Q. How can I contact the Texas Board of Medical Examiners?

A. The board can be reached by calling 512-452-1078 or by writing to Texas Board of Medical Examiners, 1101 Camino La Costra, Suite 201, P.O. Box 13562, Capitol Station, Austin 78711.

Calendar

Workshop

TODAY

Parents of Big Spring secondary students are invited to a parent training workshop from 6:30-8:30 p.m. in the Runnels Junior High School activity room. The workshop is designed to provide parents with skills and strategies for home reinforcement of study skills and specific curriculum objectives.

TUESDAY

The Salvation Army will be giving away bread from 9 a.m. to noon.

THURSDAY

People who have been certified for October may pick up their food commodities through the West Texas Opportunities Emergency Food Assistance Program at the National Guard Armory from 8:15 a.m. to 2 p.m. Everyone certified in September is automatically able to pick up October commodities. Receipts must have certification cards. If a recipient can't be there, send a note giving someone else permission to use the certification card. Please bring sacks to carry commodities home.

Tops on TV

Society's Child

In "Society's Child," Phillip Michael Thomas and Lesley Ann Warren portray an interracial couple who become embroiled in a bitter child-custody case. The NBC movie airs at 8 p.m. on Channel 4.

Outside

Rain

Skies today are cloudy with a 30 percent chance of rain, a high in the low 60s and northeast winds at 5 to 15 miles per hour. Tonight's forecast calls for a 20 percent chance of rain with a low in the mid 50s with winds east to southeast at 10 to 20 miles per hour.

Court: No to Texans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to hear the appeals of four Texas death row inmates.

The justices let stand the murder convictions and death sentences of David McKay, Curtis Lee Johnson, Raymond Landry and Larry Norman Anderson.

McKay was convicted of shooting Bobby Hill four times in the head after abducting him from a Dallas night club parking lot on March 4, 1982. Police said McKay stole Hill's car and used it in a robbery.

Johnson was convicted of killing Murray Dale Sweat in a burglary of Sweat's Houston apartment Sept. 23, 1983.

Landry was sentenced to death for the Aug. 6, 1982 shooting death of Kosmas Pritis, operator of a fast food restaurant in Houston, during a robbery.

Cotton ailing, rain may top record

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

The Big Spring area appears headed for its rainiest year this century, while many local cotton farmers may soon be heading to their crop insurance agents.

At the same time, local officials were cautiously optimistic that parts of Big Spring along Beals Creek will not flood as a result of rain north of here finding its way to Natural Dam Lake.

With 2.67 inches recorded over the weekend, the U.S. Agricultural Research Service has measured rainfall this year at 28.26 inches.

just 5.75 inches shy of the drenching of 1919 when 34.01 inches fell on the area.

Average yearly rainfall in this part of West Texas is a bit more than 18 inches, according to the field station. And the yearly average-to-date is 15.46 inches.

The wettest year of the decade thus far occurred six years ago, when 31.74 of rain was received in 1980.

Local rainfall measurements elsewhere included 2.9 inches this weekend and another 2 of an inch this morning at the Ed Hartin residence, 203 N. Nolan St., and a weekend total of 3.55 inches was measured by Chuck Benz, 2807 Apache St.

The combination of rain and cloudy skies has resulted in a lower estimate for the production of cotton, which needs both moisture and sunny weather to mature into a robust crop.

Local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Agent Tim Hall withdrew his earlier forecast of 50,000 Howard County bales being made this year. Hall said if current weather conditions hold, farmers may harvest just 20 percent of their crop.

"This might be the last straw for some of them," he said of area cotton producers. "This might accelerate some of them (making claims for) crop insurance."

Hall said while the rain has dampened prospects for this year's crop, it could be a boon for 1987 by providing ample soil moisture for next year.

Rain north of here is finding its way to Natural Dam Lake via swelled Sulfur Draw, said Rod Lewis, assistant manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

However, Lewis said he's cautiously optimistic that parts of Big Spring along Beals Creek will not flood as a result.

The lake is beginning to trickle over its spillway, which was plugged recently, and Lewis forecasted a larger volume cascading over the channel later today. He said the lake is near Sept. 15 levels, which did not create additional flooding of low-lying areas of the city.

Weekend rainfall has boosted levels of Lake Thomas and Lake Spence an additional 2 feet, he said. Lake Spence is now at 53 percent capacity and Lake Thomas is 26 percent full, he said.

W. Texas rains drown Arizonan

By The Associated Press

An Arizona woman trying to escape from her submerged car was swept away by floodwaters and drowned during heavy rains that forced the closing of several highways and dumped as much as 16 inches in parts of West Texas.

The heavy rains were expected to continue through Monday, the National Weather Service reported.

The body of Ellen Bullard, 67, of Camp Verde, Ariz. was found in a pasture about one-half mile away from her vehicle Sunday morning.

She and her husband C.W. Bullard, 75, were driving on U.S. Highway 67 east of Rankin in Upton County when Bullard drove into deep water that pushed the car into a 10-foot-deep ditch, officials said. Rankin is 55 miles south of Midland.

Bullard was helping his wife get out of the car when she was swept away, the Department of Public Safety reported.

In Roscoe, floodwaters seeped into the home of Charles Francis and had risen to the bottom of his daughter's bed when police and firefighters evacuated them, said Sheila Lawhon, Nolan County Red Cross director.

The roof on the home of Matthew Clark of Roscoe gave way to heavy rains, but no one was injured because Clark's family had taken him to a Sweetwater hospital Saturday night for an illness, said Clark's daughter Mildred.

Roscoe firefighter Philip Wolverton said streets near the families' homes had flooded.

In Abilene, about six families had to be evacuated from a low lying area of the city, said Lee Swindle, district fire chief.

The American Red Cross set up about 80 beds in anticipation of W. TEXAS page 2A

Court prepares for term

WASHINGTON (AP) — A newly constituted Supreme Court, beginning its 1986-87 term today, is set to explore issues such as alleged racial bias in death penalty laws, the teaching of creationism in public schools and the employment rights of pregnant women.

President Reagan, hoping to reshape the court, promoted William H. Rehnquist to chief justice after 14 years as the court's leading conservative, and appointed Antonin Scalia, another staunch conservative.

Warren E. Burger has retired after 17 years as chief justice, the longest tenure in the job this century, but his departure and Scalia's arrival are not expected to tip the court's ideological balance on most issues.

Since Burger was a reliable Rehnquist ally, Scalia's appointment does not add to the conservative bloc's numerical clout.

The court's power still resides in the middle, with the "swing votes" of Justices Lewis F. Powell, Sandra Day O'Connor, Byron R. White, Harry A. Blackmun and John Paul Stevens.

Four of the justices — William J. Brennan Jr., Powell, Thurgood Marshall and Blackmun — are 77 or older but none has voiced any desire to retire from his lifetime post. If Reagan gets the chance to replace any one of the four, the court's ideological balance could change dramatically.

The court already has selected 91 of the some 150 cases in which it will issue — after full briefing and oral arguments — precedent-setting decisions during its nine-month term. Between today and the end of autumn, cases will be chosen to complete that docket.

A leading case already granted review carries enormous potential impact for the future of capital punishment.

In a challenge to Georgia's death penalty law, the justices are to decide whether unconstitutional bias can be proved by statistics showing that killers of white victims draw death sentences far more frequently than killers of black victims.

If the justices rule against Georgia, the fates of hundreds of the more than 1,700 death row inmates nationwide could be affected.

Controversy over religion in public schools is back at the court as well, as Louisiana authorities attempt to restore a state law requiring public schools teaching evolution to balance it by also teaching creationism.

A federal appeals court ruled that the law violates the constitutionally required separation of church and state. But the justices are being urged to rule that "creation-science" is an alternative, non-religious theory of the origins of mankind.

A pair of cases before the high court involve the employment rights of pregnant women.

One, from Missouri, asks whether states must pay unemployment benefits to women who are not reinstated in their jobs after taking maternity leaves. The other, from California, centers on a peculiar form of alleged sexual bias.

A California law requiring employers to grant unpaid leaves of absence for up to four months to disabled pregnant workers is being attacked as illegal sex discrimination against men and non-pregnant women.

Working women, along with racial minorities, have a stake in two affirmative action cases being studied by the court. Decisions in both will define the scope of special job preferences in government employment.

In one, the justices must decide whether Alabama State Police may be forced to promote one black trooper for every white promoted until blacks comprise 25 percent of upper-rank officers.

In the other, the issue is whether the Santa Clara County, Calif., transportation agency may promote a woman over a more-qualified man to help get women in higher-ranking jobs.

State insurance firms failing at record rate

DALLAS (AP) — The number of failed insurance companies operating in Texas reached a record high in 1986 and regulators say the list of insolvencies may grow as the industry struggles against a slumping Texas economy.

So far this year the State Board of Insurance has placed 14 companies in receivership, bringing the total number of insurance companies in receivership to 93.

Five years ago only 42 companies were in receivership and in 1983 only eight companies were added to the list.

The state board's figures include companies based in Texas and those in other states that do business in Texas.

The numbers in Texas mirror the national trend of insurance companies going broke in record numbers. The industry last year recorded $5 billion in operating losses, according to A.M. Best Co. Inc., an insurance rating company. The previous record had been $300 million in 1975.

The number of insolvent companies represents only a small percentage of the 2,285 insurance companies licensed to do business in Texas, but the rising numbers concern state regulators.

They fear the number of companies in receivership could reach 100 by the end of the year. More than 200 are on the agency's watch list.

"The number is just enormous and fairly indicative of the severe economic times the property and casualty companies have experienced," said Lyndon L. Olson Jr., chairman of the state board.

Olson said he doesn't think premiums have been affected.

Industry officials and state regulators cited a complex combination of factors for the growing number of failed insurers: predatory pricing, cutthroat competition, a crisis in the liability area, falling interest rates, poor management and the investment policies of some companies — all magnified by the slumping Texas economy.

Most of the failed companies were property and casualty companies that wrote policies at low premiums hoping to attract customers and turn a profit on reinvesting at high interest rates.

White, Clements set for debate tonight

Two square-off for only one-on-one session

BILL CLEMENTS
... GOP challenger

AUSTIN (AP) — Democratic Gov. Mark White and Republican challenger Bill Clements completed preparations for their televised debate tonight, the only face-to-face session scheduled for the campaign.

The one-hour debate, which begins at 7 p.m., is being produced by the League of Women Voters and KPRC-TV of Houston. The television broadcast is being offered statewide. A statewide radio broadcast also will be provided, League officials said.

Viewers in the Big Spring area should receive the broadcast over channel 7, KOSA, the CBS network affiliate.

White, fresh from the Legislature's special session which cut spending and raised taxes to offset revenues lost in the oil crisis, said he was eager for the meeting.

"This is a critical juncture in the history of Texas. I believe the people of Texas deserve to be fully exposed to the ideas and issues in this campaign, and this debate will offer such an opportunity," White said.

Clements, hoping to regain the office he lost to White in 1982, also said he looked forward to the debate.

"The differences between us are clear. This televised debate ... is one forum where all Texans will again see those differences," Clements said.

During his campaign, Clements has accused White of allowing state government spending to grow out of control. Clements repeatedly has criticized White for supporting or signing into law tax increases every year since being elected.

White's key theme has been the improvements made in public education since he pushed a school reform bill through the Legislature in 1984. He has accused Clements of hiding behind a "secret plan" to solve the state's fiscal crisis.

Analysis shows Sul Ross funding growth

By MATTHEW GEIGER
Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Sul Ross State University's appropriations during the last 10 years have grown more quickly than University of Texas at Permian Basin's, edging the Alpine college's budget into the lead, a private research organization has reported.
The recent Texas Research League study reveals legislative funding for Sul Ross rose 56.7 percent from the 1976-77 budget years to the 1986-87 biennium.
The university's funding growth was about 8 percent ahead of UT-Permian Basin's 10-year total of 47 percent, the study shows.
On average, state senior colleges and universities saw a 141 percent increase in their state funding during the 10-year survey.
Robert Norwood, the league's research director, said higher education budget cuts made in the recent special session were not taken into account in the study but said the cuts should not change the institutions' relative ranking.

The special session cuts will probably reduce senior college and university funding to 1984-85 levels — about a 6 percent drop — and do not favor any university, he said.
Sul Ross began the 10-year period with a $9.6 million state appropriation and wound up with about $15 million.
UTPB had a head start with a $10 million appropriation during the 1976-77 biennium but falls about $200,000 short Sul Ross with $14.8 million in the most recent period.
Overall, the study shows state funding to senior colleges and universities increasing by 142 percent over the 10-year census with the Legislature raising college spending as much as 37.8 percent in the 1982-83 budget period.

But in the last legislative session, lawmakers, seeking to offset revenue lost in the oil industry's collapse, increased college spending by 3 percent — by far the smallest amount in the period.
And in the last special session, legislators cut about 10.5 percent from state universities for the 1987 budget year, bringing 1986-87 biennium funding down to 1984-85 levels, Norwood said.
He said the next Legislature, meeting in January, will face about a $5 billion shortfall between the current state income and the amount of money it will take to maintain the same services through 1988-89.
Higher education, into which 14.2 percent of the state's money flows, ranks as an easy target for legislators, and Texas' financial straits "may have marked the end evacuations after up to nine inches of rain fell during the weekend.

"That's where three of the main creeks (that run through the city) all join together and are feeding out to our lake," Swindle said Monday. "Our lake is full."
Flash flood watches were in effect for much of West, North and Central Texas early Monday.
At least 16 inches of rain fell over the weekend in McCamey, about 40 miles south of Odessa, forcing the evacuation of two families on Saturday.

Rivers throughout the area were up and many were spilling over their banks, officials said.
Weather officials issued a flood warning early Monday from McCamey to Langtry, about 70 miles south.
Officials said the Pecos River would crest at near 22 feet, up from a flood stage of 12 feet.
In far West Texas in the Big Bend, the Rio Grande was up to about 17 feet and continuing to rise.

some of the other cases to be decided during the 1986-87 term:
CRIMINAL
—Must the so-called "exclusionary rule," aimed at thwarting police misconduct by disallowing the use at trials of illegally obtained evidence, be invoked when police relied on a state law later declared unconstitutional? The Illinois Supreme Court said it must.
—Should the exclusionary rule be applied in cases of "good faith" mistakes by police officers? Maryland's highest court said it should apply when police armed with a court warrant to search one apartment search another by mistake.
—May confessions of mentally ill criminal defendants be used as evidence in their prosecutions? The Colorado Supreme Court said such people may not be capable of confessing "voluntarily."
—Are a defendant's rights violated when, after being read the Miranda warning, he refuses to give a written statement without a lawyer present but agrees to answer police questions orally? The Connecticut Supreme Court said yes.

federal election reform law is unconstitutional.
—May the government label as "political propaganda" three Canadian films on acid rain and nuclear war? A federal judge barred the Reagan administration from doing so, ruling that the classification violates free-speech rights.
—Did President Reagan illegally use a "pocket veto" in 1983 to kill a bill linking military aid to El Salvador with human rights progress? A federal appeals court said yes.
TEXACO VS. PENNZOIL
—Must Texaco Inc. post a potentially ruinous $12 billion bond while appealing a multibillion dollar judgment won against it in Texas by Pennzoil Co.? Lower federal courts said Texaco need post only a $1 billion bond.
PROPERTY RIGHTS
—Must property owners be compensated when local governments place new restrictions on the use of their land? The court may use a case from Glendale, Calif., to resolve this issue, one it unsuccessfully set out to settle four times in the past five years.
IMMIGRATION LAW
—How should the government determine whether to grant asylum to illegal aliens who say they will be persecuted if forced to return to their homeland? A federal appeals court said a Nicaraguan woman living in Nevada must prove she has "a well-founded fear of persecution" — a standard the Reagan administration says is too easy to satisfy.

RELIGION
—May a state refuse to pay unemployment benefits to workers fired after refusing to work on their Sabbath? Florida courts said yes.
POLITICS
—May states limit voting in a political party's primary election to voters who are members of that party? A federal appeals court said Connecticut must allow registered voters unaffiliated with any party to vote in Republican primaries.
—May the government regulate spending in federal election campaigns by non-profit ideological corporations? Lower courts said in a Massachusetts case that part of a district clerk's office concerning their absence numbered 30, or 21 percent of the total mailed.

District clerk deputy Glenda Brasel said this morning Judge James Gregg would order the sheriff's office to contact absent jurors if the state and defense failed to agree on a 12-person jury.
Canales is represented by Cliff Hardwick of Odessa. Rick Hamby is prosecutor for the state. Testimonies were expected to begin this afternoon if a jury was selected.
Sheriff A.N. Standard said this morning a normal procedure he employs when contacting absent jurors is to either notify them by phone or send a deputy to summon them.
The sheriff said absent jurors are usually told that the judge has given them "x number of hours" to show up in district court.

• Kathy Flynn, 25, 1614 Canary St., was arrested Saturday night on local traffic warrants. She was released on bond.

• Ronald H. Robey, 17, Route 3 Box 225 was arrested Sunday morning on suspicion of failing to stop and leave information at an accident. He was released on bond.
• Irene Rodriguez, 28, 905 N. Gregg St., was arrested Sunday morning on suspicion of driving without a license and driving while intoxicated. She was transferred to county jail and released on $2,000 bond.
• O.T. Brewster, 112 Canyon Drive, told police Sunday morning that someone caused $42.50 damage to a window at Apt. 111 at 1904 E. 25th St. during a burglary between 4:30 p.m. Saturday 8:30 a.m. Sunday.

No-shows in jury trial

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer
Jury turnout for 118th District Court criminal cases continues to hover in low numbers as evidenced this morning in the murder trial of Ricky Ornelas.
He has been charged with the shooting death of Disdro Canales Jr., 24, 808 Willia, in April.
Both the state and defense began striking jurors from a pool of 33 persons that showed up this morning after 140 summonses were mailed from the district clerk's office last week.
Gregg said earlier that according to the state penal code, a district court had to have 32 qualified persons available during jury selection proceedings.
The judge said he usually requests 140 summonses be mailed and past cases showed approximately 50 persons would appear for jury duty.
According to records in the district clerk's office, 72 legitimate excusable cases were reported for this case. This number also included summonses returned because persons had moved out of the county or were no longer at the listed address on the voter registration list.

Those persons who were summoned and failed to contact the district clerk's office concerning their absence numbered 30, or 21 percent of the total mailed.
District clerk deputy Glenda Brasel said this morning Judge James Gregg would order the sheriff's office to contact absent jurors if the state and defense failed to agree on a 12-person jury.
Canales is represented by Cliff Hardwick of Odessa. Rick Hamby is prosecutor for the state. Testimonies were expected to begin this afternoon if a jury was selected.

Brooks Bedell of Box 171 on N. Birdwell Lane told sheriff's deputies Saturday night that someone burglarized his residence between 11:30 a.m. to 5:10 p.m. and stole $905 worth of jewelry and knives.
• Police transferred Henry Hinojos, 25, 1003 N. Runnels St., to county jail Saturday afternoon after he was arrested for assault. He was released on $1,000 bond.

• Department of Public Safety troopers arrested Robert Glenn Kilpatrick, 41, Sterling City Route Box 157 FAAA, early Monday morning on suspicion of driving while intoxicated — a second offense. He was released on $1,500 bond.

Daniloff: Risks with the job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nicholas Daniloff, noting the risks reporters take when working in the Soviet Union, says he carefully avoided contacting U.S. intelligence officials in Moscow after he received a letter from a suspicious Soviet contact.
Daniloff said Sunday it is impossible for American reporters to do a thorough job of reporting on the Soviet Union without running the risk that the Soviet KGB will plant incriminating evidence on them.
"The Soviets can, any time, put incriminating evidence into your mailbox or they can drop it into the window of your car," he said on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley."
"They can always get it on you if they want to do it," he said. "Now if you are so scared that you won't open your mail ... you're not going to be doing your job of reporting on the Soviet Union."
Daniloff, the U.S. News & World Report correspondent freed last week from Soviet spy charges, said he avoided the U.S. military attaches and intelligence officers because "I was always aware that when you work in Moscow there is this kind of danger of incrimination."
Daniloff related one incident early last year in which he found a packet in his Moscow mailbox addressed to him. When he opened it, he found a second envelope inside addressed to the American ambassador.
"I delivered that letter to the embassy," he said.

"I further answered some questions about that letter. But I did not go to the CIA. I did not go to the intelligence officers. I went to a political officer."
In the new issue of U.S. News, Daniloff writes, "I presumed the letter came from a Father Roman, whom I believed was a KGB agent provocateur. I had answered some of the embassy's questions about what I knew of Father Roman and then I refused to have anything further to do with the matter."
According to news accounts last week, U.S. diplomats opened the envelope in Daniloff's presence and found a letter addressed to CIA Director William Casey and information on military matters.
The Los Angeles Times said the bogus priest, Father Roman Potemykyn, had offered to supply Daniloff information about religious oppression in the Soviet Union.
According to news accounts, a U.S. diplomat named Paul M. Stombaugh once telephoned Roman and identified himself as "a friend of Nikolai" and later wrote Roman a note. The Soviets forced Stombaugh out of the Soviet Union in June 1985 for allegedly spying.
Daniloff was arrested by the KGB on Aug. 30 after a Russian friend gave him maps wrapped in what Daniloff believed to be a pile of newspaper clippings.

Seniors topic of study

WASHINGTON — One in five elderly people visit senior citizen centers or use other senior services, and women are more likely than men to avail themselves of the programs, a government study says.

The study also found that elderly people who live alone — even those who are handicapped — are more likely to visit senior centers than older people who live with someone.

"The most revealing finding is the low utilization rates among the elderly population," said the study titled "Aging in the Eighties — Use of Community Services."

The most probable reason that elderly loners were more likely to use community services for senior citizens was the need for social support, the study said.

"Moderately to severely limited elderly persons living alone were more likely to participate in senior center programs for social support. In contrast, those living with others were perhaps not as likely to use senior centers because they received this support at home."

Congress action due

WASHINGTON — With temporary measures ending and a government shutdown threatening anew, the House and Senate this week try to resolve their differences and pass the biggest spending bill in history.

Lawmakers also must raise the ceiling on the national debt to avert a government default. And a third finance measure — a $13.6 billion deficit-cutting package — is needed to meet the mandate of the Gramm-Rudman law.

The 99th Congress failed to adjourn as scheduled Friday, as lawmakers could not leave for the campaign trail without meeting those fiscal responsibilities.

All remaining major bills — also including an election-year program to fight drugs — have been passed in different forms by both chambers. House-Senate conference committees will seek compromises that can be ratified quickly by both bodies and signed by President Reagan.

The highest hurdle is the huge measure authorizing government spending for fiscal 1987, which began Oct. 1. An interim eight-day measure, which averted a government shutdown last week, expires after Wednesday.

Small planes collide

GOLDSBORO, N.C. — Two small planes collided while trying to land, killing the three men aboard, all of them experienced pilots, officials say.

"There were just two airplanes in the same airspace, both approaching a runway on a routine landing, seemingly," said Bob Hill, chairman of the Goldsboro Airport Commission. "It seems to be an unfortunate circumstance where the pilots weren't aware of each other."

William Moneypenny, chief flight instructor at Goldsboro-Wayne Aviation, said the J-3 Piper Cub and a Cessna 182 collided as they were attempting to land at about 11:35 a.m. Sunday.

A crowd pushes in on smiling Yuri Orlov as he makes his way through Kennedy Airport in New York Sunday. Orlov and his wife were freed from internal exile in the Soviet Union as part of the deal that also freed American reporter Nicholas Daniloff and Soviet U.N. employee Gennadiy Zakharov.

Begins free life

Orlov vows to continue rights battle

By LAWRENCE NEUMEISTER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Freed Soviet dissident Yuri Orlov vows to continue the human rights campaign that landed him in a labor camp and exile in Siberia and says he feels guilty about those he left behind.

"Now I can speak freely about my homeland and how it should develop," Orlov said after arriving from Moscow with his wife, Irina L. Valitova, 44, on Sunday at Kennedy International Airport.

"I promise not only to engage in scientific research but to go on defending the rights of Soviet people. I will continue to express my views," he said after accepting roses and hugging several exiled comrades who met him at the airport.

Less than an hour after his arrival, he resumed his work for human rights as a free man by declaring "Anatoly Marchenko day," in honor of a Soviet political prisoner who began a hunger strike Aug. 4 to protest prison conditions.

Speaking through an interpreter, the Orlovs said they were happy to be in the United States. But the 62-year-old dissident added that he felt "very complicated" about his release to the West.

"I've left my homeland, I've left my native culture, family, close friends, and this is not easy," Orlov said. Orlov, who began his day Sunday eating barley porridge at Lefortovo Prison in Moscow, mentioned dissidents still in camps and in internal exile in the Soviet Union — including Andrei Sakharov, Anatoly Karyakin, Mustafa Jamilyer, Irina Ratushinskaya and Josef Begun — as he explained his mixed feelings about leaving his homeland.

"I probably feel guilty in regard to them. Why am I here and they are there?" he asked.

The physicist had special words for President Reagan and all those in the United States and the Soviet Union who struggled for his release during the seven years he spent in a labor camp and 2½ years in Siberian exile.

"I'm very glad I have begun a free life," Orlov said. When asked about the deal between Washington and Moscow that led to his release, Orlov said he could not yet comment on it because he had only read Soviet news accounts of it.

The Orlovs' arrival in the United States was made possible under an agreement in which American reporter Nicholas Daniloff and Soviet U.N. employee Gennadiy Zakharov were allowed to return to their home countries. Zakharov was arrested in New York on Aug. 23 on spy charges, and Daniloff was arrested in Moscow on espionage charges a week later.

He described his health, which had been worsening, as "not bad." Smiling often as he answered questions from reporters, he added, "The last year I've been doing my own housework. I have a garden. I raised potatoes so I'm feeling better now."

When filling out his Customs declaration form, Orlov entered "NA," or "not applicable," for his nationality. He wrote "U.S.A." for his permanent address.

Before leaving the Moscow prison, Orlov was allowed a 40-minute farewell meeting on Saturday with three sons from a former marriage, Alexander, Lev and Dmitri.

Soviet sub sinks north of Bermuda

WASHINGTON (AP) — A disabled Soviet submarine sank north of Bermuda before dawn today, three days after a fire and explosion wracked the nuclear-powered vessel, the Pentagon said.

A Pentagon spokesman, Col. Marvin Braman, said survivors were seen being rescued by Soviet merchant ships, one of which had been towing the Yankee-class sub.

The sub sank in 18,000 feet of water 1,040 nautical miles east of Cape Hatteras, N.C., at 4 a.m., EDT, Braman said, almost four hours after the towing ceased and the submarine was seen to be taking on water.

There was no immediate word on casualties from the sinking. One official said earlier, however, that many of the sub's crew had been evacuated to nearby Soviet merchant ships. The sub normally carries about 120 people.

In Moscow, a spokesman for the Foreign Ministry said he had "no information at all about those reports" of the sinking.

Braman said a Navy P-3C patrol plane reported the sinking more than 500 miles north of Bermuda and 80 miles from the point where Friday's fire and explosion killed three men.

Braman noted that the sub had encountered rough seas as it was being towed through the Atlantic.

He added that "a reasonably prudent individual would have to assume that (with) the kind of damage that was shown in the photos, ... you're going to be taking on some water."

One source had noted that the submarine, designed to carry 16 nuclear-tipped missiles, apparently had sustained damage to its hull and possibly one missile tube hatch cover.

Beyond that, the Pentagon had no immediate explanation of why the submarine sank.

The sources also declined to say whether the United States had been able to monitor the status of the sub's two nuclear reactors as the vessel sank.

But a retired U.S. Navy officer, who commanded the nuclear-powered submarine Polaris, said officials had studied such a "worst-case scenario" and concluded there would be "no danger from this."

James Bush, a retired captain and now associate director of the Center for Defense Information, a private Pentagon watchdog group, said any radioactivity from the nuclear reactors would be diluted by the sea.

The sources identified the Soviet merchant ship towing the sub as the Krasnogvardeysk.

Two nuclear-powered U.S. submarines sank in the 1960s, neither with apparent radioactive contamination. The Scorpion, with 99 men aboard, was lost in May 1968. The Thresher, with 129 men, went down in April 1963.

A Pentagon spokesman, Maj. Larry Icenogle, said earlier today that the sub was in trouble, although it did not appear to be in immediate danger of sinking.

Icenogle said there was no immediate indication of renewed fire aboard the vessel. Asked whether the ship may be sinking, Icenogle replied, "From what we can tell right now, it won't sink in the next 30 minutes or the next two days, but it's having difficulty out there."

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger told reporters en route to Japan on Sunday that photographs of the disabled submarine showed hatches blown away, the submarine's skin peeled back and a hole in the vessel's side.

"It looks a little bit like Chernobyl," he added, referring to the Soviet nuclear plant that exploded and burned in April.

He said an explosion was "very, very great" and that there was "a lot of damage" to the vessel, which had been on sentry duty east of Bermuda.

Weinberger also said that while the Soviets had reported three deaths from the fire that erupted onboard Friday, "I would assume there would have to be more."

Officials see six-week De Lorean trial

By TIM BOVEE
AP Business Writer

DETROIT (AP) — In his autobiography, John Z. De Lorean described his plan to build a racy stainless-steel sports car designed for quality rather than a quick trip to the junkyard. The chapter was entitled "Dreams."

But federal prosecutors allege the dreams were the cover for an $8.9 million scam in which De Lorean siphoned money from his carmaking enterprise to his own accounts.

The trial of the silver-haired De Lorean, 61, begins today in U.S. District Court in Detroit. He's charged in 15 counts that include racketeering, mail fraud, wire fraud, interstate transportation of stolen money and income tax evasion.

Court officials expect the trial to last six weeks. Prosecutors and defense lawyers won't talk about the case; U.S. District Judge Julian A. Cook Jr. has imposed a gag order on all participants.

The maximum penalty for racketeering is 20 years in prison, $25,000 in fines and forfeiture of any property acquired or maintained in the enterprise. The other charges carry lesser sentences.

Since his arraignment in September 1985, De Lorean has been free on $1 million bond.

After the indictment, he said the federal charges were part of a continuing government frameup linked to prosecutors' failure to win a conviction in his 1984 cocaine-trafficking trial. He said the money was a legitimate loan.

Weeks before the trial was scheduled to begin, De Lorean's attorney, Howard Weitzman, asked Cook to dismiss charges against the entrepreneur because the time limit for prosecuting the alleged crimes had expired.

Weitzman asked the judge to exclude statements, some videotaped, taken this summer from 11 witnesses in Europe because De Lorean could not obtain immunity from prosecution overseas and could not be present during the interviews.

Such depositions, while common in civil lawsuits, are rarely allowed

Hostages issue pleas

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Three Frenchmen held hostage in Lebanon today made an impassioned videotaped appeal to their government to negotiate their release from what one called "the slow death" of captivity.

Three days after Islamic Jihad released a similar videotaped plea from two captive Americans, the Shiite Moslem organization delivered the tape of the Frenchmen to the office of a Western news agency in Moslem west Beirut.

It was accompanied by a typewritten statement in Arabic reiterating Islamic Jihad's terms for freeing the hostages.

The statement demanded that Prime Minister Jacques Chirac's government intervene with Kuwait to gain the release of 17 Lebanese nationals imprisoned in the oil-rich Persian Gulf nation for bombing the U.S. and French embassies there in December 1983.

In the tape, French hostages Marcel Fontaine, Marcel Carton and Jean-Paul Kauffmann said their government had abandoned them and that they were desperate.

U.N. honors Canada

GENEVA — Canada today was awarded the U.N.-sponsored Nansen Medal for its longtime open-door policy toward refugees and its support of refugee aid programs.

U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees Jean-Pierre Hocke, announcing the award in a statement, said "Canada has generously welcomed an increasing number of refugees" and cited Canadians for "outstanding achievements" in helping people fleeing persecution.

It was the first time the award went to an entire nation since its creation in 1954.

In 1979-84, Canada received 129,000 refugees, who made up 23 percent of all immigrants. The largest part came from Southeast Asia, followed by East Europeans, the U.N. commissioner said.

Admissions from Latin America, the Mideast and Africa have been rising, showing "Canada's global approach to refugee resettlement," the United Nations body said.

Pope greets villagers

LYON, France — Pope John Paul II today paid homage to St. Jean-Marie Vianney, a 19th-century rural clergyman whose life exercised a strong influence on the pope's personal decision to become a Roman Catholic priest.

In the small hamlet of Ars, the pontiff greeted villagers in front of the tiny church where St. Jean-Marie Vianney tended to his flock for 41 years.

After prayer in the small church, and in the adjoining basilica constructed behind it, John Paul met with bishops, priests, seminarians and deacons and their families for several hours of instruction and prayer.

The pope has held up St. Jean-Marie Vianney as a model for the world's Catholic parish priests, and today said the saint had influenced his personal decision to become a priest.

A half-million pilgrims each year visit Ars, 21 miles north of Lyon, and the pope was also scheduled to celebrate an afternoon Mass near there in a field.

Opinion

Views of other Texas papers

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around the state.

Prison issue considered frustrating

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler has ruled that Fort Wolters, near Mineral Wells, is not adequate to house 300 non-violent felons on a temporary basis to reduce overcrowding in Texas prisons. The ruling has created a stir in the Texas National Guard, which leases Fort Wolters from the Army. The post is considered good enough for troops of the National Guard to use every weekend, but it is not good enough for criminals. The court apparently places a higher value on the welfare of prisoners than it does on the law-abiding population. The alternative to housing prisoners temporarily at the military post is to grant the prisoners early parole. While the Tyler jurist's concern for criminals may be open to criticism from a practical standpoint, it is the Texas legislature which must face the fact that Texas has an immediate need for more prison beds and guards.

Child support delinquents criticized

As Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox says, failure to keep up child support payments is a form of child abuse. It's a moral as well as legal obligation. Yet, according to Mattox more than half of parents who owe child support in Texas don't pay it, and 30 percent only pay a portion of what's owed. That's not right, and that's why it is good his office is cracking down on parents dodging their payments. It's a welcome addition to recent legislation that allows garnishing of wages and withholding income tax returns as payment for child support. The program already has begun in Austin, but in the next three months will be brought to Hudspeth, Culberson and El Paso counties. The attorney general's Child Support Enforcement Division will work with local law enforcement agencies to round up approximately 10,000 parents in this area who are delinquent with child support payments and force them to pay or face jail. That's not to say some parents don't have good reasons for being behind in support payments. But at least those reasons will be known and reasonable agreements to meet obligations will be set. Texas children deserve at least that much interest.

Cleanup effort viewed as first step

Now we know just how messy Texas beaches can get. Volunteers involved in the recent Texas Coastal Cleanup picked up about 182,000 pounds of trash along the Texas coast — and that was from only 11 sites. Imagine what the total could have been had every mile of beach been included. The campaign proves two things: (1) Texans and visitors to this state are abusing our beaches, and (2) the regular cleanup effort isn't adequate. In addition, the amount of trash also indicates an anti-litter education campaign might be in order. Whatever the cleanup proves, Texas owes its thanks to those 2,720 volunteers who took the time to pick up part of the mess.

Voluntary drug testing praised

Although we oppose the plan by the Beaumont Independent School District for mandatory drug testing, we think Operating Engineers Local 450 in Southeast Texas deserves praise for its visionary and innovative program to ensure a drug-free work force. That proposal would require any union member who wants to work to take a drug test if the employer requests it. The crucial difference between this plan and the BISD's is that the union members were given a chance to vote on the idea, and of those who voted, 97 percent approved it. With an approval margin that high, it's clear that the workers can live with the requirements. A creative response to the drug crisis such as this, not the police-state plan proposed by the BISD, will go a long way in helping to eradicate the national menace of drug abuse. Moreover, Local 450 has taken a giant stride to improve labor-management relations in the Golden Triangle with this plan, and we think other unions could emulate this approach.

Illiteracy seen as major problem

The general impression, listening to Ronald and Nancy Reagan on national TV, is that this nation is buried in a war against the dangers of drugs which threatens our very security. However, there's another serious problem facing America — one which does not require arms, law enforcement, judicial systems, jails or drug rehabilitation. It's illiteracy, a problem so staggering that it's kept hidden and has become a national disgrace. The millions of reasons for at-

Federal agencies in battle for anti-drug appropriations

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — The White House and Congress have declared all-out war on drug dealers. Assuming the fervor lasts beyond Election Day, millions and billions of dollars will soon start flowing to federal drug fighters.

The scramble of these funds has already begun among the various enforcement agencies — a battle that is almost as intense as that between the lawmen and the dope smugglers.

There's nothing particularly new either in the drug problem or in the turf battle. A decade ago the CIA and the Drug Enforcement Administration were engaged in a jealous squabble over the sharing of intelligence on dope traffic. Now it's the DEA, the Customs Service and the Coast Guard vying for the prestige, personnel and budgetary pie that go to the agency that makes the big busts. Our associate Donald Goldberg has dug up some examples of the interagency bureaucratic bickering that began even before President Reagan and his wife made their joint television call to arms. Here are just a few:

• In Minnesota, DEA and Customs are contesting for jurisdiction over a drug case involving close to $500,000 in gold, silver, coins and cash, according to Justice Department sources. The case was actually broken by an alert bank officer, who reported that the suspect and two associates had been exchanging Swiss francs for dollars in amounts just under $10,000 — the threshold above which such transactions must be officially reported to the government. The suspect has pleaded guilty to possession of 2 pounds of cocaine with intent to distribute.

Customs originally took the lead in the investigation, on grounds that there might have been an international money-laundering operation involved. But DEA officials have been trying to wrest the case away from Customs. The day after the Reagans' TV appeal, a high-level meeting was called at the Justice Department to discuss which agency will get the case. The winner could get the contraband $500,000.

• Customs and the Coast Guard are scrapping over the use of four radar-equipped E-2C aircraft provided by the Navy to patrol the entire southern border. Not only Treasury Secretary James Baker (who runs Customs), but Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., and Rep. Glenn English, D-Okla., have written Attorney General Ed Meese on behalf of the Customs Service. Customs, the two members of Congress wrote, "has the statutory mission; it has the aircraft capability to carry out a total drug interdiction mission, including surveillance, intercept, tracking and arrest in all environments, and it has a decade of experience in operating a sophisticated, full-scale air drug interdiction mission."

The Coast Guard, meanwhile, says it could operate the Navy planes around-the-clock, while Customs would have to pay its crews overtime. An internal Coast Guard position paper acknowledges that a different airplane would be preferable, "but in order to get the mission, Coast Guard is willing to operate the Navy E-2C aircraft on an interim basis."

• Mexican authorities have forbidden U.S. drug-busters to chase suspected smugglers across the border, but the Bahamas permits such pursuits. This is a great advantage, because some 70 percent of the illicit drugs entering the United States come from the Caribbean.

Customs has responsibility for the operations, but the State Department has jurisdiction over relations with foreign governments, and Foggy Bottom wants DEA personnel aboard each interdiction flight in the name of inter-agency coordination.

Customs officials point out that their crews fly out of Homestead Air Force Base, about an hour's drive south of Miami, where DEA is based. Customs argues that the smugglers could be long gone by the time the DEA agent shows up.

Aptitude test exposed as obsolete

By STEPHEN CHAPMAN

Back when I was a senior in high school, I had to take the Scholastic Aptitude Test, better known as the SAT, which was and is required to apply for admission to most colleges. Some of my classmates read vocabulary-building books to prepare; some others even took privately sponsored courses that were supposed to improve their scores.

I knew better. Representatives of the Educational Testing Service, which administers the test, told us repeatedly and quite persuasively that because the SAT tests aptitude and knowledge acquired over an entire lifetime, cramming couldn't possibly help.

I believed them. Of course, when I first heard about it, I thought Watergate was a third-rate burglary.

Now comes a company called the Princeton Review to tell me that Richard Nixon isn't the only one to deceive me. For five years it has been tutoring students in how to take the SAT and, its founders report, "Our records indicate that our students improve their scores an average of 150 points."

To give you an idea of what this means, consider that when the average national score on the SAT rose by just nine points last year, it was hailed as an educational miracle. For the average student to add 150 points to an SAT score is about like an average golfer knocking 10 strokes off his or her usual score.

The Princeton Review's success hasn't escaped the notice of the people most affected. David Owen, author of a book criticizing the SAT, reports that at Harvard a freshman was overheard saying, "Yeah, he got a 750 on the verbal, but it was only a Princeton Review 750."

The news that the SAT can be foiled by wily test-takers is good news for the 1.3 million students who will take it this year and whose futures may ride on the results. It is also good news for all the people who have gone through life thinking themselves dumb because they bombed on this single exam.

Review's success makes it clear that the test doesn't do that — and makes it impossible for college admissions offices to interpret SAT scores in any useful way. It threatens to make the test as obsolete as alchemy.

Speeding that process is a new book put out by the Princeton Review, which will disseminate its tricks to every corner of the nation. "Cracking the System," by Adam Robinson and John Katzman, provides a comprehensive method of tackling the SAT. It also shows just how silly the test is.

Some of the Princeton Review's methods of beating the test are straightforward. Using computers, Robinson and Katzman have compiled a list of the vocabulary words that appear most often on the test, allowing students to study only those words.

They provide useful tips, like urging test-takers to use their test booklets as scratch pads and to simplify geometry problems by using the corner of the answer sheet as a ruler and protractor.

Some of their ideas are more clever. They advise students to guess freely, pointing out, as the ETS doesn't, that a student who guesses wrong three times out of four still comes out ahead.

Noting that the questions in each section are in order of difficulty, they say, "You should never waste time trying to figure out the answer to a hard question if there are still

Teen births are put into perspective

By MARIAN WRIGHT EDELMAN

There were over 523,000 births to teens in the United States in 1982. Almost 10,000 were to girls under age 15. One birth in seven is to a teenage mother. These numbers are certainly sobering, but do they alone point to a problem?

No. There have always been teenage mothers. Today, one woman in five becomes a mother before reaching her twentieth birthday. Among women who turned 20 between 1945 and 1949, one in four had given birth. Birth rates for all but the very youngest teens, 10 to 14 years old, have dropped significantly since the mid-1950's, a time when birth rates for women of all ages. Teen birth rates rose slightly in the late 1970's, causing some alarm, but they quickly stabilized.

It's a matter of context: teenage pregnancy has always been with us, but the devastating social and economic consequences associated with teenage parenthood are new.

The growing concern about adolescent pregnancy stems from our growing awareness of the social and economic consequences of early parenthood.

National data show that being an adolescent parent makes economic success almost impossible, especially for poor and minority youth.

First, we must rid ourselves of misconceptions and preconceptions about teens and their problems.

We all know that teenagers believe myths about pregnancy. But what about adults' myths? All of us have ideas about what happens to young girls once they become mothers. Before we can find effective ways of preventing adolescent pregnancy, we have to debunk some adult mythology.

Second, we are not dealing with a problem that can be solved by a single strategy. We need many different messages, many different outreach and program remedies that need implementation at different times. Boys have been neglected in most teen pregnancy prevention efforts.

Middle-class teens may respond to messages and remedies that mean little to lower income teens. Racial and cultural differences may need to be taken into account.

Third, as we proceed, we must remain sensitive and open to each other's values, ideas, and approaches without seeking to impose our views on others. For example, some who will be drawn to this effort will support a woman's right to choose abortion; other will oppose it.

Finally, there should be no rush to moral judgment. No one age group, class, or race has a corner on morality, nor the right to point an accusing finger at any other.

easy questions that you haven't tried." They explain the relatively simple ways in which the ETS tries to trick the test-taker into wrong answers.

All this may seem like it would provide only slight help. But the results are impressive. And Owen, in his book on the SAT, reports that using the Princeton Review's techniques, he was able to get the right answer on nine out of 10 of the hardest questions — without looking at the questions.

The SAT always has thrived on its illusion of scientific objectivity, which supposedly separates it from vague gauges of ability like grades, recommendations and interviews.

But the success of the Princeton Review fatally undermines that illusion. Students who take the course or study the book have a big advantage in taking the test. How can admissions officers compare their scores with those of students who never have heard of the Princeton Review?

They can't, so they shouldn't try. The test always has been a poor way of judging students. Now that its defects have been exposed so starkly, it's difficult to see how any admissions office can continue to take it seriously. The Princeton Review's achievements aren't welcome at the ETS, but they are a service to every college and every aspiring college student.

Bootmaker recalls four decades of craft, career

Evelyn Green who has been making cowboy boot tops for four decades in Lubbock works with the Willie Lusk design. She has stitched that design into boots for the famous and not-so-famous.

LUBBOCK (AP) — She never was too good at making boot bottoms, but, for more than four decades Evelyn Green has been making the tops, stitching into them the unique design that spelled Willie Lusk, master bootmaker.

For movie stars, rodeo greats, country singers and the common cowboy, the handiwork represents the best in comfort.

That design was the only signature Lusk put on a boot and, when he died in 1976, Mrs. Green continued the practice for Lusk customers throughout the nation for Wade's Boot Shop.

Now semi-retired — "working for wages instead of by the piece" — she helps fill orders for Lusk boots, using foot molds and measurements taken by Lusk long ago. Customers, like one from New Mexico who has been ordering the same boot style for 30 years, just call and order the leather and style. The rest is in files at Ledy's where Mrs. Green manages the shop when new owner James Ledy is at his Abilene store every other week.

She also creates designs made famous by the Ledy family of bootmakers or whatever pattern a customer draws on a sketch pad.

Women weren't making boots when she went to work in the curio section of the Brown shop in Lubbock in 1945. She moved into the western wear segment and, about to be laid off during a slack season, accepted an offer to go into the dye room as the available way to make a living.

"Willie was foreman of the boot shop. He would walk by while I was dyeing shoes and say, 'Stay with it, Granny, that's the way I got my start.'"

When Lusk left to open his own shop — financed by Benny Binion of Las Vegas, Nev., who long had been a fan of Lusk bootmaking — he asked her to go along.

"He made boots for Ronald Reagan, Shirley Temple, Amos and Andy, Audie Murphy, Red Ryder and Little Beaver, the Colorado governor, a lot of famous people."

The late Gen. Omar Bradley was among those wearing the Lusk custom boots, and cowboy stars ranged from Hoot Gibson to Ben Johnson while country music customers included Ray Price and Merle Haggard.

When they pulled on their handmade boots, they tugged on tops she had put together.

Lusk measured most of the customers on trips to other parts of the country, especially in California and in Las Vegas where Binion's famous guests and clientele lined up to bare their feet for Lusk. He was proud to have boots in every state of the union and many foreign countries. He was prouder, still, when he recognizes a pair in movies and television.

Wherever a Lusk boot went, Ms. Green's craftsmanship tagged along.

Some of the famous slipped in and out of Lubbock just to stop at the shop. Chill Willis was a regular visitor, always ordering boots with his "Love" trademark inlaid somewhere in the leather.

When stars of Amos and Andy stopped in, a growing circle of fans ringed the shop trying to get a peek through the door or windows. Ms. Green says she was out the morning Red Ryder and his sidekick stopped by.

But, the biggest thrill for many was the day eight bootmakers looked up to see world heavyweight champion Joe Louis watching them at work. Mrs. Green described the "Brown Bomber" as a nice, quiet man.

Both of her sons grew up in the shop, beginning the day she didn't show up for work because of a babysitting problem.

"Willie said to bring him on down, and we'd build him a pen. We did."

When the boys were small, she always planned to quit work when they grew up, but things didn't work out that way.

"I never wanted to sit down and do nothing. Willie always said that when I got too old to work, I could turn into one of the fixtures."

Until he died, Lusk did all the measuring. After Charles E. Wade bought the shop in 1977, Mrs. Green did the traveling when Binion called or California trips were due. In Nashville, she measured about every foot on the "Hee-Haw" show, and today, is working on a pair for Grandpa Jones.

She enjoys explaining her craft, telling how a bootmaker takes a flat piece of leather and turns it into a boot.

Club notes

Club discusses year's projects

Donna Parker, president of the GFWC Forsan Study Club discussed the club's projects for the year at its first meeting on Sept. 13.

Parker also explained the HOBE Fund, also known as the Hugh O'Brien Fund, which will be donated to a Forsan sophomore. A Clean Up City Park Rally was Sept. 20.

Janice Hopper began the meeting by leading the club prayer and recognizing all the members.

Kristy Evans, graduating senior, received the scholarship award and Emily Mumm discussed the federation report.

Past president Kathy Pickett lead the devotion.

Donna Nixon, Linda Light, Eunice Thixton, Emily Mumm and Janice Hopper were the winners of the door prizes.

Each member was asked to tell what being a Texan means to her. Members also brought items for Girlstown.

Next meeting will be Oct. 13 at the home of Susan Alexander. Communication will be the topic.

Pointers on Irises club's topic

The program "Pointers on Iris," was presented by Mrs. Gladys Sanderson at a recent meeting of the Planters Garden Club. The club met at the home of Mrs. Nadine Hodnett. Roll call was answered by each member naming a new annual.

Sanderson stated that an iris was the first plant she planted at her home garden.

Easy to grow varieties of iris adapted to every area of the U.S. are available. Irises live through severe droughts and cold. They are easy to grow and recommended for the beginning gardener.

The best time to plant is late summer or early autumn. They need full sunshine and lime soil with good drainage. Water plants often enough before blooming time to keep soil moist, but not wet. Cut flowers as soon as they fade.

Iris grow from thick underground stems that store food produced by the leaves. Every year underground offshoots develop. These may be divided and transplanted to grow new irises. All irises need mulch the first season. When they become crowded, divide them. This should be done every two to five years.

Good sense prevents the tragedy of fire

DEAR READERS: This is Fire Prevention Week, and despite declines, the United States and Canada still have the highest fire death rates of all the developed countries in the free world.

The most recent figures: Fire deaths in the United States: 5,240. The total loss of property: $6.71 billion! Each season has its own special fire hazards. Here are some tips for all seasons:

FALL: If you enjoy camping, select a tent made of flame-resistant fabric. Pack a reliable flashlight with plenty of extra batteries to light the inside of your tent — never use matches or candles. When building a campfire, place it downwind of your tent. And never try to hasten the burning by using gasoline or other flammable liquid starters.

If you use your fireplace, have your chimney professionally cleaned in the fall to make sure it's in good condition for the coming season.

WINTER: More fires occur during winter than in any other season. The reasons: home heating and the holiday season.

If you use a portable heater, be sure it is placed away from combustibles — draperies, furniture, paper, etc. Remember, the surface heat of some portable heaters may reach 500 degrees, so keep a careful watch on your children and warn them to keep away from heaters. Hospitals are treating an increasing number of patients with burns resulting from contact with the outside surface of some portable heaters.

For a merry Christmas, choose a Christmas tree that does not have shedding needles, and keep it standing in water while it is in the house. If you choose an artificial tree, choose one that is flame-resistant.

After holiday parties, before retiring, check your ashtrays for smoldering cigarette butts, and carefully examine all upholstered chairs and sofas to make sure that no "live" cigarette butts have fallen between the cushions. Remember, most house fires occur between 8 p.m. and 8 a.m., when people are sleeping.

SPRING: Take spring cleaning seriously — clean out your attic, basement, garage and workshop. Throw out trash, especially combustibles such as rags, newspapers, magazines, boxes and scraps of wood. Never smoke while fueling gas-powered lawn mowers or chain saws. If you must store gasoline, store it in a ventilated area in a can designed especially for that purpose. And store oily rags and paint in a cool place in tightly sealed metal containers.

SUMMER: When cooking out, never use flammable liquids near live coals. An explosion or flash fire could result. When you've finished cooking, soak the coals with water and make absolutely sure they're out when you leave. Smoldering coals that appear to be "dead" can reignite as much as a day later. If you use a propane gas grill, always have the lighted match in position before turning on the gas.

Some tips for all seasons:

- Never leave invalids or small children alone in the house — not even for a "few minutes."

- Never use flammable liquids for dry cleaning indoors.

- Have periodic fire drills in your home to be sure everyone knows what to do in case of fire.

- Keep easy-to-use fire extinguishers in your kitchen, cottage, back bedrooms and on your boat. Invest in smoke detectors, and be sure that they are kept dust-free and in working order.

- The telephone number of your fire department should be taped to every telephone in your house. If it isn't, should a fire occur, don't waste time trying to find it; get out, and call from a neighbor's house. And once you are out, stay out. No treasure is worth risking your life for.

Hereditary problems cause swelling

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I and two of my sons have hereditary angioedema. It took many years of problems before this was diagnosed. I feel very lucky to have found a very good doctor. He now has me taking Danocrine, and I have had no problem since.

Dr. Donohue

Why do so few doctors know about this? We had some bad experiences with the swellings in the lining of the stomach. We all had surgery and were lucky things didn't get more serious before it was diagnosed. I hope this letter helps someone else who may have the problem. — M.B.

Angioedema is leaking of blood fluid into tissues. Most often the cause has to do with an allergy, but not with hereditary angioedema. It is a rare illness, and quite low on any list of diagnoses in patients with swelling.

In most cases of such swelling, the body utilizes an enzyme switch to turn it off. People with your inherited condition lack that enzyme switch. With the slightest trauma, tissues become flooded. If it happens in the skin, it's a nuisance, if in the airways, for example, health is seriously threatened. In the intestinal tract, the person experiences pain similar to that during major catastrophes, like intestinal perforation.

It's heartening to learn that you got your diagnosis and that your medicine is working so well for you. I presume that other members of your family have now had the blood test to see if they, too, lack the enzyme I mentioned. As rare as this illness is, I'm happy to discuss it, for undoubtedly there are others who have the trouble and don't realize what it is. Helping even one such person to seek assistance is among the rewards for being proprietor of a column like this.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I had been feeling weak for a few days. I saw my family doctor. He said he didn't know what was wrong, and there was nothing to do but wait it out. He said I had a muscle virus. I am 30 years old. Now I am concerned about this. Can it strike again?

Please tell me about muscle viruses. — Mrs. C.M.

I'm a bit confused by your longer letter (edited), in which you seem to be near panic about what your doctor told you. Why don't you talk to him again. I am sure he can put your mind at rest.

I can tell you that many relatively harmless viruses find muscle-tissue convenient targets. I am certain you have heard of the aches of flu. Even though the life of the virus is brief, it can get hyperactive in the body and cause widespread symptoms before it gives up its invasion. Almost always, there is complete recovery from such illnesses.

I could list a lengthy compendium of viruses that home in on muscle tissue, some with strange names, like ECHO and coxsackie. Yes, sometimes there are replays of such viral infections, but in time, the infection goes away without damage. I'm certain that if your doctor felt your virus infection was serious he would have told you that.

Emphysema can be controlled. To learn how to live with this serious lung problem, write to Dr. Donohue for a copy of his new booklet, "Emphysema-Bronchitis: The Twin Problems," P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and $1.00. Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Sisters see dad shoot mother, self

EL PASO (AP) — Two young sisters were found in a motel room where their father had shot their mother and himself, officials said. Alfredo C. Antunez, 36, and his wife Consuelo, age unavailable, were found dead in the motel Sunday by a family friend, said Sgt. Jimmy Apodaca. Police said Antunez apparently shot his wife in the chest and himself in the head with a small caliber pistol Saturday, police said.

Ruben Rodriguez, a friend of the Antunez family, said Sunday that he stopped by the motel room Saturday and the two girls said their parents were asleep. Rodriguez called police after the girls told him again their parents were sleeping when he returned Sunday afternoon, he said. He said the couple recently separated and Antunez was upset about a brain tumor he had.

Threats bring worker suspensions

DALLAS (AP) — At least six Dallas-area postal workers were suspended and ordered to undergo psychiatric examination after threatening to mimic an Oklahoma mail carrier who gunned down 14 people, officials said. "Basically they have made a threat to do the same thing as in Edmond, Okla., or something similar to that," said Barbara Haisley, spokeswoman for the Dallas division of the U.S. Postal Service. A postal union official, however, said the postal service is being "overly cautious." Patrick Sherrill, 44, fired more than 50 rounds of ammunition on employees and customers at the Edmond, Okla. post office Aug. 20 after an earlier reprimand by a supervisor. Sherrill, an expert marksman, killed 14 people, wounded eight others and then killed himself in the third worst mass slaying in U.S. history. Two of the six have returned to work after receiving "fitness-for-duty" reports, but the other four remained off duty without pay last week, Ms. Haisley said. Ms. Haisley said similar threats have been reported in Oklahoma and Arkansas, but postal inspectors declined to discuss the incidents because no charges have been brought.

Two arrested in protest assault

HOUSTON (AP) — Two men were arrested at an anti-abortion demonstration at Methodist Hospital after they allegedly took a reporter's tape recorder and broke the tape, officials said. Jo Ann Evansgardner, a reporter for the University of Houston newspaper, The Daily Cougar, said she was taking down the names of several ministers participating in the demonstration, while her husband, Gerald Gardner, 61, an electrical engineering professor at the school, held the recorder. Mrs. Evansgardner, 61, is a journalism student. "This young man snatched it out of his hand and, in grabbing it, he hit me on the shoulder and knocked me off my feet," she said after Saturday afternoon's demonstration. "A minister caught me" before she hit the ground. Mrs. Evansgardner said the man, with her husband in pursuit, ran with the tape recorder and later threw it to another man. The tape cassette cartridge was broken in half, she said. The two men arrested allegedly grabbed the tape recorder as the hour-long protest against the hospital's practice of performing abortions was ending about noon Saturday.

Texas plane crash injures couple

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A Florida man and his wife were hospitalized after the crash of their single-engine airplane just after takeoff at the Kerrville Municipal Airport. Karl Kane, 62, and Beverly Kane, 59, of Land O' Lakes, Fla. were in guarded condition late Sunday after the 10:11 a.m. crash.

Kane suffered a spinal fracture and Mrs. Kane had head injuries, a spokeswoman at Sid Peterson Hospital said. The couple was heading to their Florida home where the crash occurred, said Charlie Dugosh, a friend. Dugosh said a witness told him the plane was about 100 feet off the ground when the engine failed.

Loeffler divorcing wife of 16 years

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — When U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler gave up a seat in Congress to run for governor, he said much of the reason was that he wanted to spend more time with his family in Texas. But little more than a year after disclosing his decision to give up his position as the third-ranking Republican in the U.S. House, Loeffler is divorcing his wife of 16 years, the San Antonio Light reported Sunday. Loeffler filed for divorce in Kerrville Sept. 18 because the "marriage has become insupportable," his divorce petition states. "There is no doubt about it, it's bad times," longtime Loeffler supporter June Deason said. Loeffler declined to speak to a reporter about his future.

Bill Kloster, 68, manager of the Dr Pepper Bottling Plant in Dublin, has carried on the founder's tradition for 51 years. Kloster was hired as a bottle sorter at the age of 14 in 1933.

Bottling plant manager is still a pepper

By PAUL LONG
Fort Worth Star-Telegram
DUBLIN — A photograph of S.H. Prim stares sternly across the office of the 95-year-old Dr Pepper bottling plant in Dublin, directly at a modern-day advertising poster for the soft drink company. The poster features Ozy and the Space Cowboy — an intergalactic takeoff on previous Dr Pepper slogans. Prim, pictured in a three-piece suit and watch chain, founded the Dublin bottling plant — reportedly the oldest Dr Pepper plant in the world and one that clings stubbornly to tradition. Prim was an original Pepper, and he didn't need a T-shirt to prove it.

Billie Kloster has carried on Prim's tradition for 51 years. Prim hired Kloster in 1933 as a bottle sorter. Kloster was 14, and he sorted those bottles for a dime an hour. The 68-year-old Kloster is general manager of the bottling plant. It has been at 105 E. Elm since 1891. Kloster says Dr Pepper was first bottled in Dublin. Company officials say they can't verify that, but they have no records to disprove it. One thing's for sure: Few things have changed at the Dublin plant. And that's good for Dr Pepper freaks. Kloster still uses pure cane sugar in his brew. Most plants about 10 years ago switched to a cheaper corn syrup blend. Dublin Dr Pepper tastes like it did in the old days. But you can only get it within a 40-mile radius of Dublin. "That comes from way back in the horse and buggy days," Kloster said. "You couldn't deliver very far that way. I'm sure Mr. Prim picked up a pencil and drew a 40-mile circle around Dublin." That plant serves Erath County, Comanche County, Hamilton County and parts of Hood and Eastland counties. Kloster said several "regulars" who pass through town on business usually stop at the plant to pick up some old-fashioned Dr Pepper. "This lady from Waco was in here one day trying to sell me some insurance," Kloster said. "Of course, I didn't need any. Anyway, I gave her a bottle to sample and handed her a carton for her dad because he was a longtime Dr Pepper fan. Her husband and son wanted to know why she didn't bring some for them. So next time she was here she picked up some for them. "Another time an ol' boy was in here trying to sell me a copying machine. Of course, I didn't need one. Well, I gave him a couple of cases to take back to Fort Worth. He gave his boss a sample, and next time he was through here he to pick up some for his boss." Kloster said his plant and its 10 employees produce about $1 million a year in sales. Out of about 500 plants nationwide, Dublin ranks 18th in sales, just ahead of Newport, Ark., and behind Mount Pleasant, Texas. The Dublin plant doesn't put Dr Pepper in cans, just bottles. It would be too expensive to replace the ancient bottling equipment. The new machines wouldn't fit in the old plant, which also produces Diet Dr Pepper, Sun Crest Orange, Frostie Root Beer, Nu Grape and 2 Way lemon-lime. When the bottle-washer goes on the blink — a clanky machine made in 1946 — Kloster said he often visits a machine shop to have a part made. "We just have to improvise," he said. "We use baling wire a lot." The plant is owned by Prim's

UT to design dangerous jobs robot

AUSTIN (AP) — After a nuclear power plant has been permanently closed, who handles the highly dangerous work of dismantling it? And who goes into a coal mine or earthquake-ravaged area during a disaster to clean up debris or take on other dangerous missions? The U.S. Department of Energy has awarded a $4.2 million contract to the University of Texas at Austin to design a robot to do handle dangerous jobs. "Even if no new reactors are built, existing ones will have an increasing need for this technology, and it will be needed for fusion reactors as well," said Delbert Tesar, a UT mechanical engineering professor who is directing the project. Some UT engineers working on the project want the robot to be humanoid in appearance, similar in some respects to Hollywood movie robots. But Tesar said he expects the robot will more closely resemble a machine tool than a human. "If we do it right, we'll have modules for the system — arms, wrists and joints — that may or may not look like their biological cousins," he said. "But I'm in favor of it looking more like a mechanical structure." He said whatever the robot looks like it will be "highly dexterous" and rigged to be operated by humans, "much like a pilot uses a joystick to fly an airplane." Tesar told the Austin American-Statesman a major use for the robot system would be repair of steam-generator tubes in nuclear reactors. "The tubes leak and either have to be rewelded or, at least, cleaned periodically," he said. "We've analyzed this extensively and found that the robot system could save the industry about $300 million a year in 1980 dollars." Tesar expects UT will have the first mechanical elements of the robot operating within a year and a demonstration-type system ready within five years. But he said the initial federal grant will be only a drop in the bucket compared to the eventual cost of design and construction. "This money spread over five years is very, very modest for this extraordinary effort," he said. "UT has made a major commitment to start this program, and we're off to a good start. But we'll need more money and, maybe, a consortium of industry and universities." Tesar, who recently wrote a UT report on the state's failure to attract more than 3 percent of federal research dollars, hopes to use the nuclear reactor robot work as a lure to attract major federal funding for more UT-Austin work on robotics. He said similar robot systems could be used for tasks as varied as microsurgery and the handling of fuel and ammunition on a battlefield. U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said the award was "a significant step forward for the university in the U.S. scientific community." The universities of Florida, Tennessee and Michigan also are participating in the robotics research program as the United States steps up its pace in a renewed effort to catch up with other countries that lead in development of the crucial Space Age tool.

37 face fraud charges in unemployment case

DALLAS (AP) — In the past few weeks, the U.S. attorney's office here has filed criminal charges against 37 people, alleging they bilked the Texas Employment Commission of $85,000. It is the largest number of cases of alleged fraudulent unemployment insurance claims ever filed in Dallas, and the second largest in the state, following Houston, according to commission records. "During high periods of unemployment such as the state is now experiencing, the greater the incidence of unemployment insurance fraud," said Bill McCrea, an Austin-based supervisor of special investigations for the TEC. In August, Dallas accounted for about 26 percent of the state's estimated $177,917 in statewide claims believed to be false, records show. Mike Sheridan, director of internal audit at TEC, said he hopes that the 37 Dallas cases filed about the same time will "have a deterrent effect and send a message to the public that the commission is examining claims to see if they are legitimate." Most of the fraudulent claims involved people who had found work but were still claiming unemployment benefits, officials said. Most cases of fraud are found, he said, by computer cross-checking of Social Security numbers on wage tax records and unemployment payments.

Broncos dominate Pokes, 29-14

DENVER (AP) — In a span of 3:23 of the second quarter it was, for all intents and purposes, over.

A 16-point Denver Bronco outburst, keyed by the offensive heroics of John Elway and Gerald Willhite and a defensive gem from end Rulon Jones, got the Broncos started toward a 29-14 NFL victory Sunday over the Dallas Cowboys.

Some, however, would say the outcome ceased to be in doubt last week when Dallas quarterback Danny White went down with a practice-field injury, joining tailback Tony Dorsett on the sidelines.

As defensive tackle Randy White limped off the field in the first quarter with a hamstring pull, so did the Cowboys' realistic hopes of knocking the Broncos from the ranks of the unbeaten.

The Cowboys, who had tied an NFL record by scoring at least 30 points in their previous four games, must have known things were going to be different on this bright afternoon before a record Mile High Stadium crowd of 76,062.

In 17 drives inside the opponents' 20-yard line this season, the Cowboys had scored each time. On their first scoring threat against Denver, Dallas reached the Bronco 4-yard line, but quarterback Steve Pelluer was intercepted by cornerback Louis Wright, who returned the theft 56 yards to the Dallas 43.

Several minutes later, Willhite caught a 9-yard touchdown pass from Elway for the game's first score with 9:38 left in the second quarter.

Less than a minute later, Pelluer dropped back to pass in his own end zone and was sacked by Jones. It was the third safety-causing tackle of Jones' career, one short of the NFL record.

Gaining possession on the subsequent free kick, the Broncos went 58 yards in five plays, highlighted by Elway's on-the-run, on-the-money 50-yard heave to rookie Mark Jackson. Willhite dived over from one yard out for the TD with 6:15 left.

The Broncos made it a 22-point quarter with an 80-yard drive in the closing minutes of the half, Elway passing 15 yards to Willhite.

Dallas found some life in the third period, as Pelluer passed 30 yards to Timmy Newsome to help set up Herschel Walker's 3-yard scoring run. But the Broncos countered with an 80-yard drive that consumed seven minutes, with Elway passing 12 yards to Gene Lang for a 29-7 advantage.

Pelluer threw four yards to Newsome for a consolation Cowboy TD with 5:12 remaining.

Pelluer completed 24 of 44 passes for 271 yards, but was intercepted three times and sacked five times. More damaging was the inability of the Cowboys to run against the NFL's top rushing defense. Dallas managed just 41 yards on the ground on 21 carries, with Walker limited to 33 yards on 15 carries.

"Our defense did a super job shutting down the running game," said Denver Coach Dan Reeves. "We felt if we could stop Herschel in the backfield before he got up his head of steam, we could control the running game. That was a key."

Reeves, a player and assistant coach for 16 years in Dallas, called the victory over his mentor, Tom Landry, "extra special."

However, he also said he sympathized with Landry. "He did not come in at full strength, and I'm sure they would have done better with a complete team."

Elway said the Broncos intentionally disregarded Dallas' injury problems. "You never think about that," he said. "You have to prepare for the team that you're playing as if they are at full strength. We have to play hard and concentrate on our own play, and that's one of the reasons for our success."

Landry described his team's play as "dull."

"When you use a player of Randy White's caliber, it's bound to hurt your defense," he said. "We played Mark Tuinei the rest of the way and he did a credible job, but he's not Randy White. Few people are. Elway's scrambling ability also had a big effect on our lack of pressure."

"Steve Pelluer did as good a job as he could without any help. He just didn't have the time to execute. Denver's defense continually put pressure on him."

Dallas, 3-2, is home against Washington next Sunday. Denver, 5-0, plays at San Diego.

Denver Broncos Gerald Willhite (37) lands on his head after being tackled by Dallas Cowboys linebacker Steve DeOssie (55) during Sunday's NFL game in Denver. Willhite scored three touchdowns in the Broncos' 29-14 win.

Houston's Allen Pinkett (20) and Wille Drewery (82) bobbie a kickoff return in the end zone during the fourth quarter of Sunday's game in Detroit. The Lions beat the Oilers 24-13.

Oilers lose fourth straight

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — It was the kind of game Detroit fullback James Jones hopes the Lions can build on. But it was just one more that Houston quarterback Warren Moon will have to forget.

Jones rushed for 76 yards and two touchdowns Sunday to help the Lions beat the Oilers 24-13 despite a 396-yard passing day by Moon, his best since coming to the NFL from Canada in 1984.

Both teams needed the victory desperately. The Lions, 2-3, broke a three-game losing streak while Houston, 1-4, has lost four straight.

"I'm hoping this game will start an avalanche effect," said Jones, who had a pair of 1-yard TD dives in the Lions' 21-point second quarter. "Maybe we'll get the feeling that, 'Hey, this feels good.' Maybe we can get rolling and win six or seven in a row."

The Oilers need to get something started, too, and soon, but Moon, who gave up three costly interceptions, has no illusions that it will be easy.

"Our backs are against the wall," said Moon, who completed 21 of 38, including five for 155 yards to Ernest Givins and an 81-yard TD bomb to Drew Hill. "Now, with the Chicago Bears coming in, we have no easy games left."

"The stats say we had a good game but the score says we lost."

Houston Coach Jerry Glanville was distressed that the Oilers couldn't run against the Lions and that Moon couldn't get the ball into the end zone more. Only 56 of the Oilers' 454 net yards came on the ground.

"Well, we didn't do it when we got down close," said Glanville, a former Lions' assistant and graduate of Northern Michigan University. "He (Moon) knew he had to put the ball in the end zone."

"Yardage doesn't mean anything if you don't get points, but a lot of people played hard for the Houston Oilers. Unfortunately, if you don't win, it doesn't matter."

A 25-yard field goal by Houston's Tony Zendejas was the only scoring in the first quarter.

But two costly Houston penalties helped the Lions go 72 yards in 16 plays, running 7:54 off the clock to take a 7-3 lead on Jones' first TD at 5:28 of the second quarter, and the Lions led the rest of the way. Two minutes and 33 seconds later, Jones scored again.

"A whole lot of things went our way," Detroit Coach Darryl Rogers said. "A couple penalties really helped us."

Moon narrowed it to 14-10 in only two plays as he and Hill hooked up on the long TD pass play, but the Lions answered with an 18-yard TD pass from Eric Hipple to Herman Hunter.

It was one of only seven completions for Hipple who attempted 14 passes. The Oilers' AFC-leading defense held Hipple to minus-5 passing yards in the first quarter and to just 93 for the game.

Zendejas kicked a 19-yard field goal as the first half expired. The Oilers didn't know it, but they were through scoring for the day.

The third quarter was a comedy of errors by both teams and, at times, the officials, but nobody scored. A 48-yard fourth-quarter field goal by Detroit's Eddie Murray wrapped up the scoring.

"I think a lot of players showed great courage, spilled their guts, played as hard as they could play," Glanville said. "Unfortunately, it's not enough. You have to win the football game, which we didn't do."

Bears devour Vikings; Eagles surprise Falcons

By The Associated Press
Keith Ortego and Jerry Rice don't settle for small potatoes when it comes to catching passes.

The second-year NFL wide receivers, Ortego for Chicago and Rice for San Francisco, took turns embarrassing the opposition with long pass plays Sunday, catching six passes each.

"He had the adrenaline going," Bears quarterback Jim McMahon said after teaming with Ortego for 157 yards and one touchdown in a 23-0 victory over Minnesota. "I knew he was fast, but not that fast."

"We've always wanted a big-play receiver and we certainly have him, and we have to take full advantage of him," 49ers Coach Bill Walsh said of Rice after he combined with Jeff Kemp for 172 yards and three touchdowns in a 35-21 victory over the Indianapolis Colts.

Ortego caught a 49-yard pass to set up a two-yard touchdown by Walter Payton in the second quarter, putting Chicago ahead 7-0. McMahon also hit Ortego for a 58-yard bomb in the fourth quarter.

Rice caught scoring passes of 45, 58 and 16 yards from Kemp. The former Mississippi Valley State star now has six touchdowns this season, four of them for 45 or more yards.

Ortego, a third-string wide receiver and kick returner for Chicago last year, started Sunday because of injuries to Dennis McKinnon, Ken Margerum and Dennis Gentry.

"My teammates didn't know I had it in me," Ortego said. "Now they're calling me 'White Lightning.'"

The Bears, who join Washington and Denver as the NFL's only unbeaten teams after five weeks, posted their first shutout of the season after notching two in last season's playoffs on their way to the Super Bowl championship. The Bears intercepted two passes by Tommy Kramer and sacked him seven times while holding the Vikings to 159 yards of offense, including 45 on the ground.

McMahon, who has won his last 20 starts, finished the day with 12 completions in 19 attempts for 204 yards and one interception.

But Ortego was clearly the Bears' star.

"I've been waiting for a day like this to prove myself to my teammates and the fans," Ortego said.

Kemp completed 18 of 27 passes for 274 yards and no interceptions.

"When I see (Rice) running free it gives me confidence," said Kemp, starting his fourth game for 4-1 San Francisco since Joe Montana injured his back. "I can throw it out there about as far and high as I want and know he's going to get to it."

Eagles 16 Falcons 0

Philadelphia held Atlanta to 228 yards, 196 under their league-leading average, to hand the Falcons their first loss.

The Eagles stopped the Falcons from scoring when they went inside the 10 on their first two possessions, snapping a streak of 16 consecutive times that Atlanta had scored when it got inside the 20.

Philadelphia's offense struggled early, but Junior Tautalatasi and Ron Johnson turned short passes into long gains that set up a touchdown and field goal late in the first half. Ron Jaworski's eight-yard pass to Mike Quick accounted for the only touchdown of the game.

Paul McFadden kicked three field goals for the Eagles.

Raiders 24 Chiefs 17

Los Angeles started a rally from a 17-0 deficit with a touchdown pass from Marc Wilson to Dokie Williams that the replay official tried to disallow.

Jack Reader, the official in the video replay booth, ruled that Williams was out of bounds on a 12-yard touchdown pass in the second quarter. But umpire Jim Keck misunderstood Reader and mistakenly let the play stand.

After Williams' controversial catch, Napoleon McCallum scored his first NFL touchdown on a 12-yard run and Jim Plunkett, off the bench when Wilson suffered a hand injury, put the Raiders on top with an 18-yard touchdown pass to Jesse Hester.

Redskins 14 Saints 6

George Rogers pounded his former New Orleans teammates for 110 yards on 31 carries, including a touchdown, giving him seven for the season.

Jay Schroeder hit Art Monk with a two-yard scoring pass in the second quarter for Washington's other touchdown. New Orleans' scores came on two field goals by Morten Andersen.

Jets 14 Bills 13

Mickey Shuler's 36-yard touchdown reception from Ken O'Brien with 57 seconds remaining lifted New York over luckless Buffalo.

The Bills, whose only touchdown was a 40-yard pass from Jim Kelly to Greg Bell, has led in the fourth quarter in all five of its games and has been outscored by a total of 11 points in its four losses.

The Jets, trailing 13-7, went 80 yards in five plays for the winning score. O'Brien's third-and-1 pass found Shuler behind strong safety Martin Bayless.

Patriots 34 Dolphins 7

Tony Eason threw two touchdown passes before suffering a rib injury and New England scored on five of its first six possessions as Miami fell to 1-4 for the first time since Don Shula became coach in 1970.

Eason, who completed 12 of 16 passes, threw touchdown passes of two yards to Willie Scott and 38 yards to Irving Fryar in the first half. Eason left the game in the final minute of the first half and may not play next Sunday against the New York Jets.

Dan Marino was intercepted three times before his four-yard pass to Lorenzo Hampton in the fourth quarter let Miami avoid its first shutout since 1982.

Rams 26 Buccaneers 20

Eric Dickerson ran 42 yards for his second touchdown of the game 2:16 into overtime, lifting Los Angeles over Tampa Bay.

Dickerson, the NFL's leading rusher this season, ran for more than 200 yards for the fourth time in his career, finishing with 207 yards on 30 carries. He also scored on a 40-yard run in the first quarter.

Tampa Bay, which lost its second overtime game in a row, had forced the overtime when Donald Igwebuike kicked a 37-yard field goal as time expired in regulation.

Giants 13 Cardinals 6

New York improved its record to 4-1 despite a listless performance against winless St. Louis.

The Giants netted only 144 yards in total offense, while Pro Bowl quarterback Phil Simms managed only eight completions and 104 yards in 24 passes. In their 55-yard drive to the game's only touchdown in the third quarter, 31 of the yards came on a pass interference penalty against St. Louis cornerback Lionel Washington.

Joe Morris finished the drive with a one-yard scoring run. Phil McConkey's 20-yard punt return set up the first of two field goals by Raul Allegre in the second quarter as the Giants overcame a 3-0 deficit.

Browns 27 Steelers 24

Cleveland won in Pittsburgh for the first time since 1969 and for the first time ever at Three Rivers Stadium.

Ernest Byner ran four yards for the deciding touchdown following a fourth-period fumble by the Steelers.

Gerald McNeil scored on a 100-yard kickoff return as the Browns withstood three fumbles that led to Steelers' scores. Bernie Kosar threw a 16-yard scoring pass to rookie Webster Slaughter.

Bengals 34 Packers 28

Boomer Esiason threw three touchdown passes and James Brooks ran for two touchdowns in a 27-point second quarter as Cincinnati handed Green Bay its fifth straight loss.

Esiason completed scoring throws of 13, seven and 15 yards. The first two of those touchdown passes were to Cris Collinsworth.

Brooks, who rushed for 94 yards on 20 carries, scored on touchdown runs of nine and eight yards in the second quarter.

Chargers test Seahawks

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle is trying to stay close to unbeaten Denver in the AFC West, and San Diego wants to avert a fourth straight defeat, but the attention tonight will be on the chase for two pass-catching records.

The Seahawks' Steve Largent and 38-year-old Charlie Joiner of the Chargers can establish National Football League receiving marks in the first of two meetings this year between the AFC West rivals.

Largent can set his mark by catching a pass in his 128th consecutive regular-season game, and Joiner needs only 19 receiving yards to pass Don Maynard's record total of 11,834 yards.

"I would think Largent would get CHARGERS page 1B

Tickets for Steers games
 Because of the large demand for football tickets to the Big Spring Steer High School football games the following schedule will be followed for the sale of football tickets for the 1986 football season. Tickets for the week on that particular game will be the only tickets available for sale.

MONDAYS
 8:30 a.m. thru 4:30 p.m. tickets will go on sale for out of town games only. For season ticket holders only. The season ticket holder will be able to buy one out of town ticket for every season ticket package they purchased.
 5:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. out of town and home game tickets will be sold on a first come basis.

TUESDAY-THURSDAY
 Tickets for out of town and home games will be sold from 8:30 a.m. thru 5:00 p.m. on a first come first serve basis.

FRIDAY
 Tickets for out of town and home games will be sold from 8:30 a.m. thru 2:00 p.m.

The ticket office is located at the central administration office across from the high school at 708 11th Place. We will be open Monday thru Friday from 12:00 p.m. to 1:00 p.m.

Hoop tournament scheduled
 The old Howard College gym will be the site of a 12-team basketball tournament Oct. 31-Nov. 2.
 Each team will play at least two games. Entry fee is $100 per team. The first four teams will receive team trophies and the first two teams will also receive individual trophies. Entry fee and 10-man rosters are due Oct. 25.
 There will also be a slam dunk contest and three point contest. An all-tournament team will also be chosen.
 To enter call Roy Green or Scott Horseman at Howard College at 263-6311, or call 263-4202.

Boxing club preps for tournament
 The Big Spring Boxing Club, located at front entrance of Industrial Park in building 625, is asking all club members to come and train for the upcoming tournament in San Antonio.
 Training hours are from 6-8 p.m. weekly, and from 10 a.m.-noon and 1-3 on Saturdays.
 For more information call Zeke Valles at 263-6023 or Joe Martinez at 267-4365. The boxing club number is 267-9013.

Special Olympic bowling tourney
 Highland Lanes will be the site of a bowling tournament Saturday, Oct. 11 for Area 18 Special Olympics teams. The tournament will be from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. Teams from Big Spring, Stanton, Odessa, Midland and Ft. Stockton will be competing.
 A parent reception is also planned along with a bowling clinic, which will be conducted by a professional bowler.

Orioles to have father-son combination

BALTIMORE (AP) — Cal Ripken Sr., bypassed for the job twice previously, was to be named manager of the Baltimore Orioles today, The Associated Press has learned.

The American League club called a 10 a.m. news conference apparently to name a replacement for Earl Weaver, who retired Sunday for the second time in four years. Weaver had announced his decision to step down last month.

The Orioles scheduled the news conference after the clubhouse had been cleared following Sunday's final game, a 6-3 loss to Detroit, saying only that "a major announcement will be made."

Ripken, reached later at his home in Aberdeen, declined to comment directly, but added: "I have an invitation to attend a press conference in Baltimore on Monday."

Ripken, who like Weaver never played in the major leagues, is a veteran of 30 years in the Baltimore organization. He managed for more than 13 seasons, the last time in 1974.

After serving as a scout and trouble shooter in 1975, he joined the major league staff in 1976 as a bullpen coach. The following season, he became third base coach when Billy Hunter left to manage the Texas Rangers.

Ripken, the father of Orioles shortstop Cal Ripken Jr., and Frank Robinson, a Baltimore coach with previous major league managerial experience, are believed to be the only candidates interviewed in person by General Manager Hank Peters.

Ripken apparently was the frontrunner from the beginning, and his choice has been backed privately by the players, some of whom he managed in the minors.

Ripken was passed over for the job twice previously — when Weaver retired at the end of the 1982 season and again when successor Joe Altobelli, another longtime organization man, was fired last season.

Chargers

Continued from page 1B his first," Joiner said. "But if I don't set the record and we win, that's fine with me."

Harold Carmichael will be on the sidelines to congratulate Largent in a brief ceremony if the Seattle receiver breaks the record Carmichael set with Philadelphia from 1972-80. Largent tied the record in Seattle's 19-14 loss in Washington last Sunday.

Seattle, 3-1, is listed as a 6½-point favorite against the Chargers, 1-3. The Seahawks have won six of their last seven meetings with San Diego, including four straight.

The game is especially important in the AFC West race because the Broncos are off to a 5-0 start. The Seahawks don't want to fall two games behind Denver, a 29-14 winner over Dallas Sunday.

San Diego Coach Don Coryell desperately needs a victory if his team is going to have any chance of making the playoffs for the first time in four seasons. Quarterback Dan Fouts calls it "a must game" for the Chargers, who are hoping to rebound from a 17-13 defeat to the Raiders in Los Angeles.

Fouts suffered a broken nose in the first half against the Raiders but the blood-splattered quarterback stayed in the game with his nose taped in place and his nostrils taped shut to control the bleeding. He is scheduled to start against the Seahawks and will wear a plastic shield under his face mask.

Fouts, 35, has been intercepted 11 times in the Chargers' last three games and has come in for a lot of the blame for his team's poor start. He has had 47 300-yard passing games and six 400-yard passing games in his brilliant career, but doesn't have one of those this season.

But Seattle Coach Chuck Knox, a long-time Fouts' admirer, is worried that the Seahawks could be in for a long night if Fouts gets hot.

"Dan Fouts hasn't missed a beat," Knox said. "He's made some of the greatest throws I've seen in the four films I've looked at."

Although the Seahawks have won three of their first four, they have failed to get as much pressure as they want on opposing quarterbacks.

The Seahawks have had six sacks in their four games and didn't have one in their loss to the Redskins.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You need to stop, look and listen before you impulsively do anything of importance that can affect your relations with other persons since you are restless now.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You want to get into new activities. It is better to study them further before plunging in.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Handle unfinished business wisely. Don't commit yourself to anything new that you don't understand.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A stressful situation may arise with an associate. Keep your poise here. Show more objectivity.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Give your full attention to work and get good results. Use a more tactful approach with co-workers.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) If you are more patient you can express your talents far better. Try not to lose your temper with anyone.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If you study a problematical affair at home you should know how to solve it. Don't entertain tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study communications well. Be sure to use tact and get right to the point for the best results now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take care you do not make that unwise move where a financial or property matter is concerned.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be with persons who you enjoy and will not get on your nerves. You need more rest, so retire early.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Come to a better understanding with your allies by being patient. This attitude alleviates worry.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make sure to keep any promises you have made. Social life will be boring so think and act constructively.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) It's important to handle community and civic affairs. Take no risks where credit is concerned.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have to make many changes during the lifetime. Give as fine an education as you can so that your progeny won't be too eager to state his, or her, views without first thinking the matter over clearly and carefully. Sports are fine for this child.

Rangers win last game against champs

By The Associated Press
The Boston Red Sox and California Angels say their mini-slumps are over. They're ready to start the American League playoffs.

"The intensity level will pick up on Tuesday, though, and with that the bats will pick up," vowed Boston's Wade Boggs, the major league batting champion.

The Red Sox dropped their final four games of the season at home to the New York Yankees, including a 7-0 loss Sunday. Boston equaled its season high with four straight defeats and scored only five runs on 18 hits in the process.

The Angels won only twice in nine games after clinching the AL West title, yet Manager Gene Mauch is not concerned.

"It would be silly to be worried about it," Mauch said after Sunday's 7-4 loss in Texas. "What counts is Tuesday. It's a whole new season."

Game 1 of the playoffs will be Tuesday night in Fenway Park and matches Boston's Roger Clemens, 24-4, against Mike Witt, 18-10.

Boggs finished with a .357 average and won his third AL batting title. He did not play in Boston's final four games because of a right hamstring injury. He expects to start the playoff opener.

Boggs won the batting title over New York's Don Mattingly, who went 2-for-5 Sunday and finished at .352. Mattingly, needing to go 6-for-6 to overtake Boggs, was moved into the leadoff spot in the Yankees' lineup and led off the game with his 31st home run. He later hit his 53rd double, surpassing the team record of 52 set by Lou Gehrig in 1927.

Don Sutton, scheduled to start Game 4 of the playoffs for California, took the loss in Texas. Sutton, 15-11, gave up nine hits and six earned runs in 5 2-3 innings. On Thursday, Witt was shelled for eight hits and four runs in three innings.

"Sutton's fine, Witt's fine," Mauch said.

The bright spots for the Angels on Sunday were rookie Wally Joyner, who hit a two-run single that gave him 100 RBI, and Doug DeCinces' 26th homer, a two-run shot.

Texas rookie Pete Incaviglia hit a two-run homer in the first inning, his 30th. He became the 11th rookie in AL history and the 16th in the majors to hit 30 homers as a rookie.

Charlie Hough, 17-10, pitched a five-hitter and closed the season with a five-game winning streak.

A's 6, Royals 0
Curt Young pitched 6 2-3 perfect innings and finished with a one-hitter as Oakland defeated Kansas City.

Tigers 6, Orioles 3
Darnell Coles and Matt Nokes homered as Detroit beat Baltimore and finished with a five-game winning streak and in third place in the AL East.

The host Orioles, playing their final game under Manager Earl Weaver, finished in last place for the first time in their history. After the game, their 42nd loss in 56 games, the Orioles scheduled a news conference for today and were expected to name third-base Coach Cal Ripken Sr. as their new manager.

Indians 4, Mariners 2
Joe Carter drove in his major league-leading 121st run and Tom Candiotti pitched his AL-leading 17th complete game as Cleveland defeated Seattle.

Twins 3, White Sox 0
Frank Viola pitched a two-hitter for his first shutout since Aug. 12, 1984, leading Minnesota past Chicago. Viola, 16-13, struck out nine and walked one.

Brewers 2, Blue Jays 1
Dale Sveum's RBI single with two outs in the ninth inning led Milwaukee to a second-game victory and a sweep of the double-header in Toronto.

The Blue Jays, who won last year's AL East title, finished fourth this season.

Sveum's single broke a 2-2 tie. The Brewers tied it in the fourth on Robin Yount's solo homer, his eighth.

Yount's two-out single in the eighth inning of the first game drove home Jim Ganter from second base, snapping a 1-1 tie.

Mark Clear saved both games, giving him 16 this season.

Astros end regular season on solid note

By The Associated Press
Neither team looked away, flinched or even blinked. The New York Mets and Houston Astros wanted to make sure any weakness, however slight, were well hidden heading into their playoff showdown.

Both New York and Houston won their last five games to set new club victory records and try to gain some psychological advantage for this week's seven-game playoff series, which opens Wednesday night in Houston.

On Sunday, starter Bob Knepper pitched five perfect innings as the first of five Houston pitchers to combine on a four-hitter in a 4-1 triumph over the Atlanta Braves. The Astros just missed getting their seventh shutout in 11 games when Dave Smith allowed three hits in the ninth inning, including Andre Thomas' RBI single.

Darryl Strawberry hit a grand slam, Gary Carter added a three-run homer and Ron Darling and Sid Fernandez combined on a four-hitter in the Mets' 9-0 rout of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Knepper, who equalled the Houston record for most victories by a left-hander set in 1973 by Dave Roberts, was followed by Danny Darwin, Jeff Calhoun, Charlie Kerfeld and Smith for the victory.

The victory was the Astros' 96th, the most in their history. But New York won its 108th, matching the 1975 Cincinnati Reds' "Big Red Machine" for the most victories in the National League since divisional play began in 1969.

"It differentiates between the good teams and the great teams," Darling, 15-6, said. "We wanted that game because it put us in an echelon with the Reds."

While the Mets got into the record book, so did Atlanta Manager Chuck Tanner. By managing the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1984 and 1985 and guiding the Braves to a 72-89 finish this year, Tanner became the first major-league manager to lead three consecutive last-place teams since Preston Gomez of Padres in 1969-71.

Carter's first-inning homer put the Mets up 3-0 and Ray Knight hit his 11th of the season in the fourth for a 5-0 lead. Strawberry's 27th homer of the season in the fifth off Ray Krawczyk, the fourth of seven Pittsburgh pitchers, capped the barrage.

Fernandez pitched the final four innings for his first major-league save.

For Houston, Jose Cruz hit a two-run double to provide the minimal offense required by the Astros' pitching staff.

Phillies 2, Expos 1
Luis Aguayo scored on Dann Bilardello's passed ball in the bottom of the 10th inning, enabling Dan Schatzeder, 6-5, to get his second victory in as many days as Philadelphia finished with an 86-75 record, third best behind New York and Houston.

Aguayo led off the 10th with a single off Curt Brown, 0-1, and moved to third on sacrifices by Milt Thompson and Jeff Stone. With Rick Schu at the plate, Bilardello allowed Brown's pitch to get beyond him and permitted Aguayo to score.

Montreal outfielder Tim Raines did not play Sunday and finished with a .334 batting average, ahead of the Dodgers' Steve Sax' .332 and San Diego's Tony Gwynn's .329 to win the NL batting title.

Padres 2, Reds 1
Andy Hawkins tossed a three-hitter over eight innings in Cincinnati for his first victory in six weeks.

Giants 11, Dodgers 2
San Francisco's Candy Maldonado hit a grand slam and a two-run homer and Mike Krukow pitched a seven-hitter over 6 1-3 innings to win 20 games for the first time in his major-league career.

Krukow, 20-9, also drove in two runs for the visitors with a fifth-inning single and a seventh-inning bunt.

Chicago 8, St. Louis 1
Jody Davis and Brian Dayett hit home runs and Guy Hoffman combined with rookie Drew Hall on a seven-hitter for the Cubs.

The second game of the scheduled double-header at Wrigley Field was cancelled due to darkness in the second inning with no score.

Pitching name of game in playoffs

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer
Roger Clemens, Mike Scott, Dwight Gooden, Mike Witt, Nolan Ryan, Ron Darling, Kirk McCaskill, "Oil Can" Boyd.

Pitching dominates the playoffs. The New York Mets, Houston Astros, Boston Red Sox and California Angels — the teams with the four best records in baseball — all have hitters. But pitching what got them into the playoffs, and pitching is what wins in the postseason.

Ask the Kansas City Royals. Despite having next-to-worst hitting in the American League last season, the team's young pitchers carried it through the newly expanded best-of-seven playoffs and to the World Series championship.

This year, New York and Houston ranked 1-2 in earned run average in the National League. California led the AL and Boston, despite playing half of its games in cozy Fenway Park, was third.

"Talk about great pitching. Just look at the playoffs this year," gushed Mike Schmidt, the Philadelphia Phillies' slugger. "How many strikeouts are we gonna have?"

And how many close games?

The Mets won the season series from Houston 7-5, and the teams split six one-run decisions. The Angels won seven of 12 against Boston, with three runs being enough to win eight of the games.

For the Red Sox, the key is Roger Clemens. He became the first American Leaguer to win the pitching Triple Crown of victories, earned run average and strikeouts since Lefty Grove in 1931, but got hit in the right elbow by a line drive in a tuneup start Wednesday night.

Clemens is scheduled to start Game 1 of the playoffs on Tuesday night in Boston. He says he will be ready; the Red Sox say they will check him each day to make sure.

"We're not talking a matter of weeks, we're talking a matter of days," said Red Sox physician Dr. Arthur Pappas, who predicted Clemens would "be throwing again in the early playoffs."

Clemens went 3-0 against the Angels this season. He was scheduled to face Witt, an 18-game winner and second to Clemens in ERA, in the opener.

Bruce Hurst, 13-7 with a 2.87 ERA, and Boyd, 16-10, were to follow Clemens. For the AL West champions, after Witt it was to be McCaskill, 17-9, and then veterans John Candelaria, 9-4, and Don Sutton, 15-10.

Donnie Moore is California's veteran stopper, while Calvin Schiraldi, recalled from the minors in midseason after overcoming arm problems, has a 1.31 ERA.

Perhaps part of the reason the Red Sox won this season is because they do not resemble a typical Red Sox team. While they have strong pitching, their home runs are down. Instead of a traditional power-packed ballclub built for Fenway Park, Boston finished 11th in the AL in home runs.

Boston Red Sox pitcher Roger Clemens bears down in one of his pitching performances in September. Clemens, who led the Major League in wins this season, will be Boston's starting pitcher in Tuesday's opening game.

Still, Jim Rice and Bill Buckner each drove in more than 100 runs, with Dwight Evans and Don Baylor coming close. And, Wade Boggs once again hit his customary .350.

California's offense was led by all-around rookie Wally Joyner. He gave the Angels the power they never had at first base in Rod Carew.

Reggie Jackson, already informed by the Angels that he will not be re-signed for next year, batted below .250 but managed to hit 18 home runs. No telling what will happen to "Mr. October" this time around — his career average for 10 playoff series is just .234, but his World Series mark is .357 with 10 home runs.

The Angels have never reached the World Series, having lost in the playoffs in 1979 and 1982. The Red Sox were last in the World Series in 1975, but haven't won there since Babe Ruth pitched them to the 1918 championship.

"I like Boston because they've got Clemens," Oakland rookie Jose Canseco said.

"I like California," Texas first baseman Pete O'Brien said. "The pitching is so good on both sides, but Candelaria neutralizes Boston's left-handed bats to a big extent."

The lefty-righty matchups could also play big roles in the NL playoffs, which start Wednesday night at the ballpark known as "Astrodoom" to hitters.

Mets Manager Davey Johnson, whose team ran away with the NL East, named Gooden as his Game 1 pitcher. Gooden, 16-6, a fastballing right-hander, was to be followed by off-speed lefty Bob Ojeda, 17-5 and 2.64 ERA, and then hard-throwing righty Ron Darling, 14-6.

Scott, who led the majors in ERA and strikeouts and compiled an 18-10 record that included a no-hitter, was Houston Manager Hal Lanier's choice for the opener. Next was Ryan, who has been blowing away batters since returning from the disabled list two months ago. In Game 3, it was to be Bob Knepper, a lefty whose advantage against Mets left-handers enabled him to beat them three times in going 16-12.

Each team features a double-barreled bullpen. For the Mets, it's Roger McDowell, 14 victories and 21 saves, and Jesse Orosco, 20 saves. The Astros have Dave Smith, 32 saves, and rookie Charlie Kerfeld, who is 11-2 with a 2.65 ERA.

"It should be a great series," Willie McGee of the St. Louis Cardinals said. "The Astros' pitching is just as good as the Mets'. They haven't had to play under any pressure. I think everything is pointing to the Astros."

Houston has the advantage of playing four games at home — this year, a scheduling conflict with the NFL forced baseball to start the NL series in the home of the West champion for the second straight season.

Glenn Davis and Kevin Bass give the Astros a 1-2 power punch they haven't had in recent years. Gary Carter and Darryl Strawberry provide New York's longballs after pesky Len Dykstra and Wally Backman get on base and Keith Hernandez gets his chance to drive them in.

Houston lost in its only previous NL playoff appearance, in 1980 to Philadelphia. The Mets won their only World Series in 1969, and have not been in the playoffs since 1973.

"The teams basically stack up pretty evenly," Johnson said, comparing his Mets and the Astros. "We have six left-handed hitters in the lineup. They have six left-handed hitters. The bullpens and the starting staffs are very similar. I think it's going to be a low-scoring series."

AL playoff matchups

By The Associated Press
CATCHER
Rich Gedman of the Red Sox is the better hitter, about 30 points in average and a lot more power. Bob Boone of the Angels is better defensively.

Boston, which stole the fewest bases in the majors this season, stole none against Boone and the Angels; California swiped five against the Red Sox. In other words, Boston's glaring weakness — a lack of speed — works in reverse to cancel Boone's primary strength.

Give the edge to Gedman.

FIRST BASE
Rookie Wally Joyner gave the Angels the power at first base they never had with Rod Carew. Joyner and Boston veteran Bill Buckner each hit about 20 home runs with 100 RBI, although Joyner's average was slightly higher.

The biggest difference between them is defensive. Joyner's legs are younger and he covers a lot more ground than the 36-year-old Buckner.

The edge to Joyner.

SECOND BASE
Marty Barrett does a lot of good things for Boston. He hits around .290 and has nearly 40 doubles. He also tends a neat second base. Still, he gets overshadowed on the Red Sox.

Bobby Grich, at age 37, has not gotten as much playing time as in the past. His .275 average is up, his 30 RBI are down. People like to talk about how veterans help in the postseason, but Grich is batting only .172 in four previous playoff series.

An edge to Barrett.

SHORTSTOP
Dick Schofield, like his major-league father, is not eye-poppingly exciting. But, he bats .250 with 13 home runs and helps the Angels turn a lot of double plays.

Spike (his real first name) Owen got a second life when he was traded from Seattle to Boston in time to be eligible for the playoffs. He is a fine fielder, a poor-to-mediocre hitter.

The edge to Schofield.

THIRD BASE
Wade Boggs of the Red Sox is leading the major leagues with a nearly .360 average, and 100-plus walks boost his on-base average to over .450. Years of taking 100 practice grounders before each game have turned him from a below-average fielder into a pretty good one.

Doug DeCinces of the Angels has hit 25 homers and is approaching 100 RBI. His range is not what it was 10 years ago. He has been in two playoffs series, and hit over .300 in both of them.

The edge to Boggs.

LEFT FIELD
Jim Rice is having an MVP-type year for the Red Sox. He is batting .322 with 20 homers and 108 RBI, and his experience in playing balls off the Green Monster helps.

Brian Downing has hit 20 home runs with more than 90 RBI, along with nearly 90 walks. An average fielder.

A solid edge to Rice.

CENTER FIELD
California's Gary Pettis is among the best defensive players in the majors at his position. He hits .260 and leads the team with 47 stolen bases.

Boston's Tony Armas enjoyed a slight resurgence in the second half of the season and wound up hitting over .260 with almost 60 RBI.

Different strengths make them even.

RIGHT FIELD
Dwight Evans hit 26 home runs with nearly 100 RBI. He also drew 90 walks, a valuable skill when hitting high in the Boston lineup. His defensive skills have always been among the best.

George Hendrick, who batted barely over .200 with four home runs as a 35-year-old last season, has done swell for the Angels in 1986. He hit .274 with 14 homers and 47 RBI while platooning with left-handed Ruppert Jones, who hit only .229 but had 16 home runs.

Evans gets the edge.

DESIGNATED HITTER
Well, can Reggie do it again? Jackson, melancholy since the Angels told him he will not be re-signed for next year, is hitting .245 with 18 homers — three against Boston — and 58 RBI, plus 90 walks. He is known as Mr. October, even though his career average for 10 playoff series is only .234. It's in the World Series where he shines, with a .357 mark that includes 10 homers.

Don Baylor hit 31 home runs with 92 RBI for the Red Sox. Baylor starred for the Angels in their 1982 AL playoff loss to Milwaukee, driving in 10 runs during five games.

Which Reggie will show up? Call it even for now.

PITCHING
The Angels led the league in pitching. The Red Sox finished third, but doing it in Fenway Park half the time makes their numbers more impressive.

Clemens is the key. If he is healthy, Boston's penciled-in starters — Clemens, Bruce Hurst and "Oil Can" Boyd — match up well with California's Big Four of Mike Witt, Kirk McCaskill, John Candelaria and Don Sutton.

Donnie Moore is the Angels' veteran stopper. The right-hander has a 2.75 earned run average and left-handed short man Gary Lucas is at 2.98.

Calvin Schiraldi, promoted from the minors in midseason after overcoming arm problems, is Boston's hot man in the clutch — a 1.31 ERA in 23 games. Bob Stanley has done better than his 6-6 record and 4.48 ERA might indicate.

With Clemens healthy, the Boston pitchers may rate a slight edge. Without him, the Red Sox are hurting.
