Texas House approves bill axing budget

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas House, struggling to solve the state's cash crisis without raising taxes, Friday approved a bill to ax about $750 million from the 1987 budget.

The plan would eliminate 5,810 state jobs. The measure now goes to the Senate, where the prevailing sentiment appeared to favor a tax increase.

"We've taken the first step. There's no big fight between the House and Senate. I hope they will take this bill and look at it very objectively," said House Speaker Gib Lewis, who repeatedly has voiced opposition to a tax increase.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Gov. Mark White are pushing tax-and-cut programs to battle a deficit that is projected to hit $3.5 billion by next August.

White said the House plan does not cut far enough. He continued his push for a temporary increase in the state sales tax from the current 4 1/2 percent to 5 1/2 percent.

"A plan that cuts less and raises no additional revenue will not keep the state budget from going into the red," White said.

"These cuts can save us from a tax bill," said Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, the bill's sponsor.

The spending cut plan won approval after four hours of debate Friday.

Rudd, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, told House colleagues that the cuts go deep in some areas. But he called the reductions fair.

"This is not a bill that I like, you like or that, necessarily, anybody likes," he said.

The cuts can get the state by until the 1987 regular session, Rudd said. Many House members, including Lewis, say a 1987 tax hike might be needed if oil prices do not rebound.

Cuts in higher education, including junior colleges, totaled about $305 million — nearly half the overall spending reduction.

University officials have complained that lawmakers are risking the state's future with the 13 percent cut in higher education spending for 1987, and Rep. Wilhelmina Delco, D-Austin, said that was too much.

"We have bitten the bullet repeatedly in higher education in this state. You are being asked to mortgage the state's future. I refuse to be a party to the assassination," said Ms. Delco, who chairs the House Higher Education Committee.

Rep. Paul Moreno, D-El Paso, said the bill is headed for a dead end because of Senate opposition.

Blood bank linked to 2 AIDS cases

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Local blood bank officials say there is no absolute proof that two AIDS victims contracted the deadly disease because of blood transfusions obtained at the bank.

One Bexar County resident died and another was stricken with AIDS in two cases health officials have linked to the South Texas Regional Blood Bank.

Officials at the Metropolitan Health District say the two cases should "absolutely not" alarm people about the safety of the bank's blood supply.

The transfusions occurred in 1983 and 1984 before current tests were available and implemented in May 1985 to screen blood for AIDS contamination, health officials said. "They are extremely cautious — if there is any question they will throw it out," said Dr. Diane Simpson, health district communicable disease coordinator.

Roger Sanchez, the health district's staff epidemiologist, said the two cases do not call into question the department's blood testing policy.

"We don't have any reported as being recently transfused and diagnosed, so apparently the screening process is working," he said.

The two AIDS cases were the only ones out of 71 reported in Bexar County in the past three years linked to local blood transfusions, according to a recently completed study by the Metropolitan Health District on the sources of the disease.

Neither case has been scientifically linked to an AIDS virus-infected donor.

"They had had a blood transfusion within the past five years but you could not categorically state the blood transfusions were the cause of their AIDS," said Dr. Norman Kalmin, medical director of the blood bank.

"There is still a question whether the blood transfusion was the cause, but they had no other identified risk factors," he said.

The primary cause of the disease in the 121 military and civilian AIDS cases reported to local health officials was homosexual or bisexual relations. These accounted for 69.4 percent of the cases, officials said.

The other major category for transmission of the disease was abuse of injectable drugs, accounting for 9.9 percent. The drug cases were related to the exchange of dirty needles by drug addicts rather than the drugs themselves, Ms. Simpson said.

"Communities should determine if the spread of AIDS outweighs trying to limit drug abuse through limiting the availability of needles," Ms. Simpson said.

Currently, health officials in New Jersey and New York are considering relaxing regulations that require a prescription to obtain a needle.

In Texas, syringes are available without prescription but a pharmacist faces a misdemeanor criminal charge for knowingly dispensing a needle for drug abuse.

Senate nears sanctions vote

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, nearing a final vote on a package of sanctions against South Africa, added prohibitions Friday against the import of steel and agricultural produce from the white minority-ruled country.

Earlier, it had added a ban on South African textiles to a list of sanctions that already included prohibitions against importing uranium and coal.

The list also directs the immediate end to U.S. landing rights for South African Airways, a halt to new U.S. investment and bank loans, and a bar against the import of products owned or controlled by the South African government.

It further outlines other sanctions that could be invoked a year from now if no progress is made toward dismantling South Africa's system of racial separation, called apartheid.

As the Senate marched through a lengthy list of amendments and proposals, Larry Speakes, President Reagan's chief spokesman, hinted that — despite his strong opposition to punitive measures against South Africa — the president is prepared to renew the limited sanctions he imposed last year and possibly to invoke new ones.

Speakes said he was unwilling to speculate on whether Reagan would veto whatever sanctions legislation eventually emerges from Congress after the House and Senate get together on a single version. The House-passed bill calls for a complete trade embargo and total U.S. disinvestment in South Africa.

"The question is whether he will add additional sanctions to the sanctions," Speakes told reporters.

"Clearly there is a large number of members of the Senate who favor this sanctions bill," Speakes said. "But that does not indicate that we've dropped or lessened our opposition to sanctions."

Late in the day Friday, the Senate voted 65-33 to kill an amendment by Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., that essentially tracked the House version by requiring complete U.S. business disinvestment and a complete trade embargo.

In an executive order that expires Sept. 9, Reagan last year restricted loans, computer sales and the export of nuclear technology to South Africa, and imposed a ban on the sale here of South African gold Krugerrands.

The Senate bill would nail those temporary sanctions into permanent law.

As recently as late Thursday afternoon the Senate Republican Policy Committee reported that the administration believes the sanctions bill, if enacted into law, "will unintentionally erode efforts to break down apartheid, strengthen radical elements on both sides, and penalize the people and economy of South Africa."

And it said that if the sanctions in the Senate bill are enacted, "this could heighten intransigence on both sides, as well as seriously impair the president's ability to promote collective action with our allies." On the Senate floor, Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, struggled to hold the line against the addition of new sanctions.

He contended that nothing should be done that would erode chances for the largest possible margin of support for sanctions in the Senate — to send a "loud signal" to South Africa — or to increase chances that Reagan will veto it.

"I still have the hope that our president will support what we are doing," Lugar said. "I still have the hope he will sign this legislation so the American people will speak with one voice."

Lugar urged the Senate to desist when Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., offered an amendment to ban the import of South African fluorspar, a mineral used both in toothpaste and in the making of steel and which is mined in Illinois and Tennessee.

"Let us not turn this bill, which has a great moral purpose, into a protectionist trade bill," Lugar said. "I would hope we would not demean the process with endless additions."

The proposal was defeated. In two days of debate and votes, the Senate made a large number of adjustments to the legislation.

These included making the ban on landing rights for South African Airways virtually immediate instead of being initiated in one year and deleting from the bill a section that would have given the president discretionary authority to sell

LULAC prepares for celebration

LINA RODRIGUEZ

LIZZIE YANEZ
...queen hopeful

The League of United Latin American Citizens will celebrate Diez-y-seis de Septiembre this year with a parade, games and a queen contest.

Diez-y-seis de Septiembre, or Sept. 16, is the anniversary of Mexico's independence from Spain.

Lina Rodriguez, 15, of Gail Route Box 303 and Lizzie Yanez of Big Spring are candidates for queen.

Pat Deanda, LULAC spokeswoman, said the contest for ages 15-18 consists of soliciting contributions. The candidate with the largest dollar amount wins.

No deadline has been set on the queen or other contests, she said. People who want to participate may contact Esther Marquez at 263-8255.

In past years only enough funds were collected to break even, she said, but LULAC hopes to have enough profits for a scholarship, Deanda said.

Activities will take place at the Old Settlers Pavilion in Comanche Trail Park Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 13-14.

Saturday's events begin with a parade at 10 a.m. Activities will continue after the parade until 1 a.m. More complete schedule information will be determined later, she said.

Beer will be sold Saturday after 5 p.m., she said.

Fajita and menuo cookoffs will be conducted, as well as games and live music.

Sunday, Sept. 14, activities will begin at sunrise and last until midnight, Deanda said.

Big Spring radio stations file Chapter 11 bankruptcy

Outstanding debts owed by Big Spring Broadcasting Inc. will be discussed Thursday in Midland during a creditors' meeting, according to a Chapter 11 bankruptcy note filed earlier this month in the U.S. District Clerk's office in Midland. The broadcasting company owns Big Spring radio stations KKIK and KWKI. Roy Bell, an Odessa attorney who is representing Big Spring Broadcasting Inc., said Friday morning that the two local radio stations will remain open. The debts owed by the broadcasting company to its creditors mainly concern the "original purchase price," Bell said. The bankruptcy note names Bell-Rey Broadcasting doing business as Big Spring Broadcasting Inc. as debtor. Bell would not disclose the debt amount. "It's something that surely ought to be worked out," Bell said.

Forecast

By The Associated Press
West Texas — Widely scattered thunderstorms except Panhandle Saturday, lingering south Saturday night and southeast Sunday. Warmer especially north Saturday. Lows Saturday night 65 Panhandle to 74 south. Highs Saturday and Sunday 90s except near 105 Big Bend.
State
Temperatures were mostly in the 90s in North and South Texas Friday, but in West Texas scattered thunderstorms cooled the readings to the 80s. The thunderstorms stretched from the Big Bend to north central Texas, giving those areas the cooler temperatures. Showers also occurred along the coast. Winds were mostly from the south and southeast at speeds from 10 mph to 20 mph. Little change was expected for Saturday, except a lessening of precipitation, the National Weather Service said. The forecast for North Texas calls for partly cloudy skies with a chance of thunderstorms. Lows will be in the mid-70s and highs in the mid- to upper 90s. More thundershower activity is expected in the eastern and southern portions of South Texas through Sunday. Highs Saturday and Sunday should be in the 90s and near 102 in the Rio Grande Plains. Lows will be in the 70s. Showers and thundershowers are forecast Saturday, except in the Panhandle. Showers should linger to the south Saturday night and to the southeast Sunday. Highs Saturday and Sunday should be in the 90s and near 102 in the Rio Grande Plains. Lows will be in the mid-60s in the Panhandle to mid-70s in the south.
Nation
A tropical storm formed Friday off South Carolina, while sunny weather prevailed over much of the West. Authorities said Tropical Storm Charley, the third named storm of the Atlantic hurricane season, posed no immediate threat to land, but warned small craft along the Carolina coasts to stay in port. The storm was southeast of Charleston, S.C., the National Hurricane Center said. It said conditions were favorable for the storm to strengthen. Showers and thunderstorms were scattered from the Gulf Coast across Florida to the south Atlantic Coast, and over the Ohio Valley, New York state and Vermont. Scattered showers and thunderstorms also extended from the middle Mississippi Valley to the southern Plains. A flash flood watch for parts of northwest Texas was canceled as heavy rains that dumped 5 inches of rain in some places Thursday night moved out of the area. Sunny skies prevailed from the Rockies to the Pacific Coast, with early afternoon temperatures in the 70s and 80s over much of the region and readings in the 90s over the desert Southwest. Temperatures were in the 50s and 60s along the Pacific Coast. Sunshine was common from Minnesota and most of Iowa to the northern Plains, with temperatures were in the 80s and lower 90s across the area. In Durham, N.C., a 7-year-old girl died Friday of injuries sustained when she was hit by lightning, bringing to two the death toll from the Monday storm, officials said. Temperatures around the nation at 3 p.m. EDT ranged from 55 degrees at Arcata, Calif., to 104 degrees at Palm Springs, Calif. The nation's low Wednesday morning was 31 degrees, at Gunnison, Colo. Saturday's forecast called for showers and thunderstorms to be scattered from New England across the mid- and south Atlantic Coast states, the lower Great Lakes, and the Ohio and Tennessee valleys to the southern half of the Mississippi Valley. Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms should occur over the upper Mississippi Valley, eastern parts of the central and southern Plains, and the Rockies. Much of the nation should have highs in the 80s and 90s. Readings should be in the 70s along the Pacific Coast, the northern and mid-Atlantic Coast, and over northern Maine. Afternoon temperatures should climb above 100 degrees over the Rio Grande Valley and interior parts of central and Southern California, with readings between 100 and 115 degrees over the desert Southwest.

Congress prepares for deficit bill fight

By STEVEN KOMAROW
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Rushing to recess, Congress squared off for a showdown Friday over the deficit-reduction law, a bitter confrontation that was blocking an emergency debt bill needed to keep the government solvent until September.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, and other sponsors of the Gramm-Rudman act reaffirmed plans to use the stopgap debt increase — which must be passed before lawmakers leave town — to win final passage of an amendment restoring automatic spending cuts to the law.

But Senate opponents geared up for a filibuster, a threat of endless debate to force the sponsors to back down.

And House Democratic leaders, strongly opposed to Gramm-Rudman, worked to secure enough votes to beat back the amendment should the Senate pass it and send it with the debt bill back to the House.

"We hope we don't get to that," said House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass.

Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, was asked if the House, which has endorsed Gramm-Rudman in the past, could resist the Senate push to restore the automatic cuts. "I've got a feeling it can," he said.

Gramm-Rudman sponsors were working to soften opposition Friday by offering to limit their amendment to one year. A permanent version has already been attached in the Senate to a pending long-term debt bill.

The House approved Thursday, without amendment, the $73.3 billion borrowing boost for the Treasury, which has exhausted its credit limit of $2.079 trillion and needs more soon to avoid a default. Any change by the Senate would require further House action.

Gramm-Rudman, enacted last year, originally included automatic cuts to enforce annual deficit targets designed to reach a balanced budget by fiscal 1991. The Supreme Court last month voided the automatic-cut provision but left the targets in place, allowing Congress to vote on whether to impose the reductions.

The plan reviving the automatic cuts was endorsed by the Senate two weeks ago on a long-term debt bill, but House Democrats strongly object because it would give more power to President Reagan's budget director. The long-term bill stalled, creating the need for the stopgap measure, which is designed to finance the government at least until Sept. 25.

Competition may open

WASHINGTON — Two of the world's largest and most prestigious gun manufacturers are poised for a congressional shootout over whether the Army must reopen competition on the handgun to replace the Colt .45 as the standard military sidearm.

At issue is a $75 million contract to supply the armed forces with 315,930 9mm automatic pistols. Also at stake is the prestige of being the weapon favored by America's fighting establishment, a distinction gunmakers say translates into more business in the civilian and law enforcement markets.

The Army last year awarded the contract to Beretta, an Italian-based gunmaker, and excluded Smith & Wesson, a Springfield, Mass., company, from bidding because its gun failed to pass service-life and firing-pin tests.

Tax overhaul struggle

WASHINGTON — Congressional negotiators, committed to writing a tax-overhaul plan that would not affect the federal deficit, struggled Friday to salvage the landmark bill after being told it would boost the red ink by $17 billion.

"I don't know what happens now," Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., the Finance Committee chairman, said after announcing Senate and House bargainers had reached a stalemate. He refused to abandon hope that at least a preliminary agreement could be reached before Congress adjourns this weekend for a three-week recess.

Tiny baby fights for life

AUGUSTA, Ga. — A premature baby by weighing 1 pound, 1½ ounces battled for life Friday after being born to a brain-dead woman who was ordered kept alive by a court.

The baby's father, who won the court order to keep the woman on life-support systems over the objections of her husband, said he wanted custody of the child, but doctors said the infant has little chance for survival.

The baby was delivered three months prematurely Thursday night after its heartbeat dropped to a critical level in "severe fetal distress."

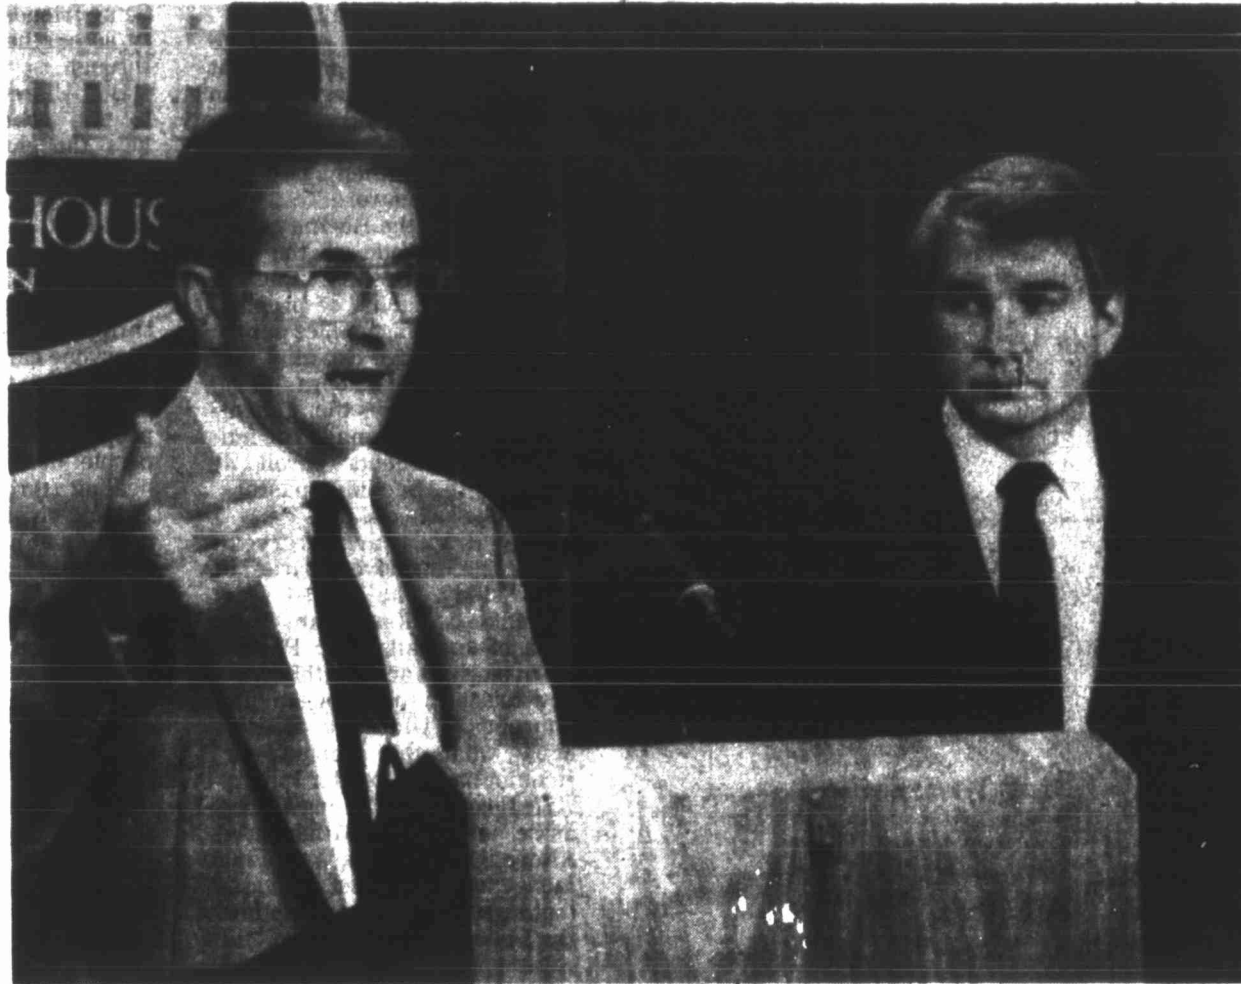

About two hours later, life support systems were disconnected for his mother, 25-year-old Donna Piazzi.

Agent's torture protested

WASHINGTON — The United States said Friday it was sending a note of protest to the Mexican government about the police beating of a U.S. drug enforcement agent, saying such "vigilantism" harms U.S.-Mexican relations.

Attorney General Edwin Meese said the United States "is not going to stand for this kind of conduct."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the administration welcomes an investigation by the Mexican attorney general into the arrest of Drug Enforcement Administration officer Victor Cortez Jr. in Guadalajara on Wednesday.

Rear Adm. Richard Truly, who heads NASA shuttle operations, talks to reporters Friday during a White House briefing as White House spokesman Larry Speakes looks on, right. Truly spoke in response to President Reagan's order that work begin in the next fiscal year on a replacement space shuttle.

Space shuttle Challenger replacement approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan on Friday approved building a replacement for the space shuttle Challenger and, in a major shift in space policy, private industry — not NASA — will launch commercial satellites in the future.

A NASA official said the new orbiter would be a high-performance, "state-of-the-art" shuttle with improved computers, brakes and re-entry protection.

Reagan said that the work, to cost in the range of $2.8 billion, will begin after Oct. 1 on a new shuttle that will restore the fleet to four vehicles by 1991. The policy change means the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will concentrate on payloads important to national security, foreign policy and exploration.

"The private sector, with its ingenuity and cost effectiveness, will be playing an increasingly important role in the American space effort," the president said in a statement read by spokesman Larry Speakes.

Speakes said that 15 of 44 commercial payloads NASA has contracted for will find room on the shuttle. The others will have to launch on one-use rockets to be provided by a commercial launch industry that does not yet exist.

"We believe that the government getting out of the commercial space business will eliminate a major fear private enterprise has — competing against the government," the spokesman said.

NASA administrator James C. Fletcher said the agency was pleased with the decision and said "the president, like the American people, knows that in this day and age the United States dares not, for political and psychological reasons, let its lead in space slip away."

Rep. Bill Nelson, D-Fla., who flew on the shuttle in January, said "the administration has finally gotten around to the decision that we knew was obvious after the Challenger disaster." He said he was sorry it took so long because America's space community "has been awash in uncertainty."

The United States has more than $200 million in down payments from companies that have booked slots on the shuttle for their satellite launches. Some of that money will have to be returned.

"We will set priorities and notify companies how long it will take before their satellites can be launched," Speakes said. In general, he said, preference will be given to those satellites that need astronauts for the launchings and those that serve national security and foreign policy.

Money for the new shuttle will come from savings found within NASA and other areas of the government, Speakes said. He said the government plans to spend $272 million in fiscal 1987, which begins Oct. 1, $665 million in fiscal 1988, $715 million in fiscal 1989, $515 million in 1990 and $180 million in 1991.

Vietnam vet pressured

BANGKOK, Thailand — An American veteran who was jailed in Vietnam for 16 months said Friday his captors subjected him to "terrible mental pressure" and did not let him see the wartime fiancée he had hoped to rescue.

Robert Schwab III said he was not physically mistreated but was cut off from the outside world and interrogated frequently to determine whether he was a spy.

"It really was a failure," Schwab said of his quest to bring back Mai, his pseudonym for a girl he met while an army private in the central highlands in 1972.

He left Mai behind when Saigon was evacuated in April 1975 as communist troops entered the city, but he re-established contact six years later.

Tainted liqueur kills 14

MOSCOW — Black-market liqueur tainted with antifreeze killed 14 people in the Lithuanian city of Kaunas, and five people died in the Russian town of Volgograd after drinking ethyl alcohol, newspapers reported.

The cases were the worst reported by the Soviet media since the government toughened drinking laws in May 1985, increased penalties for public drunkenness, cut back production of alcoholic beverages and raised vodka prices.

The Volgograd report, which appeared in the national trade union newspaper Trud, said six construction workers were hospitalized after drinking ethyl alcohol during their lunch break and only one survived.

Crowd attacks police

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Hundreds of Roman Catholic youths attacked police with stones and bottles Friday following a peaceful march in the village of Toombebridge, and several officers were injured, witnesses reported.

The violence began at the end of a march by several thousand people. The march was organized by the Ancient Order of Hibernians, a predominantly Catholic group that seeks the unification of Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland and the overwhelmingly Catholic Irish Republic.

Torture victims treated

COPENHAGEN, Denmark — The Danish Rehabilitation Center for Torture Victims said Friday it treated more than 100 people last year, most of whom came from South America.

In its annual report, the Copenhagen center said it treated 64 torture victims and provided psychotherapy and support to 11 of the victims' spouses and 30 of their children.

At the end of the year, the center had a waiting list of almost 100 torture victims and their families, the report said.

The facility, founded in 1982, was the first such center in the world and says it has treated victims from 33 countries in South America, Africa and the Middle East.

Rare mastodon skeleton found in Roxton

By DOUG WINTERMUTE
Harte-Hanks News Service

ROXTON — The discovery of a 20,000-year-old mastodon skeleton in the North Sulphur River has excited Dallas Museum of Natural History officials, who continue excavating the skeleton from the river bed this weekend.

According to Charles Finsley, the museum's earth science curator, the skeleton is a very rare find.

"Scientifically, mastodons are pretty well known, and have been found for a couple of hundred years," said Finsley. "But they're very rare in Texas, and we like to have Texas animals in our museum, and as a result, we have been looking for as long as the museum has been here — for 50 years, really — for a restorable mastodon."

Finsley said the skeleton was discovered by Lee and Pearl Richardson of Terrell, amateurs who have searched the North Sulphur for fossils for 17 years.

The skeleton is an unusual find, Finsley said. "The sediments that it's in are about 20,000 years old, and they were from some earlier Sulphur river that flowed through this area. It (the mastodon) undoubtedly died along that river and was trapped in the sand and the gravel of the river as the river flooded, and buried, and that is how it happened to be there," he said.

"mastodons are a forest-dwelling animal. Their teeth are more adapted for eating woody leaves, and that's why you find relatively few of them along those old streams. The mammoths — a close cousin — were grazing animals and lived along the streams where grass was more readily available, and are often buried there. I think the ratio would be something like 20 mammoths for every mastodon you find."

He said mastodons were shorter, stockier, elephant-like animals which had a common ancestor with the modern elephants, but branched off from the elephant line in a different direction. The mammoths and the modern elephants are related species.

Unlike scattered mastodon bones, the North Texas find could be a near-complete skeleton, Finsley said.

"We will know when we finish our digging," he said. "We have the skull already in a plaster jacket. For a 20,000-year-old skull, it's in pretty decent shape. The teeth are in excellent condition."

The animal was a young adult mastodon probably about 10 feet tall, according to Finsley, and can be distinguished from mammoths by a more sloping forehead and different curvatures of the tusks.

Finsley asked that the exact location of the skeleton not be revealed until after the excavation is complete, to keep the skeleton from being damaged by souvenir hunters. Already, there has been some damage to the skeleton, he said.

"One of the tusks was damaged by someone just prowling the creek," he said. "Unfortunately, after it was discovered someone came by and did a very bad job of picking and messing around with it. We're hoping very much to find the other tusk, which we haven't unearthed yet."

Finsley said the excavation will probably take a couple of weeks, although some of the parts will be taken to the museum as soon as this weekend.

Congress approves bill restricting defense

By TIM AHERN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, on a 255-152 vote, approved on Friday a defense budget bill that has angered the Reagan administration by proposing major restrictions on Pentagon defense initiatives.

Shortly before the Democratic-controlled chamber passed the bill, it turned back a Republican-led effort to eliminate major arms control provisions from the legislation. That rejection came on a 247-163 vote as the House tried to finish a crowded agenda before starting a three-week Labor Day recess.

The final vote went largely along party lines, with 232 Democrats and 45 Republicans voting in favor and 145 Republicans and seven Democrats voting against.

"This is not a perfect bill, but this represents the most significant breakthrough I have seen in my 12 years in Congress," said Rep. Les AuCoin, D-Ore., one of the leaders of the successful efforts by Democratic liberals to add the arms control restrictions.

But Rep. William Dickinson of Alabama, ranking Republican member of the Armed Services Committee, said, "This is a bad bill. We would be better off with no bill than this bruised, mangled and damaged thing here."

He said the White House, which has threatened that President Reagan might veto the bill, "would rather have no bill than this crippled bird here."

Final passage sends the bill to a House-Senate conference committee next month, where legislators will try to reconcile the bill with the far different Pentagon budget voted a week ago by the Republican-controlled Senate.

The legislation is to authorize spending in fiscal 1987.

On the House floor, amendments were added to ban testing of anti-satellite weapons, outlaw production of chemical weapons, require continued compliance with the SALT II nuclear arms treaty, freeze "Star Wars" spending, and halt all U.S. nuclear arms tests for a year.

None of those limits is in the bill passed by the Senate, which rejected several attempts by Democrats on the floor to limit those programs.

Another difference is the Senate provision granting a 4 percent pay hike to America's 2.1 million uniformed military personnel. The House would grant a 3 percent raise.

While the two bills differ over the five major programs, they also provide money to buy thousands of airplanes, tanks, ships and missiles.

Overall, the House would authorize $286 billion in defense spending for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, which is about the same as the current Pentagon budget. Reagan sought $320 billion, but the Senate cut the total to $296 billion.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan might veto the final version of the bill if it limits administration options in foreign policy, but he did not spell out specifically which provisions are most strongly opposed by the White House.

The Pentagon, through spokesman Robert Sims, has also criticized the House bill, calling it "nothing short of deplorable."

Conference committees working through a bill normally accept either the House or Senate position, meaning some of the House restrictions are likely to remain in the final version.

The two key provisions that House liberals will fight hardest to retain in the final version of the bill passed by the conference committee are the bans on anti-satellite testing and breaking the SALT II treaty limits, according to congressional sources speaking on condition of anonymity.

When the House returns next month, it will vote on a separate bill appropriating the money to pay for the programs authorized in the budget measure.

The Appropriations Committee added all five restrictions to its spending plan, meaning more floor fights over the issues are likely before the November elections.

Student leaves art to become prophet

By LEIGH HOPPER

The Brazosport Facts
LAKE JACKSON (AP) — Allen Alldredge, 18, likes to drive fast and go on dates. He's got a huge wardrobe and wears his hair in a short, punkish style. Like many of his friends, he starts college this fall. He wants to be a prophet.

That's right. A prophet. That's what you call ambition. He looks normal enough — no halo around his head, just braces on his teeth.

Many members of the clergy will describe some event, some religious experience they interpreted as their "calling." Two years ago, while sitting in church, Alldredge simply heard the air conditioner click on and he knew he was in the wrong place. The Methodist church he and his family attended was just too quiet and solemn.

Alldredge wanted something more. He says he wanted to be around people who seemed interested in learning about God.

He and his family switched over to the Family Life Church in Lake Jackson, a "full gospel" church dedicated to practicing what the Bible preaches down to the letter.

"It's too extreme for some people," he says. But that's just what Alldredge was looking for. He sees the Bible as a book of commands; he felt others saw it as a collection of suggestions.

A year later, Alldredge decided what to do with his life.

He describes his parents as "sophisticated gypsies." His mother paints and his father does the matting and framing of her work and manages the business. The two travel from show to show selling her work.

Alldredge has been painting since he was 13 years old and at 18 he's established a flourishing business. He paints large, watery flowers or big splashes of color, sometimes with a few plants worked in.

"I just want to create the most peaceful atmosphere I can in a painting," he says.

People living as far away as California send him letters describing their living room col-

Allen Alldredge, 18, of Lake Jackson wants to be a prophet. Two years ago, while sitting in church, he says he simply heard the air conditioner click on and knew he was in the wrong place. The Methodist church he attended was too quiet and solemn, and he wanted something more.

ors and asking him to create a painting for them.

"I could make millions with my art," he says.

That's easy to believe. He stacks his paintings in the back of his car and takes off for art shows in malls or at festivals in Houston, Dallas, San Antonio and Austin, then walks away with $1,500.

Of course, he's only been making that kind of money for the last year or so, since he started going to higher-quality shows and taking his work more seriously.

During high school, he made $400 to $700 a month. Now, if he works a 10-hour week, he can expect to bring in $600 to $700 a month. If he puts in a 30-hour week, he makes about $3,000.

"It's a fun job. You can't beat it," he says.

But he's giving it all up. In September, Alldredge begins a two-year program at Rhema Bible Training Center in Broken Arrow, Okla. It is the place for gospel ministers to train, he says. Rhema is Greek for "the spoken word."

Students at the Rhema center specialize in one of the five ministries: pastor, apostle, teacher, evangelist or prophet. The first four disciplines can be taught, Alldredge explains. But a prophet has to be born.

Understandably, the student-prophet group is small. The majority of students enroll at Rhema to become pastors, Alldredge says.

The first year, everyone follows an intensive program of Bible study. The second year, students break off into their area of specialization. Pastors learn such practical things as how to set up funds for building churches. Alldredge doesn't know what the prophet curriculum has in store for him.

He'll continue painting as long as he has the time. Right now, Alldredge says he's saving money for college, but confesses that he still buys a lot of clothes. His collection spills out of the closet onto the floor: 40 jackets, 50 shirts, 20 pairs of pants from Goodwill to Neiman Marcus.

He used to put more importance on money than he does now. The way he figures it, everything boils down to greed.

"No matter how much you make, you always want more," he says. "Money is just a bunch of figures."

Nevertheless, he says he's the kind of person who will own a satellite by the time he's 25 years old so he can broadcast his sermons. "You're no better than who you plan to be," he says.

Looking back, Alldredge has been drawn to religion and ministerial work since he was 3 years old. "Like a little kid wants to be a fireman, I wanted to be a preacher," he says.

In high school, he went through several identity crises, he says, and threw himself into karate, then bodybuilding. Some friends see his Christianity as another phase he'll work through.

But Alldredge says he'll stick to this goal. Everything else he's thought about doing, including art school, seemed dissatisfying.

At first he wasn't sure he was meant to be a "voice of God," someone who predicts future events, heals people and sees things in people that not everyone can see.

But he thinks he has a heightened perception about people. And the idea of healing people doesn't seem strange; healing through touching, or "laying on of hands," is routine practice at his church.

"Tons of people got healed Sunday," he says. He thinks his prayers have helped his mother recover from surgery.

He says he had this conversation with God. He told God he didn't want to make a mistake and end up looking like a fool. "God said, 'Go ahead. Be a fool.' And I said, 'But I want to be sure.'"

Time will tell. He acknowledges that "prophet" is a big word, and when people hear it they immediately think "Moses."

He doesn't see himself as another Moses, but says a present-day prophet is not that different from biblical prophets.

Although he believes miracles still happen today, he's not going to focus much on that aspect of his career. Basically, he'll preach bold, eye-opening sermons. Unlike a pastor, he won't be building churches; unlike an evangelist, he won't go for big audiences or try to convert people.

Election may end feud in hall of fame

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Beset by sagging attendance and rumors that it might move West, the National Cowboy Hall of Fame has been at the center of a tug-of-war by two factions representing some of the country's wealthiest men.

The 16-month battle may be settled Saturday when the hall's board elects a new slate of directors and officers, as ordered by a judge.

Meanwhile, the museum's former curator, whose administration was a major issue in the dispute, worries that men in fancy suits are usurping the heritage of sunburned cowboys. The hall, he said, "is like a wagon train caught in a storm."

The hall opened in 1965 atop Persimmon Hill in northeast Oklahoma City, a shrine to the men, women and animals that built the West. Sketches and paintings done before the days of cameras illustrate life on the trail, while other works memorialize those from movie stars to rodeo kings whose lives touched the West or were touched by its mystery.

Dean Krakel was the museum's curator-executive director for 20 years. Then he was named curator and someone else was brought in to handle the hall's business affairs.

In removing Krakel from total control, directors cited the need for a business manager to administer the hall's finances, which had been declining in part because of highway construction that limited access to the museum.

Krakel in turn collected proxy votes from out-of-state directors to restore his primacy. At a bitter meeting April 21, 1985, the directors split into two factions. Sixteen directors resigned, lawsuits were filed over the use of proxies and the selection of new directors and officers, and the hall was pushed into court receivership.

The hall's debts range from $7 million to $8 million, says attorney George Miskovsky. It is now in the control of John C. Andrews, the third court-appointed receiver.

"All of us know this bill is going nowhere. We need new revenues. The cuts made in this bill are too drastic. Don't kid yourself, delivery of services to the handicapped, the elderly and the retarded are going to be cut," Moreno said.

That assessment was shared by other top House and Senate members.

"We're headed for an absolute stalemate, which is where we have been for two weeks," said Rep. Stan Schueter, D-Killeen, chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee.

Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, said the stalemate could force a second 30-day special session.

"It very easily could be beyond 30 days because this is a momentous task," Farabee said.

The bill moved through the House virtually unscathed Friday. Forty-three amendments were considered, but no major changes were made.

Five state agencies — the Washington-based Office of State-Federal Relations, Governor's Council on Physical Fitness, Health and Human Services Coordinating Council, Ethics Advisory Commission and Texas Good Neighbor Commission — would be closed under the plan.

A 3 percent pay raise for all state employees, approved last year for Sept. 1, would be cancelled by the House bill. That would add savings of $70.5 million, on top of about $680 million in spending cuts.

Public education, prisons and mental health-mental retardation services, would suffer no significant cuts, supporters said.

Several other bills headed for the House floor could bring the total savings to near $1 billion, enough to get the state by until the regular session, Lewis said.

U.S. gold reserves to depress the price of South African gold.

As debate drew toward a conclusion, Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., told the Senate that Reagan must sooner or later come to understand that American history impels the United States towards "the cause of justice" in South Africa because "no sorrow is more deeply etched in America's soul than the sorrow of racism."

While it was clear that there was support in the Senate for at least a middle-ground sanctions package, some conservatives objected that South Africa was being subjected to a double standard.

One of them, Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., urged support for an amendment which would have imposed on the Soviet union the same sanctions imposed against South Africa.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said it was "absolutely inconsistent" for the United States to impose sanctions on one of the countries and not the other because both were abusers of human rights.

The proposition failed, 57-41.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Zsa Zsa Gabor chose the captain of the Queen Mary to perform her eighth wedding because only 30 of the 3,000 couples he has married are divorced, her publicist said.

"When they were told about his track record, they decided he was the one for them," said Beth Herman. "I guess they are hoping it will stick."

Miss Gabor, 58, wearing a lavender and white off-the-shoulder gown, wed Frederick von Anhalt of Munich, 43, Thursday evening in the living room of her home in suburban Bel-Air. Von Anhalt says he is a prince by adoption.

About 125 people attended the ceremony performed by Capt. John Gregory.

Guests included actor Paul Sorvino, actresses Constance Towers and Michelle Phillips, and comedian Red Buttons.

The only members of Miss Gabor's family attending were her daughter, Francesca Hilton, and her sister, Magda Gabor. Her other sister, Eva, and mother, Jolie, boycotted the ceremony.

"I don't think that they approved of the wedding, so they didn't show up," another publicist, Phil Paladino, said Friday.

Post-punker hits rock bottom

LONDON (AP) — When he strolled on to the music scene four years ago, Boy George left audiences in an androgynous daze with his mascara, lipstick and thrift shop rags.

His first three albums with Culture Club sold platinum in the United States — a million or more copies, they won a Grammy award for best new artist and swaggered in success. Then came a slow, artistic decline.

The witty, 25-year-old singer hit rock bottom in July when he pleaded guilty in a London court to possessing heroin and was fined $700. His carefully crafted image as a clean-living, post-punk pop star was shattered by drug addiction.

I don't want to think of any excuse for what has happened. I am responsible for what I did — I can't blame anyone else."

Recently, a 27-year-old songwriter and keyboard player named Michael Rudetki was found dead in a London mansion owned by Boy George, whose real name is George O'Dowd. Scotland Yard said the New York musician had died of a drug overdose, but that Boy George was not involved.

"He was completely devastated by the whole thing," said David O'Dowd, a rock music photographer and Boy George's brother. "It has come at such a bad time. He was basically just getting over his own problems, and this has hit him straight in the face."

"It's a terrible nightmare," said his brother, Kevin, who discovered the body. "When's it all going to end?"

At their peak in 1982-83, Boy George and Culture Club, along with Roy Hay, Jon Moss and Mikey Craig — were raging through the world with such hits as "Kissing to Be Clever" and "Karma Chameleon" and tunes that seemed a backlash against punk's harsh lyrics.

Boy George, the 25-year-old singer, had three platinum albums in the United States with Culture Club. His successful image was shattered when he was arrested for possession of heroin.

Then came the decline. Their string of chart-topping pop ditties, dominated by Boy George's soulful, instantly recognizable crooning, petered out. Adolescent fans lost interest, and the Boy George lookalikes that had sprouted in New York, Tokyo and London vanished from the streets.

So Boy George cut off his dreadlocks, cheerfully admitted he was bisexual and, after months of rumors about his dramatic weight loss and gaunt appearance, sought therapy for drug addiction.

His myth of sensuality and distaste for drugs, which music critics said was crucial to his success, had exploded.

The publicity about his drug abuse will hurt, said Eily Smith of Virgin Records, Boy George's record label. He has already lost a $1 million advertisement contract in Japan on a "morality clause," she said.

"My personal opinion is that he will continue in an artistic decline," said Danny Kelly, deputy editor of New Musical Express magazine. "It (the publicity) will do wonders for his profile in terms of appearing on chat shows."

Boy George's appeal had been surprisingly broad. This 6-foot-1, big-shouldered man with the strong masculine voice was articulate, confident, funny, good-mannered.

His band's slick, soft rhythms were a melting pot of styles, and cracked Britain's black soul market, the mainstream Top 40 and pop single charts for more than 50 countries.

"Boy George's music records that your grandmother would happily buy," Steve Sutherland, features editor of Melody Maker magazine, said in an interview. "He was the perfect puppy dog pop star, a character who looked absolutely outrageous but at the same time was very accessible."

Culture Club prospered with seven top hits, including their first single, "Do You Really Want to Hurt Me," which made No. 1 in 51 out of 53 countries. In the United States, where it was assumed by some to be subtle praise for androgynism, it stuck at No. 2.

The band peaked in 1983 with the album, "Color by Numbers," which sold more than 10 million copies. Their latest LP is "From Luxury to Heartache."

The singer's courtship of media mentions brought him the sobriquet "Gender-Bender," which endangered his spotless, sexless image. He responded by declaring that he preferred "a nice cup of tea" to sex.

As Culture Club began to slip, Boy George was more often penalized in the tabloid press for his social deviance.

At first he denied the claims of drug abuse: "I'm a drag addict," he said. "I've had a slight loss on a tropical island, but I've picked up my favorite hobby."

Then his brother, David O'Dowd, appeared on television July 3 claiming Boy George had been a heroin addict for eight months.

Within a week, Boy George was undergoing therapy with Dr. Meg Patterson, a British therapist who has helped such rock stars as Eric Clapton and Peter Townshend break drug

Stock forecasters blend old, new methods

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Picture your average stock trader: Pin-striped suit. Monogrammed, silk shirt. Wing-tipped oxfords. Button down all the way.

Now here comes Bill McLaren: Khaki shorts. Flip-flop sandals. Polo shirt. Tan — dark tan. Wall Street meets Malibu Beach.

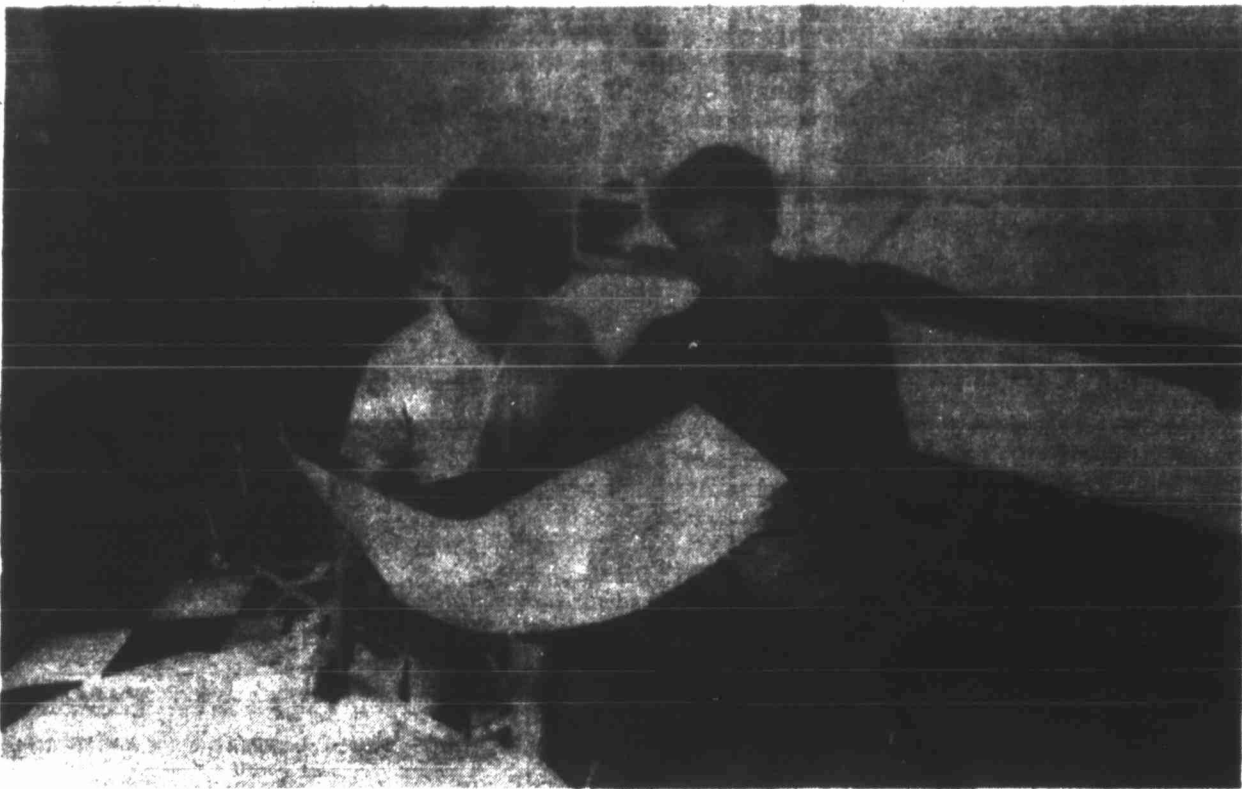

Despite his blatant disregard of the dress-for-success formula, McLaren is otherwise a stock trader through and through. His inspiration is the work of a phenomenally successful trader who made his fortune in commodities and stocks some 60 years ago.

McLaren started the M&M Stock Hotline in January, operating out of a converted poolhouse in his back yard. Matt Foreman joined the firm in February.

Their primary mission is to forecast the stock market and help guide stock investors' decisions on buying and selling. Another part of the service is to spread the gospel according to Texan W.D. Gann, whose application of cyclical analyses to the movements of commodities prices made him a lot in the early 1900s.

So far, the $125-a-month hotline has a few less than 100 subscribers in the U.S. and abroad, Foreman says. For that fee, subscribers get a daily message via telephone or computer and a weekly lesson on Gann's methods, including their own set of charts. They also may phone McLaren or Foreman personally for extra help or advice.

Additionally, McLaren, 44, lectures at investor seminars around the world. He hopes to get off the seminar circuit soon, however.

Matt Foreman, left and Bill McLaren work in their Corpus Christi office recently. The two use new methods as well as old methods to produce stock market forecasts.

"There's no magic formula" for making money in stocks, McLaren says. "But most traders lack patience. They're looking for a simple way to know when to buy and sell."

Doubtless few traders would have the patience to personally practice Gann's methods of tracking stock prices. In extremely simplified terms, Gann based his methods on the theory that, like many occurrences in nature, stock and commodities prices follow cycles.

McLaren and Foreman plot and examine such cycles in minute detail for 12 hours a day, six days a week. "If it weren't for the pool house, I'd be divorced by now," McLaren says of the long hours. "At least here, my wife can wave at me once in a while."

One section of the office-pool house is devoted to piles of huge, Gann-inspired charts. They seem anachronistic next to some impressive computer equipment.

But McLaren says the charts, as cumbersome and low-tech as they may appear, are necessary to see the big picture of what a given stock is doing and to predict when that issue will dive or soar.

"I've seen computer programs that tell you to sell, and two days later the price starts going up," he says. Perhaps the charts could be programmed into a computer, he adds, but that would entail a substantial chunk of computer memory and an equally impressive pile of cash.

Besides, he says, computers will never be able to make consistently correct buy-sell decisions for "no-brainers," traders who would rather not make their own decisions.

M&M's service is not always perfect. "The market likes to do whatever it takes to fool most of the people most of the time," McLaren concedes. Accounting that some stock traders will produce losses is a part of long-term success, akin to winning the war but losing a few battles along the way, he adds.

McLaren became a broker in 1966 after graduation from the University of Miami. "My first five years in the market, I lost plenty. The next five years I made money, but it was mostly luck," he recalled.

It was then that he began researching W.D. Gann's work. McLaren became so enthralled that he quit working for two years to study Gann's techniques of trading and forecasting. He came to Corpus Christi last year to join a commodities partnership but soon quit the firm when he realized the job was not what he had expected. By January 1986, he was convinced it was time to hang out his own shingle.

Foreman's first exposure to stocks and commodities trading came last year when he took a job managing a computer system at the same firm McLaren came to Corpus Christi to join. By the time McLaren left, Foreman had become fascinated by the Gann charts and pounced on the chance to be a part of M&M.

Business briefs

● Mrs. JoJan Cox of Stanton was elected vice chairwoman of the Texas Rural Electric Women's Association at the annual statewide meeting in Dallas this month. Cox served on the board of directors and as chairman in the late 1970s and has been active in organization activities since 1968. Her husband Bob Cox is president of Cap Rock Electric Cooperative.

● Kenneth E. Rogers of Colorado City was elected vice president of the Association of Texas Electric Cooperatives at the annual meeting in Dallas. He is manager of Lone Wolf Electric Cooperative, based in Colorado City. Its 1,500 miles of electric lines serves some 3,450 farms and ranches in six West Texas counties.

Rogers, who grew up in New Mexico, has been manager of the system since 1969. His career in rural electrification began in 1950 at a New Mexico cooperative.

● Katie Grimes, real estate broker for Sun Country Realtors Inc. has completed course work that qualifies her for the Graduate Realtor Institute designation. Three one-week concentrated courses in real estate are required to achieve the designation. Grimes has been associated with the firm for the past 3½ years.

● Cap Rock Electric Cooperative will use helicopters and infra-red scanning to check its substations, metering points and 2,000 square miles of power lines for trouble spots.

The new technology of Tennessee helicopters may be flying low over some areas, according to a news release from the company. Specialized photography equipment with infra-red scanning is used to create thermographs that pinpoint "hot spots" that could cause trouble, allowing Cap Rock to repair and update equipment before failures occur, according to the release.

The survey should be completed in late August or early September.

● The annual Data Processing Management Association computer show will be Sept. 17-18 in Midland. Admission is free with a business card, or $2 without. The money supports scholarships and educational programs. The show will include computer and computer industry-related seminars.

The association's main purpose is education, and the Permian Basin chapter sponsors the annual show to help educate the public and generate funds for scholarship programs.

● A Membership Trade Fair, sponsored by the Greater Odessa Chamber of Commerce, will be conducted today and Sunday at the Ector County Coliseum, Exhibit Hall G. Admission is free, and balloons will be given to kids. For more information, contact the Chamber at 332-9111.

● There were 38 rigs actually making holes in District 8 West Texas, including Howard County, as of Aug. 11, according to Hughes Tool Co. The figure compares to 37 rigs Aug. 4, 30 rigs July 14, and 18 rigs Aug. 12, 1985.

● The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce is still accepting applications for its Leadership Big Spring program. The program's purpose is to "educate, motivate and coordinate the future leaders of the community," according to a news release.

The cost of the program is $250. Sessions will be: 1. Big Spring, yesterday, today and tomorrow; 2. Health care in Big Spring; 3. Education in Big Spring; 4. Recreation, culture and churches; 5. City and county government and the justice system; 6. Transportation and communications and the design of the city; 7. Industry, water, agriculture, energy and the economy; 8. Where do we go from here, and objectives for the future; 9. Awards banquet.

Leadership Big Spring will meet the second Tuesday of each month from September to May, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. The cost of the program is $250. Applications are available at the Chamber.

U.S. falling behind Japan in machine-tools industry

By TOM PETERS

The automated machine-tools sector is not just another industry in which we are getting clobbered by the Japanese. It is the brawn and now the brain of the new manufacturing environment. The machine-tools industry determines the flexibility of production systems that are increasingly required to compete, as demand fragments in market after market. The development of our losing position in machine tools parallels our downfall in many other areas as well.

The August issue of High Technology magazine devotes a special section to "Japanwatch 86," including a revealing article, "Designing for Flexibility," about the nearly $6 billion Japanese machine-tool industry, which has achieved world leadership. Author Robert Haavind observes, "Sixty percent of machining in Japan is now done by small and medium-sized companies, and these shops favor more flexible machines suited to short production runs. ... Japanese machine-tool manufacturers have been content to leave the giant machining centers favored by ... aerospace and automobile companies to U.S. and European competitors. ... Instead, they have vigorously moved into global markets with small and mid-sized machines." Haavind further notes that of the 30 percent of tools Japan exports, 80 percent go to "small and medium-sized shops" in the U.S.

We were the inventors of most forms of automation, including the now-dominant, smaller and more flexible, numerically controlled machines. The instructive story of our loss has roots over 100 years old. The years beginning with World War II, though, are most illuminating.

The 1941 — 1945 years are mostly remembered as an era when our nation pulled together against a common enemy. However, World

on excellence

War II was marked at home by a record-shattering 14,471 labor strikes. General Electric's infamous labor negotiator, Lemuel Boulware, was in tune with the times when he declared to GE management, after a bitter 1946 strike, "Something happened that must not happen again. Somewhere, somehow, the employees got the idea that they were in the driver's seat. ... This is the fantasy, gentlemen, that must be eradicated."

GE became an early leader in automation devices, with an avowed goal of putting labor strife behind them by creating "machines without men." The search for large-scale, integrated manufacturing automation systems was on. The story is well documented in David Noble's book, "Forces of Production: A Social History of Automation." Noble describes our movement into automation as a continuation of the U.S. penchant for over complexity, centralized mass production and tools that admit less and less skill and input by labor.

GE, plus Ford, TRW and other managements found many allies — in particular, the military. The military's roots in production technology leadership run deep. For instance, the Springfield Armory, under close guidance of the Army's Ordnance Department in the 1940s, was the true role model for U.S. mass-production techniques. World War II was won by the airplane. The new Air Force (just split off from the Army) ran the project of injecting centralized automation into aerospace production. By 1971, Noble observes, "well over 90 percent of the roughly 5,000 advanced automation systems were in the aircraft and related firms."

Cost saving was never the motive behind the military's drive for automation. The bias of these systems toward complexity and central control was extreme. Performance of the massive systems was so problematic that Noble reports one Air Force analyst labeled them "a waste of money ... and a monstrous technological boondoggle."

The Air Force was in clear cahoots with another key element of the establishment, which also favored complexity for its own sake — the academic/scientific community, led by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Noble explains, "The technical community had a preference for formal, abstract approaches ... an obsession with control ... an enthusiasm for computers ... a delight in remote control, an enchantment with the notion of machines without men ... a fetish for novelty and complexity ... coupled with an arrogant disdain for proven, yet simpler, methods."

And, of course, the simpler approaches flew in the face of inertia, bureaucracy and the untold millions spent by big contractors to support the complex systems and military procurement specifications that effectively blocked out simple systems. Producers of simple — and proven — systems were, therefore, shut out. So were smaller, potential users, the independent machine shops.

Tax planning seminars planned throughout state

The Texas Department on Aging will have four estate tax planning and endowment programming seminars throughout Texas Aug. 25-28.

The seminars will be in Lubbock, Arlington, San Antonio and Nacogdoches.

The registration fee for all dates and locations is $10 per organization. No per-person fee will be charged.

The first seminar will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Aug. 25 at 1323 58th St. in Lubbock. For registration information, call Mike McQueen at (806) 372-3381.

The second seminar will be Aug. 26 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at 118 Broadway, Suite 400 in San Antonio. Contact Frank Adamo at (512) 225-5201 for registration information.

The Arlington seminar will be from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Aug. 27 at 310 Six Flags Dr. For registration information, contact Janis Gray at (214) 786-2955.

The fourth seminar will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Aug. 28 at the Ramada Inn, 3400 Highway 59, in Nacogdoches. Contact Martha Jones at (409) 384-5704 for registration information.

Drilling report

These are the latest oil and gas activity reports filed with the Texas Railroad Commission for the five-county crossroads country.

Howard County's Moore Field gained two new producers when Enduro Oil completed the No. 7 & 4 Quinn. Five miles southeast and five miles west of Big Spring, respectively. The wells are in a 160-acre lease in the T&P Survey.

The No. 2 well showed ability to pump 60 barrels of oil per day, plus 23 barrels of water. It bottomed at 3,265 feet.

The No. 4 well pumped 23 barrels of oil daily, plus 12 barrels of water. It was taken to a 3,356-ft. bottom.

Production will be from perforations in the Grayburg Formation, ranging from 3,320 to 3,340 feet into the wellbore.

Enduro Oil has filed production figures on two oil wells in the Moore Field, Howard County. The wells are designated as the No. 80 Gattler "B" and the No. 3 Roy Phillips "D". Drillbits for the Gattler well is six miles southeast of Big Spring in a 1,390-acre lease in the Bamer & Cottrill Survey. The Phillips well is located five miles northwest of Big Spring in a 160-acre lease in the T&P Survey.

Conoco Inc. has completed a re-entry operation at the No. 4 H.R. Clay "T". It is a developmental venture in the Howard-Glascock Field. The well is located three miles east of Foran, Howard County. Drilling is in a 240-acre lease in the W&N Survey.

The well pumped four barrels of oil per day, plus 113 barrels of water. Production is from perforations in the San Andres Formation at 3,340 to 3,352 feet.

The original operator was Continental Oil, who completed the well June 21, 1977. It pumped 27 barrels of oil per day, plus 108 barrels of water from perforations commingled in the Grayburg and San Andres Formations, ranging from 3,348 to 3,352 feet into the wellbore. The original total depth of the well was 3,365 feet.

Conoco deepened the well to 3,600 feet, and plugged back to 2,941 feet.

American Petroleum et al has abandoned plans to conduct a re-entry operation at the No. 7 M.M. Edwards. The well was located six miles southeast of Coahoma, Howard County. C.D. Turner had been the original operator. The well was originally completed February 6, 1980, and produced from an interval in the San Andres Formation at 3,290 to 3,280 feet into the wellbore.

Located about two miles northeast of Cuthbert, the well is bottomed at a depth of 3,500 feet in the Clear Fork Formation.

Two developmental wells in the Sharon Ridge Field, Mitchell County, are shut-in after reaching total drilling depth of 1,200 feet. The wells are designated as the No. 3 and No. 4 Minnie "B", with William H. Zubane Jr. as the operator.

They were spudded in February of this year at drilling sites four miles southeast of Cuthbert. The well was spudded June 24. It probed to a dry bottom at 3,210 feet.

A completion rig has been called in at the No. 3 Coleman Ranch "A", a developmental venture in Mitchell County's Sharon Ridge Field. With drillbit about three miles northeast of Cuthbert, the well is an exploration venture of Mrs. W.M. Koch Jr.

It was spudded July 13 of this year and was taken to total depth of 1,200 feet.

Amoco Production has hung the "dry hole" sign on the No. 7 E.L. Powell, a developmental venture in the Dewey Lake Field, Glasscock County. The well was spudded Dec. 20, and probed to a dry bottom at 3,044 feet. Drilling was 11 miles northwest of Garden City in the T&P Survey.

Plunkett shoots for old job tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A meaningless preseason game between the Dallas Cowboys and Los Angeles Raiders Saturday night figures to be pretty meaningful for veteran quarterback Jim Plunkett.

At age 36, Plunkett is the third-oldest player in the National Football League. Right now, he is without a starting job. His performance against the Cowboys could determine his status for 1986.

Plunkett was off to one of the finest starts in his pro career last fall when he was body-slammed to the turf by San Francisco's Jeff Stover early in the fourth quarter of the Raiders' 34-10 loss to the 49ers.

The result was a separated shoulder which sidelined Plunkett for the rest of the season. In less than three games, he had passed for 893 yards and three touchdowns and had a completion percentage of 68.9 percent.

Marc Wilson took over at quarterback, and although he wasn't particularly effective, the Raiders went 11-2 under his direction to win the AFC West title. Wilson was then extremely ineffective in Los Angeles 27-20 loss to New England in an AFC semifinal playoff game.

With the 1986 season three weeks away, Wilson is listed as the Raiders' No. 1 quarterback. He strengthened his hold on the job last Sunday, completing 13 of 22 passes for 185 yards in Los Angeles' 22-0 loss to San Francisco in a preseason opener.

Plunkett didn't see action in that game, but is scheduled to play the first half against the Cowboys. Wilson is expected to play the third quarter and second-year quarterback Rusty Hilger the fourth quarter.

Kickoff time for the nationally televised game at the Los Angeles Coliseum is 9 p.m. EDT. A spokesman for the Raiders said Friday that close to 55,000 tickets for the game had been issued.

Plunkett has held the starting quarterback job for the Raiders most of the time in the 1980s, and guided the club to Super Bowl victories over Philadelphia in 1981, and Washington in 1984. He has missed 20 games over the last two seasons because of injuries.

The Cowboys and Raiders are traditionally two of the NFL's stronger teams, but both have had problems this summer, especially on offense. The Raiders were blanked by the 49ers a day after Dallas dropped a 20-4 decision to San Diego. The Cowboys also dropped a 17-6 decision to the Chicago Bears in London.

Dallas made a move to help its offense on Wednesday, signing running back Herschel Walker to a five-year, $5 million contract.

Walker played three seasons for the New Jersey Generals of the United States Football League and set a professional record for rushing yards in one season with 2,411 yards in 1985. Walker will be in uniform but won't play against the Raiders.

The signing of Walker angered starting Dallas tailback Tony Dorsett, who said he wanted to be traded or given a raise in view of the deal made with Walker. Dorsett, the sixth-leading career rusher in NFL history, has gained 44 yards on 12 carries during the preseason.

Wide receiver Mike Sherrard, the Cowboys' No. 1 draft choice, is expected to see his first action for Dallas against the Raiders. After a brief holdout, Sherrard signed a contract earlier this month.

Trevino's one back

FULFORD, England (AP) — Gordon Brand Jr. of Scotland eagled the 18th hole to take a one-stroke lead over American Lee Trevino after two rounds of the Benson and Hedges International golf tournament Friday.

Brand, looking for his first victory on the European PGA tour in almost two years, bogeyed the second hole but picked up six shots over the final 15 for a 5-under-par 67 and a two-round total of 132.

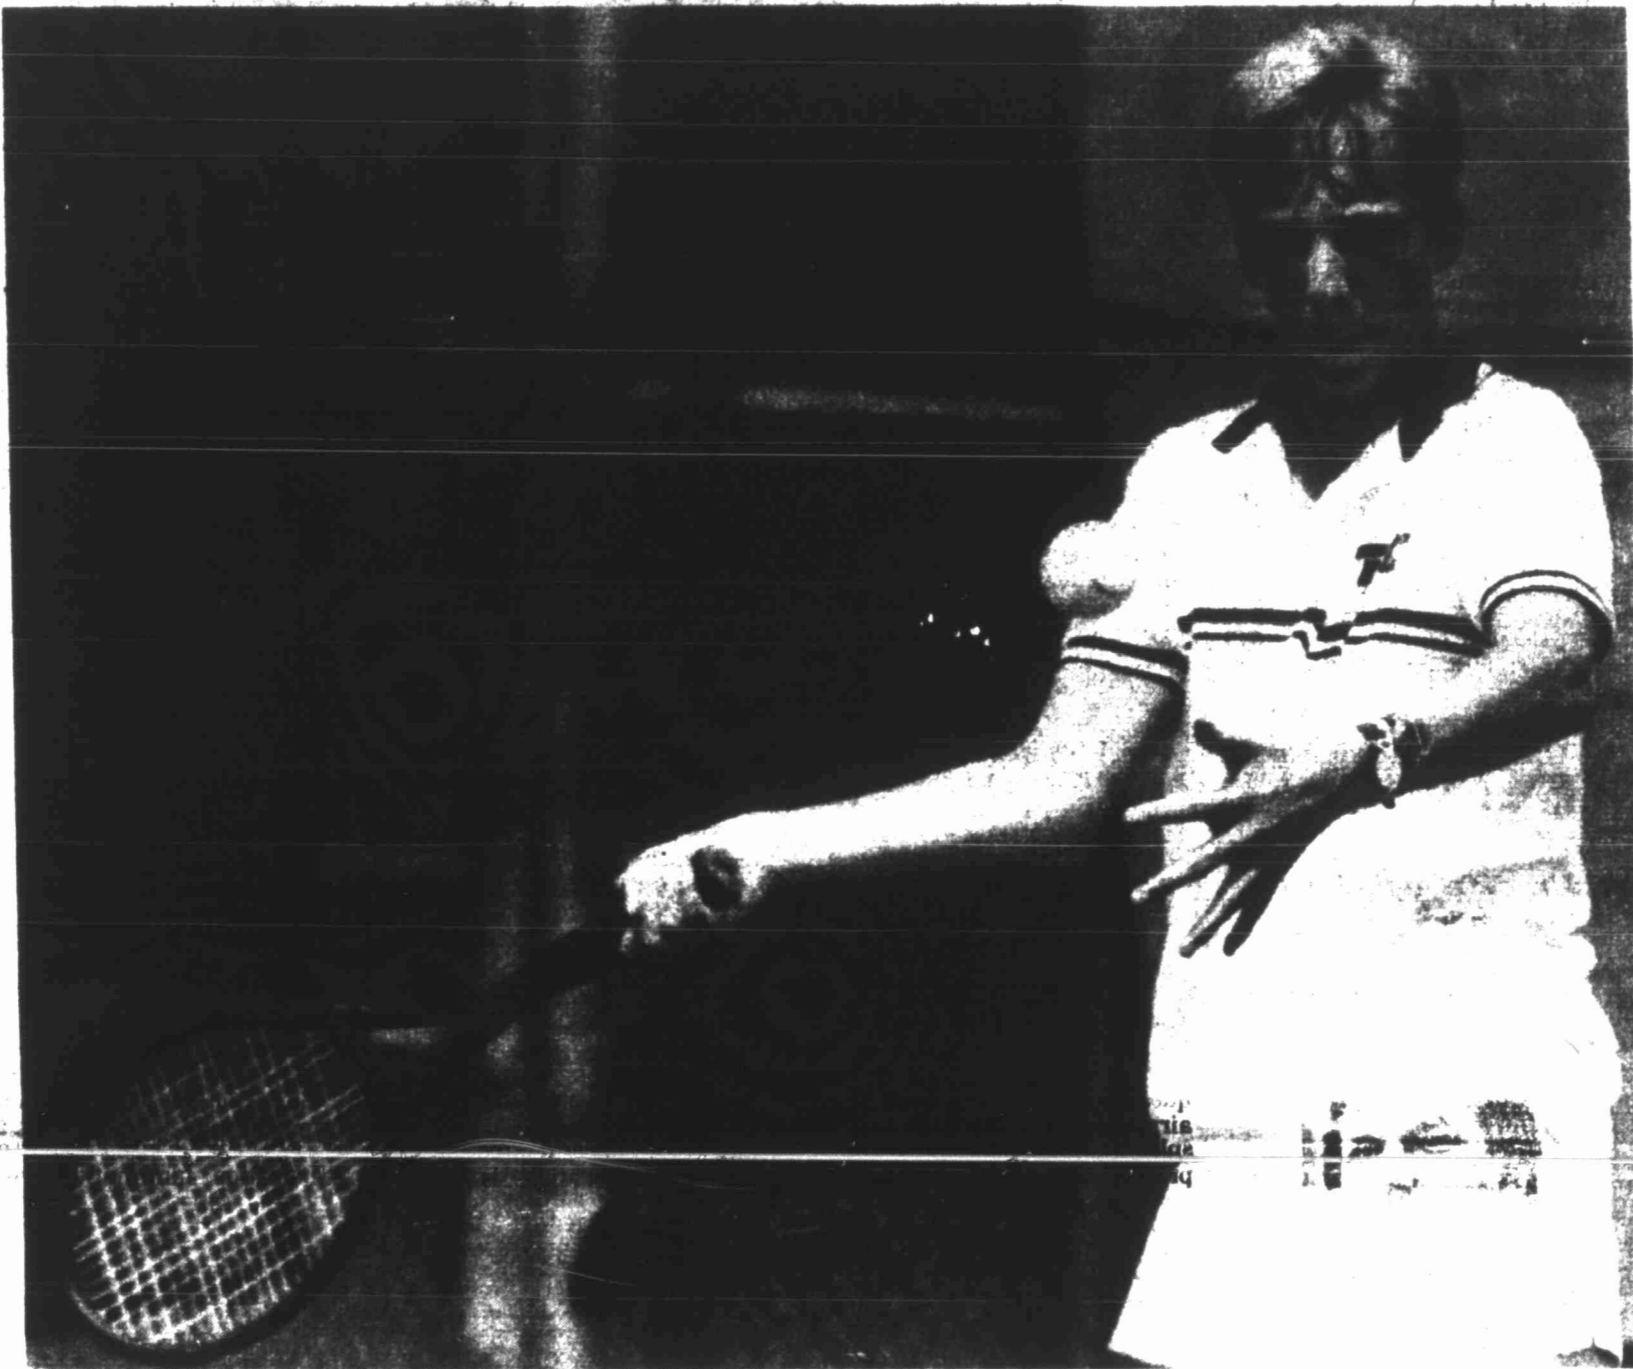

He entered the day tied for the lead in the $270,000 tournament with England's Mark James, who shot a 70 for a 36-hole total of 135, good for a share of third place with Ireland's John O'Leary. O'Leary had a second-round 69.

Brand, whose last victory came in the Panasonic European Open in 1984, went back to using a 10-year-old driver for this tournament, and he credited it with helping him stay in the narrow fairways of the Fulford Golf Club course.

He helped himself on the 16th hole where, after driving into the trees and pitching into a bunker, he chipped out to within inches of the flag and saved par.

Trevino, who won this tournament eight years ago, bogeyed the 15th, 16th and 17th holes but had trouble with the long holes during the second round, which was played in rain and high winds.

While Brand was back in form, Sandy Lyle, the 1985 British Open champion and the winner here last year, struggled through a round of 5-over 77 for a total of 148 and missed the cut.

Danny Difo, of 1010 Baylor Blvd., prepares to slam a forehand during the Crossroad Stampede junior tournament Friday.

Astros blank Braves

ATLANTA (AP) — Bob Knepper pitched a five-hitter for his fifth shutout of the season and Denny Walling hit a solo homer and drove in another run with a groundout as the Houston Astros posted a 3-0 victory over the Atlanta Braves Friday night.

Knepper, 15-8, struck out five and walked two en route to the shutout that gave him the major-league lead. His 15th victory tied him with the Los Angeles Dodgers' Fernando Valenzuela for the National League lead and his eight complete games rank him third.

Houston broke a scoreless tie with two runs in the fourth inning. Walling, who had three hits, led off with his 10th homer, over the right field fence. Glenn Davis then singled, went to third when Kevin Bass was safe on second baseman Glenn Hubbard's error and scored on Craig Reynolds' single.

The Astros scored their third run in the fifth when Bill Doran doubled and scored on groundouts by Billy Hatcher and Walling.

John Acker, 2-2, was the loser. He pitched seven innings, allowing three runs, two earned, on five hits.

The Braves got a man as far as third base twice, in the sixth and ninth. Bob Horner doubled and advanced to third on a groundout in the sixth and Horner singled and Bruce Benedict doubled in the ninth.

The peewee team that kept playing

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

There are probably few former peewee players who can, 20 years later, remember all their old teammates. Fewer still could tell you what their old teammates are doing these days.

There is, however, an old peewee team from Big Spring that still plays together. They live in places like Corpus Christi, Amarillo and Dallas now, but that doesn't stop them from regrouping countless times every summer for weekend tournaments.

The team is, of course, Cotton Mize's Chippers.

Twenty or so years ago in Big Spring, Cotton sponsored his son's peewee team. He named them the "Chippers" because, as he explains, "I was the potato chip man."

The Chippers played together in Little League and high school. It just so happened that by the time the former Chippers graduated from high school, Cotton's fast-pitch softball team was starting to slow with age. The decision was made.

The Chippers, having played together all these summers, would remain together, with Cotton (who will be 60 in November), acting as player-manager. The peewee Chippers were now Cotton's Chippers, fast-pitch softball team extraordinaire.

The Chippers played almost every weekend at first, because most of them attended Texas Tech and could easily get together. Now it's a bit tougher, because many of the former peewee teammates have moved from Big Spring. Cotton has figured that on an average weekend tournament, such as this weekend's jaunt to Austin, the Chippers will cover 8,000 miles between them.

"You've gotta love it to come from Corpus Christi, fly into Austin late at night, and get up at 5 or 6 in the morning to play," he says, and adds that most of the Chippers pay their own expenses.

The Chipper's record so far this summer is 23-12, which Cotton calls a "pretty good year." And he's confident their best play of the summer is ahead of them.

"The fact that our boys live so far away makes it hard to practice. We have to play ourselves into shape at tournaments, and this spring we were rained out of four tournaments. But we're in good shape — we're not burned out and we're playing well," he explains.

In this weekend's state tourney in Austin, the Chippers will face tough competition, including a team from Fort Worth with two ace pitchers from New Zealand. The Denton Kings, says Cotton, spent $70,000 to import the two pitchers, who come from a country in which fast-pitch softball is the national sport.

"It boils down to who has the most money can buy the best players," he says, a little frustrated at the prospect of facing the hard-throwing New Zealanders.

The Chippers, however, can counter with some strong talent of their own. His son, Johnny, is a former all-state pitcher, and Cotton, though approaching 60, can still heat it up.

Phillip Ritchie, from Coahoma, is 6-7. Cotton says about him, "I think within a couple of years he'll be one of the best pitchers in the state. He's nearly got the ball right in your face on his release."

Phillip's brother, Mike, who's also still in Coahoma, is a two-time all-state second baseman. "The two brothers are tremendous," Cotton says about the Ritchies.

On many of the weekend trips, Cotton drives the players in a van with "Cotton's Chippers" painted indelibly on the windows.

"They're 25, 26 years old — I call 'em kids. They'll laugh and tell jokes and play cards for four hours. They have a lot of fun," he says of the van rides.

Because of their youth, Cotton says the Chippers have at least 10 or 15 good years remaining. He says some of the original Chippers haven't played this summer, but the core of the team is still there.

The peewees have grown up, and many no longer live in Big Spring. But some things have a way of not changing. As for the Chippers, they still play together, and Daddy still drives the van.

Those interested should call Earl Sherrill at 263-0613. Equipment donations are welcome. There will be a meeting at the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday, Aug. 19 at 7:30 p.m.

Oklahoma's Bosworth learns karate to punish opponents

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma's Brian Bosworth, the top linebacker in college football last season, spent the summer telling himself that being the best wasn't good enough.

So instead of working at a summer job, he spent his time working in a karate studio and in a weight room. Pumping iron added bulk to his thighs and upper body; pumping fists added quickness and mental toughness.

"I told Coach (Barry) Switzer I needed to hit harder, that I needed to punish people more," said

Bosworth, who now sports a gold earring and neck chain bearing No. 44, his jersey number.

"Karate is a quick explosion, and you learn how to control your body. Speed, quickness and the explosion — that's what I wanted."

He also wanted to beef up his legs to improve his pass coverage.

"I've spent a lot of time on my thighs. I didn't think my legs were strong enough," he said. "Now a lot of my clothes don't fit, but I'm happy with the way I feel."

The off-season program seems to have yielded a superior product, which bodes poorly for opponents.

Bosworth now carries 248 pounds on his 6-foot-2 frame, or 20 pounds more than he weighed in Oklahoma's Orange Bowl victory over Penn State. He says he plans to play at 240.

The added weight apparently hasn't hurt his speed; Bosworth recently ran a series of six 40-yard dashes for pro scouts in nothing worse than 4.6 seconds.

"In football, 90 percent of the game is played from the head up. His emotional levels are so much higher than everyone else's."

Clemens wins 18th as Red Sox whip Tigers

By DAVE O'HARA
AP Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Light-hitting Ed Romero triggered an eight-run fifth inning with a walk and capped the rally with his first homer in nearly two years as the Boston Red Sox rolled to an 8-5 decision over the Detroit Tigers Friday night for Roger Clemens' 18th victory.

Blanked on two hits, both singles by Bill Buckner, for four innings, the Red Sox jumped on starter Walt Terrell, 10-9, and reliever Bill Campbell for their biggest inning of the season.

Clemens, who had failed in three previous tries for his 18th victory, struggled for his first triumph since July 25.

The right-hander, who has lost four games after a 14-0 start, allowed 10 hits in 7 2-3 innings, including a two-run homer by Darrell Evans. He struck out six and walked two. Joe Sambito relieved in the eighth after Chet Lemon's two-run single and got the final four outs for his 11th save.

Detroit took a 1-0 lead in the fifth as Lou Whitaker doubled with two out, stole third and scored on Alan Trammell's single. However, the Red Sox bounced right back for their third victory in a row.

Romero, hitting just .215, began the Boston fifth with a walk and raced to third on a single by Wade Boggs, who took second on the throw.

The Red Sox then got a break when Marty Barrett got a gift RBI single when first base umpire ruled that Terrell, covering first on a grounder to the right side, missed tagging the bag. Boggs went to third on the play and scored the go-ahead run on a wild pitch.

Jim Rice singled, scoring Barrett. Then, with two outs and Rice on second, Bill Buckner was walked intentionally. Tony Armas spoiled the strategy with an RBI single.

Campbell replaced Terrell and was greeted by Rich Gedman's run-scoring double. Romero followed with a three-run shot into the left-field screen for his first homer since Sept. 15, 1984, when he was with Milwaukee.

George Foster blasts his first American League home run Friday night during his debut game with the Chicago White Sox at Chicago's Comiskey Park. Foster, who left the New York Mets after a squabble over remarks he'd made, signed with the hitting-starved Sox Friday. The one-run home run came on his second time at bat against the Milwaukee Brewers.

Clemens' six strikeouts raised his American League-leading total to 180.

Blue Jays 6, Rangers 1
TORONTO (AP) — George Bell hit a two-run homer and Cliff Johnson added a solo blast, leading the Toronto Blue Jays to a 6-1 victory over the Texas Rangers Friday night in a game delayed one hour and two minutes by rain.

Right-hander Joe Johnson gave up five hits, struck out five and walked two over seven innings to gain his second win against one loss since coming to Toronto from the Atlanta Braves on July 6. John Cerutti and Mark Eichorn pitched the last two innings, with Eichorn picking up his sixth save.

Loser Ed Correa, 7-10, had allowed only three hits before Johnson hit his 13th homer of the season, into the left-field bleachers, to give the Blue Jays a 3-1 lead in the sixth.

After Ernie Whitt singled, Correa was relieved by right-hander Dale Mohorcic, who set an American League record by making his ninth consecutive appearance. The previous AL record of eight was set by Bennett Flowers of the Boston Red Sox in 1953. The major league mark of 13 straight appearances was set by Mike Marshall of the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1974.

A late-afternoon torrential downpour that flooded many parts of Toronto subsided about an hour before game time and the contest started as scheduled. Light rain fell throughout the second and third innings before again tapering off, but several bolts of lightning and thunder claps preceded a fourth-inning deluge that resulted in the delay.

Moments before the rains came, Lloyd Moseby drew a leadoff walk and Bell worked Correa to a full count before hitting his 27th homer of the season for a 2-1 Toronto lead. The Rangers had taken a 1-0 lead with an unearned run in the third. Steve Buechele reached on shortstop Tony Hernandez's throwing error, his first miscue since July 6. One out later, Buechele moved to third on Oddibe McDowell's single and scored on Scott Fletcher's base hit.

Garth Iorg's two-run triple keyed a three-run eighth for the Blue Jays.

Yankees 7, Royals 4

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Mike Easler and Mike Pagliarulo drove in two runs each in a four-run fourth inning and Dave Righetti picked up his 28th save to lead the New York Yankees to a 7-4 win over the Kansas City Royals Friday night.

Righetti came on with the tying run on third and two out in the seventh and shut out the Royals the rest of the way as the Yankees won their fourth straight game.

Rookie Doug Drabek, 3-5, scattered five hits and allowed one run over the first six innings for the win. Brian Fisher came on in the seventh and gave up a three-run homer to George Brett, his 12th of the year.

The Yankees broke a 1-1 tie in the fourth. Singles by Don Mattingly and Dan Pasqua sandwiched around a walk to Dave Winfield loaded the bases with none out against Scott Bankhead, 6-6. Easler singled home two runs and Pagliarulo followed with a triple to give the Yankees a 5-1 lead.

The Royals had taken a 1-0 lead in the first on an RBI groundout by Jorge Orta. New York tied the score in the third on Joel Skinner's fifth homer of the season.

After taking a 5-4 lead, the Yankees added two runs in the eighth on a sacrifice fly by Pasqua and run-scoring single by Pagliarulo, his third RBI of the game.

Indians 3, Orioles 2

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mel Hall and Cory Snyder hit consecutive run-scoring singles off Baltimore relief ace Don Aase in the bottom of the eighth inning to lift the Cleveland Indians to a 3-2 victory over the Orioles Friday night.

The Indians, who had lost four straight, trailed 2-1 entering the bottom of the eighth. But Julio Franco hit a one-out single and pinch-runner Otis Nixon stole second before Aase, 5-4, relieved Rich Bordi and walked Andre Thornton with two outs.

Hall lined a single to right, scoring Nixon with the tying run, and Snyder followed with a line single to center to send home Carmen Castillo with the go-ahead run.

Frank Wills, 1-1, pitched one-third of an inning, his first as an Indian. Ernie Camacho pitched a scoreless ninth for his 17th save, wrapping up a combined five-hitter for the Indians.

The Indians took a 1-0 lead in the second on a home run by Thornton, his 15th this year and his first since July 23.

But Juan Beniquez led off the Baltimore fifth with a single, only the second hit off rookie Scott Bailes. One out later, hot-hitting Jim Traber drove a homer over the fence in right center to give Baltimore a 2-1 lead. Traber has hit nine homers and driven in 25 runs in his 27 games since he was called up by the Orioles from Class AAA Rochester on July 17.

Reds 7, Padres 2, first game
CINCINNATI (AP) — Buddy Bell drove in four runs with a pair of homers Friday night as Mario Soto and the Cincinnati Reds beat the San Diego Padres 7-2 in the first game of a doubleheader.

Bell extended his hitting streak to 12 games with a three-run homer in the first inning off Dave Dravecky, 8-10.

Bell and Dave Parker hit consecutive solo homers in the third for a 5-0 lead. Tony Perez, who announced his retirement this week, effective at the end of the season, homered in the seventh, his first of the season, to account for Cincinnati's final two runs.

Soto, 5-10, gave up five hits in six innings to win for only the second time since coming off the disabled list July 17 after a shoulder injury.

Expos sweep hapless Cubs

MONTREAL (AP) — Tim Burke pitched five scoreless innings in his first major-league start and Luis Rivera hit a pair of doubles and drove in three runs to lead the Montreal Expos to a 5-1 victory and a sweep of their doubleheader against the Chicago Cubs Friday night.

Tim Wallach hit a two-run homer and Vance Law had three hits, including a pair of doubles, as the Expos won the first game 5-2.

Burke, 8-4, who has appeared in 144 games in relief since breaking into the majors last year, allowed seven hits and struck out five without walking a batter in his five-inning stint.

Bob McClure was tagged for one run on four hits over the final four innings to earn his sixth save. Ed Lynch, 3-2, was the loser.

The Expos jumped up to a 4-0 lead in the first inning of the nightcap, with three of the runs scoring on Rivera's bases-loaded double.

Rivera doubled again in the fourth, went to third on Dan Bilardello's hit and scored on a sacrifice bunt by Burke.

In the first game, Dennis Martinez, 2-4, allowed five hits in five innings. Andy McGaffigan pitched the final four innings for his first save since 1984.

Steve Trout, 5-6, was reached for 11 hits and all five Montreal runs in six innings.

Montreal scored twice in the first on Mitch Wesbter's RBI double and Tim Raines' run-scoring single.

Ron Cey hit his 11th homer to pull Chicago within a run in the second, but Montreal broke open the game with three runs and five hits in the fourth.

Andre Dawson singled and scored on Wallach's 18th homer. Law doubled and scored on Tom Nieto's single.

Chicago scored in the eighth on when Ryne Sandberg singled, stole second, went to third on catcher Nieto's throwing error and came home on a groundout.

Pirates 6, Phillies 5, first game
Phillies 3, Pirates 2, second game
PHILADELPHIA (AP) —

Rookie Mike Maddux allowed six hits in 7 2-3 innings to win his first major-league game as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 to split Friday night's doubleheader.

In the opener, Sid Bream's sacrifice fly with one out in the top of the ninth scored Barry Bonds with the winning run as Pirates nipped the Phillies 6-5.

Maddux, 1-5, recalled on July 3 for the second time this season from Class AAA Portland of the Pacific Coast League, had not made it past the sixth inning in his previous seven starts. Steve Bedrosian got the final four outs for his 15th save.

Jim Winn, 2-5, allowed two runs and six hits in six innings and was the loser.

Pittsburgh took a 1-0 lead in the first on a sacrifice fly by Johnny Ray, but the Phillies tied it in the bottom of the first on Von Hayes' run-scoring single. It Hayes' 25th RBI in his last 27 games.

Philadelphia took a 2-1 lead in the third when Gary Redus hit a one-out single, stole second, took third on catcher Junior Ortiz's wild throw and scored on Milt Thompson's single.

Glenn Wilson doubled off reliever Barry Jones in the seventh, went to third on a grounder and scored on Ron Roenicke's pinch-hit sacrifice fly.

R.J. Reynolds doubled in the eighth for Pittsburgh and came around to score on Barry Jones' grounder, making it 3-2.

Cecilio Guante, 5-2, who gave up one hit in three innings while striking out five, was the winner off the first game, while Don Robinson earned his eighth save. Dan Schatzeder, 3-4, took the loss.

With one out in the ninth, Bonds walked and took second on Bill Almon's single. With Ray batting, Bonds and Almon executed a double steal. Ray then was intentionally walked and Bream lofted a fly to medium left, allowing the speedy Bonds to score.

Bonds led off Pittsburgh's fourth-inning first with a double and scored on Bobby Bonilla's triple. Ray singled in Bonilla, and walks to Mike Diaz and Tony Pena loaded the bases. Reynolds singled, scoring Ray, and Diaz scored when left fielder Redus bobbled the ball.

Philadelphia came back with two in the second on a passed ball by Pena and a balk by Pirates starter Mike Bielecki.

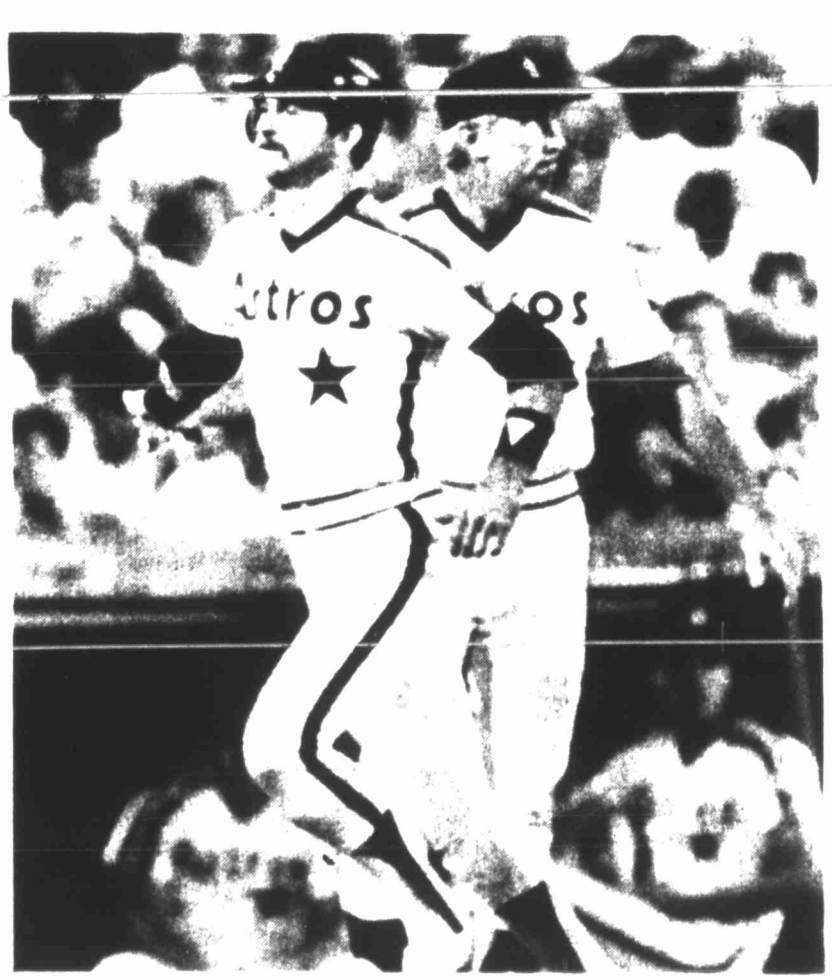

Pittsburgh made it 5-2 in the third on Pena's eighth homer, but Steve Jeltz's two-run triple in the bottom of the fourth brought the Phillies to within a run.

Philadelphia tied it in the fifth on Mike Schmidt's RBI double that put him past Joe DiMaggio into 31st place on the all-time extra-base hit list with 882. Harmon Killebrew is 30th with 887.

Brewers 4, White Sox 3
CHICAGO (AP) — Paul Molitor singled in the tying run in the ninth inning and pinch-runner Charlie Moore raced home with the winning run on a wild pitch by Dave Schmidt to lead the Milwaukee Brewers to a 4-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox Friday night.

With one out in the ninth, Jim Gantner singled and one out later, pinch-hitter Ben Oglivie drew a walk off loser Bill Dawley, 0-5. Schmidt relieved and gave up a run-scoring single to Molitor, who went second on the throw as Moore took third.

With Robin Yount at bat, Schmidt unloaded a wild pitch as Moore scored. Molitor also tried to score on the play, but was tagged out.

Reliever Dan Plesac, 8-6, was the winner. The White Sox scored all of their runs on solo home runs by George Foster, Daryl Boston and Ron Hassey.

Foster, released by the New York Mets last week and signed by the White Sox earlier in the day, homered in the fourth inning and also singled in the sixth in his American League debut.

The homer was his 14th of the season and the 348th of his career and led to a standing-ovation curtain call. The drive of some 390 feet was three rows deep in the lower seats in left-center.

Boston led off the Chicago first with his third homer and Hassey, acquired from the New York Yankees on July 29, hit his seventh of the season and first with the White Sox in the second inning. The homers by Boston and Hassey both were upper-deck shots into right-center.

Rick Manning tripled to open the Milwaukee fifth and scored on a sacrifice fly by Rick Cerone. Gorman Thomas doubled with one out in the Brewers' sixth and scored on a two-out single by Glenn Braggs.

Cardinals 4, Mets 2
NEW YORK (AP) — Rookie John Morris singled home two runs to break a 10th-inning tie and made a potential run-saving catch in the seventh inning, leading the St. Louis Cardinals to a 4-2 victory over the New York Mets Friday night.

Morris hit the single with two out and the bases loaded off reliever Jesse Orosco, 4-5, and a third run scored on the play on a throwing error by Mets right fielder Darryl Strawberry.

Left-hander Pat Perry, 2-2, worked one inning in relief of starter Bob Forsch for the victory, and Todd Worrell pitched the bottom of the 10th for his 26th save despite giving up a run-scoring double to Mookie Wilson.

Ozzie Smith started the winning rally with a walk and was forced at second by Tommy Herr. One out later, Terry Pendleton walked and Tito Landrum beat out an infield hit to load the bases.

Morris, called up from Louisville last month and used as a defensive replacement in this game, followed with a line single to right, scoring Herr and Pendleton. Landrum scored when Strawberry's throw bounced past catcher Gary Carter and went to the backstop.

The Mets, blanked on just three hits through six innings, scored in the seventh to tie it 1-1 against St. Louis starter Bob Forsch, who allowed seven hits in eight innings.

Bias grand jury adjourns without expected testimony

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) — The grand jury investigating the cocaine-related death of All America Len Bias canceled appearances by top Maryland officials, including basketball coach Lefty Driesell, Friday and recessed for the weekend, apparently without returning indictments.

There was no explanation from prosecutors as to why Driesell, John Slaughter, chancellor of the university's main campus at College Park, and Athletic Director Dick Dull did not testify as planned.

Members of the grand jury refused to answer any questions as they left the building. Some members had responded to questions in the past, but they were threatened with contempt of court if they continued to discuss the investigation with the news media.

Before adjourning for the day, the grand jury heard testimony from at least one witness, Jeff Hathaway, business manager for the university's athletic department. Hathaway would not discuss his testimony.

The grand jury has now spent two full weeks investigating the June 19 death of Bias from cocaine intoxication and examining questions raised as a result of his death about the sports program at the College Park campus.

Oilers face Bills with new attitude

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Coach Jerry Glanville's "be tough or be gone" Houston Oilers place a new era before the home crowd for the first time Saturday night when they host the Buffalo Bills in an NFL exhibition game in the Astrodome.

Kickoff is at 8 p.m. EDT.

Glanville, the Oilers' defensive coordinator the past two seasons under former coach Hugh Campbell, wants his 1986 team to take a tougher attitude to the game.

"We've stalled too many times inside the three the past two years," Glanville said. "We just won't tolerate it any more. You judge a back by what he gets after contact."

The Oilers ranked 24th among the 28 NFL teams in total offense last season and Glanville plans to correct the problem with the muscle of running backs Larry Moriarty and Mike Rozier.

"They've told me I'm going to get the ball and that we're going north-south with it," said the energetic Moriarty, who says his goal is to gain 1,000 yards this season.

Glanville also wants to get more protection for quarterback Warren Moon, who suffered through 46 of the Oilers' 58 sacks last season.

The offensive line once again has question marks because of the holdout of left tackle Harvey Salem and the uncertainty of Dean Steinkuhler's knee, which has kept him sidelined since the 1984 season. Steinkuhler suffered ligament and cartilage damage after starting the first 10 games his rookie season and hasn't played since. "He has learned how to work through the pain," Glanville said. "In the rehabilitation program, he had to work through a lot of pain and I think he developed some extra toughness."

Buffalo, starting its first full season under Coach Hank Buhlough, is trying to recover from last season's 2-14 finish, which included a 20-0 victory over the Oilers.

Buhlough would like to start his rebuilding program at quarterback where Bruce Mathison started the final seven games last season.

Frank Reich, free agent Art Schlichter and rookie 12th-round draft choice Brian McClure of Bowling Green also are in contention.

Buhlough plans to play Schlichter the first half against the Oilers, and McClure will get his first pro test in the second half.

"For a 12th-round draft choice, he's probably made as many big league passes as any of our quarterbacks," Bills assistant coach Bob Leahy said. "By big league throws, I mean he sticks it in there."

The Bills also have NFL rights to former New Jersey Generals quarterback Jim Kelly.

Buffalo General Manager Bill Polian said he plans talks with Kelly's agent Greg Lustig.

The Bills, 2-14 last season, shut out the Oilers 20-0 for one of their two victories.

YOUR HOROSCOPE Daily Horoscopes

SUNDAY, AUGUST 17, 1986

GENERAL GUIDANCE: A good day to relax and enjoy the comfortable part of time. You will be able to work this out.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can really handle any outside interference. Enjoy your family tonight.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan how to whittle your ambitions down to a practical level. Put your fine ideas into a reasonable plan.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Make plans for the future with your mate and decide on the right to course in the future.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Know what your outside ambitions are and how best to gain them. They will be with you.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) A good day to plan the new week's activities and schedule your time well for the best possible results.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If you plan recreation wisely, you can really enjoy yourself during your spare or spare time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Show how to make your home more comfortable for yourself and kin. The future will seem brighter.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Handle that correspondence that you have been neglecting and do so wisely.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan how to add to your property and other assets. Good budgeting is wise now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Let your personal aims come first today. Use persons who are practical thinkers for best results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be more practical in going after personal wishes and get better results. This holds for your mate also.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be with as many good friends as you can. Cultivate new acquaintances and get to know them better.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have a very practical outlook on life and would do very well in business, so start the education along such lines early in life. Teach your child to have a more co-operative attitude which can bring greater success and happiness. Make sure the diet is right, too.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
