House cuts education funds

By JANET WARREN
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Texas House budget writers squeezed funds from education reforms Saturday and took back money from the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation that an agency spokesman said could hurt in federal court.

And, despite one member's claim that child abuse is on the rise with the sour economy, the House Appropriations Committee axed about 31 new positions for child protective services.

Also, the Texas Youth Commission took a cut of about $440,000 from its $48.7 million budget, which executive director Ron Jackson said will avoid closing an institution.

The cuts will cause the agency to lose six to eight administrative positions, such as auditors, attorneys and researchers, he said. It also will call for reductions in travel, preventive maintenance, merit raises and program monitoring.

Rep. Tom Waldrop, D-Corsicana, said he was prepared to fight further reductions because the commission might have been forced to consider closing a facility, possibly the Corsicana State Home.

The Texas Education Agency lost $4 million in state funds from its $21 million administration budget, which spokesman Lynn Moak said will make it "absolutely impossible" to carry out some 1984 education reforms, referred to as House Bill 72.

Budget cuts proposed by the House Appropriations Committee will have to be adopted by the House and Senate and signed by the governor before they are final. Lawmakers are meeting to bridge a $3.5 million shortfall for the budget year beginning Sept. 1.

Roughly 75 positions from the education agency's administration will be cut. About 40 of them are in the education quality area where "none of these positions are being used for anything except for House Bill 72," he told reporters.

The $3.2 million education quality budget was halved.

But major reform programs, such as the half-day kindergarten program funding and teacher bonuses, were left untouched by the committee.

With the cuts, school accreditation reviews cannot be made every three years, as mandated in the education reforms, Moak said. But the State Board of Education is studying whether such frequent reviews are necessary.

MANCHESTER, Tenn. (AP) — The guests looked like they were ready to go to bed from the moment the party started, but that's what their hosts expected when they decided to stage the world's largest pajama party.

Nearly 5,000 people, men, women and children of all kinds and colors, got together under the stars Friday night to celebrate the 50th anniversary of one of the town's major employers, the Pajama Corporation of America.

The get-together included a parade and race, 1950s dance and about unusual pajama parties.

Country music singer Sammie Davis gave his inside "Help Me Through the Night," with the female singer.

"It is a little bit of a party, it's one of a kind," said Phyllis Rainey, whose two children came outstretched to their usual sleepwear.

About the people in the mid-1930s, the town of 7,500 people in the Pajama Corporation or the Pajama Corporation of America, as the Pajama Corporation is known, as the PJ had been a national, said Ray Workman, mayor of what he called is a pajama community, although there are no other pajama makers.

Mayor Cotton Mize spoke to about 100 people Saturday at the mayor's prayer breakfast during the Community Under God rally.

Big Spring should have such events more often, said Harald Bredesen at the Community Under God mayor's prayer breakfast Saturday.

"If we were to do it once a month, God's reputation would be at stake," he said, and he would be motivated to restore Big Spring's prosperity.

God intends to "release the oil riches (in Big Spring) to carry the Gospel to the ends of the earth," he said.

Bredesen based his talk on the scripture "for His own name's sake," he said. "When you belong to yourself, His reputation is not at stake," he said.

He told of his friend Pat Boone who, years ago, faced the possibility of bankruptcy.

But Bredesen said Boone turned to God for help. "Now if you go bankrupt, the world will say 'he turned to God,' and God didn't help him, Bredesen said he told Boone then.

Within 24 hours after praying for help, a stranger agreed to pay $2 million for Boone's basketball team, "which (had been) pulling him down the drain," Bredesen said.

"God has let this city come to this point because he wants to make you a testimony," he said.

He said God has placed a man of God in the highest city office, referring to mayor Cotton Mize.

Mize, before leading the invocation, had said that Jesus is his savior.

"I'm excited about what's going to happen in Big Spring," Mize said. "I think this is a turning point in our history. We need to encourage each other not to let this die."

Mize said he would pray for Big Spring, and he encouraged people to pray for him.

Bredesen added that God was leading Everett Bender, Community Under God rally organizer, into a ministry.

Dale Dailey, Church of God minister, used his guitar to lead songs of praise and thanksgiving to God at the breakfast.

Coffee, fruit juice and sweetrolls were served to the approximately 100 people who attended.

In addition, an ABC documentary film was shown. It was about a world call to prayer, with Bredesen and the late Anwar Sadat, former Egyptian leader.

The rally continues at 3 p.m. today with a county-wide church service in the Howard College Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Jaycees sponsor family day at park

By SPENCER SANDOW

Barbecue and all the trimmings was served at the Howard County Jaycees family fun day Saturday in Comanche Trail Park, where the meal was washed down with cold beer and lemonade.

The clink of horseshoes could be heard as adults competed while children played on the swings and jungle gyms.

The fun day was conducted to recruit members to the newly-formed Jaycees chapter, chartered in April, said member Ann Clark of Route 1 Box 718.

Member Karen Martin said the civic club seeks more members to be able to do more for the community. Martin was president when the organization was chartered.

"The more members we have, the more momentum we have, the more we can accomplish," she said.

The Jaycees are working on several community projects, said current president Darrell Ash, 702 W. 17th St. The biggest, he said, is a Sept. 13 fun day in Comanche Trail Park for handicapped children.

Project chairman Pat Klein, 1708 Johnson St., said the event will include a barbecue, games, prizes, wading pools, fire engine and police car rides and a children's water slide.

Handicapped children and their parents or grandparents eat free, he said. For others, the barbecue is $2 a plate.

If anyone knows a handicapped child, he should contact Klein at

Special session fate open question

By SCOTT ROTHSCHILD
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — After the first three days of the special legislative session, legislators were calling different signals on efforts to fix the budget, some fearing a stalemate between the House and Senate, others confident that compromise was right around the corner.

"I'm not too optimistic right now," Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, said at the end of the week. "There appears to be some sort of standoff shaping up."

That standoff features two heavyweights. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby wants a $650 million budget cut and an expansion and increase in the sales tax. House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, wants the budget balanced through spending cuts.

Hobby's corner remained optimistic, according to his press secretary Saralee Tiede. "He believes compromise is what government is all about and that that's what will result," she said.

Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, said the confrontation between the Senate and House "is about what I'd expect."

He said the House will begin to back off from its position once it realizes "the Senate feels strong about the position against cuts that would do substantial damage to our system of education, colleges, criminal justice programs and prisons."

But Lewis has remained adamantly opposed to any new taxes, as have House leaders Stan Schueter, D-Killeen, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee and Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, chairman of the Appropriations Committee.

The only new factor in the equation is Gov. Mark White's plan to solve the crisis, which he delivered during a speech Wednesday to a joint session of the Legislature.

Judging from the applause meter, White was on safe ground when talking bad about Arabs, defending public education and championing a constitutional prohibition of state personal and corporate income taxes.

But there was no applause when White gave his prescription of $1.4 billion in cuts and a temporary sales tax increase with the promise to overhaul the tax structure in January.

Many legislators said they were caught by surprise when White promoted a one and one-

Forecast

WEST TEXAS: The forecast calls for isolated late afternoon and evening thunderstorms Sunday through Monday. Cooler temperatures are predicted for the north Sunday. Highs Sunday and Monday will be in the 80s in the mountains and north to near 104 in the Big Bend. Lows Sunday night will be mostly in the 60s, except mid 70s in the valleys of the southwest.

State

High winds and hail hit the Texas Panhandle Saturday, while other thunderstorms buffeted parts Southeast Texas and the lower Pecos Valley to the Davis Mountains.

In the Panhandle town of Borger, marble-sized hail and winds up to 70 mph accompanied a storm that dumped up to 1.5 inches of rain in about two hours, said Hutchinson County Civil Defense Director Larry Baltzer.

The storm caused only minor damage, however, blowing down an oil company shed and downing some power lines that cut electricity to the south part of the city, he said.

The National Weather Service said some isolated showers also dampened the area near Guadalupe Pass. But otherwise, skies were partly cloudy over most of the state.

Temperatures were in the 70s over parts of Southeast Texas with readings in the 80s and 90s over the rest of the state. The late-afternoon extremes ranged from a rain-cooled 76 degrees at Beaumont-Port Arthur to 99 at McAllen.

In the forecast for North Texas, skies should be mostly sunny and hot Sunday with a slight chance of afternoon thunderstorms. Highs should be in the 90s Sunday and Monday and lows in the 70s.

South Texas should have partly cloudy skies through Monday with lows in the 70s to near 80 and highs in the 80s to 105.

Nation

Powerful thunderstorms developed Saturday over the northern Plains and tornado watches were issued for parts of the area, as showers and thunderstorms were scattered over large parts of the East.

Small hail, very heavy rain and strong wind were reported near Fergus Falls, Minn.

A tornado watch was posted for a small part of north-central Nebraska, much of central and eastern South Dakota and a large part of central and southwestern Minnesota.

Thunderstorms poured heavy rain across Kansas, with an inch of rain in only 30 minutes at Runnymede, southwest of Wichita. McAllister got 3.26 inches of rain and Trousdale got 1.8 inches. During the six hours up to 1 p.m., 1.78 inches fell at Little Rock Air Force Base in Arkansas, while Fayetteville got 1.4 inches.

Over New England, a severe thunderstorm watch was posted for Vermont, New Hampshire, much of Massachusetts and parts of western and southwestern Maine. A heavy thunderstorm dropped hail as big as marbles at Cape Elizabeth, Maine, and Boston.

Showers and thunderstorms also were scattered over New York state, parts of the lower Ohio Valley, along the Gulf Coast and over the lower Mississippi Valley, and over the eastern Plains, the northern Rockies, the southern Rockies and parts of the southern Plateau.

A cold front ushered unseasonably cool air into the northern Plains, with early afternoon temperatures only in the 50s and 60s over much of North Dakota and Montana. High wind prevailed along the frontal system with gusts in excess of 35 mph at Chadron, Neb., and Philip and Rapid City, S.D.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 p.m. EDT ranged from 56 degrees at Arcata and Crescent City, Calif., to 106 at Palm Springs, Calif. The low for the day was 34 degrees at Gunnison, Colo.

eighth cents raise in the sales tax. The tax would go into effect Sept. 1 and expire at midnight on the last day of the fiscal year, Aug. 31, 1987.

"That has a little romance to it," said Lewis, but the Fort Worth Democrat was a long way from embracing it or any tax. "We can balance the budget without any tax increase," he said.

White's plan to cut spending was not getting a lot of respect from members of the House Appropriations Committee, partly because of its lack of detail.

So far, the committee has received from the governor a list of agencies and the amount of cuts.

When one lawmaker could not find out how the governor came up with a certain reduction, Rep. Mark Stiles remarked, "The phantom strikes again."

Farabee said he expects the session to last 30 days with both sides having to give a little. The Senate may have to swallow some budget cuts it doesn't want and the House will have to go along with some form of tax, he said.

Sen. Grant Jones, D-Temple, and chairman of the Finance Committee, said the session isn't far enough along to gauge whether the two legislative chambers are headed for a showdown.

"At the beginning of one special session several years ago, someone said, 'Do you think it'll be over in two weeks?' My basic response was that it takes two weeks to say hello."

County to consider revising club's hours

John Dabbs, general manager of Big Spring Country Club, will discuss with Howard County Commissioners Monday morning a possibility of revising an extended hours ordinance at the club.

County Commissioners will meet in a regular meeting beginning at 9 a.m. in the Commissioner's courtroom.

County attorney Tim Yeats said Friday afternoon he had studied the club's current ordinance that allows the consumption of alcohol beverages until 12 a.m.

Commissioners will discuss possibilities of adopting a statute that will allow the club to serve alcohol beverages until 2 a.m. and allow the sale of mixed drinks to the public during public events such as golf tournaments, Yeats said.

The country club is currently registered with the state as a private club, Yeats said.

Dr. Jack Woodall, director of Howard County Health Unit, will also discuss with commissioners the county's indigent health care program that begins Sept. 1.

Commissioners unanimously approved a motion in July to hire a screening officer who will determine if applicants for county medical aid are eligible to receive it.

The Jaycees also are planning a Labor day "Drive 55" campaign. Martin explained the Jaycees will provide rest booths with free coffee and soft drinks for passing holiday motorists along Interstate 20 between Big Spring and Midland.

"The idea is to pull drivers off the road, let them rest, stretch, and cut down on accidents," she said.

In addition, Ash said a softball tournament and run-a-thon are tentatively scheduled for September and October, respectively. The club also plans to sell tickets and concessions at the Crossroads Stampede next weekend, he said.

Martin said the Jaycees are dedicated to "individual management and community development."

One example of chapter-provided individual help is leadership training through speak-up projects, she said. The projects teach how to speak in public and how to "speak up for your rights, so you're better prepared in the business world" and private life, she said.

tions a uniform process statewide also will be harmed with the $1.6 million cut as will implementation of the discipline management program, Moak said.

"I have difficulty understanding how we can carry out House Bill 72 without the funds or staff," he said.

Rep. Paul Colbert, D-Houston, who battled a push by Rep. Jim McWilliams, D-Hallsville, for that cut, said many House members backing the education quality reduction had not supported the original reform legislation.

The vocational education program also lost roughly 29 positions in cuts primarily volunteered by the Texas Education Agency.

At the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, which is in federal court over its operations, lawmakers sliced $13.5 million in state funds from its $592.9 million budget.

"It will be hard for us to stay out of trouble with the courts," said deputy commissioner Tom Suehs.

About 420 staff positions will be removed with the committee action, Suehs said. The agency employs about 25,000 people, he said.

Although roughly 300 job losses in administration might be absorbed by attrition, layoffs may be required for the other positions suggested cut by the committee, he said. Seventy of the positions are in the central office, with the remainder in cosmetology, barber and chaplaincy services.

The agency already had scheduled to cut 1,500 positions in the coming year, he said.

Loss of support positions at hospitals and schools will not directly affect patient care, but support services will suffer, he said. It may be harder to keep facilities clean and meet health and safety requirements, Suehs said.

The agency also will have $24 million in state funds replaced by funds to be collected from Medicare.

At the Department of Human Services, $19.5 million in state funds were cut, $825,000 of which was for new child protective services employees. The new employees would provide 900 clients per month with in-home services.

Also lost with the committee proposal are 404 positions in the central office and 13 positions in licensing, but layoffs were not expected, according to agency documents.

Surgeon eulogizes artificial heart patient

JASPER, Ind. (AP) — William Schroeder showed great love for those around him and contributed generously to medical science, his surgeon said Saturday at the funeral for the man who lived longest with an artificial heart.

"He has left this world a better place because of his short sojourn on this earth," Dr. William DeVries said of Schroeder, who was 54 when he died Wednesday after living 620 days with the Jarvik-7 heart.

About 500 people packed the funeral Mass at St. Joseph Roman Catholic Church in Schroeder's hometown.

"I'll always remember the love he had in his heart for all the people who helped him," said DeVries, who delivered the eulogy.

"He was a generous man who pushed the seeds of a tree into the ground knowing he may never bask in its shade," the doctor said.

The Rev. Othmar Schroeder, an uncle of the heart patient, delivered the homily. He praised Schroeder's family "for the powerful example they set before us of what it means to be a family."

Addressing them directly, he said, "Your willingness to set aside your plans to be with your dad and your many trips to Louisville was evidence of your love for your dad."

The priest also praised his nephew's contribution to medical science.

"His willingness to follow an uncharted course demonstrated his faith and trust in God, and that faith will not go unrewarded," he said. "God will look down in favor on the service he performed for others."

Schroeder's family remained composed throughout the service. His four sons served as pallbearers, and at one point in the service the family gathered around the flag-draped casket to clasp hands.

Margaret Schroeder, the heart patient's wife, left the church between the arms of her two daughters as a light drizzle fell.

At the cemetery, she received the U.S. flag that covered her husband's casket from an American Legion representative who said it represented "services he rendered to the country."

At the graveside service, Othmar Schroeder and the Rev. Sylvester Schroeder, another uncle, prayed over the casket as Schroeder's daughters wiped away occasional tears.

LONDON — A Sunday newspaper said 60-year-old Queen Elizabeth II underwent tests at the National Heart Hospital last week, and that Buckingham Palace called the tests routine.

The Sunday Mirror quoted unidentified doctors at the hospital as saying the queen's heartbeat was monitored on an electrocardiograph machine Tuesday.

Berlin Wall protested

BERLIN (AP) — About 3,500 demonstrators marched through West Berlin's city center Saturday to protest the Berlin Wall, and the U.S. ambassador to West Germany predicted the barrier would some day be "one of history's bad memories."

Scores of demonstrators carried small Berlin or American flags. Others held black banners bearing the names of some of the at least 73 people killed trying to escape over the wall.

Late Saturday, between 150 and 200 protesters forced their way through the Checkpoint Charlie crossing into East Berlin and tore down an East German flag from a pole a few yards inside the sector before East German border guards pushed them back.

Permian center needs support

Diversification — the word has grown to considerable importance during the past year as the oil industry slump continues to undermine the economy of the Permian Basin. Many observers say it's a tougher than normal bust period this time because ranching and most agricultural operations also have been extremely hard hit by the repressive economy.

Both situations emphasize the need for diversification in the Permian Basin.

Unfortunately, interest in diversification has grown with the booms, then waned with the busts. Recent history has shown that many people in the basin only pay lip service to diversification as ever-optimistic West Texas residents foresee the start of the next boom only months away.

The next boom period, however, may be many years away, and diversification must be emphasized as the answer to eliminating the boom-bust extremes.

Now that we've stated the problem, how do we solve it? We don't pretend to have the answers, but we think we know one of them.

We think one of them requires Permian Basin residents to make a commitment of support to the Center for Energy and Economic Diversification planned by the University of Texas at the Permian Basin.

With adequate support and involvement from basin residents, we think the center can be a guiding force that's needed to diversify and stabilize the West Texas economy.

Because the center is to be located between Midland and Odessa, we are concerned that too many residents of this area may not be aware of how much the center could affect their lives if they take an active part in seeing that it's developed properly.

The development of more uses for petroleum products, and the development of more skills and products in general in the Permian Basin will affect all who live in this area.

We believe area residents would be wise to become informed on the project and UTPB's efforts to raise $15 million by 1991 to build and develop it.

It's time for more than lip service if diversification is to become a reality.

Pool closing idea draws 'shock'

To the editor: The possibility of closing the swimming pool in Comanche Trail Park in Big Spring is shocking to me.

I have always ranked the city pool along with Balmorea in West Texas and Barton Springs in Austin.

For 27 years my children, grandchildren and I have enjoyed this city facility.

Even Forsan has a city pool for children of that school district. True, the city pool caters mainly to children — mostly children whose parents don't belong to the country club.

Let's face it, the city golf course and city ball parks cater to a minority of tax paying citizens, but these are mainly adults who claim that any progressive city must have these things. Adults vote; children can't.

To my mind, to close the city swimming pool would be a step backward for Big Spring.

Big Spring — even the name denotes a city of water.

Governor should set the example

To the editor: Governor Mark White could give a good start for the special session of the Legislature and set the tone for budget cuts if he would propose to sell the super fancy jet that he purchased for his personal use and replace it with a turbo-prop plane that was produced in Texas.

Our state treasury could use the funds, and the inconvenience of 30 to 40 minutes flying time that is saved by flying with the fancy plane that the Governor bought is just not worth the extra million dollars that it cost.

If such cost-cutting measures were repeated by other state agencies, and the money saved was sent to the state treasury, we would have the special session over with very quickly.

But this can't be done unless Gov. White takes the first step and announces that he is going to put his super fancy, super plush jet up for sale and spend the extra 30 to 40 minutes flying in a turbo jet instead. Or maybe he could fly commercial airlines and save us even more money.

The governor can't say "don't do as I do," he must set the example. L. GEORGE BURKE

Lengthy house hunt ends with changes in viewpoint

By DARRELL BERKHEIMER

Finally, we're in a house in Big Spring — two months after the search began.

We're renting, but mainly because we were forced to. We would prefer to buy a house — particularly with today's market. Both prices and interest rates are down, and I'm optimistic about the future economy of this area.

We're renting because, like so many other families, we have much of our assets involved in a house we haven't sold in another community. The market is depressed there, too, with little promise of improving in the immediate future.

Plenty of houses are on the market in Big Spring — if you're buying, that is.

If you're renting, the selection is considerably more limited — particularly when you need three bedrooms and two baths with 1500 square feet or more. (With daughters, one bathroom just is not enough. And we moved from a town house that had three.)

Nearly all of the rentals we saw either were not large enough or weren't clean enough. Two were rented by other people in front of us.

In one case, an out-of-town doctor was promised first choice. He came back to Big Spring and decided to take the house only a couple days after we looked at it. In the other case, the deposit was paid by other renters only hours before we were ready to do the same. As the situation developed, however, I suppose the house we got has a few more advantages than the other two.

Nevertheless, we're renting when we prefer to be buying. And we saw three or four homes we might have purchased if the owners would have been willing to consider a year's lease-purchase agreement with part of the monthly rent going toward accumulating the down payment.

The sellers wouldn't agree, mainly because they said we did not have enough down payment. But if we had as much as they wanted down, we wouldn't have needed a lease-purchase agreement, we could have bought the house outright.

We understand their view, however, because we were the same way when we originally put our house on the market.

We wanted a simple sale — one that would pay our equity and have no continuing entanglements. We were stubborn about it for a couple years and wouldn't even listen to talk about creative financing.

Now, we wish we would have listened. We might have sold our house and saved ourselves the several thousand dollars we lost as the market continued to drop and as a result of renting and rental repairs.

It wasn't until we began hunting a house in Big Spring that we began to see the other side of the issue more clearly — from the buyer's point of view.

But isn't that typical? Too often we can't understand the other person's situation until we find ourselves in a similar predicament.

We've also learned not to put all of our equity from the sale of one house into another.

Once again I'm reminded of my Pennsylvania Dutch background and a saying that I grew up with. "Ve grow too soon old, und too late schmart."

White broke unwritten rule

By JIM DAVIS

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau AUSTIN — Mark White's call for a sales tax increase reminds me of an encounter with an elderly delegate at the end of the Democratic national convention two years ago.

The longtime party worker said he earlier had become swept up in the enthusiasm and unity of the San Francisco convention.

He knew all the polls said President Reagan was unbeatable, but the naming of a woman as the vice presidential candidate and New York Gov. Mario Cuomo's rousing keynote speech had stirred the party faithful.

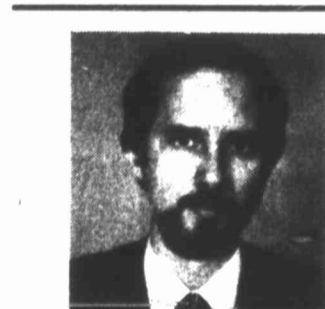

"I really had begun to think that Walter Mondale might win," the elderly delegate said, "and then he made that speech saying higher taxes were inevitable no matter who was elected. I knew then he was dead."

That delegate's analysis, of course, was oversimplified, but he will go to his grave believing things might have been different in 1984 if only Mondale had kept his mouth shut about taxes.

And that conviction demonstrates the widespread belief that candidates should never talk about taxes unless they are attacking them.

Gov. White broke that rule in his address to a special session of the Texas Legislature on Wednesday. His call for a one-year sales tax increase, combined with some budget cuts, surprised a lot of people.

Many legislators, including some Republicans, said they admire White for taking a leadership role in making his proposal, even though they said it was a long time coming. But few said White did the smart thing politically.

Hardly was the proposal out of White's mouth than Republican opponent Bill Clements was issuing a news release comparing White to Mondale.

Clements, who already is far ahead of White in the polls, is taking the proven safe path of opposing any tax increase. It simply will not happen in his four-year administration if he is elected in November, he says.

That's a strong promise. And, unless the price of oil soars to $30 a barrel, it undoubtedly will haunt Clements in the future if he wins the election. However, he wouldn't face that until after he had won a four-year term.

House Speaker Gib Lewis, facing a Republican opponent for the first time in eight years, also is taking a firm no-new-taxes stand, although he leaves a crack in the door for a possible retreat later.

He wants to do just enough in the special session (which comes before the November election) to take care of the state's cash-flow problem. Addressing the bigger

Brain drain imminent in South Texas

By JESSE TREVINO

Despite the millions of dollars in state spending in South Texas and part of West Texas, that area of the state faces a brain drain of dramatic proportions.

Young people leaving the region produces an intellectual vacuum that debilitates leadership and weakens the region's economy.

The absence of first-class higher educational institutions in South Texas below San Antonio forces the region's most talented minds to look northward to the University of Texas at Austin, Texas A&M University, Southern Methodist University or even Notre Dame or Harvard.

Once educated, many of these talented, young, predominantly Hispanic students return home only to visit.

Unfortunately, the region's pressing need for a premier institution of higher learning is becoming obvious as the state faces a perilous budget crunch.

But the brain drain phenomenon must be reversed if South Texas is ever to integrate into the rest of the state and its economy. Where would Houston, Dallas or Austin be if 75 percent of their brainpower were exported every year?

To be sure, South Texas has many talented, intellectually capable individuals. But three out of every four college graduates leave the region to realize their professional aspirations elsewhere, depriving the anemic South Texas economy of their higher-than-average salaries.

South Texas, then, could be viewed as a colony in the classical sense: the region provides its most precious resources to the rest of the state while realizing few benefits.

But unlike the old mercantile system forced upon the 13 original colonies, the lack of a stellar educational facility in South Texas evolved out of simple neglect and a lack of vision.

This syndrome must be broken as Texas heads into the 21st Century. Without a solid university complex to anchor its economic development, South Texas will float along without direction.

South Texas needs a university of the first class to retain the region's talent and to attract additional talent from other areas. Until this happens, it is difficult to see how South Texas is going to become a full partner in Texas' future.

As things stand now, Pan American University at Edinburg and Texas A&I University at Kingsville — the region's two major schools — rank among the lowest in per capita state spending.

Equalization in higher education should become the rallying cry for those individuals who understand that South Texas looms as a crucial area with geopolitical overtones, and one that promises economic possibilities stretching across a hemisphere.

Yet no one can ignore the state's precarious fiscal condition.

At some point, however, responsible Texans in leadership positions must realize that a Laredo International University, a McAllen College of Medicine or a Harlingen Institute for Latin American Commerce could serve the national interest as well as the interests of Texas.

The support for a solid educational institution in South Texas should be emanating from Austin, Dallas and Houston because South Texas lacks equivalent political clout. But to this day, only University of Texas Chancellor Hans Mark has broached the idea.

The birth of a distinguished university south of San Antonio would be the clearest signal to the people of South Texas. Such a university would go a long way to remove the region from its step-child status of the last 150 years.

Many Texas opportunities lie to the south. Texas could be a fulcrum for international trade in the developing Mexican and Latin American markets.

But we must first provide the tools to capitalize on that advantage.

Jesse Trevino writes on Hispanic social and political issues.

Virus found in mosquitoes

DALLAS (AP) — City health officials have issued a "mosquito alert" after discovering some cases of the St. Louis encephalitis virus in mosquitoes across the city.

"The presence of the virus in mosquitoes presents the potential of transmission to humans," said Fred M. Barnes, Dallas environmental health officer.

So far, there have been no cases of encephalitis reported in humans, he said Friday. Barnes said the virus turned up in mosquitoes collected from various parts of Dallas in mid-July.

The health officials are recommending citizens protect themselves with insect repellent and clothing that bares a minimum of skin.

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Public Utility Commissioner Jo Campbell, believing she was about to be accused of improper conduct in a rate case involving AT&T Communications, privately questioned state employees about the matter, the Dallas Times Herald reported.

In its Sunday editions, the newspaper said Ms. Campbell proceeded with the tape-recorded interviews despite warnings from PUC Chairwoman Peggy Rosson that she not conduct such sessions.

The Times Herald reported that a tape of the sessions revealed Ms. Campbell said an allegation had been made that a commissioner had been involved in a "procedural irregularity" and she believed she might be the target of the charge.

According to the tape, Ms. Campbell said she was conducting the session to "find out the facts."

Consumer representatives said they will cite the sessions in their efforts to win reversal of a recent $55 million rate increase for AT&T.

Private sessions by parties involved in a rate case are improper, they said.

The commission, acting on a recommendation from Ms. Campbell, approved by a 2-1 vote the rate hike for the long-distance company last winter.

On Friday, Ms. Campbell said it was proper for a commissioner to question state employees under such circumstances and tape record their answers.

"I don't see any wrongdoing by anyone," she said. "When you have an allegation made that is going to go to court, any wise attorney is going to get down exactly what happened."

But Ms. Rosson said she told Ms. Campbell that recording of employees by any head of the agency would have a "demoralizing" effect on the PUC staff.

"I specifically requested that she not tape record the session," Ms. Rosson said. "There was no use I could see which this type of recording could be put to."

Don Butler, a lawyer for Texas cities who made the original allegations about improper conduct in the rate case, said Ms. Campbell had "provided another ground for reversal of the case by taking evidence without notice or hearing to the parties involved."

State Sen. Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville, chairman of the Senate Nominations Subcommittee, said he believed the tapings should be seriously considered by senators in Ms. Campbell's confirmation process, scheduled to begin by early next week.

"I can see where it (the recordings) could be very intimidating to state employees and I don't see it as a normal healthy business practice," he said.

Edwards said the taping, which took place last spring, would not be sufficient grounds alone to reject her appointment, but said he considered it an important aspect of her "ability to provide leadership" in the agency.

However, Public Utility Commissioner Dennis Thomas said commissioners should have the right to question employees about anything that interests them. In turn, employees have a right to refuse to answer the questions, he said.

Thomas said he declined to participate in Ms. Campbell's session. Butler said the allegation of possible improper conduct was not targeted at Ms. Campbell. Butler earlier said that unnamed PUC members or employees may have violated state law by privately communicating with other parties about the case.

State law prohibits anyone involved in the decision-making process in a pending utility rate matter from communicating privately about a case with any party connected to the proceeding.

Ms. Campbell said the tapes would ultimately be turned over to a panel appointed by the PUC to look into the issue.

Two indicted on check fraud

HOUSTON (AP) — Two men who allegedly devised an elaborate check-kiting scheme while they were in jail have been indicted by a federal grand jury, prosecutors said.

The three-count federal indictment charges Larry Wayne Smith and Bruce Edward Johnson with bank and wire fraud, Assistant U.S. Attorney James Sabalos said.

Both face up to 15 years in prison and $750,000 in fines if convicted.

The two men are accused of wiring $58,900 in worthless checks from a bank in St. Paul, Minn., to banks in Houston, San Antonio and Shreveport, La. The checking accounts involved were opened this summer, prosecutors said.

Smith, serving a six-month sentence for theft, was scheduled to be released next month. Johnson was released from jail earlier this summer, Sabalos said.

An attempt to obtain $18,000 from San Antonio Savings Association of Houston was foiled when the thrift checked the transaction, Sabalos said.

Magazine counter sues mayor

McALLEN — A magazine has filed suit against the mayor of this South Texas city, charging that he "maliciously" sued for libel in 1982 in an effort to squelch the publication's right to free speech.

The Nation filed last week in Edinburg's State District Court, alleging that Othal Brand launched his suit to "wrongfully penalize, punish, intimidate and harass plaintiff (The Nation) for the exercise of its constitutionally protected and fundamental right of free speech."

Brand had sued over a September 1981 Nation article about his mayoral campaign that year that was entitled, "Patron Politics in McAllen, Texas; Chicano Votes Don't Count." District Judge Mario Ramirez dismissed Brand's libel action in a summary judgment and the mayor did not appeal.

"It's one more of these frivolous suits that are being filed," the mayor said of the counter suit. "I'm not greatly concerned about it ... It's more harassment."

But Jim Harrington, Texas Civil Liberties Union director and The Nation's attorney in both suits, said Brand's libel suit was filed to punish the magazine for presenting the mayor in an unflattering light.

As a result, the magazine suffered a libel insurance cost increase and damage to its reputation, the counter suit claims.

Fires burn thousands of acres in Northwest

By The Associated Press
Firefighters battled a half-dozen out-of-control range fires Saturday in Utah, while crews in Idaho began to get the upper hand against fires that have charred thousands of acres of rangeland.

Some Oregon firefighters began heading home Saturday after a week spent battling forest fires that burned more than 90,000 acres in the eastern part of the state, according to the Forest Service and the federal Bureau of Land Management.

BLM spokesman Bert Hart in Utah said crews there had no containment time predicted for the 3,000-acre Chambers fire or the 500-acre Rockwell 2 fire, both of which were started by lightning near a west-central Utah recreation area.

"If there's a thunderstorm, it's hard to tell what they'll end up with," Hart said. "I'd sure hate to be a weatherman trying to make a living nowadays."

About 15 people fought the Chambers fire near the Little Sahara Recreation Area on Saturday and 10 that had blackened more than 17,600 acres by Saturday afternoon.

About 125 firefighters manned the lines around the Danskin and Long Tom fires below the South Fork of the Boise River just west of Anderson Ranch Dam. The fire was burning tinder-dry grass, sagebrush and small pockets of timber, in some areas through steep ravines. Officials said they hoped to contain the blazes by Sunday evening.

West of Boise, the Payette Fire, visible from the town of Payette, had grown from 24,000 acres to 32,000 acres, said BLM dispatcher Kim Christensen. But firefighters completed fire lines around it Friday, she said.

The Paddock Valley Blaze near Weiser grew to 13,000 acres Friday evening, but crews also completed lines around that fire Friday.

BLM dispatcher Fred Corey said about 70 firefighters remained on the scene of those two fires Saturday, mainly patrolling fire lines and dousing hot spots.

Temperatures at 10 a.m. Saturday had already hit 97 degrees near Unity, Ore., where firefighters had contained the 8,000-acre Cottonwood-Sunflower fire in the Wallowa-Whitman National Forest. The Clear fire in the Wallowa-Whitman had blackened 6,000 acres but was 80 percent contained Saturday, said Forest Service spokesman Mike Ferris.

A total of 1,350 firefighters and support personnel were working on the Clear fire, about 30 miles northwest of Baker.

"That's the one we're really hitting hard. It has the potential to keep going," Ferris said.

Fires in the Wallowa-Whitman burned nearly 30,000 acres of timber and grass over the past week, Ferris said. A fire south of the Wallowa-Whitman, between Vale and Ontario near the Idaho border, was contained Friday after charring 25,000 acres of brush, said BLM spokesman Phil Stanbro.

Marines load hay headed for drought-stricken area

HONDO (AP) — About 200 Marines sweated and sang under the hot South Texas sun Saturday as they loaded thousands of bales of donated hay bound for the drought-stricken Southeast.

As with the scores of Future Farmers of America who gathered

Friday in the East Texas town of Atlanta to load donated hay, the Marines were responding to the plight of Southern farmers whose crops have failed under a relentless summer sun.

In Hondo, Marine Pvt. Greg Marcantel recruited about 200 friends to help load 8,000 bales of hay donated by farmer-rancher Carl Lazzell. The Marines, stationed briefly at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio for training, were joined by 30 Air Force officer candidates from Lackland and 15 airmen from Brooks AFB.

The members of the military made their task easier by singing as they worked. The hay was transported from Lazzell's farm by Texas National Guard trucks to 40 boxcars run by Southern Pacific, which is transporting the hay to Georgia and South Carolina for free. On Friday, 5,000 bales of hay were donated from Atlanta to its sister city of Atlanta, Ga. That project got started when Grady Blizard overheard his 16-year-old son praying for the farmers in the Southeast.

Except for his prayers, the young man didn't know how he could help. But then his father overheard him and began suggesting that neighbors donate their surplus hay.

He even chipped in hay from 30 acres of his own.

Freelancers harvest crops for farmers

Kenneth Hughes of Stamford poses next to his combine in a field near Taylor recently. The harvesting season has brought a flock of combines and their owners to set up camp hoping farm owners will seek them out to harvest their fields.

TAYLOR (AP) — A weatherbeaten man walked over from his trailer home next to a combine, and asked if the reporter had come to take pictures of poverty. He wasn't joking.

The field next to the Texas Inn on Highway 79 in this Central Texas town was full of harvesting combines and the trailer homes of those who work them. The harvesters come here every year to try and get jobs getting in crops for farmers who do not own a combine.

The number of combines showing up in this field is increasing, even as the number of farms and farmers is decreasing, the man said.

Kenneth Hughes, 49, is a former mechanic, now full-time combine operator, who lives most of the year in Stamford, north of Abilene. He said that "way over half" of the combines he sees here this year have never been here before. They are here because their owners need work, he said.

"I think you'll see a lot more combines in here..." he said.

Hughes said the field outside Taylor became a sort of parking lot for combine owners who travel here looking for work. Area farmers come to the field to hire combines for harvesting. He himself has been making the trip since 1981.

He said he used to have to employ men to help him on the trips, but now he takes only his wife, Lois, who drives the harvesters just as he does. But Hughes added, "If she gets another job, I guess I'll have to hire some help.

"The runs have been so short this year" that it's hard to break even, he said.

"It's gotten to where almost everybody (in the area) has a combine," he added. "I don't think there'll be many years of custom harvesting."

Hughes said he has seen combines from as far away as Canada working in recent years in Stamford, because unlike other states, Texas does not require permits for out-of-state workers.

After working as a mechanic for 27 years, Hughes sold his shop and took up "cutting."

He said he cuts wheat in Stamford until mid-July, then heads to Elgin to work the early milo crops, stationing himself in Taylor. In the fall and winter, he is back in Stamford cutting, and finishes "usually by Christmas." He then begins repairs and maintenance on his two combines and other machinery.

Along with the glut of combines, traveling expenses and license fees conspire against the combine owners.

Hughes had to make two expensive trips to get his pickup, harvester, trailer and bobtail truck into Taylor. "That's the bad thing about this work," he said. "At least half the time you spend on the road is just wasted time."

If there is no work, he said, the cost of fees and licenses can eat up a man's entire earnings.

Labor officials leery of drug testing plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor officials representing government workers and civil libertarians say they want to see the fine print beneath the broad outline of President Reagan's proposal for universal workplace drug testing.

While not quarreling with Reagan's goal of attacking drug abuse in workplaces, these officials say, they will not endorse massive testing until they're satisfied people's rights will be protected.

Alan Adler, legislative director of the American Civil Liberties Union, questioned whether there can be such a thing as a truly voluntary program of testing. If a worker is asked to submit to a test but refuses, that person can be subjected to reprisals on the job or from his or her co-workers, he said.

"It's sort of like voluntary prayer in the schools," Adler said in an interview. "Just as children would not want to be singled out by their peers as uncooperative, workers might feel the same way, even if they have strong objections to the tests on constitutional grounds."

Kenneth T. Blaylock, president of the American Federation of Government Employees, said, "We're ready to work with them on a reasonable program. But if you move away from the probable cause test (for workers asked to be tested) and the reasonable cause test, then you get into a dangerous area."

Reagan announced his goals last Monday, saying he wants to put in place a program combining stepped-up testing with efforts to educate people about the dangers of drugs and to stop illegal narcotics at U.S. borders. The goal is to get people off drugs, not punish them, he said.

But his top aides said that questions about legalities and constitutional complications — as well as questions about how the bill for the anti-drug abuse will be footed — will have to be settled in coming weeks by the Domestic Policy Council of Cabinet officers.

Reagan said he thought drug testing, for the most part, ought to be done on a voluntary basis, with the exception of police officers, air traffic controllers and others in public safety. He said federal workers should volunteer first to set an example for the rest of the country.

Reagan himself took the drug test Saturday before undergoing a urological examination. Other White House officials are to take the voluntary test Monday, but the president took it early because medication he received during the exam might have interfered with the test results.

White House officials said it would take up to 10 days to get the results of the president's tests.

Neither Reagan's announcement of the planned drug tests nor subsequent briefings by administration officials explained how massive testing could be carried out — even on a voluntary basis — without compromising individual privacy and due process, critics said.

Gov. White asks for hispanic support in election

MCALLEN (AP) — Gov. Mark White, asking Mexican-Americans for their support in November, sang "Happy Birthday" and presented a bicycle as a birthday gift Saturday to a little girl he mentioned in arguing against education cost-cutting.

White, speaking to the 10th annual convention of the Mexican American Democrats of Texas, said he would need their support to defeat GOP opponent Bill Clements. He said he and other Democratic officials who addressed the convention would need Hispanic support to win in the Nov. 4 general election.

"Because of your hard work, because of your service four years ago, we were able to lead this state. Without your help we would not have been elected to statewide office," White told the crowd of about 800.

"Because of your enthusiastic response here tonight, I feel very confident we will be elected to serve for the next four years."

White earlier this week asked a special legislative session to consider passing a temporary sales tax to help erase the state's budget deficit. He also asked for cuts at state universities but said he wanted to preserve the education reforms passed in 1984 and told the story of Angela Botello of La Jolla. The little girl could not speak English a year ago but because of a pre-kindergarten program implemented by the state's education reforms, she was able to learn English.

White told the crowd that Angela, like other youngsters, was important to him.

He brought her to the podium and led a chorus of "Happy Birthday" in honor of her fifth birthday.

Angela was given a pink bicycle and a birthday cake.

"I thought it would be a great present to keep her school and to keep it strong and they asked what she would like for her birthday and she said, 'A bike.'" White said. "I got to thinking back when I was 5 years old, that (a bike) was a whole lot more important than going to school. We get to keep the school; she gets to keep the bike." Earlier in the day, State

Democratic Party Chairman Bob Slagle told the group that Hispanics' dreams were important to the party.

"You and I know that all a Mexican-American wants is an even break to get to be a middle-class American, where he or she has ... the opportunity to go to school, where he or she has the opportunity to have a job or start a business," Slagle said.

Senate finishing work on Pentagon budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate struggled Saturday to finish work on a huge Pentagon budget bill that sharply reduces President Reagan's plans to increase defense spending, particularly for key projects such as "Star Wars."

The Republican-controlled chamber met in an unusual Saturday session to plow through more than a dozen amendments. The proposals offered generally minor changes and were the only ones left from more than 130 offered by senators during a week of work.

One major proposal, killed on a 72-24 vote, would have banned trade with communist nations if that trade was in any way subsidized by the U.S. government.

The proposal was offered by Sen. Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., who said America should not help Soviet expansion plans. But opponents contended it would halt virtually all U.S. trade, including farm shipments, with a large number of nations.

The bill that the Senate passes will eventually have to be reconciled with the Pentagon spending plan that the Democratic-controlled House will work through this week.

For the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, Reagan sought $320 billion in defense spending, compared with the current budget of about $286 billion. The Senate measure authorizes $295 billion while the House version permits $292 billion.

The Senate measure proposes $3.95 billion for spending on Star Wars anti-missile research, far below Reagan's request of $5.3 billion but still an increase from the current $3.1 billion budget.

The House bill would permit $3.8 billion for Star Wars, although there are at least a half-dozen amendments proposing spending levels that range from $1 billion to Reagan's total request.

While both bills scale back Reagan's defense plan, they also permit the Pentagon to buy thousands of fighters, bombers, tanks, ships and missiles.

The Saturday session was the first of the year by the Senate and was held because the chamber is facing a crowded agenda of major issues as it tries to wrap up its work by Friday and leave for a three-week recess.

Bell, union continue contract talks

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Some progress was made but major differences remained in the positions of Southwestern Bell Corp. and the union representing 48,000 workers as talks on new contracts continued Saturday, spokesmen for both sides said.

The old contracts between Southwestern Bell and the Communications Workers of America were scheduled to expire at midnight Saturday.

Doyle Niemann, a spokesman for District 6 of the CWA, said a settlement that would avoid a strike was possible, but that the union could not accept the company's wage proposals.

"We remain convinced that the framework is there," Niemann said. "It's up to the company to come forward with acceptable proposals."

A Southwestern Bell spokesman, Jim Epperson, said the company was encouraged that talks have continued on schedule.

"We remain optimistic that we'll be able to reach a settlement before the deadline," he said. If the sides are close, Epperson said, the company and union would agree to extend the current contracts and prevent a strike.

Contracts for 48,000 telephone company workers and 2,000 employees of Southwestern Bell's publications company are being negotiated separately. Southwestern Bell has more than eight million customers in Arkansas, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas.

Niemann said the company has taken "a hard line" in its wage proposals for the telephone company workers. He said the union would not accept a proposal to change the salary structure to a system of wage bands, in which jobs are assigned to one of 11 salary classifications. In addition, Niemann said, the company wants to eliminate cost-of-living wage increases.

"The list (of issues) is narrowing, but the company still has a long list of regressive proposals," he said.

The major issue in the talks involving the publications company workers is a company proposal to change the way directory sales representatives are paid commissions, Niemann said.

"It's always been on a commission basis," he said. "They want a different kind of formula that would reduce commissions."

Epperson would not comment on any proposals. He said the company refused to discuss any issues of the negotiations away from the bargaining table.

If a strike occurs, Epperson said, the only immediate change in service would be a possible delay in obtaining directory assistance. A prolonged strike could cause delays in the company's ability to respond to service calls, he said, despite the company's contingency plan to deploy many of its 18,876 managers in jobs currently performed by union members.

Epperson said Southwestern Bell now handles 21 million local and long-distance calls each day, along with 200,000 directory assistance calls. In addition, he said, the company receives 4,000 service calls each day.

"If the strike would be prolonged, we couldn't continue to handle that volume," he said.

Niemann said the union reached a strike would not affect service to residential customers, but he said the company would be hard hit by any delay in responding to service calls.

The market has become competitive since American Telephone & Telegraph Co. was broken up into seven regional systems — the so-called Baby Bells — in 1984, he said.

"If someone calls Southwestern Bell and can't get service, they'll call someone else," Niemann said.

3 1/2-week-old boy receives liver transplant

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A 3 1/2-week-old boy believed to be the youngest liver transplant patient ever underwent surgery Saturday at Children's Hospital to receive a new organ.

Michael Boggs, son of Mark and Joann Boggs of Osage, Wyo., entered surgery about 4 p.m. and was expected to remain in the operating room until at least midnight, said hospital spokeswoman Lynn McMahon.

"As far as we are able to tell at this point, he is the youngest liver transplant patient ever. He's the youngest we've done at Children's," she said.

The previous youngest liver transplant patient was believed to have been 10-week-old Christine Holy of Fort Wayne, Ind. She received the new organ Nov. 3 at Barnes Hospital in St. Louis, but died from a blood clot Nov. 11.

Michael was born with liver failure July 15, Ms. McMahon said. Doctors have not been able to pinpoint the cause of the failure, she said.

He has been in stable condition since being transferred to the intensive care unit Children's Hospital on Thursday from a Denver hospital, Ms. McMahon said.

The donor organ was provided through the Pittsburgh Transplant Foundation, she said, adding that the surgery can take from eight to 23 hours.

Ms. McMahon would not comment on the infant's chances for survival, but said the 72 hours after the surgery are the most critical. The hospital's transplant survival rate for children up to age 15 is 80 percent, she said.

Jury convicts three men in escape plot

ANDERSON, Ind. (AP) — A jury Saturday convicted three of nine defendants accused of conspiring to storm a courtroom to free an Indiana Reformatory inmate during a manslaughter trial.

The Madison Superior Court jury convicted Roger A. Jaske, Richard D. Alery and Paul A. Buffington of conspiracy.

Three other defendants were acquitted of conspiracy, but found guilty of carrying handguns without permits. Three others were acquitted of all charges.

Jaske, who had been charged in the manslaughter case, devised a plan calling for heavily armed men to burst into Madison County Circuit Court during his trial, handcuff a police guard and take women hostages.

Defense lawyers argued the men came to Anderson because of the promise of high pay and adventure, not realizing they were being drawn into an escape plot.

The jury deliberated about 18 hours over three days before returning the verdicts. It spent several hours listening to the testimony of Alery, 28, of Anoka, Minn.

Alery admitted helping Jaske recruit the others through an advertisement in Soldier of Fortune magazine after answering an ad placed by Jaske. He backed out of the plot the day the men began gathering at a local motel, leaving plans for the escape at the motel's front desk, he said.

Police arrested the eight men at the motel March 2-3, the weekend before Jaske's trial was to begin. Jaske already was serving a prison sentence for murder and was subsequently convicted in the manslaughter case.

Acquitted of conspiracy were Anthony S. Karen, 20, of Great Neck, N.Y.; Mark A. Waite, 21, of Newburgh, N.Y.; Arthur E. Littler, 22, of Bailey, Colo.; James M. Riggs, 27, of Enterprise, Ala.; Robert E. Underwood, 25, of Greenville, Texas; and Robert D. Crump, 23, of Abilene, Texas.

Riggs, Underwood and Crump were convicted on the weapons charge.

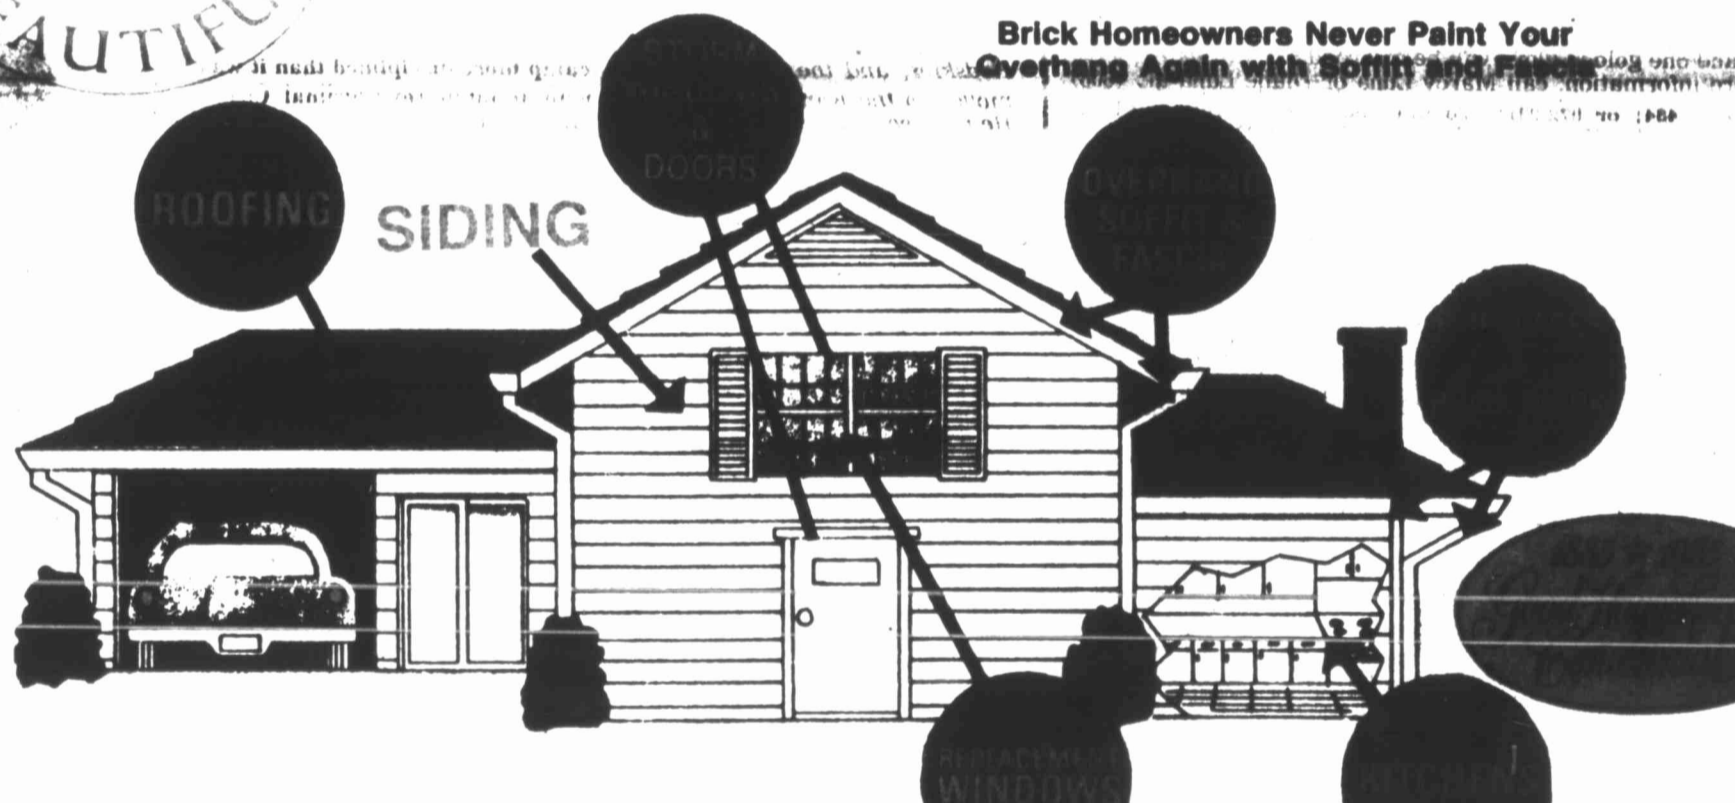

A Sept. 2 sentencing date was set for all defendants. Those convicted of conspiracy face possible sentences ranging from two to eight years.

PGA's looking like a Norman conquest

Bob Tway reacts to a birdie putt on the 17th green on his way to setting a new course record in the PGA Championship at the Inverness Club in Toledo.

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Greg Norman answered adversity with a magic wedge, twice chipping in from the green to retain a four-shot lead and authoritative control of the 68th PGA National Championship.

"It will be very difficult to beat him. It's all up to Greg. If he plays well, he wins," said Jack Nicklaus, who beat Norman by a stroke at the Masters but virtually putted himself out of a chance for a record sixth PGA title.

Bob Tway, the only man to really make up ground, and it took a course-record 64 for him to do it, took a more optimistic view.

"You never know. Greg might shoot 65, or he might shoot 72. You never know. I'll just try to play good golf, give myself all the opportunities I can and hope to be in contention," he said.

No one got there Saturday in the third round.

Norman, who has led this tournament since a 65 in the opening round, had margins ranging from three to six shots. He really wasn't threatened. And when he found himself in a rare spot of trouble, he simply chipped the ball into the hole.

He finished with a 2-under-par 69 for a 202 total, 11 shots under par on the Inverness course that did not yield a subpar 72-hole total in four U.S. Opens.

Norman now has led going into the final round of all four of golf's major championships this year.

He led the Masters by a single stroke and finished second, one back of Nicklaus. He led the U.S. Open by one, "came out flat" by his own admission, and drifted back into the field. He led the British Open by one, and won by five.

Now, with 18 holes to go in the last of the year's Big Four tournaments, only Tway and Jacobsen are within sight of the Australian known as "The Great White Shark."

Tway, winner of three titles on the PGA Tour this year and second only to Norman on the money-winning list, got there on an eight-birdie effort that put him alone in second at 206.

"I got myself back in the golf tournament," he said.

Jacobsen was next at 208 after a hard-won 70.

The other contenders, including Nicklaus, fired and fell back on the course that is rapidly drying from mid-week rains and is becoming very fast and firm.

Payne Stewart, four back when the day's play started, slipped to a 1-over-par 72 and was tied at 209 with Donnie Hammond. Hammond, not yet a winner in four years of Tour activity, came from well back with a 68.

Nicklaus, 46, holder of a record 18 major professional titles, had it in position to shoot in the 60s, but received no cooperation from his over-sized putter and finished with a 72.

That left him at 210, eight shots back in his quest of a record sixth PGA championship. He was tied with Bruce Lietzke, who had a 70.

No one else was within nine strokes of the dashing Australian who has dominated world golf this year.

Tom Watson, needing this title to become only the fifth man to make a career sweep of the game's majors, could do no better than a 72 that left him at par 213, 11 strokes back.

While such potential contenders as Nicklaus and Watson were, figuratively, shooting themselves in the foot, Ben Crenshaw was, literally, hitting himself in the head.

Crenshaw flipped his club into the air after making his approach shot on the 18th. The club came down, hit him in the head and gashed his scalp. Despite bleeding from the head, Crenshaw completed the hole, making a par putt for a 72 and a 217. He went to a hospital where three stitches were taken.

Norman, who led by two shots after 18 holes and by four strokes going into the third round, wasn't seriously challenged at any time. His lead ranged up to six shots and never was less than three.

He didn't make a bogey, but that's only due to a magic wedge.

On the fourth, he was in a wily tangle of rough around the green, looking at a bogey. But he made a birdie, chipping in from about 25 feet. On the 13th, he was looking at double bogey, but made a minor-miracle par, the kind of par with which championships are won.

Norman drove to the right and into the rough on the edge of a bunker, a position that forced him to take an awkward stance for his second shot. He lashed it across the fairway into a near-impossible position under a small tree.

He couldn't get at it right-handed, and so played his third shot left-handed. He moved it only a few feet. He left his fourth shot short and on a slope leading up to the green on the par-5 hole.

At that point, the loss of his lead was a possibility and a double bogey was a probable.

"I was so mad, I just said to myself, 'OK, let's just chip the son of a gun in the hole, take our five and get the hell out of here,'" Norman said.

And that's what he did. He chipped it in from about 60 feet away for a par, and went about his business.

It marked the third time in a 16-hole stretch that he'd holed out from off the green. He also chipped in on the 15th hole during Friday's second round.

Norman added a 20 foot birdie putt on the 16th hole to finish the day as he had started it — with a four-shot lead.

Smith prepares for 9th NFL season

Former Steer's wide-receiver has high hopes for a winning season

Sports reporter Eddie Curran conducted the following telephone interview with former All-District and Big Spring Steer wide receiver J.T. Smith, who was at the St. Louis Cardinals' training camp in Charleston, Illinois.

Smith graduated from Big Spring High in 1974, and went on to star at North Texas State. In 1978, he was drafted by the Washington Redskins, and the following year moved to the Kansas City Chiefs. He has been named to several Pro squads, and has played in the Pro Bowl. Last season, with the Cardinals, Smith was the second leading punt returner in the NFC.

His mother, Gertrude, and two brothers and a sister live in Big Spring.

Q: What's the feeling at the Cardinals camp about Herschel Walker playing with the Cowboys?
A: Well, I kind of figured that (he would). They got his rights. He said he might retire, but I think that was just to get them to talk to him about money (laughs). Now they've got two good backs, but I'm on offense and I don't have to worry about it. The defense has got the problem (laughs).

Q: Last season y'all were predicted to do well but had a disappointing season (the Cardinals were 5-11), and a lot of that was blamed on Lomax (quarterback Neil Lomax). How's he looking now, and what's the team's feeling in camp?
A: Well, right now we have a good feeling about the passing game and we have new coaches, so we've got a new offense. So right now the main thing is that we can get our philosophy down. Neil, he's reading pretty good. He's throwing pretty good right now. But hopefully with the preseason games he can kind've get a feel so we can be ready by the 7th (Sept. 7, the first Sunday of the season, when the Cardinals host the Los Angeles Rams). We're trying to get the offense down, and we're feeling pretty good about everything we're doing.

Q: With O.J. Anderson and Stump Mitchell, you have a good backfield, and with good receivers, it seems like Lomax is the key.
A: Yeah, with Stump and O.J., we have a real good backfield. We have pretty good skill positions.
Q: I guess you have to rely on Lomax. If he doesn't have a good year, it's hard for you to have good year.
A: Yeah, it's hard for all of us.
Q: How is Stallings (new Cardinals head coach Jim Stallings)? Is camp more disciplined than it was with Hanifan (ex-Cardinal Coach Jim Hanifan)?
A: Yeah, he's more disciplined. And, you know, he likes things done his way. But you expect that.
Q: How did you like Hanifan?
A: I liked him. You know, I had a choice to go to Miami or Chicago (Smith was a free agent at the time). I liked the coaching staff, so I came here.
Q: Do you regret that at all?
A: Well, if I had gone to Chicago I would have a Super Bowl ring by now (laughs). But no, I don't regret it. I made a choice and I stuck with it.
Q: Are you going to be returning punts this year?
A: Yeah, as far as I know I'm supposed to be.
Q: What do you like doing better, catching punts, or going out for passes?
A: Well, as long as I get the ball. As long as I get the ball.
Q: How is the wide receiver corps looking, with you and Roy Green, and Pat Tilley and Ernest Grey? Will you be rotating?
A: And Clyde Duncan. Yeah, we have to be able to play all the positions, because, depending on the formation, we have to know all the positions. We're going to need all the receivers.
Q: How do you feel about the drug testing? Have y'all been tested yet?
A: Oh yeah, we've been tested already.
Q: How did the players feel about that?
A: Well, in the bargaining agreement we're supposed to take a test, but we're not supposed to take it when they get ready.
Q: You mean it's supposed to be a scheduled test?

Q: How do you feel about the drug testing? Have y'all been tested yet?

Former Big Spring Steer wide receiver J.T. Smith has made it big in the NFL, and is heading into his ninth year as a wide receiver and punt returner. After seven years with the Kansas City Chiefs, Smith is now a St. Louis Cardinal. Last season, he was the NFC's second leading punt returner.

A: Yes.

Q: Did the deaths of (Len) Bias and (Don) Rogers make y'all (the players) feel like you kind of had to (test) more than you otherwise would have?
A: We're grown men, you know, and if you want to mess your body up like that, then that's your business. But don't take the whole NFL down because of a couple of people. We had the guy come by.

Q: Who are some defensive backs that give you trouble? Who's tough to play against?
A: All the teams are tough (laughs). There aren't any easy DB's. All of them are pretty good, and they're pros.

McEnroe, on comeback trail, loses heartbreaker to Becker

STRATTON MOUNTAIN, Vt. (AP) — Boris Becker solved the swirling winds, the rain delays and the sparkling play of John McEnroe to capture a pulsating third-set tiebreak Saturday and advance into the final of the Volvo International tennis tournament.

The West German teen-ager also proved something to himself.

Becker will face top-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia in the Sunday's title match of this Nabisco Grand Prix event, a rematch of the Wimbledon final, which Becker won.

Becker eliminated McEnroe 3-6, 7-5, 7-4 after Lendl defeated third-seeded Jimmy Connors 6-4, 3-6, 6-2. "I don't have to prove anything to him (McEnroe)," Becker said. "I had to prove something to myself, and I did." He proved he could solve the multitude of problems that McEnroe presented. The veteran mixed up the speed and spins, keeping Becker slightly off-balance throughout the match.

"In the first set I was playing better than the second set," Becker said. "He (McEnroe) just played — in the beginning — some unbelievable points.

"It's very difficult because you never come into your game. It's difficult to keep your control because there's so many weird balls and ball changes."

Between them, Becker and McEnroe have won the last four Wimbledon singles titles, McEnroe in 1983 and 1984 and Becker the last two. But until Saturday, they had only met once, and that before Becker ascended to the grass court throne in 1985.

And on Saturday, it was almost a classic confrontation between the old king, playing in his first tournament in nearly seven months, and the new Wimbledon champ, testing his power game against the touch and placement of McEnroe.

"It's always a special meaning to beat McEnroe, whether it's in a first round somewhere or in the final of a Grand Slam," Becker said. "To me, he's the greatest player."

It was McEnroe who drew first blood in a contest filled with posturing by both players. But when it was over, it was Becker giving a thumbs-up sign to his coach while McEnroe's bride of one week, actress Tatum O'Neal, wept.

Becker won the toss and elected to receive, a surprise considering the West German teen-ager's booming serve. Then, as McEnroe started to serve to begin the match, Becker turned his back on the court.

McEnroe waited until Becker was ready, then prepared again to serve. And again, Becker turned around and walked away, causing McEnroe to just shake his head and wait some more.

Later, following a 41-minute rain delay in the sixth game of the match, both players were at the net when McEnroe smashed the ball at Becker's feet. McEnroe turned and walked away as Becker glowered at him.

Becker said he felt it was intended to intimidate. "I didn't verbally abuse him at the outset of the match," McEnroe said. "I just told him to respect me."

In the fifth game of the middle set, Becker hit four straight volleys before finally winning a point that brought him to deuce. With McEnroe looking at him, the young redhead went into his "Becker Shuffle" to celebrate winning the point.

The comeback began in the final game of the second set when Becker finally was able to solve McEnroe's baffling serve and break his opponent. That leveled the match at one set all and set up the spectacular ending.

Neither player dropped serve as they fought into the tiebreak. Then, on the fourth point, Becker double-faulted. When McEnroe got a second "mini-break" with a forehand volley, he had a 6-3 lead and triple match point.

On the first he double-faulted. The next was lost when his backhand volley which appeared to catch the baseline was called long. McEnroe argued the call, but it stood.

And when Becker slammed his eighth ace of the match, it was all even at 6-6.

Becker saved the fourth match point on a service winner, and he converted his second match point for the victory.

Lendl, who posted his 10th consecutive victory over Connors and ran his career record to 15-10 over the left-hander, raised his game in the final set, which he thoroughly dominated.

Walling's four RBI's power Astros past Padres

HOUSTON (AP) — Denny Walling continued his success against San Diego pitcher Andy Hawkins with a three-run homer and an RBI double, leading the Houston Astros to a 6-2 victory over the Padres Saturday night.

The home run was Walling's ninth of the season and his fourth this season off Hawkins. Walling has five hits in eight at bats against Hawkins, driving in 10 runs.

Jim Deshaies and Charlie Kerfeld combined on a three-hitter. Deshaies, 7-3, pitched five innings and giving up two runs on three hits. The win is Deshaies' sixth in his last seven decisions.

Kerfeld pitched four hitless innings, gaining his fourth save.

Glenn Davis hit his 24th home run of the season for Houston's last run, tying him with Mike Schmidt for the league lead.

Hawkins, 8-8, was the loser, going two innings, giving up five runs on five hits.

Houston took a 3-0 lead in the first. After a walk to Bill Doran and a single by Billy Hatcher, Walling belted a Hawkins' pitch over the right field wall.

The Astros added a pair of runs in the second when Doran led off with a walk, stole second and scored on Walling's double. Jose Cruz singled in Walling.

The Padres cut Houston's lead to 5-2 in the fourth on Steve Garvey's 16th homer of the season. Kevin McReynolds walked and scored ahead of Garvey.

Houston's Kevin Bass extended his hitting streak to 16 games. Tony Gwynn's hitting streak ended at 15 games.

Red Sox 8, Tigers 7

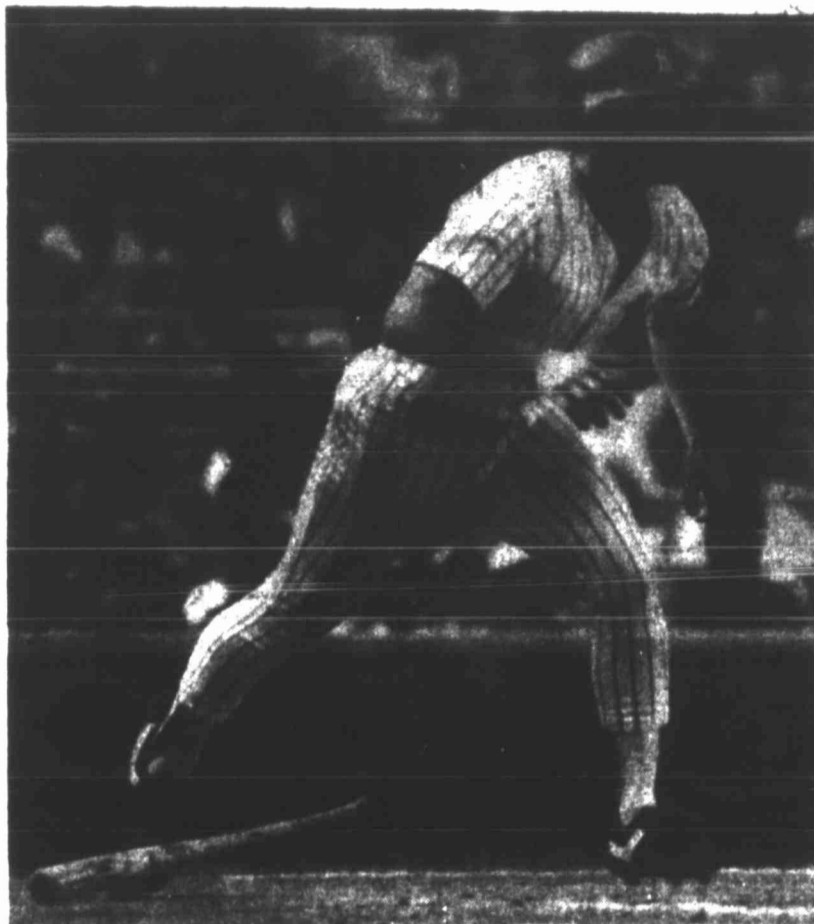

DETROIT (AP) — Wade Boggs went 4-for-4 and raised his major league-leading average to .356 and Dwight Evans and Rich Gedman homered Saturday night as the Boston Red Sox beat the Detroit Tigers 8-7 for their third straight victory.

Boggs also drew two walks and scored three runs, while Evans drove in three runs.

Al Nipper, 7-7, got the victory with help from Joe Sambito and Calvin Schiraldi, who got four outs for his second save.

Frank Tanana, 9-5, took the loss, ending his five-game winning streak. Tanana, who had not lost since June 1, gave up six runs on seven hits in 5 1-3 innings.

Boggs led off the game with a single, took third on Marty Barrett's double and scored on Evans' forceout.

Dan Pasqua of the New York Yankees heads for first after slugging a lead-off home run in the ninth inning to beat the Kansas City Royals 3-2 Saturday at Yankee Stadium.

Boggs opened the Boston third with another single and later scored on a sacrifice fly by Evans that put the Red Sox ahead for good at 2-1. Boston added a single run in the fourth on Ed Romero's walk, a stolen base and Boggs' third hit of the game.

Evans hit his 15th homer of the season in the fifth for a 4-1 lead and the Red Sox scored twice in the sixth on Gedman's ninth home run, a double by Romero and Jim Rice's RBI single.

Brewers 1, White Sox 0
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Teddy Higuera pitched a six-hitter, outdueling Chicago's Jose DeLeon, and the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the White Sox 1-0 Saturday night on a run-scoring wild pitch by DeLeon in the third inning.

Higuera, 15-7, equalled his victory total of 1965. He walked one batter and struck out nine as he threw his third shutout and 10th complete game.

DeLeon, 2-1, allowed three hits in 6 1-3 innings, striking out eight and walking four. He and two relievers combined to limit Milwaukee to four hits.

Mets 10, Expos 8
MONTREAL (AP) — Gary Carter boke a ninth-inning tie with a two-run, bases-loaded single Saturday night, giving the New York Mets a 10-8 victory over Montreal that ended the Expos' five-game winning streak.

The Mets scored seven runs in the top of the eighth, Mookie Wilson's three-run homer giving them an 8-6 lead, but the Expos tied the game in their half of the eighth on pinch-hitter Wallace Johnson's triple.

Jeff Reardon, 6-7, walked the bases loaded in the ninth before Carter grounded a single into center field, scoring Lee Mazzilli and Tim Teufel with the winning runs.

Roger McDowell, 11-6, pitched an inning for the victory. Jesse Orosco pitched an inning for his 16th save — his 86th career save, a club record.

Montreal starter Jay Tibbs entered the eighth with a two-hitter and a 6-1 lead. Howard Johnson led off the inning with a double and, after a walk, he scored on Len Dykstra's single.

Pirates 8, Cardinals 5
ST. LOUIS (AP) — Johnny Ray homered and drove in three runs Saturday night as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat St. Louis 8-5, ending their five-game losing streak and the Cardinals' five-game winning streak.

The Pirates also ended a 15-game losing streak at Busch Stadium dating back to 1984, and the Cardinals' 11-game winning streak at home, their longest since a 16-game string in 1983.

Bob Walk, 5-4, went five innings and overcame his own two throwing errors and five walks to get the victory. Don Robinson pitched the final 1 2-3 innings for his sixth save.

Ray Burris, 4-5, who replaced starter Tim Lincecum in the first inning, took the loss.

The Pirates broke a 3-3 tie in the fifth when Tony Pena doubled home Jim Morrison, who had singled with one out. Pittsburgh added three insurance runs in the sixth on RBI singles by Ray and Barry Bonds and a run-scoring grounder by Tony Pena.

Sid Bream added his 12th homer in the ninth.

Pittsburgh jumped to a 3-0 lead in the first when Bobby Bonilla singled with one out and Ray lined the next pitch into the left-field seats for his fourth home run. Mike Diaz walked, Pena singled and Bonds hit an RBI double.

Ozzie Smith drove in three runs for the Cardinals. He had an RBI groundout in the first inning that scored Vince Coleman, who had singled, and St. Louis tied it 3-3 in the second when Clint Hurdle hit a sacrifice fly and Smith walked with the bases loaded.

Twins 9, A's 2
OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Frank Viola pitched a 10-hitter over seven innings and Gary Gaetti drove in three runs Saturday, carrying the Minnesota Twins to a 9-2 victory over the Oakland A's.

Viola, 12-8, and Keith Atherton combined on a three-hitter, with Carney Lansford singling three times for the A's. Viola gave up one run, struck out six and walked three.

Mickey Hatcher went 4-for-5 with a walk and scored three times for the Twins, who led 3-0 before A's starter Dave Stewart, 4-1, got an out. Roy Smalley, who could become the fifth Minnesota player to hit 20 homers this season, opened the game with his 18th, a drive to right field.

Yankees 3, Royals 2
NEW YORK (AP) — Dan Pas-

qua led off the bottom of the ninth inning with his 10th home run of the season Saturday, lifting the New York Yankees to a 3-2 triumph over the Kansas City Royals.

Pasqua's drive off Bud Black, 4-6, came on an 0-1 pitch and was only the fifth Yankee hit against three Royals pitchers.

Brian Fisher, 6-4, was the winner as the Yankees defeated the Royals for the seventh time in eight meetings this season.

The game had been tied since the third inning when Kansas City scored twice against Doug Drabek on RBI singles by George Brett and Jorge Orta.

Mike Pagliarulo hit his 26th home run of the season with one out in the second to give the Yankees a 2-0 lead.

Rangers 7, Blue Jays 6
ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Pete O'Brien hit his second home run of the game leading off the bottom of the 10th inning Saturday night, giving the Texas Rangers a 7-6 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

The Rangers rallied for their fourth straight victory. They trailed 6-2 after seven innings, but O'Brien hit a two-run homer in the eighth and Texas scored twice in the ninth.

Pinch-hitter Darrell Porter doubled in a run and pinch-runner Toby Harrah scored on Oddibe McDowell's single.

O'Brien led off the 10th with his 19th homer of the season and seventh in his last nine games on a 3-0 pitch from reliever Bill Caudill, 2-4.

Greg Harris, 7-1, the fifth Ranger pitcher, earned the victory with 1 2-3 innings of hitless relief.

Q: Is there anybody (about whom) you say, oh, I can just eat this guy up?

A: Well, with our receivers, one on one, we're going to beat most of 'em. We may lose a few, but we're going to win more than we're going to lose.

Q: How's Carl Carter from Texas Tech looking? (Carter, a defensive back, was the Cardinals fourth round draft choice in 1986). Do you think he'll make the team?

A: He's looking pretty good, and I think they like him. I'm not sure if he'll make the team. I'm not the coach, so I can't answer that. He's been looking pretty good, but he hasn't practiced in three or four days because he broke his nose. He's just now starting to come back and get into it now. Matter of fact, I've seen Coffee, little Coffee (Wayne Coffee, another former Steer trying to make it in the NFL). He went to New England. Not Ken. Ken is still with Washington, but his brother is down in New England, and I talked to him for a while. This is his first year.

Q: Can the Bears be beat this year?

A: Oh yeah, anybody can be beat.

Q: Who do you look to be the favorite in y'all's division?

A: Well, I don't know, because all the teams are looking pretty good. You know Dallas always looks good, and Washington (too). I don't know how Philadelphia's going to be, with their new coach.

Q: Do you have any plans after football? Do you know how much longer you're going to play?

A: Oh, I don't really know. Well, maybe I can try to get into my own business, or either get some kind of recreation deal.

Q: Well, how do you like your job? How do you like being a pro football player?

A: (Laughs) It's all right. You can't beat it. Can't beat it.

Q: Will you be coming to Big Spring any time soon?

A: I'll be coming back to visit my mom and my relatives. I usually come down every year, after the season.

Q: Is there anything you would like to say to anyone in Big Spring?

A: My mom was a big influence in my life, and I just want to tell her thank you for everything she did for me.

IN MEMORY OF D.J. JUSTICE, August 10, 1957 to January 31, 1984
In the stillness of the night he heard his Master say, Come, Come my son, I'll take you home fear not, I'll show the way, and though I never heard the call I knew when he was gone, I heard the Band of Angels that came to take him home.
I would have gone in his place if it had been my choice. I often wish I'd been the one to hear the Masters voice. I feel a certain comfort thought and try to understand peace will come someday because I heard the Angel Band.

Bears crush Steelers 33-13; Raiders play 49's today

By The Associated Press
Any concerns about the effects of a trip across the Atlantic can be disregarded in the case of the Chicago Bears.

The NFL champions, who beat the Dallas Cowboys 17-6 in London last week, showed they weren't thrown off-stride by that journey, beating the Pittsburgh Steelers 33-13 Saturday night in a preseason game.

Guided by third-string quarterback Mike Tomczak's three touchdown passes — including a 61-yard fourth-quarter throw to Thomas Sanders — the Bears handed the Steelers their first loss in 16 preseason games.

"I feel like I can just get a little confidence, I'll feel like I can play in this league," Tomczak said.

"When someone's not playing well around here, Coach (Mike) Ditka will let you know about it. He did to me."

"I guess competition brings out the best in everybody."

The victory marked a successful return to western Pennsylvania for Ditka, who grew up 30 miles from Pittsburgh in Allegheny, Pa.

"I got on (Tomczak) this week because he hadn't been doing the little things," Ditka said. "I'm very happy for Mike. He did some very good things for us; now we have to take the best from this game and go with it."

Tomczak completed 17 of 23 passes for 238 yards and hit on his final nine passes of the first half as the Bears took a 16-6 lead. He completed TD passes of 24 yards to Ken Margorum and four yards to Brian Bascagnal.

After the Steelers climbed within 13-13 with 12:01 remaining, Tomczak connected on his 61-yard scoring throw to Sanders, who best reserve cornerback Anthony Tugle down the left sideline.

Lew Barnes extended the lead to 33-13 when he returned a punt 54 yards for a touchdown with 5:09 to play.

In other games Saturday, it was Cleveland 19, Buffalo 17; Green Bay 26, New York Jets 14; St. Louis 26, Tampa Bay 10; Minnesota 30, Miami 16; and Kansas City 20, Cincinnati 0.

Later Saturday, New Orleans was at Denver and Dallas was at San Diego.

On Sunday, it's the Los Angeles

Raiders at San Francisco and Washington at New England.

In earlier preseason games this week, Houston beat the Los Angeles Rams 17-14, Atlanta downed the New York Giants 31-24, Philadelphia took Detroit 17-9 and Seattle defeated Indianapolis 21-14.

Browns 19, Bills 17

Greg Allen scored on a 2-yard run with 50 seconds to play, capping a Cleveland comeback from a 17-6 deficit.

The Bills led 17-6 after rookie Carl Byrum ran two yards for a touchdown less than a minute into the fourth quarter. But quarterback Mike Pagel pulled the Browns within 17-12 when he ran one yard for a score with just over eight minutes to play. Pagel, obtained in an offseason trade with Indianapolis, then drove the Browns 97 yards in 12 plays after a Buffalo punt for the winning score.

Pagel finished with 114 completions in 16 attempts for 114 yards.

Packers 28, Jets 14

Gary Ellerson, a second-year running back who played at Wisconsin, celebrated his homecoming with a pair of touchdown runs. Ellerson scored from six and 35 yards as the Packers built a 21-0 halftime lead at Madison's Camp Randall Field, where a crowd of 73,959 attended. It was the biggest home crowd in team history.

Cardinals 28, Bucs 10

In a game delayed 50 minutes by an intense thunderstorm that temporarily rendered the scoreboard clock inoperable, Niko Noga and Lionel Washington returned interceptions for touchdowns and Jan Stephenson for St. Louis.

Vikings 30, Dolphins 16

With Dan Marino, Miami's two-time All-Pro quarterback, sitting out the game, third-stringer Jim Jensen was the victim of two key interceptions in the third quarter, by Chris Doleman and Neal Gugemmos. That stifled Miami's comeback chances.

Tommy Kramer hooked up with Mike Jones on a 56-yard touchdown pass in the first half.

Cheifs 20, Bengals 0

Todd Blackledge threw a 22-yard touchdown pass to Anthony Hancock and Nick Lowery kicked two field goals in the second quarter for Kansas City.

'International love'

By CARLEEN EVERETT
Lifestyle editor

The moment they had waited for had finally come. After six and a half months their son was in their arms for the very first time.

"It was different, but of course I had the same excitement I had with Brenna," said Sharna Gibbons.

Keith and Sharna Gibbons, 2604 E. 16th St., adopted a second Korean child eight weeks ago.

Their first child, Brenna Jean, 2½, has been a member of the Gibbons family since she was 7½ months old. Aaron Hale, the newest member of the family, was also 7 months old when the Gibbons adopted him.

"We picked him up in Chicago, instead of Dallas where we picked up Brenna," Keith said. "Sharna got Aaron off the plane and took care of him while the immigration checked his entry visa to enter the country as a permanent resident."

"He's adjusting wonderfully," Sharna said. "When we got Brenna she wouldn't go to anyone but me, but Aaron will go to anyone."

Brenna acted like any other child does when a there's a new member of the family.

"She was jealous at first," Sharna said. "But a few days ago she gave him a big hug and said, 'Mom, I think we need to keep him,'" she said with a laugh.

Although the Gibbons were able to bear their own children, they decided to adopt because of the many Korean children who need homes, Keith said.

People are going to international adoptions because it's faster and cheaper, he said.

"I just heard that the average American adoption takes from two years to forever," Sharna said. "It only took six and a half months to adopt each of our kids."

An American adoption costs from $8,000-15,000, Keith explained. A Korean adoption costs about $5,000-6,000. "It's about half the cost," he said.

Larry and Carol Simmons, 2612 Larry, also adopted a Korean child, partly because of the Gibbons' influence.

Their 18-month-old daughter, Breck, was 4 months old when they got her, Carol Simmons said.

The Simmons decided to adopt a child after giving birth to their son, Cody, 11.

"We talked to two agencies for American children but were told that parents are waiting for children, children aren't waiting for parents," she said.

After seeing an article written two years ago about the Gibbons adopting a Korean child, "we talked to Keith and Sharna," Carol said, "and they're the reason we did it."

The agency — Dillon services, which specializes in international adoptions — told the Simmons that Korean children need families because adoption isn't accepted there, she said.

"When we got her, she had the biggest smile on her face like she knew we were what she was waiting for," Carol said. "It was an unbelievable feeling."

Keith Gibbons said, "The prejudice has been very limited."

"You forget the kids are of another race," Sharna said, "but people point it out to you."

She added, "People say 'they're so lucky,' but we feel we're the lucky ones. They're our children."

The Gibbons agree that adoption will be an open subject for their kids. "Someday they're going to wonder why their eyes are slanted and ours aren't," Keith said, laughing.

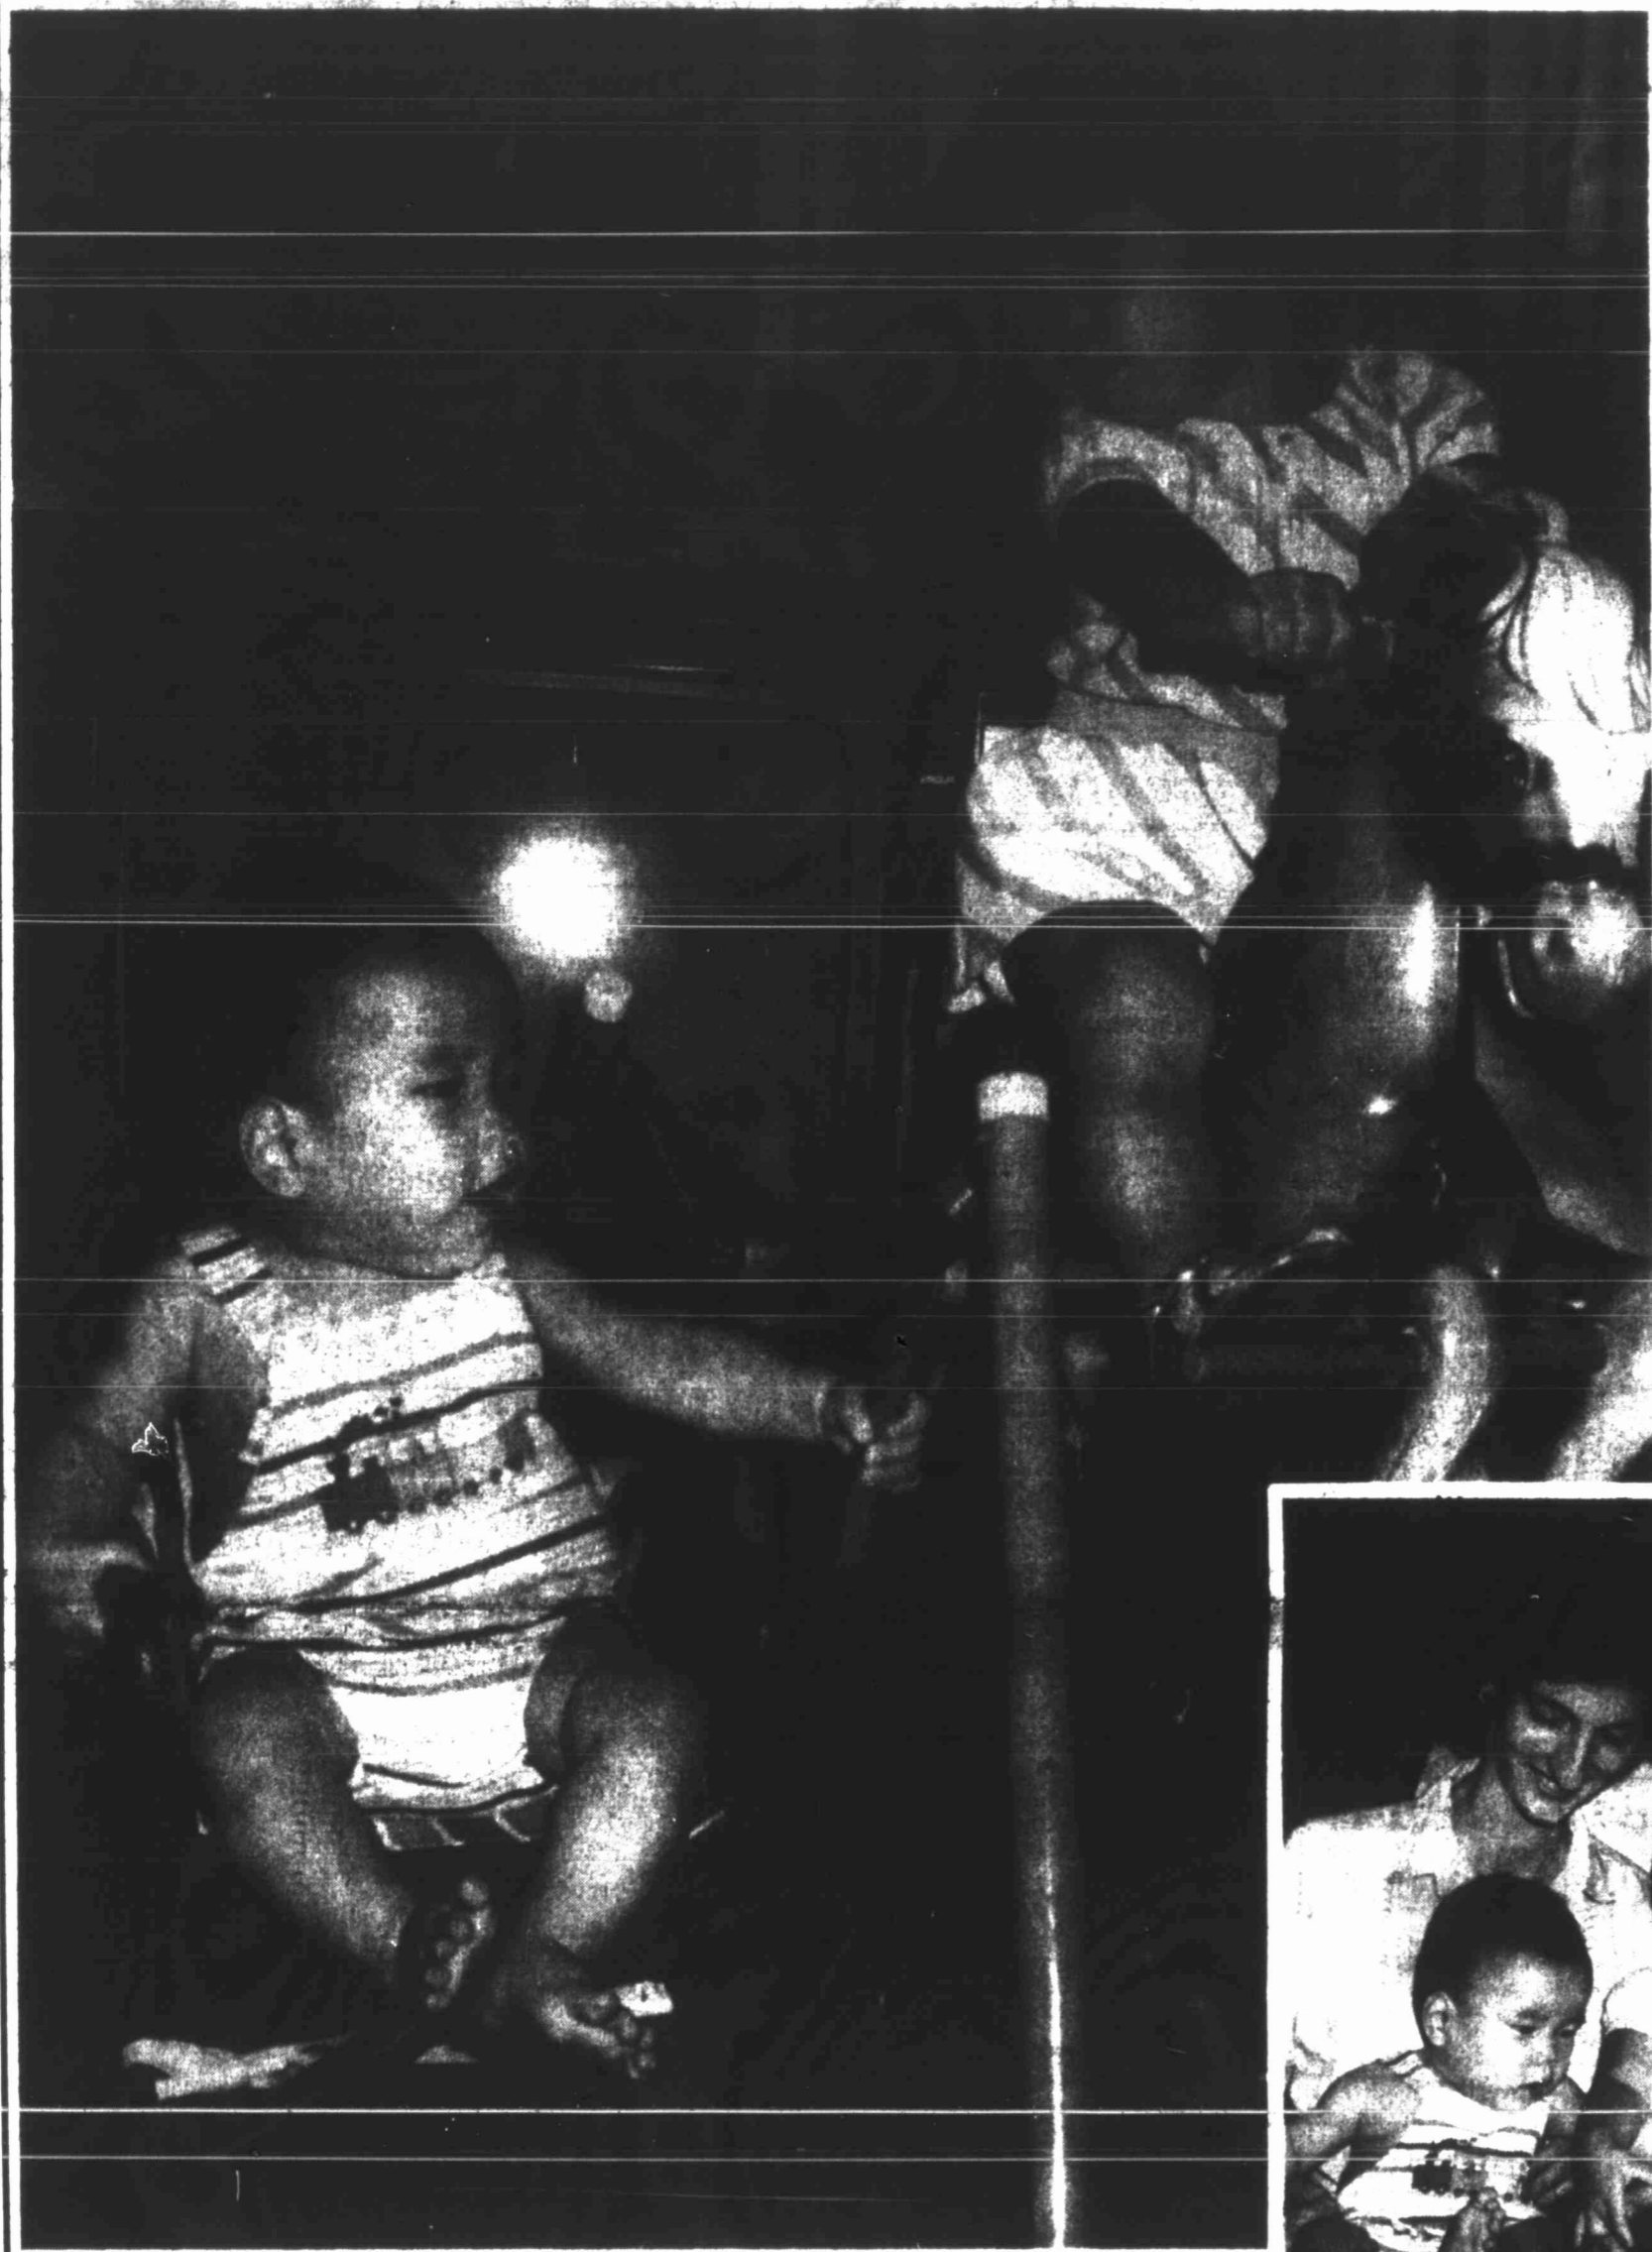

Both couples belong to the Council of Adoptable Children (COAC), which is a support group for adoptive parents or those who are considering adoption, Keith said.

"We can help others by sharing our experiences and guide them through the red tape," he said. "Adoption can be a major runaround — a hassle."

COAC also serves to provide public awareness on the subject of adoption and is in the planning stages of arranging a seminar for the area, Keith said. "There are a lot of misconceptions. People hear the negative instead of the positive."

Parenting skills and the diverse types of adoption are presented and discussed at the COAC meetings, Keith said.

"We've had couples contact us, and we don't mind sharing information," he said. "There are a lot of kids who need parents."

Sun screen turning into made-in-shade business

DALLAS (AP) — A man who makes his living selling plastic key chains, stuffed animals and other trinkets designed to be bought on a whim, then later discarded, says he's found a cool item with staying power.

A piece of accordion-pleated cardboard designed to keep down the temperature of car interiors is going to be hot, predicts John Newton, the Texas distributor of Auto-Shade.

"People are drawn to this crazy product," he said. "I don't believe I've ever had an item that has (such) universal appeal."

The shade stretches across the inside of a car's windshield, held in place by the visors. Its California makers claim it cools the inside of a vehicle by 15 degrees.

The side facing the street is printed with a giant pair of sunglasses. The other side reads, "Need Help Please Call Police" for use in the rear window in case of a breakdown.

At $4.99 retail — $5.99 for the model with decorative Groucho Marx-style glasses with bushy eyebrows or heart-shaped glasses framing cartoon eyes — the Auto-Shade qualifies as a novelty item while packing the extra punch of having a purpose, Newton said.

"This is bigger than the pet rock — which was hot, then died. The auto shade will not die."

Auto-Shade was introduced in California four years ago, trickling into K-Mart and Target stores in Texas last year. But it wasn't until spring that Newton got the rights to distribute the shade in Texas and the Midwest and started giving the product its big push.

Since then, he estimates he's sold more than 50,000 Auto-Shades to grocery, discount and gift stores throughout the state.

Newton, originally of Chicago, spent time at several toy manufacturers and worked for Russ

Berry Co. novelty items for nine years in Texas before he quit to sell Auto-Shades.

He learned of the product when his son Jack brought several home from a California vacation.

After visiting the two Israeli emigrants at the helm of Auto-Shade Inc., Avi Ruimi and Avi Fatal, in Los Angeles in December, Newton was inspired enough to sink $140,000 into the venture.

He established an office at his Dallas home and began shipping the shades in March out of a Carrollton warehouse.

He benefitted from the founders' perseverance. Ruimi and Fatal took two years to go beyond sluggish sales, hitting upon the sunglasses-help design in 1984, which brought international success.

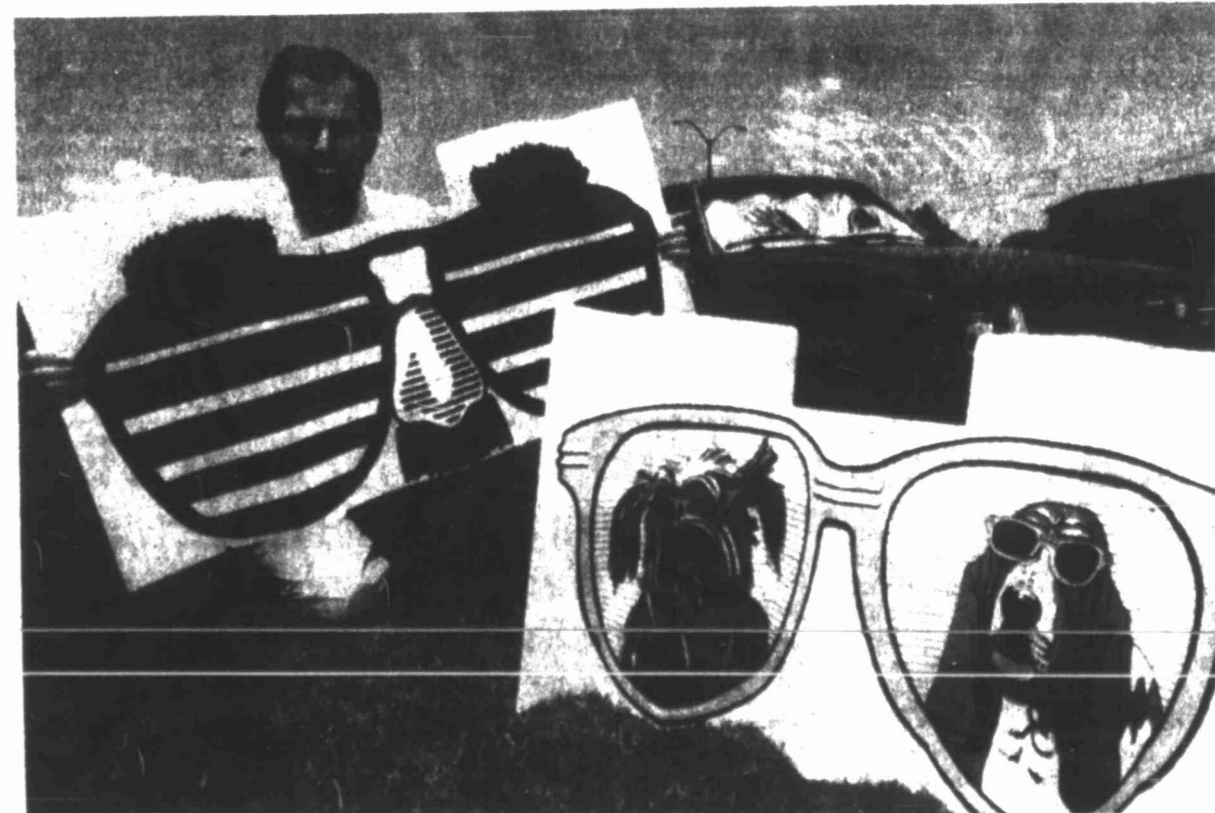

"If it was just a pretty design, it wouldn't work," Newton said, explaining the tie-in between sunglasses and shading a car is what makes the idea work.

Texas State Optical purchased 2,000 original Auto-Shades from Newton. Half sport a "California Dreamin'" theme and half a Texas Sesquicentennial design.

All of them advertise the TSO name and its summer offer of a free Auto-Shade with the purchase of a pair of sunglasses.

"If you walk around Dallas," said TSO marketing director Phil Suttle, "you'll see lots of people utilizing towels, sheets, whatever they can to keep their cars cool so they don't burn their legs and hands. There's definitely a need for Auto-Shade."

The success has invited imitations. Newton says he spends much of his time aggressively pursuing those who market copycat products. The shade itself is not patented, but the shade with glasses is, he said.

And he continues to dabble in other novelty items. On the drawing board now is something called a Freedom Planter — a molded plastic self-watering pot with a control dial which allows the gardener to regulate the amount of water released.

"It's exciting and fun," Newton said of the novelty business. "Every day is a new day, a new product."

Create a professional look

By BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS

There's more to creating professional looking paint finishes than the stroke of a brush.

Correct preparation of wall surfaces before the paint goes on is a significant factor, according to Better Homes and Gardens Decorating Magazine.

It's important to scrutinize every surface so the necessary preparation can be tackled before you begin painting. Check the walls and ceilings for cracks, runs, or ridges in the old paint.

These conditions can be treated with a scraper and sandpaper, plus primer for bare spots. If you spot peeling paint, you'll have to remove it and prime the surface.

Mend plaster or drywall blemishes with premixed spackling paste or joint compound. Once you've made repairs, wash all surfaces with a household detergent and rinse well.

Unless you've got a steady hand, cover window perimeters with masking tape before painting the window trim. Peel off the tape immediately after painting.

To be a successful painter you must start at the top, then work your way down — unlike most other endeavors. Begin by painting the ceiling at the angle where the ceiling meets the walls. Trim the entire perimeter of the ceiling before proceeding.

Although it's fine to use a brush on the rest of the ceiling, a roller on an extension handle is easier. Paint rollers emit a fine spray of paint that settles over the room like dust, so be sure to cover everything.

Begin painting the wall with a brush, trimming the angles where two walls meet and around all windows, doors, and other woodwork. The trim should be just wide enough to cover the corner surfaces a roller can't reach.

For large wall surfaces, evenly load a roller with paint and apply it in a large M shape. Start the roller going up, then pull it down. To ensure an even surface, fill in the M by rolling horizontally across it.

H&R Block Tax Course Could Be Ticket To Extra Income

Thousands of people are finding that learning income tax preparation is the perfect way to supplement their incomes.

Many people use the tax preparation skills they learn in H&R Block's Income Tax Course to add to their incomes. H&R Block is now offering its basic income tax course starting September 2. Morning and evening classes are available. No prerequisites are required to enroll.

During the 13 week course, students will study various phases of income tax preparation and receive actual experience in preparing individual returns. Experienced Block instructors will teach tax law, theory and application, as practiced in Block offices nationwide. There is a classroom discussion on each tax subject and many practice problems. Courses are programmed to teach students increasingly complex tax problems as study progresses. Students will find the course both interesting and challenging.

Because tax preparation is needed during the months of January through April, you can put your skills to use immediately during the winter months and may be able to make enough extra money to pay off Christmas bills or make money for that summer vacation.

Qualified course graduates may be offered job interviews for positions with Block. Many accept employment with Block because of the flexible hours available. However, Block is under no obligation to offer employment, nor are graduates under any obligation to accept employment with H&R Block.

One low course fee includes all textbooks, supplies and tax forms necessary for completion of the course. Certificates and 7.5 continuing education units will be awarded upon successful completion of the course. Registration forms and a brochure for the income tax course may be obtained by contacting the H&R Block office at 1512 Gregg, Big Spring, 263-1931. We are open Monday and Friday, 9 to 4 p.m.

Second Annual Crossroads Stampede

Festival strives to boost tourism

"Big Spring needs a shot in the arm economically. One way I see we can improve the city is to quit griping about how bad things are and put all our individual efforts together to make things better."

That's what several Big Springers were doing last year under the leadership of former Police Chief Rick Turner when he made the above statement. Together, they planned and carried out the first annual Crossroads Stampede, a three-day festival at Comanche Trail Park in Big Spring.

This year, under the direction of Sherrie Bordofski, the festival is ready to begin its second year. It's scheduled Aug. 15-17 and is designed to encourage public support for the community and tourism.

The Blue Blazers and Ambassadors of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, city councilmen, county officials and other civic-minded citizens have been involved in planning the festival, Bordofski said. She expects it to be a big success and has received inquiries about the festival from people throughout five different states.

During planning of the new festival last year, the name "Crossroads Stampede" evolved out of a brainstorming session with 15 people. Thoughts came from many subjects related to the Big Spring area. One person mentioned Crossroads, as Big Spring has two major highways crossing in it. Then the discussion turned to the second portion of the name with thoughts of cattle drives, buffalo and other animals popping into mind. Finally, the group came up with "stampede" and the idea of serving buffalo burgers and having a cookoff. They voted to name the festival Crossroads Stampede, "which is very appropriate and causes much curiosity," Bordofski said.

The logo for the event, designed by local artist Jay Phinney, shows the shape of Texas with a star representing Big Spring, a yellow bandana tied around the Panhandle to represent friendship and the area's western heritage, and a rope encircling the state. The reason for the yellow theme was that the color yellow represents friendship. "This town is known for the friendliness of the citizens and that is something not many towns can brag about," Bordofski said.

"My expectations are to have 20,000 to 30,000 persons to attend," she said. "Last year, when talking to different ones, there were as many out of towners than citizens of Howard County. This really disappointed me, but yet we are hoping our hometown people will support us now."

Last year, the festival idea originated about six weeks before the festival took place. The committee chairpersons got an earlier start on this year's festival and have followed through until now as things are falling into place with only minor difficulties, Bordofski said.

"The economics of the event (last year) wasn't what Rick and I had hoped, but it is always true that if a large event breaks even the first year it is a success and will make money the following years," she said. "Because of the six weeks of planning and organizing last year compared to our 12 months this year, (the festival) should triple in size and moneywise."

The executive committee has made changes from their learning experience of last year's festival. Tickets for all events will be sold at a general information booth to facilitate better record keeping on which events are the most successful. Maps and schedules also will be available at the booth. A telephone and car will be available for emergencies, and a Romper Room will provide babysitting for a nominal fee so that parents can participate in activities. Tents and bleachers will be provided at central points.

Again this year, each person attending the event is required to wear something yellow in accordance with the yellow theme. Those not wearing yellow will be placed in a jail and will have to come up with a ticket to bail themselves out.

Proceeds from the Crossroads Stampede will be used to build a facility of some kind at Comanche Trail Park (City Park). According to Bordofski, this facility will attract more tourists to Big Spring year round. The facility will be determined with the money available. All suggestions will be considered, she said.

"If anyone is interested in helping with this fun weekend, they may call the (Big Spring Area) Chamber of Commerce or me and express which area they are willing to work," Bordofski said. "We will appreciate it." Groups interested in setting up booths for concessions, vendors, merchants, arts, crafts and cookoff contestants are urged to contact the Chamber to register. "I'm very excited about what we can do for this community if we all get out of our chairs, on our feet, and make it happen," she said.

Games to ignite competitive spirit

Get set for a weekend of fun. Big Spring's second annual Crossroads Stampede, Aug. 15-17, will offer a variety of events for people of all ages.

All the action will take place at Comanche Trail Park in Big Spring. Entrances to the park are located on Wasson Road and Highway 87 South. Entry fees will be charged for each event.

The tennis tournament will kick off activities at 8:30 a.m. Friday, Aug. 15 at Figure Seven Tennis Center, located at the park. At 9 p.m., families can enjoy the music of the "Heart of Texas Band" during a country-western dance at the Dora Roberts Fair Barn at the Howard County Fairground. The dance is $5 per person. It is BYOB with beer and setups available. Ice chests are not allowed.

Saturday's events will begin with the barbecue cookoff at daybreak. The cookoff will be located north of the swimming pool at the park. Goat, brisket, pork spare ribs and buffalo entries will be judged. The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce has buffalo meat available for those competing in this category.

Prizes will be given for the first three places in each of the following: each meat category, best pit and best cowboy theme. A grand champion trophy also will be awarded. Entry forms and rules for the cookoff are available from the Chamber, and the deadline is Aug. 13.

At 8 a.m. the golf tournament begins at the Municipal Golf Course, located at the park. Tennis finals will begin at 8:30 a.m., and concessions, merchants and vendors' booths will open at 9 a.m. The booths include food items, arts and crafts and merchandise. They are located between the swimming pool, softball field and park tennis courts.

The Grandma's Little Mister and Miss Darling contest will be held at the park's amphitheatre at 10 a.m. Grandmothers enter their "little darlings" in this event, and they must be present with each child during the contest. Children ages 1 to 4 years old may be entered. They will be interviewed, and the dress is western wear. Also starting at 10 a.m. are the Horseshoe Toss and Washer Toss competitions north of the pavilions.

The Toddler Diaper Run will be at 10:30 a.m. at the amphitheatre. Children competing must be able to walk or run up to 2 years old (or still in diapers). An entry is one child and two adults. One adult will diaper the child with a cloth diaper and pin them, set the child down so that the child can run to the other adult at the finish line.

At 11 a.m. three contests will begin: tricycle races, tractor races and potato peeling contest. They will be held at the street by the totem pole and across the street from the pavilions. Participants in the potato peeling contest will peel four potatoes with supplied peelers. High School students and adults will compete in the tricycle races. Six to 13 year olds compete in the tractor races.

The Black Powder Shoot will be held at 12 noon across from the amphitheatre and recreational vehicle park. About 200 to 300 participants from all over the nation are expected to compete in this, according to chairman Sherrie Bordofski.

The Stampede Romper Room, a babysitting service for children ages three to six years old, will be available for parents beginning at 1 p.m. with one hour time periods. It is located at the west pavilion.

The jail also will open at 1 p.m. across the street from the pavilions. Also opening at 1 p.m. are the Shriners car rides in front of the pavilions and the dunking booth across the street from the pavilions. Live entertainment also will begin at 1 p.m.

Other events during the afternoon include: a bubble gum blowing contest for seven to 10 year olds located across the street from the pavilions, wheelbarrow races for high school students and adults located west of the pavilions, a liar's contest for high school students and adults, and a watermelon eating contest for all ages.

The liar's contest is sponsored by the local Toastmaster Club and located on the stage south of the pavilions. Participants have 1 1/2 to 2 minutes to tell a tall tale that is in good taste. During the watermelon contest, participants will have their hands tied behind their back. First one finished is the winner. This contest is located west of the pavilions.

The evening's festivities include a pizza eating contest, the cookoff judging, Mr. and Mrs. Legs contest, and jump rope contests.

The pizza eating contest will have 12 contestants competing and will be located under the east pavilion. Each contestant will receive a large pizza. The first to eat their entire pizza during the time allotted wins.

In the Mr. and Mrs. Legs contest, high school age and adult contestants will be judged on the best legs for the male and female. It will be at the stage south of the pavilions.

In the jump rope contest, contestants will jump as long as they can until they miss. Their jumps will be counted. The one with the most jumps will win. The contest will be on the street south of the pavilion.

Saturday evening will be topped off with the announcement of the barbecue cookoff winners and a street dance with live entertainment at 9 p.m. The dance will be at the street south of the pavilions.

The final day of the Stampede will begin with the start of the golf finals at 8 a.m. The finals of the jump rope contest, liar's contest, wheelbarrow race, tricycle race, tractor races, horseshoe toss and washer toss will be held. The jail, dunking and concession booths, and the Shriners car rides will begin at 1 p.m. The announcement of awards at 5 p.m. will conclude the Stampede's festivities.

Group helps incontinent adults find hope

DEAR ABBY: I am a 69-year-old grandmother living in Spartanburg, S.C. That's not important, but this is: Because of something I read in your column three years ago, I found the answer to a problem that had very nearly made me a recluse. It was the kind of problem I was too embarrassed about to even discuss.

Because you solved my problem with a single letter in your column, I beg you to free others and repeat the letter that did so much for me. It's enclosed.

Dear Abby

THANKFUL IN S.C.
DEAR THANKFUL: I'm thankful to you for reminding me that there are many readers out there who need this information as much as you did. And here's the letter:

DEAR READERS: If you don't have a bladder control problem, you're lucky. But if you are among the estimated 10 million Americans (or Canadians) who are incontinent to an annoying degree — or know someone who is — read on:

When you sneeze, cough or laugh, do you feel a wetness on your clothing?

When you come home, do you find that you can't get your key in the door fast enough to make it to the bathroom in time?

What can a man wear after a prostate operation for the days (or weeks) he has a little "dribbling"?

These are the kinds of questions and concerns that have brought a few men and women together to form a self-help group for people with urinary or bladder control problems. They named their new organization HIP — Help for Incontinent People.

For a copy of the organization's helpful newsletter, send a long, stamped (22 cents), self-addressed envelope to: HIP, Box 544, Union, S.C. 29379. The newsletters are published four times a year. They are free, but because this is a non-profit group, contributions are welcome. I have seen the newsletter and assure you it is worth sending for.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this in your column and title it, "A Summer Warning":

Last year, my good husband suggested that we rent a summer place at the shore where we could go to get away from the hustle and bustle of the city. Nice, right?

Wrong! He moved me and the children out there, promising to come down every Friday to spend the weekend with us.

Well, I found myself at the shore, but my husband never came to be with us. Every weekend he had a different excuse. His car was acting up. He had some business meetings he couldn't miss. Someone he knew had died and he had to go to the funeral. He had to visit a sick friend in the hospital, and on and on.

"Poor baby," I thought. Surprise, surprise! He had put me in a safe place, leaving him free to run around all summer. When I came home I found out that he had taken up with some floozy who I suspect he's still seeing. He pleaded not guilty, but I had all the evidence I needed.

No more R and R at the shore for me. If he can stand the summers in the city, so can I!

Lawn problems more abundant in summer

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

Along with hot temperatures, the summer season in Texas may bring special lawn problems — drought, weeds, insects, and disease.

These lawn problems can cause concerns for homeowners unless accurate diagnosis and proper treatment takes place before they become severe.

Dry spots, thin turf and weeds can result from improper watering, fertilizing and mowing practices. Follow recommended cultural practices before applying a chemical to correct lawn problems.

Drought stress most often occurs in mid-summer and shows up as wilted, discolored turf. Adjust watering schedules to wet the soil to a depth of four to six inches, and water only when grass shows symptoms of moisture stress. Also, raise mowing heights one-half inch to improve drought tolerance in mid-summer.

For your garden

Lack of nitrogen or iron often creates a lawn problem. Grass with a nitrogen deficiency may have a pale color and be heavily infested with weeds. A light application of a nitrogen fertilizer will improve the lawn's appearance.

Grass leaves that have yellow stripes parallel to the leaf margins may be deficient in iron. A foliar application of iron sulfate at six ounces per 1,000 square feet will usually solve this problem.

If a St. Augustine lawn has symptoms similar to nitrogen or iron deficiency but does not respond to applications of either material, suspect St. Augustine Decline (S.A.D.). Close examination of S.A.D. infected turf will show green and yellow blotches on the leaves. Continue good maintenance practices where this problem exists. Also, Floratam, Raleigh or Seville, new St. Augustine grass varieties resistant to S.A.D., may be sprigged into the infected area.

Leaf spot diseases are generally a problem when lawns are under stress and increase with high temperatures, drought, heavy shade and close mowing. While proper mowing and watering will reduce these problems, fungicides may be required to prevent serious damage.

Chinch bugs and white grubs feed heavily on lawns during mid-summer, and their damage resembles drought injury. If turf does not respond to applications of water, suspect these insects. Both pests damage St. Augustine grass, but only the white grub damages bermuda grass lawns.

Chinch bugs and white grubs can be controlled with insecticides. Water the lawn thoroughly prior to applying an insecticide for chinch bug control, and follow with a light watering.

We advise drenching the lawn after an insecticide is applied for grub control, since grubs feed in the soil.

Kids learn on their own

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Children don't always need adults to teach them right from wrong, according to a study of moral development in children at the University of Rochester.

Professor Judith Smetana found that children often learn moral values — that hitting people is wrong, for instance — from their own experience. They see that hitting others produces crying, pain and other distress that is clearly negative.

Social conventions, on the other hand, such as dressing boys in blue and girls in pink, must be taught by adults because such conventions are arbitrary and not obvious to children.

Lifestyle guidelines

We will be pleased to announce the news of your engagement, wedding, silver or golden anniversary in the Lifestyle section of the Big Spring Herald. We try to use the story on the date you request, but sometimes space does not permit this. The information must be submitted to us on a form available at the Herald no later than Wednesday noon before the Sunday it is to be published. The form must include a name and telephone number of a person whom we can reach during the day for more information.

We will use a picture of the couple in the announcement. Or in the case of engagement announcements where a picture of the couple is not available, we will use one of the bride-elect. The picture must be a professional quality studio photograph. We prefer a 5 x 7 glossy black and white print. We ask for this kind of photograph so that it will reproduce well in the newspaper. Following the picture's publication, it may be picked up at the Lifestyle department.

The information for the story may be brought to the Lifestyle department of the Herald, which is located at 710 Scurry. Or it may be mailed to Lifestyle Department, Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720. Call us at (915) 263-7231 if we can help with more information or clarification of our policies.

ENGAGEMENTS

Information of engagement announcements must be submitted to the Lifestyle department of the Herald anytime after the engagement is a reality until at least three weeks prior to the wedding. Anything closer than three weeks will not be published. The engagement form must be submitted no later than Wednesday noon prior to the Sunday it is to be published.

If the bride-elect, prospective bridegroom or their parents do not now or have never lived in our area, we need to know why you are submitting your engagement to the Herald. If only grandparents live in our area, please give their names and addresses.

WEDDINGS

If a wedding writup is submitted to the Herald after the wedding has occurred, the space allotted to it will diminish according to the length of time that has passed since the wedding.

BIRTHS

Local hospitals supply information for Storkclub. If a child is born elsewhere in the newspaper's circulation area, or is born to out-of-town parents with local or area grandparents, please contact the Herald Lifestyle Department with Storkclub information.

Information needed for Storkclub is: newborn's name, sex, time and date of birth, weight, place of birth, parents' name and address. If the baby is born outside the circulation area but has local grandparents, please include their name and address. The local grandparents serve as the area connection for the information.

"RIGGERS"
One day several years ago my wife and I were visiting with our friends Curtis and Rhea McCartney when Rhea used an expression that was new to me. Some unpleasant event that I no longer remember had happened that day and Rhea said that she had nearly had a "rigger." I suppose that she really said "rigger" but I heard it that day as "rigger" and so it is to this day. I always wanted to see a "rigger." When my daughter was about 5 I saw a really good temper tantrum. I saw my wife have a terrific fit when the dog ate the curtains. In fact, it was almost a wall-eyed fit. One of my teen-age patients told me that her mother was going to have a cow because she lost another contact lens. Although I didn't actually see the event I had no reason to doubt the young lady. But I never did get to see a "rigger" until this summer. Seems that one of my patients was all packed for a wonderful vacation and while she was totin' her 5 pairs of shoes, 7 dresses, 6 pants, 12 blouses, 2 purses and 3 swimsuits to the car she dropped and stepped on her ONE pair of glasses. She had a "rigger." So, if you really, really, really depend on your glasses or contact lenses don't you think a wise investment would be a back-up pair? It might save your entire family from having fits, tantrums, cows and especially — "Riggers."

Dissatisfied customers should speak Action puts power in the punch

By NAOMI HUNT

County Extension Agent
Companies have long assumed that no news was good news when it came to customer satisfaction. But new research indicates there are many dissatisfied consumers.

Technical Assistance Research Programs, Inc. conducted research into the behavior of consumers who don't bother to complain, even though they bought a defective product. The study found:

• For every written complaint a food products company received, there were another 49 consumers who were also dissatisfied but didn't complain.

• Of those who didn't complain, only 37 percent were willing to try the product again. When the consumer complained and got a satisfactory response from the manufacturer or store manager, twice as many were willing to repurchase the product.

• Those consumers who received a satisfactory resolution of their complaint, told 4 or 5 people about their experience. Those who were dissatisfied, but did not complain, told 9 or 10 people.

So it's understandable that companies would like more input from you — the customer. To increase communication, many manufacturers are providing toll-free numbers you can call with questions, comments and complaints. The numbers are usually listed on the product label.

Focus on family

Direct communication is helpful both for you and the manufacturer. It means a company can determine the exact problem with a product faster than through written communication. And often times your dissatisfaction may be difficult to describe in a letter, yet you can ask specific questions and get some immediate answers in a telephone call.

And with a toll-free telephone call, you don't even have to pay the price of a stamp to give manufacturers a compliment or a complaint.

Strategies to maximize your income

To get the most from each dollar of your income, make a plan for spending your money. Substitute a less expensive product whenever it will serve the purpose. For example, buy less expensive house brands at the grocery store.

Switch to less expensive versions of costly goods and services. Eat out less, for instance, or dine at less expensive places.

Eliminate items which are of no real value and may not be healthful, such as foods and drinks consisting primarily of empty calories.

Shop wisely to get the best deal on items you must have and on which prices have risen. Comparison-shop before you buy.

Speak up about faulty products or services. You'll need proof of faulty merchandise, so keep receipts in case you have to return an item.

Control the urge to buy on impulse

Impulse purchases, whether small or large, can play havoc with your family budget. As one means of minimizing impulse buying, try to ask yourself these questions: Do I need or want this? What would happen if I couldn't have this? Is there a better way to spend this money? Do I still want it?

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: As a lifelong fan of boxing, one question has interested me. I've never had a satisfying answer. I've never seen a boxer, even at the pro level, who had arms as muscular as a body builder's. Where do boxers get the strength to devastate an opponent with a single punch with arms that look on average not so very powerful? — Mrs. O.B.

We have to take a page out of a physics book for this one, specifically from the chapter labeled "Power."

If you took a rifle bullet in your hand and tried to throw it at a target a hundred yards away, you'd be disappointed at the results. The bullet would fall to the ground far short of the goal. But put that bullet in the chamber of a gun and pull the trigger, and the bullet streaks at great speed to the bulls-eye. The power of the fired bullet comes from the acceleration it attains.

The power of the boxer's punch also arises from acceleration he puts into it. Power, not strength, plays a role in all sports. It's power that makes a baseball go 90 miles an hour or permits a halfback to upend a bigger defender. Power comes from explosiveness of movement, and arms have little to do with that. It's rotation of the hips, back and shoulders that puts power in the punch.

Dr. Donohue

Jack Doyle, of Wixom, Mich. He's the world's greatest boxing coach.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I read all the bodybuilding mags. Some of the ads for protein supplements interest me. I haven't tried supplements yet. Do they really help you put on muscle? — A.P.

If your diet is typical, you probably get all the protein your body needs, and supplements won't help.

But let me clarify that statement a bit. The blanket protein recommendation used to be four-tenths of a gram for each pound of body weight. That has been changed. Now it's felt that you need twice that amount if you are doing a lot of endurance training.

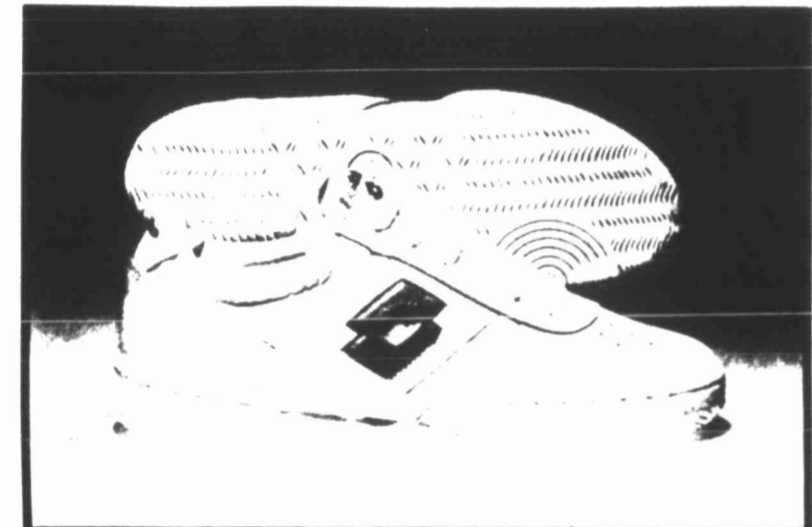

Translated, this means that if you weigh 150 pounds, you need a total of 120 grams of protein a day. But still, you don't have to go the supplement route to get that. Consult a nutrition chart. An ounce of meat has seven grams of protein.
