

Local college may lose funds

From staff and wire reports
Howard College would lose about $200,000 in state funds if a proposed 9 percent across-the-board budget cut for junior colleges is enacted, college president Dr. Bob Riley said this morning.

Although the House Appropriations Committee is considering 13 percent cuts for universities, the cuts for junior colleges would be only 9 percent, Riley said.

Even so, "that's a lot of money," he said. "Nine percent would be a serious reduction. ... We (Howard College) would have a much leaner operation." Some revenue shortfall was anticipated, he said. Next year's budget was prepared with a cut of about 5 percent in mind, he said.

Riley said he doesn't intend to lay off any employees or to eliminate any programs even if the 9 percent cut is required.

"We'll expect our staff to do a little more with a little less," he said.

He added that less discretionary funds would be available and "probably zero capital improvements" would be possible.

However, Riley said he hopes a Senate/House compromise of cuts nearer 5 percent will be enacted.

Meanwhile, University of Texas Systems officials say the proposed cuts would force more than 3,000 layoffs and reflect "a full scale and debilitating retreat" from the state's dedication to higher learning.

The UT warnings came a day after the House panel voted to slice colleges and universities 13 percent across the board in fiscal 1987 as it completed work on a package of spending cuts to help remedy state financial troubles.

Hans Mark, chancellor of the UT system, said the system would experience a spending reduction of $120 million if the House plan becomes law. In addition to job losses, Mark said the system may have to cancel summer school — a move that would save about $20 million.

But he refused to speculate on how the proposed cuts would individually affect the 11 schools and two hospitals in the system, including the flagship campus in Austin.

Rep. Shaw files two budget ideas

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, said Monday that two of his money-saving ideas have been included in budget changes proposed by the House Appropriations Committee.

Shaw said the proposals, which he filed as separate legislation, include a call for an energy conservation program at state agencies and a prohibition against the state doing business for one year with contractors convicted of cheating the state.

He said he had spoken with House Appropriations Chairman Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, and other committee members about those ideas, which were added as riders to the appropriations bill.

In other proposals, Shaw said he suggested that state agencies ask lawmakers if they want copies of their slick, in-house publications before they inundate them with those documents.

He also had proposed that the state work force be reduced by attrition and agency spending be cut by certain percentages in travel, supplies, contracts and motor vehicles.

But Shaw said the House Appropriations Committee has recommended budget cuts for agencies that give them some choice in where to cut.

Asked if he filed all the money-saving proposals — a total of 12 — to win an appointment to the appropriations committee next year, Shaw said, "I would certainly be interested in appropriations."

Commissioners eye county tax increase

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer
Howard County Commissioners said they may be forced to raise the county's tax levy by 4 cents per $100 of assessed valuation in order to create the necessary surplus for next year's budget.

"I don't want to raise taxes but we're going to have to," Commissioner David Barr said at Monday afternoon's meeting.

County Judge Milton Kirby proposed the increase, which would raise the levy from 22 to 26 cents per $100 valuation.

County Auditor Jackie Olson told commissioners the added costs for indigent health care and the possibility of federal revenue funds being halted would produce a budget revenue shortage.

Commissioner Bill Crooker explained a surplus is necessary so the county can operate for four to six months if revenues are delayed.

The tax increase suggestion came after at least one commissioner said he was baffled by the proposed indigent health care budget submitted in the morning by County Sanitarian James Luck.

Commissioners suggested raising the indigent health care budget by $16,000, but were advised by Olson that the increase would put the county's general fund "in the hole" by $6,751.

"I'll be honest. We're confused," Commissioner Crooker said Monday afternoon — a couple of hours after Luck presented his proposed budget.

"We don't quite understand what's taking place here," Crooker told Dr. Jack Woodall, director of the Howard County Health Unit.

Crooker, County Judge Milton Kirby and the remaining commissioners told Woodall they didn't understand a budgeted line expense of $10,284 to be paid to a "PH Administrator III (P 20)."

Luck told commissioners during the morning session that the amount would be paid to him in his capacity as head administrator.

Woodall told commissioners the line expense was "additional salary he (Luck) was hoping to get."

Luck recently has assumed more administrative duties, Woodall COUNTY page 2A

Rutherford suggests delay on alcohol ban

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer
Councilman Johnny Rutherford will move at Tuesday night's City Council meeting that instead of passing a proposed ordinance to ban alcohol in the parks, a committee of citizens be appointed to give input and draft an appropriate ordinance.

Rutherford suggested the measure after the council, the Parks Board and former LULAC president Pat Deanda argued for two hours at a council work session Monday afternoon.

The council's agenda includes voting on the ordinance at the meeting at 6:30 tonight at City Hall.

Deanda told councilmen that banning alcohol from parks would create another problem in the community.

"Those people are going to drink somewhere. They'll go out there on Gregg Street," she said. "They have nowhere else to go."

She added that people deprived of the privilege of drinking in the park would become angry and retaliate by vandalizing businesses on Gregg Street.

Deanda said people had asked her to speak to the council opposing the ordinance.

Rutherford said he believes the majority of people in the community would like to see the ordinance passed.

Tougher laws against driving while intoxicated would keep drinkers from moving onto the streets, even if alcohol is banned in the parks, he said.

Mike Russell of the Parks Board pointed out that if someone were hurt or killed by a drunk on city property, the city would be liable in court.

The Parks Board has recommended that alcohol be banned from city parks except for Dora Roberts Community Center and the golf course, Rutherford said.

When asked why those places are exempted, he replied that the community center can be leased, and if alcohol is served, the lessee is required to hire an off-duty police officer to patrol.

Furthermore, he said, "I don't think a golfer out on the golf course is contributing to the same kinds of problems we're considering."

Tina Arguella of the Parks Board, along with several others at the meeting, said she was concerned about violence and being intimidated by drunks in the park.

"For the majority of the families out there, there won't be a problem — they'll learn to drink colas instead," she said of the measure.

"I don't think banning alcohol is the best solution," she said, but until the city gets more money to police the area, "it's the only solution."

Councilmen Gary Don Carey and Henry Sanchez proposed upgrading other parks in disuse because of their run-down condition, theorizing that would lessen problems in Comanche Trail Park, the city's major park.

Carey said he supports banning alcohol from around the swimming pool "because it's basically for children," but he opposes banning it outright.

Arguella said the Parks Board does not have enough funds to upgrade other parks.

City pool to reopen Wednesday

The swimming pool at Comanche Trail Park will reopen about 1 p.m. Wednesday, City Manager Mack Wofford said this morning.

Public works director Tom Decell took an informal poll among council members, Wofford said, and the consensus was that the pool should be reopened, even though only about three weeks remain for it to stay open.

The pool was closed several weeks ago during the city's water crunch, as repairs were being attempted on a broken valve and the city's ability to pump water into the reservoirs was threatened.

The pool had been slated for repair work in September because it was losing about 50,000 gallons of water daily, Decell said then.

Herald awarded two firsts

The Big Spring Herald won first place among small daily papers in general excellence and pictures, and third place in editorial writing at the West Texas Press Association's annual awards presentation Saturday.

The press association requires a daily newspaper to submit two consecutive issues for judging. The Herald submitted the March 27 and 28 papers for general excellence, and the Oct. 26 and 27, 1985, issues for pictures.

Appel, who has been with the Herald for 2 1/2 years, won third place in last year's competition.

Photos and stories on the Cosden fire dominated the March 27 and 28 papers that won for general excellence.

Winning editorials were by former Managing Editor John Rice.

Accident victim drunk, according to autopsy

By SPENCER SANDOW Staff Writer

A man who fell more than 30 feet to his death in a one-car accident early Monday morning was intoxicated at the time, said Justice of the Peace China Long.

Thomas Wytne Poyner, 40, of Box 3179 was pronounced dead at the scene by Long, who ordered an autopsy and an alcohol blood test.

Long said this morning the autopsy showed Poyner's spinal cord was broken on impact, and that was the cause of death. She said she ruled the death accidental.

The accident occurred at 1:30 a.m. in the parking lot of Gill's Gold-N-Crisp Fried Chicken, 1101 Gregg St.

Poyner had driven west from the Greenhouse private club parking lot, through a cable fence and off the 35-foot embankment, police reports said. The car landed upside down, reports showed.

Dan Lusk of the Greenhouse said Monday afternoon that Poyner was not at the club prior to the accident, because the club is closed on Sundays.

Police had said Monday that someone at Gill's notified them of the accident, but manager Vicky Fontana said Gill's also was closed at the time of the crash.

Police Lt. Jerry Edwards said this morning that it was someone at Whataburger who notified them of the accident. Also, a police officer heard the crash and went to investigate, Edwards said.

Services for Poyner are pending at Sparkman-Hillcrest Funeral Home in Dallas, with local arrangements by Myers & Smith Funeral Home.

Assault under investigation

Police are investigating the sexual assault of a woman, which occurred early Sunday morning at her residence on the east side of town.

The assailant gained entry to her residence by claiming to be someone else, said police Lt. Jerry Edwards.

The woman is in her late teens or early 20s, Edwards said.

Police have a composite drawing and a description of the assailant, he said, but no one has been arrested.

- Joyce Rosbath of Big Spring Mobile Homes No. 6 told police she left her rent, an $80 check and $40 cash, in the manager's mailbox, but the manager never received it. She believes the money was stolen between noon Wednesday and 6:30 p.m. Monday.

system board of regents, said the proposed cuts would damage the quality of education for the 118,000 students in the system, and medical care provided to "hundreds of thousands" of Texans at the system's hospitals.

Hay also said the reductions, if enacted, would threaten the system's ability to secure research funds from the federal government and private sector and would make it "virtually impossible" to attract talented educators to the system's institutions.

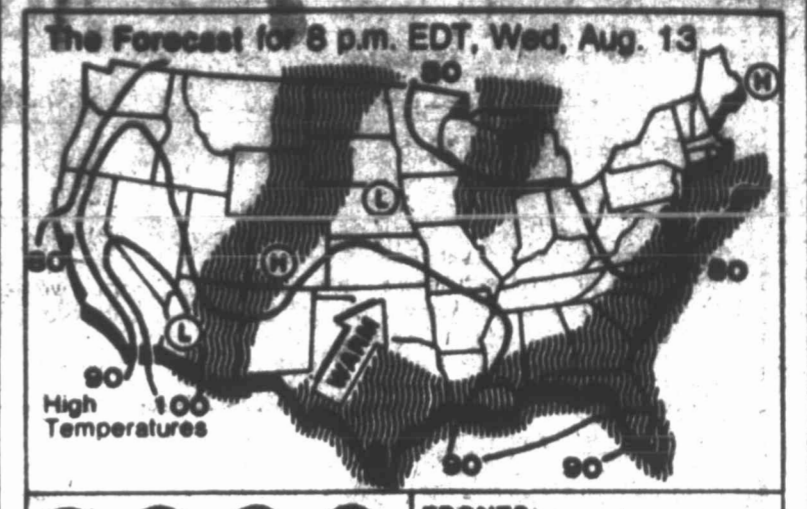

According to Hay, the system would suffer a 19.5 percent cut and a $153 million reduction in funds during the entire 1986-87 budget period under the committee plan.

The 13 percent cut in fiscal 1987 would be coupled with average savings of 6.5 percent offered as a result of Gov. Mark White's request in February for voluntary cuts.

"In short, a $153 million reduction in state appropriations would be extremely debilitating and would set in motion, perhaps irrevocably, a trend toward mediocrity throughout our entire educational enterprise," Hay said.

The spending cuts may be debated by the full House as early as Friday.

said, but the county sanitarian won't have time to perform screening duties when the indigent care program begins Sept. 1.

Kathy Hise, who is favored by commissioners for the screening position, said she couldn't understand the county health unit's proposal of hiring Luck as administrator in addition to a licensed practical nurse.

Commissioners during the morning session unanimously approved the hiring of a certified nurse at $22,000 per year.

Hise told commissioners she attended recent health care seminars conducted by state officials, but that she never once heard the state officials say that counties should hire certified nurses for indigent programs.

"I think it would be better to go by their (state) rules, rather than make up our own," Hise told commissioners.

Commissioners tentatively planned to have Irene Rodriguez assist Hise. Rodriguez serves as secretary to both Hise and Chief Juvenile Probation Officer Margy Thompson.

Thompson voiced concern that Rodriguez may be swamped with work.

But Barr advised Thompson that commissioners needed to observe the program in operation for a few months after it begins Sept. 1 before assessing its effects.

Kirby said commissioners would give Hise the option to hire full- or part-time help if the case load was too much for her and Rodriguez.

That discussion prompted commissioners to tell Clerk of Courts Edna M. McCallister that county indigent health from $300,000 to $384,000.

In other action Monday, commissioners unanimously approved a motion to adopt an ordinance allowing the sale of alcoholic beverages until 2 a.m. within the county's jurisdiction.

That request came from Big Spring County Club general manager John Dabbs.

Teens bat man to death

HOUSTON (AP) - Five devil worshipping teen-agers planned for three weeks to torture a friend to death just to watch him suffer, a prosecutor said at one of the teen's murder trial.

"They took turns beating the victim. It was an orgy of violence," prosecutor Jim Peacock told jurors Monday during the first day of testimony in the trial of Harold Glenn Smith.

Smith, 18, is accused of the Aug. 6, 1985, beating death of Dennis Keith Medler. Medler's body was found eight days later near a north Harris County cemetery by a man tending cattle.

Medler, 19, was chosen as the victim because he had kicked Smith out of his apartment, Peacock said.

Peacock said Medler was lured out in the early hours of Aug. 6 on the pretense of hunting mushrooms. He said the cult took Medler to a remote field, tied him up and used a pipe to beat him and a knife to stab him.

The teens also choked Medler with a bandana and burned his hair with a cigarette lighter, he said.

Soldier defects to Cuba

WASHINGTON — An American army private stationed in West Germany who may have defected to Cuba had no security clearance or access to secret information, the Defense Department says.

In a statement issued Monday, the Pentagon conceded that claims by Radio Havana that the soldier had defected to Cuba may be accurate.

The Defense Department said Pfc. Hugo Rosen, 31, of Glenview, Ill., had been declared a deserter from his post in Europe earlier this month and "may indeed be the individual alluded to in the Cuban radio report." The Pentagon is investigating the matter.

Legendary ship raised

LEWES, Del. — A British ship targeted nine times by treasure hunters has finally been raised from Delaware Bay nearly 200 years after it sank, but it could be weeks before the HMS deBraak's wealth can be captured.

While archaeologists clean the remains, the salvors who raised the deBraak Monday night plan to spend the next two to three weeks scooping up the sediment beneath the wreck in hopes of finding what they think could be up to $500 million worth of booty.

"The deBraak has come home!" said Kevin McCormick, project manager for the salvage firm, Sub-Sal Inc. of Reno, Nev. "This is the first step in a long process."

About 40 small boats bobbed nearby, ringing their bells while passengers cheered.

87 workers evacuated

TYRONE, Pa. — Eighty-seven workers were evacuated from a chemical plant minutes before an explosion rocked the plant, fire officials said.

No serious injuries were reported after Monday's explosion at Quality Chemical Inc., which manufactures pharmaceuticals and cosmetics.

A vat containing chemicals became overheated and exploded as it was being heated, knocking a wall out of the building, Tyrone Fire Chief James Beckwith said.

Supervisors had some type of warning that the vat was building up pressure because they managed to evacuate the employees just before the explosion, he said.

The cause of the explosion was under investigation, he said.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — A gunman who took hostages in a Rodeo Drive jewelry store stabbed to death a security guard who had taunted him, one of the ex-captives testified Monday in tearfully recounting the bloody 13 1/2-hour siege.

Steven Livaditis, charged with 15 felony counts including three of murder, seemed calm after he killed two people inside the Van Cleef & Arpels store June 23, said spokeswoman Carol Lambert.

Ms. Lambert, one of two hostages to survive the ordeal, testified at Livaditis' preliminary hearing.

Mystery voyage

152 found adrift off Newfoundland coast

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland (AP) — A Canadian patrol vessel docked here today carrying 152 men, women and children who were found adrift in two lifeboats off the southeastern coast of Newfoundland.

The castaways were picked up Monday afternoon in heavy fog six miles off the southeastern coast by three fishing vessels, and officials today were trying to determine their identities and how they reached the waters off Canada.

Cold, hungry, thirsty and soaking wet but apparently not seriously ill, the lightly-clad people told rescuers they were Sri Lankans who had been put off a ship after a 30-day voyage from Sri Lanka. The name of the mother ship had been scratched off the lifeboats.

Felix Dobbin, captain of the Beckford, one of three fishing vessels that found the lifeboats, said the refugees him they were "escaping for their lives."

Dobbin said some of those rescued could speak English and told him they didn't have "much choice" but to leave the unidentified mother ship, but he did not know why.

"The lifeboats were packed. I don't know how they stood it for five days. Some were dressed fairly well but not real warm," he said.

He said they told him they were headed for Canada when they were "left to the mercy of the waves," and that they had been adrift in the poorly provisioned lifeboats for five days.

The Canadian coast guard said the two crowded lifeboats held 144 men, three women and five children. They were transferred from the fishing vessels to a Canadian fisheries patrol vessel, the Leonard J. Cowley, and arrived in St. John's this morning.

Coast guard spokesman Bruce Reid said he did not know whether the people had been abandoned, or had some other reason for setting out in the lifeboats.

"They were left off a ship," Reid said. "They are in good condition other than the fact they are a bit hungry."

Capt. Gus Dalton, skipper of one of the other fishing vessels — the Atlantic Reaper — said today the refugees told him they wanted to go "to Montreal. The didn't know anything about Newfoundland."

He said the youngest child appeared to be less than 2 years old while the oldest was a man he estimated to be about 70. Most were wearing lifejackets.

Two of 152 Tamil refugees rescued by three Newfoundland longliners Monday disembark at St. John's Tuesday morning from the federal fisheries patrol vessel.

separatist revolt, and tens of thousands of its citizens have sought refuge abroad.

Jack Hanlon, a fish buyer in O'Donnells, said one of the fishing vessel captains told him by radio the lifeboats were about 30 feet long, had a capacity of 30 to 40 passengers, provided no overhead cover, and that those aboard were soaked to the skin.

One lifeboat had an outboard motor and was towing the other, Hanlon said he was told.

Dobbin said three or four of the people were so weak that they had trouble getting into the fisheries vessel.

He said he didn't know what route the mother ship had taken, and the people he was able to talk to did not know what its name.

A spokesman for the Sri Lanka Consulate in Ottawa said Monday he had no information on the incident, but added, "We are very skeptical as to whether they are Sri Lankans."

Dickman de Alwis, assistant secretary of the Sri Lanka Ministry, said in Colombo today that initial reports from Sri Lankan diplomats in Canada said the refugees were "Sri Lankan Chinese," a previously unknown Sinhalese majority.

At the Canadian armed forces center in Halifax, Nova Scotia, Maj. Bill Whitehead told The Associated Press that the rescue operation began when the Atlantic Reaper radioed Monday afternoon that it had spotted two large lifeboats.

It gave the location as six miles south of St. John's on the southern tip of Newfoundland's Avalon Peninsula. That is about 85 miles south-southwest of the Newfoundland capital of St. John's.

Two other Canadian fishing boats, the Mary Theresa and Beckford, joined the Atlantic Reaper and reported the three vessels had picked up 152 people, Whitehead said.

More than 160,000 Sri Lankan Tamils, who are mostly Hindus, have fled their violence-torn nation in the past three years. About 130,000 refugees have taken shelter in India, while the others are scattered across Europe, North America and the Middle East.

Tamil militants are waging a guerrilla campaign for an independent homeland for their ethnic community. Tamils make up 18 percent of Sri Lanka's 16 million population, and they complain of discrimination by the Buddhist Sinhalese majority.

Aid needed for Ethiopia

SEKOTA, Ethiopia — Foreigners and Ethiopians who saved millions of lives by pushing back famine in Ethiopia warn it could happen all over again soon unless aid donors take further steps to prevent it.

Michael Priestley, United Nations coordinator for Ethiopia, put it bluntly:

"The generous response and the compassion it represented will be brought to naught, indeed made mockery, if there is no follow-up to bring Ethiopia back from the brink of famine."

Iran bombs oil refinery

MANAMA, Bahrain — Iran fired a long-range missile at an oil refinery near Baghdad today, and Iraq retaliated by bombing Iranian oil installations at Sirri Island.

It was the first missile attack on the Iraqi capital in more than a year, and the first Iraqi air raid on Sirri Island, the Persian Gulf oil facility Iran developed after independent shipowners stopped sailing to Iran's Kharg Island oil terminal because of attacks by Iraqi planes.

Sirri Island is 350 miles south of Kharg, and today's attack indicated Iraq has the ability to refuel its warplanes in flight. The attack, which came about nine hours after Iran fired a missile at Baghdad, was carried out by a squadron of French-built Mirage F-1 fighter-bombers.

French, Shiites clash

BEIRUT, Lebanon — French troops serving with U.N. peacekeeping forces in south Lebanon clashed with Shiite Muslim militiamen, and two Lebanese fighters were killed and seven Frenchmen wounded, a U.N. spokesman said today.

The spokesman, Timur Goksel, described the confrontation as the most serious incident involving peacekeeping troops from the U.N. Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL) since Israel withdrew the bulk of its occupation army from south Lebanon in June 1985.

The clash erupted Monday night on the outskirts of the village of Abbassieh east of Tyre, when two members of the Shiite Amal militia failed to heed an order to stop their car at a French checkpoint, Goksel said.

Arms talks continue

KOTLIKOVO, U.S.S.R. — Top American and Kremlin negotiators ended two days of special arms talks today with no word from either side on what, if anything, was accomplished.

The U.S. Embassy spokesman, Jaroslav Verner, said the American delegation headed by Paul Nitze, President Reagan's chief arms adviser, went directly to the airport to depart Moscow.

Verner said it was his understanding the delegation did not plan to issue any statement in Moscow on the talks.

Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov said at a news conference in Moscow that the Soviets would not violate the confidential nature of the talks.

Legislators warned of MHMR court suits

AUSTIN (AP) — The attorney general's office reminded legislators Monday that federal court suits must be considered when reviewing appropriations for the Texas Mental Health and Mental Retardation Department.

Two federal court settlements have been made in suits filed against MHMR, one involving patient-staff ratios and another involving treatment of the retarded in state mental hospitals.

"The department has asked for an additional $5.5 million, not a cut in funds," Patrick Wiseman of the attorney general's office told the Senate in a committee-of-the-whole meeting. "That much was committed in these agreements."

"If these commitments can be made, it would be a valid attempt to comply with the federal court orders," Wiseman said. "If we do not comply, it could cost us ten-fold or a hundred-fold."

"As long as a federal judge issues these pen and ink mandates to the Legislature, can you say just when we are going to stand up and tell these federal judges they are not going to take over the purse strings of Texas?" asked Sen. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington.

Public housing policy is cruel

Residents of public housing units can rest easy for at least two more months. Thousands of people living in government-subsidized housing across the nation faced a deadline recently to provide proof of citizenship or legal residency, or be evicted from their homes. Now the federal government has decided to wait until Sept. 30 to implement the new rule.

The two-month grace period will give Congress time to rethink this whole idea, which was the Department of Housing and Urban Development's response to a 1982 law prohibiting undocumented immigrants from receiving any kind of federal assistance.

We think the proposed change will present a bureaucratic nightmare for housing officials, do little to solve the problem of illegal immigration and probably hurt citizens and legal residents — many of them elderly or children.

Indeed, the proposed restriction is yet another example of our cruelly contradictory approach to resolving our immigration problems.

We allow employers to hire undocumented workers, then we punish the workers for being attracted by the opportunity to better their lives.

We complain about "illegals ripping off the taxpayers" in public housing and then pay them low wages to work in our fields or our homes. We expect them to live in the fields, on the streets, out of sight and out of mind, as long as they show up every day to pick the crops, clean the bathrooms and baby-sit the kids.

Ironically, the proposal may be an attempt to solve a problem that doesn't exist. Studies show that few undocumented immigrants live in subsidized public housing units. Moreover, nearly half their families include U.S.-born children. Will these children be thrown into the street because of their parents' failure to obtain proper papers?

Congress is considering amendments that would continue housing assistance to undocumented immigrants whose families include citizens, and exclude persons over 62 from being required to show proof of citizenship or legal residency. Those changes would help, but they will not address the fundamental failures of our piecemeal approach to the immigration problem.

We can't slow the tide of illegal immigration — or ensure that public housing is reserved solely for needy Americans — without a major overhaul of our national immigration policy. Undocumented immigrants are as much the victims of that policy as they are violators. They should not be the only ones punished.

Today in history

Today is Tuesday, Aug. 12, the 224th day of 1986. There are 141 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history:
On Aug. 12, 1898, Hawaii was formally annexed to the United States after Congress passed a joint resolution. The resolution thwarted opponents of annexation who had succeeded in blocking Senate ratification of a treaty signed with the Hawaiian government in 1897. Hawaii was granted territorial status in 1900, and became the 50th state of the union in 1959.
On this date:
In 1676, the most destructive Indian war in New England history ended with the death of Wampanoag Chief Philip near Mount Hope, R.I.
In 1851, Isaac Singer was granted a patent on his sewing machine.

In 1867, President Andrew Johnson suspended Secretary of War Edwin Stanton.
In 1898, the peace protocol ending the Spanish-American War was signed.
In 1915, the novel "Of Human Bondage" by William Somerset Maugham was published.
In 1941, French Marshal Henri Petain called on his countrymen to give their full support to Nazi Germany.
In 1948, Oksana Kasenkina jumped from a third-story window of the Soviet consulate in New York to prevent being returned to her native country. She survived, and later became a U.S. citizen.
In 1960, the first balloon satellite — the Echo I — was launched by the United States from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Widow works undercover to find insurance hustlers

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR
WASHINGTON — You've thrilled to Rambo. Gaped at Dirty Harry. Now we're pleased to introduce: GRAMBO, a Claude Pepper production.

Lillian Simmons is 86, a deceptively mild-mannered widow and grandmother. Instead of baking chocolate chip cookies and rocking quietly on the front porch, she recently moved from Nevada to Washington, D.C., and took up undercover work for a congressional subcommittee investigating the high-pressure tactics of some health-insurance salesmen.

Simmons is one of several elderly volunteers recruited by Rep. Pepper, D-Fla., the 85-year-old chairman of the Select Committee on Aging's Subcommittee on Health and Long-Term Care. The targets of the gray-haired grandmother are unscrupulous insurance hustlers who try to frighten or flummox elderly Americans into buying more "Medigap" coverage than they need.

Medigap policies perform an important function, paying the sometimes significant difference between the government's Medicare coverage and the actual cost of hospital and other health care. About 75 percent of all Americans over 65 have these supplementary policies.

Simmons set up interviews with 12 health-insurance salesmen, asking them for advice on Medigap coverage. Except for using a variety of domestic settings, her technique was to disarm, not dissemble. She simply showed them her authentic Medigap insurance policy and let them take it from there. Two subcommittee staffers, posing as friends or relatives, took notes and surreptitious films of the salesmen's spiels.

The results are in a report to be issued later this week by the subcommittee. Our associate Stewart Harris got a preview of the report; here's what "Grambo" Simmons and her sidekicks reported:

• One salesman tried to sell Simmons a policy that would cost more than $1,000 a year. But he failed to tell her that the policy could expire in 10 years whether she had used it or not. "So essentially," the reporter noted, "she could pay up to $11,000 in 10 years and have the policy canceled before she used it."

• Scare tactics were used by one salesman, who told Simmons about a friend in Florida who was hit with $30,000 in uninsured medical bills — a calamity that would have been prevented by the Medigap policy he was pushing. But the salesman told Simmons a potentially ruinous lie: He said coverage began six weeks after she paid the first premium. The fine print revealed that coverage wouldn't start for six months.

• Only one of the 12 salesmen told Simmons her present Medigap coverage was adequate. He told her his company couldn't do any better. "You're OK with what you've got," were his parting words.

Footnote: The subcommittee report complains that the only federal agency that has shown any interest in going after Medigap sales fraud is the Postal Service, which has obvious limitations on face-to-face filmflams.

SOMETHING ROTTEN: The Reagan administration stopped federally funded hospital testing of disinfectants in 1982, and only four states have had testing programs since. The rest rely on manufacturer's claims. Random sampling in 1982 showed that 20 percent of the supposed germ-killers didn't work — and since then 3,300 untested disinfectants have come on the market. Florida, which still tests, found "large numbers of bacteria growing in the disinfectant that we supposed to kill them." The American Society for Microbiology estimated last year that 2 million people are infected in hospitals every year, and 20,000 of them die.

SCANDAL OF THE WEEK: Without any explanation, the Justice Department has reversed itself on a matter that could affect many Americans who have been fleeced by con artists or racketeers. In proposed legislation sent to Congress late last month, the department recommended barring civil suits for fraud and racketeering until the perpetrators had been convicted in criminal proceedings. In June the Justice Department assured us that it supported victims' rights to sue under a 16-year-old law. An attorney for Public Citizen called the turnaround "particularly outrageous" at a time when white-collar crime costs U.S. citizens $200 billion a year.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Americans have learned to joke about the many "new" Richard Nixons. But in Liberia, there's not so much as a furtive smirk when the country's dictator, Samuel K. Doe, announces yet another "new" incarnation. Since he seized power in 1980, Doe's titles have included master sergeant, general, "Commander-in-Chief Dr. Doe," and now "His Excellency the President Dr. Doe." Who does he think he is: Queen Victoria? She at least had some geographical justification for her many titles.

Jack Anderson's investigative report from Washington is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My faith in God has really been shaken. I am in high school and a good friend of mine was in an auto accident several weeks ago and still is in a coma and may not make it. He was a real leader and popular, and I just don't understand why God makes things like this happen. — D.S.
DEAR D.S.: One of the most difficult questions we ever confront is that of why there is evil in the world if God is really in control. And I must tell you honestly that our knowledge — unlike God's — is limited, and we do not always know the full answer to this question. The Bible speaks about "the mystery of iniquity" (2 Thessalonians 2:7, King James Version), suggesting we may not fully understand the reasons for evil in this life. But there are two very important things we can understand. First, the Bible emphasizes the fact that evil is real, and we live in a world that is in the grip of evil and sin. That is why you must be cautious about saying that God made this accident happen. Yes, God permitted it — but that is not the same as saying He caused it. The Bible brands death as an enemy that was not part of God's original design for this world. The other thing we can understand is that God loves us.

"That doesn't bother us in the United States," I said, "with a certain amount of pride. "Do you know last year we had over 5,000 people killed by firearms alone?"
"Alas," said the dealer sadly. "We only had 12. The rules here are too strict."
"Don't you have a National Rifle Association?"
"We have something like it, but Parliament tells them what they can or cannot do."
"In my country," I boasted, "the National Rifle Association tells Congress what it can or cannot do."

"I want a gun to shoot surly cafe waiters."
"Tres bien, fill out these papers. Then go to your local police station with all your identification, and explain to them why you want a gun."
"Good, and then I can have it"

PARIS — You would think that after all the United States has done for Europe, the least the Europeans could do is make it easy for an American to buy a gun. But such is not the case and, in spite of their great claims to being civilized, the Europeans are still living in the dark ages when it comes to making firearms available to the public.
I discovered this accidentally when I was overcharged by a waiter in a Left Bank cafe. He claimed that it was an accident, but I knew he did it on purpose. I told my wife I was getting sick and tired of being pushed around, and the only thing to do was buy a gun and carry it with me at all times. Then if someone tried to overcharge me, I'd let him have it. "Isn't that a bit strong?" my wife asked. "Can you think of a better reason for using a gun than when you get the business from a surly waiter?" The next day I went to a gun store near the Paris Opera and told them I wanted a revolver. "What do you want it for?" the

Pile of socks is small hill for army bride

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Not So Sure in Louisiana," whose fiancé—a U.S. serviceman stationed in England—shipped her 266 pairs of dirty socks to launder.

Don't complain, Honey. At least you know what he spent his money on. Also, he'll never have to buy another pair of socks as long as he lives.

I've been married to a Navy man for a long time, so let me give you a little advice. Any woman who is married to a career-military man will be expected to do her share of dirty work, from a ton of laundry a week to patching a leaky sewer on a trailer home. (Tar is best, but it's murder to get off your hands and clothes.)

So, you must learn how to: fix a flat tire with a broken jack; cook hamburger 1,000 different ways; move your kids, your home and your life halfway around the world without his help; travel cross-country with three kids, a St. Bernard and a cat in a broken-down station wagon because you want to be there when he comes off a seven-month cruise; be Mommy, Daddy, chauffeur, cook, nurse, tutor and referee; get a part-time job to make ends meet; accept the fact that there's a right way, a wrong way and the military way; be diplomatic, tactful, loving and cheerful if it kills you; and adjust to so many different moves you sometimes forget where you're living—without becoming an alcoholic, a drug abuser or a mental case. You'll be too busy loving him to complain about his stupid socks.

NAVY WIFE
(NEARLY RETIRED)

DEAR ABBY: Are you ready for something trivial? A co-worker took me to task for failing to say, "God bless you," every time she sneezed.

I told her I thought it was silly. Why should she sneeze be "blessed"? No other bodily noises evoke a blessing. Not coughing, belching, hiccuping, etc.

This friend makes a regular conversation out of a sneeze:

"Ah, choo?"
"Bless you."
"Thank you!"
"You're welcome."

As far as I'm concerned, the sneezer should say, "Excuse me for spreading germs." Why did sneezes come to be blessed in the first place?

NO BLESSER IN NORTH CAROLINA

DEAR NO BLESSER: In the Middle Ages, legend had it that when a person sneezed, the soul temporarily left the body. However, saying, "God bless you!" prevented its being snatched away by the devil. (It may not help, but, like chicken soup, it can't hurt.)

DEAR ABBY: I just read about the women who were glad she had married a handicapped man in a wheelchair. I would like to tell my story:

Sixteen years ago, over strong protests from family and friends, I married a man whose doctors told him he had about two years to live. He was an overseas missionary who had been sent home to die. We met in a nursing home where I was a volunteer.

Abby, I loved and respected this man, and would have been content with just two years together. However, I suspected that poor nutrition played a major role in his illness, so I eliminated sugar, salt, junk food, white flour and food additives from his diet. (Fortunately he didn't drink or smoke.)

The combination of our strong faith in God, his determination to get well and a proper diet restored his health. He returned to full-time ministry, earning two doctorates along the way!

The man I married could barely move his 140-pound, 6-foot 2-inch frame from wheelchair to crutches. Today he stands tall and straight, with no gray hair, leading a normal active life at age 59. I couldn't ask for a better husband.

My advice to anyone considering marriage to a physically handicapped person is this: If the handicap is your only concern—go for it! Strong faith and good health habits can work miracles.

LUCKY IN NEW YORK
DEAR LUCKY: He's lucky, too.

DEAR READERS: Sign seen in the stockroom of a New York department store: "Please pick up after yourselves. Your monther doesn't work here."

Male models deal with public image problem

BY COSMOPOLITAN

A Hearst Magazine Male models are a macho group these days — ever since the industry began wholesale recruiting of college athletes about a decade ago — but these handsome men have a public image problem.

The industry's contradictory, according to an article in the August issue of Cosmopolitan, and depict them as beautiful but conceited, sexy but possibly gay, desirable but unapproachable, at the top of their field but basically untalented, and wealthy but not too astute.

It is no myth handsome men have built-in advantages. Researchers in social psychology say they are perceived by others as more intelligent than their homely brothers, more masculine, more reliable and more socially skilled. Other studies have shown them to be more successful professionally, as well as healthier and wealthier than other men.

They have more interaction with women and are less lonely, according to Harry Reis, associate professor of psychology at the University of Rochester.

"In a nutshell, their social life is better," he said.

John Sommi, 28, a star model for Zoli, "I knew that if I was ever in trouble, I could talk my way out of it, even with the cops. Part of it was looking like the all-American kid — clean-shaven, good haircut, nice clothes. People would just say, 'Aw, give the kid a break.'"

Not all male models agree on the advantages.

"I still look at a lot of women as out of my league," said Richard Wiese, a former decision competitor and Brown graduate who appears on billboards, television and magazine covers. He says he spends more Friday nights without a date than with one.

Bruce Hulse, 33, seen in Calvin Klein commercials, denied he was inordinately vain but admitted being a mirror freak.

"In the morning, I go in the bathroom and do some muscle poses and check myself out," he said.

"I've never had a woman tell me I look good, but I'm not in love with myself."

Karl Hakmiller, professor of psychology at the University of Connecticut, said of conceit among male models:

"It's hard for me to imagine that many of these male models don't have an ego problem. With the worship of male attractiveness everywhere in our society, it must be hard for models not to believe their own press clippings."

Zoli model Sommi lamented what he had to do for the sake of a modeling career: "If you'd told me four or five years ago that I'd have said you were out of your mind. But now I do it every day."

Models devise their own strategies to duck the model stereotype. Michael Ives, 27, a Wilhelmina model who rowed at Yale, leans on his college background when he enters into as an airhead.

Russ Klein, 32, an Elite model, sports a foot-long braid. He hides it by pinning it up during photo sessions.

Men who model have a heavy investment in their looks, and some, in fear of aging, resort to moisturizers, cosmetic surgery and hair implants.

"You get to travel all over the world, stay in the best hotels, meet new faces all the time. Many people would pay to do what we get paid for. Where else would I get $2,000 a day for playing with beautiful girls on a beach?" said one.

Depression may be rooted in body chemistry

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please explain in your column what "chemical imbalance" is. Someone dear to us has this problem and takes medication. That's all he has told us. Sometimes he seems to be quiet and unhappy. — Mrs. C.W.C.

Dr. Donohue

When you think of it, the body does an amazing job of sorting through all the various chemicals, keeping them in proper proportion to maintain itself in a state of health. That's chemical balance. But the term, chemical imbalance, is a generalization with little meaning unless it's accompanied by signs and symptoms.

For an example, if potassium drops, you can say that is a chemical imbalance. And there might be many accompanying symptoms, muscular and other. But I think it's clear of what your friend is speaking. It sounds as though he is dealing with depression.

Those expert in depression feel its roots lie in the underproduction of certain brain chemicals, like serotonin or dopamine, or norepinephrine. Many antidepressant medications can help restore the brain's production of those chemicals.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: For the past 10 months I have been bothered to varying degrees with pain from what has been diagnosed as Achilles tendonitis. A short course of ultrasound did ease it, but has not produced lasting relief — either of the pain or of the swelling. At the moment, the discomfort is bearable to the point where I can work the occasional shift requiring me to be on my feet eight hours. I can play an occasional game of tennis and go for short walks. But, as you can imagine, I would rather be rid of it altogether. Any information on treatment and prevention? — E.M.

The thick cable that attaches the calf muscle to the heel bone is the Achilles tendon. Tendonitis is inflammation of that structure. In anticipation of complaints, let me say here and now that another spelling of it is "tendinitis" (with the three I's).

Such a stubborn problem calls for an investigation of some force pulling that tendon off center, for example a discrepancy of leg length or some other structural foot problem.

You also have to consider gout as a possibility. That can elicit pain in the tendon area.

But if the answer is that you have injured and are continuing to injure the area, then you have to take the common-sense approach. By that I mean you have to rest the foot and try to combat further inflammation with the usual anti-inflammatory drugs. You can add periodic heat therapy to this.

The kind of rest I'm talking about may not be the kind you'd like. I am speaking of more or less complete rest until the pain disappears. Continued use is really re-injuring the tendon. As for prevention once the pain is gone, I'd suggest a heel lift. That often takes sufficient pressure off the tendon to provide protection. You may find other tips in the booklet "Relief and Care of Your Feet." Other readers may order by writing me enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1.00.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a 22-year-old male. My problem is that I have large breasts. I am not overweight. I have had this problem for four years. Is there any way they can be reduced? I am tired of wearing loose fitting shirts. — C.S.

Most of my mail on this subject concerns young pubertal males, yet almost a third of men your age have some degree of breast enlargement. If it is a cause of concern and embarrassment, you can start thinking about breast tissue removal. Yes, it is done in selected cases.

If you are asking about a pill for this, there is none. Nor will diet or exercise rid you of the tissue.

especially since you tell me you are normal weight now. The following may not apply to you, but many are not aware that marijuana use can cause male breast enlargement. With cessation of use, the enlargement subsides.

FOR C.C. (and others) — I would like to respond personally to everyone; I can't. There are so very many letters and so very little time. Again, for C.C., believe me, your family physician will keep what you have to tell him confidential. If you don't have a family doctor, ask a friend who does, or contact the local medical society in the telephone book.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Engineers agree on new design

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Engineers have taken a big step toward resumption of space shuttle flights by developing a rocket engine that should prevent failures like the one that destroyed Challenger, a NASA source says. The source, a space agency engineer who spoke on condition of anonymity, said tests are planned on a fundamentally redesigned solid rocket engine.

If the engine passes, builder Morton Thiokol Inc. could deliver new engines by December 1987, and shuttle flights could resume as early as spring 1988, the source said.

A presidential commission blamed failure of a solid rocket booster joint for the Jan. 28 disaster that killed seven Challenger crewmembers. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration grounded the shuttle fleet until the design flaw could be corrected.

The source said the engine was redesigned by an engineering team at NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., where a news conference on the solid rocket booster was to be held today.

Texans singing oil patch blues

DALLAS — Three Texans singing the oil patch blues in a country song say they're trying to "pump the pride back" into the Lone Star State.

Bob Autrey, Tracy Kite and Robert Owen wrote the song, "Angry Texas Eyes," which has played on radio stations in Austin, Midland and Odessa.

They blame the energy crisis on the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, citing a "bitter feud about the price of crude."

"We're trying to pump the pride back up in Texas," said Autrey, 38, from Lake Worth, a suburb of Fort Worth.

The chorus of the song is, "This gusher of doom OPEC's staging is enraging Texans' lives. Our double-barrel sights are upon you, and, son, they're angry Texas eyes."

Porn report to be reprinted

WACO — A Christian publishing company will sell a paperback reprint of a report on pornography by the U.S. Attorney General's commission so the public can better understand the issue, company officials say.

"I think a lot of people are still in a time warp when it comes to pornography. They're still thinking it is 1966 and we're dealing with Playboy centerfolds," said Charles "Kip" Jordan, executive vice president of Word Publishing.

The federal report is the result of a 14-month study by an 11-member panel appointed in May 1985 by Attorney General Edwin Meese III. The final draft was released July 9, and it contains 93 recommendations for controlling pornography.

Hardware haven

Texas shopkeeper serves up a little of everything

By KELLEY SHANNON Palestine Herald-Press ELKHART (AP) — After 37 years in the business, Wilda Page knows hardware. And the residents of this East Texas community know she knows hardware.

Page has been selling it along with other odds and ends at her downtown Elkhart shop since she and her parents pooled their resources and bought the store in 1949.

Since then, shoppers have come to know Page Hardware as the place to buy everything from chicken wire, to paint, to cotton duck for pea-picking sacks.

The store's building was constructed in 1916, and part of it still has hardwood floors, a wooden ceiling and a ceiling fan to keep air circulating.

In 1979, Page bought a grocery store that closed next door and expanded her hardware business. But she said she doesn't like the new section quite as well.

"It has a cement floor, which we don't like — it's too tiresome," she said.

The shelves are stocked with items some browsers might consider out-of-date or unusual. For instance, at Page Hardware customers can still buy bored well buckets for the type of wells constructed years ago.

In those days, wells were usually small holes in the ground, and the bucket is slender to fit those holes.

But Page doesn't sell too many of them now. "Once in a great while," she said.

Displayed in the store's front

Wilda Page, operator of Page Hardware in Elkhart is a familiar face to residents needing everything from chicken wire to cotton duck for pea-picking sacks. She has been selling odds and ends since she and her parents bought the store in 1949.

window are two different sizes of wash boards. Page said occasionally a customer buys one for washing clothes in sinks.

One man bought one before Christmas last year as a present for his wife, Page said.

But most people don't really buy them for washing clothes. "People hang them on the wall and put magnets and put signs on it," she said.

Another popular item throughout the years has been cotton duck sacks used for pea-picking.

Page Hardware was one of the only stores in the area that stocked the popular sacks.

"Used to there wasn't any place between here and Corsicana that stocked the sacks," she said. "We were about the only people that stocked the sacks."

The San Antonio company that made the sacks has stopped production, so Page Hardware only sells the cotton duck, and pea pickers must sew their own sacks.

"Now they come from Oakwood and all around to get the duck because we don't have the sacks," Page said.

Also on the shelves of the hardware store are plenty of pots, pans and cooking items. Near that section, a shopper with a careful eye will spot a truly unusual hardware store item — "stop jars."

"They can't get them anywhere but here, and they're easy to find," said Page. The store also stocks bed pans "for when they're really sick," she said.

Although Page enjoys the hardware business she runs along with three helpers, she said her first love is her 50-acre farm where she grows flowers and vegetables and raises Hereford cattle.

Page also arranges flowers for functions at First United Methodist Church in Elkhart. After services the flowers usually are taken to the local nursing home.

"They get to enjoy them two or three or four days, depending on how long they last," she said.

The South Anderson County Chamber of Commerce recently honored Page's community spirit by naming her outstanding citizen for 1986.

Page said she was surprised by the award.

"Everybody kept it a secret. Yes, goodness, they did," she said, adding that she had not planned to attend the ceremony, but friends persuaded her to go.

Crystal Vend machines offer purified water 24 hours a day

Crystal Vend brings new meaning to the words "convenience" and "affordability." Twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week, you can get delicious, crystal clear drinking water for 30 cents a gallon at three convenient locations in Big Spring.

Crystal Vend features purified water for salt-free diets, along with their Crystal Clear drinking water.

Advance technology is Crystal Vend's secret to clear drinking water. The blue cabinet houses a miniature, precision water purification system. Municipal water is first filtered to remove sediment particles and suspended dirt and sand followed by carbon filtration which removes unpalatable chlorine and dissolved organic impurities.

The filtered water is then demineralized to remove harsh dissolved metallic salts and then exposed to ultraviolet light for bacteriostatic control producing a purified water (99.9 percent pure) for doctor ordered salt-free diets and all distilled water uses.

A trace of the minerals are retained in the Crystal Clear drinking water for taste.

The Crystal Vend machines are based on state-of-the-art technology and as such, exceed capabilities of all other machines of this type.

Whether your need is for Purified Water for a salt-free diet or Crystal Clear drinking water, you will enjoy the convenience of Crystal Vend. All you have to do is take your container by one of the convenient locations: Safeway at 1300 S. Gregg, Safeway at College Park Shopping Center, or Don Newsom's at 1910 S. Gregg.

Each machine is coin operated and is designed to accommodate containers of any size from one gallon to five gallons. All you have to do is position your container on the adjustable shelf, insert your coins and push the green button for Crystal Clear drinking water or the blue button for purified water for salt-free diets and distilled water uses.

Crystal clear water doesn't have to be expensive, so try Crystal Vend this week for 30 cents a gallon.

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Gene Sarazen's double eagle in the 1935 Masters. Tom Watson's chip-in to win the 1983 U.S. Open.

And now, Bob Tway's bunker shot on the final hole of the 1986 PGA National Championship.

Tway, 27, playing in his first PGA, struck one of the most dramatic shots ever in a major championship, holing out a sand shot for a birdie 3 Monday on the 72nd hole at the Inverness Club to capture his first major.

With one sand shot, Tway matched the PGA title away from Greg Norman, who had led throughout the tournament and appeared to be on his way to winning his second straight major.

Tway, who shot a 78 Monday — play was suspended by heavy rain Sunday after the leaders played one hole — finished at 8-under-par 278, two strokes better than Norman, who shot a final-round 78.

"The way (Norman) won the British Open was a lot like the way that Bob Tway won this one," Peter Jacobsen, who finished third and played in the final threesome, said.

"It was destiny."
How better to describe the 15th hole, where Tway sliced a 4-iron into the gallery to the right of the hole, but recovered to chip the ball to within five feet and made the par putt to remain tied at seven under with Norman?

Or the 17th, where Tway again hit the ball right nestling it into the deep rough surrounding the green?

"I walked up to the green and I couldn't see my ball," Tway said. But he wedged the ball to within three feet and dropped the putt for another par to match Norman.

The two went to the 18th tee with a major championship on the line and no one else in the running.

Both hit their drives into deep rough to the right, but Norman's kicked out into the fairway, 123 yards from the pin on the 354-yard, par-4.

Hitting first, Tway was only able to advance the ball to a gaping bunker which fronts the green. Norman dropped a pitching wedge onto the green, but the ball spun backward and ended up in light rough 20 feet from the hole.

Then destiny ruled.
"I opened up the face of my sand wedge real wide. I knew I had to hit it soft," Tway, who said he had an ideal lie in the trap, said.

"I wasn't trying to make it. I was just trying to get close."

He got it close. As close as you can get. He had blasted out, the ball hitting 10 feet short of the hole and then slowly rolling to the pin. It disappeared for a birdie that may have been measured on a Richter scale in his native Oklahoma.

"All I remember is starting to jump up and down," Tway said. "If I would have jumped like that in high school, I would have played basketball."

The victory was the fourth of what has become a magical year for Tway. He has earned more than $600,000 in 1986, but still is second on the money list to the man he beat down the stretch.

Norman, who took leads into the final rounds of all four major championships in 1986 but won just the British Open, had thought he might win the PGA with a par.

Now he needed to hole out the pitch just to force a playoff. His attempt sailed six feet past the hole and Tway's name was already being printed on the first-place check of $140,000.

Tway, who trailed Norman by four shots as the final round began, opened the tournament with rounds of 72 and 70 before shooting a course-record 64 Saturday. The record he bettered was a 65 — set Thursday by Norman.

"(Tway) hit a great bunker shot with the pressure on," Norman, who finished second in the Masters and 12th in the U.S. Open, said. "He had a shot where if it didn't go in, it would have gone 20 feet past." But it didn't go 20 feet past. It went in. It was destiny.

"I'm sad I lost the golf tournament. My score was a 78, so I obviously didn't play well," Norman said. "Had I scored halfway decent, I win the golf tournament. But you can't control what other people are doing."

Norman saw his four-stroke lead after 10 holes evaporate with a double bogey at 11 and a bogey at 14 while Tway was birdieing 13.

Jacobsen, who finished third at 208, said, "I had a sense all day that it was Bob Tway's day. I thought Greg was tying too hard, he was five yards to the right or five yards to the left all day. But Bob just kept plugging along."

D.A. Weibring had a final-round 69 to take fourth place at 280, while Bruce Lietzke and Payne Stewart tied for fifth at 281. Stewart, playing in the group immediately in front of Tway, gave a taste of things to come by also blasting out of the same trap for a birdie.

Jack Nicklaus, seeking a record sixth PGA crown, lapsed to a final-round 75 to finish at 285 where he was joined by Tom Watson, who was chasing his first PGA title.

Bob Tway hugs his caddy, Mark Jimenez, after his trap shot on the 18th green Monday in the PGA Championship gave him a one-stroke victory over Greg Norman.

Jurors examine Maryland academics

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) —

A member of the grand jury gathered to examine academics and athletics at the University of Maryland following the death of basketball All-American Lou Bias says allegations of drug abuse among athletes are exaggerated.

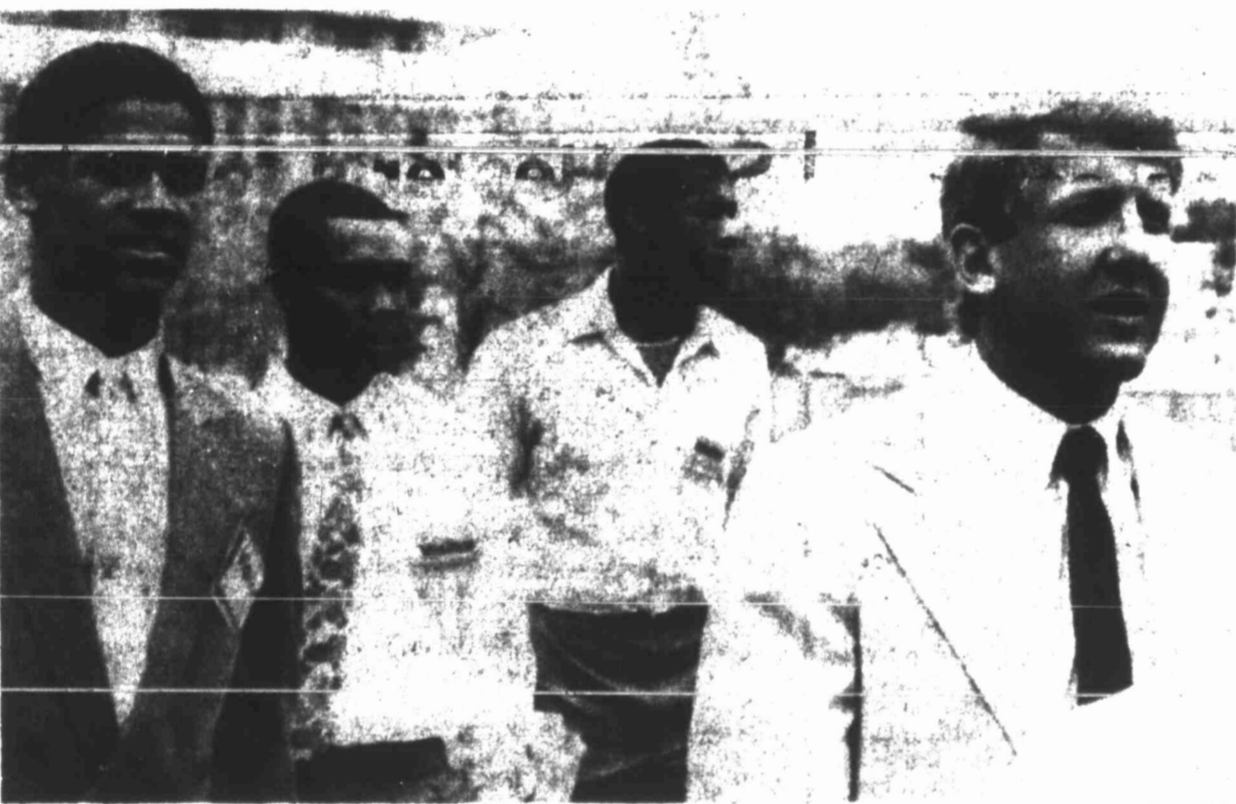

"The team as a whole looks pretty clean," said the juror, who asked not to be identified, after the grand jury spent the day Monday listening to testimony from six of Bias' teammates and Jim Spiro, the team manager.

After the meeting, Prince George's County State's Attorney Arthur A. Marshall Jr., would not rule out the possibility that the grand jury could return more indictments.

The panel indicted Bias' teammates David Gregg and Terry Long on drug possession and obstruction of justice charges after their last session two weeks ago. The two, who shared a dormitory room with Bias, are charged with removing evidence from the dorm. In addition, the panel indicted Brian Lee Tribble, a close friend of Bias, on drug possession and distribution charges.

Marshall said the grand jury was still continuing to investigate Bias' death and related issues. He said it was continuing to examine the theft of a safe from a Bladensburg apartment shared by two women who apparently were friends of Tribble. It was reported missing just hours after Bias collapsed and died.

Investigators believe Tribble owned the safe, which reportedly contained cash and about $100,000 worth of cocaine before it was emptied.

"There are still matters of a criminal nature into which we have not concluded our investigation," Marshall told The Baltimore Sun. He said the other areas being explored "surrounded" the circumstances of Bias' cocaine-induced death June 19, just two days after he was drafted by the National Basketball Association champion Boston Celtics.

The prosecutor further indicated the criminal investigation could result in charges of obstruction of justice and perjury, the Sun reported. He refused to rule out the possibility that obstruction of justice indictments could be for-coming during the current phase of grand jury activity.

Regarding questions about whether the grand jury is looking into possible point-shaving or gambling during basketball games, Marshall said they were "one of the matters" he expected to be handled at the end of the Jurors page 2B

Chiefs' lineman starts prison term...

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — Kansas City Chiefs defensive end Mike Bell, who reported to federal prison Monday to begin serving sentences for cocaine-related convictions, said the memory of how concerned Chiefs' officials were about him will help him endure his time in prison.

Bell and his brother, Mark, reported at about noon to the Federal Correctional Institution at Duluth.

Mike Bell was sentenced July 31 in Wichita, Kan., to concurrent one-year prison terms for two felony convictions of using a telephone to facilitate the distribution of cocaine. U.S. District Judge Wesley Brown said Bell would have to serve four months of the sentence before he was eligible for parole.

Mike Bell also was given a suspended sentence and put on two years probation for a misdemeanor conviction of attempting to possess cocaine.

Mark Bell, a former football player for the Indianapolis Colts and Seattle Seahawks, was sentenced to one year in prison on one conviction of using the telephone to facilitate distribution of cocaine and ordered to serve at least four months. Bell was also given a suspended two-year sentence for attempting to possess cocaine and put on probation.

Mike Bell said he will always remember that team owner Lamar Hunt came to visit him one day before he and his brother were arrested. And he said Coach John Mackovic hugged him and wished him well when he was taken from Arrowhead Stadium last Nov. 20.

"The way they stood beside me and supported me is a pretty good feeling," he said. "They have given me as much support as I could ever imagine. They've been great."

Brown also fined each brother $5,000 and ordered them to undergo counseling and drug testing while they were on probation.

Both brothers have denied they used cocaine. They testified at their trial that they were referring to a real estate deal when they used the word "stuff" in telephone conversations that were taped.

Mike Bell said he was glad he was sent to the Duluth prison, rather than to the federal penitentiary in Leavenworth.

"Two days before (sentencing), I was talking to our probation officer," Bell said. "He told me there was probably a 99 percent chance that we were going to Leavenworth. But the more I thought about it, the publicity and everything, I really didn't want to go there..."

"We were really interested in making sure they had some good workout facilities so we could stay in shape."

U.S. Attorney Ben Burgess said at sentencing that it was a tragedy that the Bell brothers had not admitted their guilt. He sought two-year prison terms.

Defense attorneys sought sentences similar to the three-month terms served by three members of the Kansas City Royals who pleaded guilty to cocaine. Burgess argued that the cases of Willie Wilson, Jerry Martin, Willie Aikens and Vida Blue were different because they admitted guilt.

The felony counts carried maximum penalties of four years in prison and $10,000 fines.

While another lineman strikes it rich

LIBERTY, Mo. (AP) — Irv Eatman, who hasn't played a down in the NFL, is about to become one of its highest paid offensive linemen, says the agent who negotiated the three-time All-USFL player's contract with the Kansas City Chiefs.

Eatman, who helped lead the Stars of Philadelphia and Baltimore to the last two USFL championships, will be paid "somewhere in the upper bracket of offensive linemen in the NFL," Leigh Steinberg told the Kansas City Times after he and the Chiefs announced Monday that they had reached an agreement.

Because Eatman is one of about 30 players with guaranteed USFL contracts, his release must first be obtained from Baltimore. Steinberg said all that remains is settlement on deferred money owed Eatman and repayment of a loan the former UCLA star had obtained from the Stars.

The 6-foot-6, 271-pounder, who was the eighth player chosen in the USFL's first open draft, is the first USFL star to reach agreement with an NFL team since the USFL suspended operations for this season. USFL players with guaranteed contracts have until Wednesday to decide if they will sign with the NFL.

"Yes, we have agreed to terms, but it is subject to approval and release by his USFL team and the USFL, and subject to approval of the NFL," Chiefs spokesman Bob Sprenger said.

"I'd like to have it all signed and done Tuesday or Wednesday," Eatman told the newspaper Monday night by telephone from his home in Tampa, Fla.

"I'm looking very forward to getting in uniform. I realize that it will take me time to get the feel back." "But once I get out there and deliver a few shots, get over that initial soreness, everything will be fine."

Eatman, counted on to help upgrade the Chiefs' woeful running game, has not played since July 15, 1985, when the Stars beat the Oakland Invaders for the USFL title.

The 25-year-old Eatman blocked for Kelvin Bryant, who rushed for more than 1,000 yards in three straight seasons in the USFL. The Chiefs have not had a 1,000-yard rusher since the late Joe Delaney in 1981.

Last season, the Chiefs rushed for an NFL low 92.9 yards per game. Only once since 1981 has a Kansas City running back rushed for more than 100 yards in a game.

Eatman said he hopes to play some Saturday night in Kansas City's preseason game against the St. Louis Cardinals, assuming he can be in camp by Wednesday.

"I don't see a problem, even if they have to stand there and say, 'Go block him,'" Eatman said. "But I'm not naive enough to think I can show up, put on the uniform and have everything be like it was 13 months ago. I hope nobody else thinks that."

Despite his status as an All-USFL offensive tackle, Eatman may wind up playing guard for the Chiefs. First-round pick Brian Jozwiak is a tackle, and four-year veteran tackle David Lutz may have been the team's top offensive linemen last year.

Astros rally past Dodgers in ninth

By The Associated Press
 The Houston Astros continue to stay ahead by coming from behind.

For the 18th time this season, the Astros won in their final at bat, as Alan Ashby's two-run double in the ninth inning Monday night produced a 7-6 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Ashby's bases-loaded, one-out drive into the right-field corner kept the National League West-leading Astros four games ahead of second-place San Francisco. Los Angeles is third, eight games back.

"I've never been on a club that can come back like this one can," Houston Manager Hal Lanier said. "This is a game we didn't deserve to win. We lost this game four different times on the basepaths."

In other NL games, San Francisco ripped Cincinnati 13-4, Atlanta beat San Diego 11-6, New York defeated Philadelphia 8-4, St. Louis downed Montreal 5-4, and Pittsburgh beat Chicago 10-7. Prior to Pittsburgh's victory, the Pirates beat the Cubs 10-8 in 17 innings in the completion of a suspended game.

The Astros, trailing 6-3, scored twice in the eighth inning and could have scored more without a baserunning mistake. After Jose Cruz homered, Ashby singled and pinch-hitter Terry Puhl walked.

Dickie Thon followed with a fly ball that right fielder Mike Marshall misplayed for an error that allowed one run to score, but Puhl and Thon both wound up at third base and Puhl was tagged out.

In the Houston ninth, Denny Walling led off with a single and Glenn Davis drew a walk from Ken Howell, 4-8. Kevin Bass then lined a drive over center fielder Reggie Williams' head, but Walling held up to see if the ball would be caught and was thrown out at the plate.

Davis took third and Bass moved to second on the play, and Cruz was intentionally walked, bringing up Ashby.

"It was a tough at-bat. I was trying to get a fastball to drive, but he jammed me," Ashby said. "Fortunately it fell in down the line. I didn't hit it well, but it turned out all right."

Dave Smith, 4-4, pitched one inning for the victory.

Bill Madlock hit a two-run homer and sacrifice fly for the Dodgers. Jose Gonzalez tripled and scored on Madlock's fly for a 4-3 lead in the seventh and RBI singles by Bill Russell and Gonzalez in the eighth made it 6-3.

Giants 13, Reds 4
 Pete Rose went 5-for-5 for Cincinnati, but home runs by Bob Brenly, Bob Melvin and Candy Maldonado powered San Francisco over the Reds.

Brenly's three-run homer gave the visiting Giants a 6-4 lead in the sixth inning and Melvin, who hit a solo homer earlier, had a three-run triple that sparked a seven-run seventh. Maldonado added a two-run homer.

Rose set an NL record with his 10th five-hit game, his first since April 28, 1982. Rose drove in three runs with four singles and a double, and raised his average to a season-high .222.

Reliever Mark Davis, 3-4, pitched three innings for the victory and Frank Williams worked the final three innings for his first save. Tom Browning, 9-9, got the loss.

Mets 8, Phillies 4
 Keith Hernandez continued his RBI streak and helped Dwight Gooden and New York win in Philadelphia.

Hernandez and Gary Carter hit run-scoring doubles in the fourth inning. Hernandez has driven in at least one run in eight straight games, a team record.

Gooden, 12-4, gave up nine hits, struck out 10 and walked none. One of the hits was Rick Schu's two-run homer in the ninth.

Darryl Strawberry added a two-run single for the Mets. Don Carman, 5-4, took the loss.

Braves 11, Padres 6
 Dale Murphy homered twice and doubled, driving in four runs and powering Atlanta over visiting San Diego.

Murphy hit a three-run homer off reliever Gene Walter that capped a six-run second inning. Murphy led off the fifth with his 20th home run of the season.

Rick Mahler, 11-11, won his first game since June 30, a span of nine starts. He gave up nine hits, including Graig Nettles' three-run homer and a solo shot by Marvell Wynne.

Ed Whitson, 7-6, was the loser.

Cardinals 5, Expos 4
 Mike LaValliere hit a two-run homer off Floyd Youmans with two outs in the eighth inning, carrying St. Louis over Montreal.

The visiting Cardinals trailed 4-3 when Terry Pendleton led off the eighth with a double and Clint Hurdle walked with one out.

Astros manager Hal Lanier gives the high-five to Kevin Bass after Glenn Davis and Bass scored the tying and winning runs on an Alan Ashby single to defeat the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-6 last night in Houston.

Pirates 10, Cubs 7
 Mike Diaz hit a three-run homer and Barry Bonds had a solo shot during a seven-run seventh inning that led Pittsburgh past Chicago.

The visiting Pirates also won the completion of a suspended game, 10-8, on a pinch-single by Bonds in the 17th inning. The game had been stopped because of darkness April 20 with the score tied 8-8 after 13 innings.

Pittsburgh has won nine of 10 games against the Cubs this season. Rick Rhoden, 12-7, won the regularly scheduled game and raised his record against Chicago to 4-0 for the season and 17-6 in his career.

Morris stops Red Sox; Yankees edge Indians

By The Associated Press
 Jack Morris showed once again what being a stopper is all about.

After three straight losses to the Boston Red Sox, the Detroit Tigers won the last game of the series 5-0, as Morris threw a three-hitter for his fourth shutout, best in the American League and tied for the major league lead.

It was his 10th complete game.

"Our pitching really wasn't all that hot the first three games," Morris said. "I'm not pointing fingers or naming names. We just didn't get the job done. We got our five runs tonight, played good defense and won."

Morris, 14-7, struck out three and walked four. He was backed by homers from John Grubb and Lou Whitaker.

"The Jack Morris of this world, there are very few of them," Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson said. "He's taken pretty good care of me for the last seven years."

The Tigers, who had entered the series 4 1/2 games behind Boston and lost three straight to the AL East leaders, clawed to within 6 1/2 games of the Red Sox.

Boston's two closest rivals won on Monday night. New York moved to within five games of first with a 6-5 victory over Cleveland. Mike Flanagan stopped Baltimore's five-game losing streak and the Orioles moved to within six by beating Toronto 3-1.

In other AL games, Chicago beat Milwaukee 6-1, Minnesota shut out California 2-0 and Seattle topped Oakland 6-4.

Grubb had two RBI in the game. He hit his 10th homer leading off the second inning, and singled in Detroit's last run, in the seventh.

Whitaker followed a third-inning walk with his 16th homer.

Darnell Coles was 4-for-4 in the game. He singled home Grubb in the sixth.

Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, 11-8, lost his second straight start since his suspension ended. "I thought Oil Can pitched very well," Boston Manager John McNamara said. "We just didn't get him any runs."

Orioles 3, Blue Jays 1
 Flanagan held Toronto to two hits in 8 1/3 innings, and Don Aase preserved the victory that ended Baltimore's five-game losing streak.

Flanagan changed his recent strategy. "I was trying to throw off-speed stuff to make my fastball look better," he said. "Tonight, I just decided to do it the other way around. I just changed the game plan."

The game's last out was a fly to the warning track that was little short of being a game-tying homer. "I wanted to start off and get ahead," Aase said. "I haven't had good location, but fortunately it was just far enough away from him that he couldn't pull it."

Flanagan, 6-7, entered the ninth with a one-hit shutout, but a walk to Ron Shepherd and Tony Fernandez's RBI double gave Aase the chance for his 29th save.

A scoreless tie was broken in the sixth inning by Toronto second baseman Garth Iorg's error. Rick Dempsey walked and was sacrificed to second. Juan Bonilla's grounder went through Iorg's legs and Dempsey scored easily.

Toronto's Jimmy Key, 10-8, allowed only seven hits and two walks in 7 1/3 innings.

Yankees 6, Indians 5

New York's Don Mattingly ended Cleveland's three-game winning streak with a tie-breaking single in the bottom of the ninth inning, with the bases loaded and two out.

Brian Fisher, 7-5, was the victor in relief of Ron Guidry, who gave up home runs to Brook Jacoby, Tony Bernazard and Julio Franco in his 6 1/3 innings.

Twins 2, Angels 0
 Minnesota's Bert Blyleven, 12-10, pitched a three-hitter for his fifth straight complete game, taking the AL lead with 11 this year. He raised his career record to 27-12 against California with his 53rd career shutout.

Gary Gaetti hit a sixth-inning homer, his 24th of the year.

White Sox 6, Brewers 1
 Chicago scored six runs on five hits — two of them a two-run homer and an RBI single by rookie Russ Morman.

Morman's hits were the only two for the White Sox until Daryl Boston added a two-run single in the three-run eighth. Carlton Fisk led off the ninth with his 11th homer.

Floyd Bannister, 7-9, scattered eight hits and two walks in his third complete game this year.

Milwaukee starter Chris Bosio, 0-1, gave up only one hit — Morman's homer — in five innings.

Mariners 6, A's 4
 Reliever Fernando Arroyo, making his first major-league appearance since 1982, walked Bob Kearney, Spike Owen and Domingo Ramos, forcing in the two game-winning runs with two outs in the top of the ninth inning.

Danny Tartabull gave Seattle its first four runs with a seventh-inning grand slam.

Jurors

 grand jury's work.

Following proceedings Monday, several jury members said they had heard from six basketball players but neither the jurors or the players would comment on what the players talked about during their testimony.

According to some jurors, those testifying Monday were: Tony Massenburt, Tom "Speedy" Jones, Gregg Nared, Bryan Palmer, Derrick Lewis and John Johnson. All played with Bias last season.

Marshall said earlier that he would ask the grand jury to probe reports of drug use by athletes as well as the poor academic performance of some members of the football and basketball teams. Marshall said investigators had received reports that at least one member of the basketball team had a serious drug problem and that other athletes at the main campus at College Park also used drugs.

In addition to team members, other witnesses expected this week include Athletic Director Dick Dull, some assistant coaches, Bias' parents, James and Lonise Bias, and Tribble's mother, Loretta Tribble.

Marshall also said coach Lefty Driesell could testify.

"Mr. Driesell and his counsel have been contacted, and they are very cooperative ... It may well be that they will testify this week," he said.

Mrs. Tribble was subpoenaed by prosecutors, who are expected to ask her about a telephone call she received from her son just after Bias collapsed in his room.

James and Lonise Bias were not subpoenaed but were invited by Marshall to talk to the grand jury about their son's death.

While the grand jury was in session Monday, the university's task force examining the scholastic performance of athletes met in College Park.

Student athletes have been hampered by ineffectual academic counseling and a chain of command that insulated athletic officials from the university's top academic advisors, one of the task force's subcommittees reported.

The task force was also critical of what it said was the lack of academic direction given to student athletes.

The Sun reported that University of Maryland Chancellor John Slaughter called Driesell to an unusual meeting at his home Monday morning. Driesell was forced to interrupt a vacation to attend, sources told the newspaper.

Slaughter declined to comment on the nature of the meeting, confirming only that it took place.

However, he said it had "nothing at all to do" with the grand jury investigation.

Cards sign No. 1 pick; Herschel still unsigned

By The Associated Press
The St. Louis finalized the contract of linebacker Anthony Bell, its first-round draft choice from Michigan State. The signing reduced to eight the number of first-round picks who remain holdouts.

"I know I have a lot to make up in camp," said Bell, who has already missed a month of training camp and St. Louis' first two preseason games.

Rams
Quarterback Dieter Brock will undergo arthroscopic surgery this morning to repair a partially torn cartilage in his left knee, the team announced. Brock is expected to be sidelined until after the Rams' season opener Sept. 7 at St. Louis.

Brock suffered the injury in the Rams' preseason opener Tuesday night against Houston.

Redskins
Washington announced that it has acquired from Tampa Bay the NFL rights to USFL quarterback Doug Williams, and has reached contract terms with wide receiver Derek Holloway, tight end Chuck McCurley and linebacker Angelo Snipes. All played last season in the USFL.

The Redskins also traded an undisclosed 1987 draft choice to New England in exchange for the rights to USFL wide receiver Ricky Sanders, General Manager Bobby Beathard said.

The Redskins gave the Bucs an undisclosed 1987 draft pick in exchange for the rights to Williams, who has thrown for a combined 19,405 yards with the Bucs and Arizona of the USFL.

NFL

Bell, the fifth player taken in the draft, signed for an estimated $1.7 million over four years, including a $650,000 signing bonus, according to his agent Edward Sewell.

The signing left offensive tackle Tootie Robbins, defensive end Al "Bubba" Baker and wide receiver Eric Swanson, the team's seventh-round pick, as the only holdouts.

Cowboys
Dallas President Tex Schramm said he had no "big bombshells" to report in the Cowboys' pursuit of USFL star Herschel Walker.

Green Bay cut four players, including defensive end Mike Butler, an eight-year veteran.

AL teams taking look at ex-Mets slugger

NEW YORK (AP) — George Foster says he will be entertaining offers from at least two American League ballclubs when he clears waivers this afternoon, but it is something he feels wouldn't have been necessary if his comments regarding black-white relations hadn't been "misinterpreted" in a newspaper story.

Foster was released by the New York Mets last week after he was quoted as saying major league clubs promote white players over black ones when possible.

At a Monday news conference with Mets General Manager Frank Cashen at Shea Stadium, Foster said he had heard rumors of his departure from the club since spring training, but the story that appeared in the Westchester-Rockland newspapers was what assured him his walking papers.

"Everything started to snowball with that story," said Foster, who said he has spoken with both the Detroit Tigers and Chicago White Sox about a possible spot as a designated hitter. "It was the straw that broke the camel's back.

"After that, Frank went to Davey (Johnson, Mets manager) and asked him if he could be comfortable with what was said," Foster added. "Davey said he couldn't and that just started opening the door."

Foster signed a five-year, $10 million contract with the Mets in 1982 after they acquired him from the Cincinnati Reds. But he was batting only .227 with 13 homers and 38 RBI and had lost his starting left field job to Kevin Mitchell, who has been hitting over .300. Since July 11, Foster was 2-for-28 with 10 strikeouts.

Despite Foster's poor numbers, at the news conference Cashen said Foster requested, the 37-year-old outfielder said he thinks he still would be on the Mets if the story didn't appear.

"There's a good chance I would have stayed," Foster said. "For how long? I don't know."

Foster, who has categorically denied he called the Mets racists, again said he did not make many of the statements attributed to him and that others were taken out of context.

In the Aug. 4 editions of Westchester-Rockland papers, Foster was quoted as saying, "When a ballclub can, they replace a George Foster or a Mookie Wilson with a more popular white player. I think the Mets would rather promote a Gary Carter or a Keith Hernandez to the fans so parents who want to can point to them as role models for their children rather than a Darryl Strawberry, a Dwight Gooden or a George Foster."

Foster said he started the interview with reporter Jim Corbett by saying he thought the actions by baseball teams were reflective of society and that they were economic in origin, not racial. He also said the references to "Mets players" were hypothetical examples and not actual situations.

"I only wanted to make one small point when I spoke to that Westchester reporter," Foster said. "It wasn't that important until it got misinterpreted."

But the newspaper said it was not guilty of any misinterpretation.

"We stand by our story," Assistant Sports Editor Chris D'Amico said. "We feel it was printed as it was said to our reporter."

While Foster said he believes the story shoved him out, Cashen said that was not the case.

"I don't think so," Cashen said. "In a perfect world I wish there was better timing, but we don't live in a perfect world.

"I had told Davey that I would give him a decision (about Foster's fate) on the road trip," Cashen said. "At the beginning of the season, the manager said he would start Foster until the All-Star break. At the All-Star break, Foster was going to start Mitchell and we would see how George adapted to a part-time role.

"He didn't particularly adapt to that role."
