British, U.S. aim at S. Africa

Thatcher agrees to sanctions

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher today reluctantly offered to impose limited sanctions against South Africa, including embargoes on steel, iron and coal imports. Other Commonwealth leaders pressed for tougher punitive measures.

A British government source, briefing reporters on talks by seven Commonwealth leaders, said Mrs. Thatcher also offered to impose immediate "voluntary bans" on new investments in South Africa and on promoting tourism. British officials said the government had no legal power to enforce such restrictions but was prepared to set guidelines.

Her offer fell significantly short of the eight measures the other Commonwealth leaders want to impose, including cutting air links and banning imports of South African agricultural produce.

The source, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Mrs. Thatcher reiterated her opposition to both these measures and added: "This is where the case rests."

The confrontation could threaten the future of the Commonwealth, the 49-nation association of Britain and its former colonies.

The apparent deadlock came as the seven Commonwealth leaders met for the second day in a special conference focusing on a list of eight specific sanctions against South Africa. The measures would be the Commonwealth's most punitive yet against South Africa's government.

The measures were drawn up by a Commonwealth summit conference in the Bahamas last October for consideration in London if South Africa failed by mid-1986 to dismantle apartheid and start negotiations with black leaders.

The leaders of Australia, Canada, India, the Bahamas, and the African countries of Zambia and Zimbabwe lunched today at Mrs. Thatcher's 10 Downing St. residence.

They arranged to meet later in what Commonwealth officials described as private sessions.

Commonwealth Secretary of State Patsy Robertson made clear that the other leaders rejected Mrs. Thatcher's offer.

"Whatever attempts will be made this afternoon to find agreement... will not be made at the expense of Commonwealth credibility," she told reporters at a separate briefing.

Mrs. Thatcher's aides noted that the prime minister had not changed her opposition to embargoes of South African exports, but had offered the limited package as a "mark of disapproval" of apartheid.

The measures she pledged, trying for a compromise, were the least painful of embargoes now being considered internationally. Her aides said Britain would "not stand in the way" of the coal, iron and steel import ban due to be weighed by the 12-nation European Common Market next month.

Because of overproduction of the three commodities, no country would be greatly affected by such a ban.

Britain, the only Commonwealth member belonging to the Common Market, must by law agree to such embargoes with the rest of the trading bloc.

However, the eight measures drafted by the Commonwealth include, in addition to cutting air links and banning agricultural imports:

—A ban on new investment or reinvestment of profits in South Africa.

—An end to double taxation agreements.

—An end to government

Sanctions in Senate seem near

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate appears ready to adopt sanctions against South Africa, and Majority Leader Bob Dole wants to use support for that measure to help pull through a vote on aid to Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

Dole, R-Kan., fashioned the link last week after a bill to impose punitive sanctions against South Africa's white minority government emerged from the Senate Foreign Relations Committee by a 15-2 vote.

It would bar new U.S. investment and bank loans in South Africa as well as U.S. landing rights for South African airlines and the import of South African uranium, steel, coal and other items.

Dole said the vote for the measure by seven of the nine committee Republicans was a strong message to President Reagan that the GOP-controlled Senate was ready to adopt sanctions over his objections.

He said the margin of victory would be at least the two-thirds needed to override a presidential veto if Reagan chose to block the measure.

But Dole also made clear he wants a vote on aid to the Nicaraguan Contras and that he is willing to use the sanctions bill to pressure critics of the aid plan to drop any plans for a filibuster.

Reagan has been trying to win congressional approval for $100 million in mostly military assistance for the Contras, who are battling the leftist Sandinista Nicaraguan government. The measure has already been approved by the House.

Crews struggle to fix water system

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

Crews at the water plant this morning used backhoes to unearth lines and valves hoping to find the source of water pressure to a crippled valve so repairs can be made.

The malfunctioning valve has plagued the city's water system for more than three weeks, and the city's request that citizens refrain from outside water usage is still in effect.

Sunday night, workers tried to depressurize the entire water treatment plant to learn more about the enigmatic distribution system, City Manager Mack Wofford and Public Works Director Tom Decell said this morning.

The distribution system is composed of a high-side and a low-side system with 11th Street roughly dividing the two. Low-side pressure to the plant has been eliminated several times, Decell said.

But Sunday's exercise failed to contain high-side water pressure, and high-side water may be flowing back toward the malfunctioning 20-inch gate valve, Wofford said.

The city's inability to stop pressure to the malfunctioning mechanism has made it impossible to pull the valve's "guts" and cap it with a plate.

The city has been hampered in its efforts to repair the valve because of incomplete and inaccurate records of pipe and valve configurations in the water system, the men said.

No time has been set for crews to finish their search for additional lines and valves. But should this approach fail, Wofford said other options exist for correcting the problem.

One option would be to bypass the valve with an additional line, he said. Other alternatives call for inserting an inflatable device into the line feeding the valve, or using carbon dioxide to freeze water flowing to the valve.

Saturday an attempt was made to raise the gates on the valve by drilling through the valve's stem, rethreading its core and screwing a 5-foot rod into the hollowed stem.

Observers had speculated that the valve stem — engineered to raise the valve gates when turned — was broken. But after the procedure was completed, the valve gates remained down, blocking water. Those watching the operation surmised that the gates had become disconnected from the stem.

Storms hit state; 1 killed, 4 injured

DALLAS (AP) — One person was killed and four others injured as heavy rains, lightning storms and high winds zig-zagged across Texas, dousing a week-long cycle of 100 degree-plus temperatures.

A Texas Power & Light Co. lineman was electrocuted as he repaired a transformer atop a wooden pole in Irving. He was identified as Danny Wilkerson, 28, of Irving.

A Dallas Power & Light Co. repairman was injured when he was shocked while putting out portable transformers in East Dallas. The man, whose name was not released, was in fair condition at Presbyterian Hospital in Dallas.

In Dallas two firefighters on the roof of a burning apartment building Sunday were jolted by a lightning bolt that apparently hit the metal ladder they were using, said Fire Capt. Ray Reed.

Capt. L.J. Norvell and firefighter Trixie Nichols were examined and released at Presbyterian Hospital where their heart rates were monitored, said Reed. He said the two did not receive burns in the incident, which occurred about 6:20 p.m.

Another Dallas man was injured when struck by lightning in his yard. The man, who was not identified, was in stable condition late Sunday night in the intensive care unit of St. Paul Medical Center.

Reed blamed lightning as the possible cause for several Dallas fires, including the apartment blaze Norvell and Ms. Nichols were fighting.

In Southeast Texas, the Colorado County Sheriff's Office received a report of lightning striking a van and injuring its occupant. But Deputy W.R. Smith said the hospital in Columbus where the man was taken couldn't confirm that he was injured by lightning.

Smith said the area was battered by high winds, hail and lightning. "The hail was unusually large," he said.

The Dallas Morning News reported a man was hit by lightning in the yard of his home Sunday, but no further details were available.

Two tornadoes were reported in Wharton County, the first near Louise and the other just north of Wharton, causing damage to trees, signs and power lines.

The heaviest thunderstorms were in Wharton and Colorado counties, the weather service said, with most of the damage from strong winds, lightning and hail.

Fire officials in Dallas said the roof of a building collapsed under heavy rains.

Kurt Petellin, 21, gestures during a news conference in Bellingham, Wash., at daybreak Sunday, explaining details about his survival of an avalanche on Roman Wall on Mount Baker. Petellin was one of two survivors. One guide and another party member are still missing.

Two escape avalanche, two missing

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — Authorities held out little hope of saving two climbers missing on a mountain after two companions escaped an avalanche that hurled ice boulders the size of cars.

The two survivors were found Sunday morning on Mount Baker by Canadian mountain climbers, near where six people died in an avalanche in 1939.

The search for the missing guide and another member of the group resumed today after being suspended Sunday afternoon as a hot sun made the steep slopes increasingly unstable.

Rescuers "were hearing avalanches around them," said Bill Quehrn, a spokesman for the Whatcom County Department of Emergency Services and volunteer searcher.

"We'll be pulling them out of there about noon today because as the day wears on and heat builds up there becomes the probability of additional avalanches in the area," said Dave Jenkins, acting director of the Whatcom County Emergency Services.

The hunt included helicopters and dogs specially trained to locate avalanche victims.

Jenkins said the chance of finding the missing climbers is still uncertain. AVALANCHE page 2A

PRINCE FREDRICK, Md. — Insurance agent-author THOMAS LEO CLANCY JR. says following up his blockbuster bestseller, "The Hunt for Red October," won't be as easy as his first book.

PRINCESS CAROLINE
...gives birth to daughter

Clancy wrote "Red October," about a Soviet submarine captain who wants to defect and the race between the Russians and Americans to get to his craft, during spare time.

Now, the 30-year-old author had to scramble to get his recently released second book, "Red Storm Rising," in on time. He missed his Jan. 1 deadline by 10 days.

And he must stay on a tight schedule to meet the deadlines that loom for the next 1½ years. Under terms of his contract with G.P. Putnam's Sons, he must deliver "Patriot Games" next Jan. 1 and a fourth book, still untitled, a year later.

In 1985, "The Hunt for Red October" finished fifth on the paperback bestseller list and sixth on the hardcover list. He was advanced only $5,000 for the manuscript, but has made $400,000 in royalties just from the hardcover version.

He and his family are getting by on the $1 million advance he got from Putnam for his second book. He'll get $2 million more for the next two.

MONTE CARLO, Monaco — PRINCESS CAROLINE of Monaco has given birth to a baby girl, Charlotte, the second child for her and her Italian industrialist husband, Stephane Casiraghi. Charlotte was born Sunday evening, and mother and the baby are doing well, a palace statement said. Casiraghi was at his wife's side, it added.

The couple's first child, a boy, Andrea Albert Pierre, was born June 8, 1984.

Caroline, the eldest daughter of Prince Rainier and the late Princess Grace, married Casiraghi in December 1983.

Since the death of her mother, the former American actress Grace Kelly, in a car accident in 1982, Caroline had assumed the role of leading lady in this tiny principality on eastern edge of the

NEW YORK — Model and actress LAUREN HUTTON appears nude in next month's Penthouse magazine in photos taken 24 years ago, before the publication existed.

The magazine, which published nude photos of then-Miss America Vanessa Williams in 1964 and rock singer Madonna in 1985, says it got the seven black-and-white photos of Ms. Hutton from photographer Norman Nathan, who took them in 1962. Penthouse was founded in 1968.

Nathan said through a publicist that it was 15 years before he realized that the model who introduced herself as "Mary Hall" was Ms. Hutton.

A spokesman for Ms. Hutton, Michael Menchel of Creative Artists, was out of his office and unavailable for comment Sunday. Earlier, he told the New York Daily News that he would have no comment.

NEW YORK — LUCILLE BALL, returning to weekly television after 12 years, says "Lucy" is the same as ever even though she'll be 75 on Wednesday.

"To her, nothing is impossible, she's going for it. This show is Lucy at another time in her life," Miss Ball told The New York Times in an interview published Sunday.

"Life With Lucy," to be shown Saturday nights on ABC starting in late September, is about Lucy Barker, a widow and grandmother who moves into the Pasadena home of her daughter and son-in-law.

She takes over half-ownership of a hardware store run by the father of her son-in-law, played by Gale Gordon, 80, who was on "The Lucy Show" and "Here's Lucy."

Old "Lucy" shows still are being rerun. Since CBS refused to allow Miss Ball and then-husband Desi Arnaz to film in front of an audience, they decided in 1951 to borrow $5,000 and create their own space to film live. "That's how we came to own the show," Miss Ball said.

Thatcher

A ban on government procurement in South Africa.

A ban on government contracts with companies in which South African shareholders hold a majority.

A ban on the promotion of tourism to South Africa.

The two measures which would be particularly painful for both South Africa and Britain would be to cut air links and ban agricultural imports.

State-owned British Airways is a major carrier to South Africa and gets more than $1.5 million a week from flights there. Agricultural imports from South Africa to Britain, a major trading partner, run at $237 million a year.

Avalanche

Continued from page 1A ding the missing climbers alive was slim, but he did not rule out the possibility.

"The search area includes everything from sopping wet snow to huge ice blocks three to 30 feet deep, including a crevasse," Jenkins said.

"If they are trapped in a crevasse or in an area where there's air around them, if there's space where they could survive, or if they're not seriously injured, there's enough concern and hope that our people will do what we can to make sure," said Quehrn.

"We're not giving up hope," he said. "There are a tremendous number of variables here."

The rescued climbers were found by members of a mountain climbing group from the North Vancouver, British Columbia, authorities said.

Thomas W. Waller, 19, of Enumclaw, was in serious but stable condition at St. Luke's General Hospital in this town about 60 miles west of the peak, and Kurt A. Petellin, 21, also of Enumclaw, was released Sunday night.

Petellin identified the third climber as Steve Raschick, 21, of Enumclaw, and their guide only as Ian of a Bellingham group called Summit Mountaineering. There was no telephone listing for such a group, and Jenkins said he had never heard of it.

WOODS HOLE, Mass. (AP) — A Texas oil man, disagreeing with the leader of a recent expedition to the Titanic, says he's setting up a mission to gather relics from the fabled sunken luxury liner.

The agricultural import ban would threaten the jobs of thousands of blacks and mixed-race workers in South Africa.

Ms. Robertson said the Commonwealth leaders would try to reach agreement, or failing that, were likely to depart without a deal. The conference was originally due to end noon Tuesday when Indian Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi is to leave on a visit to Mexico.

Mrs. Thatcher said in October she would not agree to more sanctions, which she believes would be ineffective, would harden white South African resistance to change and would cause the most harm to South Africa's black majority.

But since the Bahamas conference, pressure has mounted on the Conservative Party leader to agree to new measures.

In a brief meeting with reporters at the hospital, Petellin, a senior at Mid-America Nazarene College in Olathe, Kan., said he, his two friends and the guide left a base camp at about 4,000 or 5,000 feet for the summit about 2 a.m. Sunday.

The avalanche occurred about daybreak, when the four were roped together with the guide in the lead. "I looked up and saw the ice shifting, I saw Ian taking off full-stride, so I took off, too," Petellin said.

Soon there were "big chunks of ice" falling.

"I started sort of swimming" — a technique he said he learned from the guide — "and came up to the top." He said he was swept about 100 feet down the mountain-side and another 75 feet down a crevasse, landing on his back.

Petellin said he got his arms free from his backpack, dug his feet out of the snow and then began putting on more clothing. He said he prayed all the way down, and Waller told him he did the same.

When the Canadians found him, "I was in the first stage of hypothermia. I was shivering violently," he said.

Jenkins said the slide occurred near the place where 30 people on a college-sponsored climb were caught by a slab avalanche in 1939. Two bodies were recovered and four never were found, he said.

Poll shows defense issues confuse public

By LAWRENCE KILMAN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A majority of Americans believe the United States can defend itself against nuclear attack, although most people cannot name the key element of that defense, according to a Media General-Associated Press poll.

The only defense the country now has against nuclear attack is deterrence: Soviet fear of a counterattack.

If an attack is launched, the United States has no way to stop incoming missiles — a weakness that prompted President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative, commonly called "Star Wars."

Six in 10 of the 1,385 adult Americans in the poll said the United States' ability to defend itself against nuclear attack was good or excellent, while only one-third believed it was fair or poor.

Forty-six percent said they did not know what was the key factor in the U.S. defense against nuclear attack. Thirteen percent cited missiles, and other weapons, 12 percent said early detection, and 5 percent said Star Wars, which exists only as a proposal.

Only 5 percent said Soviet fear of retaliation was the key factor. The rest cited other elements.

Reagan's Star Wars plan has the support of about half of Americans, but many say defense priorities should remain concerned with conventional weapons, the poll found.

Fifty-two percent said Reagan's plan to seek a space-based anti-missile defense system was necessary to counter a Soviet threat, while 24 percent opposed the plan because they felt it would intensify the arms race. The rest were unsure.

Half of those polled said that if the United States continued to increase its military budget, they would prefer to see more spent on conventional defense systems, while about 30 percent said the money should be used for Star Wars research. The rest were unsure.

Reagan startled the nation with a March 23, 1983, speech outlining a defense he said would make nuclear weapons obsolete; he later said he envisioned an "umbrella" system that would protect the United States and its allies against enemy missiles.

Critics say it would be impossible to create an impenetrable shield against attack, and the Pentagon acknowledges the concept is a distant dream. Military planners hope to start with a system that would protect U.S. missiles against surprise attack, thereby providing a further degree of deterrence.

Manhunt seeks slayer

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas — A manhunt was under way today for a condemned murderer who escaped with a female inmate after locking his jailer into a cell, authorities said.

Richard Donald "Stony" Foster, 33, and Cindy Davis, 27, who was being held on an attempted murder charge for allegedly shooting at a police officer, escaped late Sunday from the Stephens County Jail, said Sheriff James Cain.

"He was slipped a knife, probably by one of our trustees," Cain said.

Foster had been held on death row at the Ellis Unit near Huntsville for the April 1984 murder of a Springtown man, said Charles Brown, a Texas Department of Corrections spokesman.

Fires eat at northwest

Fires sparked by lightning blackened more than 93,000 acres of range and national forest in the Northwest, and fires burned out of control today in Idaho and Washington state.

About 200 firefighters worked today to rein in three blazes that had charred some 31,000 acres of southwestern Idaho grazing land, said Bureau of Land Management spokeswoman Helen Ulmschneider.

Bureau crews on Sunday extinguished a fire that consumed 4,300 acres of sagebrush and grass in the southwestern part of the state, 35 miles north of the Nevada border.

The three fires that continued to burning out of control in a four-mile area 45 miles northwest of Boise were being whipped by erratic winds up to 35 mph, Ms. Ulmschneider said.

"The way they're burning, we're just kind of at the mercy of Mother Nature right now," Boise BLM district dispatcher Pat Shanafelt said.

The flames were ripping through dry grass in steep terrain, Ms. Ulmschneider said.

Workers end walkout

DETROIT — Thousands of municipal workers began trickling back to work today after voting to end a strike that left the nation's sixth-largest city without essential services for nearly three weeks.

About 75,000 tons of uncollected garbage was to be removed beginning today and bus service for 200,000 commuters will return to normal gradually over the next few days, Mayor Coleman Young said Sunday night.

Members of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees Council 25 who rejected a pact last week voted 1,298 to 956 Sunday to accept the pact, which guarantees an 8 percent raise over three years and bonuses of $500 the first year, $200 the second year and $400 the third year.

Trash haulers returned beginning at 7:30 a.m., said Conley Abrams, director of the Department of Public Works. He said all public works operations would be open.

They are members of Teamsters Local 214 who refused to cross AFSCME picket lines.

A bulldozer cleans rubble caused by a bomb explosion today beneath the Beirut Bridge in Christian East Beirut. A 5-kilogram (11-pound) bomb ripped through a cafe frequented by card players, killing at least two people and wounding 28. It was the third bombing in East Beirut in four days.

Beirut Christian sector hit again

By RODEINA KENAAN

Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A bomb hidden in a suitcase exploded today outside a cafe next to a police station in Christian east Beirut, and police said two people were killed and 28 wounded.

The explosion at 10:25 a.m. collapsed the two-story building housing the cafe, located beneath Beirut Bridge at the entrance to the residential district of Bourj Hammoud, police said.

An army explosives expert, Chief Warrant Officer Youssef Bitar, said the 15-pound bomb was concealed in a valise placed at the entrance to the cafe, which is frequented by elderly card players and waterpipe smokers.

The dead and injured were dug out from the rubble by civil defense squads. Ambulances with sirens wailing rushed victims to hospitals from the blast scene, which was cordoned off by Christian militiamen.

Among the wounded were two men whose feet were severed by the blast. Civil Defense chief Elie Hnein said. Police said most of the casualties were Armenians.

Police said no one was injured in the police station next to the cafe.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the bombing, the third in east Beirut in four days.

An 11-pound explosive charge devastated a taxicab parking lot in the Dora business district on Friday, killing two people and wounding 24.

On Saturday, a plastic bag containing two pounds of dynamite was tossed from a speeding car in the suburban seaside district of Jal el-Deeb.

The dynamite exploded near a bakery, wounding five people and shattering windows within a 100-yard radius, including a 12-story building housing the visa section of the British Embassy.

Those attacks followed two massive car-bomb blasts that left 57 people dead and 310 wounded in Beirut's Christian and Moslem sectors last Monday and Tuesday.

No one has claimed responsibility for any of the earlier explosions in what Lebanese newspapers have dubbed "the new bombing war."

Christian spokesmen have accused Syria's secret service of engineering the bombings as part of a drive involving its leftist and Moslem allies to oust Maronite Catholic President Amin Gemayel.

Gemayel, 44, has been at odds with Syria since Jan. 15, when his supporters crushed pro-Syrian Christian rivals led by Elie Hobeika in a military showdown that left 350 people dead in east Beirut and the Christian heartland north of the capital.

Egypt asks debt help

CAIRO, Egypt — President Hosni Mubarak wants the United States to cut the interest Egypt is paying on its military debt, but was unlikely to get encouragement today from Vice President George Bush, a U.S. official said.

Bush was meeting with Mubarak on the last stop of his 10-day tour of Israel, Jordan and Egypt. The two leaders talked informally over dinner Sunday night.

The prospects for peace in the Middle East have dominated Bush's talks with Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres and Jordan's King Hussein, but were likely to share top billing in Egypt with the country's economic problems.

Says Gadhafi guilty

JOLIET, Ill. — A congressman has accused Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi of buying three Western hostages from their Lebanese captors and having them killed.

Gadhafi also wanted to buy and have killed four other hostages, including the Rev. Lawrence Martin Jenco, but their captors — members of the Moslem extremist Islamic Jihad — refused, said Rep. Robert Dornan, R-Calif.

Dornan made the allegations Saturday in Joliet after attending a homecoming celebration for Jenco, who was freed July 26 after 19 months.

"The State Department confirmed to me two days ago that Gadhafi had tried to buy Father Jenco and the other hostages with hard cash," Dornan said.

"The group holding the father turned him down. However, he (Gadhafi) was more successful with the other group that held Peter Kilburn of San Francisco. So he bought Kilburn and the two Englishmen for the sole purpose of murdering them."

Fifth dies in shop blast

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — A fifth person has died as a result of a bomb blast in a butcher shop, and two police officers were seriously wounded in an ambush in a black township, authorities said.

Meanwhile Sunday, two independent newspapers predicted that economic sanctions against South Africa are inevitable.

A white woman, identified as Denise Beets, died of injuries suffered in Saturday's bombing in Walvis Bay, a South African enclave in the territory of South-West Africa, the government Bureau for Information said Sunday.

The bomb, the deadliest in South Africa this year, also killed two blacks and two people of mixed race, and injured 23 people. The government said the explosives were left in a bag of meat in the shop.

No arrests were reported in that attack or in a limpet mine explosion Saturday that broke windows in a post office in a Cape Town suburb and slightly injured the postmaster.

The government called the bombings "terrorist acts," but blamed no specific group. No group has claimed responsibility.

Shcharanskys to leave USSR, brother reports

MOSCOW (AP) — The brother of Anatoly B. Shcharansky today said Soviet authorities have given him and his family permission to leave this month to rejoin the freed human rights activist in Israel.

"We are of course very happy," Leonid Shcharansky told The Associated Press in a telephone interview. "The happy day at last has come, and all my family's troubles are going to be at an end."

Anatoly Shcharansky, 38, was released on Feb. 11 as part of an East-West prisoner exchange after spending nearly nine years in Soviet labor camps and prisons. He now lives in Israel with his wife, Avital.

Leonid Shcharansky, 39, said the exit permits were issued last week for himself, his mother, Ida Milgrom, 77, his wife, Raya, and their two children, 14-year-old Alexander and 1-year-old Boris.

He said the family was told they must leave the Soviet Union by Aug. 23. He said they would go to Israel to join his brother.

"This is wonderful news for us," he said, but added that he didn't understand "why there is so much interest in me."

"I am not a famous dissident. I am just a dissident's brother," he said. "Of course, I worked for years on his behalf, and I guess I became known that way, but that's all I did really. It's quite funny."

Mrs. Milgrom, who had fought for her son's release during his imprisonment, wrote to the Supreme Soviet, the nation's nominal parliament, in late July to ask for help in obtaining exit visas for her family, Raya Shcharansky said.

Mrs. Milgrom complained that the government was playing a "political game" in delaying the visas, which were not issued for four months after the family applied for them, Mrs. Shcharansky said.

Visa applications in the Soviet Union often take months to be approved or rejected, but the Shcharansky family had expected swifter processing because of a reported agreement on their case.

Anatoly Shcharansky accused Soviet authorities last week of breaking an accord under which his family reportedly was to have been allowed to leave the Soviet Union following his release.

He told Israel Radio on Sunday that U.S. diplomatic pressure had convinced Soviet authorities to give his family the emigration permits, and said he had spoken to his mother by telephone that day.

"She cried the whole time and told me they had received a permit, and in another three weeks they will be in Jerusalem, thank God," he said.

Once Soviet citizens are given formal notice that they are allowed to leave, they must undergo a lengthy and complicated process of documentation that often takes weeks. They must collect certificates from various agencies proving that they are under no legal obligations.

Views of other Texas papers

Collect taxes instead of editorials

State Comptroller Bob Bullock has appealed to newspapers across Texas to editorially endorse a proposed federal law he's pushing that would require mail-order companies to collect and remit sales taxes on merchandise they sell in other states. He even mailed out a suggested editorial for newspapers to use in case they don't want to write their own.

The job of the state comptroller is to collect taxes. It is not to pass laws, either at the state or federal level. Despite this, Bullock has used material from the comptroller's office, labor by his employees, plus state funds for postal expenses to lobby for this legislation.

If he's really interested in getting the state budget in balance, he might start by refraining from spending taxpayers' money on legislative activities that legally are none of the comptroller's business.

Wal-Mart ban raises questions

Wal-Mart discount stores are private businesses that can sell anything they want or refuse to sell anything they want, but just the same we hope the company's recent decision to stop carrying rock 'n' roll magazines, heavy-metal records and risqué comedy records was made voluntarily.

Wal-Mart, which operates 900 stores in 22 states, has decided to remove those items from its shelves, and some people have charged that this was done under pressure from evangelist Jimmy Swaggart and possibly others.

The Arkansas Gazette reported that Wal-Mart ordered the recent ban in a memo dated June 13. A Wal-Mart spokesman, however, said that "during the normal course of business, we are constantly reviewing our merchandise, adding and deleting items."

Absent further proof, that's where the matter should stand. Wal-Mart officials undoubtedly are well aware of any financial consequences the change might have, and there's little question that the items at issue probably can be purchased by customers elsewhere.

But a few weeks ago, the Southland Corp., parent company of 7-Eleven stores, decided to remove Playboy and Penthouse magazines from store shelves in response to protests from religious fundamentalists. The same charges of "threats" and "pressure" and denial of same were made then.

We don't know if this constitutes a trend or not, but we hope that all businesses will be able to make merchandising decisions based on what they believe is best for their stores and their customers.

Opponents of adult magazines, heavy metal records, etc. have every right to disapprove of such items, but until the material is declared illegal, their fans should be able to purchase it somewhere.

Congress at fault for tax loopholes

Taxpaying American citizens should be outraged that some of the nation's largest and most profitable corporations use loopholes in the tax laws to make huge profits but pay no income tax. Some of them not only escape taxes, they manage to get enormously obscene rebates.

We don't fault the corporations. They are doing what any taxpayer would do — legally reducing their taxes to the lowest possible amount. The fault lies with Congress, which put the loopholes in the tax code that allows a rape of the U.S. Treasury at the expense of the average American taxpayer.

More than half the nation's richest corporations paid no federal income tax in at least one of the last five years and many received refunds of taxes paid in previous years, a report by Citizens for Tax Justice concluded.

The Galveston Daily News

Either pay it now, or pay it later

Pay as you go. That's been the Texas way. And that's the message Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby brought to Dallas Tuesday: You can either pay now or pay later, but if Texas tries to put off paying its bills until the regular session in January, it will cost more.

Hobby proposes a combination of tax increases and expenditure cuts — in the $650 million range — to solve Texas' current fiscal crisis. He advocates raising the sales tax from 4.125 cents to 5 cents, adding a nickel-a-gallon tax on gasoline and the expansion of the sales tax to include services.

On the cost-cutting side, Hobby would forgo the scheduled 3 percent state employee salary increase for 1987, implement state agency cutbacks already proposed in response to Gov. Mark White's "austerity call" and eliminate selected items in the state's foundation school program.

Hobby is on the right track. He is providing a valuable educational service in advance of the special session beginning next Wednesday by preparing the public for the steps that must be taken to balance the $37.2 billion budget.

The Dallas Morning News

Some people just can't be trusted

Of course, the freeing last weekend of the Rev. Lawrence Jenco by the Islamic extremists who had held him for 19 months in Lebanon was immensely cheering, not only to his family but to all the Americans who have anxiously followed the continuing hostage drama in that strife-shattered nation.

It would take a heart of stone not to respond to the obvious anguish of the families of the hostages still remaining in Beirut. The government of the United States owes it to families and captives alike to explore every possible option, examine every opening that could conceivably lead to the freeing of the captives.

But to negotiate with men who practice this kind of cruelty? That flies in the face not only of national respect, but of civilization.

"Is it legal to have sex with a corpse if you're married to it?"

We must admit that's not a question that comes up every day, though it did occur to one of Attorney General Ed Meese's Commission on Pornography members, a recent issue of the New Republic reports.

The commission's 1,960-page report, just released — though available for the past several months — is full of the same kind of inadvertent humor. Conspicuously lacking is any proof of the commission's preordained assertion: that pornography constitutes a meaningful threat to the public interest.

"LISSEN, ANYTHING THE WHOLE GOVERNMENT AGREES ON SO FAST HAS GOTTA BE SOME KINDA RIP-OFF"

The White House has found another way to offend Jews

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — No administration has tried harder to court the Jewish community than Ronald Reagan's — with less success.

Every time the White House tries to patch relations it seems to do the wrong thing, with the result that affairs between the administration and American Jewish leaders is now at rock bottom.

The latest affront to Jewish sensitivity is a pip: The White House office of liaison with Jewish groups has been downgraded. What's worse, in the eyes of some Jews, is that the current White House "Jewish affairs" man, Max Green, actually is subordinate to Linas Kojelis, a Lithuanian-American who has offended Jewish leaders.

Kohelis is a strong advocate of Eastern European ethnic groups that have urged the dissolution of the Justice Department's Nazi-hunting Office of Special Investigations. They charge that the office is a dupe of the Soviet KGB in the prosecution of naturalized Americans accused of participating in the Nazi Holocaust of World War II.

It didn't used to be this way. Green's predecessor as Jewish liaison, Marshall Breger, held the title of special assistant to the president. Kojelis was then at a lower level in the White House pecking order as associate director of the Public Liaison Office in charge of ethnic groups.

Then last year, the liaison office chief, Linda Chavez, reorganized the system to eliminate all ethnic representatives, including Breger. He and Kojelis were named chairmen of the new Foreign Affairs Defense Division.

In practice, each continued to handle liaison duties as they had previously. Breger for Jews, Kojelis for other ethnics.

But Breger's aggressive tactics were not appreciated by certain elements in the White House staff that resented the special status accorded Jewish leaders and their advice. Chief among these was communications director Patrick Buchanan.

During the controversy over President Reagan's wreath-laying visit last year at a West German cemetery containing graves of SS men, Buchanan scribbled on a notepad: "Too much Jewish pressure."

Buchanan and Chief of Staff Donald Regan decided to eliminate the Jewish affairs office. To their surprise, they got support from several Jewish leaders and the Israeli Embassy.

No less than Gerald Kraft, president of B'nai B'rith International, sent President Reagan a blunt letter urging that the Jewish liaison office "be abolished and not filled." He explained that the Jewish community "is not monolith" and contended that the office was "counterproductive."

But other Jewish leaders objected when Breger was kicked upstairs and out of the White House. Vice President Bush insisted on keeping the Jewish office, and Regan and Buchanan backed down.

But Buchanan, who has publicly denounced the prosecution of alleged Nazi war criminals as "Orwellian and Kafkaesque," was determined to demote the Jewish liaison office and enhance the liaison with the other ethnic groups.

So with Buchanan as his "rabbi," Kojelis was made director of the Foreign Affairs Defense Division last fall.

When Chavez left to seek the Senate nomination in Maryland, Kojelis became acting director of the Public Liaison Office. He was given the title once held by the Jewish liaison officer: special assistant to the president. Green is his subordinate.

Faced with the growing influence of Kojelis at the White House, Jewish leaders — even those who had welcomed the idea of abolishing the Jewish liaison office — are dismayed.

Jack Anderson's investigative report from Washington is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Around the rim

It's the way of modern technology

By TIM APPEL
Anybody got $10 million I can have?

Seriously. You see, I've always been interested in the high-tech aspect of this complex world we live in. Especially those items classified as "top secret" by the government. For example, take the new Stealth aircraft being worked on by the military. I would love to have one of those for myself to examine. To be invisible to aircraft radar systems is almost incomprehensible.

Somewhere on the interstate between Little Rock and Memphis, I was cruising at 65 mph watching for the highway patrol, when the idea hit me. How about a stealth automobile undetectable to police radar?

Thus my need for the millions of bucks.

With such a supply of greenbacks, I'd research and build a prototype car, and test it in the toughest way possible: doing 85 mph in front of an Indiana state trooper.

Two courses of action are possible after I get the funding.

The first is to do the entire project on my own. I would have to go back to college for courses in aerodynamics, metallurgy, physics, automobile and aircraft design, and maybe some P.E. classes. With all that new-found knowledge, I'd attempt to build it on my own.

Or I could hire three teams of professionals to handle the project. One team could investigate the effects of radar on metals; one could look at angles of radar reflectance; and one group would combine the two into a body design. I could coordinate the project — at say a million dollars a year.

After the prototype has been completed and successfully tested, the time would come to make it available to the general public. If you doubt the market is there, take a good look at the average speeds on the highways.

Of course, the Russians would ship one back to the Kremlin, steal the technology and market it under the name Lenin Mark III. The Japanese then would sell a stealth car with better gas mileage and a lower sticker price. But that's business.

So if you have an extra $14 million or so laying around, think about donating it towards the advancement of technology.

Or go out and spend $129 for a radar detector.

Opinions expressed in this column are those of the staff writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the newspaper's management.

Lack of care distressing

To the editor: After having lived all but 10 months of my life in Howard County, I would never have believed a need to express distress when there is and could be so much pride for our community. So many of us have a tendency to sit and complain instead of getting busy and making things happen.

As chairperson of the Crossroads Stampede this year, it has become so frustrating to work so many hours and hearts out to help our city prosper while the attitude of citizens has been so negative.

Last year the decision to have the "family fun weekend" was made by a few concerned citizens and the event was organized in six weeks. Even though we didn't make any money, it was a success because of the amount of advertising we received for this year and the fun enjoyed by those who attended.

There have been many pros and cons on why we should even try such an event because of the turmoil in city government and economy. May I ask: "Do we want our city to become a ghost town or do we want to have pride and make the wrong right?"

I agree times are tough now, and that is the reason we should join together and fight these battles to overcome the grief and depression. Every day, being the United Way executive director, I encounter desperate people needing help. This is one reason I agreed to be chairperson and try my best to help our community prosper and not die!

Three weeks ago a letter was mailed to 150 merchants — those we felt would benefit most from tourists and visitors, asking them to purchase an ad in a supplement of the Big Spring Herald to advertise the Crossroads Stampede. I was told we got one response. That was quite a kick in the face and I've had to do a lot of re-evaluation of my attitude toward these businesses.

What is the problem with our attitudes in Big Spring? It is so very difficult for me to not be involved after having been on the death's doorstep three times in the last 10 years. Those times made me love life and convinced me to live one day at a time and help all I could because no one is promised tomorrow.

About 50 wonderful people care and are helping conduct this event. If it weren't for them, nothing could be done.

In a town of 18,000 people, surely there are others who care and are willing to help for at least two hours on one day of the Stampede. If anyone is interested in supporting the Crossroads Stampede, please contact the Herald for advertising, the Chamber of Commerce, or me.

It is my hope and prayer that everyone in Howard County will initiate an "attitude adjustment" toward life and our community.

Another source of water damage

To the editor: Reading Wednesday's Herald, I totally agree with Hank Murphy's Around the Rim article on running water damaging the streets, with a constant flow.

Mr. Murphy, maybe you can get the city to do something about the rain water that fills the drain hole behind or north of Cowper's Hospital. When that tank is loaded from rain, the water travels down Lancaster, then it crosses over to Gregg, on to 10th Street, then over to Scurry Street, and on nearly into town.

The merchants have complained for years, but to no avail. Maybe our public works director can come up with a new drainage idea, or our new city manager.

Today is Monday, Aug. 4, the 216th day of 1986. There are 149 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Aug. 4, 1944, Nazi police raided the secret annex of a house in Amsterdam and arrested eight people including 14-year-old Anne Frank. A diary kept by Anne while she hid gained international fame years after her death in a concentration camp.

On this date: In 1790, a U.S. naval task force known as the Revenue Cutter Service was formed. It would later become the Coast Guard.

In 1830, plans for the city of Chicago were laid out. In 1892, school teacher Lizzie Borden was arrested in Fall River, Mass., and charged with the hatchet murders of her father and stepmother. (She later was found innocent.)

In 1914, Britain declared war on Germany and the United States proclaimed its neutrality during World War I.

In 1916, the United States bought the Danish Virgin islands for $25 million.

In 1964, the bodies of missing civil rights workers Michael A. Schwerner, Andrew Goodman and James E. Chaney were found by federal agents inside an earthen dam in Mississippi.

Cruel practices make product testing unsafe for animals

DEAR ABBY: Your prayer for animals was very touching. Animals do need our prayers, but they also need us to stop the cruel and barbaric practice of using live animals to test cosmetics, hair spray, drain cleaner, nail polish remover, etc. No anesthetic is used, and these laboratory animals suffer agonizing pain. Dogs, rabbits, monkeys, cats, guinea pigs, mice and rats are used. For example: To test toxicity, animals are force-fed a substance such as drain cleaner, causing convulsions, paralysis and bleeding from the nose, eyes and mouth. Another test measures the irritancy of products that might get into a person's eyes: Rabbits are placed in stocks to prevent them from clawing their eyes to dislodge the irritating substance. Only their necks and heads protrude. The lower lid of the rabbit's eye is pulled away from the eyeball to form a small cup. Into that cup is dropped some of the substance to be tested. The eye is then held closed for several seconds while the animal screams in pain. The other eye is left untreated to serve as a "control." The rabbit's eyes are then observed at specific intervals to see how severe the irritation is. Is the lid swollen? The iris inflamed? Did it cause blindness?

Alternatives to these tests do exist, but remain untried. I know this is a long letter on an unpleasant subject, but the public needs to know about it.

There is a bill pending — it's the Humane Product Testing Act (HR 1877). Abby, please print this and urge your readers to let their elected representatives know that they want this bill passed. Please be the voice of the voiceless.

NANCI UNGER,
LEXINGTON, KY.

DEAR NANCI: Here's your letter, and I hope that all who read it will write to their congressional representatives and urge them to vote YES on HR 1877.

Readers, if you don't know who your representatives are, call your local League of Women Voters and find out, but please don't put this off until tomorrow. Tomorrow is usually busier than today.

For more information, write to: PETA (People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals), P.O. Box 42516, Washington, D.C. 20015. It is a non-profit organization, so please enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR ABBY: My two grandchildren live in the suburbs and attend a private school. The school is 15 to 20 minutes away by car, and the only way for these children to get there is to be driven by their parents.

With tears in their eyes they have begged their parents to get them to school on time.

In June their report cards showed that they had been late 40 times for the semester!

What do you think of these parents?

CONCERNED GRANDPARENTS

DEAR CONCERNED: Not much.

Student attends band camp

DENISE FLORES
...receives first chair honors

Denise Flores, daughter of Frances Flores, 1507 Scurry, was awarded first chair honors for beginning junior high band at the West Texas State University band camp.

Flores studied alto saxophone and twirling. She also attended the outdoor play "Texas," went swimming, went to dances at the college campus and attended the formal camp ball.

Flores says she'd like to see a band camp held in Big Spring because more students could benefit from the intensive teaching. "Then we could have a sweepstakes band here."

Dabbling in a fitness program won't work

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a 35-year-old female, I'm 5 feet, 2 inches and weigh 110 pounds. That looks fine on paper, but actually I'm all flab. Forget about "pinching an inch." I can grab a double handful of abdomen or thigh. I can still look OK in winter, but summer clothes are merciless.

I have never counted calories, but I am nutrition conscious. I've dabbled in aerobics and Nautilus, not sticking with either. I realize now that I've got to do something. With two preschoolers and a part-time job, time to myself is sometimes scarce. What is the best route for someone like me to take? — K.B.

I've nothing magical for you, K.B., just a couple of suggestions. You have to do more than dabble. You have to get serious. You have to become a calorie counter. But that's not all. If you conscientiously cut your calorie intake and increase your activity (exercise), you will lose weight. And both are important.

Dr. Donohue

If you diet, but don't exercise, your metabolism slows. Eventually, you start retaining calories in the form of stored fat. But if you add exercise, you rev up your metabolism. Then you lose both calories and fat.

You have to set aside a definite time for your exercise. Even a busy schedule usually will permit some time on a regular basis, a half hour in the morning or in the evening, or both. I'd like to see you pinching less than an inch before the year is out. The booklet "Introduction to Fitness" was written for people like yourself. It's not for the Olympic athlete. Readers can obtain a copy by writing me and enclosing a long, stamped self-addressed envelope and $1.50.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Enjoy your sports medicine letters and responses. My bow to fitness is my chinning bar. I'm getting conflicting signals on how to use it. Simply put, do you chin with your palms facing your body or away from it? — K.N.

You can chin any way you want to, but you must realize that the position of the hands on the bar alters the benefits to various muscles.

When you grab the bar with the palm facing your body and about shoulder-width apart, then chin, you are using your biceps. Those are the muscles at the front of your upper arms. Chinning with a wider grip and holding the palms facing away from the body gives the latissimus dorsi muscle a workout. That's the large back muscle.

There's nothing wrong with chinning bars. They are cheap bits of athletic equipment, and, as you can see, by varying the style and position of your grip you can exercise many upper body muscles. If that's all you're interested in doing, fine. If you want to develop lower body muscles, then you have to find ways to exercise them.

In response to reader requests, Dr. Donohue's publisher now has a complete listing of all the booklets on various medical problems. Readers wishing this list can write him care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for return mailing.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Supporters of the National Action Party leave the Paso del Norte bridge after a blockade that lasted about one-half hour Sunday night. PANistas vacated the bridge to move to blockade three others which link El Paso to Juarez.

Protesters blockade bridges

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Waving flags and chanting political slogans, thousands of opposition party supporters marched to two international bridges linking this border city with El Paso, Texas, and blocked them.

It was the fourth such protest in the last three weeks by the National Action Party against alleged electoral fraud.

A third, one-way bridge connecting the downtown areas of each city was also blockaded Sunday night because of confusion, said Gustavo Elizondo, PAN mayoral candidate for Juarez. The bridge was cleared after about 40 minutes and traffic resumed.

The takeover of the Stanton Street Bridge, leading one way from downtown El Paso to Juarez, and the Bridge of the Americas, an important, two-way commercial crossing, was to last 48 hours, said Elizondo.

Massive traffic jams were expected today as vehicles tried to use two additional bridges over the Rio Grande. The two unoccupied bridges are heavily congested even under normal circumstances.

No Mexican law enforcement authorities were seen at either occupied bridge. The U.S. Border Patrol and El Paso city police parked official vehicles on the U.S. side and redirected traffic.

The takeover started at about 9 p.m. MDT following a PAN rally at the Plaza de Armas, in front of the cathedral. Elizondo directed part of the protesters to the Stanton Street Bridge while Francisco Barrio, former Juarez mayor and PAN gubernatorial candidate, led the takeover of the Bridge of the Americas.

PAN, which has a strong following in northern Mexico, claims massive, government-instituted fraud in July 6 elections in the state of Chihuahua. The government Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI, was declared winner in the races for governor, 14 state legislative seats and 65 out of 67 mayoralties.

The PRI, which hasn't lost a presidential or gubernatorial election since 1929, has denied fraud. Barrio has said he and other PAN leaders spoke with government officials in Mexico City and showed them evidence of fraud. The officials allegedly said the proof presented was not enough to call new elections, Barrio said.

PAN supporters voluntarily ended a 4½-day blockade of the Bridge of the Americas last Tuesday. On July 14, PAN supporters took over the two downtown bridges for more than two hours.

Chihuahua, bordering with New Mexico and Texas, is the largest of Mexico's 31 states. Juarez, with a population of 1.2 million, is the largest city in the state or along the U.S.-Mexico border.

Teens reconsider freon fad

SAN ANGELO (AP) — Friends of a 17-year-old who officials believe died from sniffing freon say his death has made them reconsider the latest fad in this West Texas town.

"A lot of people were doing it at school, thinking it's cool. I'm sure they're going to stop now," said a 17-year-old boy who was among those with George Clements "Ty" Taylor III a few hours before he died last Friday.

Justice of the Peace Jerry Jenkinson ruled Taylor's death accidental cardiac arrest due to inhaling freon. An autopsy has been ordered.

Another boy said he'd been to see Taylor's body at the funeral home.

"It made me think. I've stopped. A lot of people have stopped," said the boy, who like his friends, asked that he not be identified.

Inhaling freon, a fluorocarbon used in refrigeration and as an aerosol propellant, became popular about a month ago, several junior high students said.

"You can buy it anywhere. It's cheap. It gives off a good high," one youth said. "It's really the only thing we can do that's legal."

But a teen-age fast-food restaurant worker said she doubts the death will deter youths from inhaling freon. "They don't think it will happen to them."

Taylor had graduated from Glenn Junior High School and was planning to enter New Mexico Military Institute this fall.

"It doesn't make much sense, a 15-year-old getting buried," said police Sgt. Dave Caudle.

Caudle said inhalants have been popular with teen-agers for years, but he was not aware that freon was being used in San Angelo. Freon highs were popular in other cities several years ago, police said.

The substance can be bought legally, unlike acrylics which cannot be sold to minors.

Pair jailed in murder plot

ANAHUAC (AP) — A murder-for-hire scheme was broken over the weekend after a man and woman from Baytown were charged in the slaying of the woman's husband. Chambers County sheriff's deputies said.

Rhonda Grantham of Baytown was charged Sunday with solicitation of capital murder and criminal conspiracy in the shooting death of James Kirk Grantham, 29. She remains in the Chambers County Jail today on a $300,000 bond, according to a jail spokeswoman who requested anonymity.

Tony Duane Walston, 29, of Beach City, was charged with conspiracy to commit capital murder Saturday after his employer notified authorities of his whereabouts. He also is the county jail on $150,000 bond, the spokeswoman said.

Chief Deputy Don Langford said Mrs. Grantham offered to pay Walston $25,000 to buy a gun to kill her husband July 12, so she could collect his insurance. Langford would not say whether Walston was suspected of killing the foreman.

Grantham, a foreman for the Union Pacific railroad, was found slumped over in the front seat of his car with a gunshot wound on his head and back.

Hot check season is early

ODESSA (AP) — It's usually Christmas when high numbers of hot checks move through the Ector County attorney's office, but the deluge has come sooner as this oil-dependent city suffers the effects of collapsing oil prices.

By the end of July, the attorney's office handled 5,702 bad checks, compared with 6,282 during all of 1985, officials said.

Jana Pugh, supervisor of the office's hot check division, said the situation reminds her of the Christmas holiday season, usually the prime time of the year for bad check writers.

"No doubt it's because of the economy," she said. "There's a lot of people without jobs."

Most of the recent bad checks come from first-time offenders who never have had trouble paying their bills before, Ms. Pugh said. The majority of checks are written for necessities, she said.

"I've had people come in and freely admit: 'Hey, I wrote this check. I had to feed my kids,'" she said.

"We always see a lot of checks from grocery stores, but there's been a greater number" in the last four months, she said.

Agent, alien die in rollover

COTULLA (AP) — A U.S. Border Patrol agent and a Salvadoran he was transporting were killed early today when the agent lost control of the vehicle, which rolled several times, authorities said.

Norman R. Salinas, 26, died about 1:20 a.m. today when he lost control of the van about 7 miles south of Cotulla on Interstate 35, said Mario Ortiz, spokesman for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in Dallas.

A Salvadoran alien Salinas was transporting to the La Salle County Jail also was killed, Ortiz said. He did not have the name of the alien.

Deputy charged after wreck

HOUSTON (AP) — A Harris County sheriff's deputy was charged with involuntary manslaughter after a 26-year-old woman was killed in a traffic accident early Sunday in Pasadena.

Deputy James Earl Skeen, 29, was released from police custody after posting $2,000 bail.

Accident investigators said

Skeen was driving his truck when he crossed the center line and struck a car in the opposite lane shortly after 2 a.m. Sunday.

Lila Dillard, a passenger in the car, was taken by Life-Flight helicopter to Hermann Hospital where she died about an hour later, police said.

'Fridge' and streaker steal the show

WEMBLEY, England (AP) — On a night when the "Star-Spangled Banner" was booted, soccer songs filled the air and a streaker hit the turf, why shouldn't a 300-pound running back score a touchdown?

Actually, William "The Refrigerator" Perry's one-yard scoring strut was among the more commonplace events Sunday as pro football returned to Britain.

The Chicago Bears beat the Dallas Cowboys 17-6 in an NFL exhibition opener billed as American Bowl '86, the latest attempt to show England what big-time football is all about.

More than 82,000 fans, including a large group of Americans but comprised mainly of soccer and cricket-loving Britons, packed Wembley Stadium for the match, and they saw the best and worst of the sport.

The best was on defense. The Bears, last year's Super Bowl champions and the overwhelming crowd favorites, forced four turnovers and shut down the Cowboys offense whenever it got near the goal line. The Cowboys, meanwhile, held the Bears to 251 yards total offense.

Of all of the players on the field — and practically all of the 80-plus members of each squad saw action — Perry was the one many of the fans had come to see. He did not let them down.

The second-year defensive tackle helped the Bears pick up where they left off last season, when they lost just once and had the NFL's dominant defense.

Chicago sacked Dallas quarterbacks three times and pressured them constantly. The Bear defense scored the game's first touchdown on a 48-yard runback of a fumble recovery by strong safety Dave Duerson, and Perry then capped the performance with his

TD. Steve Fuller, who replaced Jim McMahon at quarterback to start the second quarter, directed a drive to the Cowboy 1-yard line, going the final 16 yards on a rollout. Ditka then inserted Perry at running back. Fuller handed the ball to the Fridge and when no hole opened, Perry just kept pushing until he was over the goal line. "We had a great stand," Perry said of the defense, while sounding a warning to the rest of the league. "We played great as a unit. We are just tuning up, just getting ready for 'em." Then he added with a smile: "And a touchdown, too." Music was often a key to the fans' demeanor.

Colts say Hogeboom has the 'right stuff'

By The Associated Press Gary Hogeboom, acquired from Dallas last April to quarterback Indianapolis, apparently has the right stuff for the Colts.

"Gary has really taken a hold on the job," Coach Rod Dowhower said Sunday. "He's done an excellent job of executing what we've given him, and we've given him a lot. We've been able to move along quite rapidly because of his approach."

Hogeboom, who will start in the team's first preseason game at Seattle on Friday, completed 10 of 18 passes for 136 yards in a scrimmage on Saturday.

"I feel very comfortable in this system," Hogeboom said. "I think I've made great strides each week I've been in camp."

The new quarterback has had little difficulty adjusting to a different set of receivers. "They run good routes," Hogeboom said of the pass catchers. "As long as I know where they are going to be, I'll get the ball to them."

The presence of Hogeboom has also been a boon to the defensive secondary, according to Dowhower.

"The quarterback is getting the ball to the right place and that's good for our defense. They're going to be better prepared. It's not like it was a year ago when we went to Pittsburgh for our opener," said Dowhower, referring to a 45-3 loss as Steeler quarterback Mark Malone threw five touchdown passes.

At the Minnesota Vikings camp, Wide receiver Sammy White caught a 24-yard pass from Tommy Kramer for a touchdown as Minnesota's offensive team beat the defense 10-0 in a training camp passing scrimmage Sunday.

Kite erases nine strokes

Western champ now 5th all-time money winner

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Tom Kite, so often denied victory by bizarre quirks of golfing fate, was all but bewildered when he became a beneficiary.

"It makes no sense," he said after a massive collapse of the other contenders put him in position Sunday to win the Western Open golf tournament.

"I don't understand this game. I suppose when I die I still won't understand this game," Kite said. "There are times when you go into the last round with the lead, and play your heart out and shoot a good score and somebody has one better and you lose."

"Then, maybe on the very next week, something like this happens. It just makes no sense."

Kite, nine shots back at one point in the last round, pulled himself together and beat the brutal Butler National Golf Club course with the best round of the day, a 4-under-par 68. Then he sat around for a couple of hours waiting for someone to beat his four-day total of 2-under-par 286.

Fred Couples and South Africans Nick Price and David Frost, who finished birdie-birdie, eventually tied Kite and forced a playoff.

Kite, so frequently a contender but so infrequently a winner in the last six years quickly solved that tangle.

He hit a sand wedge second shot to within four feet of the flag on the first playoff hole and rapped the putt into the back of the cup for a winning birdie.

The victory was worth $90,000 from the total purse of $500,000 and elevated Kite into fifth place on the all-time money-winning list at $2,829,865.

"I never dreamed two under (par) would win the golf tournament, with so many players up there, the scores so bunched up," said Kite, who started the day in 26th place.

"You expect someone to have a good, strong finish. It didn't look like I had a chance. But it's a damn hard golf course, a hard course to hold the lead on."

Tom Kite holds the winner's trophy of the Western Open Sunday in Oak Brook, Illinois. Kite won a four-way playoff with a five foot birdie putt on the first playoff hole.

This time it proved impossible. Couples, Frost, George Burns, Bobby Wadkins, Tom Byrum and Price all led or shared the lead at one point or another on Sunday, but none could hold it. Price made scrambling pars on the final two holes to shoot a 71. Couples and Frost, tied for the lead going into the final round, each shot 75. Couples had a chance for an outright victory, but missed an eight-foot putt on the 18th hole.

Dr. J to the Jazz?

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Utah Jazz owner Larry Miller and Philadelphia 76ers star Julius Erving are on the verge of an agreement, according to Miller after his arrival in Philadelphia.

"I still say he's coming with us," Miller said as he got off a plane at Philadelphia International Airport. Erving was there to pick him up.

Erving and Miller planned to meet through the night at the veteran free agent's home in suburban Villanova to discuss what Miller described as Erving's "family-type" reservations about leaving the 76ers, his team of 10 years.

If Erving lets Miller present an offer sheet, the 76ers would have 15 days to match the offer or lose the 36-year-old veteran.

Erving told the Philadelphia Inquirer on Saturday he would notify Miller and Sixers owner Harold Katz of his decision today and Miller said he has a 3 p.m. meeting arranged with the Philadelphia team owner.

"We're here to talk to him a little bit about some of the uncertainties that he's having, and I think he and his wife both have some questions, some family-type questions," Miller said.

Erving "has made it clear all along that he would not move his family to Utah," Miller said. "So we just want to talk about being away from home for seven months at a time."

A confidant of the NBA star on Saturday said Erving probably would accept a $3.5 million, two-year offer from the Jazz unless Katz came up with a last-minute offer rich enough to change Erving's mind.

The confidant, who has been a sounding board for Erving at other critical stages of his professional life and who spoke on the condition of anonymity, said bluntly: "I think Julius is going to Utah."

Erving, however, told The Philadelphia Inquirer that "Money is no object."

"Obviously, Utah's dollars are better," said Erving, who has multi-faceted business interests in the East. "We're talking about family and lifestyle considerations."

"My decision will be based first on family and second in terms of business," he said.

On more than one occasion, Erving has said he wants to end his pro basketball career in Philadelphia.

The Sixers reportedly have offered a one-year contract matching Erving's nearly $1.5 million for last season, after an initial $900,000 offer that "insulted" Erving, according to the confidant.

USFL owners to decide fate of league today

NEW YORK (AP) — Divided in opinion, USFL owners began their meeting this morning to decide the fate of their troubled league. But only a sweeping mandate to continue from all eight owners will keep the USFL in business, according to Commissioner Harry Usher.

The meeting got under way at 9 a.m. EDT.

"It won't really be a vote," Usher said. "It's a decision the league will have to make. If it's five to three to play, you can't play with five teams."

If pre-meeting reports are accurate, owners are split exactly in half on continuation. They show the vote as 4-4, with New Jersey, Tampa Bay, Orlando and Arizona pushing for continuation, and Baltimore, Birmingham, Jacksonville and Memphis leaning toward one of the other alternatives.

Usher said the owners could take one of three courses of action. They could stop operations, suspend them for one season or begin their fourth year of play — first in the traditional fall season.

Last week, the USFL won its antitrust suit against the NFL, but got only a token award of $3. They were asking for $1.69 billion.

If the eight decide to play a fall schedule — play is set to begin Sept. 13 — losses for each team without a commercial network contract are projected at $3 million to $5 million. Some feel that's too large a sum to swallow, again.

"If it's a question of losing money with no future, who wants to play?" Baltimore Stars owner Stephen Ross asked.

Arizona Outlaws co-owner and General Manager Bill Tatham has suggested a two-month layoff, allowing time for post-trial motions to be heard Sept. 3 by U.S. District Court Judge Peter K. Leisure.

But some owners were expected to enter the meeting at a midtown Manhattan hotel with a this-year-or-nothing attitude.

"What sounds good in the penthouse (suspending for a period of time), doesn't work so well in the streets," said Jacksonville Bulls General Manager Larry Csonka, veteran of another ill-fated football conglomeration — the World Football League of 1974-75.

In the NL East, they're playing for second?

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer
Next stop, National League playoffs for the joyriding New York Mets.

The Mets continued to coast Sunday, beating Montreal 4-3 in 10 innings for a three-game sweep that knocked the Expos out of second place in the NL East.

New York leads the division by 17½ games over the new runner-ups, the Philadelphia Phillies. Montreal limped out of New York 18½ games behind and minus shortstop Hubie Brooks and catcher Mike Fitzgerald, who were both injured Friday night and may miss the rest of the season.

"It was not one of the better weekends in the history of the Montreal Expos," Manager Buck Rodgers said.

The last time the teams met back in late June, the Expos managed to whittle New York's lead to eight games. Montreal won two out of three against the Mets in their first two series of the year and seemed confident it could continue to close the gap.

That has all changed since then. "I think they have conceded," Mets second baseman Wally Backman said. "They've lost Hubie and Fitz, and they're hurting. It's not a good situation for them when you're that far out."

The Mets swept Montreal on the strength of their pitching. The Expos scored just five runs in their three losses.

Bob Ojeda held Montreal hitless for 6 1/3 innings Sunday before Luis Rivera broke the spell with his first major-league hit.

Philadelphia Phillies John Russell, bottom, breaks up Chicago Cub shortstop Shawon Dunston's throw to first on a Steve Jeltz hit during the seventh inning of National League action at Veteran's Memorial Stadium in Philadelphia Sunday. Russell was called out and Jeltz was called safe. The Phillies beat the Cubs 6-2.

The Mets won it in the 10th when Backman opened with his third hit of the game, a single off Bob McClure, 0-2. One out later, Kevin Mitchell's single off Tim Burke sent Backman to second.

With two outs, Knight slapped a two-strike pitch over the head of first baseman Wallace Johnson and Backman scored.

The only bad news for the Mets during the weekend came Saturday night when right fielder Darryl Strawberry hurt his right thumb trying to make a catch. Strawberry is expected to miss a couple of games.

Dodgers 2, Reds 1
Orel Hershiser and Ken Howell teamed on a four-hitter as Los Angeles won its seventh straight game. Cincinnati lost for the sixth consecutive time.

The Dodgers matched their longest winning streak of the season by sweeping the three-game series from the visiting Reds.

Hershiser, 11-7, gave up four hits in seven innings. Howell closed for his 11th save. Bill Gullickson, 7-7, took the loss despite pitching a four-hitter.

Hershiser, whose suicide squeeze in the third inning produced the Dodgers' first run, opened the sixth with a bunt that Gullickson fumbled for an error. Steve Sax followed with a sacrifice bunt and Bill Madlock's two-out single scored Hershiser.

Padres 5, Astros 1
Steve Garvey and Graig Nettles hit consecutive home runs that led San Diego over Houston and broke the Astros' three-game winning streak.

Nettles' two-run homer in the second inning was his 15th of the season and 383rd of his career, moving him into 24th place on the all-time home run list, one ahead of Frank Howard.

Four pitches later, Garvey connected for his 15th home run. Garvey added a two-run single in the eighth.

Andy Hawkins, 8-7, blanked the visiting Astros on five singles before Dickie Thon led off the eighth inning with his second homer. Rich Gossage replaced Hawkins and pitched the final 1 2/3 innings for his 18th save.

Mark Knudson, 1-6, took the loss. Phillies 6, Cubs 2 1/2 HI connected for his 24th homer after Jeff Stone and Juan Samuel singled with one out against Frank DiPino, 1-4. With two outs, Glenn Wilson hit his 12th homer.

The visiting Cubs tied the score 2-2 in the top of the eighth on Ron Cey's RBI double. Reliever Steve Bedrosian, 8-3, then escaped a bases-loaded jam when Stone caught Shawon Dunston's liner to center and threw out Jody Davis, who was trying to score after tagging up.

Braves 4, Giants 2
David Palmer and Gene Garber combined on a six-hitter, helping Atlanta end its four-game losing streak.

Ozzie Virgil hit a solo homer and Dale Murphy added a pair of RBI singles as Braves broke San Francisco's three-game winning streak.

Palmer, 8-6, allowed four hits in seven 1/2 innings and won his third straight decision. He walked six batters in the first three innings but got out of bases-loaded situations in the first and third innings.

Garber gave up an RBI single in the eighth to Bob Brenly that made it 3-2, but finished up for his 14th save.

Murphy, who had a run-scoring single in the seventh, singled home an insurance run in the ninth. Virgil's 12th homer put the Braves ahead 2-1 in the fourth.

Pirates 3, Cardinals 0
Rick Reuschel tossed a six-hitter for the 20th shutout of his 15-year major-league career as Pittsburgh beat St. Louis. Reuschel, 7-12, struck out five, walked one and did not allow a runner past first base.

The host Pirates scored three runs in the first inning against Danny Cox, 5-9, who had beaten Pittsburgh seven straight times.

Joe Orsulak singled, stole second and scored on Barry Bonds' single. Bonds stole second and came home on a double by Johnny Ray, who later scored on R.J. Reynolds' sacrifice fly.

Chavez beats Lockridge

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — Before a Prince and a King, Caesar held onto his crown — barely.

Fighting before his manager, Don King, and Prince Rainier III of Monaco at Stade Louis II, Julio Cesar Chavez of Mexico retained his World Boxing Council super-featherweight championship on Sunday. But he struggled throughout the 12-round fight, going the distance for only the seventh time in his 50-fight career in defeating American Rocky Lockridge, a former World Boxing Association super-featherweight.

For Chavez, 49-1, it was the sixth successful defense of the title he won in September 1984.

Chavez and Lockridge both started slowly and the pace never picked up. At the end, judge Giuseppe Ferrari of Italy had it 119-114 and Miguel Donate of Puerto Rico had it 116-113, both in favor of Chavez. Jean Deswart of Belgium scored it 116-116.

"Every fighter has those days," Chavez said. "In the fourth round I hit his head and hurt my hand. I had the same problem against Dwight Prachett" in a title defense last September.

Because of the injured knuckle, Chavez had to save his right hand and instead use the left jab to keep Lockridge at bay.

Lockridge, now 38-5, moved forward through most of the fight but never caught fire as he had when taking the WBA crown in a one-round knockout against Roger Mayweather. He lost the crown a year later on a disputed decision against Wilfredo Gomez.

Lockridge had some flashes in the middle rounds but never really hurt the champion. Chavez, however, got to Lockridge.

"I was stunned twice but never really was hurt," Lockridge said. "Maybe I was not quite as prepared as I should have been."

Morman debuts with three hits

White Sox rookie's homer helps Chicago crush Tigers

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Slumping players often go from the major leagues to the minors. Russ Morman did it the other way.

"I was just glad to break out of a slump. I hadn't had a hit in about a week-and-a-half," Morman said Sunday after a spectacular debut in which he went 3-for-4 and became the second player in history to collect two hits in an inning in his first big-league game as the Chicago White Sox battered the Detroit Tigers, 10-1.

The 24-year-old Morman, brought up from Buffalo of the Class AAA American Association to replace injured first baseman Greg Walker, singled in his first at-bat in the second inning.

He opened a six-run fourth inning with an upper deck home run off loser Randy O'Neal and capped it with a run-scoring single off Jim Slaton. The only other player to have two hits in the same inning in his first major-league game was Billy Martin of the New York Yankees on April 18, 1950.

"The first hit was a thrill but the homer was a bigger thrill," said Morman. "We had a lot of doubleheaders backed up (at Buffalo), but when they called me up the adrenaline began flowing. It's still going."

Red Sox 5, Royals 3
Wade Boggs broke a tie with a two-run single off Charlie Leibrandt in the seventh inning and Jim Rice drove in two runs with a homer and sacrifice fly as Boston stretched its AL East lead to 4½ games over Baltimore and New York. Boggs also had a first-inning double as Boston took a 2-0 lead.

Starter Al Nipper needed ninth-inning help from Calvin Schiraldi, who struck out Frank White and Steve Balboni and retired Mike Kingery on a grounder to earn his first major-league save after George Brett and Jorge Orta opened the inning with singles.

Yankees 12, Indians 8
Rickey Henderson's three-run homer highlighted a 10-run outburst as the two teams set a modern major-league record with 16 fifth-inning runs. The previous AL record for fifth-inning runs came when the Yankees outscored the Washington Senators 14-0 on July 6, 1920. The National League mark was set June 3, 1890, when Brooklyn scored 11 runs to five for New York. On April 16, 1953, Philadelphia outscored Pittsburgh 9-6 for the modern NL record.

Blue Jays 6, Orioles 4
The score was tied 4-4 when Buck Martinez opened the Toronto seventh by drawing a walk. One out later Tony Fernandez hit the first pitch from Mike Flanagan over the left-field fence for his sixth home run of the season.

Mariners 6, Angels 3
Alvin Davis hit a two-run single in a four-run first inning against rookie Ray Chadwick as California saw its lead over Texas in the AL West trimmed to two games. Chadwick, making his second major-league start, failed to retire a batter and was knocked out after allowing four singles and a walk.

Rangers 7, Brewers 6
Pete O'Brien drove in three runs with a homer and double to offset two home runs by Milwaukee's Rob Deer and a two-run shot in the ninth inning by Ernest Riles. In his last four games, O'Brien has three homers and 10 RBIs, nine of them in his last three games against the Brewers.

A's 5, Twins 4
Jose Canseco, who earlier hit his first home run in 17 games, doubled home Bruce Bochte with two out in the 11th inning as Oakland ended a four-game losing streak.

Blake Shuttlesworth, an employee of Chevron Oil Company and a member of the Big Spring Tennis Association, presented a check for $500 on behalf of Chevron to the Tennis Association. At left is Tennis Association vice-president Kathy Terrazas, and in the middle is secretary/treasurer Shelley Choate. The money will be used for the purchase of new windscreens at the Figure 7 Tennis Center.

BIG SPRING TRAVEL TALK

by Mary Valli

MOLOKAI

Molokai was once the dreaded outcast among the Hawaiian Islands. It now beckons travelers who want to experience the old Hawaii. The flight from Honolulu Airport to Molokai takes approximately 20 minutes. However, it transports one decades back to the chief town of Kaunakakai with its old wooden-fronted buildings and air of falling asleep. There also are 260 square miles of nearly untouched cliffs and valleys, waterfalls and forests, beaches and bluffs. The top island trip is the Molokai Mule Ride. It takes the saddle-smart from the Kaulapuu corral down the 1,600-foot, three-mile, 26-switchback Kaulapuu Trail. Rewarding as well is the Molokai Ranch Wildlife Safari, a pastureland reserve stocked with African animals.

From safaris in Africa to cruises to exotic ports to comfortable, enjoyable and quick getaways, BIG SPRING TRAVEL, 606 Scurry, offers the travel professionals who will make it all come true. We are familiar with rates, routes and other travel details so that we can make the plans for you that will take out the headaches and put in the time for you to enjoy your adventure.
