The Crossroads of West Texas

Candidates squabble over taxes

AUSTIN (AP) — GOP lieutenant governor candidate David Davidson said Friday that incumbent Bill Hobby is trying to deceive Texans into believing a state tax hike is needed.

"Hobby has been in office for so long and has become so dictatorial over the Senate that he has lost touch with Texas," Davidson said at a Houston rally.

The Democratic incumbent is urging lawmakers to approve tax hikes to meet the state budget crunch. Hobby's plan apparently has won Senate support where Davidson said, "the Democratic senators are more afraid of Hobby than they are of the voters." "To insure the success of passing more taxes and satisfying his appetite

Hobby deceiving voters, foe claims for spending, Hobby has been telling Texans half-truths about the budget and revenues," Davidson said. "Texas is not going broke. Revenues are at an all-time high. Secondly, to say that the budget cannot be cut enough is wrong."

The Legislature, meeting in special session, is looking to solve a projected $2.8 billion budget shortfall.

"For Hobby to call for more taxes when Texas has record unemployment, record bankruptcies and foreclosures is insensitive and irresponsible," Davidson said.

Also Friday, GOP gubernatorial candidate Bill Clements released a direct-mail ad he sent to 15,000 oil and gas producers. The letter said Democratic Gov. Mark White is a "tax, tax, spend, spend politician who's unwilling or unable to provide the strong leadership Texas needs in these tough times."

"Bill is one of us. He's been in the energy business for nearly 40 years, while White has no experience in oil and gas," the letter said.

White's campaign Friday issued a statement accusing Clements of being unwilling to deal with the state's fiscal crisis. Clements' press secretary Reggie Bashur said this week that the GOP candidate believes lawmakers should deal with the current cash crunch, and then wait until the January regular session to deal with the overall problem.

"It appears that since Bill hasn't been able to come up with a plan, he wants to send everyone home so he has more time to come up with a new secret plan," White said in the statement.

"Bill Clements has no solutions and he has no plans except to try and get himself elected," he said.

State litter ad helps reduce highway trash

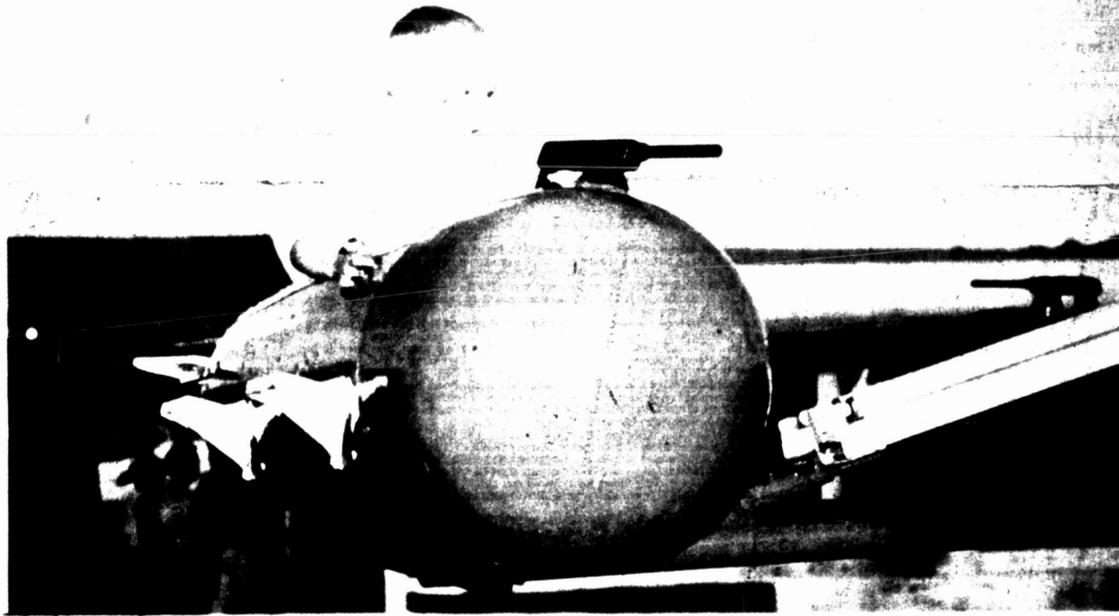

AUSTIN (AP) — The "Don't Mess With Texas" anti-litter ad campaign has helped reduce highway trash by 29 percent, the state highway department announced Friday.

"There's no doubt Texans love the slogan. Sure, it can be interpreted as a Texas boast, but the results clearly indicate people know it's an anti-litter message," said Betsy Todd, whose ad firm created the slogan.

A "visible litter count" conducted in Texas by the Institute for Applied Research showed that highway litter was reduced by 29 percent between August 1985 and July 1986, according to the highway department.

The "Don't Mess With Texas" campaign is aimed at males between the ages of 18 and 34, a group identified by officials as the most frequent litterers. Ads have featured Dallas Cowboys Ed "Too Tall" Jones and Randy White, rock guitarist Stevie Ray Vaughan and other state celebrities.

The highway department spent $2 million on the public awareness program during the fiscal year that ended in September.

Race between conservative, 'ultra-liberal,' Anderson says

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Dissatisfied with Larry Don Shaw's "immaturity" and "lack of representation" of his constituents, a 94-member steering committee from Big Spring last January urged Borden County rancher John R. Anderson to challenge the incumbent, Anderson said earlier this week.

"What you've got here is a race between a conservative against an ultra-liberal and that's all," Anderson said regarding the race for House representative of the 69th District to be decided by voters in the November general election.

The Borden County rancher said Shaw's voting record in major political races was inconsistent with voter preferences in his own district.

"He supported Carter, Mondale and Doggett — all of which were soundly defeated in this district.

"People are tired of his misrepresentation of our business down there (in Austin)," Anderson said.

The former Borden County Republican Chairman spoke out against Shaw's endorsement of House bill 72, the education reform bill.

"It's a big city school bill that usurps the power of local school boards," Anderson said.

Shaw "lied" to school superintendents within the district when he voted for the bill in 1984, Anderson said. The Republican challenger said he learned of this fact when talking with school district officials throughout the district.

Anderson criticized the reform bill saying the disciplinary measures are too drastic, trim-ing of funds for vocational programs was wrong and that no teachers he had spoken with favor the career ladder.

The challenger also favors a referendum election concerning the issue of pari-mutual betting. "The people should vote on it," he said.

Regarding a state lottery, Anderson said he has not found much support for it within the district.

He supports new industrial growth in the state and is a member of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Steering Committee lobbying to bring the Super-Conducting Super Collider project to this area.

"We could create another Silicon Valley," Anderson said about the possibility of landing the proposed atom smasher here. He said the project could add $2.3 billion to the economy and employ a work force of 2,000 to 2,500 persons at a median salary of $85,000.

Refuting Shaw's Sunday press conference accusations that Anderson was unclear in his philosophy and inexperience, the Republican candidate said that "I've had more business experience than Larry Don has ever had," and pointed to his service on the board and Executive Committee of the National

Immigration bill likely to surface in Congress

WASHINGTON — An immigration bill probably will surface again in the House during the final days of Congress — possibly as early as next week.

As in previous years, however, the question remains whether the last high-pressured days for lawmakers will provide enough time to deal with one of the most controversial and divisive national issues.

The bill currently is stuck in the House Rules Committee, where a Justice Department official claimed this week that it was being held hostage by Democratic leaders.

"We really think this is a question of the political will of the House Democratic leadership," said Assistant Attorney General John R. Bolton at a press conference.

In a last-ditch effort to give a push to the bill, supported by the Reagan administration, Attorney General Edwin Meese tied the legislation to a more popular cause: the war against drugs.

At the press briefing, Meese asked House leaders to free the bill from the Rules Committee and get it to the House as soon as possible.

He cited figures showing that the Southwest border has been a conduit for drug smuggling. Although that was nothing new, Meese tried to make the case, using figures from the Immigration and Naturalization Service, that illegal aliens are responsible for some drug trafficking.

The message from Meese: If the United States stops the flood of illegal aliens, the country also can cut into part of the drug flow and allow more money and effort to fight drugs as well as aliens.

INS figures showed more drugs captured by the U.S. Border Patrol in Texas than any other state. Between Oct. 1, 1985 and July 31, 1986, there were 714 drug seizures by Border Patrol agents in Texas, about one-third of which involved illegal aliens. Drugs valued at $46.82 million were confiscated. Nationally during that period, there were 1,023 seizures by the Border Patrol.

An aide on the House Judiciary Committee said the immigration bill probably will get out of Rules Committee, where inaction would kill the measure. But he said the administration's push on drugs

Brothers become friends; friends become brothers

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Chris White and Chris Yerby jokingly told people at school they were brothers.

They not only shared the same name. Both were tall, both played basketball at Carroll High School and they looked remarkably alike.

"People didn't believe us" when we said we were brothers, said Yerby, 18. "They said, 'How can you be brothers? You're both named Chris.'"

It wasn't until last month that the two learned that what seemed mere coincidence was much more. They are brothers, adopted by different families at birth.

"When I first saw Chris Yerby, I couldn't take my eyes off of him," said Margaret White, mother of 16-year-old Chris White. "I had no doubt they were brothers. No doubt at all."

After an exhaustive search by their adoptive parents, Yerby and White learned they were brothers, born in Austin two years apart, given up for adoption at birth and reunited — by a quirk of fate — in a Corpus Christi high school.

"People say we look alike and that we even walk alike," White said, looking over at his older brother.

"Yeah," agreed Yerby who is now a freshman at Texas A&M. "My mom now says we even laugh alike."

The two tall, dark-haired teens met last year at Carroll High School, where they both played basketball.

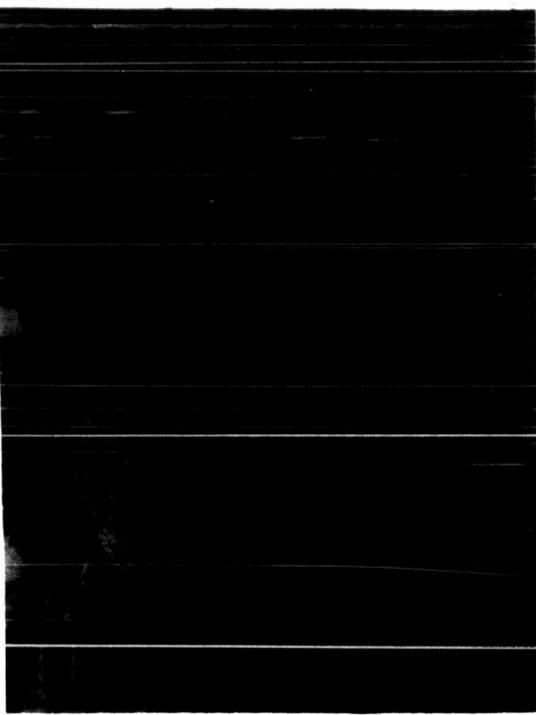

"On my first day at Carroll, these girls came up to me and said, 'Hey, we saw your brother working the other day,'" White told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times.

"And I said, 'I don't have a brother,' and they said, 'Yes you do. We saw him.'"

Slowly, Yerby and White became friends of the basketball court. The more the two told each other about themselves, the more the coincidences piled up.

White, now a high school junior, remembers the conversation.

"Chris said to me, 'I'm adopted,' and I said, 'Wow, I'm adopted, too.'"

Brothers separated by adoption, and unaware of each other's existence, were reunited recently by accident when fate had them going to the same high school. Chris Yerby, 18, right, and Chris White, 16, became friends and fellow athletes at the same school and inevitably compared notes about their pasts.

Then when he said he was born in Austin, I didn't say anything. I just couldn't believe it."

Because they were both adopted and born in the same city, the two youths decided they wanted to trace the records. In January, they asked their adopted parents to trace their respective natural parents.

"We wanted to find the truth for them," said Mary Yerby, mother of Chris Yerby. "That's why it was important."

Cattlemen's Association. He made clear his conservative philosophy. Shaw said this week that to compare business experience with legislative experience was "absurd."

"I'd be doing the same thing as Clements (GOP candidate for governor) if elected, and that's to cut the growth in bureaucracy — the costs of government spending," Anderson said.

He countered Shaw's accusations concerning political inexperience by pointing to what he described as the incumbent's lack of business experience.

"He's never had an ounce of business experience. He was a shoe salesman between graduating from law school and running for political office," Anderson said.

"I'd be glad to compare both our business and political experience," Shaw said. "But my opponent seems ashamed of his political experience and is trying to hide his background from the voters."

Concerning Shaw's remarks that Anderson was at one time "supporting a Lyndon LaRouche candidate for chairman of the Democratic Party," Anderson said he was "plum innocent" of the insinuations.

Shaw charged that Anderson bought Herald advertisements in 1982 inviting the public to hear Nick Benton, a LaRouche candidate for the state Democratic Party chairman, speak on "How to stop the Federal Reserve from destroying our economy and restore the American system of production."

According to Herald records, Anderson did purchase that advertising.

But Anderson said his involvement with sponsoring the visit and meeting with Benton, was related to mutual interests concerning future West Texas water projects.

Shaw said this week from his Austin office that Anderson "owes it to the voters to tell them if he is a LaRouche sympathizer, or if he is easily duped by extremist politicians."

"Anybody who is a LaRouche supporter supporting me, I don't know about it," Anderson said. "I was as interested in bringing water to West Texas as I am today," he said.

probably would have less effect than a general desire to give the bill another chance.

"As far as the House leadership is concerned, I don't think it's going to have any effect one way or another," said the Democratic aide about the administration's plea on drugs.

"It'll definitely go to the floor before we get out," said Julius Genachowski, spokesman for Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y.

"The big question is whether it's next week or the week after," he said. Congress is scheduled to adjourn Oct. 3.

At the heart of the immigration controversy this year has been Schumer's compromise in the House on the guest worker issue, meant to satisfy the demands of wealthy California growers of perishable commodities who now use large numbers of illegal aliens to pick their crops.

Texas relief funds strengthen bonds

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans have donated more than $10 million to help victims of last year's Mexico City earthquake, and a top relief official Friday said the aid is going a long way to improve relations with Mexico.

"The people of Mexico will never forget what the people of Texas and the people of the United States are doing," said Bob Krueger, former U.S. ambassador at large to Mexico and co-chairman of the Texas Response, the state's relief effort.

Krueger said the money, supplies and equipment donated since the Sept. 19, 1985 earthquake were much-needed in the city where thousands died and up to 100,000 remain without permanent homes.

"We think that we have created some permanent bonds out of this ... destruction in Mexico City," Krueger said.

The update on the relief efforts was discussed at separate sessions in Dallas and San Antonio Friday.

Krueger has worked with San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros to head up the Texas relief efforts.

He said some $10 million in equipment and supplies was donated in the two months immediately following the series of quakes which hammered the Mexican capital. Another $700,000 in cash donations were received from about 30,000 contributors to the Texans may have contributed as much as 10 percent of the total American donation, he added.

The money has been used to rebuild a 900-student school in Mexico City and the rest will go for construction of a health clinic in one of the city's suburban areas.

"The people of Texas did this without any stimulus from this side of the border. It came directly out of their own spirits," said Krueger, a former congressman.

"Because of the people of Texas, this school is now 90 percent reconstructed," Krueger said.

Krueger, who has visited Mexico City since the quakes, said recovery efforts in that city have been surprising, although much still needs to be done.

"I think the resolution of the problem and the renewal of that nation has been a remarkable achievement, testifying to the strength and power of the Mexican people," he said.

Krueger also said he hoped the relief effort will strengthen ties between Texas and Mexico.

"These are our neighbors. They are not going to move away and we can't move away. If we're going to be living side-by-side, it only benefits us to help," he said. "The people were giving in response to a neighbor. It was a neighborly act."

Rutherford hired by Industrial Foundation

City Councilman Johnny Rutherford has become a recruiter for the Industrial Foundation, said foundation leader Troy Fraser.

The foundation is a private organization not related to the city government or the Chamber of Commerce, Rutherford said.

Fraser said Rutherford's duties involve "anything that will bring jobs to Big Spring."

Rutherford said his job also includes management of several buildings the foundation owns, "prospecting" for people to rent the space and creating programs to involve more citizens and realtors in industrial expansion efforts.

In addition, he'll work with people starting new businesses, to help remove obstacles they encounter. He said he'll be "doing anything I can to get them to locate here."

The Industrial Foundation is working to get a proposed cogeneration plant and fish farm to Big Spring.

JOHNNY RUTHERFORD ... gets new job

The city should see a crop of diverse businesses move here to use the cheaper cogenerated energy, Rutherford said.

"I think we'll see some exciting things within the next 12 months," he added.

Stun gun used on kids

DALY CITY, Calif. — Ten children, including four babies, were punished with shocks from a 50,000-volt stun gun at a day care center, police alleged Friday.

But authorities may be unable to file felony charges against the couple running the center because the unlawful use of a stun gun is a misdemeanor in California unless it is used on a police officer, said juvenile officer Dennis Pinnatore.

"No one thought this would ever be used on children," said the officer.

Some of the children allegedly were stunned when they talked during nap time, and the babies allegedly were shocked on their feet when they became troublesome, Pinnatore said.

"One child said it was like putting your finger in a light socket," according to Pinnatore.

AIDS drug available

WASHINGTON — An experimental drug that extends the lives and reduces symptoms of some AIDS patients will be made available within weeks to thousands with the deadly, incurable disease, federal health officials announced Friday.

The drug, AZT or azidothymidine, will become the first widely available therapeutic agent for treating specific symptoms of acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

The Department of Health and Human Services and a pharmaceutical company which makes AZT stressed that the drug is not a cure for AIDS, may not offer relief for some patients — and can have serious side effects.

Talks focus on Daniloff

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, stepping into day-long arms control talks and summit preparations, summoned Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze Friday to "convey the strength of his feelings" about spy charges against an American reporter.

The president intervened as the case of Nicholas Daniloff of U.S. News & World Report dominated 6½ hours of discussions at the White House and the State Department.

"We are negotiating very serious issues," Shevardnadze said at day's end. "Tomorrow we will report to you on the results."

He told reporters at the State Department he was unable to claim progress on setting a date for a summit meeting here between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

"Give us time, give us another day," Shevardnadze said as he Secretary of State George Shultz agreed to hold another round of talks today.

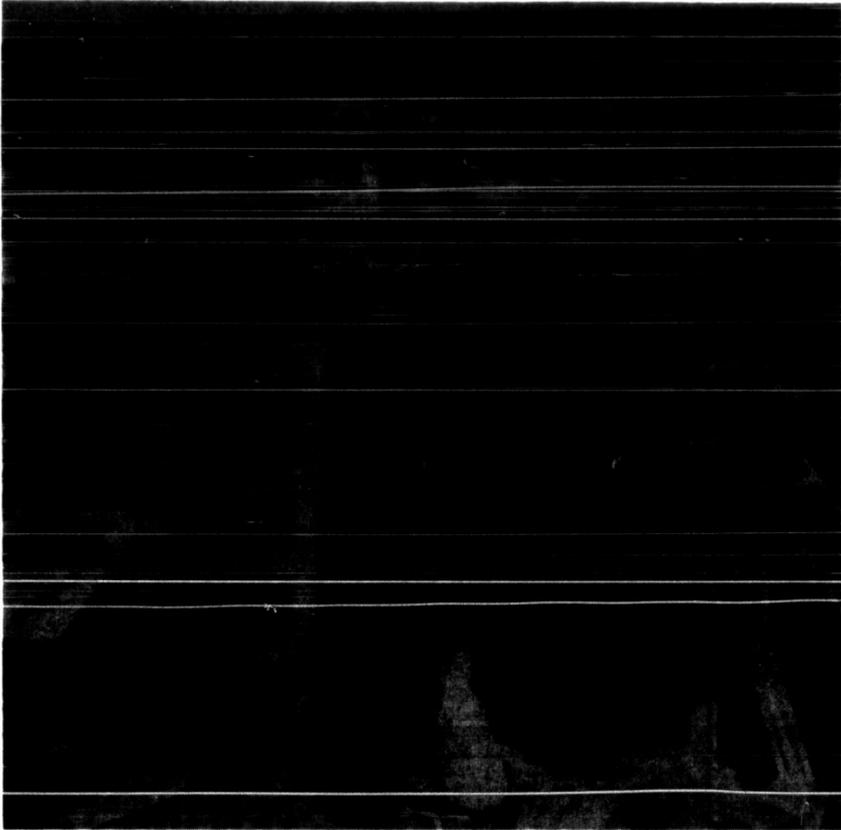

Drug testing attacked

WASHINGTON — A union representing 120,000 federal employees withdrew its lawsuit against President Reagan's mandatory drug testing Friday and transferred the suit to New Orleans.

The National Treasury Employees filed suit in U.S. District Court here on Tuesday, less than 24 hours after Reagan announced his drug-testing program.

The union's legal attack on the planned mandatory program of testing federal employees in unspecified "sensitive" jobs contended that the plan constitutes "unauthorized search and seizure" outlawed by the Fourth Amendment of the Constitution.

Officially, union spokesman George King said the lawsuit filed Tuesday was withdrawn voluntarily.

Afghans treated to shopping spree

AUSTIN (AP) — A pair of Afghan rebels on their first American shopping spree paid cursory attention to the combat boots and headed for the Reeboks and running shoes.

They also asked about cowboy clothes. "To heck with this military stuff," the store manager said. "They want Western clothes."

Gulistan and Hamid-Ullah have been in Austin for about two weeks where they have been treated at a hospital for wounds in their war with the Soviets.

About an hour after their release, Charlie Schnabel, an aide to Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, took them on a shopping trip. Wilson is coordinating medical airlifts from refugee camps in Pakistan to hospitals around the United States.

Schnabel said he had thought at St. David's Hospital that the two men would want army surplus gear before returning to Pakistan next month to complete the healing process that would return them to combat.

"That's what the others wanted," Schnabel said Thursday of Afghan refugees he had taken shopping during their recuperation in other Texas cities.

But at the store, Gulistan, 26, who had a Soviet bullet removed from his hip during surgery on Sept. 5, maneuvered on crutches toward the non-military boots and shoes. Hamid-Ullah, 22, who underwent spinal surgery only 13 days earlier, limped painfully toward the same area.

They perfunctorily examined a pair of black combat boots, but the attention of both Afghans focused on some tan, water-resistant hiking boots with suction-grip soles.

The freedom fighters also selected tan backpacks, displayed by Academy Surplus store manager Jim Deger.

"What else?" Schnabel asked. Hamid-Ullah gestured toward running shoes. He selected a blue, lightweight pair with cushioned soles. Across the way, Gulistan chose white high-tops. Hamid-Ullah changed his mind and wanted high-tops, too. "But not in white," he said.

Hamid-Ullah asked if Deger had any "cowboy pants."

At the cash register, Schnabel paid the $264.37 bill, bundled the packages into his car and drove toward the Capitol. Later, he would take the refugees to a nearby ranch and then to spend the night with a family sympathetic to the guerrillas' war to reclaim their homeland.

In a couple of weeks, the two will return to what Schnabel described as a society still living in the 6th century.

Why, he was asked, had he taken the Afghans on a shopping trip?

"I guess because I'm hooked on them and their program," Schnabel replied. "The more you see of what they're giving up to fight for their country's freedom, the more you want to personally help."

Iraq claims battle win

AGHDAD, Iraq — Iraq said Friday that its troops in an overnight counterattack regained border positions captured by Iran in the central sector of the war front, killing 1,400 Iranian troops and wounding 3,000.

Iran had claimed that its troops captured a strategic hill in hand-to-hand combat west of the Iranian border town of Mehran.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus, said an Iraqi battalion was "smashed" and prisoners were taken.

A communique from the Iraqi military command said Iran seized positions held by two platoons of Iraq's 35th Division, but these were recaptured in a "resolute attack."

The communique gave no casualty count, but the Iraqi News Agency gave it as 1,400 Iranians dead, 3,000 wounded. It said Iraqi troops were "exercising their control and in full strength on all the border hills" while the Iranians were retreating.

Marcos charge weighed

MANILA, Philippines — A prosecutor said Friday he was reviewing evidence to determine whether to charge former first lady Imelda Marcos in the killing of President Corazon Aquino's husband.

Prosecutor Jose Ferrer said the review was prompted by testimony made before a fact-finding board when Mrs. Marcos' husband, Ferdinand E. Marcos, was president that she made threatening remarks about Benigno Aquino before his 1983 assassination.

Ferrer cited a statement by Salvador Laurel, now vice president, who testified before the board that Mrs. Marcos told him that "if he (Aquino) comes home to the Philippines, he is dead."

Trains crash in England

SAFFORD, England — Two high-speed trains filled with weekend commuters collided Friday in central England, and police said two people were killed and 60 were injured.

State-run British Rail said about 400 people were aboard the trains, which were speeding through Staffordshire at about 100 mph. One was heading north from London to Liverpool, the other south from Manchester to London.

One of the trains delivered a "glancing blow" to the other at a junction about six miles from Stafford, the railroad said.

British Rail said one train driver and one passenger were killed and 36 passengers were seriously injured. "It is a miracle more people were not killed," said police superintendent Bernard Bryan, who lives nearby and was one of the first on the scene.

Botha rips sanctions

PRETORIA, South Africa — President P.W. Botha on Friday attacked the growing Western movement for sanctions against South Africa, comparing it to a snowball "being rolled down a hill by a bunch of children."

In an address to the annual Transvaal Province Congress of his governing National Party, Botha did not make a widely anticipated announcement on whether he planned to call national elections for white voters.

But the president said he was enjoying the press speculation, and added, "Keep on guessing — you may even get it right later." Observers have said elections, last held in 1981, would test public support for Botha's program of gradual racial reforms.

Space station work planned for Houston

By PAUL RECER
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston — A revised plan for America's space station calls for the Johnson Space Center to perform about 36 percent of the technical management of the $8 billion project, officials said Friday.

Rep. Mike Andrews, D-Texas, said the new plan calls for engineers at the space center to supervise the design and manufacture of all of the complex systems that will be installed inside the habitable, pressurized module of the station.

"It's a big victory for the Johnson Space Center," said

Andrews.

The revised plan was drawn up by a team of engineers and astronauts and submitted to NASA administrator James Fletcher, Andrews said. Fletcher has not yet approved the plan, but is expected to appear before a congressional subcommittee next Thursday.

Fletcher early last summer ordered that major portions of the space station work be moved from Johnson and given to the Marshall Space Flight Center in Alabama. Texas congressmen, led by Andrews, objected vigorously. Fletcher later withdrew the plan and ordered the proposal to be reassessed.

Andrew Stofan, named NASA's boss of the space station, directed a review and presented the results to Fletcher on Wednesday.

Andrews said he did not know how many jobs are involved in the new plan, but Johnson officials had estimated that prior to the revision, the Texas center stood to lose about 1,200 new jobs. The congressman said those jobs are now secured.

"We will gain jobs as the space station is developed," he said. "We're back in business. I am totally satisfied."

Mark Hess, a NASA spokesman, said the new plan retains most of the original design of the space station, but will change the assembly sequence and reduce the amount of space walks required in assembly and maintenance.

A report prepared by members of the astronaut corps, led by Gordon Fullerton, said the original plan would require an excessive number of hours of risky spacewalking by astronaut crew members.

Hess said the space walk hours during assembly have been reduced by revising the sequence. The high numbers of space walk hours required in routine maintenance has been reduced by putting key elements inside the pressurized compartments, thus allowing astronauts to make repairs in a shirt-sleeve atmosphere instead of in the vacuum of space.

Under the new plan, Hess said Johnson will perform about 36 percent of the technical management of the station, and Marshall will be in charge of about the same amount of the work. The rest of the work will be distributed among other NASA centers.

Doctors escape to literary world

Both physicians recently judge in Midland writing contest

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Where can the doctor escape to forget the tensions of his job?

If he is like Dr. Robert Griffin or Dr. James W. Kuykendall, both of Big Spring, he can open a book, whether it be poetry or fiction, and healthily escape into the world of literary art.

"It's a relaxation and an escape from tension," Griffin said about his pastime of reading poetry. "It's very similar to music which I also enjoy," he said.

Both physicians recently judged manuscripts entered in the Midland Writers' Association contest.

Griffin judged approximately 68 poetry submissions, while Kuykendall judged approximately 10 to 12 fiction entries.

Association President Mary J. Goodwin of Midland asked each doctor last month if they would participate in the judging. She has been a patient of both physicians for years.

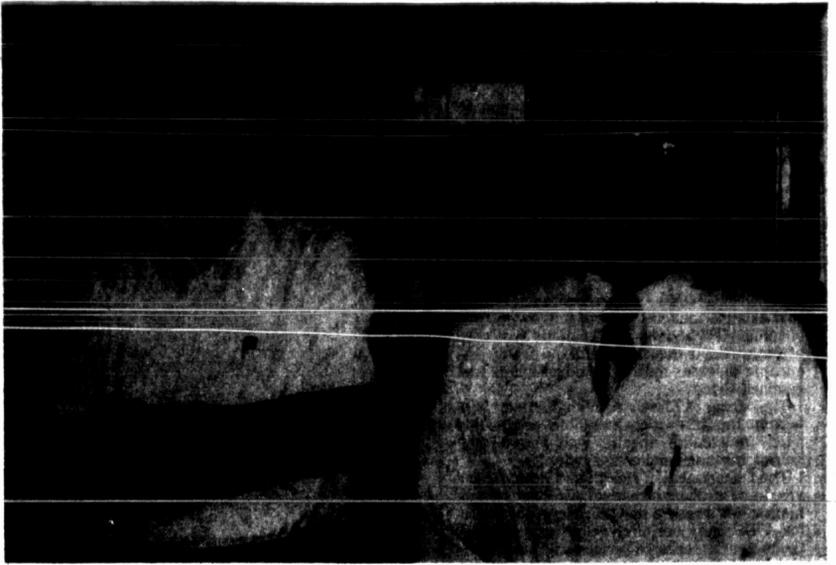

"I thought they did an excellent job. We didn't want anyone from Midland," Goodwin said.

How did she discover their secret passions?

"They are interested in the arts — I know. You can tell by looking at the things on the walls of their office," Goodwin said.

Kuykendall said he has always enjoyed reading and would probably be "rich" if he had kept all the money he and his wife Jean have spent on books.

He admires authors like Stephen King and the late John

Dr. James W. Kuykendall (left) and Dr. Robert Griffin took time out on Wednesday afternoon to discuss their literary interests. Both physicians are avid readers in the literary arts.

McDonald; writers who have the ability and imagination "to describe things in detail" and possess "the craft to string words and ideas together," Kuykendall said.

He selects his books from the Book of the Month Club, of which he has been a member for the past 25 years.

Griffin listens for recommendations from his patients as to what verse he should read.

"These are things they enjoy and they just wanted to share them with me," Griffin said.

A 90-year-old patient of his suggested he read "St. Peter at the Gate," by Joseph Bert Smiley, Griffin said.

The woman went one step further by recording the selection with a number of other poems on a cassette tape which she presented to Griffin.

Why poetry? Wouldn't it be easier just to come home and flop before the television?

"A poem is something you can hold to savor over and over. It's like a letter," Griffin said.

His favorite poets are the early American masters including Robert Louis Stevenson and Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. His favorite poem is "The Highwayman," by Alfred Noyes.

Kuykendall enjoys the challenge of reading a full-length novel — something along the line of Robert Ludlum's "The Bourne Identity," or Herman Wouk's "The Caine Mutiny."

Has he considered or ever extended his interest into possibly writing that imaginative story himself?

"Oh no — I'd run out of juice after about two or three pages," Kuykendall said.

Dylan's album lacks focus

Bob Dylan is still rock's most enigmatic performer. His concerts with Tom Petty during the summer's most publicized tour sparked speculation that the voice of the '60s had been born again musically.

But as the tour wound down, Dylan released the kind of album one expects from a relic. "Knocked Out Loaded" has no focus, musical-ly or thematically, and the performances are sloppy.

In review

The biggest disappointment is that Petty and his band, who in recent months have spent a lot of time in the studio with Dylan, play on only one cut. It's a routine rocker called "Got My Mind Made Up." The musicians who back Dylan elsewhere sound as if they're playing together for the first time. The instrumental breaks are as engaging as white noise.

Dylan's song selection is all over the spectrum. He sings country gospel, city blues and a ballad he co-wrote with Carol Bayer Sager. The female quartet Dylan has been using lately sings on almost every chorus; it gets old.

One redeeming feature is "Brownsville Girl," 11 minutes of soaring horns, allusions to Gregory Peck and characters only Dylan could create. The song sounds like Dylan's great "Desire" album, but he seems to have the rest of "Knocked Out Loaded" in mind when he wistfully sings, "If there's an original thought out there, I could use it right now."

Mcnee reappears

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patrick Mcnee, whose new movie "Shady" opens Oct. 31, is heading soon for London for his first stage appearance there in 34 years.

He will star in a new play in the West End called "Killing Jessica," adapted by Richard Levinson and William Link from their TV movie, "Rehearsal for Murder."

Noting his long absence from the stage in London, he said, "So who knows? Maybe they'll throw things at me. I hope not. It's a good thriller. But it's crossed-fingers time."

Mcnee is best known as the suave, bowler-topped John Steed in television's "The Avengers."

'Orphanage' toy store not for orphans

When people visit Sandhill Orphanage Toys, they wonder "where the orphans are," said employee Patricia Castellano.

Some mistakenly believe the store supports an orphanage, she said. But Sandhill Orphanage is just a name.

"It's unique; it's different," said Carl Walls, friend of owner Dolly Bennett of Stockdale.

Sandhill Orphanage Toys opened this summer at Big Spring Mall, across from Gale's Bakery.

The store is temporary, Castellano said. "If it works, we'll stay," she explained.

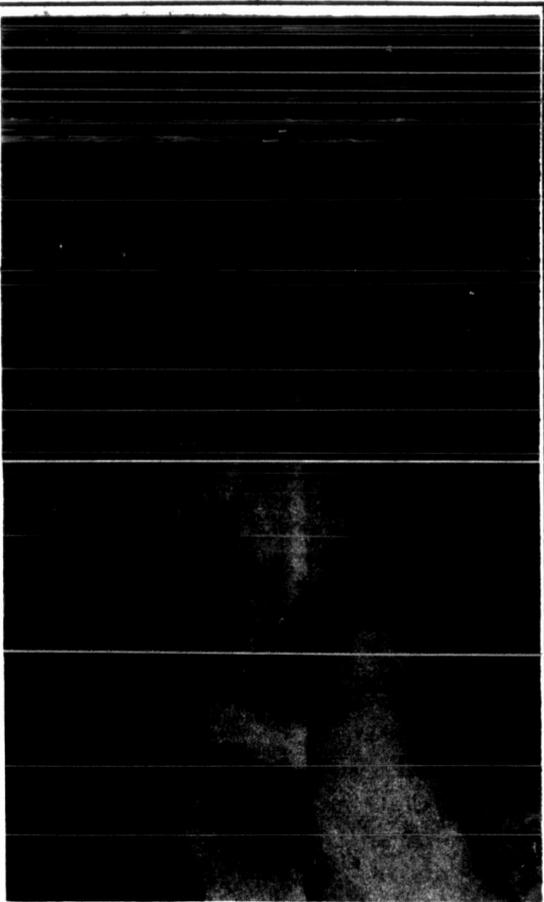

Much of the merchandise is dolls, including many soft sculptures made by Bennett. Her husband makes the wee doll beds, tables and chairs sold in the shop.

The dolls vary in expression and features, sex, size and race. Some are realistic, others cheerful caricatures.

In addition, factory-made dolls are sold.

Manager Laura Reed, Bennett's daughter-in-law, said that so far the dolls haven't sold as well as expected. They sell quickly in San Antonio, she said, but in Big Spring "a lot of people come and look" but don't buy.

A greater variety of toys is expected to arrive later, including many that should appeal more to boys she said.

Laura Reed is manager of Sandhill Orphanage Toys, recently opened at Big Spring Mall. The soft sculpture dolls are made by owner Dolly Bennett.

Farm Credit System sued

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — The Texas Bank & Trust here was closed Friday by the state banking commissioner, making it the 18th bank in the state to fail this year, an FDIC official said.

Officials said the bank will reopen Monday as a branch of RepublicBank Lubbock. The closing came just one day after after Texas Independence Bank in Pasadena failed.

State Banking Commissioner James Sexton said in a statement that an examination of bank records showed "extensive deterioration in its loan portfolio, resulting in losses in the bank's capital and reserves."

"Earning losses also were sustained as a result of large investment in unusually elaborate banking quarters. The loan losses were not concentrated in one particular industry or business but resulted from faulty lending decisions on a variety of commercial loans," he said.

Texas Bank & Trust had assets totaling $36.1 million when it failed, said Bill Olcheski, an FDIC spokesman.

RepublicBank Lubbock will assume about $30.8 million in 7,500 deposits and pay a $375,100 purchase premium, he said. It also will buy some of the failed bank's loans and other assets totaling $19.5 million.

The FDIC will advance RepublicBank $14.4 million to make the assumption easier and will retain assets of the failed bank with a book value of $16.6 million.

The FDIC will liquidate some of the assets not transferred to the assuming bank to recover a portion of the outlay.

The failure is the 122nd in the nation. The bank was not an agricultural bank, he said.

18th Texas bank closes in Lubbock

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Ten agricultural lenders in Oklahoma, Kansas and Colorado who do business with the financially beleaguered Farm Credit System but aren't part of it filed a suit Thursday seeking protection from FCS loss-sharing assessments.

The financial institutions asked for a preliminary injunction and a declaratory judgment in the suit filed in U.S. District Court at Wichita. A hearing had not yet been scheduled.

The Farm Credit System also faces suits in other states filed by two of its district banks and dozens of its lending outlets challenging the loss-sharing arrangements.

Monte Reese, spokesman for the Wichita Farm Credit Banks, said today the banks' lawyers and executives hadn't seen the new suit yet and couldn't comment on its particulars. The Wichita district serves Kansas, Oklahoma, Colorado and New Mexico.

"Clearly the issue needs to be resolved," Reese said, noting that case will help define the system's capacity to deal with its losses.

On July 25, the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Wichita sent notices to the plaintiff lenders saying their holdings in the FICB were being reduced by amounts ranging from about $2,400 to more than $27,000.

Drilling report

These are the latest oil and gas activity reports filed with the Texas Railroad Commission for the five-county crossroads country.

Two new producers have been brought on line in Howard County's Howard-Glasscock Field, with Mobil Producing as the operator.

Located seven miles northeast of Forsan, the wells are in an 80-acre lease in the W&N Survey. They are designated as the Nos. 23 and 24 Chalk Estate.

The No. 23 well showed ability to pump 32 barrels of oil per day, plus 63 barrels of water. Total drilling depth was 3,200 feet.

The No. 24 well potential at 75 barrels of oil daily, along with 230 barrels of water. Bottomhole was at 3,200 feet.

The wells will produce from perforations in the Gloria Formation, ranging from 2,508 to 2,924 feet into the wellbore.

The No. 1 Edwards, a 10,400-ft. wildcat well, is scheduled to be drilled in Howard County. Durham Inc. of Midland is the operator. The well will be spudded in a 320-acre lease in the T&P Survey, eight miles south of Big Spring.

At locations six miles northwest of Big Spring, Enduro Oil completed the Nos. 101 and 102 Guitart "B". Drillsites are in Howard County's Moore Field.

The wells indicated potential to pump oil at the combined rate of seven barrels per day. The No. 101 well bottomed at 3,325 feet, while the No. 102 well reached at 3,310-ft. bottom. Production is from perforations in the San Andres Formation at 3,173 to 3,200 feet into the wellbore.

Locations are in a 1,200-acre lease in the Bauer & Cockrell Survey.

Flowing 284 barrels of oil per day, plus 28 barrels of water, the No. 1 Brennan "A" was completed in Mitchell County by Cox Oil & Gas Inc. of Dallas.

Drillsite is seven miles northwest of Westbrook.

The wildcat well was drilled to 8,275-ft. total depth and will produce from perforations in the Ellenburger Formation at 8,176 to 8,184 feet into the wellbore. Production tests were run on a 14/64-in. choke.

The location is in a lease in the T&P Survey.

William H. Zubone, Jr. of Mattoon, Illinois, has revealed plans to drill three 1,999-ft. wildcat wells in Mitchell County. The wells have been designated as the Nos. 1, 2 and 3 Minatra "A" and will be drilled in the T&P Survey.

The operations will be located eight miles northwest of Colorado City and one-quarter mile west of production in the Shron Ridge (1700) Field.

Production at the No. 96 W.L. Foster "1" has been assigned to the East Iatan-Howard Field, Mitchell County. Chevron USA is the operator. Drillsite is ten miles southwest of Westbrook in a 1,920-acre lease in the T&P Survey.

The well potential at 67 barrels of oil per day, plus 55 barrels of water. It bottomed at 3,038 feet and was plugged back to 2,970 feet. Production is from perforations in the Clea Fork Formation, 2,851 to 2,925 feet into the wellbore.

A Brownfield-based operator has staked location in Borden County for the No. 1 Clayton Johnson "1", a wildcat well to be located 12 miles northwest of Gall. With projected total depth of 9,900 feet, the well will be in a 643-acre lease in the EL&RR Survey. The operator is Amoco Production.

An 8,800-ft. wildcat well is planned by West Texas Oil & Gas of Midland at a drillsite seven miles south of Gall, Borden County. The location is in a 240-acre lease in the T&P Survey.

The well's designation is the No. 1 Clayton.

Amoco Production has hung the "dry hole" sign on the No. 1 Sterling Williams, a wildcat venture in Borden County. It was located six miles southwest of Gall in the T&P Survey.

The well was spudded June 12, and probed to a dry bottom at 9,811 feet.

Pumping 340 barrels of oil per day, plus 170,000 CF casinghead gas, the No. 1 Kemper was completed in Martin County by Davis Oil.

The wildcat well is located 12 miles northeast of Lenorah.

The well was drilled to 10,804 feet and plugged back to 10,697 feet. It will produce from perforations in the Fusselman Formation at 10,604 to 10,612 feet into the wellbore.

The location is in a 960-acre lease in the T&P Survey.

The No. 1 Bayes Brothers, a developmental venture of Maco Operations, has been junked and abandoned in the Ferriswinkle Field, Martin County. It was a re-entry operation originally completed by Exxon Corp. Nov. 4, 1981. At that time it pumped 102 barrels of oil and 1,004 barrels of water from Fusselman Formation perforations at 10,640 to 10,656 feet into the wellbore. Bottomhole was at 11,000 feet.

The well was located three miles northwest of Knott.

Diamond Shamrock Exploration of Amarillo has revealed plans to drill an 8,200-ft. developmental well in the Southeast Blalock Lake Field, Glasscock County.

The operator has 560 acres leased, with drillsite in the T&P Survey. The well will be known as the No. 4-35 Theora Calverley. Drillsite is six miles northwest of Garden City.

Global West Exploration has abandoned its plans to conduct a work-over operation at the No. 2 Powell "2". It was a developmental well in Glasscock County's North Powell Field, 11 miles northwest of Garden City.

The well's original operator was Rockland Oil, who completed the well

March 16, 1984. It flowed 919 barrels of oil daily from Wolfcamp Formation perforations at 8,396 to 8,426 feet into the hole.

'Buyer beware' good advice for the '80s

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — A casual look at the pricing structure of such disparate items as cars, mutual funds and credit cards, to name just three, reinforces the wisdom of heeding that old caveat: buyer beware.

It might also cause an informed buyer to wonder if the consumer movement, one of whose ideals was to remove gobbledygook from the marketplace, hasn't come back to the point at which it began back in the 1960s.

In big print, bank card holders might be informed that interest rates have been lowered. But less prominently advertised is the tendency for annual membership charges to rise.

These charges have nothing to do with card usage. The possessor might, in fact, use the card for less than $100 in purchases, but the $20 or $35 fee applies, in effect raising the interest rate astronomically.

Wise users also check the system of applying interest. Some banks charge interest only after bills remain on the record a month or more; some begin the process immediately. The result is confusion in comparing true costs.

Airline users find so many prices that scheduling a trip can require a staff of interpreters. Car buyers sometimes are dismayed by the divergence between a heavily promoted price and the price on the car in the showroom.

Homebuyers regularly encounter mortgage offers that can confound a lawyer. Heavily promoted rates might be first-year rates only. And points — fees paid up front for the privilege of doing business — add significantly to real rates.

The attention of mail-order customers is directed to low, low prices by deep black type, in hopes that the big, big "handling and mailing" charges will be overlooked.

Mutual fund buyers are being cautioned by advisers to be especially careful. An obvious area of potential difficulty is the difference between "load" and "no load" funds, which isn't as clear as it might seem.

A load fund is one that pays a sales commission to the salesperson. A no-load fund might have no sales staff and no commission charge. Now the complications.

In a load fund, the commission is generally taken out up front, and therefore distorts the quoted commission rate, a situation that one of the major accounting houses recently called to the attention of clients.

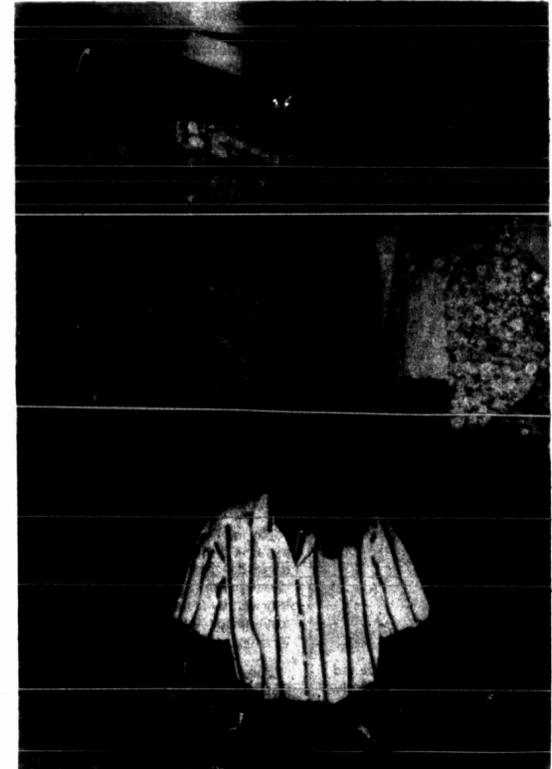

A load mutual fund states that it has an 8.5 percent sales commission. On a $10,000 sale, therefore, the commission is $850. But that $850 is taken out up front, leaving $9,150 to be invested. The fee, therefore, is 9.3 percent.

The selection problem might not end with that knowledge, however, because mutual funds, as did banks before them, are now turning to other types of charges that might disguise costs.

There might, for example, be no up-front commission or sales fee, but there might be a rear-end charge. That is, you pay at redemption rather than at the time of purchase.

One result, says the accounting firm, is that some funds claiming to be no-load funds really do have loads.

Tiffany Bedwell, right, is manager of Joshua Tree women's clothing store, named for the Joshua tree cactus. Angela Dorland, center, and Tricia DeVore are employed at the store.

Joshua Tree clothes store opens at Big Spring Mall

Business has been brisk so far for Joshua Tree, a new women's clothing store that opened this summer at Big Spring Mall, said manager Tiffany Bedwell.

The store is named for the Joshua tree cactus, she said. It is owned by Rebecca Byrd of Colorado City.

This week it is decorated in black and white, in celebration of the Forsan High School homecoming football game.

It has sizes 2 through 16, in styles that appeal to a large age group, and prices that vary greatly, she said.

Clothing lines offered at the store are Ruff Hewn, Calvin Klein, Belle France, Ralph Lauren, Blueberry sweaters, Cambridge and Katherine Stephens.

Styles vary from casual to dressy. In addition, the store sells shoes, belts, leather handbags and jewelry.

No one item has been a best-seller so far, she said, but the casual back-to-school clothes have sold well, as has hosiery, including colored and lace hose.

Because there is a demand for shoes, Joshua Tree will stock additional styles and sizes of shoes in the future, she said.

Lace collars for addition to dresses and blouses also have sold well, she said.

Other store employees are sales clerks Angela Dorland, Tricia DeVore and Sharon Donaghe.

'No guts' theory defines trouble

By TOM PETERS
Time and again managers comment, "Your good-news stories are an inspiration, but tell me, then, why do so many well planned improvement programs fail so miserably?" With rare exceptions, the problem is you, Mr. or Ms. Manager!

Here are the dozen primary reasons that your change program will likely fail:

- 1. NO GUTS. Most firms, large and small, are overstaffed with managers by 200 percent to 500 percent. Staff cuts of 10 percent to 25 percent won't help much. You've got to step up to the brutal reality — and act fast, not ignore it or drag it out over several years.
- 2. SCHMOES OR STARS? Most managers really don't believe, down deep, that the average person — in the distribution center or the reservation center — is a would-be just waiting to be listened to. Three-quarters of the "people participation" programs I come across fail because senior, middle and first-line managers do not truly believe in people's creative talents.
- 3. NOT ENOUGH AGONY. Almost everyone gives lip service to better quality and superior service, but few managers truly agonize over every defective product or botched customer transaction. I often call Roger Milliken of textile maker Milliken & Co. the best chief executive in America. Although his firm has over $2 billion in sales, every tiny defect is a source of unrelieved agony for Roger. That, above all else, is why his quality program is the best in the country.
- 4. AUTHORITY. Corporate chieftains often spend most of their time on the intricacies of various types of so-called "dotted-line relationships" on the organization chart, ceaselessly pondering the nuances of "matrix" structures and other forms of overly centralized and complicated operations. Instead, they should be mimicking today's winning firms in every industry that are radically decentralizing into flat, responsive business units. Granting true unit autonomy, within a framework of shared corporate beliefs, is crucial to their success.

- 5. MACHINES OVER MEN. Strip away all the Labor Day rhetoric and you will find that bosses at most manufacturing firms harbor a Pollyanna vision of robots and computerized manufacturing systems rescuing them from their current doldrums. Computer Integrated Manufacturing (CIM) clearly is an essential tool, but true quality improvement and the ability to slash manufacturing lead time by 95 percent (as many have) depends much more on people and organization than on automation.
- 6. PLANS OVER EMOTIONS. Anyone who doesn't plan is plain nuts. Nonetheless, innovation has always come from charged up, passionate champions, not from sterile reports from a bevy of strategic planners. Computervision co-founder Philippe Villers calls entrepreneurship "unreasonable conviction based on inadequate evidence." Firms of any size that wish to innovate consistently need to encourage numerous bands of maverick champions with just such "unreasonable conviction." A tolerance for lots of moderately structured madness in pursuit of fast-paced innovation is essential to survive in today's volatile markets — whether in banking, health care, steel or computers.

- 7. EGO. When you launch your grand "people participation plan" after years of top-down and directive style management, most people will think that this is just a subtle attempt to con them into working harder. You will be rebuffed, laughed at and made the butt of jokes and graffiti. And you deserve it! Eventually, if you stick it out, a few skeptics will begin to listen. Remember, it took decades for your predecessors (and maybe you, too) to create thorough antagonism and skepticism; you can't turn it around overnight.
- 8. NO GUTS-II. First-line supervisors, who you ask to stop playing cop and start being coaches, are often the major stumbling block to radical change. Re-train them. Wishfully. Counsel them. Be patient — to a point. If they still don't get it, can them.
- 9. THE WRONG NUMBERS. Most managers get far more reports on cost and financial numbers than on product quality or customer service. These so-called soft traits can be measured precisely. Profit follows from putting these traits at the very top of everyone's daily watch list.

- 10. VICE PRESIDENTS AND MEMOS VS. SALES CLERKS. Do you send more hours looking at staff presentations than chatting with service people, suppliers and customers? If so, you haven't got much chance of thriving, or even surviving. An army general speaking about effective combat command states, "You've got to love soldiers." Loving soldiers, like loving your family, means being with them. Check your calendar for the last 30 days, if you have the nerve. Who's ahead? Time spent with vice presidents or with sales clerks?
- 11. LITTLE MINDS. Consistency, it is said, is the hobgoblin of little minds — to which I add, great leaders. "Call a customer," we plead. We really mean call two customers, each day, every day, forever. Three cheers for "little minds" who stoop to do so.
- 12. START SMALL, BUT AIM VERY, VERY HIGH. An appendix to Richard Schonberger's superb book "World-Class Manufacturing" lists 84 factories on U.S. soil that have reduced manufacturing lead time — his chief criterion for assessing manufacturing excellence — by a factor of five, 10 or 20. To become — and stay — competitive, we must improve quality, service and innovation by an order of magnitude. I urge you to start, right now, with small, practical steps. But I beg you to do so in pursuit of very bold goals. Unless you're out to double, triple or quadruple your scores on some key measures, you are not serious.

Sorry if my answers thoroughly depress you. But hey, you asked!

Steers run over Chiefs, 33-13

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

The Big Spring Steers firmly established themselves Friday night as a District 2-4A power to be reckoned with, demolishing the San Angelo Lakeview Chiefs 33-13 in a game that was not as close as the score.

Quarterback Paul Decker scored three times and running back Phillip Mathews scored twice to lead a Steer offense that had only to get the ball to control it. The Steers finished with 447 yards, 329 of those coming on the ground. Mathews led all runners with 157 yards on 17 carries. That's half the story.

Swarming Steers defense, which registered six sacks for 75 yards in losses against an overmanned Chief frontline, was the rest of the story. Including the big losses, the Chiefs ended with but 110 total yards. Both their scores followed Big Spring turnovers.

"Overall, the defense did a great, great job," said Steers coach Quinn Eudy. "Lake View had the ball almost the whole third quarter and the defense did a good job of making them work. The defense, as a unit, ran to the football well. Undoubtedly, we were doing something right in the secondary because they were covered most of the time," he said talking over the whoops and hollers coming from the Steers' dressing room.

Big Spring drove the ball deep into Chief territory on their first possession, converting three times on the third down. From the 25 yard line, Mathews ran over left tackle and into the end zone for an apparent score. A penalty nullified the score, but the run and the drive stalled for the Steers. A missed field goal ended it.

Four plays later it was the Steers' ball again. With the Steers running on quick snaps they drove to the two-yard line. James Harlin's 18-yard run and a 27-yard pass from Decker to Mathews were the key plays. From the two-yard line, Decker kept it over the right guard and Big Spring led 7-0 with 1:35 remaining in the opening quarter.

The Chiefs found themselves doing a lot of punting, as the Steers' defense, led by Todd Coker, Robert Sumner, Matt Garrett, and Deeg Young, allowed Lake View nothing. On the first sack, Young stormed in the pocket before Chief Quarterback Eric Dumas, who lost 10 yards before he knew what hit him.

With six minutes remaining in the half, Mathews ran 18 yards but a holding penalty brought the ball back to the Steers' 24 yard line. On the next play, however, Decker wheeled to his left on the option, tucked the ball, and outran several Chief defenders for a 76-yard touchdown scamper.

"I just ran around the end, and a couple of them overran me, and I was just scared. The line did it — we did it as a team," said an excited Decker after the game.

Following a 20-yard sack by Young, the Chiefs punted. Harlin opened the Steers' drive with an incredible 35-yard run, but it was the third long Steer run to be called back on a penalty. The Steers, though, weren't crying over spilled milk on this night.

On the next play, Decker connected for a 40-yard bomb to a wide-open Cedric Banks, who fell backwards on the five. With 2:15 remaining in the half, a Mathew's sweep upped the lead to 21-0, and the Steers appeared in command.

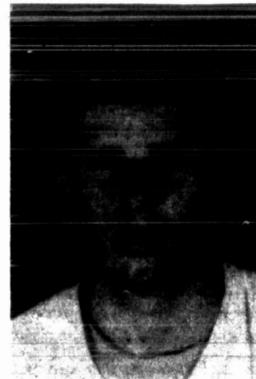

The Steers defense again forced a punt, but Mathews bobbled the ball, and the Chiefs were covered. On the Chiefs' second play, Dumas rolled left and fired the ball across the green to Brent Sparks, who was all alone for the touchdown.

With seconds remaining in the half, Decker threw a 49-yard strike to Mathews that put the ball on the four. But after two losses, the gun sounded ending the half.

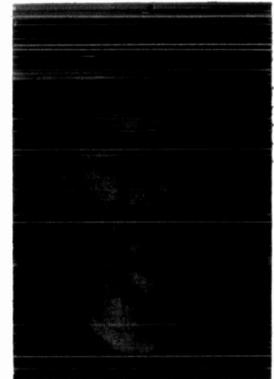

The Steers went into the locker room leading 21-7. The trend for the game had been set — Big Spring could move the ball almost at will and the Chiefs were not going to mount a drive on the Big Spring defense. Nevertheless, Chiefs' quarterback Eric Dumas had made it clear that he had a live arm. With the Chiefs' reputation for the big play, nobody was counting them out.

Decker ended a great first half with 98 yards on the ground and 118 in the air. At the same time, the Chiefs, because of three first-half sacks, had but five yards on the ground.

The Steer defense opened the second half as they had left off, forcing the Chiefs to punt. The Chiefs' punt took an odd bounce and hit Young in the leg as he moved to avoid it. The Chiefs recovered on the 38.

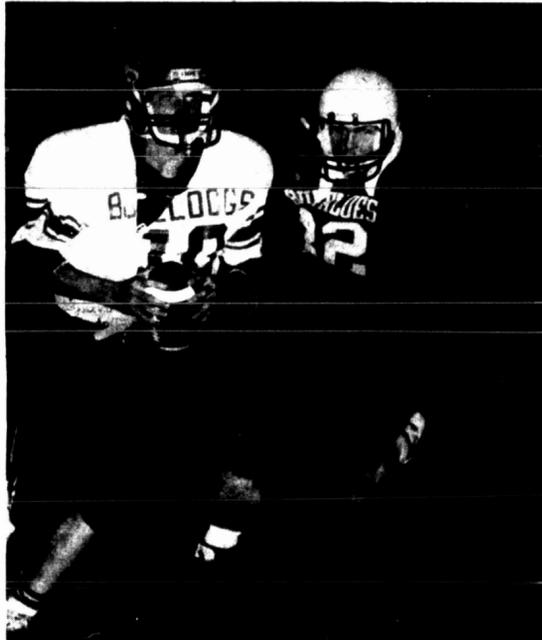

The Steers' defense forced the Chiefs to a fourth down on the 29-yard line, and the Chiefs went for it. Dumas took two steps back and fired the ball to Stacy Warner in the flat. A Steer defender just missed an interception with an open field ahead of him, but the gamble failed.

Warner caught the ball and raced to the five. Eddie Gonzalez scored four plays later with 6:48 remaining in the third quarter. The PAT failed, and the Steer lead was

Forsan wins first Howard County Bowl

FORSAN — The Forsan Buffaloes played a different brand of ball each half, but still scored five touchdowns as they romped over the Coahoma Bulldogs 35-14 in the first annual Howard County Bowl Friday night in front of a Forsan homecoming crowd.

Coach Jan East's squad used a big-play offense in the first half to build a 21-6 halftime lead. Then in the second half, especially the third quarter, they substituted long scoring drives to ice the victory.

The win was Forsan's third without a loss. Coahoma is winless in three games.

While the Forsan offense was rolling up 315 yards total offense, its defense, led by linebacker Wayne Wright, tackle Mike Averette and defensive end Lance Soles, kept the Bulldogs in check most of the game.

The Coahoma offense moved the ball on occasions, but stalled just as much. The Bulldogs managed to grind out 207 yards.

The game was highlighted by the quarterbacks. Forsan junior QB Brant Nichols and Coahoma's James White both turned in outstanding performances.

The smooth-operating Nichols carried the ball seven times for 41 yards and one touchdown. He also completed nine of 13 passes for 98 yards and one TD.

Meanwhile, White almost single-handedly kept Coahoma in the contest until the third quarter. The spirited signal-caller rushed 15 times for 41 yards. He would have had more, but was sacked three times for 28 yards in losses. Through the air, he completed 6 of 13 attempts for 116 yards and one touchdown.

Forsan halfback Wayne Wright also turned in a sterling performance, although he failed to go over the 100 yard mark for the first time this season. After being held to 21 yards in the first half, he ended the night with 97 yards in 14 carries and one touchdown. He also scored on a 22-yard scoring pass and completed a pass to wide receiver Lee Morris for 32 yards.

Forsan started using big plays on its first possession. Following a 12-yard punt by White, the Bulldogs set up shop at the Coahoma 47 yardline. On the first play Wright took a pitch from Nichols and tossed a 32-yard gainer to Morris at the Coahoma 15. Four plays later, fullback John Roman went in from the five. Wright's point after touchdown gave Forsan a 7-0 lead with 7:11 left in the first quarter.

It appeared the Buffaloes had struck for the big play again in the quarter. Morris fielded a punt at his own 49 and streaked 51 yards to an apparent score. But it was whistled back for clipping.

But that didn't phase the Buffaloes. They promptly drove 55 yards in eight plays for another score. Nichols completed three passes in the drive. The last was a 22-yarder to Wright. Nichols appeared sacked on the play, but got the ball away just in time. Wright's PAT gave Forsan a 14-0 lead with 11:48 left in the first half.

Coahoma roared back on the following possession. Craig Wallace returned the kickoff 30 yards to the Coahoma 40. From there, White directed the Bulldogs to paydirt in only five plays. White carried the ball three times for 26 yards in the drive. He capped it with a 22-yard scoring pass to tight end Jimmy King.

The try for two failed, leaving the score Forsan 14, Coahoma 6 with 9:25 remaining in the half.

Forsan went back to its bag of tricks to score its third TD of the half. With a minute left in the half, and facing a fourth-and-10 from their own 48, the Buffaloes went in to punt formation.

The ball was snapped to the up back, Nichols. He took the ball and raced 34 yards around end to the Coahoma 16. Three plays later Nichols scored from the four with 12 second left in the half. Wright's PAT gave Forsan a 21-6 halftime lead.

In the third quarter the Buffaloes got away from the big play and put together two time-consuming scoring drives, leaving no doubt to the game's outcome.

The first drive took went 51 yards and took five minutes. Wingback Soles got the scoring honors with an 11-yard dive. Wright's PAT gave the Buffaloes a three touchdown cushion with 7:04 left.

The final Forsan scoring drive chewed up four minutes while going 52 yards. Wright went over from the two. His PAT gave the Buffs a 35-7 lead with 37 seconds in the third quarter.

The final Coahoma scoring drive was an eight play, 39-yard maneuver. It came following a Forsan fumble. White pulled off the big play with a 16-yard run. Dee Jon Douglass, who was Coahoma's leading rusher with 52 yards, scored from the two. The try for two was good, a White to King hookup.

But for the Bulldogs it was too little too late as the Forsan Buffaloes convincingly won the Howard County Bowl.

cut to 21-13.

The Steers, who had dominated the Chiefs, found themselves in a struggle. As was their way on this night, the Steers rallied.

With 6:00 remaining in third quarter, the Steer offense finally got the ball, but was forced to punt. Four plays later, the Steers defense forced the Chiefs to punt.

Brian Mayfield raced from his left end, blocked the punt and recovered the loose ball on the Lake View 30.

On the Steers' first play, Mathews ran 15 yards. At this point, Mathews and his offensive line were really warming up. Three plays later on third down and a long seven, Decker scored from 12 yards out on a keeper. The PAT failed and the Steers led 27-13 with 1:52 remaining in the third quarter.

With 5:45 left in the game, the Steers struck one last time. Mathews, who had been running through the Chiefs' defensive line all night, burst up the middle and ran 71 yards for the score. The PAT was unsuccessful and the scoring ended 33-13.

"Offensively, we played with poise, and we played like I expected them to," said a happy Eudy.

"I thought our offensive and defensive lines were the places we had to dominate for the game to be played like it was. Phillip ran extremely well, and the offensive line moved some people off the ball. I can't say enough about the offensive line.

"I wasn't worried (about coming back from last week's loss)," he said. "I have a great deal of faith in these kids. They have never failed to come back and play tough after a bad game."

"They're the best kids I've ever coached — I'm talking ability and the way they can come back the way they did."

Fair Impressions

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Barbecue — and plenty of it — will highlight today's closing of this year's Howard County Fair.

Persons entering the barbecue cook-off began arriving Friday night and were expected to cook their meaty delights throughout the night, a fair official said.

Trophies will be awarded for the best barbecue, the best pot of beans and the best chili. Other prizes will go to the cook wearing the zaniest clothes, those cooking over the most glorious barbecue pit and entrants who ventured the greatest distance to compete in this year's cook-off. The judging is scheduled for 3 p.m. today.

Charles Phillips is this year's barbecue cook-off superintendent. Entrants can find him at the northside of the fairgrounds, between the fair barn and the rodeo arena.

Today's finale will also include a professional cake decorating competition, prospect lamb show, rabbit show judging and the all-breed open horse show.

The cake entries will be received in the east end of the Dora Roberts Building from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., with judging at 1:30 Saturday. A Peoples' Choice Award will be included within the judging.

The rabbit show judging is scheduled for 9 a.m. in the north barn.

The horse show is in the rodeo arena and also begins at 9 a.m. Youth and open classes include halter, showmanship, hunter under saddle, hunter over fences, trail, western pleasure, reining, barrels and poles events.

Special awards will go to open grand and reserve halter champions, high point youth 13 and under, high point youth 14-18, high point open western performance horse, high point open English performance horse and high point open timed events horse.

Trophies and ribbons will be awarded in all classes, show secretary Jane Lusk reported.

The Prospect Steer Show will begin at 1 p.m. in the South Barn.

Two final shows by Clyde Foley Cummins, at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. will conclude the fair.

The gates will close at 11 p.m.

Curious three-year-old Bryan Croft, left, checks out Manfred while Jason Campbell moves the puppet for his audience. Campbell is owner of Stagecoach Gifts, which was one of many booths exhibiting and selling products.

Clyde Foley Cummins sings for an enthusiastic Howard County Fair audience in the entertainment tent Thursday night. Cummins will perform Saturday, the last day of the fair, at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m.

Sarah Beth Perry, 3, finds an inflatable frog on a stick to her liking. Children often went home with a fair souvenir, while parents went home with a lighter wallet.
