by most: (1) spend time, and lots of it; (2) insist that line people drive the process; and (3) don't waffle about the qualities you are looking for in your candidates.

Anyone who has ever applied for any job at Hewlett-Packard or Digital Equipment, for instance, has found the application process requires a huge investment of time. If you pass an initial screen, you're in for at least a dozen long interviews.

Even more surprising in successful courtship rituals is the virtual non-involvement of personnel or human resources departments. Recruiting is considered far too important to delegate to any staff "experts." It's a line job, period. Now most companies' line managers give lip service to such involvement. But their calendars give away their actual disinterest.

At HP, a division general

Peters on excellence

manager of a $75 million operation will spend an hour or so with final candidates for a first-line purchasing job. Other interviewers include bosses at two or three levels, numerous peers and potential subordinates, each also spends an hour or more. They make the time. Daily committee meetings can wait. Even the receptionist with whom the candidate idly chats at the outset of the first visit will fill out a full-fledged evaluation form.

Moreover, each of the interviewers zeroes in on traits that most people would call mushy and unmeasurable. When I taught in Stanford University's MBA program, I observed students returning from a long day of interviewing at HP, baffled that the interviewers seemed almost disinterested in their ability to manipulate a balance sheet. Instead, HP interviewers were determined to figure out whether or not they'd be good team players. A typical question might go like this: "Recall in detail an experience in working in an intense, lengthy small-group setting." It makes sense, of course, given that so much of HP's work occurs in small teams engaged in high-pressure projects.

Similarly, Stew Leonard, the indomitable Connecticut grocer, considers baking experience or cash register skills second. First, he seeks outgoing people, who are likely to be genuinely friendly toward colleagues and customers. Judgments at Stew Leonard's about these traits start with the receptionist, too.

Most people argue it is impossible to judge such traits accurately. While acknowledging their importance, they fail to give them a decisive role in candidate evaluation.

However, the Leonards and HPs will tell you that they have become just as adept at judging potential customer courtesy and team skills as they are at assessing mathematical, accounting or other so-called hard competencies. It's simply a matter of homing in on specific behaviors and asking detailed questions that reveal the presence or absence of these vital attributes.

These traits of successful hiring work for a surprising series of reasons. Take all that time spent interviewing. The lengthy set of interviews at HP unmistakably demonstrates that the firm cares enough about the candidate and the working environment to get people at all levels involved deeply in recruitment. Those who are hired start with the company's key values already instilled by the recruiting process per se. Even those who flunk out become fast friends of the firm as a result of the obvious effort.

Heavy time involvement by line managers and peers has an even more significant outcome. It puts the monkey squarely on the backs of the bosses and colleagues of the new hire. It's up to them to justify their choice by making the new person they selected into a partner and a success. Their judgment is on the line. They can't blame any problems on "the jerk recruiters who only care about grade-point averages."

In this vein, I especially oppose the use of a company shrink to interview candidates. It imparts precisely the wrong message about the company's value system. It suggests you are looking for flaws rather than strengths. Further, it is an unequivocal indicator that you value staff experts over line peers. Finally, it makes it tough for line managers, no matter how highly they deem a candidate, to fly in the face of a negative evaluation by the highly paid, jargon-talking psychologist.

One professional service firm's managing partner reduced turnover from 30 percent a year to zero in a critical professional-skill area where the local labor pool suffered a lasting and severe shortage. He attributes the dramatic change to the transfer of 100 percent of the recruiting process from the "pros" (human resource people, psychological testers and a company shrink) to the line. Similar results are occurring even in auto plants, where first-line people are being given wholesale responsibility for running in-plant assessment centers.

As usual in these columns, success boils down to common sense. Give the charge and the wherewithal to get the job done to those responsible for the outcome. Signal concern to the candidate from the moment he or she crosses the threshold.

Are you willing to turn your back on the staff experts and enhance the role of the real experts — on the line?

Business briefs

• Dennis Springer, new manager of Bearings Inc.'s Big Spring office, is planning dramatic changes for the company.

Springer said he plans to increase the store's stock by 50 percent, lower the majority of his prices, and begin stocking more agriculture products.

The move will make the company more competitive, he said. "We're going to make it tough on them (the competition)," he said.

Springer took over about two weeks ago, replacing Shelton Castle, new owner of the Brass Nail. Springer's former position was at the company's Odessa office, he said.

• Energas expects to record a loss for the final two quarters of fiscal 1986, ending Sept. 30, but expects a net profit for the year, said president Charles K. Vaughan.

Vaughan said seasonal losses are not unusual in the gas distribution business because of its dependence on weather conditions supporting gas sales.

He said the situation reinforces the company's plan to diversify its service territory geographically, becoming less susceptible to weather conditions in West Texas and Louisiana.

• Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurants nationwide raised more than $780,000 in this year's Colonel Sanders Memorial March of Dimes campaign. In the eight years since the campaign began, nearly $6 million has been raised.

Half the money goes to local March of Dimes chapters in the communities where the contributions are raised. The other half goes to the Colonel Sanders Memorial Endowment Fund, which provides financial support for research into birth defects.

• Recent natural disasters, new medical research projects and reductions in government grants have spurred great growth in the number of charities appealing to businesses for help.

The Council of Better Business Bureaus has published a new booklet, "Guidelines for Business Giving," to help businesses make more informed giving decisions.

The booklet explains various fund-raising methods and which contributions are tax-deductible. It helps a company separate worthy from bogus appeals and develop a planned giving program that reflects its size and the community's needs.

For a copy of the booklet, call the bureau at 563-1880 or 1-800-592-4433.

• The Texas Department of Community Affairs has been named winner of the National Alliance of Business 1986 Distinguished Performance Award for its outstanding leadership in job training to help solve the nation's employment problems, according to a news release.

The award cited the department for its well-developed system of linked training and economic development programs at the state and local levels, dealing with businesses in rural and urban areas statewide.

• What is it like to be a black manager working at a large American corporation? A television documentary by Southwestern Bell Telephone addresses the question and others, featuring some of America's top black managers.

"Making the Right Moves" was developed to create greater awareness among high school and college-age youths of the career options offered by American corporations, offering a view of the current and future role of black managers in large companies.

Copies of the tape are available for loan by calling Darlene Gifford, Southwestern Bell public relations manager, at 684-1975.

• STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — The popular beliefs that women make up an increasing proportion of the nation's poor and that most poor children are in female-headed households are myths, an economist studying Census Bureau figures said Friday.

After a surge of women fell below the poverty level in the 1960s, the percentage of women among the poor has remained fairly constant at around 63 percent from 1969 to 1984, according to Victor Fuchs of Stanford University.

"Between 1979 and 1984, poverty rates rose for both women and men, but they rose relatively more rapidly for men. So the percentage of the adult poor who are women actually went down," Fuchs said.

He attributed the recent trend to better working conditions for women, including a sharp rise in the ratio of hourly earnings for women compared with men, and a smaller increase in unemployment for women than for men.

The rise in overall poverty rates occurred for both blacks and whites but the percentage of adult poor who are women is much higher for blacks than for whites, and has been for a long time, he said.

"It is a widely held belief that an increasing percentage of women make up the nation's poor, and during the 1980s that was happening on a very large scale," he said.

Theismann put on waivers

CARLISLE, Pa. (AP) — Joe Theismann was declared unfit to play this season by the Washington Redskins who then announced Friday that they would "give in" to the veteran NFL quarterback's desire to be put on waivers.

By putting Theismann on the waived-flunked physical list, the club is doing the quarterback a $65,000 favor. The veteran of two Super Bowls will receive that amount from the league for injury protection, and his medical bills will be paid by the NFL for one year.

The Detroit Lions did the same for Billy Sims and the Philadelphia Eagles for Wilbert Montgomery.

In addition, Theismann has a $1.4 million insurance policy with Lloyd's of London to cover a career-ending injury. According to published reports, he must fail another physical in November, then take another examination in November 1987. If he flunks the second physical or passes and is not picked up by any other team, he can begin collecting on the policy; he took out two years ago.

The 36-year-old Theismann, who played in two Pro Bowls and was the league's Most Valuable Player in 1983, is expected to announce that he has accepted a job as a game analyst with CBS-TV this fall.

Redskins owner Jack Kent Cooke, in a three-page hand-delivered letter to Theismann, wrote that he would have preferred that the 12-year pro announce his retirement.

"But since you've cast your die for this waiver," Cooke wrote, "...I give in to your wish."

Theismann suffered a compound fracture of his right leg when sacked in a game against the New York Giants at RFK Stadium last fall. He vowed that he would return to play, but in May declared his rehabilitation was lagging and that it would take a "miracle" for him to be ready by this season.

"I have urged you to retire," Cooke wrote. "In your usual few thousand words, you say no... You refuse to be dissuaded from the only alternative to retirement, namely, you insist on being put on waivers."

Cooke declared that the waiver "is the friendliest ever reached between an owner and a player."

Theismann was in the midst of what he called his "worst" season as a pro when he was hurt. The seemingly invincible quarterback, who played in 163 consecutive games since 1974, had his iron-man streak ended while he was trying to twist away from Giants linebacker Lawrence Taylor.

Taylor hit him low, and when linebacker Gary Reasons fell on Taylor, Theismann's right leg crumpled under the weight.

Theismann leaves the Redskins with eight club records, including most yards passing (25,206), most passes attempted (3,602) and most passes completed (2,044). His 77.4 career rating places him 16th on the all-time list, just ahead of Miami's Bob Griese.

Theismann led Notre Dame to two Cotton Bowls and finished second in the Heisman Trophy balloting in his senior year. He was drafted in the fourth round by Miami in the 1971 draft, but opted instead to play in the Canadian Football League.

Theismann led the Toronto Argonauts to the championship game in his first year and in his three years with the club he completed 56 percent of his passes, including 40 for touchdowns.

The Redskins obtained the rights to Theismann in 1974, but as a rookie he sat on the bench behind Billy Kilmer and Sonny Jurgensen. Anxious to do anything, he ran back punts.

His first NFL start came in 1976, and he became a permanent starter in 1978 following Kilmer's retirement. Four years later, Theismann led the Redskins to a 9-1 record in a strike-shortened season, and capped an exceptional post-season by helping the Redskins to a 27-17 victory over Miami in the 1982 Super Bowl.

In 1983, Theismann was named the NFL's MVP after leading Washington to a 14-2 record, a league-record 541 points and a second consecutive Super Bowl appearance.

"I'm satisfied that Super Bowl XVII and Super Bowl XVIII would not have been possible without you at the helm," Cooke quotes General Manager Bobby Beathard as saying in the letter.

Theismann led the Redskins back to the playoffs in 1984, but in 1985 he threw twice as many interceptions (16) as touchdowns before his injury in the 11th game of the season.

Washington Redskins quarterback Joe Theismann was put on waivers by the team Friday. Theismann broke his leg last season and couldn't pass the physical.

U.S. Olympic Festival gets off to rousing start

HOUSTON (AP) — The United States Olympic Festival officially opened Friday night with a rousing Texas hoedown at the Astrodome.

The show included 1,700 performers, mostly elementary, high school and college students, plus the 400-member Olympic Festival Band, the 400-member Festival Drill Team, gymnasts, fiddlers and dancers. The theme was Texas' 150th anniversary as a state.

The Beach Boys, Otis Day and the Knights and Joe Feliciano entertained the crowd, which also was treated to a laser light show, a stirring rendition of the national anthem by 12-year-old Maria Locke and a short film by Bud Greenspan, chronicler of several Olympics.

Carl Lewis, the four-time gold medalist from the 1984 Olympics, carried the flag at the head of the procession of athletes into the Astrodome. Taking the oath of athletes were Joe Story, a team handball player from Los Angeles, and field hockey official Patricia Hayes of Birmingham, Mich.

Gymnast Kristie Phillips and 1984 Olympic 200-meter silver medalist Kirk Baptiste, both Houston residents, brought the Festival torch into the stadium and lit the flame that will burn for the next 10 days. The torch traveled 4,800 miles throughout the state of Texas with more than 12,000 runners participating.

Earlier, the first of more than 3,000 athletes participating in the 34 sports got into action when compulsory were held in figure skating and synchronized swimming.

Christopher Bowman of Van Nuys, Calif., recovered from a broken leg which forced him off the American team for the World Championships last March, took the lead in men's compulsory figure skating with five ordinals, just ahead of Daniel Doran of Lakewood, Colo. The compulsories count for 30 percent of the scoring.

Cindy Bortz of Tarzana, Calif., the national junior women's champion, took the lead in the women's compulsories with 12 ordinals and 78.20 points. Tracey Seliga of Lunenburg, Mass., was second with 17 ordinals and 77.30 points.

Defending solo champion Betsy Visinski of Thousand Oaks, Calif., led the synchronized swimming figures portion of the competition Friday.

Visinski, 22, earned 89.150 points for the six compulsory figures. Scores from the figures segment are added to the swimmers' solo, duet or team routine scores to determine final results. The duet will be held Saturday, with the solo and team portions set for Sunday.

Ernest Deal, president of the Houston organizing committee, credited local businesses and the private sector for providing "unbelievable support."

Rookie widens lead in Buick Open play

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Rookie Davis Love III shook off some early morning rain and minor putting difficulties Friday, and shot a 5-under-par 67 to take a three-stroke lead at 12-under 132, in the $500,000 Buick Open golf championship.

Chasing Love were Ed Fiori and Bobby Wadkins, both at 9-under 135. Fiori shot a 69 in the second round and Wadkins 66.

Love's father is a teaching pro at Sea Island Golf Club on St. Simons Island, Ga. and a member of the instructional staff of Golf Digest magazine.

Love, one of the longest hitters on the Tour, has been in the money in 14 of his 21 tournaments this year. His $78,662 in earnings places him 67th on the PGA money list. Love's best finishes so far have been a third in the Bahamas Classic and a tie for third at the Canadian Open.

Andrew Magee's 65 was the lowest score in the second round. It catapulted him into a 13-way tie for third at 136.

Billy Pierot, who was tied for the lead with Love at 7-under 65 after the first round, carded a par 72 Friday. The 30-year-old Pierot, also a first-year Tour pro, was tied with Jody Mudd, Steve Pate, J.C. Snead and Bob Lohr at 137.

Half the field played in the morning and the other half played in the afternoon over the rolling 7,014-yard Warwick Hills Golf &

Country Club course. The rain stopped about mid-morning and the course quickly dried. Another shower passed through late in the afternoon but play was never halted.

Love, whose father was a touring pro in the 1960s and 1970s, started Friday's play on the back nine and three-putted for a bogey on the 335-yard 12th hole, a par 4.

It would be his only bogey of the day, however. On the 13th hole, a 490-yard, par-5, Love followed a good 5-iron second shot with a chip to within five feet of the cup and sank the putt for a birdie. He then birdied five holes on the front side — his final nine.

Fiori who, like Love, also played in the morning, started the second round only a stroke behind Love but bogeyed two of his first nine holes.

Wadkins' round included an eagle on No. 15, a 580-yard, par-5. After hitting a 3-wood into the right bunker on his second shot, Wadkins holed the sand shot from 35 feet.

Pierot had two 6s on the front side Friday, bogeying both par-5 holes. That kind of golf is almost always fatal at Warwick Hills where 75 players broke par the first day.

The field for the final two rounds was cut at 141, 3-under, the lowest cut on the Tour this year. Seventy players survived the cut.

Locals in region finals

ANDREWS — The Big Spring Division II All-Stars moved into the championship round of the United Girls Softball Association Regional Tournament by defeating Kermit.

Big Spring downed Kermit 15-10 behind a 16-hit attack. Karma Morrow, who came in relief of Cassie Underwood in the third inning, got the win. She fanned 11 of the 24 batters she faced. Kermit got only 6 hits. Rebecca Geurin was the losing pitcher.

Big Spring is now 3-0 in tournament play.

DIVISION I STARS IN CHAMPIONSHIP

The Big Spring Division I All-Stars also advanced into Saturday's finals by defeating Andrews and Kermit.

Big Spring downed Andrews 27-11 in its first game. Jackie Martinez was the winning pitcher. Martinez also hit two doubles while Sandy Franco added a double.

In the second game it downed Kermit 17-11.

Tawanna Ayala got the win in relief of Franco. Ayala fanned 11 batters. Big Spring advances to the championship round with a 3-1 record.

The former UCLA standout receiver and agent Leigh Steinberg met with Cowboys vice president Joe Bailey for two hours but did not sign a contract.

"He (Bailey) told me there was nothing personal in this," said Sherrard, who was the 18th player taken in the NFL draft. "Joe told me the Cowboys' philosophy on how they like to pay rookies, or how they don't like to pay rookies, as the case may be. I didn't really even get close to signing today but I didn't figure I would."

Steinberg said, "I've negotiated contracts for 12 years and have had 20 No. 1 picks and never experienced this. It's like, 'Here, sign it.' There has not been one iota of difference since we started."

"I thought maybe that there could be a dramatic breakthrough today. After all, the Cowboys are a dramatic team," said the agent, who is asking $1.6 million on a four-year contract.

Bailey, who said the meeting with the pair was cordial, defended the team's offer, saying, "It's on line with the salary structure of our club."

Steinberg said Wednesday that he wanted Sherrard to hear first-hand that the NFL team would pay $1.2 million for four years, or $1.5 million for five. Included in the offer was a $500,000 signing bonus, according to reports in Dallas.

Sherrard's agents also have been negotiating with the Arizona Outlaws of the United States Football League.

Giants have no luck with draft choices

By The Associated Press
In NFL training camp news, the New York Giants made no progress in efforts to sign their top four draft picks as they readied for their first controlled scrimmage this weekend. Giants General Manager George Young said Friday that the Giants made no new offers to either No. 1 pick Eric Dorsey of Notre Dame, a defensive end, or their three unsigned second-round selections, cornerback Mark Collins of Cal-State Fullerton, nose tackle Erik Howard of Washington State and linebacker Pepper Johnson of Ohio State.

Vikings
Steve Jordan, last year's leading receiver, signed with the Vikings Friday. But first draft choice Gerald Robinson, a 6-3, 253-pound defensive end from Auburn, three other rookies and two veterans remained without contracts as the Vikings prepared to open training camp Monday.

Cardinals
Center Gene Chilton, the St. Louis Cardinals' third pick in this year's NFL draft, reported to training camp Friday and participated in his first professional workout. Chilton, a 6-foot-3, 271-pounder from Texas, had been a holdout for the first two weeks of training camp because of a contract dispute. He signed an agreement Thursday night and passed his physical exam Friday morning, then participated in the Friday afternoon workout.

Chiefs
The Chiefs, after reducing their training camp roster to 90 by walving six rookies, sent veterans through a light workout without pads Friday. A few selected veterans had been working with rookies and free agents since camp opened last week, but others did not have to report until Thursday night.

The first two-day drills in pads for veterans begin Saturday.

Steelers
Pittsburgh neared a contract agreement with one of their three remaining unsigned draft choices, but first-round choice John Rienstra remained out of camp.

Second-round draft choice Gerald Williams, a defensive lineman from Auburn, signed and defensive back Harvey Clayton, one of two previously unsigned veterans, agreed to a two-year contract in time to take part in an afternoon practice.

Browns
Seven veterans, including five who were holding out because of contract disputes, failed to report for Cleveland's training camp.

Outside linebacker Chip Banks, nose tackle Bob Golic, both Pro Bowl selections last season, missed the veterans' mandatory noon reporting deadline. Starting inside linebacker Eddie Johnson, backup tight end Harry Holt and wide receiver-kick returner Glen Young also were absent.

Saints
New Orleans signed tight end Larry Hardy, who was without contract at the end of the 1985 season. The Saints said four more veterans without contracts reported to camp and were expected to sign: linebacker Scott Pelluer, cornerback Dave Waymer and tackle Jim Rourke.

Quarterback Richard Todd, who reported to camp Wednesday, pulled a back muscle in his first workout Thursday morning.

Dolphins
Miami is continuing negotiations with linebacker John Offerdahl, the team's top draft pick out of Western Michigan, and veteran defensive end Doug Betters.

An associate of Leigh Steinberg, Betters' agent, said Steinberg made a counter-offer to the Dolphins Friday but he hadn't received a reply several hours later.

Chargers
Veteran linebacker Linden King was waived and numerically replaced by a young linebacker acquired from the Atlanta Falcons.

Rangers rally for 7-5 win

ARLINGTON (AP) — Pete Incaviglia's run-scoring single broke a seventh-inning tie and Larry Parrish drove in three runs Friday night as the Texas Rangers beat the Cleveland Indians 7-5.

The Indians, trailing 5-0 after five innings, tied it with one run in the sixth and four more in the seventh. But Texas scored twice in the seventh against Scott Bailes, 7-6.

Oddie McDowell led off with a single and took third on a double by Scott Fletcher, his fourth hit of the game. After Pete O'Brien lined out, Ernie Camacho relieved Bailes and gave up Incaviglia's single. Parrish followed with his second sacrifice fly of the game.

Greg Harris, 4-8, the third Texas pitcher, got the victory with three innings of scoreless relief.

Baseball

Giants 7, Pirates 3

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh first baseman Sid Bream committed two run-scoring errors during San Francisco's four-run third inning and Dan Gladden hit a two-run double in the fifth as the Giants defeated the Pirates 7-3 Friday night.

The victory snapped a three-game Giants' losing streak and was Pittsburgh's fourth straight loss.

Roger Mason, 3-4, worked 5 2-3 innings, giving up six hits, for the victory. The three runs off him came on Barry Bonds' bases-empty homer and R.J. Reynolds' two-run shot. Jeff Robinson finished, allowing two hits, for his sixth save.

The Giants took a 4-0 lead in the third. Gladden singled and scored on Robby Thompson's double before Chris Brown lined an RBI single to center.

Brown then scored from first when Bream mishandled Harry Spilman's hard-hit grounder for a two-base error. Bob Melvin singled and Spilman scored on the play as Bream threw wildly for his second error of the inning.

Bonds, who had only one hit in his previous 34 at-bats, hit a long solo homer to right in the Pirates' third before the Giants increased their lead to 7-1 in the fifth.

Cubs 8, Dodgers 3

CHICAGO (AP) — Steve Trout limited Los Angeles to five hits over six innings and Jody Davis hit a two-run homer Friday, leading the Chicago Cubs to an 8-3 triumph over the Dodgers.

Keith Moreland had four hits, scored two runs and knocked in another to help the Cubs snap the Dodgers' four-game winning streak.

Trout, 4-3, won his first game since June 9 by not allowing a run while striking out four and walking two.

Trout, who has not had a complete game since last September, was relieved in the seventh by Dave Gumpert. Lee Smith pitched the final 1 2-3 innings for his 17th save.

Davis' homer, his 13th of the season, came in the eighth after the Dodgers had rallied from a four-run deficit and climbed to within 5-3.

Chicago took a 1-0 lead in the second inning off loser Bob Welch, 4-9. After Moreland singled, right-fielder Reggie Williams misplayed Jody Davis' fly ball, allowing it to drop in for a double. Ron Cey walked to load the bases and Moreland scored when Shawon Dunston grounded into a fielder's choice to shortstop.

The Cubs added another run in the third when Jerry Humphrey doubled, went to third on Sandberg's single and scored as Gary Matthews grounded into a double play.

Orioles 6, White Sox 2

BALTIMORE (AP) — Fred Lynn and Rick Dempsey hit solo home runs Friday night as the Baltimore Orioles beat Chicago 6-2 and sent the White Sox to their fifth straight loss.

Mike Boddicker, 13-5, allowed one run on six hits in seven innings. Don Aase finished up for his major league-leading 26th save.

Neil Allen, 7-2, who had pitched two consecutive shutouts, took the loss. The Orioles ended Allen's scoreless string at 21 2-3 innings when Lee Lacy led off the fourth with a single, took third on a single by Lynn and scored as Cal Ripken grounded into a double play.

Lynn broke a 1-1 tie in the sixth with his 17th home run of the season. Lynn connected on a 2-2 delivery from Allen. On the previous pitch, Lynn checked his swing and after an appeal by the White Sox, third base umpire Durwood Merrill ruled that Lynn had stopped in time.

Phillies 4, Astros 2
PHILADELPHIA — Charles Hudson allowed one unearned run over six innings and Mike Schmidt homered Friday night, leading the Philadelphia Phillies over Houston 4-2 and snapped the Astros' seven-game winning streak.

Hudson, 6-9, who has had an upset stomach for two days, won his second straight decision.

"I feel pretty good right now, but I didn't have a very good day," Hudson said.

Schmidt's solo homer in the third inning was his 22nd this season, tying him with Cincinnati's Dave Parker for the National League lead. Schmidt tops the league with 74 runs batted in.

The NL West-leading Astros saw their lead cut to 2½ games over San Francisco, which beat Pittsburgh, 7-3.

"We'll just have to start all over again tomorrow," Houston Manager Hal Lanier said. "We're playing good baseball and I don't think anybody's going to pull away in our division."

Hudson gave up five hits, struck out three and walked two. Steve Bedrosian pitched the final two innings for his 13th save.

Festival

"Major corporations saw this as a way to show Houston in a good light and every penny of corporate sponsorship has been provided. We didn't ask the city or state for any financing," he said.

Robert Helmick, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, said further inclusion of exhibitions between festival champions and foreign athletes will be discussed. This year, for the first time, Soviet cyclists and boxers will take on festival winners.

"The USOC would have to make a policy decision to change the format for inclusion of other foreign athletes," he said. "If it would enhance our objectives with the Festival, it would be considered."

Gen. George D. Miller, the secretary-general of the USOC, said that funding for the Soviet athletes' visit would not come from the festival budget.

"Coca-Cola is the overall sponsor for it, and NBC has agreed to a delayed broadcast of the boxing," Miller said. "ESPN will do the cycling as an addition to the coverage they have contracted for. We've made financial arrangements with those organizations to offset the costs."

Helmick and Miller emphasized that such arrangements do not categorize the Olympic Festival as a commercial venture. Ten athletes in the U.S. military were barred from attending the Goodwill Games in Moscow earlier this month by the Defense Department because that event was viewed as a commercial endeavor.

Grand jury to decide Mets' fate

HOUSTON (AP) — A grand jury will determine whether New York Mets pitcher Ron Darling and second baseman Tim Teufel should be indicted on charges of assaulting two police officers working off-duty at a nightclub, a judge ruled Friday.

Darling and Teufel attended Friday's examining trial conducted by State District Judge Joe Kegan in a packed courtroom, but did not testify or comment on the case.

Both Mets players were arrested early July 19 outside Cooter's nightclub in Houston and accused of assaulting an off-duty police officer during a scuffle.

Pitchers Bob Ojeda and Rick Aguilara were arrested and charged with hindering arrest, and all four were released later that afternoon. A hearing on the misdemeanor charges against Ojeda and Aguilara is pending.

Officer R.G. Gresham testified Friday that the scuffle began when Teufel tried to take a beer bottle out of the club and then swore at Gresham and another officer for trying to stop him. The officers were in uniform working off-duty for the nightclub.

After Ojeda tried unsuccessfully to calm Teufel, Gresham said Officer D.L. Bristley told Teufel he was under arrest for public intoxication.

"You could see the rage" on Teufel's face, he said. "You could see the potential danger."

"I was under the impression that a breach of the peace was fixin' to be committed," Gresham said.

After Teufel was told he was arrested, the Mets player hit Bristley with his elbow, Gresham testified.

Both officers and Teufel got into a struggle and tumbled over a flower box outside, he said. Shortly after the fall, Gresham said he and Darling got into a scuffle, in which a "take-down technique" used by the officer caused Darling to hit his back on an easel and picture frame.

Dick DeGuerin, attorney for Darling and Teufel, said Friday he would not discuss specifics of the case, but added, "My clients want to fight (the charges)."

"Where there are occasions of police overreacting or using excessive force, I think the public ought to know about that because most are just swept under the rug," he said after the hearing.

DeGuerin also criticized the policy of allowing off-duty police officers to work security for local clubs.

"I hope we'll have some impact on this rent-a-cop program," he said.

Harris County Assistant District Attorney Rusty Hardin said the grand jury probably will meet in several weeks to hear the case.

"I don't consider it a victory or a loss. It's just part of the process," Hardin said of the judge's ruling. "I just don't think this case is that big a deal."

Italian upsets Evert-Lloyd

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Italy's Sandra Cecchini upset Chris Evert Lloyd of the United States at the Federation Cup today, but Martina Navratilova pulled the top-seeded Americans even with a quarterfinal victory over Raffaella Reggi.

Cecchini, a clay-court specialist, defeated Lloyd, ranked behind only Navratilova in the world listings, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3 to put eighth-seeded Italy up 1-0.

Navratilova, continuing to enjoy straight-set success in her first return to Czechoslovakia since defecting in 1975, beat Reggi 6-2, 6-4.

Third-seeded West Germany and eight-seeded Bulgaria also split singles matches in their quarterfinal.

Bettina Bunge, subbing for injured West German teammate Steffi Graf, beat Katerina Maleeva 2-6, 6-3, 6-3. Then Manuela Maleeva defeated Claudia Kohde-Kilsch 6-4, 6-2, meaning that both quarterfinals to decisive doubles matches.

The day also had a social note. Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia, the world's No. 4 player, was married Friday morning in what she described as a spur-of-the-moment ceremony at the Prague city hall to Jan Sedlak, a Czechoslovak native now living in Australia.

Navratilova had little trouble against Reggi in the first set, then encountered a spell of inconsistent tennis at the start of the second.

She and Reggi exchanged two breaks apiece to put the Italian up 3-2. Then the crowd, which filled the court and included Czechoslovak Premier Lubomir Strougal, got behind Navratilova and she showed her best tennis of the day.

She broke for a 4-3 lead with a spinning backhand volley, and held for a 5-3 edge with another backhand volley, this time flying through the air to stretch and reach the ball.

After she held for the match, Navratilova was congratulated at courtside by Lloyd and given red roses by two fans who jumped onto the court.

Manuela Maleeva and Kohde-Kilsch stayed on serve in the first set until Maleeva broke for a 5-3 lead and Kohde-Kilsch broke back for 5-4. Maleeva then broke again at 15 for the set.

Kohde-Kilsch broke for 2-1 in the second set, but that was her only lead. Maleeva took the break back at 2-2, broke for 4-2 and closed out the match with a break at love.

Lloyd's game was full of mistakes, and against Cecchini's steady play it proved fatal. The American made 67 unforced errors and served five double faults.

Bunge, on the German roster as a doubles partner for Graf but pressed into singles service when the team's top player suffered a broken toe Thursday, started slowly against Maleeva, losing the first five games. She won two in a row before Maleeva held for the first set.

The German quickly took control in the second set, breaking for a 2-0 lead and — aside from losing serve in the third game — dropping just seven points on her service. In the third set, she broke Maleeva for a 2-1 lead, again in the seventh game and finally for the match in the ninth.
