County plans to discuss outreach site

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer
Howard County Commissioners will discuss three issues pertaining to funding and consider leasing a county building to West Texas Opportunities when they meet 9 a.m. Monday in the county courthouse.
Jack Stovall, director of community services at Big Spring State Hospital, and Teri Quinones, downtown coordinator, will request $500 in county funds per month for leasing a building to serve outreach patients from Big Spring State Hospital.
Stovall and Quinones announced on Nov. 13 that they reached a tentative agreement with Mayor Cotton Mize to lease The Corral Building, 611 E. Third St.
Mize now operates the clothing business and owns the building.
Quinones said Mize would close his business Jan. 1. Stovall projected the outreach center could be operating Feb. 1 at the proposed location.
"I really believe the county will fund it," Stovall said Friday afternoon.
If the county approves funding rent, Stovall said he and Quinones would "begin earnestly to consider city council funding for utilities."
If the county disapproves the request, Stovall said he and Quinones would inform city councilmen during their Monday afternoon work session that the advisory board doesn't have a building.
"I really believe we may be on our way to a resolution, but you never know," Stovall said.

Hundreds decry college merger

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN — After a full day of angry outbursts from unhappy supporters of state universities in Houston, Dallas and South Texas, Chairman Larry Temple said he did not expect his proposal to merge six schools into three to be adopted.
"I have not run a poll but I have not seen any strong enthusiasms from other members of the committee," Temple told reporters after the daylong hearing before the Select Committee on Higher Education.
Temple commented after several hundred black supporters of Texas Southern University rose and sang the old civil rights demonstration tune "We Shall Overcome" — dedicated to Temple.
A Baptist preacher prayed that Temple would have a change of mind and withdraw his merger proposal.
About 600 students and supporters of Texas Southern rallied on the Capitol steps to protest the merger.
Gov. Mark White wrote Temple and the committee a letter saying the mergers Temple proposed were the wrong way to improve the state's college system.
"He has his views and I have mine," Temple said of White's letter.

Wright: Iran arms sales broke the law

By TIM AHERN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — CIA Director William Casey defended President Reagan's secret arms sales to Iran on Friday before disbelieving lawmakers, and a senior GOP senator said the president needs "to bring in some big leaguers to run things" at the White House.
House Democratic leader Jim Wright of Texas, after hearing Casey's report, said Iranians paid $12 million for the weapons they received, including 2,008 anti-tank weapons. Wright, the likely speaker of the House when Congress convenes in January, said "several other countries" besides the United States and Israel had been involved in shipping weapons to Iran, but he declined to identify them.

While those shipments were not necessarily directly related to the U.S. effort to improve relations with Iran and free American hostages held in Lebanon, said Wright, the shipments were made with "the condoning of the United States and the complicity of the United States in some instances."
He renewed his charge that Reagan broke the law by failing to inform Congress of the sales for several months — a charge that Casey denied. "Oh, no, no, no," Casey told reporters as he shuffled between closed-door sessions with the House and Senate intelligence committees.

The Senate Intelligence Committee sent Reagan a letter Friday saying it "cannot accept a logic" which holds that it is all right to have a "high-risk meeting" between U.S. and Iranian officials while rejecting "the comparatively minor risks inherent" in telling Congress.
Reagan was unavailable to reporters, ignoring questions shouted to him as he left the White House for a helicopter trip to his Camp David, Md., retreat.

Wright said a law permitting the president to withhold information from Congress about covert operations is "clear and unambiguous."
"I don't think there is any question that the law has been broken," he said after the two-hour meeting with Casey.
Wright said 1,000 of the 2,008 anti-tank TOW missiles shipped to Iran gathered last February in San Antonio in preparation for shipment. The remainder were sent ARMS SALES page 2A

SMU president resigns

By DOUG CRICHTON
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS — Southern Methodist University President L. Donald Shields is retiring immediately under rising pressure from a diabetes condition and allegations about SMU's football program, officials said Friday.
"Reaching this decision has been extremely difficult, but the advice of my physician has made it imperative that I step down from the presidency effective immediately," Shields, 50, said in a statement.
Shields came to SMU in October 1980 after a 10-year stint as president of California State University at Fullerton.
SMU spokesman Roddy Wolper said the early retirement is not directly linked to recent allegations of NCAA rules violations in the football program at SMU, which currently is in the second year of a three-year probationary period.

"Obviously, the situation aggravated his condition, bringing on higher stress," Wolper said. "No one asked him to leave."
If the latest allegations about cash payoffs and improper inducements for athletes prove true, the Southwest Conference school could be the first to have its football program suspended for two years under an NCAA sanctions package approved last year.
"I leave SMU with a variety of emotions," Shields said. "It pains me to leave the university in this critical time in its life, and I very much regret that my health does not permit me to contribute to the solution of the university's current challenges."

His announcement came two days after SMU's Faculty Senate called for a halt to "quasi-professional athletics" and urged administrators to abolish scholarships and special admissions criteria for athletes.
The faculty members said they felt compelled to act because the university's emphasis on athletics had tainted its academic reputation and eroded its national image.
Athletic department officials, including Athletic Director Bob Hitch, did not return telephone calls Friday from The Associated Press.
Dr. William B. Stallcup, a biology professor and now acting provost at SMU, will serve as in-

Unemployment down slightly

The unemployment rate for Howard County dipped slightly in October but still is almost double that of last year, according to John Eckley, office manager at the Big Spring office of the Texas Employment Commission.
The unemployment rate for October was 11.2 percent, down from 12.6 percent for September, he said.
The labor force was 15,037, down from 15,196 for September. The total number of employed was 13,349, up from 13,278. 1,688 people were employed, compared to 1,918 last month.
Last year during October, the unemployment rate was 6.9 percent. 15,553 people were in the labor force, with 14,448 unemployed and 1,069 employed.
The figures show 159 people were deleted from the labor force in October and 122 additional people employed.
Eckley attributes the lower unemployment rate partially to the opening of Wonder World and Domino's Pizza.

Shultz visits Canada

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State George P. Shultz visits Canada today for long-scheduled discussions on trade, terrorism and acid rain, but the continuing controversy over U.S. Iranian policy is likely to follow him.

Joe Clark, the Canadian minister for external affairs, planned to meet Shultz in Ottawa on the secretary's first foreign trip since he publicly expressed concern about President Reagan's arms shipments to Iran.

The agenda included U.S.-Canadian concerns over tariffs on commodities such as corn and lumber and discussion of disputes that have angered commercial, labor and environmental interests on both sides of the border.

Escapee caught

MIAMI — William Milligan, a dangerous mental hospital escapee with up to 24 personalities, was in federal custody Friday after FBI agents nabbed him in a posh Key Biscayne bar as he talked with his attorney.

Milligan, 31, was found innocent by reason of insanity in 1978 of raping three women in the Ohio State University area in Columbus. He also had been charged with kidnapping and robbing the women.

"We considered him armed and dangerous, but there was no incident and no resistance in connection with the arrest" Thursday night, Miami FBI spokesman Paul Miller said Friday. "I think he was surprised we found him."

GM troubles continue

DETROIT — Negotiators tentatively settled a strike Friday at a General Motors parts plant in Indiana, but the automaker could be forced to lay off more than the nearly 37,000 workers already idled before assembly plants return to full production, a company official said.

If the tentative agreement is approved when the 7,700 striking workers vote Saturday afternoon, some could be called in Sunday to fire up furnaces and start parts production, Delco Electronics spokesman Bill Draper said.

Card war battle won

DENVER — A small company that claims its successful line of greeting cards was copied by Hallmark Cards Inc. has won a federal court injunction ordering the industry giant to pull the disputed cards from store shelves.

U.S. District Judge Jim Carrigan on Thursday ordered Hallmark to pull the 83 cards of its Personal Touch line from store shelves while a $50 million lawsuit brought by Blue Mountain Arts of Boulder, Colo., is resolved.

Carrigan said Hallmark's Personal Touch cards are so similar in appearance to Blue Mountain's AireBrush Feelings and Water-Color Feelings lines that "there exists a likelihood of confusion" for customers.

Baby Kari is held by her father, Ken earlier this week at Loma Linda Medical Center in Loma Linda, Calif. The six-week-old girl from Saskatoon, Canada, has hypoplastic heart syndrome and is in need of a heart transplant to save her life. The announcement was made Thursday at a one-year anniversary celebration of the successful transplants on Baby Moses and others.

Infants celebrate anniversary

LOMA LINDA, Calif. (AP) — An infant who was the youngest ever to receive a new heart celebrated the first anniversary of his surgery at a party featuring three other heart transplant babies and appeals to save more children.

The party for Baby Moses, who was 4 days old when he underwent his transplant Nov. 20, 1985, also brought together babies Rachel, Eve and Jesse and their surgeon, Dr. Leonard Bailey, who said another infant with a fatal cardiac defect badly needed a donor heart.

Identified only as Baby Kari, the 6-week-old Saskatoon, Canada, girl is awaiting a transplant at Loma Linda University Medical Center, where Bailey caused a medical uproar in 1984 by putting a baboon's heart in Baby Fae, who died 20 days later.

Kari suffers hypoplastic left heart syndrome, an underdevelopment of the left side of the heart that also afflicted Moses and Fae. Bailey said doctors have tried for weeks to locate a donor.

Three of Bailey's infant patients died this year after receiving transplants, but the party Thursday on a lawn outside the medical center spotlighted the survivors. Bailey's four adult transplant patients also attended.

"I don't know what tomorrow's going to hold, but we're all here, and that's remarkable," said Bailey, flanked by Moses, Rachel, Eve and Jesse.

Moses, whose real name is Nicholas Edward Anguiano, was the third baby ever to undergo a heart transplant, and the youngest. The babies who got the earlier transplants, in New York in 1967 and London in 1984, both died.

"There'll be more parties like this every year," vowed Moses' father, Army Spec. 4 Nicholas Anguiano. "I feel happy, real happy."

"What we have here are the first, second, third and fifth youngest human beings in the world to get heart transplants and survive," hospital spokesman Dick Schaefer said, referring to Moses, Eve, Rachel and Jesse in that order.

Erotic art auction a hit

LONDON — London's first-ever auction of erotic art, for adults only, drew a packed audience and bidders who mostly preferred to remain anonymous.

Bonham's auction house stopped short of offering plain brown wrappers for goods purchased, but it did check with Scotland Yard's vice squad before holding its "Sale of the Erotic Arts" on Thursday.

Buyers from throughout the world eyed an array of suggestively shaped ancient oil lamps, decorated chamber pots, books by the Marquis de Sade, loving cups, paintings, drawings, prints and a Roman marble panel fragment depicting what the catalog described as "close encounters of a sexual kind."

Volcano bursts open

TOKYO — Thousands of people fled a small island south of Tokyo on Friday after a volcano burst open, spewing rocks and flames and sending molten lava toward the island's largest town.

There were no reports of injuries directly related to the eruptions, but an elderly man died of a heart attack en route to a rescue vessel, police said.

The volcano, Mount Mihara, began rumbling last Saturday on Oshima island, where 11,000 people live. Shortly after 4 p.m. Friday, the volcano started spewing bright orange flames from several openings, including a 600-yard-long fissure on the side of the mountain. Giant plumes of black smoke shot two miles into the sky.

Libya frees prisoner

LONDON — Libya has freed a 34-year-old British oil engineer who was serving a five-year prison term on drug charges, his family said.

Michael King returned to Scotland on Thursday after spending nearly two years in prison.

Press Association, the British domestic news agency, said King was thought to have been released after secret moves involving the British Foreign Office. There was no immediate comment from the Foreign Office or from Libya.

Press Association said Anglican envoy Terry Waite had been involved in previous efforts to secure King's release.

Society linked to Syria

BERLIN — Surprise testimony at the trial of two Palestinians charged in the bombing of the German-Arab Friendship Society in West Berlin have linked the club itself to Syria.

Two Palestinian defendants, Ahmed Nawar Hasi and Farouk Salameh, have admitted carrying out the March 29 attack that injured nine people, and in pre-trial statements said they got the explosives from the Syrian Embassy in East Berlin.

Medics take care of injured in desolate West Texas

By DORALISA PILARTE
Associated Press Writer
TERLINGUA — In the rugged, mountainous desert country of West Texas, John Alexander found a need and filled it.

He came to this mercury mining ghost town in the remote Big Bend area, just a stone's throw across the Rio Grande into Mexico, and saw there was no medical help for a hundred miles around. So he became a paramedic and started Terlingua Medics Inc., the non-profit corporation he heads. "I also wash bottles and bedpans," he said.

Now he needs two things: money to expand the service and time to kick back and enjoy at least a day of rest every week.

"This is a 24-hour-a-day, seven-days-a-week operation," said Alexander, 34. "We need to take time off. But we can't just close up shop on Fridays. We're needed here."

He has teamed up with Ann Carr, a 32-year-old licensed vocational practical nurse from West Virginia who was on her way to Silver City, N.M., in 1981 with a friend when she stopped in Texas.

"It was real cold and we saw the Chihuahuan Desert on a map and took a left turn," she said. "I never wanted to leave."

She first found a job at the hospital in Alpine and later worked in a Terlingua restaurant. Then she and Alexander met and have been together since.

The Big Bend area, home of the national park by the same name, is made up of three counties — Brewster, Presidio and Jeff Davis. That's 12,284 square miles of canyons, cactus and arid flatlands festooned by ribbons of green hugging the course of the Rio Grande. Brewster alone, with 6,169 square miles, is the largest county in Texas.

"It's the size of Connecticut and Rhode Islands with some miles left over," said County Judge Tom Connor, who holds the highest administrative office in Brewster County.

Flanked by Study Butte and Lajitas, Terlingua is just outside the western reaches of Big Bend National Park and close to the river, which marks the boundary between Texas and Mexico. The three small settlements are within a 15-mile stretch of each other on Texas Ranch Road 170.

An estimated 300 people live in the three-village area, their homes clustered behind a few restaurants and stores or among the dusty back hills. Presidio is 50 miles to the west, while Alpine and the nearest hospital is about 80 miles north.

It's only in recent years that the area has started to become attractive to retirees, and developers are beginning to cash in on it. Before Alexander established the Terlingua Medics in 1980, the sick and injured didn't get any medical help until they reached Alpine.

"It's essential," Connor said of the help Alexander and Ms. Carr provide. "It's a remote desert country. They do a tremendous job."

William Pate, one of seven doctors in Alpine, remembers when injured or sick tourists from the park, as well as area residents, would be brought to Alpine on a horse that pulled double duty as an ambulance.

"The only ambulance service was run by the local funeral home," said Pate, 43. "Most people would come in the back of a pickup truck or in an old hearse painted white with a red cross on top. That was as recent as the early '70s and nearly all of the '60s."

The hospital just recently acquired an ambulance but it is only used for transporting seriously ill patients from Alpine to bigger hospitals in Midland and Odessa, about three hours away.

"We get all kinds of injuries — auto accidents, horse injuries, gunshot wounds, you name it," said Pate, who called the Terlingua Medics' services "critical."

Brewster County gives Terlingua Medics $10,200 a year, and they get $50,000 annually from the Big Bend park, Alexander said. In exchange, he provides medical help to the park and teaches emergency medical courses to the rangers there.

In 1983, during the Terlingua International Chili Cook-offs, the chassis of what became an ambulance was donated to the medics. Other businesses helped outfit it.

"Willie Nelson in 1980 gave us our first cardiac monitor," said Alexander. "He was down here making the movie Barbarosa and I was helping as medical backup on location."

Alexander also was setting up the Terlingua Medics' annual fundraiser and thought the country and western singer could lend a hand.

"I knocked on his trailer door and asked him if he wanted to sing for us and help raise some money. He wanted to know what for and then said, 'What if I just buy it for you?' He cut us a check right there. Then he came over later and sang for about an hour anyway."

Nelson's gift may have helped save John "Louie" Libolt's life in 1983.

After having worked for 32 years with the Caterpillar Tractor company in Peoria, Ill., Libolt quit the cold Midwest five years ago and moved to the Terlingua area, to a house on six acres, which he shares with his widowed 63-year-old brother.

"I had some heart attacks and it hadn't been for him (Alexander) — well, I was in bad shape," said Libolt, 62.

John Alexander and Ann Carr pose with the ambulance at the Terlingua Medics Inc., a non-profit corporation of which Alexander is president, in Terlingua. Alexander, 34, says "This is a 24-hour-a-day, seven-day-a-week operation."

"I live out in the boondocks and at the time we didn't have no telephone. It cost me $900 to get a telephone line in last year."

Libolt awoke about 3 a.m. one day with chest pains.

"I didn't want to wake up my brother, so I just drove myself down to John and Ann's. He put me on a table and worked on me. Then they hooked me up to some I.V. and took me in the ambulance to Alpine."

Libolt was admitted to the hospital there and was able to return home eight days later.

"Without them, I would have died. I firmly believe that."

The medics are also invaluable to the tourists at Big Bend National Park, who occasionally get dehydrated, fall off cliffs or get hurt while river rafting, said Gary Kiramidjian, one of two acting district rangers.

"We can handle most medical emergencies," said Kiramidjian. "But when we get above our heads, John steps in."

Scientists can increase the credibility of the "nuclear winter" theory by answering some key scientific questions about smoke and the clouds in an upcoming series of tests in California, a physicist says.

'Nuclear winter' supported by research of brush fires

By MALCOLM RITTER
AP Science Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists can increase the credibility of the "nuclear winter" theory by answering some key questions about smoke and clouds, a physicist says.

"If any of this is going to have any effect on nations, it has to be credible," said Joyce Penner, co-leader of a project at the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory in California to study the environmental effects of nuclear war.

"As long as these scientific uncertainties are floating around, it's not as credible as it can be."

Nuclear winter refers to a predicted blockage of the sun's rays by smoke and debris after a nuclear exchange, leading to a long-term drop in temperatures.

"We don't know enough right now to predict how bad it will be," said Penner in a telephone interview this week.

Penner, who reviews research on nuclear winter in today's issue of the British journal Nature, said current estimates for several key factors yield a wide range of possibilities for the climatic impact.

At one extreme, she said, is temperature changes of only about 8 to 12 degrees Fahrenheit that "in summer would not bring you down to freezing levels, and probably would not be horribly severe."

At the other end are "devastating" and longer-lasting temperature drops, which some predictions say could bring freezing temperatures to the Midwest in summer, she said.

Key unanswered questions include how much light smoke particles would absorb if they formed relatively large clumps, she said. Another concerns the large clouds that would form over the huge fires triggered by nuclear war.

"We really have no way of predicting as yet how much of that cloud interacts with the smoke, absorbs the smoke and rains it out to the ground," Penner said. "There's a lot of detailed physics in answering that question."

Scientists also don't know how much smoke materials will give off when burning in massive fires, as opposed to smaller blazes for which information is available, she said.

Some of the questions should yield to research, while others — such as what time of year a nuclear war will be fought and what targets will be hit — can't be answered in the laboratory, she said.

Woman regains home despite suit

FORT WORTH — A 71-year-old widow who lost her home because she could not pay for burglar bars is getting her house back.

A settlement was reached in a lawsuit that will return the frame house to Juanita Snell. She will also receive $22,500.

A Dallas mortgage company had financed her loan to buy burglar bars, then foreclosed when she didn't make about $6,000 in payments.

Under the agreement reached Wednesday, Trans-Continental Mortgage Co. will pay $34,000 to buy Mrs. Snell's house from the present owner so that she can regain title to it. Mrs. Snell will receive the house and monthly payments totaling $22,500 beginning in January.

"This is a case that everyone had written off and said there's nothing we can do," said Perry Cockerell, the Fort Worth attorney who heard about Mrs. Snell's situation from his minister and represented her at no charge. "I think this is a good example of a horrible situation turning out to have some glimmer of hope because she got back her house."

The lawsuit said Trans-

Continental's claim against Mrs. Snell's house was invalid because she was mentally incompetent to sign the burglar bar contract.

Since her eviction in February, Mrs. Snell has suffered problems requiring treatment at hospitals in Wichita Falls and Fort Worth.

"She is happy, but she's having to live with me," in a larger house, said Mrs. Snell's niece and legal guardian, Inez Thompson. "She said she doesn't want to live alone now."

Cockerell said Trans-Continental officials offered to settle just before they were scheduled to give sworn depositions about the case.

Concert aids park funds

Asleep at the Wheel performs in auditorium tonight

In an effort to assist with funding the renovation of Comanche Trail Park that was severely damaged by flood waters in late August, Asleep at the Wheel will perform a benefit concert beginning at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the Municipal Auditorium.

Tickets are $6 and can be purchased at the door.

All proceeds go toward the renovation program which is a joint effort between Big Spring and the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp.

The Heart of Texas Band will open the show.

Asleep at the Wheel has been described as performing various idioms of American music at high speed. They perform country rock, western swing, boogie, the blues and honky tonk.

"Eclecticism is not out-of-place, in my opinion, as long as it's well done," says bandleader Ray Benson.

He formed the band in 1969.

The kind of music that Asleep at the Wheel offers to its listeners "is a gift-pack of assorted flavors," Benson said.

As a bandleader, he tries to keep consistency in the band as pedal steel and fiddle. What we do just grew musically with the addition of every member to the band," Benson said.

"I know that when I hire somebody, he's damn good and will help carry on tradition," he added.

The band tours 250 days a year. Along their travels, they picked up the Western swing of Bob Wills, the rhythm of big bands, and various musical styles that they have since refined and made their own.

The current version of Asleep at the Wheel that the Big Spring audience will see perform tonight is: Benson who is bandleader, vocalist and guitarist; Larry Franklin who is fiddler; David Dawson who is the upright and electric bassist; Tim Alexander who performs on keyboards; Michael Francis who is saxophonist; John Ely who plays steel guitar and David Sanger on drums.

The group has produced 11 albums, nominated for three Grammys, and was awarded a 1978 Grammy award for Best Instrumental Group for their hit song "One O'clock Jump."

His family tree lands Elliott an ideal TV role

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES — Sam Elliott has the right family connections for his title role in the CBS movie "Gone to Texas: The Sam Houston Story."

His great-great-grandfather on his mother's side was a surgeon at the Battle of San Jacinto in 1836, when Houston's army of Texans defeated and captured Gen. Antonio de Santa Anna. Elliott believes his ancestor's name was Thomas Kenney.

Texas won its independence from Mexico and became a republic, with Houston as its first president.

Elliott's great-grandfather, also on his mother's side, was a Texas Ranger named Sam Sparks, who was killed in Giddings in 1890.

"My family history was one of the reasons I wanted to do this," said Elliott. "I never saw my mother so excited about anything in my life as my doing this." Elliott was born in Sacramento, Calif., shortly after his father, who worked for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, moved there from Texas.

The three-hour movie, which CBS will telecast tonight, tells the story of Sam Houston from his days as a Tennessee frontiersman and governor to shortly after the Battle of San Jacinto. It also stars Michael Beck as James Bowie; Devon Ericson as Tiana, his Cherokee wife; James Stephens as Stephen F. Austin, and G.D. Spradlin as Andrew Jackson.

"I heard about this film months ago from some wrangler friends," said Elliott. "CBS had somebody else they wanted, but fortunately he asked for too much money. I really wanted to play this part."

Houston was called a coward, and a few things worse, as he led the Texas army in a retreat before Santa Anna's trained Mexican army. A small force of Texans had already been wiped out at the Alamo.

"But he must have been doing something right," Elliott said. "He cornered Santa Anna's army at San Jacinto, attacked the enemy with the sun in its eyes and won the battle in 18 minutes."

The movie was filmed in various parts of Texas, including Brackettville, where John Wayne filmed "The Alamo," and Giddings, whose courthouse stood in for the halls of Congress where Houston pleaded on behalf of the Indians.

"It was strange," Elliott said. "I'd never been to Giddings, but I'd heard about it all my life" because of his great-grandfather's death there.

The "Gone to Texas" crew was followed immediately into Brackettville by the company for "13 Days to Glory," an NBC movie about the Alamo. The films were inspired by the Texas Sesquicentennial this year.

Elliott said "Gone to Texas" was made because it was billed as a biography rather than a Western. "But if you set it in 1836, and you've got a lot of horses, it's a Western as far as I'm concerned," he said.

"People say there's no market for Westerns, but I think it's just bad Westerns. You can't make a 'Heaven's Gate' for $40 million and tell a story that doesn't make sense. Or do 'The Lone Ranger' or 'Silverado.' 'Silverado' was an 8-by-10 glossy Western."

Elliott, with the rugged good looks of the quintessential Western hero, has starred in such Westerns as "The Sacketts," "Wild Times," "Shadow Riders," "I Will Fight No More Forever," and the modern series "Yellow River."

He has also completed work in Arizona on a Western for HBO, "The Quick and the Dead," from a book by Louis L'Amour. It also stars Tom Conti and Kate Capshaw.

He said Tom Selleck, his co-star from "The Sacketts" and "Shadow Riders," would make a Western in Australia on his next break from "Magnum, P.I." "The Sacketts" was based on two books by L'Amour.

His wife, Katharine Ross, has a small role in "Gone to Texas" as a woman who survives the siege of the Alamo. She also stars in the ABC series "The Colbys." Their 2-year-old daughter, Cleo, also has a bit role in the movie.

Music halls to reopen soon

NEW YORK (AP) — Carnegie Hall, which is under renovation, will reopen Dec. 15. Carnegie Recital Hall will reopen Jan. 5 with the new name, Weill Recital Hall at Carnegie Hall.

Sanford I. Weill, 53, who resigned in 1985 as president of American Express and recently became board chairman and chief executive officer of Commercial Credit Company of Baltimore, and his wife Joan donated $2.5 million to Carnegie Hall earlier this year.

Weill is co-chairman of the fund-raising campaign for Carnegie Hall's restoration to the same condition it had in 1891 when it was built.

The 268-seat Weill Recital Hall's first week of concerts will feature classical, jazz and folk music, including performances by The Juilliard String Quartet, the Ramsey Lewis Trio and Isaac Stern and Friends.

MERLE, EITHER I GET A RAISE OR I WALK!

YOU MEAN YOU'D QUIT?

NO, I MEAN I COULDN'T AFFORD TO TAKE THE BUS ANYMORE.

B.C.

DO YOU ACCEPT NOVELS?

WHAT'S IT ABOUT?

A UBANGI THAT RENTS HERSELF OUT AS AN ASHTRAY.

SORRY... TOO NOVEL.

ANDY CAPP

SORRY TO HEAR ABOUT THE TROUBLE YOU'RE IN, ANDY.

THANKS, DEAR. IT'S VERY WORRYING, BUT FLO'S PROMISED TO STAND BY ME.

BUT I SURE DIDN'T REALISE HOW CLOSE SHE INTENDED TO BE.

HI & LOIS

BOY, AM I GLAD SHE'S GONE.

BUT YOU WERE SO FRIENDLY TO HER.

I HAD TO BE FRIENDLY!

SHE'S THE WORST GOSSIP IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD.

BUZ SAWYER

AND WHEN WILL YOU CONFRONT BUZ SAWYER WITH YOUR KNOWLEDGE, JAMES?

AT THE PROPER TIME AND PLACE...

NOR WILL HE LIVE LONG ENOUGH TO REGRET HIS DECEPTION!

SNUFFY SMITH

DID JUGHAD TAKE HIS BATH WHILE I WAS GONE, PAW?

YEP-- HE TOOK IT...

-- OUT TH' BACK DOOR.

WIZARD OF ID

IF I EVER GET OUT OF HERE, I'M GOING TO RUN FOR PUBLIC OFFICE.

SOUNDS LIKE A GOOD PLAN.

REALLY?

...YOU'RE NOT FIT FOR ANYTHING ELSE.

GASOLINE ALLEY

Keep on goin', Rufus! They's a long way to th' top!

I think I needs hep!

What kind of hep?

Send up th' jug!

I should'a knowed!

BEETLE BAILEY

MARTHA REALLY CHEWED ME OUT LAST NIGHT.

SHE SAID I WAS INSENSITIVE AND SELF-CENTERED AND DON'T PAY ATTENTION TO PEOPLE.

I'VE KNOWN YOU FOR 20 YEARS AND I'VE NEVER KNOWN OF YOUR WIFE TALKING TO YOU LIKE THAT!

MORE WALKER.

I'M NOT MARRIED.

PEANUTS

WHILE WE'RE OUT HERE WE REALLY SHOULD DO SOME BIRD WATCHING..

CONRAD WATCHES BILL, WHO WATCHES HARRIET, WHO WATCHES WOODSTOCK, WHO WATCHES OLIVIER, WHO WATCHES CONRAD!

HAHAHAHA!

BIRDS HAVE NO SENSE OF HUMOR.

DICK TRACY

YOU MUST LEAVE IMMEDIATELY-BEFORE MORE AMERICAN MILITIA ARRIVES!

YOU'RE RIGHT, OF COURSE-

BUT WE MUST KILL THE AMERICANS FIRST!

"IT WOULD BE WISE," SAYS THE RUSSIAN INSPECTOR, "TO ARRANGE FOR THEM... ACCIDENTAL DEATH..."

BLONDIE

TAKE A LOOK AT THE SOPHISTICATED DASHBOARD IN THIS LITTLE HONEY.

IT TELLS YOU EVERYTHING! EVERYTHING!!

IT TELLS YOU EVERYTHING EXCEPT HOW TO PAY FOR IT.

IT'S NOT THAT SOPHISTICATED YET.

WE'LL BE BACK WHEN IT IS.
