School Board revises discipline policy

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

As a result of House Bill 13 passage in this summer's Legislature, Big Spring Independent School District board members unanimously approved revisions in its discipline management plans.

Board members acted on the agenda item during its Thursday night meeting at Big Spring High School.

The revised measures give school principals the right to expel students who are deemed chronic discipline cases and teachers a "certain due process," in expulsion cases, said Bill McQueary, assistant superintendent for personnel and instruction.

House Bill 13 attempts to modify certain disciplinary measures of House Bill 72. School administrators testified before House members this summer and complained of the leniency and problems inherent in the lax disciplinary measures inherent in the bill, McQueary said.

House Bill 72 made "no provisions for the immediate removal of chronic discipline cases for school administrators," McQueary said.

The bill specifically stated that removal of discipline cases from the school by the principals could only be conducted if an educational alternative mode such as supervised home instruction could be provided.

Examples of the chronic discipline cases that school administrators can directly act on include students with extreme assaultive behavior, students who carry firearms or peddle drugs, McQueary said.

The percentage of chronic discipline cases within a student body is extremely small — usually about two to three percent, McQueary said. He bases his perception on

Merger proposal blasted by many

By DANA PALMER
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A number of Texans, including some members of the Select Committee on Higher Education, have blasted suggested mergers involving six state universities.

The tremendous political opposition was acknowledged Thursday by select committee Chairman Larry Temple, who made the merger suggestions in a memo to fellow committee members earlier this week.

"I think the reaction I have had has been one of concern," Temple said. However, he noted that a former North Texas State University regent called him to say the merger recommendations are "right on target."

"But that is an exception to what I have been hearing," Temple said. In light of the opposition, the merger candidates will have a chance on Nov. 21 to plead their cases before the select committee.

The blue-ribbon committee, which has been meeting since last fall, is trying to wrap up its report by early January. Members are charged with giving legislators a recommendation on how to make public higher education in Texas more efficient, while increasing academic excellence.

As for suggestions that some universities should be closed, Temple told reporters earlier that the committee's review over recent months made it clear that such a move would eliminate higher education from various regions of Texas.

"That is not either in the state's best interest or the region's best interest," Temple said. "Each institution serves a critical need in its region," and because of that, no closures are likely to be recommended by the select committee, he said.

Temple said he expects the select committee to take a vote on his merger recommendations and others by Dec. 12.

He noted that an hour of time had been offered earlier in the year to universities tagged for possible closure, and the same should be done for the merger candidates.

Under his merger proposals:

City hires part-time attorney

Hardy Wilkerson has been hired part-time as the new city attorney, City Manager Mack Wofford announced this morning.

Wilkerson, who will assume duties early next month, replaces former full-time city attorney Doyle Curtis, who resigned under pressure from the City Council last May.

City officials said then that the pressure was in an attempt to save money, and that with fewer Big Spring residents, the city doesn't need a full-time attorney.

Since Doyle's resignation, the city has been involved in several lawsuits and has consulted various attorneys in the matters.

Wilkerson will be paid a salary of $27,500 a year, Wofford said. As a full-time city attorney, Doyle's salary was $41,184 a year.

"Hardy's role will be more advising the council" when they need to take legal action, and providing legal advice to city staff, Wofford said. He will be familiar with the

The Corral roped for outreach facility

By SCOTT FITZGERALD

Although a location appears to have been found for the state hospital's outreach patient program, lease funding has not yet been finalized.

Jack Stovall, director of community services at the Big Spring State Hospital and Downtown Coordinator Teri Quinones announced Thursday afternoon that the downtown steering committee and the hospital's advisory board had both approved housing the program at The Corral, 611 E. Third

St. The clothing business and its building, located at the corner of Benton and Third streets, is owned by Mayor Cotton Mize. He will close his business on Jan. 1, Quinones said. Stovall projects the outreach center could be operating

Feb. 1. Quinones said this morning she would be informing neighboring businesses near The Corral about the change. She did not anticipate resistance as had been encountered from downtown merchants when the advisory board proposed locating the center at 116 E. Third St. in two buildings owned by local bondsman/property owner Danny Heckler.

Opposition was voiced against that location because it is situated in a proposed downtown Big Spring done its "spirit of aggression and expansion."

But Khamenei was quoted as saying he had found both "right and wrong" in Reagan's speech.

Congressional Democrats, appearing also on the morning news programs, called Reagan's approval of secret overtures to Iran an "amateurish" foreign policy that makes him appear willing to trade arms for hostages while eroding U.S. credibility with its allies.

"It seems to have been operated out of the basement of the White House ... the State Department cut out, the Defense Department cut out, almost in an amateurish way," Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said.

The president, who said his address was prompted by widespread misinformation about his actions, acknowledged he had sent McFarlane, on a secret, four-day mission to Iran last spring "to raise the diplomatic level of contacts" with Iranian officials.

"Since then," Reagan said in his hastily arranged 12-minute speech, "the dialogue has continued, and step-by-step progress continues to be made."

He claimed erroneous reports and "unprecedented speculation" about a connection between arms shipments and the release of three American hostages in Lebanon "have been potentially dangerous" to the remaining captives "and destructive of the opportunity before us."

"Due to the publicity of the past week, the entire initiative is very much at risk today," the president said.

Iran's ambassador to the United Nations, Said Rajaie-Khorassani, said after Reagan's speech his government has "made certain conditions" for a continuation of the diplomatic efforts, and if they are met, a "mutual understanding will develop."

However, Khamenei, in his weekly prayer sermon at Tehran University, said today the United States must end its "spirit of aggression and expansionism, its behavior towards Moslem nations, the Palestinian nation and the oppressed Arab nations."

He vowed there would be no "leniency and compromise" until the United States changed this policy.

Reagan's address, which followed more than 10 days of official silence amid a swirl of published reports detailing various aspects of the program, left Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd asking whether U.S. credibility had been damaged and accusing Reagan of a last-minute "public relations game" to explain what Byrd called a "major foreign relations blunder."

Reagan also said former National Security adviser Robert McFarlane held four days of talks with Iranian officials in Tehran last spring.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, which carried excerpts of Khamenei's remarks, said he spoke during the weekly prayer sermon today at Tehran University. The agency report was monitored in Nicosia.

He was responding to a speech Thursday night in which Reagan acknowledged shipping "small amounts of defensive weapons and spare parts" to Iran during the course of 18 months of a "secret diplomatic initiative" toward its revolutionary government.

"It is mere lies," IRNA quoted Khamenei as saying. "They might have held these talks with others, with international smugglers perhaps. This has nothing to do with us."

Iran denies diplomatic contacts with U.S.A.

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran's president today dismissed as "mere lies" President Reagan's statement that the two countries have had secret diplomatic contacts for 18 months, and insisted Washington end what he called its aggressive policies.

President Ali Khamenei said the United States wanted improved relations, "...but we don't. How can you approach us? How can the Iranian nation trample upon its principles and come close to you, while your policies in each critical corner of the world are exactly contrary to ours?"

Band pair a success

Mike Ramey, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ramey, qualified for the All-Region Orchestra in auditions held at the Odessa Permian Saturday, band director Ricky Mitchell has announced.

Ramey, a senior clarinetist and drum major for the Steer Band, was rated as first chair clarinet and best in auditions. In attaining all-regional honors, he also was certified to All-State Orchestra tryouts, which were done by tape on Saturday afternoon.

In addition, Paul Blalack, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Blalack, was certified to All-State Orchestra tryouts. He is also a senior clarinetist in the Steer Band and auditioned on E-Flat Soprano Clarinet.

Due to instrumentation restrictions, the music in All-Region Orchestra did not require an E-flat clarinet so Blalack auditioned only for state certification, Mitchell explained.

Other Big Spring students who auditioned for All-Region Orchestra were Hollie Brownfield, Medina Corwin, Aricia Grant, Toby Hain, Nancy Hollingsworth, Debbie Lee, Victoria Logan and Dawn Sampley.

United Way concert sees $21,000 loss

The United Way of Big Spring, Howard County lost $21,000 on Saturday night's poorly attended Louise Mandrell Concert, but United Way Director Sherrie Bordofski said the loss will not affect the United Way campaign drive.

"The concert has absolutely nothing to do with the campaign as far as the loss is concerned. That will be absorbed in the reserve fund that's been accumulated over several years.

"It will not effect the agencies as for their allocations whatsoever," Bordofski said this morning.

She said $114,759 of the $215,000 goal — 53.3 percent — has been pledged. She said next Friday is the last day of the campaign.

"We lost $21,000. I'm very disappointed. Embarrassed is more the word for it, simply because people didn't turn out," Bordofski said.

"The board has been very involved with it. They're happy to put it away to sleep," McQueary said.

The board solicited help from teachers, administrators, PTA groups, student council members, and the 118th juvenile probation office to compose a code of behavior that is in compliance with guidelines stipulated by the House bills, McQueary said.

During last night's meeting, board members voted unanimously to accept a 1986-1987 independent audit conducted by Green & Fillingim.

According to the firm's audit, the school district had $14,920,377 in revenues and $14,753,437 in expenditures as of Aug. 31.

The main audit also encompassed a separate audit of the Headstart program, Green said.

"The school is on a very solid financial base," Green told board members.

The school district's total assessment is about $57 million and Green estimated the school will have all its bond expenses paid off in seven years.

retail zone.

Quinones said The Corral location is ideal because it is surrounded by vacant buildings and is near downtown.

Stovall said the board's intention of locating the outreach center in or near downtown was to be accessible to a targeted group of persons who reside in The Palmer House at the corner of Second and Runnels streets.

County commissioners have been requested to provide county funds for building rent and city councilmen have been requested to provide municipal funds for utility costs.

County judge Milton Kirby said this morning that Quinones and Stovall would be on the Nov. 24 county commissioners' agenda, when they are expected to request a motion allowing $500 of county funds to be used towards rent.

Commissioners had previously approved a $350 rent allotment for the Heckler's buildings.

However, the advisory board ruled last week against Heckler's $350 offer citing downtown merchants' disapproval of the site as their main reason.

Stovall said he does not see county resistance to remodeling the motion to include an additional $150 for monthly rent.

"I don't believe they will turn us down. It's always possible. They (commissioners) initially talked favorably of $500 when we initially spoke to them about the center in September," Stovall said.

If the county turns down the funding request, Stovall said the advisory board would seek funding elsewhere.

City manager Mack Wolford told Quinones he had inquired about the legality of the mayor's interest in the issue and said Mize would not cast a vote in any issues raised in city council concerning the center.

background in legal matters affecting the city, he added.

Wilkerson said he envisions a flexible schedule, ideally spending four hours each morning at city hall; however, he acknowledged that situations may occur when he is needed more often.

He has been employed with the firm of Jones and Thomas of Big Spring, but says he plans to have his own practice by Dec. 1.

Wilkerson is a native of Big Spring, and was president of his graduating class at Big Spring

High School. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Wilkerson, owners of Herman's restaurant.

He earned his bachelor of business administration degree in accounting from Texas Tech University in 1982. While in Texas Tech law school, he was a member of the National Mock Trial Team and the Board of Barristers, an honorary trial lawyers' association. He earned a doctor of jurisprudence degree in 1985.

Since returning to Big Spring, he was elected secretary/treasurer of the Howard County Bar Association in September 1985.

U.S. supplied rebels

WASHINGTON — The State Department sponsored flights this year that entered Nicaraguan air space to drop logistical supplies to Contra rebels fighting to overthrow Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government, U.S. officials say.

The officials, insisting on anonymity, said the flights were made by Vortex Air International, a shadowy Miami-based firm that has no planes registered to it in the United States and was established only one year ago.

Robert Duemling, who ran the special State Department office that disbursed $27 million in "humanitarian" aid to the rebels, refused to confirm or deny the overflights, but said the U.S. government only paid for delivery of non-lethal supplies.

Textbook suits filed

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Santa and the Easter Bunny are under attack in Virginia, while some Baptists in Tennessee want to purge public school libraries of books on the occult.

The demands were registered before local school boards this week and follow a recent a federal court decision that fundamentalist Christian children in Hawkins County may be excused from classes that offend their religious beliefs.

Lawyers who defended the Hawkins County School Board said they had warned U.S. District Judge Thomas G. Hull that siding with the group of seven parents could "open the floodgates" for religious attacks on curricula.

Radon causes cancer

LOS ANGELES — Radon gas in 1 million U.S. homes exposes occupants to higher radiation doses than uranium miners get, says a study suggesting the substance may cause more lung cancer deaths than anything but cigarettes.

"The average American suffers a risk of lung cancer from exposure to radon, that while smaller than the risk of smoking, is much larger than the health risk from other environmental pollutants," including smog and toxic waste, nuclear physicist Anthony V. Nero said.

The study published today in the journal Science is the first to calculate the average amount of radon that leaks into U.S. homes from uranium and radium in underlying soil.

Teen becomes lawyer

MIAMI — Stephen Baccus raised his right hand and was sworn in as a lawyer — at age 17, possibly the youngest in the nation.

Baccus, who last week persuaded the Florida Supreme Court to waive a state law requiring people to be at least 18 years old to sign valid contracts, took the oath Thursday in the Dade County Courthouse.

"I could have waited until I am 18, but I didn't want to," Baccus said.

FBI Special Agent Donna Kanaskie holds a baby believed to be the one abducted from a Philadelphia hospital a week ago. Agents were holding a Baltimore couple and were comparing footprints to determine positively if the week-old child was Phillip Worthington, taken from his mother's arms by a woman dressed in a hospital coat.

Baby home; couple arrested by FBI

By LARRY ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — A baby thought to be the newborn abducted from his mother at a Pennsylvania hospital was given a clean bill of health, and the parents said they bear no ill will toward the couple arrested in the kidnapping.

"We don't have anger because we respect humankind," Neil Worthington, 27, said Thursday in Sellersville, Pa. "To want something bad to happen to those people would be out of character."

FBI agents worked to positively identify the baby, found when a woman and her boyfriend were arrested at suburban Baltimore shopping mall Thursday after the agency received a tip.

The pair were charged with kidnapping, and the infant was taken to a foster home.

Agents compared the footprints of the baby found Thursday with those taken soon after the Worthington infant was born eight days ago at Grand View Hospital in Sellersville.

FBI agent Mel Fleming said a positive identification had not been made by late Thursday, and that the footprint comparison would continue today.

The suspects, Ramona Joan Thompson, 44, of Ellicott City, and George Stanley Soustek, 42, of Baltimore, denied the child was the Worthington baby. But the Worthingtons seemed sure the infant, who was shown on television, was their son, Phillip.

"We knew Phil would come back, as long as we kept our faith in God," said Worthington. His wife, Barbara, 26, said she had not lost faith the baby would be returned safely.

Mrs. Worthington, who was released from the hospital Tuesday, suffers from multiple sclerosis and her condition was aggravated by the ordeal, her husband said.

Asked whether he could forgive the couple charged with kidnapping, Worthington replied: "Yes, we have learned to do that."

He also declined to blame the hospital. "There was no one at fault," he said. "This was a situation that developed, and we'll never know why."

Ms. Thompson and Soustek were arrested after the FBI received a tip about the child's whereabouts, then followed the couple to the mall parking lot, officials said.

Ms. Thompson was feeding the infant in the car when she was arrested, said Joseph Corless, special agent in charge of Baltimore's FBI office. The woman told agents it was her child, Corless said.

Soustek was arrested at a delicatessen near the mall.

The couple were ordered held at a police lockup after a bail commissioner denied bond. They were to appear before a federal magistrate today.

Aquino vows justice

MANILA, Philippines — President Corazon Aquino vowed Friday to arrest and punish the killers of a leftist labor boss, as his followers considered mass protests until she fires Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile.

Followers of Rolando Olalia, whose mutilated body was found Thursday on the outskirts of Manila, accused Enrile's supporters of the killing as part of a campaign against the left.

Mrs. Aquino, whose husband Benigno was the victim of an unsolved 1983 murder, made no mention of firing Enrile. His criticism of her policies has helped fuel rumors of an impending military coup.

Thatcher comes to talk

LONDON — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher travels to Washington today for talks with President Reagan expected to focus on West European worries about being left vulnerable if nuclear arsenals are drastically reduced.

West Germany, Britain and other countries fear they would be at the mercy of the Soviet bloc's superiority in tanks and other conventional arms if sweeping proposals on nuclear weapons cuts proposed during last month's superpower summit in Iceland were ratified.

Mrs. Thatcher is scheduled to meet with Reagan at Camp David on Saturday following meetings late Friday with Secretary of State George P. Shultz, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and Vice President George Bush. She is due back in Britain early Sunday.

Family wants to return

MOSCOW — A family of emigres who returned to the Soviet Union this week after 10 years in America, but changed their minds and want to go back, have been told they can leave Saturday, the mother said.

Faina Gonta said the U.S. Embassy told her that she and her family could leave on a British Airways flight to London, but they had not yet obtained tickets or been given exit visas.

Mrs. Gonta said she had nothing against the Soviet Union, but wanted to return to the United States because her teen-age boys are unhappy. Neither the decision to return to the Soviet Union nor the desire to leave again was politically motivated, she said.

Iran says fired missile

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iran said it fired a missile at the Iraqi Defense Ministry in Baghdad today, dealing it a "fiery blow." Residents of the Iraqi capital said they heard a big explosion.

Tehran Radio, monitored in London, said the attack was in retaliation for recent Iraqi air raids. There was no immediate comment from Iraq on the reported missile attack.

"After the cowardly attacks of the criminal rulers of Baghdad and Iran's repeated warnings, the missile unit ... dealt a fiery and firm blow," the Iranian radio said.

A tribute given to Goldwater

From the time Barry Goldwater entered the U.S. Senate in 1953, most everyone has known where he stood on the major issues facing this nation. The Arizona Republican's unalloyed conservatism has been a constant on Capitol Hill, where lawmakers tend to trim their views to suit the prevailing political winds.

So it is that the senator's friend and foes alike greet his impending retirement with respectful regret.

The grand old man of the GOP leaves behind a political legacy that few of his colleagues can match. He will be remembered as the godfather of American conservatism.

Some observers say it was his ill-fated presidential campaign in 1964 that paved the way for Ronald Reagan to enter the White House. In fact, Sen. Goldwater's philosophical principles have become such a part of the political landscape that it's hard to believe he was seen as an extremist two decades ago.

Like most visionaries, the man from Arizona was ahead of his time and generally misunderstood. His ringing acceptance speech at the 1964 GOP convention extolling the virtue of defending liberty convinced a good many Americans that he was a right-wing extremist.

To the contrary: During the early 1950s, Sen. Goldwater was a member of the NAACP and argued forcefully for integration of the Arizona National Guard.

His opposition to the 1964 Civil Rights Act was based on his unflinching belief in states' rights. Indeed, when race riots began to erupt in the summer of 1964, the GOP presidential nominee met with Lyndon Johnson and agreed not to exploit the subject.

After being buried in the LBJ landslide, Mr. Goldwater returned to the Senate in 1968 and evolved as a crusty, elder statesman who continued to fight for his principles. His candid, often salty, comments were a refreshing change of pace from the oft-contrived courtliness on Capitol Hill.

Accordingly, Senate Republicans dispatched the Arizona to the White House in 1974 to impress upon Richard Nixon that he couldn't win an impeachment vote, which meant that it was time for him to go.

The conservative tide of 1980 did not soften the senator's sharp tongue. Informed that the Rev. Jerry Falwell had urged good Christians to oppose Sandra Day O'Connor's appointment to the Supreme Court because of her stand on abortion, Mr. Goldwater suggested that good Christians "ought to kick Falwell in the ass."

Nor did Sen. Goldwater's staunch defense of the military temper his blunt retorts when something was amiss. Asked how he could oppose the Apache helicopter, which is manufactured in his home state, the senator snapped: "Hell, they could build it in my living room, and I won't go along until they get the price down."

In pushing for his landmark military-reorganization bill this year, he likened the rivalry between the Joint Chiefs of Staff to "a senile bunch of bickering school boys."

Apart from his failing health, Sen. Goldwater decided not to seek re-election because he detests the expense and the mudslinging involved in today's campaigns. Thus Barry Goldwater will retire to his beloved Arizona, teach a class or two, and bask in the conservative glow that graces the twilight of his distinguished career.

We wish him good luck.

Today in history

Today is Friday, Nov. 14, the 318th day of 1986. There are 47 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Nov. 14, 1889, New York World reporter Nellie Bly (Elizabeth Cochran) began her attempt to top the fictitious voyage of Jules Verne's Phileas Fogg by traveling around the world in fewer than 80 days. She succeeded, finishing the trip in 72 days.

On this date: In 1832, the first streetcar, a horse-drawn vehicle called the John Mason, made its debut in New York.

In 1851, Herman Melville's novel "Moby Dick" was first published in the United States.

In 1881, Charles J. Guiteau went on trial for the assassination of President James Garfield. Guiteau was convicted and hanged the following year.

In 1922, the British Broadcasting Corp. began its domestic radio service.

In 1935, President Franklin D. Roosevelt proclaimed the Philippine Islands a free commonwealth.

In 1940, during World War II, German planes destroyed most of the English town of Coventry.

In 1972, on Wall Street, the Dow Jones Industrial Average closed above the 1,000 mark for the first time, ending the day at 1,003.16.

In 1973, Britain's Princess Anne was married to a commoner, Captain Mark Phillips, in a ceremony in Westminster Abbey.

Ten years ago: Syrian forces began entering Beirut, taking control of the divided Lebanese capital.

Five years ago: The space shuttle Columbia, its five-day mission cut down to two days because of a malfunctioning fuel cell, made a safe landing at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

One year ago: In a nationally broadcast address, President Reagan said his upcoming summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev would reduce distrust and secrecy, and "bring forth a more open world."

Today's birthdays: Composer Aaron Copland is 86. Actor Brian Keith is 65. Actor McLean Stevenson is 57. Actor Don Stewart is 51. Jordan's King Hussein is 51. Britain's Prince Charles is 38.

Syrian terrorist involvement has history of four years

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — The United States and the United Kingdom have officially confirmed what we have been reporting for years: that Syria has sponsored international terrorism. Syrian strongman Hafez Assad has been stirring up terrorist attacks against the West for at least four years.

There is no question that Syrian troops occupying Lebanon have protected the Iranian Shiites, who have held American and other Western hostages in the Bekaa Valley over the last two years. Not much happens in the Bekaa Valley without the Syrian army's knowledge and consent.

We were the first to disclose — on May 10, 1983 — that the Bekaa Valley terrorists were responsible for the bombing a month earlier of the U.S. Embassy in Beirut, which killed 77 Americans.

We cited as the source of our report communications intercepted by the National Security Agency. But regard for national security compelled us to omit the fact that the intercepts had been made in Damascus, where Syrians actively aided the Iranians planning the bombing. (CBS News revealed the Damascus connection in a later report.)

Since that first terrorist incident in the current cycle of anti-American violence, many other Americans have been murdered by Iranian Shiites — with the Syrians' help. All told, we count at least 270 Americans who have died as a result of the unholy Iranian-Syrian alliance. Here is the detailed indictment of this bloody conspiracy at work:

• October 1983 — An Iranian-trained terrorist, with Syrian logistical help, car-bombed the U.S. Marine barracks at Beirut airport, killing 241 Americans.

• September 1984 — Two Americans died in the suicide bombing of the Beirut embassy annex. U.S. intelligence sources are convinced the attack had Syrian support.

Jack Anderson

• December 1984 — Two Americans were murdered and two others savagely tortured aboard a Kuwaiti airliner hijacked to Tehran. The hijacking was planned and coordinated by the Ayatollah Mohtashani, then Iran's ambassador to Syria. We proved this by quoting word-for-word from a Dec. 4 NSA intercept of a telephone conversation between Mohtashani in Damascus and an Iranian foreign ministry official in Tehran.

• March 1985 — The CIA's Beirut station chief, William Buckley, was flown to Damascus in a Syrian army helicopter. He had been kidnapped by Iranian Shiites a year earlier and hidden, like other American hostages, in the Syrian-controlled Bekaa Valley, where he was subjected to long and brutal torture. (The Syrians may not have known who was aboard their helicopter, since Buckley was disguised as a wounded Iranian soldier.) Anyway, he was transferred to an Iran Air 727 at the Damascus airport and flown to Tehran, where he subsequently died from a heart attack induced by torture and deprivation.

• June 1985 — A U.S. Navy man was murdered during the hijacking of TWA flight 847, which U.S. intelligence sources say was the work of Iranians and Syrians.

• December 1985 — Simultaneous terrorist attacks on the Rome and Vienna airports left six Americans dead. Although Libya helped Abu Nidal's terrorists stage these atrocities, secret intelligence evidence we've seen shows that Iran and Syria were equally to blame. As we reported earlier this year, the two four-man terrorist teams got their training and operational planning in the Syrian-controlled Bekaa Valley.

UNDER THE DOME: The ill-fated American Embassy building in Moscow for the past couple of decades continues to fuel a snarling match between State Department officials and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee staff. At one point in the discussions, the exasperated Senate staffers proposed that all further work on the embassy be halted until the State Department gets its act together. The diplomats chewed this over for a while, then protested that such a move would cost time and money. Responded the committee staff with bitter sarcasm: "It is obvious that speed and economy have not been the hallmarks of this particular project."

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: Women in Czechoslovakia are getting mixed signals from their government.

On the one hand, they are being encouraged to hold jobs; on the other hand, they are being offered incentives to bear children.

Women already make up about half the Czech work force, and they earn the same pay as men do for the same jobs.

But sexual equality seems to have gone astray in the government sector: There is only one woman in the Communist Party secretariat — and there are no women ambassadors.

Soviet 'holocaust' described in book

Between 1929 and 1933, the rulers of the Soviet Union fought a war fully as destructive as World War I. But this was fought against the Soviet peasantry, an all-out offensive by a government against its own people. When it was over, some 14 million people had died.

In a century distinguished for state-sponsored crimes against humanity, this may be the only one that compares in scale and ferocity to Hitler's attempt to exterminate the Jews.

But it has lain in comparative obscurity, largely because of the Soviet government's refusal to provide an accounting, or even an acknowledgement, of what happened. Moscow has enforced secrecy in the hope of inducing amnesia.

Now the British historian Robert Conquest, who has spent much of his distinguished career chronicling the monstrosities of the Stalinist era, has produced a comprehensive record of what may stand as the crime of the century. "The Harvest of Sorrow" is not just a heroic work of scholarship, but an embarrassment to Mikhail Gorbachev and an antidote to wishful thinking about the nature of the Soviet Union.

The war against the peasants had its roots in communist ideology. Socialism demanded the abolition of private farms, and the Soviet urge to modernize required that the farming sector finance industrial development. Stalin set out to transform Soviet agriculture into a system of large-scale, state-owned collectives, confident that they would far outproduce the capitalist farms of the West.

But that effort ran into heavy resistance from the peasants, who had been promised and given their own land by the Bolsheviks. That resistance was portrayed by the government as a counter-revolutionary campaign by rich capitalist "kulaks," a new phase of the class struggle.

In fact, the wealthy farmers already had been expropriated, and the opposition came from all ranks of the peasantry. So the war on the "kulaks" had to attack the mass of the rural population.

Because the nation's chief farming region was the Ukraine, the campaign also became a war on Ukrainian nationalism, which had bitterly opposed incorporation into the new Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

The first stage of the campaign, called "dekulakization," involved mass executions and deportation of entire families into labor camps in remote places, where they were ravaged by disease, cold and starvation. Grain production plummeted, producing a famine that, in combination with dekulakization, killed six and a half million people. No less an expert than the leading Soviet writer on the Holocaust has compared this episode to Hitler's Final Solution.

The second phase was what Conquest calls the "terror-famine." Frustrated by the Ukraine's resistance to collectivization and determined to crush its people's hope of independence, Stalin decided to use the weapon of mass starvation. Not only were unrealistically high amounts of food requisitioned, but villages that fell short of their quotas were blockaded to prevent relief.

The suffering was almost beyond imagination. Starving peasants ate weeds, shoe leather, earthworms, even horse manure. The dead were eaten by the living. Brigadiers assigned to transport the corpses

Old wives predict baby's sex

By TIM APPEL, Staff Writer

Pardon my nnnnnervousness, but my wife and I are expecting our first baby in about a month.

After I was told of our coming arrival many moons ago, I also was informed that I would be volunteering my services during Lamaze class and the actual birth.

Now understand, until this point, I thought becoming a father was an easy chore. Pay your money to the hospital, peer into the hospital showroom window and pick out the baby of your choice.

No dice.

During this nine-month wait, I've learned that it is a curious time with so many questions that need to be answered. Lamaze classes answer many for the father-to-be — except the one that I wonder most about: Will it be a boy or a girl?

Several million ways are available to predict the sex of your baby, according to old wives' tales. With nothing to lose, my wife and I decided to try our luck with these tests, so we would know what kind of baby clothes to buy.

• Finnish folklore states that if one has morning sickness in the first few months, the baby will be a girl. If one feels fine throughout, it will be a boy. But the folklore says nothing about husbands being sick throughout. That's 1-0 in favor of the girls.

• The needle test is conducted with the needle dangling by a thread over the stomach (hers, not mine). If it swings back and forth, it's a girl. If in a circular motion, it's a boy.

I'm not sure what a shallow oval means, but we'll score one for the boys and a tie at 1-1.

• If you carry the baby high, it's a girl. If the baby is riding low, it's a boy.

In my opinion, my wife is getting big high and low. But she says the baby is very low. The boys take the lead, 2-1.

• A similar test says that if the heartbeat is slow, a boy is on the way. And if the heartbeat is fast, it's a girl.

At the last check, the baby clocked in at 143 beats per minute. Though the average is somewhere between 130 and 160, I think 143 is a pretty good clip. So the girls make it a 2-2 tie.

As the tiebreaker, I'll admit I'd prefer a baby girl to pamper and spoil. But with my track record at guessing, the boys will win, 3-2.

Either way, I'm still going to be very happy. After all, I'm going to be a ddaaaddy.

Biotechnology forms odd alliance of scientist and investor

By PETER COY
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A paper lantern advertising Suntory draft beer dangles over Dr. Jan Vilcek's head as he studies proteins of the immune system.

Vilcek is no connoisseur of brews; the lantern in the lab at New York University Medical Center is a whimsical gift from Suntory Ltd., a Japanese food and alcohol conglomerate that sponsors his research on a potential cancer fighter called tumor necrosis factor.

American, European and Japanese companies are dangling money as well as paper lanterns over biologists these days. Despite the misgivings of some academic researchers, and the burned fingers of some unwary investors, the corporate exploration of the human cell seems to be producing rich yields.

"At one time, people may have been thinking that science is somehow purer and shouldn't touch industry. That attitude has changed dramatically," said Gary Buck, chairman and president of Cambridge BioScience Corp. in Hopkinton, Mass., whose advisory board includes three researchers from Harvard University.

After affection waned for a couple years, Wall Street has resumed its romance with biotechnology. Public offerings of biotech stocks raised more than $700 million in the first 9½ months of 1986, said Steven Kaye, portfolio manager of Fidelity's Select Biotechnology Fund, a mutual fund run by Fidelity Investments Co. in Boston.

Corporate support for non-profit laboratories is on the rise, often replacing dwindling government funds; companies are hiring biologists away from campuses, and venture capitalists are urging leading scientists to create their own biotechnology companies.

The growing role of private investment is speeding progress in the diagnosis and treatment of scourges such as AIDS and cancer, scientists say.

For example, the most promising drug against AIDS, known as AZT, comes not from an academic or government laboratory but from a private company, Burroughs Wellcome Co. of Research Triangle Park, N.C.

"If you pick up a Nature or Science magazine and see where the articles are coming from, an increasing percentage is coming from biotechnology companies," said Steven Gillis, who left academia in 1981 to help found Immunex Corp. in Seattle.

With profits at stake, discoveries that might have languished in laboratories are being pushed through clinical and regulatory trials and reach the public far more quickly than they would have otherwise.

The infusion of money comes on top of startling gains in scientific technique, where the ability to splice genes and make perfect copies of antibodies has revolutionized what was once a quiet corner of biomedicine.

"I'm old enough to remember how slow progress was 10 or 15 years ago in interferon," said Vilcek, who is 53. "There were meetings every two years — and you heard the same stories you heard two years earlier."

Gratifyingly, companies are willing to finance research even when it has no obvious commercial payoff, Vilcek said.

The prominence of hot new companies in biology has drawbacks, though. Wall Street's characteristic volatility does not always blend well with the scholarly caution of researchers.

Some scientists were embarrassed, for example, by the gold-rush scene on the stock market in August after a report by PaineWebber Group Inc. that a drug called Virazole from ICN Pharmaceuticals Inc. "could become one of the largest-selling drugs in the world."

Virazole, a brand of ribavirin being tested as a treatment for influenza, herpes and AIDS, was also touted by E.F. Hutton Group Inc.

In a week, ICN stock nearly doubled to $34 a share from less than $19. But anyone who bought at the top got burned when news stories questioned the reports. ICN tumbled quickly back to its takeoff point.

In another embarrassment earlier this year, directors of Newport Pharmaceuticals International Inc. removed the company's chairman, Alvin Glasky, from office after the Food and Drug Administration asserted that his claims for the drug Isoprinosine as an AIDS fighter were misleading. The company's stock plunged.

Ethical issues arise, too. Richard

Peto, a cancer epidemiologist at Britain's Oxford University, said he disliked the idea that private companies could make huge profits by building on work scientists did without thought of financial gain.

"We seem to find it politically acceptable for private capital to do things that public money shouldn't do, and that seems to me to be wrong in the long run," Peto said.

Behind the biotech boom is the realization that any company that discovers a rescue for AIDS or cancer patients could make its investors rich overnight. Theoretically, "you could charge them (patients) virtually unlimited amounts because their alternative is death," said Fidelity's Kaye.

Analyst Stephen Buell of Oppenheimer & Co. estimates that Genentech Inc. could charge $1,000 to $1,500 per dose for its tissue plasminogen activator, tPA, which dissolves blood clots in heart attack victims. Regulatory approval is expected next year.

Plenty of precedents exist for high drug prices. SmithKline Beckman Corp., for example, suggests a price of $1.68 for a daily tablet of the anti-ulcer prescription drug Tagamet. Kaye estimated it cost a couple of pennies to make a tablet.

SmithKline and others justify their mark-ups by citing the high cost of research and development and the number of "dry holes," explorations that lead to nothing. But the favorable economics explain why investors are willing to gamble on striking a gusher.

"The drug industry is one of the few industries where a single product can really make an enormous difference in a company's value," said Jerome Ballan, senior vice president at Balfour Securities Corp.

In spite of occasional embarrassment, the fear expressed several years ago that the profit motive would subvert biotechnology seems to have diminished.

For one thing, money is not the only object of researchers who jump to the private sector.

Dr. Jan Vilcek at New York University Medical Science building studies proteins of the body's immune system receptly. An odd alliance between scientists and investors is being created with biotechnology as a Japanese food and alcohol conglomerate sponsors his research on a potential cancer fighter.

Turkeys may never shake image of the dumb animal

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — A Texas A&M University poultry specialist says it's a good thing Benjamin Franklin failed in his effort to designate turkeys as the national bird because the animal never will live down its dumb image.

"They do strange things," says William O. Cawley. "The young poults are so inquisitive, you can't leave an empty bucket in their pen. If you do, they'll all climb in until the bucket fills up and then the ones at the bottom smother to death."

In the spring when the younger birds are grown on open ranges, turkey growers have to be wary of rainy days, Cawley said Thursday. "Some poults have been so amazed during heavy rains that they stood still and gazed at the sky until they drowned," he said.

Another trait is that turkeys are gregarious by nature and can't stand to be separated from the crowd, he said. "If you place one in a pen adjacent to another pen containing the rest of the flock, it will run up and down the fence until it is exhausted," Cawley said. "And if you upset a flock of turkeys, they may all pile up on one another, which has led to fatalities."

The holiday dish in America dates to the first harvest thanksgiving festival celebrated by the Pilgrims in Massachusetts in 1621.

Science Has Finally Counterfeited A Perfect Diamond!

Thousands of Jewelers and Pawnbrokers Fooled — It Cuts Glass!

THE Van Pler Simulated DIAMOND

In "Diamond World," author David Koskoff states, "... it fooled most of the members of the famous New York Diamond Dealers Club when it was introduced." Pawnbrokers and jewelers have lost thousands of dollars buying these beautiful jewels thinking they were mined diamonds. If a jeweler must perform tests to tell whether it is a Van Pler Simulated Diamond or a mined diamond, then neither you or any of your friends will be able to tell the difference.

The super rich were the first to buy our jewels as replacements for their expensive gems. The reason was that insurance companies require the gems to be kept in a bank vault when not in use, then each time you wear them you must inform the insurance company and pay an additional high fee.

ABC'S 20/20 News Team Fools New York Diamond Mart Experts

The national TV Show "20/20" visited the famous 47th Street Diamond Mart in New York looking for appraisals on some "diamonds." Several experts there looked at the jewels through their loupes (magnifying glass). Without any suspicion, they gave the Van Pler-type counterfeit diamond appraisals of several thousands of dollars before a TV audience of millions of people. How foolish they must have felt when they saw the show.

Top Economist Says Consumers Would be Foolish to Buy a Mined Diamond Now!

A respected authority on investments in diamonds, gold, silver, coins and other precious gemstones (called "hard money"), J.C. Revel, stated recently, "If you are buying a small, mined diamond—less than two carats—and expect it to appreciate in value, you are going to be disappointed."

The reasons the economist pointed out were: one, the resale for used diamonds is very small; two, if you sell to a jeweler or other dealers, they will pay only about 30% of the current retail value; and third, the new Van Pler Simulated Diamond is visually equal, if not superior, at a fraction of the inflated cost of mined diamonds.

"It doesn't make any economic sense for the average person to waste hard-earned dollars on a high priced mined diamond when less than 1% will ever resell the stone," Revel said. (J.C. Revel is listed as a top authority in a recent edition of "WHO'S WHO IN HARD MONEY ECONOMICS.")

A February 3rd, 1986 Wall Street Journal article stated that the value of investment grade diamonds have dropped an incredible 85% since 1980.

Now you can have jewelry that will truly impress everyone you meet. Imagine a new wedding ring with a big, dazzling Van Pler, or a glittering pinky ring for a man. Or why not enjoy the pleasure of wearing diamond earrings, bracelets or necklaces and no one will know the difference.

And think of what great gifts Van Pler Simulated Diamonds will make. Remember, even jewelers and pawnbrokers can't tell the difference without testing.

$25 a Carat for This Sale Only — Selling in Europe for $100!

As a giant promotional campaign to introduce the incredible, new Van Pler Simulated Diamond, only the first 5,000 people in each state will be allowed to buy these beautiful jewels at a sensational low price of $25 a carat on a first-come, first-served basis.

The counterfeits were introduced in Europe the same way with tremendous success. Now they regularly retail there at what is equivalent to about $100 U.S. dollars a carat.

Europeans are known for their concern with high quality and value. They overwhelmingly accepted the Van Pler as an excellent value.

Limit Per Customer — No Orders Accepted From Jewelers or Dept. Stores!

There is a limit of two Van Pler Simulated Diamonds per order unless the order is postmarked before November 30, 1986. Orders postmarked before then may request a maximum of 7 jewels.

Since this is a promotional campaign to introduce the Van Pler Simulated Diamond to the nation at a very low price, no orders from jewelers or department stores will be accepted.

New York Magazine Says, More Beautiful than Mined Diamonds!

Anyone who sees this new jewel is astounded at its beauty and brilliance. In fact, New York Magazine went further in a recent article stating "... it looks even better than a (mined) diamond."

Comparison to a Mined Diamond
	Van Pler Mined
Dispersion (Fire)	.060 .044
Refractive (Brilliance)	2.24 2.41
Hardness	8.0-9.0 10.0

As you can see, the Van Pler has more fire, almost identical brilliance and is close to the same hardness of a mined diamond. However, the majority of mined diamonds used in jewelry have carbon inclusions and other internal defects not visible to the naked eye. The Van Pler Simulated Diamond is flawless even under a 100 power microscope. Care for it as you would any other fine jewel.

Scientists created the Van Pler from an exotic mineral dust which is melted at an astonishing 5,000 degrees F to produce this dazzling diamond copy. The problem that held back the development of the Van Pler for many years was no furnace liner could withstand the tremendous heat. Finally a young scientist got the idea to line the furnace with contaminated Van Pler jewels made in previous attempts. Imagine a furnace lined with jewels. It worked, and now you can have a flawless Van Pler Simulated Diamond. It is cut with 57 facets and polished the same as a mined diamond with the same equipment.

Expected to be Hottest Christmas Gift of the Year!

A spokesman for the company indicated in an interview last week that due to the tremendous acceptance of these jewels in Europe, Americans can expect to respond even more enthusiastically. "I believe everyone has felt how wonderful it would be to give someone you love a beautiful jewel."

More Indestructible Than Mined Diamonds — Lifetime Warranty

The Van Pler is not as brittle as a mined diamond and is resistant to shattering because it was created at the incredible temperature of over 5000 degrees Fahrenheit. The hardest steel melts at only 2,786 degrees F.

The Van Pler Simulated Diamond will last many, many lifetimes without any worries. In fact, you will receive a Lifetime Warranty against any defects.

Family finds comfortable fit in shoe business

By CARROLL COPELIN
Wichita Falls Times

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Donna and Roy Roland don't live in a shoe — but footwear nevertheless is critical to them.

It's important because it's their livelihood. They run the Shoe Doctor.

Donna Roland, 31, says she is the only shoe repairwoman in Wichita Falls. Both she and her husband of 12 years grew up around the shoe repair business, which traditionally has been a man's world. But they didn't open their own shop until about two years ago.

Roland's aunt has a boot and shoe repair business in Fort Worth, and his wife's father, Lewis M. Croom, is owner of the Little Old Shoemaker here which specializes in orthopedic shoes and prescription repairs.

Croom is a retired meteorologist — he worked for the weather bureau here — but has repaired shoes for more than 20 years.

When her father bought his business, Donna Roland worked there learning the business under an old shoe repairman.

She and her husband decided they wanted their own business, mainly because he was unable to spend much time with their two sons, now ages 9 and 5. He was prevented from doing so by his night shifts in a manufacturing plant.

"It was either this or opening a book bindery, and Roy said he didn't want to bind books all day," Mrs. Roland said.

"When I told Daddy of our decision, he warned me not to rush into something, but the next day he called and said he'd located the equipment we'd need. That's not rushing into something," she said.

For Mrs. Roland, starting a new business was even more difficult than normal. The couple discovered she was pregnant shortly after they opened the shop.

"Don't let anyone tell you an expectant mother can't work right up until her baby is born. I worked until the day our son was born and was back on the job three weeks later," Mrs. Roland said.

Now that her husband has quit his plant job, the couple takes turns working in their shop. This enables one of them to stay home with their year-old son and eliminates the need of a baby sitter.

It didn't take the couple long to realize there's a lot more to running a shoe repair business than half-soles and heels. Roy Roland, who does the dying, once had a request to dye a seven-foot leather coach.

"I did it in his garage and charged him $300, but it sure beat having him pay $1,800 for a new one," he said.

Another customer recently brought in a new pair of rubber fishing waders and requested felt to be put on the heels and soles (to prevent slipping on wet rocks), Roland said.

"I didn't have the slightest idea where to buy some felt, and I was sitting at the desk worrying about it when I saw the felt pad under my typewriter, so I went and bought a new pad and used that," said Mrs. Roland.

Mrs. Roland is busiest during the months of September through December repairing shoes while her husband's busiest time of the year is the springtime dying them. That's because of weddings, parties and the like. She says an old shoe repairman once told her when the economy slows down, the shoe repair business picks up, and she has come to believe that.

"When times get tough, people have their shoes repaired rather than buying a new pair," she explained as she worked on a scarred and battered pair of boots.

Mrs. Roland is proud of the fact that she has learned to mix shoe polish in special colors.

She said she has designed and made special shoes for women and would like to resume doing it, but for now The Shoe Doctor is too busy to do any experimenting.

Young mother victim of aneurysm and stroke

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I'm a 37-year-old mother of two teenagers. Recently, my whole life changed. I keep asking myself, why me?

I was fixing dinner and went upstairs to do some straightening up, sat down on the bed for a minute and felt a funny sensation in my head. I stood up and hit the floor ... I spent six weeks in rehab ... My doctor said a blood vessel in my brain burst ... I understand that most strokes are from hardening of the arteries ... My sister, who's a nurse, saw my CAT scan results and said there was a large mass of blood at the top of my head ...

I have had weird headaches. My stroke was on the left side, so my right side is paralyzed ... Fortunately, I am left-handed and can write this. I'm getting around with a cane, which I use outside only ... Can you comment on my kind of stroke? — Mrs. B.C.

I thoroughly enjoyed your longer

Dr. Donohue

(edited) letter, and only wish I could have shared more than these brief excerpts with readers. I'll try to explain your kind of stroke.

Yours is not the usual cerebral accident, the kind that comes from blockage of blood flow in brain arteries. Nor was it the kind caused by a tiny clot swept up from the heart. That can occur in people who, for example, have irregular heart rhythms, like atrial fibrillation.

Your stroke was due to the bursting of a vessel inside the brain. You were born with that weakness of the vessel wall. Over the years, it permitted a bulge to develop, an aneurysm. On that day, as you rose from the bed, it burst and bled into neighboring tissue.

From your letter (in a beautiful hand) it seems you are doing quite well. In answer to another question of yours (edited), in a week or two after a stroke surgery is often done to remove the bulge you mention. That's to prevent future bleeding. That's what your doctor was discussing. I urge you to be patient and relentless in your physical therapy. Your relative youth is on your side. (Headache is a hallmark of such stroke.)

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My doctor is treating my infected toenails with griseofulvin. He was hesitant because of my age (68), but it got so bad he decided to go ahead. I have checkups on how I am tolerating the drug. How long will I be on the medicine? Why couldn't I kill the fungus with applied medicine? — J.P.N.

Many times, a fungal infection is so deep-seated that you cannot get to its source, the nail bed. Applications aren't effective, so you have to turn the oral kind. That gets into the blood and to the deepest recess of the nail structure, where it doesn't kill, but only inactivates the fungus so it can be removed with the growing nail. Fresh, healthy nail can then emerge.

For very slow-growing nails that process can take a year. Because of the potential for side effects, you do have to be checked periodically. Older people are more prone to adverse reactions, chiefly nausea.

Aspirin can affect surgery

By NYU MEDICAL CENTER
Patients undergoing certain types of elective surgery should avoid the use of aspirin for up to 10 days before their operation, according to physicians at New York University Medical Center.

"Even one aspirin tablet can impair the ability of the blood to clot by affecting the clot-forming cells, called platelets," explained Dr. Marilyn M. Kritchman, associate professor of clinical anesthesiology at the center. "Since this side effect can last as long as seven to 10 days, taking any aspirin several days before an operation could cause excess bleeding during the procedure," she said.

Aspirin-induced bleeding is particularly a problem during operations where some bleeding may ordinarily occur, such as those on the nose, mouth and urinary tract.

Kritchman advises those undergoing elective surgery to contact their physicians at least two weeks before a scheduled procedure.

"Since aspirin is contained in more than 400 over-the-counter medicines including many sedatives, pain killers, and some cold preparations, it is wise to check all drug labels carefully during those two weeks," she noted. In addition, nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory agents, including over-the-counter medications such as ibuprofen, may produce aspirin-induced bleeding effects.

Flag vendor keeps in touch with international visitors

By ROSIE CARBO
Richardson Daily News
RICHARDSON (AP) — Sometimes Fawaz Ismail feels like a representative from the United Nations.

His day-to-day job, selling domestic and international flags to retailers and individual customers, keeps him in touch with people from all over the world.

"I started with two flags, the Texas flag and the American flag, then I started selling the Mexican and the Confederate flag. Now, I'm up to where I can get any flag in the world," said Ismail, who is known to his customers as "Tony."

Ismail said the reason his business has blossomed from a part-time job to a full-scale one is because the Dallas-Fort Worth area is virtually a melting pot. He himself is a native of Jerusalem.

"There are a lot of international people living here in Richardson and in Plano so I have a lot of customers in this area," said Ismail, who graduated in 1985 from the University of Texas at Dallas with a degree in international business.

"Some of my best customers are from Richardson; a lot of the flags are bought by parents who want them for their kids' rooms," he said.

For the past eight years, Ismail has been selling his colorful flags on Richardson street corners as well as other suburbs in the immediate area.

He attracts attention wherever he displays his flags, often on a windblown clothesline making them appear like a rainbow, because almost every country of the world is represented.

"Now it's gotten to where I'm selling to everybody; I supply the entire city of Austin with flags because I've got the lowest-priced flags in the country," he said.

Flag sizes available are 3 feet-by-5 feet or 2 feet-by-3 feet and range in price from $15 to $24.95 each.

"I like being my own boss. I like being free to say and do whatever I please, but what I like most is to travel and meet different people," he said.

He sometimes travels to deliver large flag orders as far away as Alabama. But when he works city streets closer to home, it's not necessarily to make more money.

"When I go out on the streets with my flags I do that mainly to test the market — that's how I learn about what kinds of flags my customers want."

In the course of learning about what customers want, Ismail has taken a lot of flak on occasion because he sells a flag bearing a swastika.

"Many American manufacturers make the flag and sell it, too, but that doesn't mean they are Nazis. I'm certainly not a Nazi, I'm an American ...," Ismail says.

Ismail says the Nazi symbol is one of the most popular flags he sells, mostly because people buy it for a novelty.

"Some people buy it (swastika) as a joke, some buy it for other reasons. One day this guy gave me $22.50 for it and then pulled out his cigarette lighter and burned it right there in front of me."

Ismail has been working as a vendor since he was a teen-ager and has since honed his skills.

"I started by selling Turkish tapestries in 1972 and did that until 1978 when I started selling flags," he said.

That part-time job contributed to his college education first at Southern Methodist University and later at the University of Texas at Dallas.

Fawaz Ismail poses with some of the international flags he sells in the Dallas-Fort Worth area. Ismail said the reason his business has blossomed from a part-time job to a full-scale one is because the Metroplex is virtually a melting pot.

Film that recreates death scene refused for jury deliberation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Superior Court judge has refused to allow a defense attorney to show a movie re-enacting the shooting death of millionaire Henry Harrison Kyle Sr. at the retrial of his son on a murder charge.

Steve Sumner, attorney for Ricky Kyle, accused of killing his 60-year-old father in the family's mansion July 22, 1983, hired a production company to film the 10-minute silent movie which featured professional actors.

But Judge Robert Altman refused Thursday to let the attorney show the film in court, said Deputy District Attorney Jeffrey Gerhardt.

Altman did say he would consider allowing some still frames from the movie to be allowed as evidence. He told Sumner to submit the frames for his review and said he would make a decision next week.

Prosecutors, who watched the film along with Altman on Wednesday, objected vehemently to allowing jurors to see it.

The defense contends Kyle loved his father and shot him in self-defense as the two searched their Bel Air mansion for a prowler. Prosecutors argue Kyle killed his father in the darkened dining room of the mansion to get his money.

Kyle's first trial ended in a mistrial when jurors voted 10-2 for conviction.

Because the dining room has since been remodeled, the Michael Conte Production Co. used architectural drawings and photographs to recreate the room where the shooting took place, Sumner explained.

A set was built and actors were hired, but Sumner refused to reveal how much the production cost.

"The action is consistent to what we believe had to have happened," Sumner said. "It's an aid to the scientific expert testimony."

The attorney believes Kyle's first trial would have ended differently if jurors had been able to view the film. "I interviewed jurors after (the first trial) and they said there was so much scientific evidence they didn't understand. So this is an attempt to clarify it all and make sense. The last jury didn't have the benefit of something like this."

He said he didn't believe anything like this had been done before. "It's on a very, very high plane."

"We have never combined the resources and disciplines of the world of Hollywood with the world of forensic pathology and forensic ballistics before," Sumner said.

The movie "uses computer graphics. It centers around the only issue in this case. It shows the shooting couldn't have occurred any other way than in self-defense. I think it is a unique piece of evidence."

Probe harassment or waste proof?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorneys for Texas Rural Legal Aid on Thursday said a recent federal probe amounted to harassment by administration ideologues, while a congressman hailed the effort as proof the program is wasting tax dollars.

Texas Rural Legal Aid was accused last week of several rule violations by Legal Services Corporation, including obstructing a probe by federal organization.

Legal Services Corporation is a non-profit organization created by Congress to disburse federal funds to legal aid groups, such as Texas Rural Legal Aid, representing low income clients.

Officials at LSC demanded TRLA take "corrective action" by Dec. 1 or face losing its annual $4 million federal grant.

Attorneys for the rural aid program said, however, that despite nine separate probes of TRLA over the past five years the government has failed to produce a single violation or question a single cost.

In a letter to James H. Wentzel, president of LSC, rural legal aid attorney Tersh Boasberg discounted findings by the government probe as insignificant or clerical errors and characterized them as harassment.

Boasberg accused the government of wasting thousands of dollars on an investigation that came up dry.

"We estimate that TRLA has spent over 3,500 staff hours at a cost of $50,000, and that LSC probably has spent over 5,000 hours and $150,000 on this latest "monitoring" effort commencing sixteen months ago," Boasberg said.

"And what was the result of this intensive monitoring ...? LSC has questioned a total of $340.10 and disingenuously charged TRLA with seven technical "violations" of the (regulations)," Boasberg said in his letter.

He described the LSC as run by ideologues intent on crushing any federally funded organization that represents aliens, the poor and the unemployed and challenged the government to follow up on its threat to hold a defunding hearing.

"I'd feel comfortable going against them in any fair fight, in any forum," Boasberg said.

Meanwhile, Rep. Larry Combest, R-Lubbock, applauded the LSC report as confirmation that the legal aid program of violating a series of federal regulations.

Combest said the report found TRLA failed to stop employees from engaging in picketing or other demonstrations, failed to provide documentation of services and failed to ensure none of its funds were being used to form unions.

"My West Texas constituents and I have been waiting for nearly two years for this report," Combest said. "The LSC has found that TRLA violated federal law. Not another federal dollar should be spent on this organization."

BEAR launch successful

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — A satellite that soared into orbit after eight years as a museum piece and two launch delays will perform experiments meant to improve Earth-to-spacecraft communications, officials said.

The $13 million Polar Beacon Experiments and Auroral Research satellite, called Polar BEAR, blasted off from Space Launch Complex-5 at 4:23 p.m. Thursday, said Air Force Capt. Tom Connell.

The Air Force satellite safely reached its 625-mile-high polar orbit less than 50 minutes after lifting off atop a 75-foot-tall Scout rocket, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's smallest space booster, Connell said.

"It was spectacular, but much quieter than what we're used to here at Vandenberg," he said. "It's a much smaller rocket."

The 275-pound satellite carries three experiments designed to photograph the Northern Lights, and sample electrical particles and the magnetic field over Earth's poles, said base spokesman Sgt. Virgil Short.

The knowledge gained from the experiments should help the Air Force design better communications equipment to reduce interference between ground stations and polar-orbiting weather and surveillance satellites, he said.

Polar BEAR was built when a series of Navy navigation satellites were being developed, but had never flown in space before.

It was on display from 1976-1984 at the Smithsonian Institution's National Air and Space Museum in Washington.

Previous Air Force news releases were incorrect in saying the satellite was displayed for 15 years before being refurbished, said Allan Needell, a curator at the museum.

Polar BEAR's first launch date of Oct. 8 was scrubbed because of problems with the device that cranks the rocket-satellite combination into an upright position.

Making history on the way to state

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

Never before has a Big Spring runner qualified for the state meet in cross country. This year two qualified.

In Lubbock last Saturday, senior Mario Gonzales finished third in the boys three mile course, and sophomore Manuela Bernal finished tenth to qualify for the girls. Both will run against the best in the state Saturday in Georgetown.

Gonzales, who had never run cross country or track until this year, relied on hard work and determination to get this far. Bernal, on the other hand, qualified on talent.

Steers cross country Coach Randy Britton explained.

"Mario's extremely dedicated. He's such a dedicated runner — he wants to go too fast, too often. But it's a lot easier from a coaching standpoint to slow 'em down than speed 'em up."

"Manuela doesn't understand her abilities. She has tremendous amounts of ability. Her ability outweighs her dedication," Britton said.

"Mario's not that gifted as a distance runner. He has no speed, he knows that. He has to be stronger, and be physically able to put people away early in the race," Britton said. Gonzales laughed at his coach's assessment.

Gonzales said he always wanted to run cross country, but until this year he worked in the afternoons and didn't have the time. He ran every day during the summer in preparation for this year. His coach didn't know Gonzales would run for him until this fall. But when he saw him run, he realized he had a runner.

In Gonzales' first meet, his adrenalin and excitement replaced his good sense. He blazed the first mile and emptied his tank.

"I was real anxious and nervous. I wanted to be in front of everyone. It was adrenalin," he said, and added that the next two miles hurt.

"It almost killed him, but he pushed it for two more miles. He was hurting and he was pushing. That's a unique individual. A lot of kids would have said, 'I've run too fast, I'm quitting,'" Britton said. He added that Gonzales is one of only two truly dedicated runners he's coached.

Gonzales finished that first race in 20:13. In his next meet, he chipped an amazing 2:31 off his time. He has continued to decrease his times, and ran a 16:34 in Lubbock on a very difficult course.

Gonzales, who is 5'5, 135 pounds, said he was nervous about Saturday's race.

"I almost had a nervous breakdown at regional. I'm still nervous. But once that gun goes off, it's over with," the smiling Gonzales said.

Bernal also said she was nervous, though she hardly looked it.

As she sat giggling in her chair, Britton said his sophomore star had no idea of her potential. A comment Bernal made seemed to support her coach's assessment.

"I don't think I need practice, but I guess if I were to break the school record, I think I would need practice," she said. Britton pointed to a chart on the wall that showed Bernal already owned the school record. She appeared surprised.

"She probably doesn't need to run to succeed. That's the thing. But she could be an upper 11 (minute) runner," Britton said.

"It's the dedication of running in the summer that succeeds in cross country. That's the ball game," Britton said. He asked the Big Spring High School Cross Country Coach Randy Britton (middle) with Manuela Bernal (left) and Mario Gonzales are leaving for Georgetown for the state cross country meet. The duo qualified for the diminutive Bernal if she ran during the summer.

She giggled, and answered yes. Her coach, laughing himself, asked if she ran every day.

"I didn't run every day. It's boring," Bernal admitted, laughing.

Bernal set the school record with a 13:09 time in the two-miles at regional. She will be shooting to lower the mark in Georgetown.

"I still keep the same pace. I either speed up or stay the same. I never slow down," she explained, momentarily serious.

Both runners are aiming for top ten finishes. But regardless of what happens in Georgetown, Bernal and Gonzales have already gone further than any Big Spring runner before them.

Saturday, when they line up with a multitude of runners from around the state, they'll be running for more Big Spring firsts. Perhaps hard work or natural talent will pay off in a big way.

Forsan to face Iraan

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

The Forsan Buffaloes will be hoping for history to repeat itself when they play the Iraan Braves Saturday night in the first round of the 2A state playoffs.

Forsan beat Iraan 27-13 in their fifth game of the season at Iraan. Forsan won District 6-2A, finishing with a 9-0-1 record, its only blemish is a tie with Reagan County. Iraan's 5-3-1 season was good enough for second place in District 5-2A. The teams will battle at 7:30 p.m. at Ratliff Stadium in Odessa.

Forsan quarterback Brant Nichols had a big game in the Oct. 3 battle against the Braves. He completed seven of 10 passes for 177 yards and a touchdown. Nichols directed the offense to 330 total yards. Iraan managed just 146 yards on that night.

The teams were knotted at halftime. Forsan scored its final touchdown with a minute remaining after Iraan turned the ball over on downs deep in its own territory.

Forsan was a good team that night, but recent games, including last week's 49-0 lambasting of Rankin, indicate the Buffaloes have improved.

Forsan Buffaloes running back Wayne Wright (32) looks for open space as he rambles for yards against Rankin last week in the final regular season football game for Forsan. The Buffaloes will enter the first round of the state playoffs Saturday when they take on the Iraan Braves in Odessa's Ratliff Stadium.

"I think our offense is a lot better. Every game in district we had three or four hundred yards of offense, so I feel like it's gotten better. And the defense is getting better. Last week Rankin had about 94 yards, so we're playing good defense too," Forsan Coach Jan East said.

East's biggest offensive weapon is bullish running back Wayne Wright. Wright gained 105 yards on 20 carries in the first meeting with the Braves, and has since been on a tear. The 185-pound senior has 1,377 yards rushing, 202 yards receiving and 67 yards passing this season.

East said Wright gets stronger in the late stages of a game. Wright made that clear in the comeback against Reagan County, when he dragged Owl's defenders for ten-yard chunks of yardage in the fourth quarter to lead the Buffaloes' to the tie.

But as the Braves discovered on Oct. 3, Forsan's offense is more than just Wright. Nichols completed 69 of 121 passes for 1,066

Lady 'Horns seeking repeat performance

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Lady Longhorns seem to have the recipe to tack another successful year on to the national basketball championship they won last year.

But Coach Jody Conradt says the Lady Horns have not exactly been cooking in pre-season practice.

"We're not very good right now," she said Thursday as she introduced the team to reporters. "I can't remember a team where I had to do this much teaching and go this slowly."

"I think it will be slow-go early on, and if you are skeptical, if you think that is just coaching rhetoric, I invite you to come to practice every day," Conradt added.

But the coach whose team went 34-0 last year acknowledged the Lady Horns are loaded with a potentially powerful mix of talent and potential.

It starts with four key players from the title team. To that successful nucleus Conradt added last year's top junior college player, one of the most sought-after high school players and the nation's tallest player.

The potential is great enough to have earned the Lady Horns the top spot in several pre-season polls.

The four returning key players from the title team are 5-8 guard Beverly Williams, 6-1 forward Clarissa Davis, 6-2 forward Andrea Lloyd and 5-9 forward-guard Yulonda Wimbish. Davis, a sophomore, scored 56 points and grabbed 32 rebounds in last year's Final Four and was named the tournament's most valuable player.

Williams, a junior, is being counted on to take over for Kamie Ethridge at point guard. Ethridge, now a student coach at UT, last year won the Wade Trophy as the nation's top woman college basketball player.

Asked how UT would replace Ethridge, Conradt said, "We don't," but added she is confident Williams has the quickness to quarterback the Lady Horns' fast-paced offense and pressing defense.

Top recruits this year include 6-3 center Dorothea Conwell, who led Odessa (Texas) College to a 73-1 record in two years, and 6-3 freshman center Susan Anderson from Everson, Washington.

Anderson was named national high school player of the year in several polls.

Conradt's tallest-ever team is topped by freshman Ellen Bayer of Scottsdale, Ariz., a 6-8 center who Conradt introduced as the tallest female player in the country.

The coach said Bayer has "horrible footwork" now, but predicted she would develop into a dominant force.

Kilgore hands Hawk-Queens first loss

CARTHAGE — The Howard College Hawk-Queens lost their first game of the season as they dropped a 72-64 decision to the Kilgore Lady Rangers Thursday night in the Panola Classic.

The Queens ran into a tall, well balanced team, according to Howard coach Don Stevens. The Lady Rangers, who finished third at the national tournament last year, fielded a front line that consisted of players 6-4, 6-4 and 6-3.

"They were not just big, they could also run like gazelles," said Stevens.

The Lady Rangers enjoyed a 50-29 rebounding edge and Stevens said he was disappointed with the play of his "big people." "We got absolutely no production from our big people. We were intimidated by them."

One Howard player that wasn't intimidated was sophomore guard Terri Powell, who gunned in a career-high 34 points. Powell sunk 16 of 26 field goals.

Kilgore jumped out to a 39-25 halftime lead and soon stretched it to 23 points in the second half. But the Queens battled back and cut the deficit to five late in the game. "Overall it wasn't a good game for us. But I'm proud of the way we came back."

Stefanie Massey played a strong game with 12 points and 14 rebounds.

Howard falls to 4-1 for the season. The Queens will play Blinn today at noon.

Breland keeps boxing record perfect at 16-0

NEW YORK (AP) — The date is not definite, but the way has been cleared for undefeated welterweight Mark Breland, ranked second in the World Boxing Association, to fight top-rated Harold Volbrecht of South Africa.

"Maybe I was looking forward to that fight," Breland said after stopping Orlando Orozco of Venezuela at 1:46 of the second round Thursday night at Madison Square

Garden's Felt Forum.

Breland, a 1984 Olympic champion, had little trouble in running his record to 16-0.

Breland needed only one punch, a solid right to the head, to stop the 145-pound Orozco. Breland's big blow knocked down Orozco for a seven-count, and when he was still wobbly, referee John Colan stopped the bout.

Breland got credit for his 11th knockout and the 145-pound Orozco fell to 12-6-1. Orozco, 5-foot-8, had taken the fight after both Sanford Ricks of Newark, N.J., and Tomas Garcia of Harlingen, Texas, pulled out.

Breland said his height advantage helped, but said it also posed some problems.

"I had at least six inches on him, and his shortness confused me. I didn't want to jab him too much on the head and injure my hands. I also wanted to make sure he didn't lunge and hit me with his head," Breland said.

"I felt very awkward and couldn't get into the fight," he said. "Usually when I'm at home, I can get up for a fight. I'm having problems, but I don't like bringing them into the ring."

Breland said part of the problem was "getting myself mentally prepared."

Mailman makes unwanted delivery to LA Clippers

By The Associated Press
Karl "The Mailman" Malone says the Utah Jazz needs to learn how to deliver a crushing blow. They seemed to do just fine against the Los Angeles Clippers.

Malone scored 17 of his 19 points in the first half Thursday night as Utah cruised to an early 20-point lead and went on to beat the Clippers 130-113.

The Jazz led 30-10 after eight minutes of play. Los Angeles pulled within six points on a couple of occasions, the last at 83-77 late in the third quarter, but go no closer.

NBA

"We need to put them away and not let them catch up like we did a couple of times tonight. We need that killer instinct," Malone said.

For Clippers Coach Don Chaney, the evening in Utah was all too familiar.

"This was a typical game for us tonight," Chaney said. "By that I mean another loss."

"It was a typical Utah-Clipper game. Whoever gets out first wins the game," said Chaney, whose team is 3-4.

In other NBA games, Golden State stopped Philadelphia 112-104, Indiana beat New Jersey 120-117 in overtime and San Antonio defeated Cleveland 115-102.

Malone scored nine points and Bobby Hansen, who finished with 17, added 11 in the first quarter as Utah took a 36-21 lead.

Kurt Nimphius, who scored 22 for the Clippers, got 14 in the second period in leading a Los Angeles comeback that made it 55-49 with 2:16 left in the half.

The Jazz managed to make it 65-54 at halftime before Mike Woodson, who scored a game-high 25, helped the Clippers again surge in the third period as they narrowed the deficit to six. But from that point on, it was all Utah.

Eight Jazz players scored in double figures. In addition to Malone and Hansen, Darrell Griffith had 16, Mark Eaton 13, Kent Benson 11 and John Stockton and Kelly Trippuca 10 each. Larry Drew scored 18 points for the Clippers. Warriors 112, 76ers 104.

Larry Smith scored all of his 11 points in the decisive third quarter as Golden State ended Philadelphia's four-game winning streak.

Smith, a forward who specializes in rebounding, had been averaging just over three points per game. He had 19 rebounds against the visiting 76ers.

The Warriors trailed by two points at halftime before outscoring Philadelphia 34-23 in the third period. Purvis Short, who had a game-high 34 for Golden State, had eight in the quarter.

Sedale Threatt scored 27 for Philadelphia.

The game was the first home sellout of the season for the Warriors, and marked the last visit of Sixers' star Julius Erving, who is retiring after this season.

Pacers 120, Nets 117.

Wayman Tisdale came off the bench and scored 24 points, four in overtime, to lead visiting Indiana past New Jersey.

The Pacers, who trailed 55-39 midway through the first half, tied the game 112-112 with 3:45 remaining in overtime when Tisdale scored after grabbing a missed shot by Chuck Person. Just 32 seconds later, Tisdale rebounded his own miss and scored to put Indiana ahead for good.

The Nets wasted a chance to tie the game when Albert King missed a three-point shot with three seconds left.

John Long scored 26 points for Indiana. Orlando Woolridge had 30 for New Jersey.

Spurs 115, Cavaliers 102.

Reserve Mychal Thompson sparked San Antonio with 23 points as the Spurs beat visiting Cleveland.

Thompson came into the game late in the first quarter with San Antonio trailing 30-23 and led a 25-6 surge to give the Spurs a 48-36 midway through second period.

Mike Mitchell added 19 points and Johnny Dawkins 18 for San Antonio, while Ron Harper had 20 for the Cavaliers.

More accusations levied at SMU

DALLAS (AP) — A starting player on Southern Methodist's football team is staying in a rent-free apartment provided by a school athletic booster in apparent violation of NCAA rules, the Dallas Morning News reported today.

The newspaper said in a copyright story that senior tight end Albert Reese is staying in a two-bedroom apartment in suburban Carrollton that normally would cost $495 per month.

Three current or former employees of Dallas developer and SMU booster George W. Owen said they were told by Owen's office to provide free apartments for Reese and David Stanley, the former player who now claims he was paid $25,000 to play football at SMU in 1983. Owen denied providing a free apartment for Reese.

Stanley also said in an interview Wednesday with WFAA-TV that he got payments of $750 a month that continued until December 1985, after SMU was already placed on probation for other NCAA violations.

Owen is a partner in the company that owns the apartment complex where Reese and Stanley lived.

"I don't know anything about that," Owen said of the rent-free apartments for Stanley and Reese. "How did you get that information? What are you guys trying to create all this for?"

Later he said he did provide the apartment for Stanley after the former linebacker completed a drug program but said he knew nothing about Reese.

"He's lying totally," said Dori Wilson, former leasing agent at the complex. "It was his whole thing. He was in charge of all the 'Comps'."

Providing Stanley with an apartment wouldn't be an NCAA violation, but free rent for Reese could be determined by the NCAA to be an extra benefit in violation of NCAA rules.

Reese refused to comment saying, "I've heard some rumors going around and that I don't want to talk about it."

In other developments, SMU Athletic Director Bob Hitch has offered to resign if it would benefit the school, the Dallas Morning News reported today.

However, Hitch denied that he offered his resignation saying, "I'm smarter than that."

Forsan

cornerback Rusty Newcombe. Evans and Newcombe, both starters, missed the Rankin game with injuries.

The game in Ratliff will be the first time for the Buffaloes to play on artificial turf.

"It will be a new experience for us. It might be a little advantage for Iraan because they have more speed. They have two running backs with more speed than anybody we have. That's the thing we have to do on defense is contain their speed," East said.

Iraan Coach Steve Maurer said the turf would benefit both teams because of the poor condition of grass fields late in the season. Last year, his team crushed Roscoe 35-0 on turf in the first round of the playoffs. The Braves were eventually beaten by Goldwathe, the eventual state champions who also eliminated Forsan.

Maurer said the Braves run the wishbone, with several good runners rather than one great one. Halfback Chewy Ulate is the Braves leading carrier, with fullback Jackie Stone and quarterback Mick McRae close behind.

Defensively, Maurer said his team will have to play an excellent game to upset Forsan.

"The Wright kid's a real tough runner. And there's Nichols and those two big ends, so you can't just go up there and stop Wright. They have nice balance."

Early in the season Iraan lost 18-15 to Ozona, a team the Buffaloes beat 35-0. If the teams play to form, Forsan should advance in the state playoffs.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, NOV. 15, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Stick to the new ideas you have and consider them from the various mental facets involved. Listen to comments made by those who are in positions of influence.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Look to your friends for good ideas instead of experts today. Be careful in business affairs.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make sure you keep promises you have made and don't try to get any new ideas promulgated.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Put aside that bill that you question until you have more time. Attend a nice social event.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Avoid an outside partner who is in the mood for an argument. The evening can be romantic.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) More care is needed in the handling of your practical work. There is an opportunity to become more successful.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You are anxious to have a good time no matter what, but it could be to expensive, so forget it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get out to new and interesting sites and pleasures and don't be hemmed in by home prejudices.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A letter could be disturbing to you but get into some kind of recreation and feel happier.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try to contact those who can give you the assistance you need. Forget the so-called financial advisor.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Put aside your own personal desires for the time being and get busy on more practical affairs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If your mate is in a poor mood, keep quiet and the mood changes quickly. Be happy together.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Steer clear of an irate pal who is looking for a whipping boy. Get into activities that will bring greater success.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she would do well in whatever is connected with New Age interests, and it would be wise to give as fine an up-to-date education as possible, stressing the sciences and the humanities. Give sufficient time to develop ideas to avoid trouble.

Petra sound coming to town

By CARLEEN EVERETT
Lifestyle Editor

In a world where Christian music is still dominated by church hymns and easy-going music, Christian-rock band Petra "will rock your socks off."

That's the promise, at least, according to a release from First Born Production Company.

Street Level, an Odessa booking firm, has scheduled a Petra performance at the Ector County Coliseum on Nov. 18 at 7:30 p.m. The group's 45-city "Back to the Street" tour will feature DeGarmo & Key as the opening act.

John Cope said he founded Street Level two years ago when Ozzie Osborne was booked to play in the Midland-Odessa area.

"There was a lot of controversy about it, people didn't want him to perform here. That's when I saw a need to promote good groups, with good values and morals, and bring entertainment to the kids."

Petra's "Back to the Street" tour is its fourth tour in West Texas, Cope said.

"The first time they played in Odessa was in 1975, when they played in the TG&Y parking lot."

Despite various setbacks, a change in lead vocalists, and rumors of financial problems, Petra is back stronger than ever, according to the band's production company.

"They're incredibly excited about the tour," said Tammy Taylor, administrative director of First Born Production Company in Nashville, Tenn.

"Back to the Street" represents a real shift in musical development: a new vocalist, two new producers, and a revitalized rock sound that provides Petra with the opportunity to refine and focus its musical efforts, the production company reports.

Petra isn't a rock band that happens to play Christian music. It is composed of dedicated evangelistic Christian men who happen to play in a rock band. That's the way they began, and that's the direction they're continuing, the production company added.

Jim Brayton, a Petra fan and volunteer at Street Level, says "the music is what I like to hear. The atmosphere is great. There's no smoking, no drinking and no peer pressure. You can just enjoy the music."

"Their message about Christ is very clear. At one point in the concert they share the word," Taylor said.

Christian-rock band Petra will perform at the Ector County Coliseum on Nov. 18 at 7:30 p.m. The group's 45-city "Back to the Street" tour will feature DeGarmo & Key as the opening act.

"You really feel the presence of God when you're at their concert," Cope noted.

What makes Petra unique is the lyrics, Cope explained.

"The lyrics to their music are the power of praise. They also do a rendition of the hallelujah chorus — a rock version. It's just awesome."

Brayton said he really enjoys the group's lyrics.

"The lyrics are really positive. They put you in a positive frame of mind. Anyone who likes rock music should come and be uplifted," Brayton said.

"Back to the Street", with its bigger, punchier rock delivery rivals the sound of rock giants like Journey, Kansas and Boston, according to an article in Contemporary Christian Magazine.

The group began in Fort Wayne, Ind., at the Christian Training Academy in 1972. Bob Hartman, a young guitarist, formed a group consisting of fellow students at the academy.

The group's first album was released in 1974; the result was less than overwhelming. Christian bookstores were reluctant to stock an album which was so overtly rock; their basically conservative clientele just didn't trust rock music, the production company explains — that was the music of the world, of the devil and represented sin.

A big change for the group occurred earlier this year, when John Schlitt, formerly of the secular rock band Head East, joined Petra as lead singer.

With the departure of Greg Volz, Petra sought a powerful vocalist who could communicate the band's message. Hartman was aware of Schlitt's vocal prowess and also was aware that he was a Christian.

He located Schlitt through information on the back of various Head East album covers, according to the production company.

"When Bob called, it only took me several seconds to decide to join the band," related John Schlitt in the Contemporary Christian Magazine interview.

Schlitt is making his recording debut with Petra on the "Back to the Street" album, which was released in late August.

"The real focus for the band on the "Back to the Street" album was to create a fresh rock 'n' roll identity, the article stated.

Cope describes the members of Petra as "normal guys."

"Of course they're musicians, so they're a little different. They have a heart to reach the kids and are willing to go out of their way to do it," Cope added.

"They're taking the gospel back to the streets, where the kids are," Brayton said.

Tickets for the concert are $10.50 and can be purchased at Sonshine Bookstore in the Highland Mall.

Church briefs

Midway Baptist's revival to begin

Midway Baptist Church will host a revival Nov. 16-19 with services at 11 a.m.-12 noon on Sunday and nightly services from 7 to 8 Sunday through Wednesday.

Dr. Kenneth Hall, pastor at Crestview Baptist Church in Midland, will lead the revival.

Bill and Ivy Jean Sky-Eagle will be the music evangelists.

The couple, both Texas natives, has been involved in the ministry of Music Evangelism since 1966. They have served over 450 churches throughout the United States in revivals, crusades, Bible conferences, retreats and concerts. In addition, they have sung at crusades overseas in Spain, West Germany, Italy, Australia, England and Scotland.

DR. KENNETH HALL
...to lead revival

During the 40 weeks each year they spend on the road, they live in their home-on-wheels, a 40-foot long fifth wheel travel trailer. Each week, they park on the church's parking lot in order to be more accessible to the church family with whom they are serving.

St. Paul special services slated

Special services will be conducted for four consecutive Sundays beginning Nov. 16 and ending Dec. 7 at St. Paul Lutheran Church, said Rev. Carroll C. Kohl.

Theme of the services will be "Faith — Alive and Well."

Four lessons will be studied in Bible classes. They are: Functioning Faith, Fantastic Faith, Fabulous Faith and Far-Reaching Faith.

On Dec. 7, the final Sunday, members will be given the opportunity to respond to their faith by making a faith promise of their talents and resources for the Lord and His church.

Guest ministers to speak at church

Special meetings will be conducted at Gospel Tabernacle, 1905 Scurry, on Nov. 19 and 20 at 7 p.m. Rev. A.V. York and Rev. Art Wagor, both of Canada, and Rev.

The public is invited.

Action games, trivia toys teach Bible ethics

RICHARDSON (AP) — Keith Harding, like many other parents, says he got tired of violence-oriented toys and television programs that bombarded his children's playtime.

The Richardson-based businessman, who lives in Plano, decided to do something about it, banking on other parents' interest in more "positive" play.

"His Toys Inc.," Harding's company, is manufacturing a line of religious-based products for children to be sold through home demonstration by sales "counselors."

"We're raising a generation of kids today that love violence. Our intent is to compliment what is being taught at home and in church through our toys," he said.

Among the products His Toys will offer are "Bible Playalongs," fully dramatized and orchestrated Bible stories complete with a storybook for a child to follow along.

Harding also has action figures to compete with "Hulk" and the "Masters of the Universe" — "Bible Greats" depicting such well-known biblical characters as Moses, Noah, Daniel, Ruth and Esther.

"Today, action figures are the most popular things out there; they are fighting for space on the shelves. So we've come out with a series of biblical action figures where the child will read the story and have the figure to play with," Harding said.

The 7½-inch fully posable action figures will come complete with accessories and full-color story booklet.

Another toy that will be made available shortly are "Kingdom Critters," cuddly stuffed animals.

Harding emphasized he is not proposing taking away Saturday morning cartoons, despite their inherent violence.

What he's proposing instead, to parents who care about what their children play with and what they watch, is an alternative.

Harding says he also will be offering family-oriented educational games.

"We have a family game called 'Choices,' which is a biblical approach to moral dilemmas. Our second game is 'Bible Challenge,' which is also a family game like trivia, that makes studying the Bible and family devotion more fun."

The toys will be available only through home demonstrations by sales "counselors."

Harding says people who are interested in demonstrating and selling the products can go into business for themselves for a $100 investment.

Lon Lovell, a Richardson resident and accountant who works out of his home, said he was sold on the concept as soon as Harding introduced him to it.

"My wife and I are born-again Christians. We have a 5-year-old boy, and we are very concerned about the types of toys and television shows he's being subjected to. So when Keith told us about his concept, we were so excited."

Man shot by booby trap unthwarted

HOUSTON — A man shot by his own booby trap says he'll install another device to thwart thieves once he returns home from the hospital.

Authorities last week said that even though the setting of such traps was illegal, they planned to file no charges against Julius Jackson, who insists he will set them back up when he gets home.

"These people can send me to Huntsville (headquarters of the Texas prison system) tomorrow," he said.

"I had the stuff up for about a year," Jackson told the Houston Chronicle on Thursday of his booby traps. "I figured this was a consideration," he added, pointing to his knee.

"Normally I just turn on the light and unhook the booby trap," Jackson says. "I just forgot about it."

The 48-year-old mechanic who had wired his home with guns to stop recurring break-ins, became a victim of his own trap last week.

Jackson has been hospitalized for a week and has a 50-50 chance of losing his leg, which took the shotgun blast square in the knee. Doctors say they'll have to take a bone implant from his hip to replace part of the knee and do vein and artery reconstruction.

Federal judge to hear forest suit

HOUSTON — A federal judge is expected to rule next week on a moratorium issued against the U.S. Forest Service to halt the clearing of trees at the Sam Houston National Forest south of Huntsville.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox filed a federal lawsuit Thursday asking the agency to immediately stop the napalm-like destruction of trees and other separations in the Four Notch Area of the forest.

U.S. District Judge Lynn N. Hughes has scheduled a Tuesday hearing to rule on the moratorium proposed by Mattox and agreed to by the forest service.

Last week, Mattox imposed a week-long moratorium which expired Nov. 7.

"We continue to believe we are administering the best possible forestry management throughout all four national forests in Texas. Since the state attorney general has decided to bring the subject of the Four Notch Area into litigation, the entire matter has been turned over to federal attorneys," forest service spokesman Hal Glassman said. "We now will await the outcome of this temporary restraining order and agreement through legal channels."

Forest service officials have been clearing the area infested with pine beetles with a 52-ton tree crusher.

During the past two months, the 52-ton machine has cleared about half of the 2,582 acres it is expected to clear. Once trees are knocked down and the areas are burned, about 2,500 acres will be replanted with pine trees, forest service officials say.

Senator says Clements bad for Latins

AUSTIN — Texas Hispanics will face a tough four years with newly-elected Governor Bill Clements, state Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos said.

"I think all he respects is aggression and power, and that's not going to help Chicanos," Barrientos said Thursday at a forum entitled "Chicano Politics Today" sponsored by the Texas Union Chicano Culture Committee at the University of Texas.

Barrientos, D-Austin, said a growing conservative movement within the middle-class Hispanic community could hurt Mexican-Americans' political and social advancement.

"We're forgetting about our children who go hungry every night and our children who can't read," Barrientos said. "Are we indeed in a time of Chicano yuppism? Have we forgotten where we came from?"

Using Republican Roy Barrera Jr. as an example, Barrientos said the San Antonio judge has turned his back on Mexican-Americans by attempting to take the Hispanic vote to the Republican ticket.

Barrera lost the Attorney General's race by 4 percent to incumbent Jim Mattox in November, but carried 33 percent of the Hispanic vote.

"We turned our backs on an Anglo (Jim Mattox) whose heart and guts have been with the Chicanos and instead voted for an attractive candidate who has little experience but has a Hispanic surname," he said.

Suit says workers excluded by law

AUSTIN — A hearing is scheduled for Tuesday on a lawsuit that claims farm workers are unfairly excluded from a state law requiring employers to notify their workers when hazardous chemicals are used at job sites.

"Farm labor is one of the most dangerous in terms of pesticides and use of hazardous chemicals," said Jim Harrington, legal director of the Texas Civil Liberties Union, which is representing farm workers in the class action lawsuit.

"The only group of workers that has any exposure to chemicals that are excluded (from protections of the law) are farm workers," Harrington added. Filing the suit Thursday, Harrington said the hazardous chemical notification law was written by the Legislature to leave out farm workers because of "political reasons and as part of a long-standing pattern of discrimination against them because of ethnic origin."

At issue is a 1985 law requiring employers to provide advance notice to workers about the use of chemicals as well as other precautionary steps so workers who might be health-sensitive would know to avoid a specific workplace at a certain time.

Dallas girl fiance of Thatcher's son

DALLAS — Mark Thatcher, the son of the British prime minister, may not be royalty but he treats his fiance like a princess, the father of the bride-to-be said.

Lois and Theodore Burgdorf, the parents of Diane Burgdorf, said they don't know where or when the wedding will be, other than that it will be after the first of the year but they're happy to welcome Thatcher into the family.

"He's been a gentleman. He has treated our daughter like the princess we think she is," Burgdorf said Thursday.

The couple live in Rockwall, a small town about 20 miles east of Dallas. They have been besieged by reporters, mostly from the London dailies, since the announcement that their daughter, Diane, 26, is marrying the 33-year-old Thatcher. The engagement was formally announced in the London Times Thursday.

She said Mr. and Mrs. Thatcher called Thursday morning.

"They were very happy and very gracious," she said.

Alert clerk leads to counterfeiters

PRINCETON — An alert Indiana sales clerk who took a license number started a trail that led to a counterfeiting operation headquartered in a rural area about 50 miles northeast of Dallas, authorities said.

Police in Evansville, Ind., said two men attempted to pay for merchandise at the Great Scot supermarket Sunday with a $50 bill. A clerk refused take the bill and jotted down the number of the license plate of the automobile the men were in.

The automobile was traced to an automobile rental firm in Dallas, where Wednesday night a man was arrested, said James L. Parker, assistant special agent-in-charge of the Dallas office of the Secret Service.

Jeffery Dean Murray of McKinney was charged on a warrant from Evansville charging him with attempting to pass a $50 bill, Parker said.

The Secret Service was preparing a warrant Thursday night against a Princeton man in connection with the raid, Parker said.

Murray appeared before a U.S. magistrate in Dallas Wednesday and was released on his own recognizance. He is to appear again on Nov. 21 as part of the government's attempt to have him removed to Evansville, Parker said.

More than 20 law enforcement officers from federal, state and local agencies converged on a house at Princeton in Collin County Thursday afternoon. No one was at home, but the officers seized an offset printing press and printing supplies, Parker said.

Parker said the partial impressions of $50 and $100 bills and negatives of $20 and $50 bills were found.

Parker said the Secret Service has been investigating the appearance of counterfeit $50 bills since they first appeared in September in Alabama, Indiana and Ohio.

Parker estimated the amount of counterfeit bills passed as several thousand dollars, an amount he described as "relatively small." He said no $20 or $100 bills have surfaced so far "to our knowledge."

Jim Broyles, a Collin County deputy sheriff, accidentally shot himself during the raid. Broyles was listed in good condition Thursday night at a McKinney hospital, said the deputy's father, John. The younger Broyles had 45 caliber bullet wounds in the left thigh and foot, the father said.
