Dropouts decrease state revenues

AUSTIN (AP) — A third of all Texans who began ninth grade in 1982 were no longer in school last year, a statewide survey of school dropouts showed.

Only three of every 10 students who have dropped out since 1982 have completed more than nine years of schooling.

Such a dropout rate could cause the state to lose more than $21 billion in income and tax revenues over the next 45 years, a conference of educators and researchers said.

The only way to combat that potential loss will be to designate dollars to fight the potential loss, the educators said.

The survey conducted for the conference found that for every dollar Texas spends keeping students in school, $9 is returned to the economy.

But participants at the Dropout Prevention and Recovery Conference found out Texas has a long way to go toward improving its dropout rate.

"If we focus on our findings, catastrophe is winning" over education, said Maria del Refugio Robledo, principal investigator for the Intercultural Development Research Association in San Antonio which conducted the survey.

The conference report issued Thursday included more than 700 responses from 1,100 school districts. Census bureau data, and information from the Texas Education Agency were also used.

As in previous national studies, the survey showed varying attrition rates among different ethnic groups. Hispanics had a 45 percent dropout rate, blacks had a 34 percent dropout rate and Anglos a 27 percent rate.

Prairie View A&M researchers presented a separate study that showed the major causes for attrition were economic, not ethnic, factors.

Texas Education Commissioner William Kirby said he would put a renewed emphasis on preschool programs for low-income students and those with limited English proficiency.

"When you see that 85 percent of the people in Texas prisons have not completed high school, and when you think about the $4 billion shortfall in the state budget, then you realize the value of giving people a good education and putting them to work," Kirby said.

Participants called for more funding for early detection and dropout prevention and more community and parent involvement in the prevention program.

Kirby said unless the state makes a commitment now dropouts are condemned to a lifetime of poverty and hard labor at a time when unskilled jobs are becoming more scarce.

"The only way to break that cycle of poverty is to give these kids a choice and a good education," he said.

Walk-A-Thon route

The Northside Community Center's Third Annual Walk-a-thon will take place Sunday afternoon, beginning at the Highland Mall, and following the path outlined in the map above. All who are interested in walking the 11-mile route, or a portion of it, are asked to be at the registration table between noon and 12:30 Sunday. The walk will begin at 1 p.m.; everyone is to bring their pledge sheets at that time and anyone under the age of 18 is required to present a permission slip signed by their parents or legal guardian.

Slaying renews controversy

HOUSTON (AP) — The shooting death this week of a Houston woman and her 2-year-old son allegedly by a paroled Texas prison inmate is renewing the controversy over the early release of prisoners.

"We're seeing more of this," Harris County District Attorney John B. Holmes says. "I'm becoming pretty disenchanted."

Michael Wayne Norris was charged with two counts of capital murder Thursday for the slayings the previous day of his girlfriend, Georgia Lee Rollins, 38, and the woman's son, Keith.

The Norris case is at least the fifth in recent weeks in the Houston area in which a parolee has been implicated in a major crime.

Norris was released from prison in May after serving less than three years of an eight-year term for murder. That conviction, in which he pleaded guilty, stemmed from the slaying of a Houston man over a minor traffic accident.

David Knight, the assistant district attorney who handled the case, describes Norris as a dangerous and volatile man. The guilty plea was accepted because the state did not have a strong case, he said. "Frankly, I didn't think the case would stand up to an appeal," he said.

"We had to let him go," Texas

Department of Corrections spokesman Charles Brown said Friday.

Brown explained that, according to state law, once the time an inmate accumulates credit for good behavior and the time actually spent in prison equals the minimum sentence, the prisoner is set free.

Holmes contends the parole system is based on economics and not whether the inmate is ready for parole.

"If a person gets 45 years for murder and gets out in four years, that is not a reasonable period to serve," he said.

Electric refund for consumers

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A plan to refund $7.9 million in fuel rate overcharges to customers of West Texas Utilities Co. won Public Utility Commission approval Friday.

The quick approval means customers will see the refund credits on their December bills.

WTU sought the quick refund and won support from attorneys representing the PUC and the Attorney General's Office during negotiations earlier this month.

Had such an agreement not been reached, a hearing would have been conducted and the refunds would have been delayed until at least January, the attorneys said.

If the agreement had not been signed by Nov. 21, commission hearings examiner Paula Pugsley had indicated a hearing would be needed starting Dec. 3. That would have made refunds in December impossible.

According to WTU testimony filed at the commission, typical residential customers can expect the refund to provide each of them with a one-time credit of more than $17, plus a 38 percent cut over the next few months on the fuel portion of their bills.

The fuel overcharges in recent months occurred because natural gas prices were lower than the company had predicted when the fuel rate was set.

State must avoid in-fighting over SSC

Staff and wire reports

AUSTIN — The president of a research laboratory working on a design for a proposed atom accelerator warned Friday against regional infighting that could jeopardize the state's effort to win the multibillion dollar facility.

Arthur "Skip" Porter, president of the Houston Area Research Center (HARC), said, "We need to rethink the way we compete."

Traditionally, intrastate battle lines have formed in the pursuit of projects, he said during a break in the Texas Research League's annual luncheon.

HARC, a research group involving Rice University, the University of Houston, Texas A&M University and the University of Texas, is developing special magnets for the proton accelerator that is called the Superconducting Super-Collider (SSC). The SSC would be the world's largest atom smasher.

Nine Texas sites are geographically suitable for the project, which would entail upwards of 60 miles of underground tunnels to conduct experiments on atoms.

Among those sites is one west of Garden City — 27 miles south of Big Spring which is considered promising from a geological standpoint.

Porter, a former A&M professor, said he recently met with Gov. elect Bill Clements and briefly outlined development of the SSC and other work at the HARC laboratory, located in The Woodlands near Houston.

The laboratory is trying to devise a design that would reduce the SSC price tag, currently estimated from $3 billion to $5 billion.

Recently, Gov. Mark White appointed a nine-member commission to convince the federal government to build the SSC in Texas.

Big Spring's Johnnie Lou Avery is among those appointed to the commission.

She has estimated that the SSC in Texas could mean 7,000 full-time jobs, and billions of dollars to the state's economy.

Texas needs to play "hardball" in its lobbying efforts, Porter said, because the state is pitted against some 30 other states for the project, which would create thousands of jobs and pump millions of dollars into the economy. The SSC annual budget is expected to be around $250 million.

Whether the federal government will approve the project is still uncertain, Porter said. "You've heard of trying to hit a moving target? This is like hitting an accelerating target," Porter said.

Regardless of whether the SSC is built, Porter said research related to the project is already producing benefits. He said HARC recently signed a contract with the Baylor College of Medicine to conduct magnet research with the Baylor College of Medicine to conduct magnet research.

Because of the ongoing research and recently formed commission to attract the SSC, Porter said if the project is approved, "Texas is in a much better position to compete."

A-Taiwan flu outbreak

MIAMI — The nation's first major outbreak of A-Taiwan Influenza has broken out among Navy personnel in the Florida Keys, but health authorities said Friday that precaution, not panic, was the order of the day.

The strain is new type of flu, first isolated in Taiwan in April.

"We can't predict what will happen, therefore we try to prepare for all contingencies," said Dr. Noreen Hynes, an epidemiologist with the national Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta. "But there is no evidence this strain is any more severe than the usual bout of flu."

Statements retracted

COLUMBIA, S.C. — A prosecutor said Friday that suspended state Rep. Phil Bradley will be cleared of obstruction of justice charges because he now says he cannot testify under oath that he saw cocaine used in the South Carolina House chambers.

Bradley was indicted on the charge and was suspended from his House post when he refused to identify the legislators he said were using drugs.

Solicitor Jim Anders said because of Bradley's latest statement, made in a letter to him, the charge will be dismissed.

Mercy killing probe

FORT MYERS, Fla. — A doctor's televised account of how he aided the death of his cancer-stricken wife has prompted a homicide investigation, prosecutors say.

Dr. Peter Rosier, 44, whose wife, Patricia, died Jan. 15, said in a WBBH-TV interview broadcast Wednesday, "I injected her with something and terminated her life."

The broadcast was the culmination of an series by the Fort Myers station on Mrs. Rosier's fight against the disease, said WBBH reporter Leisa Zigman. Rosier had notified the station after his wife's death to say he was writing a book on the case, and Ms. Zigman decided to interview him, she said.

Phony juice case

NEW YORK — Beech-Nut Nutrition Inc. and two of its executives pleaded innocent Friday to charges they deliberately sold apple-flavored sugar water labeled as pure apple juice for babies.

Three suppliers also pleaded innocent in the case, as a fourth has the day before.

U.S. District Judge Thomas C. Platt released the defendants on their own recognizance.

The judge said he expects a long trial and set a schedule for motions that ends March 13, when Platt may be able to set a trial date.

"It's a complex case and I expect novel questions of law," Platt said.

The defendants are charged in the 470-count indictment with selling counterfeit juice from 1978 to 1983.

This is an artist's conception of how astronauts could spacewalk and build the backbone of the Space System using the Rockwell International Space Truss Assembly Fixture. This system, one of several being studied, is being tested at the Johnson Space Center in Houston.

New system

Possible space station backbone

By PAUL RECER

AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Rockwell International engineers on Friday unveiled a system that spacewalking astronauts may use to build a 503-foot-long truss to form the backbone of the American space station.

The construction system, resembling four white goal posts connected by rails, would be carried into orbit in the cargo bay of the space shuttle. Astronauts, using pieces resembling a giant Tinkertoy set, would then assemble the long truss by building a series of linked cubes.

Rockwell engineer Paul De Wolfe said that astronauts Sherwood Spring and Jerry Ross, veterans of an earlier space construction project, will test the space station building concept both on land and underwater.

The Rockwell system consists of a frame (the goal posts) within which the truss cubes are assembled. The base of the frame posts are linked by parallel rails. Attached to the rails are two movable platforms.

One astronaut would stand in foot restraints on each of the platforms and snap together struts made of long pieces of tubing. 15 of the struts are assembled to create a 16-foot cube.

The cube then slides up the posts, and the astronauts build the next cube. Linked together as they are assembled, the cubes eventually would form the long truss.

In ground tests, DeWolfe said two engineers were able to assemble one cube every five minutes.

Current plans call for the space station to be assembled, segment by segment, in 17 space shuttle flights, said DeWolfe.

The 503-foot-long truss would form the backbone of the station. Crew modules, solar power equipment and thermal-control radiators would be strung along the truss.

In its final configuration, the station will resemble a rectangle, rather like a football field.

Rockwell's assembly concept is one of two being evaluated by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Britain distances self

LONDON — Britain responded Friday to President Reagan's speech on Iran by stressing London's refusal to negotiate with terrorists for hostages' freedom and saying it has gradually reduced arms supplies to Iran.

The government did not directly criticize the television speech in which Reagan confirmed that the United States had included arms supplies in a secret diplomatic initiative to Iran.

But the opposition Labor Party's foreign affairs spokesman, Denis Healey, said Reagan's speech was "stupefyingly incredible."

Hasenfus awaits verdict

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — Eugene Hasenfus, who has said he became a mercenary because he was out of work, waited Friday for a People's Tribunal to reveal whether that decision will cost him 30 years in prison.

The three-day period ended Thursday afternoon for deliberations on the 45-year-old American's case by the panel of a lawyer, a truck driver and a laborer.

Tribunal president Reynaldo Monterrey, the lawyer, told reporters outside the court ofices Friday that a verdict would be announced later. He did not elaborate.

Nuclear power turned on CATTENOM, France — The first unit of the Cattenom nuclear plant has been connected to the French power grid, the state-owned electricity company said Friday.

The company, Electricite de France, said the connection was made at 9:23 p.m. Thursday. The 1,300-megawatt reactor, one of four to be built on the site, is not expected to reach full power until early next year.

Construction of the nuclear plant close to France's borders with Luxembourg and West Germany has sparked protests in those countries.

Violence marks date

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Hundreds of Protestant shipyard workers rallied in Belfast on Friday to launch a weekend of protests throughout Northern Ireland marking the first anniversary of the Anglo-Irish agreement.

Protestants who oppose the agreement as a weakening of Ulster's union with Britain also planned a mass rally at Belfast City Hall on Saturday.

The British government reiterated it had no intention of deviating from the agreement, which gives the Irish Republic a say in the affairs of Northern Ireland on behalf of its Catholic minority.

More than 150 Catholic families have been burned or intimidated out of their homes by Protestants since the Anglo-Irish agreement was signed on Nov. 15, 1985, by Prime Ministers Margaret Thatcher of Britain and Garret FitzGerald of Ireland in the village of Hillsborough south of Belfast.

New dislocated worker program endorsed

By ANDREW MANGAN

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Labor Department task force agreed Friday on a series of proposals aimed at creating a $900 million safety net for long-time workers who lose their jobs because of foreign competitors or plant closings.

Funding for the program would come from an across-the-board payroll tax and would cover all workers who have permanently lost their jobs due to layoffs or plant closings, according to the panel, organized at the request of Labor Secretary William Brock

III. "It's an insurance policy," said Malcolm Lovell, the task force chairman and a former trade official in the Carter administration now teaching at George Washington University.

Millions of Americans are finding themselves without jobs and without the prospect of future work because they are trained in industries doomed to extinction in an increasingly competitive global market.

Changes in world trade have bulldozed through Texas, burying hundreds of thousands of jobs in oil, textiles, computer equipment, agriculture and other of the state's industries.

"We recognize that some plant closings and permanent layoffs are inevitable and can be a concomitant part of achieving and maintaining a competitive, healthy economy," the task force said in outlining the problem.

"We don't want to stop that process, but want to begin to react more sensitively toward those individuals who get dislodged," Lovell said.

The task force plan was hammered out in monthly meetings over the past year by leaders of industry, labor, academics and government in an effort to stem the rising tide of layoffs.

A study by the General Accounting Office found an average of 2.3 million workers were dislocated annually between 1979 and 1984, and that between 1983 and 1984 more than 16,000 establishments with 50 workers or more experienced closures or layoffs. Of those, federal programs aided only 8 percent.

The task force estimates its plan would cover 45 percent, or 535,000 of the 1.2 million workers projected to lose their jobs annually because of plant closings or foreign competition in the coming years.

The task force estimated it would take $900 million to cover job training, education and administration of the program. A formal draft report of the panel's goals is to be presented at its next meeting in mid-December.

The displacement program would be administered by state governors under guidelines established by the Labor Department and consolidate all existing programs for displaced workers over a three-year period.

"I think doing something in this area should be of critical concern for this country," said Frank Doyle, a panel member and senior vice president for General Electric. "We are saying we're all going to be better off the faster we get displaced workers back working in society again."

Quick response to plant closings and early notification of layoffs are central goals of the new program, as are development of an efficient retraining network, income support payments and a $500 bonus program for workers who quickly become re-employed.

Other than technical arguments over inclusion of a program set up to provide help to workers losing jobs specifically because of foreign trade.

Haines meets challenges

Directs film about teacher for the deaf falling in love

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES — For Randa Haines, the challenge should have been daunting on three counts:

- She was directing her first feature film.
- She was a woman invading a predominantly male world.
- Her lead actress and 10 other cast members were not only new to films; they also couldn't hear.

However, when Haines talks about her new movie, "Children of a Lesser God," she mentions yet another challenge: "Telling a love story is hard to do these days without falling into the trap of sentimentality or being overly cynical. To just tell a story about people struggling to reach each other is difficult."

"Children of a Lesser God" is based on the Tony award-winning play by Mark Medoff about a teacher at a school for the deaf who tries to reach a young woman who is bitter and resentful in her silent world. Their relationship becomes a romance, as has happened in the private lives of the film's stars, William Hurt and Marlee Matlin.

Miss Matlin, who lost most of her hearing when she was 18 months old, was discovered in a supporting role in a Chicago company of "Children of a Lesser God." Her deafness added reality to the film, but posed staging problems for Haines.

"If you have two hearing actors doing a scene, one of them can continue the conversation while going to the sink and washing the dishes or whatever, tossing the lines over her shoulder," she said. "A director can make the scene visually varied and interesting. But here we have two people who must retain eye contact at all times. How to keep it from being static was something that presented a challenge to me."

How did the director communicate with her star and the other unhearing actors?

"I learned to sign, and some of them could read lips. I'm naturally a physical person when I talk, and sometimes I could act things out or show what I wanted by gestures. Also, we had interpreters on the set."

Communicating with her other star also was challenging, Haines said.

"Bill Hurt is a very complicated person, a complicated actor, extraordinarily talented," she said. "He is a very strong-willed person, as am I, and a real perfectionist, as am I. So naturally we clashed head-to-head sometimes, and out of conflicts came what you hope for: even better ideas than what you came in with. He needs a director who is willing to go to the mat with him. I was. I think we both came out with something we're really proud of."

"Children of a Lesser God" was filmed in St. John, New Brunswick, and the multiple problems caused Haines to fall behind schedule. But, she said, as soon as executives at Paramount Pictures saw the film she was providing "the horrible phone calls from the studio stopped."

Haines was born in Los Angeles and grew up in New York City, where she studied acting with Lee Strasberg. Her mother made up her first name, Randa.

After a few roles she decided she was more interested in what goes on behind the camera than in front.

"I learned everything by doing it," she remarked. "My second job was as a script supervisor for a film that couldn't afford someone who had done it before. That's how I learned about directing: by watching a lot of directors while I was a script supervisor. I never went to film school; I just did it. I think that's the best way to learn."

After 10 years as a script supervisor, she was accepted for the Women's Workshop of the American Film Institute. She co-wrote and directed a short film that was impressive enough to win her a writing job on the critically acclaimed TV series "Family."

Still, she wanted to direct, and she finally did some dramas for the Public Broadcasting Service as well as four segments of "Hill Street Blues." Her sensitive handling of the incest theme of the TV movie, "Something about Amelia," led to her assignment for "Children of a Lesser God."

Migration observatory helps save endangered species

A red-tailed hawk takes off in flight in the headlands above San Francisco's Golden Gate Bridge in September as ornithologist Allen Fish returns the raptor to freedom. The Golden Gate Raptor Migration Observatory, directed by Fish, bands the birds in order to track their seasonal migration.

By KATHLEEN MACLAY
Associated Press Writer
SAUSALITO, Calif. (AP) — A red-tailed hawk rises on the breeze from a hillside on the Marin Headlands, soaring majestically over San Francisco Bay and carrying the dreams of a special group of birdwatchers.

The bird is one of some 20,000 hawks, eagles and falcons that migrate each fall along the Pacific Coast on a path that converges over the rugged hills just beyond the Golden Gate Bridge.

The mechanisms that trigger migration and keep feathered travelers on the right paths are still uncertain, said ornithologist Allen Fish, but these birds of prey may help solve the mystery and play a role in saving endangered species.

A natural funneling effect apparently causes the birds to converge here on their southward migration, said Fish. The watery creatures soar over the hills seeking updrafts to boost them into the sky before they soar over the mile-wide bay between Marin County and San Francisco, he said.

"If we had similar knowledge about the California condor 10 years ago, there would be a lot more California condors today," Fish said.

The Golden Gate Raptor Migration Observatory he directs is tracking raptors on seasonal shifts that extend from British Columbia to Argentina.

Project goals include raptor protection and increasing public awareness of the importance of saving wildlife habitats. "Until wildlife problems are seen as habitat problems, we'll always be two steps behind, we'll always be fighting," Fish said.

The Marin site is one of the top three hawk-watching spots in the country, according to Fish. Only Pennsylvania and New Jersey have better spots.

It is also in the Golden Gate National Recreation Area. "We have no concerns about anyone building a condominium here on top of a bird migration site. That's a great peace of mind," he said.

So far, the group has tagged about 750 birds with numbered metal bands from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to help track raptors that turn up elsewhere.

The birds may be sponsored, Fish said. For a fee of $25 for a red-tailed hawk to $100 for an American kestrel, sponsors are kept abreast of data collected on "their" individual birds.

Fish hopes the study will continue for 20 years or more, saying it's crucial to cover at least the 5-7-year life span of the red-tailed hawk in order to help answer migration and other questions.

Ornithologist Allen Fish places an identification band on the raptor's leg in the headlands above the Golden Gate Bridge in September. The bands are used to track the hawks on their southern migration.

The beak of a red-tailed hawk is measured as ornithologists prepare to track its migratory flight.

One twin killed in home fire

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A 28-year-old woman and her 4-year-old son remain in critical condition following a fire that killed another toddler and may have been started by a candle, authorities said.

Wendy Vogel, 4, was pronounced dead at Brooke Army Medical Center shortly after the fire broke out at their three-bedroom home on Wednesday.

Theresa Vogel and Wesley Vogel, the girl's twin brother, were listed in critical condition at BAMC late Thursday.

Universal City Fire Chief Ross Wallace said a preliminary investigation showed that electricity to the home had been turned off earlier in the week and that a candle burning in the living room is suspected as the cause of the fire.

The fire was reported at 8:29 a.m. Wednesday.

Firefighter Lt. John Lee entered the burning house and found Wesley unconscious in the bedroom. After handing the child to a policeman, he re-entered the home to search for the second child.

"It took a while longer to find the second child," Wallace said. "She was in another bedroom. Both children were not breathing. We got one breathing on his own."

Universal City Fire Marshal John Hatzel said that Ms. Vogel could not recall if she tried to rescue her children.

"She doesn't remember exactly what she did," Hatzel said. "All she remembers is being awakened by some popping noises, running to the front of the house and then out the front door."

Steers gore Andrews, 27-0

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

It was evident the Big Spring Steers had the Andrews Mustangs overwhelmed before the game even started.

The Steers sent 34 seniors out as captains for the coin toss. Andrews' four captains resembled a small fish in a big pond. That's just what the Mustangs turned out to be as the Steers came away with a 27-0 win, earning the undisputed District 2-4 title.

The Steers went through league play with an 8-0 record and the regular season with a 9-1 record. They will play Hereford, the District 1-4A runner-up. Hereford claimed the position with a 19-13 win over Borger.

"We're 99 percent sure we'll play them Friday night in Jones Stadium in Lubbock," said a happy Steers coach Quinn Eudy.

Eudy had all the reason in the world to be happy. He said his team needed a good game going into the playoffs, and that's just what he got. "That's the momentum we need going into the playoffs. We got excited and played good football. I'm tickled to death. I'm ecstatic and happy for the kids and coaches. They really deserved this."

The Steers totally dominated the game. They racked up 224 yards total offense while limiting Andrews to 114. So dominant was the Steers defense that Andrews crossed midfield only twice the whole game. Of those two penetrations, one resulted from a short Steers' punt and a 15-yard return by Curtis Brown.

Big Spring limited Andrews running back David Criswell to 90 yards on 26 carries. Criswell had 986 yards entering the game. Most of those yards came in the fourth quarter when the game was out of reach. He had just 23 yards in 10 first half carries.

"We did a good job of shutting down Criswell. He wasn't really a factor in the game. They ran some unbalanced stuff in the fourth quarter and that's where he got most of his yards. Andrews did a good job of running it too," Eudy said.

"I thought our offensive and defensive lines played exceptionally well," Eudy said. "We didn't do anything fancy. We felt we just needed to line up and play good football."

That they did. Starting from the opening drive, Big Spring showed the Mustangs what was in store for them the rest of the game. Relying on the running of fullback James Harlin, Big Spring marched 84 yards in 11 plays. Harlin, who left the game early in the second quarter with a sprained ankle, carried four times for 43 yards.

But it was halfback Phillip Mathews who got the score from eight yards out. John Olsen's point after touchdown kick gave Big Spring a 7-0 lead with 6:56 left in the first quarter. Mathews turned in a fine game, leading Big Spring with 85 yards rushing in 18 carries.

Two possessions later, Big Spring started a drive from its own 20 and looked like it was going in for another TD. But the drive stalled when quarterback Paul Decker fumbled at the Andrews 30. It was the only miscue by the Steers all night. Unlike last week when the Steers were whistled for almost 100 yards in penalties against Snyder, they didn't get a single flag all game.

The only penalty levied against the Steers was declined by Andrews.

Big Spring's other scoring drive in the first half came at the start of the second quarter. Decker, who gained 48 yards rushing in the game, was the main ground gainer in the drive. He also hurt Andrews with the pass, completing passes to wide receiver Shawn Shellman for 15 and 13 yards.

Mathews capped the 9 play, 60-yard scoring drive when he waltzed in from the nine. The extra point snap was bobbled and Big Spring led 13-0 at the half.

The second half saw the Steers continue to dominate and the reserves get a chance to see action. Fullback Charles White, who is nursing a bruised foot, got a chance to test it out. Although it was evident he wasn't at full speed, he still managed to gain 39 yards in 10 carries.

It was also a rare occasion for a freshman to score a TD in AAAA football. Halfback Chris Cole got the honors when he scored the final TD of the game. His 17-yard run came with 1:22 remaining.

"It was a big thrill for Chris and he did a good job," said Eudy of the player he moved up from the junior varsity. "The whole was so big he nearly fell down."

Big Spring's third TD also came in the fourth quarter. Following a four yard Andrews punt, Big Spring drove for the score in six plays. White and Mathews gobbled up the yardage. White scored from two yards out. After Mathews scored the two-point conversion that gave Big Spring a 21-0 lead with 10:58 left in the game, Andrews was minutes away from losing its seventh game in 10 tries. The Mustangs finished district play with a 3-5 slate.

From then on it was only a matter of time until the Steers had

Bucs bounce Queens, 50-48

CARTHAGE — The Howard College Hawk-Queens dropped their second consecutive game as they were nipped by the Blinn Junior College Lady Buccaneers 50-48 in the second round of the Panola Classic Friday afternoon.

The Hawk-Queens held a 27-21 halftime lead but saw Blinn slowly whittle the lead until the final seconds. The Lady Buccaneers won the contest on a last second jumper from the corner.

Guard Terri Powell paced Howard in scoring with 16 points. She has now scored 50 points in two games in the tournament. Forward Stefanie Massey was next with eight points. Freshman post player Leslie Carter led Howard in rebounds with 12.

Howard, 4-2 for the season, will play Panola today at 2.

HOWARD (48) — Brandye Owens 1 0 2; Leslie Gooch 1 1 3; Risa Willard 0 0 0; Pam Franklin 1 0 2; Terri Powell 8 0 16; Stefanie Massey 3 2 8; Trena Jackson 2 0 4; Leslie Carter 2 0 4; Sophia Ish 1 2 4; Carolyn Wiland 1 1 5; totals 21 6 48.

HALTIME — Howard 27, Blinn 21.

Big Spring Steers quarterback Paul Decker (12) struggles for more yardage after being wrapped up by Andrews Mustangs' Rod Bryan (64). The Steers whipped Andrews 27-0 Friday night at Memorial Stadium.

Hawks rally for victory

WACO — The Howard College Hawks exploded for 31 points in the last ten minutes to upset Lon Morris 107-104 in the first round of the McLennan College Tournament Saturday night.

Lon Morris was ranked among the top twenty junior colleges in the nation.

Sophomore Kevin Bradsher, the Hawks' leading scorer, played brilliantly, and finished with 35 points. Byron Wright had 17 points and Robert Barley 13 for the Hawks.

In tonight's finals the Hawks will play the winner of the McLennan Community College-Blinn Junior College game.

2-4 Roundup

Monahans 20

Ft. Stockton 3

FORT STOCKTON - Typical of the second leading defense in 2-4A, Fort Stockton did its best to tie up the potent Monahans offense, and did a credible job.

Unfortunately for the Panthers, holding both Charles Thompson and Dana Amos to less than 100 each was not enough as the Lobos boosted their record to 8-2 overall and 6-2 in district with their 20-3 victory.

Ft. Stockton managed a single field goal, with 8:33 remaining in the second period, in its offensive thrust and fell short of subduing the Monahans squad.

Quarterback Chad Durham carried much of the offensive load for the host team with 114 yards on nine completions on 15 attempts.

The score was set up on a 34-yard pass from Durham to flanker Cesar Sarabia.

Monahans' first score came with 5:52 left in the first half when Thompson traveled 48 yards to claim the lead — and cross the 1,500-yard barrier for the season. Michael Portillo added a PAT boot for a 7-3 halftime lead.

Second half action began before the kickoff.

The referees flagged Ft. Stockton for delay of game and unsportsmanlike conduct for not coming onto the field in time, giving the visitors the ball at mid-field.

Dana Amos broke the 1,000-yard mark with his effort Friday night and scored with 5:44 remaining in the third period. Portillo's kick was good.

Amos capped the scoring in the game with a five-yard run with 7:36 remaining in the game. A bad snap kept Monahans from getting a kick off after that TD.

This game marked the first time this season that both

Thompson and Amos were held to under 100 yards in a contest.

Sweetwater 55

Lake View 28

SWEETWATER - A 27-point first half explosion carried the Mustangs through their contest with the visiting Lake View Chiefs Friday night, coming away with a 55-28 win. Both teams matched point-for-point during second half action.

The victory put Lake View at 1-7 in district action and 3-7 overall, while Sweetwater rose to 9-1 overall and 7-1 in the district. The Mustangs will play Lubbock Estacado in bi-district.

The Mustangs' Rufus Smith had an enjoyable night. He ran for two first half scores, while Chris Davis passed to Kenneth Norman for one TD and then ran for another to put the Mustangs in command at halftime, 27-0.

Israel Vera hit three of four PAT kicks in the first half.

Lake View led off second half scoring with Eric Dumas hitting Bobby Watson on a 60-yard pass with 10:31 left in the third period, followed by a Ricky Womack PAT conversion.

A minute later, Smith got his third TD with a 14-yard run and Vera added a PAT; three minutes after that, Smith scored for Sweetwater once again, on a 25-yard run. Vera again kicked the PAT.

Dumas responded with a healthy 72-yard drive that featured passes of 22 yards to Brent Sparks and 39 yards to Todd Miller. He capped the drive with a one-yard plunge with 4:48 left in the period.

The teams alternated scoring in the fourth period.

Sweetwater scored with 10:31 left in the game on a two-yard Smith run and a Vera kick; Lake View's Dumass hit Sparks on a five-yard pass followed by a Womack kick; Harry Marquez went in from three yards out for Sweetwater, sweetened by a Vera kick.

A Dumas-to-Sparks pass and Womack kick wrapped the scoring for the night.

Lamesa 0

LAMESA - The Snyder Tigers closed out their season in style Friday night, as they clawed the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes to the tune of 43-0.

Six Tigers scored during the lopsided contest, as they managed at least one TD in each quarter of action.

Vyron Clay, Brad Gartman, Michael Riggins, Troy Burton and Israel Hinojos each scored on runs from scrimmage, while Scott Lanier scored on a blocked punt.

Lanier also scored twice on two-point conversions, while Randy Townsend kicked two PATs and Sean Randolph added another.

Snyder scored once in the first period, twice each in the second and third quarters, and added a final TD in the fourth period.

Snyder closed the season with a 3-7 overall record and 3-5 in 2-4A district action, while Lamesa was 2-8 and 1-7.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, NOV. 16, 1986
GENERAL TENDENCIES: You think your practical affairs are not working out as you wish. You have to be more patient in solving them and not allow frustration to obscure you. ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be more concerned with the spiritual side of life since you have been too materialistic. Reach a balance. TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Personal aims seem difficult to materialize. Be patient. With time you get good results. GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You may find it difficult to get out from under certain conditions that you do not like. Persevere for fine results. MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Handle the problems that are connected with your personal aims. Try to be more self-reliant. LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Not a good day to try to reconcile with one who is an outside partner or ally. Await a better day. VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You are studying into new interests, which is fine, but don't take any action just yet. LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good day to study business methods. Don't bring up any sore points with the one you love. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You may find that an associate is as stubborn as you are, so you had better compromise. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You may find it difficult to get work done. Put it off until a better day. Improve your health. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you get into amusements with others, act in a gracious and charming way and be happy. AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study affairs at home and make sure you do nothing that could disturb your family there. PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be soothing to an outside associate who is having a rough time and could be quite depressed.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to handle any problems wisely provided a good education is accorded early in youth so that he or she can meet the vicissitudes of modern living. Teach to shy away from prejudices that can be dangerous if permitted to build up.

 "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, NOV. 17, 1986
GENERAL TENDENCIES: Restlessness and nervousness are keeping you from accomplishing and achieving your interests unless you make a point to keep calm and poised. ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You may find it hard to go along with the plans you have made for the day, but persevere and all works out fine. TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Solve the financial affairs that pertain to you. Use wisdom and all should work out well. GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You may run hither and yon trying to gain a personal desire, but relax and use positive methods to win. MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You can go after your personal goals privately, but you need to make the right decisions. LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) See if you can convince a logical person to go along with some plan you have. You can get excellent results. VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be sure you know just what it is you desire before you contact an influential person. Come right to the point. LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You want to get into new interests, but take one thing at a time. A new contact could cause you trouble. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you try to get out of promises you have made you will find everything reacting against you. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You may be annoyed because a clever associate will not even listen to your ideas that mean so much to you. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study the details connected with your activities and don't spend too much time on any one. AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If something turns up and you cannot enjoy the pleasure you have planned, take it in stride. PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Try to make conversations with others very relaxed. It may be a bit difficult to do. IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be full of life and enthusiasm, but should be taught to finish whatever has been started. A fine clever mind here that will need a very education, so plan for it now. Your progeny will do well in any profession that requires fine self-expression. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
