Lighter side

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Old laws seldom die; they just become conversation pieces.

If you bathe in somebody else's bath water, you may have to come clean in front of a judge. It's also against the law to wash your neighbor's car without permission. And backyard bullfights are completely out.

These are among thousands of ordinances, zoning codes and building regulations that comprise the five-volume Los Angeles Municipal Code.

Others forbid flying a balloon more than five feet off the ground; blowing snuff in somebody's face; or sitting on a table at an outdoor restaurant.

County acts on indigent care

Commissioners approve hiring nurse

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

The county took another step today toward implementing a required indigent health care program when commissioners unanimously approved the hiring of a certified nurse practitioner for the program.

The nurse will be paid $22,000 a year from county funds and will handle other duties in the Howard County Health Unit besides examining indigent patients, Dr. Jack Woodall, director of the unit, told commissioners.

The request was one of a list of line items included on the health unit's 1986-87 budget, which commissioners reviewed with Woodall and County Sanitarian James Luck.

The budget included state and city fund proposals.

According to the proposed budget, Luck would be paid $10,284 annually in county funds in his capacity as head administrator of the indigent health care program.

A screening officer would be paid $16,000 annually to determine which persons qualify for indigent or other financial assistance health care programs, such as the Mother Infant Health Improvement Act (MIHIA).

County Judge Milton Kirby told Luck that commissioners were in favor of hiring Kathy Hise to fill the screening officer's position. Hise presently is the county director of welfare.

Other line expense items requested from the county included $12,560 in fringe benefits for new indigent health care employees, $805 remodeling costs in the health unit, and $4,000 for computer service fees.

The health unit's budget totaled $772,767. The county's portion for indigent health care was $360,000 of that.

Before the indigent health care program begins on Sept. 1, the county must contract for emergency health care and hospital services.

Commissioner O.L. Brown told Luck he recently visited with Dawson County Judge Glenn White, who told Brown a health care facility in Dawson County wanted to contract with Howard County for indigent care.

Kevin King, acting administrator at Scenic Mountain Medical Center, also presented commissioners with the hospital's proposal for handling indigents, which calls for a 30 percent reduction on outpatient diagnostic fees.

For in-patient care, Scenic Mountain would use federal government rates established for Medicare patients. The in-patient care would not include physician fees, according to the proposal.

Car falls 30 feet off embankment; local man killed

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

A Big Spring man was killed early this morning when his car fell more than 30 feet off an embankment, landing upside down.

Thomas Wythe Poyner, 40, of Box 3179 was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace China Long.

Acting Police Chief Lonnie Smith said an autopsy has been ordered to determine if alcohol was a factor.

Smith said police are investigating the incident, but there is no reason to suspect foul play.

The accident occurred in the parking lot of Gill's Fried Chicken, 1100 S. Gregg St., at 1:30 this morning after Poyner left The Greenhouse club, according to the police report.

Police said Poyner drove his black 1984 Chevrolet Blazer west from The Greenhouse parking lot, through a cable fence and off the embankment. The vehicle dropped 30 to 35 feet onto the pavement below, police said.

A diner at Gill's saw the upside-down vehicle and reported the accident to police, Smith said.

Funerals for Poyner are pending at Myers & Smith Funeral Home.

Man says he was mugged by El Paso SWAT team

EL PASO (AP) — Allen Lang thought all the action he saw as an Army paratrooper in two wars was behind him as he slept soundly in the early morning hours of his 68th birthday.

It was a quiet Sunday morning until, as Lang put it, he "was mugged by the SWAT team."

The flash-bang of a stun grenade awakened Lang at 2 a.m.

The grenade was thrown into his living room by members of the El Paso Police Special Weapons and Tactics team as they stormed his apartment.

Officers dragged Lang from his bed and took him into custody briefly after reports of shots possibly being fired in his northeast El Paso apartment, police said.

Officers said the SWAT team was called after uniformed officers tried unsuccessfully for more than an hour to raise anyone in the apartment by repeatedly knocking on the door.

The apartment was surrounded, nearby tenants were evacuated and the team rushed in at about 3 a.m. Sunday behind the explosion of the stun grenade, which is designed to divert a suspect's attention without injuring him.

Lang, who retired from the Army as a command sergeant major, the Army's highest enlisted rank, said he slept soundly through the SWAT TEAM page 2A

Alcohol ban on city agenda

City Council will vote on a proposal to ban alcoholic beverages and glass beverage containers from city parks and Moss Creek Lake at its regular meeting Tuesday.

The meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. in the council chambers at City Hall.

Council members also are expected to approve the removal of speed bumps and barricades at Comanche Trail Park.

Other agenda items include the repair and maintenance of speed bumps; acquisition of the right-of-way between Third and Fourth Streets east of Harris Lumber; and an appointment to the Zoning Board of Adjustment, which was previously tabled.

Also scheduled are first readings of resolutions confirming the city manager's appointment of an assistant city manager and appointing Gwen Fair as relief municipal judge.

A bid will be awarded for a fire truck/pumper. Specifications will be approved to advertise for bids on improvements to Runway 7-25, gasoline and diesel fuel, and employee uniforms.

House committee advises college cuts

By SCOTT ROTHCHILD
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The House Appropriations Committee wrapped up a $620 million budget-cutting proposal Sunday that would cut senior colleges and universities by $220 million and junior colleges by $40 million, but leave public schools alone.

"Everybody took a lick and that's what we intended to do," Committee Chairman Jim Rudd said after the final vote.

The reductions to higher education were approved without objection as Texas House Speaker Gib Lewis spoke privately with lawmakers individually or in small groups throughout the meeting.

Rudd, D-Brownfield, said he believed the bill had a good chance of passing the House but declined to speculate on its chances in the Senate.

Lawmakers called into special legislative session are at odds over how to mend the projected $5.5 billion deficit. Gov. Mark White and the Senate have proposed plans to cut spending and raise taxes, while the House has only searched for cuts.

After the meeting, several House members said the final reductions — approximately 13 percent to colleges and universities and 9 percent to junior colleges and the Texas State Technical Institute — represented a compromise by some who wanted deeper cuts.

Higher education officials, who have been openly lobbying for a sales tax hike to protect funding, however, said the reductions would hurt.

"That would be terrible. That would really hurt," said Alan Sugg, president of Corpus Christi State University, who attended the meeting.

But Lewis, D-Fort Worth, reaffirmed his stance of no new taxes, saying, "You can make reductions anywhere. There are no sacred cows."

Under the Legislative Budget Board's proposal to reach the $620 million spending reduction, most colleges would have been cut by 13 percent or more and public junior colleges would have been cut by 13 percent.

As approved, the formula for the budget cuts also carries a penalty for schools that did not comply with Gov. Mark White's executive order in February to cut general revenue spending.

Every voluntary cut made above 6.5 percent of an institution's budget could be deducted from the 13 percent cut for the 1987 fiscal year.

Earlier, the committee approved protecting state funds to local school districts.

State Rep. Foster Whaley, D-Pampa, and state Rep. Bill Ceverha, R-Dallas, tried to remove funds from the career ladder saying it didn't provide enough money to reward good teachers.

But state Rep. Eddie Cavazos, D-Corpus Christi, defended the program, saying, "As time goes by and more people get the money they deserve, then those complaints will go away."

While the committee steered clear of education program cuts, the panel on Saturday removed $1.7 million from the Texas Education Agency to monitor local school districts' compliance with 1984 education reforms.

Names in the news

By The Associated Press
UNIVERSAL CITY, Calif. — Country singer MERLE HAGGARD backed out of a show today at the Universal Amphitheater, the fourth concert he's canceled in a week.

"Merle Haggard is indisposed and is therefore unable to perform," a recording at the 6,200-seat Universal Amphitheater said Sunday in announcing the cancellation of his shows Sunday and today.

Universal said Haggard's opening act, the Judds, would perform and that another act would be added but that fans could apply for refunds.

Haggard played an afternoon show Aug. 4 at the Clark County Fair in Richfield, Wash., but failed to show up for the evening performance. The next day he canceled an appearance at the Douglas County Fair in Roseburg, Ore.

Dennis Bottomley, his business manager, said then the singer had dysentery.

BOSTON — ROBERT D. BALLARD, who led the recent mission to explore the wreck of the Titanic, is taking time off to write a first-person story for National Geographic.

Ballard, 44, who left for Montana on Friday, also has a series of speaking appearances scheduled and is planning a book about his submarine dives to the hulk of the luxury liner that sank after striking an iceberg in 1912, killing 1,513 people.

The senior scientist at the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution has exclusive rights for one year to the 57,000-plus photographs and more than 50 hours of videotape taken during 11 dives to the Titanic, said Gary Walker, Woods Hole assistant director for finance and administration.

Ballard said the speeches and article are "not a blatant commercialization. ... I do not consider it unethical or unreasonable."

He said he has turned down offers to do product endorsements and did not accept any money for a Titanic article he wrote for National Geographic last year.

NEW ORLEANS — Jazz pianist ELLIS MARSALIS is moving to Virginia to teach music, but says he'll be back in New Orleans someday.

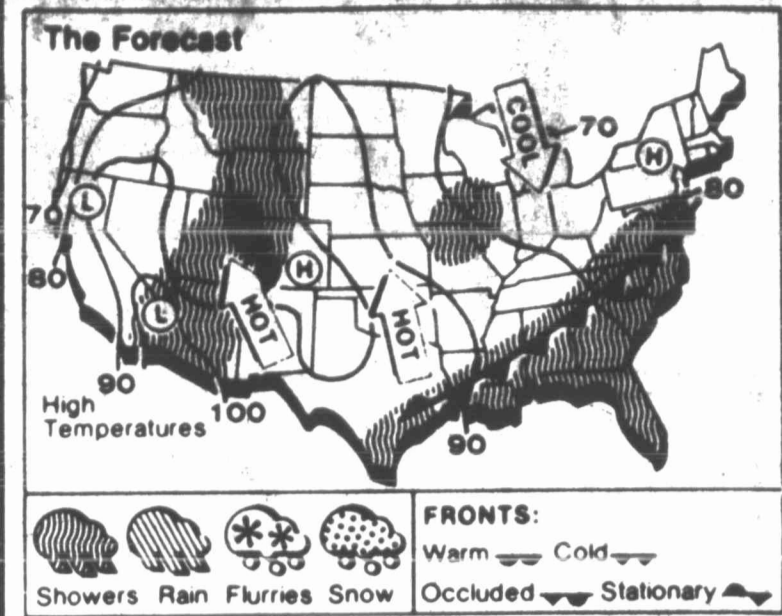

"Everything about me is New Orleans. I was educated here, I taught school here, the music I play was all developed here," said Marsalis, who for years has been a mainstay of New Orleans nightclubs.

Marsalis, his wife, Dolores, and his two youngest children are moving to Richmond, where he will be Commonwealth Professor of Music at Virginia Commonwealth University.

"I'm not leaving for a closed amount of time. I'm sure I'll be back, maybe to live," he said.

Marsalis is the father of two of the country's hottest young performers, Wynton and Branford Marsalis. He taught a generation of jazz musicians at the New Orleans Center for the Creative Arts, and cites a dwindling number of students as one of his reasons for moving.

The thunderstorms dumped heavy rainfall in the Dallas-Fort Worth area with Arlington receiving as much as four inches of rain in about one hour.

The storms also delayed numerous airline flights at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport and lightning was believed to be possible for some electrical problems that plunged most of downtown Dallas into darkness late Sunday evening.

Driver leaves passenger

at scene of accident

A Big Spring man was injured in a one-car accident at the Veterans Administration Medical Center Saturday night.

Ronald L. Porter, 24, of 2102 Runnels St., a passenger and owner of the car, was treated and released from Scenic Mountain Medical Center, a hospital spokeswoman said.

The driver of the car, whose identity was not revealed, left the scene before police arrived, according to the accident report.

Police said Porter was found "wounded and helpless" in a 1971 Pontiac sedan.

According to witnesses, the car was southbound in the inner lane of the 2100 block of Gregg Street at 11:40 p.m. Saturday. The driver swerved to avoid hitting another vehicle, lost control and skidded onto the grounds of the VA hospital, where the car hit an elm tree, witnesses said.

SWAT team

repeated knocks on his door.

"That's because I have a minor hearing loss from 21 years of riding in planes with the doors open," the retired Army airborne Ranger said, and "because I learned to sleep through artillery barrages in New Guinea (during World War II) and Korea."

The explosion of the stun grenade about 10 feet from his bed was enough to wake even the most hardened combat veteran. It also blew out five of the eight panes in the front window of the efficiency apartment.

Lang said he doesn't blame police for the incident, except that they seemed to get rougher after one thought he saw blood.

"I heard one of them say, as they were dragging me out the door and over the rocks — which irritated me some — 'There's blood all over the kitchen.'"

Lang said the "blood" was a bottle of Worcestershire sauce that the stun grenade had knocked off his refrigerator and splattered across a wall.

Lang said he suffered bruised and cut legs and forearms after officers threw him down on large rocks in his front yard.

"Somebody call the police,"

Lang recalled saying. "And they said, 'We are the police.'"

Lang said he told officers he was armed only with toenail and fingernail clippers.

"I don't even own a pocketknife. I don't want to hurt anybody. I hurt enough in Korea," he told the El Paso Times.

Lang didn't require medical treatment for his cuts and bruises, but he went to Beaumont Army Medical Center because he became worried after taking double his usual dosage of high-blood-pressure medicine to bring down his pulse rate.

"I thought I might have (over-dosed), but the nurse told me not to worry, just don't do it again," Lang said. "And I told her I'd been mugged by the SWAT team."

The 26-year Army veteran said he understood the officers were "trying to do their duty. And after they brought me back in, they apologized."

Lt. Felix Grijalva of the Northeast Police Station, said he believes proper procedures were followed in the raid, but added that an investigation is being conducted.

"We did receive several calls from neighbors about shots being fired," Grijalva said.

Shipment company takes pets anywhere

HOUSTON (AP) — Travelers who cannot bear to leave their pets behind can now have their animals shipped along with them anywhere in the nation thanks to a new Houston company.

Animal-Port-Houston, a 7-month-old company that handles the shipment of pets for their owners, is the only private company of its type in the United States, president Tom Schooler says.

Animal-Port takes care of a pet's flight shipment by picking up the animal at home and delivering him to the owners. An affiliate company, Pet Mobile, takes charge of ground transportation, he said.

The bulk of the company's business is relocations. Customers moving to Houston can arrange for the pet to be shipped before the move and the pet will be housed at the airport kennels until the owners move into their new home, he said.

Schooler said Animal-Port also leases and sells carrying containers and serves as a transit stop for animals en route, particularly in international flights.

"We house them overnight while they're awaiting customs clearance," he said.

Since many foreign flights arrive late at night, customers can arrange for Animal-Port to pick up the pet, exercise him and house him in its airport kennels, Schooler said. And without the service, animals usually remain in airport warehouses until they get customs clearance and move on to their U.S. destination, he said.

The cost to ship a medium size animal from Houston to Boston is about $300 with the company providing home pick up, air fare, health certificate and boarding, Schooler said.

Steve McGregor, spokesman for American Airlines, said as many as 10,000 pets travel on American flights each year.

Larger pets can be shipped in the special animal cargo area, he said. The airline charges $30 to ship dogs and cats on any domestic route and $40 for a miniature horse.

Animal-Port opened earlier this year with an initial investment of about $100,000.

"We're just now breaking even," Schooler said.

Schooler plans to expand the company by offering service to 12 other U.S. cities within the next two years.

Bell workers reach tentative agreement

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Southwestern Bell Corp. and the union representing 2,700 employees of the company's publications division reached a tentative agreement early today on a new contract, averting a strike.

"All I can tell you is that we agreed to a new three-year contract," said W.R. Harwell, a spokesman for the Communications Workers of America. "I honestly don't have any details. But they'll be back on the job tomorrow."

The settlement, reached shortly after midnight Sunday, came one day after 46,000 Southwestern Bell Corp. workers in five states reached a settlement with the company.

The two sides had agreed to "stop the clock" until 6 a.m. today in the negotiations affecting the 2,700 workers who help produce Yellow Pages, Silver Pages and other publications, said Doyle Niemann, a union spokesman.

Most of the workers are based in the St. Louis area, he said. The major issue in the talks involving the publications company workers had been a company proposal to change the way directory sales representatives are paid commissions, Niemann said.

"The company is taking a hard line. They want to change the way the commissions are calculated, which would seriously impact some of our members," he said.

In addition, Niemann said the company's proposal calls for no increases in base pay, no cost-of-living pay increases, changes in the way overtime is calculated and paid and other concessions.

"Unless we get closer together, there will be a strike," said Neumann, adding that the workers, most of whom are based in the St. Louis area, had been sent a strike alert.

"I don't feel good," Thoma Parsons, vice president of the CWA's District 6, said of the continuing talks.

The company and the union reached a tentative agreement on a new three-year contract for the 46,000 telephone workers about 11 p.m. Saturday, nearly an hour before a threatened walkout.

At a news conference Sunday in St. Louis, Zack Bettis, assistant vice president of labor relations for Southwestern Bell, said, "This was our first year to bargain as a stand-alone company, and I think our results confirm once again just how well the collective bargaining process works to benefit the mutual interests of labor and management alike."

The agreement calls for a 3 percent increase in base pay immediately; a 1.5 percent increase next year; and a 1 percent increase during the third year of the contract, Niemann said. In addition, workers would receive bonuses based on the cost of living. Depending on the rate of inflation, the workers could receive as much as an 11.3 percent increase in pay during the three years of the contract, he said.

"We think it's a fair package," Niemann said after the agreement was reached. "It's not everything we wanted. We're very happy with the job security part of the agreement."

Fire destroys jetliner

CHICAGO — A charter airline lost its only DC-10 jet when fire swept through it less than an hour after 300 passengers had disembarked after returning from Hawaii.

"From what we can see, we can assume it is a total loss," said Jim Hlavacek, vice president of operations for America Trans Air, after the fire Sunday morning at O'Hare International Airport.

The plane's fuel tanks did not explode, said fire department spokesman Tom Sheppard, who speculated that the tanks must have been nearly empty.

Bush taking drug test

WASHINGTON — Vice President George Bush is taking his drug test today, and President Reagan's drug test is behind him following his weekend trip to a hospital for a urological examination.

In addition to Bush and Reagan, 78 senior White House employees are expected to be tested by urinalysis this week as part of the administration's drive for a drug-free workplace.

Sabotage suspected

DANBURY, Conn. — Union Carbide's investigation of the 1984 gas leak that killed more than 2,000 people in India is focusing on a disgruntled employee, a company spokesman says.

The Indian government has blamed the accident at the fertilizer plant in Bhopal on what it alleges was faulty plant design, poor maintenance and inadequate safety features and procedures.

Radio problem misleading

NEWARK, N.J. — A People Express pilot who mistakenly led air traffic controllers to believe his airliner had been hijacked was surprised to be greeted by a security force at Newark International Airport.

The Boeing 727 was en route Sunday night from Houston to Newark, its final destination, when traffic controllers heard a radio conversation that caused them to issue a hijacking alert, said People Express spokesman Russell Marchetta.

A spokesman for the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, which operates the airport, said the incident apparently began when the jet began experiencing radio problems while near Washington, D.C.

The family of E. Castanon (far right) prepares for a night's stay recently at the Hope Migrant Labor Center, which provides up to 24 hours of lodging for migrant workers traveling from the Rio Grande Valley to harvests in northern states.

Migrant labor Center is stopover for farm workers

HOPE, Ark. (AP) — Ismael Flores paid the standard $2 rent, then quickly wheeled his red pickup truck to Trailer 16 at the Hope Migrant Labor Center, which gives migrant workers a place to sleep between jobs.

Flores makes the federal minimum wage of $3.35 per hour, so his stopover at the center would be short. He had already driven 14 hours non-stop from Weslaco, Texas, en route to Michigan's lettuce harvest.

Flores' wife, Sanjuana, opened the door to Trailer 16 and their three children trooped inside, where a window air conditioner pumped cool relief.

After unloading necessities, Flores, 34, and his two sons walked to the center's cinder-block bathroom. Mrs. Flores, 38, started supper on an outdoor grill with the help of daughter Felicitas, 14.

As many as 3,700 migrants per week register at the center, which opened several years ago. The majority are Mexican-Americans, and more than 98 percent are American citizens, said center director Pete Reigler. "People look on the migrant seasonal farm worker as grubby, dirty, uneducated, can't do anything else. But they're not. They're a proud people," Reigler said. "The reason they put the $2 charge on it was for their pride, so they wouldn't feel they are getting charity."

A Social Security number is required for citizens to register at the center, and a green card, or work permit, is required of aliens.

"When the migrant center first came here, there were a lot of skeptics," Reigler said. "But the migrants spend a tremendous amount of money in Hope, at least $500,000 a year, and the townspeople do recognize that this is good for their community."

It's good for consumers across the country, too, Reigler said, explaining that migrants who work for the minimum wage help keep farm production costs low. The center is run by the state with funds from the U.S. Department of Labor.

There are migrant facilities elsewhere, Reigler said, but the Hope center is unique because it offers 24-hour lodging for migrants with little money.

Chief hurt in ambush

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The mastermind of a mutiny within Lebanon's largest Christian militia and 10 of his bodyguards were wounded today in a machine-gun ambush of their motorcade in east Beirut.

The wounded leader, Fuad Abu Nader, 34, was recovering well from three hours of surgery to remove three bullets from his right shoulder, waist and left leg, said a bulletin from St. Joseph Hospital in east Beirut.

In another development, Israeli warplanes today raided targets in Lebanon on the second straight day, striking Palestinian guerrilla bases in the Bekaa Valley, the Israeli military command reported in Tel Aviv.

Hostage may be ill

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A privately-owned Lebanese news agency has quoted security sources as saying that 38-year-old American hostage Terry A. Anderson is ill.

The Central Information Agency distributed the report Saturday. The report could not be independently verified.

"Security sources quoted diplomatic intelligence received by Western capitals involved in the question of the hostages as saying kidnapped American journalist Terry Anderson, regional director of The Associated Press, is sick and suffering from health problems that confined him to bed."

Retired general killed

PUNE, India — A violence-marred general strike paralyzed this city today to protest the assassination of the retired general who headed India's army when soldiers stormed Sikhdom's holiest shrine two years ago.

Gen. Arun S. Vaidya, India's most highly decorated soldier, was gunned down Sunday by four men in this city 70 miles southeast of Bombay as he drove home from grocery shopping with his wife, who also was shot and wounded in the attack.

Detentions said invalid

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — A provincial court today declared invalid two key sections of the nationwide state of emergency regulations dealing with detentions, raising the possibility that hundreds of people might be set free.

The government immediately announced it would appeal the ruling, issued in Durban by the Natal Province Supreme Court.

Rehnquist battle a futile struggle

One of the more futile battles in Washington this political season is that being waged against confirmation of William Rehnquist as chief justice of the Supreme Court. His opponents are going to lose.

Rehnquist is a conservative; some of his liberal foes would call him a troglodyte. But the justice is not a boob.

Rehnquist is, in short, qualified. Whether he is the best man in the country for the position of chief justice, or even the best member of the current court, is of course a debatable point. But he is Ronald Reagan's choice, he has adequate credentials and as such he should be confirmed.

Corpus Christi Caller

Senate should confirm Rehnquist

Unless the Senate Judiciary Committee or anyone else can come up with a solid, meaningful reason why William Rehnquist is not fit to become the next chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court, his conservative philosophy should not stand in the way.

Rehnquist has been raked over in recent days for various things he said or did many years ago, but so far none of those alleged "flaws" appear serious enough to warrant disapproval.

Lack of candor in space agency

The space agency has compounded the tragedy of the Challenger loss by an absence of candor that is both untypical and unforgivable. While the accident itself was preventable, the human mistakes leading to it can be sadly understood. Confusion and contradiction after a period of clammoring up are not.

The initial stonewalling silence in the aftermath of the disaster and subsequent contradiction of some information that was released is surprising. Perhaps so much time had elapsed since the Apollo 1 disaster that NASA had forgotten some of the lessons purportedly learned then. It is easy to be open and forthcoming when things are going right.

There has been additional confusion and uncertainty about the future role of Johnson Space Center (and employment levels there) in the space station project. Timely release of accurate information — however unpalatable — could have avoided all sorts of speculation and woeful predictions about Houston's space future.

It's hard to tell it like it is when things go wrong. But not doing so makes the situation worse. NASA should know that by now.

What has happened to Hobby?

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby once was considered to be among the moderate of the Texas Democratic Party. That day has long since passed, as was evidenced by his eight-city barnstorm to promote the third major state tax increase in as many years.

What, exactly, has happened to make Bill Hobby so insensitive to Texas taxpayers and so out of touch with those who put him in office?

Maybe he feels too secure and complacent. He has been lieutenant governor longer than anyone in Texas history, and he hasn't had a serious primary opponent since his first race in 1972. He has only token Republican opposition this fall, so he's assured of another four-year term.

Because of his profound influence over the Senate, the lieutenant governor is commonly described as the most powerful man in state government. That does not bode well for Texas taxpayers.

Gorbachev makes small offer

Every arrow points to a summit meeting within the next several months between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev. Diplomats are scurrying around the world, and Gorbachev is pursuing his public relations campaign.

In the interest, he says, of peace, Gorbachev is thinking of withdrawing 6,000 soldiers from Afghanistan. A condition is that the United States and Pakistan must stop interfering in Afghanistan.

This dip into diplomacy is not even opaque; it is clear plastic.

There are 180,000 Soviet troops in Afghanistan. The removal of 6,000 would hardly be noticed. Nothing was said about the massive supply of Soviet weapons and equipment in Afghanistan.

But these 180,000 soldiers are not there to protect the Afghans from the United States and Pakistan. Original intent was to allow the Soviet Union a closer route to the sea. But the Afghans refuse to be subdued. The original force grew as the Soviet Union learned just how tough are those people.

Selfish attitude seen in Big Spring

To the editor:
To Sherrie Bordofoke, I say: Just look around, our town is a ghost town!

You sounded frustrated after only one business answered your plea for help.

The businesses of Big Spring have been begging for help for years. Why this town doesn't pull out from under the thumbs of the older business persons, who refuse to allow any growth in our town, is beyond my comprehension.

There are a few of the older business persons who do not want any competition; therefore our town is slowly dying. They've made their "nest-egg" and could care less about the other fellow. These people are our "fine upstanding business people."

What you're doing, Sherrie, is great, and I wish you God's help. But the businesses that are still trying to 'hang-on' simply don't have any extra money. What little money they have they are trying to figure out a way to move, or if they can struggle to stay in business long enough for this town to 'buckle-up' against these "fine upstanding citizens."

I've even asked myself, "Why even bother to write this letter?" Does anyone care anymore?

But — what really matters is — this is our home, and why should some "self-caring" person destroy other people's home, and the right to make a decent living themselves? It's selfishness!

Sherrie, you stated that Big Spring is a town of 18,000 people. Well, look again! That figure is dropping steadily! Then, I will assume that these "self-caring Big Spring citizens" will be happy. No competition! No one!

Specialists needed for journalists

America recently has been blessed by a doctor surplus. One sign is a decline in the average physician's income. Another is a new spirit of service.

Some doctors now see patients on evenings; some practice in previously under-served rural areas; and probably somewhere there is a doctor who offers free drinks and a neck massage while you wait.

Maybe the oddest innovation is a practice known as "performance medicine," which offers to pianists and ballerinas what specialists have provided for years to linebackers and outfielders — care tailored to the peculiar needs of their business.

Newsweek magazine reports that violinists are prone to sore necks, dancers to stress fractures and guitarists to the heartbreak of irritated nipples, from rubbing against the instrument.

The need for special treatment arose because problems that no one else would notice can deep-six a performer's career. Says one doctor: "Most people break a finger and if they get back 90 or 95 percent of its use, that's enough. But for a musician, even less than 1 or 2 percent makes the difference between success and teaching piano out of your house."

Bruce Springsteen's drummer, says Newsweek, has had seven operations on his fingers for tendonitis, caused by overly vigorous percussion.

The medical community is overlooking the special hazards of another artistic profession, namely journalism.

Reporters, columnists and editors are prone to unusual and seemingly mild conditions that can make a normal life impossible. In some cases these can mean forever abandoning the fearless search for truth that is the solemn duty of our trade.

Some are fairly mundane, like chronic writer's cramp from taking too many notes, headaches from staring at a blank video display terminal and bloodshot eyes from poring over sewer commission records from 1956 in search of scandal.

Editors are given to hoarseness from screaming, along with occasional delusions of grandeur. But some ailments are more exotic. Among them:

● Flapping jaws. This has reached epidemic proportions among TV anchormen, sportscasters and commentators, whose jobs demand a constant stream of chatter, regardless of the relevance of their remarks.

Its terminal stages are marked by an inability to stop talking, even during one's sleep, and a permanently fixed smile, even on inappropriate occasions.

● Insufficient bile production. Columnists particularly are prone to this malady, the result of years of overworking the liver by heaping abuse on disfavored politicians, intellectuals and other worthy targets.

The chief warning signs are a happy disposition and a refusal to utter an uncharitable word about anyone this side of Satan himself.

● Chronic melodrama. Common among feature writers, TV documentary producers and dedicated propagandists of any political coloration, this one starts with portentous leads — a la "Rosita Gonzales is a simple peasant woman from a small village in El Salvador/Nicaragua," or "Dudley Doright is an intense man with a chiseled jaw and piercing blue eyes."

Special problems like these make journalistic medicine a potentially lucrative field for imaginative physicians. Unfortunately, the prospect of dealing constantly with journalists may be even less appealing to doctors than the options of driving a cab or starving to death.

Fortunately, one group of medical specialists should have no trouble adapting to the class of people found in my profession. It's a job for veterinarians.

Test drug appears to give more time to AIDS victims

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — In a desperate race against time, doctors and scientists are trying to find a cure for AIDS, the virus-borne disease that destroys its victims' immune systems with fatal results.

So far, one of the brightest hopes for AIDS patients is an experimental drug that has — temporarily at least — kept the crippling virus at bay in limited tests.

The drug is azidothymidine, or AZT. It is manufactured by Burroughs Wellcome Co. at Research Triangle Park in North Carolina.

"AZT is an experimental drug first identified as possibly being effective in the treatment of AIDS in the spring of last year," explained Tom Kennedy, a vice president of Burroughs Wellcome.

After this tentative discovery, the first scientific testing began last fall on 19 patients at several different institutions, including the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md. Fifteen of the patients given AZT showed increases in the number of cells that are part of the human body's natural immune system.

Word of that success, though hardly a cure, spread through the medical community with predictable results: Demand for the drug became enormous.

"Thousands of people are asking for the drug," Kennedy told us. "It's a whole, big, complex issue of attempting to determine whether or not these things work, against a desire to get the drugs, period."

The company has received hun-

dreds of calls from AIDS patients and their families. Some fatally stricken patients have even walked into the company headquarters building lobby to beg for the drug.

"It's a very difficult, emotional issue with all of us in the shop right now because it is a life-and-death matter," Kennedy said.

The latest statistics show that 10,475 men, women and children now are dying of AIDS. From all these thousands, just 28 have had the privilege of being AZT guinea pigs at the National Institutes of Health.

One of them, as we reported, was the recently deceased Roy Cohn, the New York celebrity attorney who cut his professional teeth on suspected subversives in the 1950s as chief red-hunter for the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy, R-Wis.

A spokeswoman for the government hospital vehemently denied that anyone could use political connections to get admitted to the AZT program.

She explained that the extremely selective process requires potential patients to fit an exacting "protocol," or criteria for the clinical testing. Applicants usually are referred by physicians across the country, and are subject to review by at least one professional committee.

An NIH nurse who has dealt with AIDS patients told us the new drug has demonstrated an ability to "kick up the immune system enough ... so they don't get pneumocystis (pneumonia), which is the biggest killer."

The nurse, who requested anonymity, added: "It's a drug that can actually hold the AIDS patients where they are and keep them from getting any worse. It does not cure. And they are well aware of that. But what it does is buy them a year, maybe two, maybe three. We don't know yet. We're only up to about a year now — of time — so that bigger and better drugs that might be able to kill (the virus might come along)."

One of Cohn's doctors, Robert Yarchoan, emphasized that "although patients receiving azidothymidine showed some improvements, they still have AIDS." He added: "We do not know if the drug will be useful for patients in the long run. We have no evidence that AZT is a cure for AIDS."

Jack Anderson's investigative report from Washington is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

A case of darkroom gremlins

By TIM APPEL
Staff Writer

It's the kind of horror story that Cub Scouts talk about while sitting around the campfire on a dark and dreary night.

It's the story of the haunted photo lab at the Big Spring Herald.

It was during the cold months of March and April of 1984. I had just started my job here, unaware of what later appeared to be supernatural forces in my workplace.

The first sign of the unknown at work appeared on some film negatives. At first, the fuzzy blob of exposure at the end of certain rolls of film was mostly just a bother.

But as weeks went by, these phantom photos from the twilight zone continued to appear infrequently. By then, the unrecognizable images were a constant source of curiosity.

Almost every aspect of my photo techniques and film developing were examined closely. My camera was not at fault, and I replaced all the film cassettes. But the ghostly images still appeared.

The greatest detective minds in history were consulted on the case: the Monahans Police Department, Jill the 7-11 cashier and resident psychic, plus Wanda the palm reader and Ford transmission specialist from Detroit. None could solve the mystery.

A major clue turned out to be a small leak in the stainless steel developing tank, at about the level of the third roll of film.

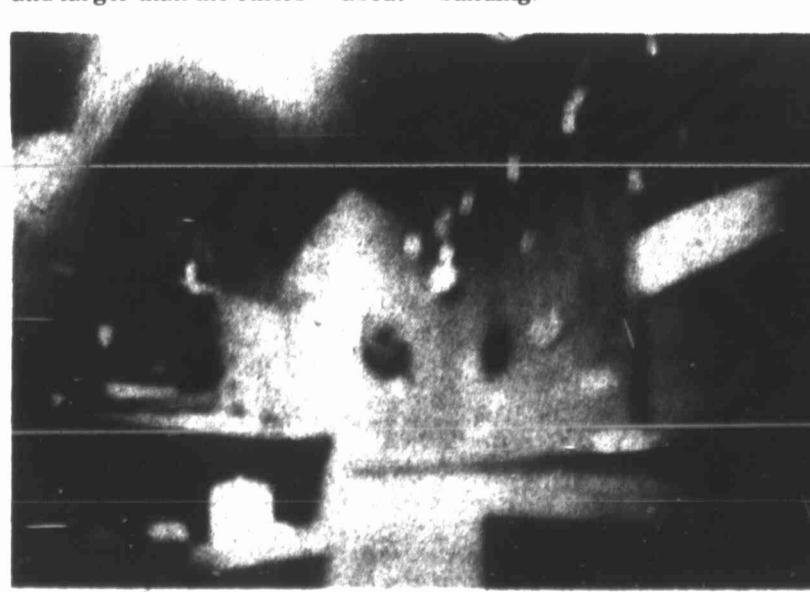

Then, by accident, I left the tank sit in one spot for about a half hour

That lapse revealed the specter's secret as the final clue was an image on the film that was clearer and larger than the others — about

HOUSTON — Authorities were still trying to determine a motive for the fatal stabbing of a lawyer found in his suburban home after he failed to keep an appointment, police said.

Bonilla: Hispanics won't be fooled

MALLEN (AP) — Hispanics will not elect one of their own to the Texas attorney general's post because the candidate is "the creature" of the GOP, the head of a Hispanic political group says.

Ruben Bonilla Jr., state chairman of the Mexican-American Democrats of Texas, says the Democratic Party continues to be the party of Hispanics and that they will not be fooled in the Nov. 4 state elections.

MAD gathered for a two-day convention that concluded Saturday and played host to a contingent of elected officials led by Gov. Mark White and Attorney General Jim Mattox.

On Saturday, MAD's political action committee gave Mattox a $2,500 check to be used in his bid to defeat State District Judge Roy Barrera Jr., the GOP nominee.

"Roy Barrera is the creature of the other side," Bonilla said, adding that Barrera was being used to split the Hispanic vote. "The Republicans think that because they have a Mexican on the ballot that they will fool us, thinking we are stupid. But we are not stupid," Bonilla said.

He said Barrera has ignored issues important to Hispanics, and "that is why we are not going to give Barrera a single vote in November."

White told about 800 supporters that his administration had appointed more Hispanics to state agencies and boards and has helped to improve the living conditions for the South Texas poor.

White faces former Gov. Bill Clements, a Republican, in November.

MAD officials praised White's call last week for a temporary sales tax hike to help erase the state's $3.5 billion budget deficit.

White also urged a special legislative session to impose cuts at state universities and agencies, but not touch programs implemented by educational reforms in 1984.

He said the requests were tough and that his job and others were on the line.

"We have 700,000 Texans who've already lost their jobs. We shouldn't be worried about losing ours. We know what we can do," White said. "We'll do those things and whatever it takes to insure that education continues in Texas to be our first priority and those children will be those beneficiaries."

White introduced a Hispanic girl he mentioned in his speech to the special session and said that because of educational reforms, she was able to learn English.

Angela Botello turned 5 Saturday, and White had told lawmakers at the special session that the best birthday present they could give her would be to keep her school in nearby La Joya, Texas, open.

But Angela had said she would rather have a bike, and on Saturday she got her wish.

White presented her with a birthday cake and a bicycle while he and U.S. Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Mission, led a crowd of more than 800 in singing "Happy Birthday."

Throughout the two-day convention, MAD delegates heard from Democratic officials who asked them to get the more than 1 million registered Hispanic voters to the polls.

Along with White and Mattox, other state officials who addressed the group were Land Commissioner Garry Mauro, Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, Treasurer Ann Richards and State Sen. John Sharp, a candidate for the Railroad Commission.

"Without your help, we would not have been elected to statewide office," White said. "I feel very confident we will be elected to give you that service for the next four years."

Jury selection begins today

LONGVIEW — A judge estimates it will take four to six weeks to select a jury for the capital murder trial of a former Michigan high school basketball star accused in the videotaped slaying of a teen-ager during a Dallas area convenience store robbery.

Jury selection was to get under way today for the trial of Marvin Maurice Wells, 22, charged in the Nov. 21, 1985 shooting death of Matt McKay, 17, of Oklahoma.

McKay was shot in the back during a robbery by three men of the PDQ Texaco convenience store at Carrollton. He died in a Dallas Hospital about two weeks later.

The trial was moved from Dallas on a change of venue order issued by District Judge John Ovard, who ruled that numerous broadcasts of the videotaped slaying in the Dallas area would make it difficult to select an impartial jury.

The slaying was captured on videotape by the store's security camera and the videotape was aired on local and national television broadcasts in an attempt to find the slayer.

DALLAS (AP) — Nearly one-third of nearly 800 jail and prison inmates who responded to a survey said they committed crimes in order to obtain money to buy cocaine, the Dallas Times Herald reported Sunday.

In a copyright story, the newspaper said the number of prisoners who blamed their crimes on cocaine was at least four to six times greater than the number who acknowledged robbing or stealing for other drugs, such as heroin or marijuana.

Cocaine-related crimes identified in the survey outnumbered those attributed to all other illicit drugs combined, the Times Herald said.

The inmates used in the survey had been arrested or convicted of crimes in Dallas, which experienced a 1,900 percent increase in cocaine arrests between 1980 and 1985 and a 200 percent hike in cocaine seizures by federal agents from 1982 to 1985.

During the same time, the Dallas area has experienced sharp increases in property crimes.

"The figures you cite are characteristic of the new, increasing role cocaine is playing in the drug abusing criminal population," said Jan Chaiken, a Cambridge, Mass. scientist who conducted a major crime study for the Rand Corp. in 1982.

Law enforcement officials said cocaine — long considered a cause of white-collar crimes such as fraud and embezzlement — is now cropping up as a factor in such crimes as robbery, theft and burglary.

"In the past, it's been pretty much an upper-middle class phenomenon. Those people might do a lot of things, but they generally were not committing street crimes," said Oliver Revell, executive assistant director of the FBI.

"That has now changed, and I think the survey is indicative of what we're experiencing around the country," he said.

Dallas Police Chief Billy Prince said increased police resources have not kept pace with spreading cocaine use and there are limits to what law enforcement agencies can do.

"The public is going to have to take a real hard position on this Crisis center not following law

AUSTIN — Austin's new 16-bed community crisis center is actually located in the Austin State Hospital, instead of in the community, the Austin American-Statesman said Monday.

The crisis center, according to state law, should be in the community, the American-Statesman said.

A crisis center is for psychotic people having short-term breakdowns so they can get quick help and avoid the state mental hospital.

The location of the center, operated by the Austin-Travis County community mental health center, "obviously wasn't what we had in mind," said Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, author of the act that required crisis centers.

Newspaper: White appoints wealthy donors

DALLAS (AP) — The people Gov. Mark White appoints to key boards and commissions tend to be wealthy donors who have funded about 20 percent of his re-election campaign's budget, The Dallas Morning News reports.

The newspaper said Sunday that its computer analysis of contributions of at least $500 raised from July 1985 through June 30 shows 348 of White's 2,000 appointees gave a total of at least $950,000.

That means nearly one in five dollars that White has raised for re-election came from someone he appointed during his administration.

The analysis showed the average amount donated by appointees to 10 of the most sought-after boards was $9,477. But the newspaper also noted that most of his appointees gave him no money.

Political contributions to the governor by his appointees are not illegal.

Dwayne Holman, who is on leave as White's appointments secretary to direct his campaign, said White never considers the amount of money donated when making appointments.

SOME PEOPLE BUY AIR CONDITIONERS LIKE THERE'S NO TOMORROW. When it's time to replace your old air conditioner, it'll probably only take you a little while to find a new one that looks pretty good and doesn't cost much. But it'll take a lot longer to realize a quick bargain is likely to cause a slow burn on your wallet every month. A high-efficiency air conditioner could make a difference in your cooling costs this summer and every summer. A high-efficiency choice means steady savings because you're getting the same amount of cooling using less electricity than with a low-efficiency unit. On top of this, you'll get a valuable rebate from your electric company if your central air conditioner or window unit meets our Energy Action standards. See your recognized Energy Action air conditioning contractor or dealer for help in choosing a high-efficiency air conditioner or heat pump. Tomorrow, you'll be way ahead of the game. ## Telltale fingernail may be misunderstood

DEAR ABBY: This is for "His Wife in Raytown, Mo.," who found a fake red fingernail clinging to her husband's shorts:

Dear Wife: I'll not try to convince you that your husband could be innocent, but I want to relate an incident that I know is true because it happened to me.

I have long fingernails and occasionally one breaks, so I replace it with a "temporary," using superglue. One afternoon I had just affixed a false fingernail when a young male co-worker stopped by my office to chitchat. As we were talking, I noticed there were threads on the waistband of his new slacks where the price tag had been stitched. Since it looked tacky, I offered to snip the threads off with my scissors. He was most appreciative.

After he left, I noticed my false fingernail was no longer on my finger! I searched my office, under my desk, etc., and finally gave up. About 30 minutes later my co-worker returned red-faced. Holding my pink fingernail in his hand, he said, "Look what I've found in my underwear!"

So, you see, even when things look suspicious and there doesn't appear to be a reasonable explanation, don't jump to conclusions. You could be wrong. Trust me on this one. If it isn't something totally innocent, there will be more telltale signs than a false fingernail. (I've been there, too.)

S.C. IN ATLANTA
DEAR S.C.: I hope "His Wife in Raytown" doesn't miss this column. It could make her day — not to mention what it will do for her husband's.

DEAR ABBY: I read in one of your articles a short while ago about a reader's concern for a military hand grenade that her husband was keeping on the fireplace at home as a war souvenir.

Please inform your readers that assistance is available through their local city, county or state, fire or police forces. The International Association of Bomb Technicians and Investigators has members throughout the free Western world. Although the most publicized calls our members respond to are terrorist attacks, criminal bombings and unexploded homemade bombs, the majority of bomb disposal calls received by our members are regarding found military explosives or commercially manufactured explosives such as dynamite and blasting caps.

Due to the location of the past two world wars, our members recover large amounts of military ordnance in the Middle East and Europe.

In the United States, Canada and Australia, in addition to war souvenirs, we recover large amounts of dynamite and blasting caps found by children while camping near old mining claims.

As a member of the Arizona Department of Public Safety Disposal Unit, I have just recently recovered military hand grenades and dynamite found by three widows while going through their deceased husbands' personal effects and belongings. We also just completed an investigation where two boys, 8 and 10 years old, were severely injured by a piece of military ordnance found on an Arizona National Guard range.

In the interest of public safety, police and fire bomb-disposal technicians, assisted by military explosive ordinance disposal personnel, are available 24 hours a day to respond to a citizen's request for assistance.

Convention/bureau manager attends seminar

More than 17 cities and attractions were represented at the West Texas Travel Council Seminar in Odessa last week, including Elizabeth Taylor, manager of the Big Spring Convention & Visitors Bureau.

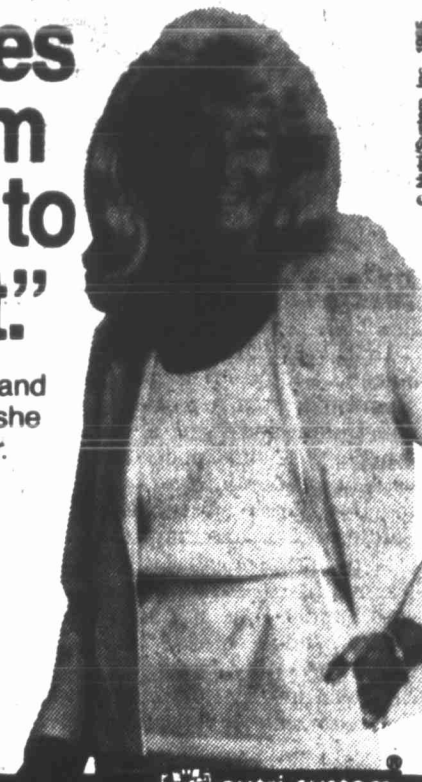

The West Texas Travel Council was organized several years ago to provide an alliance of all West Texas cities to work toward their own promotion, Taylor said.

"The idea is that once we get the people into West Texas, each individual city can work from there to bring that business into their own community." Projects discussed at the meeting were the West Texas travel guide, statewide and national travel shows, familiarization tours, the marketing and packaging of individual cities, and a Research Center for West Texas Tourism Development at Texas Tech University at Lubbock, Taylor explained.

"It was really a good meeting...there was a lot of enthusiasm from everyone at the meeting," Taylor said.

"My clothes went from too tight to just right."

Rheumatoid arthritis can affect lungs

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have heard that rheumatoid arthritis can cause fluid to build around the lungs. If so, could you explain why and how it happens? In the past, you have explained the causes of many illnesses and said if there is any relief. Our paper would not be complete without you. — A.H.

Thanks for the nice compliment, A.H.

Most people think of rheumatoid arthritis as a joint disease. It's a systemic problem. That means it's all-invasive, affecting many body parts and organs, and the lungs are potential targets. Blood vessels and even the heart can be involved in the general inflammation process.

Let's look at the lungs. One of the more common RA-related problems is the fluid buildup you mention. Lungs, as you know, are wrapped in a double layer of tissue (the pleura). A paper-thin space separates the layers. Lubrication permits the layers to glide against each other to facilitate the expansion and contraction of the underlying lungs as you breathe.

Now as it turns out, the cells lining the inner surfaces of these pleural sheets resemble joint cells. And they may become inflamed by the same process that causes inflammation in other joint cells. With inflammation comes an outpouring of fluid. In the lungs, this is called pleural effusion.

If this gets out of control, the fluid has to be removed. But generally, controlling the general inflammation problem (the arthritis) controls the pleural aspects of it. You're the first reader to ask me about this.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My son was a victim of a motorcycle accident. He has been in a coma for more than two months now. Each day is a heartbreak for us. I don't have any questions for you. I am writing to beg you to use your good offices to urge your readers who ride cycles to wear helmets. — Mrs. I.G.

Your letter will strike a familiar chord for many saddened by similar circumstances. I have another reason for letting you borrow this forum. I have had communication from a group with direct interest in the kind of injuries your son apparently had. It's the National Head Injury Foundation. They can help people like yourself find support programs in their areas. They tell me that more than 350,000 vehicle-related head injuries occur annually. Readers can get further information by writing to the foundation at P.O. Box 567, Framingham, MA 01701.

FOR M.M. — You ask about the role of coffee in elevating cholesterol levels. There is some difference of opinion about this. The general feeling is that heavy caffeine consumption does elevate cholesterol. More than two cups a day is said to raise the LDL cholesterol. Let me just say for the sake of brevity here that this is the "bad" cholesterol, the kind that clogs arteries.

Many Hearing Problems Can Be Helped.

Chicago, Ill. — A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest hearing aid Beltone has ever developed will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it.

It's yours for the asking, so send for it now. It is not a real hearing aid, but it will show you how tiny hearing help can be. The actual aid weighs less than an eighth of an ounce, and it fits completely into the ear canal.

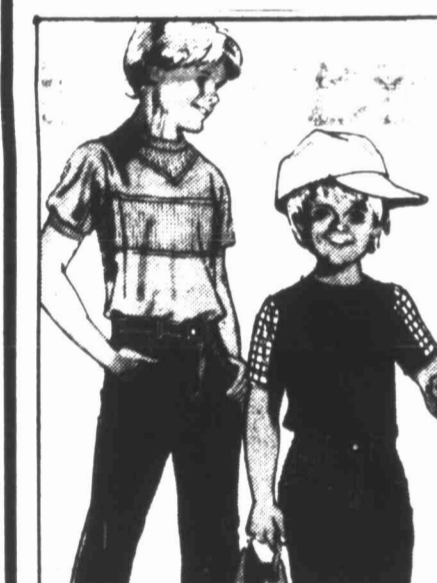

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Although a hearing aid may not help everyone, more and more people with hearing losses are being helped. For your free sample write today to: Department 69244, Beltone Electronics Corporation, 4201 West Victoria Street, Chicago, IL 60646.

Texas stomps Oklahoma

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — As Greg Owen saw it, the 49th annual Oil Bowl was just a matter of Texans acting on their feelings for Oklahomans.

"We just got after them the whole game. Texas really doesn't like Oklahoma that much, so we were ready to show them how to get after it," said Owen, who helped lead the Texas high school all stars to a 17-0 win over Oklahoma Saturday night.

Owen, a 5-foot-7, 200-pound linebacker from Sulphur Springs, won the game's defensive most valuable player award with a game-high nine unassisted tackles. He's headed to Stephen F. Austin University this fall.

The Oil Bowl, staged each year by the Maskat Shrine Temple, began as a match-up of Texas all-star teams but went to the Texas-Oklahoma format in 1945. All proceeds from the game go to crippled children charities in the two states.

Texas now owns a 31-9-1 series edge, although Oklahoma won last year 13-12.

Wichita Falls High's Bill Mercer dashed for 68 yards on 10 carries to win the offensive MVP award.

He'd planned to try and make it as a walk-on at Texas Tech in the spring, but after the game a Tech official notified him they'd much rather get him to school for the fall semester.

And Mercer hadn't even planned on playing that much in the backfield in the game.

"Winning the offensive MVP award really took me by surprise," the 5-11, 183-pound fullback said.

"Going into the game, I didn't figure to carry the ball that much, but I'm glad Coach (Joe) Allen gave me a shot at it. I might have opened a few eyes now concerning my ability." After Texas took a 3-0 lead early in the game, Mercer helped increase the margin with a 31-yard scamper late in the second period.

Rain postpones PGA final round

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The coronation of a new PGA Championship king will be a little late. But the man who is just a step from the throne looked at the wait as just a formality.

"Just to hang around another day is a little sad. We'd like to wrap things up as soon as we can," Greg Norman said Sunday after rain forced a suspension of play in the final round of the 68th PGA Championship golf tournament at the Inverness Club.

Sixty of the 73 players were to pick up today where they left off when play was stopped Sunday afternoon. Of the 13 players who completed play before the postponement, Hale Irwin was the leader at 3-over-par 287 after a final-round 68.

The rains came early to the 6,982-yard, par-71 course, washing away virtually everything but Norman's four-shot lead over Bob Tway. No one else was within seven shots of the leader.

Norman, the reigning British Open champion and runnerup in the Masters, completed just one hole, parring it with an 18-foot putt to remain at 11 under par. Tway, playing in a threesome with Norman and Peter Jacobsen, also parrd the first hole to remain at seven under.

Payne Stewart had a par and was tied at four under with Jacobsen, who dropped a stroke after a bogey on the opening hole.

Another stroke back was Jack Nicklaus, who had a bogey and a birdie on his only two holes as he held onto hopes of winning a record sixth PGA title. Also at three under, eight shots off the lead, were Donnie Hammond, who bogeyed the first hole, and David Frost, who had a par and a birdie through two holes.

Norman, chasing his first PGA crown, looked at the wait as little more than an inconvenience.

"I don't think it is going to affect my play at all," said the native Australian, who already has established a single-season record for money won. "It's just disappointing we can't finish the tournament on the day we'd all like to..."

The man they love to hate returns

STRATTON MOUNTAIN, Vt. (AP) — After an absence of nearly seven months, John McEnroe has returned to tennis with the same excitement, the same genius and the same disposition.

Oh, he has a new body — a sleeker, trim look with more muscular legs and a more upright stance that somehow creates an illusion that he is taller.

But the on-court shot-making genius remains the same. Unfortunately, so does the penchant for turning a crowd against him.

"Everyone's looking to get on my back," McEnroe said after losing to Wimbledon champion Boris Becker in the semifinals of the Volvo International tournament. "The crowd's looking to get against me."

It was a theme McEnroe talked of constantly during his first week back after his self-imposed sabbatical that saw the birth of his first child and his marriage a week ago to actress Tatum O'Neal. It also was a tool that Becker used against him.

The 18-year-old West German subtly taunted McEnroe before their second career meeting actually began. And when McEnroe reacted to the goading, the capacity crowd at the Green Mountain resort reacted predictably, especially when the New York left-hander made several on-court comments to Becker.

"People didn't know what was being said or what the reason was for it, but yet they jumped on me," McEnroe complained. "So that's what I'm going to have to deal with. I'm disappointed... that people got on me that fast because there was nothing really that happened."

In the postmatch news conference, Becker gave a different version of their on-court conversation, alluding to McEnroe "saying things that weren't nice." Asked if he used profanity, Becker said, "He used some slang words that I couldn't understand."

But, in addition to his tendency for being the villain, McEnroe also displayed he has lost none of his touch or shot-making genius.

"It's very difficult (to play McEnroe) because you never come into your game," Becker said after his victory. "It's difficult to keep your control because there's so many weird balls and ball changes."

He was referring to McEnroe's mastery of spins and speeds, the tennis equivalent to a football runner's fakes and feints. If he had been a baseball pitcher, he would have been an Eddie Lopat, serving up off-speed pitches that nibbled the corners of the plate, then sneaking by a Dwight Gooden fastball when you were looking for the next slow curve.

He creates shots that seemingly are impossible. His serve, by no means the biggest or hardest, is based on "Wee Willie" Keller's philosophy of "hit 'em where they ain't." He uses it to set up easy volley winners and it's considered by his fellow professionals to be the best in the game.

It's that genius combined with his volatile nature — the pouting, arguments with umpires, questioning of line calls — that has made McEnroe one of the biggest drawing cards in sports. Even he admits his "negative points," as he puts it, brings in the crowds.

"Ultimately, the goal is for them to come to see me throw my racket and leave saying, 'God, he's a great player and tennis is a great game,'" McEnroe said.

And Jimmy Connors, the old warhorse who keeps rolling into the semifinals of almost every tournament he enters, agrees.

"Anybody who thinks McEnroe wasn't good for the game should take a step back and reconsider," Connors said. "He creates interest. Wimbledon was a shambles this year without him. They really missed him."

Unrelenting Lendl beats tired Becker

STRATTON MOUNTAIN, Vt. (AP) — Ivan Lendl's two-set victory over Wimbledon champion Boris Becker was a classic study in concentration — Lendl's abundance of it and Becker's lack of it.

Lendl was smooth and unrelenting Sunday as he served and volleyed his way to a 6-4, 7-6 (7-0) victory in the 14th Volvo International tennis tournament. The win avenged in small measure his defeat in the Wimbledon finals last month at the hands of the 18-year-old West German, whose game was at its best on Wimbledon's grass courts.

Playing on a hard court Sunday, Becker fought gamely, breaking Lendl's serve on the eighth break point of the 20-minute sixth game of the deciding set. But with Lendl on his favorite surface, few doubted that he ultimately would prevail.

Lendl's comments after the game illustrated the concentration and intensity that have made him, and allowed him to remain, the world's top-ranked player. Leading 6-0 in the tiebreaker, only one point short of victory — Lendl said he cut short a conversation with Becker during a court-change for fear of losing his focus.

Lendl needn't have worried. A cross-court backhand by Becker went wide on the next point, giving Lendl the match and a $40,000 payoff that pushed him past the $9 million mark in career earnings. Martina Navratilova, another Czechoslovak, was the first player over $9 million.

If Lendl's concentration was intense, Becker's was anything but. He attributed his letdown to an emotional hangover from his semifinal victory Saturday over John McEnroe.

"Yesterday was such an emotional match that when I got out of bed this morning, I said, 'Oof, I'm still in the tournament, I thought it was the final yesterday.'"

The Stratton courts are the same hard surface players will encounter next month at New York in the U.S. Open, of which Lendl is the defending champion. But Lendl said Sunday's victory shouldn't increase the pressure on him at Flushing Meadow.

He said he would prepare for the Open much as he did last year.

"I'm pretty much going to be on the golf course and in the pool and enjoying myself and not worrying about it," he said.

These four girls were named to the all-tournament teams at the United States Girls Softball Association's national championships two weekends ago in Monahans. In the front are Division II all-stars Kayla Roberts (left), and Karma Morrow; and in the rear, Amanda Solis (left), and Jancy Cunningham, of the Division IV all-stars.

'Retired' Carlton and waived Foster may join Sox

CHICAGO (AP) — Steve Carlton, the four-time Cy Young Award winner, may have "retired" from the San Francisco Giants last week, but he is expected to sign with the Chicago White Sox this week, published reports say.

Carlton, 41, would be joined on the Sox by another National League veteran, outfielder George Foster, 37, according to the reports.

Foster, who earns $2 million a year, was released by the New York Mets Wednesday, the same day Carlton announced his retirement.

Neither player will clear waivers until 2 p.m. EDT Tuesday, when both become free agents, so White Sox operations chief Ken Harrelson would only reply "No comment," when asked about the possible moves after Sunday's game against the Milwaukee Brewers.

The White Sox trail first-place California by 11 games in the American League West.

The Chicago Tribune and Chicago Sun-Times reported in today's editions that Carlton was expected to be the Sox' starting pitcher Tuesday night against the Tigers in Detroit. Foster, who has 347 career homers, was expected to be a designated hitter.

The Philadelphia Inquirer, citing unidentified sources close to Carlton and the team, said the White Sox will schedule a news conference for 2 p.m. CDT Tuesday to announce that they will be the third club to employ the left-hander in the space of six weeks.

Carlton was released by the Philadelphia Phillies on June 25 and was signed by the San Francisco Giants, with whom he made five starts. He had a 5-11 record and a 5.89 earned run average with the two clubs.

The Inquirer said Carlton had been negotiating with the White Sox for two days.

The Inquirer said that it had learned that Carlton did not officially retire. He did not put his name on the voluntary-retired list or submit a letter of retirement to the National League.

If he had, Carlton would have been ineligible to sign with another club for at least 60 days.

In 22 years of pitching Carlton has compiled a 319-226 record and is second on the all-time strikeout list with 4,000.

Red Sox sweep Tigers in Detroit

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

For a team supposedly in trouble, the Boston Red Sox enjoyed a very nice weekend.

The Red Sox, after watching their grip on the American League East start to loosen, stabilized themselves by beating Detroit three straight times at Tiger Stadium, including a 9-6 victory Sunday.

Rich Gedman's pinch-grand slam capped a five-run rally in the eighth inning that gave the Red Sox their fourth straight triumph.

Boston is now back on top by six games — only one game less than its lead at the All-Star break.

The Red Sox had won only six of 19 since the break, and the rest of the contenders began to close in. Since that time, the Tigers had played the best ball in the division, reducing their deficit from 13 games to 4½.

But that was before Boston came to town.

"It was a very big win for us," Boston Manager John McNamara said. "We're not gloating. There's still a long way to go."

The New York Yankees, still bothered by inconsistent pitching, are still in second place after getting hammered by Kansas City 13-3. Baltimore, which had been on the move, lost its fifth straight game, 6-3 to Cleveland. Fourth-place Detroit is 7½ back.

Trailing 6-4, the Red Sox began their comeback in the eighth against Bill Campbell, 2-4, when Don Baylor led off with his second home run of the game. Dwight Evans and Bill Buckner singled with one out and reliever Willie Hernandez hit Rey Quinones with a pitch, loading the bases.

McNamara then pulled right-handed Marc Sullivan and sent up Gedman, a lefty bothered by a bruised back, to face the left-handed Hernandez.

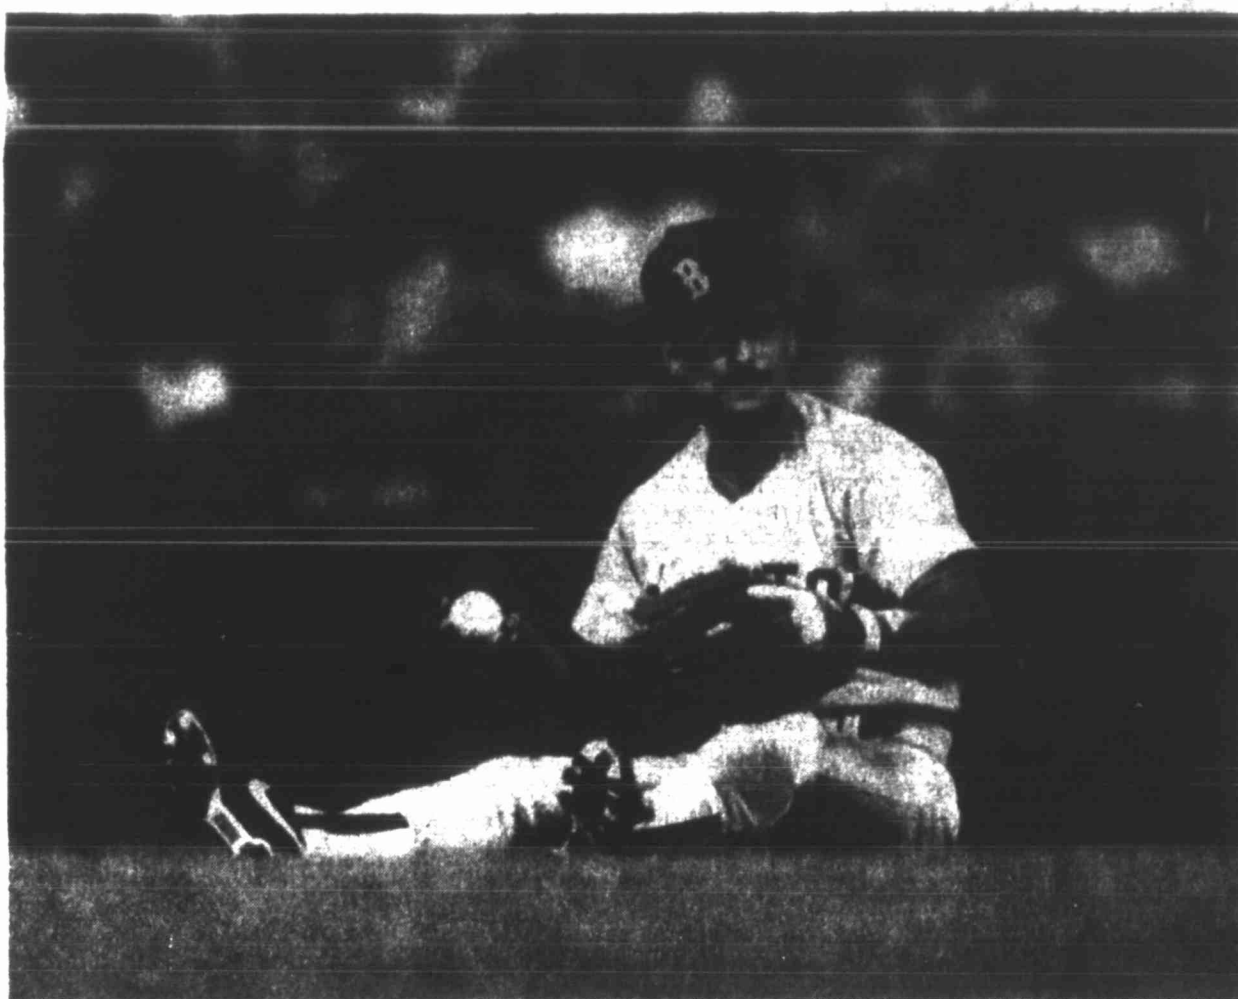

Gedman connected for his 10th home run of the season and second career slam.

Boston starter Roger Clemens took a 4-2 lead into the seventh, but departed after Alan Trammell led off with a single. Darrell Evans put the Tigers ahead later in the inning with a grand slam off Tim Lollar, Evans' ninth career slam and his 18th homer of the season.

Clemens gave up three runs on seven hits, including a home run by Trammell. Joe Sambito, 2-0, wound up with the victory and Calvin Schiraldi got his third save.

Jim Rice hit a two-run homer, his 11th, and Baylor followed with his 20th home run in the third inning off Walt Terrell, giving Boston a 4-0 lead.

"It was a big win for them and a big loss for us," Trammell said. "We'll play them again in Boston next week and hope for better results."

Boston shortstop Ed Romero looks up after making a diving catch of a line drive off the bat of Detroit's John Grubb in Saturday night's game at Tiger Stadium.

Royals 13, Yankees 3

Steve Balboni homered and drove in five runs, Jim Sundberg hit two homers and Darryl Motley connected for a grand slam, powering Kansas City past host New York.

Balboni, who went 4-for-5, set career highs for hits and RBI in a game. The ex-Yankee hit a three-run homer, his 25th, in the ninth inning.

Motley hit his slam during a five-run fourth inning that finished Dennis Rasmussen, 12-3, who had won seven straight decisions.

Indians 6, Orioles 3

Scott Bailes, who leads the league with 51 relief appearances, won his first major-league start as Cleveland rapped 17 hits and beat Baltimore.

Bailes, 9-7, was pressed into service because the Indians recently played two doubleheaders. Indians Manager Pat Corrales said the rookie left-hander will join Cleveland's starting rotation for awhile.

Bailes took a 4-1 lead into the seventh inning but left after issuing a leadoff walk. Dickie Noles relieved Bailes and issued a home run to Fred Lynn, his 19th. Ernie Camacho got the final out of the game for his 16th save.

Mell Hall had four hits and Tony Bernazard and Brook Jacoby got three each. Ken Dixon, 10-9, took the loss for the host Orioles.

Angels 4, Mariners 0
Mike Witt pitched three-hit ball for eight innings as California completed a four-game sweep of Seattle. Witt, 13-7, struck out four and walked four before Donnie Moore pitched a hitless ninth.

The Angels swept a four-game series at home for the first time since May 1982. California extended the Mariners' scoreless streak to 19 innings.

Mark Langston, 9-9, lost his fourth straight decision. He is winless in eight starts since June 30.

Blue Jays 8, Rangers 7
Pinch-hitter Rick Leach hit a sacrifice fly in the 10th inning as Toronto ended Texas' four-game winning streak.

Cliff Johnson and pinch-hitter Buck Martinez opened the 10th with walks from Mitch Williams, 8-4. Ron Shepherd ran for Johnson and took third on a groundout before scoring on Leach's fly ball.

Mark Eichhorn, 9-4, pitched three innings of hitless relief for the victory.

Pete Incaviglia hit his 20th homer and Larry Parrish hit his 17th for the Rangers. Kelly Gruber homered for the Blue Jays.

Brewers 5, White Sox 4

Gorman Thomas hit a solo home run in the bottom of the 11th inning that lifted Milwaukee over Chicago.

Thomas homered off reliever Dave Schmidt, 0-4. Schmidt had taken over for Ray Searage, who started the 11th and struck out Cecil Cooper to begin the inning. Thomas has hit 14 homers this season, four since rejoining the Brewers.

Mark Clear, 3-4, shut out Chicago on two hits over three innings for the victory.

A's 6, Twins 2

A's 6, Twins 5

Carney Lansford capped a four-run rally in the sixth inning with a sacrifice fly as Oakland won the second game and completed its doubleheader sweep.

Jay Howell saved both games. He pitched 1-1-3 innings to save the first game for Curt Young and got the final two outs of the nightcap for his ninth save, preserving the victory for Jose Rijo, 5-8.

Young, 9-7, pitched seven shutout innings of five-hit ball and got support from Rusty Tillman, who drove in his first two major-league runs. Tillman, who played sparingly for the New York Mets in 1982, had an RBI single in the second inning for his first AL hit.

Pitcher's slam, Coleman's steals spark Cardinals

By JONATHAN VITTI
AP Sports Writer

The retirement of Steve Carlton left a void. And Bob Forsch has filled it nicely.

Not as the premier left-hander in the game. Not as a 300-game winner. And not as a man with over 3,000 strikeouts.

Forsch now leads active National League pitchers in career home runs, after his grand slam Sunday gave him his sixth straight victory and the St. Louis Cardinals a 5-4 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

When Carlton retired last week, he took his 13 career homers with him and the throne was up for grabs. Forsch, tied with Tim Lollar and Rick Rhoden at eight, was quick to seize the opportunity.

Now, as long as Carlton doesn't come back and Tom Seaver doesn't get traded back to the National League ...

The winning streak is Forsch's longest of his 13-year career. He had a no-hitter until the sixth inning — when Bielecki doubled.

Forsch, 12-6, was charged with all four Pirate runs in 7 1-3 innings of work. He left during Pittsburgh's three-run eighth inning.

After Ricky Horton allowed a two-run double, Todd Worrell set the record for rookies by getting his 24th save of the season. He allowed one hit over 1 2-3 innings. Doug Corbett had set the record at 23 in 1980 with Minnesota.

Vince Coleman stole four bases for the fourth time this season and moved 12 games ahead of the pace set by Lou Brock when he set the NL record of 118 in 1974.

Dodgers 5, Reds 0

Greg Brock supported the three-hit pitching by Dennis Powell and Ken Howell with two homers, and shoddy Cincinnati fielding gave the Dodgers their first two runs.

The victory averted a four-game series sweep by the Reds.

Eric Davis misjudged a fly in the first inning and turned it into a triple for Mike Scioscia, who scored on Bill Madlock's single.

Powell, 2-3, scattered three hits in 7 1-3 innings and struck out a season high of six. Howell pitched 1 2-3 hitless innings.

The Reds scored 15 runs as they won the first three games of the series, against Orel Hershiser, Alejandro Pena and Fernando Valenzuela. Only two runners reached second base against Powell.

While they won the game, the Dodgers announced Sunday that Pedro Guerrero has been returned to the disabled list for more rehabilitation of his injured knee.

Padres 5, Astros 3

Steve Garvey hit a two-run double in the first inning and preserved San Diego's 2-1 lead in the third with the defensive play of the game — a diving catch of Phil Garner's two-out liner with runners on first and second — as the Padres snapped a five-game losing streak.

Dave Dravecky, 8-9, won for the first time in six weeks. He allowed a run and five hits in six innings. Craig Lefferts and Rich Gossage finished; Gossage got his 15th save.

Kevin McReynolds hit his 15th homer as San Diego ended the four-game winning streak of Bob Knepper, 14-8.

The Astros' lead in the NL West was cut to four games as San Francisco won in Atlanta.

Mets 7, Expos 2

New York pushed Montreal 18 games deep into second place. Wally Backman's two-run double highlighted a four-run seventh inning, and he singled for his third RBI in the ninth inning.

Sid Fernandez, 13-4, combined with Rick Anderson on a three-hitter, ending a streak of four starts over which his record was 0-2. He had won seven straight starts before that.

Fernandez went six innings. Anderson pitched three innings of perfect relief for his first major-league save.

Danny Heep, pinch hitting for Fernandez, singled home Ed Hearn with the seventh inning's first run, tying the game 2-2 before Backman doubled over Tim Lincecum's head in left field.

Giants 4, Braves 3

For a second straight game the Braves could not hold a ninth-inning lead. Giants pinch-hitter Harry Spillman singled home two runs with two outs in the ninth off reliever Gene Garber, 4-3.

Spillman pinch hit for winning pitcher Juan Berenguer, 2-2, and lined a single to right that scored Brown and pinch-runner Luis Quinones.

Scott Garrelts pitched a perfect ninth for his third save.

Bob Horner homered for Atlanta. Robbie Thompson homered for San Francisco.

Cubs 4, Phillies 0

Ed Lynch, acquired from the Mets on a trade for a pair of minor-league players, pitched a six-hitter, struck out seven batters and walked nobody in his first complete game and first shutout this season.

His last shutout was May 8, 1985, against Atlanta and his last complete game was Aug. 11, 1985 — against the Cubs. Lynch retired the first 10 batters he faced before Juan Samuel singled.

49ers crush Raiders; Cowboy offense sputters for second time

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

As San Francisco 49ers Coach Bill Walsh observed, the Los Angeles Raiders usually don't do very well in the NFL preseason. But a 32-0 shellacking might be a bit too slow of a start.

The 49ers' defense registered 12 sacks, five by rookie linemen, and four of the five touchdowns were scored by rookies as San Francisco routed the stumbling Raiders Sunday.

"Basically, we were playing quicker than the Raiders," Walsh said. "But Los Angeles, traditionally, doesn't start off well. You can't use today's game to measure their ability."

The Raiders better hope Walsh is correct.

"It's not panic time. That's what these games are for," running back Marcus Allen said.

"It's probably an understatement, but we played poorly," Raiders Coach Tom Flores admitted.

The Raiders weren't the only team shut out this weekend. Dallas, which scored only six points in losing to NFL champion Chicago in London last week, fell to San Diego 20-0 on Saturday. Kansas City blanked Cincinnati 20-0.

Also, it was New England 18, Washington 7; Green Bay 38, the New York Jets 14; Chicago 33, Pittsburgh 13; Cleveland 19, Buffalo 17; St. Louis 26, Tampa Bay 10; Minnesota 30, Miami 16; and New Orleans 10, Denver 7.

On Friday, Seattle beat Indianapolis 21-14, and Philadelphia downed Detroit 17-9.

Chargers 20, Cowboys 0

San Diego, known only for its strength on offense in the 1980s, might have found a strong defense under new defensive coordinator Ron Lynn. The Chargers limited Dallas to 125 yards total offense Saturday night.

San Diego's defense was so dominant that it forced 12 Dallas punts.

Chiefs 20, Bengals 0

The Chiefs converted a fumble recovery and an interception into 10 points in a 13-point second quarter.

"In the first half, they had a couple of drives on us. I was real pleased when we were able to stop them," Kansas City Coach John Mackovic said.

Patriots 18, Redskins 7

Tony Eason hit on 20 of 32 passes for 282 yards and one touchdown to lead New England. Eason, who was benched in the 46-10 Super Bowl loss to the Bears after missing on his first six pass attempts, teamed with Craig James for a 38-yard completion on the Patriots' first play of the game.

Packers 38, Jets 14

Five Jets turnovers and second-year running back Gary Ellerson's two first-half touchdowns were the keys for Green Bay. Ellerson scored on touchdown runs of six and 35 yards to help Green Bay to a 21-0 halftime lead.

Saturday's paid attendance of 73,959 in Camp Randall Stadium at the University of Wisconsin was the largest home crowd in Packers history.

Bears 33, Steelers 13

Third-stringer Mike Tomczak threw three touchdown passes, including a 61-yard fourth-quarter pass to Thomas Sanders. Tomczak completed 17 of 23 passes for 238 yards and hit on his final nine passes of the first half.

Browns 19, Bills 17

Greg Allen's 2-yard touchdown run with 50 seconds left lifted Cleveland to victory. The Bills led 17-6 after rookie Carl Byrum ran two yards for a touchdown less than a minute into the fourth quarter.

Cardinals 26, Buccaneers 10

Niko Noga and Lionel Washington each ran back interceptions for touchdowns and John Lee kicked three field goals to lead St. Louis.

Vikings 30, Dolphins 16

The Vikings led 10-6 entering the third period. Then rookie Neal Guggemos returned an interception 20 yards for a touchdown and Chris Doleman also picked off a pass that led to another score.

Miami All-Pro quarterback Dan Marino sat out the game.

Saints 10, Broncos 7

Morten Andersen kicked a 51-yard field goal with 6:01 left in the game to give New Orleans its victory. Both New Orleans scores were set up by Denver turnovers. Willie Tullis intercepted a tipped John Elway pass and returned it to the Broncos' 14-yard line, setting up the Saints' first score, fullback Wayne Wilson's 1-yard run.

San Francisco 49ers' tight end John Frank raises his arms after scoring the 49ers' first touchdown in the first period of their game with the Los Angeles Raiders Sunday in Candlestick Park. The 49ers shutout the Raiders 32-0.
