When it gets hot, residents go shopping

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

When temperatures rise, Big Springers cool off by shopping.

The Big Spring Mall parking lot was crowded Saturday afternoon, when temperatures rose to 103 degrees.

Inside, people ambled down the wide hallway or sat on benches, soaking up the air conditioning and sipping sodas.

The hot temperature, however, did not approach the record high for July 26, 107 degrees, set in 1954. The average high is 95, and last year's high on that date was 88 degrees, according to the U.S. Agricultural Research Service.

The temperature has hit the triple-digit mark six days so far this year, said Charles Yates, engineering technician at the field station.

No rainfall has been recorded so far this month, but Big Spring is still above the normal-to-date of HEAT page 2A

10 years pass since murders at mansion

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

FORT WORTH (AP) — The first person to see the man in black that summer night was Andrea Wilborn. He shot her once in the chest.

With her eyes partially open, the 12-year-old girl died on the floor of a basement utility room in the $6 million mansion owned by oil heir Cullen Davis.

The date was Aug. 2, 1976. It was the beginning of a murder case that at first appeared open-and-shut but later evolved into what some insisted was a classic whodunit.

Now, four trials and 10 years later, the mystery remains.

It was shortly after midnight on Aug. 2 when Andrea's mother, Priscilla Davis, and Priscilla's live-in boyfriend, Stan Farr, returned to the mansion from an evening of dinner and drinks with friends.

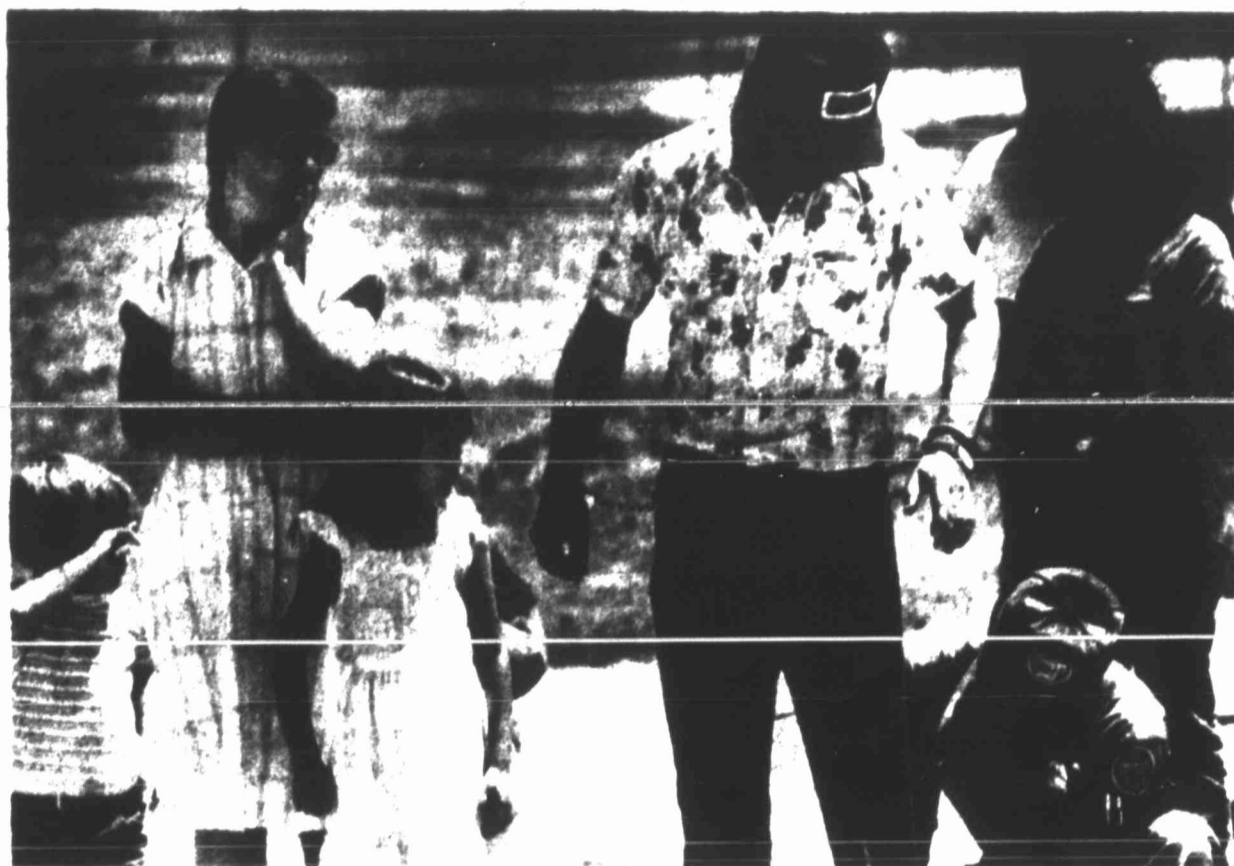

As an increasingly bitter divorce suit with Davis crept through the courts, Priscilla, 35, had taken the 30-year-old Farr as her lover. An-

A Mennonite family looks on as the father of the family is frisked by an Immigration and Naturalization Service agent after being manacled before boarding an INS plane bound for El Paso Saturday afternoon. The family is part of 48 illegal alien men, women and children arrested Saturday in an INS sting operation at Midland Regional Airport.

Prize lure Agents round up illegal aliens

MIDLAND (AP) — The promise of a chance to win $25,000 lured at least 67 illegal aliens into the waiting arms of federal agents, who quickly presented them with the real prize — a trip across the border.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service said many of those apprehended were then flown to El Paso for deportation.

INS agents lured aliens who had arrest warrants pending against them to a building at Midland Regional Airport, where they had been promised prizes in a letter the agency mailed out, said spokesman Mario Ortiz.

"Many of these illegal aliens have had arrest warrants pending for several years," said Al Giugni, director of the INS district office in El Paso. "They took advantage of our court system and when they lost, they went into hiding to escape deportation."

The aliens began arriving shortly after 7:30 a.m. Saturday at a closed airplane manufacturing facility at the airport where agents had set up a bogus mobile home manufacturing plant, Ortiz said.

"We did not give illegal aliens anything except a free trip to the border for deportation," he said.

Ortiz said 44 aliens were arrested and at least 23 other friends or family members also were apprehended.

The notification letter, mailed to last known addresses of 622 aliens, offered vans, cash prizes and the opportunity to try for a grand prize of a new custom-built trailer home or $25,000 in cash.

"In personalized letters, the aliens were advised that their presence at the grand prize drawing was mandatory and valid identification was needed in order to claim a prize," said Ortiz.

Ortiz said most of the aliens arrested were from outside the Midland-Odessa area. The first arrived at 7:40 a.m. Saturday from Dallas. Others came from Snyder, Kermit, Friona and Levelland, he said.

The operation was set up after citizens complained about losing out on jobs to illegal aliens, Ortiz said. The Midland-Odessa area is suffering from the collapse of oil and gas prices.

Crime is up for first time since '81

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of crimes reported to police was up 5 percent last year, the first year-to-year increase since 1981, the FBI said Saturday in a report showing that crime in the Sunbelt fueled the jump.

Population experts said factors contributing to the increase were migration to the South and the West, and an end to recent declines in the size of the young, crime-prone group of 16- to 24-year-olds.

Larcenies, one of the most frequently committed crimes by young people, rose 5 percent in 1985 compared to the previous year.

A total of 12.4 million crimes were reported to authorities last year, more than 55 percent of them larcenies, said the FBI's report, "Crime in the United States," a survey of 16,000 police departments.

"The baby boom began having kids and now you're getting the consequences of that," said James Fyfe, a senior fellow at the Police Foundation and an associate professor of justice at American University.

The number of offenses reported to police in 1985 was 10 percent higher than in 1976, but 7 percent lower than in 1981, when crime hit an all-time high.

Crime rates last year rose 9 percent in the South compared to 1984 and were up 6 percent in the West.

Jenco family ecstatic over priest's release

The Rev. Lawrence Jenco, 51, of Joliet, Ill., faces the press in the Syrian foreign ministry Saturday after his release from 19 months of captivity in Lebanon. Behind him is a portrait of Syrian president Hafez Assad, who has been using his influence with Iran and Shiite Moslem factions in Lebanon to help resolve the hostages' ordeal.

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — Church bells tolled, champagne flowed and tears fell freely Saturday as the family of the Rev. Lawrence Martin Jenco celebrated his release after 19 months' captivity and even talked briefly with him by telephone from the Middle East.

"I love you, we're coming to get you," Sue Franceschini told her brother through her tears when Jenco telephoned from Damascus, Syria, where he was taken after his release by the Islamic faction that had held him hostage in Lebanon.

Jenco's three brothers and three sisters gathered at the home of one sister, Mae Mihelich, after hearing reports that the Roman Catholic priest might have been freed. When confirmation was received, they broke out the champagne and wept tears of joy.

All talked briefly with Jenco when he called. "It sounds so good to hear your voice," said Mrs. Franceschini, before fainting into the arms of family members from the excitement. She recovered moments later.

"Doctors have seen him and he appears to be in good health," said Andy Mihelich, a nephew, who answered the phone calls from the State Department and from Jenco.

Family members said they tentatively planned to leave Sunday for a reunion with Jenco in West Germany. Sherry Hayes, a spokeswoman for Democratic Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois, said in Washington that the Jenco family would be reunited with the priest in Wiesbaden, West Germany, on Monday.

"We've all got our running shoes on and will be there tomorrow," Mrs. Mihelich told her brother over the phone.

Jenco called 15 minutes after the State Department confirmed that the priest, who was abducted at gunpoint in war-torn Beirut on Jan. 8, 1985, had been released in Lebanon's Bekaa Valley and was safe in Syria. Four other Americans remain in captivity in Lebanon.

Later Saturday morning, family members saw a televised picture of Jenco, 51. "He's got a lot more gray hair now than when he went over," said Joseph Jenco, one of his brothers.

Church bells in this city 40 miles south of Chicago tolled for several minutes after Jenco's release was confirmed.

And a sign on Mrs. Mihelich's lawn that had marked the days of Jenco's captivity was changed after the announcement to read: "Fr. Martin Jenco, American Held Hostage in Lebanon, Released July 26, 564 Days, Amen."

Several members of the Jenco family attended a Roman Catholic Mass Saturday afternoon that was part of a city festival on the bank of the Des Plaines River.

"These good people know what it means to knock until prayer is answered," Bishop Joseph Imsch, who celebrated the Mass, said of the Jencos. "I can't imagine how many days the Jenco family felt it was at the bottom, yet I can't say enough about their perseverance and faith and belief in the Lord."

Saturday evening, members of the family participated in a parade of boats during which 564 balloons were to be released to symbolize the duration of Jenco's captivity.

Dottie Mason, 55, owner of the balloon-bearing boat, said the balloon release was planned two weeks ago as a way to publicize the plight of the hostages.

The boat also carried people dressed as Uncle Sam and the Statue of Liberty, as well as two children dressed as Shiite Moslems.

"Under the American flag and the Statue of Liberty, everyone is free — and that includes Shiite Moslems," Ms. Mason said. "They may not be free in their country, but today we welcome them here."

Jenco told Andy Mihelich that he saw two of the four other hostages still missing in Lebanon, David Jacobsen, 55, and Thomas Sutherland, 55, on Friday and wanted their families to know he had seen them.

TOKYO — Billionaire publisher MALCOLM S. FORBES kicked off a $700,000 two-week tour of Japan by balloon and motorcycle Saturday by ascending 300 feet in a balloon built in the shape of the Golden Temple in Kyoto.

Forbes, who took up ballooning 14 years ago, plans to fly the balloon over scenic Mount Fuji and the Totori dunes in western Japan, and to motorcycle between them.

Forbes has also traveled over the Egyptian pyramids in a Sphinx-shaped balloon, over Thailand in one shaped like an elephant, and floated over China's Great Wall in a conventionally shaped balloon.

In 1973, Forbes set six official world records for hot air ballooning and became the first person to cross the United States in that type of balloon.

"I think that the ballooning and the publishing businesses are related because both deal with hot air," Forbes joked.

RENO, Nev. — A jetliner carrying several celebrities, including TV host GARY COLLINS and skating champion SCOTT HAMILTON, was struck by lightning but the 117 passengers and the plane were unharmed, officials said.

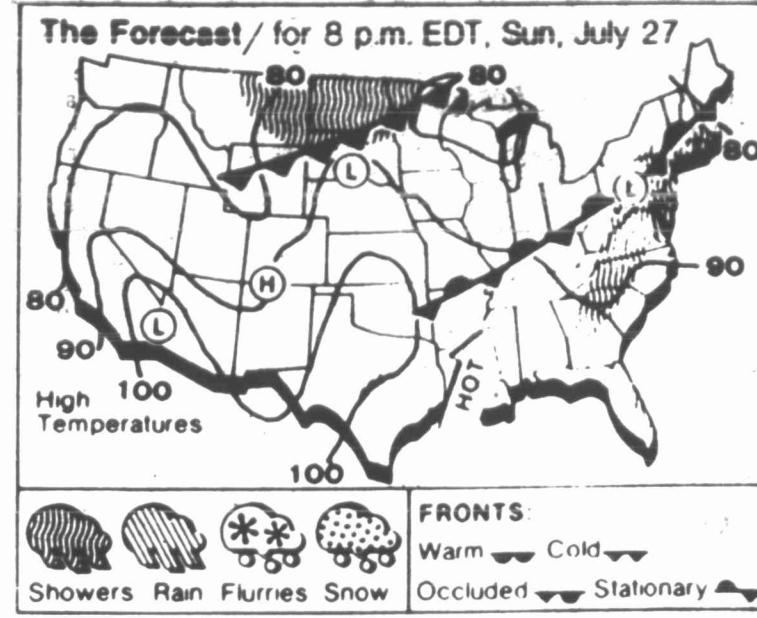

The AirCal Boeing 737 was enroute to Lake Tahoe from Los Angeles when it was hit by lightning early Friday evening over the northern Nevada resort, said Bill Bell, an airline spokesman.

Aboard with Hamilton and "Hour Magazine" host Collins were Collins' wife and former Miss America MARYANN MOBLEY; TED MCGINLEY, a regular on "The Colbys"; former Miss USA SHAWN WETHERLY; actress ANN TURKEL, and HUNT BLOCK, a regular on "Knots Landing," officials said.

They were headed to a United Cerebral Palsy Research and Educational Foundation sports festival when the lightning struck and the pilot diverted the flight to Reno-Cannon International Airport.

The passengers disembarked without incident about 6:30 p.m. and were driven 50 miles to the mountain resort, Bell said.

Weather

State

The Panhandle, South Plains and some of East Texas received thundershowers Saturday afternoon, but the sparse precipitation was no match for the sweltering heat in most of the state.

Temperatures hit the upper 90s and low 100s across the state, with late afternoon extremes Saturday ranging from 91 at Dalhart and Marfa to 106 at McAllen, the National Weather Service reported.

The upper coast also received a little relief as rains moved onshore with winds gusting to near 25 mph over the coastal bend, the NWS said.

In the forecast, North Texas highs should reach 107 in the northwest Sunday and 97 in the southeast.

Scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers are expected in South Texas Sunday, mostly in the southeast and near the lower coast. Highs should be near 90 along the coast, 100 to 105 in the Rio Grande plains and 95 to 100 for the rest of the region.

Isolated and widely scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers Sunday should provide only brief breaks from sunny, hot days in West Texas. Highs should reach the 90s in the mountains and Panhandle and 106 in the Big Bend.

Thunderstorms broke out Saturday along the East Coast and over the central Plains, and the northern Plains and Rockies, and hot weather with highs near 100 spread from Texas into Oklahoma and Arkansas.

A slow-moving cold front helped trigger locally heavy thundershowers from the Northeast into the Carolinas, and one storm produced hail and downed trees in Virginia's Allegheny County.

A severe thunderstorm watch was posted for the District of Columbia, parts of southern and central Maryland, much of central and eastern Virginia and central North Carolina.

A group of thunderstorms moved across eastern Kansas and western Missouri and a severe thunderstorm watch was issued for most of central and southeastern Missouri and parts of western Kentucky, southern Illinois, northwestern Tennessee and southwestern Indiana.

Today is Texas Weekly magazine's final issue

Texas Weekly magazine, the Sunday magazine of 27 newspapers, including the Big Spring Herald, will suspend publication after today's issue, Tucker Sutherland, president, and Philip Schoch, publisher, announced.

Sutherland, who is also president of Harte-Hanks Newspapers and senior vice president of Harte-Hanks Communications, Inc., which owns Texas Weekly, explained, "This magazine has been a tremendous success with readers, and we regret that an advertising base could not be developed to support it."

Tom Watson, publisher of the Herald, said, "We regret that Texas Weekly will no longer be available to our readers. In the 10 months we have had the magazine, it has developed many fans in this area. We will miss it as part of our Sunday package."

County to consider increase in jail staff

Howard County commissioners will consider increasing the jail staff when the court convenes at 9 a.m. Monday on the second floor of the county courthouse.

Joel Slater, a state jail inspector, informed commissioners in May trouble loomed ahead if the staff wasn't "beefed up."

He said the current three-person staff would need to increase to five persons in order to comply with future state compliances.

County judge Milton Kirby said commissioners would consider the issue as they worked on the 1986-87 county budget.

According to the meeting's agenda, county auditor Jackie Olson will continue working on the budget with commissioners.

Water supply is OK after Friday's fire

A fire Friday at the former Casa Grande building at N.W. Fourth and Lancaster Streets had an impact on the city water supply Friday, but usage appeared to have leveled off Saturday night, said public works director Tom Decell.

Assistant fire chief Burr Lea Settles said the fire department used 150,000 to 200,000 gallons of water to fight the fire.

However, the city had adequate water before, during and after the fire, Decell said, because of reserves. He said Saturday night that 5 to 5 1/2 million gallons of water are on reserve.

An extra pump on its way from Odessa Saturday night should have arrived by this morning, Decell said Saturday. The pump will enable the city to pump an extra 2 to 3 million gallons onto the high service side, 11th Place South, so a faulty valve can be repaired.

Settles said no cause has been established for the fire, but it is under investigation. Damages from the fire have not been listed.

"It was a big, old building with old wood," he said, and added the high temperatures and little rain could have been factors.

The fire was the biggest Big Spring has had in nearly a year, Settles said. The last large fire was at 13th and Scurry St. nearly a year ago, he said.

He said a transient is known to have been living in the old Casa Grande building, but was not in the building during the fire.

The worst of the fire lasted about one to 1 1/2 hours, he said, with smoldering continuing when the roof fell in, burning everything under it.

One fireman, James Dubose, was treated and released from Malone-Hogan Hospital for heat exhaustion, Settles said. Several other firemen suffered from heat exhaustion, but did not seek medical treatment, he said.

Heat

 10.43 inches, with 12.85 inches recorded rainfall.

Baskin-Robbins 31 Flavors ice cream store was empty of customers early Saturday afternoon, an unusual condition, according to salespersons Marlina Marin and Lana Light.

"People come in just to sit sometimes, when it's hot," 16-year-old Light said. She said the store usually is busier at night.

Marin, 17, said summertime is so busy, the store sometimes runs out of certain flavors, such as the most popular pralines and cream. Chocolate and vanilla also go fast, she said, because they are used in milkshakes.

The store sells so many banana splits, bananas must be purchased twice a day, usually three or four bunches, with eight to 10 bananas per bunch, Light said.

The ice cream shop installed a soda fountain this year, which also has proven to be popular, she said.

The swimming pool at Comanche Trail Park also was not crowded early Saturday afternoon.

Business usually picks up later in the afternoon, said lifeguard Ronnie Miller, 18.

He said a lot of people came to the pool Friday, though.

Most of the people at the pool were children, bobbing on floats or splashing. A continuous line of boys streamed over the diving board, making regular splashes in the cool, light green water.

Other than at the pools, few people were at Comanche Trail Park.

One lone, diehard couple played tennis. Three golfers waited for a partner in the shade of a tall tree.

"We just get in there, enjoy a cold beer and keep on going," said Benny Marquez, 54, of 2630 Dow St. He said the three play just about every day, regardless of the heat.

"Some weekends we play 36 holes," said Manuel Ramirez, 43, of 612 N.E. 11th St. Ramirez said he, Marquez and Carlos Gonzales, 31, of 1302 Birdwell, have played as many as 64 holes in a day. They just go back to the beginning of the course and start over every 18 holes.

Crime

 Reported crime was up 2 percent in the Northeast and remained largely unchanged in the Midwest.

"We have large in-migration of people in crime-prone areas in the South and West," explained Alfred Blumstein, professor in the school of urban and public affairs at Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh.

Law enforcement agencies in the nation's cities registered a 4 percent increase in reported crime in 1985, while suburban counties recorded a 6 percent increase and rural counties a 2 percent rise.

Violent crimes of murder, forcible rape, robbery and aggravated assault were up 4 percent last year, and accounted for 11 percent of all reported crime. The remainder — property crimes of burglary, larceny-theft and motor vehicle theft — rose 5 percent.

The FBI issued a statement saying that after three straight years of decline, a "one-year increase (in crime) ... cannot be used as a predictor of a future statistical trend."

Terry Eastland, a spokesman for Attorney General Edwin Meese, said it is "too early to tell whether this is a change from the downward trend of recent years. But we do know that the rate is still significantly lower than it was in 1981, the peak year."

Blumstein and other experts are projecting crime increases into the 1990s, based on what Blumstein calls the "next wave of kids, the echo of the baby boom."

In 1985, adult arrests were up 2 percent compared to 1984, while arrests of people under 18 years of age rose 5 percent. People under age 25 composed 50 percent of all those arrested nationwide.

There were eight murders for every 100,000 people in the country in 1985, a total of 18,976, up 2 percent from 1984. Detroit replaced Gary, Ind., as the nation's murder capital among cities with a population of 100,000 or more, with a murder rate of 58.2 per 100,000 people. Detroit's murder rate was up sharply, 45.3 per 100,000 in 1984.

New York City, which has strong handgun controls, has not been included in the top 25 most murderous cities for the second year in a row.

City, union reach accord to end 11-day strike

DETROIT (AP) — City and union negotiators began a "housekeeping session" Saturday to double-check language contained in a tentative three-year contract aimed at ending an 11-day-long strike by 7,000 municipal workers.

A ratification vote was expected Sunday or Monday, said Phil Sparks, a spokesman for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees. City and AFSCME bargainers announced the tentative agreement at 11:40 p.m. Friday after negotiating for about 3½ hours.

The terms of the pact were not officially disclosed, but television station WXYZ quoted unnamed union officials Saturday as saying the pact contained a 5 percent wage increase the first year and bonuses of up to $500 based on a formula tied to the city's fiscal health. Subsequent raises would be between 2.5 percent and 6 percent the second year and no increase to 6 percent the third, with the exact amount determined by the city's finances, the station said.

"The contract provides for the protection of the city by ... having wages tied to the city's ability to pay," Mayor Coleman A. Young said Saturday.

The negotiators began meeting for a final review of the agreement Saturday afternoon in what Sparks called "literally just a housekeeping session."

AFSCME planned to conduct a news conference later Saturday at which details of the proposed contract would be outlined, Sparks said.

The breakthrough in talks came late in the 10th day of a strike that has left tons of garbage uncollected, stranded 200,000 daily bus riders and disrupted local preparations for the Aug. 5 state primary election.

The final bargaining started at 8 p.m. Friday, when state mediator Charles Jamerson called the two sides together after city bargainers stormed out of a two-hour afternoon session.

Chief city negotiator Roger Cheek and his AFSCME counterpart, Al Garrett, told reporters they had reached an agreement but that its terms wouldn't be revealed until after the rank-and-file hear its specifics.

Asked if he was pleased with the agreement, Cheek said, "If it gets ratified, I'll be satisfied."

The talks had been ordered by Wayne County Circuit Judge Sharon Tevis Finch, who had refused to grant the city's request for a back-to-work order.

More than 10,000 of the city's 17,000 workers honored the strike, including 90 percent to 95 percent of AFSCME's 7,000 members and about 80 percent of several other unions representing about 5,000 Detroit employees, Sparks said.

AFSCME's last public proposal was a 26 percent increase over three years.

2 hurt while picketing

EAST CHICAGO, Ind. — Two striking workers from LTV steel's Indiana Harbor Works were hit by a truck while picketing Saturday but later returned to the picket lines, company officials said.

The strike, which LTV says is illegal, began Friday in protest of the company's cutoff of health insurance benefits to retired workers. Company officials say they're working on restoring the benefits as they work through reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws.

Goldwater goes home

WASHINGTON — Sen. Barry Goldwater went home Saturday from Walter Reed Army Medical Center where he was treated for abdominal pain this week, a hospital spokesman said.

The 77-year-old Republican from Arizona, who will retire from the Senate this year, entered the hospital Wednesday morning for pains of indigestion. His office quoted doctors as saying the discomfort may have resulted from a dinner the previous evening.

Contamination isolated

PITTSBURGH — A container of Cracker Jacks that sickened a man contained a chemical found in mothballs, but the contamination appeared to be isolated, health officials said Friday.

No contamination was found in the Cracker Jacks two women ate before getting flu-like symptoms, said Guillermo Cole, a spokesman for the Allegheny County Health Department.

The department told Pittsburgh-area stores that had pulled 10½-ounce tubs of Cracker Jacks from their shelves that they could restock the product.

Son charged with murder

WASHINGTON — The son of two former South Vietnamese diplomats was charged Saturday with murdering his parents in their home and was ordered held on $100,000 bond.

Tran Van Khien, 60, an attorney and former member of the national assembly in South Vietnam in the early 1960s, pleaded innocent at his arraignment in District of Columbia Superior Court to two counts of first-degree murder.

National Action Party supporters raise their hands during a protest against the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party and their alleged vote fraud in the state elections in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico.

Election protest

Opposition party: Blockade is indefinite

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Leaders of the main opposition party from several Mexican states met Saturday at an international bridge blockaded by thousands of supporters who vowed to stay until the government grants new elections.

"We're learning from Chihuahua," said Manuel Cloutier, candidate for governor of the state of Sinaloa on the National Action Party, or PAN, ticket.

Cloutier will run in upcoming elections in September, but he said election laws make clean balloting in his state impossible.

Other political leaders from the states of Nuevo Leon and Durango also have met with their Chihuahua counterparts to map a concerted strategy for more protests, party leaders said.

The blockade on the Bridge of the Americas between Juarez, the largest city in Chihuahua, and El Paso is to protest alleged fraud in July 6 state elections.

Other crossings between Mexico and the United States will also be taken over to protest, said Francisco Barrio, who resigned as Juarez mayor to run for PAN governor of Chihuahua.

MOSCOW — The Kremlin on Saturday received President Reagan's response to its latest arms control proposals in silence, but the official media again attacked the Star Wars missile defense system that Reagan reportedly wants to deploy within a decade.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur A. Hartman gave a letter from Reagan to Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze at an hour-long meeting, U.S. Embassy spokesman Jaroslav Verner said.

Eight die in landslide

SENISE, Italy — A landslide buried three homes early Saturday in this southern Italian town, killing eight people as they slept, officials reported.

Five bodies were found shortly after tons of wet, sandy earth crashed through a section of Senise at 5:30 a.m. and late Saturday rescue workers uncovered the bodies of the other victims — two young sisters and their brother.

Police said that accounted for all of the missing and they called off the search effort.

Gunmen kill policemen

NEWRY, Northern Ireland — Gunmen dressed as butchers killed three Ulster policemen in a patrol car in the middle of Newry on Saturday afternoon as townspeople were shopping, police said. The IRA claimed responsibility.

Pedestrians screamed and dived for cover as the gunmen coolly walked up to the car and fired at close range. Police said there were "a number" of gunmen dressed in white butchers' coats and hats. The domestic news agency Press Association said three men did the shooting.

At least 9 die in crash

LOCKINGTON, England — A four-car train filled with vacationers plowed into a van at an unmanned rail crossing in northeast England on Saturday, killing at least nine people and injuring 42, police said.

One coach overturned, and authorities feared some people might be trapped under the wreckage. But firemen and British Rail engineers lifted the coach with hydraulic jacks Saturday night and a police spokesman said no additional victims were found.

Among the seriously injured were the two occupants of the van, the driver and his 10-year-old son, police said.

Downtown plan shows promise

City planner Bob Lima's idea to fit Big Spring's ailing downtown with "incubator space" seems like a winner, if some potential pitfalls can be avoided.

Briefly, Main Street Inc. — Inc. for incubator — calls for the creation of inexpensive space for fledgling businesses, enabling them to thrive in the safety of the "incubator."

Other elements of the plan include developing elderly housing near downtown, incorporating the railroad into the downtown design scheme and establishing "gateways" at key corridor points to direct traffic downtown.

The plan is attractive because it can be implemented with a minimum investment by taxpayers. The brunt of the cost would be shouldered by the private sector.

With the low appraised value of many of downtown's vacant and neglected buildings, space for "incubators" could be obtained at low cost.

Moreover, the revitalization of downtown would come from within Big Spring by entrepreneurs big and small. The town would be less vulnerable to decisions of giant retail chains — decisions such as the pull-out of Whites Auto Center and TG&Y, which left the city smarting.

Also, Big Spring's long recognized "brain drain," so apparent in Lima's demographic study, may slow if our young people see affordable business opportunity in their hometown.

But the project needs safeguards so that affordable office and business space is not abused.

Who could blame longtime downtown merchants for resenting a plan giving strong competitors the privilege of cut-rate operating costs?

Nothing could undermine the plan faster than an angry and suspicious downtown business community.

The plan also could be damaged if the district is unsightly to potential businesses and customers. Streets littered with broken beer bottles and covered by dirt washed from unpaved parking lots are eyesores. And crumbling curbs and sidewalks with weeds sprouting from the cracks are signs of decay, not vitality. We urge the city to be vigilant in correcting these problems.

If the plan is implemented in a fair and open way, with special sensitivity to existing businesses, we believe it can benefit the city's retail industry and boost our town's self image.

Banning booze not the answer

To the editor: With the city's economy having one foot in the grave and the other on a banana peel, now some of our misguided council members want to strike another downward blow by banning booze in our parks and at our lake. The anti-booze faction lost at the polls, so now they are trying to prevail at the Council where the public can't vote. (You didn't hear them proposing a ban on non-alcoholic beverages?) How about other troublesome products? Ban cigarettes. They cause 350,000 deaths per year. Ban cars. They cause 50,000 deaths per year. Ban people from the city altogether. Then the council would have no problems to deal with at all!

If litter, crowding, and traffic at the park are problems that our present taxes cannot cover, I have a better solution: Charge daily admission fees. Frequent users could buy a yearly permit. Part of the money would go to create one or two jobs for fee collectors. Part of the money could go to maintaining and improving the facilities, and the rest could go to help our strained general budget.

But don't ban booze because of littering. There is already a law against littering. If our police can't enforce the littering law, why give them still another task? Rutherford, who supports the ban said "Had a child been killed as a result" (of a shooting at the park) "a case could have been made against the city." Well, it is already against the law to shoot in the park, and even more so to shoot children, so we do not need more bans.

If people are willing to disregard laws against shooting and killing, they surely will not be frightened off by laws against littering and boozing. Let's spread our energy trying to make progress; not trying to go back to the impotent prohibition of the '30s.

Patrons should keep lake clean

To the editor: This past week my husband and myself spent some time camping at Moss Creek Lake. It is a very nice place to relax, do some fishing and just enjoy the outdoors.

I especially enjoyed the ducks as they swam around the lake. I couldn't help but notice different plastic items such as fishing line, bags and plastic soft drink holders scattered all around the lake. Such items as these if consumed by these lovely ducks can be deadly. It would certainly be nice if everyone who uses the Moss Creek Lake facility would help to keep it clean, and in turn keep the ducks healthy.

After all they do add a nice touch to the scenery, and we would all be helping to keep our part of Texas clean. "Don't Mess with Texas."

GREAT RETIREMENT PARTY! WE'LL HAVE TO DO THIS AGAIN REAL SOON!...

General elections interfere with state budget decision

By JIM DAVIS
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Politics and statesmanship seldom mix well, and the 1986 political year in Texas is no exception.

The state is in a truly desperate situation. Anyone who doesn't believe that should move to California, where the unreal is normal. As Texans, we're supposed to face the facts.

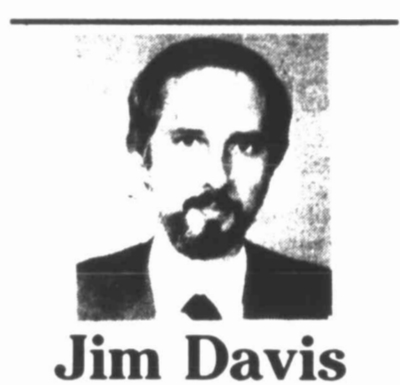

As oil prices have dropped this year, the state's revenue from energy taxes has plummeted also. The oil business, which is big business in Texas, is hurting and the state's entire economy is feeling the pain. Unemployment figures seem to be the only thing on the upswing.

Comptroller Bob Bullock now predicts the state faces a budget deficit of about $3.5 billion. He says another 110,000 could be out of work a little more than a year from now.

These are problems of huge proportions. Now, big problems are not unknown in Texas. But historically they have come in the form of droughts, hurricanes, boll weevils or Comanche Indians.

Reading James Michener's "Texas" (which can be a problem in itself) adds a little perspective to our current woes even if it doesn't ease the pain. Michener obviously was taken by the state's "can-do" attitude even as he realized that it didn't always work.

It would be interesting to have him come back and do another study on how Texas is handling its current crisis. That might not be fun reading, however.

Jim Davis

The current problems could not have come at a worse time, simply because of the way our state's politics and government is structured.

The 1876 Texas Constitution provides for 140-day legislative sessions beginning in January of each odd-numbered year. Every even-numbered year, such as 1986, is set aside for elections.

Apparently, the writers of the constitution felt that mixing lawmaking and politics was not smart. They were right.

But that mixture is where we find ourselves today, faced with a special legislative session just three months prior to the November general election. Worse still, that election is one of those every-four-year ones which involve the governor and other statewide offices.

And it had to come when an incumbent governor is fighting for his political life against an old foe in an emotional campaign.

That political fight prevents Gov. Mark White from approaching the fiscal crisis openly and frankly. Anything he does about the crisis could affect the election, and that can't be far from his mind.

The crisis also affects the campaign of Democrat White's Republican opponent, Bill Clements, who is free to criticize White but seems afraid to branch out from campaign rhetoric even as circumstances change. Clements continues to use old data that would indicate that cutting the budget to meet the revenue problem would really not be difficult at all if he were governor.

The election also seems to have affected some legislators, particularly House members who face opposition. Some of them also continue to say that budget cuts will do the job without much pain or effect on state services.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and members of the State Senate are saying that some new taxation is necessary because budget cuts would be too harsh on the state. Hobby is even undertaking a seven-city tour to try to convince Texans to support a tax increase.

An interesting point is that Hobby has only taken opposition in the November election and most senators either aren't up for reelection this time or have no or light opposition. It's easier for them to favor a tax increase.

The polls show that Texans favor a tax hike over massive reductions of state services, but politicians believe that many voters will forget the high road at the polls and vote against anyone who raises taxes. They may be right.

Today

By The Associated Press
Today is Sunday, July 27, the 208th day of 1986. There are 157 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On July 27, 1953, local time, the Korean War armistice was signed at Panmunjom, ending three years of fighting. It had taken 255 meetings over two years and 17 days to reach the agreement.

On this date: In 1789, Congress established the Department of Foreign Affairs, the forerunner of the State Department.

In 1866, Cyrus W. Field finally succeeded after two failures in laying the first underwater telegraph cable between North America and Europe.

In 1960, Vice President Richard M. Nixon was nominated for president at the Republican Convention in Chicago.

In 1974, the House Judiciary Committee voted 27-11 to recommend President Richard M. Nixon's impeachment on a charge that he had personally engaged in a course of conduct designed to obstruct justice in the Watergate case.

In 1980, on day 267 of the Iranian hostage crisis, the deposed Shah of Iran died at a military hospital outside Cairo, Egypt, at age 60.

Ten years ago: Ray Brennan, an Air Force veteran who had attended an American Legion convention in Philadelphia, died at a hospital in Sayre, Pa., of a mysterious ailment. It was the first death later attributed to Legionnaire's disease.

Five years ago: In a nationally broadcast address, President Reagan urged Americans to rally behind his tax-cut proposal instead of a Democratic alternative.

One year ago: Steve Cram of Britain lowered the world record for the mile with a time of 3 minutes, 46.30 seconds at Bissett Stadium in Oslo, Norway. The old record of 3:47.33 seconds was held by Sebastian Coe.

Today's birthdays: Former baseball manager Leo Durocher is 80. Actor Keenan Wynn is 70. TV producer Norman Lear is 64. Film critic Vincent Canby is 62. Sportscaster Irv Cross is 47. Singer Bobbie Gentry is 42. Actress Betty Thomas is 38. Skater Peggy Fleming is 38. Singer Maureen McGovern is 37.

Thought for today: "No man has yet lived long enough in this world to doubt the infallibility of his own judgment." — Henry Wheeler Shaw (alias Josh Billings), American humorist (1818-1885).

Hispanic leaders form elite group

By JESSE TREVINO
Public recognition in the past several years made San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros a household word in Texas. More recently, State District Judge Roy Barrera Jr. and Texas Supreme Court Judge Raul Gonzalez became well-known statewide.

Other prominent Texans, such as Laredo banker Tony Sanchez Sr., Texas Tech University President Lauro Cavazos or voter guru Willie Velasquez of San Antonio, form the elite of Hispanic leadership.

But a rising second tier of Mexican-Americans will have an impact on the state's future.

One such person is Hector Gutierrez, 39, the first Latino commander of the Texas A&M University Corps of Cadets. Gutierrez is in the top tier of Southwestern Bell's lobbying operation in Austin. He utilizes the Aggie network with great finesse and has a reputation for being straight forward and personable.

Like Gutierrez, the career of Dianne Mendoza-Freeman, 40, executive director of the Laredo Chamber of Commerce, could take her in many different directions. Texans might have caught her name in the recent flap over Sen. Jesse Helms' criticism of Mexico. Convinced Helms hurt the border region more than helped, Mendoza-Freeman and her board took after Helms and then invited his Senate subcommittee to come to Laredo to get a first-hand look at the border.

Jesse Trevino

Up the freeway from Laredo, the first part of an impressive father-son duo holds an important position. David Garcia and his father Efraim are involved in major economic development projects of two of Texas' three largest cities: San Antonio and Houston.

The elder Garcia, 54, a retired U.S. Army Lt. Colonel, has resisted employment overtures from major cities, including Los Angeles, in order to help guide Houston through what may be its darkest economic days.

The younger Garcia, 32, made his mark in the Cisneros administration, handling the complexities of multi-million dollar redevelopment projects in the city's downtown section. Garcia has helped transform the San Antonio skyline and helped rejuvenate sections of the city's stagnating West Side.

Another impressive Garcia in San Antonio is Rev. David Garcia, secretary to Archbishop Patricio Flores. Garcia at 36 is helping plan Pope John Paul II's trip to Texas next year and, in so doing, will receive the exposure necessary to rise within the Church's hierarchy.

Like Rev. Garcia in the religious arena, five other Texans stand to play a major role in Texas, but in politics.

Jorge Haynes, 39, for the past three years Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's speech-writer re-enforced Hobby's already held conviction that Mexico offers Texas, because of its geography, economic opportunity no other state enjoys. Hobby's endorsement of the "twin-plant" manufacturing miracle budding along the border reflects Haynes' handiwork.

Haynes, active in national Democratic politics and now being courted by potential presidential candidates, has the experience of someone 20 years his senior. Haynes took the lead for Hobby's office during the state's romancing of the General Motors Saturn project and the Navy's Homeport.

Another Texan with influence on a major Texas political figure is Felix Sanchez, aide to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen. Sanchez, 34, who formerly worked for former Secretary of State David Dean, helped arrange the recent International Trade Commission hearings along the border emphasizing his concern with U.S.-Mexico trade. The only Hispanic lawyer on a Senate staff, Sanchez has advised Texas' senior senator on recent Reagan judicial nominations.

Two other young Mexican-American Texans are emerging with political strengths of their own.

Dallas investment banker Rick Hernandez, 38, a former Carter White House official, co-founded the Mexican-American Democrat organization. His own personal stock is said to be rising as Mexican-Americans loom as a larger segment of Democratic and Texas state politics.

Lupe Zamarripa, 40, until 1984 an aide to Gov. Mark White and now an attorney with a major statewide law firm, helped mastermind white's upset victory over then-incumbent governor Bill Clements. Known for his knowledge of the backwaters of South Texas politics, his political career did not end when he left White's staff.

Out in El Paso, that city's economic development director, Pablo Salcido, already named as a person to watch by Texas Business magazine, helped trail-blaze El Paso's current economic boom and has started an early public career at age 30.

These are some of the examples of people behind the headlines helping to shape the future of Texas — not a bad lot!

Report: Bad doctors big problem

AUSTIN — State officials need more help in policing Texas doctors who trigger malpractice suits, a legislative committee was told Saturday.

More than 11 percent of the licensed physicians in Texas have some sort of complaint filed against them because of their professional practice, said Dr. G.V. Brindley Jr., executive director of the state Board of Medical Examiners.

Brindley and other witnesses appeared before a Senate-House committee studying the liability insurance problem.

The Joint Committee on Liability Insurance had asked for a report from the state board that licenses physicians after some witnesses in earlier sessions claimed the board was not fulfilling its role as watchdog of medical practice in Texas.

The panel will make recommendations to the 1987 Legislature.

Farmers buying inferior product

AUSTIN — The Department of Agriculture says some Texas farmers are being sold a weed killer that actually makes Johnson grass grow better and faster than before.

"This definitely is a buyer beware situation," said Richard Lowerre, assistant TDA commissioner, "and we are urging all farmers to contact us if they have any question about a product being sold."

Lowerre said farmers usually get a telephone call between 5:30 and 7 a.m. offering them a herbicide that is just as good but costs much less than proven products used to kill Johnson grass and other weeds.

Lowerre said one Williamson County farmer recently called him and said the inferior product made his Johnson grass look sick for about one-half day, and then it took off and grew faster than ever.

Lowerre said the product is not registered for use in Texas and therefore is against the law to sell.

Show helps mother save daughter

SAN ANTONIO — Sherman Hemsley may portray the obnoxious George Jefferson on the popular television show "The Jeffersons," but the Hollywood star proved to be a San Antonio mother that he's really a sensitive guy.

Dorothy Acosta received a personal telephone call and an autographed picture from the actor after he learned from "The San Antonio Light" that Acosta had saved her infant daughter's life using cardiopulmonary resuscitation techniques demonstrated on an episode of the show.

Mrs. Acosta used CPR to revive her 14-month-old daughter Crystal, who was pulled unconscious from a backyard wading pool July 9.

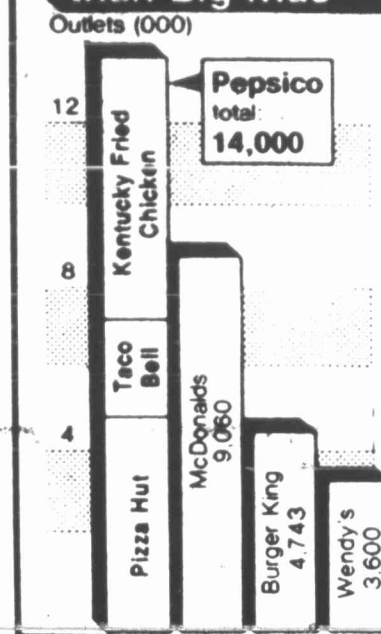

"I'm going to save it (the picture) for Crystal," Mrs. Acosta said Friday just minutes after receiving the autographed photo, which she immediately hung on her living room wall.

"Without that show she wouldn't be here."

Mrs. Acosta and her husband, Guy Acosta, were hanging clothes in their backyard when they saw the child lying face down in the pool under 8 inches of water.

Pepsico to acquire chicken chain

Pizza plus Tacos plus Chicken: More Outlets than Big Mac

NEW YORK (AP) — Kentucky Fried Chicken Corp. will do all kinds of chicken — not just fried — right once the company is formally taken over by Pepsico Inc., analysts predict.

That's because Pepsico, which will become one of the world's largest restaurateurs through the $850 million cash acquisition announced Thursday, already is extremely aggressive about introducing products, whether they are new Pizza Hut or Taco Bell dishes, Pepsi-Cola soft drinks or Frito-Lay snacks.

Pepsico, the nation's second-largest soft drink maker, also probably will speed up a plan to add seating and drive-up windows to Kentucky Fried Chicken outlets, and eventually may offer home delivery service, the analysts said. And it should step up Kentucky Fried Chicken's advertising and promotion, applying the marketing muscle it already uses in its existing businesses.

The predicted result will be a U.S. fast-food industry dominated by Pepsico and by McDonald's Corp., which will have greater restaurant sales than Pepsico but fewer outlets.

Additionally, McDonald's and the other hamburger chains are expected to try to sell more chicken products, intensifying competition in the already fiercely competitive fast-food business that has been suffering from sluggish sales.

"This is clearly a major event for the restaurant business," said Charles Glovsky, an analyst with the investment firm Alex. Brown & Sons Inc. in Baltimore.

Pepsico, based in Purchase, N.Y., is buying Kentucky Fried Chicken from RJR Nabisco Inc.

In addition to expanding its share in the domestic fast food business, Pepsico will gain significant opportunities outside North America, where Kentucky Fried Chicken is the largest chain with 1,800 outlets in 56 countries.

Pepsico also plans to sell its Pepsi-Cola soft drinks in more than the 1,000 Kentucky Fried Chicken outlets that currently offer them. The company, while emphasizing that this was not the reason for the acquisition, says it will push to convert the franchises that now sell Coca-Cola Co. products.

"It's a wonderful fit because Pepsi already knows restaurants," said Emanuel Goldman, an analyst with Montgomery Securities in San Francisco.

"When Pepsi gets its claws into Kentucky Fried Chicken, you will see a significant broadening of the menu," Goldman said.

"You have three choices at Kentucky Fried Chicken: original fried chicken, spicy fried chicken and nuggets. The common thread: fried. That's going to change," Goldman said.

He listed as possibilities a non-breaded chicken sandwich and roasted chicken with a sauce. The company might even introduce a non-chicken product in the next few years, Glovsky said.

The purchase, which is subject to a definitive agreement, the approval of the Pepsi and RJR Nabisco boards, and government approval, would give Pepsico three of the top 10 restaurant chains.

...died Saturday

WASHINGTON (AP) — W. Averell Harriman was remembered Saturday for a career in public life and diplomacy that spanned half a century and won him honors from Washington to Moscow.

"The death of Averell Harriman closes a chapter in diplomatic history which only someone of his talent and stature could have written," President Reagan said in a statement issued from the White House. "On behalf of my predecessors who he served with such loyalty and dedication, I join all who mourn his passing."

Harriman died early Saturday morning according to a family spokesman. He was reported to have been seriously ill at the time of his death. He was 94.

Harriman served as U.S. ambassador to Moscow during World War II, negotiating with Kremlin strongman Josef Stalin during the wartime U.S.-Soviet alliance.

Harriman maintained his ties to Moscow over the decades, making his last visit to the Kremlin in June 1983 for a meeting with then Soviet leader Yuri Andropov.

Two years later, during Moscow celebrations of the 40th anniversary of the Nazi defeat, Harriman won a top Soviet award for "his profound personal contribution" to the victory. His death was reported by the Soviet news agency Tass.

Harriman, part heir to a $100 million railroad fortune, entered public service in the administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt, and served in diplomatic and cabinet posts for Democratic presidents Harry S. Truman, John F. Ken-nedly, Lyndon B. Johnson and Jimmy Carter.

In recognition for his years as an ambassador, the State Department hailed Harriman's life "nobly spent, in the best traditions of American diplomacy."

"Few diplomats in American public life have served their country in as many important capacities or taken part in so many history-shaping events," the department said in a statement.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz and his wife Helena "wish to express their heartfelt condolences to Mrs. Harriman and the rest of the Harriman family," the statement said.

"With them go the condolences of the many thousands of State Department and foreign service personnel, past and present, who had the honor of knowing and working with Ambassador Harriman," it said.

"There was no mission President Kennedy would not have given him," Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said Saturday. "The young president and the elder statesman made a remarkable couple, and his skillful negotiation of the test ban treaty in 1963 still stands as a monument in our quest for nuclear arms control."

"I remember that when my brother Jack first became president, he announced that the torch had been passed to a new generation of Americans. Then he turned around and realized that Averell Harriman still had it."

Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., called Harriman one of the nation's "greatest and noblest men" and said he "had more helpful impact upon our country and upon the world than anybody except our leading presidents."

Pepper, who before his election to the House was a U.S. senator from 1936 to 1961, also said Harriman was his close friend for more than 50 years.

"Instead of devoting his life to luxury and ease, to which he was born, he dedicated his life to the service of mankind and his country," Pepper said.

Harriman served one term as Democratic governor of New York, losing to Republican Nelson Rockefeller in a 1958 election dubbed the "battle of the millionaires."

After Reagan defeated Carter, the most recent Democratic president, Harriman held meetings aimed at rebuilding the Democratic Party.

Hospital holds stock in tobacco companies

DANVILLE, Pa. (AP) — The Geisinger Foundation, which runs one of the largest cancer treatment centers in the state, holds stock in two companies that manufacture cigarettes, according to a report published Saturday.

As of June 30, the foundation held 8,000 shares of R.J. Reynolds Industries Inc. and 400 shares of Philip Morris, Geisinger spokesman Mark Lloyd told the Bloomsburg Press-Enterprise.

A stock analyst consulted by the newspaper said the market value of the stock as of Friday was $420,960 for the Reynolds holdings and $29,350 for the Philip Morris investments.

Lloyd said he had no estimate of the total value of the foundation's investment portfolio.

The foundation operates Geisinger Medical Center here, with one of the largest cancer centers in Pennsylvania. The hospital also runs a program to help people stop smoking.

Frank Trembulak, treasurer of the foundation, said all investments were handled by a bank and that Geisinger officials had not known about the holdings in the cigarette companies.

He defended the tobacco investments, saying that if Geisinger decided to drop those stocks it might also have to look at other holdings, such as companies that do business in South Africa.

"Where do you draw the line?" Trembulak asked. "Today it's cigarettes, what is it tomorrow?"

Mystery

When Priscilla reached for a light switch atop the basement stairs, she saw bloody fingerprints on the walls, and she screamed. As she retreated through the kitchen, the man in black stepped from the shadows of a laundry room.

He said "Hi" and shot her in the chest.

As she slumped to the floor, critically wounded but conscious, the gunman turned on Farr, firing four shots and killing him.

Meanwhile, Bubba Gavrel, 22, and his date, Beverly Bass, 18, had arrived unexpectedly at the mansion. Ms. Bass was a friend of Priscilla's elder daughter, Dee, and had come to the house to spend the night.

The man in black intercepted the couple at a gate and led them through the darkness down a walkway. As the man rounded a corner and stepped into a lighted area, Ms. Bass spoke. The gunman whirled and fired. The bullet lodged in Gavrel's spine.

Fleeing from the mansion, Ms. Bass flagged down a motorist who drove her to a convenience store and summoned police. At 12:45 a.m., she told officer Jim Soders: "My boyfriend's been shot. Cullen Davis did it. I saw him do it. I know him."

The wounded Priscilla Davis stumbled from the mansion and, reaching a neighbor's home, cried: "Cullen is up there shooting everybody. He is killing everybody, and I'm wounded very badly."

In the early morning hours of Aug. 3, police ordered Davis from the home of his 27-year-old mistress, Karen Master. He surrendered without a word.

In perhaps Davis' darkest hour, Houston lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes was retained to aid in his defense. The case would help make Haynes a legend.

The first attempt to try Davis for the death of Andrea Wilborn ended in a mistrial in Fort Worth, because of jury misconduct.

Judge Tom Cave, who presided over the Fort Worth ordeal with a pistol hidden under his robe, moved the trial to Amarillo and to another judge. That trial started in late June 1977.

Prosecutors built their case around the eyewitness testimony of Priscilla, Ms. Bass and Gavrel and physical evidence.

Haynes and his colleagues in effect put Priscilla on trial, exposing her dependence on the narcotic pinkielet Percodan and referring to "scuzzies and analwags" who moved in and out of the mansion after Davis left.

Ms. Master testified that Davis was in bed with her at the time of the shootings; another witness testified that a bushy-haired man seen inside the house was not Davis.

Davis did not testify. He said outside the courtroom he went to a movie and a restaurant alone that night.

Jurors deliberated four hours before acquitting Davis, and then several members of the panel spent much of the night and part of the next day celebrating with him.

Amarillo was only the beginning. On Aug. 20, 1978, nine months after the acquittal, Davis was arrested again, charged in a murder solicitation scheme.

Armed with FBI tape recordings, videotape and photographs, prosecutors accused Davis of plotting to kill up to 15 people, including two judges, his brother, Bill Davis, and several witnesses who testified against him in Amarillo.

This time Davis took the stand to tell a Houston jury he was framed by Priscilla and others.

The jury failed to reach a verdict, voting 8-4 for conviction. Haynes turned to a colleague and said: "This is too easy. We ought to take up brain surgery."

The legal circus then moved to its final act in Fort Worth where a jury in November 1979 acquitted Davis in the murder-for-hire case.

After the verdict, the district attorney's office dismissed the remaining murder and attempted murder charges against Davis.

While Priscilla labeled the verdict another "multimillion-dollar snow job," Davis and the former Ms. Master, now his wife, emerged as celebrities, attending fashionable parties and surfacing on local talk shows.

But in 1980, the couple stunned acquaintances when they announced they'd been led to the Lord by television evangelist James Robison. They conducted prayer meetings at the mansion, which had been returned to Davis by a divorce judge and which Davis later sold for a reported $30 million.

While freed of the criminal charges, Davis still faced civil suits stemming from the shootings. Gavrel's personal injury suit sought $15 million, and last spring Davis settled out of court for an undisclosed amount. Records in the case were sealed.

"I think Cullen just admitted in civil court what he refused to admit in criminal court," said Jack Strickland, the last prosecutor to face Davis. "And as he has done so many times over the years, he's just bought his way out of a jam."

Plaintiffs in pending suits include Priscilla, now 45 and a figure in the Dallas social scene.

The Davis case took another unexpected turn at the Word of Faith Church in suburban Dallas in the spring.

According to Jack Wilborn, father of the slain Andrea, Davis approached Wilborn and asked his forgiveness. Davis later denied making such a request.

Said Wilborn: "He did not say, 'I want you to forgive me for murdering Andrea.' His words were: 'Could you forgive me for what I did?'"

Wilborn, who converted to Christianity after his daughter was slain, said he replied: "Cullen, I forgave you a long time ago."

Witnesses described the encounter as highly emotional and said Davis embraced Wilborn and his wife, Betty, and that all three were in tears.

The encounter came to light during interviews in the past month.

Davis, still a defendant in Wilborn's civil suit involving Andrea's death, confirmed he met the Wilborns, but his lawyer, Steve Sumner, said, there was not "the slightest inference of an admission of a crime by Cullen Davis."

District Attorney Tim Curry said the exchange has no legal significance in criminal court. He said Texas' Speedy Trial Act would preclude prosecution of Davis now.

Said former prosecutor Strickland of the exchange: "It doesn't do one thing to put back the pieces of the various lives he ruined. ... All it really does, I suspect, is make Cullen feel better."

VINCENTE MINNELLI ...dead at 83

Director remembered as kind and creative

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vincente Minnelli, director of such movie classics as "Brigadoon," "An American in Paris" and "Gigi," was remembered Saturday as a kindly man who made the ordeal of moviemaking pleasurable.

The Oscar-winning director, who had spent the day with daughter Liza Minnelli, died Friday. He was 83.

His wife, Lee, was making funeral arrangements Saturday at Forest Lawn Memorial Park in nearby Glendale, said mortuary spokeswoman Elisa Kardos.

"He was a very kind man and he was very easy to work with," actor-bandleader Desi Arnaz Sr. said Saturday. "I'm so sad."

Minnelli directed Arnaz and Lucille Ball in the couple's 1964 movie, "The Long Long Trailer."

"I knew him very well," Arnaz said. "He was very creative and he was a very loving man, not only to the stars but to the crew, everybody, even the janitor. Working under him was always very pleasant."

Fred Astaire, who appeared in several Minnelli films, including "Yolanda and the Thief" in 1945, "Ziegfeld Follies" in 1944 and "The Band Wagon" in 1953, said he preferred working with Minnelli.

"I always thought the world of Vincente," Astaire said Saturday. "He was the finest man I ever worked with. I'm proud to say I worked with him."

Charlie West shares insight

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
(pinch-hitting for Steve Belvin and Eddie Curran, who are on vacation)

Denver Bronco defensive backfield coach Charlie West, a former pro football star who grew up in Big Spring, shared some insight during a telephone interview Thursday afternoon.

"If you discover you've got it," he said about a young athlete analyzing his or her own talent, "be nappy for it and go for it."

However, the former feared kick returner cautions young persons not to let "an unattainable goal" crush them.

"Let it happen if it happens. The odds are stacked against you trying to make it as a professional athlete," West said from the Broncos training camp in Greeley, Colo. as they prepare for the upcoming NFL season.

West played football and baseball at Big Spring High School in the early 1960s.

He remembers being a two-way player for the Steers. Odessa Permian was the team to beat, he remembered, but Central High School in San Angelo was usually league champion.

West attended a junior college in San Angelo for one year before journeying to El Paso and attending Texas Western College, soon to be called The University of Texas at El Paso.

Following an inclination and feeling as though something would probably "happen," he decided in 1965 to tryout for the Texas Western Miner football team as a walk-on.

Something happened alright. West became part of what he called "a very talented group of players" that for some odd reason, landed in El Paso.

As a little boy growing up in El Paso who revered college football and speaking in behalf of old diehard Miner football fans, we couldn't have been more delighted.

It was the last time the Miner football program experienced any glory. They defeated a favored Texas Christian University team in the 1966 Sun Bowl. Two years later, they defeated a heavily favored University of Mississippi team.

Number 40, West played an instrumental role in that success. Hometown crowds in the Sun Bowl would rise to their feet as he stood back alone, ready to receive an opponent's fourth down punt.

Most opponents didn't score against the Miners during those years. West made sure of that as he roamed in the defensive backfield. He earned all-American honors following his last season with the Miners in 1968.

Those Miner teams won nearly 83 percent of their games during the 1966, 1967 and 1968 seasons, West said. They made national news and sent a host of players to the pro ranks.

Players such as Freddie Carr who starred with Green Bay Packers, the late Chuck Hughes of the Detroit Lions, George Daney with the Kansas City Chiefs and Bob Wallace with the Chicago Bears.

West didn't do too bad himself. He was drafted by the Minnesota Vikings where he starred for six years and earned All-Pro NFC honors. During his stint with the Vikings, he played in two Super Bowls.

He also is one of three NFL record holders to return a punt back 98 yards for a touchdown which was done Nov. 3, 1968 against the Washington Redskins.

He played four seasons with the Detroit Lions before being traded to the Denver Broncos in 1978.

Speaking about a professional athlete's image that's been tarnished recently by numerous drug abuse reportages, West said realistically players are like any other persons.

However, an athlete in the pro ranks has to develop a professional image whether he or she likes it or not, West said.

"There are certain responsibilities inherent for making it at the professional level," West said. America's role model of athletes taking care of their bodies and disengaging themselves from any type of substance abuse is one of those responsibilities, he said.

I told West I could keep conversing with him all afternoon, but was aware he was due back on the practice field.

The Broncos have set a realistic goal during their training camp, he tells me, and that is to be one of two teams in the 1987 Super Bowl.

"We honestly feel like its attainable," West said.

Like much of what former Steer Charlie West thought was attainable for himself, the Broncos probably will attain their goal.

Big Spring All-Star girls advance in softball play

Big Spring girls made a very respectable showing this weekend in Andrews at the West Texas Area State Regional Tournament of the United Girls Softball Association.

Local All-Star teams from Divisions I, II, and IV will move on to the national tournament that will be held in Monahans beginning Wednesday through Saturday, said Gladys Custer, Division I All-Star coach.

Big Spring Division I All-Stars qualified for the national tournament by finishing in second place. They lost a 14-13 heart-breaker to Lovington, N.M., Saturday morning. The game extended into a 6th inning after both teams were tied 13-13 after 5.

"We had some excellent hitting from Jackie Martinez who had a triple and two singles," Custer said.

She also credited relief pitcher

Tawanna Ayala's performance.

The All Stars lost the second game of the double elimination tournament again to Lovington, 16-4.

Custer said the game was played under intense heat conditions and she had to pull two of her All-Stars, Heather James and Arnie Jones.

She again credited the hitting of Martinez and Sandy Franco.

The Big Spring Division II All-Stars qualified for the national tournament by defeating Lovington, N.M., 23-11 and 10-5.

Custer reported the creditable performances turned in by E.D. Barnett, Kristen Payer, and Karma Morrow. She said Morrow was installed in each game "when they needed the outs."

Payer was reported to have turned in a defensive gem in the 1st inning of the first game when she relayed a throw from the outfield that nabbed a Lovington base runner at home plate.

In addition to steadily hitting the ball during her turns at bat, catcher Kayla Roberts initiated a double play in the second game.

Tessa Olague and Joanne Rodriguez turned in some "steady hitting," throughout the tournament, Custer said.

Big Spring Division III coach Jim Crenshaw did not report results from his team's tournament play.

Big Spring Division IV will compete in this week's national tournament play. They finished second after losing a championship playoff game to Andrews, 9-8.

They earned the right to play Andrews in the best-of-three championship by mauling Kermit 16-0, Friday night.

Cheryl Alcantar turned in the shutout pitching performance. Jan-cy Cunningham had a homerun to lead the hitting attack.

Other notable hitting performances were registered by Amanda Solis and Sheri Myrick, Custer said.

The All-Stars lost to Andrews, 10-9, Saturday morning. They remained alive, however, when they fought back for 6-5 winning performance hours later.

Andrews won the nip-and-tuck championship by defeating Big Spring 9-8 in the playoff game.

Big Spring All Stars named to divisional all-tournament teams were Tawanna Ayala, Jackie Martinez and Laurel Shelton in Division I; Kristen Payer, Karma Morrow, and Tessa Olague in Division II; and Jancy Cunningham, Sheri Myrick, Amanda Solis, and Cheryl Alcantar in Division IV.

Kristen Payer was named the Most Valuable Player in Division II.

Coach plans to throw pigskin at Texas Tech

(Sports Editor Steve Belvin conducted the following interview with newly appointed Texas Tech Head Football Coach David McWilliams who was in Big Spring last week participating in Texas Tech Day.)

Q: Did you think you would get the job at Texas Tech?

A: It's always been a job I've wanted to have, even back when I was at Abilene High School. I felt like Texas Tech would be a good coaching job. To be honest with you, I really didn't know. I knew I had a chance with Coach Jones being there. But I really didn't know. Coach Jones coached me while I was there at Texas.

Q: Did you ever have dreams of becoming the head coach at the University of Texas?

A: No not really. I just hoped I had the opportunity to become a head coach in the Southwest Conference. If I had got the job at UT it would have been great, but the school I always wanted to coach at is Texas Tech.

Q: Would you call the head coaching job at UT one of the most prestigious jobs in college football?

A: I don't know, I think the job I've got now is pretty prestigious.

Q: Are you going to take over the defense or will you switch to being offensive coordinator?

A: I'll pretty much stay out of it. Spike Dykes will be in charge of our defense. Spike and I are good friends, we kind of have the same feeling about how the defense should be played. I don't need to be involved there. John Mize will be our offensive coordinator. My philosophy is you go out and hire good coaches to handle that and turn it over to them.

Q: Is there any truth to the saying that defensive coaches don't make good head coaches because they're not offensive-minded enough?

A: I think it's a bunch of bull myself. I think when you coach defense you probably have a better understanding of how offenses attack defenses. What you do offensively, you have a little better feeling about coverages and all, than someone who never studied defenses.

Q: Was coaching linebackers your favorite job?

A: I enjoyed coaching linebackers. I think my biggest love was being the defensive coordinator and being involved in the whole program as far as what you do defensively and making calls defensively. I enjoyed that the best.

Q: Who are some of the best defensive players you ever coached?

A: Oh I tell you it's hard because we've had some great ones at Texas. Jeff Leiding at linebacker, Tye Allard at linebacker, Mossy Cade in the secondary, Brad Shearer at defensive tackle, Kenneth Sims at defensive tackle. It a good long list and I'm very proud of it let me tell you.

Q: Everyone you've been involved with says you have a great rapport with your squad. What's the key to having that?

A: I think if the players know that you are honestly trying to talk to them and you are interested in what they do, not only football wise, academically, and also interested in what they do with their personal lives, it's not hard to talk to them as long as they know you have their best interests at heart. That it's not something that you are doing to gain confidence, that it's something you do because you are honestly interested in them. You'll have good rapport with them.

Q: What is going to be your feeling when you play Texas this season?

A: I don't think it's any question when you play someone that you worked for and played for, you'll have added interest to win that game. I think as far as my feelings, I feel like the good thing is I certainly will be intimidated because I've been involved in that program. It's a good program, I'd like for our program to be on the same level as Texas. It's no doubt about it, I'll be looking forward to playing that game.

Q: Having been the defensive coordinator at Texas, will that give you an edge when you play?

A: I think it will be an advantage. Certainly it will give us a chance offensively to know a little bit about what they are doing on defense. Hopefully it will turn out to be a big edge.

Q: Can Texas Tech recruit on the same level as say Texas, Baylor or A&M?

A: I think Tech can recruit on the same level as those teams. You go back and look at the whole history of Tech, if they didn't recruit top players, then you say something's wrong. That not true because they have recruited well at Tech because they've won some games. I think if you go out and have a successful season, win some games and play well, the recruiting will come around.

David McWilliams, newly appointed head football coach at Texas Tech University, takes a chip shot at Big Spring Country Club last week during Texas Tech Day.

Q: Why does Tech recruit so much out of West Texas?

A: I think you have to survive in West Texas to be at Texas Tech. You've got to be able to go out and recruit well in West Texas. We've dedicated ourselves to making a concentrated effort to recruit in the West Texas area. We had some success doing it and it's going to get better and better for us.

Q: What are some of the offensive and defensive changes you plan on making?

A: Defensively we're really not going to change anything. I think Tech has been an excellent defensive football team. Spike Dykes and I have always kind of agreed on what we do defensively. We'll basically do the same thing at Tech what we did at Texas. Offensively I felt that our personnel was such that we need to throw the ball a lot more. We'll go to a throwing type offense and utilize what we think our strengths are.

Q: Are you in favor of mandatory drug testing of college players?

A: I really am because I think because if nothing else, it will let you know if something's wrong. That's what's so good about the tests. You can find out if there's a problem and there might be time to do something about it. Drug testing is good from the standpoint that perhaps we can save one player from death or getting into a bad situation that could ruin his life.

Rangers ride victorious; Astros lose

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Former reliever Don Carman, 5-2, continued to pitch well as a starter, allowing two runs on six hits in six innings. The Astros lost their second straight after a seven-game win streak.

Jeff Stone tripled and scored on a groundout for Philadelphia's first run. The last two came on homers by Von Hayes and Gary Redus. Hayes ran his hitting streak to 10 games.

Rangers 8, Indians 5

Scott Fletcher's RBI double, Pete Incaviglia's run-scoring single and a two-run error by Cleveland left fielder Mel Hall powered a fifth-inning rally that gave the Texas Rangers an 8-5 victory over the Indians Saturday night.

Giants 9, Pirates 0

Steve Carlton allowed only three hits, all singles, in seven shutout innings for his first victory since June 1 as the San Francisco Giants beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 9-0

Saturday.

Cardinals 4, Padres 2
St. Louis won its fifth straight behind Greg Mathews, who scattered eight hits over 6 1-3 innings. Curt Ford's double highlighted a three-run first inning. Mathews, 6-2, struck out one and walked one in handing San Diego its seventh loss in eight games.

Cubs 9, Dodgers 4

Chicago's Shawn Dunston had four RBI on a homer, double and single, and pitcher Dennis Eckersley had a game-winning RBI with a two-run double. Eckersley, 4-6, allowed four runs in seven innings. Greg Brock had three RBI for Los Angeles on a home run and a sacrifice fly.

Braves 4, Mets 3

Ted Simmons' sacrifice fly in the ninth inning scored Ken Griffey, who had led off with a double and advanced to third on Ozzie Virgil's infield single.

The victory snapped New York's three-game winning streak and ended a three-game losing streak for the Braves, who have lost 14 of their last 17. The victory went to Paul Assenmacher, 4-2. Roger McDowell, 8-5, lost in relief of Dwight Gooden.

Reds 7, Expos 6

Bo Diaz drew a two-out, bases-loaded walk in the ninth inning from Bob Sebra, driving in his fourth run of the game. Diaz put the Reds ahead 6-5 in the eighth with a solo homer, but Montreal tied the score in the eighth.

Orioles 2, White Sox 1

Baltimore rookie first baseman Jim Traber, subbing for the injured Eddie Murray, singled in the winning run with two strikes and two out in the bottom of the ninth inning of a game marred Saturday by a bench-clearing brawl.

The Orioles' Rick Dempsey ignited the melee in the sixth inning of the 2-1 victory, after he was hit with a curveball by Gene Nelson of the White Sox. Dempsey, Baltimore pitcher Ken Dixon and Chicago third base coach Doug Rader, with whom Dixon tangled, were ejected.

Twins 8, Yankees 4

Tom Brunansky and Tim Lardner had three hits each and Kent Hrbek hit his 22nd homer as Minnesota banged out 15 hits in support of Frank Viola and rookie Allan Anderson, 3-3, in a game delayed nearly two hours by rain.

Angels 4, Red Sox 1

Mike Witt, 10-7, spaced five hits over eight innings, and Doug DeCinces and Bobby Grich homered in the fourth inning for California. Donnie Moore pitched the ninth for his ninth save. Boston, losing for the ninth time in 12 games, got a homer from Rich Gedman.

A's 2, Blue Jays 0

Eric Plunk pitched two-hit ball for six innings, surviving seven walks, and three Oakland relievers were perfect as the A's won their sixth straight. Jose Canseco raised his major-league-leading RBI total to 81 with a single in the third. Joaquin Andujar, in his first regular-season relief appearance since 1983, got the save.

Does the Southwest Conference have as many scandals as rumored?
 A: Well I don't think so. I think that there's some of it — no question about it because it's been proven. I think the schools in the conference and the NCAA should say, we need to get together and straighten this thing out, let's get it cleaned up, let's do what we need to do. I think it will eventually happen.
Who's going to be the top team in the SWC this season?
 A: I think A&M has to be one of the top teams. They've got a great number of lettermen returning. They had a great bowl game. My top three picks are A&M, Baylor and Arkansas. As far as Tech, I think we've got the personnel to be up near the top.

Editor's Note
 David McWilliams was named head football coach at Texas Tech during the spring.
 In an announcement by Texas Tech Athletics Director T. Jones, McWilliams became the 11th head football coach in the school's 60-year history.
 McWilliams, 43, has served on the University of Texas staff for the past 16 seasons, including the last four as defensive coordinator. During that time he was known for his knowledge of the game and the great rapport he had with the players.
 McWilliams' 1983 Texas defense led the nation in total defense and finished second in pass defense and fourth against the rush. During his four years as defensive coordinator, he had five All-Americans and 10 All-Southwest Conference performers (not counting this season).

 A native of Cleburne, McWilliams lettered three years at Texas as a center-linebacker. He was tri-captain of the 1963 national championship team that defeated Roger Staubach's Navy team in the 1964 Cotton Bowl game. He graduated in 1964 with a major in mathematics.
 He started his coaching career as an assistant coach at Abilene High and after two seasons was elevated to head coach in 1966. He compiled a 21-17-2 record during his four years to run the program.
 He came to Texas as assistant freshman coach in 1970 and after one season was elevated to defensive end coach. He worked closely with Darrell Royal and Mike Campbell until Royal retired after the 1976 season.

 McWilliams was retained by Fred Akers but was moved to linebacker coach in 1977. After taking over as defensive coordinator in 1982, McWilliams continued to work with the linebackers.
 During his 15 seasons to work with the Texas varsity, the school was 130-42-3 with six conference championships and 14 bowl appearances.
 David and his wife, Cindy, are the parents of three sons and one daughter—Dennis, Corby, Hunter, and Summer.

A dream come true

Mother and daughter's dream soon to be a reality

By CARLEEN EVERETT
Lifestyle Editor
Fran Cullins and Susan Smith are making their dreams come true.

Fran, 45, and her daughter Susan, 23, attend Howard College and are enrolled in the LVN (licensed vocational nurse) program. They will on Aug. 21 from a one-year program that became a two-year ordeal.

"I've wanted to be a nurse since I was a kid," Fran said.

But it took a while before she could pursue her dream. She has four children ranging in age from 15 to 25 and raised them by herself, she said.

"My husband works for an oil company and has to travel and live all over the world. He comes home (to the United States) for vacations," she said. "My children were raised in Africa and Spain. Two of them graduated from high school in Mallorca, Spain."

Fran, who is originally from Houston, knew when she came back to the United States that she wanted to come back to Texas, so the family moved to El Paso, she said.

It was in El Paso that she and and began again in February of this year."

Susan explained her reasons for wanting to be a nurse: "After I had my first child I needed a job, but I didn't have any skills. June Stone, instructor for the LVN department, makes me feel like Florence Nightengale. She gives us a lot of confidence. They (the instructors at Howard College) have peaked my interest in nursing. Before it was a way to put food on the table."

After graduation, Fran and Susan would like to work at Malone-Hogan Hospital.

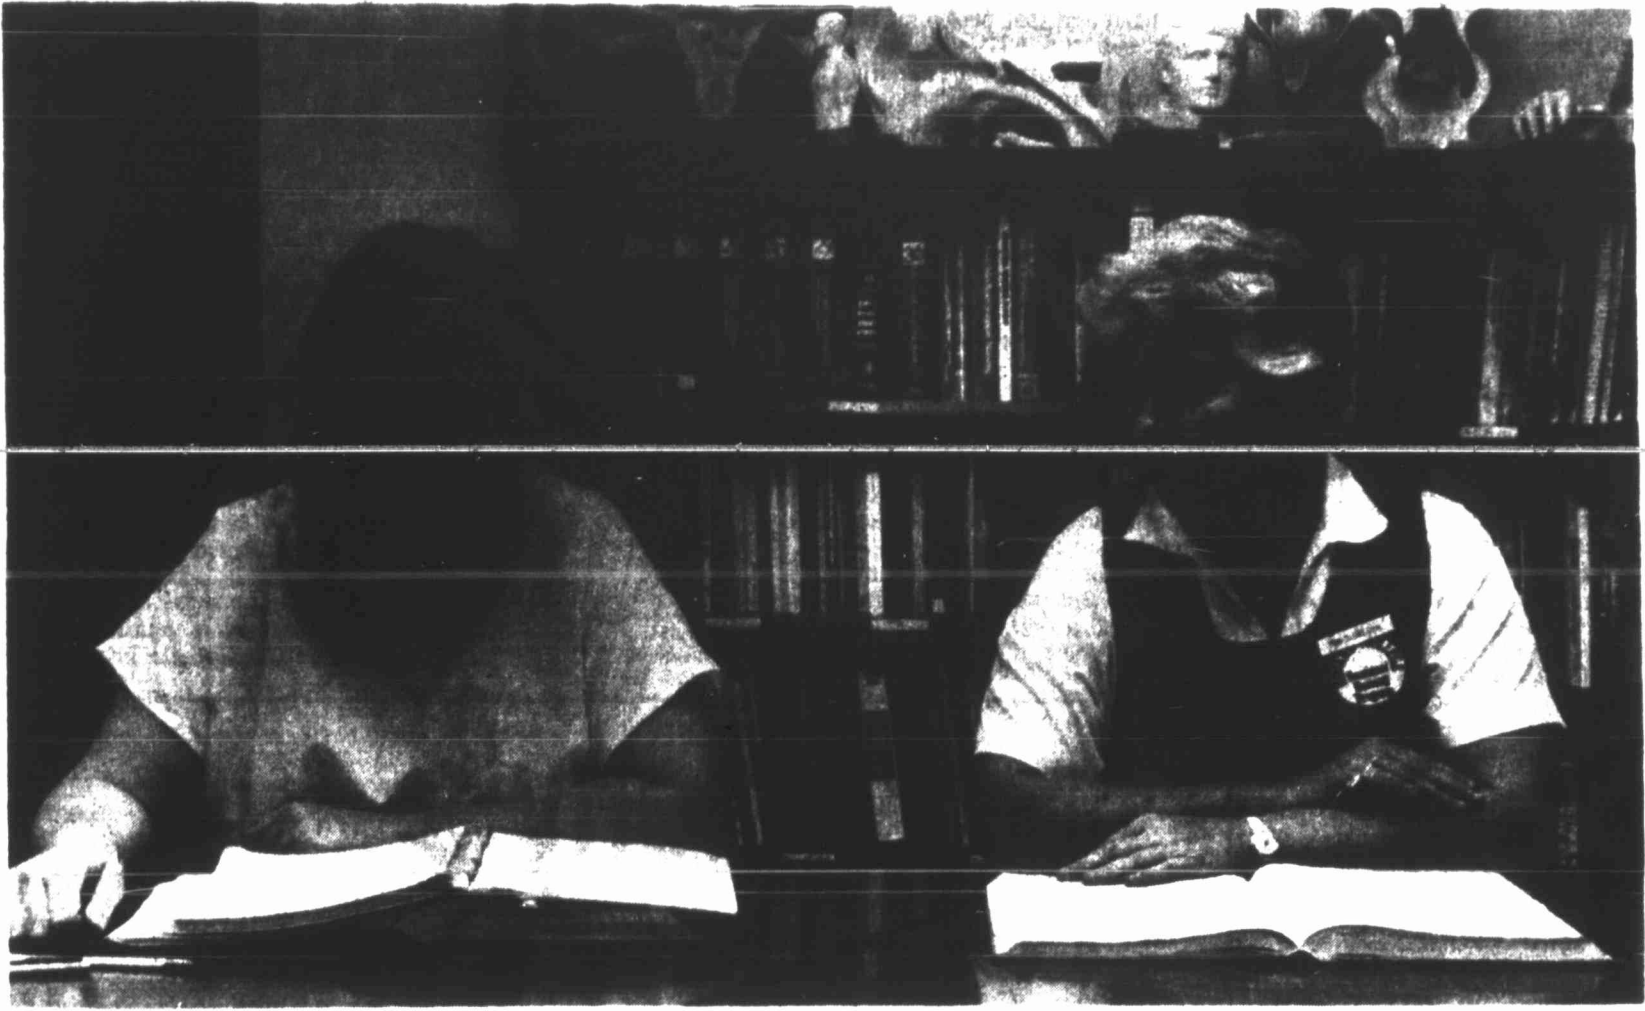

"I love this hospital," Fran said. "But we're a package deal. I have the intelligence and she (pointing to her daughter) has the skills."

"A lot of people say that when you get old the first thing you lose is the color of your hair. But, I say, the first thing you lose is your courage," Fran said.

Fran is the oldest in the class, and she says she "gets away with a lot."

"I like the attention — I like having a good time. I always say: If you're not having fun — get out of it."

Working in a hospital won't be a new experience for Fran. She Susan Smith, left, and Fran Cullins mix a little business with a lot of pleasure. "We can't study together. All we do is chat, chat, chat," Susan said. After the two women graduate from the LVN program at Howard College August 21, they will continue with their education to become registered nurses.

"The biggest thrill I get out of nursing is when people recognize me somewhere and they say thank you for taking care of me."

— Fran Cullins

Susan decided to enroll in the nursing program.

"El Paso's nursing program had a waiting list for three to five years," she said. "We decided we wanted to go to a West Texas school so we called every school in the area. Howard (College) has a great reputation for state board. But we didn't even know where Big Spring was. Ramona Harris, director of the vocational nursing department, made me feel like there was no other place I could go to get my nursing degree, so we came here," she said.

Susan added, "My husband had a business in El Paso and he didn't want to leave. But me and Momma decided we wanted to go to school here — so we did. He couldn't stand it and came about a month later," she said, laughing.

"We started nursing school in 1984 and Susan got pregnant and I got sick," Fran said. "We dropped out in February of '85 has worked in the business office and has been involved in volunteer work and private psychiatric work. The latter is the area she says she'd like to work in.

After graduation, Fran and Susan will go into the RN (registered nurse) program, which will take 18 months, they said.

The difference between an LVN and an RN is "an RN has more prestige and gets more pay," Susan said.

As students, they work at Malon-Hogan Hospital as part of their training. "We can't do anything in the vein, but we do everything else: make beds, give bed baths and clean up messes," Fran said.

"The key ingredient to nursing is personality — compassion and caring — and treating the person like they're sick," Fran said. "Of course skill is important, but the other factors really make a good nurse."

"It's important to keep the people going," Susan said. "A kind word goes a long way. It helps their spirits."

"The biggest thrill I get out of nursing is when people recognize me somewhere and they say thank you for taking care of me," Fran said.

The taboo Fran and Susan both vow to avoid is "nurse burnout," they said.

"When a person gets to that point they should do something different, either change floors or get out of it," Fran said.

There is a lot of pressure and stress involved in nursing, she added. But it's important to get out of it before you get crabby and take it out on the patients.

"If I can't be a good nurse, I won't be a nurse. I'll go home and play with my kids," Susan said.

They both admit it is difficult to separate their emotions from their job. "I can't," Susan said. "When people die or when the patients call me names or chew me out, it bothers me."

Fran said she doesn't mind the name calling, but it hurts her when people die. "You feel so helpless. It's hard when you can't do a thing for their family," she said.

Fran wants to get into nursing because she likes people. "I think they're frightfully interesting."

Although they are mother and daughter, attend school together and live in the same town, they admit that they can't study together. "All we do is chat, chat, chat," Susan said.

They've also lightened up on the studying. "When we first began the program, Mom always had the book open. Now we have a good time and don't kill ourselves," Susan said.

Neither would like to become a doctor, they said. "I don't want people calling me up at 3 in the morning," Susan said.

The medical profession has definitely run in the Cullins family. Fran's 15-year-old son, Chuck, wants to work as a physician's assistant; Susan's husband, Daniel Smith, wants to work in hospital electronics; and Fran's oldest son, Terry, 25, works at the Big Spring State Hospital.

Bicycle surgeon takes his time to repair two-wheelers

By RICK SMITH
Sherman Democrat

DENISON, Texas (AP) — Forget axe murderers and atomic weapons.

Never mind Libyan terrorists or killer tarantulas. There is not a more destructive force on the face of earth than a 12-year-old boy on a bicycle, Flynn B. McStay Sr. says.

He should know. For 25 years McStay, 76, known to two generations of Grayson County bicyclists as Mac, has reaped the fruits of frenzied cyclists.

His shop is littered with the debris of daredevil bikers: bent wheels, broken handlebars, snapped spokes.

"Nothing can tear something up faster than a 12-year-old boy," Mac says, settling back to poke spokes into a shiny new wheel.

"Nothing, I hate to even sell a bike to a kid younger than 13 because I know it'll be right back in here the next week."

Mac has seen it all: bikes that have jumped Evel Knievel-style from homemade ramps; bikes that have forded too many creeks and jumped too many curbs and plunged down too many unpaved alleys.

Mac's informal backyard shop is a hospital for hopeless two-wheelers.

What others destroy in haste, he fixes with patience and persistence and a tool chest of tricks. Gently, he straightens pretzeled wheels.

Carefully, he replaces snapped cranks. Working as slowly and steadily as a President's brain surgeon, he transplants BB-sized ball bearings into old bikes.

Bicycles, he says, have taught him patience. When he was a young man, Mac dreamed of driving trucks, of roaring fast down endless highways in huge, quick machines.

When he was younger, he drove trucks for different companies.

But driving the fast lane, the thousands of bumps and jars and jolts that a trucker takes, took their toll on Mac.

When he left the road, he was looking for a slower pace.

First he tried sharpening saws in the shop behind his house.

And then a Dallas salesman sold him on the idea of fixing and peddling bicycles.

"As long as there are 12-year-old boys," the salesman told him, "you'll have business."

"He was right," Mac says, shaking his head. Broken one-speeds, busted 10-speeds, all wait their turn under a tree outside Mac's shop.

Patience, he says. He'll get to them when he can. Dozens of Denison boys have grown up hanging around Mac's shop, learning to fix flats and tighten spokes and fine tune derailleurs.

Over the years he has watched, a little sadly, as they grow older and gradually forsake their Schwinn and Huffy and Columbias for Fords and Chevys and Mazdas.

"Everyone's in a hurry," says Mac, spinning a wheel and studying the steady click, click, click the ratcheting freewheel makes.

"A kid, by gosh, could buy a darn good bicycle for the price of car insurance."

"But kids are sold on cars when they get older. Bicycles are slower than cars, but what's the hurry? 'What's the by gosh hurry?'"

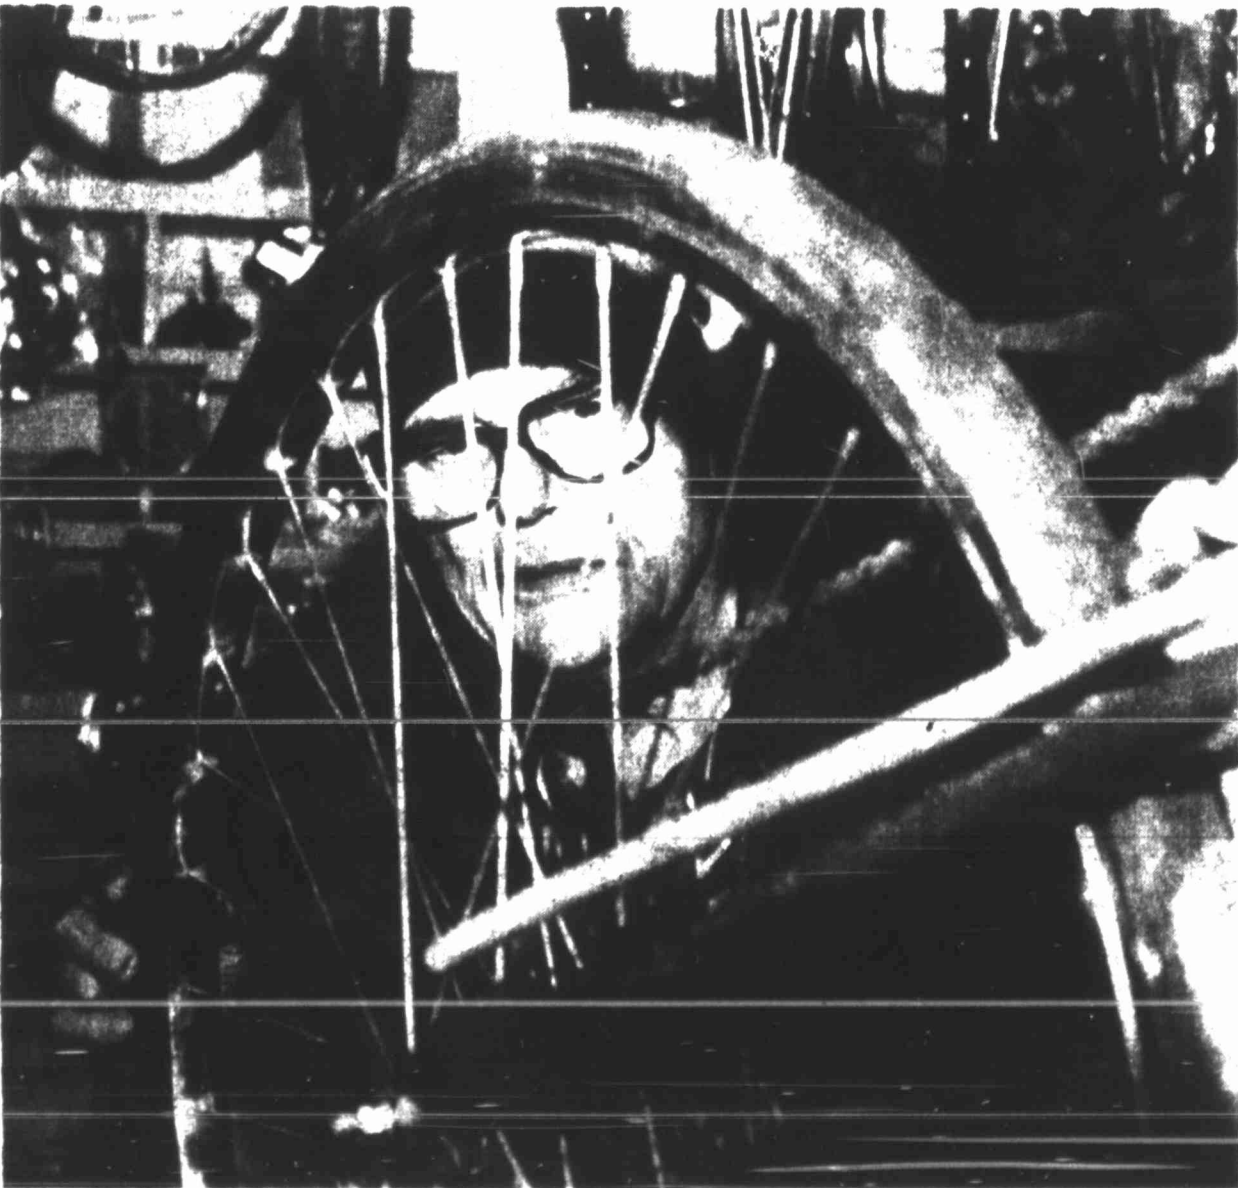

He recalls, painfully, one of his favorite disciples, a boy he nicknamed "Chainbreaker."

Mac could teach Chainbreaker how to mend a broken bike, but he couldn't give him his patience. The boy graduated from pedal-power to a motorcycle and was killed in a collision with an automobile.

"If I'd known what was going to happen, I'd never have let him leave this shop. I'd have cut every wire on that motorcycle."

Mac stares at the gaggle of bikes outside his shop for a moment, then turns slowly back to the wheel he is lacing.

"I guess boys will always be in a hurry to get somewhere," he says. "All you can by gosh do is fix their bicycles and hope for the best."

Flynn McStay, above, peers through the spokes of a bicycle he is repairing at his shop in Denison recently. For 25 years, he has reaped the fruits of frenzied cyclists.

Weak abdominals cause back pain Wedding

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I'm a baseball coach. I've seen a promising season go down the drain from injuries. Most of them involved complaints of low back pain. I've insisted on conditioning, something a lot of other coaches don't do, frankly. So I am all the more mystified by this rash of back problems. What can be done to avoid the problem? — N.N.

If I had to guess, I'd say you have not been emphasizing exercise to strengthen the abdominal muscles. Trainers have found that weak abdominals can lie behind much low back pain. Underused abdominal muscles sag and permit the lower back to curve inward. You can note this exaggerated curve if the athlete stands flat against a wall. The little hollow made by the lower back will be deeper than it should be.

Bent-knee sit-ups are a good way to check out this weak abdominal muscle idea. Have your players (the ones without present back pain) do bent-knee sit-ups at the rate of 25 per minute. Those who can't do the 25 have weak abdominals. They need a program to strengthen them. And for that, you might even begin with the bent-knee sit-up itself.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I like your little acronym, FIT, to explain how to go about setting up a good fitness training program. Hope you don't mind if I use it. It helps explain it all so well. — Mrs. L.O.

FIT is not my acronym. It's a common one used by many in exercise medicine. I can't at the moment give you the name of the person who coined it, but I agree with you that it is an apt one.

Let me define it for other readers once more:

"F" stands for frequency of exercise. Generally, that means you have to do the exercise three times a week.

"I" stands for intensity, which really refers to how high the exercise raises the heart rate. As an example, it requires that a 36-year-old man raise his heart beat to between 136 and 150 and keep it there for a specific time.

And that's the "T" part of the acronym. The time of the exercise duration has to be at least 15 minutes.

Now all of this has to be tailored for each individual, depending on age and present state of conditioning. But FIT, as outlined, should be the initial goal of training once the person's doctor has approved the program.

You should not rush your people

Dr. Donohue

Will they diminish the strength of the stroke? The answer to that is, no, and it's been proven.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I want to be a long-distance runner. What is the ideal weight for such running? — S.K.H.

I'm sure you mean to ask if there is a formula for the perfect long-distance runner. There is, sort of. But realistically, we know that the runner's training program will (or should) get him to the ideal weight for HIM.

But there is, as I said, a formula of sorts. Generally, a successful distance runner's weight (in pounds) is about twice the height (in inches). Most good runners have only 7 percent body fat.

FOR R.J.C. — Arteriosclerosis is artery hardening. Atherosclerosis is the most common cause, a buildup of fat substances in the artery walls. Athero means fat, sclerosis the hardening. There are other, rarer forms of hardening, but the kind you want to watch out for is atherosclerosis.

Not all back pain originates in the back. In his newest booklet, Dr. Donohue explains the spine, its muscles and nerves and how you can help yourself avoid back problems or ease those you may already have. For a copy of the new booklet, "Backache and Spine Problems," send $1.00 and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Women of today need special nutrients to remain healthy

By NAOMI HUNT
County Extension Agent

To meet the many demands at home and in the workplace, you'd think that most women would want to be in the best possible state of health.

Evidently, this is not the case. Research studies indicate that today's woman is not getting sufficient amounts of certain vitamins and minerals, including calcium, iron, vitamin B-6 and folacin.

Although women are smaller than men, those of child-bearing age need about twice as much iron. Iron is a mineral required to form hemoglobin, the oxygen-carrying part of the blood.

Without enough iron, iron-deficiency anemia results. Symptoms of iron-deficiency anemia include fatigue, paleness, dizziness, weakness, sensitivity to cold and reduced work capacity.

Focus on family

Foods rich in iron include meats, dry beans, green leafy vegetables and enriched breads and cereals. Iron is absorbed better from meals when a source of ascorbic acid is also included, such as tomatoes or citrus fruit. Some women who don't eat enough iron-rich foods may need an iron supplement.

Many women take in only half of the recommended 800 milligrams of calcium each day. This is of special concern, since many experts believe that the 800 milligram recommendation is actually too low.

Too little calcium over a long period of time is one of the main factors linked to the painful, crippling condition called osteoporosis. Calcium is lost from bones, so they become very fragile and break with the slightest movement. The condition most often shows up in elderly women.

Osteoporosis may be prevented by a calcium-rich diet and regular exercise. Milk and milk products are the best sources of calcium.

Two and three-fourths cups of milk provide enough calcium to meet the current recommendation for 800 milligrams per day.

Non-dairy sources of calcium include collard and mustard greens and salmon and sardines with edible bones.

Many women may be lacking in some vitamins in their diets which affect their health and well-being. Folacin, a vitamin needed to build red blood cells, has been shown to be low in some women's diets. This vitamin is found especially in liver, yeast and deep green leafy vegetables.

Another vitamin often in short supply is vitamin B-6. It is needed to form enzymes that help the body use proteins for building and repair. Vitamin B-6 is found in meat, liver, wheat germ, whole grain cereals, soybeans, peanuts and corn.

The best source of all these nutrients is food — not vitamin pills or supplements. Eating a variety of foods from the basic food groups daily can help every woman insure that she is not missing any of these necessary nutrients.

Vegetable Calorie Count

For high nutritional value — and a low calorie count — vegetables simply can't be beat. For example, one-half cup of most watery vegetables, such as asparagus, green beans, tomatoes, summer squash or broccoli contains a mere 25 calories.

Lettuce, radishes, celery and raw greens are so low in calories that you can eat them freely, even if you're on a weight-loss diet.

A half cup of most starchy vegetables — potatoes, winter squash, peas, corn and lima beans, provides less than 100 calories. That's no more than the calories in a tablespoon of butter or oil.

And speaking of butter — or margarine, oil-based salad dressing, sour cream or cream sauce — that's how vegetables become transformed into high calorie foods.

She appeared in two scenes in which she dressed in casual attire — jeans and a top.

The show will air sometime in September.

Felecia and her husband, Cody, will move to Dallas August 1 where she will pursue a career in entertainment and he will work on his

Tips to clean your grill

From BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS

Do you get burned up over cleaning your grill. To avoid flare-ups — of your temper, that is — Better Homes and Gardens offers these tips to make a necessary chore easier, faster, and less messy.

Get a head start: — Line the inside of the firebox with heavy foil. Why heavy foil? Because when you've finished the grilling and the ashes have cooled, you can bundle up the foil and throw it away — ashes and all. The heavy foil is stronger and less likely to tear and make a mess.

— An ounce of prevention is worth a lot of scrubbing. Spray the cold grill rack with a nonstick vegetable spray coating before cooking.

Tricks for the cleanup crew: — Remove the rack from over the coals as soon as you're done cooking. Cover both sides of the rack with wet paper towels or newspapers and let stand while you eat. Later, the burned-on food will usually wash right off. Or, fill a large tub with hot, sudsy water and put the rack in the water to soak while you eat.

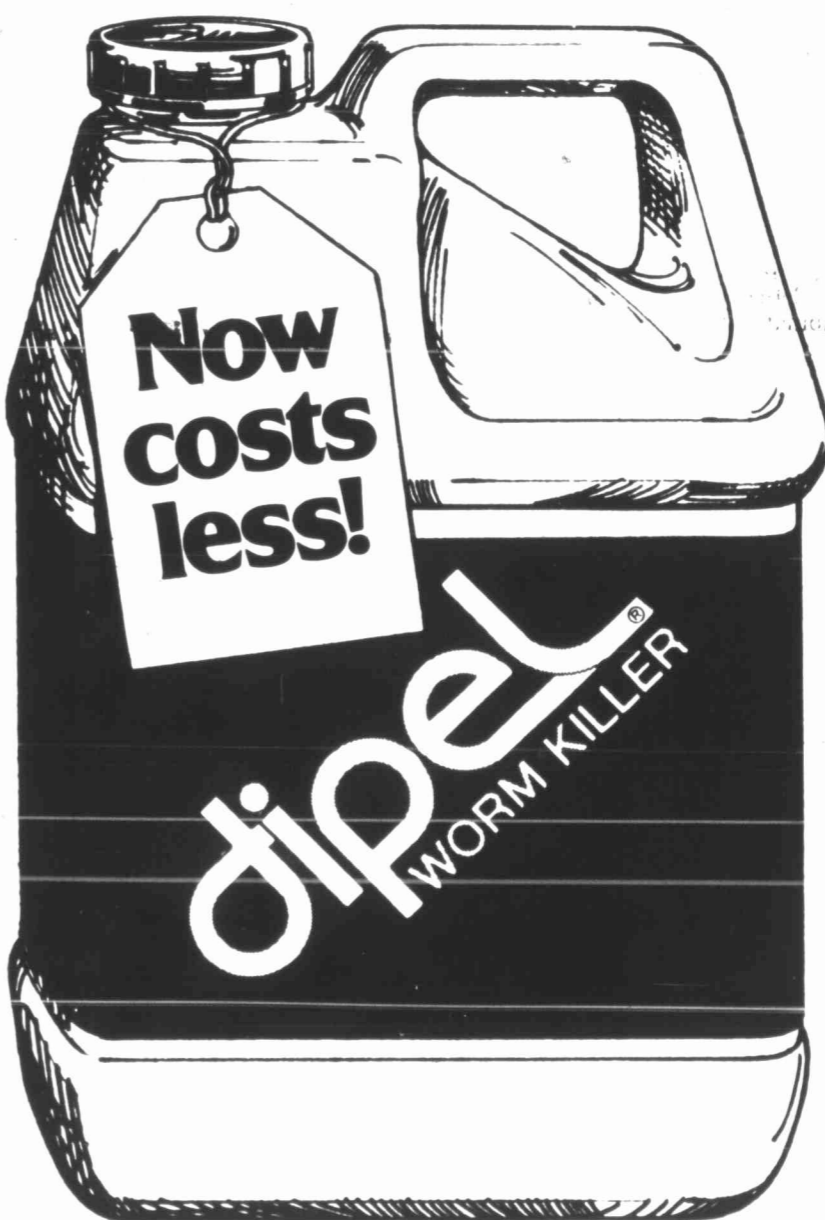

— To remove stubborn burned-on food from your grill, sprinkle dry baking soda on a damp sponge and lightly scour the grill rack. Or, scrub the grill rack with an abrasive-type cleaning pad, crumpled foil or a stiff grill brush. Read the cleaning and care directions that are supplied with your barbecue equipment before you use any cleaning products or abrasives to clean your grill rack.

TEST RESULTS ARE IN:

In an overwhelming majority of tests conducted in the Cotton Belt, in which Dipel biological insecticide was applied before conventional insecticides became necessary, increased yields and greater profits resulted.

In 5 of the Texas tests,* fields were sprayed twice and adjacent check fields remained untreated until it became necessary to go to a conventional schedule. Dipel treated fields yielded more cotton and greater profits than the fields that received only conventional treatment.

It makes sense because low cost Dipel gets to early cotton worms without harming helpful beneficials. Thus, applications of harsher chemicals can be delayed and reduced.

Dipel is a natural biological worm killer. One bite of treated foliage and worms stop feeding almost immediately and then die within a few days. Dipel has not shown worm resistance build-up, won't affect boll maturity, and is nonphytotoxic to cotton foliage. It's easy to use. In addition, Dipel has not shown harmful effects on man and his environment.

Dipel 4L and Cotton Seed Oil.
The only microbial cotton insecticide that is compatible with cotton seed oil. Mix one pint Dipel 4L to one pint cotton seed oil and apply at one quart per acre total volume of spray.

*Rates, numbers of applications and methods of application varied. A grower's actual results may vary depending on use and conditions.

*One test in Rio Grande Valley and two in the Blacklands used Dipel alone at 1/2 lb. per acre. In a Rolling Plains test applications of 1/2 lb. Dipel and 1/2 lb. chlordimeform per acre were made while 1/2 lb. of Dipel combined with 1/2 lb. chlordimeform per acre was applied in the Trans Pecos test. Aerial application was used for all tests except in the Rio Grande Valley.

Proper lawn maintenance helps to control weeds

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

One of the best means for controlling weeds in a home lawn is to maintain a dense, vigorous growing stand of turfgrass through proper fertilization, irrigation and mowing.

Thin, weak turf encourages the invasion of weeds. However, even the best kept lawns will have some weeds. To effectively control "problem" weeds in a lawn, herbicides can be used.

Effective use of chemicals (herbicides or weed killers) to control weeds in a lawn depends upon: proper weed identification, selecting the right herbicide, treating weeds when they are immature and actively growing, applying herbicides at proper rates, and observing labels for proper precautions.

It is very important that only specific herbicides labeled for use on home lawns be used to control weeds in lawns. Some herbicides come in many trade names, and not all trade names carry a label for home lawn use. Indiscriminate use of industrial strength weed killers often results in tree and shrub damage or death.

Herbicides used to control weeds in lawns can be grouped into three categories: nonselective contact sprays, selective postemergent sprays or granules and selective preemergent sprays and granules.

Glyphosate herbicides are an example of nonselective contact spray vegetation killers. Round Up, Doodson and Kleenup contain varying amounts of the active ingredient glyphosate. These herbicides are slow acting and require patience on the applicators part. Two to three weeks may be required to root kill some stubborn perennials.

Hoing or mowing top portions of the weed after applying glyphosate will negate the effectiveness of the product. Ironic as it may seem, the healthier the target weed the better the kill from glyphosate. Complete root kill also depends on the material being applied to healthy leaves for translocation to the rootzone.

Postemergent selective materials are applied shortly after the weeds are visible and when used according to the label will not damage turf. Weeds such as henbit, chickweed, dandelion, wild onion and garlic, and platinain can be controlled by postemergent treatment with 2,4-D, MCPP, dicamba or a combination of these herbicides.

Remember, for best results treat only when weeds are immature and/or actively growing. Do not use 2,4-D, MCPP or dicamba on St. Augustine in hot weather (above 85 degrees F). Dicamba should not be sprayed next to shrubs or under the drip line of trees. Some caution should also be used when using these chemicals on hybrid bermudagrass such as Tigreen and Tidwarf.

Rescuegrass (incorrectly called wild rye), goosegrass, dallisgrass and sandbar can be controlled in lawns with postemergent treatment of MSMA or DSMA. Spray when weeds are young and actively growing. Repeat applications may be needed at 7-10 day intervals if regrowth occurs. Do not use MSMA or DSMA on St. Augustine or Centipede grass. MSMA will also kill seedling goatheads or puncture vine as some people call it.

The annual grassy weeds can also be effectively controlled by preemergent treatment with Balan, Dacthal or Betasan. Check labels for specific weeds controlled by the herbicides.

It is very important that these chemicals be applied prior to germination of the weed seed. September and February applications may be necessary. If you plan

Dad's dislike for doctors creates problem

DEAR ABBY: I hope you can help me. I have been married for 10 months and am pregnant. This baby is wanted by both of us. The problem is, my husband has forbidden me to go to a doctor. I have already gone twice. Tomorrow will be my third visit. I was only able to go because I lied to my husband about where I was going.

I knew when we married that he had a hang-up about doctors, but I didn't think it would extend to me and our baby. I tried to explain to him that out of concern for my health and our baby's, I should see a doctor, but he refused to even listen to me.

He has no confidence in doctors. He even threw away my vitamin pills. I don't know where to turn. We both have jobs, and I have an excellent insurance plan, so it's not the money. I hate to keep lying to him. When he finds out I've been to a doctor — and I know he will — it will be the end of our marriage.

I am 33 years old and don't want anything to go wrong with this pregnancy. I want my husband to be part of it, but I don't know how to get through to him. Don't suggest counseling. He has no confidence in counselors either.

ME IN MARYLAND
DEAR ME: You should not have to lie to your husband about receiving prenatal care. He has all the makings of a tyrant, and you are being emotionally battered. Please see a counselor and learn how to deal with a domineering, possessive husband. If he leaves you because you are consulting a doctor to ensure your health and the health of your expected child, you might be better off without him.

DEAR ABBY: I need your advice about a situation that arose a few days ago. My husband was married to a woman who had a 5-year-old son by a previous marriage. When the boy was 8, my husband adopted him. This adopted son died a few days ago. In the obituary of our local paper, my husband's ex-wife stated that her deceased son was born to her and my husband on a certain date and in a specified city. (It was four years before my husband had even met this woman!) What was even more bizarre, my husband was not listed as one of the survivors.

This woman has been married and divorced three times since she and my husband were divorced, but she always took back his surname.

We've been married for 28 years. Should my husband ignore this flagrant fabrication, or should we ask the newspaper to print a retraction? Or is there a more appropriate solution to this situation?

UPSET IN ENID, OKLA.
DEAR UPSET: Unless it is important to your husband to publicly set the record straight, it might be wiser to let it go. But do consult a lawyer for a legal opinion.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are expecting our second child in September. My adoptive mother, who was unable to have children, has asked to be an observer in the delivery room. She has promised not to interfere in any way. She wants only to be present and share in our joy. She told me she has always felt a little cheated in not having experienced a new life coming into the world. I could tell by her eyes how important this is to her.

I would love to have her there. It's the least I can do for the woman who gave me everything but life itself. My husband feels the birth of a child is a private moment between a husband and wife, and he doesn't want to share it with anyone.

We've agreed to abide by your decision.

MY MOTHER'S DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: Since the deciding vote is mine, I'm casting it in favor of allowing your mother to be present in the delivery room. I fail to see how inviting her to share that private moment could diminish your husband's joy.

DEAR ABBY: I have a suggestion for "Hurt Grandma" whose grandchildren neglect to write thank-you notes when she sends them generous checks for special occasions.

On a grandchild's special occasion, send a generous check to St. Jude's Children's Hospital for Cancer Research in Memphis in that person's honor. You will receive a lovely, heartwarming thank-you from the grateful people at St. Jude's. And so will the honoree.

R. G.
DEAR R.G.: I know you're right. I just received one.

(Is your social life in a slump? Get Abby's updated, revised and expanded booklet, "How to Be Popular" — for people of all ages. Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to Dear Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90381.)

For your garden to do any reseeding of the lawn, do not use preemergent herbicides 90-120 days prior to seeding.

Most broadleaf weeds and annual grassy weeds in St. Augustine lawns can be controlled with Simazine or Atrazine. However, only certain weed and feed formulations containing these chemicals have a label for use in home lawns.

In general, weed and feed formulations with Simazine or Atrazine have caused more damage to desirable vegetation in West Texas than all other herbicides combined. Our low soil organic matter makes the successful use of Simazine or Atrazine difficult. Never use weed and feed combinations to fertilize trees, shrubs or vegetable gardens.

Weed control herbicides can be helpful when used properly. They can be devastating when used improperly.

CHARLES NEEFE — PATENT KING

Do you ever wonder where many of the high-tech, mind-bending, great ideas and inventions of today's technology come from? When it comes to the optical field you don't have to look any further than right here in Big Spring. Charles Neeffe is a quiet, soft-spoken local resident who has probably forgotten more about optical science than most eye care professionals, myself included, ever knew. His creativity spans more than four decades and includes 70 U.S. patents, numerous foreign patents and at least 45 pending patents. Neeffe's primary efforts have been in the optical field of contact lenses. Long ago Charles dreamed up and patented contact lens ideas that others are delving into today, crimping many notions of originality. His well-spring of genius continues to thrive. So next time you hear about some new major breakthrough in contact lens technology, chances are it might have originated right here in Big Spring with Charles Neeffe — Patent King.
