Tops on TV

High Noon

Gary Cooper and Lloyd Bridges star in a western drama about a murderer and his brothers who attempt to even the score with the sheriff who sent him to prison. The 1952 classic "High Noon" shows at 9:25 p.m. on Channel 11.

Outside

Cloudy

Skies tonight will be partly cloudy with southeasterly winds reaching 10 to 15 miles per hour with a low expected to dip into the mid 60s. A 30 percent chance for rain exists.

Tuesday's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a high temperature expected to reach into the mid 80s.

Lighter side

DALLAS (AP) — The Ralph Kramden look wouldn't have won any awards, but the new bus drivers' uniforms are up for a national best-dressed award.

The Dallas Area Rapid Transit uniform — navy blue wool-blend slacks and jacket, light blue epaulet shirt, DART logo tie, dark overcoat and cardigan sweater — is a candidate for an award from the National Association of Uniform Manufacturers & Distributors.

The snappy design was adopted in 1984 to get rid of the Kramden look, said DART marketing director John Gobis, referring to the character played by Jackie Gleason in "The Honeymooners" television series.

Reporter Daniloff returning home

By ANDREW M. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — American reporter Nicholas Daniloff was released by the Soviet Union today, signaling the apparent end of a month-long diplomatic showdown that had threatened to wreck superpower relations.

Daniloff, 51, longtime Moscow correspondent for U.S. News & World Report, told reporters at the airport he was leaving "more in sorrow than in anger." His wife, Ruth, said it felt "terrific" to be going home.

The American journalist was freed after long hours of negotiations between U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze in New York.

The Daniloffs arrived at Sheremetyevo Airport in a pale-blue U.S. Embassy van, accompanied by U.S. Charge d'Affaires Richard Combs, the U.S. News & World Report deputy managing editor, Henry Trehwhitt, and Jeff Trimble, Daniloff's replacement here.

Daniloff, who had been accused of espionage by the Soviets, and his wife, Ruth, were escorted through a special customs channel by an agent for Lufthansa Airlines and headed for passport control. He was to arrive in Frankfurt later today.

Earlier, as he rode out of the U.S. Embassy compound in Moscow, Daniloff had flashed a victory "V" with his fingers as he rode out of the embassy grounds.

Daniloff has been living in the U.S. Embassy since Sept. 12, when he was released into Combs' custody after 13 days in Lefortovo Prison.

At the same time, U.S. officials released Gennadiy Zakharov, a Soviet U.N. employee who was arrested Aug. 23 on espionage charges in New York, into the custody of Soviet Ambassador Yuri Dubinin.

U.S. officials asserted that Daniloff was arrested on trumped-up charges of espionage in retaliation for Zakharov's arrest. The Soviets denied a link between the cases and insisted that Zakharov was framed by the FBI.

Gov. Mark White's expression reflects his apparent concern as he conferred with Rep. Bruce Gibson (D-Cleburne) on the House floor during weekend debate of state tax proposals. The activity took place as legislators predicted the end of the second special session of the legislature is drawing near.

Tax increases wait on Senate

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — A $69.2 million increase in sales and gasoline taxes was awaiting Senate action today, and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said the Legislature might adjourn its budget-balancing special session by mid-week.

"I think it's a good bill," Hobby said Sunday after a five-minute meeting in which the Senate formally received the tax bill from the House.

The House passed the tax bill Saturday, along with $582 million in spending cuts to help the state out of a $2.8 billion budget deficit brought on by the oil price drop.

A majority of senators had resisted deeper spending cuts and pushed for a tax hike since the Legislature's back-to-back special sessions began on Aug. 6.

The temporary tax package would raise the sales tax from 4½ percent to 5¼ percent, and add 5 cents to the 10-cent per-gallon gasoline tax. Both would take effect Jan. 1 and expire on Aug. 31.

The spending cut bill would eliminate nearly 2,000 state jobs and wipe out a 3 percent state employee pay raise scheduled for 1987.

Also approved by the House was a provision to allow counties and cities to now collecting a transit tax to add a half-penny to their local sales taxes.

At a session attended by only three senators, Hobby said the Senate Finance Committee would hold a hearing on the tax bill Monday.

Asked if he expected the special session that began Sept. 8 to wrap up Tuesday or Wednesday, he replied, "Some thing like that."

Hobby, who initially had sought a permanent tax increase to 5 cents to cure the state's money woes, said the temporary tax hike was the best this special session could do.

"Certainly, this is not a perfect result. It's a Band-Aid result. But it's better than the catastrophic result that appeared likely two weeks ago" when the House was insisting that no new taxes be allowed, he said.

House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said that after talking with Hobby, he thought the Senate would accept the House-approved plan without amending it.

"We have gone over the entire bill with him, and he indicated to me he thought it was a good bill and he would be working very hard to keep it intact," Lewis said.

For six weeks, Lewis had led tax opponents. But when the issue finally reached the House floor, he cast the first "yes" vote. The INCREASES page 2A

Crime Stoppers has local, national impact

Staff and wire reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Big Spring is one of nearly 600 U.S. cities which now have Crime Stoppers programs, a system of cash awards to tipsters which has helped close the books on 92,000 unsolved felonies, a federal study shows.

Since the program was started in Big Spring in 1982, police have cleared a substantial number of crimes ranging from murder to burglaries to narcotic rings, said police crime-stopper contact, Lt. Jerry Edwards.

This year, tipsters have helped police crack numerous narcotic cases, three aggravated robberies, burglaries and more, Edwards said. A Big Spring crimestopper tip led to the arrest of a man wanted for attempted capital murder in east Texas, he said.

Each case solved through Crime Stoppers recovered an average of more than $6,000 in narcotics or stolen goods, and each felony arrest cost only $73 in award money, concluded the study conducted for the National Institute of Justice in the Justice Department and released Sunday.

Local Crimestopper informants have collected $4,300 this year, Edwards said.

The locally run programs — also called Crime Solver, Secret

Witness or Crime Line programs — join the news media, community and police in offering anonymity to people who call in information about unsolved crimes.

First started in Albuquerque, N.M., 10 years ago, the programs disseminate information about the crimes through local newspapers and radio and television stations.

About 92,000 felonies have been solved through Crime Stoppers, with $562 million worth of stolen property recovered and narcotics seized, according to statistics supplied by an umbrella group, Crime Stoppers International, and included in the report.

"Crime Stoppers has emerged as a significant grass-roots movement, locally managed and funded," said James K. Stewart, director of the National Institute of Justice.

Set up to handle dead-end cases that have remained unsolved for months, Stewart says the process is "sending the message that fighting crime is not a responsibility of law enforcement alone."

The programs succeed every if the award amounts are as little as $100, the study concluded.

One portion of the report focused on Lake County, Ill., and found that variations in reward size had almost no effect on the tipster's satisfaction or intention to participate in the program in the future.

Crime Stoppers programs have been criticized by some journalists, defense attorneys and legal scholars because of questions about civil rights and privacy. The survey concluded that the public shares some of these reservations, although citizens generally feel the programs are a worthwhile tool in arresting criminals.

Some program coordinators tended to flood detectives with too much information of little value, perhaps reducing the likelihood of arrest, according to the study compiled by three researchers from CRIME page 2A

Clinic stirs deception claim

FORT WORTH (AP) — The state attorney general's office claims an anti-abortion center is violating deceptive trade laws by misleading women about what the clinic does.

If the Pregnancy Problem Center continues to disguise its true intentions, the state says that it will seek to close it.

Inside the clinic, women seeking information on abortions are instead shown graphic films of abortions, impassioned counseling and offers of financial assistance, the attorney general's office says.

The center, which uses graphic films and offers of financial assistance to convince abortion-seeking women to carry their babies to full-term, was scheduled to face a court hearing today.

Advocates on both sides of the abortion issue say the case could affect the futures of such centers across the country.

The center's anti-abortion operators counter that because they do not charge for their services, they should not be subject to state laws governing commerce.

Center operators say they are competing with abortion clinics for customers. Citing a success rate of 77 percent, or nearly 1,000 babies saved in two years, they say they are fully convinced that the end justifies the means.

"I understand that under other circumstances, it would be improper to go as close to the line as we go ... avoiding telling people we're pro-life," said Chuck Pelletier, who opened the center in June 1984 after meeting pro-life advocate Robert J. Pearson.

"The bottom line is we're in competition with the death chambers for the same lives," he said.

Three women who said they were misled into going to the clinic and then were emotionally battered filed suit in March 1985 against Mother and Unborn Baby Care of North Texas Inc., which operates a Pregnancy Problem Center.

Two of the women have since dropped out of the suit and a trial date has not been scheduled, atorney B.C. Cornish said.

During a court hearing in April 1985, a woman testifying under the name Elizabeth Collins said her anti-abortion counselor called her a murderer after she told her that she had had a previous abortion.

The case scheduled for trial today is an outgrowth of the women's action. Attorneys say what goes on inside the clinic is not at issue because of free-speech guarantees.

"This is not a lawsuit to try a woman's right to an abortion," said Steve Gardner of the attorney general's office. "What's going on in the clinic is not part of our lawsuit. It is how they're getting them there."

J. Shelby Sharpe, the Fort Worth attorney defending the center, contends that free-speech guarantees should give clinic operators the right to reach abortion-seeking women any way they can.

Bill Price, director of the Texas Coalition for Life, sees the challenge as evidence that the clinics are making an impact.

"They're changing people's minds on abortion," Price said. "These cases don't have anything to do with women who have been emotionally traumatized."

But Bill Baird, a pro-choice advocate, said the clinics are undermining the Supreme Court decision that legalized abortion in 1973.

"Their main goal is to frighten these women (so as) not to exercise their right to choose," Baird said. "It's vitally important for the protection of the public that these fake clinics be exposed for what they are — fake clinics."

Drinking source suit could set precedent

SAN ANGELO (AP) — A suit trying to pin the blame for the death of a 17-year-old boy on the host of a party where the youth got drunk could have a long-term impact on similar cases in the future, a law specialist says.

The family of David L. Hasty, who died in a 1985 traffic accident, filed a suit claiming David Vallandingham, 18, was responsible for the death of Hasty and the serious injuries of Richard W. Goins, 18, a friend of Hasty's.

The driver, David Brent Adams, 18, of Dove Creek, was killed, but his family is not involved in the suit.

Ralph Dreyer, the Hasty family's lawyer, said the chief issue to decide is whether Vallandingham, as the seller of the alcohol, should have protected the patrons of his party.

"The law is going in this direction," he said. "This is not an off-the-wall case. We have a real social issue that needs to be litigated so we know what the law is in Texas."

Michael Morrison, a tort specialist at the Baylor University School of Law, says the case could have a long-term impact in this generally uncharted territory of Texas civil law. Alcohol-related accident liability is a new area, he said in a story published Sunday by the San Angelo Standard-Times.

Hasty, Goins and Adams became intoxicated at Vallandingham's party on Aug. 15, 1985, the suit contends. Vallandingham was convicted in Tom Green County Court-at-Law in March of selling alcohol at the party without a permit.

The civil suit and evidence at Vallandingham's criminal trial say he sold advance tickets, collected an admission fee at the gate and sold vodka-laced punch at the party attended by many other minors.

As the three boys drove home on a rural road, their pickup truck veered off and flipped

Trail leads authorities to victim

NEW BRAUNFELS (AP) — Officers followed a trail of blood to the body of a Comal County teenager who had been stabbed 13 times, authorities said Sunday.

The body of Tanaya Otterpohl, 14, was found near the mobile home where she lived with her mother and sister, said Comal County Sheriff Walter Fellers.

Her mother returned home early Sunday to find the girl missing and her bedroom spattered with blood. A deputy followed the blood to the girl's partially-clothed body, Fellers said.

The victim's 11-year-old sister, who was asleep in another room, said she didn't hear anything, the sheriff said.

Fellers said Hilario Escalante Valensuela, 22, of Canyon Lake, was arrested Sunday as he walked along a road not far from the Otterpohl mobile home.

Valensuela was charged with murder and was held in the Comal County Jail in lieu of $150,000 bail set by Justice of the Peace Harold Krueger, the sheriff said.

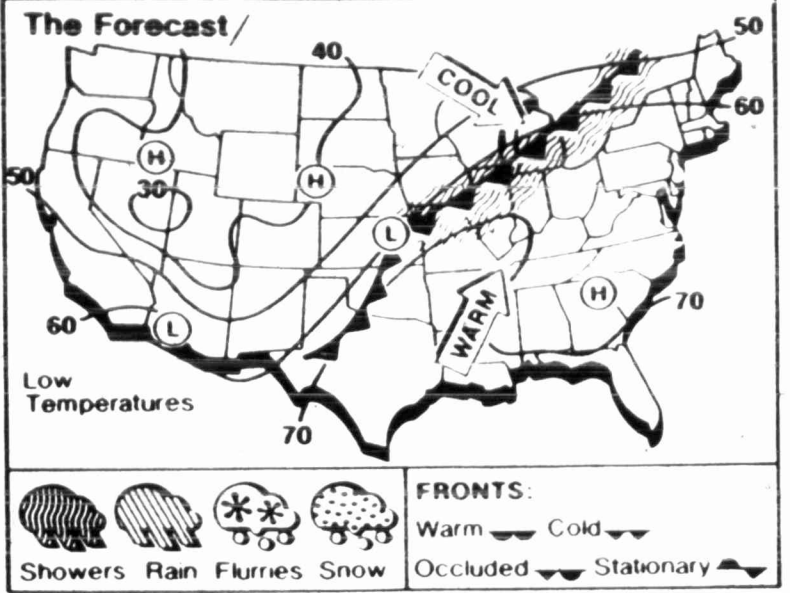

"We don't know a motive," Fellers said Sunday night. "There didn't appear to be a robbery or a sexual assault."

Weather

Forecast

West Texas - Scattered thunderstorms possible in the mountains moving eastward tonight, with a few possibly severe this evening. It is to be partly cloudy mountains eastward Tuesday, with mostly sunny days and fair at night in the far west through Tuesday. Lows tonight in the mid 50s in the mountains, Panhandle and far west to near 70 in the Concho Valley and Big Bend. Highs Tuesday expected to be in the lower 70s in the Panhandle to mid 80s in the south, except for mid 90s in the Big Bend region.

State

Moist tropical air continued to move into Texas today from the Gulf of Mexico as the state's weather pattern was dominated by a large ridge of high pressure over the East Coast.

The moist air produced warm and humid conditions over most of the state and threatened to produce showers and thunderstorms across the state through Tuesday.

Some of the showers and thunderstorms over West Texas might become severe tonight, National Weather Service forecasters warned.

Lows tonight will be mostly in the 70s except for the mid 50s in the mountains and Panhandle and in the lower 80s in extreme South Texas. Highs Tuesday will be mostly in the 80s and 90s except in the Panhandle where readings will be in the 70s.

Goat theft prompts report

Raul Ortiz of Gail Route Box 278A told sheriff's deputies Sunday night that someone stole a tan goat from his pen sometime over the weekend. The goat is 150-days-old and its value was unknown, according to the sheriff's report.

Aurora Renteria Collins, 26, 2601 Barksdale Dr., served a jail sentence over the weekend for a driving while intoxicated judgment.

Model school features quiet

DALLAS (AP) — Perhaps the most striking thing about the East Dallas Community School is the quiet.

Even though many of the students are as young as 3 years old, there isn't much yelling, fighting and running down the halls.

Three-year-old Adrian Fischer carefully pours a glass of apple juice for Jami Smith and serves her a muffin before sitting down to

Amanda Gomez and Oscar Barez both study a box with pictures of things that start with the same letter, like ant, alligator and astronaut.

The school is a private one that uses the Montessori method of teaching. Many of the students are poor, minority children.

Last year, the school was hailed by H. Ross Perot and the Governor's Select Committee on Education as a prototype of early childhood education in Texas.

Terry Ford, a former Dallas school district teacher who founded the school in 1977, attributes its success to its teaching methods, a healthy respect for cultural diversity and intense parental and volunteer involvement.

"All the educational tools are laid out for them to choose from," said Mrs. Ford. "At the same time, they're taught to have responsibility and a respect for the materials over, killing Hasty and injuring Goins, the suit alleges.

The accident and resulting injuries and death were the direct result of Vallandingham's unlawful serving of alcoholic beverages, the suit contends. No amount of damages is specified in the suit.

Vallandingham declined to comment on the case.

Morrison said Texas courts traditionally have held that a person becomes intoxicated because he drank too much, not because alcohol was provided to him.

Historically, appellate courts have been hesitant to trace liability to individuals, believing party host liability is a social issue better handled by the Legislature, he added.

The law professor said the legal questions to be addressed are whether a party host is negligent for not protecting someone who is intoxicated, whether it is reasonable to pro-speaker said the decision left him with mixed emotions.

"Well, no one's happy with a tax bill. But under the circumstances that we had to pass one to keep the state sound, yes I am happy with the outcome," he said.

Lewis also acknowledged that he may have overstated his opposition to a tax hike. He said a stern stance was needed to force the Senate to accept more cuts than it wanted to make.

"We, to some degree, may have put up a front that we shouldn't have as far as to stand firm against any tax proposal," he said. "The House had to present a side that

Rain no hinderance to Texas veterans

DALLAS (AP) — In a driving rain that left them soaked but not scattered, Texas Vietnam veterans gathered at the State Fair to break ground for a monument to their missing and dead.

The crowd of about 350 stood at attention, rapt in the National Anthem struck by the moment that was, for some of them, 20 years in the making.

"Five years ago they would have never stood there for us, in the rain like that," said Roy Benavides, a Vietnam vet who wore around his thick neck tie pale blue ribbon of the Medal of Honor. "Years ago, the civilians were burning flags and draft cards. It moved me that things have changed enough for them to stand with us in the rain."

The veterans had arrived Sunday in sunshine only minutes earlier from suburban sanctuaries and veterans' hospitals with friends or their families. They had a Marine band and color guard, a dais of dignitaries and the names of the 3,405 Texans known dead or missing in action on red, white and blue balloons.

Fire stirs toxic fumes

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — A fire engulfed a greenhouse, warehouse and small office, spewing toxic fumes from pesticides over a quarter-mile area and forcing the evacuation of 450 residents for several hours, officials said.

Those evacuated were allowed to return home at about 5 a.m. Sunday, 12 hours after the fire broke out at the Por La Mar Nursery in Goleta Valley, about eight miles west of downtown Santa Barbara.

Fugitive escapes net

WRIGHT CITY, Mo. — Special weapons teams stormed a vacant house here today but did not find Michael Wayne Jackson, the fugitive sought in a three-state crime spree in which three people were killed.

Searchers were led to the house by bloodhounds that picked up a scent at a vacant trailer where authorities found evidence linked to Jackson, said Hal Heiterhoff, agent in charge of the FBI's St. Louis office. The house was just one block east of the Wright City Police Department, the command center for the hunt.

Police evacuated 13 families in the neighborhood before dawn as a precaution, said Sgt. Jim Lee of the Highway Patrol.

March at White House

WASHINGTON — Thousands of people from churches and communities offering sanctuary to illegal Central American refugees marched past the White House in a festive protest parade.

Police estimated 2,000 marchers from across the country joined the parade, which featured giant papier-mache figures and colorful banners. It was part of a four-day Sanctuary Celebration held in Washington area churches.

"In El Salvador, if you are a student you are branded a terrorist, a revolutionary," said Omar, 18, who asked that his last name not be used because he is an illegal immigrant.

"In America, your biggest fear is being deported back to El Salvador," he said.

Reagan electioneering

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — President Reagan, battling to keep Republicans in control of the Senate, charged today that Democrats "won't even lift a finger" to prevent the Soviets from establishing a grip on Central America.

Campaigning across the Farm Belt, Reagan stumped in Missouri for Christopher Bond, a former two-term governor battling Democratic Lt. Gov. Harriett Woods for the seat being vacated by Democratic Sen. Thomas Eagleton.

Later, he was to appear in Sioux Falls, S.D., on behalf of Sen. James Abdnor, a first-term senator challenged by Democratic Rep. Tom Daschle.

Dikes keep water from Montana town

By The Associated Press

Fifty-year-old dikes protecting a small Montana town held back rising waters of the Milk River today, while severe storms and tornadoes destroyed buildings in Iowa and Wisconsin.

The Iowa storms also delayed the opening of a farm show that was expected to attract 250,000 people.

A tornado ripped through Wisconsin's Jefferson County on Sunday, destroying several houses and farm buildings and injuring a woman when a fireplace was thrown onto her, authorities said.

"The house just blew up," said Arthur Houghton, whose wife, Vinetta, was in fair condition with a broken leg. "It's almost a total loss. There's only one wall standing, and that's leaning."

"We had some real bad damage out there," said Roger Reinel, the county Emergency Government Director.

Wind gusting to 60 mph knocked down trees and power lines in northeastern Kansas and damaged the roofs of a skating rink and two grocery stores in eastern Nebraska on Sunday, while thunderstorms packing hail and 50 mph winds rolled into Michigan today.

In Saco, Mont., Mayor Gregg Menge said he expected flood waters to surround the community today, but said the earthen levees should hold the water outside of town.

"We're not doing too bad. It's getting to be the same old stuff — water, water, water," he said.

The Milk River and its tributaries along a 100-mile-long section of northern Montana began flooding Thursday after torrential rains dumped up to 8 inches of rain in 18 hours in some areas.

The flooding claimed one life, killed hundreds of livestock, washed out roads and rail lines, and forced the evacuation of more than 300 people in Malta, Harlem and Chinook, all upstream from Saco, a town of 250 residents.

The waters had stopped their rapid rise in Chinook and Harlem, and appeared to be receding in Malta, officials said.

Downstream in the towns of Hinsdale, Glasgow and Nashua, residents prepared for flooding expected later this week.

Tornadoes touched down across Iowa on Sunday night, accompanied by heavy rains, golf ball-size hail and strong winds.

Several farm buildings were damaged, and 1.7 inches of rain forced organizers of the 34th annual Farm Progress Show in Alleman to delay the start of the exhibition from Tuesday to Wednesday and to shorten its duration from three to two days.

Tom Budd, the farm show's director, said it would take two days to clear the exhibit area.

A severe storm or a tornado leveled a two-story home about 40 miles north of Waterloo in eastern Iowa, while a tornado destroyed farm buildings just south of Baxter in central Iowa. In northwest Iowa, a garage moved about 50 feet and a silo was damaged on a farm between Everly and Spencer.

The storms in Wisconsin cut off power for about 7,500 customers, utility officials said. Wind gusts of up to 58 mph were clocked in southeastern Wisconsin.

Motorists inch through a flooded section of Highway 2 east of Chinook, Mont. The flooding took one life and killed hundreds of livestock in addition to washing out roads and rail lines.

30,000 left homeless

DHAKA, Bangladesh — Floods caused by three days of heavy rain have killed four people and left more than 30,000 homeless in southwestern Bangladesh, officials said Sunday.

Officials at a disaster relief center said the deaths were in Bagerhat district, about 240 miles southwest of here. One man died when downpours collapsed his mud-and-straw house at Paikgacha village, and three people were swept away by flood waters.

Floods washed away the homes of about 30,000 people in Bagerhat and Satkhira districts, the officials said. The homeless were brought to 20 relief centers.

Arsenic error kills six

PEKING — A pharmacy clerk mistook arsenic for a powder used in traditional Chinese medicine, and six people who took the mixture died, an official newspaper said today.

The People's Daily said Tang Shuguang, of Sichuan province, realized her mistake when she heard that patients of her father-in-law, a doctor, had died after being prescribed gypsum powder.

The powder is mixed with herbs in Chinese cures.

The newspaper said Ms. Tang told her father-in-law of her error, and that he covered up the evidence and did not inform authorities or try to warn patients who had been prescribed the powder. Of 16 people poisoned, six died, the daily said.

Cameraman missing

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A French free-lance cameraman is missing and presumed kidnapped in Moslem west Beirut, French embassy spokesman Francois Abi Saab said today.

The victim was identified as Jean-Marc Sroussi, 41, who has been living in the Lebanese capital since 1982.

Abi Saab said Sroussi was last seen by acquaintances driving across Beirut's dividing Green Line from the Christian to the Moslem sector Sunday.

A witness, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said he saw Moslem gunmen at the Green Line's Mreijeh crossing climb into Sroussi's car and race away.

Demjanjuk indicted

JERUSALEM — Israel today indicted retired U.S. autoworker John Demjanjuk on charges of personally causing the deaths of hundreds of thousands of people at the Nazis' Treblinka extermination camp during World War II.

Demjanjuk's trial, not expected to begin before late December, will be the first of an alleged war criminal in Israel since Adolf Eichmann was convicted 25 years ago for masterminding the slayings of 6 million Jews during World War II. Eichmann was hanged.

Pilot dies as plane crashes into homes

CHICAGO (AP) — A pilot who radioed that his small plane had lost an engine crashed about a half-mile from Midway Airport, plowing into three homes and setting one of them ablaze, officials said.

The pilot died in the crash late Sunday in the South Side neighborhood, but no one on the ground was hurt, said Fire Department spokesman Tom Sheppard.

"I heard two big explosions," said Catherine Zadlo, who lives several houses down the block from the homes struck by the plane. "I thought it was a bomb going off, or thunder."

Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Mort Edelstein said the pilot of the twin-engine Beechcraft took off from Midway at about 11 p.m. and radioed moments later that he was returning because he had lost an engine.

"Then the tower lost him," he said. Officials said the plane apparently crashed while trying to make its way back.

The pilot was tentatively identified as Frank Jaax, about 50, of DuPage County, said Frank Schwarz, an investigator for the Cook County Medical Examiner's office.

The plane was part of Titan Air Taxi Service, and was carrying bundled newspapers, said Jerry Lawrence, another fire department spokesman.

Sheppard said officials believe the plane hit the chimney of one

A Chicago firefighter shouts for assistance Sunday night after a twin-engine plane crashed into three houses and setting one ablaze on the city's southwest side, according to authorities. The pilot was the only person aboard the plane; no injuries were reported on the ground.

home, then took off the roof of the second, struck the top of a tree, crossed an alley and crashed into the back yard of the third home.

It set fire to the wooden porch of the third home, Sheppard said.

Rina Santamaria, whose chimney was hit, said:

"I heard what sounded like a crash. I opened up my front door and I saw a wheel had landed on my front porch. I looked up and I saw the corner of the house next door had been damaged. I ran into the back yard and I saw the plane and I saw the flames. I saw flames, fire and debris all over the alley."

Officers on duty in a police station nearby heard the engines sputtering as the plane flew overhead, said Officer Darlene Wicht.

"We heard it go over the station here and we knew he was in trouble," Ms. Wicht said. "We hear planes go overhead all the time, but we've never heard one fly over that low."

Weir: Desperation increases danger

DALLAS (AP) — The Rev. Benjamin Weir, who was held hostage in Lebanon for 16 months, said the dangers to Americans and Lebanese are growing as the desperation of the nation increases.

"Life is evaporating. Society is eroding and the economy is in shambles. It's a desperate situation," Weir said Sunday in a question and answer session at First Presbyterian Church of Dallas.

Weir, of Berkeley, Calif., had been the Presbyterian representative in Lebanon for 25 years when he was abducted in front of his Beirut apartment on May 9, 1984. He was kidnapped by Shiite Moslems trying to secure the release of 17 people imprisoned for the 1983 bombing of the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait.

"It's terribly dangerous, and there has been an increase (in terrorism) for the last 12 years," he said. But Weir added that Lebanon is a nation yearning for peace.

"Large sections of the public want to see leaders come together to agree on a peace plan," said Weir who is on a nationwide tour of churches.

Weir told the 250 gathered for the session that the United States should consider establishing direct communication with terrorists to get information about hostages.

He said current American policy in the Middle East needs a serious review to establish how to deal with terrorist situations.

"I don't know what factors led to my release, but I think that my wife's efforts played a big role," he said.

Mrs. Weir went on a four-city tour to try to persuade Presbyterians to send over a million letters to President Reagan asking him to give higher priority to seeking the release of her husband.

Weir said he believes that if churches band together and serve as advocates for hostages, more positive results might be accomplished.

Six Americans are still held captive in Lebanon, and Weir said he has heard reports that all are alive but may be losing hope of being released.

"They are more and more desperate and more discouraged," he said. "It has to be taken seriously that there is a threat to life. It's not a cheerful place."

Weir and his wife Carol also are writing a book about the ordeal that should be published next spring.

Busy Dad leaves little notes on life for sleeping children

DEAR READERS: Once upon a time there was a young father named Patrick Connolly, who suffered from a conflict many busy parents face. He left for work before his children woke up and frequently got home after they had gone to bed. His sons were 8 and 10 when he started to leave little notes for his sleeping children, offering advice, encouragement and loving messages to let them know that he was thinking of them. He even illustrated some notes with a cast of characters that included every member of the family plus the family dog. These notes were varied, from little poems, riddles, wholesome bits of philosophy to simple reminders — "I love you, guys."

One note offered this helpful bit of advice: "Be fair and friendly and friends will come. The important thing is not how many friends you have, but what kind of friends."

Dear Abby

Another reads: "It's a new day. God gives us new days so we can continue with our successes, or start over if we goofed yesterday." Each note was signed, "Love, Dad."

Two years ago, the Connolly boys received their last daily note from their dad. At the age of 41, Connolly died suddenly of a massive heart attack. After his death, his family looked through the priceless collection of notes that Mrs. Connolly had saved in a shoe box and selected the most meaningful to publish as a book.

The result is "Love, Dad," the best of these daily notes written by a busy but loving father who had found a wonderful way to communicate with his children. This little jewel of a book is filled with common-sense messages that will ring a bell with all parents who want their children to grow up to be decent, honest and hardworking. It's written with a sense of humor, yet contains some important moral lessons without being preachy. It touched my heart, and I think it will touch yours.

If your bookstore does not have "Love, Dad" by Patrick Connolly, order it from the publisher: Andrews, McMeel and Parker, P.O. Box 419150, Kansas City, Mo. 64141. It's in paperback and costs $5.95 plus $1 for postage.

DEAR ABBY: When I read the letter from the reader signed "Hearing Things in York, S.C.," I recalled that some years ago there was an article in the medicine section of Time magazine on the subject of medical detective work.

One of the examples cited involved a man who went to a psychiatrist complaining that he was always hearing radio broadcasts. Thinking to humor him, the psychiatrist asked what he was hearing right then. The man replied he was hearing Rudy Vallee broadcasting from the Steel Pier in Atlantic City. The psychiatrist turned on his office radio and, sure enough, he heard Rudy Vallee! He became so intrigued that he conducted an extensive project with his patient.

As a result, the patient "went off the air," was able to concentrate, and lived happily ever after. Hope this helps your reader.

Many types of leukemia can be controlled

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please explain chronic lymphocytic leukemia. Is this life threatening? What is the cause? — V.W.

We're still lacking many leukemia answers, but I'm happy to say that there has been a true turnaround in treatments, even of the more serious kinds.

Leukemia refers to the white blood cells. It is a cancer in which those cells grow in an uncontrolled way — as cells do in any cancer. In leukemia, the white cell profusion creates a red cell and platelet deficiency and subsequent anemia and bleeding problems.

There are a number of different kinds of white cells, and the kind in lymphocytic leukemia is the lymphocytes. And in this instance, the terms, acute and chronic, refer to the rapidity of cell growth. The rate in the chronic form is somewhat indolent. In the acute form it is quite rapid.

In the chronic form, which you ask about, the person may go many years without symptoms. When the cell count is very high or when symptoms do appear, drugs like prednisone and chlorambucil are used.

While all leukemias are life-threatening, many today are being controlled and some even completely cured through modern therapies. We don't know what makes the blood cells start multiplying in leukemia. In the not-too-distant future, researchers will have a lot of these answers for us. Then the chances of curing all forms of leukemia will follow.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: A herpes question. If you touch a herpes sore, then touch another area of your body can you transfer the virus? — Mrs. R.Y.

Yes, and even with recurring herpes infection, that can happen. You have to be careful about washing your hands after applying the ointment to the rash. Use gloves when applying the ointment. See the booklet, "Herpes: Don't Panic," which other readers can order by writing me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, stamped self-addressed envelope and $1.25.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I'm pretty badly overweight, I'm afraid. I'm 5 feet, 6 inches and weigh more than 200 pounds. This is what causes me to get short of breath at night (obstruction of lung passages). I also wake up breathless. I am sincerely trying to lose weight (my doctor's only suggestion). Is it really going to help this situation? My mother says I should elevate the head of my bed when I sleep. Will that help? — Mrs. I.N.

Yes, studies have shown that elevating the upper body can sharply reduce the number of breathless episodes at night. The recommendation is to raise the upper body to about a 60 degree angle from the mattress surface. Obviously, you can't do that by elevating the bed itself (unless you have a hospital unit). But you can do it by propping pillows. It's almost a seated position. I'd say it is worth a try. Your sleep apnea will be helped if you continue your efforts to lose weight. Keep up the good work.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have been suffering heartburn. My own doctor, a gastroenterologist, concluded that I have a weakened muscle at the bottom of my esophagus. He has not mentioned surgery. He says I should try avoiding fats, alcohol and caffeine. Will I eventually need surgery? — Mrs. P.G.

Surgery is seldom needed. The emphasis is on keeping the stomach acid where it belongs — in the stomach and out of the lower esophagus. Where the stomach and the esophagus meet is a muscle called the sphincter. It is a kind of gatekeeper, barring any splashing up of stomach acid. If juices get through they irritate the esophagus lining. That's your heartburn.

Has your doctor suggested weight reduction? That can help if you are overweight. The foods your doctor mentioned are classic disturbers of sphincter function. They also tend to increase stomach acid production.

FOR MRS. V.L. — If your varicose veins are at the point of causing swelling and pain, attention is overdue. Get an examination. I can't say if surgery to remove the offending veins will be suggested. That may be an option. Only the doctor who examines you will be able to make that judgment. But you're not helping yourself with worry and delay.

'CHICKEN' club battles drugs use

HOUSTON — Many Houston schoolchildren are proud to be "chicken" when it comes to drugs, say student members of a club that has turned the tables on traditional peer pressure tactics.

It's called the C.H.I.C.K.E.N. Club, a successful peer pressure program sponsored by the Houston-area chapters of Optimists International. The letters in the club's name stand for Cool, Honest, Intelligent, Clear-headed, Keen, Enthusiastic, and Not into drugs.

Pupils are exposed to the club through a sports personality during school assemblies such as the one recently attended by about 1,000 students at the Levy Fry Elementary School in Texas City.

"Everybody keeps telling us how bad drugs are. I believe them. It seems like anyone who would try drugs is stupid," said Wes Tipton, 10, a fifth-grader, after hearing a talk by former New Orleans Saints and Houston Oilers running back Earl Campbell.

"I'm joining the club because I don't do drugs, and I don't want you to do them either," Campbell, who was wearing a club T-shirt, told the students.

Killing suspect slips through wall

CONROE — A capital murder suspect being held in the Montgomery County Jail used wire taken from a fan guard to remove a row of cinder blocks and escape from his cell, officials said.

Jesse DeWayne Jacobs, 36, escaped Sunday night by crawling through a 6-inch opening he had made in the cinder blocks, said Bob Morrison, Montgomery sheriff's spokesman.

Morrison also said the steel bars used to reinforce the cinder blocks were missing.

Jacobs is charged in the slaying of Etta Ann Urdiales, a Conroe paramedic who turned up missing Feb. 21. Her body was found Sept.

13 when Jacobs, who had been arrested the previous Tuesday, led officials to a south Montgomery County grave.

Jacobs told officials he had shot Urdiales once in the head at the grave site in a murder-for-hire contract.

Officials said Jacobs told them the woman's estranged husband Michael Urdiales, 36 of Houston had paid him $500 to kill her.

Urdiales and Jacobs' 39-year-old sister Bobbie Jean Hogan who allegedly was Urdiales' girlfriend at the time of the murder are being held in Bushmataha County Jail in Andlers, Ok. on capital murder charges.

Trooper sniffs out marijuana cache

MATADOR — Two Odessa men were arrested Sunday when a state trooper sniffed out 415 pounds of marijuana in the back of a van he had stopped for speeding, authorities said.

Department of Public Safety trooper Dudley Speed said he was checking to see if the occupants were complying with the mandatory seat belt law when he noticed an odor coming from 20 sacks in the back of the van.

The men said the sacks were filled with horse feed, but Speed discovered marijuana he estimated to be worth $400,000.

The suspects were held Sunday night in the Dickens County jail, pending the filing of formal drug charges. Motley County has no jail.

Lawyer faces baby-selling charges

DALLAS — The trial of a lawyer accused of buying and selling babies in an illegal adoption scheme is set to begin this week in state district court.

Robert I. Kingsley, 61, was arrested July 16, 1985, during a police raid of the office where he practices family law. Officials said more than 20 of his adoptions were investigated by the Texas Department of Health and Human Services.

Prosecutors claim Kingsley bought the infants from their natural mothers and illegally charged the adoptive parents fees unrelated to medical and legal expenses, which are allowed by state law.

Kingsley has denied wrongdoing, and one of his attorneys, Tom S. McCorkle, said his client is the target of state and local authorities who oppose private adoptions handled outside state agencies.

Jury selection in the trial in state District Judge Gerry Meier's court was to begin today. However, hearings on several pretrial motions could delay the procedures.

Dallas blacks case sets precedent

DALLAS (AP) — The capital murder trial of a 25-year-old state parolee charged with killing a prominent local civil rights leader and his wife is the first in Dallas County involving black victims, officials say.

Kenneth Dewayne Thomas, charged with two counts of capital murder in the deaths of Fred Finch Jr., 66, and his wife Mildred, 64, faces death by lethal injection if convicted in his trial that was scheduled to begin today.

State District Judge Ed Kinkeade, who will preside over the trial, said the case already has generated an unusual amount of community interest.

Thomas is in the Lew Sterrett Justice Center in lieu of $100,000 bail. He absconded from a halfway house for problem parolees before the elderly couple was found dead and was arrested several days later.

The couple was found stabbed repeatedly on March 16 in their home. More than 3,500 people — from blue collar workers to prominent attorneys — attended their funeral.

Finch, a Harvard Law School graduate who opened a law firm in the 1950s, was one of the first black attorneys in Dallas to establish his own practice.

He was an attorney for the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund in the early 1960s, when the organization was involved in a school desegregation battle involving what was then the Carrollton Independent School District.

Mildred Finch, a mathematics instructor at El Centro College, was two months away from retirement when she was killed.

Prosecutors and defense attorneys say they believe it is the first capital murder case that has come to trial in the county involving black victims.

The jury selection process could take as long as six weeks, said visiting Judge Tom Ryan.

A tip from a confidential informant, who called two days after the slayings, led police to Thomas and his younger brother, Lonnie Charles Thomas, 22, who also has been charged with murder in connection with the slayings.

Police said they searched the Thomases' home and discovered hats, suits and shirts monogrammed with the initials F.F.

Defense attorneys have filed motions seeking to suppress the evidence gathered at the house, saying that it may have been obtained during an illegal search.

The defense also has filed a motion seeking the name of the confidential informant.

Ryan is expected to rule on both motions at a hearing scheduled for Thursday.

Red Sox bury Fenway ghosts

Boyd pitches Boston by Toronto for East title

BOSTON (AP) — Manager John McNamara was alone in his office when Boston Red Sox owner Haywood Sullivan walked in. The ghosts of past failures had been exorcised about 15 minutes earlier.

"Congratulations," the stolid Sullivan said, allowing himself a slight grin.

"Thanks," McNamara said. The two men embraced for five seconds. Then Sullivan left.

The ghosts were busted when first baseman Bill Buckner squeezed a pop-up for the final out of Boston's 12-3 victory Sunday over Toronto. The victory clinched the American League East title for the Red Sox and eliminated the Blue Jays.

It happened because this year the Red Sox had what they lacked while acquiring the stigma of late-season collapses — pitching, defense, veteran leadership.

That combination and Boston's traditional strong hitting have taken the Red Sox to the American League Championship Series, starting in Boston Oct. 7 against the California Angels.

The Red Sox won with a solid corps of starters headed by Roger Clemens, Dennis Boyd and Bruce Hurst and the leadership of two veterans, Don Baylor and Tom Seaver, who had been in successful pennant races before coming to Boston this year.

"Anytime you get three, four or five good pitchers, a team can

Boston Red Sox third baseman Wade Boggs, left, squirts champagne into the face of teammate Pat Dodson in the Boston clubhouse Sunday after the team clinched the American League East title by defeating the Toronto Blue Jays.

make a run at us but one of those pitchers will stop it," second baseman Marty Barrett said. "It was our pitching staff and bullpen that did it."

Boyd did it Sunday, pitching a complete game to improve his record to 16-10 in a season during which a locker room tantrum and other problems led to his midseason suspension by the club.

"I had the nightmare earlier in the season," Boyd said. "I just kept in mind what my old man told me, 'You can't keep a good man down.' He said, 'You're going to be a champion some day,' and here I am, a champion right now."

"The magic factor is involved. You can't explain it," third baseman Wade Boggs said. "If the magic is still there, we'll win it all."

Herschel to replace Dorsett

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Tony Dorsett is not making the trip, but St. Louis Cardinals linebacker E.J. Junior says he's anxious to test Dorsett's replacement at running back tonight for the Dallas Cowboys.

"I've always wanted to play against him," Junior said of Dallas newcomer Herschel Walker. "To me, he's just another back. I'm looking forward to the challenge."

Even with Dorsett idled by a sprained knee he suffered last week during the Cowboys' 37-35 loss to Atlanta, St. Louis hardly ranks as a favorite.

That's because the Cardinals, who are 0-3 under new Coach Gene Stallings, will be minus wide receivers Roy Green and Pat Tilley, who are on injured reserve. They'll also be missing backup running back Stump Mitchell, and earlier they lost starting guard Doug Dawson to ankle surgery.

"The defense is going to have to go out and shut a lot of people down," Junior said in reference to St. Louis' hurting offense. "We're trying to improve every week. That's what we get paid for."

Stallings, who for 14 seasons coached the Cowboys' defense, says new wrinkles in Dallas' offense this year have him worried.

"They're throwing the ball a lot more to their backs. They've changed the flex defense some," Stallings said. "Herschel Walker is a load. Plus, it seems like every time they get into scoring range they're coming away with points."

The Cowboys have averaged 32.3 points a game with an efficient attack that has produced 11 touchdowns and two field goals during 20 sorties inside their opponents' 20.

Walker's 7.7 average yardage for the 22 times he has carried the ball is one of the reasons. Danny White's passing is another.

The 34-year-old White, this past week's second-rated NFC quarterback, has completed 66 percent of his attempts.

Also a concern for Stallings are improved stats for Dallas' defensive line that include four quarterback sacks for veteran tackle John Dutton in three games.

"I understand the flex defense, but you don't always know when they line up in the flex strong if they'll wind up playing a different kind of defense," the Cards' coach said. "I'm familiar with their personnel, offensively and defensively, but the bottom line is whether we've got enough people well and healthy to stay with their people."

On the plus side, St. Louis expects middle guard David Galloway to play for the first time following a training camp injury and has traditionally played the Cowboys tough.

Last year, for instance, Tilley's reception of a tipped pass helped the Cards to a 21-10 victory their NFC East rival on Monday night. They also beat the Cowboys 24-17 in 1977 at Dallas on Monday night and prevailed 38-0 during the same time slot in 1970.

In addition to Stallings, it will be a reunion for St. Louis safety Dennis Thurman with his old team and one for Cards offensive coordinator Jim Shofner and secondary coach Mel Renfro as well.

Cowboys Coach Tom Landry, who counts six NFL head coaches among his former players or assistants, has a 9-2-1 record in games against them but downplays the accomplishment.

49ers win as Dolphins' defense stinks again

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Anyone who had marked down Sept. 28 as the date to watch two of the best quarterbacks in pro football had every right to expect an aerial display. It was scheduled to be Joe Montana of the San Francisco 49ers against Dan Marino of the Miami Dolphins.

But as it turned out, Montana was unable to start because of an injury, and Marino clearly wasn't himself.

At the end, the 49ers had a 31-16 victory Sunday and the troubled Dolphins had their third loss in four games this year — their worst start in 17 years. The last time they started this poorly was an 0-3-1 start in the 1969 season, the year before Don Shula took over as coach.

"We've never been in this position before where you walk off the field embarrassed, upset and disappointed. That's where we are," Shula said. "I'm bitterly disappointed in my football team, including myself."

That wasn't the only surprising thing that happened in the NFL Sunday. The lightly-regarded Philadelphia Eagles upset the powerful Los Angeles Rams 34-20, and the NFC East-contending New York Giants had to rally in the last quarter to escape with a 20-17 victory over the New Orleans Saints.

Elsewhere, it was Washington 19, Seattle 14; Chicago 44, Cincinnati 7; Denver 27, New England 20; New York Jets 26, Indianapolis 7; Los Angeles Raiders 17, San Diego 13; Atlanta 23, Tampa Bay 20 in overtime; Minnesota 42, Green Bay 7; Cleveland 24, Detroit 21; Kansas City 20, Buffalo 17, and Pittsburgh 22, Houston 16 in overtime.

In action tonight, Dallas will visit St. Louis.

Jeff Kemp filled in admirably for Montana, who is out with a back injury. Kemp completed 14 of 29 passes for 168 yards, including two touchdown passes to Jerry Rice. Meanwhile, the San Francisco defense frustrated Marino with a career-high four interceptions.

Sunday's decision was accomplished in much the same way the 49ers beat the Dolphins the last time the two teams met in San Francisco's 38-16 victory in the Super Bowl 19 months ago. While Marino completed 27 of 46 for 301 yards, he was constantly hurried and never got his rhythm.

Marino, who said afterwards he "made a lot of bad decisions," was eventually lifted for veteran Don Strock.

"The pass rush was great, especially in this climate," 49ers Coach Bill Walsh said. "I didn't see one lackadaisical effort by any of our men."

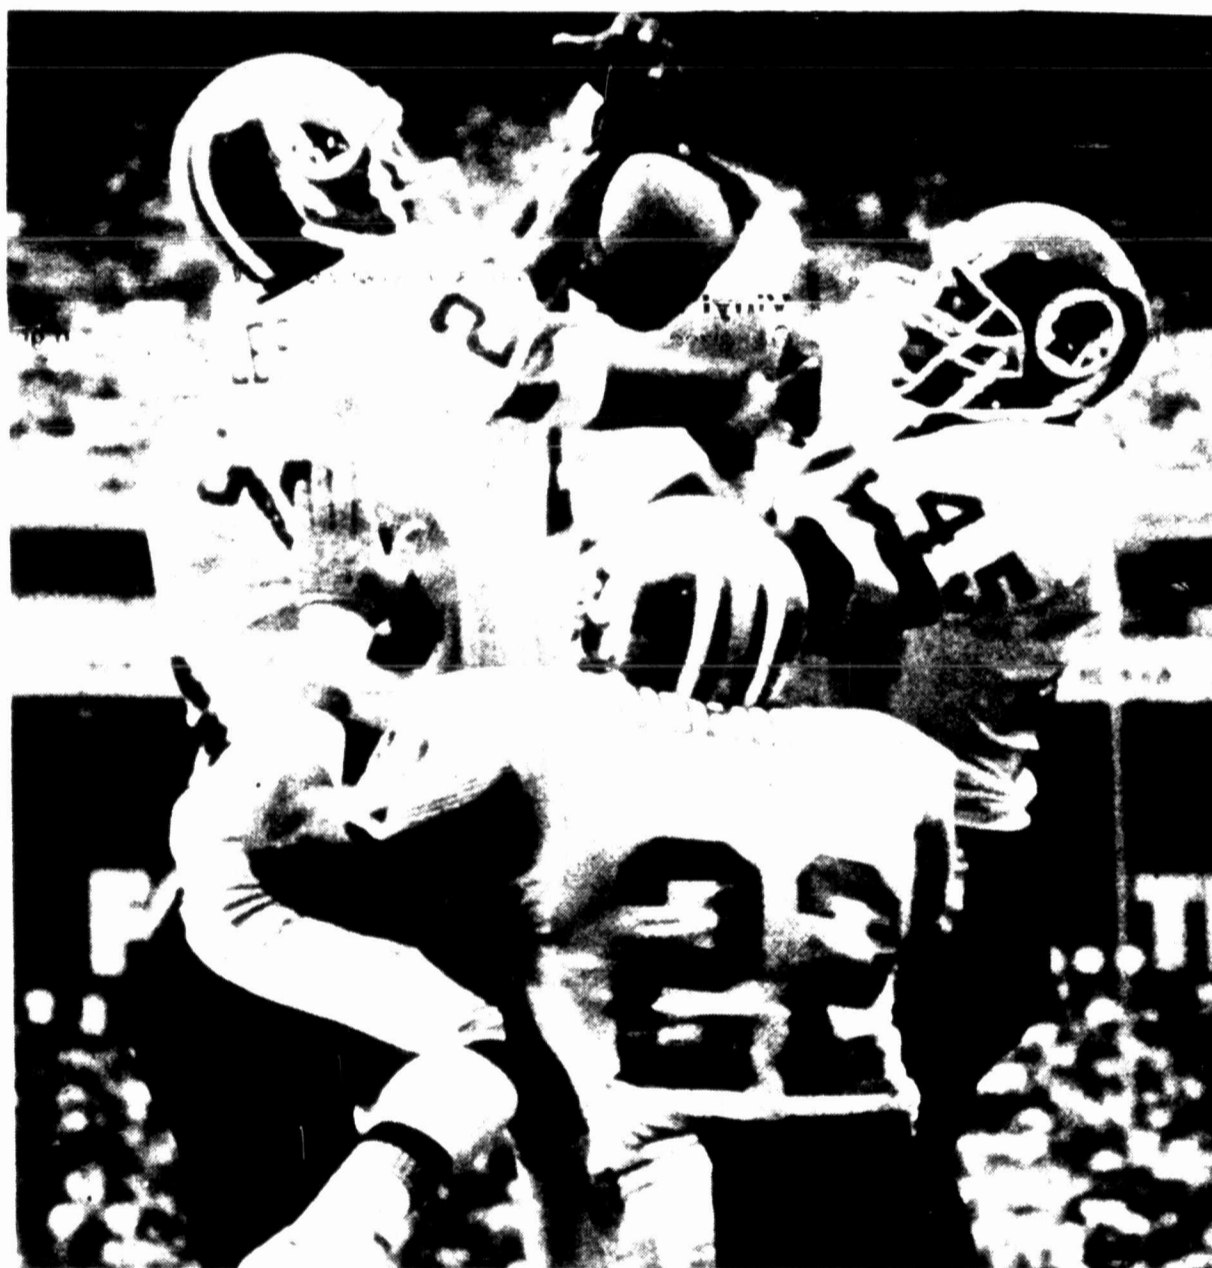

Eagles 34, Rams 20
Ron Jaworski's three touchdown passes and a defense that stopped NFL rushing leader Eric Dickerson carried Philadelphia over the previously unbeaten Rams for Buddy Ryan's first victory as coach of the Eagles.

Jaworski, who left the game with 8:34 left in the third quarter with a slight concussion, completed 17 of 27 passes for 213 yards as the Eagles silenced the Veterans Stadium boo-birds, who after three losses were shouting for Ryan's scalp.

The ferocity of the Eagles' offense was only slightly more surprising than the collapse of the Rams' defense, third in the league before Sunday. Los Angeles lost its first after three victories.

The Eagles, last in rushing defense, stonewalled Dickerson in the first half, allowing him just 19 yards on eight carries. He wound Redskins safety Todd Bowles (23) makes the interception in the Seahawks endzone during the last few minutes of play in Washington Sunday while teammates Curtis Jordan (22) and Barry Wilburn (45) also go up for the catch. The Redskins remained undefeated by beating Seattle 19-14.

Quinn's Quarter

Big Spring Steers head football coach Quinn Eudy had these comments today about the Steers 22-17 win over the number five ranked Sweetwater Mustangs Friday night in Big Spring.

QUINN EUDY

"I was tickled to death. That was a real important win for us from the standpoint of beating somebody that good. First, it was a district game, and second, we beat a team with tradition. Third, I was pleased with the character they showed in the fourth quarter in coming from behind.

"Our kicking game has gotten some abuse, but I thought they set the tone to win the ballgame. Our offense and defense, when they had to, came together."

"They (the players) were exuberant. I didn't see anybody that wasn't excited — the students, the parents, everybody in the stands. Anybody that tells you winning isn't fun is crazy."

"I normally don't like them

(open weekends like this one). In fact, I hate them. But it gives us a chance to work on some fundamentals and conditioning. But the main thing is it gives us a chance to get our people well.

"They (Lamesa, the Steers next opponent) beat Lakeview, and they've got probably the fastest back in the district — he's the district 100-meter champion. They also have the leading passer in the district. They'll be tough."

Honeyghan stuns Curry

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — As Bob Arum looked at him, Lloyd Honeyghan remembers thinking he could read the promoter's mind.

"He must have been thinking, 'Is he going to challenge Curry? Curry will knock him out in one round,'" Honeyghan said.

The 26-year-old Honeyghan, a native of Jamaica who lives in London, challenged Donald Curry for the undisputed welterweight championship Saturday night.

Sure, Honeyghan was a European champion and unbeaten in 27 fights. But he had never met anyone the caliber of Curry, who was such a prohibitive favorite that there wasn't a betting line on the fight.

Curry went to a hospital to get stitched up — one stitch for his lip and many more for the eye cut. He also suffered a broken nose.

Then the 25-year-old Texan, who had been 25-0 as a pro and 400-4 as an amateur, returned to his hotel suite to ponder his future — and perhaps second-guess his decision to remaining a welterweight for one fight too many.

Gorman and others had wanted

Curry to move up to the junior middleweight division, which has a 154-pound limit, because they felt he was outgrowing the 147-pound welterweight division.

In fact, Arum had planned to promote a Curry challenge to Mike McCallum for the World Boxing Association junior middleweight title Nov. 6, but Curry balked and didn't sign for the fight.

But Honeyghan didn't exactly play a passive role in Curry's downfall. He moved intelligently, often beat Curry to the punch and confused him by switching to a left-handed style when he got inside.

Curry did win the third and fourth rounds on cards of all three officials to pull even in the fight, but Honeyghan still seemed in control.

In the fifth round, Honeyghan wobbled Curry with a right to the head and shook him with two big rights and a flurry of punches.

Then in the sixth round Curry got the cut over the eye from what appeared to be a collision of heads. The cut became a river of blood when Honeyghan shook Curry with a four-five punch combination late in the round.

Big Spring booster club meeting

The Big Spring All-Sports Booster Club will meet tonight at 7 p.m. at the High School cafeteria. The Booster Club supports both men's and women's athletic programs — varsity, junior varsity and freshmen teams.

The Steers jayvee football, volleyball and cross country teams and cheerleaders will be introduced at the meeting, and the parents of the players are urged to attend.

The business meeting will conclude at 8 p.m., after which Coach Quinn Eudy will show films of the previous Friday night's football game.

Everyone is invited to come and support Steer athletics.

Coahoma booster club meeting

The Coahoma Booster Club will show game films Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. at the Elementary School teachers' lounge. After the movies, the Coahoma boosters will have a bonfire at 8 p.m.

City golf championships on tap

The Big Spring City Golf Championships have been scheduled for Oct. 11-12 at Comanche Trail Golf Course. The entry fee is $30, though juniors can play free.

Classifications include mens, seniors, womens and boys and girls juniors. All divisions will be flighted. For more information, call Patterson at 263-7271.

Astros hurlers continue torrid pace in blanking Braves

By JONATHAN VITTI
AP Sports Writer

If the Houston Astros' post-season pitching in any way approximates their late-season warmups, the Mets will be in for a battle.

Jim Deshaies, Aurelio Lopez, Charlie Kerfeld and Dave Smith combined on Houston's fifth shutout in six games as the Astros beat the Atlanta Braves 2-0 Sunday.

"It's almost like spring training," said Deshaies, who began the shutout string last Tuesday.

"Ever since we clinched the pennant, we've been using the games to get ready for the playoffs. The games don't mean as much to us now as they did a week ago."

Deshaies, 11-5, gave up five hits and a walk in five innings. Lopez pitched two innings of one-hit relief, then Kerfeld and Smith pitched a hitless inning each. Smith got his 32nd save.

So Deshaies called it "half a shutout."

"But I knew I wouldn't pitch a complete game," he added. "We had to let the bullpen pitchers get some work."

"After all it's also spring training for the bullpen."

Dave Lopes singled a run home in the sixth. Pinch-hitter Terry Puhl singled one home in the eighth.

Houston has won 10 of 13 games. Atlanta has lost five of six.

It's practice for the first-place Astros but Atlanta Manager Chuck Tanner says these games count.

"It's sounds a great deal better to say you finished fourth then to say you finished fifth or last," Tanner said. "Over the winter it would be nice to say to Tommy Lasorda that I finished ahead of him."

Giants 6, Dodgers 5

Pitcher Greg Minton hit a two-out double and scored on Bob Brenly's single in the bottom of the 16th inning, ending a 5-hour, 45-minute marathon with a cast of 52 players — 27 Dodgers and 25 Giants.

The record of 53 was set this season, in a suspended Chicago-Houston game that was played on Sept. 2 and Sept. 3.

The Dodgers led 3-1 in the ninth inning, but the Giants tied it. Los Angeles led 5-3 in the 14th, but the Giants tied it again.

Steve Sax was 0-for-7, snapping his 25-game hitting streak, longest in the majors this season.

Mets 4, Pirates 1

Darryl Strawberry hit a three-run homer as New York beat Pittsburgh in the 11th inning for the second straight game. Jim Morrison had tied the game with two outs in the ninth inning with his 22nd homer of the year.

Rick Aguilera, 9-7, won with two innings of relief. He followed Bob Ojeda, who had a three-hit shutout until Morrison homered.

Strawberry also drove in the Mets' first run with a fourth-inning infield hit. The homer was his 24th.

The Mets won for the 10th time in the last 13 games, giving them their 103rd win of the season in their 156th game. They improved their season record against Pittsburgh to 14-1.

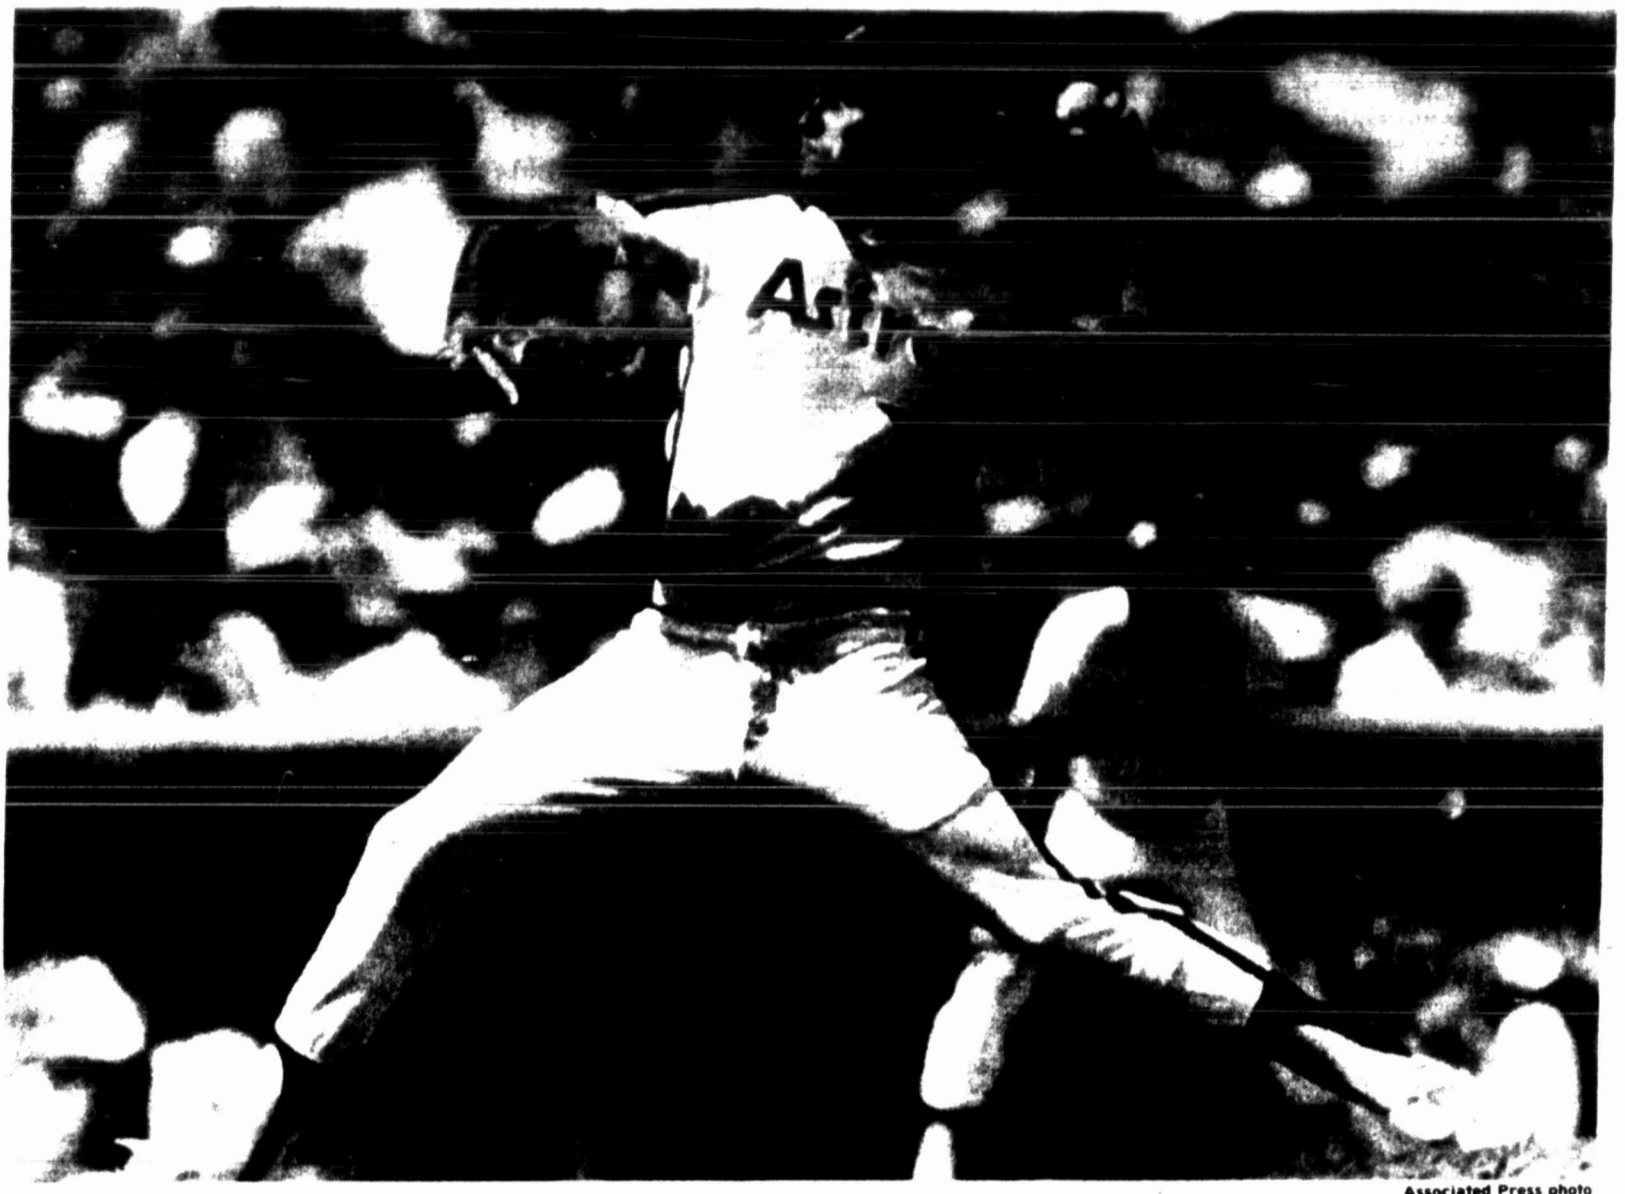

The crowd of 30,606 pushed the Pirates' season attendance over a million for the first time since 1983.

Phillies 5, Expos 2

Kevin Gross allowed five hits over eight innings, then gave up two in the ninth and was relieved. Steve Bedrosian struck out the side to wrap up the game.

"I feel I'm better off if I pitch two or three days in a row," Bedrosian said. "If I don't get enough work, I find myself too strong and my mechanics get messed up. I end up working too fast and I get myself in trouble."

Gross "has a good arm and he could have a much better record if he wasn't so inconsistent this year," Phillies Manager John Felske said. "But he did a good job today."

Cardinals 4, Cubs 1

Steve Lake and Tommy Herr singled in runs, and the Cubs helped St. Louis to two more. Vince Coleman scored the game's first run in the third inning on Gary Matthews' two-base error in left field, and Terry Pendleton scored on Dave Gumpert's wild pitch in the sixth.

Reds 6, Padres 3
Ted Power, 9-6, allowed four hits over eight innings and doubled in a run during Cincinnati's three-run second, an inning that featured

Kurt Stillwell stealing home on the front end of a double steal.
Dave Concepcion hit his 100th career home run in the first inning. Ron Robinson pitched the ninth for Cincinnati and got his 14th save.

Retton picks school over gymnastics

NEW YORK (AP) — Olympic gold medalist Mary Lou Retton today announced her retirement from gymnastics to concentrate on her studies at the University of Texas.

"I'm now attending college, and I love it," Retton, a communications major, said at a news conference.

"I really had to stop my education at the 10th grade level," she said. "I had to do correspondence to graduate. It really wasn't the best education I could have gotten and I think now it's time to pursue my education."

Earlier today, the Texas freshman told David Hartman the same thing on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America" program.

Retton, the AP's Female Athlete of the Year and Sports Illustrated's Sportsman of the Year along with hurdler Edwin Moses in 1984, won the Olympic gold medal for individual all-around competition, bronze medals in the floor exercise and uneven parallel bars, and silvers in the vault and team competition at the 1984 Games in Los Angeles.

She did not compete with the United States squad at the World Championships in November 1985 in Montreal.

She has competed only once since the 1984 Games, the America Cup in Indianapolis in March 1985 where she won her third straight title, and many had questioned whether she would be able to compete again.

Last November, Retton's agent, John Traetta, said Retton had resumed training with coach Bela Karolyi in Houston after a four-month layoff to write a book and also work on commercials.

She said she wants "to keep involved in the sport of gymnastics," as a commentator or coach.

With divisions wrapped, it's batting title time

The Yankees' Mattingly and Red Sox' Boggs ready for head to head duel

New York Yankees Don Mattingly watches a home-run sail through the air Sunday during a game against Detroit at New York's Yankee Stadium. The Yankees were helped by the two-run homer to beat the Detroit Tigers 10-2. Mattingly boosted his batting average to .350 but still trails league leader Wade Boggs of Boston by two percentage points.

By The Associated Press
Even though the American League East pennant is decided, the focus still will be turned to Boston this weekend as Wade Boggs and Don Mattingly duel for the batting title.

Mattingly's 3-for-5 performance Sunday in the Yankees' 10-2 victory over Detroit raised his average to .3503, while Boggs was 1-for-4 in the Red Sox' East Division-clinching 12-3 victory over Toronto, bringing his average to .3521.

The Yankees play their final four games of the season at Fenway.

"I came into this game not caring what happened personally," said Mattingly. "I know it's there. What can I do?" Mattingly said the batting race.

"You don't go up there trying to hit a double or trying to get a hit," Mattingly said. Mattingly has 51 doubles and needs one to tie Lou Gehrig's club record, set in 1927. He has 227 hits, four short of Earl Combs' mark also set in 1927.

Mattingly had an RBI double in the second, scoring Wayne Tolleson, who had doubled home the inning's first run that gave Bob Tewksbury, 8-5, the support he needed.

Dave Winfield led off the third with his 24th homer to put the Yankees in front 5-0 and New York scored five times in the eighth against Detroit relievers Jim Slaton and Willie Hernandez.

Red Sox 12, Blue Jays 3

Dennis Boyd scattered eight hits to claim his career-high 16th victory and the AL East for Boston.

"After all the commotion this year, it was fitting for me to go out there and throw a good ballgame," said Boyd, who was suspended briefly in July for missing a game. "We were ready. We wanted to end it all today."

Boggs became the first Boston player to get 200 hits in four consecutive seasons.

Rangers 4, Angels 3
Rookie Pete Incaviglia hit a grand slam in the seventh inning off Mike Witt as Texas rallied over California and clinched second place in the West. Incaviglia had gone 0-for-25 before the homer.

Witt pitched five hitless innings and took a one-hit shutout and 1-0 lead into the seventh. He allowed consecutive singles to Ruben Sierra and Pete O'Brien, then, one out later, walked Larry Parrish intentionally before Incaviglia hit his 28th homer and second grand slam.

Royals 6, A's 2

Dave Stewart hadn't given up a hit until he allowed consecutive homers to George Brett, Frank White and Jamie Quirk with none out in the fourth inning as Kansas City beat Oakland.

Stewart started the inning by walking Kevin Seitzer, and Brett homered to give the Royals a 2-0 lead. White and Quirk then followed in succession, giving the Royals three straight homers for the second time in their history.

Twins 6, White Sox 1

The Twins snapped a 1-1 tie with a run in the eighth, then scored five more runs in the ninth — two on Mickey Hatcher's third homer — to beat the White Sox. Gary Gaetti walked with the bases loaded to break the tie.

Brewers 10, Orioles 2

Charlie Moore and Dale Sveum paced the Brewers, and Milwaukee scored seven runs with two out in the eighth inning to bury Baltimore. Moore singled, doubled and homered, scoring two runs. Sveum drove in two runs with a bases-loaded walk and a single.

Indians 5, Mariners 4

Jim Presley committed a two-base throwing error on a two-out grounder by Joe Carter, and Carter scored the winning run from second on a single by Cory Snyder to give the Indians a three-game sweep of their series with Seattle.

McEnroe outsiugs Connors in Transamerica final

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After a brilliant exchange of shots knotted the first set tiebreaker 6-6 in the Transamerica Open finals, John McEnroe and Jimmy Connors lay sprawled on the court like dazed fighters in a double knockout.

Connors won that point as the packed crowd of 11,622 at the Cow Palace gave both players a standing ovation, but McEnroe proved more resilient, physically stronger and mentally tougher.

If there was any doubt about whether tennis' "Mac Attack" was truly back from a 6½-month layoff, despite McEnroe's victory in last week's Los Angeles Volvo tournament, he dispelled it at the end of that first set Sunday night.

McEnroe got off the blue carpet, smacked a winning volley to take the next point, forced Connors into a backhand error to close out the set, then swept to a 7-6, 6-3 victory for his second straight tournament title.

McEnroe played his best tennis since coming back from his long vacation in August as he notched his 10th triumph in a row against Connors over a 3-year span and 19th in 31 career meetings in Grand Prix events.

It was also McEnroe's fifth singles title in this $289,000 tournament since 1978. A couple of hours later he added his seventh doubles title by teaming with Peter Fleming to beat Mike DePalmer and Gary Donnelly 6-4, 7-6.

At the singles awards ceremony, where McEnroe received a $44,000 check and Connors got $22,000, McEnroe thanked his rival for being a thorn in his side and "inspiring me to greater heights in my career over eight or nine years."

McEnroe dealt out 10 aces against the 34-year-old Connors, who has one of the best service returns in the game.

"It was a hard-fought match and he made me work for it," said McEnroe. "I think he gets inspired playing me. I've seen him play some of the others and he doesn't seem to play as well."

McEnroe, 27, was playing his fifth tournament since returning to the courts. The former No. 1 player in the world, who took time off from the tennis tour while his wife, actress Tatum O'Neal, had a baby, showed all the skills and the kind of concentration he had in years past.

He had said he would know when he was getting back near the top of his game when he started winning a few tournaments.

"I'm glad I did what I set out to do," he said.

Connors, who played with a prototype midsize racket he developed to replace the small head steel racket he used almost his entire career, said he's still getting used to the new racket.

"My tennis is fine, but I'm just not quite satisfied yet," he said.

Connors said he is "not in any panic situation" about the "mental flatness" he alluded to earlier in the tournament. He had said that if he couldn't play with more enthusiasm he might take an extended break from the game.

"I'd like to take a normal one month rest at the end of this year," he said, adding that he'll probably play the minimum 10 events next year to allow more time to meet his business commitments and family responsibilities.

McEnroe opened the match with an ace and took a 3-0 lead in the first set after breaking Connors' serve in the second game and winning at love in the third game.

Connors evened the match by breaking McEnroe in the fifth game, and each held service to 6-6. McEnroe defaulted to start the tiebreaker but rallied back

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, SEPT. 30, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime finds you able to continue with whatever creative plans you are putting into motion. Continue with unabashed interest and you get fine results.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): You have every chance to bring your abilities and talents to the attention of bigwigs who can help.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Be gentle with your mate tonight. Avoid expensive entertainment and come to a family agreement.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Find the best way to get your ideas across to others. Then see to it that all is harmonious at home.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21): Raise your level of consciousness and you can increase your abundance. Be careful driving.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21): You became inspired yesterday and it continues into today, so go ahead with that fine activity.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): You can visualize how to make you dreams come true but later don't be forceful to gain your own way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Pursue the personal wishes that motivate you and gain them. Don't permit anxiety to limit progress.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Discuss with a bigwig what your aims regarding the world really are and gain assistance for them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You are newly inspired today and can accomplish much. Take no risks with your reputation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Get your bills together. Do something that will greatly please your mate. Rid yourself of boredom.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You may get a favor from an influential friend, so be gracious about it. Don't let irritations bother you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You may be drawn into unpleasant surroundings. Leave quickly and be safe. Make sure you drive carefully.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be able to view everything from its widest scope, so early teach to whittle them down to a practical and workable level. Make sure you give praise for anything unusual that is wisely handled and raise the incentive. A good education is important here.
