Upstarts seek country honors

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) -Veteran performers, led by Willie Nelson, vie against a pack of upstarts tonight at the 20th annual Country Music Association awards show.

Nelson, an entertainer for a quarter-century, is a finalist for the top award, entertainer of the year. The other four nominees are comparatively youthful: the Judds, Reba McEntire, Ricky Skaggs and George Strait.

The live show at the Grand Ole Opry House, with Nelson and Kris Kristofferson as hosts. will be broadcast on CBS from 9:30 to 11 p.m. EDT

Strait, the reigning male vocalist of the year, is up for that award again, along with veterans George Jones and Hank Williams Jr., newcomer Randy Travis and actor-singer Gary Morris of the television series "The Colbys."

By HANK MURPHY Staff Writer

Flooding this year has brought hardships for scores of Big Spring people, but few have been struck as hard as 73-year-old Maria Baker of 1102 W. Second St.

Water rising from Beals Creek in September saturated her home with three-feet of water, leaving it a mildewy menagerie of badly damaged furniture, soggy bedding, soaked carpeting, destroyed appliances, buckled flooring and warped walls.

And as Baker, a friend and a reporter talked, flood water slowly was rising again around the little house that had been neatly kept with a tiny, well-groomed yard of plants and flowers.

Baker, who came here from Mexico about nine years ago, has been raising two girls, ages 9 and 10, said Yolanda Huerta, 13 Channing St. Huerta, who said she's been helping Baker salvage house furnishing, explained the girls' mother abandoned the children and Baker took them in.

Mrs. Baker's husband died several years ago, Huerta said, and she has been caring for the children alone in the small house her son gave to her.

But for all practical purposes, the house has been destroyed, Huerta said.

Baker, who speakes no English and whose only income is babysitting, has been staying in a home on the northside of town, Huerta

"She can't stay there forever," Huerta said, "and there's no point in her coming back here.'

Mrs. Baker, who manages a warm smile to strangers despite her trouble, "is a real sweet lady,". Huerta said. "She baby-sits my children. She deserves something better than this."

Huerta said she has contacted the Red Cross, but so far nothing has been done to help Baker.

"She really needs help," Huerta

Council to act on dam, airpark items

Resolutions ranging from hiring engineers to redesign Comanche Lake Dam to approving a document that satisfies regulations in Austin for continuing improvements to the airpark face the Big Spring City Council at its meeting Tuesday night.

Also, Council will consider appointing a municipal court judge. Acting Municipal Judge Gwen Fair is filling that role.

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m., instead of the usual 6:30 p.m. starting time. No reason was given for the later starting time. Public Works Director Tom Decell recommended Oct. 1 that the Lubbock engineering firm of Parkhill, Smith and Cooper be contracted to develop specifications for restoring Comanche Lake Dam and the portion of Goliad Street that was damaged by the Aug. 30 flood Engineers have estimated reconstruction of the dam at about $800,000 and work to Goliad Street at $135,000.

The series of emergency resolutions pertaining to work at the airpark are designed to placate officials of the Texas Aeronautics Commission, said Airpark Superintendent

Boyd said the four emergency resolutions merely reiterate that Mayor Cotton Mize has authority to execute contracts involving Big Spring, contractors and state and federal agencies.

Other actions expected by the Council include:

 Approval of a livestock permit. Authorizing of bids for ambulance

 Awarding a bid for Municipal Auditorium power, lighting and stage lighting renovation.

 First reading of an ordinance that would no longer allow adjustments of water bills because of customer plumbing leaks.

 First reading of an ordinance establishing a school zone on Airbase Road, the location of the new kindergarten center.

 Emergency reading of a resolution concurring on the sale of CRMWD water to the National Co-Generation Corporation.

• First reading of a resolution authorizing the mayor to execute an agreement with Mac-Air for the lease of fuel storage tanks.

Reagan to address public on Reyjavik frustrations

By MICHAEL PUTZEL White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan reports to the American people tonight on the frustrating failure at the Reykjavik summit, where potential agreement on a sweeping arms treaty fell apart over "Star Wars" testing and dashed plans for another meeting between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev. The two-day meeting at the little house on Reykjavik Bay was one of the most disappointing superpower encounters of the post-war generation, and in the downbeat aftermath, there were recriminations all around.

Following the suspenseful final act, Gorbachev said it "would have taken a madman" to accept Reagan's proposals. Soviet official Georgi Arbatov blamed the United States for an arms control "dead end."

White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan said: "The Soviets are the ones who refused to make a deal. It shows them up for what they are. The Soviets finally showed their hand."

After bidding farewell to Gorbachev, Reagan flew back to Washington late Sunday. Asked for comment on his trip upon returning to the White House, Reagan said, 'Tune in tomorrow night.'

Reagan plans to deliver a speech today from the Oval Office of the White House, beginning at 8 p.m. The dramatic, discouraging climax of the summit came after the two sides had reached a surprising agreement to eliminate all nuclear ballistic missiles within 10 years, only to have this understanding evaporate over the issue of testing "Star Wars," the president's Strategic Defense Initiative.

Still, amid the mutual blamefixing, the president's adviser for national security affairs, Vice Adm. John Poindexter, suggested the two sides do not regard Reykjavik as the last word.

Poindexter — fatigued, rumpled and unshaven as he spoke to reporters after the marathon talks in Iceland — said the United States will reassess what happened and has received assurances the Soviets will do the same.

Said Gorbachev: "Let us not despair. I'm sure that not everything has been lost.

Yet, the sense of disappointment Sunday was palpable. White House spokesman Larry Speakes, using terminology appropriate to the autumn season, said the two sides "went 99 yards ... but we didn't cross the goal line" despite Sunday's five-hour overtime session between Reagan and Gorbachev.

Health service funds sought

By SCOTT FITZGERALD Staff Writer

Funding requests for health services were presented to Howard County commissioners this morning before they met in a closed session with attorney Malcolm C. Schultz to discuss a pending lawsuit against the county.

The civil suit also names the sheriff's department, ex-sheriff's deputy O.D. Majors and Sheriff A.N. Standard as defendants.

Adelina Garza of San Angelo is asking an Abilene Federal Court to award her $6 million total damages from defendants after her son was killed while attempting to run a county roadblock during a car chase with local law officers in November 1984. Prior to the closed session, Jack Stovall, director of community services, and Superintendent A.K. Smith, both of the Big Spring State Hospital, requested that the county subsidize building rent for a proposed day activities center to serve persons in need of something to do during the day time. Stovall said later the center would serve Hig Spring residents who had been admitted to the Big Spring State Hospital and those who seek out-patient care.

Commissioner O.L. Brown asked the request be tabled until the Oct. 27 meeting. He told fellow commissioners he want ed to allow time for more feedback from citizens. Commissioner's recently received a petition signed by 13 downtown businessmen and merchants who fear a downtown location for the activity center would increase transient traffic.

Stovall said those persons who signed the petition were misinformed about who the center would serve. He said the hospital had identified 103 persons in the community "who needed some kind of activity center."

The center would not be equipped to serve as a half-way house, and would be a benefit to the downtown renovation project because it could help in keeping certain persons off the streets, Stovall said. An 11-person advisory board to the project recently received a bid from Danny Heckler for $350 monthly rent fee for two buildings that the local bondsman owns in the 100 block of E. Third, Smith told commissioners

Lee Ambulance owner Charles Ginn also requested the county enter into a three-year contract with his ambulance company and pay $4,000 per month. This is a $1,000 increase from what the coun-

Last month, commissioners voted to extend ambulance services with Ginn's company until Dec. 1.

The company also receives monthly city subsidies of $4,000 in addition to $1,190 in paid services. Ginn told commissioners the city was "proposing to look for another provider for ambulance services. HEALTH page 2A

Houston teachers to rate evaluators

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Federation of Teachers wants teachers to evaluate their principals at about the same time principals are beginning to observe educators' work as part of a new state-mandated appraisal system.

Federation president Gayle Fallon said the survey is not being conducted to intimidate principals. She said results will be presented to Houston Independent School District board members.

The evaluation asks teachers to rate their principals in areas of instruction, student discipline, upkeep of physical facilities, interpersonal skills, assessment skills and adherence to school board policy and state law.

Ms. Fallon said the new teacher appraisal system, in which principals are responsible for the observations or for appointing someone else to do them, is a major concern to

She said it "was definitely a factor" in the decision to evaluate principals.

This will identify the strongest principals and secondly, introduce the concept of mutual accountability among educators in Houston," she said. The surveys will be distributed to all teachers, not just union members, Ms. Fallon said. If any building prohibits distribution of the surveys, the forms will be mailed to the teachers' homes The evaluations will be done on an annual basis, she said.

Candidiates reach out to blacks

FORT WORTH (AP) — Gov. Mark White warned black voters that his Republican oppopent, former Gov. Bill Clements, would close wo predominantly black collges.

Clements, meanwhile, spoke at a black church in Houston as the two candidates continued their attacks on each other in Sunday campaign stops. White, who visited eight churches in Fort Worth, accused Clements of using "code like consolidation and duplication to disguise his plans to close Prairie View A&M and Texas Southern University in Houston.

Responding to the attack, Clements said, "I did more for Texas Southern than any gover-

Endorsed by about two dozen black ministers at a stop at St. Agnes Baptist Church in Houston, Clements pledged to increase jobs in Texas, particularly for black youth.

He criticized White's support of the increased sales and gasoline taxes approved during this year's special legislative session.

"We are going down the wrong path when we constantly increase taxes," he said. If elected again, Clements said he would ap-pont new task forces to study the problems of higher education, crime and the economy.

"The whole system is a mess. It needs restructuring," he said.

In Fort Worth, White accused Clements of planning to "cut, cut, cut" services instead of raising taxes.

"He's going to cut our way to the future. They are going to cut out Texas Southern. They're going to cut out Prairie View...," he said at Morningside United Methodist Church.

At almost every stop, White reminded his audience he had appointed Myra McDaniel as secretary of state, the first black woman to hold the post in Texas.

'Some people said it would cost me my job," he said of his appointments of blacks and Hispanics. "But I'm going to keep on doing

OPEC entering second week of talks amid mixed signals

By ROBERT BURNS Associated Press Writer

GENEVA (AP) — OPEC entered a second week of deliberations over production controls today amid mixed signals on the eventual outcome of a meeting that could determaine the course of oil prices for the next several months.

Some officials said the cartel had made modest progress toward a new production agreement during the first seven days of talks. Yet there seemed to be little prospect of a final agreement before midweek, if at all.

Without some sort of production control agreement by OPEC members, oil prices were expected to fall again, possibly below $10 a barrel, from their current range of $14 to $16 a barrel, economists say.

Today's session began with the ministers of Nigeria, Indonesia and the United Arab Emirates reviewing the results of weekend deliberations by OPEC's technical advisers. The full conference was ex-

While the 13 oil ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries relaxed in their hotel rooms or traveled outside Geneva over the weekend, their advisers prepared a set of recommendations on how to end the cartel's costly deadlock.

But the recommendations included a variety of scenarios and were not expected to receive quick approval from the minister's, according to sources speaking on condition they not be identified.

In an apparent effort to intensify the pressure on its OPEC partners to reach agreement, Kuwait issued a formal statement Sunday underscoring its refusal to abide by a temporary OPEC production accord beyond its Oct. 31 expiration.

 $\operatorname{CHICAGO}-\operatorname{A}$ manufacturing company is under investigation for allegedly selling the U.S. Army \$14 million worth of defective tank parts, according to the Chicago Tribune

The newspaper reported Sunday that the U.S. Department of Defense and a federal grand jury are investigating Capital Engineering & Manufacturing Co.

Attempts to reach Captial Engineering for comment Sunday were unsuccessful. Several telephone calls to the company went unanswered.

The sources told the Tribune the investigation involves 167 bridge launchers that Capital sold the government in 1981 and 1983. The launchers were purchased by the government for $85,311 each, government contracts show.

Dr. Jack Copeland said it could be several weeks before doctors know why the donor heart failed shortly after it was placed Saturday into Bernadette Chayrez, 40, of Phoenix, who lived 244 days on her second mini-Jarvik Infections may have caused the failure, or her supersensitive immune system may have ferociously attacked the heart, the University Medical Center surgeon said.

Ms. Chayrez had been kept alive although her heart deteriorated to the point of total failure, providing "a unique insight into the cause of viral destruction to the heart." Copeland said.

Church battles sexism

DENVER — A regional body of the United Methodist Church has approved a policy prohibiting candidates for the ministry from referring in church paperwork and interviews to God exclusively as a male.

"All of us are in the process of making the transformation from sexist language to sexless language. This is a step in the direction we need to go," said the Rev. Keith Watson of Longmont, chairman of the Methodist Rocky Mountain Annual Conference's ministry board, which approved the policy.

Under the new policy, phrases such as Divine Light will replace Father, King or Lord, the Rocky Mountain News reported Sunday. Candidates, however, can refer to God as Mother and Father, or He and She.

Quake kills 890

Many still buried; 150,000 left homeless

By REID G. MILLER Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The strong earthquake that shook the capital area two days ago killed at least 890 people and may have caused $2 billion in damage, President Jose Napoleon Duarte said late Sunday.

Speaking in a televised news conference, Duarte said 10,000 people were injured in Friday's quake, and 150,000 left homeless.

There "are many people who are still buried and places where we have not reached," he said, suggesting the death toll could rise still higher.

Officials on Sunday said rescuers had dug more than 70 survivors from the wreckage of buildings destroyed by the earthquake.

The president estimated damage at $2 billion, but said this was just "a personal opinion." An official figure would have to await a thorough survey, he said. 'We are practically going to have to reconstruct all of the city," he said. Duarte said there have been 873 tremors since the first major shock jolted the San Salvador area on Friday. They were registered on seismographs although many were not felt, he said. On Sunday night, a young girl walked out of the rubble of the five-story Ruben Dario office building as rescuers cleared away debris in an ongoing search for survivors, said U.S. Embassy spokesman Jake

"There was a little rumble," he said. "A 6-year-old girl dusted herself off and walked away.

Gillespie said that since Friday 52 people have been freed from the wreckage of the Ruben Dario building and that rescuers knew from voice contact three others were alive.

The 52 included 24 survivors whose rescue from the building was announced earlier Sunday. It was not known how many people were rescued from the building during each of the three days of digging.

Other officials said rescue workers have managed to pull 22 people alive from the Planning Ministry, along with the bodies of five who died there. Five others are believed to be still trapped inside.

Rescuers also said three others had been found alive in the ruins of an annex of the Presidential Palace.

"It is impossible to say how many more are trapped" in the collapsed buildings, said Dr. Antonio Silva Carranza, a member of a volunteer Guatemalan rescue squad.

The U.S. Embassy said two Americans with dual nationalities have been confirmed dead. They were identified as Jose Mauricio Juarez, whose age was not immediately known, and 12-year-old Yolanda Suzanne Embassy spokesman Pendleton Agnew said the American owner of the Gran Hotel San Salvador, Harry Jacobson, 73, was believed trapped in the rubble of his seven-story downtown building.

The International Red Cross in Geneva said earlier Sunday that the homes of about 40,000 families were damaged. It said immediate medical needs have been met and no epidemics are feared. The Red Cross also said electricity has been restored to about 60 percent of the capital. Telephone service was being restored and water was being distributed.

Monsignor Arturo Rivera Damas, Roman Catholic archbishop of San Salvador, conducted an outdoor Mass in the plaza across from the Metropolitan Cathedral, which was damaged and has been closed since the quake.

He said the disaster might encourage leftist rebels and El Salvador's U.S.-supported government to call a halt to their 7-year-old civil war

Rebel leaders on Saturday decreed a unilateral, temporary truce because of the disaster, but Duarte has not responded

Many countries, including the United States and El Salvador's neighbors, Mexico and Nicaragua, pledged to send aid, including emergency supplies and rescue

The downtown area and shantytowns on the outskirts of the capital were hardest hit. The presidential palace, the U.S. Embassy, six major hospitals and several schools were severely damaged. At least seven major buildings collapsed.

PEKING - Dancing children, an honor guard and a 21-gun salute today officially welcomed Queen Elizabeth II on the first tour of China ever made by a reigning British

The queen and her husband, Prince Philip, were greeted by President Li Xiannian and given flowers before they met with other Chinese and British officials in ceremonies conducted outside Peking's Great Hall of the Elizabeth, wearing a red coat and matching hat with black trim, strolled to a reviewing stand with Li. The two stood as members of a People's Liberation Army honor guard played 'God Save the Queen" and the Chinese national anthem, followed by a 21-gun salute.

Elizabeth and Li strolled down a red carpet to review the guard and went past more than 300 children and teenagers, who were dancing, singing "Welcome, welcome, a warm welcome" in Chinese, and waving flowers, pompons and tamborines.

Nicaraguans to judge

MANAGUA, Nicaragua - Eugene Hasenfus, the American who survived the shooting down of a rebel supply plane, will soon be tried in a People's Court, President Daniel Ortega said.

Ortega, who commented publicly for the first time on the capture of Hasenfus during a nationally broadcast town meeting Saturday, did not say what charges the 45-year-old American would face or precisely when he would stand trial.

Hasenfus was captured by Sandinista troops after they used a surface-to-air missile to shoot down a C-123 transport plane Oct. 5 on an arms drop mission to Contra rebels fighting Ortega's leftist government.

Hasenfus, of Marinette, Wis., had bailed out when the plane was hit.

The aircraft's American pilot and co-pilot were killed in the crash. Their bodies were handed over to the U.S. Embassy in Managua and returned to the United States

A fourth crew member, believed to be American, also died but has not yet been identified and his body has not been given to U.S.

Ortega angrily denounced what he called the "direct participation" of the U.S. government in aiding the rebels.

Anglicans issue call

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa - An Anglican synod called on all Christians to oppose apartheid, but a priest who took part in the policy-making congress condemned what he called effective segregation in the church's own parishes.

The Anglican church, South Africa's most influential denomination after the Dutch Reformed Church, also approved a resolution at its weekend synod containing what was termed "implicit support of sanctions" designed to force an end to apartheid.

Roman Catholic Archbishop George Daniel raised the issue of de facto segregation — in effect a sort of apartheid - at a meeting of Catholic laity in Pretoria. He said on Saturday: "Let's be honest. Before the Group Areas Act came into effect, (white and black) Catholics were living apart, and not only geographically. If the act were lifted tomorrow, would we mix freely?'

The Group Areas Act establishes exclusive residential zones for whites.

Daniel said, "One wonders whether culture, language, nationality - even for many Catholics - are not more important than the unity brought about by baptism into the one

American, Italian win Nobel medicine prize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — An American biochemist and an Italian-American developmental biologist won the 1986 Nobel Prize in medicine today for their work contributing to the understanding and eventual treatment of cancerous tumors, senility and other conditions.

Stanley Cohen, a researcher at the Vanderbilt University School of Medicine in Nashville, Tenn., and Rita Levi-Montalcini of the Institute of Cell Biology C.N.R. in Rome were cited by the Nobel Assembly of Stockholm's Karolinska Institute for their discoveries of mechanisms regulating cell and organ growth.

The two, who worked together during the 1950s, have discovered bodies called "growth factors." The awarding assembly said the discovery of growth factors was expected in the near future to result in new drugs and improved treatment of various diseases. The two winners will split a cash stipend of 2 million Swedish kronor, about $290,000 at the current rate of exchange. Endocrinology professor Kerstin

Hall, a member of the Nobel Assembly, said at a news conference that the prize was awarded to the two researchers decades after their discoveries because "only in the last 10 years or so have the meaning of these results been investigated.

'We now stand at the threshold of being able to use this clinically," she said.

"Also, in the last decade the number of growth factors discovered has risen explosively.'

Opinion

Views of other Texas papers

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around the state.

Senate merely applied 'tourniquet'

The only thing missing as the Texas Senate adjourned, ending eight weeks of special sessions of the Legislature, was an off-camera voice warning, "We'll be right back, folks.'

It would have been fitting at the otherwise-anticlimactic finish to the sessions called to cure the state's gaping, $2.3 billion financial wound. Instead of doing that, election-year lawmakers covered it with a large tourniquet in the form of $511 million in budget cuts and $875 million in temporary, new taxes, and went home.

Judge's TDC housing ruling wrong

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice recently told the Texas Department of Corrections it could not temporarily house inmates at a National Guard armory.

The TDC is under an order from Justice to build more prisons or release more inmates. The judge contends that the prison system is overcrowded.

We understand and in some ways agree with the federal judge's order that the prisoners should be given adequate housing.

The 1987 Legislature convenes Jan: 13 for a five-month regular session. When lawmakers return, they will find not only the $1 billion shortfall hangover from the special sessions but a projected fresh shortfall of $5 billion to $7 billion for the next biennium.

It is to be hoped legislators will be more receptive to facing the hard, cold facts about the kind of long-term damage to Texas that will be done if they are unwilling to meet the problems head-on.

-The Houston Post

What we don't understand is why National Guard armory is not qualified to serve as adequate temporary housing.

If our National Guard armories are not adequate to humanely house inmates, even on a temporary basis, then why are we letting our fighting men live under such conditions.

In this ruling, the judge is wrong.

Air Force agrees to raise let price

The Air Force has, at the behest of two members of Congress, agreed to buy 80 of Gates Learjet Corp.'s jets for about $8 million more than its own studies showed the aircraft were worth.

The agreement to buy the planes was signed the same day that Gates Learjet was sold to the New York investment firm of M.J. Rosenthal & Associates. The Air Force upped the price of the jets by $100,000 a copy after being urged to do so by Sen. Dennis De Concini, D-Ariz., whose home state is where Gates Learjet is located, and Rep. Bill Chappell, D-Fla., chairman of the House defense appropriations Statesman subcommittee. The buyer of Gates Learjet said the purchase was not 'specifically conditioned" on the Air Force agreement, but that the company would have re-evaluated the purchase if the Air Force hadn't bumped up the price.

It sounds as though Chrysler missed a bet a few years ago. If it could have sold some Dodge trucks as "Lee Iacocca Fighting Vehicles," at a suitably inflated price, the company wouldn't have had to come publicly begging, hat in hand, for a formal bailout from

Writer says give Reagan his chance

It is anyone's guess whether the Soviets were more impressed with the shear mass of the U.S. arms buildup over the last five years, the stated willingness of the administration to breach the unratified 1979 SALT treaty, or Mr. Reagan's plan to ignore the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty in the development of the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI). The socalled Star Wars plan is believed to be at the top of the Soviet hit list, but a test ban could inhibit its development.

It is understandable that the House has tried to force certain arms constraints on President Reagan since his resolve to reach a nuclear arms agreement with the Soviets has been less than convincing over the last five years.

But at this point, the president must have the opportunity to use every major segment of the U.S. arms stockpile at the negotiating table (his insistence on withholding SDI notwithstanding) to win a comparable and verifiable arms reduction treaty with the Soviet Union. After Mr. Reagan has had his chance to make history, Congress will have its own opportunity to

Justice Department shows partiality in investigation

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON - The Justice Department quietly killed an FBI investigation of a federal official because it would damage her credibility as the star witness in a civil suit the department was defending.

Theofficial is Kathleen Peroff, a former project director at the Housing and Urban Development. She was in charge of the controversial 1984 study that claimed there were only 350,000 homeless people in the country. We broke the story that the study's methodology was questionable and the estimate far

The Community for Creative Non-Violence, a Washington-based advocacy group for the homeless, filed a civil suit against HUD to suit has yet to come to trial, with "evidence of criminality." the Justice Department's civil division defending HUD's position and Peroff as the government's star witness.

Meanwhile, CCNV filed charges with the Justice Department claiming that Peroff had committed perjury in testimonyl before Congress and in sworn depositions taken for the civil suit. The charges were eventually referred to Assistant Attorney General Harry R. Benner, chief of the department's trial and grand jury section.

An FBI agent was sent to interview Peroff. Shortly after that, Benner dropped the Peroff investigation. In an internal Justice Department memo we've obtained, he explained why.

Peroff "became very upset about being questioned by an FBI agent," Benner wrote. Then Benner was contacted by Royce Lamberth, the assistant attorney general of the civil division who was in charge of defending Peroff's study of the homeless against Lamberth told Benner the FBI investigation "was creating an apperance that we did not believe" Peroff, according to the memo. This would damage her credibility in the civil suit, the memo explained.

Eventually, the message was relayed to me that the U.S. attorney did not want the author wrote. So he dropped the FBI investigation, which had been recommended by a subordinate who said the interview should be conducted stop distribution of the report. The even though there was no Suspecting something CCNV's attorney, Mark Venuti, asked for a court hearing on the possibility of collusion between the Justice Department's criminal and civil divisions. At the hearing, the government assured the three-judge panel that the Justice Department is "compartmentalized." It has "different divisions that look at civil suits as opposed to possibilities of criminal investigations," the government claimed The judges agreed, and pointed out that CCNV had failed to show that the decision to drop the Peroff investigation was "flawed or investigation was tainted." The judges might have ruled differently if they had known of Lamberth's intervention, as described in Benner's internal memo. Lamberth told our associate Stewart Harris the reason he intervened in Benner's investigation of Peroff was that it would duplicate the interviews already conducted by h is civil division attorneys. Asked how he could be objective about a criminal investigation of his own witness and the author of the study he was defending, Lamberth said: 'That's why we're not hired guns. We have an underlying obligation to the United States to see that justice is done. We have a broader responsibility" than simply defending Peroff's study.

decision may limit justice

On Aug. 18, 1983, Francis Connelly walked up to a uniformed police officer in downtown Denver and said he had killed someone and wanted to talk about it. Despite being informed of his right to remain silent and to have a lawyer, Connelly insisted on telling how he had murdered a young girl nearly two years before and showing the police the building where the crime had occurred.

An open-and-shut case? Not quite. Charged with murder, Connelly was found insane and thus unable to stand trial. After six months in a mental hospital he was certified as competent to proceed.

But his lawyer argued that he was insane when he confessed and that both his statements and the evidence they yielded should be thrown out — which probably would destroy the prosecution's case and let Connelly go free. Two lower courts have agreed.

The final judgment will be made by the U.S. Supreme Court, which is scheduled to hear the case this week. If the court upholds the lower court decisions, it will overstretch the protections guaranteed by the Constitution and seriously impair law enforcement.

Connelly may very well have been insane when he confessed. He told a court-appointed psychiatrist that while in Boston, he heard the voice of God commanding him to return to Denver and tell the police

The 5th Amendment says that no one "shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself." That provision has been interpreted to mean no one may be compelled by the government to incriminate himself. But the Colorado Supreme Court ruled that the Constitution forbids the use of all "involuntary" confessions. Connell's confession was involuntary because God's demands, as he heard them, gave him no reasonable alternative.

here. As soon as Connelly made his startling admission, the officer read him his Miranda warning.

A detective who arrived later repeated it. At any stage, Connelly could have stopped talking or demanded to see a lawyer. Nor did they callously take advantage of a helpless man. Connelly didn't behave like a lunatic, and, lacking psychiatric training, the police had no way of knowing he was insane.

been deluded in hearing commands from God, he apparently was lucid enough to understand the warnings he was given by the police and the consequences of disregarding fession from an insane person is bound to be unreliable, which might justify a blanket exclusion. But what Connelly told the police was accurate enough to produce corroborating evidence of his guilt. Even if the confession is ruled out, the value of that evidence ought to be judged independently.

To throw everything out not only would free a confessed killer, but it would do so for no important social purpose. The police would not be induced to behave better. The Constitution would not be rendered any more secure quences would undermine the whole criminal justice system. Anyone rash enough to confess to a crime would be able, at a later date, to claim he was insane at the time, with the prosecution obliged to demonstrate he was not.

Drive-in movie theatres are becoming nostalgic

ODESSA(AP) - Underneath the a racy place.overgrown weeds and graffiticovered screens are the fossil remains of yesterday's drive-ins. With less than 196 drive-ins left in the state, these dinosaur theaters are rapidly becoming a part of America's nostalgic past.

Bob Hutte, 40, owns both a walkin and drive-in theater in Seminole. The proprietor recently closed an Andrews drive-in because of sluggish business.

Reflecting on the movie industry, Hutte gave reasons for the death of the drive-in.

"The primary demise of the drive-in for most areas is that real estate value catches up with the drive-in property," Hutte explained. "Drive-ins are especially disappearing in the larger metropolitan areas because it's worth more to sell the property.

Hutte noted that it also costs about as much for a drive-in operator to rent a second-run movie (one that has been shown before in a walk-in theater) as it does for a first-run feature.

Emergence and expansion of the video cassette industry was a death blow to the drive-in. For Texas, another factor against the drive-in is the floundering economy.

'Most of the younger generation has been hardest hurt by the economy," Hutte said. "They don't have money on reserve or the dollar to spend on entertainment. Some are lucky to have money to put bread and butter on the table."

Weather and daylight-saving

Once known as a playground for sex, Hutte said the drive-ins' reputation is no longer considered "Yea, it's been called the passion pit," he said. "Younger people are more affluent because of the sexual revolution. Sex is more evident and not hidden anymore. A boy can take his girlfriend to a motel.'

Jim Wilmes, 24, is owner of Midland's Texan Drive In. Showing second-run movies has been profitable for the young entrepreneur.

Wilmes said his business has been affected by the economy, but he believes people will still drive a path to his drive-in.

"Every house has a kitchen, but people still go out to eat," he said. The owner said he tries to target audiences 16-34 years old. Wilmes recently tried midnight movie showings to supplement his regular feature showings.

One of the problems in the operation of drive-in movies is maintenance of speakers, Wilmes said. Many operators have switched from speakers to using an AM signal broadcast at the drive-in.

'A lot of people complain beacause of static. There's a stigma about AM: No one likes to listen to it," he said.

Wilmes said he would like to switch to FM, but the Federal Communications Commission forbids

The theater owner said he is aware that drinking happens at his drive-in and in fact tried to get a liquor license to sell beer at his business. However, insurance companies and a law against onpremiss consumption prevented Wilmes from obtaining the license.

Lamar Fields, 31, vice president of development for Carmike Cinemas in Columbus, Ga., attributes the erosion of drive-ins to multi-screen indoor theaters which opened in the late 60s - landvalues and daylight-saving time.

Carmike owns about 25 drive-ins in 12 states in the Southeast and Southwest, including Video Park in Odessa on south U.S. 385. But in a phone interview, Lamar said all but two are closed. Lamar said the Odessa area theater closed in September 1984 after about a year of operation.

He said Carmike currently is investing in six-, eight- and 10-multiscreen indoor complexes.

"There will be very few, if any, drive-in theaters eventually, Fields said.

Soon after their birth following World War II drive-ins were considered stiff competition for downtown movie palaces, said Dr. James Sanderson, 32, Odessa Čollege English professor.

The drive-in theater also changed the movie habits of America. 'Certain behaviors were distinctly different at a walk-in theater compared to a drive-in theater,' Sanderson said. "There was a party-type atmosphere associated with a drive-in.'

Because of the drive-in's popularity, moviemakers catered to the drive-in audience. As a result summer movies such as the beach blanket films, cheap horror, science fiction and western movies sprouted and thrived, he said.

Meanwhile, comfortable suburban cinemas returned with Dolby sound and multiple screens that contributed to the demise of the drive-in era.

This woman is mistaken if she considers her job harmless to her spiritual life. No woman can dance topless and be a Christian. If she reads her Bible, she will know that merely believing in God does not make her a good Christian — it's how she lives in front of others that counts.

This woman is actually instilling lust in men, and the Bible tells us that any man who looks upon a woman with lust has already committed adultery in his heart. So even if (as she says) she doesn't go out with anyone after work, she has already done the damage. I will pray for her.

I am a Christian counselor. Please forgive this poorly typed letter, but it isn't easy sitting in an office trying to write a letter while the phone is ringing and people keep bursting in unannounced. Perhaps you can pray for me, too.

DEAR ABBY: I read in our local paper, The Daily Reflector, the letter from "Concerned and Praying," who was concerned about her topless dancing. In my opinion all good things cometh from the Lord! I also believe that a thing of beauty is a joy forever.

May I also add that there is none of us righteous. No, not one, and if there be in us any righteousness whatsoever, it is not in ourselves, but we made righteous through the sacrifice of the blood of Jesus who died on the cross.

If "Concerned and Praying" never does anything worse than dancing topless, she is a better Christian than many of those she sits beside in church.

Asthma sufferers can find relief in theophylline

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I'm a 60-year-old woman and am having a terrible time with bronchial asthma. It is very frustrating when a person can't get their breath. I have had to be rushed to the hospital many times. I live alone. They are working in laboratories on cures for cancer and heart conditions, but there does not seem to be anybody helping people with my problem. I don't smoke and never did heavily. I can't stand the cold weather that's coming on soon. Please answer as soon as possible. I need help. — M.A.

I have to wonder if you are taking advantage of all the new methods of asthma control. I'll bet you aren't.

For, example, theophylline, a standard asthma drug, is now available in a time-release form. Many asthmatics get into trouble at night when blood levels of their medication wane. Slow-release medicine sustains many of them through the night.

Researchers have not been ignoring asthma patients. Other new drugs include the beta agonists. They open the constricted breathing tubes caused by asthma. These medicines come as inhalants. Having them around, the hateful age spots? I used two jars properly-instructed asthmatic spares himself many emergency room trips. Then there are the attack preventers, like cromolyn. You may not have heard of all these new developments in asthma therapy because they are not the stuff of which big headlines are made. For people like yourself, living alone and trying to control a distressing problem, it's big news, indeed. Undoubtedly, many veteran asthmatics, whose problem was diagnosed many years ago, may, like you, be missing out

Bleaching agents, the Esotericas and Porcelanas, may help the lightly-colored mature skin spots (that's so as not to offend any of my elderly readers). Freezing them off with liquid nitrogen removes them, but they may return. Let me suggest one of the homely little practical steps to take -- stay out of the sun. Wearing light linen gloves may avoid the spots and make you

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I just started jogging a few weeks ago. I am trying to find out if it's OK to jog twice a day, once in the morning and once at night. I jog a halfhour at a time. - R.G.

It's safe, but what are your goals? If you are running for your heart's health you can accomplish that goal by running three times a week for 15-30 minutes a session. If that's your goal, but you are running more than 12 miles a week, you aren't benefitting yourself that much more from the intensity.

You ask (another part of your letter) if it is OK to go to bed after coming back from your evening run. Sure, it is, but some people learn that exercise is stimulating, and find it hard to fall asleep. Since you are a beginner, you might want to leaf through the booklet "Introduction to Fitness." It gives some basics on going into such a program as you are attempting. Other readers may obtain a copy by writing me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1.50.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have started doing dips on parallel bars. For some reason I enjoy such exercise as opposed to the machines. I'm unfamiliar with the technology. Am I exercising only the triceps muscles with these dips? - W.U.

You're exercising more than the triceps, the back-of-the arm muscles. You are also using your chest muscle (pectoralis major), back muscle (latissimus dorsi) and shoulder muscles (deltoids)

I like parallel and chinning bars. You use your own body weight with them and develop dexterity in addition to raw strength. And you can increase the difficulty of exercise when you need to (by strapping a weight to your waist). Keep on

One-fourth fail to pay parking fines

ODESSA (AP) — Failure to pay parking tickets isn't unusual in any town. But in this West Texas city, more than one fourth of all parking violators fail to cough up the fines, city officials say.

Municipal Court Administrator Fred Rivera said car dealers, drivers with out-of-county license plates and people who rent cars account for 70 percent of the unpaid

Rivera says city prosecutors generally dismiss those tickets when they can't learn the name of the person who was driving the car.

Since new parking rates took effect in April, 1985, calculations show, the city has lost more than $63,000 in revenue. But only $18,000 of that stems from tickets that can be traced back to drivers, Rivera

A total of about $44,322 from 14,774 unpaid tickets come from citations issued to the more elusive out-of-town or rental car drivers. Rivera said.

Rivera said compliance with city parking laws jumped dramatically after the City Council passed a schedule of stiffer fines that can go as high as $7.50 per ticket.

Since the new rates took effect, the city has collected about $210,887 in fines and $175,000 from meters, Rivera said.

PORT ARANSAS (AP) — A man dressed in combat fatigues and armed with three knives and a rifle shot a policeman, led authorities on a wild, 100 mph auto chase on a beach, then escaped for about five hours by diving into a canal and swimming away, officials said.

Kirk Douglas visits Texas film site

SEALY (AP) — It's not all that unusual for a father to drop by and visit his son at work.

But this particular dad's weekend visit turned some heads in this Southeast Texas town.

Actor Kirk Douglas came to town to watch his son, Peter Douglas, direct a new motion picture. The movie is "A Tiger's Tale," starring Ann-Margret, C. Thomas Howell and Charles Durning.

The production crew was here for only one day of filming.

Director Douglas persuaded his father to take a cameo role and the elder Douglas donned a westernstyle hat and boots to portray a pool player in a scene being filmed in the downtown area of Sealy.

Howell was the only one of the main characters who took part in the scene filmed here, observers BRONTE (AP) - An Odessa businessman is turning buffalo raising from a hobby into a meatproducing business.

"I have always been kind of fascinated by the buffalo," said Lee. So they bought a few just to have them.

The family began to hear stories about buffalo business potential. With a waning market for their oil and gas, they decided to learn if the stories were true.

Ann Granquist, marketing specialist in the Odessa office of the Texas Department of Agriculture, recalls that Lee called to say he had 13 head of buffalo and ask if they were marketable — if he could make any money off his small herd.

She said she knew nothing about buffalo, but obtained approval to study the animal as an economic development project. She soon became an expert on the subject, she savs.

Big Tex familiar sight at State Fair

DALLAS (AP) - Some things never change at the State Fair, and nothing is more reliable than Big

"Howww-deece," Tex says, his 42-pound jaw falling open as he lets out the cheerily lobotomized rumble that's been his trademark for 34

Despite his new threads caught up in the Sesquicentenial frenzy, he's donned a Texasthemed shirt this year — Tex is still the same old hay-seed who hitches up his jeans and greets the masses from a stand of prairie grass between the Tower Building and what is now known as The Grand Plaza.

His legs are still bowed, his hat pushed back, his face still open and eager and refreshingly naive. He still has those big, workman-like hands, each contorted into that weird way that seems to halt and welcome at the same time. He still a.m. Sunday after stopping the has a linebacker's level shoulders and a hay-baler's full chest. His black hair still sweeps across his forehead with a little-boy curl, and his cowboy boots are still way too big for his feet, leaving him what looks like acres of room for stuffing his pants' legs.

But it turns out that something is different about Big Texas this year. If you listen closely enough, you might notice that his voice runs a little quicker than in the past that it's out of sync with his jaw in a slightly different way than it's been out of sync before.

'Even though you think you're talking slow, you're still not talking slow enough," explained Don Schafer, a 45-year-old country music promoter who's the new voice of Big Tex. "So what it boils down to is, you can't talk too slow.

"He (Big Tex) can't talk in sentences," Schafer added. "He has to talk in syllables. Like a word like 'Centennial Building' - he could never get that out all at once. Or a word like 'Embarcadero Building.' But certain words are natural for him to break up. Like Bud-weis-er. But when you get into Cen-ten-ni-al, you find yourself helping him along to get him over Schafer says he's still trying to get comfortable with the weight of being Tex's voicebox. Retired radio personality Jim Lowe was the voice of Tex for most of the Big Guy's lifetime, with a few stand-ins helping out the past four years. But when last year's voice left this year for Oregon, Schafer, who also books the music acts at the Fair, was recruited. He's a longtime worker at the Fair, a kind of "Fair Her office is working with the Lees to obtain contracts for meat junkie" who lives at the Fair prac-But the meat is not the only tically day and night during its run. "Just the many as 30 live or recorded announcements a day, each done from a crowded production studio crammed inside a little shack behind the Coca-Cola stage. The announcements are boomed out over the Fairgrounds by four 12-by-23 speakers screwed inside Big Tex's chest.

Schafer admits the requirements place to keep them, with a large for the job as voicebox are pretty enough area of land that the buffalo minimal. But he also says he comes by them naturally.

'The people at the Fair said, 'Let's find the guy who speaks the worst English we can find, who talks real Texan," he explained. " 'And there ain't but one of those

"The first time I read a script, I said, 'This is real cornball,' Schafer recalled. "But then I realized the more cornball it is the better it sounds coming out of him. He can say things nobody else could, and people react to it. And the slower you say it, the more attention people pay to it. That figure is just so dominant that people watch. It's easy to take a script, look at it and say we ought to change it here so it reads more properly. But the kids relate to him automatically. I think he represents the Fair - he's what never leaves you when you grow

"I'm trying to do some things that feel natural to me, but maybe have never done before," Schafer added. "Like I'm saying, 'Thanks, y'all.' When I walk around in the crowd, I see a lot of out-of-towners smiling. They get a kick out of that.

"He (Big Tex) is totally Texan. He's the last of the real, true Texans. He's just real simple, but there's character there that you can't take away. And I've always had boots and a hat just because it's comfortable — and long before 'Urban Cowboy.

Schafer says there are times when the lines between him and Tex do blur, sometimes it seems Big Tex is speaking from inside of him, instead of the other way country program. Over the years Big Spring distance runners have been coming up empty handed competing in District 4-5A. This year, in District 2-4A, it's like the program has been given a shot in the arm.

Big Spring coach Randy Britton is happy about the move to the new district. "This is by far the most enjoyable season I've had as cross country coach," said Britton. "It's a nice feeling knowing that you have a chance to compete and win, and the kids know that also. The group of runners I've got have all been working hard.'

The team has been prepping for the district meet which will be in Monahans on Nov. 1. Britton has been putting his troops through a grueling schedule. It begins with a workout at 8:20 a.m. Then the runners come back for their afternoon workout at 3:30. In all, Britton says the runners put in about 60 miles of road work per week. "The afternoon workouts are a little more intense,." he said.

"I sure can't complain about their work habits. They get fired up and run because they know they have a chance to win, and they

The golfers who competed in this and weekend's Big Spring City Championships at Comanche Trail must have felt like they were playing in the British Open.

Comanche Trail Golf Pro Al Patterson said the players were bundled up and halfway to miserable as they battled the elements as well as the course. He said the weather produced higher scores than usual.

Not unusual was the city champien, who was recrowned rather in than crowned. Ron Broadrick shot as a 36-hole total of 146 to easily win 🍫 his third straight city championship. Royce Cox was eight strokes back at 154.

Scott masters bewildered Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — As most any Texan will tell you, when you've got a good dog you let him hunt. And that's exactly what Houston Manager Hal Lanier is doing with pitcher Mike Scott.

Houston catcher Alan Ashby hit a two-run homer in the second inning and shortstop Dickie Thon had a solo shot in the fifth to provide Scott with all the offense he would

The triumph also silenced 55,038 cheering Mets fans who filled Shea Stadium hoping for another miracle finish like the one New York pulled off Saturday

In that game, Darryl Strawberry hit a three-run homer and Lenny Dykstra smacked a two-run homer in the ninth as New York overcame a 4-0 deficit to win 6-5.

That prompted Lanier to bring back Scott, who was 18-10 and led the major leagues with 306 strikeouts during the regular season, on only three days' rest. It showed in Scott's fastball, which wasn't nearly as swift as it had been in Game 1 when he pitched a 1-0 five-hit victory

"I didn't have the good fastball, so I knew I had to go to the splitfinger (fastball) more," Scott said. "I wanted to keep the ball down. I knew I had to keep it down, away and in the ballpark

Scott's five strikeouts, coupled with his 14 in Game 1, gave him a record 19 for the series, breaking the major-league playoff record of 18 by Toronto's Dave Steib last year Scott's 16 consecutive scoreless innings and two complete games also are playoff records.

"It was too late to worry about wearing him out," Lanier said. "If the series goes seven games, I'll use him in Game 7 and hopefully he'll be sharp again. I'm going to have my No. 1 man out there.

"We needed this game tonight desperately, or else we were looking at elimination on Monday."

Houston pitcher Mike Scott throws from his knees to catch Wally Backman at first after the New York Met bunted in the ninth inning of Game 4 of the National League Championship Series in New York Sunday evening. Scott finished the game for his second series win over the Mets as the Astros won 3-1.

Game 5 was scheduled for 3:05 p.m. EDT today with Mets' ace Dwight Gooden facing rookie Jim Deshaies. Tuesday will be a travel day and the series will resume in Houston's Astrodome on Wednesday.

Scott, who clinched the NL West Division title with a no-hitter for the Astros, carried a no-hitter through 5 2-3 innings before Ray Knight singled sharply to left.

'Once he gets two strikes on you. the league to get the fat part of the them bat on," Knight said. "I still feel confident that we can win. We're too good an offensive club not to make adjustments.

But the Mets, as they did in Game 1, were still complaining that Scott was doctoring the ball, scuffing it in some way to make it break more sharply on its flight toward the plate.

"Every single ball was scuffed," Mets second baseman Wally he's probably the hardest guy in Backman said. "Every one of

"You know there are people in the game who cheat. I never knew until late in the game, but when you have 15 or 20 balls that have been scuffed, you know it's not done by fouling them off. I don't know how he was doing it. I assume it's something in his glove hand.

Knight conceded, however, that Scott's alleged doctoring may be only a state of mind

Sox climb from coffin to edge almost Angels ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — After this you have to believe in this ball exchanging 11-inning victories in less than 24 hours, the California Angels and the Boston Red Sox needed a breather today in their American League playoff series.

"It was a very emotional game and I'm sure everyone is drained, but we'll be ready again Tuesday night," California catcher Bob Boone said as the Angels were forced to make a trip to Boston for Game 6 and, if necessary, Game 7 in the best-of-seven series for the AL pennant.

After losing a 3-0 lead in the ninth and dropping a 4-3 decision Saturday night to fall behind 3 games to 1, the Red Sox staged a dramatic comeback of their own with a 7-6 triumph Sunday in to stay alive.

The hill we have to climb still is steep, but we are still in there,' Boston Manager John McNamara said. "This might be the most competitive and exciting game I have ever seen. This was a tough loss for the Angels, but don't forget that they are still in the drivers' seat."

With a 5-2 lead in the ninth, champagne was waiting on ice in the California clubhouse. However, the Red Sox spoiled the party.

Don Baylor and Dave Henderson each hit two-run homers in the ninth. Then, after the Angels tied the score in the last of the ninth, Baylor was hit by a pitch and eventually scored the winning run on Henderson's sacrifice fly in the

"It was very emotional from the time we got up this morning,' Baylor said before the Red Sox headed home. "It was like we were on a roller coaster all day, first up, then down, back up, down again and finally back up.

"We got down to the last out and we did what we've done all year,' Bavlor said.

"When you get down to your last out, your last pitch, there's a lot of emotion," he added. "We did what we had to do. We've been pushed to the wall a lot this year and after Reliever Calvin Schiraldi, the losing pitcher in 11 innings Saturday night, said he was happy to get "the chance to make up for last" night." He said he just blocked out the night before when he took the mound and retired the Angels in order in the 11th to preserve the victory for Steve Crawford, the third Boston pitcher.

Henderson, who entered the game in the fifth after center fielder Tony. Armas twisted his 👊 ankle, went from possible goat to st hero for the Red Sox:

With the Red Sox ahead 2-1 in the sixth, Henderson appeared to knock a long drive by Bobby Grich over the fence in left-center for a -two-run homer.

"I just went after the ball," Henderson said. "My wrist hit the, top of the wall and knocked the ball us out of the park. I thought I had it all the way and should have caught

Asked what he was thinking when the count went to 2-2 against California reliever Donnie Moore with two out in the ninth, Henderson said:

"We are ballplayers and we fail." most of the time. I just stepped out and gathered my thoughts. I fouled a off the next pitch and then hit the home run off a fork ball.

"I haven't got that many chances (since being acquired from Seattle in August), but it's nice to get the big hit. It came at the right time."

California Manager Gene Mauch declined to attend the postgame news conference, but said in the clubhouse, "I exult when we win and I agonize a little when we lose. Then I get ready for another ball game. I'm not any different from anyone else.'

"I was trying to throw a good split fingered pitch, but it didn't have any dive on it," Moore said of the home run pitch to Henderson. "Maybe if I tried to blow it past him, we'd be drinking champagne potential quarterback controversy to the Dallas Cowboys. But scratch one runningback controversy. Herschel Walker is getting along just fine as a receiver, thank you.

Digging themselves out of a monstrous hole on their first series, the Cowboys dug themselves out of what could have been a big hole in the NFC East race Sunday by crushing the Washington Redskins 30-6 and handing the Redskins their

And who should emerge in Dallas' fifth 30-point game in six starts but two new guys - quarterback Steve Pelluer, subbing for the injured Danny White, and the indomitable Walker?

Pelluer completed 19 of 30 passes for 323 yards, and Walker had almost half those yards - 155 on six catches, including a 69-yarder that got the Cowboys out of a deep hole on their first series and set up

"He's pretty fast for a big man," Cowboys Coach Tom Landry quip-

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Add a ped about the runningback who joined his team when the USFL went dormant in early August.

"They were playing a lot of manto-man on me and trying to cover me with a linebacker," said Walker. "I don't want to put anyone down, but I don't think you can cover me with a linebacker."

Walker also ran for 45 yards in 13 carries and rushed for two 1-yard touchdowns as an alternate at tailback with Tony Dorsett. Dorsett returned after missing two weeks with knee and ankle injuries and gained just 22 yards in 18

Total for Walker: 200 yards, not counting a 36-yard pass interference call he drew when he badly beat Washington linebacker Rich Milot. That set up one of Rafael Septien's three field goals.

The win improved Dallas' record to 4-2, a game behind the Redskins and New York Giants at the top of the NFC East. A loss and the Cowboys might have dropped out

And a loss is exactly what it looked like on Dallas' first series. The Cowboys were spared a safety when the officials ruled a Dallas lineman had moved and the play whistled dead before Dexter Manley's sack of Pelluer in the end

But the Cowboys still faced a third-and-18 from their own 1. On the next play, Pelluer heaved the ball down the left sideline in the direction of Tony Hill, and the ball landed out of bounds. But Washington's Barry Wilburn was called for pass interference, and the Cowboys had new life.

'That may have been the biggest play of the game," Pelluer said. 'We were just looking for some way to get out of there. I don't know what would have happened if we hadn't gotten out of that hole.' 'We didn't make the plays,'' said Washington Coach Joe Gibbs. But he also hinted — without specifically saying so — that he didn't think the officials made them either.

"I think everyone saw it," he said of the pass interference call. "I certainly saw it, but I'm not going to get into criticizing the

Two plays later, Walker streaked by two Washington defenders, but Pelluer underthrew him. Walker circled back, let two Redskins run by him, and caught the ball at the Washington 32.

From there, he outraced three Redskins to the 1, where he was brought down by Darrell Green, winner of the NFL's recent fastest man contest

Then Walker plunged over from the 1, and it was 7-0 Cowboys. By halftime, it was 16-0 on field goals of 21, 36 and 38 yards by Septien.

But once White is recovered from his pulled hip muscle, Pelluer goes back to the bench. There will be no immediate controversy for a team that for the two previous seasons seesawed between White and Gary Hogeboom, who was traded to Indianapolis during the summer.

ball coach Quinn Eudy had these comments about the Steers 47-7 win over Lamesa Friday night in Lamesa.

"They (the players) appreciate every win. I think the more they win, the better they're going to get. I guess what I'm saying is success breeds success. But playing one game at a time, to quote the old cliche, is real important. I know people get tired of hearing that, but it's the most important thing we can do all year

"I'm real happy to be in the position we're in. We've got to take care of business this week. but we're in a position to win

"I'm always happy to get quality football players back, and we got him (linebacker Mike Cahill) back sooner than we expected. Coach (Everette, head trainer) Blackburn really does a great job of rehabilitating teams without losses in the district and two teams with one loss, and we've got three of those teams to play and another with two losses

"Fort Stockton plays real good defense - they're very sound, well coached and have some good size. The only thing that hurts them to any degree is they're a little bit slow, but they're well coached and extremely physical.'

New York won its fifth straight game, its longest winning streak since 1970, with Phil Simms' throwing two touchdown passes.

Despite holding a 24-0 halftime lead, New York Coach Joe Walton was wary of New England, with good reason.

Tigers great Cash drowns

CHARLEVOIX, Mich. (AP) -Hard work and high spirits marked Norm Cash's 15 years with the Detroit Tigers, friends said after learning the former major leaguer apparently drowned in Lake Michigan.

The body of Cash, 51, of Bloomfield Hills, was positively identified Sunday afternoon by his wife Dorothy, said Patrick Avery, a corrections officer for the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

Cash, nicknamed "Stormin' Norman," was remembered for both his sense of humor and his gritty competitiveness

"I've got to enjoy myself, no matter what I'm doing," the 1961 American League batting champion once said. "I get a kick out of playing the game.'

'Norm was a well-liked free spirit," Tigers President Jim Campbell said Sunday. "He was everybody's friend, and along with it one of the great players to ever wear a Tiger uniform.

The Justiceburg, Texas, native started his major-league career in 1958, playing two seasons for the Chicago White Sox before being traded to Cleveland and then to Detroit.

He won the AL batting title in 1961 with a .361 average and led the league that year with 193 hits. His 41 home runs that year is a record for a left-handed Detroit batter.

Cash hit all but four of his 377 career home runs for Detroit, second to Kaline on the Tigers' alltime list. In 1961, he became the first Tiger to hit a home run over the roof at Tiger Stadium. He repeated that feat three other times

He played for Detroit's 1968 World Series champions, batting a team-high .385 against the St. Louis Cardinals. He also had played on the 1959 White Sox World Series meet, but no times and places were kept because of heavy rains. "We just ran the meet because of the 12 teams that showed up.

"I know Andrews has a strong team and Lamesa, Sweetwater and Ft. Stockton don't have teams. So that narrows things down some. In 4-5A everybody had a full team."

Britton's girls have a little more experience. Led by sophomore Manuela Bernal and Helga Lysaght, Big Spring is in fairly good shape.

Bernal could very well be the best in the district. Last year as a freshman she was one of Big Spring's top distance runners and one of the 4-5A leaders. Bernal has clocked a 14:00 in the two-mile run. "I'd say Manuela has a great chance to win district," said her coach

Britton said Lysaght is capable of running in the high 14 or low 15's. Two transfers have helped brighten that path for Big Spring. Christy Fuqua, from Houston, has run a 15:00 and Kaya McMillen from Hawaii has run a 18:20. McMillian will run the 400 during

Rounding out the squad are freshmen Priscilla Torres and Rachael Alviar and Carmen Chavarria

'Just like the boys, these girls have been doing a good job. I wouldn't count them out at district either. Britton said he's seen even less of the district's other girls' cross country teams. "All I know is we'll see what they've got at district." With three more meets, Britton is gradually training his troops for the Nov. 1 encounter. When the subject of district comes up, Britton just breaks into a big smile. 'It's a great feeling, the kids are all fired up because they know they've got a chance. It hasn't been like that since '81 when we had our last real good team.

Although the '81 team was good, there was one alarming fact about it — it didn't have a runner that qualified for the regional meet. Hopefully, the 1986 team will.

Reagan scores for Cowboys

IRVING, Texas (AP) — President Reagan indirectly was involved Sunday in a disputed touchdown awarded the Dallas Cowboys in their 30-6 victory over the Washington Redskins.

With the Cowboys ahead 16-6 early in the fourth quarter, officials awarded Dallas receiver Mike Sherrard a touchdown after he wrestled for a pass with Washington cornerback Darrell Green in the end zone.

CBS had cut to Reykjavik. Iceland, for a live report on Reagan's summit meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev. Because of that, only one camera angle was available for replay official Art McNally to view what was ruled a simultaneous catch by side judge Gil Mace.

Because the ball is awarded to the offense on a simultaneous catch, the touchdown stood.

When CBS returned to the air, a reverse-angle replay appeared to show Green intercepting the pass before falling into Sherrard's grasp. By then it was too late, even had McNally agreed it was an interception.

However, Mace had called interference on Green at the 15-yard line before the catch, so the interception would have been nullified and the Cowboys would have retained the ball.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, OCT. 14, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day to expand on your most idealistic and imaginative course of action. This plan should soon be put into active expression. Sudden upsets will require patience.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get your private aims working on a practical basis. Your mate can be very cooperative today, not tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Contact good pals who understand your new plans and are willing to assist you. Build good will with your mate.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You understand better what a bigwig expects of you. Try to meet these expectations.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Situations arise that can give you an opportunity to express some LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Get all of your business affairs in good shape. The evening is fine for enjoying the music and drama you prefer most.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You are able to expand in business and gain a new image during the daytime, but don't change routines. LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You get fine creative ideas during the daytime and can make good use of them. Try to please your mate. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be as gracious as you can in doing what your mate most expects of you. Be careful with your valuables. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) There can be more efficiency at home today. Enjoy your own company CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Any business contacts should be aprised of the fact that you think in a modern vein. Gain their approval. AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Pursue whatever you desire with courage and conviction. Permit friends to assist. Avoid an irate partner. PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Your ideas are fine and your judgment is good. You can accomplish a good deal during the daytime.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she would do very well where humanitarian endeavors are concerned, such as in medicine nursing and the like. Encourage in such worthwhile tendencies and teach to be very friendly with others. Permit to participate in healthful sports, also.

Chelle Dumas of Midland raises her hand in triumph as she won first place in her division.

John Gillen of Odessa uses a little gesturing and body English to get the ball nearer the target.

heir day to shine

An unidentified Special Olympian from Odessa starts her approach, releases the ball, and waits in anticipation as the pins fly.

For nearly 100 special olympians, Saturday, Oct. 11 was a day to be remembered.

Athletes from Big Spring, Stanton, Odessa and Midland gathered at the Highland Lanes for a Special Olympics bowling tournament.

More than 30 volunteers contributed their time and energy to see that the event was successful.

Among the 91 athletes who competed were 10 Howard County residents finishing among the top four in their respective age and ability groups, reported Linda Davis, Big Spring, Area 18 Special Olympics coordinator.

Among those Howard County bowlers who won first place medals in their divisions were Kay Jackson, Carrie Parker and Joshua Hughes. Red Holgun, Ben Garcia and D'lene Wylie each won second place medals, while Lettie Anguiano, Feliz Anguiano and Stephen Mills were awarded third place medals. Fred Earhart was a fourth place medal winner.

The bowling tournament was a "warm-up to the state tournament," for special olympians she said.

Saturday's Special Olympics competition was the first in Big Spring since an early '80s track competition, Davis said. She hopes to attract a future statewide Special Olympics track and field event to Big Spring.

More than a dozen members of the Big Spring Morning Optimist Club provided manpower and organization as the event's sponsoring group, while Higland Lanes provided manpower and the facilities for the event.

The Special Olympics were initially organized in July of 1968, under the direction of the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation.
