Senate ready for final vote on racing bill

AUSTIN (AP) — It's no longer a long shot that a horse race betting bill will make it to the House this year as one way to ease Texas' financial woes, Sen. Ike Harris says.

Senators tentatively approved the Dallas Republican's pari-mutuel wagering bill 19-10 Monday, and a final vote was scheduled today.

Opponents counter that wagering would be an invitation to organized crime and would lead poor people to throw away their earnings at the track.

Gov. Mark White said later he would take "a close look" at any wagering bill sent to "My position on that has always been there should be a statewide referendum, local option and strong protection against organized crime," White said.

The proposed legislation calls for a Texas Racing Commission to supervise horse races and wagering in about four large tracks in metropolitan areas, about 17 regional tracks with mostly weekend race programs and any number of temporary race meets at county fairs and other celebrations lottery tickets," Nelson said. He also said lotteries are a form of entertainment and that players realize it.

Most efforts to change Harris' bill were defeated by lop-sided votes.

"The lottery player knows the odds of winning that prize are very small. People continue to play lottery tickets because they like the excitement and the fun of participating in that game," Nelson

His arguments, however, didn't convince the Rev. E.B. Beasley Jr., minister of United Methodist churches at Lissie and Wallace. "I don't think the Bible would support this at this time. Morally, this is not a fair issue," Beasley said, adding that the poor shouldn't be called upon to do more than their fair share to support state government.

The people with a lot of money don't feel the need to get rich. It's those who do not have it who feel the need. And they wind up being the ones who foot the bills of the state," he said.

Beasley also showed senators several newspaper clippings where poor families spent money on lottery tickets, only to lose.

"This is not a fair way to go," he said. "It's not good. It's not desireable. It leads to luck instead of human effort or faith in God."

The sheriff also asked for $1,440 for uniforms for three department employees, but said he could pay for them within his present budget with the county's permission.

New police program discussed by Council

By HANK MURPHY Staff Writer

A police department incentive program, estimated to cost the city $45,000, came under fire by Councilman D.W. Overman at a City Council work session Monday.

The program was discussed after councilmen met behind closed doors for nearly an hour with local attorney Robert Miller concerning a right-of-way between east Third and Fourth streets. The street was closed earlier this year by E.F. Henderson, who maintains he bought the right-of-way property and may do what he wants with it. The matter is on the agenda when the Council meets tonight for its regular meeting.

Overman raised objections both about the cost of the police incentive program and its fairness to other city personnel who have had an incentive or "step" programs stripped away for the next fiscal

The incentive plan, called the police department Career Development Program, increases police pay based on criteria involving evaluations, certificates held, years of experience and other factors, said Personnel Director Emma Lee Bogard. Acting Police Chief Lonnie Smith said the purpose of the plan is to keep experienced officers in Big Bogard said Big Spring pays police less than other cities in the

"If the department is under paid, they need to be brought up to scale without giving pay raises to all city employees," said Mayor Cotton

Overman claimed the program, already budgeted for the next fiscal year, amounted to a 6 percent pay hike for the police department.

"I think the city needs to tighten its belt," he said.

The program, which would increase pay for 21 men on the police force in October, may actually save the city money, said Mize.

With a yearly training cost of $30,000 per new man, Mize said, "If we save two people, we actually save the city money.

Concern also was raised that the incentive plan would be viewed unfavorably by other city employees. especially the firemen, who have been at odds with the city over money for months. "The firemen are definitely going to jump on the bandwagon and we're going to have trouble with them," said Councilman Gary Don Carey. Councilmen Henry Sanchez and Harold Hall said they favored the plan as a way to keep good police officers in Big Spring.

Councilmen Johnny Rutherford and Russ McEwen were absent from Monday's meeting.

Soviet Jewish family reunited

TEL AVIV, Israel — Freed Soviet dissident Anatoly Shcharanksy, hugging and kissing his mother and brother after their arrival from the Soviet Union, vowed to keep up his fight to persuade Moscow to ease emigration restrictions.

Shcharansky, jailed for nine years in the Soviet Union on espionage charges, was reunited Monday with his 78-year-old mother, Ida Milgrom, his brother Leonid, 39, and Leonid's wife and two children.

The family left Moscow Monday morning with tearful farewells, stopped over in Vienna where they were met by Shcharansky and flew here aboard Israel's El Al national airline

"This is a very exciting moment," Shcharansky, 38. told reporters at Ben Gurion International Airport.
But it is not simply wooderful. he said. "It is an important lesson that no quiet diplomacy, even at the highest levels, can help if it isn't accompanied by a strong public campaign to convince the Soviet Union to Shcharansky, who now lives in Israel, said he had only seen his mother twice during his years in Soviet prisons, the last time in January 1985. He last saw his brother in 1980.

The other family members are Leonid's wife Rava and their sons, Alexander, 14, and Boris, 1.

Mrs. Milgrom spoke briefly to reporters as she sat between her two sons, holding their hands.

Black civil war begins

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa - Zulu chief Mangosuthu Buthelezi, one of South Africa's most powerful black moderates, said today the alaying of a supporter's wife shows a civil war has begun among blacks. Buthelezi, chief minister of the KwaZulu tribal homeland, issued a statement expressing shock at "the cold-blooded murder" of Evelyn Sebalo, wife of KwaZulu legislator Winnington Sabelo.

She was killed and her three children seriously injured when their home was attacked Friday night by assailants using a hand grenade and automatic rifle.

Soviets close reactors

VIENNA, Austria - The Soviet Union has shut down about half of its Chernobyl-type nuclear reactors for modifications, according to a Soviet official reporting on the disaster at the Ukrainian atomic power plant.

The official, Valery A. Legasov, made the comment Monday on the first day of an international meeting hearing a Soviet report on the April 26 Chernobyl accident, which killed 31 people and sent radioactive debris around

MOSCOW - After years of dismissing drug abuse as virtually non-existent in socialist society, the state press is now chronicling how "narcomania" affects many young Soviets'

Recent newspaper articles have echoed urgent calls by law enforcement officials and sociologists to deal more openly with a problem that the Soviets once said only existed in the West.

One sociologist said abuse of illegal drugs such as hashish cuts across all social strata, and a major general in the national militia, or police, suggested addiction be treated as an illness rather than a crime.

13-year division patched

YAOUNDE. Cameroon - Israel and Cameroon have restored diplomatic relations after a 13-year break, the two governments announced today in a joint communique.

The announcement came at the end of two days of talks between Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres and President Paul Biya.

Peres arrived Monday, a day after it was first reported that a fatal gas emission had occurred from a volcanic lake in northwestern Cameroon. A 17-member army medical team accompanied the Israeli leader.

Cameroon was among 29 African countries that severed ties with Israel after the 1973 Arab-Israeli war.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The elderly, long a favored group under federal tax law, lose some of their special status under the income tax overhaul awaiting final congressional passage, but most retirees won't notice the difference.

Social Security pensions are taxexempt under current law and will continue to be exempt under the rewrite, approved earlier this month by a House-Senate conference committee.

That means low-income retirees will continue paying nothing and middle-income retirees will get a substantial portion of their income

In fact, lobbyists for the elderly say, more than half of all retirees pay no tax now, and that percentage will increase under the new Eric Shulman, legislative director for the National Council of Senior Citizens, said only 40 percent of the nation's 28.5 million elderly — or roughly 11.4 million people - pay income tax now.

And David Certner, legislative representative for the American Association of Retired Persons, said the tax bill is expected to remove an additional 700,000 elderly people from the tax rolls.

Middle-income retirees who pay taxes on income other than Social Security will lose their special "65-and-older" exemption in the current law. But that will be largely offset because the bill increases the exemption for everyone. It also will cut tax rates for the middle-income retiree. But not all the elderly will benefit from the tax changes.

Wealthier retirees who have itemized deductions in the past may end up paying more on their investment income. Retirees who have held investments for decades may pay more because the higher value of their stocks will be fully taxed when sold, even if the increase is due only to inflation.

And sick people, a disproportionate number of whom are elderly, will be taxed more heavily whether they are rich or poor. The bill increases by 50 percent the amount of medical bills a taxpayer must pay before qualifying for a deduction, and lowers the value of the deduction once it's taken.

"The medical deduction is one that definitely will be felt" by the elderly, said Certner. He said about 80 percent of elderly people who itemize deductions now take a deduction for medical expenses.

Under the new law, he said, "some won't qualify (for the deduction), and the ones who do are going to lose part of it."

The tax bill says medical expenses are deductible only to the extent they exceed 7.5 percent of adjusted gross income, rather than 5 percent under current law. The new figure is a dramatic increase over the 3 percent figure that was used only three years ago.

That means a retired taxpayer with $20,000 in income could deduct only those medical bills that exceed $1,500, rather than $1,000 under current law. The contrast is even starker when viewed against the tax law in effect in 1983; then, this person would have been able to deduct all medical spending above

Certner said the medical deduction is one of the four most commonly used by retirees — the other three are state and local taxes, charitable deductions and mortgage interest — but is the one over which the retiree often has the least control.

But other deductions also will affect at least some of the elderly, he said. The end of the 60 percent exclusion on the capital gains tax will hit hard at older people who have held securities for decades and must cash them in.

Deaver actions not so innocent

Few instances of influence-peddling are as blatant as the case of Michael Deaver, President Reagan's former deputy chief of staff.

After leaving his old job, Deaver turned his White House connections into lucrative lobbying for foreign governments. As the investigation of his dealings continues, his protestations of innocence become less convincing.

Worries about Deaver first arose last spring, when evidence surfaced that Deaver had misused his Washington ties to lobby for Canada on acid rain. A new General Accounting Office report strengthens that evidence.

The federal Ethics in Government Act requires former government officials to wait two years before lobbying on issues they handled in their old jobs. By signing a contract with Canada two months after leaving his old post, the GAO suggests, Deaver probably broke the law.

Two other investigations — one headed by Independent Counsel Whitney North Seymour, the other directed by the House Energy and Commerce Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations — have expanded to include Deaver's business activity in Korea and Japan.

In Asia, some witnesses say, Deaver exploited his friendship with President Reagan to win lobbying contracts and to arrange entree to the White House for low-level foreign officials.

Just as troubling is the House subcommittee's claim that Deaver committed perjury while testifying before the panel in May. The subcommittee found conflicts between Deaver's testimony and that of several former and current administration officials about Deaver's lobbying activities for foreign governments.

The perjury allegations deserve careful examination by Seymour, who has the final say over whether Deaver should be charged with violating federal law. That task becomes more daunting as the accusations against Deaver mount.

Seymour now must consider not only whether Deaver lobbied illegally, but also whether he lied.

Perfection a goal but not a reality

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you think we can ever be perfect in this life? I have a friend who says if we follow all the rules of the Bible carefully then we can achieve perfection in God's eyes and be without sin. - G.F.

DEAR G.F.: While I do not doub your friend's sincerity, the Bible makes it clear that we will only be perfect and without sin when we go to be with Christ in Heaven. "Now we see but a poor reflection; then we shall see face to face. Now I know in part; then I shall know fully, even as I am fully known" (1 Corinthians 13:12). Even if we avoid sin in our actions, our motives may be impure or perhaps pride lurks beneath the surface. That is why we can ever depend on our own goodness to save us, but only on God's grace, which He has shown us in Christ

This is vividly seen in the life of the Apostle Paul. What was his own evaluation of his life? He wrote: "Not that I have already obtained all this, or have already been made perfect, but I press on to take hold of that for which Christ Jesus took hold of me" (Philippians 3:12). Yes, he knew he was not perfect but on the other hand he was not content to tolerate sin in his life. In another passage he compared the Christian life to a race: "Therefore

I do not run like man running aimlessly: I do not fight like a man beating the air. No. I beae my body and make it my slave so that after I have preached to others, I myself will not be disqualified for the prize" (1 Corinthians 9:26-27). Are you committed to Jesus Christ, and are you seeking each day to serve Him? Through His death on the cross, Jesus Christ made our salvation possible. Have you received the gift He offers you - the gift of salvation? Open your heart to Him, and then ask Him to help you each day to turn your back on sin and to do those things that will bring honor to Him.

FAA blackmails airport for higher standards and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON - Incredible as it may seem, Federal Aviation Administration bureaucrats are willing to withhold money needed to make air travel safer in order to force airport managers to bow down to the FAA's standards on permissible aircraft noise levels.

The FAA apparently intends to make a test case out of San Francisco International Airport, which had the effrontery to set noise standards stricter than those of the federal agency. Determined to bend the airport's management to its will, the FAA has threatened to withhold $8 million in federal funds earmarked for such safety improvements at San Francisco Innational as improved runway

kep. Tom Lantos, D-Calif., in a letter to FAA administrator Donald Engen, seen by our associate Lucette Lagnado, accused the agency of trying to "blackmail" the airport into relaxing its noise standards. The airport is on San Francisco Bay, just across the Bayshore Freeway from Lantos' San Mateo County constituents. His district, just south of San Francisco proper, includes some of the poshest suburbs in California. Barbecue grills and backyard swimming pools are in use virtually the year around, and the roar of big jets landing and taking off at the airport is not a welcome intrusion on the residents' gracious life style.

So under community pressure, San Francisco International set noise-level standards below the FAA's nationwide minimum.

This ruled out the Boeing 707, and led Burlington Northern Air Freight, which relies on that model, to complain to the FAA that the airport was discriminating against it. The FAA not only agreed, but decided to use its power of the purse to make the airport management knuckle under. The money it threatened to withhold was to be used for improved safety at the airport.

This bureaucratic presumptuousness -- in an administration whose policy is to get the Telleral government off the backs of local In his confidential letter to Engen, he wrote:

"I wish to re-emphasize my deeply held view that it is bad policy to attempt to blackmail the San Francisco International Airport with the threat of withholding funds because of its appropriate attempt to mitigate the horrendous problem of aircraft noise - a nightmare for tens of thousands of citizens who live nearby.

"The airport continues to be under the threat that badly needed funds — to which the airport is entitled and which are for the safety of the millions of travelers who use the facility - will be withheld unless the airport surrenders to the unacceptable demand that aircraft which do not meet noise standards be allowed to land."

What exacerbated Lantos' outrage was the fact that while the air freight company's complaint was being reviewed by the FAA, the agency's chief legal counsel, E. Tazewell Ellett — the man who will ultimately rule on the issue — was making public statements describing the airport's refusal to let Burlington Northern's 707s land as "flagrant discrimination." In a speech to the Dallas-Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce, Ellett said that "we intend to stop that discrimination.'

Lantos suggested that he and Engen meet to discuss the situation. Engen replied that he would be pleased to meet with the congressman — but that he would not discuss the subject Lantos wanted to bring up.

Footnote: A spokesman for Burlington Northern characterized his company as a "victim" caught in a fight between the airport and the FAA. He pointed out that the company's 707s met the FAA's noise standards and those of other airports — just not San Francisco.

GROCERY GROSS-OUT: The Coast Guard's Seventh District headquarters in Miami appears to be the last of the big tippers. On April 18, 1984, Pantry Pride billed the district $129.32 for assorted groceries. The Coast Guard sent a check for $129,320.85, which Pantry Pride deposited. A month later, the vendor caught the error and notified the Coast Guard - which took 20 months to collect the $129,191.53 overpayment. On July 8, 1985, Beaver Street Foods billed the district $824.02 for groceries and got a check for $496,276. The Coast Guard clerk apparently used the invoice number as the amount to be paid. This time the check was returned uncashed.

HAIR TODAY, GONE TOMOR-ROW: Attorney General Edwin Meese strode into the barbershop the other day and found his balding counselor, Kenneth Cribb, in the barber's chair. "Do you have to pay full price for a haircut?" asked Meese mockingly. Cribb retorted: "In my case, it's a finder's fee."

Park should be properly patrolled

The Big Spring Herald

To the editor:

Thank you for your editorial which appeared in the Big Spring Herald on Sunday, Aug. 17, regarding the proposed ban on alcoholic beverages in the park. I agree with the concept that it is easier to write new laws than to enforce the ones that are already in effect.

However, we the citizens of Big Spring should not tolerate criminal activity in our city park. I feel that our City Council should be able to figure out some way to provide an adequate number of officers to patrol and keep order in the park.

I also suggest that more emphasis be placed on upgrading the lake facility in the park so that more of its shoreline would be ac-the lake near Highway 87. I believe that freedom improves the quality of life. This includes freedom from ruffians who would ruin the park for the rest of the community. But it also includes freedom from unnecessary laws that would inhibit the lawful enjoyment of the park for the lawabiding citizens of our community.

With proper enforcement of our existing laws, our city park can be a much more pleasant place for all

Moderate exercise can help in emphysema

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have been encouraging a friend in his 60s to exercise with me. This person has auffered from some emphysema. He has now started walking vigorously with me for five miles a day. The question has come up as to whether it is safe for such a person to jug, and if so what are the guidelines? My friend is otherwise healthy.—C.R.

I can give only general guides.
His doctor has to provide the specifics.

A person with lung disease can exercise to the point of his tolerance. This means he cannot push himself to the point of breathlessness. For some that might mean a short walk. Others might tolerate fast walking, even mild jogging. It all depends on the degree of lung damage done by the emphysema.

With persistence, tolerance can be built, however. A short walk can become a longer one, and so on. Improvement is always the rule in such cases, but moderation is the guiding word.

Exercise will not undo lung damage alresdy done. But it will teach muscles how to get by on less oxygen. It does promote strength and a feeling of vitality. Some form of exercise is usually possible for anyone with lung disease.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: It was

The problem is that this past weekend he played basketball with Some friends and couldn't keep up. He felt very out of breath. When he had to drop out of the game, he decided that our walking program must not be of sufficient aerobic quality to get him in shape. Can you explain this? - B.S.

The intensity of walking doesn't compare with that of basketball. Furthermore, walking won't train him for the bursts of extreme speed demanded on the basketball court. That requires anaerobic, not aerobic, training. Anaerobi training is the kind sprinters undergo.

Each sport requires different conditioning techniques. I cannot outline a full basketball training format for him here. I am sure he will find good information at the library. Or if he knows a basketball coach, he should be able to help with some suggestions.

Pick sitters with care, expert warns

By MARTA W. ALDRICH Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Baby-sitting is a job monopolized by teen-agers in search of a little spending money, but a psychologist warns that many adolescents are emotionally unprepared for the task. While day care centers, family members and friends have received the most attention as potential child abusers, he says, little has been said about the most common - and least trained - of all child-Adolescence can be one of life's most vulnerable.

confusing periods - a time of emotional uncertainty and sexual experimentation while making the transition from childhood to adulthood, says Dr. Ronald F.C. Kourany, a child and adolescent psychologist at Vanderbilt University Medical Center.

Kourany, who has researched teen-age babysitting for the past decade, says the unprepared adolescent with emotional limitations can easily be provoked into panic or rage while caring for children, particularly for those who present management or behavioral problems.

"I don't want to be an alarmist," said Kourany. who points out that baby-sitting teaches teen-agers responsibility and child-care skills. "But there is the potential for explosiveness - behaviorally, psychologically and sexually. Just name it, and you'll find it.'

More than 1 million U.S. teen-agers baby-sit, said Kourany. His surveys show that 90 percent or more of all high school students have baby-sat on one or

While most parents have strong opinions about criteria for selecting a sitter — responsibility, reliability, maturity, experience and understanding of children — relatively few screen baby sitters adequately in those areas before entrusting them with their child, Kourany said.

In fact, he said, some parents are more careful about to whom they hand their car keys than who cares for their children.

His research with Dr. James Martin into teen-age baby-sitting began after two adolescent patients with personality problems admitted they had both sexually abused children during caretaking duties.

'We went to literature to see what we could find about teen-agers who have a history of child abuse while baby sitting, but there was very little written on it," Kourany said.

Based on his own research, Kourany offers parents several suggestions for making the best possible match between children and sitters: - A question-and-answer period, much like a job interview, will give both parties a chance to assess the other's background, personality and expectations

Kourany's research suggests baby-sitting problems often arise because the parents failed to clearly instruct behavior limits, such as whether the sitter could smoke, use the telephone, raid the refrigerator or have a boyfriend or girlfriend come over.

"It can be awkward, but it's the responsibility of the parents to be very careful," he says. "You can do it in a very supportive way. Be very clear what they should and should not do, and don't assume the baby sitter knows these things already. Many times, the sitter wants to hear this.'

Sitters, in turn, can voice their concerns. Surveys show they complain most about parents who fail to prepare children adequately for the sitter's arrival, requests to do housework, returning home late, low pay and lack of a sliding pay scale to cover additional children and duties.

 A "trial run" before the baby sitter is hired will give both the children and the sitter time to become acclimated to each other. While it may be timeconsuming, it can be as simple as asking the sitter to arrive an hour or so before the parents leave, Kourany said.

Parents associated the mean sense precaution of placing a list of emergency numbers by the telephone and should include the address of the home itself. "Many times, a baby sitter doesn't even know where he or she is," he said.

sitter and children how things went. Not only is this a good way to assess their compatibility, but it indicates to both that the parents are concerned, Kourany said.

The eligibility standard has been increased for free meals for the current school year. The range is $9,412 for a family of two to $24,076 for a family of eight.

The reduced price meal has also been increased to a maximum of $13,394 for a family of two to $34,262 for a family of eight. For each family member of a family with more than eight members $2,444-3,478 will be added to the maximum.

Eligibility determinations are made on a family basis. All children in the same family attending school under the jurisdiction of the same school food authority are to receive the same benefits, a free or reduc-

Charge for the reduced meal is 40 cents. Students meeting the eligibility standards are elgible for both breakfast and lunch at either the free or reduced price according to the size of the family and the Applications for the freereduced price meal program offered in the school district may be obtained from each school office. Parents will be notified in writing of approval or disapproval of the application. Students new to the Big Spring Independent School District or entering our schools for the first time will not be able to recieve a freereduced price meal until the application has been approved.

Students entering a Big Spring school with a brother or sister on a the freereduced price meal approved list from the 1985-86 school year will be added to the school's temporary approved list until the current year's application has been processed.

Endy reports on convention

The National Association of Retired and Veteran Railway Employees (NARVE) met at the Kentwood Older Adult Center on Aug. 21 for a pot luck supper and a business meeting, presided by J.T.

A moment of silence was held for Mrs. George W. (Frankie) Hill who died Aug. 16 and the mother of G.W. Greer. Ray Scott and Mrs. S.A. Wilson were reported ill.

Harold J. Endy, national president, reported on the National Convention and explained the effect of recent legislation on concerning railway pensions and changes in membership requirements. Hostesses were Mrs. J.T. Culpepper and Mrs. J.J. Richardson. Mrs.

Next meeting will be Sept. 18 with a pot luck supper at 6:30 p.m.

followed by a business meeting at 7:30.

Good nursing homes: A result of caring staff

DEAR ABBY: I read Kirk Douglas' letter about the horrors of nursing homes with a strange kind of wonderment. On one hand, as the son of aging parents, I felt a sense of dread that one day my parents might be forced to live in a nursing home, which, judging from Mr. Douglas' "research," would be a fate worse than death. On the other hand, as one who has chosen a career dedicated to caring for the elderly, I was outraged that such irresponsible generalizations could be presented as gospel truths. As a nursing home administrator, I can tell you that they are not!

I cannot imagine a family tolerating their loved one's being subjected to "bedsores, rapes and broken bones." I certainly would not. Nor would I tolerate in my facility any thievery, neglect or abuse. I pray that any nursing home that permits such abuses be closed immediately and their operators be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. Mr. Douglas' letter, which I assume was well-intentioned, served only to reinforce old stereotypes and further confuse and frighten those of us who may be faced with some frightening decisions.

STEVEN P. MONROE. ADMINISTRATOR, FOX RUN MANOR NURSING HOME, FINDLAY, OHIO

DEAR ABBY: With regard to Kirk Douglas' tirade against nursing homes, the staff and residents of this nursing home want to say, "Bull!

DEAR ABBY: If Kirk Douglas is truly concerned about our elderly, he should take his handsome face and dimpled chin to Washington and lobby for more money for Medicaid so nursing employees wouldn't have to work two jobs in order to live.

ALSO CONCERNED IN VERMONT

DEAR ABBY: I am a nurse in a nursing home. Yes, I am paid to do my job, although I would be paid more had I gone into another field of nursing. But there isn't enough money in the world to "pay" me to hold an old woman whose children never find the time to visit her. Charities see tax reform reducing dona

By SALLY CANTU Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - Texas charities stand to lose millions of dollars under the proposed income tax reform bill because taxpayers will be required to itemize to deduct money they give to the poor, worried officials said.

The United Way of Texas alone could suffer as much as $25 million in contribution losses during the next five years, UWT executive vice president Bill Link said.

"It's like a slap in the face," said Beverly Schneider, comptroller of Houston Catholic Charities. "This city is one with many economic problems, and after cutting off funds, the government expects us to take up the slack helping people in need."

Because of the reform bill, many taxpayers are expected to stop itemizing because they won't be able to write off Individual Retirement Accounts, consumer interest and sales taxes, analysts say.

In turn, since they need to itemize to do it, they will probably not make as many contributions to non-profit organizations, says Steve Delphin, spokesman for UWT's parent group based in Alexandria,

"Congress is giving us (charities) conflicting messages," Delphin said. "First they cut programs, like day care and food programs, saying volunteer groups can pick up the slack. And now they are taking away the incentive to give to

But some officials say most people who contribute are not looking for a tax

Only about 20 percent of American taxpayers itemize under the current tax law, said Jack Devore, Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's press secretary.

"It's like President Reagan said, the individual is going to get a tax cut of about $1 billion, and they will have enough money in their pockets that they'll give for the right reasons," Devore said.
Some charity organizers agree.

"The bill will have no great bearing on us," said Maj. Neil Saunders, a Salvation Army spokesman in El Paso. "People who give little items want to see people use it, and those are the people who give us the majority of our items.

OUR BUSINESS IS GOING "TO" THE DOGS!

At Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Colin French, director of planned giving said the impact would be "very slight." French said his office is scramble ing to make use of the current tax code before it expires.

"We will see a decline in the amount given over the next two years as the tax bill is phased in, but people who are more interested in creating something other than tax deductions will continue to give," he says. "People will give just for the love of the school."

Still, others fear that donations will drop, causing a shortfall in their already strained budgets.

At the University of Texas system, administrators said fewer contributions could adversely affect growth and improvement in higher education.

Paul Youngdale, director of deve ment, said state universities receive equal amount of state funds to main their facilities. But it's the domitions make a difference between an exschool and a good one, he said. "It will hurt us because we are going to get fewer large gifts that we have used to endow a professor," Youngdale said. "And that's how you get and keep good people within the university." Other charities are starting donation campaigns and hoping for the best.

"But I hope people's caring will over-come their deduction concerns and they will continue to give," he said. "I think they will."

House OKs switching parks money

take about $9.2 million in cigarette tax money from local parks and use it to help balance the state budget has won final approval from the Texas House.

Voting 88-35, lawmakers Monday sent the measure to the Senate.

Cigarettes carry a 20.5-cent per pack tax. A penny of that tax goes to the Local Parks, Recreation and Open Space Fund, which provides grants for local parks.

Under the bill sponsored by Rep. Edmund Kuempel, R-Seguin, that one-cent allocation would go into the state's general revenue fund instead of the park funds for one year. Kuempel has said it wouldn't ly were closed as a budget-cutting

Lady Steer spikers in home opener

By STEVE BELVIN

Sports Editor

Local fans will get their first chance to see the Big Spring Lady Steers volleyball team in action when the Lady Steers play their home opener today against the San Angelo Central Bobcats 4 p.m. in Steer Gym.
The junior varsity teams will start off action at 3

Coach Elaine Stone's squad brings a 2-2 record into today's contest. The defending District 4-5A champions are coming off a 16-team tournament in Monahans this past weekend, where they played Big Spring defeated Wink 15-13, 15-10 in its opener. Junior spikers Nikki Rodriquez and Katrina Thompson led the win.

In its next game the Lady Steers played defending tournament champion El Paso Burgess. The Lady Steers fell to the powerful team 15-6, 15-5. Coach Stone called it her squad's best game of the young

In their third and final game of the tournament, the Lady Steers were upset by Alpine in two straight games, 15-1, 15-2.

"The girls knew Burgess was a good team and they got fired up and ready to play them. We played a good game, Burgess just has a big, strong team," she said. One hour later we had to play Alpine and we were down because the loss to Burgess took so much out of us. We didn't play a very good game."

Against Central, Stone knows her troops must play a good game against their former district rivals. In '84 Central won the district and went on to win the state championship. Big Spring barley missed the state playoffs by finishing third.

Last season Central was again the district favorite.

But the Lady Steers, then under the direction of Susan Sharp, won the title while Central finished se-cond. The two teams split against each other in district competition. Both were eliminated in the first round of the state playoffs.

Coach Cynthia Williams' Bobcats bring a 6-1 record into the contest. They are coming off a second place finish at the Monahans tournament. They were defeated by Pecos, 11-15, 15-11, 11-15. The Bobcats are led by spikers Yolanda Blakey Tiwana Graham and Terri Washington.

"Central will be a good test. Like always they have a good team. They have some tall girls who are big hitters," Stone said.

Stone says her team is making progress. "Our hitting and serving has improved but we still have a long ways to go though. We need to work on our defense as far as picking up the balls and our coverage on the court. It's going to take some time because we've got 10 girls who have never played together as a team before.

Stone is still short on setters for her 5-1, 6-1 offenses. Right now seniors Lisa Hale and Priscilla Banks are handling the duties. "Sheri (Myrick, 6-1 middle blocket) handles the ball real well, she's one of our best backrow players but we need her up front blocking.'

Stone says her squad will be glad to be in the confines of Steer Gym. "I think it's a big advantage to play in your own gym. You feel comfortable because you know the court, plus you have your friends and families to cheer you on.'

Against Central, that home court advantage might make all the difference in the world for the Lady

Cowboys will let Thurman go

DALLAS (AP) - Dennis Thurman, the leading active interceptor in the National Football Conference, said Dallas Cowboys coach Tom Landry informed him Monday he would be included in the 10 players to be cut from the squad today, according to published reports.
"Coach Landry just said he wanted to go with younger players. He said he tried everything he could do to keep me, but felt at this time that this was the direction he needed to go," Thurman said Monday night. "He said his pass situation defense may not be as good, but this was the chance he had to take," Thurman told the Dallas Morning News. "This is part of the game and I have to accept it." Cowboys officials were schedulrespect for what he accomplished in his eight years with the team.

The 30-year-old Thurman said he was called into Landry's office on Monday after practice for a 10-minute meeting and given the news he had feared throughout training camp.

"This is terrible," cornerback Everson Walls told the newspaper.

"This will really take away from it, he didn't show it." our defense. He knows the defense better than the coaches.

"Let's just say he helps the coaches out on the blitzes that sometimes they forget to cover," said Walls. "Dennis will come up with a single adjustment that will be the remedy.

Thurman was moved from starting right cornerback to backup free safety in 1984, but remained a key member of the Cowboys' 4-0 pass defense - a scheme with seven defensive backs that was used about 40 percent of the time the past two seasons.

After the Cowboys intercepted Washington six times in the 1985 season opener, quarterback Danny White dubbed the secondary, "Thurman's Thieves.

"I did all I could for the organization," said Thurman. "Whatever they asked of me, I tried to do. Coach Landry told me for a guy my size and speed, I was one of the better players he'd seen in a long time. He tried to pacify me as much as he could. If he had any emotion about

The Cowboys, by waiving Thurman, an 11th-round pick in 1978, will keep a fourth cornerback or an extra safety among seven defensive backs.

Thurman said he wants to continue playing although many feel he has a coaching career if he chooses it.

"I still think I can play in this league," he said. "I don't think I will be out of the league altogether. If I have played my last game, I would be surprised. I think something positive will happen."

However, he added "I wish they had done this earlier, because with everybody cutting down, it's hard to get picked up. I just think this is something they knew all along."

Thurman had been quoted in Monday morning editions of Dallas newspapers as anticipating he might be cut because he had seen little practice time and, in the fourth pre-season game against Pittsburgh, didn't get a turn in the regular defense until the fourth

NEW YORK (AP) If Reggie Jackson plays baseball next season, it will not be for the Califor-

Jackson, sixth on the all-time home run list, says he was told recently by Angels General Manager Mike Port that the team will not re-sign him for 1987.

"I know I still can play," Jackson said Monday night, prior to the Angels' 5-3 victory over the New York Yankees. "I'd like to play here in California, but it's not going to happen."

Jackson, 40, signed a one-year contract for 1966 worth an estimated $900,000. This season, the designated hitter has 11 homers with 40 runs batted in, and a current 3-for-25 slump has dropped his average to .252. Jackson said Port told him during spring training that a decision on his status would be made by . "August came and they told that year, hitting 39 home runs with Jackson said. "It's a blow. When someone tells you that you're not wanted, it's not something you ret asked if he was suprised at the Angels' position, he merely Port, at Monday night's game, would neither confirm nor deny that Jackson would not be back with the Angels. "I won't talk about anything on an individual basis," he said. "I won't get into that." The Angels have several aging veterans, such as Jackson, Bob Boone, Rick Burleson, John Candelaria, Bobby Grich and Doug DeCinces, with contractsthat expire after this season.

"We'll talk about individuals after the season ends," Port said. Jackson joined the Angels in 1982 as a free agent and helped them to the American League West title 101 RBI and a .275 average He slumped to .194 with 14 home runs and 49 RBI in 1983, but came back to lead the team with 25 homers in 1984 and 27 last season. He tops all active players with 541 career home run Jackson said he has not specifically thought about his plans for next season, but said he wanted to end his playing days when the time was right. "I'd rather leave too early than too soon," he said. "I don't want to be let go and be wandering out there looking for a job. "Trying to leave with dignity and class is more important to me than trying to wring out the rag of my ability. I'm not going to just hang

Under the hot evening sun, the Klondike High School squad works hard to prepare for their upcoming season.

ummertime Blues

It's that time of the year.

Football is played in the fall, but it begins in the heat of summer. That's when all of the blood, sweat and tears start to flow. It ends in the chilly nights of November — or if you're good enough — in the freezing cold of December.

But to be able to play in December, preparation begins in early August, starting with the physical to make sure the body is fit. Then you report to practice, otherwise known as two-a-day workouts.

If you haven't been working out already, don't bother to start. All it does is make your body sore for workouts that leave it more sore.

You receive your shorts, socks and T-shirts the weekend before the first Monday workout. The coaches give a quick look and can tell who's been working out and who hasn't. They know who's going to be bent over, exhausted and in pain, and who'll jog off the field with his head up after the first workout.

That Sunday night you get in bed early because you know what's ahead of you. If you've been through it, you still get nervous because you know the next two weeks will be no easy task. Those going through it the first time are downright scared — they don't know what to expect.

The alarm clock goes off and you groggily get out of bed. It's brush your teeth, wash your face, no time for breakfast, want to be light as possible for the first workout.

The morning breeze is cool as you go through stretching excerises. After a short talk from the head coach, you go to different stations. Form running gets your adrenaline flowing while you work up a good sweat.

Then you go to your perspective coaches. Linemen begin working on their stances, receivers run pass routes and backs run their plays.

Time flys and before you know it, you're halfway through practice. The whole group gets together and you go over what you learned in the spring. You run plays until your breathing gets faster and your muscles get tighter as the heat intensifies with the passing hours.

The student manager blows the last and final whistle and the coaches call you together. Everyone is working hard and is excited. Football season has started.

The last order of the day is conditioning. The part you've been dreading. It's even even more rigorous that last year. The 15 minutes of running seem like an hour. And when the last sprint is run, every bit of energy is spent.

The ones that worked out during the summer are glad. They know how much more it could have hurt. The ones that didn't wished they had, instead of skiing or going to the movies.

movies.

The rest of the week is more of the same.

Soon pads are strapped on and practices are more draining because of the added weight and the contact.

The next two weeks go fast because of weekend scrimmages. You finally get to hit someone else other than your teammates.

After that is the big event, the season opener on Friday night. You feel good about yourself because you made it through the hard part. There were some who couldn't handle the heat, so they got out.

You are proud of your spanking new uniform. But you forget about all of that after the first kickoff. The season has started.

You have licked the summertime blues.

Maybe the season will end on a cold day in December.

Joe David Rodriquez, a junior on the Colorado City High School football team, wets his hands while playing catch during warmups. Rodriquez is under the watchful eye of the school mascot painted on a wall behind him.

Before practice begins, senior Rockie Harber of Borden County High School writes an inspirational message on the chalkboard for all to see.

PORECAST FOR WED., AUGUST 27, 1908

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you are apt to be as nervous and restless as those about you. Find a plan and carry it through to its logical conclusion. This brings accomplishment. ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Plan your time and activities wisely so that you do not take on more than you can comfortably achieve.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be sure you are diplomatic in conversations with others. Listen to advice that is given and study it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use care in whatever work you do so that you will not have to do it again. Curb your temper with friends. MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You hardly know where to begin since you have many personal tasks, but carry through.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) If you do not schedule your activities wisely you can meet with much opposition. An acquaintance could cause trouble.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make sure you follow directives wisely otherwise you will have trouble handling outside affairs that are vital. LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be sure you analyze the situation carefully before you make the changes you have in mind. Don't jump. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't get into an argument with one in business. Keep your word to your mate even though you don't want to. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Not a good day to try to get your points across to others in the business world. Take it easy. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You may have to make changes in work routines but it is best to go along with them now. AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You want to have fun today and this is fine provided you do not spend more than you can afford.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study the moods and wishes of those who dwell with you. If guests are invited in, avoid controversial topics.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be able to coordinate mental and physical abilities well. Your progeny could tackle just about anything and handle it very well. The interests will be numerous here, but teach to specialize and to complete whatever has been

NEW YORK (AP) — Basketball, a game for big men, will be sized down next summer when the International Basketball Association, a league restricted to players 6-foot-4 and under, begins its first season.

The IBA is the creation of four men, three former executives of now non-existent professional sports leagues and a Hollywood producer

Dennis Murphy, founder of the American Basketball Association which merged with the NBA in 1976 — Ben Hatskin, former commissioner of the World Hockey Association, which was absorbed by the NHL in 1980, Telly Mercury, a Canadian lawyer and former counsel for the WHA, and producer Austin 'Rocky" Kalish announced the formation of their radical league Monday.

'It's an idea whose time I think has come," said 6-foot-1 Boston Celtics Hall of Fame guard Bob Cousy, who will serve as a consultant to the league. "I've been hearing for 20 years that it's nice to see a dunk shot, but after you see a couple of 7-footers do it a couple of times, it becomes boring.

Royals 2, White Sox 0 Frank White's two-run homer with two outs in the eighth inning broke up a scoreless duel between Jose DeLeon and Scott Bankhead, 7-7. Bankhead combined with Bud Black on an eight-hit, two-walk shutout. Black retired five straight batters for his sixth save.

Angels 5, Yankees 3 Two home runs by Doug DeCinces, two RBI singles by Bob Boone and 3 2-3 innings of hitless relief helped John Candelaria raise his record to 7-2. Vern Ruhle, Gary Lucas and Donnie Moore followed Candelaria. Moore got the last three outs for his 17th save.

A's 8. Tigers 4 Mark McGwire hit his first major-league homer, Mickey Tettleton hit his second in two days, and Jose Rijo, 6-9, allowed five hits as the A's won their third straight by beating Detroit.

Veterans get axed as rosters trimmed to 50

By The Associated Press

Herman Edwards, who's recovery of "The Fumble" cost an opposing head coach and his offensive coordinator their jobs, got too old to do his any longer for the Philadelphia Eagles.

Ironically, Edwards, who played cornerback for the Eagles for nine years, will be remembered almost as frequently albeit bitterly - by New York Giants' fans, who watched in horror in 1978 as he returned a fumble that never should have been for a game-winning touchdown.

"But he got old and he can't do it anymore," Coach Buddy Ryan said Monday in explaining why he waived the 32-year-old Edwards, whom he praised for his contributions to the team.

"He had all the things that you look for in a football player. He was a positive leader, had a good attitude and experience," Ryan said.

"The Fumble" came as the Giants were leading the Eagles 12-10 with just 31 seconds left and needed only to fall on the ball to win. Instead, quarterback Joe Pisarcik missed connections with fullback Larry Csonka on a handoff, the ball came loose, Edwards picked it out of the air and ran 26 yards for a touchdown.

Offensive coordinator Bob Gibson, who called the play, was fired before the next game, and Head Coach John McVay was let go at the end of the season.

The play resulted in an innovation now used whenever the situation calls for a clock-killing play. A tailback is stationed 10 yards deep as a safety man in event of fumbled snap.

Edwards played in 135 consecutive games with Philadelphia and finished his Eagle career with 33 interceptions, just one short of Bill Bradley's team record.

All NFL teams, now limited to 60 players, must be down to 50 by 4 p.m. EDT today. The final cut to 45 comes next week. Saints Veteran quarterback Richard Todd, who spent eight seasons with the New York Jets before moving to New Orleans in 1984, got the ax from the Saints.

Todd, whom New Orleans obtained from the Jets for its first-round draft choice in 1984, lost his starting job last season. "Richard is a good quarterback who competed hard to be our number one quarterback," Saints Coach Jim Mora said. "However, at this time I felt that Bobby Hebert and Dave Wilson fit better into our plans than Richard did."

With the waiving of running back Charles Alexander, the entire starting backfield for Cincinnati's 1962 Super Bowl team is gone with the exception of quarterback Ken Anderson, who is now a backup The Bengals reduced their roster to 51 by placing eight players on waivers, including Alexander, a seven-year veteran who was the Bengala first-round draft choice from LSU in 1979.

The Bengals also announced they placed running back Stanley Wilson on injured reserve. Wilson, who is attempting to come back from an 18-month drug abuse suspension, is recovering from knee surgery.

New York thought it made a steal by taking offensive tackle Doug Williams -projected as a middle-to-high first-round pick — in the second round.

But the Jets, who had hoped Williams and first-round choice Mike Haight of Iowa would help solve their offensive line problems, cut the 6-foot-5, 290-pounder from Texas A&M.

Williams was "lacking in skills and judgment to play professional football." offensive line coach Dan Radakovich said

The Jets also cut their tight end Glenn Dennison, a former second-round pick, and last year's third-round choice, corner-back Donnie Elder. Bears Veteran wide receiver Brian Baschnagel, one of the Chicago's top receivers and kick returners in the team's leaner years, said he had "no regrets" after being cut.

"I knew it would be difficult making this team," said Baschnagel, who sat out the Bears' Super Bowl season after knee surgery. "The people who are important in this organization felt I was too old." Coach Mike Ditka indicated last week that Baschnagel was close to being cut because of his age, 32, and because of the number of young wide receivers in training camp.

'No slight to Brian. It's a numbers game," Ditka explained. "I have a tendency to go young over old."

Baschnagel's best year was 1961, when he caught 34 passes for 554 yards and three touchdowns. A third-round draft pick from Ohio State in 1976, Baschnagel was a leading tackler on special teams. But he had caught only 11 passes since 1982. Packers

Green Bay cut defensive end Jacki Cline and linebacker John Joyce, but former USFL players. They came to came late and never played in a gree

"Two things I really regret," Packers Coach Forrest Gregg said. "We didn't have the opportunity to see Jackie Cline and John Joyce in ballgames because of a numbers situation. But their two-game roster exemption is up."

Dolp Miami axed veteran return specialist and third-down receiver Tommy Vigorito, who showed flashes of brilliance in in 1982, hurt his knee a year later and misse almost two full seasons.

He averaged 10.5 yards per punt return, the second-best mark in team history. Linebacker John Corker, the USFL's defensive MVP in its first season of 1983, also was waived by Miami.

Broncos Chris Norman, Denver's regular punter last season, was waived.

Free-agent rookie Joe Dudek, the NCAA's leading scorer and third all-time leading rusher at Division III Plymouth State in New Hampshire, was placed on injured reserve by the Broncos.
