Spring board

How's that? Traveling was a pain

Q. What is the origin of the word travel?
A. Travel comes from the Old French word travailler, which meant "to torment, trouble." Later, travail meant "to toil, to make a difficult journey." Now that we have cars, planes, etc., travel simply means "to journey."

Calendar Haunted houses

TODAY

- ALSA Haunted House continues 8-11 p.m. at County Fair Park on 1000 N.W. 4th.

- The public is invited to a coffee for J.R. "Rich" Anderson from 7:30 to 9 a.m. at Rip Griffin's.

Cancer fund established

A benefit fund has been established to assist the family of former Big Spring resident Gary Jeter.

The 1968 graduate of Big Spring High has been diagnosed as having terminal cancer, his mother, Jo Ann Jeter said.

Jeter and his family have been residents of Lakewood, Colo. for the past two years. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L.J. Jeter.

The fund, at the State National Bank, is being administered by Dickie Partlow.

Gary Jeter and his wife, Amy, have two sons. Their address is 456 S. Quail St., Lakewood, Colorado, 80226.

Center's location at issue

By SCOTT FITZGERALD

Downtown merchants and property owners concerned about a proposed activities center were scheduled to meet today at noon with persons from the Big Spring State Hospital's Outreach Program.

The proposed facility is to serve those from the hospital's outreach patient program.

Howard County commissioners approved a motion during their Monday meeting to allocate $350 per month for building rental fees.

Stovall told commissioners the 11-person advisory board had tentatively reached an agreement with local bondsman Danny Heckler to rent building space at 116 E. Third and the neighboring building.

Heckler owns the buildings, one of which was the former Larry's Cafe.

The local bondsman property owner said this morning a mutual agreement between himself and the advisory board had been attained, but no final agreements had been reached.

Downtown coordinator Teri Quinones said this morning she requested the meeting be held so downtown merchants and property owners voice their opinion to the proposal.

"They (merchants and owners) felt like there was a lack of communication" with the advisory board, Quinones said.

Merchants and owners were also uninformed about the proposal soon becoming a reality, she said.

She said two other downtown sites should be considered before a final agreement is reached.

Those sites are the Salvation Army building at 600 W. Fourth St. that will become vacant in March and the former Cash Building at 107 Gregg St. that is owned by land developer Gil Cuadra, Quinones said.

Halloween scarecrow

This 'scarecrow' may frighten off more than crows this Halloween as it sits on a Stanton porch on St. Mary's Street. Goblins, ghosts and other youngsters will be dressed similarly in the next few days.

In Big Spring, Mayor Cotton Mize has proclaimed Saturday, Nov. 1, between 5:30 and 7:30 p.m. the officially designated "Trick or Treat" time for Big Spring children.

He encourages citizens who wish to participate to display an outside porch light during those hours. All citizens are asked to drive with more caution during the designated time.

Scenic Mountain Medical Center will offer free x-ray services for Halloween food items 6-9 p.m.

It's ham versus fowl in ag race

Editor's note: This is another in a series of articles concerning election races of interest to Herald readers that will appear before Election Day, Nov. 4.

By JAMES SALZER
Austin Bureau

Given the chance to describe his bid for re-election, Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower would likely entitle it "Whole Hog versus Chicken Man II."

Mention the name of the Texas Agriculture Commissioner and most voters are likely to remember the wisecracking one-liners for which the Democratic incumbent has become known.

It's a trademark even his opponent in the Nov. 4 election, Republican Bill Powers of Austin, frequently mentions on the campaign trail.

Powers, executive vice president of the Texas Poultry Association, presents a mostly serious side and calls his opponent "a pint-size ham who has wisecracked his way out of dealing with the important issues facing those who live and work down on the Lone Star farm."

Hightower, 43, would rather have voters remember him as "a fighter for the little people" than as a joker. But the incumbent, seldom without a Stetson on his head when he steps outside of Texas' metro areas, bills himself as "the Whole Hog" and is seldom without a funny line.

Powers, as the second poultry expert to oppose Hightower, suffers under the "Chicken Man II" title laid on him by the incumbent.

"Jim Hightower tries to hide behind those one-liner jokes," says Powers, 44. "Farmers are going broke while he is telling jokes."

Rebecca Reed, 23, the Libertarian Party entry in the race, would like to win the position so she can do away with it. The University of Texas at San Antonio psychology AG RACE page 2A

Patriotic march

A group of citizens walking from Denver, Colo., to San Antonio passed through Big Spring Tuesday afternoon. The march was organized to draw attention to the plight of missing POWs the group believes are still being held in Southeast Asia. Joyce Lynch of Littleton, Colo., right, carries the POW-MIA flag. Dee Beavers of Dallas, third from right, carries a picture of MIA Maj. Victor J. Apodaca Jr., brother of Lynch and Eleanor Apodaca Reitz, second from left, director of the Arizona Families of POW-MIAs in Southeast Asia.

Council to take ambulance bids

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

The City Council approved specifications and authorized advertising for bids for ambulance services at its meeting Tuesday night.

Specifications were established by Fire Chief Carl Dorton. Although the contract with Lee Ambulance ends Dec. 1, owner Charles Ginn said he won't leave the city without ambulance services until a new service can be found.

However, Ginn said he didn't want his contract extended because his employees shouldn't "be left hanging indefinitely."

The council appointed members Russ McEwen and Johnny Rutherford to negotiate with bidders.

The need for an ambulance service must be advertised for two weeks, leaving only about two more weeks until the contract ends, a period Rutherford and McEwen said is not sufficient for appropriate bids.

"We're going to get some improper bids," Rutherford said. "I'd rather do it in a reasonable, rational, procedural process that allows the bidder time."

McEwen said the company would need time to approve the specifications, respond, and establish services in Big Spring. He said he's concerned about ensuring quality services.

City Manager Mack Wofford said he believes three companies have indicated an interest in bidding.

The council decided not to renew the contract with Lee Ambulance after Ginn requested the city subsidize the company to offset financial losses after the Veterans Administration Medical Center decided not to renew its contract with the service.

In other business, the council: Tabled a resolution authorizing Mayor Cotton Mize to execute an agreement with Parkhill, Smith & Cooper to develop a plan for the restoration of Comanche Lake Dam and Goliad Street.

Wofford said the city doesn't know exactly what expenditures the state government will require

Five decisions reached by jurors

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

A day-and-a-half convening of Howard County grand jurors that began Monday morning resulted in five decisions concerning investigations by local law authorities into felony offenses.

Jurors passed on two cases — one of which is an attempted murder case on June 17 under investigation by the Texas Rangers and FBI officials, said assistant district attorney Robert Morris this morning.

Jurors ruled indictments be filed against the following persons:

- Jerry Lynn Ford, 37, of Farwell; possession of a controlled substance on Aug. 3., be reduced to a misdemeanor.

- Danny Foust, no age or address available; forgery on May 27.
- Lee Foust, no age or address available; forgery on May 27.

- Lyndon Fraley, 26, 1506 Stadium Ave.; possession of controlled substance on July 3.

- Paul Rosales Garcia, 37, of Denton; driving while intoxicated — a felony that he was arrested for on July 4.

- Luis Hernandez Jr., 21, 311 N. Aylford St.; driving while intoxicated — a felony that he was arrested for on July 18.

- Susie Hinklin, no age or address available; forgery on June 15.

- Andrew Marquez, no age or address available; aggravated FIVE DECISIONS page 2A

ELECTION '86 Texas

President's home is double the monies

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — In 1984, the state College Coordinating Board authorized West Texas State University to spend $494,900 in taxpayers' money to build a home for its president.

However, the Canyon school wound up spending $991,000 on the 7,301-square-foot house, and state officials may want some of the money back.

"This is a very large overrun. No question about it. When you come to double, that's a huge overrun," said Kenneth Ashworth, the state's higher education commissioner.

To make matters worse, in Ashworth's eyes, the WTSU board did not return to the coordinating board to seek permission to cover the overruns. Apparently, the board just spent the money, according to Ashworth.

Ashworth's staff has recommended that WTSU repay $211,000 to the state. Under the recommendation, WTSU would get a break because the coorordinating board staff said $185,700 in overruns came on house-related projects that did not need coordinating board approval.

The $211,000 represents the overrun that is above the 20 percent tolerance allowed by the coordinating board.

In July, WTSU Vice President Clarence Thompson said his misunderstanding and misinterpretation of coordinating board policies on overruns caused the problems.

"If there's an error in judgment, it is mine," he told the coordinating board in July.

The coordinating board staff's recommendation was developed after WTSU officials discussed the house with the board in July.

Ashworth said if the board approves the recommendation, WTSU would have to use privately raised money to reimburse the state. A coordinating board committee will review the recommendation Thursday, and the board is scheduled to rule Friday.

 major thinks the TDA is a waste of taxpayer money and private industry could take over many of its duties.
 The job pays $73,233 per year. The winner will oversee a department with a $40 million budget this biennium and 575 full-time employees.
 The TDA fights destructive plant pests and diseases, oversees the use, production and disposal of dangerous agricultural chemicals and promotes agriculture products.

claims. The law says the agriculture commissioner must be an experienced and practical farmer with knowledge of agriculture, manufacturing and general industry.

 Hightower, a former editor of The Texas Observer and past president of the Texas Consumer Association, has served as a former senatorial aide and written two books on agriculture and eating.

Hightower said he meets the requirements for the job, although he isn't a farmer. "If farming were the chief requirement," he says, "then we would choose the agriculture commissioner at the state fair."

The incumbent adds that Powers isn't a farmer, though the challenger claims to "run cattle" on his mother's land.

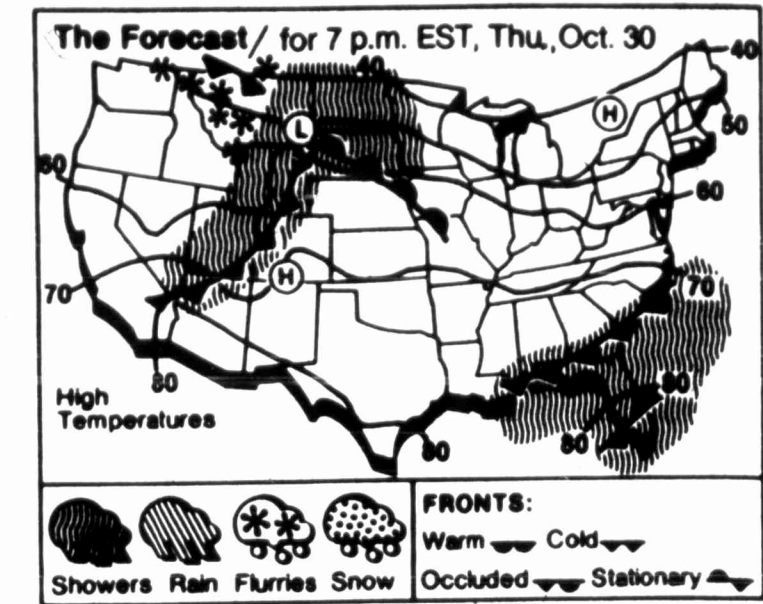

Powers says the most important issue in the race should be saving family farms and ranches. The Republican challenger says Hightower has insulted those who make farm policy in Washington, D.C., thus losing any chance of influencing that policy.

Hightower has been highly critical of the federal farm policy, and has spent part of the last two years working on amendments to the 1985 Farm Bill. His amendments theoretically would have set production limits, thus raising farm prices.

"I didn't just criticize Reagan, I put an alternative up there," he says. "No other agriculture commissioner in the U.S. has put an alternative forward."

 • Passed on second reading an ordinance granting a rate adjustment when a customer's water meter breaks or fails to operate properly.
 The billing amount will be calculated by subtracting the average of three months' previous bills from the bill in question. The customer will pay half the result plus the average of the three-month period.
 If prior consumption records are insufficient, the customer will be billed for half the bill in question.
 • Authorized Public Works Director Tom Decell to proceed with plans on improvement at the wastewater treatment plant.
 Plans include installation of 18 new gravel/sand filter sludge drying beds to replace the present ones, which have been flooded several times during the past few years, Decell said.
 An alternate plan would be to install four stainless steel filters in beds, he said. This would take the water from the sludge in about 48 hours, rather than the current period of about six weeks.
 Each plan has a price tag of a little more than $400,000.
 Decell said the plan is part of a continuing project of improvements at the plant.

Officers seek to unravel thefts

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
 Staff Writer
 Big Spring police and Howard County sheriff's deputies joined forces in an effort to unravel suspected burglaries committed by two men detained in county jail.
 Rex Donald Rainey, 33, 2612 Lynn Dr. and Johnny Tonn, 31, of San Angelo were arrested by Dallas police and returned to Howard County jail on Saturday.
 The latest development concerning the suspects is their possible involvement in the burglary of the A.J. Pirkle residence at 608 Washington Blvd. on Sept. 13.
 According to a police report, unknown persons broke into the home between 8:30 p.m. and 9:45 p.m. on that date and stole six guns and an undetermined amount of personal jewelry.
 Sheriff A.N. Standard said Pirkle identified Tuesday six of the guns that were missing from his collection as a result of the burglary.

Law authorities did not recover Pirkle's reported missing jewelry, Standard said.
 Detective William Anderson of Big Spring police said this morning he assigned two detectives to further investigate the Pirkle burglary and was awaiting their reports before deciding upon legal retort.
 Tonn is on probation in Mitchell County and has been convicted for burglary of a building and driving while intoxicated.
 Dallas police confiscated $1,370 worth of firearms in the vehicle in which Rainey and Tonn were traveling at the time they were apprehended Saturday.
 A large portion of the confiscated guns and jewelry matched the description of items burglarized Friday from the Harry McMillian residence on Sterling City Route Box T62A.
 Standard said the sheriff's department has filed a complaint with the district attorney's office that charges Tonn and Rainey with committing the McMillian residence burglary.

Superior twirler

Robin Butler, senior twirler for the Big Spring Steer Marching Band, received a Division 1 superior rating for Class 1 Twirling Solo. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Butler, she qualified for the Texas State Solo and Ensemble Contest in Austin next June. Other twirlers participating in the contest included Amy Cox, Jamie Hinojo and Lori Park, all of whom received Division II (excellent) ratings. The Steer Marching Band will perform at Ratliff Stadium in Odessa Saturday during the University Interscholastic League Region Marching contest. It is the first time the Big Spring Band has been certified to the Region contest in the state's 10-year marching band competition.

Sheriff's log

Man arrested upon Camp release

Howard County sheriff's deputies arrested Lloyd Frances Lee, 34, of Scranton, Pa., Tuesday morning upon his release from the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp.
 His arrest warrant was issued from Scranton where he is suspected of possessing a controlled substance with intent to deliver.
 He is detained in the county jail and will be picked up in about a week by Scranton law authorities, said Sheriff A.N. Standard.

- Deputies arrested Nick Mindling, 23, 2500 Albrowk Dr., Tuesday morning for fines he owes the county. He was released after paying $196 to the county clerk's office.
- Deputies with assistance from Department of Public Safety troopers arrested Vernon Brinkley Tyler, 45, of Sweetwater, Tuesday night on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. He was released on $1,000 bond.

Woman reports $4,000 in jewelry stolen

Several pieces of jewelry, valued at nearly $4,000, were stolen from Sylvia Miramontes, 207 Edwards, between Oct. 1-15, including a gold wedding and diamond engagement ring set, two diamond rings and a pair of diamond earrings.
 • Donald D. Davis, 2601 Rebecca, told police someone stole his wallet with $150 cash, a $150 money clip, credit cards and checks, while he was at the YMCA Tuesday afternoon.
 • Someone shoplifted 11 boys' shirts, valued at $89.05, from Walmart Tuesday afternoon. Police reports state an officer observed someone enter the dressing room with the items and leave without them. The property was found in her possession after she left the store.

 • Chuck Richardson, 2508 Cindy Lane, told police someone slashed two tires on his 1985 brown Chevrolet at 105 E. 22nd St. Tuesday night.
 • A tire on a green 1977 Ford, owned by Billie Rodman, 1905 Wesson Rd. No. 4B3, was damaged between Monday afternoon and Tuesday morning.
 • Tony K. Williams, 538 Westover Rd. No. 130, told police a portable stereo, valued at $60, was stolen from his red Ford sedan at an unknown time.

 • James Lynn Robinson, 27, 1103 E. Sixth St., was arrested there Tuesday evening for discharging firearms within the city limits.
 • Betty Lee Wright, 21, of Midland, was arrested at 2500 S. Gregg St. Tuesday afternoon on suspicion of theft.
 • Larry Sinclair Sanford, 45, of O'Donnell, was arrested at 1400 S. Gregg St. Tuesday afternoon on suspicion of driving while intoxicated.

 • An investigation into theft; no person named or date given.

Accident results in hospitalization

A Big Spring woman remains in stable condition at Scenic Mountain Medical Center after she was injured in a two-car accident Tuesday morning.
 Rebecca Lea Richey, 22, Gail Route Box 491, suffered lacerations and a concussion, a hospital spokeswoman said.
 Richey was traveling south on Benton Street at the intersection of East Second Street, when her car was struck.
 Police reports said John Palmer Womack, 78, of Coahoma, was traveling west on East Second Street and failed to stop at a stop sign. The front end of his Chevrolet pickup struck the left side of Richey's car, sending both spinning.
 Womack was ticketed for failing to stop at a stop sign.

 said.
 Ralph Kelley, an employee of Cuadra's is scheduled to meet with Quinones on Friday, she said. He is unaware of the details of the plan, she said.
 Her concern over the proposed site for the activities center on Third St. is the fact the former Larry's Cafe "holds a retail spot after the downtown master plan is completed in January," she said.
 Quinones has been working with urban planner Bob Lima of Lubbock since July in developing a master plan in an attempt to breathe life into a dormant downtown area.
 The plan entails creating a cooperative agreement between property owners and potential downtown merchants.

State hospital officials and members of the local advisory board approached the commissioners court in September to inform them of their plan to establish an activities center to improve the quality of life for more than 100 persons in the community.
 After the idea was announced to commissioners, local downtown merchants and property owners voiced concern to commissioners fearing that the activities center would attract transients that originally planned to pass through Big Spring.
 Stovall later told commissioners the fears were unfounded and the activities center would in no such way serve as a halfway house facility.

 The money for the home came from funds left over from the now-defunct state property tax, money that can only be used for construction. WTSU had not had a president's home since 1972, when the previous one was sold for $8,000.
 Ed Roach, president of the Canyon school, and his family moved into the new home this past summer. The president's wife says the house is very nice.

 "I think when people see the home, they will think it is pleasant, but not extravagant. We tried to use simple things that will last," Darlene Roach said in August as she talked to an Amarillo reporter about the home's furnishings.
 Roach recently told the Amarillo Globe-News, which began reporting on the overruns last year, that he did not know how WTSU would raise the $211,000 if the coordinating board orders the reimbursement.

 "It's all very indefinite right now," he said.
 On Tuesday, he was reluctant to answer any questions about the house and its cost.
 "At this point I'm planning to go to the meetings Thursday and Friday.

Reagan talks to youth

COLUMBUS, Ga. — President Reagan had just thanked the LaGrange High School band up in the right balcony for its fine music when he was interrupted by several girls yelling, "We love you" in high-pitched unison.

"I love all of you, believe me," the president replied soothingly.

It was one of few ad libbed comments in what otherwise was a Tuesday of carefully scripted campaigning — from his well-honed jokes to the impeccably timed release of hundreds of red, white and blue balloons at the end of each speech.

But it fit well with a key, if little-noted element of Reagan's campaigning as he bids to preserve the current GOP Senate majority: his effort to strengthen a bond with young people.

Contra calls received

WASHINGTON (AP) — The office of a White House staff member overseeing U.S. support for Nicaraguan Contra rebels received telephone calls last month from a safe house in El Salvador used by Americans handling supply flights for the rebels, Salvadoran phone bills show.

During September, calls were made to two private lines used by Marine Lt. Col. Oliver L. North, a staff officer on President Reagan's National Security Council. Both lines were answered Tuesday by a tape-recorded message saying "you have reached a non-working number for the executive office of the president."

Soviet arms delivered

WASHINGTON — Six Mi-24 helicopter gunships, delivered this month, are among the record amount of arms the Soviet Union is shipping to Nicaragua this year to help "the repressive abilities" of the Sandinista government, the Pentagon says.

The Soviets not only have supplied the leftist Nicaraguan government with more arms this year than ever before, but they are doing it in an increasingly open way, using Soviet ships rather than vessels from other Eastern European nations, Pentagon spokesman Robert Sims said Tuesday.

According to Sims, the Soviets have so far this year shipped 18,800 metric tons of arms to Nicaragua, or about 20,700 regular tons. The materiel was delivered by 43 ships.

Girl turns in mother

LOS ANGELES — A 10-year-old girl who told authorities her mother was freebasing cocaine has been taken away from her family and put in protective custody, police said.

The girl's call to the 911 emergency number from a pay phone Monday night resulted in the arrest of her parents and another man. It was the fourth such case in California in the last three months.

"She was very concerned for her mother's safety," Officer Margie Reed said. "I think she did it totally out of love."

The girl, who was not identified, climbed out a bedroom window and made the call around 7:30 p.m., said Sgt. Steve Frye.

Booby trap

No indictment against shopkeeper

MIAMI (AP) — A grand jury's refusal to indict a shopkeeper whose wire-mesh booby trap electrocuted a burglar is a signal to criminals "that people are going to stand up and fight back," the merchant's attorney says.

The Dade County panel said Tuesday that Prentice Rasheed wasn't justified in taking justice into his own hands by electrifying metal grilles above the door of his shop, but that there was no evidence he meant to kill anyone.

"Sure, I'm happy and relieved about the whole thing," Rasheed said Tuesday night, "but at the same time I don't feel anybody's mother, father, son or daughter should lose their life like that again."

Rasheed, 43, was arrested on a manslaughter charge after Odell Hicks, 26, was killed Sept. 29 when he touched the mesh. Rasheed has said he set the trap after his Central City Flea Market in the crime-ridden Liberty City area of Miami had been broken into eight times. The trap has been disassembled, he said Tuesday.

"The grand jury has spoken and ... has spoken very forcefully," said a disappointed Dade State Attorney Janet Reno, adding she would not pursue manslaughter or other criminal charges against Rasheed.

"It's not justice," said Aretha Hicks, the victim's sister. "He got away with it, so people are going to think they can get away with it."

William Wilbanks, a criminologist at Florida International University, said, "In this particular case, justice may have been served, but in the long term, justice may not have been served."

People may interpret the decision as permission do whatever they feel is necessary to protect their property, Wilbanks said.

But Liberty City shopkeeper Eursla Wells, who owns a bookstore across the street from Rasheed, said she approved of the grand jury's decision. "We are all very, very happy," she said. "We feel that justice has been served."

Rodell Allen, another merchant in the area, said, "I'm sorry a burglar got killed, but Rasheed had to do something."

Rasheed's attorney, Ellis Rubin, said, "We think it sends a signal to burglars that people are going to stand up and fight back when they forcibly and illegally enter property."

The grand jury said it based its decision partly on testimony from Dr. Agustin A. Recio, a University of Miami electrical engineering professor, and Dade Medical Examiner Dr. Joseph Davis, who testified that Hicks was electrocuted by 115 volts, which is present in most homes.

"Each of us has been shocked by such a current," the panel said. "None of us were seriously hurt by such shocks..."

"This device was a crude device meant to prevent entry not to kill."

Rasheed was invited Oct. 21 to testify before the grand jury but declined on the advice of Rubin, who said he wanted his client to be granted immunity, which was refused.

Hasenow denied Bell

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — Former U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell flies home today after being barred from meeting a captured American mercenary to help prepare his defense.

Bell, who headed the Justice Department during the Carter administration, said the Nicaraguan government's refusal Tuesday to permit the meeting was a "moral outrage."

Visibly upset, he told reporters, "You've got a person charged with serious crimes who cannot talk to his lawyer."

Jet has near tragedy

TOKYO — Osaka police experts suspect a blast from a hand grenade placed in a lavatory by Japanese gangsters may be responsible for the wild five-mile plunge of a Thai jetliner, major newspapers reported today.

A government official today said investigators believed an explosion may have been responsible, but refused to speculate on whether a bomb was involved.

The Thai Airways International A-300 Airbus was nearing the end of the flight Sunday when there was a loud "bang," the cabin filled with white mist — characteristic of a sudden pressure loss — and the plane went out of control.

Torturers may get life

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — The prosecution called for life prison terms for a retired army general and a former police chief accused of overseeing a state terror campaign in which hundreds of people were kidnapped, tortured and summarily executed.

Chief Federal Prosecutor Julio Strassera also demanded long prison terms for five other defendants on trial for atrocities, including a physician who allegedly took part in torture sessions, advising torturers to desist when the victim was near death or administering drugs to revive a victim for further torment.

According to an investigative commission set up by the 3-year-old democratic government, security forces during the military regime abducted and tortured at least 9,000 people. They are called "desaparecidos," or disappeared people, and are presumed to have been summarily executed and clandestinely buried, cremated or dumped into the ocean from military aircraft.

Soviet tactic doubted

MOSCOW — A Soviet newspaper today said some readers have questioned why Mikhail S. Gorbachev insisted on a package deal on arms control at the Reykjavik summit and could not separate accords achieved from a dispute over "Star Wars."

Mikhail Ozerov, a journalist with the daily newspaper Sovetskaya Rossiya, said he had been asked about President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative when he spoke to the National Union of Filmmakers about his time at the Oct. 11-12 summit in Iceland.

Leaders call for terrorism solidarity

FRANKFURT, West Germany — The leaders of France and West Germany called for international solidarity against terrorism Tuesday as they wound up a two-day summit meeting.

France was hit with a series of terrorist bombings in September, and a leftist terror group claimed responsibility for bombing the administration building of West Germany's Lufthansa airline in Cologne shortly before French President Francois Mitterrand and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl spoke to reporters in Frankfurt.

"We must never give up our solidarity against the (terrorist) criminals," Mitterrand said.

Kohl told reporters, "We must broaden and strengthen the fight (against terrorism), and we are agreed we must work internationally as well as Europe-wide."

European Economic Community officials in Luxembourg on Monday failed to come up with a decision on how to respond Britain's decision to break off diplomatic relations with Syria.

Britain broke its diplomatic ties with Syria on Friday after a jury convicted a Jordanian of trying to blow up an Israeli jetliner by planting explosives in his pregnant girlfriend's luggage. Britain says it has evidence of Syria involvement with the Arab, Nezar Hindawi.

The United States and Canada recalled their ambassadors to Syria in a show of support for Britain.

Kohl said the two sides also discussed cultural exchanges, disarmament and East-West relations.

"I informed President Mitterrand of my talks with President Reagan," said Kohl, the first European leader to meet Reagan after the Reykjavik superpower summit. "I think the summit brought progress, and we must continue to work for disarmament, including issues of conventional weapons," Kohl said.

Shortly before Mitterrand and Kohl spoke to reporters, the ultra-leftist Revolutionary Cells claimed responsibility for bombing the Lufthansa building.

Brain research put into focus

Unlike those medical problems that claim an impassioned constituency raising funds and awareness, brain-tumor research never has received the attention it deserves.

This unfortunate state of affairs has changed, however, thanks to the good works of San Diego resident Peter Preuss.

The brain is the body's most complex and yet least understood organ. That's one reason that knowledge about the origins and treatment of tumors has hardly advanced in more than two decades. Meanwhile, the disease remained as deadly as ever, with the 13,000 cases diagnosed annually resulting in about 10,000 deaths.

Eighteen months ago, Peter Preuss was spurred to study brain tumors after an illness in his family. As the innovative founder of Integrated Software Systems Corp., Preuss brought a scientific mind and a businessman's savvy to the task and quickly became disturbed at the lack of a coordinated, well-financed research effort to study this affliction. He set aside $3.5 million to establish the Preuss Foundation for Brain Tumor Research.

The money is being used for a variety of purposes, including the support of scientific experiments around the globe. Preuss hopes that private funds will expand the foundation's work in the future.

Perhaps the foundation's most important undertaking was the staging of a scientific conference on the subject in San Diego. Specialists from as far away as Sweden gathered to discuss and debate the merits of different brain-tumor research methods.

Mr. Preuss is quick to admit that this sudden focus on brain-tumor research could lead to a breakthrough — or to nothing at all. In any event, his initiative and generosity have given new life to this long-neglected field of medical endeavor.

'Other' election races stir concern

To the editor: On a local radio station one morning recently, a poll asked: "Who do you support for the state attorney general's race — Barrera or Mattox?"

I was pleased that Barrera won the poll, but was surprised by how many responded with "I don't care" or "I have no opinion."

Though much publicity has gone into the races for governor and the local state representative, perhaps little is known about the "other" positions.

The State Attorney General is a very key elected official. His is the most influential justice position in the state. It is he who ultimately decides what cases will be prosecuted.

The Herald, in its Oct. 22 report on Rev. Otwell's church school being prosecuted in Fort Worth, stated, "... Attorney General Jim Mattox took him to court for operating without a license." Now the church property is to be sold to cover unpaid court fines.

With all the real crime in Texas, is this where the attorney general should spend his time?

It is important that the attorney general reflect the concerns of the people of Texas. Take time to familiarize yourself with the stands that candidates take on moral issues and governmental concerns. Then vote wisely on Nov. 4.

LULAC decries representation void

To the editor: We, the members of the League of United Latin American Citizens No. 4375, would like to go on record as opposing the unequal make-up of the selection committee for the appointment of a new police chief.

Let it also be known that the mayor and our city councilmen will henceforth be held responsible for their lack of sensitivity to one segment of our community. We believe that they have furthered their insensitivity by not encouraging the replacement of Jaime Baldwin with one of the two alternates.

While the council and our mayor loudly proclaim the importance of unity in our city, they blatantly excluded a segment of the community from participating in the decision-making process on something that will also affect that segment.

This act shows ill-faith and certainly makes a statement of just how important we are in the scheme of decision making in our "fair" city of Big Spring.

Political differences keep children and daddies apart

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — Paul Thompson is a reasonably happy man, living with his wife and their three sons in Southern California. But Thompson's fourth son — his oldest — can't be with his father.

The boy, now 17, lives in Vietnam, where he was born to a Vietnamese mother.

Thompson, as a civilian working for the Army, was one of thousands of Americans who fathered illegitimate children in Vietnam during the long U.S. presence there. Unlike many, he was there when his son was born; he remembers the butterfly-shaped birthmark on the baby's back.

But a year later Thompson was sent back to the United States for six months. When he returned to Vietnam, the baby's mother refused to see him, fearing that he would take away her baby.

"All I wanted to do was keep in touch," Thompson recalled the other day. "I wanted the child to know that I cared about him and did not abandon him."

For a brief period Thompson was in contact with the baby's aunt in Saigon, but eventually he lost track of the boy, named Thom Minh Lin.

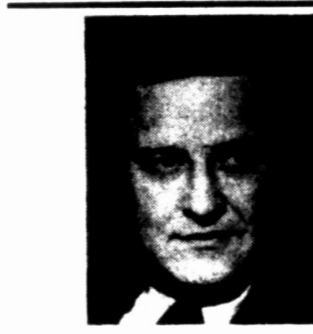

Now Thompson is one of dozens of Americans who want to bring their half-Vietnamese children to this country. They are frustrated by red tape, lack of concern and political differences between the U.S. and Vietnamese governments.

About 3,700 Amerasian children have been brought here since the Vietnam War. U.S. officials estimate that 8,000 still remain, but Hanoi claims there may be as many as 15,000. Known in Vietnam as "children of the dust," these offspring of mixed parentage often are discriminated against by the Vietnamese.

Officially, Hanoi and Washington agree that the children belong in the United States, and in 1982 Congress passed legislation to ease their immigration. But this particular law has yet to bring any children out of Vietnam.

A State Department official explained why:

Since there are no formal diplomatic relations between the two countries, processing the children is difficult. Most contacts take place at the United Nations. Furthermore, the law encompasses Amerasians throughout the Far East; the special circumstances of the strained U.S.-Vietnamese relations require special legislation, the official said.

Another roadblock is that the 1982 law does not cover the children's Vietnamese mothers, and few of them are willing to give up their children.

An "Orderly Departure Program" agreed to by American and Vietnamese officials ended last January after effecting the immigration of 3,700 children. Talks were conducted last month in the hope of reinstating the program.

Despite their failure to cooperate fully in the past, Vietnamese officials insist they want to do so.

"We are ready to let them out," a Vietnamese official at the United Nations told our reporter Courtney Brinkerhoff. "We would like the United States to accept as many as possible as soon as possible."

Meanwhile, Americans like Paul Thompson wait in growing frustration.

Corinth, his wife of 13 years, said: "I knew about Thom before we were married. We just want to know if he is alive and let him know that we care."

There is caring on the other side as well. The Pearl S. Buck Foundation has a file of more than 3,000 letters from Vietnam, written by Amerasian children seeking help.

And Bruce Burns, a Vietnam veteran who now is a lawyer in San Jose, Calif., is working to establish a locator service to help Vietnamese children find their American fathers. His effort was inspired by an 18-year-old Vietnamese girl who sought him out two years ago and said in some of her few words of English: "I want to find my daddy."

RAMBO IN STRIPED PANTS: What's in a name? Plenty, Foggy Bottom officials are hoping. In an official notice in the Commerce Business Daily, the State Department announced that it had hired one Charles Rambo for its "Security Enhancement Program" at $54,000 a year ("Secret" clearance required).

"I want to ask the people who produced the movies why they used this name," he said.

He's been a security specialist for years. Meanwhile, other contractors have been calling State to ask if the department is now using code names.

HONORED PRISONER: Mark Price, a former Education Department employee who blew the whistle on department officials in a dispute over federal funding for the state of Illinois, has been given the first $1,000 "Patriot Award" by the Coalition to Stop Government Waste.

Price recently was sent to prison for allegedly breaking a window at the home of his former boss while on probation on charges that he broke into his old government office.

Price claims he had been invited back to his old office and then arrested; he denies that he broke the window that led to his jailing for probation violation. The coalition obviously believes he was a credible whistle blower and has been railroaded.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Is the Air Force finally recognizing the essential futility of expecting to survive a nuclear holocaust?

An Air Force survival manual devotes less than two pages to "Survival in Areas Contaminated by Radiation."

The suggested techniques are hardly encouraging: Find natural shelter like an overhanging rock, peel all fruits and vegetables before eating and "keep your clothing on."

Jack Anderson's investigative report from Washington is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Shopping with the family

By PAUL PINKHAM
The Pampa News
PAMPA — We had a fashion show at the Pinkham household Friday night.

As the radio blared, Linda sewed and I read my evening paper, the kids came out in and out of the living room one by one to show us all their new school clothes, purchased only moments before in a crazed shopping binge, the likes of which I'd never seen before during 26 years of bachelorhood. Now I knew why they called the sale "Moonlight Madness!"

"Mom, can I wear this shirt with these pants?"

"These shoes don't fit as good as they did in the store."

"I don't like this shirt as much as I did an hour ago; can we take it back and exchange it?"

When you're a bachelor, you don't worry too much about clothes. You wash them maybe every other week or so and that's the end of it. Of course, if a rip or tear develops, you throw the article of clothing out and buy a new one, unless you're lucky enough to live next door to a nice little old lady who'll sew for you, but, as for buying new clothes for the heck of it, forget it. The thought never crosses your mind.

I mean, I've got some shirts I used to wear in junior high school, hoping some day they'll come back in style again.

But when one person suddenly becomes five, old bachelor Pinkham is suddenly in for a series of rude awakenings, and Friday night was one of them.

Linda had been looking forward to it all week, I think just to see the looks on my face as we made our way through the store. She's apparently used to this annual rite they call Shopping for School Clothes.

We arrived at the store shortly after 7, and immediately the kids scattered, each to their respective clothing department. In a flash, they were back with excited cries of:

"Come look at these jeans."

"Will this shirt fit me. It's a men's large, but I can grow into it. It's jammin'!"

"(Jammin'?) I thought to myself? Whatever happened to "Neato," "Wicked," or plain old "Cool?"

I decided that Linda was handling the situation pretty well, so I wandered over to the men's department to see if they had any end-of-the-season sales on shorts. After all, I've been wearing the same blue tennis shorts every summer since seventh grade. I guess I just decided it was time for a new pair.

Pretty soon, though, my search was interrupted by one of the kids pointing to a rack of brightly colored shorts, a rack I had purposely skipped over.

"Why don't you get these?"

"Good, Lord, kiddo, I'd have to hand out sunglasses with those things. What are they anyway?"

"They're called Jams."

"Jammies? Son, I don't need pajamas, I need a pair of shorts."

"Not jammies. Jams. They're jammin'."

Quite a vocabulary on that one, eh? Middle school English teachers, beware!

Finally, it was time to check out. Boy, do I feel sorry for that poor woman at the cash register.

"Mom, tell him to stop talking to the mannequin."

"Hey, she's swinging from the rack of clothes."

As the cash register lady finished her tally (I swear the receipt slip was long enough to stretch from the mail to our home), Linda ushered me to a nearby chair, knowing full well that, if she didn't, she'd be spending the next half hour reviving me from a fainting spell. I noticed that the store had only half as many clothes on the racks as when we came in.

"OK, sir, with the discount, that'll be three million, eight-hundred and sixty-four thousand and ninety-two dollars and two cents."

The chair didn't work. When I came to, we were at home and Linda was trying to revive me.

Then, a strange thing happened. Each of the kids came up and expressed their heartfelt thanks for their new clothes. And that made it all worth it.

Boy Scouts join war on drugs

By BOB WIELAND
Associated Press Writer

IRVING — The organization that once helped youngsters to "Be Prepared" now is urging them to "just say no."

More than 40,000 members of the Explorer program of the Boy Scouts of America are marching off to do battle in the war on drugs, and their weapons are persuasion and facts, said Brian D. Archimbaum, director of law enforcement Exploring.

"The whole purpose of the program is to affirm that it's good, it's OK to say 'no' to drugs," said Archimbaum. The program encourages Explorer scouts, he said, to "become role models and peer leaders to help other young people say 'no.'"

And it also encourages parents to talk to their children about the drug temptations the youngsters are sure to face.

Yvonne Roque, a 20-year-old Explorer who says she knows of eight- and nine-year-olds who have experimented with drugs, believes that the battle against drugs has to begin in the primary grades.

"If we're going to prevent drug abuse in the future, we have to start out in the elementary schools," she says. "They first try inhalants, such as sniffing Liquid Paper. From there, they would usually try smoking cigarettes and that leads to marijuana. Crack and cocaine usually start in high school."

Persuasive information, not preaching, is the Explorer approach, she said.

"We are there to inform them how it can affect your body and your mind. We are just trying to inform them what the dangers of drugs are," she said.

Peer pressure often lures high school students into the drug culture, but C.T. Clark, another 20-year-old Explorer, believes the program can turn that around.

"We go in and use reverse peer pressure," he said. "We emphasize that for every kid standing on the corner saying, 'You have to use drugs or you're an outcast,' there are other kids saying, 'Hey, you're stupid.'"

His post received a lot of thank-you notes for the lectures, Clark said, with one parent saying she didn't realize her daughter had a drug problem until she attended an Explorer presentation.

"She got home, went into her daughter's bedroom, snooped around and found some drug-related items. She confronted the girl and found out she had a problem — not only was she hooked on LSD and heroin, but she was four months pregnant," he said.

The mother thought she had an open and honest relationship with her daughter, but the girl said, "I was just telling her what she wanted to hear," Clark said.

The key to enlisting parents in the battle, said Clark, is for youngsters to learn early to take their problems home to Mom and Dad.

"Raise them so when they have a problem they don't even think about going to their best friend," Clark tells parents. "They've got to go to mom and dad because they are always going to be there."

Officer Mike Gifford of the Dallas Police Department, an advisor to Southwest Patrol Division Explorer unit where Clark and Ms. Yoque are members, also emphasizes the role of parents in the drug war.

"Parents can take a big step toward eliminating the (drug) problem by talking to their kids instead of just watching TV with them," said Gifford. He suggests that parents talk each night with each child about what happened that day.

"The amount of time being spent with kids — quality time — is constantly going down," said the officer. "It's a little too late to wait until high school to say, 'Well, Johnny, talk to me.'"

Gifford's unit, or post, was one of six Explorers units around the country that conducted experimental efforts in drug abuse prevention.

The pilot programs worked so well that after two years they attracted seed capital from the U.S. Justice Dept and the Drug Enforcement Administration. Now 40,000 law enforcement Explorers nationwide are joining the effort, coordinated from Boy Scout headquarters in Irving.

"Young people are those most affected by drug abuse and youth-to-youth programs have been found to be very effective in exercising peer pressure to alleviate teen abuse," said DEA acting administrator John C. Lawn in a guidebook printed with the help of a $3,000 government grant.

Archimbaum said the drug abuse prevention program is supported mostly by Boy Scout funds and no additional federal grants are being sought.

The big factor, he said, is the amount of time spent by the Explorers. Last year's award for the most time spent in community service — 23,000 hours — went to the 30 members of the Phoenix, Arizona, police explorer post.

Archimbaum also emphasized that the Explorers provide only information and persuasion — not detective work.

"We have a policy that precludes utilizing law enforcement Explorers in undercover activity," he said.

However, Explorers become involved in many other aspects of the career specialty they are exploring.

Liberty ceremony performed

NEW YORK (AP) — Another round of ceremonies marking the Statue of Liberty's centennial got off to a chilly start Monday when 56 people received medals intended to placate ethnic groups who felt excluded by Liberty Weekend awards.

Fewer than three-quarters of the medalists attended and three featured speakers, New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, New Jersey Gov. Thomas Kean and Chrysler chairman Lee Iacocca, did not show.

The no-shows included Walter Cronkite, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, Barbara Walters, Gregory Peck, Kirk Douglas, Helen Hayes, Marina Navratilova, Arnold Palmer and Coretta Scott King.

Among the Ellis Island Medal of Honor recipients were former boxer Muhammad Ali, former baseball star Joe DiMaggio, developer Donald Trump and a number of less celebrated Americans whose accomplishments were said to typify immigrant ethnic groups' contributions to the United States.

Later, at a banquet attended by 64 medalists at the Waldorf-Astoria, four special medals of honor were presented to Cardinal John J. O'Connor; comedian Bob Hope; Lee Iacocca, Chrysler Corp. chairman and head of the Liberty-Ellis Island Foundation; and William May, president of the Liberty-Ellis Island Foundation.

At Ellis Island, Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, speaking in the governor's place, said those wishing to honor America's immigrants "have to get beyond Emma Lazarus' wonderful, wrong, sonnet," "The New Colossus," which refers to the immigrants as "tired," "huddled," and "wretched."

Nuclear actions get good and bad

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one in a series of stories examining what the 99th Congress did — and did not — do.

By JILL LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The 99th Congress curbed the Energy Department's politically volatile nuclear waste dump program and postponed action on a controversial nuclear accident insurance bill.

With the nuclear accident at Chernobyl in the Soviet Union looming in the background, Congress also failed to act on sweeping changes in nuclear plant design, licensing and regulation of the U.S. nuclear industry. These issues are certain to arise again next year.

Falling projections of nuclear waste generation led the Department of Energy to indefinitely abandon its search for a dump site in the East or Midwest.

But that announcement last May exploded a fragile political compromise in which the first shipments of radioactive waste were to be buried in the West, with a second site set up in the eastern half of the country by a certain time.

Energy Department officials released documents indicating they considered the intense political pressure in postponing the second site, but said then, and continue to say, that they based the decision on technical and financial considerations.

Incensed Western lawmakers, calling the move blatantly political, froze money for the program at current levels and pushed through a ban on exploratory shaft drilling this fiscal year at the three prospective sites in Washington, Nevada and Texas.

The department had planned to drill at the Hanford, Wash. site and possibly at the Nevada test site during the period, said department spokeswoman Ginger King. She said other work would continue, including waste package design and studies of transportation and other needs.

The program will receive $499 million for the fiscal year ending next Sept. 30, compared to a requested $769 million, with $79 million of the $499 million contingent on better consultation and cooperation with states and Indian tribes.

But since no one wants a high-level nuclear waste dump, some doubt that a compromise can be reached.

"Trust is an absolutely essential ingredient and probably one that will never be obtained," program director Ben Rusche told a journalism conference this month.

But he said he expects the intensity of the resentment to subside. "I will not be surprised ... if they simmer down," he said of western opponents. "When we get to the scientific and technical work, hopefully we'll see a little more rationality."

With the Price-Anderson nuclear insurance act scheduled to expire next year, Congress also dove into the controversy over how much accident coverage the public should have. The current limit is $665 million.

THE 99th CONGRESS

Bills in a half-dozen subcommittees set ceilings ranging from about $2 billion, favored by the industry, to unlimited coverage, pushed by public interest groups citing Chernobyl as an example of the havoc a nuclear accident can wreak.

As his energy subcommittee wrangled over different coverage ceilings last summer, Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., remarked: "We're beginning to sound like a daytime TV show, but I'm not sure if it's 'Let's Make A Deal' or 'Sale of the Century.'"

The best shot appeared to be a House compromise raising nuclear industry liability to $6.5 billion. But opponents from both ends of the spectrum wanted a chance to change the bill on the floor; House leaders, trying to end a drawn-out session, balked at the prospect of an emotional nuclear debate, and never scheduled the bill.

"Nuclear issues and energy issues weren't on anybody's front burner. They were not a number one national priority," said Kevin Billings, a lobbyist for the 120-member American Nuclear Energy Council.

Attorney General: no-holds-barred race

By DARLA MORGAN
Austin Bureau

There's been no disappointment for those who expected the race between Democrat Jim Mattox and Republican Roy Barrera for attorney general to be a no-holds-barred, mean and dirty confrontation.

Mattox, the pugnacious, 43-year-old scrapper from Dallas who seldom avoids a fight, and Barrera, a 34-year-old San Antonio judge who favors pinstripes and a tough-on-crime approach to government, have had few nice words to say about each other.

Mike Stephens, a systems analyst from Dallas, is also on the ballot as the Libertarian Party candidate for attorney general.

Barrera, in campaign appearances throughout the state, repeatedly brings up the 1985 trial and acquittal of Mattox on charges of commercial bribery.

"The main issue in the race is to elect an attorney general who will bring integrity and dignity to the office rather than suspicion and disgrace," Barrera said.

Barrera also criticized Mattox's doubling of the budget for the attorney general's office since taking office.

"Mattox inherited 480 employees and today he has 1,186 employees," Barrera said.

The attorney general staff has increased since he took office, Mattox said, because the Texas Legislature gave his office the responsibility for collecting delinquent child support payments.

"We have increased collections by 200 percent. Those payments are collected by this office and pass through our budget before they go out to the children of this state," Mattox said.

Barrera, whose father was a Democrat appointed to the position of Secretary of State by former Gov. John Connolly, points to his experience as a prosecutor, attorney and judge as his qualifications to be elected.

Mattox responds that Barrera does not understand the function of the office of attorney general.

"The attorney general's office is primarily a civil office for the state of Texas. Barrera has never handled any civil work before," Mattox said.

The two candidates disagree on how Hispanic voters will react to a Hispanic candidate for statewide office.

While Barrera's supporters are predicting he will siphon off as much as 40 percent of the Hispanic voters from the Democratic ticket and cut into Hispanic support for Mark White, Mattox scoffs at that idea.

"It takes more than a Hispanic name to get Hispanic votes. It takes being right on some of the issues that interest the Hispanic community," Mattox said.

When Mattox campaigns in heavily Hispanic South Texas, he is flanked by such notables as U.S. Rep. Kika de la Garza of Mission, U.S. Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez of San Antonio and U.S. Rep. Solomon Ortiz of Corpus Christi.

These South Texas Democratic politicians are proven vote-getters but are unopposed this year, casting some doubt on the number of Hispanics who may turn out for the November election.

Mattox, who drew an estimated 86 percent of the less than 1 million Hispanic votes in his 1982 election, predicted Barrera will receive no more than 10 percent of that total, leaving the incumbent Democrat with 76 percent of the Hispanic vote.

In the last weeks of the campaign, Barrera is expecting help from such GOP luminaries as Vice President George Bush; Roger Staubach, the former Dallas Cowboy; and U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, who will appear at rallies with the Republican candidate. But Barrera has been faced with a dwindling campaign war chest.

State Hispanics looking at future in '86 races Election '86 Analysis

By DARLA MORGAN
Austin Bureau

You probably wouldn't expect a Texas Supreme Court justice driving a mini-van loaded with three appeals court judges to pull up for breakfast at La Estrellita Cafe in Robstown.

But that's how Raul Gonzalez, the Democratic candidate for Supreme Court justice, began last week as he hit the road for a round of rallies and chicken-fried steak lunches in little towns throughout South Texas.

And it may be a little surprising that Roy Barrera, the Republican candidate for Texas attorney general, with the backing of such GOP luminaries as real estate magnate Trammel Crow of Dallas and Vice President George Bush, would be pleading for campaign funds two weeks before the general election.

But Barrera, to raise the funds to buy statewide television ads and get his message out to the rest of the state, begged last week for campaign funds at rallies in Corpus Christi and Georgetown.

The two Hispanic candidates are learning firsthand the harsh realities of just how expensive a statewide campaign is and just how big this state is when you are running behind or neck and neck in the polls.

The stakes are high in the outcome of the two races involving Gonzalez and Barrera. Young, aspiring Hispanics are looking at the races with an eye to the future, said Ruben Bonilla, a Corpus Christi attorney who heads the Mexican American Democrats of Texas. If a qualified Hispanic such as Gonzalez, appointed to the state's highest court by Gov. Mark White in 1984, can't attract votes in places like deep East Texas, Bonilla said, it could hurt the Democratic Party in the long run.

William Velasquez, of the Southwest Voter Registration Project in San Antonio, said this election is uncharted ground because Barrera and Gonzalez are Texas' first really viable Hispanic candidates for statewide offices.

Poll watchers on both sides of the political fence are wondering how many of the 1 million registered Hispanic voters will actually turn out for the November general election.

Velasquez predicted Barrera would get as much as 25 percent to 30 percent of the Hispanic vote. Barrera will do especially well in San Antonio, Velasquez said.

"That can't do anything but help Bill Clements," Velasquez said.

But Democrats aren't giving up those Hispanic votes easily. In campaign rallies throughout South Texas, the Democratic faithful's rallying cry is "una palanca," or one lever.

"It is no mistake that Judge Gonzalez was appointed to the Supreme Court. Had we, four years ago, not voted better, we would not have a Justice Gonzalez on the bench," state Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner said at a rally in Alice.

U.S. Rep. "Kika" de la Garza, D-Mission, said at that same rally that a low voter turnout in his Valley district would hurt his pride.

"I have no opposition, but my name leads the ballot. People will be looking for how many votes I got. The easiest thing would be just pull the lever and go on down the line," de la Garza said.

While Gonzalez can't afford to buy advertising on statewide television, he is campaigning throughout the state. He is campaigning heavily in South Texas, where he is known.

"It is essential that I do well in South Texas," Gonzalez said. "I am concerned about turnout. We need and want strong support in South Texas to offset other areas of the state where I am less known," Gonzalez said.

Despite the fact that Gonzalez has raised and spent much more campaign money than his opponent, John Bates, a Waco attorney, Gonzalez and Bates are running neck and neck in polls released earlier this month by a Houston newspaper.

This angers George Shipley, an Austin-based pollster who said Gonzalez isn't getting the financial support he received during the primary.

Teachers hear of inequities

COLORADO CITY — Eva Jo Kassinger, president of the Texas Classroom Teachers Association, told teachers here Monday night that "there are a lot of inequities in public education that we're going to have to take care of."

Kassinger, an elementary school music teacher from Abilene, was the keynote speaker at the fall teachers' banquet sponsored by the Colorado Classroom Teachers Association. "Whether it's through the legislature or whether it's through our hometowns and school districts, or through TCTA, we need to stand together and conquer together for the betterment of the schools of Texas," she told the crowd of nearly 200.

Political awareness was the theme of the banquet which included brief remarks by District 66 state representative candidate Dick Burnett, D-San Angelo, and Tim Weatherby, his Republican challenger, also from San Angelo. "We don't endorse candidates," Kassinger said about TCTA. "We work behind the scenes and we get the information out to let you decide for yourselves — that's the key."

However she said she does believe in putting blame where blame is deserved. "Sometimes we want to put the blame on someone for all the troubles we have had in education," she said. "I like to put the blame where blame is deserved and I think you can put most of it in the lap of our governor and I think you can put a good deal of it in the laps of our unions."

Burnett said that when the next session of the legislature convenes Jan. 13 lawmakers will be looking at a short fall in the budget of six to seven billion dollars, but he said that education should remain at the same level "if not at a higher level."

Bewitching Halloween menu captivates kids

Kids love Halloween. They spend days contriving their costumes and nights dreaming about the mountains of goodies they'll collect. As the big event draws near, why not join in the fun and throw a costume party for your children and their ghost 'n goblin friends.

Celebrated since the pre-Christian era of the Druids, the holiday has always mingled aspects of the supernatural and a harvest festival. Its name derives from All Hallows or All Saints Day, which falls on November 1st.

Since the kids will be dressed up, make sure the food is too. This simple menu is full of favorites like bologna, peanut butter, raisins and apples.

PUMPKIN HOLLOW DIP

- 1 recipe Halloween Spread
- 2 cups shredded carrot
- 3 bacon curls*
- 1 apple wedge
- Raisins
- 1 green pepper chunk
- Celery sticks, apple wedges, green pepper strips

Arrange Halloween Spread in shape of pumpkin on large serving plate. Sprinkle carrots over spread. To make a face, use bacon curls for eyes and nose, apple wedge for mouth, raisins for eyebrows, and green pepper chunk for stem. Serve with dippers.

*To make bacon curls, cook bacon slices in skillet until slightly crisp. Use a fork and roll each slice around times to make curls.

BACON AND PEANUT BUTTER HALLOWEEN SPREAD

- 1 can (3 oz.) bacon bits, or cook and crumble approx. 10 slices of bacon
- 1 jar (16 oz.) chunky peanut butter
- 1 cup raisins

STUFFED APPLES

- 1 recipe Halloween Spread
- 10 red or green apples

This bewitching Halloween menu will cast a spell over any child. Serve Pumpkin Hollow Dip with vegetable sticks as a snack. The Cat's Meow Sandwich and Stuffed Apple Face make for fascinating and healthy eating.

- Lemon juice
- 1 carrot, shredded
- Core apples. Carve Halloween face on apple, dip in lemon juice to keep from turning brown. Stuff each apple center with Halloween spread. Decorate top with shredded carrot.

THE CAT'S MEOW

- 2 bologna slices
  - 1 hamburger bun
  - Mayonnaise
  - 1 bologna and cheese slice
  - 1 pitted black olive
  - Aerosol cheese
- To form cat body, overlap two bologna slices on bun halves spread with mayonnaise. Cut bologna and cheese slice in half. Roll one half for tail; cut other half in triangles and strips for ears and whiskers. Cut black olive to make eyes and nose. Use aerosol cheese for eye brows and mouth.

It doesn't have to be bubble, bubble, toil and trouble to make Monster Cupcakes — they're based on handy spice-cake mix and Florida orange juice.

MONSTER CUPCAKES

- 1 package (18 1/2 oz.) spice cake mix
- Florida orange juice
- 6 large gumdrops, halves
- 1/2 cup heavy cream, whipped, or

- 1 cup non-dairy whipped topping
- 24 chocolate chips
- Colored sprinkles

Prepare cake mix as directed for 24 cupcakes, substituting orange juice for water. Pour half the batter into 12 paper-lined medium muffin cups, 2 1/2 X 1 1/2 inches, filling each about half full. Pour remaining batter into 12 greased, unlined muffin cups. Bake as directed on package. Cool.

Spread tops of paper-lined cupcakes with Orange Glaze. (See accompanying recipe.) Let dry slightly. Cut a long V-shaped wedge out of top of cupcakes without paper liners, to look like a mouth. Spread glaze all over cupcake including inside of mouth. Place glazed cupcake on top of paper-lined cupcakes; let dry. With rolling pin, flatten gundrop halves into tongue shape. Attach to mouth with toothpick. Pipe whipped cream on cupcake to resemble eyes; place chocolate chips in centers. Pipe or spread whipped cream on top for hair; spoon on sprinkles. Pipe whipped cream between cupcakes to make collar. Yields 12 cupcakes.

ORANGE GLAZE

- 2 1/2 cups confectioners' sugar
- 1 1/2 teaspoons grated orange peel
- 4 to 6 tablespoons Florida orange juice

In medium bowl combine sugar and orange peel; whisk in orange juice until smooth.

Cooking healthy food

Jane Brody stirs up a panful of food on the set of "Good Health From Jane Brody's Kitchen," which premiered on PBS, Channel 5, last Saturday. Be sure to catch Jane this week at 6 p.m. for her series. You won't be able to cook up any more excuses for not cooking food that is more nutritious once you begin to watch this series.

Scouts skate for funds

To Girl Scouts all over the world, October 31 is more than just Halloween. It is the birthday of the founder of Girl Scouting, Juliette Low.

In honor of her birthday, Senior Girl Scout Troop 36 will sponsor a Skating party Thursday, Oct. 30, from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. at SKateland. Admission is $2.50 per person.

Part of the proceeds will serve as a contribution to the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund. This fund helps to pay expenses for the Four Girl Scout World Centers.

Any registered Girl Scout or girl interested in joining Girl Scouts is welcome to attend.

Written parental permission with emergency phone number is required for all skaters.

Asthmatics breathe easier

DENVER (AP) — Currently, more than 11 million Americans suffer from asthma, according to the National Jewish Center for Immunology and Respiratory Medicine here.

Asthma is a chronic, intermittent respiratory disease, and millions of adults, as well as children, are asthma sufferers. The disease can be characterized by a feeling of tightness in the chest, coughing, wheezing and difficulty in breathing. And its effects can be extremely serious, even life-threatening.

Friend with AIDS does not explain

DEAR ABBY: I went to visit a good friend who said he had leukemia. After I got there and spent an hour or so talking to him, he broke down and told me that he had AIDS! Do you think that was fair? Don't you think he should have told me he had AIDS before I went to visit him so I could decide whether I wanted to go or not?

Even though we don't know where it comes from or how contagious it is, they say, "Be cautious." There is a lot of confusion about this disease so I hope you answer this in your column. If you do, please don't mention my name.

NO NAME IN NEW YORK

Dear Abby

DEAR NO NAME: There is no conclusive evidence that AIDS can be transmitted any way other than through: (1) Sharing a contaminated needle with an infected person. (2) Intimate sexual contact. (3) Being born of a parent with AIDS. (The risk of getting AIDS from a blood transfusion is no longer a threat since all blood is tested for the AIDS virus before it is used in a transfusion.)

People with AIDS should tell prospective visitors the truth about their illness, even though it's not possible for a casual visitor to contract it.

DEAR ABBY: I had to laugh when I read the letter from "Caught in the Middle," the young man whose fiancée (Betty) smokes at least a pack a day, but has never smoked in the presence of his parents because she knows they disapprove of smoking.

Abby, how naive can Betty and her man be? His parents already know she smokes! If not, there must be something wrong with their sense of smell! Cigarette smokers smell like cigarette smoke. It's in their hair, their clothes, their books, their automobiles, and if you go into their homes, the scent of cigarette smoke is everywhere!

I agree it's childish for Betty to try to hide it. It's also impossible!

Scabies season prompts hundreds of letters of concern

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: How long does it take for scabies to develop from the time it gets on the body? Is it right away or days or how long? One of my children got it at school and I fear for the others at home. — Mrs. T.M.B.

Dr. Donohue

The mite that causes scabies gets to work right away after getting on the skin. The female burrows there and deposits her eggs. The eggs develop into adults in about 17 days, then emerge from the skin tunnel, mate, and begin a new burrowing-and-egg-laying cycle.

Now the problem with controlling scabies is that the prominent, telltale feature, the unrelenting itch, may not appear during the early cycle of mite invasion. In fact, the cause of the itch is actually an allergic reaction to the mite or its eggs. This sensitivity may not occur for a month. In that time, the person unknowingly carries the mite on his body. This is why scabies spreads so insidiously, before a family knows what's going on.

So when a case is identified, other family members should be treated right away, whether or not they have symptoms, for we know how easy it is to give the mite to others.

It's the scabies season, which always prompts hundreds of letters on the problem. I'm not going into the treatments. They are pretty straightforward, and parents should get careful instruction on use of the various effective lotions and creams to zap the mites. Some are not to be used on young children and babies. There are varieties acceptable for them.

A final word: Because of the same allergic connection, the itch may take as long to disappear as it did to occur, so don't expect immediate relief from the treatments. The itching, I'm sorry to tell you, can continue for weeks after the mites have left the scene.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: You sound like a pretty understanding person to me. So I want to give you a gripe for what it's worth. Here I am, an 82-year-old woman. I've always been a healthy specimen. I still consider myself one. Here's my gripe. I get upset when I overhear comments, usually whispered (which says something for my sense of hearing, I guess), like, "Isn't she chipper for her age?" and such. "Isn't she alert?"

I know people don't mean harm. But please, Dr. Donohue, tell your readers that age doesn't mean mental deterioration. I still am able to read and converse with alacrity, and I am not a bit more or less "chipper" or "alert" than I was when I was 45. — Mrs. P.F. There's your gripe out there for the world to read. I am happy to add my own testimony to the fact that age does not equate with mental decline. No internal clock turns off the thinking mechanisms or body functions. Only illness does that. A healthy person is a chipper person. At least one authority on aging suggests that public misconception in this regard may pose mental stress for people like yourself and bring on the appearance of mental decline.

(There are some senses that may suffer from aging, however, Mrs. P.F. See the following item):
Headaches — you can beat them: Write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Tame Headaches." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and $1.00.
Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Club notes

Medical Auxiliary meets

Canterbury Retirement Center, its accommodations and activities for local senior citizens were explained at the October meeting of the Permian Basin Medical Society Auxiliary. Canterbury's assistant director Pat Johnston presented the program Oct. 22 at the Branding Iron Restaurant.

Johnston emphasized the importance of prospective residents submitting applications early. She said there is a six to eight month waiting list for Canterbury's efficiency apartments and a two to four year waiting list for one-bedroom apartments. Canterbury and new Canterbury North together offer 179 living units.

Auxiliary members were asked for donations for the group's annual Thanksgiving basket project. Food items and cash donations should be given to committee members Mrs. John Farquhar, Mrs. John Worrell, Mrs. Douglas Park and Mrs. Walter Heichman.

The next medical auxiliary meeting will be Nov. 19 at La Posada Restaurant with Madeline Boadle, director of West Side Community Center, as speaker.

Freedom topic of forum

The Modern Woman's Forum met Oct. 25 at the home of Norma Murdock, with Birdie Adams as co-hostess. Civic and welfare committees reported taking more than 12 dozen cookies to Big Spring State Hospital.

The program was titled "Freedom" and presented by Gertrude Hill. She said that American citizens should think about freedom, enjoy freedom and preserve freedom.

She compared the Constitution to the American flag, which has changed in response to the pressures of history with new stars being added, yet with the same basic pattern remaining. Each generation has the responsibility to ensure that freedom is renewed in each generation.

The next meeting of the forum will be Nov. 14 at the home of Ruth Sweatt.

It's in the bullpen

Now that the World Series is over I can say it was one of the best in recent memory. What was supposed to be a Mets' rout turned into a classic that went down to the final inning of the seventh game.

Strong relief pitching by the Mets shut down Boston, while weak relief pitching by the Red Sox spurred New York to a come-from-behind 8-5 victory Monday night in the final game of the Series.

Sid Fernandez killed Boston's momentum when he came in with the Red Sox ahead 3-0 in the fourth inning. Then Jesse Orosco came in with New York ahead 6-5, the tying run on second and no outs in the eighth. He killed Boston's title hopes with two perfect innings to end the game.

Meanwhile, Boston's bullpen was blowing a 3-3 tie that starter Bruce Hurst provided after six innings.

The Red Sox relievers allowed 12 earned runs in 15 and one-third innings for a 7.05 earned run average. In the last two games, they gave up eight earned runs in 4 2/3 innings for an ERA of 15.42 and let 20 of the 33 batters they faced reach base.

New York's bullpen posted ERAs of 2.70 for the Series and 3.86 for the last two games.

Fernandez, who was upset when manager Davey Johnson left him out of the starting rotation for the Series, was New York's most valuable fireman in game seven.

In Saturday night's sixth game, the Red Sox led 3-2 when starter Roger Clemens went out and Calvin Schiraldi took the mound to start the eighth. He allowed four runs in 2 1/2 innings in New York's 6-5 victory in 10 innings. The tying run scored on reliever Bob Stanley's wild pitch.

But if the MVP had to come from the Mets, it very well could have been Orosco. He was outstanding throughout the Series, retiring 16 of the 18 batters he faced, including the final 13.

Who says that the MVP had to come from the winning team, however?

Take Boston's Hurst, who was going to be named the MVP of the Series when the Red Sox were one pitch away from taking a 5-3 win and the series. After all, the man was 2-0 in both starts and had allowed only two runs.

Instead, the Mets rallied and Hurst was called upon to start in the rubber match. He didn't get a decision as he went six innings, allowed four hits and three runs. Not what one would call a bad outing.

Without a doubt, Hurst was the most productive starter in the Series. He pitched 23 innings, allowed 18 hits, five runs, for a 1.96 ERA.

Seems like MVP quality to me.

The story of the Series, however is this: one bullpen came through — the other bullpen fell through.

And a world championship went to the New York Mets.

Lefty pushed aside

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Lefty Driesell, apparently seething over his forced ouster, stepped aside today after 17 years as basketball coach at the University of Maryland and four months after the cocaine-induced death of All-American Len Bias.

Driesell said he was proud of the program and even prouder of the student athletes.

After making a simple, short statement, Driesell turned and walked away from the podium.

As he drove away from the building, Driesell said, "I'll do whatever they tell me to do."

Asked what his new job would be, he responded, "I don't know yet."

Driesell's wife and two daughters were with him at the announcement.

On Tuesday, Driesell and University Chancellor John B. Slaughter jockeyed for starting times on their separate news conferences. Driesell eventually forced Slaughter to change the time of his.

Driesell's action didn't surprise Jim Kehoe, the retired athletic director who hired the coach in 1969. "Why would he want to share the platform with the man who sacked him?" he asked.

The coach met with his team late Tuesday at his home. According to players who attended the somber, 1 hour and 15 minute session, he bid a tearful farewell.

Driesell was expected to be named an assistant athletic director while giving up the old contract which called for him to coach four more seasons and then work five years in another university capacity.

Ron Bradley, a Driesell assistant for three years, was expected to be named interim head coach for the coming season.

With the start of their season pushed back a month by Slaughter, the Terps don't open practice until Saturday, some 17 days after the date allowed by the NCAA.

The new agreement, said to be worth more than $1 million, would resolve Driesell's status at the university while heading off a possible lawsuit for the remaining $2 million to $3 million he expected to make on the old contract.

Counting salary, endorsements, radio and television shows, and a summer basketball camp, Driesell reportedly earned more than $300,000 a year.

Despite a highly successful record, Driesell came under fire after the cocaine-induced death of basketball star Len Bias, when subsequent investigations disclosed drug use and academic shortcomings by other members of the team.

Driesell disputed some of the findings of Prince George's County State's Attorney Arthur A. Marshall Jr. and a special university task force appointed by Slaughter.

The embattled coach vowed to continue coaching, but finally succumbed to Slaughter's stand and agreed to terms of an agreement hammered out by attorneys over a period of weeks.

New York salutes champs

NEW YORK (AP) — Echoes of the Mets ticker-tape procession up Broadway had scarcely faded before the world champions focused their hopes on the future — a repeat performance in 1987.

Left fielder Mookie Wilson captured the spirit of both the team and the town Tuesday when he said: "1986, year of the Mets. 1987, year of the Mets. 1988, year of the Mets."

"It was so much fun I think we ought to try to do it again next year at the same time," echoed Mets Manager Davey Johnson.

The Mets won Game 7 of the World Series Monday night in a come-from-behind 8-5 victory over the Boston Red Sox at Shea Stadium.

"It was wonderful but we expect you to do it again next year," Gov. Mario M. Cuomo told the team.

An estimated 2.2 million people greeted the Mets as they took their one-mile victory lap amidst a blizzard of paper.

People dangled from trees, perched precariously on ledges, threw paper out of windows and cheered from rooftops as the Mets passed by in convertibles accompanied by wives, girlfriends and children.

"New York City, international capital, today it's a small town brought together by the Mets," Mayor Edward I. Koch said.

Many children played hooky Tuesday and stood with men and women in business suits under the sunny skies.

"I told my principal that I was leaving and he said 'Good luck,'" Marc Lechner, a high school junior from Flushing, said.

Absentee figures were unavailable, according to Joe Mancini, a spokesman for the Board of Education. "We should have taken attendance at City Hall."

"I just walked out of the office," Victor Pagano, who works at Greentree Securities, said. "My manager's right behind us."

The road from Battery Park north to City Hall was ankle deep in debris even before the first marching band stepped off playing "New York, New York."

snowplows cleared a path before the procession began and a brigade of street sweepers brought up the rear but there was no estimate of how much trash was collected. Although many modern office towers have windows that don't open and in some older buildings, windows were locked for safety reasons, there was no shortage of confetti. However, very little of the

Cash drunk when drowned

CHARLEVOIX, Mich. (AP) — An autopsy found that former Detroit Tigers baseball star Norm Cash accidentally drowned in northern Lake Michigan after falling off a boat dock while drunk, says Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater.

Lasater said Tuesday that he had closed his investigation of Cash's death Oct. 11 in the lake near Beaver Island.

The autopsy found that Cash, 51, had 0.18 percent alcohol in his blood when he died — nearly twice the 0.10 percent level considered legally intoxicated, Lasater said.

The sheriff said Cash apparently fell while trying to climb aboard his 33-foot cabin cruiser that was moored at the dock.

Friends and acquaintances said the hard-drinking Cash had been in a good mood before leaving a bar on the isolated island the night he died.

"Norm fit right in," said David Roop, bartender at the Shamrock Bar, frequented by Cash. He said Cash seemed in good spirits and was joking with rabbit hunters at another table of the busy bar.

Cash ordered four vodka and sodas while there, Roop said.

Cash, a native of Justiceburg, Texas, played for the Chicago White Sox in 1958-59 before joining the Tigers in 1960. He played for Detroit until 1974 and had a lifetime .271 major league batting average.

Forsan linebackers honor roll head Crossroads

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

For the second week in a row the Forsan linebackers — Shane Clanton, Wayne Wright and John Roman, are the Crossroads Country Defensive "Player" of the Week. Their teammate, quarterback Brant Nichols, garnered the Offensive Player of the Week award for the second time this season.

Forsan crushed Stanton 32-7 to take charge of District 6-2A. The game was supposed to be closer, but Forsan's linebackers stopped Stanton's highly touted running game and its Nichols-led passing game provided the offense with too much variety for Stanton to stop.

Clanton was in on 16 tackles to lead the trio, and Wright and Roman each had 12. Stanton gained just 110 yards rushing, way below their average. Forsan Coach Jan East said his linebackers have "started coming on and doing what they're supposed to do." That's an understatement.

For the Buffaloes' offense, Nichols completed nine of 14 passes for 148 yards and three touchdowns. All three touchdowns came in the first half, when Forsan jumped to a 20-7 lead. Nichols also guided the offense to a great game.

Nichols' main weapon on the ground was running back Wright, who had what is becoming a routine evening with 176 yards on 27 carries and one touchdown running. Wright was also productive as a receiver, with three catches for 54 yards and one touchdown.

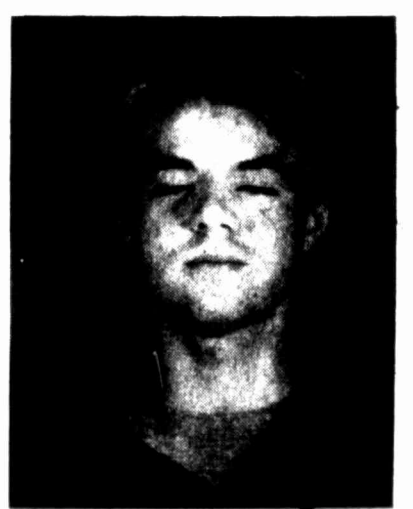

Though Grady lost 57-12 to Wellman, freshman Julian Valle had his biggest play of the season. Valle returned a kickoff 72 yards for a touchdown. Grady Coach Mike Mathis also commended Valle on his play at safety. Grady's other score came on a pass from lone senior Walt Stone to Chris Haggins.

In Coahoma's tough 14-0 loss to heavily favored Brady, Craig Wallace and Dee Jon Douglass both turned in strong defensive performances. Brady had just six points late in the fourth quarter.

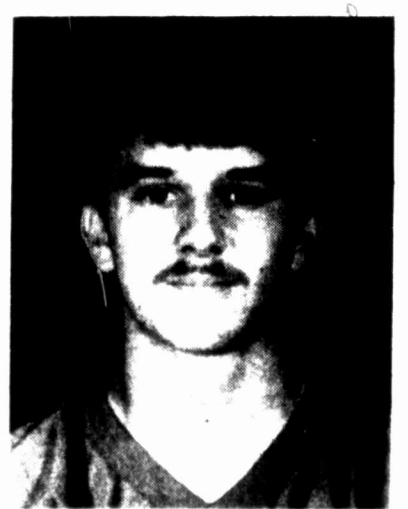

On offense, Coahoma Coach Billy Kidd said his offensive line played a strong game. The Bulldog blockers were Lance Reid, Robbie Self, Mike Sepeda, Anthony Hernandez and Schaffer Musser.

Though Colorado City gave up 49 points against Clyde, it wasn't for any fault of sophomore linebacker Jerry Hulme. Hulme blocked a punt, recovered a fumble and had 14 tackles, five unassisted. Teammate Bo Rees had 88 yards and a touchdown on 12 carries.

Borden County, the only other area team besides Forsan to win, had several strong performances in their 15-14 win over Dawson.

Michael Murphy had ten tackles and an interception and Mickey Burkette had 13 tackles and a fumble recovery to lead the defense.

Coyote teammate Brice Key had 84 yards and two touchdowns on five catches and carried the ball eight times for 41 yards to lead the offense.

Sands missed running back Jay Fryar in their loss to Midland Christian, but they had several strong offensive performances. Jerry Long completed 15 of 27 passes for 146 yards and one touchdown; Paul Martin had seven catches for 85 yards and one touchdown; Lee Young ran for two touchdowns; and Chad Nichols had five catches for 146 yards and one touchdown.

On defense, safety Damien Zarate led the Mustangs with 12 tackles.

On the first play of scrimmage in Garden City's loss to Water Valley, Weldon Hillger ran 60 yards. On defense for the Bearkats, Coach Tony Stricklin said defensive end Travis Halfmann did a good job of containing.

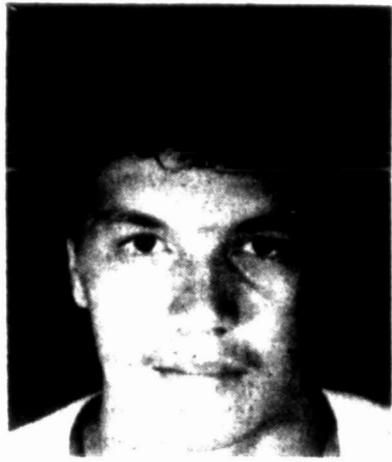

Though Stanton lost the big one to Forsan, linebacker Robert Schoolcraft and lineman Hector Ramirez had good games defensively.

Steers' guard just having fun

Lefty

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Mark Gomez has made two changes over the past year and now he's having loads of fun. The 6-0, 210-pound senior is starting at offensive guard on a Big Spring Steers team that is now 6-1 and leading District 2-4A with a 5-0 record.

MARK GOMEZ

Last year Gomez was a frustrated 235-pound junior, starting at right guard and defensive tackle on the junior varsity squad.

He would have been on the varsity but one obstacle stood in his way — grades. At the start of spring training of his junior season, Gomez was starting at offensive guard on the varsity. But a failing grade in one subject left him ineligible to practice the final six weeks. Thus he fell behind and lost his place as a varsity member in the fall. "I thought alot about all the things I was missing," he said. "I use to just stand on the sidelines and watch my teammates practice. It was hard on me but it made me put a lot more into my studies."

The other major change occurred during spring training and the summer months. Gomez shed 25 pounds and increased his strength level, hoping to secure a starting position — and it worked.

"I was overweight," he promptly said. "That 235-pounds was slowing me down. I did a lot of running and lifted hard and I got rid of it."

Gomez's workouts would include a hot session in the weight room to running distance and bleachers. In the process of slimming down, he increased his bench press from 270 to 360-pounds.

He gives a lot of credit to his teammates. "It wasn't easy but I had people like James Weaver and Deeg Young pushing me. "Now I'm stronger and quicker off the ball. The quicker you come off the ball, the harder you knock your opponents off the line."

Which is exactly what Gomez and his fellow trenchmen have been doing. The Steers' offense is second in the district, averaging right at 300 yards per game.

Gomez says a good coaching staff and a competitive team has played a big part in his success.

"Coach Knippa (Scott Knippa, offensive line coach) is a great coach. He's hard on us but he does it for our own good. He tells us everyday, I get on you because I want you to get better."

"It helps to go against the players we have on our defensive line. They are outstanding players and they make us work."

At the first of the season, the big question mark was the Steers' offensive line. Gomez thinks all questions are answered now.

"I think we've done just fine. In the past things haven't always been this good. But Big Spring has always put forth the effort and has had some good players, but we couldn't get enough wins to get the momentum going. Now we've won a few games and we've got confidence, we've got the momentum going our way."

Gomez knows the Steers will have their hands full Friday night against Monahan. "I'm pretty impressed with their defensive line and the player I'll go against. "He weighs 230-pounds (Todd Craft) and reads well. They are all good readers and pretty quick."

"To beat them we'll have to cut down on the turnovers and have a team effort. I'll know we'll be excited. So we'll just go out and have some fun, just like we've been doing all season."

"A year ago, they thought enough of Lefty to give him a 10-year contract," Kehoe said in a telephone interview late Tuesday. "Now, he's not fit to be seen. They did nothing but demean and embarrass him for four months."

Bias died of cocaine intoxication on June 19, and Marshall tried to have Driesell indicted for obstruction of justice, claiming the coach sought to have Bias' room cleaned of drugs after he collapsed in a dormitory.

The grand jury voted on Aug. 26 to reject the suggestion by Marshall, but the prosecutor later lambasted Driesell for placing winning ahead of education.

"There are right and wrong ways to do things," Kehoe said, "and what they (the administration) did was indefensible. They had Lefty swinging from the yardarm, and his wife and kids were humiliated."

Kehoe questioned why Slaughter took so long to act after the grand jury vote, and said any damage to Driesell's image came from Marshall and some reporters.

Driesell took over a downtrodden Maryland program that had posted a 27-48 record during three consecutive losing seasons before his arrival.

Over the next 17 years, the Terps went 348-159 under Driesell, winning 20 or more games in 10 different seasons while competing in the tough Atlantic Coast Conference.

With a 526-224 record, Driesell is one of 17 coaches with at least 10 years at an NCAA Division I school to reach 500 victories.

"Lefty says he still wants to coach," Kehoe said. "At 54, he feels he's got another half dozen years, at least. He's not ready to sit around and answer telephones, and push position papers around."

Lady Steers spike Mustangs

Champs

SWEETWATER — The Big Spring Lady Steers volleyball team turned the tables on the Sweetwater Mustangs Tuesday night as they defeated the Mustangs 16-14, 8-15, 15-11 in a District 2-4A match in Sweetwater.

It was a welcomed change for coach Elaine Stone's Lady Steers, who were defeated by Sweetwater in two straight games in the team's first district meeting in Big Spring. "It was a whole lot of revenge for us after they beat us before," said Stone. "The girls wanted it bad."

Senior setter Lisa Hale led the Lady Steers in the first game with five service points. She and Katrina Thompson each served four points in the final game.

It was an especially impressive win since Big Spring was plagued by injuries and illness to their eight-member squad. "We had four players that were either hurt or sick," said Stone. "We had to play with what we had. A good example is Katrina Thompson sprained her ankle at the start of the third game and finished out the game. Basically everyone did a good job."

The win ups Big Spring's season record to 9-16 overall and 4-11 in district.

The Big Spring junior varsity defeated Sweetwater 15-13, 12-15, 15-6. The Lady Steers are now 7-8 in district play and 11-12 overall.

paper flying was actual ticker tape, since computers have replaced financial tickers in most Manhattan offices.

Many parade goers improvised, using newspapers and pitching rolls of toilet paper.

The Police Department deployed 2,500 officers to control the crowd and reported only eight arrests.

Police Officer Alfonso Cruz injured his elbow when the crowd surged against a line of officers who had linked arms to hold the fans back. "They just broke the barrier," he said. "I never saw anything like that before."

But in general, police said, the celebration was peaceful and orderly. Virtually all of New York's leading politicians turned out, but at a ceremony on the steps of City Hall, they were booed by anxious fans eager to hear from the team.

Koch acceded to their wishes, cutting short the speech-making.

"Thank you for making a dream come true," catcher Gary Carter said.

"You fans are great," first baseman Keith Hernandez said. "You made the difference in Games 6 and 7."

One player who was conspicuously absent was pitcher Dwight Gooden. A Mets spokesman said he overslept and missed the bus from Shea Stadium to lower Manhattan.

NBA trading rosters

NBA teams have made a flurry of trades to trim their rosters to 15 players each. The league's season already has begun.

Junior Bridgman and Pat Cummings were traded from the Los Angeles Lakers to the Phoenix Suns. Among the veterans and rookies traded were Philadelphia 76ers guard Micky Paz and veteran forward William Bedford and veteran guard Micky Paz.

Many were placed on injured lists and the regular season begins Friday night.

Bridgman, an 11-year veteran who played for Milwaukee and the Los Angeles Clippers, was waived by the Lakers. The Kings, who acquired him in a trade, also cut Cummings, a 1985 first-round draft pick, a free agent from Sacramento.

Cook, a 6-foot-10, 235-pound forward who played major parts of his career with the Los Angeles Lakers, was waived by the Lakers. The Phoenix Suns waived Cummings, leaving no room for him.

The Phoenix Suns waived Cummings, Charles Jones, and placed Bedford, fourth selection in June's draft, and veteran guard Bernard Thomas on the injured list.

Jones, the Suns' second-round draft pick out of Louisville in 1984, missed all three preseason games this year with a stress fracture in his left leg. He was expected to be sidelined until at least January.

Bedford, the Suns' first-round draft pick out of Memphis State, injured his right knee in an Oct. 11 preseason game in Tucson. He is expected to return early next month.

Thompson, who has two stress fractures in McDowell, a 6-foot-9, 230-pound forward, missed the Rockets in 1984 and played in 24 games. He failed to make the team in 1985 but returned last February, following the departure of point guard John Lucas. He played in 23 games last season, averaging 13 minutes, 1.9 points and 2.1 rebounds.

McDowell and Payne were third-round draft picks who failed to win positions on the team.

Point guard Andre Turner of Memphis State was placed on waivers by the Los Angeles Lakers.

James Doolan and Troy Webster, both late-round draft picks in 1985, and Nigel Miguel, the New Jersey Nets' third-round 1985 pick, were waived by the New Jersey Nets.

Washington guard Pervis Mikanovic was placed on the injured list.

The New York Knicks cut two rookies, guard Michael Jackson, a former Georgetown teammate of center Patrick Ewing, and forward Jerome Mincy of Alabama-Birmingham.

The Seattle SuperSonics trimmed their roster to 15 players by placing 6-foot-9 rookie forward Curtis Kitchens, a 1985 sixth-round draft choice from South Florida, on the suspended list. Sonics' spokesman Sam Tuttle said Kitchens left the team's training camp to go to Europe to play basketball.

The Los Angeles Clippers waived veteran center Ozell Jones and guards Jose Slaughter and Bobby Paris.

Game 7 most watched game

NEW YORK (AP) — Game 7 of the World Series between the Boston Red Sox and the New York Mets was the most-watched baseball game ever, eclipsing the final game of the 1980 World Series between Philadelphia and Kansas City, NBC said.

The 1986 fall classic went up against "Monday Night Football" on ABC and NBC said the World Series handed the weekly TV football game its lowest rating ever: an 8.8 with a 14 share.

NBC research estimated 1986's Game 7 was seen in 34 million homes, while the sixth and deciding game of the 1980 Series was seen in an estimated 32 million homes.

5th seed advances in Virginia Slims

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Fifth-seeded Melissa Gurney defeated Kay McDaniel 6-3, 6-0 to advance into the second round of the $75,000 Virginia Slims of Indianapolis tennis tournament.

Hoyt arrested for illegal pills

SAN DIEGO (AP) — San Diego Padres pitcher Lamarr Hoyt was arrested Tuesday night at the San Ysidro border crossing by U.S. Customs agents when he allegedly tried to bring hundreds of illegal pills into the United States, a Customs spokesman said.

Mike Fleming, public affairs officer for the U.S. Customs Pacific Region, said Hoyt was stopped as he walked across the border from Mexico about 7 p.m. PDT.

According to Fleming, an inspector got suspicious when he noticed a bulge in Hoyt's clothing and took Hoyt to a secondary inspection area for a pat-down search. The search revealed two plastic bags in Hoyt's groin area containing 322 Valium tablets, 169 Quaaludes, and 30 unidentified tablets, Fleming said.

This was Hoyt's third run-in with the law this year. The former Cy Young Award winner was detained at the border in February after U.S. Customs agents found illegal pills on him. Also in February, San Diego police stopped Hoyt and cited him for carrying marijuana cigarettes and a switchblade.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, OCT. 30, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until noon you would be wise to get into whatever needs improvement or revision. You are able to handle the practical conditions about you before personal relationships.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be more skillful at handling problems by using more practical methods. Later be wise at solving civic worries.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get your health improved before you handle a responsibility that is awaiting your attention.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Do whatever will make your life at home more ideal. Try to please those you dwell with.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Come to a better understanding with an associate and then handle home affairs wisely.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Handle a practical matter wisely. A financial expert is apt to give erroneous advice, but a neighbor could help.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You had better clear up some personal matter before you seek ways to increase your abundance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A private worry could deter your progress at work, but later all goes much better for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan how to improve social fun and later make arrangements for just that. A newcomer could get on your nerves.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be very conscientious in handling civic or worldly matters. Be tactful with an influential person.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have to study a new idea further before putting it in operation. Tonight pursue more worldly goals.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle the responsibilities you have taken on and they are soon behind you. Forge ahead for success.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can gain fine benefits from some business deal you have handled wisely. Later cooperate with partners.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will pay much attention to the details of any course of study or project that your progeny may be involved with. Teach this one not to limit the thinking or scope of activities, since this person could become quite a famous individual.

San Antonio police chief resigns

SAN ANTONIO — Interim Police Chief Frank Hoyack has resigned, heading off a brewing confrontation between City Manager Lou Fox and Mayor Henry Cisneros over the slaying of a police officer, officials say.

Hoyack, calling the move the best thing for the city and the police force, resigned Tuesday one week after officer Farrell Tucker was indicted in connection with the shooting death of his former partner, Stephen Smith.

Cisneros said after the indictment that he would ask for Hoyack's resignation because he had not dealt effectively with the Smith affair. But Fox angrily rejected the mayor's suggestion and vowed that he would not ask for Hoyack's resignation.

In a statement released Tuesday, Cisneros praised Hoyack's decision.

"By his unselfish action... Frank Hoyack has shown that he is the quality individual we all know him to be," Cisneros said.

Bugging investigation to continue

AUSTIN — Former Gov. Bill Clements says "somebody misbehaved," but a U.S. Attorney says it apparently wasn't anybody with either Clements' or Gov. Mark White's campaign staff.

"Right at this time we have no reason to believe that one of Mark White's or Bill Clements' campaign staff was involved in the bugging of former Gov. Clements' campaign headquarters," Helen Eversburg, U.S. attorney in San Antonio, said Tuesday.

"But the investigation is continuing," she added. "That is all I can say right now."

Clements, meanwhile, said that "Somebody has misbehaved. I haven't the slightest idea who it was and I know nothing about the details."

Asked if he would seek prosecution, he said, "I don't think it makes any difference what I suggest. They have violated federal laws and a federal grand jury will take whatever action they deem appropriate. I don't have anything to do with it one way or another."

And White would say only that "I know our campaign wasn't involved in it."

FBI officials have said they are concentrating their investigation on the private security company hired to sweep the offices of Clements chief consultant Karl Rove.

Booby trap stabs San Angelo man

SAN ANGELO — A real estate broker says he wants to see the prosecution of whoever is responsible for setting a booby trap that stabbed him in the chest when he entered a carport door.

Jesse Kennemer, 66, suffered a 2-inch deep stab wound to the upper right chest Tuesday when he was struck by one of two butcher knives mounted to a sawed-off crutch that fell from the ceiling when he opened a carport door, authorities said.

Kennemer was treated at the Shannon West Texas Memorial Hospital emergency room and released.

Although he was reluctant to discuss the incident for fear of harming the police investigation, Kennemer said he "definitely wants the person responsible for the trap to be prosecuted."

"One of the knives hit me in the chest," he said. He said he was glad his wife wasn't with him because "she could have been hit in the face."

Kennemer said he owns the home, which is rented through the Public Housing Authority. He said he went there to check the condition of some furniture that was damaged from a leaking roof.

Police questioned a possible suspect but no charges had been filed by late Tuesday night.

Detective Barry Alwine told the San Angelo Standard-Times the knives, each about 6-inches long, were placed in the lower part of the crutch and braced with a brick.

Alwine said he was unsure why the door was booby trapped. "There's some furnishings in the house but nothing having a high value," he said.

Banks post lower loss than nation

AUSTIN — According to a new study released by Sheshunoff Ratings Services, Texas banks posted considerably greater losses than banks nationwide during the first half of this year.

Feeling the impact of falling oil prices and a slump in commercial real estate, the state's 1,957 banks reported combined first-half losses of $247.4 million. In the first half of 1985, Texas banks reported earnings of $652.2 million, said

Sheshunoff, which rates banks and savings institutions.

During the same period, earnings of the nation's 14,248 banks fell 2.6 percent, from $9.27 billion to $9.03 billion.

Non-performing loans made up 4.5 percent of total loans by Texas banks during the first half. Such loans for banks nationwide represented approximately 2.9 percent of total first-half loans, Sheshunoff said.

Three killed in head-on collision

MARLIN — Two men and a woman, all of Fort Worth, were killed in a head-on collision about 8:45 p.m. Tuesday 14 miles south of Marlin on Highway 6, officials said.

Robert Mabry, no age available, and his wife, Portis Mabry, 62, were in a light-colored Ford that collided with a pickup truck driven by Christopher Dickson, 24, Trooper Don Adams of the Department of Public Safety said.

The DPS had not been able to determine which car was going in which direction or in which lane the collision occurred.

The three were pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace E.R. Hardy shortly after 9 p.m.

Housemother has over 100 'sons'

By CHERYL COGGINS FRINK

Austin American-Statesman AUSTIN (AP) — Her second daughter was born 17 years after the first. Then she waited 17 more years. This time she got boys. More than 100 boys, all of them young and all of them hungry.

"I cook for about 150," says Mrs. Camillus "Shelly" Angel, housemother at the Zeta Beta Tau fraternity near the University of Texas campus.

"Only about 120 come, but there is never much food left over. Some boys eat for three," says Mrs. Angel, one of 10 women who serve as housemothers for the 31 UT fraternities.

Angel, which is what her boys call her, moved into the ZBT house about four years ago. Since then she has learned a few things about boys that she might have missed while raising her own two daughters.

First, there's the tuna salad conundrum. "Everybody's mother makes it different," says Mrs. Angel, who has been a widow for almost 10 years.

So at the ZBT house, which has about 130 members and more than 50 pledges this fall, you'll find at least four different kinds of tuna salad involving two different kinds of tuna. "Let's see, there's tuna with pickle relish and tuna without, tuna with eggs and tuna without, tuna with onion and tuna without," says Mrs. Angel. "And we use both albacore and chunk light tuna."

Then there's the matter of ketchup. Lots of ketchup needed over on fraternity row, Mrs. Angel has discovered. "Oh God, they live in ketchup," she says.

But then there are the sweeter lessons, those lessons known by heart by all mothers of young boys everywhere.

"There is something special about boys. I must say that," Mrs. Angel says. "Girls wouldn't come up and give you a hug or a kiss and say, 'Oh, that supper was awesome. Oh, that grilled chicken, that deli today, it was awesome.' I thought awesome finished at 16, but they're still using awesome."

Tuna salad and buckets of ketchup aside, there is a more serious aspect to this housemother business. Mrs. Angel thinks her young men are better behaved simply because she's around.

"Those fraternities that have housemothers don't get into trouble, because as wild as they (fraternity members) might get or horsing around, you walk through, and that dampens it," Mrs. Angel says.

"I say, 'Would you do that in front of your mother?' They at least get practice saying, 'I'm sorry,'" Mrs. Angel says.

Eric Webber, director of the UT Interfraternity Council, agrees that housemothers generally have a positive effect on fraternity members. "Most of the time, they are a little better behaved. If there is a housemother, it kind of keeps down too much outrageous or boisterous behavior, especially at mealtime," he says.

"I would like to see more of them. I think it's a good influence on the guys," he says. "I'm not saying they're ill-behaved... but anyway they are a little better behaved, I'm for it."

While the housemother duties focus on food preparation and service, the job also involves a wide range of complex chores ranging from hiring and firing housekeeping help to listening to the woes of lovesick college freshmen. The variety of tasks involved prompted the University of Missouri to establish a school for housemothers 10 years ago, a school that Angel and Delta Upsilon housemother Frances Bishop have attended.

The weeklong seminar has attracted about 1,000 housemothers over the past decade, according to Cathy Scroggs, assistant director of residential life at the University of Missouri.

The house director seminar includes courses on management techniques, human sexuality, alcohol and drug abuse, crime prevention, personal safety and a number of other topics that relate to the job. Over the years the context of the courses has shifted to keep up with the changing interests of college students, Ms. Scroggs says.

Mrs. Camillus "Shelly" Angel, housemother at the Zeta Beta Tau fraternity near the University of Texas campus poses with some of the members of the fraternity. "I cook for about 150. Only about 120 come, but there is never much food left over. Some boys eat for three," says Mrs. Angel.

"Ten years ago when you were talking about drugs, you talked about marijuana. Now we're talking about hallucinogens, cocaine, a little marijuana and a lot of alcohol," Ms. Scroggs says.

Sometimes the discussions are eye-openers. "It was the first time I ever smelled marijuana," Mrs. Bishop says of the discussion on drug abuse. "If I had smelled it before, I didn't know."

Although she enjoyed attending the Missouri school for house directors, Mrs. Bishop thinks good housemothering basically is born of good mothering. "I really feel that anyone who has been a homemaker and a mother could be a housemother," she says.

You just need to think in terms of feeding 40 instead of four, Mrs. Bishop says. You need to be able to put up with the domestic, scholastic and emotional ruckus of 18-year-old males. And you need to be broad-minded.

"They're very open with me. Sometimes I think it's for shock purposes to see just how far they can go," says Mrs. Bishop, who, like Mrs. Angel, has two grown daughters.

"But they come in with domestic problems they have at home, and we've talked about them. One of my warmest experiences was with a young man who came from a very cold family. They showed no affection to one another, and I made him promise me that when he went home at Christmas time and walked in the door, that he would go up and kiss his mother and tell her he loved her."

"He did it... And it sort of made the turnaround in his family," Mrs. Bishop says. "Those are the kinds of things that money couldn't ever buy, those warm feelings."

Decorating faces at library

One of the best parts of Halloween for kids is being able to dress up in a costume, says Donna Jackson, children's librarian at the Howard County Library. Deciding whether to be a clown, witch or pirate is an important part of the big event.

The library will be adding to the festivities again this year with its annual face decorating program. Because of the big response last year, participation will be limited to 50 children. Parents may call the library, 267-5295, between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. to register their children for the program.

Faces will be decorated from 3 to 5 p.m. Friday. The make-up used will be removable with soap and water and alcohol.

Because of the warnings on the make-up about possible allergic reactions, organizers are requesting that a permission form be signed by a parent, available at the library.

Steers march to accolades

ODESSA — Big Spring Steer Marching Band members are relishing a "first ever" accomplishment — they were certified Saturday to proceed to area competition.

Certification as one of the top 4-A bands in the regional competition at Ratliff Stadium means the Steer Marching Band will return next Saturday to compete with other select 4-A bands.

Two 4-A bands at the November 1 competition will be selected to advance to state competition, in Austin Nov. 10.

Big Spring band director Ricky Mitchell was obviously pleased with the performance of his band Saturday, which he said was its first such certification.

All three judges awarded the local band superior ratings, he said.

Only Big Spring and Pecos bands were certified by the Saturday competition among 4-A entrants. Others competing were Andrews, Ft. Stockton and Monahans.

Mitchell is in his third year as director.

Big Spring will compete against certified bands from the Lubbock and El Paso regions next Saturday, Mitchell said. The time of that performance will be announced Wednesday.

The band performed three selections Saturday: Shine Down, Parade of the Wooden Soldiers, and Battle Hymn.

SWCID Classics full of school spirit

Presidential Classics for SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf (SWCID) for the 1986-'87 year are Lisa Russ, Wendi Lindsey and Kim Hawkins.

Russ, 21, of Altamonte Spring, Fla. is a sophomore majoring in general business/word processing. She enjoys traveling, meeting people, reading and watching "real stories on TV." She likes being a classic because, "it shows enthusiasm about SWCID. And, I get to associate with my instructors. We're a model to the students."

Twenty-one-year-old Lindsey, of Amarillo, is a sophomore who is majoring in general business/word processing. Hobbies include sewing, riding bikes, cooking, typing and traveling. She likes being a classic because "it shows school spirit."

Hawkins, 20, is a sophomore majoring in general business. Dancing, jogging, swimming and reading books are her hobbies. She enjoys being a classic because she likes "to meet new people and I'm getting experience for the future — to cooperate with people. It helps me to be able to give speeches."

They will be official hostesses for SWCID's college functions, represent the college in community events and on appropriate out-of-town trips, conduct tours of the campus and serve as the president's emissary.

Other duties will be to assist in recruiting students both official-

Are granola snacks better than cookies

By NAOMI HUNT

County Extension Agent Granola snacks are often advertised as a "healthy" alternative to cookies for the kids' lunch boxes or after school snacks.

According to a report of the American Council on Science and Health, however, there isn't much difference between commercial granola snacks and store-bought cookies.

Their analysis showed that granola snacks contain 110 to 150 calories per serving, depending on added ingredients such as dried fruits, nuts and chocolate. Two oatmeal, chocolate chip or sugar cookies contain between 120 and 130 calories.

The granola snacks provide 2 grams of protein, 5 grams of fat and 20 grams of carbohydrate. The cookies have 1 gram of protein, 5 or 6 grams of fat and 16 to 18 grams of carbohydrate.

Both the granola snacks and the cookies are relatively high in sugar, fat and calories. Both supply about equal amounts of vitamins and minerals.

When it comes to sodium, granola snacks vary widely, and some approach the amount of sodium in corn chips or potato chips. But the nuts, dried fruits and whole grains which are usually found in greater amounts in granola snacks than cookies, are a good source of dietary fiber.

Cookies usually contain both vegetable and animal fats, and have more cholesterol as a result. Granola snacks are low in cholesterol because they are made with vegetable oils.

It is difficult to say which is the better choice. Both snacks provide comparable amounts of carbohydrate, fat and energy. The granola snack has a little less cholesterol and a little more fiber, but it may also be high in salt. So

Cheri Wyrick, a junior at Big Spring High School proves that Daisy Mae does exist outside the world of comics.

HALLOWEEN

Robert Gerstenberger, a sophomore at Forsan High School sports a creature mask that can cover the entire head.

By CARLEEN EVERETT

Friday is Halloween. Have you decided what you're going to be this year?

"Girls like to be sexy as possible, but the guys want to look as horrible as possible," says Jason Campbell, owner of Stagecoach Gifts.

Some of the most popular costumes this year are Ninjas and sexywitches, Campbell added.

If you want to be sexy, try out a flapper or a harem outfit. Or how about going as Daisy Mae?

Guys can be scary by just throwing a black cape over their street clothes and putting on a horrid mask.

Or if you really want to be different, you can make your own. If the young ones in your family haven't decided on a Halloween mask yet, you might consider trying out an idea from the makers of Karo syrup: a do-it-yourself, painted-on mask that is safe and easy to make.

In an article written by Rhonda Hoeckly of Harte Hanks News Service, she explains who to make a do-it-yourself mask.

The mask calls for things that you probably already have in your cupboards — white facial tissues, cornstarch, flour, food coloring, light corn syrup, and cotton swabs or a small paint brush.

To make the paint, mix 3 tablespoons cornstarch with 1 tablespoon flour. Gradually stir in ¼ cup light corn syrup and ¼ cup water until smooth. Pour ¼ cup of the mixture into each of four small bowls or paper cups. Color one batch with red food coloring, one with green and one with blue, leaving one batch untinted.

Before putting on the mask, make sure the face is clean. Then, starting with the forehead and using a cotton swab or paint brush, apply a generous amount of the untinted mixture. Carefully place a strip of single-ply tissue over the painted area. Pat firmly. Then brush on additional untinted mixture to cover any dry areas on the tissue. Continue painting the face and putting the tissue on, one area at a time. Do NOT paint eyelids or area around eyes. Let dry about 15 minutes. Paint on desired design with the colored mixture. This "paint" is easily removed by peeling off the tissue and using soapy water to wash the face.

The painted-on mask won't obscure the child's vision, and also can stimulate some creativity. It is also easy enough that the you and your children can practice a few masks before the day of the Scary Event.

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY REVIEW

Customer service is main concern at Carroll Coates'

Selling cars and coming away with satisfied customers is the main concern at Carroll Coates' Auto Sales, says General Manager V.C. Neighbors.

The firm is an automobile financing outlet and a growing business. It offers a selection of used cars and motorcycles and finances its cars.

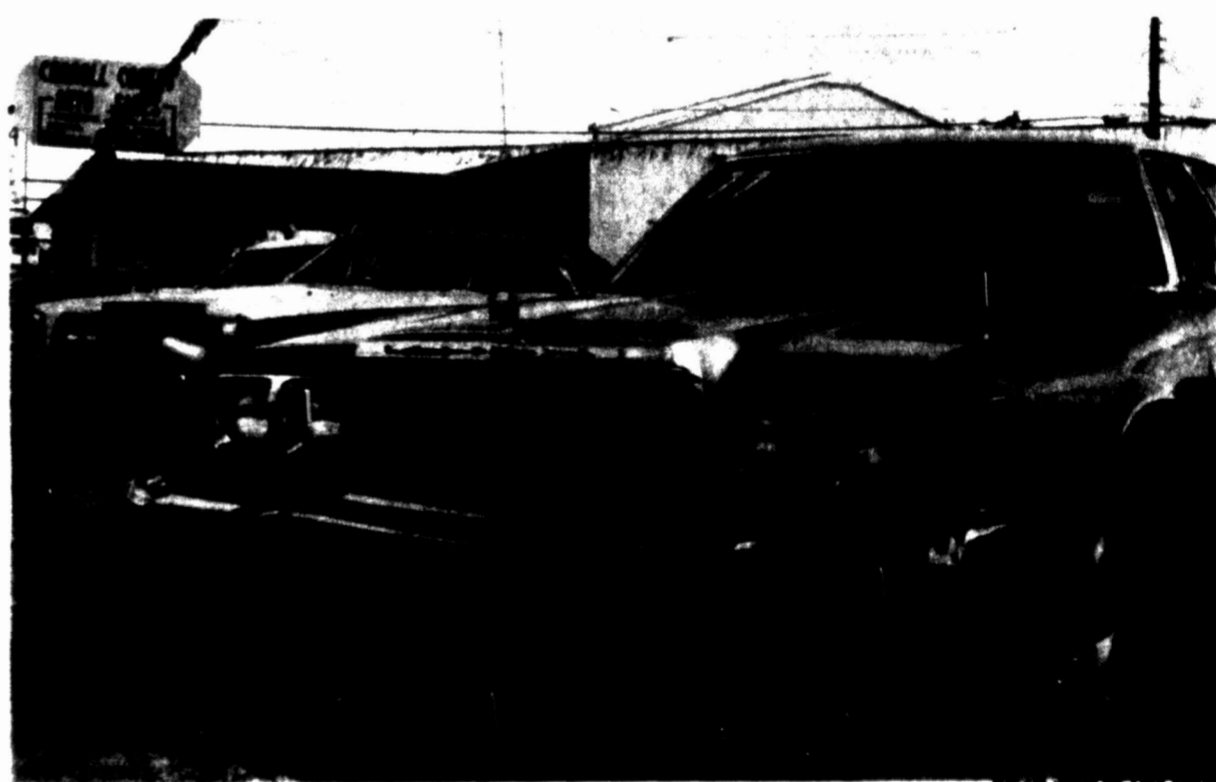

Carroll Coates' Auto Sales achieves in an honest relationship with its customers. The salespeople inform customers of all they know about a car so the customer knows as much about the car as the firm does when they leave.

Customers may receive on-the-spot financing with no credit checks. Special prices are given for cash sales.

When shopping for a used car or motorcycle, visit the dealership at 1101 W. 4th or at its two locations in San Angelo. The local dealership's hours are from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday.
