Refund may be rushed

Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — A Texas Public Utility Commission official has scheduled a prehearing conference for Nov. 13 on whether Texas Utilities Electric Co. must expedite a refund of $58 million to customers.

Administrative Law Judge Elizabeth Drews said the conference will consider procedural steps for obtaining a "speedy and just resolution" of differences over how quickly the refund should be made.

Texas Utilities is proposing to make the refund, its third in six months, as a credit on customers' January billings. But the Office of Public Utility Counsel, a separate state agency representing residential and small-business customers, is petitioning the utility commission to order an immediate refund.

The refunds, totaling $263 million for the utility this year, occur largely because the cost of natural gas to generate electricity has dropped rapidly throughout 1986. That put the price lower than previously estimated in charging customers.

Voter turnout good; polls open 'til 7

By SPENCER SANDOW and SCOTT FITZGERALD Staff Writers

Reports this morning from a cross section of election precincts showed surges by early voters after the polls opened at 7 a.m.

Howard County Clerk Margaret Ray estimated that about 50 percent of the county's 16,129 registered voters would cast ballots before polls close at 7 p.m.

"We had 100 in an hour's time."

That's a good turnout for us," said Mrs. H.C. Wallin, Precinct 206 presiding judge, at the Sand Springs Lions Club.

She said about 150 people had voted by 10:30 a.m. — most of them on their way to work. The polling place is one of eight in the precinct and has the highest number of registered voters with 846.

In addition to voting on the House of Representatives race between incumbent Larry Don Shaw and challenger John R. Anderson, Precinct Two voters were also deciding who is going to be their county commissioner.

Republican challenger Leo Williams was running against Paul Allen, who is seeking a third term in office.

Emilio Molina, Precinct 101 presiding judge, at the North Side Fire Station, said this morning "a pretty good turnout" of about 70 people had voted. Most of the voters were elderly people, he said.

The county clerk's office provided 550 ballots, he said, and he expects all of them to be used. The polling location is the largest of five in Precinct One and has 1,185 registered voters.

Molina said he has been a presiding judge for 10 years and two assistants were helping him today.

John Bennett, Precinct 303 presiding judge, at the Wasson Road Fire Station, said this morning, "things were moving along."

About 100 persons voted from 7 to 9 a.m., but the highest surge was expected to occur in the late afternoon, beginning at 4:30 p.m., he said.

A staff of six persons was assisting Bennett at the largest election precinct in the county, which has 2,293 registered voters.

Pat Parrish, Precinct 403 presiding judge, at the 11th Street and Birdwell Lane Fire Station, said this morning that 111 voters had cast ballots by mid-morning, most of them on their way to work. She said it was a fairly large turnout, but declined to reveal further information. Precinct 403 has 1,050 registered voters.

Deputy clerk Clarice Birrell said near noon that the county clerk's office had received eight applications from patients in local hospitals for ballots.

The cutoff time for applications from hospital patients or handicapped persons unable to reach a voting poll was noon, Birrell said.

R.H. Landers, right, puts his ballot into the box at the Wasson Road firehouse, where turnout was estimated at 100 persons per hour during early voter activity. Election officials were predicting that approximately 50 percent of the more than 16,000 Howard County voters would be casting ballots today. Polls close at 7 p.m.

Iran says U.S. envoy arrested, expelled

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — The speaker of Iran's Parliament said today that his government arrested and then expelled a special envoy sent to Iran by President Reagan, the official Iranian news agency reported.

The Islamic Republic News Agency identified the special envoy as former National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane. The agency did not specify when the reported expulsion took place.

At McFarlane's office at the Center for Strategic and International Studies in Washington, an aide said the former White House official would have no comment on the subject.

There were published reports in the Middle East that American hostage David Jacobsen was freed

Sunday as a result of negotiations between the United States and Iran.

Asked about a possible role by Syria or Iran in the release of hostages, Terry Waite told a news conference. "I don't want to comment on the political dynamics," Waite, the Anglican Church envoy who has worked to gain freedom of hostages held in Lebanon, spoke at a news conference in Wiesbaden, West Germany.

Waite said he expected to hear within 24 hours from his contacts whether he will be returning to Beirut to negotiate the release of more Western hostages. He said there are "reasonably strong suggestions" that the next two hostages to be released are Associated Press chief Middle East correspondent Terry A. Anderson and educator Thomas Sutherland.

The IRNA report from Tehran was based on a speech Rafsanjani gave at a ceremony marking the anniversary of the seizure of the U.S. Embassy in 1979 by militant students.

The agency quoted him as saying the Iranian move was a sign of IRAN ENVOY page 2A

Board rejects proposal

The Salvation Army facility at 308 Aylford St. is no longer a possibility for a proposed activities center for outreach patients from Big Spring State Hospital, as a result of executive board action it was announced today.

The facility had been considered for free use last week at an October 29 meeting at the state hospital, after Salvation Army Captain Carroll Braun was contacted about the facility.

It is to be vacated upon completion of the Salvation Army's new building at Fifth and San Antonio streets.

However, a 4 p.m. Monday meeting of the Salvation Army's executive board resulted in a vote to reject Braun's proposal "while commending his concern and efforts to help solve this need in the community."

Braun reported that the board had reached its decision based on two primary considerations:

• "While Captain Braun's proposal has merit based on meeting a legitimate need of a segment of the population, the Salvation Army facility that would have to be freed up to make a place for this service would preempt vital and ongoing commitments and programs of the Salvation Army."

• "Since there are other loca-

Public Works Director Tom Decell, left, and Sam Robertson, chairman of a citizens' committee to investigate water bill complaints, connect a water meter to a test pipe Monday night. Tests were performed to determine the affect of air passing through water meters.

Water bill group tests air pressure in water meters

By SPENCER SANDOW Staff Writer

High air pressure registers on water meters, but stops the meter from registering water afterwards, tests showed at a meeting of the citizens' water bill committee Monday night.

The 10-member committee was organized to investigate the cause of unusually high water bills this summer, and to recommend a course of action to the City Council.

Air registered less on the meter than water did, the tests showed. Also, very low air pressure didn't register, while very low water pressure did.

High air pressure broke the meters, stopping them from registering at all.

Public Works Director Tom Decell said that when the city water is turned on after being shut off, hydrants are opened to keep the air in the system from breaking people's water meters.

Committee chairman Sam Robertson said he was surprised at the results because he thought air would register on the meter higher than water.

"I thought perhaps not much was being done (by the city, regarding high water bills.) But now I have been here, I see a lot has been done," he said.

But he said the tests haven't brought committee members closer to discovering the cause of the high bills.

"If we investigate this for one full year and tested everywhere, we'd be pretty close to where we are right now," he said.

The committee concluded that no further tests on water meters are necessary.

Mayor Cotton Mize, present at the meeting, said the committee has verified tests the city has performed.

Committee member Tony Belaski commented that "it's important (people know) they're not being cheated."

Other committee members are investigating city records. Don Proctor graphed data about city water usage and sales versus purchases; no conclusions were drawn.

Proctor said he and others would continue to review the records to find any correlations.

Councilman D.W. Overman, committee member, pointed out that air should have been in water pipes only in high areas during the water shut-down in early summer. However, people living in both high WATER BILLS page 2A

Lee Ambulance contract to be renewed

By SPENCER SANDOW Staff Writer

Terms of a new contract with Lee Ambulance will be the same as in a current contract, city, county and ambulance officials agreed Monday, according to City Manager Mack Wofford.

Wofford said he and City Councilman Russ McEwen, County Commissioners Bill Crooker and Louis Brown, and Lee Ambulance owner Charles Ginn attended a Monday 11 a.m. meeting.

Ginn has indicated he's willing to sign the contract, which Wofford said will be for a three-year period beginning Dec. 1.

Under the current contract, the city provides the ambulance company a subsidy in funds and services determined to be equal to $62,280 a year.

About $48,000 a year of that is in money, Wofford said. The city also provides a place at the downtown fire station for the ambulance to operate, phone and dispatch services, he said.

The county provides a $36,000 cash subsidy to the ambulance company.

Provisions allow either party to discontinue services with 90 days written notice.

The city manager said some "very minor," procedural details may be altered in the contract, but no changes have been proposed.

The county commissioners and the City Council must approve the contract before it can go into effect. Wofford said he's not sure when it can be signed, but it must AMBULANCE page 2A

Driver stable after two-car collision

A 20-year-old Big Spring woman was in stable condition this morning at Scenic Mountain Medical Center where she is being treated for a fractured pelvis suffered in a two-car accident Monday morning south of Big Spring, said nursing supervisor Leslie Williams.

"She's doing fine," Williams said about Nancy Ramirez Moran of 3225 Auburn Ave. Moran was the only person admitted for treatment for severe injuries, Williams said.

Two other passengers in the car driven by Moran were uninjured. They were Irma Ramirez, 40, 1104 Austin St., and Bobbie Jo Moran, 4, 3225 Auburn Ave.

The other car involved in the collision was driven by Ross Wells Westbrook, 51, of Gail, who was uninjured. A passenger, Bruce Griffith, 48, Route Three Box 332, was also uninjured.

According to a Department of Public Safety accident report, the collision occurred at 8:10 a.m. on Highway 87, about a mile south of Big Spring.

Moran was driving a 1975 Ford Pinto and attempting to turn northbound on Highway 87 from a private drive located on the west side of the highway. The car collided with a Chevrolet Suburban truck that Westbrook was driving as he headed southbound on the highway.

Contributing factors to the accident according to the report were Westbrook driving the car at an unsafe speed and Moran failing to yield-right-of-way.

Moran was cited for failure to yield right-of-way and failure to maintain financial responsibility, according to the report.

25% agree with bible creationism

ARLINGTON (AP) — About one-fourth of 1,000 college students polled in Texas, California and Connecticut say they believe in the biblical account of creation, according to a recent study by anthropologists and sociologists.

And a "strong relation" exists between acceptance of creationism and political and religious values, with students who accept creationism tending to be politically conservative and religiously fundamentalist, said Dr. Francis Harold, associate anthropology professor at the University of Texas at Arlington.

While about 25 percent of the students said they believed that God created humans as they are today, almost half said they believe Adam and Eve were the first humans, Harold said.

Creationism is linked closely to a literal translation of the biblical book of Genesis, teaching that the Earth and most of its life forms came into existence suddenly about 6,000 years ago.

Current scientific belief is that the Earth is billions of years old and that fossil evidence shows life forms gradually began developing millions of years ago.

According to the study, Texas students showed a considerably higher acceptance of creationist beliefs than the other students. Twenty-eight percent of Texas students agreed with creationism, compared with 19 percent of California and Connecticut students.

The study, designed to gauge students' beliefs in so-called pseudo-scientific theories, found a "surprisingly high" acceptance of such beliefs, said Harold.

Between 20 percent and 40 percent of those surveyed said they believed in various such theories, including extra-sensory perception, Big Foot, the lost city of Atlantis and unidentified flying objects.

The study is "one more voice joining the chorus saying there may be something deficient in our science education," Harold said. Many people "don't have a very good idea about how science works," he said.

For the record

A Big Spring Herald story on Sunday about the state representative race between incumbent Larry Don Shaw and challenger John Anderson incorrectly identified the Texas Democratic Party as being headed in 1982 by 1980 presidential candidate Lyndon LaRouche.

LaRouche headed the National Democratic Policy Committee in 1982.

and low areas complained of irregular water bills.

Proctor suggested the possibility that silt and mud could have affected bills, and Robertson added that faulty plumbing could be a cause.

A gauge was shown depicting several size holes. A hole in a water pipe the size of a pin prick would cause the loss of 170 gallons of water a day. The largest hole on the gauge, smaller than a dime, would cause the loss of 3,000 gallons of water a day, the gauge illustrated.

The Rev. Victor Sedinger, committee member, suggested the distribution of information on how to check for malfunctions in water meters and household plumbing.

"We take our water system for granted," he said, adding "How many of us really know anything about our plumbing?"

The committee planned another meeting at 6 p.m. Monday at the conference room at the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp.

Washington's "weakness."

According to the agency, Rafsanjani said McFarlane and his companions were imprisoned in Iran for five days and then deported. He was quoted as saying they came to Tehran for a message for Iranian officials calling for improved U.S.-Iranian relations.

The agency said the American envoys "brought a Bible signed by Reagan and a cake."

According to Rafsanjani, McFarlane and the others arrived in Tehran on a flight carrying military equipment for Iran. He said Iran had purchased the equipment from international dealers.

Sheriff's log Revocation leads to transfer

Howard County sheriff's deputies transferred William Rodney Ethridge, 31, of Dallas, from the Ramsey Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections to county jail Monday night.

Ethridge will undergo a revocation of probation hearing on Nov. 14 for an unauthorized use of a motor vehicle offense to which he pleaded guilty on Oct. 5, 1985, said Assistant District Attorney Bob Morris.

An adult probation officer from the 118th District Court has cited Ethridge for violating four of his probation requirements, Morris said.

Police transferred Betty Lee Wright, 33, of Midland, to county jail Monday morning after she was arrested for theft over $20 but less than $200.

She pleaded guilty to the charge in county court during the afternoon and was fined $100 by County Judge Milton Kirby. In addition to the fine, Kirby sentenced her to seven days in jail.

Police transferred Ronnie Lee Moncada, 22, Thrifty Lodge No. 110, to county jail Monday morning after he was arrested on two charges of burglary. In addition to the burglary charges, a bondsman went off the suspect's bond for a burglary of a motor vehicle charge.

He remained in jail this morning in lieu of bonds totalling $14,000.

Deputies mailed 80 jury notices for county court duty beginning at 9 a.m. on Nov. 11.

Deputies arrested Robby Dan Barber, 20, of Lamesa, Monday afternoon, on a driving while intoxicated judgment warrant. He will serve 10 days in jail.

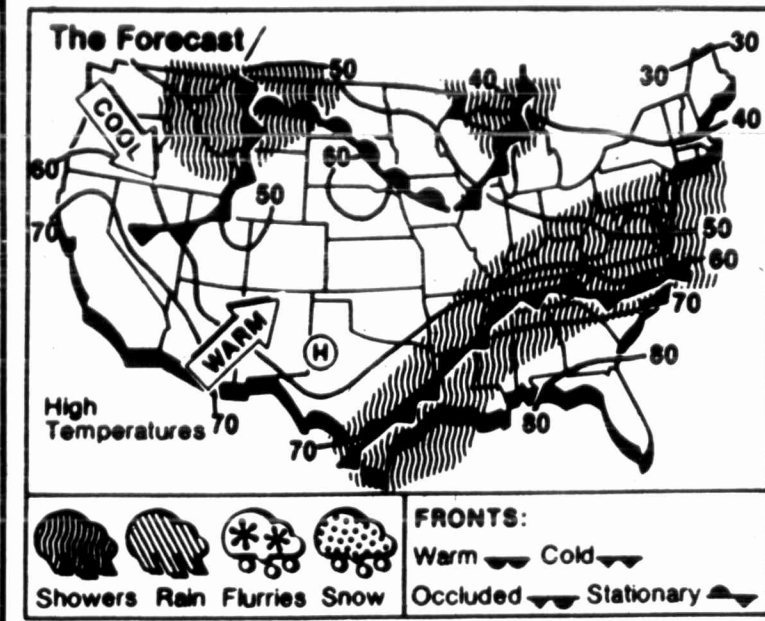

Deputies arrested Terry Lynn Darden, 34, 3303 Cornwell St., Monday afternoon on a DWI judgment warrant. The defendant will serve 30 days in county jail.

Jack Watson of Longshore Rd. told sheriff's deputies Monday night that someone stole $1,000 from his bedroom sometime during the weekend.

Police transferred John Danko, 26, 1012 W. Third St., to county jail Monday night after he was arrested for resisting arrest. He was released on $500 bond.

A Department of Public Safety trooper arrested Jack Wendell Berry, 54, of Stanton, Monday night on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. He was arrested on Interstate 20. He was released on $1,000 bond.

An 11-person hospital advisory board had initially planned to locate the center at 116 E. Third St. and the neighboring building. The board sought and gained county approval Oct. 27 to fund rental space for the facility at the Third Street location. County commissioners unanimously approved allocating $350 of county funds per month to local bondsman/property owner Danny Heckler who owns the buildings.

Ex-wife, son killed

MIAMI — The bodies of the son and former wife of the Democratic candidate for state attorney general were found 12 hours before polls opened today, and police say the woman may have killed the boy and herself.

Sandra Butterworth, 43, ex-wife of candidate Bob Butterworth, called police in what they described as a hysterical state from a telephone booth on a downtown street Monday evening.

When officers arrived on the scene after tracing the call, they found the body of 16-year-old Robert Butterworth Jr. lying in a car, his mother a few feet away sprawled on the sidewalk with a .38-caliber revolver beside her.

The shirtless teen-ager had been shot three times in the chest and once in the head. Mrs. Butterworth had been shot once in the head.

Mechanic confesses

NEW YORK — A mechanic has resigned after confessing that he installed the wrong clutch in a helicopter that crashed into the Hudson River, killing a radio traffic reporter, according to a spokesman for a federal agency.

The unidentified mechanic, an employee of Spectrum Helicopters, told investigators Monday that he grabbed the wrong clutch off a workbench while fixing the helicopter's transmission three weeks before the crash, said Ira J. Furman, a spokesman for the National Transportation Safety Board in Washington.

Investigators now will try to substantiate his admission and determine how such a mix-up could have occurred, Furman said.

Pizza Hut negotiating

NEW YORK — PepsiCo Inc., which introduced mass market soft drinks to the Soviet Union 13 years ago, said today it is negotiating to open as many as 100 Pizza Hut restaurants there.

The deal would make Pizza Hut the first foreign restaurant company to operate in the Soviet Union, the company said. Pizza is popular in that country, and the Soviets already have some pizza parlors of their own, it said.

Pizza Hut is the largest U.S. pizza chain.

Meat inspector indicted

BOSTON — A meat processor has been fined and a former government inspector sentenced to prison in a scheme to put filler in ground beef earmarked for school lunch programs in 10 states.

Idle Wild Farm of Pomfret, Conn., was fined $500,000 Monday by U.S. District Judge A. David Mazzone. The company had earlier pleaded guilty to conspiracy to defraud the government and bribery, and agreed to pay the government $2.6 million in a civil settlement.

Baby girl survives mother's death

By BRENDA C. COLEMAN

Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — A baby girl cried and "was pink as could be" after being pulled from the torn body of her mother, who leaped from a 100-foot railroad tower in the mistaken belief that her fetus was dead, authorities said.

The 7-pound, 5-ounce girl was in fair condition early today at the University of Chicago's Wyler Children's Hospital, and firefighter Anthony Savino said, "I thought, all in all, considering the trauma she had been through, she looked very, very good."

Savino, an emergency medical technician, and Mark Luety delivered the baby Sunday in the abandoned Blue Island train yard after Connie Horan, a registered nurse, committed suicide because she thought her fetus had died, police said.

Mrs. Horan, 26, of New Lenox, was pronounced dead at Blue Island's St. Francis Hospital, where she had worked and where she and her husband had gone Sunday when she thought it was time to deliver their first child, said police Detective Roland Libby.

The staff at St. Francis was unable to convince her the fetus was alive, even after placing a stethoscope over the womb and letting her listen to the heartbeat, Libby said.

St. Francis spokesman James McQuaid disputed the police account, saying that though Mrs. Horan at one point grew apprehensive because she couldn't see the fetal heartbeat on a nearby monitor, staffers reassured her.

"Everything indicates that she was going through a perfectly normal period from the time she was admitted to the time she was discovered missing," he said, adding apprehension is common in mothers having their first babies.

Late Sunday morning, Mrs. Horan left her hospital room unnoticed, said police Officer David Schultz.

That afternoon, police received a call from a man who said a woman had climbed a railroad yard light tower a block from the hospital. Mrs. Horan jumped when an officer arrived, Libby said.

Fire Department personnel arrived minutes later, and though Savino and Luety found no signs of life in Mrs. Horan, they saw a leg of the infant through her ruptured abdomen and delivered the baby, Libby said.

The baby cried as soon as she was pulled from her mother's ruptured abdomen, Savino said. "That was a godsend. Within two or three minutes, she was pink as could be."

The girl appeared to have a broken leg and some internal injuries, he said.

The father would not comment, said Becky Segall, a spokeswoman for University of Chicago hospitals. Savino, who has worked for the fire department for 10 years, and Luety, who has eight years of experience, were cited for their "courage and calmness in the face of a disaster well beyond the norm," according to Libby, who witnessed the delivery.

"I have very mixed emotions about the whole thing," said Luety, who has received three commendations for lifesaving. "A birth — it's a happy type of thing. I'm happy the child is surviving. ... But it's kind of sad the mother had done this."

Sakharov exile worse

NEWTON, Mass. — Relatives of Soviet dissidents Andrei Sakharov and Yelena Bonner sent a family member to today's European nations conference in Vienna to speak out about the couple's internal exile.

Mrs. Bonner's son, Alexei Semyonov, left by plane Monday for the Helsinki Accords meeting on European security.

Sakharov, a Nobel Peace Prize winner, and his wife live in the Soviet city of Gorky. In a telephone call to relatives Monday, Mrs. Bonner reported new curbs on their mail and on an end to visits to them by professional colleagues from Moscow.

Mrs. Bonner rejoined her husband in June after six months in Newton with her children, grandchildren and mother during which she underwent surgery for heart and leg ailments.

Nakasone apologizes

TOKYO — Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone, who recently apologized to Americans for racial remarks, offered a formal apology to Japan's aboriginal Ainu people upset over his description of Japan as an ethnically homogenous society, an Ainu spokesman said today.

Nakasone apologized in a letter for his comments, said Takao Yokoyama, a member of the Kanto Utari, a Tokyo-based Ainu organization. But he said the prime minister blamed the press for any hard feelings.

Jacobsen meets family

WIESBADEN, West Germany — Freed American hostage David Jacobsen hugged his three children today as they were reunited for the first time since he was kidnapped in Lebanon 17 months ago.

"This is to be my day of joy with my kids," said Jacobsen, standing on a balcony at the U.S. Air Force hospital here with his sons Eric and Paul and his daughter, Dianne Duggan.

"I want to thank God for my kids, for their wisdom and their judgment," said Jacobsen, who was freed by his Shiite Moslem captors in Beirut on Sunday and flew to Wiesbaden on Monday.

Hasenfus seeks mercy

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — Eugene Hasenfus goes before a Nicaraguan political tribunal today to seek mercy as it decides whether, as cargo handler for a weapons supply flight to Contra rebels, he was guilty of terrorism and other crimes against the state.

"It won't be anything earthshaking," Former U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell, who is assisting in Hasenfus' defense, said of a statement prepared for the prisoner to read to the court. "We hope it will help him by mitigation. ... We hope this evidence will cause the Sandinista government to be more merciful." "As for what he will plead to, that's up in the air," Bell said. "But he has thrown himself on the mercy of the court."

Patients receive calls from Reagan

MESQUITE (AP) — The last thing patients in Mesquite Community Hospital expected last weekend was to get a telephone call from President Reagan. But the president called and called and called again.

It was an apparent malfunction of a telephone system used by the Republican National Committee to get out the vote in the elections Tuesday.

The phone calls contained a recorded message from President Reagan urging people to vote for Republican candidates.

Hospital officials don't know how many calls they received because the hospital in this Dallas suburb recently installed a system where patients can receive direct telephone calls, said Bob Grimes, associate hospital administrator.

But the calls came every few minutes between 5 p.m. and 9 p.m. Saturday, Grimes said.

"Hello, this is Ronald Reagan. They're keeping me on a pretty busy schedule around here, so I hope you'll understand I can't call you in person," the calls began. "I know you're probably busy, too. I'm calling because I need your help."

But the hospital official said the calls were not welcomed by the patients and nurses.

"There were a lot (of calls), and they were very aggravating. I'd like to know who did it," Grimes said.

The Republican National Committee doesn't know who made the calls.

Hospital officials and patients alike were upset and perturbed by the calls, which were apparently destined for a targeted list of voters.

"It was very disturbing," said Robert DeMoss of Garland, who was visiting his mother-in-law on the hospital's third floor, where intensive-care and surgical patients are located.

"Finally, the people on the third floor took all the phones off the hook," DeMoss said.

Bob Schermund, press secretary for the national committee in Washington, D.C., said the calls were supposed to be part of an unprecedented effort to get out the vote this year by reaching 5 million voters over the weekend.

"This is a targeted program. This is not placing calls into the moonlight," Schermund said. "Despite what people say, we don't have a bottomless pot of gold. We do have to target it."

The calls, he said, were supposed to go to registered Republicans and Reagan supporters in specific areas of 25 states. The committee did not place any calls to Texas voters over the weekend, he added.

Paul Peck, vice president for TBS, a Richardson firm, which was making some of the automated calls, told the Dallas Times Herald Sunday the firm was making calls to Ohio, including the Cleveland area.

Licensing law to give safer roads

A rider on the federal anti-drug law may help make highways safer for everyone. It mandates federal licensing standards for drivers of buses and large trucks.

The legislation was thought to be "lost" in the closing rush of the 99th Congress, but advocates persisted and included it in the catchall drug bill.

Although we'd rather the licensing action be a separate bill, it is somewhat appropriate with the drug bill because the licensing measure includes a stringent blood alcohol standard of .04 for those driving big rigs.

That standard takes effect in 1988, but the Department of Transportation may set a less stringent standard.

A person who drives a truck or bus under the influence of drugs or alcohol is to lose his commercial license for a year on first violation, and permanently the second time.

The law, which will set standards for a new unified federal license, is expected to overcome the problem of multiple licenses held by perhaps as many as 40 percent of all truckers.

The old system lets drivers "spread" violations over several licenses to avoid suspension or revocation. Such a checkered multi-license violation background was involved with the driver of a tour bus that crashed disastrously in California several months ago.

Drivers routinely operate in 20 or more states over interstate freeways and their vehicles have become ever larger and more threatening. The new licensing law is a welcome step toward greater highway safety.

Letter prompts parole explanation

To the editor:
This letter is written in response to an Oct. 28 letter in your paper. The woman who wrote the letter was upset that Andy Guzman "chose" his punishment. By "choosing" to take a life sentence in a plea bargain agreement, he gave up his right to appeal the sentence. Had he gone to court he could have appealed the sentence.

Regarding her preference to jury trials, evidently she has not been paying much attention to the cases that have gone to trial recently. When Mrs. Terrell was brutally beaten and killed, the jury had the opportunity to give the two men who did confess to the crime life sentences. What did they hand down? Thirty years.

Another jury heard a man plead guilty to strong arm robbery and he already was on parole. What did the jury hand down? Sixteen years.

Let's face it. Howard County juries are not and have not been known to hand down stiff penalties.

Regarding "early parole," that's a crock. Ms. Guzman was on mandatory supervision. This is something passed by the Texas Legislature. When an inmate in the Texas Department of Corrections comes up for discharge, all "good time" is taken from him and he is given credit for time he did "day for day." He then must serve the balance of his sentence under my supervision if he resides in Howard County, Martin County, Crockett County, Reagan County, Borden County or Glasscock County.

And parolees are supervised! Anyone who thinks this is an 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. job is crazy. My parolees, some of them anyway, have more supervision now than they did when they were growing up.

Juries are not composed of 12 of your peers. They are composed of 12 people who did not qualify to be exempt from jury duty. If you want to see the jury system at work, go sit in a courtroom when the jury is being selected. You won't like what you see.

Let's accept the offer of Big Spring State Hospital to sponsor a friendship house in our city. Let's help them all we can to obtain use of the best possible building for the creative and innovative program they have projected.

The eleven-member board of volunteer citizens deserves our gratitude and support. They have

Neighbors' pets cause problems

To the editor:
I wish there was something I could say to the people who let their dogs run loose and use people's yards for their dirt.

At times I've seen at least eight different big dogs in my yard. And the odor is so bad I can't eat or sleep — because it comes into my house.

We have stepped in it and brought it in — because it is so thick it's hard to miss. And when it comes to mowing the lawn it is horrible — because one has to walk through it.

I called the dog catcher in the past, and the dogs walked up to him and his truck. But all he did was go around to the houses and tell the people to keep their dogs up, which they never did do. I believe people have the right to start shooting in self defense.

And in the back yard, the cats use it. I can't let my little dog run in the back yard because of the cat messes.

So I'm pinned inside my home by the stink because of animals that run loose and people who don't care — just so long as their pets put their dirt on someone else, so they don't have to clean it up. And there isn't a thing I can do about it — but live in it.

Trade deficit blamed on Harvard

When it comes to the Nobel prize, you never hear about the person who came in second. This year the runner-up for the economics award was Prof. Valentine Septable, who wrote the best-selling book, "Japanomics — The Sony In Us All."

Septable has been working on the theory that the Japanese are not 30 years ahead of America but 30 years behind.

It was this reasoning that led him to unravel the mystery of why the sun always sets on a Seiko watch.

To find out more about his school of economics I drove out to Septable's lab underneath the RFK Stadium.

The professor was taking the loss of the Nobel very calmly. "I may not have won the biggie, but I was voted 'Mr. Congeniality' by all the other economists. That meant more to me than being able to buy a new blackboard."

"Even if you lost," I said, "your work is not to be sneezed at."

"I'm very proud of it. It took me five years to build this model. He pointed to the top of it, which looked very much like a Benihana restaurant. "This is where the U.S. was 30 years ago and this is where it is now. Over here is where the Japanese are now, which is where the U.S. was 30 years ago."

"But if they are that much behind now," I said, "why are they so far ahead?"

"Very simple," Septable replied as he showed me photographs plastered all over the model. They were pictures of American manufactured products from the past.

He asked me, "Do you remember how it was in this country 30 years ago? We made wonderful cars, radios, refrigerators, hot water heaters and baseball mitts. Everything, including the mitts, seemed to work. The reason for this is that our workers knew what they were doing and management knew how to sell the product. We also had something else which has been lost, and that's QUALITY CONTROL."

"Where did it go?" I asked.

"Some say the Japanese stole quality control from us because we wouldn't pay them reparations for World War II. But this is not true. It was strictly our own economic decision that brought us down."

"Thirty years back the United States had two paths to follow. It could either stay where it was or move ahead and make everything out of plastic. We chose plastic."

"At the same moment Japan, who was not good at advanced technology, decided it had to stick with old stuff that wouldn't break. It didn't take long, as everyone's cars and appliances fell apart, for Americans to look Eastward for satisfaction. It was then the Japanese realized that to become number one, all they had to do was stay way behind the U.S."

"If the Japanese are 30 years behind us, how do we persuade them to catch up?"

Septable said, "It's quite simple. The American managers who brought us to where we are today all went to the Harvard Business School. What we have to do is get the Japanese to send their kids to Harvard as well. Only when all the centers of industry in Japan are manned by Harvard graduates will the U.S. be able to compete with Japan again."

I could see why Septable was runner-up for the Nobel prize. "Who would have thought the solution to our trade deficit is to make our foreign competitors earn MBA's at Harvard?"

Septable said, "It's our only chance. We have to hope when they return to the Empire the graduates will screw up Japan as much as the Harvard Business alumni have screwed up the United States."

Louisiana oilman suspected of influencing Washington

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — Did a Louisiana oilman who contributed heavily to Republican Party candidates, and who had himself paid a fine for price gouging, improperly prevail on Vice President George Bush to press for an end to federal regulations that made possible the prosecution of oil price-control violators?

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., suspects the worst.

General Accounting Office auditors investigated the situation and concluded that "there appears to be nothing illegal or improper about the oil producer opposing" the regulations, and they "could not determine to what extent, if any, the producer influenced" changes in the rules.

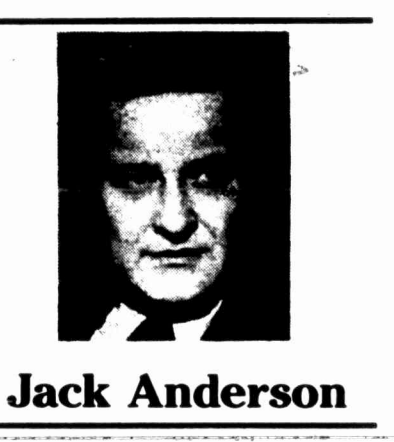

Dingell, chairman of the House Energy Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, acknowledges that the oilman's solicitation of the White House was not illegal, but the congressman is concerned that high-level administration officials allowed themselves to be influenced unduly by the oilman. Dingell has asked the GAO to take a close look at this aspect of the affair.

The Louisiana oilman, Dalton Woods, hasn't exactly run for cover. He told us he considered Dingell's actions "harassment," and pointed out that the GAO had cleared him after a full investigation. The GAO auditors, he fumed, would do better to "investigate Dingell."

As for the $51,000 refund he was ordered to pay by the Energy Department for overcharging on his oil during the period of price controls, Woods responded with the succinct outrage of an aggrieved sports fan. "I wuz robbed!" he told our associate Lucette Lagnado.

Woods had appealed the department's finding administratively and lost. He eventually wound up having to pay a total of $93,000, including interest, for the price-control violation.

The oilman believes there is no need to apologize for his determined efforts to eliminate the Energy Department regulation that required oil companies to retain records on the price-control period, 1973-1981. The records were vital to the government's prosecution of violators.

In a letter to Bush in February 1984, Woods recalled discussing the record-keeping requirement with the vice president "during the Reagan Finance Committee reception at your home in Washington," and asked Bush's help in eliminating the rule. He even suggested as a "political move" that the rule be eliminated as part of the Paper Work Reduction Act — a stratagem that was in fact followed.

Woods also raised the specter of "a hostile administration being elected at some future time (that) could reopen a wave of audits and arbitrary assessments of punitive charges and fines against our industry" if the oil companies' records were retained.

He closed with an appeal for "your help in bringing this issue to a close" by the issuance of a rule change eliminating the record-keeping requirement.

On the same day, Woods wrote to then-Energy Secretary Donald Hodel, recalling their discussion of the detested regulation "during the Louisiana Mardi Gras in Washington." He added: "I have also discussed this issue with Vice President Bush, and he was visibly disturbed by the postponement of the proposed (rule change) and offered to lend his support if needed."

Woods received replies from both the vice president and the energy secretary — courtesies befitting a Republican stalwart who had, the GAO reported, contributed $51,950 to GOP causes in 1979-80, $80,000 in 1981-82 and $68,800 in 1983-84. Woods was informed that the record-keeping rule was being reviewed.

The regulation ultimately was changed. Dingell wants to know just how much the bureaucrats who changed the rule were influenced by oilman Woods.

For his part, Woods is standing his ground. "It is my duty and my pleasure to work on behalf of the oil and gas industry," Woods said. He characterized the regulation as "designed to harass and rob the gas industry."

Regarding contacts with Bush and Hodel, Woods said: "I am a Republican. I have worked with these people ... I fought a clean battle."

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: The recent revelation that the unfinished American embassy in Moscow is honeycombed with KGB bugging devices has caused concern on Capitol Hill.

The problem, according to Senate Foreign Relations Committee sources, is that the United States is planning new embassies in Soviet satellite capitals of Eastern Europe, including Prague, Budapest and Warsaw, so there is understandable concern that the KGB's willing pupils will be up to the same tricks.

MINI-EDITORIAL: The Greek Socialists were roundly trounced in municipal elections last week by their conservative rivals.

While this has no direct bearing on Prime Minister Andreas Papan-dreu's control of the national government, we can't help hoping the election results will have a chastening effect on the loud-mouthed leader.

Woman posing as baglady felt her identity slipping

By PAUL PAGE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A Washington state farm wife who lived on the streets of the nation's capital says she slept in bushes, was attacked, robbed and threatened with death, and felt her own identity slipping away during the six weeks she posed as a bag lady.

"I wish people could know that these are valuable human beings," Buelah Lund said after living among the 10,000 to 15,000 homeless people in Washington, D.C.

With $2 hidden in her sock, the 50-year-old woman was dropped on the streets of the capital in September, far from the 165-acre farm she shares with her husband in Deer Park, Wash.

For about 10 days she stayed in a shelter for women, where she said she was "terror-stricken" at first.

For more than a month after that she made her bed on the streets near the National Archives, the FBI and upscale department stores and saw firsthand the despair most see only from a distance.

She said she saw drug abuse, severe alcoholism and mental illness, but also what she called the "profound wisdom" of those who are trying to survive on their own.

"I was driven, I had to know," she said in an interview this week three days after rejoining her husband, David. "I couldn't figure out an easy way to do it, to get an in-depth picture. I can't be so conceited that I think I could feel what they're feeling. But I know now that I know more than most people."

"I'm a mom. I've led what a lot of people would call a sheltered life, so a lot of this was a shock to me," she said.

She was ignored most of the time, saw some kindness from strangers and was protected by others who had no idea that she was on the streets by choice.

"So much happened to me emotionally," Mrs. Lund said. "I found out a lot of things I didn't know about other people and about myself."

Although she and her husband, a building contractor, take in homeless people for months at a time at their home, Mrs. Lund said her first glimpse of life on the streets came two years ago when she saw a bag lady in San Francisco.

Then, as a tourist in Washington this June, she saw a woman wearing layers of tattered clothing who paused for a rest outside the National Air and Space Museum.

"She looked like she was going to have a stroke," said Mrs. Lund, but a guard chased her away. "I was appalled."

Her husband said that at first he opposed his wife's decision to live on the streets, but then supported her.

"I felt she had a mission to do and she completed it," he said. "I'm proud of her."

On one of her first nights at a shelter, she said, a woman who later turned into her protector held a sharpened pair of scissors to her throat. "She said to me, 'White trash, you shut your eyes one time and you ain't gonna open them ever again.'"

"I began crying and everyone started laughing at me. Then (the woman with the scissors) just held me and started rocking me," she said. "That feeling of the cold scissors against my throat, that'll never leave me."

She said the women at the shelter protected her because she seemed weak, although they never knew she could return home any time.

"They would tell me, 'I don't care what your husband did to you. It don't matter if he socks you in the nose. It isn't worth it out here,'" she said.

On the streets, she said, "the best defense was being as dirty and eccentric as possible. ... If you're crazy, nobody will bother you."

But despite the physical threats and discomfort, the worst moment came early on, when she found herself disoriented and felt her mental stability slipping.

"She would call me in the morning, and it got so that she couldn't connect things," her husband said. "That was the worst point."

"I was so down, I lost my motivation to even walk five blocks to a soup kitchen," she said.

Mrs. Lund said she has no special solutions to the problem of homelessness, although she would like to see some sort of low-cost housing established in cities that would include counselors for the mentally ill, "similar to what we have for the developmentally handicapped." "I just have a feeling that this is not over for me," she said. "I don't know what one person can do. ... I think one person can make a difference, but right now I don't know where to start."

DEAR ABBY: "Jack Siegfried" of New Jersey wrote to say that according to you there are several collies who played Lassie, but they were all males in drag.

Then he saw a recent Lassie rerun in which Lassie had given birth to a litter of puppies and was actually shown nursing them! He said, "Even a trainer as great as the late Rudd Weatherwax, who trained the original Lassie, couldn't teach a male dog to do that!" What do you say?

DEAR GOTCHA: According to Bob Weatherwax, the son of Rudd, the original Lassie and all subsequent Lassies were in fact male dogs. And make no bones about it, the Lassie in the nursing episode was trained to tolerate the nuzzling pups.

DEAR ABBY: What is the proper way to ask a woman what she does all day? I mean in a party setting, when you have just met and don't know anything about her. It would help to know if she's a working woman, or stays home raising a family. Or should this question be avoided?

The conversion can just die if you don't have some information to go on.

SHORTED OUT

DEAR SHORTED OUT: Talk about the weather or whatever is currently going on in the world, but avoid all personal questions, including, "What do you do all day?" "Are you married?" "Do you have any children?" Innocuous as these questions may seem, they could be sensitive subjects.

A reader once wrote that she had met a young woman at a tea for new church members. The woman was new in town, so in an effort to make conversation she asked if the woman had any children. The woman then suddenly burst into tears: After she regained her composure, she apologized and explained that two years ago she had lost her two little girls, ages 5 and 3, in a fire.

Certain medicine can cause extra heartbeat

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am 71 years old, a woman in pretty good condition. I am on medicine (diuretic pills) for control of a mildly-elevated blood pressure. I never had my problem until I had been using the medicine for a few weeks. I notice, especially when I am lying still, a loud thump from my heart.

Is this the PVC beat you mention from time to time in your column? I get one of them every so often. Then things are normal, and the next night I may get another. It is quite disconcerting, and I wonder if it's important enough to bother my doctor about. — Mrs. H.H.

It's probably a harmless quirk, but it is important enough to check out with your doctor. In fact, it might just be related to the medicine you are taking for your hypertension. If it is one of the diuretics that cause inordinate loss of body potassium in some people, then that could lie behind your symptoms.

PVCs are little extra beats. Actually these premature ventricular contractions are just that, heartbeats that occur a split second before they should in the normal pattern. The premature beat creates a kind of split-second void before the next normal beat. The heart chamber fills up a bit more than it should in that split second. To eject that extra blood load, the next beat has to be more forceful. That is the sudden loudness you hear.

If the medicine is the cause, your doctor can adjust dosage or switch to a special kind of diuretic to prevent the potassium loss. Potassium plays a role in proper functioning of muscle tissue, and too little of it will bring on muscle irregularity of this kind. Cigarettes and caffeine can also create this kind of heartbeat.

If PVCs occur one after another or if the person has frequent episodes, then a search for other causes must be made.

FOR B.R. — Essential hypertension is the kind that exists without any known reason. That's what you and most other patients have. A lesser number have hypertension that is "secondary" in nature, that is the kind with a known and often treatable cause. For example, a certain narrowing of the aorta in some younger people may result in high blood pressure. You'll find this discussed in the booklet you want. Others can order "Blood Pressure and Your Health" by writing me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1.25.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I thought shingles was contagious, yet my doctor tells me you don't have to worry about passing it on. He did ask me if we had any small children in our home (we don't). What was the connection there? He said you could give them the virus if they didn't have exposure to the chickenpox virus yet. Now I really am confused. I am the one with the shingles. I don't want to pass it on to my wife. — L.L.

Your wife cannot catch shingles from you. No one can. Let me spare you all the technical details about this matter and just say that, because the same virus is the cause of both chickenpox and shingles, you can only pass it on the blister stage but only as chickenpox, and only in a person who has not had that illness. Since such a person would not be protected by prior exposure to the virus (and most of us have had chickenpox) he would develop that — but not shingles.

I should add a note about exposure of small children to the shingles virus. Youngsters who have serious illness, like cancer, or who are being treated with some of the immunity-suppressing drugs used for such illnesses, might be in danger from exposure to the shingles blisters. Rarely, they might get chickenpox from that exposure if, as I said, they have not yet had chickenpox. Even chickenpox in a person whose immunity is suppressed can be a threat to health.

FOR P.C. — Please forego the self-prescribing temptation. In your case, it is not only foolish, but futile. Penicillin (which you are taking from that old prescription) will not quiet the chlamydia germ infection. Other antibiotics have to be used for that genital infection, if, indeed, that is what you have. Letters like yours cause me insomnia.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have refused to have a bone marrow test done because I am afraid. Panic is the best word I can use. The

Transferral of patients from Kerrville debated

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer
KERRVILLE — The state of Texas took Harvey Brigham into its care in 1925. For many years, he wanted to go home to Abilene, but the caretakers said he was not ready.

Brigham, 74, was mentally retarded and mentally ill and spent time in state facilities that treat each of those problems. He was in Kerrville State Hospital from 1964 until Aug. 20 of this year, when he was cleared for transfer by a state hospital treatment team and went to an Abilene nursing home.

But some state hospital workers say Brigham and others recently released to nursing homes were not ready to leave the hospital.

They have inserted statements in patient records indicating the transfers were made only because of pressure from the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation to reduce the population at Kerrville.

"He would never have gone if the pressure hadn't been there to get people out. Nobody would have sent him under normal conditions," hospital caseworker Ken Strickland said of Brigham.

The concerns of the Kerrville State Hospital workers have been heard by the state MHMR board, and chairman Coke Mills of Waco has appointed a special committee to look into the statements.

"We will go out there and investigate to see if some of those people more appropriately should be returned to the state hospital," said Dr. Grace Jameson, a Galveston psychiatrist and MHMR board member who is on the special committee.

Regardless of what investigators find, Brigham will not return. He died Oct. 21 after choking on birthday cake at the Coronado Nursing Center in Abilene.

Strickland said the pressure to transfer patients began in August and dissipated, apparently coincidentally, the day after Brigham died.

Dr. Sam Dagubatti of Abilene, who treated Brigham, said the elderly man died of cardiac arrest, possibly triggered by the choking episode. He said Brigham was doing well in the nursing home until the day he died.

Steve Johnson, administrator of the Abilene nursing home, said Brigham showed no psychiatric problems while at the home and was an appropriate patient.

But Strickland is not convinced. Brigham had experienced a lifetime of problems. He belonged at Kerrville, Strickland said.

"We can't say it was a result of his being in that nursing home that he died. But it's less likely that would have happened if he was here. He would not have had that cake and eaten it unsupervised here," Strickland said, adding that Brigham had been on a "puree diet" at the hospital.

Johnson said Brigham was on a "blended" diet at the nursing home, and "soft cake" was included on that diet.

Strickland fears Brigham was an example of what can go wrong when state hospital patients are transferred for the wrong reasons.

"What we're saying is some old people are too fragile to risk sending to nursing homes," he said, while acknowledging that some former Kerrville patients are doing well at nursing homes. Some state hospital workers say many long-term geriatric patients should stay in the hospital because it offers what they need and because it is the place they know best.

"If you take them out of here, it would be just like if you moved somebody that had been in their home for 15 or 20 years and put them in a completely new setting. It's very upsetting to a normal person, much less for a person with a psychiatric diagnosis," said Ramona Reeves, a nurse supervisor at the hospital.

But some MHMR and nursing home officials say there are Kerrville State Hospital residents who can do just as well or better in nursing homes, especially if they can be closer to their families.

Frankie Williams, MHMR deputy commissioner for mental health, said no Kerrville patients have been transferred to nursing homes not equipped to meet their needs. She acknowledged a move to reduce the population at the hospital, but said it is based on what's best for the residents and reflects a trend at all state hospitals.

The population at the Kerrville facility has dropped by about 60 in the past year. In mid-October, the population was 557, including 464 geriatric psychiatric patients.

"Most of them may have been psychiatric patients at one time, but their psychiatric problem no longer exists. A lot of patients at Kerrville have simply become old while they were hospitalized," Ms. Williams said.

San Antonio psychiatrist Dr. Roberto Jimenez, an MHMR board member who is on the committee that will investigate the Kerrville releases, said he favors leaving elderly, long-term mental patients in state hospitals, if possible.

"I am biased toward institutions, good ones, which Kerrville is," Jimenez said.

Mark Goldman, a Kerrville State Hospital psychologist, said the treatment teams that decide which patients are ready to leave have been pressured by MHMR officials in Austin who are concerned more about budgets than people.

The state's Sunset Commission staff recently said Texas could save $14.5 million a year by moving geriatric psychiatric patients to nursing homes.

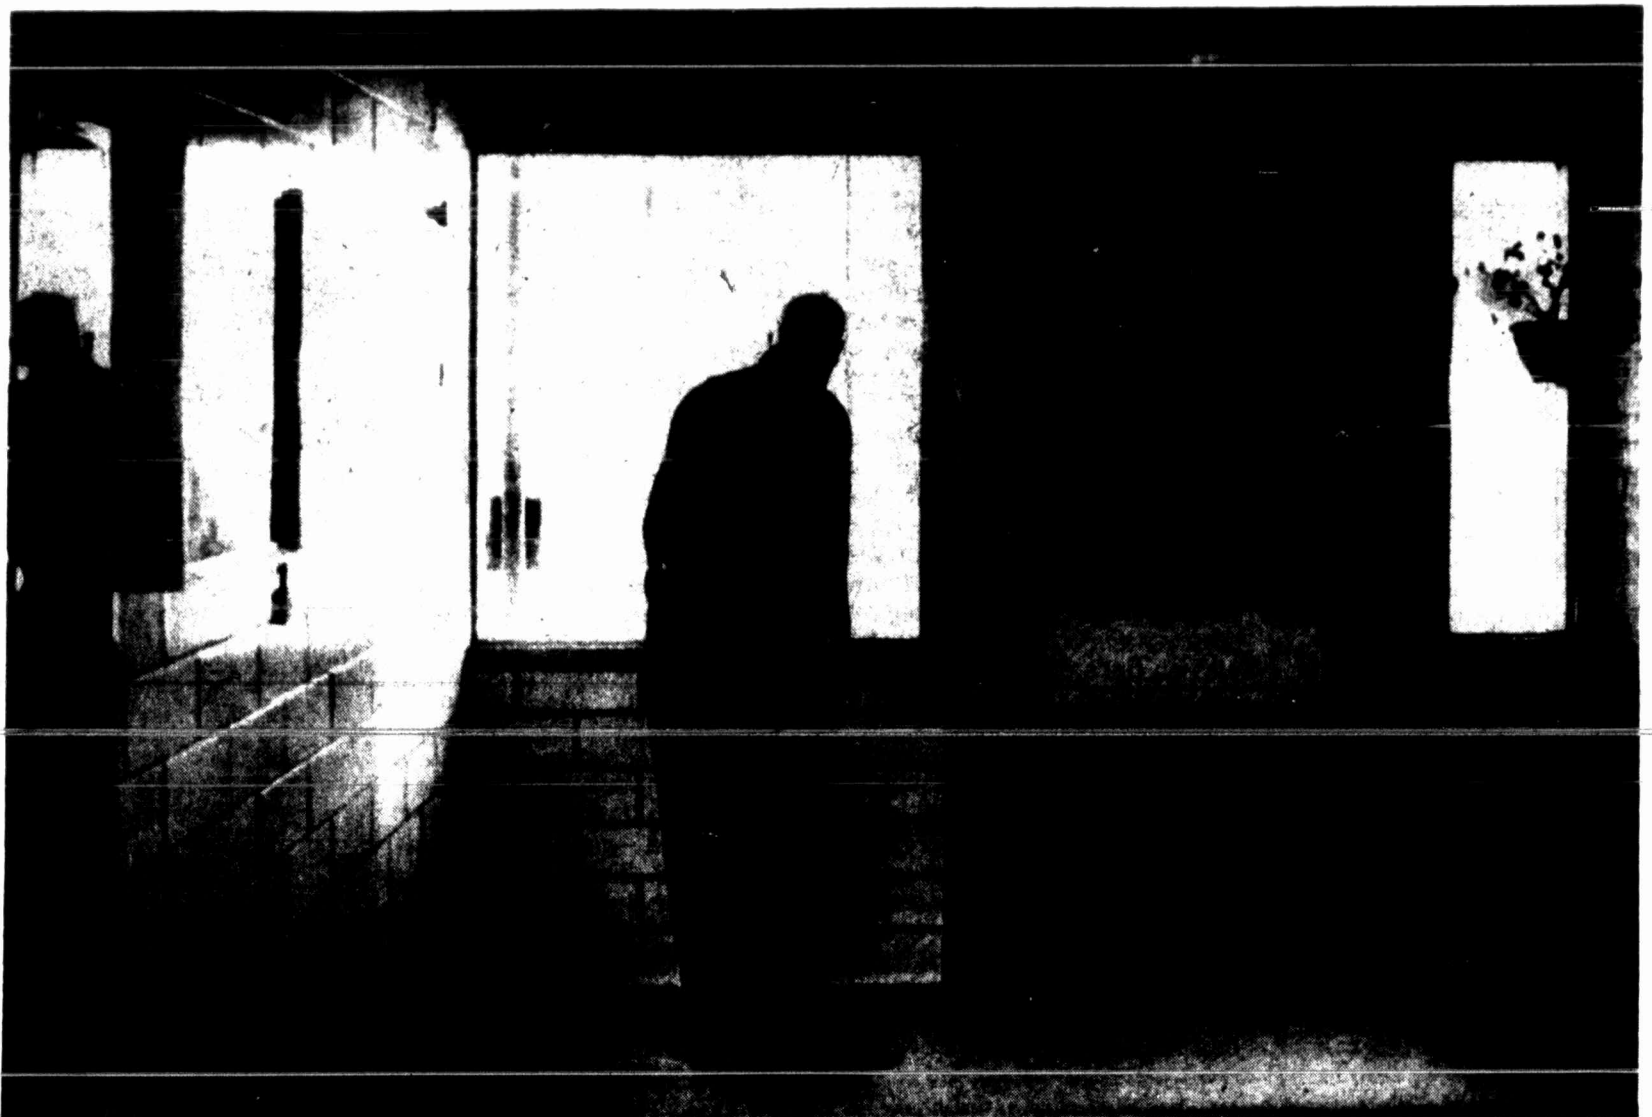

"Decisions have been taken away from the treatment team. It's numbers, money. It's a cost game," Goldman said.

Gene Shelton, a psychologist at the Kerrville hospital, said he has seen patients leave who he felt were better off at the facility.

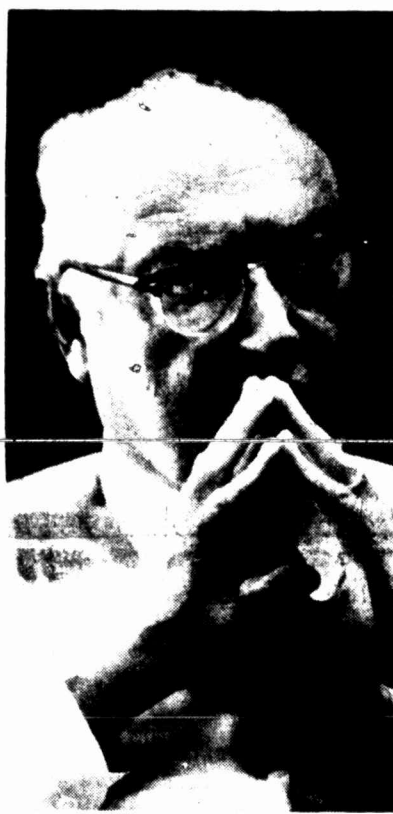

"Some have done well. Some, as far as we are concerned, have probably died prematurely. I read all this stuff where all these people are going to give better care (at nursing homes) at less price. That's garbage. That's impossible to do," Shelton said.

David Pharis of Austin, coordinator of a panel appointed by a federal judge to review MHMR compliance with court orders, said he is concerned about the hospital staff's statements.

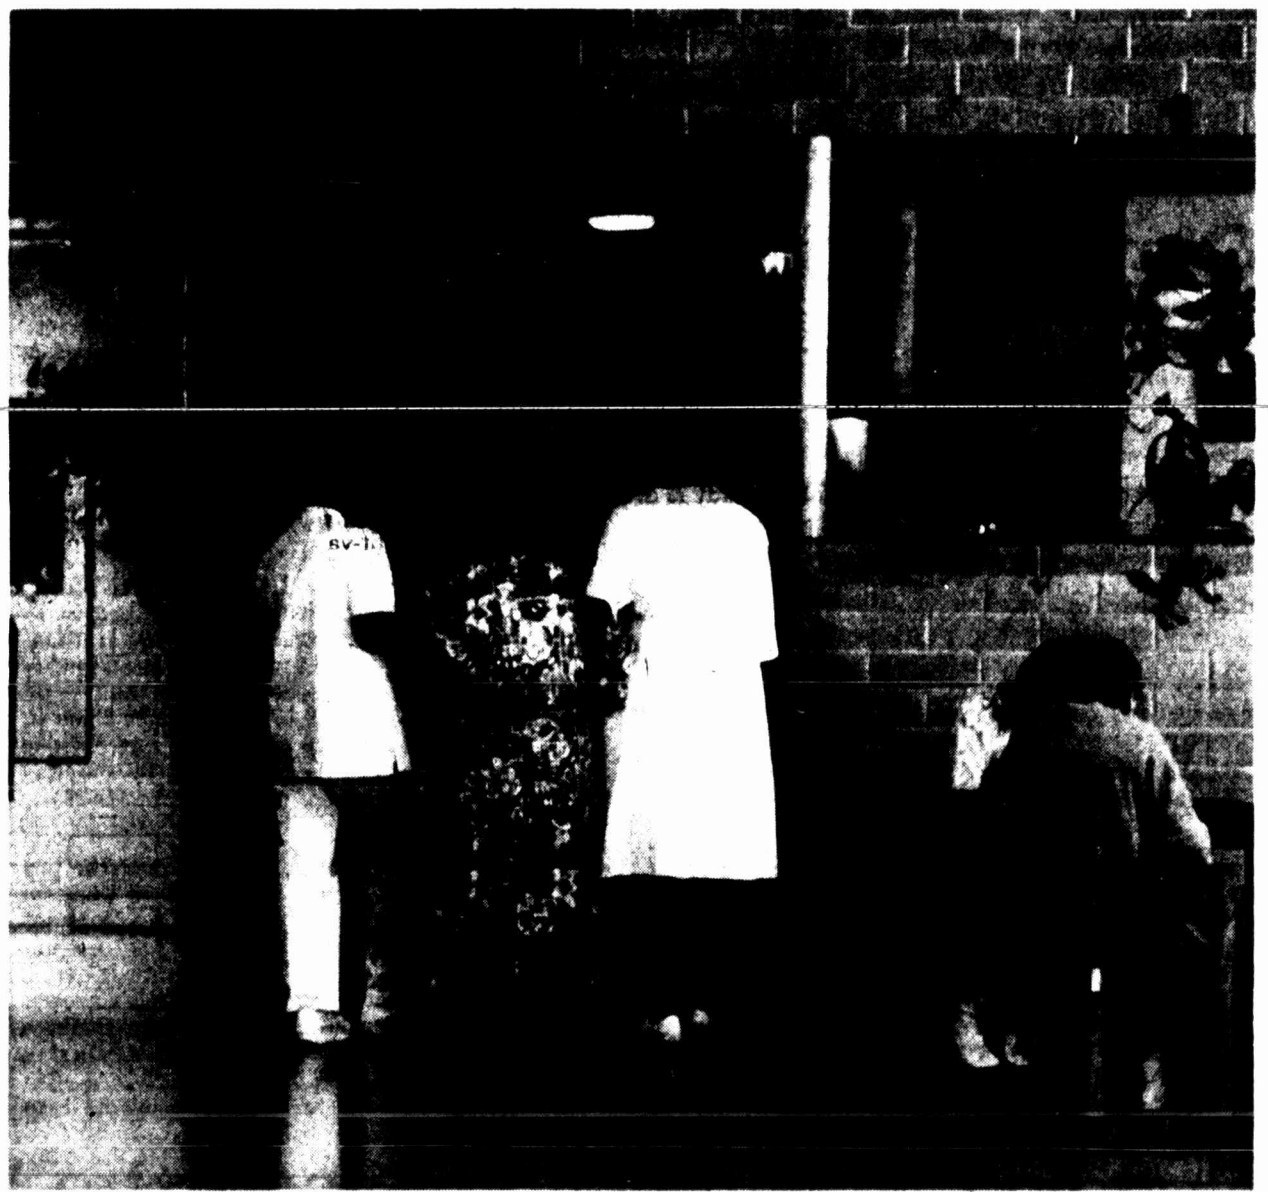

"They have felt under pressure. If they feel they have made some bad discharges, I would take that seriously and listen to it very seriously," Pharis said.

A patient at the Kerrville State Hospital looks out the window near the entrance to one of the geriatric wards. Some workers at the state hospital are concerned about patient transfers from the facility to nursing homes around the state.

Dr. Luther Ross, above, talks about the care patients at the Kerrville State Hospital receive. Ross, director of the institution, said the hospital gives "good care." The hospital population is down 60 in the past year, reflecting a trend in state facilities across the state. At right, a patient in one of the geriatric wards of the Kerrville State Hospital is helped across the room. Members of the treatment room at the hospital used the patients in this ward as an example of those whose transfer to nursing homes would not be appropriate.

Old prisoner dreams of freedom

MOUNDSVILLE, W.Va. (AP) — Freeman Collins has grown old inside the stone walls of West Virginia Penitentiary. Nearly 80, the twice-convicted murderer is content with a television and the privileges of involuntary seniority. Collins has prowled the corridors of the maximum-security prison for more than half a century, longer than anyone else on state record.

His prison number, 19555, is the same one he was assigned Aug. 15, 1930, when he arrived to serve a life sentence for murder.

Collins' veteran status has won him midnight snacks in the kitchen and long, unaccompanied walks around the prison yard. He is comfortable with prison life.

"I've got plenty of friends here," he said. "And we've got good doctors, good nurses, good guards and good food."

The aging convict moves slowly, his body leaning to the left, one shoulder misshapen by an accident several years ago. His white hair is thinning and white stubble covers his chin.

He has a mind "probably sharper than yours or mine," Warden Jerry Hedrick said of the man who committed a second murder 11 years ago at age 68, and a man some prison officials believe would kill again.

"You feel like you're talking to your grandpa when you talk to Freeman Collins," said former Warden Donald Bordenkircher. "He's been a model inmate but makes a lousy citizen. The minute he gets outside the walls he's hell on wheels. He had a chance at freedom and went out and killed again."

Collins is a rarity among rarities in the nation's prisons. Fewer than 1 percent of U.S. inmates are over age 55, according to the American Correctional Association. And most of them, unlike Collins, have not spent most of their lives in prison.

Collins was 23 when he entered the Moundsville prison. Prison officials are skeptical of his stories about events before then, saying fantasy has a way of becoming reality after years of incarceration. But there is no denying the flair with which he tells the tales.

"It happened in the Big-Four Saloon back in the days when there wasn't any law," Collins said recently, leaning forward, his clear blue eyes dancing as he spins a yarn about the first murder. "It was one of them log saloons that sold moonshine. I went to get some whisky and as I walked through the door, someone shot me through the leg."

"But I had news for them. I drew my gun ... and let seven of them have it."

Collins has a scar on his leg that would support his account, but prison records and newspaper accounts tell instead of a long-time feud between Collins and Perchie Jarrell, the deputy assessor of Boone County.

According to a 1930 article, witnesses said Collins attacked Jarrell with an ax as Jarrell slept under a tree. Prosecutors said revenge was the motive. Jarrell had been acquitted of shooting and killing Collins' father in 1919.

Collins spent the next 42 years in prison. He was paroled in 1972 but was arrested five years later for fatally stabbing his parole officer.

Collins won't discuss the murder today, other than to claim he was in another state and was "set up."

Dan Manville, who served three years in prison for manslaughter before becoming an attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union's Prison Project, said Collins may well have killed again simply to return to prison and the only security he had ever known.

"It's difficult enough for a person coming out after four or five years, but you take someone who has been away for that long... Society has changed so dramatically that they freak out," Manville said.

"The system forces it on them" by making them dependent, he said. "Your whole environment is controlled: when you eat, when you sleep, when you go out. The only control you have is when you turn your television on and off. You become so used to that."

Collins' black-and-white television is clearly a focus of his existence.

"Sometimes I get up about 4, 5 o'clock, make myself a cup of coffee, watch TV," he said. "Sometimes I stay up all night watching TV."

But when asked what he wishes for, the prisoner recalls a life that vanished for him long ago.

"I'd take my freedom," he said. "I'd go back into some coal hollow and build me a log cabin."

Crossroads Chalk Talk

It was another losing week for Crossroads Country football teams. Local teams suffered through a 3-5 week, with Forsan, Borden County and Klondike coming away with wins.

Stanton, saw its just about all of its possible playoffs hopes go down the drain by suffering a 14-6 loss to Big Lake while Sands also had its playoff hopes dashed with a 60-44 loss to Loop.

District 5-3A teams Colorado City and Coahoma were shutout by Abilene Wylie and Ballinger while Klondike snapped a three-game losing streak by defeating winless Grady.

Here is what area coaches had to say about Friday's games and their upcoming opponents.

Joe Bond, Borden County, on his team's fight for a playoff spot. — "The win over McCaulley keeps us alive for a chance at the playoffs. If we defeat Wellman this week, the district will end in a three-way tie between us, Loop and Wellman.

"We played well in the first half against McCaulley. We were not as intense in the second half, we stopped our own selves with turnovers. But in the first half I felt like we played as good of defense as we have all year.

"I feel like we'll play well against Wellman. The kids know they have to win. Wellman has a very good running game. We'll have to shut it down."

Tom Ramsey, Colorado City, on his team's 14-0 loss to Abilene Wylie. "We beat them everywhere but on the scoreboard. We had over 300 yards total offense and nothing to show for it, we stopped ourselves. We just self-destructed.

"It's the first time we've been shutout in a long time, and it's very disturbing. Sonora (next opponent) is probably the second best team in the district. They would be in the playoffs for sure if they hadn't lost 7-6, 8-6 ballgames. In the past we've been able to play Sonora well, in fact last year was the first year they had beaten us. They'll line up and try to run over us."

TOM RAMSEY

TOM HAM

Tom Ham, Klondike, on his team's 53-33 win over Grady. — "Our kids played well. We're a young team but Grady is even younger. It was good that all 12 of our kids got to play.

"I was proud of our defense. They were not able to run on us at all. Dawson (next opponent) is a good ballclub. Their coach, Stan Adams has been there a long time and he does a good job. Dawson has a good defense and they've played the good teams tough. I think this one might be a low scoring game."

John Blair, Sands, on his team's 60-44 loss to Loop. — "Loop had a better ballclub than what we thought. They are big and well-coached.

"But our kids played as hard as they could. We had a 44-36 lead in the third quarter but we couldn't hold it. It was a close game. We had one touchdown called back in the third quarter and they threw a touchdown pass in the last minute of the game.

"Grady (next opponent) is still learning with a lot of young kids. They run the Spread offense and throw the ball a lot."

MIKE MATHIS

JAN EAST

Mike Mathis, Grady, on his team's 53-33 loss to Klondike. — "We really didn't play very well in the first three quarters. But we came back and scored three times in the fourth quarter. We really didn't play much defense the whole game, which has been our story the whole year.

"We started off the game well. We took the ball down on our first possession and scored to take a 7-0 lead. But after that, we folded up. "Sands (next opponent) has a pretty good team. But they have been having their problems lately. Hopefully they will keep on having problems against us."

Jan East, Forsan, on his team's 41-14 romp over Eldorado. — "The kids weren't as high for this game as they were for the previous two. They just went out and played good football. We didn't try to get them that pumped up, it's hard to do after two very emotional games like Reagan County and Stanton."

"We played good defense and did a good job of mixing up our offense. That's what it's going to take to be successful in the playoffs. We played everyone which is good because we need to get that experience under everyone belts.

"Rankin (next opponent) has had some kids hurt their last couple of games. Plus they had a good lineman that moved to El Paso. We must win this game so we'll be the district champions. If we don't we'll go into the playoffs as the runner-up."

Bill Kidd, Coahoma on his team's 33-0 loss to No. 3 Ballinger. — "Ballinger has a good football team. I think they have the athletes to be the number ranked three team. Whether they are playing that caliber of ball, I don't know.

"Our kids got after them good. It's the first time in three years we shut down their passing game. We moved the ball well, at times but we always stalled out.

"Merkel (next opponent) is a good, young team. They have some big kids but not a whole lot of speed. But they've got enough speed to take advantage of people."

Dale Ruth, Stanton, on his team's 14-6 loss to Reagan County. — "Our kids did a tremendous job even though they came out on the short end of the scoreboard. We had them down 6-0 at the half, but some questionable penalties killed us.

"After we scored the first touchdown, we had three more scoring chances that we didn't take advantage of. It was a tough game to lose. I'm proud of the kids. The only thing to do now is get back up and keep going.

"Against Ozona (next opponent) we'll just go out there and have fun."

It's Sugar vs. Marvelous

NEW YORK (AP) — Sugar Ray Leonard says he is not making a comeback. Instead, the former welterweight and junior middleweight champion says he is returning to the ring for the one fight he has always wanted.

"I don't want a career," Leonard said Monday at a news conference at which his April 6 fight against middleweight champion Marvelous Marvin Hagler was officially announced. "I want one fight."

"Nobody believes me because I've contradicted myself before. But all I want is this one fight. I've never lost the feeling for fighting Marvin. Marvin was always there and I've always wanted to fight him."

The 12-round fight, to be held at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas, Nev., will be the richest in history, according to promoter Bob Arum.

Leonard is guaranteed $11 million. Hagler, the undisputed middleweight title holder and the early 4-1 betting favorite at Caesars, has a $12 million guarantee. The guarantees are the largest in boxing history.

Hagler and Leonard seemed on a collision course five years ago after Leonard won the World Boxing Association junior middleweight title in June, then beat Thomas Hearns for the undisputed welterweight title in September.

There was a three-round knockout of Bruce Finch the following February and then, while doing road work for a May fight against Roger Stafford, Leonard experienced pain in his left eye.

The diagnosis was a detached retina which was repaired by surgery. On Nov. 9, 1982, he announced his retirement, shooting down plans for a big-money meeting with Hagler. Eighteen months later, though, he returned for a fight with Kevin Howard. He looked rusty in scoring a ninth-round knockout and again announced his retirement, saying he had lost the desire to fight.

The Nevada Athletic Commission had been dubious about sanctioning the fight. But Dr. Flip Homanski, the commission's chief physician, said Leonard had gone through an extensive physical examination and was declared in top shape.

"I'm fine. I wouldn't do it if I wasn't," Leonard said.

Hagler said he would not concentrate on punching Leonard's surgically repaired eye.

"I plan," he said, "on hitting him all over his body."

Arum said the fight could have a potential closed circuit and pay-per-view audience of 3 million and might gross as much as $100 million. That would double the previous record gross set by heavyweights Larry Holmes and Gerry Cooney at Caesars in 1982.

Closed circuit tickets went on sale at New York's Radio City Music Hall Monday at $60 each. The 15,000-seat arena at Caesars is scaled with a $700 top price and a sellout will yield $7,967,100 from the live gate.

"The original deal, which Leonard did not accept, would have paid him $8 million plus 30 percent of the revenue in excess of $25 million," Arum said. "He opted instead to be bought out of the percentage for $3 million. If the fight does over $30 million, he lost money. If it does under $30 million, he made money. It was a businessman's decision."

"Marvin gets 50-75 percent of revenue over $25 million."

Hagler, who prefers 15-round fights, said he would be content with 12 against Leonard.

"I still believe in 15 rounds, especially with the magnitude of this fight," Hagler said. "But you've got $12 million looking at you. Are you going to argue over three more rounds?"

Rams kick Bears

CHICAGO (AP) — Eric Dickerson won the battle of the running backs from Walter Payton. More importantly, he helped the Los Angeles Rams win their battle with the Chicago Bears.

Dickerson, the NFL's leading rusher, churned out 111 yards on the ground and caught a key pass to set up Mike Lansford's game-winning 50-yard field goal with four seconds left as the Rams edged the Chicago Bears 20-17 Monday night.

"Eric Dickerson had 111 yards on the best run defense I've ever seen," said Los Angeles Coach John Robinson.

In addition to his rushing yards, Dickerson caught three passes for 46 yards, including an eight-yarder that got the Rams to the Bears' 32 with nine seconds left. Lansford, who had kicked a 26-yard field goal in the third quarter, then drilled home the 50-yarder to give the Rams the win.

"I figure any game will come down to a kick," said Lansford. "That's the way I prepare myself."

Dickerson, trying to break his own single-season rushing record of 2,105 yards, boosted his 1986 total to 1,141 with seven games to go. He also raised his career rushing total to 6,288 yards, bettering the Ram record of 6,186 yards set by Lawrence McCutcheon.

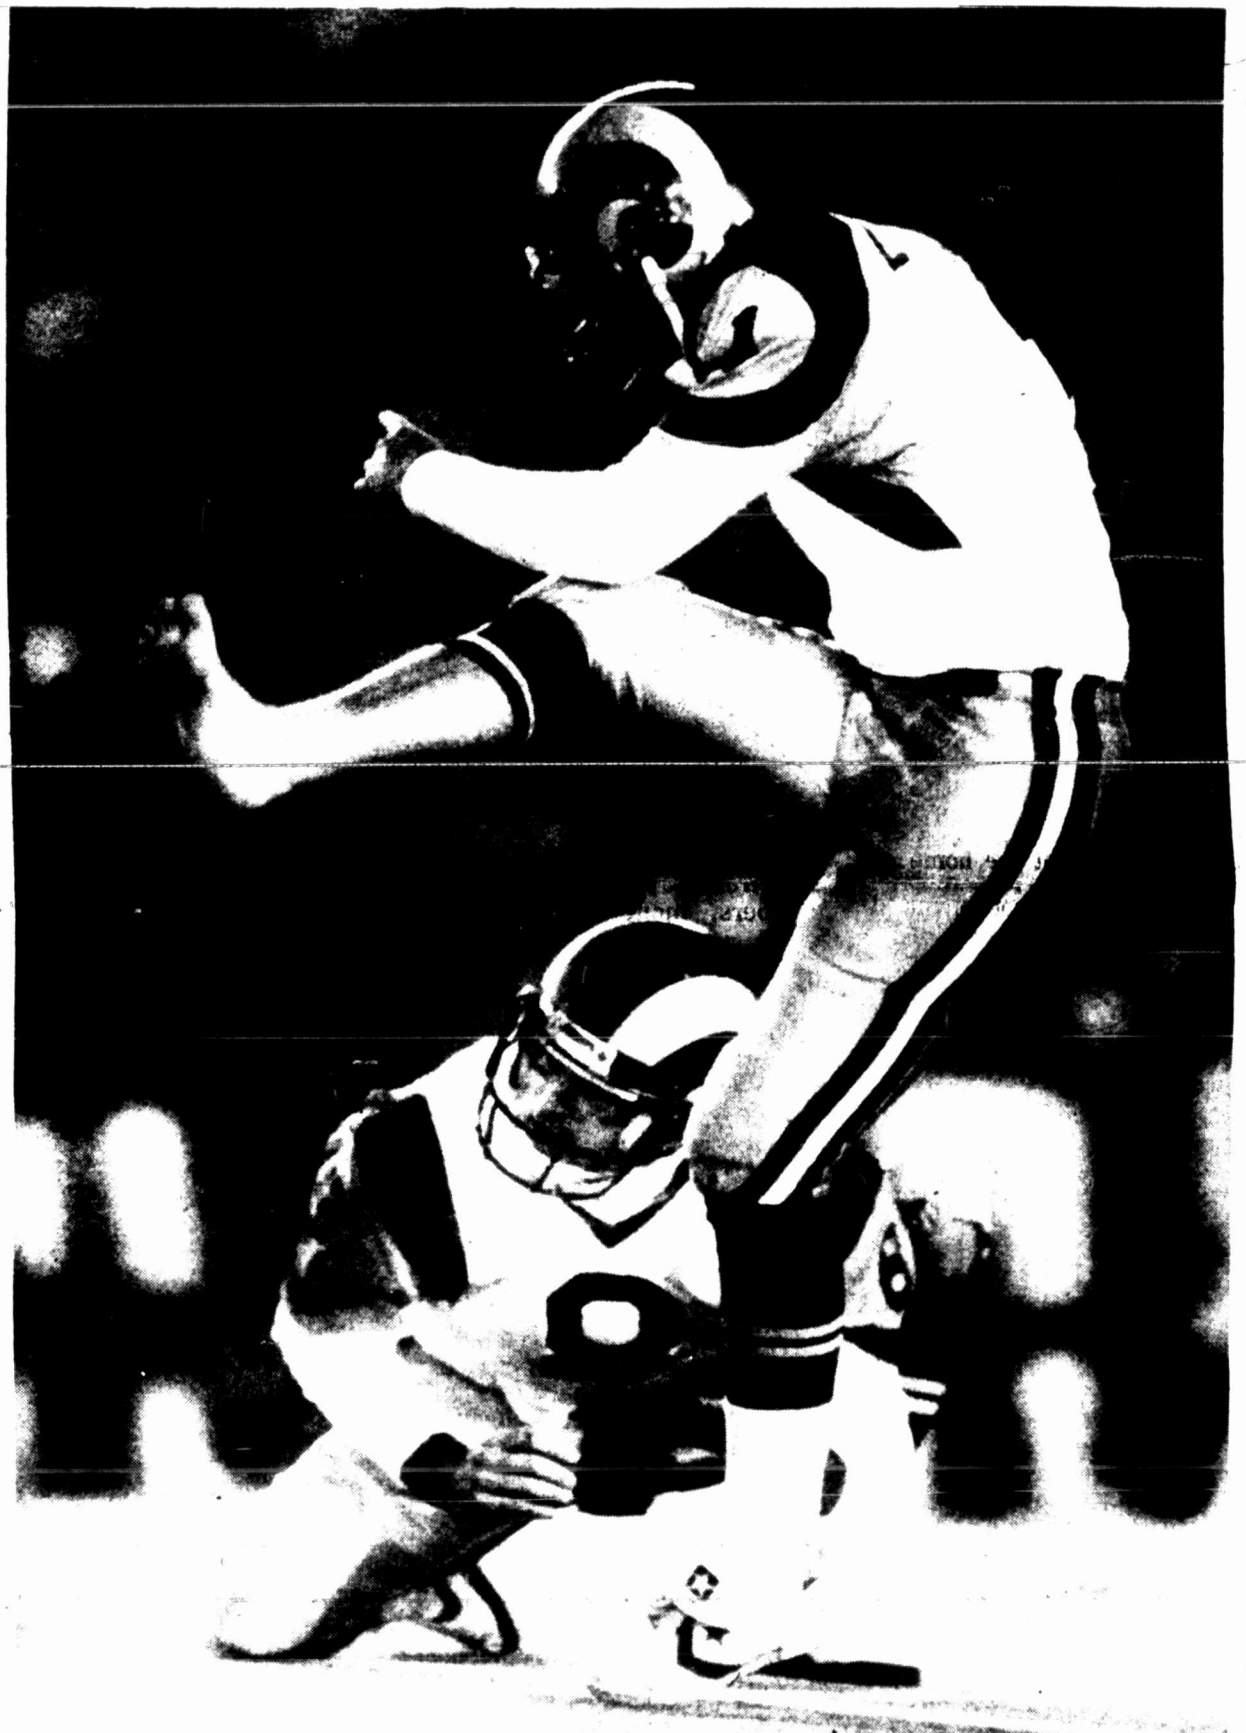

"The win is fine but they beat us when it really, really counted," said Dickerson, referring to the Bears' 24-0 win last January in the NFC championship on their way to the Super Bowl.

Payton, the NFL's all-time leading rusher, had 61 yards on 19 carries before going out with a dislocated big toe on his right foot in the third period. He may miss Sunday's game in Tampa Bay.

"We'll know more by late this afternoon," team spokesman Ken Valdiserri said. Payton has missed only one game in his 12-year NFL career and none since his rookie season, when he sat out with an ankle injury.

Dickerson gave credit to quarterback Steve Dils, who managed to complete only six of 25 passes for 137 yards, with one interception. He tried to go deep eight times and connected only once — but that one was a 65-yard touchdown to Ron Brown with 1:28 to play in the third period that tied the game at 17-17.

The Bears led 3-0 at halftime on Kevin Butler's 30-yard field goal in the first quarter before Lansford's 26-yarder tied the score and started a wild 31-point third quarter.

Los Angeles Rams Mike Lansford successfully kicks a 50-yard field goal with four seconds left to lead the Rams to a 20-17 win over the Chicago Bears in Chicago Monday night.

The Rams made it 10-3 when LeRoy Irvin returned a fumble by Bears' punter Maury Buford 22 yards for a score.

But Chicago's Dennis Gentry returned the ensuing kickoff 84 yards. Two plays later, Payton's replacement, Thomas Sanders, ran 10 yards for the tying touchdown.

On the next series, Gary Fenick intercepted a Dils' pass and returned it to the Rams' 34. On the first play after the interception, Sanders galloped 34 yards for his second TD to put the Bears ahead.

But Dils tied it on the following series when he hit Brown in full flight for his only long-distance completion of the night.

Bears Coach Mike Ditka took the loss — the first for Chicago in the past 15 games at Soldier Field — in stride.

White out for rest of regular season

IRVING (AP) — Quarterback Danny White, who got the Dallas Cowboys into three NFC championship games but never the Super Bowl, apparently will miss the remainder of the NFL regular season because of a fractured wrist.

White, at 34 the second oldest quarterback in the NFL, will wear a cast for four to six weeks and might not even be available should the Cowboys get into the playoffs.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said a search is on for another quarterback.

"We'll have to go with somebody who has been competitive this year," Landry said. "As tough as it is on quarterbacks we'll have to go with three. We won a championship with a third-string quarterback last year."

Landry wouldn't name the quarterback the Cowboys were seeking but said there was hope White could be ready this year.

"Danny would need three or four weeks for rehabilitation," Landry said.

"We'll prepare Steve Pelluer like he's our quarterback for the rest of the season."

The Cowboys have seven weeks left in the regular season.

"If Danny was ready for the playoffs he would be rusty," Landry said. "You've got to go against live competition to be ready in the playoffs."

Pelluer, a former fifth-round draft pick from the University of Washington, started three games for the Cowboys after White suffered a groin pull.

White started for the first time in a month two weeks ago in an easy victory over the St. Louis Cardinals and only played a half.

"It will hurt us to lose Danny because of his experience," Landry said. "But Steve will be great."

The Cowboys also have Reggie Collier, who has yet to participate as quarterback in an NFL down after being signed out of the USFL's Orlando Renegades. He has moved up to second string but Landry added "We would have to really restrict our offense with him in the game."

Pelluer passed for 339 yards against the Giants in the loss.

Landry said Pelluer "did just an excellent job. And he'll get better and better over the next few weeks."

Dallas running backs Tony Dorsett and Herschel Walker suffered slight injuries, but were expected to be ready for Sunday's 3 p.m. meeting in Texas Stadium with the Los Angeles Raiders.

Dorsett has been bothered for weeks by ankle and knee sprains. Walker was kicked in the shin during the Giants' game and limped through the final minutes.

"We believe everyone will be able to play except for White," Landry said.

White, an 11-year veteran, was injured in the first quarter on a blindside blitz by linebacker Carl Banks.

Ex Chiefs coach heads north

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — The Buffalo Bills have introduced themselves to Coach Marv Levy, who in turn hopes to acquaint the players with something new — winning.

In replacing Hank Bullough, who was fired Monday, Levy takes over a team that is 2-7 this year and has won only six of 41 games.

But Levy, the former Kansas City Chiefs head coach, said he feels the team is not that far from becoming a contender in the National Football League.

"I think there are a lot of players on this team who are on the upswing, many more than who are on the downside," he said. "If we can get some good drafts to back them up, fine."

Levy also said he has something to offer the Bills that could make them a better football team.

"I understand and realize that, coming in in mid-season, there are some things that a coach can contribute," Levy, who was working as director of football operations for the Canadian Football League's Montreal Alouettes, said. "He can contribute a sense of direction."

Levy said he also hopes to bring "a sense of organization" to a team that has lacked it during several games this season, including the 34-28 loss at Tampa Bay Sunday that probably cost Bullough his job.

Two crucial fumbles on kickoffs led directly to Tampa Bay touchdowns that helped the Buccaneers to a 20-0 halftime lead before the Bills rallied.

"The decision was reached very, very recently that a change in direction was needed," General Manager Bill Polian said.

Telephone calls to Bullough's home Monday were not answered.

Levy, who broke into professional coaching in 1969 as kicking coach for the Philadelphia Eagles, said he would "direct most attention toward the kicking game, which is shoddy now, in my opinion."

Referring to the two fumbled kickoffs Sunday, Levy said, "You make the two big kicking game mistakes that you made yesterday, and you put yourself... in a position to make it very tough for your passing game to go."

But the Bills, who now have their third head coach in as many seasons, also need help in other areas, Levy noted.

Hurricanes remain on top after rout

By The Associated Press
Miami, which rallied in the fourth quarter to beat Florida State, used the victory to stay atop The Associated Press' football poll for the sixth straight week.

The Hurricanes improved to 8-0 Saturday by beating No. 20 Florida State 41-23 and knocking the Seminoles out of the Top Twenty.

Penn State and Michigan, also 8-0 and the only other unbeaten and untied major-college teams, remained No. 2 and No. 3, respectively, in the poll released Monday. Oklahoma is still fourth, but Auburn and Washington fell several positions while Arizona State jumped from seventh to fifth.

Miami got 53 of 58 first-place votes and 1,153 of a possible 1,160 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Penn State, which moved into the second spot a week ago, received four first-place votes and 1,076 points after a 19-0 triumph over West Virginia.

The other first-place ballot went to Michigan, which routed Illinois 69-13 and received 1,053 points.

Oklahoma, 7-1, got 953 points after ripping Kansas 64-3. Arizona State's 34-21 victory over then-No. 6 Washington lifted the Sun Devils, 7-0-1, into fifth place with 921 points while the Huskies dropped to 13th.

Alabama rebounded from last week's 23-3 loss to Penn State and defeated Mississippi State 38-3. The Crimson Tide got 861 points in moving from eighth to sixth while the Bulldogs, then No. 19, fell out of the rankings after a four-week stay.

Nebraska improved from ninth to seventh with 793 points after a 38-0 rout of Kansas State. Texas A&M moved from 10th to eighth with 740 points after beating Southern Methodist 39-35.

Auburn, which had been unbeaten, lost to Florida 18-17 and fell from fifth to ninth with 660 points. Arkansas, No. 13 last week, rounded out the Top Ten with 639 points.

Warriors find defense under Karl

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The Golden State Warriors have new owners, a new coach, new uniforms and, most importantly, a new attitude. Particularly where defense is concerned.

After finishing last by giving up 116.9 points per game last year, the Warriors have turned their defensive game around under the direction of Coach George Karl.

"I think the main thing this team needed was confidence and composure," Karl said after Monday night's 104-95 victory over the New York Knicks. "The best coach for this team is winning. It has to start believing in itself. And winning is the best way I know of gaining confidence."

Purvis Short, who led all scorers with 26 points, put the credit for Golden State's defensive resurgence squarely on Karl.

"Basically, it's his philosophy," Short said. "We try to create mass confusion out there. We're not just running helter-skelter. Everyone has a role, a job to do, in every given situation."

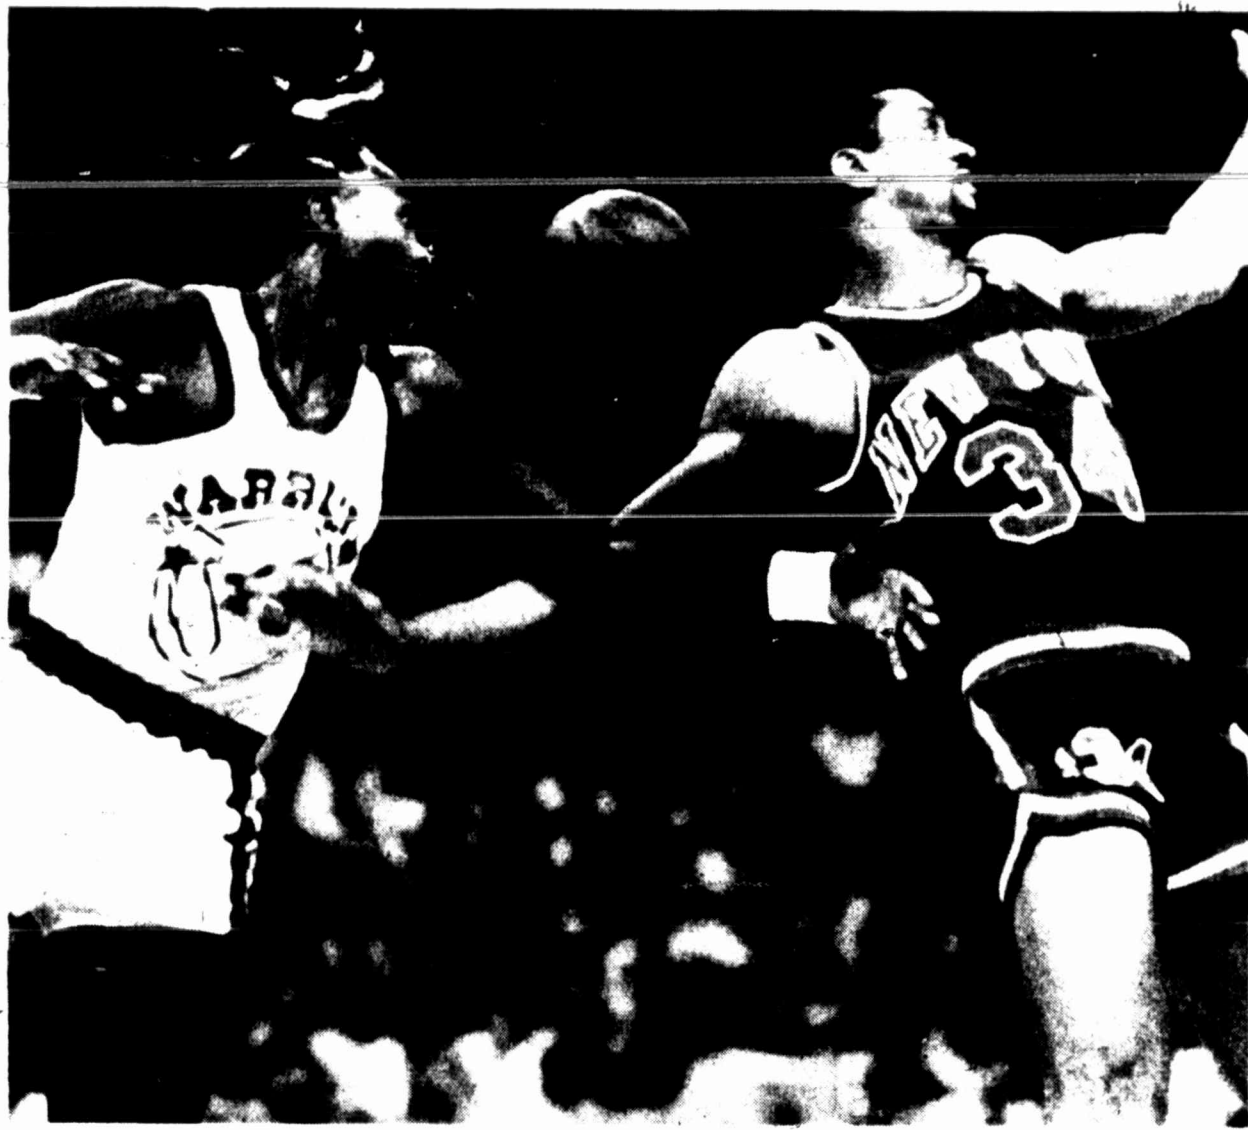

Knicks Coach Hubie Brown, however, said superior defense was only one factor in Golden State's victory, which improved the Warriors' record to 2-1.

"They forced us into 21 turnovers. Their defense outthusted us," said Brown, whose team is winless after three games. "But the other half of the Warrior defense was that we missed enough open shots for 82 games."

New York's starting guards, Trent Tucker and Rory Sparrow, combined to miss their first 18 shots and finished with a dismal 7-of-29 for the game.

Meanwhile, Short was scoring 19 of his points in the second half and Eric Floyd was handing out a game-high 17 assists for Golden State. Floyd triggered a 12-0 run at the start of the third quarter with six points of his own as the Warriors broke the game open.

"Tonight we had a lot of highlight film material," said Karl. "I honestly don't know what part of our defensive game was lacking."

Tucker led the Knicks with 19 points, and center Bill Cartwright and Pat Cummings each contributed 17. Cummings also led both teams with 13 rebounds, while Larry Smith topped Golden State with 10.

New York center Patrick Ewing got into early foul trouble and the Knicks paid the price, falling behind 19-9 after eight minutes and trailing 25-19 after the first quarter.

Cummings and Louis Orr then came off the bench to score 10 points each in the second quarter, leading the Knicks to a 50-49 halftime edge that disappeared on Floyd's third-period spurt.

The Warriors were called for five technical fouls because of illegal defenses, with the Knicks converting on three of the free-throw opportunities.

Former Steers' duo playing for 'Hounds'

JAY PIRKLE

LUIS PUGA

PORTALES — Two former Big Spring Steers' standouts, Jay Pirkle and Luis Puga, are playing their college football at Eastern New Mexico University.

Pirkle graduated from Big Spring High in 1985, where he lettered three times in football and baseball and once in basketball and track. Pirkle, a 6-2, 205-pound sophomore, is the son of A.J. Pirkle of 626

Tulane Avenue. Pirkle is seeing action at strong safety for the Greyhounds.

Puga, who graduated last year, is the son of Aurora Puga of 1206 Lindbergh Street. Puga is being redshirted on the offensive line.

Eastern New Mexico is a member of the Lone Star Conference and is 6-2 on the season.

Mounting losses stir grumblings for Oilers

HOUSTON (AP) — Recent fan and media criticism that the Houston Oilers offense is not balanced between passing and running is unfounded.

The Oilers pass one week and run the next.

In Houston's latest loss on Sunday, Coach Jerry Glanville called 18 rushes on the Oilers' first 20 offensive plays, determined to establish a running attack against the Miami Dolphins.

The Dolphins won 28-7.

A week earlier, the Oilers came out throwing with quarterback Warren Moon passing on 10 of Houston's first 11 offensive plays. Two were intercepted.

The Raiders won 28-7.

Houston has lost eight straight games since going unbeaten in the preseason and winning its opener.

Nerves are starting to fray and fingers are starting to point.

"We're all getting kind of edgy, ready to explode," Glanville said.

Glanville benched Moon for the second half of Sunday's loss and the Oilers' $5.5 million quarterback felt he was being blamed for the poor first half.

"I feel handcuffed until the game's out of reach," Moon said. "I think he's (Glanville) putting the blame on me for the first half and that's not fair. We run the ball and we get down 14-0 and it's like 'OK, Warren, let's make a miracle happen.'"

Glanville said he wouldn't respond publicly.

"We talk every week and I'll talk to him again this week," Glanville said.

Moon said his pleas for a more balanced attack have gone unheeded. He's been sacked 28 times and thrown 18 interceptions this season.

Glanville, the Oilers' defensive coordinator before he was given a five-year contract as head coach, wants a time-consuming, grind-it-out offense to take pressure off his defense.

The defense doesn't have a strong rush, forcing Glanville to use high-risk blitzing defense that sooner or later gets burned.

The more the defense is on the field the sooner it gets burned.

But the Oilers have been unable to run or pass successfully because the game plans have been easy to decipher.

Glanville continues to defend his plan.

"We were wide open at the start against the Raiders," he said. "Everybody was saying where's the running game. 'This week, the approach was not to get behind early.'"

"I wanted us to get into the game and get a feeling that we could play with them."

But Moon threw his 18th interception of the season shortly before the half to set up Dan Marino's 3-yard touchdown pass to Tony Nathan and a 21-0 halftime lead.

That was enough for Glanville, who said last week that the quarterback position was not sacred and any player would be replaced if he wasn't doing the job.

Glanville said Monday that he was not blaming Moon for the first half fizzle.

"I'm not putting the blame on anyone for the first half," Glanville said.

"The only play I blame Warren for was the 12-yard sack. Warren is our starter as long as he's healthy."

Moon suffered a bruised hip late in the second quarter. Glanville said he did not know Moon's physical status for Sunday's game in the Astrodom against the Cincinnati Bengals.

Tyler stomps Trinity Valley for Juco Conference title

By The Associated Press
Tyler Junior College won the Texas Junior College Football Conference championship outright over the weekend, defeating Trinity Valley Community College, 45-7.

The victory gave the Apaches five league wins without a loss. Tyler's victory, coupled with Kilgore's 40-0 win over Cisco and Blinn's 20-13 decision over Ranger, allowed the Apaches to claim the TJCFC title for the second straight year.

In a non-conference game, Northeastern Oklahoma A&M College knocked off Navarro, 38-0. Cisco plays at Blinn Thursday and on Saturday Kilgore goes to Trinity Valley and Navarro hosts Ranger, all in TJCFC play.

TJCFC has one regular-season game remaining, Nov. 15 against Kilgore. The Apaches will then host the Second Annual Texas Junior College Bowl in December at Rose Stadium in Tyler. TJCFC officials began the process of bidding for a bowl opponent Monday.

TJCFC held Trinity Valley 43 to 25 yards rushing and capitalized on two interceptions and five recovered fumbles by the Cardinals.

Apache running back Bill Jones, a sophomore transfer from Southern Methodist University, led all rushers with 92 yards on eight carries and scored two touchdowns on runs of 1 and 5 yards against Trinity Valley. Other TJCFC scores came on a 2-yard plunge by Cedric Jackson, Ronnie Rittiman's 18-yard pass to Ronnie Shepard, Andre King's 35-yard interception return and Derek White's 22-yard field goal. White was also good on 6-of-6 points after touchdown.

Candidate's mother mugged

AUSTIN — The 75-year-old mother of the Republican candidate for Congress in the 10th District was recovering Monday from injuries she suffered during a purse snatching in the parking lot of a shopping mall, authorities said.

Madge Keeton, the mother of former Austin Mayor Carole Rylander, suffered a concussion, a broken nose, a broken left shoulder and black eyes when she was knocked to the ground Sunday evening as she left a store at Highland Mall, police said. Mrs. Keeton also required stitches to close a wound over one eye, and officials at St. David's Community Hospital said both her eyes were swollen shut Monday evening.

She was listed in fair and stable condition and probably would be hospitalized for several days, officials said.

101st Baptist convention opens

EL PASO — The Baptist General Convention of Texas opened its 101st meeting today in this border city with a predicted re-election of its current president.

Some 5,000 messengers, as church delegates are called, are expected at the meeting, where some of the highlights are discussions on a proposed record $65.5 million budget for 1987 and amendments in the group's constitution.

Southern Baptists are the largest Protestant denomination in the United States, with some 14 million members. In Texas, some 8 million people are affiliated with religious groups, of which 2.5 million belong to Southern Baptist churches, said group spokesman Orville Scott.

"For Such A Time As This — Mission Texas," as this year's state convention has been christened, points to the group's goal of establishing 2,000 new churches in the state by the end of the century, said Scott.

36 illegal aliens prosecuted

EL PASO — A U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service official says the jail terms given 36 illegal aliens from Mexico was intended as a signal to others who have found ways to get around the legal immigration process.

The aliens were arrested last Friday in what was described as an extremely unusual move. Instead of just sending them back to Mexico, authorities said, they were taken to jail and held over the weekend.

They were convicted on charges of illegal entry and sentenced to jail terms ranging from 20 to 180 days Monday by U.S. Magistrate Janet Ruesch.

Al Giugni, Immigration and Naturalization Service district director in El Paso, said the 36 were openly violating the rules by walking past inspectors on the international bridge.

"This is not an open border," Giugni said. "If you're not a citizen, you can't just walk across the port of entry and seek employment. These people were taking advantage of a laxness in our procedure and we decided to put a stop to it."

A 700-pound bull moose in Shrewsbury, Vt., chose an unusual mate this year — a white and brown Hereford cow, Fish and Wildlife officials said. The moose picked out one lucky cow in a farmer's pasture last Saturday and has protected her since. He will stay until the mating season is over within a couple of weeks. Associated Press photo

Moose meets cow: love at first sight

SHREWSBURY, Vt. (AP) — This is a love story, set on a scenic Vermont hillside. It is the story of a courtship destined for disappointment, but who wants to break the news to the 700-pound male?

It all began over the weekend when a bull moose wandered into a pasture in Shrewsbury and spotted Jessica, a demure brown and white Hereford cow.

The moose stood and stared at her, all day Saturday, all day Sunday, all day Monday and all day Tuesday. As word spread, residents of the area began driving up to watch.

A state game warden told the farmer, Larry Carrara, the moose will probably stay until the end of its mating season — which usually isn't until the early part of November.

Carrara said the moose and cow stand side by side, but do little else. "They've nuzzled like they're kissing, but I ain't seen no action," he said.

The affair comes as no surprise to State Game Warden Donald Gallus of Mount Holly.

"It's unusual to see it, but it's not uncommon for them to behave that way," he said.

In 1976, a 900-pound moose spent several days trying to court the cows at a Worcester farm.

In 1977, a 1,000-pound moose stalked a Morrisville dairy farm and threatened anyone who tried to milk the cows. State game wardens tranquilized the moose and hauled it to a wildlife sanctuary near the Canadian border.
