New mining work comes to Texas

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — A Pennsylvania company's decision to lease state land in West Texas for a beryllium mine could be the start of a new mineral industry in Texas, Land Commissioner Garry Mauro says.

"This is a real breakthrough," Mauro said Wednesday in announcing the long-term lease that he said could bring the state $12 million over a 30-year period.

"We're sending a signal to the nation's hard mineral industry," Mauro added.

"Why go to the Rocky Mountains or Alaska, with all their environmental, climatic and transportation problems when Texas has hard minerals that are a more viable alternative?"

According to the General Land Office, Cabot Mining Inc. of Reading, Pa., signed a lease on about 640 acres of land in Hudspeth County to mine beryllium, which officials called a "space-age metal."

Beryllium is a strong, lightweight metal used in the aerospace, electronics and nuclear energy industries. It is known for its high heat and electrical conductivity. It is used in the space shuttle project, Mauro noted.

The nation's only other beryllium mine is in Utah, but Mauro said the ore at the Texas site is more pure.

The Texas mine also will keep the United States from being dependent on South Africa for a steady supply of the metal, he said.

"This is the first time that this key, space-age mineral has ever been mined in Texas," Mauro said.

"Today's contract is also significant because it shows that hard mineral deposits in Texas can be developed wisely and profitably," he said.

The state will receive royalties of $400,000 a year from the lease on the land, located seven miles northwest of Sierra Blanca. The money will go into the Permanent School Fund, which helps provide assistance to public schools in Texas.

Mauro said at least 200 jobs will be created in the two-year construction of the mine facility, with 50 to 70 continuing jobs after the underground mining operations begin.

Dean of SWCID devoted to deaf

Editor's note: This is the second in a series of Herald articles in conjunction with national Deaf Awareness Week. "Deaf in a hearing world" continues today with a report on the new dean of instruction at SWCID and his deaf spouse.

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Ronnie Brasel's marriage to a deaf person was a major factor in his decision to assist, educate and enhance the lives of those who are deaf.

The career path he's followed led to his recent selection as dean of instruction at the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf.

While he hears well, Brasel saw his wife living in an isolated world shortly after their marriage and his graduation from Sioux Falls College in Sioux Falls, S.D.

They were living in a small town in Iowa where Ronnie taught at a public school.

"The town was too small and there was nothing for Laural to do. I needed to change my focus and get Laural involved," he said about his decision to pursue a masters' degree in deaf counseling from Gallaudet College in Washington, D.C.

Gallaudet, along with SWCID, are two of the three colleges for the deaf in the United States.

"I wanted to include Laural in my work and in my social interaction with other people," Brasel said.

Laural was an instructor for three years in the high school program offered for the deaf through Gallaudet.

Brasel says his wife was his first sign language instructor.

"She is patient and an easy person to learn from — she's very expressive," Brasel said.

They are the parents of three children: Kara, 13; Heather, 10; and Trevor, 8, all of whom can hear.

SWCID rides financial roller coaster

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Since its founding Nov. 6, 1979, the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf has been on a financial roller coaster.

Out-of-state tuition has risen and fallen thousands of dollars and substantial fund reductions have been threatened — once nearly forcing the institution to close.

One of the first financial plunges occurred in December 1982 — when the Legislature provided no funds for SWCID, located in the Industrial Park in the west end of the city.

Dr. Charles Hays, then president of the Howard County Junior College District, said at the time that if SWCID didn't receive at least $7 million, it would have to close. The school had requested $11 million.

State to review report of possible abuse case

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

The Big Spring State Hospital has conducted an internal investigation into alleged sexual contact between a former employee and three patients. The hospital may be investigated further by the state.

Director Pam Carley of the client services division of the state's Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board said this morning she is waiting to receive a report concerning the internal investigation. The probe stems from an anonymous complaint made to Rep. Larry Don Shaw's office and The Big Spring Herald last month. It alleged a state hospital employee was dismissed from his job there because he had sexual contact with three patients in the adult mental health ward.

Both Hospital Superintendent A.K. Smith and Assistant Superintendent Bob Von Rosenberg refused earlier to confirm the name of the former employee. They said it was policy not to divulge information concerning the dismissal of an employee without his written consent.

Von Rosenberg said the employee's dismissal from the hospital's multiple disabilities unit did not involve criminal activities or unethical conduct.

In a Sept. 28 letter from Larry Don Shaw to state Mental Health

Commissioner Gary E. Miller M.D., Shaw requested a formal investigation into the alleged abuse and a written response from the department.

Shaw also requested a written statement concerning the matter from the Big Spring State Hospital.

He said today that he has not yet received a response from either party.

Smith said this morning the hospital's client rights and protection board had performed a "thorough" investigation into the alleged incident "and found no evidence to support the allegation."

He said the report had been turned over to Carley for her review.

Rain washes car off road

Early morning showers washed a car off the road in Howard County, but no one was hurt, according to the sheriff's office.

At 8:16 a.m., the highway department was notified a car had been washed off the Old Colorado City Road off FM 669. The vehicle's occupants, identities unknown, were rescued unharmed.

Barricades have been installed at FM 669 where it meets Highway 350.

Big Spring police haven't had any reports of flooded roads, said acting Police Chief Lonnie Smith. The Agricultural Research Service recorded 0.73 inches of rain at 8 a.m., bringing the yearly total to 25.44 inches. The normal-to-date is 15.15 inches.

The largest amount of rain was reported by F.C. Juneke of Luther — 3.3 inches.

Cindy Hopper of Knott reported 2.6 inches. She said at 9 a.m. that most of it fell within about an hour and a half this morning, and it was "just pouring down."

Chuck Benz of 3807 Apache Drive said he measured 1.1 inch before 8 a.m. today.

Neil Fryar of Lomax recorded 0.3 inches of rainfall. H. Boyce Hale of Sterling City Route recorded 0.03 inches. Wendell Shive of Coahoma said he received "very, very little" rainfall.

No overflow problems have been reported, according to Rod Lewis, assistant manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Lake Thomas is at 25 percent of capacity, and Lake Spence about 50 percent, he said, so they "have got a lot of room" to spare. He said at 9 a.m. that no rain had been reported in the Lake Spence area.

The forecast calls for an 80 percent chance of thunderstorms today, possibly severe, and a 60 percent chance tonight. Skies should continue cloudy through tonight.

Vote registration deadline Friday

New county residents who wish to vote in the November general election have until 5 p.m. Friday to register in the Howard County Tax Assessor's and Collector's office on the first floor of the county courthouse.

Individuals who will turn 18 years of age on or before Nov. 4 must also be registered 30 days prior to Nov. 4.

County Tax Assessor and Collector Dorothy Moore said this morning her office will accept mail-in registration applications that are postmarked on or before Oct. 5.

Registered voters who wish to vote by mail on an absentee ballot can request an application for a ballot from the county clerk's office.

Deputy Wanda Anderson said this morning voters who apply for a mail-in ballot must give an acceptable reason for their request to vote by mail-in ballot.

Those reasons are: over 65 years old, religious belief, incarceration, disability, or absence from their assigned precinct poll on election day, Anderson said.

She said the most frequent reasons given are over 65 years old and absence from their assigned precinct poll on election day.

The applications will be accepted up to Oct. 28, Anderson said.

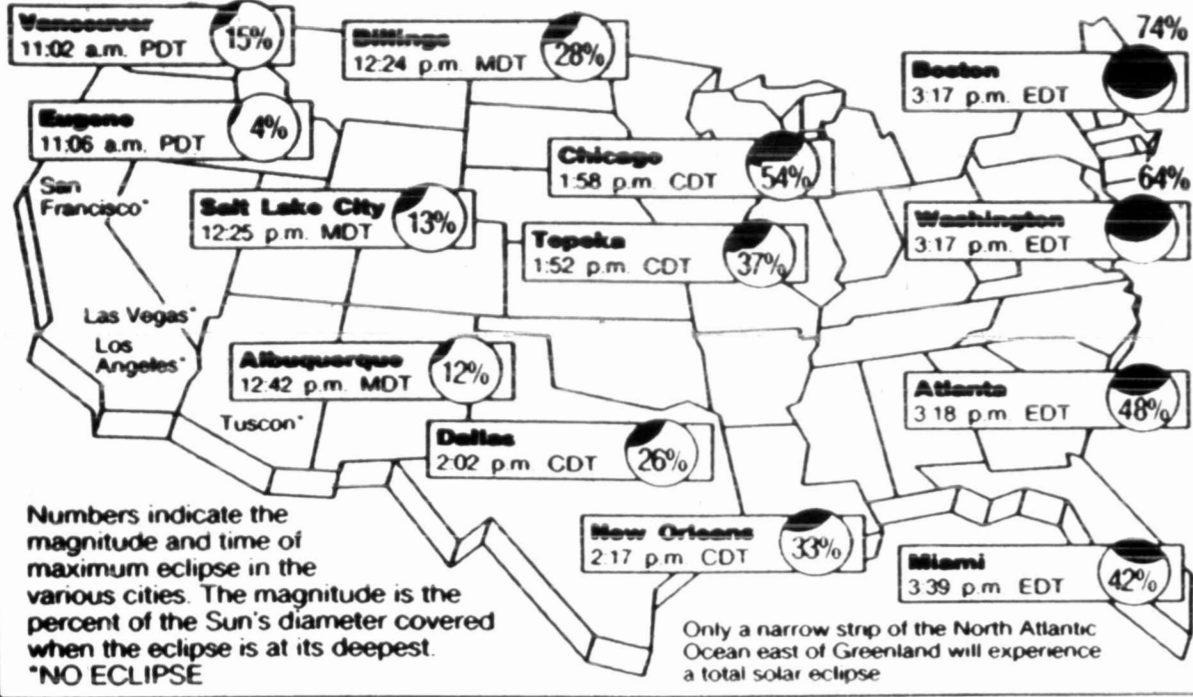

DOROTHY MOORE
County Tax Assessor

Persons can address their requests for an absentee ballot to: Margaret Ray, Howard County Clerk, P.O. Box 1468, Big Spring, 79721.

Those wishing to vote on an absentee ballot in person can do so in the county clerk's office from Oct. 15 through Oct. 31, Anderson said.

Speed limit drive finds itself stalled

By PHILLIP SWANN
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Western lawmakers' drive to raise the speed limit to 65 mph appears stalled in legislative traffic as Congress rushes to adjourn for the year.

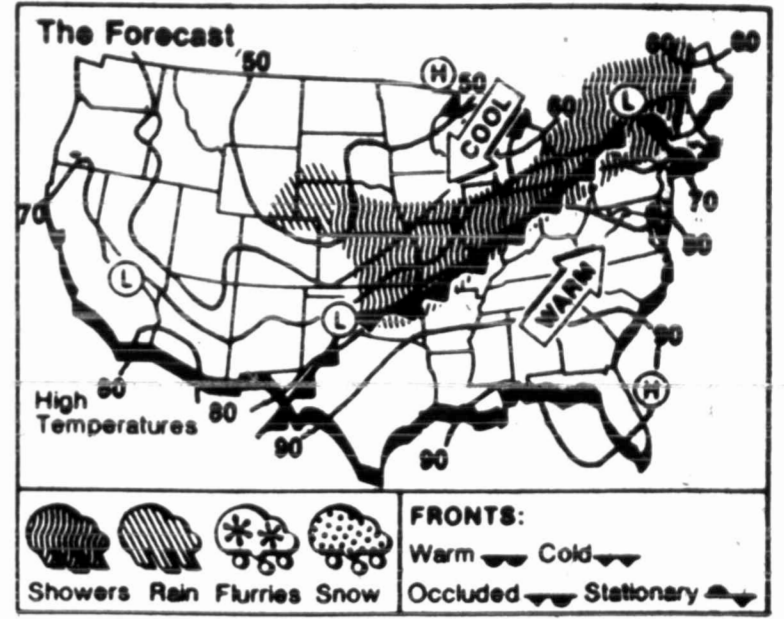

The Senate last week voted to allow state legislatures to raise the speed limit on rural portions of interstate highways to 65 mph. The measure, which failed in the House by 20 votes, was attached to a $52.3 billion highway authorization bill.

The Senate called for a conference committee to resolve the differences in the House and Senate highway bills. But Rep. James Howard, chairman of the House Public Works Committee, has refused to name House conferees because the Senate has yet to agree to attach safety provisions to the speed limit amendment.

Meanwhile, Congress is scheduled to adjourn Friday, although many lawmakers are predicting that they will come back next week. The bill's chances of passage grow dimmer with every passing day.

"We're already late," said Nadine Hamilton, a spokesperson for the Senate transportation subcommittee which is headed by Idaho Republican Sen. Steve Symms. "Our members are still very hopeful but right now we're at a standstill."

Forecast

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms, a few possibly severe in the north, and some locally heavy tonight, were in the area. Storms will be gradually ending Friday. Temperatures will be cooler mainly in the Panhandle and far West Friday. Highs today will be in the 80s except 70s in the mountains and panhandle. Lows tonight will be in the lower 50s in the mountains to upper 50s in the far west and panhandle to lower 70s in the Concho Valley and Big Bend. Highs Friday are expected to reach 67 in the Panhandle to 84 Big Bend.

State

Heavy thunderstorms and showers were common across the state with the heaviest storms occurring in the western part of the Red River Valley.

Scattered thunderstorms and showers also were over South Texas, the Trans-Pecos, the south plains and the western part of the Edwards Plateau on Thursday.

Skies were partly to mostly cloudy across the greater part of the state with winds varying from 5 mph to 20 mph.

Temperatures at 4 a.m. were mainly in the 70s and low 80s across the state. A few readings were in the 60s in the High Plains and higher elevations at West Texas.

Extremes ranged from 63 degrees at Marfa, in the Davis Mountains to 83 degrees at Galveston.

In the forecast, scattered thunderstorms are expected in the western portion of North Texas through Friday, with widely scattered showers over the rest of the region. Lows tonight should be in the 70s.

South Texas skies should be mostly cloudy to partly cloudy with scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers occurring mostly in the north and west. Lows should be in the 80s on the coast and in the 70s inland.

Thunderstorms could be severe in West Texas especially in the north. They should end gradually from the west Friday.

Nation

Powerful thunderstorms rumbled over sections of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, spawning tornadoes and hail as large as golf balls, and threatening flash floods today in the central and southern Plains.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms fell from southern New England and New York into Pennsylvania and across sections of western Nebraska and northern Minnesota. Rain showers also fell from Utah and Nevada to the northern Rockies, with snow in the mountains.

The strong thunderstorms produced tornadoes Wednesday night in southwest Oklahoma at McKnight, Canute and near Willow. Golf ball-size hail pelted Floydada, Texas, and Willow, Okla., while three-quarter-inch hail fell in Mooreland, Okla. Wichita, Kan., received marble-size hail and 1.15 inches of rain.

Flash flood watches were in effect for south-central and southeast Kansas and parts of northwest Texas.

Month's construction costs up total

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

As a result of September's strong showing, total construction costs for fiscal year 1985-86 were nearly identical to building expenditures of the previous year, according to city records.

The fiscal year extends from October 1 to September 30 of the following year.

Based on 30 permits issued by City Hall, September's $571,352 in costs pushed the year's capital outlay to almost $3.73 million, a tad less than the $3.8 million spent for building projects in fiscal year 1984-85.

September's costs jumped almost $500,000 over August spending and more than 100 percent over last September.

A permit for construction of the new $392,000 Salvation Army building at 811 W. Fifth St. led last month's surge in expected construction spending.

The planned 8,000 square-foot building, being built by local contractor J.W. Little, will house Army offices and all youth-related services.

Other big September projects include a $65,000 home being built for Tom McAdams at 2402 Cindy Lane, a $36,000 steel building at 1915 Gregg St. for Billy Biddle, a $15,500 swimming pool installed at the home of attorney Lanny Hamby, 2900 Melrose Lane, and a $13,000 addition to the Trinity Baptist Church, 810 11th Place.

Other construction of more than $500 includes:

- A $4,000 building renovation and maintenance job at 904 Nolan St. for owner Arvin Henry.
- A $1,577 carport at the home of Tom Feurbacker, 1711 Morrison Drive.
- A $2,000 garage and workshop at the residence of John Kenemur, 1306 Monmouth Ave.
- A $1,950 carport at the Birdwell Lane Church of Christ.
- A $1,500 remodeling job at 611

McEwen St. for McDonald Realty.

- A $5,000 garage and workshop at the home of Richard Elliot, 2802 Clanton St.
- A sign costing $1,800 at the Clothes Connection in the Big Spring Mall.
- A $2,000 sign for Cameo Homes, E. Farm Road 700.
- A $2,000 addition to the home of Dennis Warrington, 2505 Carol Drive.
- Moving a house owned by Rockwell Bros. from 300 W. Second St. at a cost of $1,000.
- An $800 addition to the home of Lynn Grannaway, 2504 Ann Drive.
- A $4,000 sign replacement at Highland Pontiac, 502 E. Farm Road 700.
- A $725 re-roofing job at the home of Steve Hodges, 1006 E. 12th St.
- A $2,000 re-roofing job at 2709 Coronado Ave.
- A $15,000 addition to the home of Jackie Barber, 1500 Thorpe St.
- A $600 storage room at the home of Pete Banks, 1707 Purdue St.
- A $1,200 addition to the home of Donald Kucera, 1213 Harding St.

signing, Brasel said. To get their mother's attention, they can either flick a light switch, stomp on the floor to cause vibrations, tap her on the shoulder or wave their hands, he said.

"We have to be careful sometimes in our communication," Brasel noted. "It's very easy for them to pick up the communication because it's so visual. You almost have to go behind closed doors."

Laural said she was attracted to Ronnie "because Ron knew a little finger spelling and signing" when they met. "It's an important part of communicating with deaf people," she said.

Laural's sister introduced her to him in Sioux Falls. Six months later, they married.

They will be married 15 years this December.

The Sioux Falls natives had been neighbors for about 15 years before they met. Brasel said he had no reason to get involved or interact with deaf people at that time.

What Brasel and his wife see in Big Spring, after moving here in August from Maryland, is a cordial populace, supportive of its deaf community.

In addition to his administrative responsibilities, Brasel hopes to complete work for his doctorate in the field of special education administration.

"My first concept of Big Spring was that it was a small town, very hot, very dry — but it definitely had friendly people," he said.

Laural had a tougher time of it when they arrived. She missed the big city atmosphere of Washington D.C.

The deaf community in Big Spring, however, quickly helped resolve her feelings of isolation, she reported.

"Big Spring has a great deaf group of people. They're very supportive and work well as a team. They knew how I was feeling."

She said the people here encouraged her to become active in the community. She responded by joining a bowling team, becoming a board member with the Highland

Council for the Deaf and teaching continuing education sign language classes offered through SWCID.

Her students have impressed her.

"I'm very excited to see the number of people in my classes," she said, noting a wide cross-section of professional backgrounds from which her students come.

"Many people are certainly motivated to learn and communicate with deaf people," she said.

In addition to expanding SWCID's enrollment and certificate program, Brasel said he would like to initiate more of a community awareness drive concerning persons who are deaf.

"This week has provided lots of awareness about the world of the deaf," Brasel said.

He tentatively has made plans for SWCID students to have an open house sometime this year and to establish a recognition day honoring community leaders who have supported SWCID.

SWCID

Hill said "we were the only college to receive an increase in funding over recommendations" that year.

A climb on the roller coaster resulted from a four-year waiver on the use of state funds. That change enabled the school to use the funds for operation and maintenance of student residences, instead of instruction only, as is required for junior colleges.

Hill said later that he anticipated such a policy would allow sufficient time to make the residential system self-supporting — a process that is continuing.

The most recent plunge on the ride came about earlier this year.

SWCID again faced substantial budget cuts when Gov. Mark White in February ordered a 13 percent across-the-board cut for state agencies and universities.

Legislative lobbying reduced the cut to 9 percent, the same percentage for junior colleges. The infusion of a $100,000 federal grant resulted in an actual reduction of 1.6 percent for SWCID for the coming year.

Another loop on the roller coaster was experienced in 1982 when out-of-state tuition was increased by 2000 percent, from $400 per year to $8,750, excluding room and board.

"The Legislature realized we had a significant number of out-of-state students," and thought they should bear more of the cost of their instruction, instead of charging Texas taxpayers, Riley said.

Approximately 20 percent of the 98 students at SWCID are from out-of-state this year, Registrar Pam Campbell said.

As a result, SWCID became what Hill termed "the Harvard of the deaf," in terms of high tuition. The school subsequently experienced a 95 percent drop in out-of-state student enrollment.

In response, out-of-state tuition was decreased last year to the same level as other state-supported colleges. Campbell said out-of-state enrollment has responded with an increase this year.

Ax suspect bragged

LANCASTER — The prime suspect in the knife-hatchet slayings of three women was freed from a jail 100 miles away even after he boasted that he had killed somebody, officials said.

A few hours after he was booked into the Leon County jail on a drunken driving charge about midnight Saturday, David Martin Long bragged to cellmates that he had slain someone, county sheriff's dispatcher Bob Gresham Jr. said Wednesday.

Long "didn't come out and say, 'I killed three girls,'" Gresham said. "The jailer said that guy out there was talking about killing somebody, as in past tense. But people say that sort of thing all the time."

Texas Air gets OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Air's takeover of Eastern Airlines won final government approval Wednesday and its plans to buy People Express moved a step forward when the Justice Department said it won't object to the acquisition on antitrust grounds.

The Transportation Department, which gave the Texas Air-Eastern merger its tentative endorsement Sept. 18, announced final approval of the $676 million merger, saying all competitive problems had been resolved.

The acquisition of Eastern by the Houston-based Texas Air Corp. "would not substantially reduce competition in any market," the department said.

FBI picks leak agents

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI, concerned that the sources of news leaks receive thorough investigations, has assigned some of its more experienced agents to a special unit that is probing unauthorized disclosures to reporters.

The new unit began six months ago, building on the four agents who had been previously assigned to look into the leaks. Milt Aherlich, deputy assistant director for congressional and public affairs at FBI headquarters, said Wednesday.

Aherlich said the new team still has four agents, but they are more experienced and have been made a part of the Washington field office's domestic terrorism squad.

$10 million may pay debt

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — New Mexico apparently is prepared to pay Texas up to $10.2 million to settle a water dispute involving 340,000-acre feet from the Pecos River.

Peter White, an attorney for the state Engineer's Office in Santa Fe, said New Mexico is considering paying Texas from $3.4 million to $10.2 million to settle the case.

A special master of the U.S. Supreme Court ruled last month New Mexico owes Texas 340,000-acre feet of water from the Pecos River. The settlement proposed by state Engineer Steve Reynolds works out to a $10 to $30 per acre value.

A washout of the Lawrence Lake dam near Westfield, Wis., that began Tuesday had already consumed most of County Highway A that runs over the dam by Wednesday morning as residents brace for a dam break and flooding.

Flooding

Residents cope with excessive rainfall

Floodwaters surged through the nation's midsection today, swelling Lake Michigan to a record level and keeping more than 10,000 people homeless, and officials urged residents in flooded areas of Chicago to boil drinking water.

Saturated areas of the central and southern Plains may get more rain tonight as Hurricane Paine, located off of Baja California, begins to combine with a storm system over the Great Basin, the National Weather Service said.

"We're in trouble," said Fred Beeler, a weather service forecaster in Oklahoma City. "Unfortunately, we just can't break the wet weather pattern we're in."

Barge operators on the upper Mississippi River scrambled to beat rapidly rising water that is forcing the Army Corps of Engineers to close locks and dams, effectively halting river traffic.

A partially ruptured dam in Wisconsin, meanwhile, remained standing but leaking, and hundreds were believed still away from their homes in flooded northeastern Montana, but the water was receding in some communities.

One man was killed Wednesday after he was swept from his stalled pickup on a bridge in Oklahoma, and another was missing and presumed dead in Illinois. One weather-related death was reported last week in Montana.

Thunderstorms have dumped up to 15 inches of rain on northeastern Oklahoma since Monday. Southern Missouri got 5 inches of rain Wednesday, and heavy rain fell in Indiana and Ohio.

Seven rivers in Michigan's Saginaw River basin were flooding, and two rivers were overflowing near Grand Rapids, the weather service said.

Nearly 16 inches has fallen on northeastern Illinois since Sept. 1, most during the past 10 days, the weather service said.

About 2,700 people were homeless in Illinois, mostly in the northern part of the state, where floodwaters ranged from 18 inches to 6 feet, officials said.

Runoff in Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan has bloated Lake Michigan to a record 581.48 feet above sea level, the Illinois Department of Transportation's water resources division said. The lake had reached a record 581.2 feet in June, then fell during the summer.

In Oklahoma, a hole in the earthen portion of a dam on Lawrence Lake near Westfield expanded Wednesday, then stopped growing as the lake level dropped after floodgates were opened.

In Oklahoma, the engorged Illinois River all but cut off the town of Tahlequah.

National Guardsmen used high-wheel vehicles to evacuate up to 100 residents of low-lying areas in Tahlequah and Cherokee County, said civil defense director Bob Culver.

Flood stage on the Illinois River in Tahlequah is 11 feet and the weather service said the river could hit 25 feet.

In Bixby, helicopters plucked 23 stranded residents from their houses, said Tulsa Fire Department spokesman Mike Baker. Officials urged an estimated 7,500 people living in an area 24 miles square to leave their homes.

Up to 100 people were forced from their homes in Guthrie, 100 in Skiatook, 300 in Kingfisher, 50 in Bartlesville and 50 from a nursing home at Miami, officials said.

The weather service predicted the Mississippi River at Davenport, Iowa, would crest at more than 19 feet Monday, 4 feet above flood stage.

Shots fired at Gandhi

NEW DELHI, India — A man hiding behind a vine-covered gazebo today fired shots from a homemade pistol about 20 feet from Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi and President Zail Singh. Neither man was injured in the apparent assassination attempt.

"Everything is OK. There is nothing to tell," Gandhi said on television shortly after the incident, which occurred as he, his wife, Sonia, and Singh left a ceremony marking the 117th anniversary of the birth of Indian independence leader Mohandas K. Gandhi.

The gunman was arrested. He was not immediately identified, but police said he was wearing an army uniform and was in his early twenties.

Leftist leader arrested

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The government today charged a top communist leader with the capital crime of rebellion, and leftist guerrillas warned that his continued detention could scuttle peace talks.

A charge sheet filed in Manila Regional Trial Court accused Rodolfo Salas, his wife, Josefina Cruz, and bodyguard and driver, Jose Concepcion, with engaging in "war against the forces of the government, destroying property and committing serious violence."

Officials have identified Salas, 38, as commander-in-chief of the New People's Army, which has been fighting the government for 17 years. Some officials have claimed he also is chairman of the country's underground Communist Party.

Hostage escapes

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A kidnapped French television cameraman said Wednesday he had escaped from his captors, but the Shiite militia Amal claimed its men rescued him.

Sroussi said he took advantage of a loud thunderstorm to dig under a wall of the room in which he was held.

"I dug the hole without my captors hearing the sound because of the storm and manage to get out," he said. "I found myself in a street, walked awhile and then took a taxi and in half an hour I got to where I wanted, to see my wife and then to the French Embassy."

South Africa threatens

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — South Africa will stop buying U.S. grain and allowing its shipment to its black-ruled neighbors if the Senate overrides President Reagan's veto of anti-apartheid sanctions, the foreign minister said today.

Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman Richard Lugar, R-Ind., denounced the announcement by Foreign Minister R. F. Botha as an act of "bribery and intimidation" designed to influence the Senate vote scheduled later today.

The New Testament mentions often certain words when discussing the death of Jesus, our needs created by our sins, and the subject of salvation. Those words are propitiation, reconcile and reconciliation, redeem and redemption, grace and mercy, along with love of God. The reason it uses these words is because they express the solution of the sin problem that Jesus achieved by dying on the cross. As to an explanation of these words as they relate to salvation from sin: propitiation expresses the satisfaction of justice and the appeasement of wrath. God's holy justice demands sinful guilt be punished, and the need of punishment causes his wrath. Jesus died to take care of that need. Reconcile refers to the rescuing a person from punishment. Jesus paid the price for sin, he received what we deserve. Grace and mercy express the attribute of love within God, the attitude of God toward a person who has sinned, but now has been redeemed and reconciled by the propitiation sacrifice of Jesus on the cross. Without receiving the benefits of Jesus death, a person has an eternal problem, "HOW DO YOU HANDLE THE PUNISHMENT OF SIN?" Romans chapter 6 tells you how to receive the benefits of Jesus death. Superhighways worth the cost President Dwight D. Eisenhower had an imaginative vision for the United States. He conceived of a great highway system linking every major city in America. This spring, America's interstate highway system celebrated its 30th anniversary. The idea was to build connected superhighways so people could drive across the country without stopping for traffic lights. It was to cost $26.3 billion, but more than $100 billion has been spent to date.

In most respects it has met the Eisenhower goals. But the planners have been criticized because the system has encouraged urban sprawl and often has cut through and ruined fine neighborhoods. In addition, it has been charged that it has been responsible for increased smog.

Now it is estimated that 18,000 miles of highway need repairs that would cost $75 billion. That is a lot of money to spend at a time when the nation faces budget difficulties.

The system, however, carries 20.5 percent of the nation's traffic, and the economic benefits are immense. In addition, the highways are safer than ordinary roads.

Despite the costs, repairs are necessary, and the system should be improved to quality standards.

La Rouche letter receives criticism

To the editor: The letter from D.A. Brazel in the Sept. 25th paper contains a number of false statements that need correcting.

First, Mr. Anderson and Brazel have never at any time had a debate. The occasion which he is trying to recall was a district meeting of the AFL-CIO. Frank Parker invited Frank Hardesty, Frank Sabotta, J.R. Anderson and me to speak on the Democratic and Republican differences that year.

During Mr. Anderson's speech, Brazel, who was in the audience, got up and rudely interrupted with some irreverent remark. At that point Frank Parker stated, "Brazel, we will have no more of that, you sit down and be quiet or I will have you ejected from the room." I suppose after he was ordered to sit down he thought he had been in a debate.

He stated that he had never met Mr. Anderson before. Then later in his letter he states that he has known him a long time. He may know Mr. Anderson when he sees him, but he doesn't know him.

He keeps talking in the letter about La Rouche like he was some local politician. La Rouche is a Democrat who won a Democratic Primary in the state of Illinois in recent weeks. Brazel should have stated that they are both fellow Democrats.

More criticism for La Rouche letter

To the editor: Shades of Franklin D. Roosevelt — he is risen. Pray tell, Mr. Brazel, what were the years that you were referring to in your letter of the 25th? Times change and people change, at least the thinking people do. How far back in the past are you living?

Please, someone, tell Mr. Brazel that Roosevelt, Kennedy and Johnson are gone. Lyndon La Rouche's man is a Democratic candidate for Lt. governor of Illinois; Larry Don Shaw is candidate for state representative on the Democratic ticket, and John R.

Anderson is candidate for state representative on the Republican ticket.

Larry Don Shaw is running as a Democrat, as did Franklin Roosevelt, John Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, Jesse Jackson — and Fritz Mondale. That's the same party that La Rouche candidates are running on this year. John R. Anderson is running on the Republican ticket, as did Ronald Reagan, Phil Gramm and Bill Clements. This is 1986, isn't it?

VFW post thankful for local support

To the editor: We, the members of VFW Post 2013, wish to thank everyone who helped make our recent garage-rummage sale a success. Thanks to those who contributed items for sale and to those who came and bought those items. We also appreciate the members of the VFW who spent their weekend working at this event.

To be able to further our community efforts and veterans support, we need to raise more funds for our Post. We have to pay taxes, insurance and, of course, utilities. The Post home also needs repairs and upkeep. We plan more garage-rummage sales in the future and appreciate all the help we can get.

It is estimated that more than 300 men and women in Howard County are eligible for membership in the VFW, and they are invited to join the VFW. In addition, it is time for membership renewals. My phone number is: 263-2043.

Pork projects in Congress that haven't been chopped

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR
WASHINGTON — Despite all the cost-cutting rhetoric echoing through the hallowed halls of Congress, pork is still pork. Big shots on the House Public Works Committee — the most redolent pork barrel on Capitol Hill — have larded the latest highway bill with $1.2 billion in road projects for their home districts.

Jack Anderson

The "scramble for pork," as one disgruntled junior member of the committee called it, is most outrageous in the section of the road-building legislation reserved for so-called "demonstration projects." These are supposed to test new ideas or new technology to make the nation's highways safer or cheaper to build.

But according to some disgruntled House members, the only thing these 63 demonstration projects demonstrate is the inequities of the House committee's pork-barrel politics. The great bulk of the "demonstration" money goes to districts represented by senior members of the House.

Rep. Jim Moody, D-Wis., a former professor of transportation economics, had the impudence to offer an amendment proposing abolition of all demonstration projects. "Is it more important to fund pork projects — demonstration projects — than it is to give all states a basic fair cut and fair break on the highway trust fund?" Moody asked.

The Public Works Committee's answer was a resounding "Aye!" It voted 48-2 to kill Moody's amendment, which had no better luck when he proposed it on the House floor. Prominent committee members argued that Congress should have some discretion when it comes to doling out highway funds. After all, they said, it was Congress that instituted the gasoline tax that pays for many highway projects.

Other committee sources told our associate Stewart Harris that net practical effect of Moody's amendment. "You can be reasonably sure Jim Moody will not get a demonstration project for a long time," one insider said.

Here are some examples of the pork-barrel projects that led to Moody's rebellion against standard committee practices:

- A $1.5 million bridge is to be built near an existing bridge over the Toms River in Dover Township, N.J., "for the purpose of demonstrating methods of reducing traffic congestion on an existing bridge." The bridge will be built in the district represented by committee Chairman Jim Howard, D-N.J.

- The most expensive pork project in the bill will be built in the district of Rep. Bud Shuster, R-Pa., one of the committee's "Big Four" members. For $90 million, a 12-mile highway will be built between Altoona and Tyrone to demonstrate new methods of painting lines on roads. A Shuster aide has had hard put to explain why lines couldn't be painted on an existing road, but she pointed out that the four-lane demonstration highway will improve safety in the mountainous central Pennsylvania region.
- A stretch of road between a community college and a "large commercial center" is to be widened and fitted with traffic lights for $8.5 million in Fort Smith, Ark. The reason: "to demonstrate the economic growth and development benefits." An aide to the man behind the pork project, Rep. John Paul Hammerschmidt, R-Ark., explained that the road improvement was badly needed, but the town wouldn't fund it.
- In that respect, the Hammerschmidt project is like other demonstration boondoggles funded by the Public Works Committee. As a Federal Highway Administration official explained, they aren't useless, but the local governments either can't or won't fund them.

Footnote: If it seems that most demonstration projects go to Republican districts, they do. Committee sources told us it's just the way Chairman Howard keeps the minority members of his committee mollified. As long as he throws them a bone now and then, they won't make trouble over his own pet projects.

CHILDREN AT RISK: A confidential World Bank report on the Philippines discloses a shockingly high child mortality rate in rural regions: nearly 40 percent among 3- to 5-year-olds.

The result is that many Filipino parents produce as many children as possible to act as "social insurance."

Another problem in the Philippines is adult illiteracy. Official figures say 20 percent of Filipino adults can't read and write, but the World Bank, using confidential interviews with Philippine officials, says the true illiteracy rate is about 60 percent to 70 percent.

DIPLOMATIC DIGEST: Syria and Iran are supposedly solid allies, but diplomatic sources suggest that things aren't all that cozy, judging by the situation in Damascus. Several hundred Iranians are in the Syrian capital at any given time, their women shrouded in the black chadors favored by the Ayatollah Khomeini, and their men frowning disapproval at Western-clad Syrian women.

The Iranians have been allotted their own hotels, and they usually come armed with poster portraits of Khomeini, which they stick up wherever they can. Syrian police promptly rip them down.

MINI-EDITORIAL: If you sip sodas with trepidation these days, there's good reason: Depending on your brand, the sugar can make you fat, the saccharine can give you cancer (the medical jury is still out on aspartame), the caffeine can jangle your nerves or the sodium can drive your blood pressure up. Now The New York Times suggests an alternative: carbonated water, or seltzer.

"When you drink a flavored, carbonated water you are making a statement about yourself and your lifestyle," averred one expert. Maybe so, but frankly, we suspect that the fizz itself causes something terrible; we're just waiting for a sports researcher to tell us what.

Around the rim Sugar story not as sweet as it seems

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer
Some people will say almost anything to make a buck. The Sugar Association has been waging a multimillion-dollar advertising campaign in an effort to convince consumers that sugar isn't fattening.

An association spokesman has said the organization will use in its propaganda a recent Food and Drug Administration report, which states that sugar isn't dangerous to the public health.

I question that report. It asserts, among other things, that sugar doesn't make people fat.

It says sugar is not linked to any disease except tooth decay.

The report said, "There is no conclusive evidence that demonstrates a hazard to the general public when sugars are consumed at the levels that are now current and in the manner now practiced," according to the Associated Press.

It said there is no evidence that sugar causes diabetes or hyperactivity in children.

It said sugar didn't appear to play any unique role in causing obesity. In fact, the report says there is some evidence that fat people eat less sugar than skinny people do.

I don't believe that.

Common sense belies the argument; eating too many sweets makes you fat.

I'm not a doctor and I have no scientific proof that sugar is bad for one's health. However, I know from my own experience how detrimental it has been to me and some family members.

When I eat sugar, I tend to grow fatter. When I stop eating it I tend to become thinner without making any other dietary changes.

Sugar gives me a headache. It makes me excessively tired and lethargic. And when I don't eat sugar, I feel fine.

Sugar has addictive qualities.

When I consume it, I always end up craving more.

I also believe it has at least contributed to several far-reaching health problems I have developed in recent years.

Furthermore, a cousin was relieved of hyperactivity by a sugar-free diet. No doctor or medicine had been able to help him.

The cousin was born to a diabetic mother. A sugar-free diet plays an important role in controlling diabetes.

So take the Sugar Association's sweet advice with a grain of salt.

Don't let sugar peddlers deceive you. Before you believe their propaganda, or any other for that matter, consider the source.

The Modern Woman's Forum met on Sept. 26 in the home of Gene Duncan for the first meeting of the 1986-'87 club year with Irene Smith, president, welcoming everyone.

The new yearbooks were distributed by Goldye Moad, program chairman. The club voted to send a $25 contribution to Big Spring State Hospital to be used in purchasing Christmas gifts for the patients.

Moad presented a program on "America in the year 2001." She shared some predictions of what life will be like in the next century, just 15 years away.

Economists predict, Moad said, that Japan will decline as a competitor to the U.S. and will experience the kind of worker-management problems we had 15 to 20 years ago. Also that child snatching will disappear, as children will be listed in a computer registry with key marks on each child.

Lymph node raises questions

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I had a node (lymph node) removed from the back of my head. The pathologist report said it was toxoplasmosis. My doctor said not to worry about it. There was no treatment. I tried to find information, and not too successfully. I am a 58-year-old female. Could you please comment? — M.N.

Many germs infect us throughout our lives. Only rarely does one make us ill. That's usually the case with toxoplasmosis, a germ widespread through the world. But with this germ, there are exceptions to the rule.

Pregnant women must avoid toxoplasma infection, for it can cause fetal malformation. And people whose immunity has been sapped by illness (like cancer) can get quite sick from the usually harmless toxoplasmosis infection. In others, the infection leaves only a calling card in the form of lymph node swelling, as has apparently happened with you. That swelling is temporary.

Avoiding the infection calls for awareness of the two common modes of exposure to the germ. One is from cat droppings. The other is from undercooked meat. Meat should be cooked thoroughly, and hands should be washed after handling raw meat. The same rule applies, in fact, to raw vegetables, for the germ can be present on them as well. Pregnant women should avoid contact with cat droppings. In fact, if anyone must handle them it should be done with gloved hands; wash the hands afterward. I don't want to give you the idea this infection is always innocuous. It can be quite troublesome. It may, for example, infect the eyes. There are treatments to turn to when necessary. That involves taking two drugs at the same time — sulfa and pyrimethamine.

Even though toxoplasmosis is not in the major leagues of illnesses, the infecting germ is best avoided — by taking the simple precautions I mentioned.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My 62-year-old sister has orthostatic hypotension. She has taken to her bed and is thinking of going into a care center. I believe there is help available. What drugs are there to help correct this condition? — P.H.
Orthostatic hypotension is a drop in blood pressure when you stand up. When you rise, a pint to a quart of blood is in your legs. It could re-

Man's music in his ears has a ring of truth

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for printing that letter from "Hearing Things." For years I've been hearing "Old Man River" over and over again just as I had heard it sung in "Showboat." Once in a while I hear old-time gospel music, which I have always loved. And during the holiday season I hear "Silent Night" sung by the Mormon Tabernacle Choir. These songs are always heard in exactly the same way — as though they were recorded in my brain.

I suppose I should be grateful I am not hearing rock music, which I hate. I have never told anyone about what I've been hearing all these years because I honestly thought they would carry me off and lock me in a mental ward.

CELIA IN DALLAS
DEAR ABBY: "Hearing Things" wrote that in addition to continuous ringing in his ears, he sometimes heard musical compositions. The ringing in his ears could be, as you suggested, "tinnitus," but the music is an entirely different problem. "Hearing Things" is having seizures or spasms in the part of his brain that stores musical memories. He should see a neurologist who will prescribe anti-convulsants to stop these seizures, which are otherwise known as musical epilepsy.

The complaint is a valid one. Those with this problem, like "Hearing Things," are afraid to talk about it for fear others will think they are "crazy."

PAM WINEGAR,
OAK RIDGE, TENN.

DEAR ABBY: The problem described by "Hearing Things" sounds remarkably like two case histories described by Dr. Oliver Sachs, a professor of clinical neurology at Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York.

Dr. Sachs described two women with similar problems, one of whom was having epileptic seizures in the temporal lobes of her brain. She was placed on anti-convulsants and the "musical seizures" stopped.

The other patient went to her otologist who, after finding nothing wrong except usual deafness, referred her to a psychiatrist, who, upon finding nothing psychiatrically wrong, sent her to Dr. Sachs, who discovered she had had a small stroke in her right temporal lobe. As her body recovered from the stroke, the music subsided.

Dear Abby

By the way, I am not partial to any specialist. I am married to a psychiatrist and formerly worked as a secretary for a group of neurosurgeons. "Hearing" may want to ask his family physician about a referral to a neurologist. I just hate to see patients go from doctor to doctor trying to pinpoint their problems. It's a waste of time and money.

MELISSA T. FARBER,
NORFOLK, VA.

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed "Hearing Things," who kept hearing music in his head, caught my attention because I am familiar with that problem. A friend who worked as a researcher in the Library of Congress once told me of an elderly man who, out of desperation, had traveled some distance to the library to find a solution to that maddening problem. The man, who was intelligent and sane, had been hearing, note for note, the musical performances that he had heard in his youth. He rather enjoyed the music, though many thought him crazy to sit in his chair, smile, and tap his foot in time with the "music."

This condition is not rare; most people who experience it simply don't mention it for fear of being thought "nuts."

BAZ IN
NACOGDOCHES, TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: I just read your column in which "Hearing Things" complained of hearing music in his head. I have just finished reading a book titled "The Man Who Mistook His Wife for a Hat," by Dr. Oliver Sachs. The author told of more than one patient who heard entire "concerts" in his head. They were not hallucinations, but real memories triggered by a neurological problem. These patients are not "crazy"; some are epileptic, and a few may have tumors that trigger the stored music memories.

I am not a doctor, but this person who is hearing things should see a neurologist.

Pollution endangers vital ground water in the west

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Of the 80 trillion gallons of water consumed every year in the 22 contiguous states west of the Mississippi River, 30 percent comes from water that percolates naturally or is pumped into underground storage basins.

But some of it — nobody is sure quite how much — is tainted by oozing toxic waste, agricultural pesticides that accumulate in the ground and high levels of naturally occurring minerals that are leached into the water.

The worst pollution exists in industrial and agricultural regions.

Estimates of how much of the nation's total ground water is contaminated vary widely. To a large degree, it depends on what you're counting.

Studies range from diluted levels based on the country's total subterranean supply to more alarming estimates based primarily on existing wells in populated areas where pollutants are more commonplace.

"For someone whose water is polluted, it's not much consolation to tell him that only a small percentage of the nation's water is contaminated," said William A. Mullen of the Environmental Protection Agency's northwest region. "If that is a person's only water supply and it is polluted, it is a catastrophe."

The West's geology makes it hard for toxic sleuths to do their job. The intricate nature of aquifers, the rock formations that determine how water and contamination flow under the ground, makes it nearly impossible to track pollution and determine where it will pop up next.

"Every time we take another look, we find another problem," said Jeff Barnickol, head of the ground water unit of the California Water Resources Control Board.

Tim Amsden, director of the EPA's regional ground water protection section in Kansas City, which covers Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa, agrees.

"It's almost impossible," he said. "It's like a black box, a three-dimensional puzzle. So the best we can offer is mostly anecdotal."

Such examples of polluted ground water, and the threat of future contamination, abound.

California, the nation's most populous state, has more than 25,000 abandoned sites where toxic wastes have been deposited since the end of World War II when generation of hazardous waste mushroomed. Some 180 sites in 39 counties are on the state's list of those most urgently needing to be cleaned up.

In Arizona, the industrial sections of Phoenix and Tucson are facing "major problems," said Bill Thurston, chief of the EPA's regional water-supply section based in San Francisco.

In Colorado, a devil's brew of nerve agent and chemical waste has been percolating for years at the Rocky Mountain Arsenal, where rolling plains within view of downtown Denver's skyscrapers belie the trouble underground. The 27-acre site has been termed the most polluted piece of real estate in the nation.

In Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota, high levels of nitrate pollution are caused by fertilizer, feed lots and septic tanks. In June, a South Dakota infant died of blue baby syndrome, a heart defect, and the state health department linked the death directly to well water on the family's farm that it determined was contaminated with nitrates. In Nebraska, 30 towns have ordered bottled water for children because of nitrate contamination. In Iowa, a recent state study estimated one-fifth of all private wells are polluted.

In Nevada, natural fluoride levels are so high in several rural water supplies that it is blackening people's teeth and, officials fear, making their bones brittle. In Washoe County, which encompasses Reno, natural arsenic, boron and sulfate contamination has affected ground water.

Jay Lehr, executive director of the National Water Well Association, a professional, research and education organization based in Dublin, Ohio, estimates less than 1 percent of all the ground water in the 48 contiguous states is polluted. "If you look at just the population centers, the figure is perhaps 2 percent to 4 percent," Lehr said.

But Amsden, of the EPA in Kansas City, considers that a low estimate.

"It would be more appropriate to look only at water that is economically and reasonably available, and that figure would probably be substantially higher," Amsden said.

"Usually degradation of ground water occurs where man's activities are, and that's where he needs to get the water," he said. "It doesn't do a person much good if his ground water aquifer is contaminated but one hundred miles away isn't."

Amsden also noted that much ground water lies far deeper than is normally economical to dig a well.

Irrigation water proves poisonous

TRANQUILITY, Calif. (AP) — Everyone knew the irrigation water draining from Westlands farms fed the Kesterson wildlife refuge. No one knew the water was slow poison.

Selenium, a natural trace element that sustains life in small doses and becomes toxic in slightly higher ones, is leaching from the soil in some Western irrigation projects and spilling into wetlands fed by farm drains. For fowl and farmer alike, the issue is survival.

"The choice has to be, if you don't maintain the wetlands with drainage water, and you want to keep the wetlands, what do you do?"

You have to find another water source," said Marc Sylvester, hazardous waste studies coordinator at the U.S. Geological Survey in Menlo Park.

Since the government began reclamation projects 80 years ago to turn desert into farmland, rivers that once fed wetlands have been diverted and thousands of acres of wetlands have been drained for crops. In some cases, the irrigation runoff was drained in a way that created, maintained or expanded wetlands.

Now studies by the USGS, the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service indicate the drainage water flowing into wetlands may be harming the wild inhabitants.

In California's San Joaquin Valley, home to the nation's largest federal reclamation project, the 600,000-acre Westlands Water District, the severity of selenium contamination has created a crisis for farmers as well.

"We don't know if in six months we'll be standing in water," said Michael Pucheu, a third-generation farmer who grows cotton, sugar beets, seed alfalfa and malting barley on 720 acres. Half of that lies along the southern edge of a 42,000-acre drainage system that's been shut down.

Pucheu feels he's sitting on the bottom of a giant agricultural bathtub, somebody has just plugged the drain and he might be out of business before they figure out what to do with the rising water.

"We don't know if the lending institutions will give us money to grow our crops next year because of this situation," he added.

Disposal of salty, subsurface drainage water has historically posed problems for irrigation projects. In Westlands, the government built the San Luis Drain and growers paid for on-farm drainage lines.

Golf, golf and more golf

The Chicano Golf Club will have its Grand Golf Tournament Sunday at Comanche Trail Golf Course.

The tournament is for Chicano Golf Club members only. Scheduled tee-off time is 11 a.m. or before. A barbecue dinner will be served after the tournament. After tee-off, all other golfers will be able to play.

The Big Spring City Golf Championship will be Oct. 11-12 at Comanche Trail Golf Course.

Entry fee is $30, but juniors will be allowed to play free. Divisions include men, women, seniors and boys and girls junior. All divisions will be flighted.

For more information call Al Patterson at 263-7271.

The duo of local Dewayne Thomas and B. Cross shot a 131 to win the championship flight of the Big Spring Country Club Member-Guest Golf Tournament last weekend at the Country Club golf course.

Winning the first flight were R.L. Heath and M. Rhodes with a 133. Second Flight winners were J. Kilgore and J. Stewart with a 140. Mike Arnold and R. Robertson shot a 148 to win the third flight. Full results in scoreboard on 3-B.

The Big Spring High School boys' and girls' cross country teams will get their first chance to perform in front of the home folks this Saturday.

The teams, coached by Randy Britton, will be participating in a cross country meet located at the old Webb Air Base golf course in the Industrial Park. The meet will begin at 10 a.m.

The Stanton Fall Classic Men's Slow-Pitch Softball Tournament will be this weekend at the Stanton softball field.

Entry fee is $100 per team and the first five teams will receive team trophies. There will also be awards for an all-tournament team, MVP, golden glove and sportsmanship.

To enter call Robbie Dickenson at 756-3240 (home) or 756-2681 (work).

The latest District 2-4A stats were released and several Big Spring Steers have showed up in the top half.

Quarterback Paul Decker is the sixth ranked passer, with 14 completions in 36 attempts for 256 yards. Phillip Mathews is the seventh leading rusher with 267 yards in 57 carries. Charles White is 11th, 214 yards in 53 carries.

Mathews ranks 10th in the receiving department with five catches for 88 yards. Wide receiver Cedric Banks is 11th with two catches for 84 yards.

Mathews is the third leading scorer with five touchdowns and one two-point conversion, for 32 points. Decker ranks fifth with 24 points on four TD's.

In a rarity in the their department, two Big Spring punters rank one-two. Brian Mayfield is averaging 41.3 yards a boot and John Olsen follows at 40.3 per try.

As a team, Big Spring is third in offense and fourth in defense. The Steers are averaging 268 yards offensively and allowing 225 yards on the other side of the ball.

These stats are compiled by the sports department of the San Angelo Standard-Times.

Big Spring cowboy Wacey Cathey is still in fourth place in the bull riding on the Professional Rodeo Cowboys' Association world standings.

Cathey has earned $60,390 to date. The competition is led by Tuff Hedeman of Gainesville, who has earned $69,514.

It looks like Cathey is headed for a return trip to the national Finals Rodeo. The top 15 performers in each event qualify for the NFR in Las Vegas, Nev. Dec. 5-13.

The Brownwood Chamber of Commerce will host the Annual Lite Beer from Miller Open Bass Tournament on Lake Brownwood this weekend.

There will be over $9,000 in cash prizes awarded. The first place winner is guaranteed $1,500 and fifty places will be awarded cash. Entry fee is $40.

To enter call 646-9535.

Fifty-one ladies participated in the Big Spring Bowler of the Month Tournament held at Bowl-A-Rama Lanes Sunday.

Beverly had the high scratch score of 526. Sun Fulesday had the high handicap with 646 and Nita Moser had the high senior scratch score with a 457. Lockie Schooling's 547 was good enough to win senior high handicap competition.

MSU violates ticket rule

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State University has suspended complimentary game pass privileges for 18 football players, Athletic Director Doug Weaver said.

The voluntary action is part of a nationwide review of free ticket practices ordered by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Officials at Nebraska, Iowa, Tennessee, Auburn, Vanderbilt, Alabama and Florida also have disclosed that some of their players violated the ticket rule.

"Every Division I school in America received a memorandum from the NCAA to review all comp tickets with their teams. Every director did that," Weaver said Wednesday. "We had 18 players that would lose some or all of their complimentary ticket privileges."

"To the best of our knowledge there was no sale involved," he said.

Football players receive four tickets per game. The NCAA lets players give those tickets to relatives, family members and fellow students but bars them from selling or giving the passes to anyone else.

Under NCAA guidelines, the players who violated the ticket rule won't lose any eligibility but will lose one ticket per infraction. Weaver would not say how many violations were found.

University of Michigan Athletic Director Don Canham on Wednesday refused to discuss his review of free pass practices.

"That's a confidential report that went to the NCAA," he said.

Searching for a win

Coahoma-City after elusive victory

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

If two teams ever needed a win, it's the Colorado City Wolves and the Coahoma Bulldogs. Colorado City is 0-3-1 and Coahoma 0-4, and both will be trying to desperately Friday night to put one in the win column. On top of that, the two teams have one of the fiercest rivalries in the Crossroads Country area.

As Colorado City head coach Tom Ramsey said, "Coahoma and Colorado City are always big on throwing out records and rolling up their sleeves and getting after it."

The Bulldogs haven't beaten the Wolves in six years, and lost 20-0 last year in Colorado City in a game that was closer than the score. Colorado City had only two first downs in the first half, but both were for touchdowns. Tomorrow night's game in Coahoma should be another knock-down, drag out affair.

"Our kids know their kids, and we know their coaches. We know what they're going to do and they know what we're going to do. That all works into the rivalry and makes for a pretty good game," said Coahoma head coach Billy Kidd.

"People are saying they're slow — they're not as quick as they have been in the past, but they're not slow. And Colorado City's the biggest team we'll face all year," Kidd said about the Wolves.

Coahoma has so far this season developed a pretty effective passing game, with tall tight end Jimmy King the primary aerial weapon. Kidd said Abilene Wylie double-covered King last week, and held him without a catch. Kidd said his other receivers are not big enough to provide consistently good targets, so the passing game will rely heavily on quarterback James White's ability to find an open King.

"We're going to work on the passing game, but we're going to have to run the ball at them. I definitely don't think we'll be able to run right at 'em. We'll have to run around 'em," Kidd said, referring to the Wolves superior size on the line.

Kidd has a depth problem this year at Coahoma, and plays ten boys both ways. Several players quit the team early, but Kidd said he's not concerned with that.

"No excuses, win or lose. I want the ones who want to play, and we're going to go on with what we've got and not worry about other people. Our kids are in good shape, but in the fourth quarter they get tired and make mistakes and that has hurt us. We just don't have the depth to give them time to rest.

"And we're not real fast. When we make a mistake, it's hard for us to cover up. But I'm proud of these kids. One thing about them is they've bounced back every week. And one thing our kids don't mind doing is hitting," the Coahoma coach said.

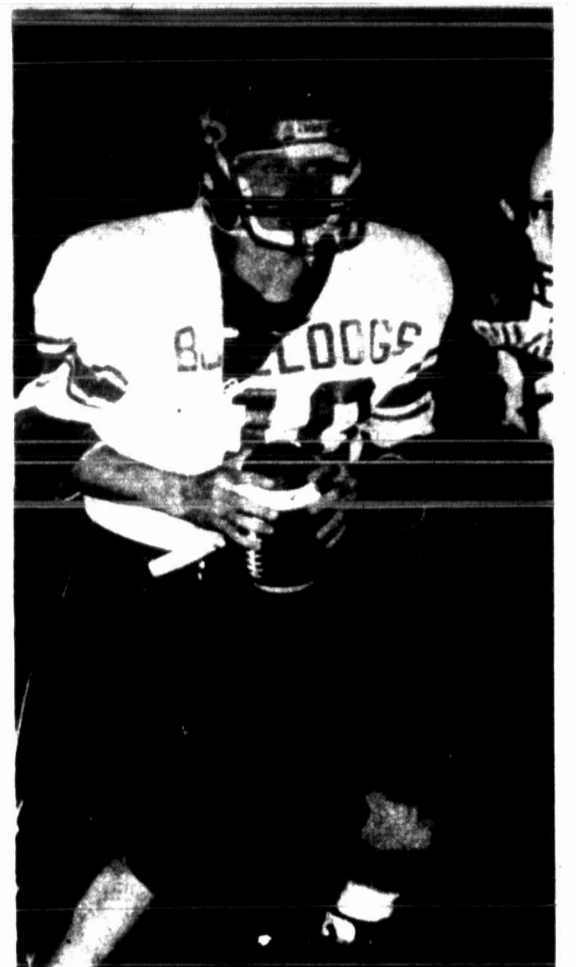

Colorado City, though they are big and have played on even terms with their opponents, have displayed a disturbing penchant for the turnover. In last week's 32-7 loss to Ballinger, they tied the Bearkats in first downs but lost four fumbles and threw four interceptions.

"We'll play like we've been playing, we'll just try to hang on to the ball. That's something we haven't been able to do in the last four weeks. If we can eliminate the turnovers, we'll be all right," Ramsey said.

Ramsey added the Wolves will show a balanced attack Friday night, probably passing 20-25 times against Coahoma.

"I guess it's for bragging rights as much as anything. It's one of the highlights of the year. Colorado City hates to get beat by Coahoma, and Coahoma hates to get beat by Colorado City," Ramsey said.

And besides, both teams need a win.

Quarterback James White is one of the leaders of the Coahoma Bulldogs offense. Friday night at Bulldog Stadium, White will try to direct the Bulldogs to a win over the Colorado City Wolves.

B-County-Sands: second time around

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

When the Sands Mustangs and Borden County Coyotes meet in their 4-A Six-Man West Zone clash Friday in Sands stadium, it won't be like the two are new to each other.

In fact, both teams know each other pretty well. The two league teams met three weeks ago on Borden County's home turf. In that non-district clash, coach John Blair's Mustangs came away with a 41-26 victory. It is the only loss in three games for coach Joe Bond's Coyotes.

The Mustangs bring a 3-1 record into the contest. Both teams won their district openers last week. The Mustangs downed Dawson 40-12 and the Coyotes defeated Klondike 57-32.

Both coaches agree that one can throw the team's first meeting out the window.

"I don't feel like it has any bearing," said Blair of his team's win over the Coyotes. "I feel like both teams will be better prepared. The first game was a warmup, this is for real. It will be a tough game just like the first."

"That first game is in the past," said Bond. "I just hope we execute better than we did before." But there's one thing about the game Bond and his troops haven't forgotten. That's when the Mustangs scored on a long touchdown pass with four seconds left.

"That was kind of adding salt to the wound," said Bond. "I've been reminding the kids of that quite a bit this week."

While Bond and the Coyotes already have a motivational cause, they know what they must do to win the game — stop Jay Fryar.

The Sands junior running back has almost been a one-man show so far this season. He's rushed for 852 yards and nine touchdowns and passed for 400 yards and seven TD's.

In the first game Fryar, a 175-pounder, rushed for 212 yards in 23 carries. "The key is shutting him down. He's their main weapon. On defense we must read our keys better. We've been working hard on it this week in practice," Bond said.

"I expect them to try to key and stop Jay Fryar," said Blair of his star running back. "It's going to be a tough job for them. We'll line up in our spread offense and get after them."

Sands also has offensive threats in receivers Chad Nichols and Paul Martin. Nichols has 20 receptions and Martin has 12 catches.

Borden County is not without offensive weapons of their own. Led by quarterback Shannon Bond (the coaches son), the Coyotes have a very balanced offensive attack. Bond has run the offense well. The Coyotes are averaging 200 yards on the ground and 175 in the air. Bond is completing 50 percent of his passes, for 450 yards and seven touchdowns. He has been intercepted just once.

Borden County's top running back is Brice Key, who's coming off a 106-yard performance against Klondike last week, and has 286 yards rushing on the year. Rocky Harbar is the Coyotes next back. He had a season-high 98 yards last week.

"I expect Borden County to use a lot of play action and throw to their tight ends," said Blair. "They'll run a lot of traps and cutbacks. They have a very balanced attack."

Both coaches are expecting another close game.

"I expect it to be a defensive game," said Blair. In the first game, we led 27-20 at the half. Both teams settled down and played tough defense in the second half. I look for that kind of play again."

"I feel the winner will score in the 35-40 point range," said Bond. "Hopefully we will score more points than we did in the first one. I think it will be close."

One thing's for sure — when the two teams meet, it will be like renewing an old acquaintance.

Money not important to Daugherty

Carolina seven-footer to make half-million this year

Top draft pick Brad Daugherty (left) holds up his new Cleveland Cavaliers game jersey with Cavalier coach Lenny Wilkens Wednesday at a news conference in Richfield, Ohio.

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The money, says Brad Daugherty, is not important.

"I'll tell you, very honestly, that I'm not a very materialistic person," the 7-footer said Wednesday after he became the richest player in Cleveland Cavaliers' history. "I have other things in my life that are very important to me, and money's not one of them."

Daugherty, the first player chosen in last June's NBA draft, signed a six-year guaranteed contract worth a reported $6 million with Cleveland on Wednesday.

"The money is something that is being thrust upon me. I have to go about life as I've always gone about it," he said. "I've reached a goal here. As an athlete, all kids want to eventually be professionals. The whole situation of signing and money and what not was not that important to me."

Daugherty, a four-year starter at the University of North Carolina, will be paid $500,000 in the first year of the deal and will get a raise each year until his salary reaches $1.5 million in the final year.

Cleveland's highest-paid player previously was center Melvin Turpin, who is in the third year of a four-year contract worth an estimated $2.5 million.

Daugherty may compete with Turpin for playing time at center, although the rookie can also play power forward.

"I'd rather play forward, actually, but either one's fine," Daugherty said. "I think I can play both positions."

Cleveland Coach Lenny Wilkens said he has not yet decided where Daugherty will play. The Cavaliers' training camp opens Friday.

"It's a little early to say," Wilkens said. "It's safe to say he's going to play both center and forward, but which way we'll open the season with him, we don't know."

The Cavaliers traded with the Philadelphia 76ers on draft day in June to obtain the right to choose Daugherty. They sent veteran forward Roy Hinson and $800,000 cash to the 76ers.

Daugherty averaged 14.2 points and 7.4 rebounds a game in four years with the Tar Heels, including 20.2 points and nine rebounds a game as a senior.

He is the only one of Cleveland's top four draft-day acquisitions to sign a contract so far.

Ron Harper, the guard-forward from Miami of Ohio chosen by the Cavaliers with the eighth pick overall, said this week he expected to be signed by the start of camp, although his agent was less optimistic.

Royals hurler pitches eight hitless innings

By The Associated Press
California Manager Gene Mauch, whose team dodged another no-hit bid, says he isn't thrilled by the idea the Angels could dodge Roger Clemens in the playoffs because of injury.

"People are going to say I'm crazy, but I hope he's all right," Mauch said after learning that a line drive injured Clemens' right elbow Wednesday night. "It would be a shame to see a great player like that go down. If we're going to win this thing, let's win it against the best. Our best against their best. That's what this game is all about. I really hope he's not hurt bad."

Clemens' injury is not believed to be serious, but only a few days remain before the playoffs start Tuesday night between California and the Boston Red Sox.

The AL West champion Angels went into the ninth inning with no hits for the fourth time this season Wednesday night, but they avoided the embarrassment of being no-hit for the second time within two weeks, as Kansas City left-hander Danny Jackson finished with a two-hitter and a 2-0 victory.

Dick Schofield broke up the no-hit bid by Jackson, 11-12, with a ground single to right field leading off the ninth. Jackson also gave up a single to Doug DeCinces and his third walk before getting Gary Pettis on a fly ball to end the game.

The Angels, who fell to Chicago right-hander Joe Cowley's no-hit pitching on Sept. 19, have now broken up three no-hitters in the ninth. Rookie Wally Joyner's hits ended the other no-hit bids by Walt Terrell and Charlie Hough.

The Royals scored both of their runs in the third inning against Vern Ruhle, 1-3, on a double by Lonnie Smith, an RBI single by Kevin Seitzer, an error by center fielder Pettis and Frank White's run-scoring single.

Red Sox 11, Orioles 7
Marty Barrett keyed a four-run eighth with a run-scoring double for Boston.

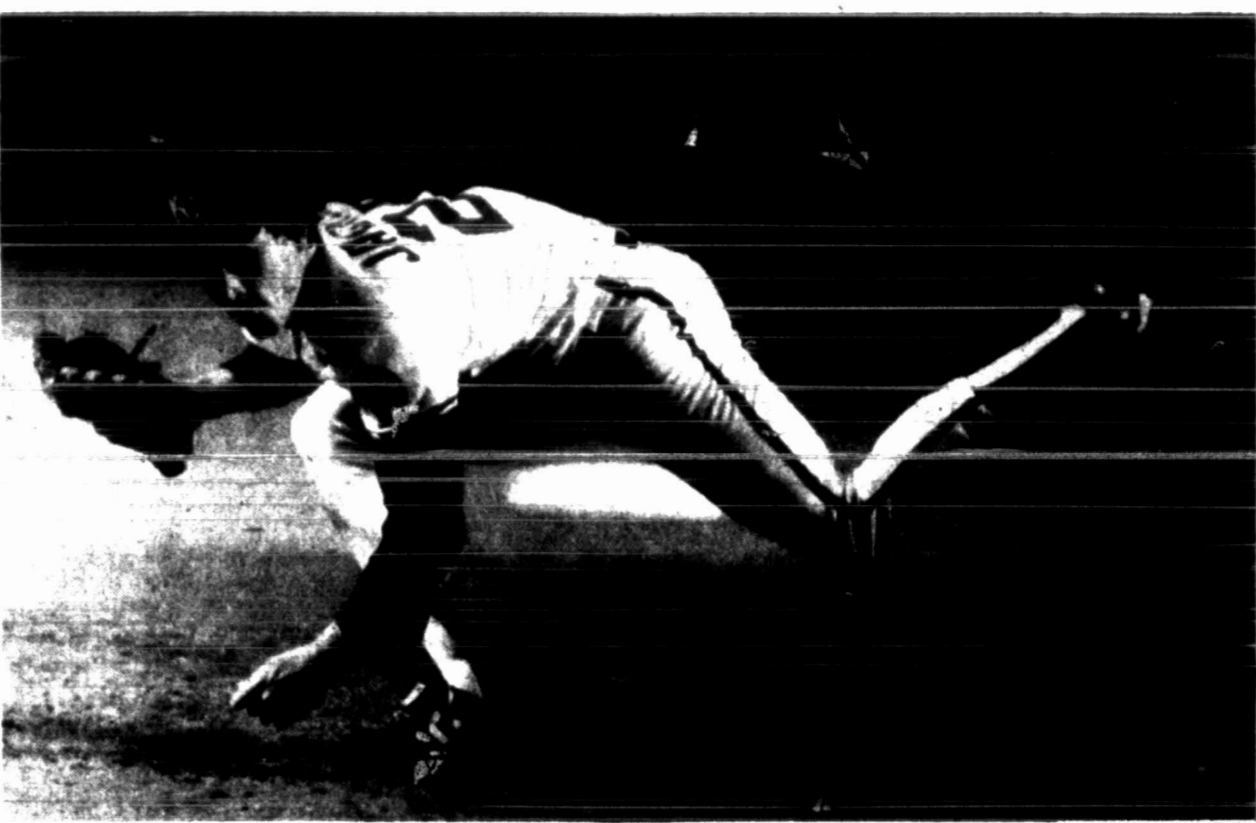

The Red Sox, who had 17 hits, broke a 7-7 tie with their four-run eighth that also featured an RBI single by Jim Rice, Don Baylor's sacrifice fly and Dwight Evans' run-scoring single.

Tigers 2, Brewers 1
Chet Lemon's RBI double in the eighth inning boosted the Detroit Tigers over Milwaukee, spoiling the debut of Manager Tom Trebelhorn and Ted Higuera's bid to win his 21st game.

Lemon's double pinned the loss for Higuera, 20-11, who pitched his 15th complete game. He struck out 10, raising his season total to 207.

A's 9, Rangers 7
Pinch-hitter Terry Steinbach hit a three-run homer in the eighth inning, the second of his major-league career in 14 at-bats, rallying Oakland over Texas.

Steinbach, whose first homer came on his first at-bat, homered after the Rangers, who had a four-game winning streak snapped, scored four runs in the sixth and three in the seventh to lead 7-5. Texas had jumped ahead 7-5 on a two-run sacrifice fly by Pete Incaviglia off Jay Howell, 3-6, who went on to post the victory with 2 2-3 innings of relief.

Dave Kingman and Jerry Willard homered for the A's. Steve Buechle connected for the Rangers, who had beaten the A's nine consecutive times.

White Sox 3, Mariners 1
Reid Nichols drove in three runs, including the tie-breaker with a homer in the sixth, for Chicago against Seattle, which lost its sixth straight game.

Nichols' homer off Mike Trujillo, 3-1, snapped a 1-1 tie and made a winner of Bob James, 5-4, who had been sidelined since Aug. 4 with a torn triceps muscle in his right arm. James relieved Neil Allen after five innings, while Bill Dawley pitched the final three innings for his second save.

Blue Jays 3, Yankees 0
Jesse Barfield hit two solo homers to take over the major-league lead with 39, and Jimmy Key and Tom Henke combined on a six-hitter, leading Toronto over New York 3-0.

Barfield homered in the second and ninth innings to back Key, 14-11, who allowed five hits in 7 2-3 innings. Henke stopped a New York rally in the eighth inning and allowed one hit in the ninth for his 27th save.

Indians 12, Twins 3
Cleveland overwhelmed Minnesota with a 15-hit attack while knuckleballer Tom Candiotti scattered eight hits and struck out 12. Joe Carter hit a three-run homer in the eighth, giving him 119 RBI for the season. Pat Tabler hit a single, double and triple and Julio Franco added four singles and two RBI for the Indians.

Also unsigned are Mark Price, a guard from Georgia Tech obtained in a draft-day trade with Dallas with the first pick in the second round, and Johnny Newman, a forward from Richmond taken also chosen in the second round.

Cavaliers General Manager Wayne Embry said negotiations were continuing with all four players, as well as with veteran World B. Free, the guard who became a free agent after last season.

"I think it's very important for rookies to be in camp, because rookies have an adjustment to make," Embry said. "Veterans who are a little bit more experienced and know what the NBA is about don't take so long to get adjusted."

Bell finally hits 20 homers

By The Associated Press
If Buddy Bell is sailing new waters, his boss, Cincinnati Reds Manager Pete Rose, is just glad his ship didn't sink.

"It's good for me to see him come back," Rose said, "because a lot of people had given up on him."

Bell, traded from Texas to Cincinnati last year, hit a career-high 20th homer, a two-run shot, then drove in the winning run with a single in the ninth inning to give the Reds a 6-5 victory over Atlanta Wednesday night.

"I've never been in the 20s before," said Bell, who never had more than 18 homers before this year. "Twenty is a nice number. I'd like to get a couple more."

In other National League contests, New York beat Montreal 6-4 in 10 innings, Houston shut out San Francisco 5-0, Pittsburgh edged St. Louis 4-3 and San Diego beat Los Angeles 3-2. Chicago at Philadelphia was rained out and no makeup is planned.

The score in Atlanta was tied 5-5 when Barry Larkin led off the ninth with a single off Gene Garber. Larkin stole second and, one out later, Bell hit a single to left that gave the Reds their seventh victory in eight games.

In addition to his 20 homers, Bell now has 75 RBI and is hitting .279. Last year, he had just 10 homers, six for the Reds, and 68 RBI, 36 at Cincinnati.

While still dissatisfied with his performance, Bell said he was "more comfortable now than I was when I had that bad start. I think I've improved significantly from when I first came over here."

Added Rose: "He has been there whenever we've needed him with the clutch hits, the home runs. That's one spot that we don't have any problem with in 1987."

Mets 6, Expos 4
Howard Johnson singled with two out in the 10th inning, driving in Gary Carter with the winning run and giving the Mets their 104th victory over the season. An insurance run scored on Johnson's hit when Expos left fielder Herm Winningham let the ball roll through his legs for an error.

Keith Hernandez gave the Mets a 4-3 lead in the eighth with a two-run double, his second of the game giving him three RBI. The Expos tied the score in the ninth on Dann Bilardello's pinch single off Jesse Orosco.

Darryl Strawberry hit a home run for the Mets, and Andre Dawson had two RBI doubles for Montreal.

Astros 5, Giants 0
The Astros' pitching staff threw its sixth shutout in the last eight games. Danny Darwin worked the first five innings, giving up five hits, and got help from Aurelio Lopez, Charlie Kerfeld and Dave Smith to blank San Francisco. Terry Puhl and Alan Ashby each homered for Houston.

The victory gave the Astros a 92-66 record, matching the club's best record by the National League West Division championship team.

Lopez gave up one hit in two innings. Kerfeld allowed a hit in his one inning of work and Smith pitched a hitless ninth.

Pirates 4, Cardinals 3
Johnny Ray homered with one out in the eighth inning to break a 3-3 tie and lift Pittsburgh over St. Louis, allowing the Phillies to clinch second place in the NL East. Ray hit a 3-0 pitch from Ray Soff in to the right field stands for his game-winning homer.

Larry McWilliams, 3-11, relieved Pittsburgh starter Rick Reuschel in the seventh for the victory, and Don Robinson earned his 14th save with 1 2-3 innings of relief.

Padres 3, Dodgers 2
The Padres wound up their home season with a combined five-hitter from rookie Jimmy Jones and veteran reliever Rich Gossage, dropping the Dodgers into last place in the NL West.

Jones gave up three hits, including Franklin Stubbs' two-run homer, in seven innings, and Gossage allowed another two hits in his two innings' work.

The Padres scored all three of their runs in the first inning off Brian Holton. Terry Kennedy hit a two-run single and scored on a double by Graig Nettles.

Schmidt winding up another great season

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

On a chilly afternoon in Montreal, hours before a meaningless game, Mike Schmidt's stomach is in knots.

"I can't wait for a day without butterflies," he said, sitting in the visitors' dugout at Olympic Stadium and tossing down sunflower seeds. "My digestive tract is screwed up. If anybody is in line for an ulcer, it's me."

So with the Philadelphia Phillies long out of the National League East race, he is anxious for the season to end.

"Six, seven, eight months straight of baseball is enough for anybody. The only way you want it to keep going is if you're in the playoffs or World Series."

Or if you're in the hunt for a Most Valuable Player award.

At age 37, Schmidt, perhaps the best third baseman ever, is winding up one of his best years — one that could bring him his third MVP trophy.

"I'd be lying if I said I didn't think I was deserving," said Schmidt, who won the award in 1980, the year he led the Phils to the World Series championship, and in 1981. "But it's not a cut-and-dried award. Some voters feel a guy has to be on a division-winning ballclub."

Schmidt leads the majors with 37 home runs and 119 runs batted in. He is five homers shy of No. 500. He has nine Gold Gloves. His errors are down and he may finish with his highest batting average ever for a full season.

These are Hall of Fame numbers. Yet, Schmidt knows those numbers are suspect to some observers. "I've always heard little innuendos and things from time-to-time that I have the numbers at the end of the year, but they're not quality numbers," he said.

"There's always been that he hits too many three-run homers that don't mean anything. When you hit 40 home runs a year, you're damned sure gonna hit a few that don't mean anything."

He says all this in a cowboy-tough twang that sounds fresh from the local dude ranch. Actually, this dude's from Dayton, a product of Ohio University and the Phillies' farm system.

With his chestnut-colored hair, mustache and pock-marked complexion, Michael Jack — as Phillies fans know him — is handsome in a rugged sort of way. He's like the Marlboro Man in sweats.

He's also a thinking man, and former manager Danny Ozark once took him to task for being too much of one on the field.

Schmidt answered the criticism with his bat.

"Let me tell you what's funny about people and the way they view you," the 15-year veteran said during a lengthy interview last Saturday. "You don't hear much more about me thinking too much."

"And you don't hear much about me being cool." "What happened to those things? I'm still unemotional on the baseball field and I think more now than I've ever thought."

Schmidt paused, a wry grin on his face.

"For years, I told them it must be working, it must be doing a little something for me."

Schmidt will never show emotion on the field. He did it once, in 1973, and that was the only time he ever got ejected.

"Look around the Hall of Fame there at those busts and see how many guys were pretty unemotional when they played — DiMaggio, Aaron, Gehrig."

But his coolness, while respected by fellow players, provokes some fans who interpret it as arrogance.

That perception, coupled with Schmidt's 100-plus strikeouts and sub-.300 average, has often subjected him to merciless booing at Veterans Stadium.

Last season, it got to him. He lashed out at Philadelphians while the team was on a road trip, and, afterward, when he had to face them at home, Schmidt admits he was "probably more scared than I've ever been in my baseball career."

So Mr. Cool turned clown. He trotted out to third base wearing a long dark wig and sunglasses. The fans loved it, but it didn't stop them from booing him when he struck out in his first at-bat.

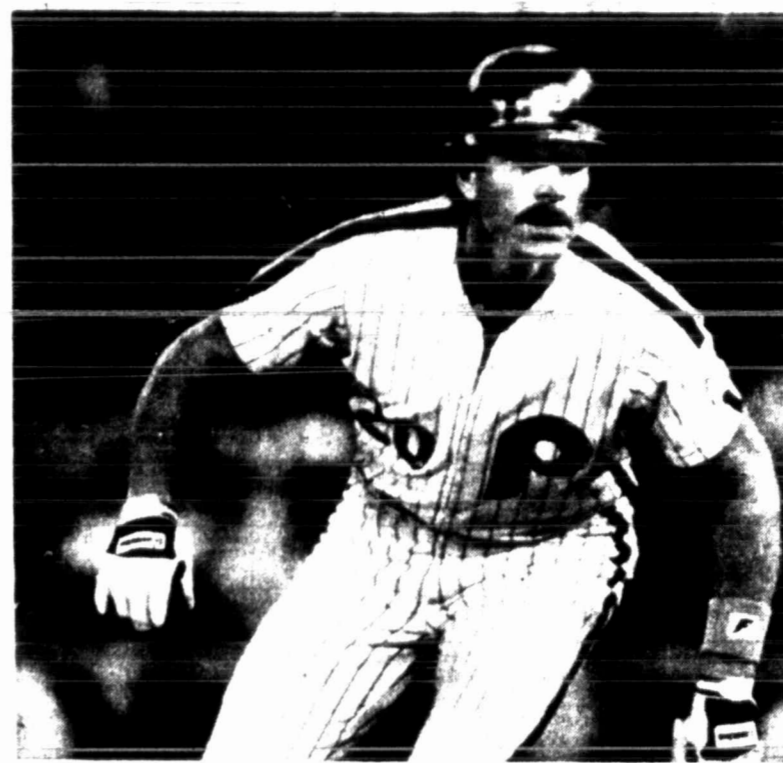

"I think the wig thing helped turn it around for him," Phillies President Bill Giles said.

"I never thought the booing was anything personal whatsoever. The players who the fans boo are the ones they expect great things from."

"It's kind of like spanking your baby. You want him to do so well and when he doesn't, you want to show him not to do that again."

Schmidt says he can feel a wave of support this season from fans, some of whom are just starting to mention his name among the all-time greats.

"When you start comparing one of their players ... with Babe Ruth,

Philadelphia Phillies third baseman, Mike Schmidt, takes a lead off first during a recent game. At 37, Schmidt is having one of the best seasons of his career.

Hank Aaron, Willie Mays, they stop and go. 'Wow, wait a minute. Right in front of my own eyes he was doing that? Damn, I was busy booing him."

"I'm a player who's appreciated because of continuous production."

"Let me tell you something. The minute I become non-productive as a player, we'll hear about it ... as sure as I'm eating these sunflower seeds."

Schmidt's problem is that he internalized a lot of that booing. "That's why 15 years has taken probably as much out of me as 25 years would take out of a normal person," he said.

It's also why he is "90 percent certain" he will retire after next season when his six-year contract expires. Further knee problems would hasten his departure.

"That's all it would take," said Schmidt, whose right knee is scarred from three operations and whose left knee has been cut open once. "I want to be able to walk the golf course when I'm 50, not have to take a cart."

Someday he wants to manage in the major leagues, forget the minors.

"I'm ready," he said. "That would be the ultimate. To have a say in tonight's ballgame. But I don't have to have my stomach tied in knots from trying to perform at the level I want to perform."

Giles said he and Schmidt will discuss that possibility later.

Schmidt does like making TV commercials, and he is currently getting rave reviews for his anti-drug promo.

"He knows the game, as far as that goes," said Pete Rose, Cincinnati's player-manager and Schmidt's former Phillies teammate. "But I don't think he'd like managing."

"I had one guy call me on a radio show and said that commerial scared his son to death and he swore, 'Daddy, I'll never touch drugs.'"

Schmidt's business manager, Arthur Rosenberg, said Schmidt would like to hook up with a single company, like Joe DiMaggio and Mr. Coffee cofeemakers.

As it is, Schmidt's $2 million salary and endorsements bring in enough to keep him, wife Donna, 7-year-old daughter Jessica and 6-year-old son Jonathan, comfortable for years.

At home in suburban Philadelphia, Schmidt spends considerable time tending his rose garden.

"Roses are hard to grow. It's a challenge to have nice ones," he said.

"I'm real good with them. But I'm the type of guy that if I get a little disease on one, I dig it up, throw it away and buy a new one."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, OCT. 3, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are able to wind up some project or venture which you have with other persons. Good day for any vocational activities you have that require neat precision.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Outside individuals who can assist you should be contacted today. You can gain whatever you want.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study your surroundings and make them more efficient and charming. Be more comfortable in them.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan the recreations that most please you and your mate and soon you can enjoy them. Express your skills.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You can make your home more bright and charming today, particularly what you have planned.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Do something that will be pleasing to your partners or kin and make the relationships more meaningful.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A money expert can give you valuable suggestions. Listen carefully and make the most of this.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have a flair for dressing well and today you can really be at your best. Romance is possible.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A good day to delve into puzzling matters that you really enjoy solving and come up with solutions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try to see as many friends as you can and turn an acquaintance into a fast friend.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be diplomatic in the business world and gain more prestige and good will. Use your energies.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Concentrate on new enterprises you can get into with fascinating persons of different views.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be very cooperative with your closest tie and you can have true harmony in the future. Use good judgment.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have much ability at doing whatever will require precision and neatness and would do well in any artistic or musical field. Permit to have many playmates since your progeny will get along well with them and bring much pleasure to others.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
