ARLINGTON (AP) — Fifteen members of the Arlington High School band collapsed aboard a school bus while returning from a football game in Euless, officials said.

In an apparent show of strength, Lewis destroyed attempts by conservatives to tack on amendments to the $830 million tax bill which would have jeopardized the measure before the Senate. He said he has talked with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and believes the Senate will accept the tax measures as passed, thereby avoiding a conference committee to work out differences.

Moves to attach proposed constitutional amemdments on a prohibition of a state income tax and rainy-day fund were beaten back 78-67 and 92-53, respectively.

And a threat by the same group to try and place the appropriations bill back on the chopping block, failed to materialize. The $511.7 million cut in spending for the current fiscal year, which calls for a 10.7 percent reduction to colleges and universities, passed by voice vote without objection.

Following House approval of budget cuts and new tax increases, which still face Senate consideration, White said, "This may mark the most successful 7 1/2 weeks of action in Texas Legislative White called the Legislature into special session Aug. 6 to battle a projected $2.8 billion state deficit as expected revenue shriveled with falling oil prices.

The Senate, which has held out for a tax bill from the House, is expected to consider the $830 million tax bill and $510 million in spending cuts Monday.

Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, sponsor of the tax package, said there was no other choice but to raise revenues in the face of Senate opposition to deeper spending cuts.

Our program that we came into the session with worked. But there was only one problem — the Senate," he said.

Schlueter pushed for the tax hikes, but warned, that during the regular session beginning in January, lawmakers will again have to raise taxes and cut spending to bridge an even wider deficit gap in the next budget period.

Client numbers are concern

Staff and bureau reports

AUSTIN — The staff of the Sunset Advisory Commission said Friday it was not recommending the closure of a state hospital or school although that may become necessary as the number of clients in those facilities continues to decline.

The commission held a public hearing on the Sunset staff report on the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation. The staff has proposed the agency set up criteria for closing institutions if necessary and that it consider placing some geriatric mental clients in nursing homes.

Also, the report proposes that as many services as possible, such as food operations, be contracted rather than handled by state employees. Such an action could affect the employment of Big Spring State Hospital staff, although officials gave no indication to precise numbers at the local facility.

Committee members will not take votes on the 91 recommendations made for the agency until a mid-October meeting.

Cyndie Schmitt, a Sunset staff member, said there had been great concern and "misconceptions" about the geriatric proposal. She said the staff is not recommending that elderly residents in state schools be moved to nursing homes. The recommendation only applies to state hospitals, she said. "No state hospitals should retain patients that can be served in less restrictive environments at reduced costs," she said. The staff, she said, was not proposing the closure of the San Angelo State School or the Kerrville State Hospital, which have the greatest numbers of elderly Responding to questions from former Sen. Pete

One dies from gas eruption

FORT WORTH (AP) - One of the victims of a toxic ammonia gas explosion died Saturday from injuries suffered in the blast that injured 10 others.

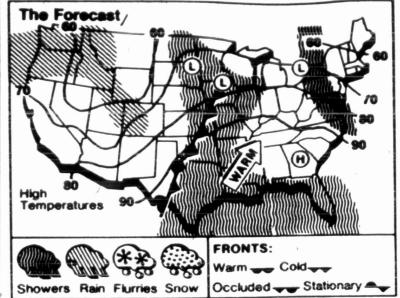

Sherwood Lambert, 60, of Haltom City, died at John Peter Smith Hospital, said Bill Hart, night administrator.

Lambert, chief mechanical engineer for Bunge Edible Oil Corp., was injured Friday when a workman broke a refrigerant line at the north Fort Worth oil processing plant, spewing the deadly gas that could be smelled several blocks away.

Authorities said Lambert, a 30-year employee of Bunge, was trapped in the break room a few feet from the ammonia line when toxic fumes seeped through.

While many workers fled the building minutes after the accident to avoid being overcome by the fumes, others were trapped inside and had to be rescued by fellow workers and firefighters.

Call in dogs on pursuit

WRIGHT CITY, Mo. - Police used bloodhounds Saturday to track a former mental patient suspected in three killings, but the dogs were called off after heavy rain washed away the scent.

Authorities say they believe fugitive Michael W. Jackson was wounded and may be

About 100 officers concentrated their efforts in an area just west of Wright City where Jackson was last seen late Monday, running from a disabled car after a day of killings, abductions and car thefts from Indiana across Illinois into Missouri.

Two bloodhounds were used in Saturday's search, said Cpl. Norbert Weidenbenner of the Missouri Highway Patrol. A shoe belonging to Jackson was flown to Missouri from Indianapolis, where he lived, to give the dogs his scent, Weidenbenner said.

"They'll use one dog at a time," he said earlier. "It's hard to use two of them. They'll run you to death."

Italy opens its arms to singer

By JENNIFER PARMELEE Associated Press Writer

MILAN, Italy (AP) - Like an old flame willing to kiss and make up, Italy opened its arms Saturday for Frank Sinatra and laid claim to "the Voice" after 24 years.

"Frankie's back in town." declared Sinatra at the end of a retooled version of "Mack the Knife," bringing the full house of 9.000 at the Trussardi tent-theater to its feet in cheers.

His hair has silvered and the face that lit many a heart has grown a bit puffy. There were signs of strain at the lowest and highest

But Sinatra, wearing a black tuxedo, was out there high-stepping to "I Get a Kick Out of You" and belting out the crowd-pleaser, "New York, New York." He hung on to the moon-struck long notes of "April in Paris" with a vigor and determination that belied his 70

Sinatra ran smoothly through 21 of his best known hits during the 80-minute concert.

"If I closed my eyes and just listened, it was the same Frank Sinatra I've always known and loved," said Louisa Ossola.

Most men in the audience wore elegant suits and the women glittering evening dresses. Some were in their 40s, others were from Sinatra's generation.

And there were a few younger people, including a woman in black stretch pants, a lame jersey and spiked hair. "I like all shows, all kinds of shows," she said. "I don't just follow people of my generation.' Sinatra launched right into "Fly Me To The Moon," and after "New York, New York" he drew loud applause when he said in Italian: "I'm American, I'm Sicilian, I'm Genoese, but tonight I'm Milanese. Hundreds of fans waited behind barriers for nearly two hours to catch sight of Sinatra outside the theater.

Premier Bettino Craxi and Cesare Romiti, managing director of Fiat, were among the guests.

"At home at last," Sinatra was quoted as saying when he arrived at Milan's luxurious Principe and Savoia Hotel early Friday.

The son of a Sicilian-born fireman and a Genoese woman, Sinatra played to packed houses in 1962. But frequent, sometimes violent run-ins occurred with the

"The Italians don't love me, this is the truth. When I came here in 1962, they wrote that I was part of the Mafia, a boss," he was quoted as telling Italian promoter Pier Quinto Cariaggi in Gente magazine.

So far, the Hoboken, N.J.-born Sinatra has remained closeted in his eight-room, four-bathroom suite filled with yellow and white flowers, vocalizing with longtime music director Bill Miller, sleeping late and entertaining, according to spokeswoman Susan Reynolds.

Hotel employees are sure they've heard strains of the Neapolitan ballad "O Sole Mio" emanating from Sinatra's suite with its piano, separate switchboard and larder stocked with everything from French cognac to Campbell's chicken-and-rice soup.

Hotel officials said they vacated 25 rooms around Sinatra's suite to ensure his privacy.

On Friday night, the singer and his wife, Barbara, played host at a dinner for select guests including Fiat Chairman Giovanni Agnelli and Anna Craxi, wife of the prime minister, Reynolds said.

About 9,000 guests paid from $71 to $360 dollars for Saturday night's concert. Sinatra is known to Italians as "the Voice."

TAX REFORM

(It's Getting Close)

It appears that we will finally have tax reform legislation. Here's a brief rundown of the major provisions of the bill as agreed to by the Senate-House Conference Committee: •Two individual tax rates - 15% and 28%. (Higher income taxpayers will actually have a top rate of 33% because the 15% rate and the personal exemption are phased out at higher income levels.) •Personal exemption increased to $2,000, to be indexed for inflation after 1989 and to be phased out for incomes above $149,250 (joint).

•Standard deduction increased to $5,000 for joint filers; $4,400 for head of household, and $3,000 for singles. Mortgage interest deductions for principal and second residence remain deductible; consumer interest becomes non-deductible; investment interest deductible within limits. Charitable contributions deductible only if you itemize.

·Sales tax no longer deductible; state and local income and proper-Capital gains to be taxed as ordinary income.

•IRA deductions limited to those not covered by company pension plans and not earning above certain levels. •Medical expenses deductible only to the extent they exceed 7.5% of adjusted gross income . Working couples deduction eliminated. Income averaging eliminated. Tax shelter loss deductions limited. (A taxpayer could use these losses only to offset income from similar "passive" investments.) •Three corporate tax rates — 15%, 25%, and 34%. Investment tax credit repealed; depreciation deductions reduced. •Business meals and entertainment expense only 80% deductible. # All must share in weeds battle

A marching army of high weeds has been taking over parts of our community and local officials are beginning to emphasize the multitude of hazards they harbor.

In addition to their unsightliness, the weeds are breeding grounds or hiding places for snakes, skunks, mosquitoes, vermin and various other unwanted trouble-makers.

Jim Ryals, the Big Spring's code enforcement officer, and Assistant Fire Chief Burr Lea Settles also cited the allergy problems and fire hazards they create.

The problems are much worse this year as a result of the heavy rainfalls since the end of May.

All of this should serve to emphasize the additional need for diligence in eliminating these hazards from our properties, alleyways and neighborhoods. Perhaps the task could be made a family-wide project — or two or more families could work together to attack the problem in their area. We believe that none of us wants to feel responsible for the suffering of others as a result of our failure to make our properties and neighborhoods safer. But that remains a possibili-

Water bill yields 'blood from turnip'

To the editor:

I remember as a child an old saying, that you cannot squeeze blood out of a turnip. During the past few days, I have changed my mind, and I feel-like I am that turnip.

My good husband passed away in March of this year. After his passing, my water bill went steadily up and up for five straight months.

In July, I spent the month in California, Utah and Colorado with my daughter and a sister, and then in Amarillo with my Mother. Upon returning to Big Spring, I was presented my mail with a water bill of $106.

Keep in mind that this was the same month when the water was off for four straight days in my area as well as all over town for

I asked at the water office for someone to please come and check my meter, and they said they did. They also said I had used 56 thousand gallons of water. I ask you: Can a widow woman who was out of state, has no garden, and had only her lawn mowed while she was gone, actually use 56 thousand gallons of water?

The neighbors in my area are mostly widows. I asked about their bills, and they said theirs were not out of the ordinary. But a fellow bus driver and a friend said their bills were $200 plus and $300 plus. They were in different parts of town from me.

I wash once a week and take a bath at least on Saturday whether I need it or not, as the saying goes, and I have no air conditioner that has a water connection to leak all over the ground. I use the so-called energy saver fans.

My yard is not dead, thanks to the 24 inches of rain we had, because I have not watered it since I went to California

I have never in my 44 years of living in Big Spring had to borrow money to pay for my utilities. I have never felt a bitterness toward our utility companies

But this month, I feel like that proverbial turnip. Not receiving a regular paycheck during the entire summer (bus drivers are not paid during the off season), and having to work 20 days for a nine-day pay (they usually hold back two in this profession), I feel like I have sweated blood. I had to borrow to pay my water bill and I am not the least pleased.

I know the offine girls are not to blame for these situations, but with hundreds of people going there to complain about their bills, as the Herald printed, something is rotten in Denmark, and it isn't the poor

The publicity, about mass releases could give the Republican candidate new cause for attack.

With U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice opposing White's proposal to transfer some prisoners to a National Guard base at Mineral Wells and a TDC hospital at Galveston, a politically dangerous release could occur.

Without those emergency transfers under White's plan, the state will reach the trigger limit that forces the release of more than 200 inmates

Justice's negative ruling could reach a climax in the next few days. The state will press an appeal and White's forces undoubtedly hope that will push the controversy into the background until after the election.

Even if it doesn't, White might be able to turn the confrontation with Judge Justice to his favor with some skillful political maneuvering. Bucking a federal judge can be appealing to some voters.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Key senators plan to confer this week on a proposal to let states raise the speed limit on rural interstate highways to 65 miles per hour if the states ban radar detectors, require drivers to wear seat belts and assure compliance with the higher

Rep. James Howard, D-N.J. chairman of the House Committee on Public Works and Transportation, offered the proposal Friday as a way to break a deadlock or highway bills approved by the House and Senate.

The $52.3 billion highway bill passed last Wednesday by the Senate would allow states to increase the speed limit to 65 miles per hour on interstate highways outside communities with populations of more than 50,000. It would affect about 70 percent of the system. The House highway measure contains no such Normally, House and Senate negotiators resolve differences in their bills in a conference committee. But Howard, in a letter to Sen. Robert Stafford and other senators, said the speed limit issue is so important that it must be treated differently.

"The House conferees have such a concern about the increased loss of life and maiming that we know will occur with a 65 mile per hour speed limit that we feel we must consider life-saving measures before we begin the conference process," Howard wrote.

He closed the letter with an apology for taking "this unprecedented step of imposing conditions prior to conference.'

Stafford, R-Vt., chairman of the Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works, said he has never heard of "preconditions" to a conference in 26 years in Congress.

His press secretary, Lisa Swann, said Stafford will talk to Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, chairman of the committee's transportation subcommittee, on Monday before making an official response to Howard's proposal.

"Basically, he (Stafford) just wants to get to conference soon because there's very little time and he doesn't want the bill to die," Swann said Saturday.

McLennan County District Attorney Vic Feazell pleaded innocent to racketeering and mail fraud charges Friday before U.S. District Judge Walter S. Smith Jr.

During a search after Feazell's arrest on those charges, the FBI said it seized a water pipe with marijuana residue and syringes from his house, along with audio tapes and other items. Feazell's attorney wants the tapes returned.

Results of a urinalysis Feazell took on Friday showed no presence of marijuana, cocaine or am-

Barron said he was satisfied the tests showed no drug abuse.

'The whole thing was so ridiculous. I wanted to prove I've nothing to hide," Feazell said. "Marijuana stays in your system for up to six weeks." During Friday's court hearing,

Richardson, contended the tapes seized by the FBI are vital to his defense

Assistant U.S. Attorney Jan Patterson compared the tapes to those made by former President Richard

"It is clear that the defendant does not think the rules of law are applicable to him," Ms. Patterson said. "If you turn the tapes over to him, they will not be seen again."

She alleged the tapes contain evidence of Feazell's guilt, including conversations with attorneys and witnesses.

Richardson denied that anything in the tapes would tend to incriminate Feazell. Smith had ordered the tapes and other materials confiscated from Feazell sealed on Sept. 19. The judge said he would rule Monday on whether to return the tapes to the defense.

Feazell claims the charges are in retaliation for his 1985 grand jury inquiry into confessions made by self-proclaimed serial killer Henry Lee Lucas. The grand jury rejected Lucas' confession to the killing of a Waco-area woman.

Lucas, who made confessions to hundreds of murders, said he issued the admissions in order to discredit law officers. Feazell contends his probe embarrassed law officers who participated in a task force that investigated Lucas.

Feazell said the water pipe confiscated by the FBI was given to him by a former neighbor, E.B. Hawthorne, who found the pipe in his front yard.

The following column will deal with a potpourri of sports subjects, all of which were thought about and written down in great haste. It's now 9:15 p.m., Saturday night, and I haven't much time to fill my alloted space. At this point, speed is more important than sense.

We begin with the NBA Shootout, which in my estimation was a big success. Having Robert Reid, George Gervin and others run and jam in Big Spring was a pleasure. Howard College basketball coach Larry Brown took a big chance bringing basketball to football crazed West Texas, and he's to be thanked.

Brown admits there were some hitches. Some of the players scheduled to come did not, but that was beyond anyone's control. Michael Cooper, Walter Davis and Artis Gilmore had good reasons — they were in the middle of contract negotiations.

Pro camps start Oct. 3, and all three were without contracts. On Wednesday and Thursday, I read over the sports wire that both Cooper and Gilmore had come to terms. Coach Brown said that if Cooper shows, so does Byron Scott, and the same thing with Davis and Larry Nance. That's five stars who said they would be here, but couldn't because of last minute dealings.

As of Tuesday morning, Coach Brown had plane tickets for all five players, and expected them to walk out the gates at Midland-Odessa airport. Brown said next year (yes, there'll be another Shootout) he will know to sign players who have firm contracts. He also said next year he would consider a children's ticket price. As it stands, the Shootout has not broken even. But nevermind who didn't show. Who did show and the fun they had is more important. I mean, when's the last time Robert Reid, George Gervin, Alan Leavell and Tiny Nate Archibald played basketball in Big Spring. Archibald, for one, is a sure bet to wind up in the Hall of Fame, and I got to see him play. In person, I could see what made him special. His nifty passes and crafty style of play have hardly been diminished in the few years since he's been out of pro ball. At the beginning of the Shootout, I was a little worried. The crowd seemed hesitant to cheer in the first minute or so, as if there was some sense of distance between crowd and players. Thankfully, this feeling out period ended with the first dunk, which in turn initiated the cheering, and rid the crowd once and for all of their shyness.

Everyone I know of, save one, had a great time, and look forward eagerly to next year's game.

As I said, there was one kill-joy, who for purposes of simplicity, I will call Mr. Jack Ass. In the third quarter Coach Brown was strolling from one bench to the other when Mr. Ass (who may have had bourbon in his coke); reached over me and tugged on the coach's shoulder. Mr. Ass, in a smart tone of voice befitting his name, asked Brown where all the stars were. He proceeded to make some nasty insinuations. Coach Brown answered him too politely. As for myself and the guy next to me, we both would have loved to have been able to jerk Mr. Ass on the floor and let him have it. Coach Brown busted his tail, spent a lot of his own money, and did every thing he possibly could to bring quality basketball and a good time to Big Spring. All Mr. Ass could

I profer to remember a more accurately representative reaction to the game. Soon after Mr. Jack's sickly outburst, a kid of about eight or nine plopped himself into the seat beside me at the press table, and before I could introduce myself, started urging the Red team to get it

I immediately respected the kid's sense of initiative. He saw an open seat closer to the action, and he went for it. He followed the action like it was the playoffs, and wasn't the least bit hesitant in giving encouragement to the pros as they glided by just a few feet from him. "Good try, Ice," he said to the legendary scorer as he ran by after missing a

I wish I could remember the kids name. He had a real matter of fact manner as he talked basketball, and he made for great company. He loved the game, and I'm sure he's glad somebody took the initiative to bring pro basketball to Big Spring.

(It's 10:05, and time is of the essance.) Saw Miami-Oklahoma today, and must say that the Hurricanes are AWESOME. Vinny Testeverde is a pro quarterback, and Alonzo Highsmith and Melvin Bratton are pro running backs. The Hurricanes have a pro defense

The "Boz", so good at bringing attention to himself, took the big fall. Granted, the guy's a character, and he makes things more interesting. At the same time, I reserve the right to hate him, and to take great pleasure when he fails. Sitting on the sidelines, with purple, orange and yellow stripes in his hair and his team getting crunched, I couldn't help but think he looked like a clown.

He is a great player, but "ha ha ha" Mr. Boz, and I hope you didn't hear me.

My choice for Wimp of the Year, or perhaps for all-time, goes to photographer Arthur Seitz. He's that manly man who's sueing Martina Navratilova for hurting his arm and causing him "psychological duress." What follows is a transcription from the trial:

'This big mean girl, your honor (sniffle)...she grabbed me, then she hit me (sob)...Oh I can't go on (You must)..Okay...she yelled at me, and took out my film and lashed me with it (more sniffles, and difficulty breathing)...please your honor, help me..(sob)..I'll never be the same...give me a couple of million dollars (sniffle) ..can I have a hanky?'

Mr. Seitz sounds like a three meals a day quiche eater. I don't blame him for getting beat up by Martina. She would probably do the same to me. But would any guy with even the slightest pretensions to manhood sue a girl for beating him up?

Time's up

Hurricanes bury Sooners

Testaverde picks apart Bosworth led Sooners

MIAMI (AP) — Sharpshooting Vinny Testaverde threw four touchdown passes, two of them 44 seconds apart early in the third period, and Miami's defense stuffed Oklahoma's mighty wishbone as the second-ranked Hurricanes defeated the top-rated Sooners 28-16 Saturday and moved into the driver's seat for college football's national championship.

Testaverde, who set a school record by completing 14 consecutive passes in the second and third periods, finished with 21 completions in 28 attempts for 261 yards without an interception as Oklahoma once again fell victim to its long-time Achilles heel failure to stop a strong passing Testaverde's scoring passes covered 6 yards to backup tight end Alfredo Roberts, 8 yards to starting tight end Charles Henry, and 5 and 30 yards to wide receiver Michael Irvin. The last three came in the third quarter as Miami pulled away from a 7-3 halftime lead.

The swarming, hard-hitting Hurricanes of Coach Jimmy Johnson, a noted master of defense, crushed Oklahoma's hopes of avenging last year's 27-14 loss to the Hurricanes and dealt the Sooners what could be a fatal blow in their quest for a second consecutive crown.

The teams had been trading strong words all week and the bitter feelings erupted into a brief bench-clearing skirmish with 1:22 left to play. Order was restored

Miami overcame an official's inadvertent whistle that cost it possession after Oklahoma's Sonny Brown muffed a punt and the Hurricanes recovered at the Sooners' 30 early in the second period with the game still scoreless.

But they took advantage of a shanked 16-yard punt by Oklahoma's Mike Winchester that set up an eight-play, 60-yard scor- field goal 17 seconds before touchdown pass to Roberts at 9:18 of the second period. And they got another big break when an ineligible Oklahoma receiver wandered downfield and nullified a 20-yard touchdown pass from Jamelle Holieway to Patrick Collins late in the first half.

The Sooners settled for a 31-yard setback in its last 15 games, both to shootouts to 0-4.

It was the 20th meeting between the No. 1 and No. 2 teams since the Associated Press poly began in 1936, and just the fourth time the runnerup has won. There also have been two ties.

After Thomas Wilcher scored with 1:27 remaining following Hick's second interception for a 20-10 lead, Florida State drove 67 yards in six plays to score, quarterback Danny McManus throwing a 20-yard pass into the end zone with 16 seconds left in the game. McManus then passed to Pat Carter for a two-point conversion, but an on-sides kick was recovered by Michigan.

No. 12 Southern Cal 20, No. 6 Washington 10

Split end Ken Henry caught two touchdown passes, including a 13-yard pass from quarterback Rodney Peete in the fourth quarter, as Southern Cal rallied to upset Washington, 2-1, in a Pacific-10 Conference opener.

Henry grabbed Peete's pass in the corner of the end zone to give the Trojans their first lead of the game with 12:38 left to play. The touchdown climaxed a 65-yard march engineered by Peete.

Southern Cal. 3-0, added a 25-yard field goal by Don Shafer with 4:09 remaining. No. 7 Penn State 42, East Carolina

Led by quarterback John Shaffer's two touchdown passes, No. 7 Penn State ran up a 35-0 halftime lead and then coasted to its victory over East Carolina. The win improved Penn State's record to 3-0, while East Carolina dropped to 0-4 and saw its winless streak extended to 13 games, the nation's longest in Division I play.

No. 8 Auburn 34, Tennessee 8 Brent Fullwood ran for 207 yards, scoring on a 19-yard run and setting up another touchdown with an 85-yard scamper, as No. 8 Auburn beat Tennessee, 1-2.

Reggie Ware scored twice on runs of one and two yards as the Tigers remained undefeated after three games Tennessee avoided a shutout with 8:37 remaining when Randy Sanders connected with Anthony Miller on a 60-yard pass play. No. 9 Arkansas 42, New Mexico St.

Quarterback Greg Thomas engineered three touchdown drives in four possessions as Arkansas routed New Mexico State. The Arkansas string of not allowing a rushing touchdown ended at 50 quarters when Keith Lott scored from the 1 with 8:30 left in the fourth quarter. No. 10 Arizona 24, Colorado 21 Flanker Jeff Fairholm was on the receiving end of a 67-yard touchdown pass play with 4:45 left to rally No. 10 Arizona, 4-0, past winless Colorado, 0-4.

The victorious Wildcats trailed throughout the game until Fairholm's catch at the 50 and his successful race to the end zone. The winning drive had started on Arizona's own 9-yard line.

Colorado's scores were set up by big plays, a 68-yard pass play setting up a short TD run, a 30-yard interception return setting up a 6-yard TD run and a 34-yard pass play putting the Buffaloes in position for their final six-pointer.

Klondike gained 405 total yards to Borden County's 252 yards, but the Coyotes made theirs count as they defeated Klondike 57-32 in sixman action.

Borden County scored the first three times they got the ball, and limited Klondike to just eight first half points on their way to taking a 37-8 lead at the half. Kerry Fryar scored one of Borden County's first half touchdowns on a return of an interception.

Women's career decisions no easier

By CARLEEN EVERETT Lifestyle Editor

Career decisions for women have not gotten easier.

"Women need to consider their priorities before investing their whole life" in a job, says Bonnie Long, retired distribution dispatcher from Texas Electric Service Company (TESCO).

Long says a woman today needs to consider "if she's interested in a job strictly for the money or for a career with power, prestige and money ... against what she has to lose — time at home for family and herself, freedom from the eight to five time clock and stress and strain from job related illnesses.

She is one of a growing number of women who believed she could have it all, had it all and then decided that maybe she didn't want it all. She kicked off her high heels and went home.

After 34 years with TESCO, Long retired early.

"It wasn't as sudden as it seemed at the time. I had reached the top in my job. The top for me was being assigned to what had always been a man's job and a $400 a month raise."

At TESCO, Long's duties as distribution dispatcher were to dispatch 125kv electrical systems within Big Spring and surrounding areas. She also had mapping and engineering duties, she

"When I began my career, you didn't choose what you wanted to do — you were lucky to have a job. And since you had acquired the habit of eating, you

At 16, Long worked in a bank and at 17, she was society editor for the *Col*orado City Record. A year later, she began working for TESCO.

"It's a super company."

As a female in the workplace, her level of responsibility created a constant challenge, Long said. "I continually had to prove myself to each new manager or supervisor. When a man came to work, it was assumed since they had the title, they could do the work.'

Her job was very demanding, she said. "I was on call, traveled and worked in the office by myself, even at late hours." She said that her husband, Jim Long, superintendent of Cosden Oil, was very supportive.

"But, I think I may have peaked out .. I had reached the top and it wasn't like I thought it would be. I think women tend to fantasize about jobs maybe men do too, but I suspect they're more realistic about it because they're raised in the job world."

Long said she wanted to have children early in life, but could not, for health reasons.

"If I would've had children, I would've stayed home," she said.

"As I look around me now, I think those women who stayed home may be the ones who have their priorities in place. Many women are going to feel like they're missing something by being away from home. Yet, I'm a different person because of my working days. Life is easier because I have my retirement."

She didn't know what she wanted upon her retirement, she said, but she knew exactly what she didn't want.

"The pressure, having to be someplace from eight to five and having to prove myself over and over Now Long enjoys her spare time. "I knew I couldn't go home and sit there. I deliberately became involved in the Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce and am president of the Blue Blazers. It has served a two-fold purpose. It has kept me out in the public — meeting people, and I'm helping the Chamber.'

"When someone calls about golf, I can say whatever time they're thinking, it fits my schedule perfectly. That's how it is these days," she noted.

After a 34-year career with TESCO, Bonnie Long is looking at life from the other side of the corporate fence these days — and sometimes, that puts her on the golf course. She has insight on the demands and responsibilities that go in to the decisions of a career woman. They will be among the subjects discussed at the Third Annual Women's Conference October 4, Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, sponsored by The Blue Blazers, the Women's Division Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

Firefighters keep their cool when the heat comes on

By CARLOS VIDAL GRETH

Austin American-Statesman AUSTIN (AP) — The dozen men sat around the picnic table in the combination kitchen and dining hall, feasting like tomorrow might

They ate their turkey enchiladas and guacamole the way you would expect firefighters to eat — heartily, quickly (with memories of many hurriedly abandoned meals) and with plenty of hot picante sauce.

"No self-respecting fireman would pour mild salsa," said Bill Wofford, a five-year Austin Fire Department veteran. To the amusement of his comrades, he spit the word "mild" like a watermelon seed.

For the people on the front line, an 8-to-5 job pushing a pencil exerts about the same appeal as a dentist appointment. Many signed up for the schedule (24-hour shifts every hird day), the benefits and securily, to be sure.

But the common lure is the excitement. Though they wouldn't wish a fire on anyone, when the alarm sounds (an insistent electronic monotone replaced the hammer-action bell long ago), nobody wants to be left behind.

"If we got a call right after coming in from a three-alarm fire, there isn't a guy here who wouldn't want to go out again," said Wofford, a former independent truck driver.

"I love to drive," he kidded. "I turn on the whoopee (siren) and run the stoplights, honking for the cars to get out of the way. That's "A preschool class came by this morning," Wofford said. "That's the fun part of this job. All those 4-year-olds holding the fire hose."

There are a lot of popular misconceptions about firefighters, says Lt. Gary Schutze. For one thing, they don't sit around the station in lawn chairs waiting for fire

He described that day's schedule, which included training and refresher courses, equipment maintenance, building inspections, clean-up detail, mandatory exercise and prefire planning (firefighters hope for the best, but humor. We call it 'worming.' prepare for the worst).

And firefighters, Schutze said, do more than put out flames. He quoted statistics for some of the calls the fire Department answered in May: 407 medical emergencies, 326 investigations (gas leaks, for example) and 29

Austin firefighter John Ham adds the finishing touches to some three-alarm enchiladas in the 55-year-old firehouse on South Congress Ave.

The firehouse, a 55-year-old brick structure on South Congress Avenue, is decorated in "early

The only luxurious touches are the gleaming terrazzo floor and big-screen TV in the dayroom equipped with cable and pay TV

"We have a lot of fun when we get the work done," Schutze said. 'It's amazing what 12 guys can think up to amuse themselves There's a lot of kidding going on. I guess you could call it gallows

Sitting on one of the narrow single beds in the spartan sleeping quarters, firefighter Kevin Baum fondly recalled some favorite worming stunts. One fellow planted a stuffed boar's head in the bed near the door of the dorm. A blanket and plumped-up pillows helped complete the effect of a hibernating

"It was the first thing you saw when you came in," Baum said, chucking. "He slept with us about a

He admitted that the other guys ride him a little because he is short, an ex-Marine and gung ho about his

"I got the nicknames Rambo and the K-Bomb because I don't like to take breaks when fighting fires. When I first came to the station, I was always chomping at the bit.

"Firefighters are cocky, almost egotistical," he said. "You can see it when we play basketball. That's part of what it takes. We're trained to deal with life-threatening situations or to save lives — at a certain, calculated risk to ourselves.'

Baum's words proved prophetic. Soom after 8 p.m., fire specialists Don Smith and Marion McKibbin, firefighter Kenny Miller and Baum received a manpower call (a request for personnel, not engines) to assist in a two-alarm fire in East Austin. As acting battalion chief, Capt. Robin Paulsgrove also was called in. By the time they arrived, it had been declared a three-alarm

The second story of the gloomy condemned structure was engulfed in flames. In the smoky haze and harsh glare of the fire engine lights, the walls of flame possessed an unreal character. Twenty onlookers clustered on a corner, while phlegmatic regulars in neighborhood bars stuck to their elbow bending.

The pumpers soon subjugated the flames, and a small force armed with axes and other equipment entered the fray. Fifteen minutes later, hair plastered to their foreheads and steaming sweat, the men of Station 6 staggered out.

"Wasn't such a bad fire." Baum mumbled, fumbling with the snaps on his heavy firefighter's coat

"But it was hot enough. "It was warm enough to break a sweat," McKibbin agreed, tossing down a drink from the Salvation Army Emergency Canteen. "We got up on the second floor and flames broke out again. We had to cut through a couple of false ceilings, which complicated things. He added dispassionately, "I heard they found the remains of a body on the first floor.'

Paulsgrove, 30, calmer than a saucer of lukewarm tea, seemed to be everywhere at once. "When the men from Station 6 came up, I couldn't treat them differently," he said. "Everyone was equal at that Because of heat exhaustion, the officers occasionally have to overcome the men's desire to hang in there fighting the fire. We don't have a lazy fireman problem."

Back at the station, Paulsgrove sat on the edge of his desk, his tightly wound inner spring slowly uncoiling.

"On busy nights, there's a general anxiety, but not fear," he said. "Every time the alarm sounds, we get an immediate adrenaline response which is very draining. Even the false alarms take a toll."

With a laugh, he told how firefighters are required to keep their turn-out boots outside the stalls while they take their showers. "We go from a full stop to complete readiness in seconds," Paulsgrove said. "Sometimes, it's like going on a strenuous run without stretching first."

Though the firefighters are reluctant to discuss it, they share a bond almost as close as kinship.

"I'd just as soon be with these guys as alone," said Chess Payne, one of the few bachelors on the shift. "I could talk to any of them about personal things — if I fought with a girlfriend or my dog got run over. We live together like a family, but rely on one another more than any family.'

'When I first came here, I figured I'd have to learn to think like everyone else. Everybody was wearing the same uniform, part of a close team. One of the great freedoms of this life, however, is that we're so comfortable with with each other that it's OK to be different.'

The younger men have a special respect and fondness for Battalion Chief George Gant. With broad grins, the firefighters warn you that Gant will talk your ear off. Actually, they enjoy his recollections more than most. He has plenty of them, too. On Oct. 26, the native Austinite will celebrate his 30th year with the Fire Department.

'This is not a job; it's a way of life," he said. "The supervisors live with the supervised, so most management theories don't work in the Fire Department. It's a group of people who have to get along. You can't go home to Mama complaining after eight hours.

One of the biggest — and saddest obstacles they all have to overcome is the frequent contact with death and tragedy. Psychologists call the syndrome critical incidence stress. Some firefighters call it burnout.

"The younger ones have trouble dealing with death at first," Gant said. "They learn to handle it or get out. We see people torn to pieces, burnt to a crisp, or overcome by smoke. But the small children always get to us. Especially around Christmas.

The rookies want to go out on the big emergency calls. They want to prove themselves. Me, I've seen all the bad fires I want to."

Jones-Meyer

Cindy Jones of Big Spring became the bride of Bruce Meyer of Big Spring at an evening ceremony on Sept. 27 at Hillcrest Baptist Church with Logan Peterson, officiating.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. E.L. Jones, 405 Pennsylvania. Bridegroom's parents are Joy Meyer and the late Bill Meyer, Rt. 3 Box 108.

The couple stood beneath an archway decorated with greenery, a seven-branch candelabra and two large arrangements of dusty rose flowers and greenery.

Organist was Beth Spence of Big Spring. Tammy Lockhart was vocalist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a silk, sheer gown with embroidered lace fashioned with a molded bodie embellished with lace and pearls. It also featured a sheer, high yok and standup collar of embroidered lace and mutton sleeves with lace lower sleeves. An A-line skirt with motifs of embroidered lace and pearls fell to rows of wide ruffles that edged the skirt and up the back of the chapel-length train.

She carried a cascading bouquet of silk ivory roses and baby's breath with English ivy and Swedish ivy. Matron of honor was Vonda Lockhart of Big Spring. Bridesmaids were Lou Campbell, sister of the bride, of Abilene; Donna Henry, sister of the bride, of Big Spring; and Deborah Baremore, sister of the bridegroom, of Snyder.

Flower girls were Lindsey Lockhart and Ashley Baremore, niece of the bridegroom, both of Big Spring. Ring bearer was Jason Wright, nephew of the bridegroom,

Crocheter is fixture in courthouse

SULLIVAN, Ind. (AP) — In Sullivan County's courthouse, the commissioners have their meeting room, the treasurer has a desk and Alma Ridge has a dresser full of varn.

Six days a week as she has done for dozens of years, Mrs. Ridge settles into a worn leather library chair in one corner of the ladies' lounge, pulls out her needles and colorful yarns and starts her work.

From 8 a.m. to 2 p.m., the 83-year-old woman trims dish towels, dish rags and face towels with crocheted borders, rarely looking up from her work.

"I see the cars go by, that's about all," she says, peering over a windowsill adorned with silk flowers and a blooming geranium.

But when a woman passes through the lounge, Mrs. Ridge perks up, adjusting the heart locket on her dress and fingering her red silk corsage. Always curious, the women stop and within moments, Mrs. Ridge has driven a hard bargain for 50 cents or a dollar.

'I sell them as fast as I make them," she says. "I'm busy all the potholders.

Secretaries in the courthouse bring Mrs. Ridge her breakfast and lunch from a newsstand across the Most of her meager profits go toward small gifts for her friends, courthouse workers say.

No one knows for sure how many years Mrs. Ridge has crocheted in her courthouse corner — not even Mrs. Ridge. Courthouse workers can vouch for Mrs. Ridge's long tenure, however.

'I've been here since 1955 and she's been here at least since then," said county treasurer Barbara Anderson. "She just feels like this is her job."

Muscle won't grow without rest Stork Club

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I'm a 27-yaer-old male. I don't get into any organized sports. My whole activity is weightlifting. I started out a year ago and did it religiously. At first I made real gains, but for the past six months I haven't noted much improvement in strength. I did increase my exercising to a daily schedule from every other day. What's gone wrong? — L.R.

You've forgotten a most important part of any training program

You must give exercised muscles a chance to recuperate. Exercise actually damages muscle fibers. That damage is a part of muscle growth. But the muscles must rest to permit them to repair the damage - and to grow.

If you don't provide recovery time you won't get any gain, either in size or strength.

I cannot give you an exact schedule. Some must separate exercise sessions by 24 hours. That's the day-on-day-off program. That will work for most. Others need 48 hours' rest. You will have to experiment. But you can certainly begin by doing away with your daily schedule. With the proper amount of rest, you'll be able to perform the exercises with less ef-

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: How do the chemical ice packs work, the ones you break to cause the coldness? — J.J.

The chemical packs contain separate compartments of ammonium nitrate and water. When these two meet the result is coldness. The advantage of these kits is their ability to be stored in normal temperature. They don't have to be kept frozen before use.

You have to be careful in using these packs, though. One authority notes that they produce more inis danger of frostbite in leaving one on too long. The regular ice packs can be used for longer periods without this danger. But you have to be careful, even with those. Don't confuse the chemical packs I'm talking about with the gel packs that do have to be kept

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Is there truth to the idea that gelatins are the best protein sources? I am training and am cutting back on meat, and I want to substitute gelatin. Will it work? - B.L.

Gelatin is made from collagen of animal bones. Collagen is protein substance, for sure, but it is not the best of all proteins. It lacks some important amino acids present in other proteins. You wouldn't want to depend on it for your total protein intake

There's an old saying — if your feet hurt, you hurt all over. Dr. Donohue's booklet, "Relief and Care of Your Feet," shows you how to avoid and take care of foot problems. ### Lifestyle policies

We will be pleased to announce the news of your engagement, wedding, silver or golden anniver-sary in the Lifestyle section of the Big Spring Herald. We try to use the story on the date you request, but sometimes space does not permit this.

The information must be submitted to us on a form available at the Herald no later than Wednesday noon before the Sunday it is to be published. The form must include a name and elephone number of a person whom we can reach during the day for more information

We will use a picture of the couple in the announcement. Or in the case of engagement announcements where a picture of the couple is not available, we will use one of the bride-elect. The picture must be a professional quality studio photograph. We prefer a 5 x 7 glossy black and white print. We ask for this kind of photograph so that it will reproduce well in the newspap

Following the picture's publication, it may be picked up at the Lifestyle department.

The information for the story may be brought to the Lifestyle department of the Herald, which is located at 710 Scurry. Or it may be mailed to Lifestyle Department, Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720. Call us at (915) 263-7331 if we can help with more information or clarification of our policies ENGAGEMENTS

Information of engagement announcements must be submitted to the Lifestyle department of the Herald anytime after the engagen reality until at least three weeks prior to the wedding. Anything closer than three weeks will not be published. The engagement form must be submit-ted no later than Wednesday noon prior to the Sunday it is to be published.

If the bride-elect, prospective bridegroom or their parents do not now or have never lived in our area, we need to know why you are submitting your engagement to the Herald. If only grandparents live in our area, please give their names WEDDINGS

If a wedding writeup is submitted to the Herald after the wedding has occurred, the space allotted to it will diminish according to the length of time that has passed since the wedding.

BIRTHS Local hospitals supply information for Storkclub. If a child is born elsewhere in the newspaper's circulation area, or is born to outtown parents with local or area grandparents, please contact the Herald Lifestyle Department Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. W.A. Ringener of Stanton. Bridegroom's parents are Mrs. E.R. Kendall of Hereford and the late E.R. Kendall.

The couple stood before an altar decorated with a rainbow candelabra with greenery and baby's breath and two large basket arrangements of burgundy gladiolas and pink carnations.

A quartet from the Golf Course Road Church of Christ in Midland

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white, silk organza trimmed in Chantilly lace. The neckline featured a high lace collar trimmed with seed pearls A sheer bodice of organza was outlined with rows of lace. Full sleeves were made of organza and highlighted with a wide band of Chantilly lace came to a point over the bride's hands. The full skirt featured two ruffles of organza at the bottom and came to a full chapel-length train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was gathered to a cap covered in Chantilly lace and enhanced with embroidered seed pearls.

She carried a bouquet of white silk roses and carnations and baby's breath.

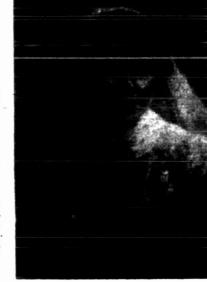

Matrons of honor were Reba Long, sister of the bride, of Austin and Faye Groves, sister of the bride, of Stanton.

Flower girl was Amy Groves, niece of the bride, of Stepton. Ring bearers were Patty Groves, niece of the bride, and Kenneth Kendall, son of the bridegroom, both of

Keep bank accounts active so money won't go to the state

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago I received a "dormant account" notice from my bank. I glanced at it, noted how much money I had in my savings account (without reading the fine print), then put it

Some time later I received a call from the bank asking me what I planned to do about this account. I have a checking account at this bank besides my time savings account

I went to the bank and was informed that the money in this dormant account would go to the state if it was not activated! I asked what that meant, and was told that all one must do to activate an account was put $1 in or take $1 out. It sounded so simple. Then it suddenly hit me! How many other senior citizens have savings accounts, and just let them lie there, thinking the money is safe! They don't read the fine print at the bottom of the notice, then after a few more years all their money goes to the state!

I investigated out-of-state banks and savings and loan companies, and learned that this law exists in almost every state. I asked friends and business people if they had ever heard about this law, and only one person had.

Please, Dear Abby, alert the public. People assume that their money is safe in a bank or savings and loan. They're wrong; if they don't activate that account, it can wind up with the state.

Dear Abby

VERTA R. JOHNSON CLARKSTON, WASH. DEAR VERTA: What a valuable service you performed by writing.

I called my banker at the City National Bank in Los Angeles and learned that if an account is not activated after seven years in California, the money goes to the state. (In Minnesota, it's five vears.)

I was advised that all banks make an honest effort to notify their customers about this dormant account policy. (Many customers move and their address is unknown.) If the time has expired, the state then publishes a list of dormant account holders in an effort to locate them. Many cannot be

So, dear readers, if you have an account either locally or in another city, please pay attention to those "dormant account" notices, and

DEAR ABBY: My friend (I'll call her Edith) works in my husband's office, and she's in a position to know who's doing what with whom and where. She calls me regularly and clues me in on the hanky-panky, and so far her information has been right on target.

Recently, I have had reason to believe that my husband has been fooling around. When I told him that Edith and I chat regularly on the phone, he became furious and told me that I am not to talk to her. He called her a troublemaking

I'm now wondering why Edith's phone calls to me bother him so much. Could he be worried about what I might hear next? About him, maybe?

THE BOSS'S WIFE DEAR WIFE: Probably not. Unless he is a complete fool, he'd make absolutely certain that Edith didn't have a shred of incriminating evidence against him.

Two questions: Why would you, who enjoys hearing the office gossip, kill the goose that lays the golden eggs by telling your husband that you and the office informer chat regularly? And why is your husband keeping a troublemaking gossip in his office?

Lange-Kothmann

Lange of San Angelo and Keesie H. Kothmann of Big Spring exchanged wedding vows Sept. 13 at the St. Paul Lutheran Church in Mason with Pastor H.L. Anderson, officiating.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lange of Mason. Bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Awbrey Kothmann of Menard.

The couple stood before an altar decorated with a live arrangement of white mums accented with burgundy and navy blue and three altar candles placed on each side.

Organist was Mrs. Jerry Bearden and soloist was Mrs. Terry Lange.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and father. She wore a regal gown of English lace beaded with sequins and pearls. The high illusion collar enhance the lego-mutton sleeves. An elongated bodice dropped to a bridal point and the slim skirt was accented with a wide sash draping the hips and forming a large candy box bow at the back. The cathedral-length train was adorned with pearls and sequins. An ivory Alecon lace picture hat featured silk flowers and looped pearls accenting a pouf of silk illusion forming a blusher and finger-tip veil.

She carried a cascading bouquet of silk carnations accented with burgundy and navy blue.

Nelda J. Carter

That's why I work for Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home. I'm proud to be part of a staff that offers complete, caring service to the families we serve. I feel good about helping people at a time when they are in need. We try to go far above and beyond the expected services. That makes me feel particularly good about working for Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home.
