How's that?

Hummingbirds

Q. When should I take in my hummingbird feeder?

A. If you haven't already, take it in now, said bird rehabilitator Bebe McCasland. If you continue to feed the hummingbirds, they may stay instead of flying south for the winter, she said, and if they get caught in the cold, they could die.

A good indication when you should stop feeding hummingbirds is when the trumpet vine stops blooming, she said.

RICKY ORNELAS
... to serve 37 years

Jury gives slayer 37 years

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Jurors delivered a 37-year sentence for Ricky Ornelas early this afternoon. The action came after his Wednesday night murder conviction.

A seven-man and five-woman jury deliberated for one hour and 40 minutes this morning on the prison term for the 23-year-old Big Spring man.

He was found guilty in the April 10 shooting death of Disidoro Canales, following four hours of deliberation by the 118th District Court jury. The death occurred during a party at 408 S. Benton St. Jury Foreman Joe C. Arnold, Gail Route, Box 452, declined comment on the jury's decision.

The sentence is to be served under the authority of the Texas Department of Corrections in Huntsville.

Odessa attorney Cliff Hardwick told jurors this morning in his closing argument that they should consider a 5 to 10-year sentence for Ornelas.

Hardwick gave notice of appeal in open court to Judge James

Gregg. Murder conviction carries a 5 to 99-year or life term in the state penitentiary, and up to a maximum of a $10,000 fine.

Ornelas told the jury Wednesday that he fired shots at the victim, when Canales advanced toward him during a scuffle.

Hardwick did not have the option of seeking a probation sentence for his client due to Ornelas' a felony conviction in 1981.

The defendant testified Wednesday morning that he was convicted in 118th District Court five years ago for attempting to stab an individual. He served one year in prison for the aggravated assault felony.

District attorney Rick Hamby, who prosecuted the case, did not recommend a specific prison term to the jury.

"He's got to go to the pen for a long, long time," Hamby told the jury.

Although the jury found Ornelas guilty of murder, the defendant committed "a crime of passion," and that the shooting death of

Flood claims to be examined

Big Spring's insurance carrier, the Texas Municipal League, will investigate but not promise to pay all or part of $1.33 million in claims filed against the city as a result of the Aug. 30 flood.

Meanwhile, TML insured cities across Texas with dams termed unsafe by a 1979 Army Corp of Engineers report are expected to be notified by the League's insurance division that those structures are no longer insured, said City Manager Mack Wofford Wednesday. The Corp report listed over 200 dams across the state as unsafe. It is not known how many have been insured by TML.

"After talking with (Allen Hyman, director for insurance services for the TML) I feel soon they'll notify us that we no longer have coverage on the dam," Wofford said.

He said, however, that he's confident the dam was covered when it breached Aug. 30.

Individuals seeking damages charge Comanche Lake Dam, also called Cosden Lake Dam, was known unsafe for years by the city, and that officials never acted on the alleged hazard.

The city contends the breach did not add significantly to the volume of water that raged down Big Spring Draw Aug. 30 and flooded scores of homes.

"A determination will have to be made, did the breaking of the dam cause the loss?" Wofford said.

Wofford said the city was asked recently by TML to sign a non-waiver of subrogation, which means the carrier promises to look into the claims but will not admit to any liability until further review of the claims and the circumstances surrounding the flood.

Officials at the Texas Municipal League were unavailable for comment this morning and did not respond to messages.

Total claims made against the city so far stands at $1.33 million, according to city records. Those seeking damages after the city charter's 30-day deadline for filing claims are:

- Forence M. Bair, 1308 Monmouth Ave., $10,000.
- John Kennemur, 1306 Monmouth Ave., $5,040.
- Fernando Garza, 1302 Colby Ave., $20,000.
- Bill Stone, 2515 Central Drive, $10,000.
- Lowell N. Jones, 1310 Monmouth Ave., $2,534.

President leaves for second summit

By HENRY GOTTLIEB
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan was embarking today for chilly Iceland and a second quest with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev for common ground to build a safer relationship between the nuclear-armed superpowers.

Reagan scheduled an early morning helicopter liftoff from the White House lawn to Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland to join his closest advisers on a 5 hour and 20 minute flight to Iceland aboard Air Force One.

The two leaders will meet Saturday and Sunday, marking their first talks since the summit in Geneva last November.

This time the setting will be a small and simply furnished house in Reykjavik, capital of the island nation in the North Atlantic.

As in Geneva, much of their time together will be private, with only interpreters joining them.

Their aims once again: to erase differences preventing nuclear arms control agreements and other understandings, without surrendering safeguards and weapons systems they believe are vital to their nations' security.

The president and the Soviet leader could also set a date for a full-scale meeting in Washington within the next few months, U.S. officials have said.

The United States has described the Reykjavik meetings as all business, without the social events that made the Geneva meeting a traditional superpower summit. This time, Nancy Reagan is not going, even though Gorbachev's wife, Raisa, will be there.

Local private schools comparatively fine

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Private school enrollment is above that of a year ago in one Big Spring facility, contrasting the situation that faces Odessa and other Permian Basin cities.

With declines in Odessa as high as 30 percent compared to a year ago, at least one Big Spring educator expresses satisfaction with the local trend.

Bebe McCasland, administrator of St. Mary's Episcopal School, said enrollment is up about 6 or 7 students over last year, for an enrollment figure of 82 students.

"With the economy, it was a healthy sign for our school," she said.

St. Mary's educates through third grade. She said enrollment fluctuated a great deal throughout last year, but has become stable this year.

She believes the crunch hit Big Spring before the larger cities, and people who have lost jobs have either found new ones or have already left the area. Midland and Odessa, however, are facing the hardest times now, she believes.

The higher enrollment also indicates parents may be sacrificing material goods to invest in their child's education, she said. Parents also are more optimistic in their outlook, she added.

"We're just one small entity, but when we're able to hold our own" during hard economic times, "that says something about the community — they're still holding their own," she said.

In Odessa, enrollment at all schools has dropped, but especially at church-run schools, where officials say many parents apparently can no longer afford the tuition.

Big Spring public school enrollment is at 4,438 students, 191 less than last year at this time, according to the latest figures from the school district.

School officials earlier this year indicated surprise enrollment wasn't much lower than it is.

Enrollment at Hillcrest Christian School in Big Spring, which educates kindergarten through 12th grade, is about the same as last year, said principal Stella Howard.

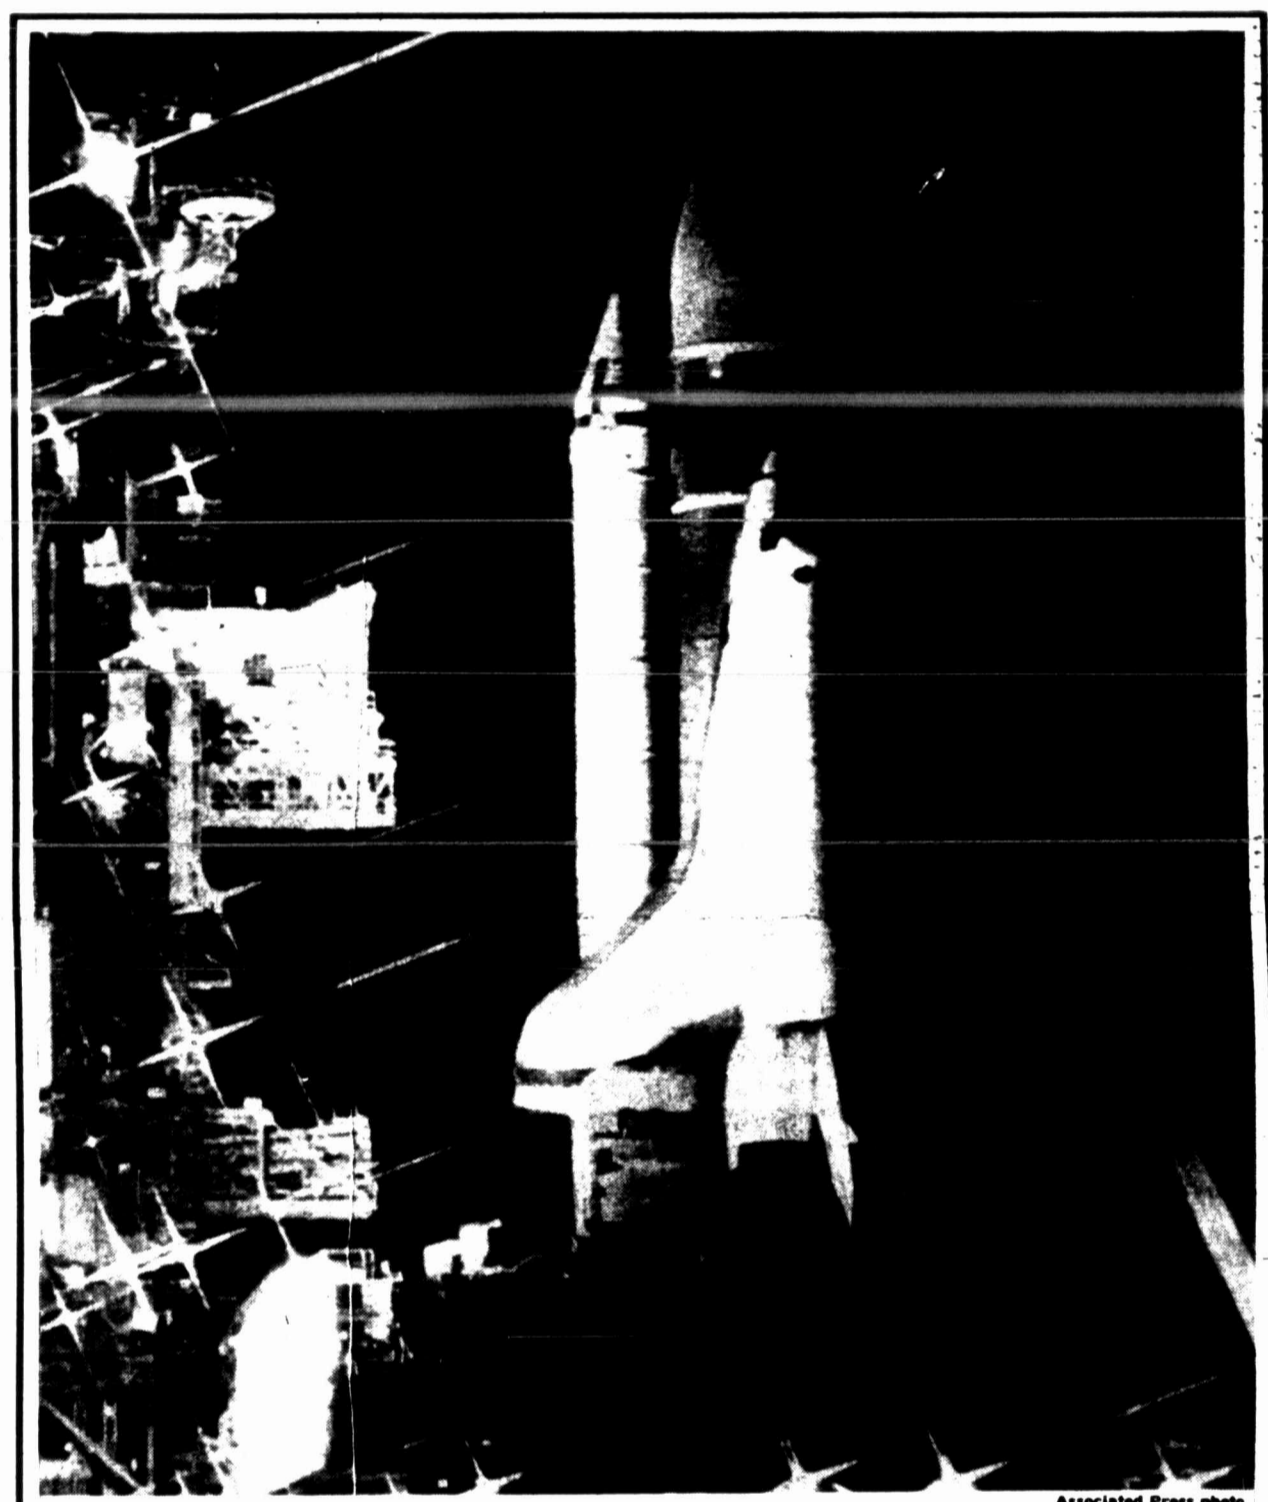

Hillcrest has about 100 students this year, she said, plus about 65 younger students at Hillcrest Child Development Center.

She said many families are sacrificing material goods to be able to enroll their children.

At New Life Christian Academy, enrollment also is about the same as last year, said principal Helen Pierce. New Life, which serves grades 1-12, has 40 students this year, she said.

"It's economics," said Suzie Burgess, principal of Odessa's Sherwood Christian School, which has pre-school through 12th-grade classes, the Associated Press reported. Her school's enrollment dropped almost 30 percent, from 280 students last year to 200 this year.

"We're seeing more moving now and leaving town. We expected to feel the effects of this at the end of May," she said.

Testing time

The space shuttle orbiter Atlantis is slowly rolled up to Pad 39-B at the Kennedy Space Center, Fla. early this morning for the beginning of seven weeks of tests. Weather conditions delayed the tests for two days. This is the first shuttle to be rolled out to a launch pad since the Challenger exploded Jan. 28.

Panel to study Contra help

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate panel is investigating allegations the Reagan administration is "winking and nodding" at private U.S. mercenaries helping Nicaragua's Contra rebels battle their country's leftist Sandinista government.

The investigation by the staff of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee was disclosed Wednesday by Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., the committee chairman. The probe follows the capture of an American crewman on a C-123 cargo plane downed inside Nicaragua as it attempted to smuggle arms to the Contras.

In Managua, meanwhile, the Nicaraguan Foreign Ministry said late Wednesday it would allow U.S. Embassy officials to question American Eugene Hasenfus, 45, of Marinette, Wis., the lone survivor of Sunday's crash in southern Nicaragua.

The ministry also said it would return the bodies of Americans who were killed, whom they've identified as Wallace Blaine Sawyer Jr. and Bill Cooper.

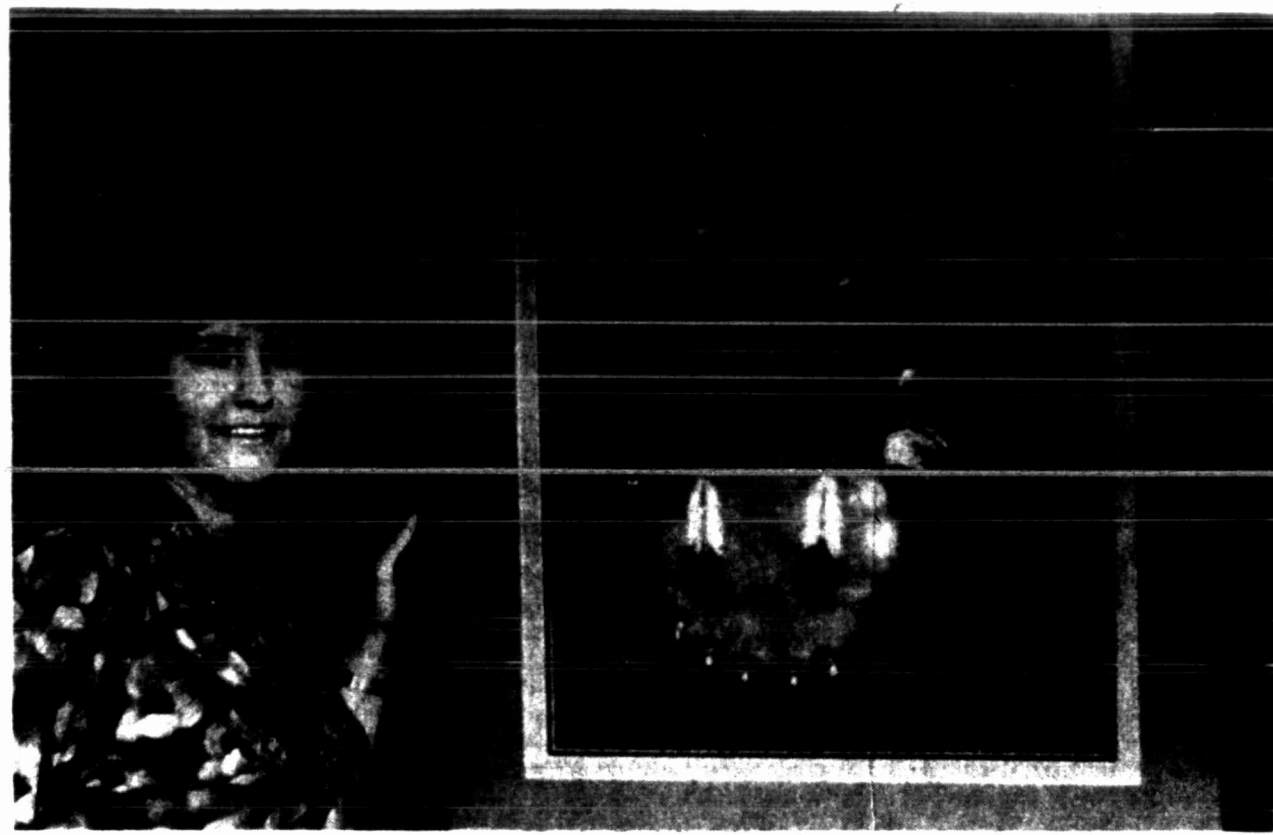

The announcement came a day after the State Department threatened to shut down the U.S. Embassy in Nicaragua unless U.S. officials got consular access to Hasenfus.

Acting State Department spokesman Charles Redman had said earlier in the day that the embassy delivered a diplomatic note Tuesday to Nicaraguan officials requesting consular access to Hasenfus and asking for the remains and personal effects of the two Americans who reportedly died in the crash.

Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., who asked for the Senate inquiry, said the crash of the aircraft "raises some very serious questions about how American foreign policy is being conducted right now."

"Individuals are running around ... conducting their own foreign policy in violation of law," he said.

October artist

In addition to singing, Dorothy Pearce is also an award-winning artist. She is the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce October artist of the month. Recognized for her work in oil, watercolor, pastel and mixed media, she is also a singer and songwriter in the "Wes and Dorothy Pearce Family" gospel group. Her artwork, much of it inspired from road trips in connection with the singing group, is on display at the Chamber office during October. Chamber officials report.

Summit

Secretary of State George P. Shultz told an audience of 300 Jewish leaders that Reagan would look Gorbachev "in the eye" and warn there will be no lasting improvement in relations without a better human rights climate in the Soviet Union.

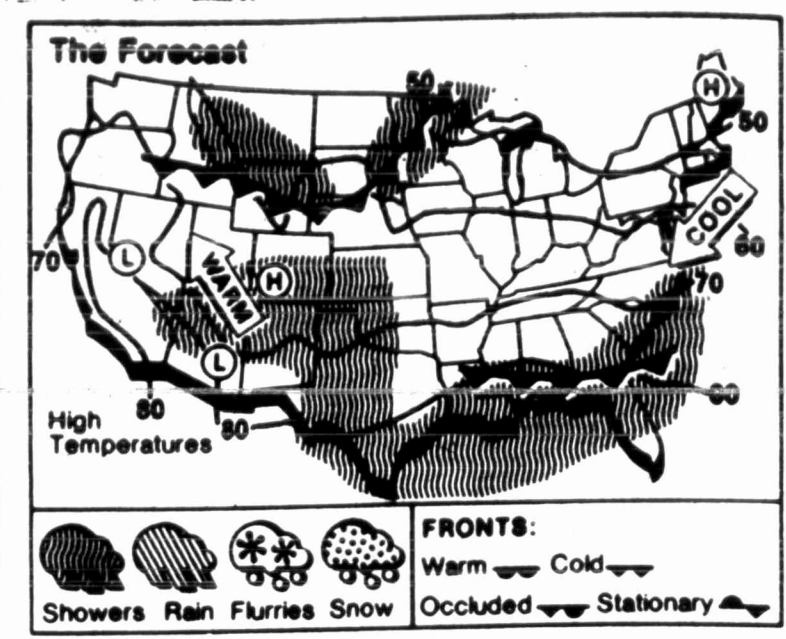

Shultz said Reagan would take documents listing the names of 11,000 Jews the Soviets have refused permission to settle in other countries, but that the president's presentation would be more than just a formal exchange of papers.

"Ronald Reagan, when he gets to a subject like this, he sort of pushes them (his papers) to the side and looks you in the eye and tells you what he thinks," Shultz said. "And I'm sure he's going to do that."

Eight American Jewish leaders flying to Iceland today for the summit said they hoped their presence in Reykjavik will help Reagan press Gorbachev to let more Jews emigrate.

"We think it will strengthen the president's hand," Jerry Goodman, executive director of the National Conference on Soviet Jewry, said.

Special Olympians will roll Saturday

Special Olympics participants from Big Spring, Martin County, Midland and Odessa will attend a Special Olympics bowling tournament in Big Spring Saturday.

As many as 120 Special Olympians are expected to participate.

The tournament, sponsored by the Big Spring Morning Optimist Club, will be from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Highland Bowling Lanes. Highland is donating use of the facility for the event.

Mayor Cotton Mize and State Rep. Larry Don Shaw (D-Big Spring), will be honored guests.

The Special Olympics were organized in July of 1968, under the guidance of the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation.

For those who are mentally retarded, sports and physical activities are the quickest, surest way to health, growth and self-confidence, said Linda Davis, Area 18 coordinator.

The Olympians' "you can do it" attitude helps promote more positive self-images among the participants, she said. That carries into all aspects of their lives and helps them lead more independent, satisfying lives, she added.

Special Olympics activities include bowling in the fall, basketball in the winter, gymnastics and soccer in the spring and swimming and softball in the summer.

The Big Spring Optimist Club, a member of Optimist International, is providing volunteers for the tournament.

The Optimist slogan, "Friend of Youth," indicates the civic organization's motivation. The club sponsors local soccer, football, baseball, and girls' softball activities, the Rainbow Project, the Steers' Band and other youth-related activities, Davis reported.

$1.6 billion generated by audits, claims commissioner's mother

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer
Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro in four years has added $1.6 billion to state coffers by auditing of state gas and oil leases, said Lou Mauro Strauch, the candidate's mother.

Strauch and other members of the Mauro family were in Big Spring recently campaigning for the 38-year-old Democrat from Bryant.

GARRY MAURO
...state land commissioner

Mauro is the former executive director of the state Democratic Party and was a deputy state comptroller under Bob Bullock.

He faces Republican M.D. Anderson Jr., a night club owner from Stevens Point, in his fall reelection bid for land commissioner.

As top administrator for the Texas General Land Office, the commissioner oversees the management of 22.5 million acres of public lands.

Strauch said her son initiated oil and gas lease auditing because "you have to audit in any business."

She said Mauro went before the Legislature asking for money to audit and was granted $50,000, which he parlayed into $7 million from auditing the first 33 wells.

"Garry gets the results because he runs the General Land Office like a business, not a bureaucracy," she said.

The money gleaned from oil and gas leases is earmarked for the state's permanent school fund, she said.

Another of her son's accomplishments is the restructuring of the Veteran Land Program, she said.

The Veterans Land Program offers qualified veterans a chance to borrow up to $20,000 to buy a minimum of five acres of land, she said.

"When Garry first took office over 14,000 veterans were on a waiting list just to apply for the program," she said. "Today veterans can get an application on the spot and can expect their loan to close in 90 days. Before Garry took office, some loans took 1 1/2 years to close."

She said Mauro also has created a Veterans Home Improvement Program, that allows veterans to borrow up to $15,000 for home improvements.

Lastly, she said her son has trimmed the land office budget by 13 percent, making it one of the few state agencies with a budget in the black.

Trial

Canalas "wasn't premeditated," Hardwick said during his closing argument this morning.

"It was a sudden and stupid thing," Hardwick told jurors about his client's April 10 actions.

Jurors saw "a little bit of the devil's handiwork," Hamby said during his closing argument.

He also said "we are literally going to hell in a handbasket," for allowing leniency in criminal punishment.

"We have got to deter this kind of behavior," Hamby told the jury.

Testimony in Ornelas' murder trial lasted a day and a half and ended Wednesday noon.

During closing arguments Wednesday afternoon, defense attorney Cliff Hardwick of Odessa told jurors "the case is definitely not murder."

He argued for a voluntary manslaughter charge for his defen-dent, claiming Ornelas acted in self-defense as Canalas advanced upon him at the party.

However, Hamby pleaded for jurors to rule on murder, claiming Canalas acted deliberately and wrongly earlier in the day when he carried a loaded pistol that he was attempting to sell.

According to the state penal code, felons are not to buy or possess firearms.

"The sort of behavior that went on at 408 S. Benton angers me," Hamby told jurors. He referred to testimony they heard describing a party at that location where paint sniffing and drinking involved persons carrying firearms.

Special precautions were taken admitting spectators to the courtroom and transporting the defendant this morning after the district attorney's office was notified of the possibility of firearms in the courthouse.

Reunion canceled

The reunion of Veterans of World War I, Department of Texas, scheduled for Oct. 25 at the Big Spring Armory, has been cancelled because of a conflict in dates.

Stabbing suspect arrested

Police have arrested a suspect in the Sept. 21 stabbing of Benito Rodriguez.

Jesse Torres, 29, 207 Edwards St., was arrested Wednesday by police Lt. Troy Hogue and acting Police Chief Lonnie Smith on the 200 block of West 19th Street on an emergency parole violation and aggravated assault with a deadly weapon warrants, said District Parole Officer David Harman.

The warrants stem from charges filed Sept. 22 in District Court, he said.

Torres had been on parole after serving two years of a seven-year sentence for burglary. He entered prison in August of 1984 and was released August 1986, Harman said.

Harman said Torres is being held without bond pending a parole hearing.

4-H Gold Star Award presented

COLORADO CITY — Nikki Holman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rob Homan, received the 4-H Gold Star Award during the Mitchell County 4-H achievement banquet Saturday.

Holman, 16, was presented the award by county extension agent Mike Mauldin, who cited her various 4-H projects, including her record book in beef.

Homan served as a teen leader for the crafts and hobbies project. She participated in the district and state method demonstration contest and placed third in the state with a home environment demonstration on accessories for the home.

Other top award-winners were Cassi Smith, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Smith, for the best junior record book; Brooke Moore, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Moore, for the best intermediate record book; and Blaine Lemons, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Lemons, for the best

The Friend of 4-H Award was presented posthumously to Mrs. Jo Hill, former 4-H leader and secretary for 15 years to the Mitchell County Extension Service. She died last Thursday.

Hill went beyond the call of duty working after hours, Saturday and Sunday afternoons, and she was dedicated to the cause of helping young people through 4-H, said Mrs. Jan Lemons in announcing the award.

Poisoning suspect free on bond

A man suspected by police of trying to poison his ex-wife Tuesday night by forcing her to drink a caustic substance is free on $20,000 bond.

Contravis Wilson, 28, Driver Road, was released Wednesday after posting a reduced bond set by District Judge James Gregg. Municipal Judge Gwen Fair had set bond Tuesday night at $100,000.

Records at the Sheriff's department show Wilson was charged with aggravated assault and evading arrest. Police Lt. Jerry Edwards, however, said this morning that police are treating the case as an attempted murder.

According to police, Wilson put a highly caustic substance in the drink of Janice Wilson, 27, of Midland, telling her it was lemonade. When she refused to drink it, a struggle occurred and the drink spilled on her legs, burning her thighs.

She was treated at Scenic Mountain Medical Center and released.

Edwards said he understood the alleged assault stemmed from a domestic dispute.

Rivers rise with floods

Coast Guard boats and helicopters evacuated residents today from a town shoulder-deep in muddy water from the Mississippi and Missouri rivers as two weeks of Midwestern flooding moved downstream.

The Mississippi and Illinois rivers flooded parts of southern Illinois on Wednesday, forcing hundreds of residents to flee. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers flooded a lock and dam construction site to minimize flood damage from the Mississippi.

The National Guard helped residents in Arkansas pile sandbags to protect their property from the Arkansas River, which had covered thousands of acres of soybeans, officials said.

Bomb trial continues

SPOKANE, Wash. — White supremacists arrested in a series of bombings had plotted to assassinate federal judges, prosecutors, FBI agents and other enemies of their group, a FBI agent testified at a bond hearing Wednesday night.

The five, four of whom are in custody, called themselves the "Bruderschweigen Strike Force II," said FBI Special Agent David Jernigan. The name means "Silent Brotherhood" in German and was one of the names used by the group The Order.

According to Jernigan, Pires told authorities that he, the Dorrs and Mrs. Hawley discussed killing Hawley because they feared he would tell authorities about the group's plans to move against their enemies.

SALT date changed

WASHINGTON — The Air Force is moving up to Nov. 11 the date for exceeding the SALT II treaty limit on strategic bombers carrying air-launched cruise missiles, administration and congressional sources say.

That might mean scuttling a key provision of the most recent major U.S.-Soviet arms control accord before President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev could hold a full-scale summit here.

Congress warns Reagan

WASHINGTON — Congress, moving to revive the near-dead "Superfund" program, is strongly warning President Reagan against vetoing legislation to pump $9 billion into an escalated battle against toxic waste.

"The consensus among the leadership on both sides of the aisle is we are prepared to go to the wall," says Rep. Norman Lent, R-N.Y., who was active in the three-year struggle to produce the broadly supported renewal bill.

Lent made the statement moments after the House sent the measure to the White House by a 386-27 vote on Wednesday, five days after the Senate approved the session's biggest environmental bill on an 88-8 roll call.

"The action was a legislative slam dunk," said another key Superfund player, Rep. Dennis Eckart, D-Ohio.

Defection

American family moves to Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — An American cancer researcher who said he defected to the Soviet Union to escape political persecution at home had his story widely publicized in Soviet newspapers today.

But Arnold Lockshin, when contacted at his Moscow hotel by The Associated Press, said he did not want to talk.

"Today is a day of getting ourselves put together," said Lockshin when asked for an interview. "I don't want to say anything at this point right now."

Lockshin's defection with his wife Lorraine and three children became known Wednesday when the Soviet news agency Tass ran a lengthy interview with him and said he defected after being fired from his job because he opposed U.S. foreign policy.

The U.S. government says the claims of harassment are "patently absurd."

The family, which reportedly arrived in Moscow on Wednesday, was shown on national television evening news, the most widely watched program in the Soviet Union.

Lockshin told a television interviewer in English that he and his family came to the Soviet Union because of harassment in the United States over his and his wife's political beliefs and opposition to Reagan administration foreign policy.

"We thought this was a place where we could raise our children without harassment, where I would be able to work," Lockshin said.

He told the interviewer he has many acquaintances among Soviet scientists and hopes they will be able to help him find work. He said his family will be able to lead "a normal, productive life" in the Soviet Union.

The publicity was similar to that given Americans who defected in the 1960s because of their opposition to the Vietnam War. Its timing, right before the superpower summit in Iceland, gives the Soviets a propaganda tool to counter western allegations about Soviet human rights abuses.

Last month, Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze mentioned Lockshin in a news conference at the Soviet mission to the United Nations. Replying to questions from American reporters about Soviet dissidents, Shevardnadze mentioned Lockshin's application for asylum, but gave no details.

Tass said Wednesday that Lockshin is a 47-year-old San American scientist Arnold Lockshin, left rear, walks with his wife, Lorraine, right, and their three children in Moscow Wednesday. The Soviet news agency Tass said Lockshin defected to the Soviet Union after being fired from his job because he opposed U.S. foreign policy. Tass said Lockshin arrived in Moscow Wednesday after being granted political asylum.

Francisco-born biochemist and oncologist who headed the cancer research laboratory at St. Joseph's Hospital in Houston, Texas, from 1980 until last month.

In Houston, Dr. John Stehlin, scientific director of the research foundation at St. Joseph's, said Lockshin was not fired for political reasons. "We were not pleased with his performance," he said.

Five Soviet national newspapers and the Moscow daily Moskovskaya Pravda printed the Tass interview with Lockshin today, headlining it "I Chose Freedom." Three of them carried pictures showing the family against a backdrop of Red Square.

Tass quoted Lockshin as saying he and his wife made a "very difficult" decision to leave the United States because they were being persecuted. He was quoted as saying the persecution stemmed from the couple's "active struggle against the dangerous aspects of the foreign policy of the Republican administration."

Stehlin said Lockshin was "a decent person but his performance deteriorated during the past six months. Just that, simply that and nothing else."

In Washington, State Department spokesman Pete Martinez said: "As an American citizen, Mr. Lockshin is welcome to travel to and from the U.S. whenever he chooses and is free to choose his place of residence."

"The statements attributed to Mr. Lockshin alleging that the U.S. government harassed him and threatened his life because of his political opinions are patently absurd," Martinez said.

Tass said the FBI had tapped the family's telephone, opened its mail and kept the couple under surveillance. The agency said the family had received threats. It described the alleged measures against the Lockshins as "baiting."

American to be tried

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — An American captured when Sandinista troops shot down a rebel supply plane "is a delinquent" who will be tried by Nicaraguan courts, a presidential spokesman said.

The government has announced no charges against 45-year-old Eugene Hasenfus, of Marinette, Wis., but Sandinista officials say cargo found on the plane indicates it was part of a CIA operation to supply U.S.-backed rebels fighting to overthrow the Nicaraguan government.

In a note of protest over the supply plane, Nicaragua on Wednesday called on the United States "to abandon its politics of force, threats and intervention in Central American and accept the path of dialogue."

The note was signed by acting Foreign Minister Victor Hugo Tinoco, addressed to U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz and delivered to the U.S. Embassy.

Chess title won again

LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. — Titleholder Garry Kasparov and Anatoly Karpov, who have battled for the world chess crown for two years, ended their latest championship match with a draw today, Tass said.

The 24-game series ended with Kasparov winning 12½-11½.

Military agrees to talks

SANTIAGO, Chile — Hours after shaking up his army command with retirements and transfers, President Augusto Pinochet offered limited and conditioned dialogue with civilian politicians.

But Pinochet's offer late Wednesday fell short of opposition demands, and calls from some of his own military men, for talks on restoration of democracy in Chile after 13 years of authoritarian rule.

The government published written orders from Pinochet to Interior Minister Ricardo Garcia to contact politicians.

Pinochet emphasized, however, that Garcia should only pursue talks with politicians who accept the 1980 constitution, which calls for the armed forces to nominate a single presidential candidate for a 1989 plebiscite.

Meese attends drug talks

PUERTO VALLARTA, Mexico — U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese III will likely press Mexican authorities at a hemispheric drug summit on the murder of an American drug agent and the kidnap-torture of another.

Mexican Attorney General Sergio Garcia Ramirez said the focus of the summit that began Wednesday and ends Friday will be to discuss general drug enforcement strategies.

"The problem of drug trafficking is a complex phenomenon. It is necessary to understand its characteristics in detail in order to combat it," Garcia Ramirez said earlier this week.

Ephesians 2:8 "For by grace you have been saved through faith..." Grace is the unmerited favor of God, the undeserved favor that God shows toward a person who does not deserve his forgiving favors because of their sin against God. Grace is the free favor of God, the undeserved bounty of the ever gracious Creator that has been offended by our sin against Him. Grace is the generous pardon from the loving kindness of God who has been provoked and angered by our sin, but who, delighting in mercy, is ready to pass by transgression, iniquity and sin, due to the suffering of Jesus, and is ready to remove all the evil consequences of sin's guilt when a person goes to God for that forgiveness. This favor of God never changes within God, for it is the nature of God. It is always available on the same terms everytime. It can never be toward the wilful unrepentant sinner, but is always available to the repentant submissive sinner. The gracious purpose of God's free favor to an undeserving person is much more than a match for that person's sin. We all can be the recipients of His goodness, grace and mercy.

Our freedoms Are intertwined

What is freedom of the press?
This is National Newspaper Week and this year's theme is "A Free Press Serves a Free People."
That slogan only gives a hint of what freedom of the press is. Because what many people don't realize is that the press has no more freedoms than an individual citizen.
Freedom of the press stems directly from the 42-word First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which states:
"Congress shall make no law respecting establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition for a redress of grievances."
Our nation's founding fathers realized when they wrote that amendment that if the great experiment in representative democracy was going to succeed, the people must be assured of a free flow of ideas and information on which to base their decisions as they go about the process of governing themselves.

So the First Amendment guarantees us the right to voice our opinions without fear of punishment, even when critical of the government, and to publicize the opinions of others and report the actions of government officials.

Likewise, citizens are granted the right to examine public records that are accumulated in the making of public policy.

To clarify that right, most states have laws assuring citizens access to meetings of public bodies and to public records. In various states, these are referred to as "sunshine laws."

Texas has two such laws — the Open Meetings Law and the Texas Open Records Act.

These laws state that every citizen or resident — not just members of the press — has the right to know about the deliberations of our government officials, and to ask questions about those deliberations.

Those laws also indicate that government officials have an obligation to help citizens understand those deliberations and why various actions should be taken.

But what is most important to stress here is that reporters and other news workers have no more rights to such information than any other citizen.

The only difference is that reporters just happen to earn their living by exercising these rights on behalf of readers who can't go to every court case, school board meeting or municipal, state or federal session.

When public officials try to keep the press out of a meeting, or deny access to public records, it isn't just a case of news people not being able to get a story.

Instead, it's a case of all citizens being denied one of their rights. It's a violation of the free flow of information procedure established by the First Amendment.

This concept was born when America was born. It wasn't handed down or inherited. It was added to the Constitution as something absolutely crucial to the creation and maintenance of a free society.

Our founding fathers realized that a free press is necessary to the free flow of ideas, and that is how a free press serves a free people.

They realized that the two are inseparable — that you can't have one without the other.

So when the press is denied access to public information, in reality, it's the citizens who are denied access to that information.

Local mother praises educators

To the editor:
On Monday, Oct. 6, nine educators in our community spent a regular day in their respective schools. Some of them, beginning their work day before 7 a.m., left their school after 4 or 5 p.m. At 6:30 p.m. they gathered at Runnels Junior High School to present a program for parents of secondary students. The program was entitled "Parent Training Workshop."
The parents of 2,178 secondary students were invited to the program. Seven mothers and two fathers came.
Those parents who attended received valuable information and suggestions from our secondary principals and counselors. I, for one, came away from the meeting impressed with the effort or public school leaders expend daily to provide a quality opportunity for learning and growth.

I learned that tutorial programs are being offered in the schools so that no child need flounder in any subject. Counselors are available to help parents or students with personal needs.
These educators are "playing a strong, good game" for our children. I'd like to hear a few more cheers in recognition of their contribution to our lives and those of our boys and girls. But more than cheers, they need our support. I hope we give them both.

New IRS agents' manual describes tax evaders

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR
WASHINGTON — "A right-wing, anarchist, white supremacy movement... anti-Semitic, extremist... considered violent and dangerous... a threat to the peace and security."

The ravings of some left-wing campus radical taunting his political enemies? Hardly. These denunciatory descriptions are taken from an official federal government manual — a sensitive, internal document intended for the edification of Internal Revenue Service agents.

Compiled by an agency intelligence officer from criminal records, news clippings and the subject organizations' own propaganda leaflets, the training manual warns IRS agents what to expect when they go after tax protesters who belong to such militant tax-protest groups as Posse Comitatus. Our reporter David Davis obtained a copy of the manual.

It is "clear that some of the tax-protest movement has progressed to a right-wing, anarchist, white supremacy movement," the manual states, adding: "The main goal of these groups is to overthrow the government, and their protest activities are only one way to achieve these goals."

The manual is a Who's Who of tax protesters, listing the dubious credentials of 48 distinct groups. The list includes various Ku Klux Klan organizations, the Aryan Nation, Posse Comitatus, the Kansas-based Farmers Liberation Army, and a paramilitary Christian survivalist outfit whose name is a jingle: The Covenant, the Sword and the Arm of the Lord.

Complete with photographs, the manual gives IRS agents the history, organizational breakdowns and membership requirements of the extremist groups, as well as the vital statistics of their leaders. For example, the manual describes Posse Comitatus as a collection of "unauthorized, self-appointed groups seeking the return of vigilante 'justice.'"

According to the IRS manual, the

Jack Anderson

Posse:
• Advises supporters to stockpile weapons, ammunition, gas masks, medical supplies, food, water and gas.
• Has built schools to teach members how to evade federal and state taxes.
• Has founded churches to help members evade taxes.
• Is conducting paramilitary training.

"They are establishing compounds in rural, sparsely populated areas affording the necessary privacy" to manufacture their own weapons, the manual states, adding that "in New Orleans, La., Posse members have managed to take pictures of IRS agents for Posse 'threat' use."

Agents are told how to spot Posse Comitatus members. They "wear tiny gold hangman's nooses on their lapels," the manual says.

The often painstaking detail provided in the manual is illustrated by the profile of a former top Posse official. He is described as 44 years old, 5 foot 10 inches, 200 pounds, brown hair, blue eyes and "often dressed in a black beret, combat boots and camouflage fatigues." He took part in survival training schools and "worked as a salesman of tooling equipment; has been involved in health food stores and served in the U.S. Army Ordinance in Southeast Asia."

The profile adds that the man left his wife and three children and "is now believed to be living with the wife or ex-wife of a fellow Posse member (name unknown) in Pennsylvania."

Another Posse big shot fingered by the IRS manual is retired Col. William P. Gale, a former aide to the late Gen. Douglas MacArthur and a director of guerrilla operations in the Philippines in World War II.

According to the IRS manual, Gale and his group use the colonel's California ranch as a base and have formed alliances with Oklahoma and Arkansas motorcycle gangs, "trading drugs for illegal guns and explosives."

Gale declined to talk to us, but his wife, Roxanne, said her husband has never hoarded arms. "In my humble opinion," she said, "the IRS is nothing more than a Soviet Gestapo with bullying and scare tactics. They have already overthrown the government."

FLINCH FACTOR II: We recently reported on the "flinch factor" that causes hand-held-missile marksmen to miss their targets when they must wire-guide them while exposed to the jarring sounds of battle.

Now we've learned that the General Accounting Office is checking into the flinch factor as it applies to Air Force pilots who have to "lock on" to their missile targets by flying in a straight line for 10 or 20 seconds. Any flinching in this situation could cause the multimillion-dollar missiles to miss their targets.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: Austerity brought on by the drop in oil prices has forced the Saudi Arabian government to use more of its own citizens for civil service jobs, instead of the highly paid (and highly skilled) foreigners who have dominated the bureaucracy for decades.

Reports we get indicate that doubling the number of Saudi citizen civil servants hasn't done much for efficiency. A survey showed that 75 percent of the spoiled Saudis are late to work and/or leave early.

New tax bill popular with all classes

The tax bill has been passed, and while no one understands it, every expert seems to be producing a "Who won — who lost?" column.
What do taxpayers really think?
To find out I decided to speak to a representative from each tax bracket affected by the legislation.

The first one I talked to was a poor person.

"How do you feel about the tax reform bill?"

"Very good," he said. "The poor people have always prayed for meaningful tax reform and are delighted it is finally here. We have continually maintained that once the tax system became fair, the poor would be willing to pay its share which, in our case, is nothing."

"Do you believe that if the poor lower class is not obligated to pay taxes, it will encourage many in the middle class to become poor?"
"On the surface it sounds like an incentive for the middle class. But there is more to being poor than not wanting to pay taxes — such as having rotten housing, eating bad food and walking in unsafe neighborhoods. I hate to think that people would choose to be poor just to save money on their taxes."

"What are you going to do with the money you save by not paying taxes?" I asked.
"Invest in bonds, buy out Donald Trump or take over CBS. There is no telling what a poor person is capable of doing when he doesn't have to give everything to Uncle Sam."
After speaking to a poor person I sought out a rich one.

"Sir I would like to talk to you about the new tax reform bill."

He was very serene. "I pay all the taxes I'm obligated to pay, not to mention the fees I am charged by those who handle my money."

"I am happy to hear that. Do you see yourself a winner or a loser with the new tax law?"

"When it comes to taxes, rich people are never winners. We are always looking for ways to make the code more equitable. That's why we support so many experts and accountants — to make sure that we are paying our portion. After all what is money if you can't share it with Washington?"

"Does that make you a winner or a loser?"

"This particular bill takes away many of the deductions that the rich considered part of their life-support systems. But the wonderful thing about being rich is that whatever they do to you, you can always find a way of getting around it."

"Then what you are saying is that even if the rich start out as losers they will eventually be winners."

He continued, "If there is any bitterness amongst the rich it is that in writing the tax reform bill, congressmen and senators abandoned the class who financed their way to power. The very people whose campaigns we donated to have set a torch to our tax shelters."

"You're taking it extremely well," I said.

"The art of being rich is to pretend that nothing bothers you."

The final person I spoke to was a middle-class taxpayer.

"Do you consider yourself a winner or a loser in the new tax bill?"

"At the beginning I will be a small loser but eventually I'll be a big winner. The middle class is always a winner when it comes to income taxes."

"Do you honestly believe that?" I asked him.

"No, but I thought you'd like an upbeat note for the end of your column."

Single parent fears future for teen son

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My husband left me several years ago, and I have had to raise our three children by myself. Now my oldest son is 15, and he and I seem to get into arguments all the time. I'm afraid of what is going to happen to him, but I don't know what to do. — Mrs. G.V.

DEAR MRS. G.V.: Being a good parent is difficult under the best of circumstances, and being a single parent is a special challenge. Don't be afraid, therefore, to ask for help and advice from others who can give you suggestions from their experience. Your local Christian bookstore may be able to suggest some books that will be helpful also. The Bible says, "Plans fail for lack of counsel, but with many advisers they succeed" (Proverbs 15:22).

Certainly one thing you need to do is improve your communication with your son. A shouting match is not communication — and may even destroy it. To communicate is to understand each other — and that takes patience and a willingness to listen. Your son is in a time of transition, in which he feels the tug to become more independent. In addition he may have hidden resentments and bitterness because he feels he has been treated unfairly in life, and you need to understand that. In other words, as best as you can, you need to put yourself in his shoes and try to understand what he is feeling, and why. Learn to be a good listener, and help him understand himself better. It will also help you to understand him, and how him that you love him and genuinely want what's best for him.

Above all, let this be a time when both you and your family discover God's love for you. Make Christ the center of your family, and begin by asking Christ to come into your heart. Then seek out a church where Christ is preached, and where your son (and your other children) can find friends who will be an encouragement.

The 25-year-old woman was arrested behind the home of the victim, police said. Her husband was notified.

Ms. Hicks said she was outside her window about 5:30 a.m. when she saw a crack to the room.

"I looked up from my bed and saw him through the window," she said. "I recognized his face. He was the same guy who had been harassing me, and he said he was going to kill me."

Woman kills peeping tom at window

DENVER (AP) — A woman who said she'd been harassed for five years by a peeper fired a shot through her bedroom window and killed a man who may have been her tormentor, police said.

"It does sound like she's had a lot of fear from this guy," said Detective John Wyckoff. "If this is the same guy, he's danced quite a bit, and this time he's paid the piper."

The 25-year-old man was found dead early Sunday in an alley behind the home of Barbara Hicks, 48, police said. His name was being withheld until relatives could be notified.

"I didn't want to kill him," said Ms. Hicks. "I had a gun and I shot it at the window, mostly thinking I would scare him away."

Ms. Hicks said she was awakened about 5:30 a.m. by a man's voice outside her window, which was open a crack to allow air in the room.

"I looked up from my bed and I saw him through the blinds," she said. "I recognized his shoes and his Levis ... He had his pants open and he said he was coming in."

Bulimia study says result of feminism

CHICAGO (AP) — Bulimia occurs most often among young, upper middle-class women partly because of the growing pressure for them to achieve since the feminist movement took shape, a psychologist says.

Most of those suffering from bulimia — an eating disorder characterized by binge eating and purging — were born in the 1960s and grew up in a time of shifting cultural norms caused by the movement, said Craig Johnson, co-author of a recent article in the Annals of Adolescent Psychiatry.

"Accompanying the shifting norms was growing pressure on women to achieve, and yet there was no clear way for them to live up to these expectations for achievement," said Johnson, director of the eating disorders program at the Institute of Psychiatry of Northwestern Memorial Hospital.

In an interview Tuesday, Johnson said an estimated 95 percent of bulimia patients are between ages 15 and 30, with 24 being the average.

And although an estimated 5 percent to 8 percent of high school and college females in the United States have significant problems with bulimia, the figure is less than 1 percent for high school and college men, he said.

"When we looked in the 1960s, we know there were some things that were happening that were selectively happening to women," Johnson said. "The two things that we draw attention to are the feminist movement and the emphasis on thinness."

"The feminist movement again really created expectations for young women to achieve to very high levels," he said. "The vehicles for them to accomplish this achievement were fairly limited. ... There weren't good, competitive avenues. ... So, the pursuit of thinness became a way for women to achieve and to compete among themselves."

Previous research, he added, "indicates that many women suffering from bulimia appear to have a biological vulnerability to mood disorder and in general come from volatile and disorganized families."

If a woman has self-esteem and is managing her life well, Johnson said, she probably won't develop bulimia.

Lucas pressured by police

EL PASO — District Attorney Vic Feazell and a jailhouse evangelist testified that some officials tried to pressure Henry Lee Lucas to reconsider his recanting hundreds of murder confessions.

Lucas is charged with first-degree murder in the May 1983 slaying of 72-year-old Librada Apodaca in El Paso.

Once thought to be the greatest serial killer in history, Lucas recanted his confessions saying he'd taken the blame to make fools out of law enforcement officials anxious to clear unsolved cases.

Lucas' attorneys have filed a motion asking state District Judge Brunson Moore to rule their client's confession to the Apodaca killing inadmissible.

Teen shot on school bus

DALLAS — An argument over a seat on a loaded school bus led to an argument that resulted in the shooting death of a 16-year-old high school student, authorities say.

Cody Cobbins, a sophomore at South Oak Cliff High School, died at 5 p.m. Wednesday of a gunshot wound to the chest, officials at Methodist Medical Center said.

Eldridge Fisher, director of security for the Dallas Independent School District, said about 50 students had boarded the bus when a fight erupted at the back of the bus between Cobbins and another student.

Fisher said that during the argument, a younger brother of the student arguing with Cobbins pulled a gun and shot Cobbins. Cobbins ran to the front of the bus and collapsed on the pavement, Fisher said.

Otwell contacts sheriff

FORT WORTH — Speaking by telephone from an undisclosed location, the Rev. W.N. Otwell said he has no plans to turn himself in but will remain a fugitive, traveling from state to state to rally support for freedom of religion.

Otwell, a 49-year-old fundamentalist pastor, has been on the move since Monday.

A warrant for his arrest was issued after he failed to appear at a contempt-of-court hearing in Austin before State District Judge Paul R. Davis, who had ordered the closing of an unlicensed boys home operated by the Community Baptist Church in suburban Forest Hills, where Otwell is pastor.

Otwell called Tarrant County Sheriff Don Carpenter Wednesday and later talked with a reporter from the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

"To start with, I don't need to go to jail because I haven't done anything wrong," he told the newspaper.

"At this point I am not a criminal. I have my biblical rights. I'm not fighting for W.N. Otwell. I'm fighting for the cause of Christ and the freedom of mothers and dads to raise and educate their children."

Deaf school's files private

AUSTIN — Records of an investigation into allegations of sexual abuse of children at the Texas School for the Deaf are confidential and do not have to be released, Attorney General Jim Mattox said Wednesday.

Mattox responded to a request by Glenn Williams, police legal advisor for the city of Austin.

Mattox said if the records sought "consist of reports, records, and working papers used or developed in an investigation" under the Family Code, "then, by its very terms," the code "makes such information confidential."

Clements: fee has chance

HOUSTON — President Reagan is more likely to sign an executive order imposing an oil import fee than he was a few months ago, Republican gubernatorial candidate Bill Clements said.

"There's a better than 50-50 chance of getting an oil import fee," Clements told the Houston chapter of the American Petroleum Institute at a Wednesday luncheon.

"I've just got a feel for these things," the former governor added.

Reagan has steadfastly refused to impose the fee that oilmen say would boost domestic production by making the process more profitable.

Suit filed at Supreme Court level

AUSTIN — A Texas Civil Liberties Union lawyer representing five men and two women who refused to stand when a judge entered the courtroom says they were just acting like Texans.

James Harrington, TCLU legal director, said an appeal would be filed with the U.S. Supreme Court today in Washington asking it to void 30-day jail sentences given seven Jefferson County people for contempt of court by Jefferson County Court at Law Judge Donaly J. Floyd in 1985.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals upheld the sentences by a 5-4 vote on June 11.

"The seven petitioners declined to rise for the judge because of their literal interpretation of various parts of 12 books of the Bible prohibiting obeisance to any symbol of human authority," Harrington told a news conference Wednesday.

"There is no reason why we cannot once in a while make an exception for people's religious beliefs," Harrington said. "Ben Milam (who fought at the Alamo) once said that 'Texans do not stand for any man, but only for their God.'"

"These petitioners were simply following that Texas tradition," he said.

Harrington described the seven at a news conference as "religious fundamentalists, not all of the same faith who believe in this."

The petition says they were in Floyd's court in July 1985 when Krupps was appealing a $75 fine he got in a Port Neches municipal court for driving without proof of liability insurance.

Making quilt becomes learning experience

By CARLEEN EVERETT
Lifestyle Editor

Gloria Kappes of Big Spring just finished a six month project.

The finishing touches of a beautiful, detailed sesquicentennial quilt were completed Monday morning, she said.

"I started researching historical facts of Texas in February. I didn't think the sesquicentennial would be big, but knowing Texas I should have known."

Kappes was prompted to make the quilt when Johnnie Lou Avery spoke to members of the Elbow Extension Club. "She got me fired up."

Everything on the quilt was done free-handed, Kappes says, except the sesquicentennial logo and the man of the year.

"I tried to get the quilt done in time for the fair (Howard County Fair) and worked until two, three and four in the morning, but just couldn't finish it in time."

The project was both fun and a learning experience, Kappes says, "I learned a lot about Texas history." Kappes left her native Minnesota and moved to Texas with her husband in 1975.

Kappes is proud of a job well done. "I think it's kind of pretty — I put a lot of work into it," she said, modestly.

A quilt with so much detail and handwork is hard to put a price on, Kappes says.

"It wasn't too expensive to make because I had a lot of scraps." If she wouldn't have already had the material, she says it would have been expensive to make.

When asked if she would sell the quilt she said no.

"My kids are already fighting for it," she said, with a laugh.

Gloria Kappes, above, displays the sesquicentennial quilt she is working on for the past six months. "I learned a lot about Texas history," Kappes said.

Area briefs

Caroselli to participate in festival

Texas artist Marianne Caroselli will be among the 206 exhibitors participating in the Tenth Annual Big Spring Arts and Crafts Festival.

The festival will be Oct. 18-19 at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, and is free of admission charges to the public.

Caroselli of San Marcos has been working in various art forms since she was 10. She began oil painting in 1972 and decided that was the medium she liked best.

She says she travels the back roads of Texas searching for interesting subjects to paint, such as interesting houses, barns and people. Caroselli uses her own horses and cows on her ranch and persuades her friends to dress up and pose for her.

Her paintings have been chosen frequently by "Leanin Tree," a western greeting card company in Boulder, Col. to be used on Christmas cards sold throughout the United States. She is also collected by Burt Reynolds, Byron Nelson and Clinton Mangus, plus numerous banks, law firms, ranches and doctors. Her bronzes, oil paintings and limited edition prints are available through galleries and one-woman shows.

Caroselli, who will be making her ninth consecutive showing in Big Spring, captures the good times and serene beauty of the gentler times in her paintings of the "Quiet West."

Homemakers report on convention

The Council of Extension Homemaker Clubs met Monday and shared Achievement Day exhibits.

Achievement Day exhibits were a sesquicentennial quilt, antique buttons, Christmas decorations, knitted and crocheted items, canned goods, baked goods and hand crafts.

State delegates, Myrl Soles, Frances Mason and Jowilli Etchison, reported on the state convention.

The three women attend the Texas Extension Homemakers Association State Convention in McAllen Sept. 16-19.

Keynote speaker at the convention was Mrs. Linda Gale White. TEHA has a $61,250 budget for 1987 for more than 22,000 extension homemaker clubs in Texas.

TEHA donates seven junior scholarships and two adult scholarships annually.

The delegates attended workshops that dealt with young homemakers, citizenship and legislation, parliamentary law, communications, safety and health, members and leadership, cultural arts and international understanding and family life and family resources.

The TEHA theme for 1987-'88 is "Back to the Future."

This year marks the 60th anniversary of Texas Extension Homemakers Association, formerly known as the Texas Home Demonstration Association.

State Hospital wins Wade Plaque

Volunteers representing Big Spring State Hospital recently returned from the 28th Annual State Meeting in San Antonio where they received the David Wade Plaque for having present the largest group from the farthest distance.

"Twenty-one volunteers and five staff members attended from Big Spring," said Kathy Viccinelli, volunteer coordinator. "This is quite an honor and one the group strives hard to win."

The competition is tough and Big Spring has a reputation for winning the plaque, which encourages everyone to attend, she added.

The meeting was hosted at the Radison Gunter Hotel in San Antonio. Featured speaker for the awards luncheon was Henry Cisneros, mayor of San Antonio.

Mrs. Tup Ferguson, Midland volunteer for the Big Spring State Hospital, presented an award to retiring coordinator Paula Womack. Ferguson has attended every state meeting for 28 years; has 16, 704 volunteer hours; and is in the Volunteer Hall of Fame.

The Wade Plaque will hang in the volunteer office until next year when the meeting will be hosted in Austin. Big Spring is already making plans to bring the plaque home again, Viccinelli said.

Boy's girlfriends won't let him go to bed

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of a handsome, popular, teen-age son who has girls calling him at all hours. He has to catch the 6:45 a.m. school bus as he commutes to a private school, so he tries to get to bed by 9:30 on school nights, but girls call him at 10, 10:30 and 11 p.m. This disturbs everyone in the house. At first, the calls were great for his ego, but it's a source of irritation now. He doesn't want to hurt their feelings, but he really wishes they wouldn't call him. He says some of them keep him on the phone for 30 and 40 minutes about something they could have said in 10 minutes.

Don't suggest that we turn down the bell on the phone, or take the phone off the hook, because my mother-in-law is elderly and in poor health, and if she needs to reach us, our line must be open for her. This is really an open letter to girls who call boys after 9 p.m. Please print this, Abby. I'm sure other mothers have this problem. Just sign me...

MASSACHUSETTS MOM
P.S. Girls, please don't call a boy in the middle of a Celtics, Red Sox and/or Patriots game — wait until the game is over, and he will love for your thoughtfulness.

Dear Abby

DEAR MOM: Here's your letter, but don't expect miracles. Encourage your son to communicate his "irritation" to the girls who call him at all hours and disturb the family. He could tell those who babble too long that the line must be kept open in case his grandmother tries to reach the house — it's true — and not to call after 9 p.m.

DEAR READERS: If you can use a few laughs, here are some choice quotes from "The Third and Possibly the Best 637 Things Anybody Ever Said," by Robert Byrne. It's published by Atheneum; your bookstores should have it. If you have a sick friend (and who hasn't?), this $10.95 "upper" would make an ideal gift. Some samples:

"It's the responsibility of the media to look at the president with a microscope, but they go too far when they use a protoscope." (Richard Nixon)

"Every time a friend succeeds, I die a little." (Gore Vidal)

"After 70, it's patch, patch, patch." (Jimmy Stewart)

"Housework can kill you, if you do it right." (Erma Bombeck)

"I'm no different from anybody else with two arms, two legs and 4,200 hits." (Pete Rose)

"Two farmers each claimed to own a certain cow. While one pulled on its head and the other pulled on its tail, the cow was milked by a lawyer." (Jewish parable)

"In Italy a woman can have a face like a train wreck if she's blond." (Unknown)

"There is never enough time, unless you're serving it." (Malcolm Forbes)

"Veni, vidi, visa" (We came, we saw, we went shopping.) (Jan Barrett)

"Diplomacy is the art of saying,

"9 W." Answer to the question, "Do you spell your name with a V, Mr. Wagner?" (Steve Allen)

"My grandmother is over 80 and still doesn't need glasses. Drinks right out of the bottle." (Henny Youngman)

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand one more letter about Lassie? You published a letter from Joan Scott who had been a writer on the Lassie shows for many years. She said that there were several collies who played Lassie, and they were all males.

In a recent Lassie rerun (on PBS), Lassie had given birth to a litter of puppies and was actually shown nursing them!

Even a trainer as great as the late Rudd Weatherwax, who trained the original Lassie, couldn't teach a male dog to do that!

Home blood test kits give truer sugar level

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am 67 years old, a female. I am in fair health, but have developed high blood sugar and I have to test regularly with a home urine test strip method. My results have been unsatisfactory so far. Is it true that the blood test kits are better for getting truer readings than the urine ones? — Mrs. A.V.

Yes, the home blood test kits have much to recommend them, especially for older diabetics. For them, the urine test has certain drawbacks. For many, kidney function may not be all it should be and urine sugar readings can be thrown off.

Using the blood test kits you have to adjust to the finger prick required, but with use of special test strips you can get readings more readily. You can test before a meal, then a couple of hours afterward to see just what your blood sugar is doing in direct response to food intake.

Why don't you take this up with your doctor. He can recommend a reliable kit for you to use and instruct you in proper interpretation of results.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Can you take too much vitamin C? I'm a teenager and my mom had me taking megadoses of it. It was way over the R.D.A. that I see on the bottle. I did notice that I was dizzy and out of it for a couple of days after. Can you overdose this way on C? — C.L.

I don't believe in megadoses of any vitamin unless its in a medical setting for purposes of studying the effects of such huge intake. If I correctly worked out the arithmetic of the amount you took (another part of your note), we're talking many hundreds of times the recommended dietary allowance (RDA) for C. Vitamin C is a very safe substance. Excessive doses are gotten rid of rather easily. It is one of the water-soluble vitamins, so you readily lose it in urine. Still, megadoses of the kind you took can cause nausea, vomiting, and abdominal cramps.

Dr. Donohue

But there is another important disadvantage from overloading with C. Continuing megadoses can produce high concentrations of uric acid in the urine. The kidneys may not be able to get rid of it all and it can settle out to form kidney stones.

On a more practical level, you can tell your mother that since the body does get rid of this vitamin so easily, megadoses represent a great waste of money laid out for them.

I think advocates of vitamin megadoses should re-examine the advice they are dispensing in light of the guiding dictum of all medical treatment — "to do no harm." I don't see where they have been doing that. To your mother, I say, back off, here is a case where a well-meaning parent can learn from her child. The booklet, "Vitamins: Facts You Should Know," discusses needs. Other readers may order by writing me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Can you tell me something about the beta blocker medicines? I am taking Inderal for high blood pressure. I read recently where this slows the heart and raises the peripheral resistance of your arteries. Is this the best medicine for me to be taking? I feel uneasy asking my doctor about it. — S.W.

Worldwide, there are 20 different beta blockers. In the U.S., six are in use. Each acts a little differently from the others and each has its role in treatment of problems from high blood pressure to migraine headache. There is not best one.

Now to your Inderal (propranolol). It does slow the heart and it does block nerve messages to arteries that allow them to expand. But that latter effect doesn't interfere with its blood-pressure-lowering capability. To be truthful, we are not absolutely certain just how beta blockers lower blood pressure. They may cause a fall in blood renin levels. Renin is a substance made by the kidneys. It is responsible for blood pressure elevation.

FOR G.J.M. — Some heart ar-rhythmias have to be treated, and some are relatively harmless or altogether insignificant. I could not begin to tell you what yours means. If it is, as it seems from your brief note, atrial fibrillation (a completely out-of-synch beating), then that certainly has to be treated. An easily-performed electronic check of the beat right in the doctor's office will settle things for you. Have that done, please.

Much heart trouble is preventable. Write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Take Care of Your Heart." ## Steers' foe little and fast

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

When the 13th ranked Big Spring Steers travel to Lamesa Friday, they'll face a small young team that relies on speed and explosiveness.

The Tornadoes return only one starter and five lettermen from last year's squad, and they average just 153 pounds on defense and 158 pounds on offense. That compares to Steers' averages of 187 pounds on offense and 182 pounds on defense.

On paper, the biggest mismatch of the night appears to be the clash between the Steers' defensive line and the Tornadoes' offensive line.

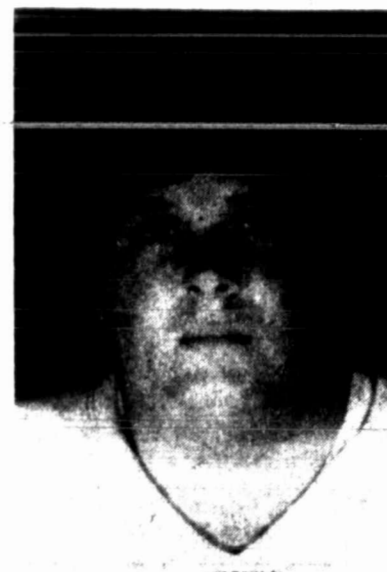

Nose guard Todd Coker, 210, will line up against 160-pound center Johnny Ellis; 235-pound Jay Burcham will line up next to Coker, and will face either 143-pound Chuckie Alvarez or 148-pound Johnny Ramos. Whoever Burcham doesn't face, 200-pound Steer defensive tackle Dickie Kelly will.

With mismatches like that, it's unlikely the Tornadoes will run up the middle. Instead, Lamesa will do all it can to utilize its speed and the strong arm of quarterback Tim Berry.

Berry is the leading passer in District 2-4A, and his tight end, Jim Horton, is the district's leading receiver. Gary Woodberry, a 10.4 100 meters sprinter weighs 136 pounds, won the district 100 meter championship last year and is the fourth leading runner in the

...returns to action

...back on the line

district. "We throw the ball quite a bit, probably as much as we run. Woodberry is having a real good year — he's pretty quick. We'll run sweeps, anything we can to get the ball to him, all 136 pounds," said Lamesa head coach Clyde Noonkester.

Noonkester conceded that size will be a problem for his team Friday night, but he said his team is used to lining up against bigger teams.

"It's a problem but it's something we face every week. There's nothing we can do about it, so we don't spend too much time worrying.

"I guess right now Big Spring is in the driver's seat. They've got a good outfit. We just hope we can slow them down a little bit. A lot of things can happen in the game of football. But for us to beat Big Spring we'd have to get a lot of breaks and play a near perfect ballgame. But the possibility is always there," Noonkester said.

The Tornadoes and Steers share two common opponents, Sweetwater and San Angelo Lakeview. Lamesa beat Lakeview 7-0, and lost 28-7 to Sweetwater. Big Spring beat Lakeview 33-13 and Sweetwater 22-17.

The Steers haven't played since beating Sweetwater two Fridays ago, and that could help them. Linebacker Mike Cahill, out since the first game with a bad knee, is back, as is offensive guard John Moore. On the negative side, defensive back Byron McElreath hurt his foot against Sweetwater and is doubtful.

Eudy said the week off allowed the Steers time to heal and work on fundamentals. He said practices last week were more relaxed than usual, but that the intensity has picked up this week. He expressed concern about the Tornadoes' speed.

"Lamesa is a quick little ballclub; with their skill people they can break the big play on you. On defense, they're going to stunt — they'll stunt on every play, I've never seen them run a straight defense.

"But our blocking scheme is set up to take care of stunts. We block zones, and we should block anyone coming into our zone. We've got to be alert. Anytime you get a defense like that, you've got a chance to look real good or real bad," Eudy said.

Last week the Steers were ranked tenth in the state in the Harris Poll. It's been a long, long time since the Steers earned such a lofty ranking. This week the Steers dropped to 13th through no fault of their own.

Scott powers Astros past Mets

Houston to send Ryan on mound against Ojeda tonight

HOUSTON (AP) — Mike Scott and Glenn Davis followed a well-defined script en route to a 1-0 victory over the New York Mets in the first game of their National League playoff series.

Scott, accustomed to throwing low-hit games and getting no hitting support from his teammates, nursed Davis' second-inning home run through nine gruelling innings Wednesday night and made it stand up, putting the Astros up 1-0 in the best-of-seven series.

Game 2 of the best-of-seven series Thursday night will match Houston right-hander Nolan Ryan, 12-8, baseball's all-time strikeout leader, against left-hander Bob Ojeda, 18-5.

The Astros had their chances, but failed to score twice after loading the bases with one out. They left a total of eight runners stranded.

But that was nothing new for Scott, who suffered all season from a lack of hitting support by his teammates. At one point, Scott had a three-game losing streak during a span in which he gave up only five earned runs and struck out 22 in 23 2-3 innings.

Billy Hatcher and Jose Cruz made running catches in the second and sixth innings to preserve the shutout.

Davis made an even bigger play — a diving stab of Mookie Wilson's hot grounder that he flipped to Scott for the second out in the ninth inning.

Scott finished with an NL playoff record-tying 14 strikeouts, allowed five hits and matched a playoff record by recording four strikeouts in a row.

Meanwhile, Davis made Mets starter Dwight Gooden pay for one of his few mistakes with a home run in his first playoff at-bat.

It was the first playoff home run ever for an Astro player, and only Joe Morgan and Rick Sutcliffe have hit homers in their first playoff at-bat.

"I thought I had my best stuff as the game went on," Gooden said. "Early in the game I was trying to do a little too much and I was falling behind. But after the third inning I started to get into the rhythm."

Houston Astros' first baseman Glenn Davis watches his solo homer clear the centerfield wall in the second inning of the National League Championship Series with the New York Mets Wednesday night in Houston. The Astros won, 1-0.

Davis was pleased to get the game-winner off the 1985 Cy Young Award winner.

"I haven't done that well against him (Gooden) in the past," said Davis, who hit 31 regular-season home runs. "He's got me more than I've got him. I certainly haven't hurt him any."

Scott, who threw his first career no-hitter Sept. 25 to clinch the NL Western Division title for the Astros, didn't allow a hit until Keith Hernandez singled in the fourth inning.

"I think every pitcher goes out to try and throw a shutout," Scott said. "This is probably the best game I've pitched in a situation like this."

Darryl Strawberry singled in the ninth, stole second base and went to third on Wilson's groundout to Davis. He was the only Met to reach third base, but could only watch as Scott fanned Ray Knight to end the game.

Scott left two key Mets, Carter and Hernandez, fuming.

Carter drew boos from the sellout crowd of 44,131 when he asked home plate umpire Doug Harvey to check for illegal scuff marks on the ball in the first inning.

"He had some movement on the ball I've never seen before," Carter said. "I've got to tip my hat to Scott. It was like a dry spitter and that's what Doug Harvey told me. It has no movement."

Hernandez and Carter each struck out three times. Hernandez was irate after being called out on strikes in the sixth on a 3-2 pitch he thought was outside.

"Doug Harvey is one of the best umpires in the league," Hernandez said. "I'd be satisfied if he umpired all seven games. I just thought he missed one, that's all. This is the playoffs, emotions are high and I thought he missed it."

Sox even score with 9-2 shellacking

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox were jarred from their lethargy, while the California Angels were blinded by the sun and whipped by the wind.

The American League playoffs are going full blast.

Then the playoffs began Tuesday night and Boston lost 8-1 to Mike Witt's outstanding pitching. But on Wednesday, the Red Sox capitalized on California's shoddy fielding and struggling pitching to score six runs in the seventh and eighth innings for a 9-2 victory that evened the series 1-1.

"We've had difficulty in the last series with the Yankees and in last night's game in getting back-to-back hits," Boston Manager John McNamara said. "We got back to some power in the late innings today" when Jim Rice hit a two-run homer in the eighth.

It was the bright, cloudless sky and the brisk breezes that hurt the Angels. Pitcher Kirk McCaskill lost a high hopper in the sun, second baseman Bobby Grich couldn't see a wind-blown pop up that fell for a go-ahead double in the fifth inning and infielders made three errors in the seventh.

"It was not one of my better days," Grich said. "I misjudged the wind and the sun on the same play."

"Every break went against us," California third baseman Doug DeCinces said. "What else can you say? It was one weird thing after another."

"I have the utmost confidence in our defense," McCaskill said. "It was just one of those days. The game took a bizarre turn, that's for sure. But at no time did I think the guys behind me were letting me down."

Boston shortstop Spike Owen could sympathize with the Angels. He dropped a foul pop in the second inning and made several throws that tested Buckner's stretching abilities.

"We're all humans. We're not machines," he said. "We don't have judges giving us points on how we look."

"There was an abundance of everything," said Boston third baseman Wade Boggs, who also made an error.

For the Red Sox there is an abundance of hope as they head into the next three games of the best-of-seven series Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Anaheim, Calif.

"After losing the first game, we're very comfortable," Owen said. "We're leaving town on a positive note."

"It was a good game to win, especially after Clemens lost last night," Boston designated hitter Don Baylor said. "It would have been tough going out there having to win all three and I thought about it all day."

Bruce Hurst battled for an 11-hit complete game Wednesday, striking out four and walking none.

He did give up a solo home run to Wally Joyner that tied the score 2-2 in the fifth, but shut out the Angels the rest of the way despite allowing three hits in the sixth.

Wolves hungry for another victory

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Last week the Colorado City Wolves got a taste of victory for the first time this season. This week Wolves coach Tom Ramsey is hoping that the taste will make his Wolves want more.

The Wolves will go after their second consecutive win when they host the Brady Bulldogs at Wolf Stadium at 8 p.m. in a district clash and homecoming affair all rolled into one.

The Wolves, picked to finish near the top of District 5-3A, have struggled this season, bringing a 1-3-1 record into the contest. They lost their first district game to the powerful Ballinger Bearcats 32-7 and edged 1-20 rival Coahoma 13-7 last week.

Brady is headed by first year coach Mark Bachtel, who was an assistant coach at Brownwood for five years. The Bulldogs, who were picked to finish near the bottom of the district, bring a 4-1 overall record and 2-0 district slate into the contest. They own district wins over Sonora, 8-6, and Abilene Wylie 38-12. The Bulldogs lone defeat was the season opener, a 21-8 loss to Mason.

While the two teams are performing just the opposite of what was predicted for them, both coaches are looking for a hard contest. "I think Colorado City's record is misleading," said Bachtel. "They are a big physical team and they've been hurt by injuries."

"Brady appears to be one of the best teams in the district," said Colorado City's Ramsey. "They've got a little size and some speed. They can line up and run over you or they can run around you."

Ramsey is much relieved that his troops finally came through with a win last week. "Getting that first win was like curing cancer. The spirit has been real good in workouts this week. The kids knew it was there but they just weren't able to grab it until now. It's like raw meat to animals. We're hungry for it now."

But the Wolves will have a hard time tasting victory against the Bulldogs. Although the Bulldogs consist primarily of sophomores and juniors, they still return 15 lettermen, including seven defensive starters and six offensive first-teamers.

"This is a good place to start," said Bachtel of his first head coaching position. "The kids got experience playing last year when they went 2-8. I really like it here because we've got some good kids. We have a new offense but we have the same defensive coach as last year (Mike Easterwood), and the defense is basically the same. We've played some good defense this season."

Incidentally, Easterwood coached at Colorado City back in the mid-70's. "Coach Easterwood doesn't say much about playing Colorado City, he just smiles when you mention it. I think he's looking forward to going back and playing them," Bachtel said.

Easterwood has done a superb job with a young defense. The Bulldogs have given up only 47 points this season.

The Brady defense is led by 5-10, 155-pound linebacker Michael Deans, whom Bachtel terms a "super linebacker", and Tate West, a 6-2, 160-pound tackle.

The Wolves balanced offense, which averages 150 yards on the ground and 165 in the air, will put that defense to the test. Colorado City, which runs a one back attack, uses two quarterbacks and a host of running backs.

The Wolves will use both Ismael Silva and Cary Ritchey while alternating Ralph Gonzales, Jerry Hulme and Beau Rees in the backfield. Terry Jackson, another running back, will miss the game with a deep thigh bruise. Last week Gonzales gained 97 yards in 17 carries against Coahoma. But the big play was a 45-yard TD pass from Silva to wide receiver Larry Mayes for the deciding score.

Although Colorado City threw the ball eight times last week, Bachtel expects them to come out passing Friday night. "I really think they will throw the ball. They have in the past. Our secondary has been playing very well though," he said.

Ramsey says the Brady coach has the right train of thought. "We won't dissappoint him. We'll air it out some. Last week it wasn't in our game plan, this week it is."

So what it boils down to is a successful Brady Bulldogs squad that is on a four game roll versus a Colorado City Wolves team that tasted victory for the first time last week. The Wolves are hoping they can stop Brady's winning trend for one week and get another bite of victory.

Others chasing Norman on PGA circuit

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Golfers vying for year-end PGA Tour honors were bracing for rain today as they set out to win cash and points at the $300,000 Pensacola Open.

PGA champion Bob Tway, with $647,244 in winnings this year, needs only $6,052 to match the top cash winner, Australian Greg Norman. That money could come from the 72-hole tournament at Perdido Bay Resort, which Norman is sitting out.

"I'm looking forward to playing here," Tway said Wednesday. "I've played here a few times so I know the course fairly well. And I hope to make more than $6,000 this week."

But Tway has 156 other golfers and a 40 percent chance of rain to fight for the $54,000 first prize.

The National Weather Service is also predicting a chance of thundershowers throughout the weekend for the western tip of the Florida Panhandle.

Meanwhile, Andy Bean, third in winnings this year, is looking for a win to get him within striking distance of his two rivals. He already has earned $486,677 in 1986.

Bean has hopes of catching Tway in the $2 million Vantage Cup race. He needs a victory and two other top 12 finishes in the final three events to have a chance of catching Tway, and said he is optimistic about pocketing the $500,000 Vantage first prize.

The tour players warmed up Wednesday on Perdido Bay's 7,093-yard, 71-par course with the Pensacola Open Celebrity Pro-Am Tournament that featured entertainer Bob Hope, former basketball pro Cazzie Russell and stunt driver Joie Chitwood.

When the serious play starts, Tway will also be trying to extend his point lead over Bean in the Vantage Cup standings.

Greg Norman is the leading money winner in the Professional Golfers Association this year. He has won over $63,000 this season. Bob Tway trails Norman by $6,000.

Tway has 3,105,321 points to 2,542,929 for Bean. While a victory, worth 200 points, won't enable Bean to overtake Tway, he'll be trying to stay ahead of third-place Payne Stewart who is breathing down his neck with 2,527.5 points.

The last five Pensacola Open winners are entered, including defending champion Danny Edwards. The others are Bill Kratzert, 1984; Mark McCumber, 1983; Calvin Peete, 1982, and hometown pro Jerry Pate, 1981.

Pokes QB learning about hard knocks

IRVING (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys' backup quarterback, Steve Pelluer, is getting one of those "School of Hard Knocks" NFL educations.

Pelluer, a third-year player from Washington, was thrust into his first starting role last Sunday because of an injury to Danny White.

White's pulled groin muscle got so bad that on Friday he declared he couldn't play against the Denver Broncos. That gave the 6-foot-4, 208-pound Pelluer only two days to get ready.

Then he had to run for his life in a 29-14 loss to Denver.

Although he completed 24 of 44 passes for 271 yards and a touchdown, Pelluer was intercepted three times and led the life of a fox being run by a pack of hounds.

Pelluer was sacked five times, once for a safety, and had to gun on the run most of the day.

"I think I learned a lot," Pelluer said. "I made some good decisions and some bad ones. It was an education."

Pelluer, who had thrown six passes this season going into the game, said "practice is one thing. Playing in a game is another."

Dallas Coach Tom Landry refused to blame Pelluer for the loss and, in fact, expressed confidence in him.

"I thought he did a remarkable job not being trapped 10 or 12 times," said Landry of the nimble Pelluer. "Our offensive line didn't have one of its better days."

Landry promised Pelluer would improve against the Washington Redskins on Sunday.

"He'll be better this week," Landry said. "I don't feel bad going into the Washington game with him at quarterback. He keeps handling himself well."

The unbeaten Redskins (5-0) could jump three games ahead of the NFC East defending champion Cowboys (3-2) with a victory.

White didn't practice Wednesday and Pelluer, a fifth-round draft pick in 1984, will get a full week's work with the first team.

Reggie Collier, who played with the Tampa Bay Renegades in the USFL, will work behind Pelluer.

"Steve should be so much better this week because he has a chance to mentally prepare for the game," Landry said. "Last week he was just kind of thrown in there."

Birthdays done bayou-style in south Texas restaurant

By PAM ALLOWAY
Beaumont Enterprise

BRIDGE CITY — Greeting cards can't come close to bringing the birthday cheer people find at Toup's Marina along Cow Bayou. At Toup's, you can take out your teeth, pull up the gut bucket or swig down a cold beer as you welcome or cringe at turning another year older.

And you can smile a toothless grin once inside because if your name is written down on Will and Ruth Toup's calendar, you can bet your fishing pole you'll get your own, personal bayou birthday bash.

Will and Ruth Toup are the proprietors of Toup's Marina, the local watering hole and fish camp that sits in the shadow of Cow Bayou bridge. Will Toup has a ruddy complexion and strong arms that can gut a pound alligator gar inside a half hour.

Nowadays, he wears socks with his galoshes. The man who has made his living crabbing for more years than he cares to remember hadn't given socks a second thought till his feet started bothering him. His doctor told him he was ruining his feet letting the salt water and crab juice seep into his shoes. So that's the story on Will Toup's socks.

Ruth Toup runs the bar and doesn't put up with any guff. But nobody sets foot inside without getting a smile or a hug. When she and Will opened Toup's marina four and one-half years ago, Ruth thought they were retiring and would operate the marina as a pastime. After spending more time behind the bar than she has in her kitchen, she doesn't think that anymore.

They can't recall what prompted them to start holding the twice-a-month birthday bashes about two years ago. They really don't care either, because when the guitars start twangin' and the feet get to tappin' all that matters is the smile on a friend's face.

"It doesn't hurt to give to people," Will Toup says, stirring about 75 pounds of shrimp in a huge vat out on the marina's screened-in back porch that, along with about 100 pounds of steamed crabs, will be the Toup's gift to the group. "If you give a little bit, you'll receive something back. We like to give the birthday parties because then everybody feels like they're being remembered."

Inside the bar, Ruth Toup darts back and forth between tables. "We have a good time out here," she hollers above a growing din at a birthday bash. "It's crowded now, but wait 'til later. People here on the bayou are like alligators. They don't start moving till later."

Grabbing an empty beer can from a table, Ruth Toup moves behind the bar and flips through a calendar with enough names on various dates to fill a telephone book. Behind her is the "wall of fame" photographs of smiling faces that are permanent reminders of past birthday bashes.

"We meet a new friend who comes in ever once in a while, find out when his birthday is, and put it on the calendar," she says. Then, once during the first part of the month and again during the last part of the month, she telephones the regulars to remind them of the date of the next birthday bash.

Anyone who wants to can take the three steps up to the microphone and sing his favorite song or grab a guitar or the gut bucket otherwise known as a washtub bass and play until they want to quit or need another beer, whichever comes first.

Most people who grab hold of the microphone are local musicians who regularly come down to Toup's for impromptu practice sessions. At a recent birthday bash, the two guests of honor included both an amateur and a veteran musician.

Barbara Chesson, who recently turned 43, had never played an instrument until she planted her feet firmly on the gut bucket one night and began thumping away.

"You can't go wrong with only one string," Chesson said matter-of-factly as her husband, Clary, finished singing. "This is a family place. It just feels comfortable, and Ruth and Will are good people."

"I try to make it to every birthday party I can, but there's one I make for sure — my own," he said.

Premature babies can go home early Critical border office to move

BOSTON (AP) — Many premature babies are kept in the hospital several days longer than necessary while their parents, with a little training from a nurse, could be caring for them at home and saving thousands of dollars in medical costs, a new study concludes.

Babies in newborn intensive care units are among the most expensive of all hospital patients. Their first weeks of life can sometimes cost hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The new study, conducted at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, found that sending small but healthy babies home early could reduce their medical charges by one-fourth.

One expert cautioned that the findings might be used as an excuse to force babies out of hospitals before they are ready to leave. However, Dorothy Brooten, a nurse who directed the study, said she does not think this will happen.

"Physicians as well as nurses are not about to take chances discharging infants who are unstable," she said in an interview.

Instead, she said, many infants could benefit from early discharge, because they would be with their parents sooner and would have less exposure to hospital-spread infections.

The study, published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine, was conducted on 79 infants whose weight at birth averaged about 2½ pounds.

Before they were considered for early release, the babies were well, had no breathing problems and could feed by nipple and stay in an open crib. Of those, half were released as soon as they met the criteria and the others were kept in the hospital until they grew to at least 4.8 pounds.

A nurse was assigned to work with the parents of the early discharge babies. She showed them how to take care of their babies, and she visited their homes to make sure that the conditions were adequate for the newborns.

After the babies were sent home, she visited them regularly, and she was available every day to answer telephone calls from the parents.

The babies in the experimental program were discharged after 47 days in the hospital, an average of 11 days earlier than the other infants. Their weight averaged 4.5 pounds.

Map traces the route of Christopher Columbus' voyage from Palos, Spain to the New World in 1492. Columbus first landed in the New World on the tiny island of Samana Cay in the Bahamas, 65 miles from the island usually credited with this historic event, the National Geographic Society announced Tuesday.

Columbus landing site varies from history

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Christopher Columbus arrived in the New World some 500 years ago, he landed on a tiny island in the Bahamas 65 miles from the one usually credited with this historic event, the National Geographic Society announced today.

Capping a five-year investigation that involved recalculating the route of the voyage across the Atlantic and retranslating old Spanish documents, the magazine said Columbus' first steps in the New World were on Samana Cay.

The narrow, 9-mile-long island in the far eastern Bahamas is 65 miles southeast of Watling Island, which for decades has been the most widely accepted place for Columbus' discovery of America on Oct. 12, 1492.

"We believe we have solved, after five centuries, one of the grandest of all geographic mysteries," Joseph Judge, a senior associate editor of the society's magazine who led the effort, writes in the November issue.

The society said a chain of evidence assembled by Judge and colleagues leads only to Samana Cay as site of the historic landfall, which Columbus dubbed San Salvador.

No fewer than nine islands in the area have been proposed as site of Columbus' first landfall, and Samana Cay previously was advocated by Gustavus V. Fox in 1882.

However, debate all but ended in 1942 when Samuel Eliot Morison, noted nautical historian from Harvard and biographer of Columbus, declared that the site was Watling Island, which had been renamed San Salvador in 1926, the society said.

The latest investigation involved commissioning a new translation of pertinent parts of a summary of Columbus' lost log written by a 16th century priest-historian named Bartolome de las Casas. The original log has not been seen since it was sent to Queen Isabella on the explorer's return to Spain in 1493.

Historian Eugene Lyons, an expert on old Spanish documents, extracted nautical references and quotations attributed to Columbus from the work and these translations became a key part of the investigators' work.

The magazine used specially commissioned computer programs to electronically backtrack the five locations Columbus' ships visited before going on to Cuba.

"Computers are great navigators," said Judge, who originated the idea of using 20th century technologies to retrace the New World voyage. Using the explorer's own bearings and distances, the calculations also led back to Samana, he said.

Members of the team made several trips to Samana, long dismissed as having no history of habitation, and found archaeological evidence of 10 Lucayan Indian sites that existed there 500 or more years ago.
