Cloudy skies and fog resulted in the National Weather Service issuing a travelers advisory for this afternoon. A 60 percent chance of rain or thunderstorms exists today, with a high in the upper 50s and southeast winds at 10 to 15 miles per hour.
Tonight will be cloudy with a 60 percent chance of rain and a low in the mid 40s. Tuesday, look for continued cloudy skies, a 50 percent chance of rain and a high in the lower 50s.

Canine hero

LAS CRUCES, N.M. — A mongrel named Pee Wee Corn earned the title of canine hero by taking on a rattlesnake to protect his owner.
Pee Wee was named the first member of the New Mexico Pet Hall of Fame by the state Veterinary Medical Association meeting.
The dog is owned by Roswell-area ranchers Hub and Sheila Corn.
Hub Corn said Pee Wee didn't hesitate last summer when Mrs. Corn and her sister nearly stepped on a rattlesnake while on a walk.
"Pee Wee grabbed the snake and shook it," Corn said. "He was struck three times in the right shoulder before he turned the snake loose."
The small dog survived the bites, but might have learned something.
"I'm not sure that Pee Wee would attack another snake," Corn said. "When you turn on a ratchet wrench, the sound causes Pee Wee to raise his hackles, then he growls, barks — and leaves."

Local vote of 50% forecast

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Voter turnout in Howard County for Tuesday's general election again is expected to exceed the state forecast.
County Clerk Margaret Ray said this morning her office is calculating that 50 percent of the 16,129 registered voters in the county will vote.
Karen Adickes, of the elections division in the Secretary of the State's office, noted the state is expecting a 44 percent total voter turnout.

Registered voters can vote between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. Tuesday in one of the county's 25 precincts.
Ray's forecast is compatible with the county's recent trend of exceeding the state's turnout, records show.
In 1982, 56.02 percent of the 15,367 registered county voters cast ballots. That exceeded the 50 percent statewide turnout that year.
In 1984, 68.72 percent of the 17,232 registered county voters only slightly exceeded the 68 percent statewide turnout.
Both Ray and Adickes noted the voter turnout in general elections usually is lower than turnout in presidential elections.

Ray bases her forecast on the number of absentee votes her office receives. According to tabulations by her office deputies, 1,004 county voters cast absentee ballots.
The office has mailed 181 ballots and received 157 by this morning. The deadline for mailed ballots is 7 p.m. Tuesday, Ray said.
The 1,185 absentee ballots distributed from her office for this year's election exceeds the 840 returned in 1982, but is lower than the 2,374 tabulated in 1984 — a presidential election year, Ray said.

The county clerk's office received a surge of absentee votes on Thursday and Friday.
"We had more applications for absentee ballots from persons over 65 years of age," Ray said.
Senior citizens probably decided to vote absentee because they feared weather conditions would inhibit their ability to travel to the polls Tuesday, Ray said.
Voters going to the polls Tuesday must cast their ballots at the precinct listed on their voter registration card.

Persons who have lost or misplaced their cards still may vote at their designated precinct. To learn the number of a voter's precinct, the voter may call the County Tax Assessor/Collector's office, 267-2527.
The 25 county election precincts and their locations are:
• Precinct 101, North Side Fire Station at N.W. 8th and Main streets.

Court rules in abortion funds issue

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — States may not stop their payments to private groups because the groups offer, among other things, abortions or abortion counseling, the Supreme Court ruled today.

By a 5-3 vote, the court upheld rulings that Arizona's payment policy violated the constitutional rights of Planned Parenthood organizations in the state.
Although today's decision was not accompanied by any written opinions, it sets a national precedent. Without waiting to conduct oral arguments in the case, the court affirmed a ruling that such state funding cuts interfere with constitutionally protected abortion rights.

The court also turned away a pair of key cases involving racial desegregation of elementary schools in Norfolk, Va., and Oklahoma City, Okla.

Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist and Justices Byron R. White and Antonin Scalia voted to hear arguments in the abortion case, but four votes are needed to grant such review.

Justice Sandra Day O'Connor did not participate in the case.
The high court nine years ago said states have no legal obligation to pay for "non-therapeutic" abortions. And six years ago the justices went further, ruling that the federal government and individual states do not have to finance even most therapeutic abortions.

At issue in the Arizona case was whether state money may be withheld from organizations offering abortion-related services even if the state funds themselves are not used for such services.

Arizona participates in a federal grant program that provides federal reimbursement for 90 percent of the money spent for certain family planning services. Arizona allocates 10 percent matching funds.

The state legislature, in 1980 legislation, restricted the use of state money for abortion-related activities.

A matching-funds appropriations bill said the state's Department of Economic Security cannot give state money to groups that "offer abortions, abortion procedures, counseling for abortion procedures or abortion referrals."

The legislation was challenged by Planned Parenthood of Central and Northern Arizona and by Planned Parenthood of Southern Arizona.

A federal trial judge and the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled against the state, saying the cut unduly interfered with constitutionally protected abortion rights.

State officials did not prove that monitoring such funding to make sure none of it went to abortion-related activities could not achieve the desired result, the appeals court said last May 15.

Polls indicating cliff-hanger in governor's race

By The Associated Press

Texas Gov. Mark White is closing in on Republican challenger Bill Clements, and political polls indicate voter turnout may be a key factor in who wins the gubernatorial race Tuesday.

Clements, a former Texas governor ousted by White in the 1982 election, has a seven-point edge over the Democrat incumbent, according to a Gallup Poll. Meanwhile, a poll conducted by the Houston Chronicle and KTRK-TV in Houston shows Clements with a five-point lead.

"We're in the range where anything can happen. If the shift continues, it'll be real close Election Day, a real cliff-hanger," said Richard Murray, the University of Houston political scientist who conducted the latter poll.

The Gallup Poll shows 51 percent favor Clements, 44 percent are for White and 5 percent remain undecided. The telephone survey was conducted for The Dallas Morning News, The Houston Post, KXAS-TV in Fort Worth, KSAT-TV in San Antonio, KPRC-TV in Houston and KVUE-TV in Austin.

Of the 1,824 registered Texas voters surveyed between Oct. 27 and 30, the Gallup Poll determined 913 were likely to vote.
The Chronicle-KTRK poll shows Clements with 47.8 percent of the vote, White with 42.8 percent and 7.9 percent undecided. The poll questioned 665 registered voters likely to vote Tuesday. The figures, which were rounded off, do not total 100 percent.

The margin of error for both polls is plus or minus 4 percentage points.

White has improved his standing from April, when he trailed Clements by 18 points and in September when he trailed by 12, according to the Chronicle-KTRK poll.

Although Clements still leads, Murray said the momentum is with White. The governor knocked Clements out of office after Clements had served one term as this century's first Republican Texas governor.

"Clements looks to be the casualty of the negative campaign," Murray said, noting that White's personal rating hasn't changed much, but Clements' earlier high positive image rating has dropped to nearly the same level as the incumbent.

"A lot of voters are clearly turned off. That probably means fewer people voting next Tuesday," Murray said. "If that's the case, then the election is going to come down to which side or which candidate can do a little better job of motivating their people to go to the polls."

Hobby, Mattox lead in surveys by media

By The Associated Press

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Attorney General Jim Mattox have substantial leads over their Republican challengers, according to polls conducted for several news organizations.

Hobby has widened his lead over political newcomer David Davidson, an Austin preacher. Mattox still has a considerable lead over State District Judge Roy Barrera Jr., the polls report.

A poll conducted by the Houston Chronicle and KTRK-TV interviewed 665 registered voters likely to cast ballots Tuesday. The survey was conducted for the Houston news organizations by the University of Houston Public Affairs Research Center.

A similar poll was conducted by the Gallup Poll for The Houston Post, The Dallas Morning, KXAS-TV in Fort Worth, KSAT-TV in San Antonio, KPRC-TV in Houston and KVUE-TV in Austin. The Gallup poll did not include the lieutenant governor's race.
The Chronicle-KTRK poll shows

Hobby with 62 percent of the vote to Davidson's 23 percent, with 14 percent undecided.

The margin of error was reported at plus or minus 4 percentage points. The percentages do not total 100 because of rounding off of figures.

In the September poll, Hobby had 59 percent to Davidson's 20 percent, with the remainder undecided.

"Hobby is going to win by an overwhelming margin," said Richard Murray, the Houston political scientist who conducted the poll. "That race was over when the filing closed. The Republicans just didn't have a strong candidate in the race."

In the current poll, Mattox had 52 percent to Barrera's 38 percent, with 10 percent undecided. In the September poll, Mattox led with 52 percent to Barrera's 31 percent, with the remainder undecided.
Murray said the margin held by Mattox probably is too great to overcome.

Democrats expect to regain control in Senate

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The long and nasty 1986 campaign is ending with Democrats optimistic about regaining control of the Senate and Republicans insisting they will beat the historic odds by minimizing losses in Congress and gaining several governorships.
On the last full day of campaigning, Reagan kept hammering away in his drive to keep the Senate in Republican control. He had appearances today for GOP underdog candidates Jim Santini in Nevada and Ed Zschau in California.

In addition to deciding party control of the Senate, where Republicans now have a 53-47 majority, voters will select 36 governors, determine the makeup of the 435-member House and select thousands of state legislators and local officials.
Republicans were talking about having a long-shot chance to come out of the election with a majority of the nation's governorships. Democrats are filling the governor's seat in 27 of the 36 states choosing chief executives, but 15 of them are not running for reelection. A gain of 10 would give the GOP a majority.

The House was certain to remain in control of the Democrats who have a 253-180 majority. Two seats formerly filled by Republicans are vacant.
Two Democratic senators and the party chairman predicted in television interviews that the party was heading for a takeover of the Senate.

Republicans were far more cautious.

White House political aide Mitch Daniels said that even if the GOP fails to keep its majority in the Senate, the party will win more than half of the 34 Senate races on Tuesday.
Not since World War II, said Daniels, has a president's party won a majority of the Senate races in his sixth-year midterm.

Frank J. Fahrenkopf Jr., chairman of the Republican National Committee, took a similar tack, saying on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press" that it was remarkable to even be talking about the GOP retaining Senate control.

"I'm willing to confess, there are a lot of very dicey races out there," said Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas, who nonetheless said he expected the Republicans

Heart patient waits five years for donor

PLAINVIEW (AP) — When Michael Wiley of Plainview was diagnosed nearly four years ago as having cardiomyopathy, a deterioration of the heart muscle, doctors gave him at most five years to live unless he received a heart transplant.

This month, Wiley will enter his fifth year of waiting for a donor. It is a vigil that has drained his family's finances and placed him more than once on death's doorstep.

It has been a long wait. Feeling weak and thinking he might have pneumonia, Wiley went to a doctor in Hale Center in the fall of 1982. Unable to diagnose Wiley's illness, the physician referred him to Lubbock for further examination. A transplant operation was recommended after cardiologists diagnosed Wiley's illness as cardiomyopathy.

"I was told the only cure was a transplant," he said. "My heart muscle should normally contract 55 percent to 60 percent. At the time, mine was only doing 10 percent."

Since then, Wiley continues his long wait for a donor. Such a donor, he said, must be of the same blood type and must also have a similar sized chest cavity. And, once found, Wiley must be in a hospital within three hours ready for surgery.

Ask him if the thought of surgery scares him, and he will pause, but only for a moment.

"My doctor has told me that I can't afford not to be worried. It's still a dangerous operation," Wiley said. "Sometimes when I hear that they are looking for a donor and they're close to having one, I start thinking ... I just might not make it."

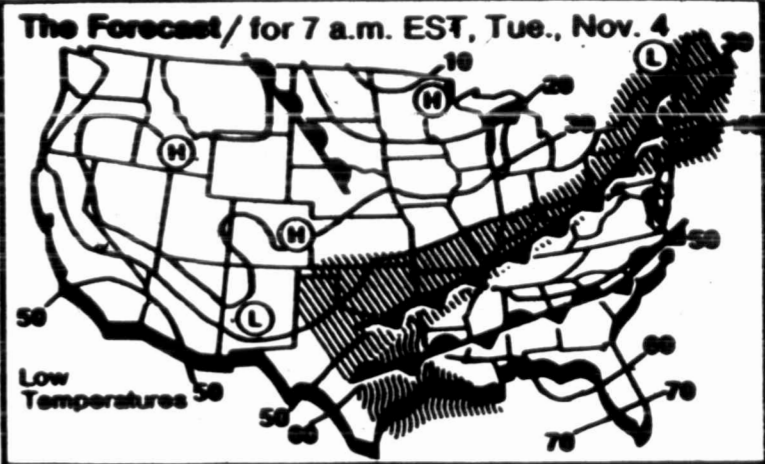

Earlier this year, Michael Wiley was surprised to learn that he had been named an Outstanding Young Man for 1985-86. His nomination by the Southern Baptists floored him, especially because only 2,500 people received the award out of 14 million, he said.

"I didn't feel like I deserved it," he said. "There are so many other Southern Baptists who have done a lot more than I have who deserve it. I've rattled my brains ever since I got the award trying to figure out why I got it."

Michael Wiley of Plainview was diagnosed four years ago as having cardiomyopathy, a deterioration of the heart muscle. Wiley is entering his fifth year of waiting for a heart transplant.

By The Associated Press
 Skies will be cloudy with scattered rain, drizzle, fog and a few thunderstorms through Tuesday. Lows tonight will be mostly in the 40s, except in the low 50s in the southeast. Highs Tuesday will be in the upper 40s in the north to mid 60s in the valleys of southwest.

State

Dense fog cut visibility to about one-fourth of a mile across portions of West Texas early today, prompting the National Weather Service to issue travelers advisories because of hazardous driving conditions. The dense fog, reported across the Texas Panhandle and in the Trans-Pecos area, was expected to burn off by noon.

A stationary front stretched across the state from Southeast Texas to the Big Bend and into the Trans-Pecos area. Showers triggered by the front were reported in the Trans-Pecos area and along the Cap Rock. Showers were also reported along middle and upper sections of the Texas coast.

Forecasts called for rain likely in the Panhandle and a chance of rain over the entire state through Tuesday.

Lows tonight will be in the 40s over most of West Texas, the 40s and 50s over North Texas and in the 50s and 60s in South Texas.

Highs Tuesday will be in the 40s in West Texas, the 60s in Southwest Texas, the 50s and 60s over North Texas and in the 70s in South Texas. Early morning temperatures around the state were mostly in the 40s and 50s except in South Texas where readings were in the 60s. Extremes ranged from 39 at Amarillo to 68 at Brownsville.

Other early morning temperatures around the state included 46 at Wichita Falls, 50 at Fort Worth, 55 at Waco, 58 at Austin, 62 at San Antonio, 66 at Corpus Christi, 63 at Houston, 52 at San Angelo, 42 at Lubbock, 49 at Midland and 47 at El Paso.

Two injured in accident

A police officer and a Big Spring man were injured in an accident at Goliad and 10th Streets at 8:23 p.m. Saturday. Both were treated and released from Scenic Mountain Medical Center, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Ralph Rodriguez, 22, 1211 Harding, was driving a Chevrolet Chevette north on Goliad when he ran a red light at the intersection of 11th Street, police reports stated.

The report stated that witnesses said he was driving 40-50 miles per hour, and that he also ran a red light at the 10th Street intersection. Officer Steven Richard Fleckenstein, 26, was driving a police car east on 10th Street. He entered the intersection of Goliad and 11th Street on a green light, and the two vehicles collided.

Rodriguez was arrested on suspicion of driving while intoxicated, driving without a license and without insurance, running a red light, and not wearing a seat belt, police reports stated. He was transferred to the county jail and released on $1,000 bond.

Water heater suspected to have caused house fire

A house at 607 W. 18th St., owned and occupied by Larry Ashbrook, sustained $60,000 damage from a fire Sunday morning.

No one was reported injured. The fire began in the water heater area, according to fire department reports. The cause is unknown, but Fire Chief Carl Dorton said that usually when a water heater is involved, it was improperly vented or an object, such as a mop, was placed next to it.

City codes state that a water heater must be vented through the roof, Dorton said, but 20 years ago, when codes weren't enforced as strictly, some were vented only through the attic to prevent rain seepage.

Fire reports state that the blaze was contained in a small area, but the smoke was intense throughout the house. The blaze was extinguished shortly, the report states.

The fire department returned to the house later in the day, when smoldering insulation in the attic rekindled and caught ceiling joists and rafters on fire.

Police abduct drug dealer

A three-month joint investigation by the Big Spring Police Department narcotics division and the federal Drug Enforcement Administration ended Friday with a Coahoma man's conviction on drug charges.

Guy John Seeley was convicted in a Midland federal court of possession with intent to distribute LSD, police Lt. Jerry Edwards said.

During the investigation, which involved Big Spring and Midland, Seeley sold 300 dosage units of LSD to undercover agents for the DEA, a police report states.

The undercover operation netted seizure of 4,000 dosage units of LSD and $4,000 of personal property. The street value of the drug is estimated at $43,000.

Seeley was sentenced to five years in a federal correctional institute.

A second suspect has been charged in the case. Edwards said the DEA won't release his identity because he is undergoing psychological examinations to determine if he is competent to stand trial.

Stalled car causes accident

Two Lamesa men, injured in an accident Saturday night, are in stable condition at Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital, a hospital spokeswoman said this morning.

Emeterio Lozano, 38, and Milton Lozano Sr., 58, were injured at 8:18 p.m. Saturday at Baylor and Auburn Streets.

The younger Lozano was driving a 1986 Chevrolet pickup south on Baylor. Lloyd Wayne Swanson, 31, 214 N. Johnson St., was driving a 1961 Ford van east on Auburn, which stalled at a stop sign at the intersection at Baylor.

The van rolled into the intersection while Swanson was attempting to restart it, and the two vehicles collided.

Swanson was treated and released from Scenic Mountain Medical Center, a hospital spokeswoman said. He was ticketed for failure to yield right of way.

• Police received three reports of slashed or punctured tires and a report of a damaged windshield this weekend.

Kevin Glissen, 2528 Hunter, told police four tires on his 1986 gray Ford sedan were damaged between Saturday and Sunday evenings.

Curtis Sculthorp, 2629 Langley, said four tires were damaged on his 1985 Toyota Saturday night.

One tire was slashed on a 1978 Oldsmobile sedan owned by Sandra Tercero, 1100 E. 16th St., Friday night.

Randy Moore, Ponderosa Apartment No. 121, reported a damaged windshield on his Dodge pickup early Sunday morning.

• A police officer's $125 flashlight was stolen at 111 E. 16th St. early Sunday morning while officers were attempting to arrest subjects during a fight.

to keep control. Appearing with Dole on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation," Democratic Senate leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia said the next Congress would have a 52-48 Democratic majority in the Senate.

In a five-minute echo of his recent campaign speeches, the president appealed to Americans on Sunday night to "please vote. And, please vote Republican."

The pre-recorded advertisement was broadcast on the ABC, NBC and CBS television networks at a cost of $500,000, a price Republicans would consider well worth it if Reagan swayed votes to GOP candidates in half a dozen key states that both sides agreed were too close to call.

Those states are Alabama, Colorado, Idaho, North Carolina, North Dakota and South Dakota. All but Colorado have Republican Senate incumbents fighting for survival against strong Democratic challenges.

In fact, agreement is widespread that this was a campaign in which national issues had little impact. The emphasis was on personalities, a factor leading to the nasty tone.

Surveys

"Especially because the Barrera campaign just does not have the financial resources to come on in the final days," he said.

In the Gallup Poll, Mattox was favored by 56 percent of the surveyed likely voters. Barrera was the choice of 35 percent and 9 percent were undecided.

Polli director James Shriver III, a vice president of the Gallup Organization Inc., said it would be almost impossible for Barrera to close the gap by Tuesday.

"We've seen some last-minute movement in Barrera's direction, but not enough to hang your hat on," he said.

The poll also showed that Mattox is the favorite among the Mexican-Americans surveyed although Barrera has said Republicans should elect him because of his appeal among Hispanics.

"It shows that Hispanics are not fooled by Barrera's last name. They like Jim and his record," said Elna Christopher, a spokeswoman for Mattox.

In addition, the first Hispanic candidate fielded by the Democrats is doing better in his race for the Texas Supreme Court, the poll indicated.

Incumbent Raul Gonzalez, appointed to his position by White, now leads his opponent, Republican John Bates, although neither has a majority. Gonzalez had 37 percent to Bates' 32 percent with the remainder undecided, according to the latest survey. In the original September poll, Gonzalez had 30 percent to Bates' 31 percent, with the remainder undecided.

John Couch of Gail Route Box 427 M, told Howard County sheriff's deputies Sunday night someone burglarized a television set from his residence between 1 p.m. and 8 p.m.

The 19-inch set was valued at $450. The sheriff's department continues an investigation into the theft.

• Deputies released Earl

Dwight Ware, 51, of Midland, from county jail Sunday morning after he served jail sentences for driving while intoxicated and driving while license suspended convictions.

Deputies released Reyes Castaneda, 27, 1007 S. Main St., from county jail Sunday morning after he served a jail sentence for fines he owes the county from DWI and DWLS convictions.

UT to suspend protestors

AUSTIN (AP) — The University of Texas has notified 13 students who took over President William Cunningham's office in an anti-apartheid protest the university plans to suspend them for a year, a protest leader says.

Susan Svatek, one of the protestors who had barricaded themselves inside Cunningham's office briefly Oct. 20, said Friday the students have refused to accept the suspension and asked for a hearing.

Under disciplinary procedures at the university, a student may accept penalties set by the office of the dean of students, or may elect to have his case presented to an independent hearing officer.

University administrators have selected Gaylor Jentz, a professor of business law at UT, to preside at the hearing scheduled for Nov. 11. Jentz will have the authority to decide whether the planned punishment of the students is justified. His ruling may be appealed to Cunningham.

The students received certified letters from the office of the dean of students informing them of plans to suspend them from Oct. 20 until Oct. 20, 1987, Svatek said.

UT officials declined comment on the proposed penalties, saying that privacy laws prohibit them from discussing details of individual disciplinary cases.

The suspension would keep the students out of the university until the spring semester of 1988 because of registration deadlines and class schedules.

Ravi Jain, a member of Democracy in Academia, a student group that has been protesting the UT System's investments in companies that operate in South Africa, says the one-year suspension "is too severe."

"The students should not be given this punishment, which amounts to being suspended for three semesters, because their action was non-violent, they had prepared for it very carefully, and it was founded on deep moral principles," said Jain, who was not among the students involved in the incident.

The 13 students and three non-students entered the office early Oct. 20 and barricaded themselves inside with three staff members. Demands were issued for the UT regents to withdraw all investments from companies that do business in South Africa, but within about 20 minutes UT police broke through a side door and arrested the protestors.

All were charged with disruptive activity, a misdemeanor.

Prank taken seriously

LONG BEACH, Calif. — A high school principal says he doesn't understand why parents and school board members are angry about a prank Halloween announcement that Russia had declared war on the United States.

The hoax on Friday put some students in tears.

The bogus announcement was prepared by a student who had seen a television program about Orson Welles' "War of the Worlds" broadcast on Halloween 1938, which panicked many Americans into believing Martians were landing in New Jersey, Easter said.

Shortly after lunch Friday, an adult woman said over the school's public address system that the Soviets had shot down two U.S. warplanes over the Mediterranean Sea and had declared war, said Laneisha Howard, a 16-year-old junior at Dominguez High.

In a calm, serious voice, the woman said President Reagan had ordered missiles launched in retaliation. "This can be the beginning of the end of the world," Miss Howard quoted the woman as saying.

Principal Fred Easter said the prank was part of traditional Homecoming Week fun.

Compton Unified School Board members said they planned to investigate the incident in this seaside Los Angeles suburb.

Efficiency bill vetoed

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — A bill requiring minimum energy-efficiency standards for home appliances would have eliminated low-cost models, forcing consumers to spend an extra $1.4 billion, President Reagan said in a veto memorandum.

Reagan complained the measure "intrudes unduly on the free market, limits the freedom of choice available to consumers who would be denied the opportunity to purchase lower-cost appliances, and constitutes a substantial intrusion into traditional state responsibilities and prerogatives."

While expressing sympathy with the idea of conserving energy resources, Reagan said the bill "fails to advance this goal in a manner that takes account of the tremendous cost to consumers, who would have to spend an estimated extra $1.4 billion per year on appliance purchases."

Texas tops executions

WASHINGTON — Nearly 1,600 inmates were under a death sentence at the end of last year in U.S. prisons, and Texas led the way as a total of 18 convicts were executed in 1985, the federal government says in a new report.

The report released Sunday by the Bureau of Justice Statistics did not include the 16 inmates executed so far this year. Including the 1386 executions, 66 people have received the death penalty since capital punishment was reinstated nearly a decade ago.

The number of executions in 1985 was three fewer than in the previous year.

No political concessions made

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — American officials are working through a number of channels to free the remaining Americans held hostage in Lebanon but are keeping their efforts secret to avoid risking the lives of the captives, U.S. officials say.

President Reagan expressed his gratitude to unnamed intermediaries who helped gain the release Sunday of American hospital administrator David Jacobsen. Without disclosing how the release was arranged, Reagan warned that "no political goals are or will be achieved by resorting to extortion and terrorism."

And White House spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters there had been "no change in U.S. policy" of refusing to make concessions to terrorists or asking other countries to do so.

Islamic Jihad, the Moslem extremist group that announced it had released Jacobsen and which is believed to be holding at least two other Americans, said the U.S. government had embarked on "approaches that could lead, if continued, to a solution of the hostages issue." It threatened to take "a totally different attitude" if the United States fails to follow through.

Speakes refused to say what those approaches might be but said the United States was continuing to pursue efforts to free the other hostages. He said U.S. officials remained hopeful Jacobsen's release will be followed by more.

"We continue our policy of talking with anyone who can be helpful, but we do not make concessions, nor do we ask third countries to do so," Speakes said.

Asked specifically what "new approaches" the United States was making, the spokesman said, "I just don't have any comment on that."

Speakes expressed regret that the government "cannot keep the hostage families, who suffer so much through this, informed in greater detail of some of the very sensitive areas we're dealing in."

He added he hoped Jacobsen's release "indicates to them and to all Americans that we are actively involved on a daily, virtually round-the-clock basis in efforts to secure the release of the hostages."

"We hope that now they understand that we cannot talk about it," the spokesman added.

American David Jacobsen, 55, of Huntington Beach, Calif., waves to a crowd as he arrives at the U.S. hospital in Wiesbaden, West Germany, today. The former director of the U.S. hospital in Beirut was held hostage in Beirut since May 1985 by the Islamic Jihad, a Shiite Moslem group, and freed Sunday. In Wiesbaden he will undergo a medical checkup before returning to the States.

The administration has come under increasing fire in recent weeks from family members of the hostages, who accused Reagan of refusing to negotiate for their loved ones while dealing for the release of American journalist Nicholas Daniloff from Moscow and for the TWA hostages last year.

White House Chief of Staff Donald Regan, appearing on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley," also refused to disclose what new approaches the United States was taking on behalf of the remaining hostages, saying, "That would reveal too much about the negotiations that have been going on over the past several months."

Speakes and other officials have insisted for months that the United States is willing to talk to anyone about the hostages but won't negotiate for their release.

Briefing reporters in Santa Barbara, where President Reagan took the day off from the campaign trail to relax at his ranch, Speakes said Jacobsen appeared to be in good health when he arrived at the U.S. Embassy in Beirut and would be flown as soon as possible to the U.S. military hospital at Wiesbaden, West Germany, for a physical examination and a reunion with his family.

"We will make arrangements to reunite the family, and they will be with him during this very trying period of transition from isolation to freedom," the spokesman said.

On his arrival in Cyprus this morning Jacobsen said he felt well and was grateful for efforts to gain his release.

"In spite of my video appearances, I am darn proud to be an American," Jacobsen said, referring to a videotaped message in which he criticized the Reagan administration for an alleged lack of effort on the hostages' behalf. "Obviously, this is a great day for me."

"I am very happy ... my joy is somewhat diminished by the fact the other hostages are being held in Lebanon."

Hasenfus denies CIA link

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — American mercenary Eugene Hasenfus, on trial before a revolutionary tribunal, broke his courtroom silence to say he had no direct knowledge of CIA links to a rebel supply operation.

The 45-year-old former Marine was ordered brought before the "people's court" again today for the fourth consecutive day.

Hasenfus acknowledged during Sunday's hourlong trial session that he had written and signed a four-page document the prosecution has described as a confession to charges he was a part of the operation.

But the chief prosecutor, Justice Minister Rodrigo Reyes, said he did not consider Hasenfus' statement to the court Sunday to be significant.

"Independently of the confession of Hasenfus, we have a strong, strong case," Reyes said. "What is important to me at the moment is to prove that he committed the crimes he is charged with."

Irish party divides

DUBLIN, Ireland — Sinn Fein, the political wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, has voted to abandon its boycott of the Irish parliament, prompting a split with hardliners.

At its annual convention Sunday, Sinn Fein's leadership gained the two-thirds majority needed to drop abstentionism — a republican tradition meant to underscore rejection of Ireland's partition in 1921 and the Irish Republic's legislature in Dublin.

Despite appeals for unity, dozens of dissidents led by former Sinn Fein president Ruairi O Bradaigh stormed out of the meeting. Within hours, about 130, or one-fifth, of the more than 600 delegates agreed to establish a new party, Republican Sinn Fein.

Plane crash kills 98

NICOSIA, Cyprus — An Iranian C-130 military plane crashed near the airport at Zahedan in southeastern Iran near the borders with Pakistan and Afghanistan, killing all 98 people on board, the official Iranian news agency reported Monday.

The agency, monitored in Nicosia, said the crashed occurred Sunday evening when the plane slammed into the mountains six miles east of Zahedan.

The agency said the plane crashed just before landing "because of technical failure." It did not specify the nature of the technical problems.

The C-130 was carrying 91 soldiers from the 88th Armored Division and seven crew members, the news agency said.

A number of the dead had been pulled from the wreckage by Monday morning and relief and search operations were continuing, according to the agency.

Officials in Sistan-Baluchestan declared a day of public mourning throughout the province, according to the report.

Opinion

Views of other Texas papers

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around the state.

Prison case considered frivolous

Beset on every hand by court orders and litigation threats, the Texas prison system is now in danger of being held in contempt for what the Department of Justice claims is the system's failure to provide court-mandated information on prison desegregation.

The Justice Department motion in the prison case accuses TDC officials of failing to show compliance with court orders that the racial composition of all housing units be within 70 percent of the racial composition of the entire prison system.

The thrust of the government's case seems to be that it is more important to enforce sometimes frivolous court orders in a prison system that was not designed for comfort and pleasure than to make certain that criminals pay the penalty for their crimes under adverse conditions.

Blue Law for auto sales 'hangs on'

Texas lawmakers will have some unfinished business to wrap up when they convene the 70th Legislature in January.

Contrary to what has been written, the state's Blue Law hangs on. When lawmakers repealed the Blue Law last year, they left intact the portion of the law that prohibits the Sunday sale of automobiles.

Well, a Dallas auto dealer has filed suit to remove the last Blue Law remnant from the books. Legislators ought to save the dealer, and the state, some court costs by taking care of this piece of unfinished business.

Lawmakers showed considerable wisdom in 1985 by giving Texans the opportunity to buy food, clothes and hardware on Sundays. They can show wisdom once more in 1987 by applying the same logic they used last year to allow Texans to buy cars.

It just makes sense. —Beaumont Enterprise

Judges should be picked on merit

Texas should shift to merit selection of Supreme Court and appellate court judges. The system, as observed in several other states, involves appointment of judges by the governor on the recommendation of a top-flight nominating committee. In these states, public accountability is assured by giving citizens a vote on rejecting or retaining each judge.

Integrity and experience are really the only issues in a race for judge. All that a candidate can promise is that he will be a fair interpreter of the law.

Is justice served when a potential judge has to posture himself for campaign contributors — or votes? No. Texas should take its Supreme Court out of the campaign arena. —Waco Tribune-Herald

Afghanistan 'withdrawal' just PR

Shortly before President Reagan and Mikhail Gorbachev met in Iceland, the Soviet Union announced there would be a troop withdrawal from beleaguered Afghanistan. The withdrawal was an obvious attempt to try to convince the world of Soviet good intentions on the eve of the summit meeting in Reykjavik.

Western sources, including U.S.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, contend the Russians actually shipped as many as 15,000 fresh troops in Afghanistan, without similar publicity, of course.

Even more disgusting is the fact that the troops withdrawn were basically anti-air craft forces. Afghanistan doesn't have an air force.

Britain right to counter terrorism

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher was right to take strong action against Syria when "conclusive evidence" proved that the Syrian ambassador in London was involved in a plot to blow up a jet with 375 people aboard.

Britain already had demonstrated its refusal to be intimidated by terrorist threats when it authorized British-based American bombers to join the U.S. retaliatory raid against Libya on April 15 — just two days before the El Al bomb plot was hatched by the Syrian embassy. The link between international terrorism and the governments of Libya and Syria long has been suspected by Western and Middle Eastern intelligence agencies.

But unless all the allies of Britain and the United States, including France, are willing to stand against state-supported terrorism, the murder and bloodshed will continue unchecked.

Textbooks should include religion

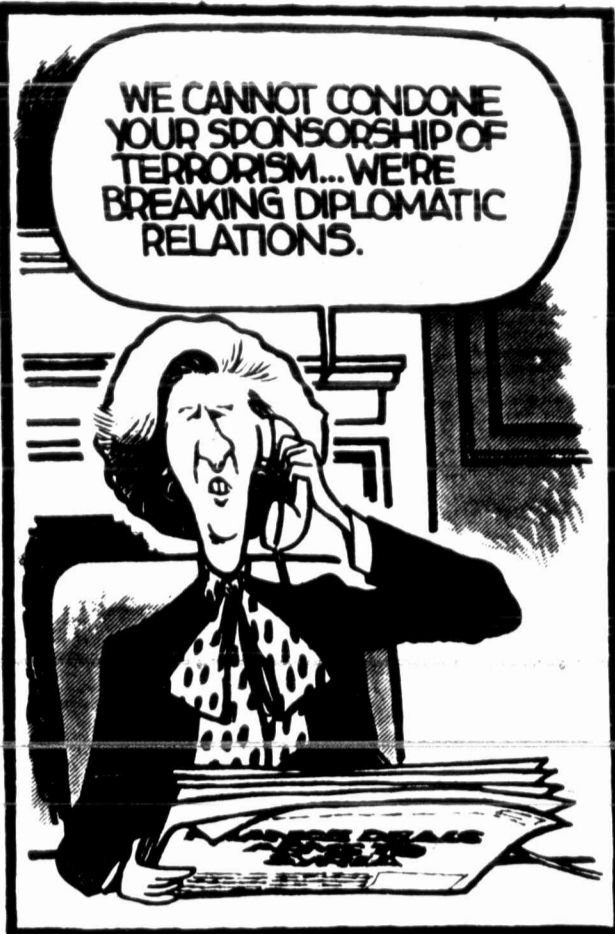

A lawsuit by seven Christian fundamentalist families in Greenville, Tenn., over classroom textbooks has attracted a lot of attention in the news media, but we're pleased that a recent poll shows that most Americans aren't afraid of exposing their children to different religious concepts.

The nationwide poll by Media General and the Associated Press revealed that 75 percent of the 1,464 respondents said textbooks should teach children about religious beliefs that may not necessarily be those of their families.

If parents want to tighten the focus of their children's religious education, they can always enroll the youngsters in one of the many fine private schools available virtually everywhere in the United States. But when it comes to public schools that are financed by taxpayer dollars, we think students should be given a sound, broad-based education about a variety of topics — including religion.

Big bureaucratic bumbling lets oil companies get away

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — Oil companies that gouged the public during the period of price controls before 1981 may not have to pay millions of dollars in fines, thanks to federal bureaucrats rushing to meet a White House deadline for a new regulation.

The bumbling bureaucrats' hasty action allowed some oil companies to destroy records that the government would have needed to prosecute them for price-control violations, according to an unreleased General Accounting Office report obtained by our associate Lucette Lagnado. The report was requested by Rep. John Dingell, chairman of a House subcommittee on oversight and investigations.

The regulation that was so precipitately rescinded last year required oil companies to hold onto the records of their transactions throughout the period of price control, 1973 to 1981.

After decontrol, the Energy Department prosecuted many of the control-era price gougers, but as of last April, the GAO report notes: "About 370 cases involving about $4 billion in alleged violations remained to be resolved." The oil companies' records were vital to the prosecutions.

In the years since decontrol, the oilmen have complained repeatedly about the burden of record-keeping — which of course kept them in peril of prosecution — and the Energy Department has been sympathetic.

The government auditors found that the number of firms with records necessary for enforcement purposes has decreased substantially.

Back in November 1984, the department proposed a change in the regulations that would require only a relative handful of oil companies to retain their records from the decontrol years. The rest would be exempt.

The White House Office of Management and Budget established a deadline of Jan. 31, 1985, and the final regulation was issued on that date. The GAO auditors concluded that the department had been extremely hasty in its action and had thereby let many potential defendants off the hook. A GAO official suggested that the department was under constant pressure from a variety of sources to change the rule.

The department's haste was apparently compounded by inefficiency that also worked to the oil companies' benefit. Companies that would have to hold onto their records had to be notified — and many of the notifications were never delivered, for one reason or another.

As the auditors pointed out, firms that were not notified "could have disposed of — or could still dispose of — records needed for enforcement actions, without violating the regulations."

Furthermore, in its haste to issue the rule change by Jan. 31, the Energy Department failed to make clear which records should be retained by the oil companies that weren't exempt. When in doubt, the companies might well have destroyed the records the department would have needed to prosecute.

The January rule change allowed the exempt oil companies to destroy their records after June 30, 1985. Belatedly, the Energy Department realized this date was "unrealistic" if there were to be prosecutions in the future, and sent letters in May and June to 841 companies telling them to retain their records.

Due to undeliverable letters and letters delivered after June 30, 1985, the GAO reports, "129 of the 841 firms could have disposed of — or in some cases could still dispose of — their records, even though the records may be needed — for enforcement actions."

In its desperation, the department spent $7,000 on private investigators to locate oil companies that the Postal Service hadn't been able to find.

In letters to Energy Secretary John Herrington and Budget Director James Miller, Dingell said the agencies "took misguided, and, I believe, improper actions that could ultimately hurt your efforts to enforce, collect and distribute every last dollar of overcharges."

JAMES BOYS, 1980s-STYLE: Not all bank robbers these days walk in off the street with drawn guns; many are on the other side of the counter.

In fact, federal banking regulators estimate that two-thirds of all bank failures are traceable to insider abuses or gross mismanagement. The concern has now spread to credit unions.

Federal investigators will be checking the 15,100 federally insured financial co-ops following increasing incidents of fraud and favoritism — like unsecured loans to families and friends.

As in the savings-and-loan crisis of recent years, credit unions insured by the states are at greater risk than the federally insured.

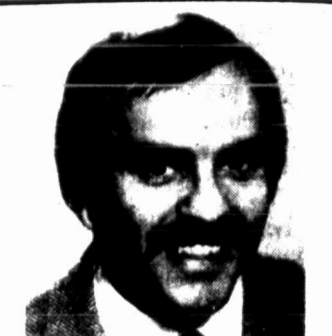

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: State Department help-wanted ads are appearing in major newspapers offering careers in "security."

This is evidence that Foggy Bottom is determined to beef up the protection of American embassy personnel against terrorist attacks around the world. But to the ever-suspicious budget watchdogs on Capitol Hill, the ads are also evidence that the new Bureau of Diplomatic Security may be another bureaucratic empire in the making. So they'll be watching the bureaucrats who watch out for the terrorists.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Was there a secret agreement at Reykjavik after all — one that wasn't announced but is already being implemented?

It's just possible that something went awry in translation, resulting in an agreement to reduce embassy staffs by 50 percent, instead of ICIBMs. Maybe it was the work of mischievous Hofdi House ghosts.

A return of McCarthyism in drug war

In a year that has brought us tax reform, an overhaul of the immigration laws, the first real effect of Gramm-Rudman and a near-agreement by the superpowers to abolish nuclear missiles, you would think political candidates would be able to talk about matters of substance. No such luck.

Instead, in races across the country, a new form of McCarthyism has emerged, posing the question: Have you ever used or tolerated illicit drugs? A "yes" answer, like an admission of past involvement with pro-communist groups back in the 1950s, requires the candidate to express profound remorse and to demonstrate his zeal for the new social consensus.

The most notable case is Lt. Gov. William Scranton III of Pennsylvania, who is running for governor. Scranton, who has admitted using "recreational drugs" in the late 1960s and early '70s, has gone out of his way to inveigh against the dangers of drug use. In Michigan, Democratic Rep. Bob Carr, who as a student wrote an article advocating the legalization of marijuana, now stoutly calls for measures to "stop the flow of drugs."

In Indiana, Rep. Frank McCloskey, accused by his opponent of having smoked opium (yes opium) while he was mayor of Bloomington, has denied it, though he admits to twice experimenting with marijuana some years ago.

There are plenty of other races where one or both contestants have demanded, usually successfully, that the other submit to a urinalysis. In Arkansas, the results of drug tests have been released not only by the two candidates for governor, but by their wives. Rare is the politician who has the nerve to reply to such a challenge as Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., did: "I'll take a drug test as soon as my opponent takes an IQ test."

All this piety gets pretty obnoxious, particularly when it relates to marijuana, a drug plainly less hazardous than those time-honored staples of middle-class life, alcohol and tobacco, and not much less popular.

Some people have short memories, but the fact is that among young adults, particularly college-age ones, marijuana use once was (and maybe still is) about as unusual as Levis.

Few of those who enjoyed it as students washed up on Crack Street. In fact, among my college acquaintances, I have noticed a direct relationship between the consumption of illicit substances as a student and the likelihood of becoming a lawyer, doctor or other respected professional. So why should politicians be held to account for youthful indiscretions that were as common for their generation as reckless boozing was for their parents?

The usual response is that breaking the law is a serious matter. Well, sometimes it is and sometimes it isn't. Would anyone vote against Scranton if they found out he once had gone 60 in a 55-mph zone? Of course not. But driving over the speed limit is illegal and, unlike marijuana, dangerous to other people. It is also exceedingly common.

Marijuana use is certainly illegal, but these statutes, like those against sodomy, survive only because they are not enforced. We keep the laws as a harmless expression of disapproval, secure in the assurance that the police and prosecutors generally will ignore them.

Politicians who reached maturity before the rise of the drug culture may be forgiven for defending the status quo, because most of them act out of pristine ignorance. But the Scrantons and McCloskeys know better, and they shouldn't defer to the prevailing hysteria.

Enough of the confession-and-repentance nonsense. Candidates with firsthand knowledge should be able to recognize the absurdity of our draconian drug laws.

Steve Chapman is a member of the Chicago Tribune editorial board. His commentary is distributed by Tribune Media Services.

"Actually, I think Mexican immigrants are very nice people... especially the ones who are registered Republicans!"

The border: broken dreams, affluence

By CAM ROSSIE
Associated Press Writer
REYNOSA, Mexico (AP) — "The dollar makes us dizzy," Maria del Rosario Rodriguez said. "It gives us illusions."

The private school director was speaking of Mexicans living in Reynosa and other cities and towns along the border with the United States.

The dollar and the change it can bring to the life of a poor Mexican is just a short way across the Rio Grande, and hundreds are drawn to it each year, hoping to reach "El Otro Lado" — the other side, a real-life El Dorado.

They come to border places like Reynosa. Some make it across to work at lucrative jobs, but for many others the dream lies shattered in Reynosa, the last stop.

"They sell everything they own to come north and try to cross the border," said Javier Martinez Gutierrez, commander of the Reynosa public security police.

"The problem for us is that they don't get work there. When they get picked up on the other side, the U.S. authorities send them back here. Then they turn to the easiest way to get money — washing cars, assaulting, robbing."

The U.S. Congress voted Oct. 17 to grant legal status, or amnesty, to all illegal aliens who entered the United States before Jan. 1, 1982. But it also voted to prohibit the hiring of illegal aliens in the United States.

The 2,062-mile U.S.-Mexico border has been called the "escape hatch" or the "safety valve," the gateway to the United States for a vast portion of the Mexican population that finds jobs harder to get, life tougher and more costly each day.

Reynosa, a city of about half a million people south of Hidalgo and McAllen in Texas, has been forced to accept that role.

Reynosa has its success stories. Concepcion Garza was a poor adolescent decades ago when he came here from a small farm his father worked. He never made it to high school. Now 59, Garza is a well-off Reynosa businessman, thanks, he says, to the opportunities he was given in the United States.

As a border resident, Garza has a card that allows him to cross into the United States whenever he wishes. He worked 15 years as a carpenter in McAllen, while maintaining his home in Reynosa.

The dollars he earned went a long way on the Mexican side of the border. He was able to send his three sons to the best technical university in Mexico, save enough money to start hardware and carpentry businesses in Reynosa and have a nice savings account in a U.S. bank.

"What I learned by living on the border is the importance of personal progress," he said. "More than anything I learned how to work."

Jesus Hernandez, 55, was not so fortunate. He came to Reynosa 40 years ago, swam across the Rio Grande and found a job in the fields in Texas. He worked there illegally for a year and a half before U.S.

authorities sent him back. Today he hangs around the Reynosa train station, a dilapidated old building facing a run-down produce and clothing market where some of the city's destitute congregate.

With him one recent day was Dario de la Cruz, 19, who said he arrived at the border with 7,000 pesos — less than $10 — in his pocket. The money lasted just a few days. Now he's looking for work and taking his meals wherever he can get them.

He said his search for work took him to Mexico City from Acapulco, where he grew up.

In Mexico City, he said, "They told me of the north and that you earn good money there."

But would-be illegal immigrants to the United States are a small minority of the people who live on the Mexican side of the border. And many of those here wouldn't move for any reason.

However, Ms. Rodriguez, the school director, maintains Mexico suffers a brain drain because capable Mexicans are using their talents in the United States.

"There, with less effort, you get more," she said.

Jose Alvarez, a 62-year-old retired security guard for the Pemex complex here, and his wife, Rosa Maria, are two of the many border residents who view the United States as a place only for a pleasant Sunday outing.

The couple moved to the border 27 years ago when Alvarez was transferred to Reynosa by Pemex. Their comfortable, air-conditioned home in the middle-class "Colonia Petrolera," the Pemex housing neighborhood near the company's refinery, has several American-made appliances.

Mrs. Alvarez teaches first grade at the Pemex school.

She, too, has a border crossing card.

"There, you go to a (shopping) mall. There's a place to sit down, get something to eat, forget the heat," Mrs. Alvarez said.

"Visiting is great, but the idea of living there doesn't attract me. For me, what is ours is important. In the school I'm somebody. I'm serving Mexican children."

The couple's five daughters are married or working in Mexico.

"In matters of happiness you live better here," her husband said. "But if you're talking about money, life is better there."

Even so, going to the United States can be expensive for Mexicans today because their peso has lost so much of its value in relation to the dollar.

Nearly five years ago, when the exchange rate was 27 pesos to the dollar, a $10 lunch on the Texas side of the border cost 270 pesos. Today, a $10 lunch costs more than 7,500 pesos, more than three times the daily minimum wage of 2,350 pesos.

But the proximity to the United States and dozens of other towns also has helped attract American "twin plant" industries, which has eased the burden here.

Thumbs up

A recipient of a toe-to-thumb transplant displays toes which have replaced his left thumb. After cutting off big toes and using them to replace missing thumbs on 60 patients since 1972, the controversial operation should be considered safe and reliable, a group of pioneering microsurgers said recently.

Sigma Chi fraternity celebrates Sweetheart

"The blue of her eyes and the gold of her hair,
"Are a blend of the western sky;
"And the moonlight beams on the girl of my dreams,
"She's the Sweetheart of Sigma Chi."

ALBION, Mich. (AP) — She was the coolest coed, the frat's meow, a mythic queen of the campus.

She supposedly inspired two Sigma Chi brothers to pen perhaps the most famous fraternity theme, tapping out the tune on an Albion College organ 75 years ago.

But "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" may not have been a real woman. She may not have been any sort of woman.

"The author once said that the 'sweetheart' was the fraternity itself," said Kim Strable, alumni director at Albion. "That kind of burst the bubbles of some gals who thought it was written for them."

Albion College on Saturday will honor the song written by alums Byron D. Stokes, who composed the words during class, and F. Dudley Vernor, who put them to music later that same day in 1911.

About 200 fraternity members and a dozen "sweethearts" elected by the chapter through the years are to attend a series of events, culminating with a mass "Sweetheart" serenade at halftime of the homecoming football game.

The song had been composed by Stokes and Vernor merely to mark the local Sigma Chi chapter's 25th anniversary. But other chapters nationwide began clamoring for copies, and it soon was adopted by the national fraternity.

William T. Bringham Sr., executive director of the national Sigma Chi chapter in Evansville, Ill. said the song remains popular among the fraternity's 150,000 members.

"The song prompted the selection of chapter sweethearts, and about 30 years ago we began electing a national sweetheart," he said.

Albion, appropriately enough, was the first chapter to elect a Sweetheart of Sigma Chi, Marjorie Hossfeld of the class of 1946. She's now Marjorie Slinger, 62, a grandmother from Northville.

"The song brings back a lot of warm memories," she said. "I was dating a Sigma Chi. In fact, I think I was engaged to him."

"But I really can't remember how I was selected."

Despite Stokes' contention that the song was about the fraternity, Strable said there always has been dispute over the inspiration. Vernor and Stokes both died in 1974.

"I've read that he (Stokes) didn't have a particular girl in mind, but wrote about what he thought a Sigma sweetheart should be," Erich Lines, a current Sigma Chi member at Albion, said Thursday.

"I've always assumed that it was for every Sigma Chi's girl," said Slinger. "But I fouled up. I married a Sigma Nu."

Cowboy fest clipped for racism

EL PASO — What started out to be a cowboy film festival got clipped down to just one movie after Hispanics and an Indian tribe denounced the event for promoting what they called a racist art form.

The event was the Western Film Festival, or more accurately, what was left of the project: one free showing Sunday of "Silverado," a Western movie released last year.

Originally scheduled to be a three-day festival with out-of-town speakers and a program of old Westerns, plans eroded when El Conclilio de El Paso and the Tigua Indians decried the festival and its movies as racist.

Patricia Roybal-Sutton — chairwoman of El Conclilio, an umbrella organization of Hispanic groups in El Paso County — says the groups objected to how Indians and Hispanics are portrayed in the movies.

Indians are depicted as savages and Hispanics are either lazy or banditos, she said.

Plan two for the festival was to be a fund-raiser showing of "Silverado" and a barbeque lunch. For lack of interest, that event was canceled last week and the Western Film Festival planning committee decided to show "Silverado" free to anyone interested in seeing it.

About 40 people showed up, some of whom didn't realize what they were seeing was the remainder of a project that some hoped would promote El Paso.

398 inmates released to halfway units

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Prison overcrowding did not play a role in the recent release of hundreds of inmates to halfway houses, a Texas Department of Corrections spokesman says.

The number of prisoners released through the TDC Pre-parole Transfer Program increased from 35 in mid-September to 398 last week.

"It's not used to control prison population, but it's another option TDC has," said prison spokesman David Nunnelee. "It's a good idea to get them into a halfway house and give them a head start in finding a job and getting on their feet."

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice in September rejected the state's proposal to house 300 inmates at Fort Wolters in Mineral Wells and an additional 95 at the TDC hospital in Galveston.

Prison officials wanted to transfer prisoners to those locations to keep the state's prison population at 38,374, a cap established by a 1983 state law.

But TDC spokesman Charles Brown said the rapid expansion of the halfway-house program after Justice's rejection of the Minerals Wells proposal was coincidental.

"We've had the pre-parole option for a long time. Since the judge denied Fort Wolters and Galveston, we're just using it," he said.

Inmates transferred to a halfway house are no longer included in the prison census, but they legally remain prisoners.

"We have a greater degree of control over them," said John Byrd, state parole board executive director. "We can return them to prison immediately. Parolees have to be given due process."

Although many state prisoners are released through the program, about 40 percent of the inmates interested are turned down, Brown said.

Since the program began in February 1984, 551 prisoners have been released with 86 being returned to prison.

Inmates at the houses can be reported as escapees two hours after they're discovered missing and can be charged with felony escape.

Those released in the pre-parole program are selected by prison and parole officials. Inmates who have had probations revoked or who are serving time for violent or sex crimes are eliminated from consideration.

Companies profit as minority

DALLAS (AP) — Houston inspectors discovered earlier this year that Minnick Construction Co. consisted of little more than a desk and a telephone, the Dallas Morning News reported today.

In a copyright story, the Dallas Morning News reported that inspectors were attempting to verify the company's status as a minority operated firm.

Inspectors discovered that company president Melvin Minnick owned no equipment and leased a small office in the same building as his former employer, E.B.L. Inc., a white-owned Houston contracting company.

They also discovered that projects obtained by Minnick, who is black, were awarded under a federal program that earmarks contracts for minorities, but the work was completed mainly by E.B.L. employees.

The inspection visit resulted in the banning of Minnick from a city program that reserves contracts exclusively for minority-controlled businesses. Minnick said he plans to appeal the ruling.

The Houston ban did not put Minnick out of business, however.

Less than a month later, Minnick was accepted into a similar program by the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation and his firm has since obtained $179,000 in state contracts.

Highway department officials said they did not call reference and did not conduct a field inspection, relying only on Minnick's written application.

Minnick's operation was similar to others discovered in a six-month investigation by the Dallas Morning News into minority contract awarding procedures.

The newspaper reported that white contractors are establishing front companies to subvert contract awarding programs for minority firms.

The newspaper said almost one-third of the money set aside to force states and contractors to do business with minority firms has been claimed by these fake companies.

Flimsy holidays result in surfeit of sentiment

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the grandmother who felt slighted because none of her grandchildren remembered her on Grandparents' Day really got to me. Then she complained to her daughter-in-law about the oversight, and was told that she (the daughter-in-law) had never even heard of Grandparents' Day!

The commercialism of Mother's Day and Father's Day was bad enough, but hucksters and retailers have found yet another source of income. Next can we expect Aunt's Day, Uncle's Day, In-Laws' Day, Cousin's Day, Minister's Day, Dog's Day, Cat's Day, right along with Secretaries' Day and Boss's Day? Where is all this going to end?

ROARING MAD
IN ROARING GAP, N.C.

DEAR ROARING: It ended in a senseless tragedy according to this Michigan reader:

DEAR ABBY: The so-called holidays are being blown up way out of proportion.

Last June, a grandfather waited until evening, and still no Father's Day card, so he wrote a note expressing his despair at being forgotten. First, he shot and killed three members of his family, then he killed himself. Sad? And worse yet, he had the date of Father's Day figured one week too early, so he killed three people and himself for nothing.

ANN PRATT, HOMER, MICH.

DEAR ABBY: Your recent column on how to discourage "junk mail" disturbed me greatly. The American Printing House for the Blind relies on direct-mail fund-raising to provide numerous services to the visually impaired. Fund-raising costs have soared in the past few years, and the last thing we need is a large number of people returning our postpaid envelopes filled with everything except money.

Since 1928, the American Printing House has produced and distributed the Braille Reader's Digest with funds donated by the public. In 1939, the recorded edition was begun. Every month, we ship over 20,000 copies to libraries serving visually and physically handicapped patrons, free. Weekly, over 11,000 copies of the recorded edition of Newsweek are mailed to reading handicapped patrons across the country, free, because of contributions received by mail. Funds raised from the public buy the buildings, equipment and tools we use to produce school materials provided to students under the federal Act to Promote the Education of the Blind, saving the federal government significant sums of money.

Public contributions to hundreds of organizations like ours fill real needs that exist among a variety of groups of people. Without this support, a multibillion-dollar burden would fall on local, state and federal government.

Opening a few envelopes is a small price for all of us to pay for the significant contributions of philanthropic organizations to our society.

CARSON Y. NOLAN,
PRESIDENT, AMERICAN
PRINTING HOUSE
FOR THE BLIND

DEAR MR. NOLAN: Thank you for setting me straight. A thousand apologies.

DEAR ABBY: There is so much talk of drunk driving and speeding, I thought the following might interest you:

Sing While You Drive

At 45 miles per hour sing, "Highways Are Happy Ways."

At 55 miles sing, "I'm but a Stranger Here, Heaven Is My Home."

At 65 miles sing, "Nearer My God to Thee!"

At 75 miles sing, "When the Roll Is Called Up Yonder, I'll Be There."

At 85 miles sing, "Lord, I'm Coming Home."

Septic arthritis: There's good news and bad

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: When my husband came up suddenly with a pain in his knee, he didn't know what to make of it. It was like gout pain, from what we'd read about gout, at least. But what it was was arthritis, septic arthritis. The cause was a bacteria that got into the joint. He was laid up for months and had to go easy after that. So far, no new trouble. He seems well. I'd still like to know more about this problem. — Mrs. H.P.M.

Dr. Donohue

There are many forms of arthritis. We usually think of it as an illness that develops gradually, like the rheumatoid kind, where several joints may be affected at once.

Septic arthritis (or infectious arthritis) is different. It may come on, as you say, with the abruptness of a gout attack. But it isn't gout. It is the sudden and severe inflammation of a joint following an infection there. The usual cause is bacterial, i.e. staph bacteria.

There's good and bad news about septic arthritis in comparison to the other forms. The infection poses an immediate danger, and so immediate attention is needed, which is medicine to attack the organism responsible. The good part is that when treated the situation usually resolves itself, although there may be need for extended rest and rehabilitation of the joint.

Usually, a single joint (the knee is a favorite one) is infected. The organism, which can be viral or fungal as well as bacterial, gets to the joint in various ways. It may be carried via the blood from a distant point of infection, or it may even enter the joint by way of trauma, as in a bad accident. Sometimes the germ may originate in soft tissue next to the joint.

Septic arthritis is diagnosed by examining joint fluid for evidence of an infecting organism. I'm happy to hear your husband is doing so well.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a 65-year-old male. As you know, when you get along in years you accept some aches and pains as a part of aging. I've been walking around with an aching right leg for a couple of years. No doubt a touch of arthritis — I thought, I would never have mentioned it to my doctor except that his nurse handed me a questionnaire when I went in recently. I put a check after "aching leg." I found out what I had was a blocked artery, which they took care of with angioplasty (the balloon deal, I call it).

What I'm getting at is for you to emphasize to your readers the need to tell their doctors about any discomforts, and not to accept things as part of aging necessarily. How can a doctor help you if he or she doesn't know of a problem? — J.A.A.

Your letter stands on its two healthy legs. No need for comment.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

From: Your neighbors in Big Lake and Reagan County

We are pleased to be able to write this letter in support of John R. Anderson, candidate for the Texas Legislature, 69th District.

We know Mr. Anderson and we know he is a respected member of your community. We are sick and tired of immature politicians who try to use smear tactics to show otherwise.

We need a representative in Austin who will:

•Represent us and not special interest groups. We need a mature representative who will think about Big Spring, Big Lake and West Texas first. We don't need a yes man. We need Anderson... a can do representative.

We need a representative in Austin who will:

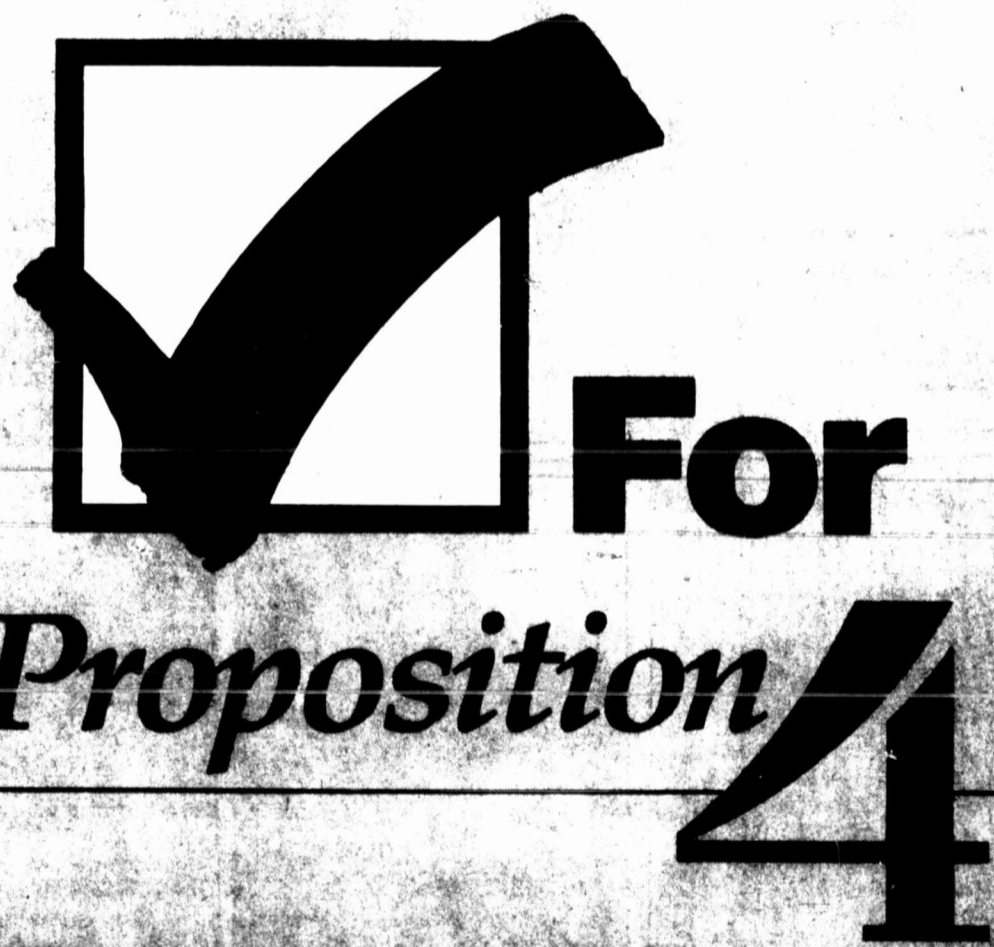

•Talk to our local school administrators before voting on bills detrimental to our local budgets. We are tired of having no effective representation. We want a representative who will put our schools, cities, and counties first. Anderson can best represent us. He has worked on local boards and knows the impact of decisions in Austin.

We ask you to join with us to elect

'Feast or famine' a way of life

By JUDITH MCGINNIS
Austin bureau

For an estimated 60 million Americans affected by eating disorders, "feast or famine" is no longer just a catch phrase. For them, it has become a way of life.

"The bulimic, the anorexic and the bulimarexic suffer the same illness as an alcoholic," said Dr. William Rader, a psychiatrist who has pioneered in the research of these diseases. "They have an addiction to the one thing which is most dangerous to them. The most important difference is that while an alcoholic may set the glass down for the rest of his life, people with eating disorders must face their devil three times a day."

Eating disorders cross all social, economic, racial and gender barriers. Although anorexia nervosa was initially believed to be an illness that principally afflicted teen-age girls, research now shows that older women and men may also starve themselves to lose weight.

A recent Gallup poll concluded that as many as one in 10 American women (ages 19 to 39) periodically go on food binges, and then almost half of them resort to extreme measures such as fasting or self-induced vomiting to keep themselves from gaining weight.

"What is most frightening are the attitudes we project on our children," Rader recently told a group of medical professionals and individuals interested in his eating disorders clinic.

One survey indicated 80 percent of the 10-year-olds questioned were on a diet.

"We're talking about 10-year-old kids who believed they had a weight problem. The media pushes (the idea that) thin is in or that being thin will make you more popular, more sexy. Parents who are constantly concerned about their weight can create a climate of fat hysteria for children. And all of this to meet a physical standard fabricated by Madison Avenue."

Rader, who initially developed treatment programs for alcoholics, said it is time that eating disorders be recognized as equally serious emotional problems.

"This is a legitimate illness, as capable of destroying a life as alcoholism or drug addiction," he said. "We can't continue to dismiss eating disorders as a teen-age fad or something that people could cope with if they just used a little will power."

"No one tells a junkie to end his lust for heroin by using will power."

Rader expressed concern for the hidden nature of eating disorders. The families of many victims are not even aware there is a problem until it is too late.

"I spoke to the mother of a young woman who died recently from complications of bulimarexia," he said. "She told me about what a bright, beautiful child (her daughter) had been, a pleasure to everyone who knew her. They had great plans for her future."

"One morning when her daughter failed to appear for breakfast, she went upstairs to check. She found her daughter dead. The coroner's office would declare the cause cardio-respiratory failure due to hypoglycemia."

"While later going through the young woman's things, she found empty doughnut, cookie and fried chicken boxes, two pizza containers, two half-gallon milk containers, a double potato chip bag, candy bar wrappers and a bottle of syrup of ipecac."

After his talk was completed, Rader opened the floor for questions. A sturdy-looking man in his late 30's who called himself Buddy stood and spoke.

"I came here in a driving rain this morning to tell all of you that there is hope. Seven years ago, when my weight hit 375 pounds, I had lost a wife of 13 years, my family and my work. I thought no one would ever understand, and that my life was over," he said. "With help, I lost the weight and regained my self-respect, but I only wish there had been a place like this clinic then."

Survey shows deadly force problem

DALLAS (AP) — Attempts to restrict city officers' use of deadly force are not working here, where citizens are more likely to be killed by police than in any other major U.S. city, according to a newspaper survey.

In 1985, the rate of fatal shootings by police was five times higher than New York and twice as high as Houston when numbers of shootings are compared to number of residents, the Dallas Times Herald reported Sunday.

Dallas officers killed nine citizens in all of last year, giving the city a .924 rate per 100,000 population, and nine people have been shot in the first nine months of this year.

Los Angeles ranked second at 743 in residents slain in 1985 among the 10 cities' police departments the newspaper surveyed.

Since 1970, the national rate of fatal police shootings dropped 34 percent, according to the Washington-based Crime Control Institute. But in Dallas, the rate increased during that time by 31 percent.

Violence against police has also been on the increase in this Sun Belt city. This year, one policeman was killed in Dallas and 20 have been threatened with deadly weapons, statistics show.

In 1984, the department made changes in its deadly force policy, including prohibiting the use of deadly force solely to protect property.

Letter to the People of the 69th District

A month ago I publicly challenged my opponent to a debate to clarify the untruthful charges he has made against me and more importantly to discuss the issues concerning the 69th District. He chose to ignore the challenge.

Rather than meet me face to face on these accusations, Shaw preferred to continue his deceptive letter writing and ads and to make his libelous phone calls.

Mr. LaRouche, whom Shaw refers to so repeatedly, is a Democrat, and therefore a democratic problem. I have never, repeat, never endorsed LaRouche or any of his followers.

My opponent was once a Republican. Does this make him "a fringe" politician? He changed his allegiance directly out of college, when he chose to make politics his career.

I have run a successful business for 34 years. I have worked for rural West Texas for all these years and I will continue to do so. I am not a career politician.

While traveling the district I find that West Texans want a strong effective voice in Austin, one with business experience and one who practices fiscal responsibility.

My campaign has been a positive one. I have run on my proven ability as a leader and my truly conservative philosophy.

I have taken my campaign from door to door, and when elected, my door in Austin will always be open to you.

Respectfully Yours,
John R. (Rich) Anderson

FACTS

- FACT: John R. "Rich" Anderson is spending a small fortune trying to convince us he never had anything to do with fringe extremist groups!
- FACT: Anderson ran as a member of the fringe constitutional party against another conservative democrat — Congressman George Mahon.
- FACT: Anderson bought advertising, leased the auditorium and lead the program for a Lyndon LaRouche candidate running for Chairman of the Texas Democratic Party.

WHICH PHILOSOPHY DOES ANDERSON REALLY REPRESENT?

Anderson has been associated with the fringe constitution party — the republican party — the democratic party — the Lyndon LaRouche extremist group.

LARRY DON SHAW

Democrat for State Representative

- ★ Rep. Larry Don Shaw is now a member of the powerful House Appropriations Committee.
- ★ The number of bills passed by Rep. Larry Don Shaw is four times the average for member's of the House and includes the following:
- ★ Cost cutting package trimming state spending by over $100 million a year. A vigorous anti-crime package making it easier to prosecute drug dealers, rapists and criminals who sexually abuse children.
- ★ As Vice Chairman of the Natural Resources Committee Shaw helped draft and pass the first statewide water plan approved by Texas voters.

SO WHAT'S REP. SHAW DONE FOR US LATELY?

- ★ Larry Don Shaw as instrumental in stopping the closing of Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, West Texas Children's Home and Scenic Mountain State Park.
- ★ Shaw successfully negotiated the appointment of a West Texan from our district to the SSC Task Force which could bring new jobs and billions of dollars to our district.
- ★ Larry Don was a key player in winning approval of a new four lane highway for our district.
- ★ Shaw was instrumental in stopping attempts to close Sul Ross, UTPB and the McDonald Observatory.
- ★ Larry Don was the driving force in attaining $650,000 in State aid for Big Spring after severe floods this summer.

I hope each voter will ask himself these two questions: First, which candidate more closely represents my positions? And second, which candidate can command the respect it takes to make West Texas's case in a Legislature now dominated by urban members?

CAMPAIGN NEWS

Democrats, Republicans & Independents Strongly Supporting John Anderson

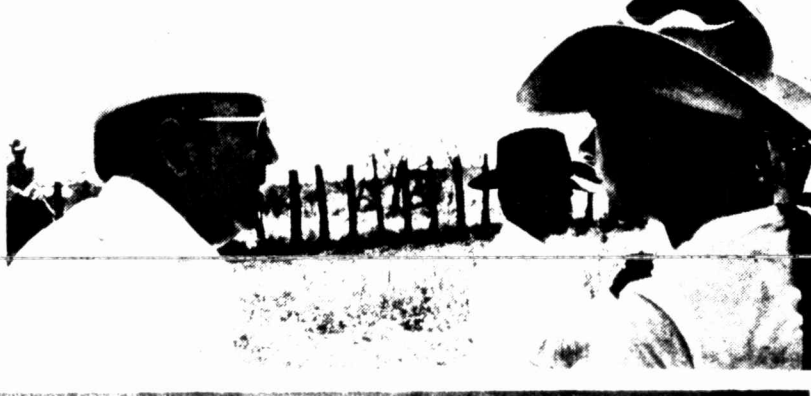

Anderson Knocks On Over 10,000 Doors

John Anderson has gone directly to the people in his campaign for State Representative. He has been seeking their ideas and listening to their concerns.

"Running for public office is challenging because it requires getting out and meeting lots of people every day," Anderson said. "After you've met and talked with several hundred people in a day, you really know what's on their minds."

For the past six months, Anderson has dedicated himself to meeting as many people as possible in this district. By any standards, that dedication has been extraordinary. He has been to some 10,000 homes, stores and meeting halls, and up and down many sidewalks.

As a citizen and voter himself, Anderson believes votes must be earned, and that people must never be taken for granted. The last poll taken showed that Democrats, Republicans and Independents are strongly supporting Anderson.

John R. Anderson Will Be An Effective State Representative For Our District

Anderson does his homework. He thinks for himself, but is always ready to listen and learn. He will speak out. Importantly, he understands the value of teamwork and cooperation to get things done.

If you have met Anderson, you know he is the kind of guy that won't be afraid to stand up and fight for what he believes in. He will be a strong voice in state government who will strive to represent us in a responsible, effective way.

The Anderson Family

Anderson and his wife, Barbara, have been going door-to-door. And the rest of the family, including his four children, have been pitching in, too.

Anderson, 57, is a true West Texas farmer and rancher. He has owned and successfully managed a ranch in this district for 34 years (4th generation Texas rancher). His wife, the former Barbara Clayton, is a member of an old West Texas family.

The Andersons understand well the people and problems of West Texas.

PRIME TIME OR ANY TV — is out. It is too expensive. Anderson is the underdog in this race, however, because of his vigorous shoe-leather campaign in all 13 counties he has a good chance to win.

ANDERSON HAS TAKEN HIS CAMPAIGN TO THE PEOPLE

In The Best Texas Tradition

Anderson was born in Midland. Naturally, he has a special love for the land and its people. Those who have met him know that his friendliness and sincere dedication will be an asset for the people of this district.

In addition, Anderson brings to the race proven leadership abilities evidenced by a wide range of experience and activity in civic and community affairs. He is always ready to listen and help.

Anderson believes we must hold the line on taxes; get even tougher with criminals, drug pushers, and DWI offenders; concentrate on teaching the basics in our schools; and protect Texas' right-to-work laws.

Anderson Is A Proven Leader

- ★ Served for 10 years as the President of the Borden County School Board.
- ★ Served as a director of the Malone-Hogan Hospital and as a director of the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center in Big Spring.
- ★ Served as Chairman of the Ranching Heritage Association.

- ★ Serves as director of the Texas and Southwest Cattle Raisers Associations.
- ★ Has been cited many times for his work in soil and water conservation in West Texas.
- ★ Is a dedicated leader in his church and community.

Anderson Stands For:

- ★ Right-To-Work
- ★ Tough on Criminals
- ★ Effective, Efficient Government
- ★ Local Control
- ★ Property Rights
- ★ Keeping Taxes To A Minimum

The Conclusion	ANDERSON IS THE CONSERVATIVE	SHAW ?

I Am Committed . . .

I am not a professional politician, and never will be. I would like to give something back to this special area of Texas which has been so good to my family and me.

I have committed to take my campaign to the people of this district. In the past six months, I have knocked on over 10,000 doors, walked up and down the sidewalks, and attended more dinners and meetings than I can count.

It sounds like a lot of work, but it actually has been a most gratifying experience that has allowed me to meet so many wonderful people in this district and — importantly — to listen to them. I want to hear what the people have to say about what our priorities should be, where they see problems, and what they think can be done to solve them.

What I'm finding is that my views are very much like yours. We share deep concerns about crime, the rising cost of living, water resources, energy, health care and education.

I am not going to make unrealistic promises. No one person can do it alone, but I can and will work and fight with everything I have to do my part to change things for the better and to be an effective state representative for you.

I would appreciate your vote on November 4th.

Sincerely,

John R. Anderson

Giants nip Pokes

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The New York Giants retained a piece of first place in the NFC East with a little sleight of hand from veteran defensive end George Martin and an offense named Joe Morris.

Morris had his second straight 181-yard rushing performance and scored on runs of 8 and 6 yards Sunday as the Giants defeated Dallas 17-14 in a game in which Cowboys quarterback Danny White suffered a fractured right wrist.

The victory gave New York a 7-2 mark and left the Giants tied for first place in the division with the Washington Redskins, a game ahead of Dallas. Washington defeated Minnesota in overtime Sunday.

The Giants' victory was in doubt until Cowboys placekicker Rafael Septien was short on a 63-yard field goal attempt in the final 10 seconds.

Septien, who also missed from 33 and 42 yards on a windy day, might have been in better position had it not been for Martin, a cagy 12-year veteran.

With 40 seconds to play and the Cowboys at the Giants' 27, Martin beat Dallas tackle Phil Ponderac and sacked quarterback Steve Pelluer for a 14-yard loss.

Two plays later with the crowd of 74,871 yelling, Martin made the play of the game, waving his right arm just before the snap. Ponderac flinched and the procedure call nullified a 30-yard pass completion from Pelluer to Timmy Newsome.

"He couldn't hear the snap count," said Martin. "He was going on my movement and I knew that because his focus was on me. I felt that if I moved he would react to it."

The penalty pushed the ball back to the 46 and made Septien's kick a little too long.

"Somehow it wasn't our day and it wasn't my day," said Septien, who said he kicked a 58-yard field goal in practice. "I tried a little too hard and when you have to overpower it, it's hard to do a perfect job."

The person who did have a perfect day was Morris, who after holding out during training camp is now rounding into the form he showed last year when he gained a club-record 1,336 yards and scored 21 touchdowns.

"Last week one of the people in the press questioned whether I could gain 50 yards against the Redskins," said Morris, who has now rushed for 880 yards this season. "Then they said we weren't going to score a point against the Redskins. You take that personally. I just go out and show people I can play football."

Morris had no problem proving that to Dallas. He set up a 25-yard field goal by Raul Allegre in the first quarter with four rushes for 52 yards.

The five-year pro from Syracuse ran the ball seven times for 54 yards on the Giants' first touchdown drive in the second quarter. POKES page 2B

Dolphins drill Oilers

MIAMI (AP) — Who would've thought that when the Miami Dolphins finally put together back-to-back victories, it would be the defense that provided the spark?

But that has happened in the past two Sundays. The same defense which has been the worst in the league all season in points allowed has given up 13 and 7 points in consecutive games as the Dolphins improved to 4-5.

A week ago, the Miami defense made a dramatic final stand to clinch a 17-13 victory over Indianapolis. Sunday in the Orange Bowl, it was even better in a 20-7 victory over the Houston Oilers.

Quarterback Dan Marino probably snared most of the headlines with his four touchdowns passes and 220 passing yards against the Oilers, but the defense was what left a smile on Dolphins Coach Don Shula's face.

The Oilers finished with 301 total yards, but 159 of those came in the fourth quarter when the Dolphins played loose to protect a 28-0 lead.

It also should be noted that the Oilers racked up most of their yardage after rookie linebacker John Offerdahl left the Miami lineup early in the second half to rest his sore ankle. Despite his limited playing time, Offerdahl ended up with 10 tackles and a sack.

The gambling Oilers defense stopped the Dolphins on their first four possessions. Then, Marino suddenly began to pick up the blitzes and read the coverages. Four possessions later, the Dolphins were up 28-0.

"I think we had a little bit of confusion early, but with the kind of defense Houston plays that's expected," said Marino, who had 5 passing yards in the Dolphins first four possessions.

"I knew we would move the ball eventually," said Marino. "We were able to get some big plays because of their aggressive style of defense."

The big plays came in bunches for the Dolphins as Marino threw for three touchdowns in a 4:29 span late in the second period. He added one more TD pass on the first possession of the second half before the Oilers got tough again.

Marino's quartet of scoring tosses covered 8, 38, 3 and 65 yards. He completed 12 of 29 passes with two interceptions.

"We thought we had (Marino) confused early, but the quarterback, the way he is, he figured it out," Houston Coach Jerry Glanville said.

Marino completed passes of 25, 14 and 22 yards on the drive capped by an 8-yard scoring pass to Mark Clayton with 5:08 left in the half.

After a Houston punt and a 25-yard run by Miami's Ron Davenport, Marino connected with veteran receiver Nat Moore for a 38-yard TD with 2:10 remaining. An interception and 36-yard return by safety Donovan Rose three plays later set up a 3-yard scoring pass from Marino to Tony Nathan 39 seconds before halftime. OILERS page 2B

Foreigners take wins in New York Marathon

NEW YORK (AP) — Winning the New York City Marathon was a new and exhilarating experience for Gianni Poli of Italy. Being the first woman finisher in the race has become pleasantly habit-forming for Grete Waitz of Norway.

Poli raced to an easy victory Sunday in his first New York City Marathon, covering the 26-mile, 385-yard course in 2 hours, 11 minutes, 6 seconds — exactly 17 minutes ahead of Waitz, the women's winner for the fifth consecutive year and eighth time in nine years.

Poli had to be excited, after beating a standout field that included Robleh Djama of Djibouti and favored Rob de Castella of Australia, the 2-3 finishers, respectively, at Chicago last year. Djama, who ran 2:08:08 in the America's Marathon, dropped out between the 12th and 13 miles Sunday, while de Castella, seeking his third straight victory this year, tired in the closing stages and finished third in 2:11:43.

He stayed with the leaders early in the race, then after jockeying for the No. 1 spot with de Castella for about four miles, surged into command between the 20th and 21st miles.

"Over the last 10 kilometers (6.2 miles), I felt I was doing well and I had a growing excitement inside," Poli, whose only previous marathon victory was in the 1984 Italian championships, said. "I began feeling the crowd."

The performances by Poli and Pizzolato, who was fourth in 2:12:13, led an excellent showing by Italian runners. They placed four among the top nine men and three among the top eight women.

Waitz, as usual, ran a consistent race and won easily, as the first three women finished in the same order as they did last year. Australia's Lisa Martin was second in 2:29:12 and Italy's Laura Fogli third in 2:29:44.

Waitz' eight victories equalled the most by a runner in the same marathon. John J. Kelly won the Yonkers Marathon eight consecutive times, from 1956-63.

Sunday's race drew a field of 20,141, the most ever for a marathon in the United States. Race officials said 19,833 runners finished.

New York City Marathon winners Gianni Poli of Italy (left) and Grete Waitz of Norway hold up a trophy after the completion of the race Sunday in New York. Poli, running with an injury, finished first in his debut race. Waitz won the women's division for a record-equaling eighth time in nine years.

Redskins outscore Vikings, 44-38

By The Associated Press. Three missed extra points forced the Washington Redskins to work overtime. Thanks to Gary Clark, the Redskins only had to go an extra 106 seconds for a thrilling 44-38 victory over Minnesota.

Clark, the NFC's leading receiver, ignored a strained hamstring to catch a 38-yard touchdown pass from Jay Schroeder Sunday, lifting the Redskins to victory. Washington, 7-2, remained tied with the New York Giants atop the NFC East.

Clark caught the ball on the left sideline at the 30, spun out of the grasp of Minnesota defensive back Carl Lee, then went into the end zone untouched.

NFL

Clark had to go back in because Max Zendejas missed those extra points. The Redskins sent the game into overtime on George Rogers' third touchdown of the game, a 2-yard run, with 63 seconds left in the fourth quarter. But Zendejas blew a chance to win it.

The Redskins won the toss in overtime and then drove 63 yards in four plays for the winning score. Kramer was responsible for Minnesota's impressive attack. He threw for a team-record 490 yards and four touchdowns. Schroeder completed 24 of 47 passes for 378 yards and two touchdowns.

Tonight, the Los Angeles Rams are at the Chicago Bears.

Chiefs 24, Chargers 23. Al Saunders was seven seconds away from winning his first game as the Chargers' head coach. But Kansas City, trailing 23-21 with 57 seconds remaining, drove from its 31 to the San Diego 19 in five plays.

Nick Lowery's 37-yard field goal then won it.

"There's a big difference between a 37-yard field goal and a 59-yard field goal," Lowery said. "This is the most important one I've made because this is the first time I think we have a team that can make the playoffs."

The Chiefs are second in the AFC West with a 6-3 record, two games behind Denver. San Diego, 1-8, has lost eight straight. Don Coryell resigned as Chargers coach last week.

Bengals 24, Lions 14

A 49-yard pass interference call against Detroit's Demetrius Johnson set up the winning 1-yard touchdown run by Larry Kinnebrew with 40 seconds remaining. On a second-and-20 at the Cincinnati 40-yard line, quarterback Boomer Esiason passed for Cris Collinsworth. Johnson bumped Collinsworth at the Lions' 11, giving the Bengals a first down. Four plays later, Kinnebrew scored.

Stanley Wilson had touchdown runs of two and four yards for Cincinnati, while Detroit's Eric Hipple threw a 36-yard touchdown pass to Leonard Thompson and a 5-yarder to Jimmie Giles.

Eddie Murray, who kicked an 18-yard field goal, became the Lions' all-time scoring leader with 637 points, one better than Errol Mann.

Bucs 34, Bills 28

The Bills lost their 21st straight road game, two short of the NFL record, thanks to poor ballhandling on kick returns. Buffalo's Eric Richardson ran a kickoff to his 10, where he handed off to Ron Pitts on a reverse. Pitts, who later scored on a 49-yard punt return, dropped the ball, tried to pick it up at the 8 but was hit by Bucs linebacker Kevin Murphy. The ball rolled into end zone, where Pat Franklin recovered for a 10-lead.

Later, the Bills' Walter Broughton muffed another kickoff in the end zone. He kicked the ball out to the 2, where Rod Jones recovered. Steve Young scored on the next play.

The Bills came on as Jim Kelly passed for three second-half touchdowns and finished with 28 completions in 39 attempts for 343 yards.

Cardinals 13, Eagles 10

Backup quarterback Cliff Stoudt rallied St. Louis with a 14-yard scoring pass to Roy Green with 5:04 remaining, then Stump Mitchell ran one yard to score with 36 seconds left. Stoudt, who replaced Neil Lomax to start the second half, completed seven of 10 passes for 54 yards.

Philadelphia missed a chance to win when receiver Gregg Garrity was dragged down by Carl Carter at the Cardinals' 2 on the game's final play after a 34-yard pass from quarterback Ron Jaworski.

Jets 38, Seahawks 7

The Jets set a team mark with their seventh straight victory on the arm of Ken O'Brien, who had four touchdown passes and 431 yards. O'Brien found Al Toon for scores of 50 and 36 yards, hooked up with Wesley Walker on an 83-yard bomb and hit Mickey Shuler for a 1-yard touchdown.

Toon caught nine passes for 195 yards, his best day in his two seasons as a professional, while Walker made six receptions for 161 yards.

"We got on a roll today," O'Brien said. "Wherever we got the ball, the offense was confident we could move it. We got hot."

Steelers 27, Packers 3

Weegie Thompson, filling in for injured Louis Lipps, caught three touchdown passes from Mark Malone. Thompson made an 18-yard first-quarter scoring catch following Gary Ellerson's second fumble, caught a 9-yarder in the third period to make it 20-3, and had a diving 6-yard touchdown catch in the fourth period. Thompson caught six passes for 78 yards after making eight catches for one touchdown in the Steelers' first eight games.

Broncos 21, Raiders 10

The Broncos won despite getting only 11 first downs to 25 for the Raiders and accumulating just 246 yards in total offense to 407 yards for Los Angeles.

Quinn's Quarter

Here is what Big Spring coach Quinn Eudy said about his team's 28-7 win over Monahans and this week's game against the Snyder Tigers.

"I'm happy to be in the playoffs but my main concern is beating Snyder and clinching the district championship. I'd much rather be a first-place playoff team than a second-place playoff team."

"There were several factors in our win over Monahans. The fake punt really changed the momentum. Then coach Knippa (Scott Knippa, Steers offensive coordinator) called the reverse pass and that was really a turning point. Cedric Banks did a good job of throwing the ball and Shawn Shellman did a good job of catching it."

"Except for their long touchdown run, the kids were really playing well up to that point. They just needed a spark and those two plays did the job. We got excited, played well and it carried over to the third quarter."

"At the first of the season everyone was worried about our third quarter swoons, but we've overcome all those factors. Another big play was in the fourth quarter when the defense stopped them on the two-point conversion on their next to last touchdown. Plus John Olsen kicked all of his extra points."

Then there was our drive in the fourth quarter which resulted in a blocked field goal. Although we didn't score, we ate up seven minutes of the clock. "Phillip Mathews and Paul Decker played excellent games and the defense came through when it had to. I'll tell you what, that Charles Thompson (Monahans running back) is one heck of a football player."

"As far as injuries, Charles White (Steer running back) is the only possible injured player. He has a bruised foot and we don't know if he'll play against Snyder."

"Snyder probably has the best material of any team in the district. They don't have a Thompson, but they have some real good backs and some huge linemen. They have two seniors on the line that are major college prospects."

"It's always a good rivalry, I think the kids will be ready to play."

Jordan and Bulls down Cavs, 98-89

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Michael Jordan saw a lot of himself in rookie Ron Harper, the man who trying to guard him.

"If you want to be successful in the NBA, you've got to challenge your opponent. That's the same attitude I had when I came into the league," Jordan said after he scored 41 points, mostly against Harper, helping the Chicago Bulls to a 94-89 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers Sunday night.

Jordan has won most of his challenges so far this season. In the Bulls' regular-season opener Saturday night in New York, Jordan scored 50 points as the Bulls defeated the Knicks.

The 6-foot-6 Harper, the eighth player taken overall in the 1986 NBA draft, has often been compared to the flashy Jordan, a third-year guard who is one of the league's most versatile performers.

Harper played confidently Sunday, trying to match Jordan move-for-move, until the final two minutes of the game, when Jordan single-handedly rallied the Bulls from an 89-86 deficit.

Jordan scored his team's final 11 points, including eight unanswered points to close the game.

"Harper's going to be a very good player," Jordan said. "He's very confident with his offensive game. But I think he has a little tentative at the end. He's got to learn to take over a game. By about mid-season, he's going to be the guy they go to in the fourth quarter."

"He may have more moves than everybody else in the NBA put together," said Harper, who led Cleveland with 23 points.

In the only other NBA game Sunday, Atlanta beat Philadelphia 122-113.

Cleveland led by as many as 17 points in the first half before taking a 53-44 halftime lead.

Bulls' reserve center Dave Corzine then scored eight of his 13 points during a 16-point Chicago streak that gave the Bulls a 73-66 advantage late in the third period.

Cleveland rallied to regain the lead at 89-86 on baskets by Keith Lee and rookie Brad Daugherty with about two minutes to play.

Jordan, however, scored with 1:40 to go to pull the Bulls within 89-88, and after Harper missed a scoop shot, Jordan's short jumper from the left side of the lane put Chicago ahead to stay at 90-87.

He added a jumper from the right baseline, then set two free throws with 17 seconds to play after he fell hard on his back as he drove to the basket and was fouled by Mark West.

"I'm going to be aching tomorrow," Jordan said.

Daugherty had 18 points and 15 rebounds for Cleveland. Charles Oakley grabbed 15 rebounds for the Bulls.

Hawks 122, 76ers 113

Dominique Wilkins scored 36 points and Atlanta held host Philadelphia scoreless for almost six minutes of the second half.

The Hawks, who beat the 76ers four out of five games last season, also got 21 points from Kevin Willis and 14 points and 15 assists from Doc Rivers.

Philadelphia's Charles Barkley and Maurice Cheeks got 26 points apiece.

Spikers end season with win

ANDREWS — The Big Spring Lady Steers closed out their volleyball season on a winning note as they downed the Andrews Mustangs 15-12, 16-14 Saturday afternoon.

Coach Elaine Stone's team ends the season with a 5-11 district record and 10-16 overall slate. The Lady Steers finished district in seventh place.

Stone credited seniors Lisa Hale and Sheri Myrick with playing good games. "The seniors pulled us through. They knew it was their last volleyball game in a Big Spring uniform and it was important to them," said Stone of Hale and Myrick's play.

The junior varsity Lady Steers lost 13-15, 15-11, 11-15. They end their season with a 7-9 district record and 11-13 overall slate.

The freshmen Lady Steers won in three games. They end the season with a 5-14 record.

Runnels makes sweep of Pecos

Both the Runnels Yearlings A and B football teams came away with wins over the Pecos Eagles Saturday afternoon at Blankenship Field.

The B team pushed its record to 6-1 by taking a 28-0 win. Joe Mirmontez scored on a 96-yard "flea flicker" play and Greg Green scored two TD's. The first was a 53-yard pass from Louis Soldan and the second was a 22-yard run off a reverse.

Soldan scored the final Runnels TD on a two-yard quarterback sneak.

Goliad coach Ed Gauer credited David Risner and Demis Moraes with playing good games.

The Runnels A team defeated Pecos by a 30-6 score. Neal Mayfield, who had 199 yards rushing in 11 carries, scored on TD runs of 61, 39 and 11. He also ran in three, two-point conversions. Freddy Rodriguez scored the final TD on a 55-yard run. Rodriguez gained 91 yards in 11 carries.

Gauer credited Mike West, Lamont Jojola, Marly Cribbs, Santos Martinez and Frank Garza with playing good games.

Runnels AS is now 2-5 for the season.

route on me and broke it for a first down. They ended up kicking a field goal and that's something that has set in my craw ever since.

"I said that when we came back out here this time I was going to do something to make sure we won the game."

Denver, 8-1, grabbed a three-game lead over archrival Los Angeles in the AFC West and swept the season series. There hasn't been a split in this series since 1977 — the Broncos have swept in 1978, 1981, 1984 and 1986 while the Raiders swept in 1979, 1980, 1983 and 1985. The teams met only once in the strike-interrupted 1982 season with Los Angeles winning.

Saints 23, 49ers 10

New Orleans damaged San Francisco's division title hopes as Rueben Mayes ran for two touchdowns and Morten Andersen kicked three field goals. The Saints, 4-5, allowed only a field goal during three San Francisco drives deep into New Orleans territory.

Third-string quarterback Mike Moroski, subbing for injured Jeff Kemp — who has been playing for disabled Joe Montana — hit on 23 of 40 passes for 332 yards but was intercepted twice. San Francisco is 5-3-1.

"It's tough for a team to lose. Everybody's going to be in a bad mood all week. It's even worse that we lost by 13 points to a divisional team," 49ers receiver Dwight Clark said.

Patriots 25, Falcons 17

Irving Fryar's 59-yard punt return and three field goals by Tony Franklin in the second half led a New England comeback. The Falcons had allowed just 34 second-half points all season and none in their last two games, but they blew a 10-9 halftime lead.

Atlanta was hurt by an official's decision after viewing the instant replay in the first half. Replay official Joe Gardi reversed the on-field officials' decision that David Archer's 16-yard pass to Arthur Cox was a touchdown.

Gardi said only one of Cox's feet had touched the ground in the end zone before free safety Fred Marion jarred the ball loose. It took him nearly five minutes to make his decision, then Mick Luckhurst missed a 36-yard field goal try.

"I only saw one foot down," Gardi said. "The third spot (replay) I saw really helped. ... I was looking at the feet and the ball coming loose."

Browns 24, Colts 9

Bernie Kosar threw three touchdowns passes, including a 72-yarder to Herman Fontenot as Cleveland stayed in a tie with Cincinnati for first place in the AFC Central. Kosar also hit Brian Bannan and Ozzie Newsome for scores.

Newsome, who moved past Bobby Mitchell into 11th place on the league's all-time list for receptions with his third catch of the day, made a diving catch in the end zone of a 9-yard throw in the third quarter.

The Colts, 0-9, are off to their worst start ever.

OILERS

Glanville said the interception was the key play in the game. "We've made a habit of giving things away, and we'd like to stop that," he said.

The Dolphins scored again on their first second-half possession when Mark Duper snared a short pass over the middle and turned it into an 85-yard touchdown.

The Oilers, who didn't get inside the Miami 40-yard line in the first three periods, moved 50 yards in seven plays after an interception by Richard Johnson for their only score. Ernest Givins had runs of 15 and 16 yards on reverses leading to a 1-yard touchdown run by Houston tailback Mike Rozier with 12:46 to play.

The Dolphins held Rozier to 50 yards on 17 carries. In a rarity for the Dolphins, they had the games leading rusher, Davenport with 74 yards on 16 carries.

quarter, going the final eight yards off left guard for the TD.

The Giants' final TD drive covered 62 yards in five plays following a 6-yard punt by Mike Saxon. A 33-yard pass interference penalty gave New York a crucial first down at the Dallas 29, and Morris gained 22 yards off right tackle on the next play. Two plays later, he again went off left guard for the score.

"Their linebacker was flying to the outside and before the play I told Joe to take his time and watch for the cutback," said Giants guard Bill Ard. "Chris (Godfrey) had a good block on (John) Dutton, and Bart (Oates) and I took Randy White and Joe cut back and found the hole."

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said, "Nobody can close Morris down. There's too much blocking for him to spring on. He's like a bouncing rubber ball. He hits the middle and he's out of there."

New York gained just 245 yards on offense with 201 coming on the ground.

"I didn't expect us to run the ball as well as we did today," said Giants quarterback Phil Simms, who hit just six of 18 passes for 67 yards. "I thought they would be ready for it and stop it. I think that says a lot about our offensive line and Joe, the way they just pushed it up in there and ran anyway."

The performances by Morris and Martin helped the Giants avenge a season-opening loss to Dallas and overshadowed a good performance by Pelluer, who completed 28 of 38 passes for 339 yards.

The third-year pro hit Mike Renfro on an 11-yard touchdown pass in the second quarter and drove Dallas 90 yards in eight plays for a fourth-quarter touchdown that came on a 23-yard run by Tony Dorsett on a draw play.

White was hurt in the first quarter when linebacker Carl Banks came untouched on a blitz and sacked him, forcing a fumble.

"I just tried to strip the ball," said Banks. "I really don't know how it happened to him."

White had his wrist placed in a cast and stood on the Cowboys' sideline in the second half, relaying signals to Pelluer.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, NOV. 4, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day that can have many dramatic changes. An excellent time for arranging meetings with those you are most attracted to. Romantic happiness is possible.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can benefit from the extension of your interests and make fascinating new acquaintances.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Do whatever your mate desires and then state your own wishes. Go after the articles you want.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A good day to contact those who are attracted to you. Do something to truly impress them.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Make your home more charming. Listen to what a fellow worker has to suggest.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Plan now for recreation and derive much happiness from it. This can be a most romantic day with the one you love.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Your home needs a thorough going-over so that it will look like new. Your ideas are fine now for this.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Making new contacts is wise today. Show appreciation to those who have been loyal to you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Seek a raise in pay. One who has much experience can give you fine advice if you go after it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are able to pursue your intimate goals enthusiastically and gain them easily.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Go after your ambitions in a positive way. Be cheerful for best results. Be with the one you love tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be your gregarious self today and see many friends and allies. This will accomplish more than you think.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Handle outside work — be it vocational or civic or concerning credit — and get everything arranged nicely.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have the ability to please just about everyone. It would be wise to slant the education along such lines as lecturing, entertaining, or music. One who will be highly romantic and will have a good marriage. Precision will be used in whatever work is tackled.
