How's that?

Air scare

Q. What was the low flying aircraft that scared everyone in Sand Springs around 9 p.m. Aug. 25?

A. The source of the aircraft remains a mystery. Nancy Brownfield, secretary to Air Park manager Hal Boyd, said no one in the area, including Lubbock, reported anything unusual that week.

Roger Burch, general manager of Cap Rock Electric Cooperative said the company has hired a helicopter to photograph electric lines, but not in Sand Springs and not at night.

Lighter side

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — When guests at Dr. Anthony Geroulis' reunion asked each other "What's new?" they found the answer staring them in the face.

New noses, new figures and newly polished egos were the main topics of conversation as about 150 of Geroulis' patients gathered Monday night at his office to thank their plastic surgeon.

"To see everybody looking so good and feeling so good about themselves, it's almost like utopia," said Rich Kulisek, who had his nose straightened.

City sets flood loss at $2.6 million

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

Commercial, municipal and residential property in Big Spring sustained combined damage estimated at $2.67 million from the Aug. 30 flood and subsequent rains, city officials and engineers said Monday.

The estimate, compiled by civil engineers from the Lubbock firm of Parkhill Smith & Cooper, the Red Cross and city officials, does not include damage caused by current flooding in the city's east and west sides along Beals Creek and Union-Pacific Railroad.

City property damage totaled $1.3 million, according to Parkhill Smith & Cooper engineers Butch

Davis and Clayton Yeager. The preliminary damage estimates disclosed Monday will accompany fund applications.

The engineers added 15 percent contingency to the damage costs, listed as follows:

• Comanche Trail Park, where flooding destroyed fences, carried away tables and benches, overturned cement pillars and crumbled barbecue pits; damage estimated at $185,000.

• Goliad Street sustained $135,000 damage. Flood water crushed a culvert beneath the road, causing a partial collapse of the street. Because of a crack dissecting the pavement, engineers said the fill beneath the road's surface should be replaced and the road repaved.

• Repair of the intersection of Birdwell Lane and Phillips Street is estimated to cost $15,000.

• Flood damage to sediment ponds at the water treatment plant is listed at $23,000.

Flood continues to cause hardship

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

Hardship continued this morning for people and businesses in the flood-prone parts of town along Beals Creek as water pours from the spillway at Natural Dam Lake several miles west of Big Spring.

City officials said at a City Council work session Monday they can't say with certainty when the water will recede.

Water swamping the 600 to 1000 blocks of Third Street has risen somewhat since Monday, said Jerry Garrett, who's been monitoring water levels.

Flooding is still prevalent on the east end of town, near Second Street and Birdwell Lane. Ron Cocker of the Carpenter's Shop said water in that area has crept back a little since early this morning.

City Manager Mack Wofford guessed this morning the water is "down slightly from noon yesterday."

The police department is requesting motorists to avoid the areas of Second and Galveston Streets, West Third Street from the 600 to 1000 blocks, the 600 through 1000 blocks of West Second Street, and Second and Birdwell Lane.

There's potential for flood waters to rise as additional water moves into Beals Creek from Natural Dam Lake, according to police.

Of the flooding, Mayor Cotton Mize said: "This is something man does not really have jurisdiction over. We're doing all we can."

City Manager Mack Wofford reiterated Monday that water is

Reduced valuation results in tax rate jump

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

County property owners will pay 26 cents per $100 assessed valuation when they receive their tax notices next month, said county tax assessor and collector Dorothy Moore.

The four-cent tax rate increase was officially approved by county commissioners Monday afternoon during their meeting.

"I'm showing that a 26-cent tax rate will bring in about the same revenue as last year," said County Auditor Jackie Olson this morning.

The projected $3.4 million tax collection revenue will be added to an estimated $2.8 million carryover from this year's budget. The revenues will address a projected expenditures of $8.1 million in the 1986-87 fiscal budget, Olson said.

She said other departments are projected to collect an estimated $2 million in revenues next year.

Although the tax rate is being increased, county officials say that the action does not represent a tax increase. Rather, they explain, the action is in response to a decline of nearly $2 million in total taxable value of all property in the county.

This year's budget incorporates additional expenses of $400,000 for indigent health care mandated by the state and $240,000 of lost revenues previously provided by federal revenue sharing, said Commissioner Bill Crooker.

Besides raising the tax rate by four cents, each department was initially requested by commissioners to make cuts in their proposed budget.

Olson said this morning that commissioners withdrew that request after they recently revised the budget.

Before voting on the tax rate motion, commissioners approved annual salary hikes for some county employees.

Those employees include assistant district attorney Robert Morris who will be paid $28,000, up from $24,372; county attorney Tim Yeats who will be paid $35,000, up from $29,454; and computer programmer Gilbert Paredes who will be paid $18,969, up from $17,520.

Moore said earlier that the taxable value of all property in the county is $1,386,117,420, compared to last year's figure of $1,582,931,000.

White ready to take heat

AUSTIN (AP) — Renewing his call for a tax increase, Gov. Mark White is telling lawmakers he will take the political flak if they approve his plan.

"To those who try to blame you for what we do here, tell them we had to do it. Blame me," White said as he opened the second budget-balancing special session Monday.

"I'll defend it. I'll explain it," he said.

The governor said his proposal for a one-year, 1 1/2-cent sales tax increase is as necessary now as when lawmakers gathered for their first 30-day session on Aug. 6.

With the November election less than two months away, White acknowledged there could be fallout. But he predicted that the majority of Texans would applaud the courage of those who support higher taxes.

"I know what I am asking of you when I call for a temporary tax increase. I know it's a difficult choice," said White, who faces former Republican Gov. Bill Clements in his own re-election race.

Texans who value good schools, good roads and higher education will be among those praising

Gov. Mark White...says: "blame me" lawmakers, White said.

"We're going to be criticized by some who have no vision, or by those who put politics above the fiscal integrity of our state. We need a temporary tax increase to save education and build our future," he said.

White's program remains unchanged, calling for spending cuts first, then the increase in the sales tax from 4 1/4 cents to 5 1/4 cents for a year.

White said, however, that spending cuts alone won't erase the state budget deficit, which Comptroller Bob Bullock has estimated at more than $3 billion.

"We must come to grips with the numbers. They don't lie and they don't leave us much choice. The problem remains before us. It hasn't gone away," White said.

He praised House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, who, in recent days has said he would support a tax hike if all spending cuts and cash-management moves are made and the deficit remains.

Lewis' opposition to new taxes was cited by pro-tax lawmakers as the stumbling block that deadlocked the first special session.

"Let me be the first to acknowledge — and applaud — the responsibility and leadership you have shown by your statement... to support a temporary tax measure as soon as we reach agreement on the cuts," White told Lewis before shaking the speaker's hand.

The governor said the oil price slide — from near $30 per barrel last November to less than $10 this summer — has wreaked financial havoc across the state.

City to name counsel, give runway contract

City Council is expected to award a bid for reconstruction of crosswind runway 7-25 at McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark and name counsel to represent the city in its legal battle with city firefighters during the regular council meeting at 6:30 this evening.

The Texas Aeronautics Commission has granted Big Spring $94,000 for the project and the city has budgeted $75,000.

Work on the 50-foot portion of runway includes chipsealing, overlay work and the installation of new lights.

Airpark Superintendent Hal Boyd said he anticipated making recommendations on the bids. Three electrical and three runway bids were submitted. City Finance Director Tom Ferguson reported.

In other action tonight, Council is scheduled to award bids for employee uniforms, gasoline and diesel fuel.

The Council also will meet behind closed doors to discuss selection of an attorney to handle the lawsuit filed last week by the Big Spring Firemen's Relief and Retirement Fund.

The suit contends the city violated state law by taking 3 percent of the firefighter's salary to supplement money its obligated to set aside for firefighter retirement.

Other items slated on Council's agenda are:

• Consideration of a livestock permit for Tina Barnett and Joe F. Knapp.

• Discussion concerning Scenic Mountain at the request of Mariann Heffington.

• A public hearing and first reading of an ordinance vacating and abandoning a 15-foot by 120-foot portion of 17th Street in the Park Hill Addition.

• First reading of an ordinance providing for as many as five golf tournaments with fees waived and the golf pro paying $100 for each tournament.

coming into Big Spring via the Natural Dam Lake spillway, a slot cut into the dam to allow a more controlled flow of water from the lake.

Wofford emphasized the Colorado River Municipal Water District has no option but to let water pour from the spillway as increasing volumes of water feeds the lake from a network of northern draws.

"It's not something they (the CRMWD) want to do," he said. "They're doing it as a safety measure."

Had the spillway not been constructed in July, there's no doubt the natural dam would have breached and Big Spring's flooding would have been catastrophic, said several councilmen.

The limited flooding, however, may prove catastrophic for some local businesses inundated by water.

"This will knock a hole in the business," said Harley Davidson Shop manager Howard Walker, whose business was flooded Monday by five to six inches of water.

"I was hanging on by my fingernails for the last few years," he said. "This might do it."

Walker said he could not estimate how many tools and motorcycle parts were damaged by the water that washed into an oil drain and created a slick throughout the shop.

The Walker home, located behind the cycle shop at 908 W. Third St., also had flood waters in every room. He said he planned to stay at the home, despite its location. "It'll be seven or eight years before it does this again," he said of the water soaking his home.

Mattie Taylor of Jack and Mattie's Cafe, 901 W. Third St., said her business has been hurt since Saturday because of flooded streets keeping customers away. "Saturday is our busiest day and we didn't do anything," she said.

Flooding to Union Pacific Railroad, which runs along Beals Creek, has delayed freight shipments.

Rail flow through Big Spring is expected to begin again Wednesday, said Union Pacific spokesman Mark Davis of Fort Worth.

Train personnel here began clearing equipment from the rail yard on Friday, Davis said, and submerged tracks were officially closed on Sunday.

The request to close the tracks was made by local personnel "who kept an eye on the situation as things progressed," Davis said.

The freight company did not reroute any of its train traffic which normally travels through

Big Spring, Davis said.

Naomia Rushing, 105 Presidio St., said Monday afternoon that water was entering her home through the back door. She said her family has been forced to go to her daughter's home.

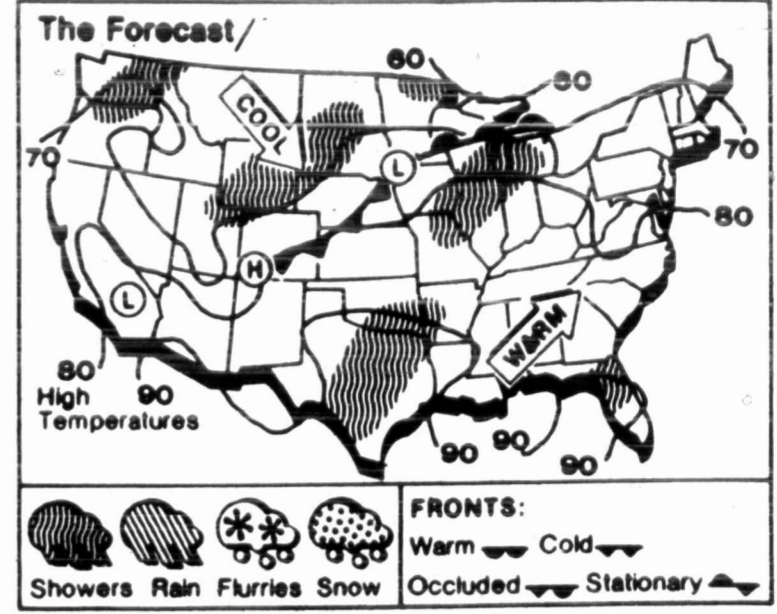

The Red Cross is offering shelter and assistance for victims of flooding, said Marianne Brown an agency relief coordinator.

Any assistance from the Red Cross does not need to be repaid, she added. The Red Cross can be contacted by calling the police department, she said.

Further flood relief is available from the Howard County Ministerial Relief Fund, established to assist victims who need to replace floor covering.

The fund is taking contributions at local banks and churches. Checks can be made payable to Howard County Ministerial Fellowship.

Damage to streets citywide is listed at $40,000. Rushing streams of water have caused pavement to crack and heave, leaving many streets full of chunks of pavement and potholes.

The wastewater treatment plant suffered about $15,000 in damages, caused when water broke a dike at the plant.

Rebuilding Comanche Lake Dam, breached by cresting waters Aug. 30, is estimated to cost $900,000. To reconstruct the dam as it stood would cost $300,000, according to the engineers. However, new and more rigid state standards make that option impossible.

Assistant City Manager Hal Boyd set damage to residential property at $39,600, based on an average of $600 damage to 66 homes. Boyd said some houses sustained considerably more than $600 damage, while others had less. The Red Cross was instrumental in making this damage assessment, Boyd said.

Business devastation was set at about $1.33 million, Boyd said. Nine businesses averaged damages of $148,000, he said. Highland Pontiac, one of the hardest hit businesses, sustained $5 million damage, according to Boyd and business manager Linda Sanders. Twelve cars there were destroyed by flooding, Sanders said.

Besides the enormous expense of repairing flood damage, other flood-related problems have surfaced, said City Manager Mack Wofford.

Garbage collection in alleys has been disrupted, he said, because of wash-out and mud. He estimated 25 percent of the city is affected by eroded and mired alleys.

Wofford said a grader will be called in to smooth alleys so trash collections can be resumed.

The city is making a broad-based funding request to the governor's office to help defray costs of repairing city streets and facilities. Federal money also is being requested, he said last week.

Councilman Russ McEwen raised the possibility of a bond election if state or federal money is not forthcoming.

Police beat

Guns, garden tools stolen

Burglars stole a lawnmower, a safe, records, three guns and a weed cutter belonging to Edward A. Welch of Augusta, Ga. from a storage room at 1100 E. Third St. between 5:30 p.m. Sunday and 8 a.m. Monday.

George Crawford, 2715 Larry St., told police Monday afternoon that someone stole a $175 tire and rim set from outside his residence at 3 a.m. Saturday.

Rosa Garcia, 1507 Bluebird

St., told police Monday night that someone damaged her car's sun roof with a rock at 9:15 p.m. Monday.

The Kwiki Store reported that a $100 forged check was cashed there at 5 p.m. Monday.

Margaret Ann Vanderbuilt, 21, 1002 N. Main St., was arrested Monday on a tampering with government records warrant. She was transferred to county jail and released on $3,000 bond.

Charges and minor injuries result from two-car mishap

Two local men were injured Monday in a two-vehicle accident on Interstate-20 ramp 178.

Treated for minor injuries and released from Scenic Mountain Medical Center emergency room were Marshall James Spruill, 60, P.O. Box 1812, Snyder Highway and Mike Marquez, 30, 810 N.W. Eighth St.

Spruill was the driver of one of the cars involved in the accident and Marquez was a passenger in a vehicle driven by Israel Muniz, 22, 1105 Lamar St.

According to the police accident report, Muniz was driving east on the south service road of Interstate-20 while Spruill was going west shortly before 6 p.m. Muniz attempted to turn left on Interstate-20 when he collided with Spruill, who failed to yield right-of-way to Muniz, according to police.

Spruill was cited for failure to yield-right-of-way and Muniz was arrested on suspicion of a second offense of driving without insurance.

"Our people are persevering through the hardest time of their lives," he said.

Saying legislators made progress during their first 30-day special session, he suggested that the so-far stalemated House and Senate will agree on a spending cut plan totaling between $550 million and $600 million.

But he rejected recommendations by conservative lawmakers who have proposed putting off a tax increase until the Legislature meets in January for its next regular session.

"Some people suggest we wait until the spring of 1987 to pass a tax bill. But we can't solve this problem by putting it off, waiting until then and rolling the problems of this session into the next Legislature," White said.

Babies fed at work OK

WASHINGTON — Women who want to breast-feed their children at work can count on support for the practice from most of their colleagues, U.S. Surgeon General C. Everett Koop says.

Koop joined leaders of the Healthy Mothers, Healthy Babies Coalition on Monday in releasing a national survey that found almost three-quarters of adults believe breast-feeding is the best way to feed a baby.

A majority of those polled also felt that employers should provide facilities for women to collect milk or nurse their babies at work.

Budget game played

WASHINGTON — Local leaders and citizens representing a wide variety of viewpoints will advise Congress and the administration on balancing the budget by playing a game called "Debtbusters."

Small groups plan to gather Wednesday in all 50 state capitals to hammer out their own compromises, weighing such priorities as Reagan's "Star Wars" defense program against cutbacks in highway and mass transit spending.

Once each state group has agreement, the results will be compiled into a "People's Budget" by the Roosevelt Center for American Policy Studies, a non-partisan foundation in Washington which invented the game last year to educate people about the tough task of budget drafting.

Teachers end strikes

Teachers in Pennsylvania and Illinois districts have agreed to end walkouts that have kept 1,500 students home, while strikes affecting nearly 100,000 students in seven states continued.

About 6,100 public school teachers were on strike Monday in Pennsylvania, Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Rhode Island, Washington and Massachusetts.

Court hearings were scheduled for today in Rhode Island, where 174 teachers are on strike, and in Massachusetts, where 403 instructors have defied a court order to return to work.

Moyers criticizes CBS

NEW YORK — Bill Moyers, commentator for "CBS Evening News," has criticized CBS News for yielding to "the encroachment of entertainment values" on the news business.

"Not only were those values invited in, they were exalted," Moyers said in an interview in this week's editions of Newsweek, explaining why he was leaving CBS News after his contract expires in November.

"The line between entertainment and news was steadily blurred," Moyers said. "Our center of gravity shifted from the standards and practices of the news business to show business."

Nine states vote in primaries

Voters cast their ballots in nine states today for primary candidates who encompass the old and new of American politics, including the first of a new generation of Kennedys running in Maryland and a seven-time presidential candidate seeking a House seat in Minnesota.

Today's primaries — the biggest round of the year — will set up November contests for Senate in seven states and for governor in all nine. Of the incumbents, only one faces a serious threat from within his party: Minnesota Gov. Rudy Perpich.

Perpich drew four challengers in the Democratic primary, including a determined effort by St. Paul Mayor George Latimer to foil the colorful Perpich's plans for a third term.

Another well-known Minnesotan, Harold Stassen, is on the ballot again, seeking a congressional seat at age 79. The one-time "Boy Governor" is unopposed for the Republican nomination in the 4th District, now represented by Democrat Bruce Vento. Stassen served three terms as Minnesota's governor and made seven unsuccessful bids for the White House.

Robert F. Kennedy's eldest daughter, Kathleen Kennedy Townsend, 35, makes the political debut for her generation of the family in Maryland's 2nd District. She faces two other Democrats. The winner will try to unseat Republican Rep. Helen Delich Bentley in November.

The retirement of GOP Sen. Charles Mathias triggered a changing of the guard in Maryland, drawing Gov. Harry Hughes, Reps. Barbara Mikulski and Michael Barnes and 16 other candidates into the race. Ms. Mikulski was the pre-primary favorite in the polls among the Democrats; Linda Chavez, a former White House aide, led the GOP field.

The race to succeed Hughes is between Baltimore's popular mayor, William Donald Schaefer, and Attorney General Stephen Sachs on the Democratic side. The GOP fielded just one candidate for governor, state lawmaker Thomas Mooney.

In Arizona, Sen. Barry Goldwater and Gov. Bruce Babbitt both are leaving office. Goldwater to retire after 37 years in politics including a losing White House bid in 1964 and Babbitt to explore a run for the presidency.

Japan joins Star Wars

TOKYO — The Cabinet today announced its decision to allow Japanese private firms and public institutions to take part in the research phase of the U.S. "Star Wars" space weapons program.

Japan's main opposition party immediately assailed the decision as an outright breach of a parliamentary resolution opposing the deployment of space-based arms.

Defense Minister Yuko Kurihara said after a special Cabinet session that the government had decided to go ahead with talks with the United States, with the understanding Japan would participate in the project's research activities only.

Post office bombed

PARIS — A previously unknown group called Partisans of Right and Freedom today claimed responsibility for the bombing of a post office in Paris city hall. The blast killed a postal worker and injured 19 people.

In a statement left in the mail box of a Western news agency in Beirut, Lebanon, the group also said it was responsible for all other terrorist attacks in France since December 1985.

The group criticized another organization, the Committee for Solidarity with Arab Political Prisoners and the Middle East, for claiming it carried out some of the bombings.

Italian consulate taken

CAIRO, Egypt — An Arab with a pistol took over the Italian consulate today and held the consul and three co-workers hostage for two hours before surrendering to Egyptian commandos.

The man left the downtown consulate building surrounded by several armed Egyptian soldiers. He was put into an armored car and driven away.

One of the commandos, who refused to give his name, said, "We didn't have to overpower him. He just gave himself up."

Ugo Colombo, second secretary at the Italian Embassy, said the man, apparently an Egyptian, was "affected by mental illness ... mentally deranged" and that the incident had no political overtones.

Jihad kidnaps American

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Two gunmen today kidnapped the American director of a Lebanese school as he was driving from his home in Moslem west Beirut to play golf, police and colleagues said.

In addition to Sutherland, three Americans are missing in Lebanon. Islamic Jihad has claimed responsibility for kidnapping all four and accused the hostage of spying.

U.S. Embassy officials identified the victim as Frank Herbert Reed, 53, formerly of Malden, Mass. Embassy spokesman Christopher P. English said Reed is director of the private Lebanese International School in west Beirut's Sanayeh district.

OPEC may get back in control

Awash in cheap gasoline, American motorists are not likely to fret over the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' struggle to make a comeback. The oil cartel is, however, having greater success than at any time since its collapse under the twin pressures of worldwide energy competition and conservation measures that yielded benefits beyond all expectations.

The most ominous development is OPEC's decision to cut production by 20 percent, a move made possible by the unexpected collaboration of Saudi Arabia and Iran.

A cutback in supply, the OPEC ministers believe, will force prices to escalate as they did during the disastrous oil shocks of the 1970s.

For the moment, at least, unity among the oil producers even transcends the 13 OPEC members. The Soviet Union, for example, has reduced its exports to the West by 100,000 barrels a day, at OPEC's behest. Mexico has announced a 150,000-barrel cutback.

Against this backdrop, new U.S. oil production is declining dramatically because falling prices have made costly exploration unprofitable.

During the last year, American oil companies have curbed exploration outlays by 50 percent. Over time, this curtailment will boost U.S. demand for imported petroleum.

While the world's oil supply has been shrinking, consumption has been expanding.

Abundant coal and nuclear power, once viewed as the way to make America energy independent, can't compete with today's low-priced petroleum for generating electricity. Other alternatives such as solar and wind energy fare even more poorly.

Meantime, gas-guzzling cars are back in style, spurred by the Reagan administration's relaxation of rules mandating smaller-sized fleets.

Cheaper gasoline, as well as terrorism abroad, have produced a resurgence of the family vacation by auto. Studies also show that motorists, lulled by the sharp decrease in gasoline costs, are wasting additional fuel by driving faster.

Sooner or later, rising demand and falling supplies will converge to trigger higher prices. When that happens, OPEC may find itself back in the driver's seat, manipulating the market to the detriment of the U.S. economy and those of other oil-consuming nations.

Drinking comments bother middle

To the editor:
I am 17 years old, and a midshipman at the Texas Tech Naval ROTC Unit. I am writing concerning the new drinking age article that was printed in your paper on Sunday, Aug. 31.

I was appalled to read a quote by Travis Collins, who said, "I'm in the Guard, and I've been to basic in Missouri. I'm old enough to go to war and prison, but I can't drink. And I know a lot of people who feel that way," he said.

That, sir, is the biggest copout I've ever heard. They must not have taught Mr. Collins much in basic training.

Drinking impairs the judgment to a degree — especially when the bullets start flying, and you're in some foxhole scared to death, craving for some booze. You're going to get killed or get someone killed. That is why Navy ships are "dry."

I would not want to fight with him. Nor do I know of any officer, cadet, or midshipman who would.

You may say I am exaggerating, but I'm not. People (teenagers and 20 year olds) act like it's the end of the world if they can't drink. This is how far our society has gone down.

Teenagers say: "I can't get drugs so let's get drunk." I've never done drugs nor have I been drunk, but I know this because I've seen it.

People also say how our military is on drugs, but remember the military is only a reflection of society. I also have a great social life and I do it without drinking or drugs — plus I remember what went on!

I am a Christian. And if you want to get a natural high, I suggest you get to know God personally. If you go to war or prison, booze will not keep you alive. Only God will.

New tax bill spoils some marital fun

When all the details of the tax reform bill are worked out, it looks as if business entertaining, as we have known it, will never be the same. Under the new rules you can still eat on the government for 80 percent of the meal — but you have to prove that you really did discuss business with the client. The conversation must be substantive and not just for goodwill purposes. If you try to deduct extravagantly without proof of the seriousness of the conversation, you will be fined.

This isn't like the old days when men and women took their spouses to dinner and did not hesitate to write them off as legitimate business contacts.

This scene has been repeated many times in one form or another:

"Who do you want me to be tonight?" Bea Hofstadter asked her husband, Milton, as they entered the Cafe de Paris.

"You can be Gerry Buckingham, president of the Bayou Kite Co.,"

"Why can't I be Ira Harris of Salomon Brothers?"

"You were Ira last week. We have to mix it up just in case the IRS does an audit."

Bea and Milton were seated and the headwaiter gave them a menu.

She said, "Can I go all out?"

"Of course you can," Milton replied. "Gerry is a very important client. He buys thousands of spoils of string each month. He has to be treated like a king."

"Do I have to talk business or can we just eat?"

Milton replied, "I think we ought to talk SOME business just so that the taxpayer doesn't think he's paying for our dinner."

"Remember the time you took me to Las Vegas and I was Clint Bronzestaster of the Freeport Cement and Weathervane Co.?"

Milton said, "Will you be quiet. Somebody could be listening. If you keep talking like this, I'm not going to deduct you any more."

"You're such a worrywart, Milton," Bea said. "I'll never forget the night you wrote me off as David Jaffe, your accountant, and then suddenly hid under the table."

"What would you have done if Jaffe walked into the restaurant just as I was paying the check?"

"So what? You were with your wife, and he was dining with his."

"How could I claim to have dinner with him, when he and his wife were eating alone in the same restaurant?"

"Maybe he was taking his wife to dinner and saying it was you."

"David wouldn't do that," Milton said. "He's too chicken. The reason I ducked under the table was that I was afraid when I sent him my bill for dinner, he would see I deducted him for a meal I never had with him. David doesn't have a sense of humor."

"Forget David. Where are you going to take me for our anniversary?"

"How about Bermuda?"

"That would be fun. Who am I as far as the IRS is concerned?"

"How about Norman Plankton of Plankton, Witchazel Advertising? I no one would say a word if I said I took him to Bermuda."

"I hate Norman Plankton, and if I have to be him it will ruin my trip."

"Well, who do you want to go as?"

"If I'm going to be deducted for the whole business trip, I want to go in style. I'd like to be Lee Iacocca."

Milton protested, "What would I be doing taking Lee Iacocca to Bermuda?"

"You could always say you took him because he promised you a good buy on a Plymouth station wagon."

Corporate 'whistle blower' rewarded with retribution

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — The whistle blower is our principal protection against the designs of public and corporate wrongdoers. He tries to protect the public from fraud and inefficiency; yet more often than not, his reward is retribution.

This is what has happened to Patrick Crosby, who was hired by Hughes Aircraft Co., in 1981 to design sophisticated computer systems with military possibilities. Crosby was fired last year, ostensibly because he failed to do his job. But Crosby says he was fired because he was a whistle blower; he says the company set him up for dismissal by giving him an impossible assignment.

While whistle blowers who work for the federal government have a tough enough time, those who work in private industry have it even worse. Their protection against retaliation by the higher-ups they expose is virtually non-existent.

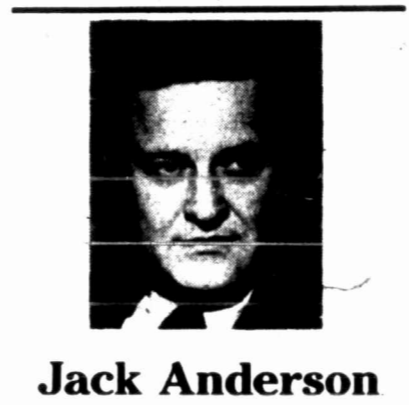

Crosby's criticisms went to the very heart of a defense contractor's mission: to provide top quality for a fair price. Crosby complained, in writing, that Hughes had quality-control problems on high-tech computer systems where quality is absolutely essential, and he accused the company of charging the taxpayers for expenses that weren't directly related to its Pentagon contracts.

For obscure technical reasons, his case is being adjudicated by the Labor Department.

At least on Hughes executive has admitted under oath during an administrative law hearing that mischarging may have occurred. Crosby also complained about quality control in memos and reports that he sent to company brass.

Although he had been getting high job-performance ratings, Crosby's persistent nagging evidently didn't sit well with company executives. They began collecting information provided by self-described private investigator Jim Rosoff, who befriended Crosby and then informed on him to Hughes management for reasons that are unclear.

A Hughes spokesman told our associate Donald Goldberg that Rosoff was not hired by the company, and had no contract with Hughes. Indeed, there is no evidence that the company ever paid Rosoff a dime for his information on Crosby.

But company documents obtained by the Government Accountability Project — a Washington-based non-profit group that helps whistle blowers and which is now representing Crosby before the Labor Department — leave little doubt that company executives listened carefully to Rosoff. For example:

• A Hughes security official told one of his gumshoes to telephone Rosoff. According to an internal company memo dated Jan. 7, 1985, Rosoff warned the company that Crosby had retained an American Civil Liberties Union lawyer. "Crosby is dangerous as he is working with an activist," Rosoff said, according to the memo.

In the same memo, Rosoff was quoted describing Crosby and a friend as "odd balls," "political activists" and "queer as three-dollar bills."

• Several weeks later, according to a memo that went to at least half a dozen Hughes officials, Rosoff called the company security people to warn them that Crosby had aroused some interest on Capitol Hill. Rosoff said "he would see 'us' (Hughes) next week and give a deposition (against Crosby) if it was still wanted," according to the memo.

• A memo dated Feb. 11, 1985, described how Rosoff said he had begun "to play games with Crosby's head" by lying to Crosby about his situation at Hughes and by telling him that the company knew he was an informant.

• Rosoff had dozens of telephone conversations with Hughes officials between December 1984 and March 1985, when Crosby was fired. During this time, according to Crosby, Rosoff had tried to persuade him to resign from Hughes.

Footnote: The administrative law judge considering Crosby's case recently held that he lacked jurisdiction to rule. The matter will now be taken up by the secretary of labor.

CRIME WATCH: An internal FBI report gives a rare inside look at the G-men's attempts to crack down on the "Japanese Mafia," known as Yakuza. The FBI is investigating Yakuza operations in New York, California, Hawaii and the Pacific Trust Territories. While Japanese authorities estimate the Yakuza take in $5 billion a year in Japan, there is no estimate on the haul being made in the United States. The FBI's report complains that Japanese officials are strangely reluctant to share criminal intelligence information in an effort to crack down on the Yakuza.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: After six years of slaughter, Iran and Iraq have turned to a hitherto exempt source of cannon fodder for the Persian Gulf war: young men studying in Western countries at government expense. Both Iranian and Iraqi embassies in Britain and elsewhere have been told to cut off tuition and living expenses for "perpetual" students who have been editing the draft for years.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Africa has historically been the home of plagues and pestilence on a gigantic scale, but the past few years have been truly catastrophic. Drought and famine killed thousands. Locusts have swept in to devour what pitiful little was left. Now toxic gases have erupted from the Earth and killed hundreds more. Meanwhile, man-made carnage has wiped out thousands in South Africa and in the Sudan, where rebels deliberately shot down a civilian airliner, killing 61 people. When we consider the horrors visited upon Africa, it is humbling to contemplate the relatively trivial problems we have to face in this blessed country.

A way to help deal with their problems is to place their children into foster homes until their problems can be mended. She added that children who need foster homes are representative of all races and ages. Some children are physically handicapped and many have been abused or neglected. In other business, the club elected officers for 1986-'87. New officers are Wanda Lee, president; Ruth Morton, vice president; Gloria Kappes, secretary; Lou Vincent, treasurer; and Myrl Soles, council delegate. Nine members attended and Eloise Wynn, along with Toni Rash, were guests. The group will bake and serves six cakes to a unit of the Big Spring State Hospital on Sept. 17. ### Buildup occurs on artery grafts after surgery

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband is living well with his artery bypass. He had it three years ago. The doctor told him that if he had done the surgery today, he would have used the balloon catheter method of removing the buildup in the original artery. Which made us think, can plaque build up in the grafted vessel just as in his original one? And if so, could the balloon technique be used on the graft? — H.S.

Dr. Donohue

Yes, the grafted arteries can develop buildup, and it is possible, in some cases, to use the balloon method of pushing the plaque into artery walls. That is only in certain cases where the new buildup has occurred relatively soon (five years) after the transplant surgery. If the new artery has been in place more than five years, then the risk is too great that the balloon method might cause a bit of the plaque to break off and travel

I think air pockets is a bad description for diverticulosis. A diverticulum looks more like a small grape-like protrusion through the wall of the intestine. I don't know for sure what is causing your pain, but if you have diverticulosis, that might be the source. Diverticula (the pockets) produce pain when they become blocked. Report your pain first of all.

I don't know the purpose of your Maalox. It is a great antacid, and it might act as a laxative as well, but fiber will do more to help your diverticulosis. Keeping stools soft is a way to control diverticulosis. I have to repeat the old bran story here.

Bran is an excellent fiber. Get some miller's bran and add it to your food. A couple or three teaspoons daily is good starting dosage. Then you gradually increase until you notice the results. That may take up to three tablespoons a day.

If you don't increase gradually, though, you're likely to increase gas formation. You'll swear that the cure is worse than the disease. The booklet "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You" might be helpful. Others can order by writing me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1.00.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Is it true that grapefruit can cancel out the calories from other food and permit you to lose weight that way? — Mrs. L.R.

I know of no scientific basis for that.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Turnip greens — are they high in calcium? — A.L.

A cup provides about 250 milligrams of calcium — and only 30 calories. A good source.

Gas line found that leaked fumes

GAINESVILLE — Oil company crews said they would attempt to repair a ruptured underwater gas line that leaked noxious fumes across North Texas and sent 14 people to the hospital for treatment.

The fumes, which leaked from a buried pipeline near Oklahoma and blanketed an area as far south as Denton County, dissipated Monday, authorities said.

A specially-trained diver today was to probe the Red River — swollen by recent rains — to try to find the line.

The mercaptan gas escaped when a leak developed in an 8-inch pipe owned by Amoco Pipeline Co about five miles north of Dexter. Officials with the company and with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency said the rupture posed no immediate health threat. However, the gas that escaped is considered toxic in high concentrations or if it is mixed with water.

Lucas' confession inconsistent

EL PASO — Henry Lee Lucas' confession to the ax slaying of an elderly woman was inconsistent only once, a witness testified during a pretrial hearing for the man who once claimed to have killed more than 300 people.

Lucas, who has since recanted his scores of confessions but faces a capital murder charge in El Paso, said he entered the home of Librada Apodaca through an unlocked kitchen door on May 27, 1983, the night the 72-year-old woman was axed to death, said El Paso Police Detective Benito Perez. Evidence showed the intruder entered the home through a window.

Perez was among the first witnesses testifying in the last round of pretrial motions before state District Judge Brunson Moore. Attorneys expect 350 witnesses to testify during the hearing, which started Monday and is expected to last up to 10 weeks.

Police pose as lawyers as ploy

HOUSTON — A man jailed on a narcotics charge thought he was talking to two lawyers in his jail cell, but the men were actually Houston police officers, the inmate's attorney says.

Harris County District Attorney John B. Holmes said Monday he understood only one police officer accompanied another person into the jail cell posing as an attorney for that person, not the inmate.

"There's nothing illegal about it," he said.

Defense attorney Dan Gerson said his client, Miguel Cortez, and common-law wife, Bridget Sparrow, thought they were talking to attorneys in the Harris County Jail last week, but both men were police officers trying to get evidence.

The two officers also talked to Ms. Sparrow another time at the home of a friend who apparently was a police informant, Gerson said.

Biggest fine given to adult theater

SAN ANTONIO — An adult bookstore and theater were hit with the largest civil fine ever assessed for violating the city code, causing prosecutors here to hail their victory.

City attorney Lowell Denton said the fines against Video World and its operators, Elliot Garner and Janet Campbell, who were fined individually, make it clear that penalties can be substantial and should serve as a warning to other city code violators.

The new state law makes it possible for cities to fine violators up to $1,000 a day for each day they violate a city code once notice of that violation is given.

Video World was fined $231,000 Monday and ordered closed by retired Judge Solomon Casseb, who heard the case which was prosecuted under a new state law that was pushed by city officials.

Texas Pan Am victims arrive home

CORPUS CHRISTI — A Kingsville woman cried and hugged her 18-year-old son after his safe arrival at the airport here, four days after he survived a bloody massacre during a hijack attempt on an airliner in Pakistan.

"I feel very happy today," K. Tharmasangary said as she hugged her son, T. Wijayasangary in the airport lobby Monday. "I'm just thrilled to have him back."

In Corpus Christi, Wijayasangary said, "I didn't expect to be alive."

The weary-looking youth said he plans to "sleep for a long time."

Also arriving safely in Texas Monday was Purnima Hardikar, 35, who was reunited with her husband in Austin.

"I said, 'That's it, that's the end. I'm never going to see anybody again,'" Ms. Hardikar recalled. "It was just lucky that some of us escaped. It was awful."

Her husband Subhash said, "After the indiscriminate shooting, we didn't know what happened to my wife. We just crossed our fingers. There was nothing else we could do."

Seven convicted of racketeering

SAN ANTONIO — Seven South Texas men were convicted of federal racketeering conspiracy charges stemming from a drug trafficking investigation known as "Cash Crop," in which prosecutors contended 250,000 pounds of marijuana were smuggled into Texas from Mexico from 1980 to 1985.

Seven others were convicted only of conspiracy charges and seven were acquitted of all charges.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Charles Lewis of Houston said the jury on Monday convicted the defendants he considered to be at the core of the case.

Those convicted of conspiracy to operate a criminal enterprise included Jesus Carrillo Barraza, 40, of San Antonio; Sam Barnett, 34, and Julian Vera, 38, both of Edinburg; Jose Luis Cantu, 37, of McAllen; and Milton Jones, 38, and Juan A. Rodriguez, 36, both of Humble.

Pilot and special plane are flying high

By CYNTHIA TORRES CRUZ
Denton Record-Chronicle

DENTON — The engine was started, the seat belts were buckled, the canopy was shut. Excellent flying conditions complimented the pilot's expertise and created a smooth ascent into the cloudless, sunny skies over the Denton Airport.

Shortly after takeoff, Frank Strickler began to demonstrate the acrobatic maneuvers that typify the SIAI Marchetti SF-260's abilities.

Straight flight into a left, then a right 90-degree turn, with the wing tip vertical to the ground. Climbing flight straight up to the heavens. Downward flight, destination earth. A 360-degree horizontal roll and finally, a 360-degree vertical loop.

Definitely, not a typical flight — not an ordinary airplane.

"It's known as the fastest, lightest, single engine airplane that a civilian can get his hands on," said Strickler, president of Fox 51 Ltd., located at the Denton Airport. "No other unsuper-charged airplane comes close to it. It's recognized throughout the world and possessed by a fortunate few."

And of the fortunate few, Strickler is one. The American Airlines instructor-pilot worked his way through school as a flight instructor and joined the Air Force. In 1977, he moved in as a Denton Airport tenant to pursue his "avocation, passion or hobby."

In 1980, Fox 51 Ltd. became the sole civilian outlet for the Marchetti SF-260s and 40 of the 93 airplanes are privately owned by civilians.

The sleek, Italian-manufactured aircraft, predominantly used by 27 small government military air forces including those of Italy, Belgium and Ireland, is used to train their fighter pilots, Strickler said.

He also added that three airlines are also using them to train their pilots.

But, the Marchetti SF-260 has gained a new market — civilians who are attracted to its speed, performance, well-built structure and military history, he said.

Bankers, neurosurgeons, attorneys and retired military men comprise the newest buyers of the plane which comes in brown or green military camouflage colors. A red Marchetti SF-260 with blue stripes was stored in a nearby hangar. Strickler said many buyers choose to repaint their planes.

"It's very special in every aspect of its characteristics." And, he added with pride and affection, "It flies like a Ferrari drives."

For Strickler, planes have been a life-long interest, starting at childhood and now most evident at his office. The dark paneled walls, barely visible, are covered with plaques and an interesting array of airplane wall hangings. "It all got started as a casual, relaxing hobby and it has gotten away from me," he said. "It's entertaining, challenging and agonizing at the same time."

In the past years, he's tested planes for several clients around the world. He also completed a two-year contract when nine F-51 Mustang Fighter planes were reassembled into six and he and other pilots flew them from El Salvador to the United States in two weeks.

In 1981, several Marchettis were flown from Milan to Greenland and New York to Denton — despite the forces of nature's challenging winds, snow and ice.

"It's a challenge," he said, "but there's also adventure and the romance of flying."

And that romance of flying is the reason why he's devoted his interest to the more exotic aircraft, such as the Mustang F-51 fighter plane in the hangar undergoing a 100-hour inspection.

"These attract more attention than anything else. They are the finest airplanes of World War II, known for their horse power, performance, history and romance," he said with expertise.

Earlier, it had required all the strength four men could muster up to carry off an 11-foot, 700-pound propeller which needed an overhaul.

The F-51s' history has made them collector's items, requiring expert mechanics who provide extra attention to the most minute detail. "New mechanics don't have the experience to handle these," he said. "They are a big responsibility because they are irreplaceable right now."

The Mustang F-51 fighter plane is known for winning the air war over Europe during World War II and was also used in Korea, he said. In 1959, the National Guard phased them out and in 1984, the Dominican Republic was the last user of the plane.

"Our government gavethem to everyone in the world to build their air force," he said of the F-51, which is now one of the most prestigious planes.

Today, the majority are in museums and only 68 are flying. "No matter how much money you have, they aren't available," he added.

Stickler describes the technology of the Mustang F-51 fighter plane as "state of the art" and an achievement for 1936 and 1937.

Today, there is achievement in mastering the tools and techniques that restore the planes to their original state. And gratification comes when the ground falls away.

Crossroads Chalk Talk

Crossroads Country football teams broke even in their first week of non-district play, ending with a 4-4-1 record.

Stanton, Forsan, Klondike and Borden County all came away with wins while Grady, Coahoma, Sands and Garden City were saddled with losses. Colorado City finished in a 13-13 tie with Slaton.

Here is what area coaches had to say about last week's encounters and this week's games.

Tony Stricklin, Garden City, on his team's 50-0 shellacking by Paducah.

"We are learning, but that's a tough way to learn. They were fast and enormous. They looked like a college team getting off the bus."

"They scored just about all their touchdowns on big plays. On the other hand we had absolutely no offense. We did find some young kids that are capable of playing good football."

"Grandfalls (next opponent) is a much improved team from last year. They are going to be tough. They are more on our level, but we'll have to play well in order to win."

Tom Ham, Klondike, on his team's 52-30 win over Amherst, its first win in two seasons.

"Our kids hung in there tough. Even when we were losing last year, they never quit. It's paying off this year. The kids kind of like playing six-man football now."

"We built up a 33-6 halftime lead and they came out and scored some points on us in the second half. They used the spread offense and their quarterback's running and passing gave us problems. We lost our quarterback (Kurt Tidwell) for two weeks with a shoulder injury. We'll have to start a sophomore (Steve Cope) in his place."

JOE BOND
...Borden County

JAN EAST
...Forsan

Joe Bond, Borden County, on his team's 27-13 win over McCaulley.

"Our defense played a pretty good game. They came up with two turnovers and turned them into touchdowns. We also held them on fourth and goal situations twice. Our starting quarterback (Shannon Bond) didn't play for two quarters because he got hurt."

"Sands (next opponent) is very tough. They played Jayton a good game and we're expecting a tough game from them. They have a good running back in Jay Fryar and several big kids."

Dale Ruth, Stanton, on his team's 26-6 drubbing of Seagraves.

"Our kids put forth a real good effort. They were ready to play and a lot of that comes from the experience they got last season."

"We ran the Wishbone well. We got good balance from our three running backs. One had 86 yards and the other two gained 68 and 65 yards. We tried to stay away from our passing game because the field was too slick."

"I'm satisfied with our defensive play. Derek Sorley had an unreal game at linebacker. He was all over the field."

"Coahoma (next opponent) is going to be tough, it's always a tough ballgame. Coahoma and Stanton have always been rivals. Both teams will be up for this game."

Tom Ramsey, Colorado City, on his team's 13-13 tie with Slaton.

"We had some players that came through and played well. We stunk the place up in the first quarter though. We were down 13-0. We helped them all we could. Both of their scores came after turnovers. They had to drive 10 and 20 yards for their scores. We had to drive 92 and 80 yards for ours."

JOHN BLAIR
...Sands

TOM HAM
...Klondike

"But we outplayed them for three quarters. We dominated the stats. I was glad the way we came back."

"Seminole (next opponent) looks like a much improved team. They have some fine players coming back at the skill positions. They are a lot like Slaton. They'll try to line up and run over you."

Mike Mathis, Grady, on the Wildcats 52-6 loss to Trent.

"It was a tough game, that's for sure. We are hurting now because all of our juniors quit the squad. We now have one senior, three sophomores and 11 freshmen."

"We just want to go out and play and have a good time. It will be slow but we'll improve. There were some bright spots though. Defensively the kids are hitting much better than in the first scrimmage three weeks ago. The kids played as well as they could."

"We'll stress conditioning and carrying out our assignments on offense. Blackwell (next opponent) has a similar team to Trent. They are big and strong."

John Blair, Sands, on his team's 50-33 loss to No. 1 ranked Jayton.

"I'm very happy with the way the kids played in the second half. We made every mistake known to man in the first half. They led 42-6 at the half and our kids knew that wasn't right. They knew they were a better ballclub than that."

"They came out fired up in the second half and turned it around. We made some adjustments on defense and it helped. We're going to get better as the season goes along."

Borden County is a good ballclub. They won their first game so they'll be pumped up playing at home.

Jan East, Forsan, on the Buffaloes hard earned 20-6 win over Roscoe.

"We kind of thought Roscoe would be a little weaker than last year, and they were. We didn't play well at all. We must play better football. I don't think we were mentally prepared."

"I was really disappointed in our passing game. I know the elements had something to do with that, but we didn't execute well. We played a lot more defense than we did offense."

"Plains (next opponent) has a good quarterback and they'll try to throw the ball. We must keep our offense on the field more. We'll work real hard on our pass coverage and pass rush."

Billy Kidd, Coahoma, on his team being shutout 13-0 by Seminole.

"Our defense played pretty good. Offensively, we didn't have anything consistent. We laid the ball on the ground twice early in the game, and it gave them a quick touchdown. They only had to drive 20 yards for it."

Cowboys nip Giants

IRVING (AP) — If his NFL debut is any indication, Herschel Walker is going to cause a lot of headaches for opposing defenses.

"I think I contributed," Walker said in a classic understatement after scoring two touchdowns, including the game-winner with 1:16 left Monday night in the Dallas Cowboys' 31-28 victory over the New York Giants.

Walker, one of the USFL's brightest stars with the New Jersey Generals, convinced even the grumbling Tony Dorsett he was worth $1 million a year in his NFL regular season debut.

Ironically, it was Dorsett's sprained ankle in the first half that gave Walker his chance at tailback.

"When I went in I was really scared at first about remembering all the plays," said Walker. "I said 'Please Lord, let me remember the plays.'"

Walker scored on a one-yard plunge in which he looked like he jumped off a three-meter diving board. He set up another score with a 10-yard run on a reverse.

Then he dashed 10 yards up the middle on a third-down draw play off the spread formation for the game-winner.

Dorsett, who had objected to Walker's huge five-year guaranteed salary and demanded a trade, was one of the first Cowboys to shake his hand after the game was over.

"Tony told me 'congratulations,'" Walker said. "He's helped me a lot."

Walker's worksheet read 10 carries for 64 yards, as well as six receptions for another 32 yards.

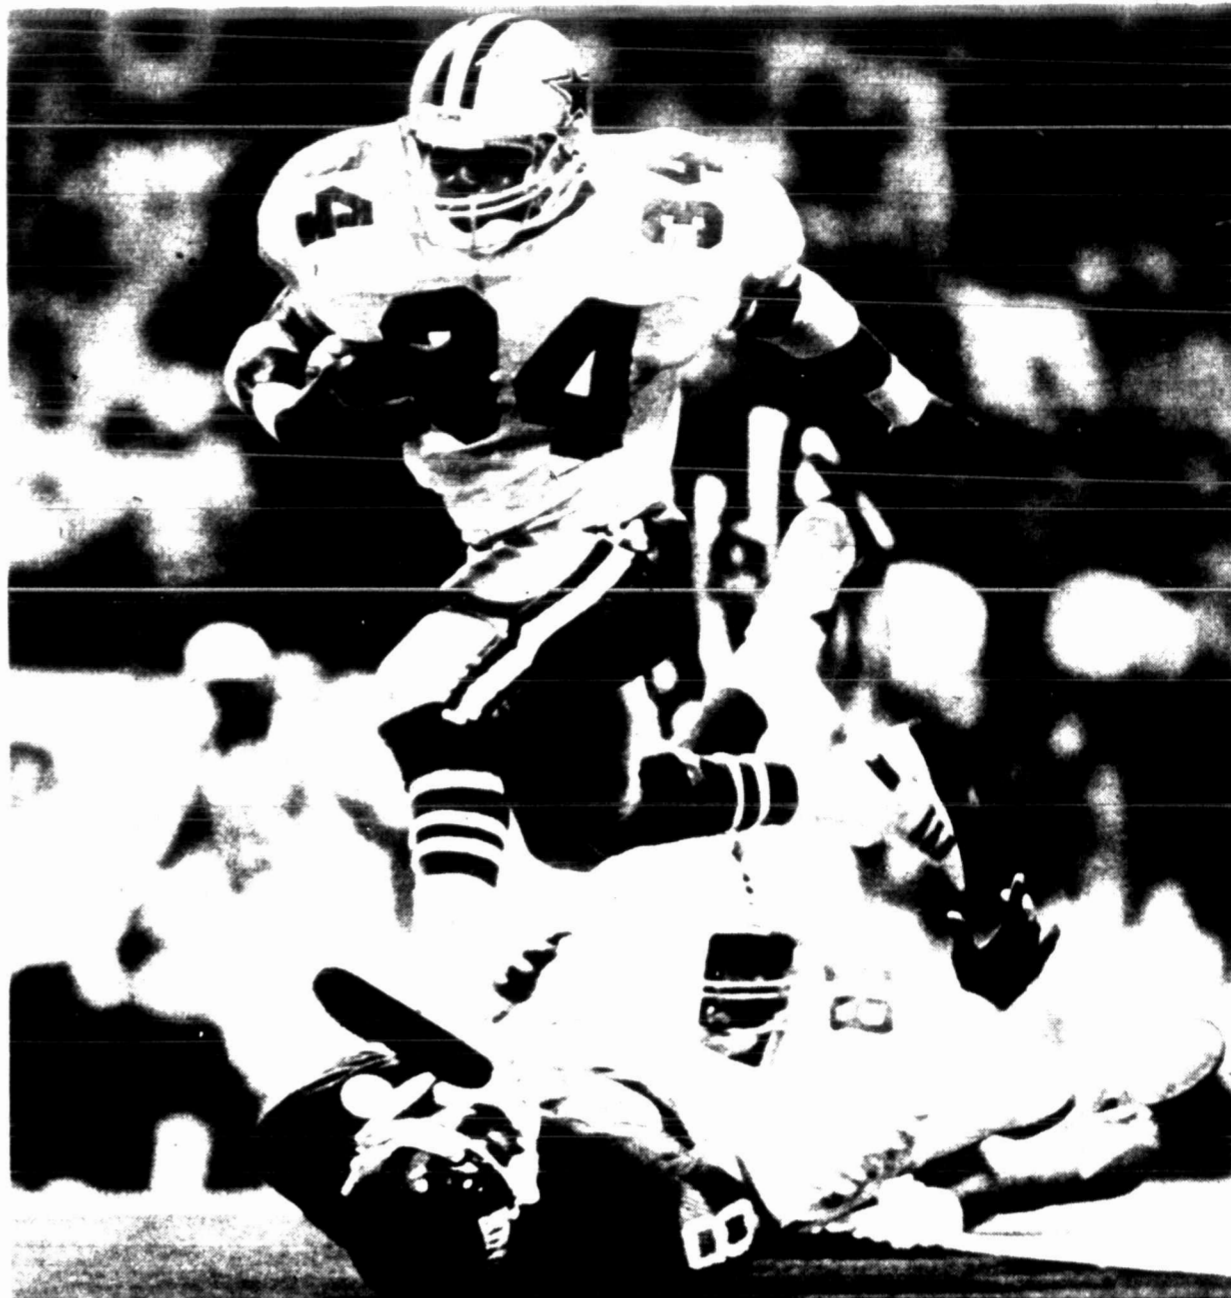

"I feel at home now," Walker said.

Dorsett, who said he will be able to play Sunday against Detroit, said "Herschel played extremely well. He had the opportunity to play and took advantage of it."

Dorsett scored on a 36-yard screen pass from Danny White before his ankle stiffened up on him.

Walker, who also lined up as a flanker, said the Giants didn't know where he was going to line up.

"I don't think they (the Giants) knew what to expect," he said. Walker said he had already discovered a big difference between the USFL and the NFL — linebackers.

"Football is football, but the linebackers on the Giants are the best I ever saw," Walker said.

Walker wasn't perfect. In fact, he stood a chance to be the goat of the game in the third period.

Linebacker Harry Carson recovered Walker's fumble at the Dallas 14 and Joe Morris, who agreed to a new four-year, $2.2 million contract just hours before the game, scored from two yards out to give the Giants a 21-17 lead.

"I don't fumble that much," Walker said "I just need to take a few more snaps. Once you start thinking about mistakes you can't

Weaver won't be back next season

BALTIMORE (AP) — Manager Earl Weaver said Monday night that he would leave the Baltimore Orioles at the end of the 1986 season.

Weaver, hired out of retirement for a second stint as manager on June 14, 1985, said he informed owner Edward Bennett Williams and General Manager Hank Peters of his intentions about three weeks ago.

At the time, Weaver said, the only response from Williams was that they sit down after the season and talk about the decision.

Weaver parried questions about his future before Monday's game against Boston, saying no announcement would be made until he met with Williams.

But after being told after the game that Williams had revealed his decision on Larry King's national radio talk show last Friday night, Weaver confirmed the report. Weaver had apparently been unaware of Williams' remarks to King during the weekend, and did not reveal his plans until told about it after Monday night's game.

Asked if Williams could change his mind, Weaver said: "I don't think so."

Weaver said he would not accept a job with any other team, adding: "I can't, regardless. I'm signed through 1990 for $1 a year (as a consultant)."

"I wasn't trying to hide anything," Weaver said of his pregame comments. "I wanted them (the Orioles) to do what they wanted to do."

"The best thing is, I don't have to answer any more questions," Weaver said. "It's all over ... that's a relief."

Williams, a celebrated Washington, D.C. attorney, was reported in Florida on a case, and unavailable for comment, and Weaver said he did not talk with his boss on Monday.

Weaver revealed his intentions following Baltimore's 9-3 loss in 11 innings to Boston on Monday night.

Baltimore Orioles manager Earl Weaver waves to the crowd as he stands at home plate to bring the lineup card. Weaver says he won't be a manager next season.

This year has been a frustrating one for Weaver, who was rehired with hopes of boosting the Orioles back into contention in the American League East.

Ageless Ryan KO's Reds 3-1

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Nolan Ryan turned up the heat and cooled off Cincinnati's chances of catching the Houston Astros in the National League West.

Ryan struck out 10 during six shutout innings and combined with Charlie Kerfeld on a three-hitter Monday night as the Houston beat the Reds 3-1.

The victory, the third straight for the Astros, gave them a nine-game lead over second-place Cincinnati.

"I've been waiting for this game all year," Ryan said. "My adrenaline was flowing. I was ready."

Ryan, 10-8, gave up two hits and walked three before being taken out by Houston Manager Hal Lanier. Ryan has been bothered by a strained elbow ligament and is limited in how many pitches he throws.

Expos 9, Mets 1

Rookie Bob Sebra pitched a five-hitter and Mitch Webster connected for a two-run homer as Montreal rapped 16 hits and stopped New York's four-game winning streak.

Sebra, 4-3, lost a chance at his first major-league shutout when Darryl Strawberry hit his 20th home run of the season with two outs in the ninth inning.

Bob Ojeda, 16-5, took the loss, ending his four-game winning streak.

Webster homered during a five-run seventh inning, an outburst that included Tim Lincecum's 1,000th career hit. Andre Dawson had three hits, including a two-run single.

Pirates 3, Cardinals 2

Bob Patterson won his first major-league start and Hipolito Pena got his first career save as Pittsburgh beat St. Louis.

Patterson, 1-2, gave up five hits in seven-plus innings during his ninth career appearance. Pena finished with one-hit relief.

Cubs 7, Phillies 4

Leon Durham hit a three-run homer and Keith Moreland drove in two runs, leading Chicago past visiting Philadelphia.

Ed Lynch, 5-4, pitched 5 1-3 innings for the victory and Lee Smith worked the final inning for his 26th save. Mike Maddux, 2-6, lasted just three innings and gave up five runs on four hits.

Durham connected in the first inning for his 17th homer following singles by Ryne Sandberg and Moreland.

Giants 4, Padres 3

Candy Maldonado had three doubles and drove in two runs, and rookie pitcher Terry Mulholland won his first big league game in seven tries as San Francisco topped visiting San Diego.

Mulholland, 1-6, got relief help from Jeff Robinson and Scott Garrelts, with Garrelts going the final two innings for his eighth save. The loser was Ed Whitson, 1-7 since returning to the National League two months ago.

Dodgers 7, Braves 0

Bob Welch pitched a four-hitter and Mike Scioscia's solo home run ignited a three-run fifth inning as host Los Angeles defeated Atlanta.

Welch, 7-11, struck out four and didn't walk a batter in pitching his third shutout and seventh complete game this season. The shutout was the 19th of his career.

Martina donates big bucks

NEW YORK (AP) — One day after winning her third U.S. Open women's singles title, Martina Navratilova donated $150,000 to the "Aspire Higher" campaign of the Women's Sports Foundation.

She also issued a challenge to other athletes to do the same, and four professional golfers — Hollis Stacy, Amy Alcott, Pat Bradley and Patty Sheehan — and Navratilova's doubles partner, Pam Shriver, immediately took her up on it.

On Monday, Navratilova turned over to the WSF a check for $1,000 from Shriver, and also announced that she and Billie Jean King, the founder of the WSF, will play Shriver and Chris Evert Lloyd in a doubles match on April 5, 1987, with the proceeds going to the "Aspire Higher" campaign.

The "Aspire Higher" campaign is a two-year fund-raising and public relations effort to raise at least $3 million for the national programs and services of the foundation, according to Deborah Anderson, executive director of the WSF. The foundation has adopted the "Aspire Higher" theme to focus the nation's attention on the capabilities of women and on sports as a means of fulfilling that potential, Anderson said.

"I'm challenging women athletes to donate 1 percent of their annual earnings to this," Navratilova said. "I'm donating $150,000 and I'm challenging them to match it in total."

"It's my own money. It's not my foundation. I'm giving time and money to the Women's Sports Foundation. It's easier to give the money, but it's something I believe in very firmly."

McMahon out three weeks with separated shoulder

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — Chicago Bears quarterback Mike Tomczak, who says he "thrives on pressure," will make his first NFL regular-season start this Sunday against the Philadelphia Eagles, replacing the injured Jim McMahon.

Bears Coach Mike Ditka named Tomczak the starter Monday, one day after McMahon went down with a separated shoulder in the fourth quarter of Chicago's 41-31 season-opening victory over the Cleveland Browns.

The oft-injured McMahon will be lost to the defending Super Bowl champions for at least three weeks.

"It's a second-degree separation in the right shoulder," Bears trainer Fred Caito said. "He did not dislocate it. He will miss about three weeks."

Caito said X-rays showed no broken bone and that McMahon had movement of the arm.

"At the end of this week he will begin to work with weights and in 10 to 14 days he will do some throwing," Caito said. "There was no damage to the rotator cuff. It is tender and sore and we will treat it with care."

Speaking only briefly of his injury, McMahon said he would be out "two to three weeks. I hope to be back by then."

Caito said McMahon's arm would be in a sling for several days for comfort purposes and that he would receive anti-inflammatory medication.

Tomczak, who was signed as a free agent out of Ohio State before the 1985 season, had an excellent preseason, much of which McMahon missed with a hip flexor injury.

Cowboys

play."

The Cowboys and Giants then traded touchdowns. Thornton Chandler caught a 1-yard scoring flip from White midway through the fourth quarter to put Dallas back in front. New York's Bobby Johnson made a spectacular 44-yard reception with 5:24 to go to put the Giants back on top, 28-24.

But after the Giants' go-ahead score, Dallas charged 72 yards in six plays with Walker catching a 24-yard pass on the game-winning drive. A 35-yard pass from White to Tony Hill set up Walker's score.

A desperation pass by Phil Simms at the final gun was batted down in the Dallas end zone by rookie Cornell Gowdy.

Walker even made Dallas Coach Tom Landry smile.

"Herschel played great, he's a football player that's all," said Landry. "It's exciting to watch him work. We might use Herschel more. He has so much power."

Landry said Walker wouldn't have been at tailback if Dorsett hadn't hurt his ankle in the first half.

"We (Walker) wouldn't have played tailback in the game unless Dorsett was hurt," Landry said. "Tony showed great courage."

"Herschel was working at tailback in case an injury happened. He was ready as you saw."

Simms, who hit 22 of 45 passes for 300 yards and two touchdowns, summed up the Giants' impressions of Walker: "I hate him!"

Giants' Coach Bill Parcells said "It was another one of those games we've been having with the Cowboys. Walker did very well for the first time. He's strong. He broke a lot of tackles."

It was Dallas' 21st opening victory in the last 22 years and upped their all-time record against the Giants to 33-13-2.

"This was all very exciting," said Walker, a Heisman Trophy winner at Georgia, who has the professional rushing record of 2,411 yards in one year with the Generals in 1985.

After a scoreless first period, the Cowboys built a 14-0 lead on Dorsett's touchdown and Walker's one-yard run following a Simms' fumble.

Simms hit Johnson and Stacy Robinson with touchdown passes to tie it 14-14, but Dallas took a 17-14 halftime lead on Rafael Septien's 35-yard field goal as time expired.

New federal tax law has both winners and losers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The winners in the big tax overhaul of 1986 are single, married, rich and not so rich, young and old, small businesses and giant corporations. So are the losers.

The couple at 204 Main St. with two children and $30,000 income might find their tax situation dramatically different from the folks next door, even though their family sizes and incomes were identical. It depends on how they earn and spend their money.

The multibillion-dollar corporation that has been giving the government 40 percent of its profits could end up with a sizable tax cut. A small-town bank might pay more.

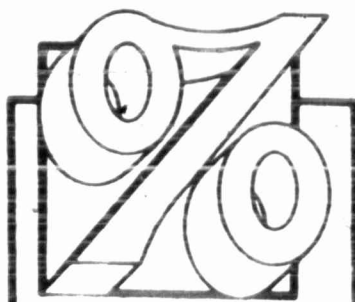

In the long run, most individuals and corporations that are not going out of their way to shelter earnings from the tax collector stand a chance of getting a tax cut. That is because the bill would significantly reduce tax rates and, for individuals, significantly increase the personal exemption and standard deductions.

On the other hand, it would reduce or take away a few individual deductions and several that benefit corporations. In general, that is what determines who wins and who loses.

Here are some examples:

WINNERS

—The poor: 6 million couples and individuals would be taken off the income-tax rolls. A four-member family could earn up to $13,000 (the poverty level is $12,368) and pay no tax. A single person could earn $5,000 and remain tax-free. That is

Rates

Two basic brackets for individuals: Three quarters of all taxpayers will pay 15%. Most of the rest will pay 28%. Very high income people will pay 34% on some income (38.5% in 1987 only).

Top rate for corporations cut to 34%, lower rates for small businesses.

below the $6,156 poverty line for a single; lawmakers say the poverty figure is misleading because more than two-thirds of singles making under $10,000 live with their parents.

—Non-itemizers: Standard deductions would rise to $5,000 for couples and $3,000 for singles.

—Larger families: The personal exemption, now $1,080 per tax-paper, spouse and dependent, would rise to $2,000 by 1989.

—Retailers: They generally pay a high tax rate because they don't have large amounts tied up in depreciable machinery; they will benefit from cutting the 46-percent top corporate rate to 34 percent.

—Handicapped: Special quick writeoff of expenses for removing architectural and transportation barriers would be made permanent.

—Oil industry: Retains most benefits under current law and is partially exempt from tough new anti-shelter rules.

—Sufferers from rare diseases: Three-year renewal for 50-percent tax credit for clinical testing of "orphan drugs" to treat those diseases.

—Charities: No tax on income from selling membership lists.

—Homeowners: They keep full mortgage interest deduction for two homes. And even though consumer interest would become non-deductible, they could get by the curb by taking out a home-equity loan, if the money were used for medical or education expenses.

—Ministers and soldiers: Retain a double-dip benefit that allows a deduction for mortgage interest and property taxes paid from tax-exempt housing allowances.

—Holders of ordinary life insurance policies: Increase in value would remain tax-exempt.

—U.S. broadcast networks: A House-passed tax on rights to broadcast the Olympics was dumped.

—Nags: Horses over 12 years old get special depreciation, bigger benefit.

—Satellite owners: Objects launched into space from American by Americans would not be treated as foreign-use property, meaning it would get a more generous depreciation benefit.

—Mobile workers: A worker would be vested (guaranteed) in a company pension after five years, instead of 10; changing jobs would no longer jeopardize retirement.

—Goldbugs: For the first time, Individual Retirement Account investments could be made in gold or silver coins.

—Self-employed: Could deduct 25 percent of the cost of their health insurance.

—Lawyers and accountants: At least for a couple years they'll be busy explaining how it all would work.

—Eskimos: Income from meat from reindeer held in trust by the government would not be taxed.

LOSERS

—New retirees who contributed to their own pensions: About 20 million, half of them in government, would lose a tax holiday of up to three years — a period now sufficient for them to get back the already-taxed dollars they contributed.

—Itemizers: Lose deductions for sales taxes, consumer interest and part of writeoffs for medical and union dues and other miscellaneous expenses. They get nothing from the higher standard deductions.

—Non-itemizers: Lose deduction for charitable contributions.

—Two-earner couples: Lose a special deduction of up to $3,000 that helps offset the "marriage penalty," which often means a couple pays more tax than if they remained single and filed separately. Well-paid couples with no children are likely to face tax increases.

—Profitable corporations: If they report a profit to their stockholders, they would have to pay some tax.

—Anyone worried about Big Brother: Children 5 and older (except Amish and others with religious convictions against Social Security) would have to have a Social Security number that would be listed on parent's tax return.

—The ultimate tax shelter: Owners of tax-free bonds would, if they have to file a tax return, report to the IRS on any tax-exempt interest they receive. Interest on new tax-exempt bonds issued for non-government purposes would be subject to the minimum tax.

—Investors and others with income from which taxes are not withheld: Would have to make quarterly estimated payments to cover 90 percent (up from 80 percent) of current-year liability.

—Tardy taxpayers: Penalty for failure to pay on time would double to 1 percent a month.

—Businesspeople living on an expense account: Deduction for business-related meals and entertainment scaled back to 80 percent.

—Farmers, artists and others whose earnings fluctuate sharply from year to year: Lose the benefits of income averaging.

—Investors in low-income housing: Tax advantages remain, though most real estate investment would be hurt.

—Wealthy donors: If they make charitable gifts of stock, paintings or other property that has increased in value, some of the deduction might be lost because of the special minimum tax.

—Limited partners: Well-to-do people who channel their money into real estate, mining and other ventures through partnerships would no longer be able to avoid taxation by claiming big artificial losses from such investments.

—Jobless: Unemployment compensation would be fully taxed.

—Prize winners, including Nobel laureates: Their awards will be taxed unless given to charity.

—Political contributors: Credit of up to $100 a year would be lost.

—Banks: Traditionally paying low taxes, would be hit especially by a toughened minimum tax.

—Workers who change jobs and move some distance: Unreimbursed moving expenses, now fully deductible even for non-itemizers, would be lumped with miscellaneous expenses and only the part exceeding 2 percent of income could be deducted, and only if itemized.

—Those who cringe when Congress messes with the tax laws: Negotiators junked a Senate provision that would have imposed a five-year moratorium on passing any more major new tax bills.

—People with individual Blue Cross-Blue Shield policies: The insurers would lose their tax exemption.
