Pledging allegiance

Political records of incumbent Larry Don Shaw and challenger John R. Anderson are focal points in a hotly-contested state representative race.

Howard County residents will be among voters from 13 counties who in Tuesday's general election.

Both men spoke bitterly of recent campaign tactics that attack the integrity and character of each. They are in hot pursuit of the District 69 position that encompasses about 22,000 square miles of rural West Texas.

"I've been accused of being a Nazi," Anderson said, referring to a telephone campaign conducted by Shaw's reelection committee.

The 57-year-old Borden County rancher espouses a conservative approach in spending, voting and negotiating. He accused Shaw of blowing out-of-proportion an issue concerning his 1982 dealings with the Texas Democratic Party headed by 1980 independent presidential candidate Lyndon LaRouche.

Shaw denied allegations of character assassination conducted by his phone bank.

The former Howard County finance chairman for Barry Goldwater's 1964 presidential campaign said his dealings with the Texas Democratic Party pertained only to West Texas water issues. He is a past Borden County GOP chairman.

'We were made aware very early by his (Shaw's) own people that he would make an issue of the LaRouche matter," Anderson said.

"I frankly wouldn't call it mudslinging." Shaw said about targeting attention to Anderson's 1982 involvement with the Texas Democratic Party and his 1960 candidacy for Congress as a member of the short-lived Constitution

'He (Anderson) calls it mudslinging, but most would call it his past record," said the incumbent who was recently appointed to the House Appropriations Committee by Speaker of the House Gib Lewis.

JOHN R. ANDERSON ... accused of being Nazi

The former president of the Borden County School Board, Anderson said he has directed his campaign "to speak to the issues and point out his (Shaw's) liberal voting records. I have never tried to attack his character, nor his family's character."

Shaw criticized letters sent to district voters on behalf of Anderson that states the 33-year-old Howard County native has been misleading in his campaign when he refers to "my family and I," when in fact, Shaw is divorced and Shaw, one of five members of the House General Investigation Committee that has subpoena power, commends Anderson's work on the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Steering Committee lobbying to bring the Super-Conducting Super Collider project to this area.

"Diversification of our economy in West Texas is a bi-partisan concern," he said.

Anderson said he has been very involved with his work on the steering committee and efforts to help diversify industry in West Texas

... current defender

"We can't depend on oil and agriculture to carry us," Anderson

He said the most pressing issue before the House is "getting state spending in line with income.

Shaw said his efforts in behalf of possibly locating the superconductor facility near Garden City included submitting local public relations coordinator Johnnie Lou Avery's name to Gov. Mark White who recently appointed her to a nine-person task force. The committee is attempting to persuade federal officials to locate the superconductor facility in Texas, should it become a reality.

The incumbent helped form and worked with a National Laboratory Research Committee that negotiated with state delegates in Washington for support of the superconductor facility to be located in Texas

"I have delivered in my promise to represent persons in my district and I've succeeded," Shaw said.

Shaw also said he was instrumental in the successful negotiation for a recent $650,000 state funding allocation to repair that would help "broaden the tax local flood damage incurred from torrential summer rains.

State races.

Also on the ballot is Libertarian candidate Mike Stephens, a Dallas computer systems analyst.

In the lieutenant governor's race, Democrat Bill Hobby, who has held the post since 1972, faces Austin business consultant David Davidson, a Republican, and Libertarian candidate Bill Howell, a Dallas bookkeeper.

In the land commissioner's race, Democrat Garry Mauro is worried that Republican M.D. Anderson Jr.'s name has too familiar a ring to it - namely, the M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston.

Mauro, a one-term incumbent. also faces Libertarian Honey Sue Agriculture commissioner Jim Hightower, a self-styled populist, faces Republican cattleman Bill Powers of Austin, executive vice president of the Texas Poultry Federation, and Libertarian candidate Rebecca Reed, a student at the University of Texas at San Antonio.

Three men are vying for the open seat on the Texas Railroad Commission, a spot vacated by Buddy Temple, who resigned in March.

State Sen. John Sharp, D-Victoria, and state Rep. Milton Fox, R-Houston, a 14-year veteran of the House, both describe themselves as convervatives and support an oil import fee.

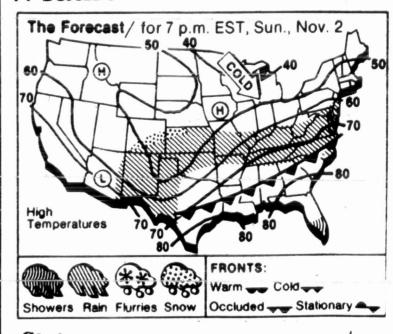

Libertarian candidate Chloe "Jack" Daniel of Farmers Branch is the third candidate seeking the six-year term on the commission, which regulates trucking, oil and gas and railroads.

State treasurer Ann Richards and comptroller Bob Bullock, both Democrats, drew token opposition from Libertarian candidates. Ms. Richards faces Robert Reid of Fort Worth and Bullock is opposed by George Meeks of San Antonio.

Possibly the hottest state Senate race is the one between Judy Zaffirini of Laredo, vice chairwoman of the state Democratic Party, and Republican Bennie Bock of New Braunfels, a former Democrat. They are vying for the seat vacated by state Sen. John Traeger, D Seguin, who retired.

Philippines Rebels propose cease-fire

MANILA, Philippines — Communist rebels proposed Saturday that a 100-day cease-fire be observed beginning Dec. 10 and that peace talks be resumed. A senior government official welcomed the proposal but said it

"We ... dare to hope that, for the first time in many many years, the guns will be stilled on both sides this Christmas and New Year," the National Democratic Front, a Communist-dominated umbrella group, said in a statement distributed to reporters at a Manila safe

The front, which has represented the rebel New Peoples Army at peace talks with the government, said its negotiators met Saturday with a government panel to offer the proposal and five "talking points" to safeguard the accord

The five points included disbanding militia and regular military units that have been accused of human rights abuses; disarming private armies used by the government to help fight the Communists; and clearly defining what acts would constitute cease-fire violations.

There was no official response from President Corazon Aquino's government.

Her executive secretary, Joker Arroyo, said the offer was "a welcome development" but that the five points, which he described as conditions, would have to be studied carefully.

Arroyo said Mrs. Aquino was expected to receive the proposal Monday when she meets government negotiator Teofisto Guingona.

Satur Ocampo, a New Democratic Front negotiator, said the five points were not conditions for a cease-fire and could be discussed before or after the fighting "They can be taken care of in the process of implementing a cease-fire," Ocampo said. "So instead of putting them as preconditions to the signing of a ceasefire agreement, we incorporated them in the process of

The front said in its statement that the cease-fire could go into effect by Dec. 10, the International Human Rights Day, and could be extended beyond 100

Rebels rejected a government cease-fire offer this summer, saying it lacked adequate safeguards. The front announced a counterproposal in September but refrained from formally presenting it to the government after the army arrested alleged Communist chief Rodolfo Salas on Sept. 29.

Saturday's meeting was the first between rebel and government negotiators since Oct. 18 and only the second since the arrest of Salas, who remains jailed and faces arraignment Nov. 12 on charges of rebellion.

BEIRUT, Lebanon - Shiite Moslem and Palestinian militiamen fought Saturday with rockets and artillery in densely populated suburbs of west Beirut, and police said five people were killed and 20 wounded.

Hasenfus trial continues

MANAGUA, Nicaragua - Captured American Eugene Hasenfus listened quietly Saturday as a Nicaraguan soldier told a special Sandinista tribunal how he shot down Hasenfus' cargo plane last month laden with arms for the Contra rebels.

Hasenfus, making his second court appearance in two days, intently followed the testimony of 19-year-old Pvt. Jose Fernando Canales Aleman as it was whispered to him by an interpreter.

He appeared more relaxed than he had Friday, when the tribunal asked him to make a statement and he refused.

His lawyer, Enrique Sotelo Borgen, said Hasenfus had been called to appear in court again Sunday.

Opinion

Proposition 2 is a bad move

Four propositions to amend the state's constitution come before the voters on Tuesday, and all but one of them should be passed

Only the third and fourth propositions are explained with realative clarity as they appear on the ballot. The first and second are more difficult to understand from the single statement listed for each.

The first amendment simply will legalize what the Legislature already is doing, because it merely transfers a taxing responsibility from one agency to another.

The constitution now requires the comptroller to apportion the property taxes on railroad rolling stock, based on the number of miles of track in each county.

The Legislature, however, assigned the same duty to the State Property Tax Board when the Property Tax Code-was adopted. The amendment, then, alters the constitution to provide for this change in procedure.

We agree with the change outlined in Proposition 1.

Proposition 2, however, is quite misleading in the way it is stated. It indicates both houses of the Legislature will be required to do something new by including rules that each bill will contain a title that expresses the bill's subject.

Actually, the constitution already requires that the subject of a bill must be reflected completely in its title or subject. But Proposition 2 would eliminate this requirement from the constitution and relegate tiles to the whimsical changing of procedural rules by each house.

In the past, the courts have declared some laws invalid because the bills were not adequately captioned or titled. That would not have happened, however, if the legislators did their job properly when they titled or captioned the bill.

As now worded, the constitution provides a judicial check and balance to help keep legislators from pulling tricks on the public and other lawmakers. That's because the current wording helps prevent lawmakers from using titles to disguise the intents of a bill and from adding riders or issues not related to the main thrust of the bill.

The change would allow legislators to put deceptive titles on bills, and we think the voters should reject Proposition 2.

Proposition 3 is a procketbook issue for local governmental agencies, and the proposal is designed to provide the opportunity to save tax money on insurance premiums.

The amendment will permit counties and other political subdivisions, such as cities and school districts, to join mutual insurance companies — an action banned by a 110-year-old provision in the constitution.

The ban originally was enacted to keep governmental units from falling into debt by becoming stockholders subject to

Although mutual insurance companies recognize their subscribers as stockholders, they have a history that shows a distinct lack of assessments

The amendment will provide for a more competitive atmosphere in the Texas insurance industry as well as the potential for local governments to save on insurance premiums.

It, too, is a change worth voter support.

Proposition 4, if approved, will allow branch banking within the same county of the principal bank building.

The change should improve customer convenience and create a more competitive banking system because savings and loan associations already are allowed to have branch We believe branch banking is long overdue for Texas and that the amendment's one major drawback is its failure to provide for branch banking in neighboring, low-populated counties that lack sufficient banking services.

I think it is unfair for the on Wednesday — that the official trick-or-treat time would be Saturday, between 5:30 and 7:30 p.m., I would appreciate an explanation.

Not only was it announced too late for many people to change their plans, it could certainly interfere with the work schedule of some parents planning to take their children trick-or-treating on Hallo-

I, for one, had to put in my request for that day off three weeks mayor to announce a change as late as he did and without an explanation.

If the reason for this change was Friday's football game in Big Spring, why couldn't the football game be moved to Saturday night instead?

Candidates make poor role models

By JIM DAVIS Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - Here are some random and rambling observations about the 1986 general election:

Regardless of who wins the governor's seat, Texas parents may use Gov. Mark White and Bill Clements as role models to their children on how NOT to act.

Austin bureau reporter Scott Rothschild found one of the better election items right in his own neighborhood. While working on the car recently, he overheard four children as they played football in a yard across the street.

Boys being boys, three of the 10-to 12-year-olds ganged up on one member, heaping upon him some adolescent obscenities, Rothschild reports.

Hearing the comments, a mother of one of the boys began scolding the children. "I've heard a lot of nasty talk here. I thought you boys liked each other," she said. "It's not like you're Mr. White and Mr.

Richard Denning, the Wells Center's technical director for the past two years, hopes to give the studio a higher profile, complete some renovations and get it into full service to musicians on and off campus by Tarleton's spring semester.

The studio houses more than $100,000 in professional equipment. In the main studio, one of four, as many as 12 microphones placed virtually anywhere in the building can be recorded directly on tape. Indirectly, sounds from hundreds of microphones can be recorded on

Among the studio's assets are a $16,000 Neotek mixing board, and three smaller mixing boards. It also has a $6,000 Sequential Circuits "Prophet Five" synthesizer, with a computerized keyboard that can imitate almost any sound.

Despite the elaborate set-up, assistant technicians Carl Nowotny and Grantlan Goodman decided the studio needed some changes to make it more functional.

Brook had accoustically designed the smaller studio — formerly used to record the choir — for a pleasant sound atmosphere. Nowotny and Goodman felt the accoustics should be put to wider use, especially since the main studio had the power to do everything the choir studio could at the flip of a few switches. All the equipment was taken out of the smaller room and microphones were set up in the space. The result "sounds professional," the technicians said.

Goodman, who has a bachelor's degree in music and is music minister at Harvey Baptist Church, says he now he feels more comfortable on both sides of the microphone in the Wells Center studio.

Nowotny, an engineer with San Antonio's "Positive Sound" before coming to Tarleton, says his main concern was that the studio be functional and kept working.

Currently, any musician can have a shot at the studio for $25 an hour, plus technician fees and other expenses. The base price of $25 an hour will remain the same when the renovations are finished. Denning said. But he said the university hasn't set any certain policy about other expenses, which he hopes will be set by next semester.

Frugal woman leaves fortune for the people

By SHARON COHEN Associated Press Writer

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Emma Howe loved to take friends to lunch but never left more than a $1 tip. She enjoyed a day at the races, but always made small wagers. And she usually rode the bus, rarely splurging on a taxi.

Worth millions, Emma Howe neither lived like a wealthy woman nor acted like one. She was a woman of many contradictions. Her legacy may be her biggest.

Twenty-seven months after her death, Emma Howe lives on — with tremendous generosity. She left the people of Minnesota what now amounts to $31 million.

This month, the Emma B. Howe Memorial Foundation, set up in December, distributed its first grants, nearly $1 million, to 37 organizations that serve the poor and minorities, women and children, the handicapped and a legacy to the community," said dependent woman she had been for Sioux Falls, S.D., was at Emma's Marion Etzwiler, executive director of the Minneapolis Foundation, which manages the assets of the Nearly 240 proposals were reviewed before the first recipients of Emma's largess were chosen. Another $1 million will be distributed in March; after that, $1.3 million to $1.5 million a year.

Emma's wealth came from hard work and good luck, a case of being in the right place at the right time. She wasn't an entrepreneur. She didn't run a business. But she invested wisely and held on to her

And what stock it was: more than 700,000 shares (when Emma's estate was distributed) in a check printing company she helped start during World War I. Today, Deluxe Check Printers Inc. is the nation's largest. It prints more than half the checks Americans use.

When Emma Howe died July 9, most of her 94 years. She was frail and feeble.

The woman who once loved to dance needed a wheelchair to move around. And the woman who had regaled friends with witty stories was sometimes unable to recall visitors' names or faces Emma's funeral was at St. Paul's American Lutheran Church, about a mile from the modest twostory frame house she had lived in for decades.

Emma had a special bond with the church. St. Paul's was built in 1891, a year after she was born Emma Sander in Barron, Wis. And like Emma, who as a child had seen her family home destroyed by fire, the church in this working-class community had seen hard times

St. Paul's was old and needed repairs. And Emma, who was a close friend of John Quello, pastor at the time, donated thousands to funeral and fulfilled a promise made to her. He sang her favorite hymn, "How Great Thou Art."

It was his tribute to a friend. Unknown to many who gathered that day, Emma already had made plans for her own tribute to Minnesota.

Emma, twice widowed, designated in her will that more than 60 percent of her estate be given to charity. Relatives shared most of the rest.

It was the act of a woman who, despite her riches, never acknowledged she was wealthy and didn't even have a checking account until late in life.

"If you told her she was a millionaire, she'd laugh," said Richard Hanson, a retired banker and president of Emma's foundation. "You didn't make any points by telling her."

ple even suggested it. Once, friends say, her butcher said as she entered his shop, "Here comes the rich lady." Emma said she'd never stepped foot in there again.

Emma's wealth was something of a family affair. She is believed to have been one of the first three Deluxe employees. The others were two sisters. And the man who founded the company eventually became a brother-in-law

Emma was a proofreader. Some speculate the Sander sisters often were paid with stock.

Today, Deluxe, which started out in a St. Paul bank building, has 12,669 employees and 62 plants.

Emma Howe was its largest individual shareholder. Her wealth continued to grow after her death. In the last 18 months, Deluxe stock has split twice. The shares set aside for the foundation are worth about $31 million, according to fund Emma would never part with them. "The stock was like the family farm," said Hanson, who served as Emma's adviser. "You don't sell the farm.

Emma's conservative style overlapped into her personal life. Although she was fastidious about her appearance and always had her hair done, even at the nursing home, friends say she owned only half a dozen dresses. She did,

Congress continues grocery business

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one in a series of stories examining what the 99th Congress did — and did not

By JIM DRINKARD

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - A million families of military reservists could begin saving money on their grocery bills this year because of legislation passed by Congress that will let them stretch out their shopping days at commissaries.

A section inserted into the 1987 defense bill by Sen. J. James Exon, D-Neb., and Rep. Sonny Montgomery, D-Miss., would give active reserve members the right to use military grocery stores for a limited number of days year-round instead of just during their twoweek training period each summer.

"The existing rule is not much of a benefit," argues Exon, saying that National Guard and reserve chance to use commissaries while on training.

The answer, a move pushed by the Reserve Officers Association, a lobbying group based on Capitol Hill, was to allow reservists to make one trip to the commissary would rank among the top 10 U.S.

for each day of training — typically 14 days a year. The visits may be made any time during the year.

Grocery prices at commissaries run about 25 percent less than the prices at commercial supermarkets because the government sells the items at cost.

"It still is a meaningful benefit in terms of saving you bucks," says Jeff Subko, an aide to Exon. "And it will help the reserves in retaining way of doing something to increase retention.

The commercial grocery industry, which always has cast a wary eye on the growing compersonnel frequently don't have the missary system, says the move has the potential to increase commissaries' business significantly and could rob them of as much as $1.5 billion in annual business.

grocery chains, the industry says. In a study conducted by the Pentagon, reservists granted the privilege on a test basis spent an average of $140 per trip on groceries, noted Lars Peterson, a spokesman for the Food Marketing Institute, which represents retail and wholesale grocers.

"The thing that's really outrageous about this is that here, with Gramm-Rudman (the deficitpeople. This is the least expensive reduction law) and the emphasis on finding budget savings, Congress just gave into this special interest," Peterson said.

Peterson said the cost of running all of the Pentagon's commissaries worldwide in the current fiscal year will be $668 million, of which $404 million goes for domestic operations. The Pentagon, which opposed the new provision, said it Taken together, the military could cost an additional $160

"It's a little odd that with the retail industry as competitive as it is, that the government sees fit to spend taxpayers' money to be in the grocery business," said Peterson. "This is a very sacred cow and enjoys a lot of sympathy in Congress.

It is unclear just how the Pentagon will run the new program. but it is likely that reservists will receive some sort of tickets along with their pay that entitle them to admission to commissaries, similar to the controls on current use of exchanges — the military equivalent of department stores by reserve personnel.

Col. Jim Rodenberg, legislative counsel for the Reserve Officers Association, said grocers overreacted.

"They've grossly exaggerated how much it will be used," Rodenberg said. "(Reservists) aren't going to flock to the commissary" because many of them aren't close enough to one to make it convenient.

"But we are part of the total force, so we should have this benefit that's been a traditional part of the military," he said.

Former Cowboy owner's garage sale disappointing

DALLAS - Hundreds of bargain empire collapsed, leaving him with and left. hunters and curiosity seekers eagerly forked over $10 to gain admission to a garage sale at the home of former Dallas Cowboys owner Clint Murchison Jr.

But once on the grounds of the estate, the shoppers and gawkers, expecting to find a millionaire's belongings, found little more than discarded linens, records, books and household goods.

Murchison filed for protection from his creditors in federal bankruptcy court after his business debts estimated at nearly $200 million.

The sale followed a private auction last week in which Murchison family belongings — including fur coats, furniture, art, china and Dallas Cowboys memorabilia were put on the block.

Those attending the garage sale Friday didn't see much but the remnants, and dozens of people angrily demanded and received refunds on the admission fee. Scores more forfeited their money

"It was just old, old junk," a woman exiting the sale said. "Old they were."

John R. Anderson Will Be An Effective State Representative For Our District

Democrats, Republicans & Independents Strongly Supporting John Anderson

Anderson Knocks On Over 10,000 Doors

John Anderson has gone directly to the people in his campaign for State Representative. He has been seeking their ideas and listening to their concerns.

"Running for public office is challenging because it requires getting out and meeting lots of people every day," Anderson said. "After you've met and talked with several hundred people in a day, you really know what's on their minds.'

For the past six months, Anderson has dedicated himself to meeting as many people as possible in this district. By any standards, that dedication has been extraordinary. He has been to some $10,\!000$ homes, stores and meeting halls, and up and down many sidewalks.

As a citizen and voter himself, Anderson believes votes must be earned, and that people must never be taken for granted. The last poll taken showed that Democrats, Republicans and Independents are strongly supporting Anderson.

Sunstar Raceways — fact or reality?

By EDDIE CURRAN Staff Writer

If Columbus had paid attention to those who told him it was impossible, and our ancestors had stayed put, you and I might very well be saying "Bonjour" instead of

But Columbus, like many dreamers since, ignored the impossibility of his dream.

In Big Spring there's a small group of dreamers facing odds in some ways as overwhelming as Columbus' flat world. You see,these people want to build a $6 million racing complex at the old Howard County Airport on Snyder Highway.

Jimmie and Dottie Leffler, Big Spring residents since 1959, conceived the idea 18 months ago, and have since made some converts, most notably Charles Hays.

Hays, who was president of Howard College from 1974-84, now owns Big Spring Automotive and has taken administrative charge of the project.

In the past year, Hays and the Lefflers have spent countless hours making plans, figuring costs and planning strategy. The proposed facility includes a drag boat strip, a drag car strip, an oval track of dirt and asphalt, a truck and tractor pull area inside the oval, and a recreational vehicle parking lot.

The situation at present is this: Sunstar Raceways, as it would be called, will cost approximately $5 million to build and require $1 million for start up and operating

Local businesswoman Johnnie Lou Avery has contacted several possible investors, Dottie Leffler said. Avery reported that the investors are interested solely in making money — they won't be investing to do Big Spring any favors. She said the investors would consider investment only after seeing an impartial feasibility study.

The first stage of the two-part feasibility study will cost $6,000. the organizers said. Hays and the Lefflers have conducted several meetings in the past three weeks at the Park Inn in an effort to educate the public and to raise money for the feasibility study. Dottie Leffler said Thursday night that $1,500 has been collected and another $1,500 has been pledged.

Dottie Leffler, who works as a secretary for the city, and her husband, who owns J&D's Garage, have said they will borrow the difference if they can't raise it.

"Big Spring needs a shot in the arm and we want to let people know the raceway is going to be here one way or another," Dottie Leffler said at a meeting Oct. 23. She said she hopes to break ground by the beginning of the year.

Hays, at a meeting Tuesday night, cited many reasons Sunstar Raceways would be profitable both for investors and Big Spring. As an example, Hays said 40,000 people spent the past weekend at a national drag racing event at the new Texas Motorplex drag raceway in

'We don't believe it's feasible for us to say 40,000 will be in Big Spring, because where would we put them? But it's not unreal to say in excess of 10,000. If you figure 700 cars, times four crewmen, that's 2,800, and some are going to bring their wife and kids. That's still a lot of people even if nobody comes to the gate.

"Those people have to eat, buy gas ... That's got to be an asset to the merchants and motels and the rest of Big Spring. Because I'm a businessman, and that's what got me interested — I might sell a few auto parts," Hays said.

Hays admitted Sunstar has not been promised a national championship event, but said there is a strong likelihood of a championship points race. He said those would be few, but that during the rest of the year they could conduct nightly races and big weekend events including drag car, drag boat, stock car, or truck and trac-

Rockets blast Lakers

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Rockets made the NBA playoff after-glow extend into the current season Saturday, captalizing on Rodney McCray's 28 points and Akeem Olajuwon's 26 points and 17 rebounds en route to a 112-102 season-opening victory over Los Angeles.

The Rockets, playing without injured Ralph Sampson, beat the Lakers 4-1 for the Western Conference title last year and now have beaten the Lakers five of the last six times they've played.

"Rodney McCray had his greatest day as a Rocket," Houston Coach Bill Fitch said. "We had some problems going into the game, and I didn't know how our team would react.

But McCray eased his coach's mind.

"Rodney came through great and so did (Jim) Petersen," Fitch said.

McCray equaled his top scoring performance. "My shot was there, but another thing is that I had to hang around the basket more with Ralph out," Mc-Cray said. "I had to be more aggressive. I was able to get some offensive rebounds and put them in." Magic Johnson was one of three Lakers scoring in

'They wanted to win real bad,'' Johnson said. "But we'll see them again Dec. 26 in LA and see what "We both know that if we play our games right we'll be meeting again. This should give them some confidence but not over-confidence," he added. "If they get over-confident we'll shut them down.'

Houston held an 11-point lead at 88-77 early in the fourth quarter, but the Lakers cut the lead to four points with 3:20 left on Kareem Abdul Jabbar's

Abdul Jabbar scored 27 points, and Johnson, Byron Scott and James Worthy each hit 21 for the Lakers, who were outscored 13-5 in the final 3:20 of the game. Olajuwon had a game-high 17 rebounds to four for Jabbar. Kurt Rambis led Laker rebounders with 13. Sampson is sidelined for five games with a sprained

Jim Petersen, who replaced Sampson in the starting lineup, hit three straight baskets to give the Rockets an 84-77 lead going into the fourth quarter.

The Rockets built a 10-point lead at 59-49 late in the second quarter, the biggest of the game to that point, but baskets by Scott and Abdul Jabbar cut Houston's lead to 60-54 at halftime.

Los Angeles led 28-27 after the first quarter, but McCray led the Rockets' second-quarter surge with 13 points for the halftime lead.

Forward A.C. Green missed the game for Los Angeles with a thumb injury.

Red Raiders stun Longhorns

LUBBOCK (AP) — Tyrone Thurman, Texas Tech's tiny terror, stung Texas with a 96-yard punt return Saturday as the Red Raiders stumbled through the rain and fog to a 23-21 Southwest Conference victory over the rallying Longhorns.

Texas quarterback Bret Stafford ran 20 vards for one touchdown and threw two scoring shots in the fourth quarter as the Longhorns struggled back from a 23-7 deficit. Longhorn safety Stephen Braggs intercepted three Tech passes in the second quarter, but only one led a touchdown The verdict fanned the flames of a bowl bid for the Raiders, 5-3 and 3-2, and gave rookie coach David McWilliams a cherished triumph over his longtime Longhorn mentor, Fred Akers. The loss dropped the Longhorns, 3-4 and 2-2, out of the SWC title chase and left them flirting with their first losing season during Akers' 10-year regime.

A crowd of 44,820 had barely snuggled into the damp seats when Thurman, a 5-3, 130-pound sophomore, took a punt at the 4,

The punt return was the longest in Red Raider history and second in the SWC archives only to a 98-yarder by Bob Goode of Texas A&M in 1945.

Tech I-back James Gray ran 20 yards for a touchdown to cap a 51-yard scoring drive and stake the Raiders to a 14-0 first-quarter lead.

Texas A&M 39, Souhern Meth. 34 IRVING (AP) - Texas A&M quarterback Kevin Murray winged three touchdown passes, including a 34-yard game-winner with 1:48 left, to rally the 10th-ranked Aggies to a wild 39-35 Southwest Conference victory over Southern Methodist Saturday.

The defending SWC champion Aggies improved to 7-1 overall and 5-0 in the conference. SMU, ineligible for the SWC crown or postseason play, is 5-3 and 4-2.

SMU went ahead 35-32 with 7:33 to play after wingback Ron Morris ran 23 yards for a touchdown. But Murray, who had hit running back Longhorns, tiptoed down the touchdown pass earlier in the wrist injury against Texas Tech fourth quarter, wouldn't back down.

A critical roughing-the-passer penalty moved the Aggies to the Mustang 34. Woodside worked free downfield, caught the ball and received a block from Rod Harris Murray completed 17 of 34 passes for 278 yards, and SMU quarterback Bobby Watters completed 17 of 30 for 173 yards in their aerial duel before a homecoming crowd of 58,125 fans in Texas Stadium.

SMU led 21-17 at halftime in a wild offensive show that included a controversial touchdown by the Mustangs' Jeff Atkins.

Arkansas 45, Rice 14 FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) -

Arkansas quaterback Greg Thomas completed five of six passes for 152 yards in the first quarter, including a 77-yard touchdown toss to split end Donnie Centers, to lead the 13th-ranked Razorbacks to a 45-14 victory over Rice on Saturday.

Thomas, who had completed only three weeks ago, finished with seven of 12 for 177 yards as Arkansas upped its record to 7-1 and 4-1 in the Southwest Conference. Rice dropped to 2-6 and 1-5.

Arkansas scored on each of its first four possessions.

Texas Christian 30, Houston 14 HOUSTON (AP) - Freshman Falanda Newton returned an interception 85 yards for a touchdown to break open a close game and lead Texas Christian to a 30-14 Southwest Conference victory over Houston Saturday, ending a 14-game SWC losing streak.

The Horned Frogs, who had not won a league game since beating Texas Tech 27-16 on Nov. 10, 1984, led the Cougars 20-14 when Newton picked off a tipped pass by Houston's Mark Davis.

Newton sprinted down the sideline, completing the longest interception return in the school's history. The Cougars lost six turnovers and four of them set up TCU

Jordan guns in 50; Bulls win

NEW YORK (AP) — Michael Jersey on Friday night. Jordan, returning to the nearly unstoppable form he showed in last season's playoffs, scored a record 50 points as the Chicago Bulls won Doug Collins' regular-season coaching debut with a 108-103 NBA victory over the New York Knicks Saturday night.

Jordan, who scored all but three of his points after the first quarter, had 21 in the fourth period, 15 of them in the last 5:17 as the Bulls rallied from a 90-85 deficit. Jordan's performance marked the most points ever scored against the Knicks at the current Madison Square Garden. Rick Barry of Golden State and Quintin Dailey of the Bulls shared the previous mark of 44 in 1974 and 1984, respectively.

Jordan was similiarly impressive in last season's playoffs after missing all but 18 games of the regular season with a broken foot. He averaged 43.7, including 63 in one game, although Chicago was swept in three games by the eventual champion Boston Celtics.

Charles Oakley and Earl Cureton scored 17 each for Chicago, while Rory Sparrow had 24 and Bill Cartwright added 21 to lead New York, which lost its season opener to New

Hurricanes blow away FSU

By The Associated Press

Vinny Testaverde, who refused to come out of the lineup despite aggravating a foot injury early in the game, passed a 'gut check'' in leading the topranked Miami Hurricanes to 41-23 college football victory Saturday over Florida State.

Testaverde threw touchdowns passes of 23 yards to Alonzo Highsmith, 20 yards to Brian Blades and 24 yards to Brett Perriman while completing 21 of 35 passes for 315 yards to lead the Hurricanes, 8-0, over the 20th-ranked Seminoles.

College Roundup

And, as if that were not enough, Testaverde hobbled into the end zone on bootleg runs of 1 and 8 yards. The 1-yarder came on a fourth down with 5:20 to play, and the pass to Perriman with 1:27 left gave Miami 20 unanswered points in the final

Florida State, 4-3-1, jumped ahead of Miami with a 6-yard run by Tanner Holloman on the opening drive. The Seminoles also got field goals of 36, 38 and 45 yards from Derek Schmidt.

But the Seminoles' big play was a 100-yard kickoff return. Keith Ross started to play by catching the ball in the end zone. He ran to the 10, then threw a lateral across the field to Dexter Carter, who fielded the ball on a bounce at the 5-yard line and raced untouched for a touchdown.

Coach Jimmy Johnson's Hurricanes marched 75 yards on their opening possession, tying the score 7-7 on a 4-vard run by Warren Williams. But the Miami offense couldn't do much the rest of the first half, getting only one other TD on the Testaverde-to-Highsmith pass after a fumble recovery deep in Florida State territory.

After trailing 20-14 at halftime, the Hurricanes went on top on Testaverde's 8-yard run on the first possession of the second half.

Testaverde, who passed for 230 yards in the second half, completed passes of 20, 39 and 27 yards on the game-clinching drive to his 1-yard score.

Sophomore halfback Bobby Humphrey anticipated a productive day, but nothing like what he got — a school-record 284 yards and three touchdowns.

The three-touchdown burst in the first nine minutes of the period wiped out a 7-0 Iowa lead and kept the surging Buckeyes tied with Michigan for first place in the Big Ten at 5-0.

Iowa, the defending Big Ten champion, fell to 3-2 in the conference and 6-2 overall.

Mississippi 21, No. 12 LSU 19 A 171-yard passing performance by sophomore quarterback Mark Young, who also ran for a touchdown, led Mississippi to its first victory at Baton Rouge in 18 years.

The LSU fans aided the Rebels early in the second quarter when crowd noise on a crucial Ole Miss fourth-and-one prompted an offside penalty against LSU.

The penalty set up a 5-yard touchdown run by Tony Dentley four plays later that gave the Rebels a 14-6 lead which LSU never overcame

LSU freshman David Browndyke tied a school record with four field goals but missed two in the fourth quarter that would have won it for the Tigers.

Pokes-Giants clash heads NFL Sunday

By The Associated Press

The way the New York Giants see it, they should have three straight victories over the Dallas Cowboys instead of three straight losses. The way Dallas Coach Tom Landry sees it, those three losses may have the Giants pscyhed out.

"There could be some doubt in their minds because of the way they lost." Landry says. "Maybe it's an edge."

The Giants-Cowboy game at Giants Stadium opens the second half of the NFC East race with New York, Dallas and the Washington Redskins tied at 6-2.

"Three teams that have to start all over," is the way New York Coach Bill Parcells put it.

Unlike Landry, Parcells would prefer to forget the last three games the two have played - the two last year and the opening Monday night this year.

The Giants lost one because quarterback Phil Simms fumbled a snap from center Bart Oates to set up the game-winning field goal; the second on a deflected pass by Simms, and this year's because the otherwise impregnable New York defense allowed the Cowboys to drive 81 yards in the final 1:41.

That game accents what may happen Sunday.

The Cowboys won 31-28, one of The Cowboys won 31-28, one of six times in eight games this year they've scored more than 30 points.

The Giants haven't given up more than 30 points.

The Cowboys won 31-28, one of loss to Denver.

But the Seahawks will probably prefer to stay on the ground against a defense with an injured core — inside linebacker Lance Mehl and nose tackle Joe Klecko. Mehl is gone for the season and the sea than 20 points since and have won first in the league against the run, and the Dallas offense, which will have running backs Tony Dorsett and Herschel Walker operating at the last two weeks, beating Pittsburgh and Buffalo by a combined 57-3. The sputtering Atlanta of fense can't do much more than either of those but the defense can, which probably means not much close to full speed.

"I'll be there," said Dorsett, who has been hampered all year with knee and ankle injuries and who sat out last week's 37-6 victory over St. Louis to get ready for the Giants.

Rams (6-2) at Chicago (7-1) This is a replay of last year's NFC title game, won by the Bears, 24-0. That score says a lot. The Bears, who edged Detroit 13-7 last week, have made a habit of playing tough against the tougher

Is armless Los Angeles tough? They're last in the league with an average of 117.6 passing yards a game and Coach John Robinson is talking about replacing Steve Bartkowski at quarterback with Steve Dils, who moves a little better. But Dils or Bartkowski will only be there to hand the ball to running back Eric Dickerson, who with 1,030 yards is close to his record-breaking pace of two years ago. Unless Dickerson breaks loose for 150 yards or more, it will be tough for the Rams, particularly since the Bears are as healthy as they've been all year.

negative. We think it has feasible potential but we won't know that for sure until we get a feasibility study. We won't know if this thing's going to be successful until we try.

"That's what Big Spring needs now is someone who has faith in the community. We're worried about attracting John Doe from Oklahoma City, which is great, but we've got to recruit (industry) from within, too," Hays said.

Republican state representative candidate John Anderson, in attendance at Tuesday's meeting, said his interest in the project is strictly from a business standpoint.

'You say 10,000 people, but I don't know, because I've never been to one in my life. But it looks like to me it does have some possibilities. But $6 million is not going to be raised in Big Spring, Texas; I guarantee it.

"It's an industry and that's what I'm looking at. Agriculture and oil aren't going to do it anymore and we have to look for different avenues. Why not this?" Anderson said

He added that Hays and the Lefflers would probably not get financial assistance from the city or the Chamber of Commerce. He said those bodies have to be careful with both their finances and the public trust. "We're on our own. Nobody's going to do it for us," said Anderson.

Ken Mayhall, who raced with his son at Ennis, believes a raceway would be great for Big Spring.

'Those little weekend things will bring money. The average old boy, if he's got any money, he's going to spend it at a track. Those old boys just work for a living — they're weekend warriors," Mayhall said.

Although Henry Paige quit racing many years ago, he remains active in the sport through his two sons, race.

"Man, there are cars in every garage. You'd be surprised how many pick-ups would go out there and race. Why, if I thought I could outrun somebody I'd challenge them," Paige said, and added he believed the raceway would be a big success

One person who is not so sure Sunstar Raceways would succeed is Jim Edwards. Owner of Edwards Supply in Midland, he rebuilds and tests cars, including Indy cars. He also rents part of the airport for testing and go-kart races

"I'm going to say that at the present time I don't think it would work. The economy, for one thing. For another, unless you can get some world class events you're not going to get the number of people it takes to make any money out of it. They better not count on it," Edwards said.

As an example, he cited a raceway in College Station that faltered for lack of interest.

However, the College Station raceway did not have the drag strip, the boat strip and the tractor pull area. Hays and the Lefflers are banking on the versatility of Sunstar Raceways to arouse interest in more than one type of racer and racing spectator.

Lifestyle

NEW YORK (AP) - Zandra Rhodes, Willi Smith, Mary Jane Marcasiano and Danny Noble travel to different corners of the world to come up with spring and summer collections inspired by ancient Egypt, the old Southwest, European playgrounds and 19th-century

Here's a look at these collections previewed in New York

ZANDRA RHODES

Zandra Rhodes takes fans on a. fantasy trip to the pyramids of Egypt where she traveled for inspiration for her spring and summer '87 collection.

Lavish hand-beaded chiffon gowns sparkle from head to toe for evening with thousands of sequins, rhinestones and mirrored buttons atop a background of squiggles and scarabs evoking Egyptian hieroglyphics.

One shimmery chiffon outfit includes slim pants and a slinky tunic topped with a sheer, square-shouldered jacket which sports winged sleeves and an uneven hem decked with beads at the tip of each pyramid shape.

The outfit is one of about 50 chiffon designs offered by Rhodes in a range of styles including draped backs, highcollared necklines and slit three-quarter sleeves. They are shown in seven colors including Nile black, mirage pink and hot

Each is a work of art and nearly as costly. Her limited edition dresses retail for between $3,800 and $8,000.

Willi Smith has comfort in mind for spring and summer with a lightweight, swingy peasant look inspired by the Southwest.

His Santa Fe collection uses earthy pottery colors of terra cotta, peach, brown and a natural white in cotton, poplins and gauze. For a feminine touch of color, a nearly ankle-length, ruffled petticoat peeks out from beneath a voluminous calico cotton dirndl and is topped by a peasant-style midriff blouse.

Petticoats are big fashion news for spring and Smith likes his doubled. In one outfit he mixes berry and terra cotta petticoats with a sleeveless turquoise tank top.

Women's trousers in cotton poplin are side-buttoned with wide legs, or cigarette slim and often topped with a cotton ticking play shirt slightly fitted at the waist and flared at the hips for a '40s look.

The practical Smith also offers a set of nylon parachute raingear folded into little packets and ready to be unrolled at the first spring drizzle. The lightweight trenchcoat and raglan-sleeve raincoats come in black, white and apple green.

For evening, Smith has designed a pair of what he calls "plain jane" dresses, intended for party-going women who are not enamored of frilly tutus. Done in black or white cotton poplin and rayon, the dresses are fitted over the hips and then flare into a flattering full, midcalf skirt.

DANNY NOBLE

Soft, feminine and sometimes little-girl frivolity prevails in Danny Noble's spring and summer collection with frisky bloomers, dotted crinoline netting and delicate lace borders.

The look excels because Noble combines it with oversized boxy jackets and tie-dyed T-shirts reminiscent of the '60s for a spirited look.

After seeing a British production of "Les Miserables" which contrasted soft fashions with the harsh background of 19thcentury France, Noble decided to soften the hard-edge look of some contemporary styles.

Crinoline drawstring skirts are topped with peach tie-dyed T-shirts, matching sash and boxy unlined blazers. Another version is a loose, drop-waisted dress with a tiered crinoline skirt and matching cap-sleeved net jacket. For a bedtime flavor that may inspire some to hop under the covers instead of taking it to the street, Noble offers an oversized nightshirt in a soft crinkle cotton and with girlish smocking detail. It can either be worn as a dress or combined with navy or white bloomers that saucily peek from below For the more conservative, there are peach and lemon colored Empire waisted cotton knit dresses. These starkly simple garments have long sleeves that can be casually pushed up or in crisscrossed back styles. They are topped by matching cropped jackets that end where the busthigh waistline begins.

Spring fashion takes on a worldly look. Fashion by Zandra Rhodes, right, a swingy peasant look inspired by the American Southwest. is inspired by the sights of Egypt while Williwear by Willi Smith, left, has

Stair climbing exercise brings aerobic benefits

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: A coworker and myself have started walking 12 flights of stairs twice daily. We want to lose weight and improve our lung capacity. We both quit smoking recently. Also, we hope for general improvement in health.

We thought that faithful adherence to this distasteful routine would yield noticeable results. However, we haven't really noticed much difference and we're starting to hate these walk-

Could you tell us if we are accomplishing anything, and if so what? Or could we be achieving things we never bargained for, like muscle injury? We need a good excuse to stop. - B.G.S.

I'm sure you are improving your breathing capacity. You might not be able to tell that, for many changes cannot be seen or measured outside a sports medicine laboratory. I am sure that before and after lab testing for V02 max (lung capacity) would show a definite upward trend.

You probably were sore the first day or two of your walk-ups. Now you aren't bothered. That means you've increased muscle strength. So there are two benefits right there.

By general health improvement, I'm sure you mean aerobic improvement - reflecting heart performance. This may be the only area in which your program is lacking

How long does it take to climb those stairs? If it's less than 15 minutes of uninterrupted effort, then the aerobic benefits aren't there. But even so, two out of three benefits isn't bad.

Maybe you can find another exercise to add to the program to get the aerobic part under way. Aerobic exercise is always best when it can be enjoyed. My new booklet, "Introduction to Fitness," has some hints for you on this subject Other readers may order by wriling me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1.50.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What is the answer for a runner/who has seemingly peaked out? I think it's happened to me. In fact, I know it. My running time and endurance is on a plateau. I have been running for three years. Now I find myself going through the same routine, unable to increase either times or distance. — C.C.

It happens to the best. There are a couple of ways to break out of such doldrums.

You can try taking a break. Just stop running for a couple of weeks. You may be exhausted, overtrained right now. Your body may need the rest. When you resume, you start with fresh new goals and might then break your present

Or you can try this: Wear a weighted vest, seven to 10 pounds. The extra load will stress your body more. That little extra jolt might get you out of your training plateau. Then you can resume lyour regular routine and perhaps be able to show improvements.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a 21-year-old male, 5 feet, 8 inches and 140 pounds. I recently went to the doctor and he said my blood pressure was low. It was 100 oyere 70, and my pulese was 72. Could you please tell me the caUse and danger of low blood pressure? The doctor didn't seem worried and didn't prescribe anything. I am heavily invovled in aerobics and I wonder if this has any effect or causes the low blood pressure. Should I adjust? — J.T.C.

Yo're doing fione. If you're worried that your pressure isn't the "ideal" 120 over 80 referred to so often, don't be. That is not "norpressure; it's average pressure. People with lower pressures live longer. A pulse rate of 72 is quite good. No worry there

Stay with it. And yes, your aerobics program is causing the lowering of both blood pressure and resting heart rate (pulse). Of course, both those are good factors.

Much heart trouble is preventable. Write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Take Care of Your Heart." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope

Only in fairy tales does a happily married couple lived a conflict-free life. Never exchanging a harsh word, never feeling angry, and always easily working out problems are impsosible expectations that no family could live up to all

The tension between meeting individual needs for love, relaxation and privacy and the needs of the family, such as doing household tasks, earning money, raising children and getting along with relatives, inevitably lead to some difficult moments.

Family therapists emphasize that conflict can be productive to an intimate, earing relationship. It allows family members to openly express their feelings without recriminations or resentment.

Conflict is a healthy part of family living

Focus on family

Often a dissatisfying relationship can be resolved and made more interesting by open communication. Many couples, and especially husbands, work to avoid conflict. Avoiding conflict does not reduce the anxiety and distress of the Conflict is one of the many ways that families communicate. Yet, not all fights are constructive, and emotional damage can occur. Constructive conflict is neither brutally honest nor aggressive. It involves giving gentle feedback to other family members about the issue under discussion.

How families resolve conflict may vary from family to family. When issues — not the other person are attacked, conflicts can be resolved to strengthen loving, caring relationships.

Long marriages, strong marriages What makes a marriage strong enough to work for more than 20 years. Couples in these long-term marriages say they:

 Consider problems a challenge for growth and use problemsolving techniques instead of becoming depressed.

 Value problem-solving skills and consider them as important as skills for building a career or house • Talk a lot or even argue through problems. This helps them find solutions. • Learn to accept traits that once caused problems. • Share some activities and basic values and goals which strengthen the ties that bind, despite changes and stresses.

 Value the religious dimension in their lives.

 Consider their mates easy to talk with and consider good communication important to the relationship.

 Think that some of the happiest years of marraige start after the kids leave home (50's and 60's) and these years keep getting better.

Widow regrets keeping husband's lover away

DEAR ABBY: I'm a widow in my 70s with many regrets. Many years ago, I discovered that my husband had a mistress. He had always provided well for me and our children, but he showed me little real affection. It was to his mistress that he turned for companionship, comfort and love.

I was brought up to believe that ma riage was forever — no matter what — and besides, I enjoyed the beautiful home, financial security and prestige of being his wife. I had enough information about his business dealings to send him to prison if I had wanted to, and he knew it.

On his 55th birthday he asked me for a divorce, but I wouldn't hear of it. I created a terrible scene, threatening blackmail, suicide and everything I could think of to remain his wife.

A year later he became terminally ill. Toward the end, he begged me to allow his mistress to visit him in our home. I refused.

Did I really win? As I look back, I realize that had I given him a divorce, I still would have been financially secure and could have his mistress could have had hap-

DEAR MRS. A.: I, for one, would be hard-pressed to discern an emergency from plain laziness. I know of no way politely to send a service person down the street to use a bathroom.

DEAR ABBY: Reminding readers who still owe for their student loans to contact their college and pay something toward their debt was right on target.

I received a student loan in the mid-'70s. After I graduated, I could have paid it off, but frankly I regarded it as more of a "gift" than a loan, so I ignored it.

After 10 years land countless address changes, plus a name change after I married, I opened my 1985 tax return check and noticed that $775 had been deducted from it to repay that student loan I had ignored. How embarrassing!

It's amazing how the IRS can find you when you owe money TRACKED DOWN IN GEORGIA

DEAR TRACKED DOWN: Most people aren't aware that Uncle Sam reimburses colleges for delinquent student loans. Then "Uncle" tracks down forgetful debtors and collects one way or another.

FACTS

FACT:

John R. "Rich" Anderson is spending a small fortune trying to convince us he never had anything to do with fringe extremist groups!

FACT:

Anderson ran as a member of the fringe constitutional party against another conservative democrat — Congressman George Mahon.

FACT:

Anderson bought advertising, leased the auditorium and lead the program for a Lyndon LaRouche candidate running for Chairman of the Texas Democratic Party.

WHICH PHILOSOPHY DOES ANDERSON REALLY REPRESENT?

Anderson has been associated with the fringe constitution party — the republican party — the democratic party — the Lyndon LaRouche extremist group.

Democrat for State Representative

- Rep. Larry Don Shaw is now a member of the powerful House Appropriations Committee.
- The number of bills passed by Rep. Larry Don Shaw is four times the average for member's of the House and includes the following:
- Cost cutting package trimming state spending by over $100 million a year. A vigorous anti-crime package making it easier to prosecute drug dealers, rapists and criminals who sexually abuse children.
- As Vice Chairman of the Natural Resources Committee Shaw helped draft and pass the first statewide water plan approved by Texas voters.

SO WHAT'S REP. SHAW DONE FOR US LATELY?

- Larry Don Shaw as instrumental in stopping the closing of Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, West Texas Children's Home and Scenic Mountain State Park.
- Shaw successfully negotiated the appointment of a West Texan from our district to the SSC Task Force which could bring new jobs and billions of dollars to our district.
- Larry Don was a key player in winning approval of a new four lane highway for our district.
- Shaw was instrumental in stopping attempts to close Sul Ross, UTPB and the McDonald Observatory.
- ★ Larry Don was the driving force in attaining $650,000 in State aid for Big Spring after severe floods this summer.

I hope each voter will ask himself these two questions: First, which candidate more closely represents my positions? And second, which candidate can command the respect it takes to make West Texas's case in a Legislature now dominated by urban members?

TOUGH. RESPECTED. EFFECTIVE. DEMOCRAT.
