Shipments out of normal channels

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan's arms shipments to Iran were authorized in documents prepared outside the normal National Security Council channels used for the most secret U.S. operations abroad, according to knowledgeable White House sources

The sources said that the three security council officers assigned to prepare all presidential "findings" - documents authorizing secret U.S. efforts to influence events abroad - were never told about Reagan's January 1986 approval of the Iran security council official at the center of the Iranian operation, this disclosure adds new importance to the FBI's current effort to determine whether North shredded documents last weekend. It also raises questions about White House assurances that duplicates of all key documents are kept in systematic central files.

"The system wasn't followed," one of the sources said. Another added: "They bypassed the process; they went out of channels."

Speaking on condition of anonymity, one

Another source said that when the official in charge of the office, Kenneth E. deGraffenreid, heard rumors about the operation, he was "told not to ask about it."

The three officials in this security council office normally prepare and maintain records of the most closely held covert actions the government conducts, including such operations as the efforts to supply arms to rebels fighting Soviet troops in Afghanistan and the original approval of source said the three security council of- CIA aid to the Nicaraguan Contras in 1981 ficials responsible for findings never saw before that became public and a subject of

In other developments:

 Sources in Iran said as many as 20 planeloads of American weapons were delivered to Iran's fundamentalist Islamic government last May during a visit to Tehran by Robert McFarlane, President Reagan's former national security adviser. If the sources are correct, it suggests much larger arms shipments to Iran than previously reported. Attorney General Edwin Meese III has said that $12 million in weapons was sent to Iran and $10 million to $30 million was transferred from Iran to the Campaign at 67% of 1987 goal

By SCOTT FITZGERALD Staff Writer

The United Way of Big Spring/Howard County has reached two-thirds of the $215,000 goal in its annual fund raising campaign. Less than two weeks remain before the drive's Dec. 12 final deadline.

'We still have a certain amount of people who don't annually give, and we're trying to request their help," said Campaign Chairman Paul Petterson.

The organization's latest contribution figures show $144,354 has been pledged, 67 percent of the projected goal.

A recent boost have been collections amounting to $5,850 from all federal government employees in the county. Their divisional chairman is Tim Hall of The United States Department of Agriculture.

The Veterans Administration Center's employees gave the most in that particular division, $2,714.50. U.S. Postal employees were second, followed by the Federal Prison

Crisis results in Wright ascendancy

By JIM DRINKARD

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) Reagan administration's foreign policy crisis in Iran and Central America has hastened the emergence of Rep. Jim Wright as one of his party's most visible national leaders and an acerbic administration critic

More than a month before he officially is sworn in as speaker of the House, Wright has found himself already thrust informally into that position, at least when it pearances and commenting on revelations of covert administration policies.

Retiring speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. has been easing out of his job for weeks, spending time at home in Boston and wrapping up his affairs, and has left it to Wright to assume the leadership mantle. The Iran crisis has accelerated Wright's march to the forefront.

U.S. lacking support on SALT II action

States failed to win support from its allies for its decision to breach the SALT II nuclear arms treaty, and the Soviet Union on Saturday denounced the move as irresponsible.

West Germany and Britain didn't criticize the United States directly, but made it clear they did not welcome the development. France, Belgium, Sweden and the Netherlands said the decision was regrettable.

LONDON (AP) — The United were critical of the United States. On Friday, the U.S. Air Force deployed a B-52 bomber capable of carrying nuclear-tipped cruise missiles, while the Navy failed to retire an aging Poseidon missilefiring submarine. The United States thus exceeded the SALT II accord's combined limit of 1,320 on nuclear warheads carried by bombers and submarines.

The treaty was signed in 1979, but never ratified by the U.S. Senate. The United States has repeatedly said the Soviets have already surpassed the ceiling set by the treaty. The West German government should adhere to the agreed-upon upper limits on strategic weapons system," goverment spokesman Friedhelm Ost said in Bonn.

Studying Israeli farm techniques

By SCOTT ROTHSCHILD

Austin Bureau Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, who has taken his criticism of Reagan administration farm policies a step further by urging nations to bypass Washington D.C. on their way to market, may be getting his message across.

During a recent trip to Israel, the North Texan, wearing his standard cowboy hat, was described in a Jerusalem newspaper photograph as "in national costume." As expected, Hightower didn't walk in Israeli hotels. He strode. Imagine a country whose view of the Lone Star State is based on the television series Dallas and a visit from the quick-witted Hightower. Hightower and three staff members led a 40-member delegation of farmers and researchers to observe Israeli farm and marketing systems with an eye toward applying some of their advances on food production and water conservation to Texas.

Hightower said they went there thinking, 'What can we bring back that creates diversified agriculture industries here in Texas?" Back in the state capital last week after nearly two weeks abroad, Hightower, a Denison native, readjusted to the Austin pollen count and life after re-election. In his Stephen F. Austin building office,

Hightower said he admired the Israeli farm system for continually exploring new farming techniques and adapting to changing

"Because of its being a small country that had to feed itself, there wasn't an indigenous agricultural community. They had people that were more entrepreneurial, industrial and scientific in their backgrounds who came to Israel and brought that to farming," Hightower said.

"Generally speaking, it is an agriculture that is always looking 5, 10, 15 years down the road," he said

The Texans barnstorming through Israel visited a number of cooperative farms equipped with state-of-the-art drip irrigation systems and fish farms.

He said they visited a plant which converts manure and slaughterhouse waste into a substance that could be used as a substitute for peat — an attractive product to Texas nurserymen tired of high-priced Canadian peat, Hightower said. Hightower said the group also discussed with Israeli agriculture officials the possibility of resuming importation of Texas cattle embryos. Israeli importation of Texas cattle embryos dropped off after the U.S. Department of Agriculture, fearing the Director Sherrie Bordofske said earlier this month the depressed oil industry and flagging economy in West Texas was inhibiting the campaign drive.

Petterson said Saturday night that was still true, but campaign workers were trying to tap new resources

"Our whole problem is people can't give as they did in the past, so we're asking for other contributors to pitch in," Petterson said.

"If someone has been overlooked, we're asking for their help," he

Agencies such as The Red Cross which provided aid to Big Spring during August's torrential rainfall, The Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center and The Salvation Army are three particular agencies in dire need of funds, Petterson said.

The drive is designed to allow the United Way board allocate funding for agencies before they are allowed to conduct their own drives, Pet-

"They (other agencies) want to begin their own drives, but they can't until we give them permission to. We're still trying to get money for them through this method. One gift gives to all," Pet-terson said.

United Way has calculated this year's per capita contribution at $6.27. This compares to $9.45 per capita contribution a year ago.

Because of a lack of volunteers, many companies and employees have not been contacted personally. Petterson asks those persons who wish to give but have not been contacted to mail in their pledge or call the United Way office at 267-5201 export.

"We told them that embryo transplants do not carry blue tongue and that we would undergo any tests they needed to re-open that market," he said. He said the Israelis said they were willing to resume buying Texas cattle embryos, if the U.S.D.A. approved the initiative.

Hightower said, "Their perception of Texas is of this giant, oil rich state. They were surprised that we were asking for help.

Although admiring the Israeli farm system, Hightower said it would be a mistake, to think that Texas could or would want to copy it. Unlike Texas farms, most Israeli farms are governmentowned. "The realities of applying Israeli technology is much more complex than the technology itself," he said.

Hightower first became involved with Israel after winning office in 1982, when he, like many elected officials in the U.S., was invited to visit. "When I was invited I said I would like to do more than look at the war machine, shake hands with of slides," he said. After Hightower's 1984 visit and a reciprocal visit to Texas by Israeli Deputy Minister of Agriculure Abraham Katz-Oz, a sort of agriculturale give-and-take was formed

Destroyer now attracts

KALAPANA, Hawaii — A lava flow that destroyed nine homes a few days ago has become a visitor attraction as the 2,000-degree molten rock streams down to the Pacific, turning the water to steam and cooling into new land.

The waist-high flow poses no immediate threat to more homes, but is continuing to expand slowly near where it hit the sea Friday, said Tom Wright, scientist-in-charge of the U.S. Geological Survey's Hawaiian Volcano

On Friday, about 2,000 people trekked through heavy rain and strong wind to witness the geological process that over millions of years created the Hawaiian islands.

Kilauea Volcano's east rift zone, where a vent has been spewing about 6 cubic yards per second of lava since July 18, continued feeding the 7-mile-long flow Saturday with no sign it would be ending any time soon, said Wright.

Hazing to draw suits

CHARLESTON, S.C. — The NAACP and the family of a black student hazed by white cadets at The Citadel will file separate lawsuits against the military college, an official of the civil rights group says.

NAACP general counsel Grover Hankins and Karen Kennedy, attorney for the family of Kevin Nesmith, made the decision after meeting with local black leaders Friday, said Delbert Woods, president of the NAACP Charleston branch.

Five white cadets wearing white sheets and towels entered Nesmith's room shortly after midnight Oct. 23, chanted obscenities and left behind a burned paper cross, school officials

Allegations that The Citadel violated Nesmith's civil rights and failed to pursue its desegregation policy vigorously enough will be among the 14 grievances in the suit by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Woods said.

Opposition lawmakers from the New Korea Democratic party are blocked by riot police in front of party headquarters as they try to leave for a party-sponsored anti-government rally in Seoul Saturday. The rally was prevented, however, as police detained 675 people in clashes throughout the city.

Rally skirmish

Results in arrests, injuries

By K.C. HWANG

Associated Press Writer

SEOUL, South Korea — Riot police bent on foiling a major anti-government rally fired tear gas Saturday at thousands of protesters at two dozen sites in Seoul and arrested nearly 2,000 people. Injuries were reported.

Demonstrators flung stones and Molotov cocktails at police.

Lee Min-woo, president of the major opposition New Korea Democratic Party, warned if repression continues, the party will no longer seek change through dialogue and compromise, but will launch a campaign to overthrow the government.

The party organized the rally as part of its drive for direct presidential elections. Negotiations by a special parliamentary committee on the issue are stalled.

Opposition and government are deadlocked over efforts to draft a new constitution before President Chun Doo-hwan's term expires in 1988.

The government banned the Saturday rally, saying the opposition was trying to stir social unrest. About 70,000 police officers reportedly were deployed in the capital to enforce the ban.

The rally was to begin at 1 p.m. at a municipal park. Hours earlier, thousands of police set up barricades and sealed off the park. Police also were sent to the party's headquarters, foreign legations, government agencies and newspaper offices.

Crowds first gathered at three major intersections leading to the park. A group of about 20 opposition legislators tried to leave party headquarters for the park, but riot police turned them back.

Police repeatedly fired tear gas to disperse people who regrouped in alleys and tried to take the streets. Demonstrators retaliated by hurling stones and gasoline-filled bottles. Police responded with heavier

At one point, about 600 demonstrators carrying torches and placards surged out of a downtown shopping area and scattered leaflets denouncing the government. Most protests were crushed within minutes.

Two opposition lawmakers were among more than six people injured after being struck by tear gas cannisters, witnesses said.

By Associated Press Pipeline leak stopped

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP) — Engineers stopped a pipeline leak Saturday that halted production at four North Sea oilfields and caused a 10-square-mile oil slick. Occidental Petroleum, which operates three of the fields, said engineers pumped seawater into the faulty pipeline, 300 feet down. A weld crack caused the leak. The oil slick started breaking up Friday and an Occidental spokesman said Saturday it had dissipated significantly.

He said production, which stopped Thursday upon discovery of the leak, would remain halted until repairs were complete.

Chad displays 15 POWs

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast - Chad displayed 15 Libyan prisoners-of-war as living proof of Libya's aggression against the N'diamena government, the official state radio reported.

The broadcast, monitored Friday in Abidjan, said the 15 put on show at a public ceremony in the capital, N'djamena, were regular soldiers in the Libyan army.

President Hissene Habre's government has reported that fighting has erupted between Libyan soldiers and Chadian rebels led by Goukouni Oueddei.

Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi supported Goukouni's bid to overthrow Habre until October, when the guerrilla chief reportedly was wounded in a gun fight with Libyan troops in Tripoli. Goukouni supporters subsequently declared a truce with Habre.

Moscow dismisses suit

MOSCOW - A Moscow court has dismissed the lawsuit of an American who was brought to the Soviet Union when he was 2 years old and now is seeking to return to his homeland.

Kim Lewis, 33, had sued OVIR, the government agency that issues exit visas, charging it violated the Soviet constitution and the 1975 Helsinki accords on human rights by refusing his request to leave the country.

A lower court dismissed Lewis' suit in October. On Friday, a three-judge panel of the Moscow City Court deliberated for 512 minutes and ruled the lower court's decision should stand

Lewis, who works as a biologist and holds dual U.S.-Soviet citizenship, said the Moscow court's decision could not be appealed. He said he hoped the American Bar Association, a professional organization of U.S. lawyers, would intervene on his behalf.

"You can't fight the system — you can only leave it," Lewis said after the Moscow court announced its ruling. "But you can't leave it unless you fight it.

Politicans just miss the point

President Ronald Reagan obviously doesn't like to have his actions and motives questioned. That's why he's had an average of only one press conference every two months since he's been in office.

Is it any wonder he doesn't like press conferences when the press is so adept at pointing out his contradictions and administration falsehoods?

Obviously some people in his administration are lying about who knew what at the time the arms deals were made with Iran — either directly or through third parties. And just as obviously some have been lying to hide the covert actions that diverted funds to the Contras in Nicaragua.

We're not sure who did what. That's for Congress and the Justice Department to decide. But we do know that one major point remains to be emphasized to the President and all other

The American public can forgive mistakes and sins, but history has shown that dishonesty — particularly lies to hide those mistakes or sins — will not be tolerated.

That axiom even has been recognized by the television script writers who used a politician in one of the nighttime soap operas to mouth the same advice. In advising a newlyelected young senator, the character said, "The public can forgive sins, but the public won't forgive lying.'

Former President Nixon's attempts to hide his knowledge of the Watergate incidents is a recent prime example.

Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger had appropriate remarks when he was interviewed several times on network television. He advised that President Reagan and the administration officials involved should admit their mistakes, take their lumps and go on from there.

All rational people recognize that neither the President nor any other government official is infallible. Yet too many officials continue in attempts to hide mistakes as if they were infallible.

Although members of the public may not forget those mistakes, they can forgive and may even increase their respect for those individuals who quickly admit mistakes and act to rectify them.

Of course, none of us enjoy admitting mistakes. But learning to do so is a mark of maturity, and most successful business people have learned that lesson.

We just can't understand why professional politicians continue to fight it so strongly.

Reform preferred despite reasoning

"Are we saying that only the rich have brains in this country?" Sen. Barry Goldwater asked the other day. "Or only the people who have influential friends who have money can be in the Senate?'

Goldwater, never shy about asking the pertinent questions, is leaving the Senate at a time when the "stench of money" to use the words of Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo. — is more pervasive than ever. And maybe that's good, because Congress finally appears ready to make significant changes in the way election campaigns are financed.

Campaign reform now has the backing of congressional leaders, including Sen. Robert Byrd, the Democratic leader, and Rep. Tony Coelho of California, a candidate for Democratic whip.

It won't be easy. Current laws give political action committees tremendous leverage over Congress; no one expects them to relinquish their power without a fight. Legislators are reluctant to offend them.

The factor tilting lawmakers toward change, apparently, is an epidemic of "beggar's knee." Lawmakers have grown weary of the amount of time they spend on bended knee, soliciting campaign funds.

That may not be the highest of motives, but who's to quibble.

By JESSE TREVINO Leaders in the Texas Republican party have their signals crossed. Within six months, the same group that nominated an Hispanic for attorney general has endorsed a constitutional amendment to make English the country's official language.

The former was a milestone toward full inclusion of Hispanics in Texas society. The latter is a throwback to the dichotomy that has characterized Texas society for more than 150 years.

In supporting such an amendment, the GOP is aiding what it fears most: a separate Hispanic society. By its vote, the Republican State Executive Committee

My best bet has the average

Any group that feels threatened will gather more closely to fend off an attack. Mexican-Americans are no exception. The GOP endorsement of the amendment ironically and probably to the surprise of Republicans — re-enforces Mexican-American ethnicity

The new immigration bill does the same thing, and that is its major flaw. By forcing Mexican-Americans to prove their legal citizenship, the law may put them through an experience of discriminatioin that many have not known personally

These negative episodes can yield something Texas can't afford: younger Mexican-Americans growing up with a heightened sense of ethnicity

In a way, we are re-introducing into Texas the worst aspects of its cultural conflict, Mexican-Americans were relegated to a development separate from the rest of Texas society. That wasn't their choice then, and that isn't their choice today. It's a choice that's being hoisted on them by what may prove to be a bad immigration law, and by unwarranted attacks on their culture, such as the English Only proposal.

Hugo Berlanga, Texas House Speaker Pro Tem, correctly labelled the proposal "racist." And prominent Hispanic Republicans, such as San Antonio banker Cipriano Guerra, were appropriately 'dismayed.''

Hispanics are leading active, increasingly productive lives as U.S. citizens. They shouldn't have to tolerate this new raking of the racial coals.

English, not Spanish, is the language of this country. The vast majority of Hispanics recognize it as so. This will not change unless Hispanics feel compelled by self defense to seek to formally institutionalize Spanish.

That, of course, is the subtlety the Texas GOP evidently does not comprehend.

Fortunately, the Texas Constitution requires that an amendment must pass both houses with twothirds majority votes before it can be put on the ballot.

Billy Graham

A will helps, as does a peacemaker

By BILLY GRAHAM

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Our family has been at each other's throats since my mother died about a year ago, because she left no will concerning the disposal of her estate. I wish you would say something about the importance of people having a will - and thinking it through carefully before it is too late. - Mrs. K.J. DEAR MRS. K.J.: Yes, it certainly is important (especially in our complex society) to have a will, and to think through as much as possible all the practical problems that can arise through our death. Lawyers have told me how difficult it can be when a person dies without a will - and how often a person's real wishes cannot be fulfilled unless there is a valid will. It is, I am convinced, a responsibility God would have us accomplish, for without a will we can cause unnecessary conflict and tension. Many of the laws of the Old Testament dealt with the way property was to be inherited among the Israelites. I want to add two additional comments, however. The first is that you need to do whatever you can to lessen the conflict within your family. Things are not more important than people! Greed and covetousness can destroy a person and a family

Don't let that happen to you, but yield this whole problem to God and ask Him to help you be a peacemaker in your family. In addition, although it's important to prepare materially for death by having a will, remember that it is far more important to prepare spiritually for death. Someday we all will die - whether we try to avoid facing it or not.

When we do, it will be too late to turn to Christ and make our peace with God.

If you have never asked Christ to come into your life as your Lord and Savior, make your commitment to Him today. "I tell you, now is the time of God's favor, now is the day of salvation" (2 Corinthians 6:2).

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: It has been hard for me to adjust to my wife's death, although she was a strong believer in Christ and I have no doubt she is in heaven. I feel guilty about grieving so much, but I really worry about whether I will recognize her when I get to heaven.

DEAR F.L.: I have no doubt that we will recognize our loved ones in heaven. When his child died, King David said, "I will go to him" (2 Samuel 12:23). When Moses and Elijah returned from heaven and appeared with Jesus during the Transfiguration, they were recognized by the disciples (see Matthew 17:1-4)

At the same time, we need to remember that heaven is far more glorious than we can ever imagine. One way in which it is glorious is that our bodies will be changed, and we will be given new bodies that will not be subject to pain or illness or the ravages of old age.

Although we may not fully understand this, it is a wonderful truth that someday we will have bodies similar to Christ's resurrected body.

Does that mean we won't recognize each other in heaven? No for God will give us that ability, just as the disciples on the road to Emmaus had their eyes opened to recognize Christ after his resurrection (Luke 24:31). Don't feel quilty over your grief; the Bible does not say we will never mourn when we lose a loved one. But it does promise, "Blessed are those who mourn, for they will be comforted" (Matthew 5:4)

Take comfort from the knowledge that your wife is now beyond the reach of pain and suffering, and is safe with Christ. Yes, the believer will grieve, but we are not "to grieve like the rest of men, who have no hope" (1 Thessalonians 4:13)

Ask God also to help you reach out to others and to help others who are in some kind of need. God wants to use you to help them, and in the process your grief will begin SEARCY, Ark. (AP) - Sam Walton, rated by Forbes magazine as the richest man in the United States, says he created a $3.6 million scholarship fund so Central American students can learn about free enterprise.

Walton, chairman of the Wal-Mart discount store chain, also said he hopes to demonstrate to young Central Americans that democracy is better than communism.

Walton said he wanted to "let them know what we have in the United States - how many good things are achievable here through work and through our democratic system of government under free enterprise.'

The program has been established at three Arkansas schools, Harding University, College of the Ozarks and John Brown University.

Since the program began last year, 100 students from Central American countries have enrolled, and about 20 students a year will be added indefinitely, Walton said.

Basketball teams in new district

Basketball is well underway in Stanton for the Lady Buffs, as they play their first home game against the Klondike Cougars. The Varsity will be stronger this year under second year Coach Stuart Beckwith. Six lettermen return from last year under the new system, and depth will be to their advantage as they compete in their new district, 6AA.

Members include seniors JoAnn Almager, Kara Havens, Pam Tom and Lori Webb; juniors Jody Brandenberger, Jena Miller, Regina Newkirk, Kody Newman and Julie Wheeler; and sophomores Kaki Elmore and Kelli Glaspie.

The J.V. team, coached by Wilma Stirl, will include sophomores Heather Colburn, Christy Cox, Rhonda Davis, Karen Graves, Kerri Kirby, and Stacie Tom; and freshmen Courtney Duke, Patricia Gillum, Jana Heidelberg, Stacy Long, Jackie Quaid, Kelly Schoolcraft, April Schuette and Christian Woodruff.

"I amm excited about the upcoming year. The kids have been working hard and they are ready to play. It will be hard to establish ourselves in such a large district, but with our size and depth, I feel we can be competitive." says Coach Beckwith.

Officials mull rest areas' redesign

AUSTIN (AP)— State officials, concerned about vandalism and homosexual loitering at highway rest areas, have asked University of Texas professors to help improve the design of the roadside stops.

Officials say the rest areas are generally safe, but two recent Central Texas incidents have led some law enforcement officials to issue warnings about the stops

"It's a shame, but I wouldn't recommend a family to stop there. Late at night, I would probably declare them dangerous," said Round Rock Police Chief Wes Wolff.

"The bathroom area seems to be the worst area," Wolff said, recommending that people use service station restrooms instead.

Earlier this month, an Austin businessman was murdered when his car was set afire at an Interstate 35 rest stop near Kyle, south of Austin. Police said the man had been sodomized before he died and had had his hands bound behind his back.

In October, at an I-35 rest area near Round Rock, north of Austin, one man shot another in what police say was self-defense. Police believe the shooting occurred after one man solicited sex from another.

Like ol' days wagon train stirs folks

AUSTIN (AP) — Just like in the Old West, news that a wagon train was outside town and headin' this way caused a stir among the lawmen. The wagons were not carrying bags of payroll money, and the folks manning the wagons were not bank robbers or cattle rustlers.

But they were outlaws, albeit it in a relatively small way. The wagon master had failed to lasso an Austin city parade permit.

"They did not contact us, they did not get a parade permit," Austin police spokesman C.F. Adams said Friday as a stagecoach, two covered wagons and a carriage with a fringed top rolled west on Texas 71 from Garfield, heading for downtown Austin.

Seven horseback riders brought up the side and rear.
"If there's no traffic hazard, I doubt we would do anything," Adams said.

The old-fashioned caravan is the remnants of the 1986 Lone Star Wagon Train, a Sesquicentennial event that left Weatherford in Central Texas on July 6, just as the more widely known Texas Sesquicentennial Wagon

Train was ending its six-month, 3,000-mile journey in Fort Worth. Odessa auto dealer left standing FRANKLIN, Tenn. (AP) — A Chattanooga man who was test driving a $46,000 luxury automobile left an Odessa car dealer standing on a curb in Texas while he drove to Tennessee, authorities said.

Tennessee State Trooper Brent Gobble said Donald W. Mosely, 28, was charged with receiving and concealing stolen property after he was stopped on Interstate 65 near Franklin on Thursday. Mosely was also charged with speeding and driving without a license, Mosely was also charged with speeding and driving without a license, Gobble said.

"I understand he was test driving the car Monday in Odessa, Texas," the trooper said. "The dealer said he had been driving the car and got out to let the shopper drive and he drove away."

Mosely was being held in lieu of $2,750 bond in the Williamson County Jail. He is scheduled to appear in General Sessions Court Dec. 3.

Visitors viewing Texas classrooms

PORT ARTHUR (AP) — A delegation of Japanese educators spent two days this week peeking into Port Arthur classes and marveling at the district's computer instruction.

"We had heard that your schools excelled in computer education," spokesman Kyoji Akiyama said last week as the group from Osaka, Japan, toured computer classes in the Summit program at Lincoln High School.

Summit, Port Arthur's magnet school program, is one of the reasons the Japanese picked the district for their only stop in the United States, Akiyama said. The group also visited schools in the Canadian province of British Columbia

In addition to classes in computer use and programming, Lincoln also offers courses in repair and robotics.

"This class repairs all the computers used throughout the district," Superintendent Joe Pitts said.

The group of 24 met a couple of small robots built and programmed by students. One of the robots wheeled up to the delegation and waved a mechanical hand.

"Everywhere I go people look at me," the robot said. "It must be because I'm so short."

Most of the delegates could not speak English, but had no trouble getting along with students. They took turns photographing each other with Ryan Sallier, a 6-8 basketball player.

Since July, she has worked with Sister Marie Kenneally to find prospective candidates for the Houston-based Sisters of Charity of the Incarnate Word. Ms. Fontana said she recently attended a state Catholic vocation council meeting in Austin and was the only lay person there.

"I found everybody was really supportive of what we were trying to do, but I think a lot of them ae wondering how I can represent sisters," Ms. Fontana said.

"She's doing really well. It is unusual," Sister Marie said.
The nun, who heads the Sisters of Charity vocational office, decided to hire Ms. Fontana instead of choosing from 364 women in the order because she said she wanted an associate director with broad experience.

"I knew religious life very well but I didn't have experience with married and family life," she said.

The order counsels not only prospective nuns but also the laity, she

"We help people find a vocation in life," Sister Marie said.

Ms. Fontana said she considered becoming a nun and spent a week with marrying her husband, Francis, in 1981.

These Amoco mules' jobs mowed by sour economy

TEXAS CITY (AP) — The Amoco Gas Co., faced with a cost-cutting program, reluctantly laid off five mules that had pulled mowers at its refinery grounds for years, officials said.

The refinery workers will miss seeing the mules, a sight at the refinery for more than a half century, but mechanical mowers and chemicals that control weed growth are cheaper, said Ray Thompson, the refinery's public affairs coordinator.

"Our objective is to squeeze every bit of product out of every barrel of crude and we are also trying to squeeze the most out of dollars because the times are tough," he said.

Terry Newman, who owned the mules as part of an equipment rental company, said he had to sell the animals after Amoco ended the mowing service Nov. 14. Two mule drivers also were laid off, he said. The mules had been on the job for eight to 10 years and the workers 12 to 15 years, Newman said. Two teams of mules were hooked up to the mowers while one was held in reserve, he said.

Amoco began using mules in the 1930s when the animals towed materials in assembling the Texas City plant.

After the refinery opration began up, Newman's father, T.A. Newman, the contractor who supplied the mules for construction work, began cutting grass in the tank farm with mule-drawn mowers.

Traveling wall is able to move its visitors who died in Vietnam from 1959 to 1975. Their reactions to the traveling memorial become memorials themselves.

One man stood at attention 100 yards away, spurning the widely embracing arms of the low, black wall for eight hours. He left without moving close enough to read any of the names.

Another veteran confronted the wall alone in the predawn hours, finally collapsing at its base.

A young Civil Air Patrol volunteer offered hot coffee and a willing ear. The veteran handed the boy a carefully folded American flag, then was gone.

Leonard McCauley of Tulsa, zipped into arctic survival gear against a bone-chilling cold at dawn Friday, came to visit the wall and became a volunteer "Israel has their Wailing Wall. We have ours. I never understood the Wailing Wall before.

The black Plexiglas panels of The Moving Wall were erected in Boulder Park south of downtown Tulsa Nov. 21. The 250-foot-long traveling exhibit moves on Sunday, continuing a tour of the country begun in 1984.

No one has kept a close count of the number of visitors at The Moving Wall in Tulsa, but a guest registry manned by volunteers from Oklahoma veterans' groups is filled with names from dozens of Oklahoma towns and surrounding states.

On Thanksgiving afternoon, as many as 300 people an hour came to move quietly down the wall. At dawn Friday, a half-dozen people braved the feetnumbing cold. Some said they chose the quieter time in the early light, to take their time with the wall, to read the messages left there by visitors. "The chills you feel won't be from the cold," McCauley tells a visitor, his breath hanging like fog in the frigid air.

Flags, flowers and messages festoon the wall. Some of the notes are short. None is simple.

"Philip. Love you. John," reads one message.
"My dear son, James M. Ray. Love, Dad." says another.

Neatly folded fatigues nestle at the foot of the wall. Dozens of unit patches, battle ribbons, a framed Army commendation medal are there.

'Remembering you as the boy I shared school days with. You would be 37 today. God bless your family," says a note signed "Carol."

A cross-shaped section of cellophane tape attaches a sodden note about "Richard Blake. Age 19."

"Everyone called him "Lefty," even his mom. He was a great baseball player and had more girlfriends than he needed. All his friends still miss him.'

A yellowed newspaper clipping taped to the wall is headlined "Child is born to widow of combat veteran. A note farther down the wall says, "I'm so proud of you Daddy. I love you.' "You have two grandchildren," another of the names on the wall is told. A poem "to George" concludes, "Yet the warriors. have pride. For these heroes of ours that peer from this wall, to see us, their brothers." It is signed "A survivor."

Single men wearing tailored overcoats, two young women in jogging suits with flushed cheeks, a woman and a little boy, an elderly couple, all linger at the wall, attempting to comprehend it. Two tall men in their 30s stay a long time, carefully scraping frost away from one name, then another, immersed in the sea of names on the wall.

A volunteer serving a six-hour shift on the wall borrows a pen to write down the names of men surrounding that of one of his buddies. He thinks they may have all been aboard one helicopter and retires to a roster of names inside a nearby Army tent to find

The sun is higher now, streaming through the auburn leaves of a tree that spreads behind a nearby baseball backstop. A squadron of crows flies silently overhead. The noise of morning traffic is beginning to pick up, obscuring the silky rustle of the flags and the sniffles of those who attend the wall.

The air is filled with the sparkle of ice crystals loosened from the fringes of the flags by a warming

"Is there anyone in particular we can help you find?" a uniformed volunteer asks new visitors. Most shake their heads no.

LOS ANGELES — It looked like a movie: the er leaning out his car window, firing a gun at five aths during an argument over right-of-way in the heavy Saturday night traffic that clogs Hollywood Boulevard.

But the 9mm semi-automatic was real, and when the shooting stopped Nov. 15, 17-year-old Andrew Martinez was dying and 19-year-old Samuel Solis was wounded in the leg.

"One witness said they all thought it was a joke. It just didn't seem legitimate that someone would open fire in the middle of the street," said police Lt. Ed

The motive, he concluded this week as the gunman remained at large, was "strictly ... traffic tempers."

Authorities in Southern California have become aware of many incidents in which driver behavior has broken down, ranging from discourtesy to murder. Although extraordinary violence is still rare, officials are warning motorists to avoid confrontations, particularly on clogged streets where tempers flare hottest.

Police Chief Daryl F. Gates recently unleashed a blast at traffic managers, comparing congestion to a "catastrophic flood" and saying the situation was creating "an undisciplined group of drivers and

In February, two bullets hit a city bus 10 blocks past an intersection where it had swerved to avoid a car. The case was never solved, but police said the near-collision seemed the motive.

On Aug. 22, Patricia Dwyer was killed by a shotgun blast fired at the van in which she and her husband were rushing their son to a hospital. Michael Dwyer said he flashed the van's headlights at a car that pulled in front of him on the Riverside Freeway east of Los Angeles and slowed down. A 26-year-old airconditioning installer has pleaded innocent to a Police don't keep statistics on traffic violence, but have seen some patterns.

"Most of our accidents involving fights are relatively minor in nature, and usually the fight is contained to a verbal argument or some pushing," said Sgt. Mark Lunn, spokesman for the Los Angeles headquarters of the state highway patrol.

Minor rather than major accidents are more likely to trigger fights, he said, and they are likelier during rush hour in a congested urban area than out on a highway. Temperature also changes temperament. 'We find an awful lot of argumentative confrontations that take place in heat," Lunn said. Robert Yates, who oversees city traffic control officers, said that "we're seeing a lot of gridlock, therefore you see a lot of trustrated drivers, a tremendous change in courtesy."

Jackson suggested there is enough risk to make a point of avoiding confrontations.

"It's just not worth it," he said. "First of all, their car's dangerous enough, let alone (their) having a

Scott Fraser, a professor of psychology at the University of Southern California who studies aggression, says the behavior of most people changes when they drive. "We're not suggesting that everybody who gets behind the wheel goes crazy," he said. "But you sure have a major alteration in a lot of individuals in terms of their sense of control, power, and the way in which they interact with others.

For example, he said, when drivers speed up and prevent another car from merging, "they are engaged in displays of power and control."

"But the person who never picks out guns and shoots them is not going to go and find a gun and blow people away when they get in a car altercation. And a person who slugs people but doesn't go around shooting also isn't going to do that," he said.

Fraser doesn't predict the unraveling of society because of uncivil drivers, but he is concerned about the level of tolerance of such behavior.

"I would say this kind of behavior in the 20th century is just a precursor for more trouble down the

An unidentified woman swings a pipe-shaped object at a man, also unidentified, after a disagreement between the two drivers turned to an altercation recently in the North Hollywood section of Los Angeles. The woman later was arrested but police released no other information about the incident. Increasing numbers of Cambodians are using a new-found water route, paying their way on fishing vessels in hopes of joining relatives in the West.

Tens of thousands of Cambodians have trekked to Thailand by foot since 1979, but boat arrivals were virtually unheard of until recently. Now, they are making the safer, shorter sea journey. Every few days now, small boatloads of them land on the coconut tree-fringed shores of this and other fishing communities on Thailand's east coast, not far from Cambodian shores The new exodus comes as the once-massive influx of Vietnamese boat refugees has slowed. It could saddle Thailand, however, with yet another group of Indochinese whom Western countries most likely would be very reluctant to take. While still small, the number of Cambodian boat arrivals has increased rapidly and there is clear potential for a substantial future influx as the sea route becomes better known. According to the Thailand office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, 452 Cambodians arrived by boat in the first 10 months of this year, up from 260 in all of 1985 and 149 in 1984. The number smuggled in and not registered with authorities is believed to be much higher. Most Cambodians come in fishing boats that apparantly go back and forth on trips that usually take only a few hours and hug the coastline.

The Cambodians land only on the east coast and nowhere else in Thailand or neighboring countries;

they thus avoid the high seas and the pirates who attack Vietnamese crossing the Gulf of Thailand or the South China Sea.

The land route takes days, crosses war zones, and has become riskier as Vietnamese forces in Cambodia increase security near the Thai border.

Those who go by foot are mostly peasants from northwestern Cambodia fleeing food shortages and the 8-year-old war between Cambodian guerrillas and Vietnamese troops occupying the country.

Although some are fishermen, laborers and peasants, many boat people are middle-class ethnic Chinese from the southern provinces. Many of their families were split by the war and the four years of brutal communist Khmer Rouge revolution that

Thai and Western aid officials say that in addition to the ethnic Chinese, many are Khmer Krom, Cambodians born in Vietnam's southern Mekong Delta. Others come from among 20,000 Cambodian refugees staying in U.N.-assisted camps in southern Vietnam, according to a senior refugee-aid official who spoke only on condition of anonymity.

Many speak Vietnamese and travel in the same boats with Vietnamese refugees whom organizers transport overland from Vietnam to a Cambodian port for the departure.

Favored points of departure, aid officials say, are the major southern seaport of Kompongsom and the island of Koh Kong, a former Thai territory which retains strong ties with eastern Thailand.

Most land in Trat Province, between Klong Yai and the provincial town also called Trat. Klong Yai is only about 15 miles from Koh Kong.

Little is known about the boat organizers, but many appear to be Koh Kong natives or other groups who know both countries well.

A refugee cooks a meal outside a United Nations-assisted detention center at Klong Yai, along Thailand's eastern coast. On the container behind him, another refugee has inscribed the dates of his arrival at the camp, and his departure for the Phanat Nikhom camp near Bangkok, where refugees await resettlement abroad.

Sweetwater exits from playoffs

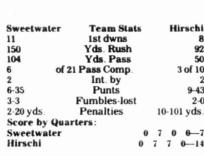

By STEVE BELVIN

Sports Editor SWEETWATER - For the Sweetwater Mustangs it was a tough way to end the season? Winning the battle but losing the war is exactly what the defending state champs did as they dropped a 14-7 area playoff decision to the Wichita Falls Hirschi Huskies Saturday afternoon in Mustang Bowl.

The Mustangs, who ended the season with a 10-2 record, visibly won the war on the gridiron, but lost it where it counts - the scoreboard. Sweetwater ammassed 254 yards total offense, and the defense, led by end Rone Reed, held the speedy Huskies to 142 total

It was a combination of many things that led to the Mustangs' downfall. Their problems ranged from a sprained ankle by starting 2-20 yds. quarterback Chris Davis to five turnovers, including a fumble at the Hirschi one yardline.

The fumble at the one was the most damaging error. It came the one. Unfortunately for the right after the Huskies had scored their first touchdown in the second play, and backup Larry Healer quarter. Sweetwater's threat was set up by a beautiful 73-yard run by Davis, who twisted and turned to the snap from center and the

With time running out in the first half, Davis came back into the game with Sweetwater facing a third and 10 from the Hirschi 40. Under a fierce rush, the gutsy senior connected with sophomore receiver Kenneth Norman for a 19-yard gain.

Two plays later he found Norman tage of the Herron's theft. Three on a post pattern for a 21-yard plays later quarterback Keith score. Lee Morris' PAT tied the Stevenson scrambled away from contest with 1:11 left in the half.

Hirschi's defense did better in the second half, limiting the Mustangs to 77 yards. At times it seemed Hirschi was out of place on defense, but its great quickness helped it recover, preventing the big play.

The third quarter was a comedy of turnovers. The two teams committed four turnovers in six possessions. Elmer Green and Healer SWEETWATER page 2B

Eudy named Coach of Year in District 2-4A

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Editor

It was a very good year in District 2-4A for coach Quinn Eudy and his Big Spring Steers football team, exemplified by Eudy being named Coach of the Year and the Steers capturing seven spots on the all-district first team.

In their first year in District 2-4A, Eudy guided his troops to the district championship with an undefeated 8-0 record. It was Big ship in 33 seasons. The Steers equalled the school record for the most wins in a saason. Big Spring was defeated 26-17 by Hereford in bi-district play. The Steers ended the season with a 9-2 record.

Ironically, district runner-up Sweetwater placed 10 players on the first unit. Third place finisher Monahans placed four players on the first team.

He was also the team's second leading receiver with nine receptions for a 17.3 average. In addition he returned one punt for a touchdown while averaging 12.5 yards per return.

ing's leading scorer, scoring 13 touchdowns and three two-point conversions

Mayfield led the Big Spring secondary with six interceptions, second in the district. He was a unanimous selection at punter, where he shared duties with John Olsen. Mayfield averaged 43.2 yards per punt and had a 72-yarder against Hereford in the bi-district offensive line. The 190-pound junior helped clear the way for Big Spring to 295 yards total offense per game. He was the only junior starter on the offensive line. Defensively, noseguard Todd Coker and tackle Jay Burcham were first team linemen. Coker, who played with nagging injuries all season, was the team's fourth leading tackler with 64 stops. Bur-

Texas gives Akers his walking papers

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas footballcoach Fred Akers, whose 1986 team struggled through the Southwest Conference school's first losing season in 30 years, was fired Saturday after 10 years at the helm.

Akers, who had five years left on a $91,600-a-year contract, "has given the University of Texas 10 good years of football," Athletic Director DeLoss Dodds said after meeting with UT's Athletics

"However, sometimes it simply becomes necessary to make such a change to inject new energy and new leadership at the top of the organization," Dodds said at a news conference. After several superlative seasons, Texas under Akers had slipped to 14-14 over the past 212 years and was 5-6 this season. Akers' bowl record, a sore point with alumni, was 2-7.

Dodds said Akers would be reassigned to other duties at the university that had not yet been determined. A national search for a new coach would begin immediately, he said. Akers had replaced the successful and well-liked Darrell Royal, who coached 20 years and resigned after the 1976 season. Dodds said he assumed Royal would join the committee to select Akers' successor.

Dodds refused, despite persistent questioning, to specify what brought on Akers' dismissal Akers' 86-31-2 record at Texas to other programs."

gave him a winning percentage of just under 74.0, and Arkansas Coach Ken Hatfield said, "I don't know any other coach in America that's ever been fired with a 74 percent won-loss record.'

Akers appeared upbeat to the end: He taped his weekly television show, on the 16-3 loss to Texas A&M on Thanksgiving, Saturday before going to his office and greeting reporters with a smile. His job security was not mentioned on the show, said host Steve Ross.

UT Sports Information Director Bill Little said Akers, on learning of his dismissal at an office offcampus, displayed "the same class he has operated with since he's been here. Obviously, he was not Dodds said his recommendation concerning Akers has been reviewed and supported by UT president William Cunningham.

"I believe this recommendation is in the best interest of the university and I support this change in our football program," Cunningham said.

Athletics Council chairman L.O. "Tom" Morgan said his panel recognizes "the many positive contributions that Coach Akers has made, but the council supports the change and I personally look forward to a revitalized football program in the future.

Athletics Council member Richard omo said, "He's a very fine coach. He should be attractive Texas men's athletic director Deloss Dodds talks with reporters following his announcement Saturday of the firing of head football coach Fred Akers by the athletic council.

Romo, too, was asked what led to the firing, and he said, "I'm not at liberty to tell you. I can only say there were a lot of concerns voiced by the media and everybody else."

Akers' Longhorn teams won SWC championships in 1977 and 1983, and played in three Cotton Bowls, losing to Notre Dame and Georgia and defeating Alabama.

Rice sends Yeoman out with loss

HOUSTON (AP) — The game belonged to Quentis Roper and the Rice Owls for a comeback 14-13 victory, but the day went to Houston's Bill Yeoman, who stepped down as head coach after 25 seasons as the Cougars' innovative head coach.

Roper turned Yeoman's final game into a nightmare over the final 5:36 when he ran 7 yards for a touchdown and passed 11 yards to Darrell Goolsby with 18 seconds left to go

Freshman Glenn Ray Hines kicked the deciding extra point, giving Yeoman his first winless Southwest Conference record ever, 0-8.

While the Owls celebrated their comeback victory, Yeoman remained on the field to hear himself praised by school officials, former players and fans. He remained dry-eyed throughout the ceremony and thanked everyone from his family to his players. "For you teary-eyed people, I'm sorry, I'm not," Yeoman said. "Never has it been more important for alumni, students and players to get together. Yeoman remained staunch in a somber

"It's no different today," he said. "Necessity doesn't give you time to stroke your chin and think about it. I've had enough Cotton Bowls, East-West games and Hula Bowls to stroke my Cougar captain Robby Brezina told Yeoman. "It hasn't been the most pleasant year, but without you, coach, and your presence, it could have been even worse.' Rice lost to Baylor on the final play of the game two weeks ago and defeated Air Force 21-17 last week after trailing 10-0 at the half. Roper thought the Owls could come back again.

"I knew that we were deep enough in their territory that we could win it with the time left if we executed," Roper said. "Then when we got inside the 20, I knew we could score. It was the best timing we've had on tha play all year.' Rice Coach Jerry Berndt said, "We believe to give the Cougars a 13-0 lead prior to Rice's 'It makes it tough to lose after being in control," Ramsey said. "It's hard. We wanted to end the season with a win and have something to come back on. Now it's a reminder. We don't want to have another season like that

Auburn turns Tide, 21-17

By The Associated Press Auburn Coach Pat Dye won't have to spend the next 364 days explaining what went wrong, due in part to his inability to remember the name of a wide reciever.

That was Saturday's bizarre development in the waning seconds of another bizarre Auburn-Alabama game.

Dye, who had taken a whole year of ribbing for calling the wrong play in a heartbeaking loss to the Crimson Tide in 1984, called the right play Saturday as No. 14 Auburn knocked No. 7 Alabama out of the Sugar Bowl 21-17. But but this time the wrong player ran it.

Sophomore wide receiver Lawyer Tillman, on his first collegiate carry, scored from 7 yards out on a double reverse with 32 seconds remaining on what Dye said was "the only play I called all

Scott Bolton, who was on the sidelines, was supposed to run the play.

"I couldn't think of his name," Dye said. "I kept saying, 'I want my wide receiver, I want my wide receiver.

Tillman, who had run the play in practice, saw what was happening and tried to call time, but failed. Tailback Tim Jessie, going right, gave the ball to Tillman going the other way. He was hit just as he crossed the goal line for the winning touchdown.

In other games involving ranked teams, it was Notre Dame 38, No. 17 Southern Cal 37, and No. 18 Georgia 31, Georgia Tech 24. No. 5, Sugar Bowl-bound LSU, hosted Tulane in a night game, and No. 12

Arizona played Stanford in Tokyo. Dye disdained a chip-shot field goal on fourth-and-goal at the Alabama 1 in the waning minutes two years ago. Auburn failed to score, lost 17-15 and missed out on a Sugar Bowl trip. Alabama won last year 25-23 on Van Tiffin's 52-yard field goal as time ran out.

"I know I'll be hearing a lot of 'War Eagles' (Auburn's war cry) for the next 364 days but I'll just swallow it and go along," Alabama Coach Ray Perkins said.

Dye was going to Texas as head coach, that he had marital problems, that he wasn't taking the rivalry seriously enough), this was certainly the sweetest win ever for me," Dye said.

Brent Fullwood, who carried 21 times for 145 yards, scored his second touchdown of the game by running 26 yards on the first play of the final period to cap a 79-yard drive and cut Alabama's lead to

The Tigers marched 67 yards in 11 plays for their winning score after receiving a punt with 4:54 left. The drive included Trey Gainous' diving fourth-down catch of Jeff Burger's 9-yard pass at the Alabama 40 and a 20-yard run by Fullwood on the next play.

"It was an absolutely great play," Perkins said of Gainous' reception. "Burger puts the ball where he has to and Gainous makes a great catch. (Cornerback Freddie) Robinson had it covered."

The victory left Alabama with a 9-3 regular-season record but 4-2 in the Southeastern Conference. Fifth-ranked LSU won the title with a 5-1 mark and will face Nebraska in the Sugar Bowl. Alabama settled for a Sun Bowl date against Washington. Auburn, 9-2 overall and 4-2 in the SEC, is going to the Citrus Bowl to meet Southern Cal.

Notre Dame 38, Southern Cal 37 Notre Dame, on the strength of four passes for touchdowns and a pair for two-point conversions by quarterback Steve Beuerlein, and a 19-yard field goal by John Carney time expired, rallied from a 17-point fourth-quarter deficit.

Tim Brown returned a Southern Cal punt 56 yards to the Trojan 16-yard line with 2:15 remaining to set up Carney's winning kick.

Trailing 37-20 early in the final period, Beuerlein rallied the Irish, 6-5, on touchdown passes of 42 yards to Milt Jackson and 5 yards to Braxston Banks. He hit a twopoint conversion throw to Andy Heck following Banks' score with 4:24 remaining.

"I just knew that we were going 'With all the talk this week (that to rise to the occasion," Beuerlein Auburn's Brent Fullwood (22) is given a high tackle by Alabama's Greg Gilbert (56) as Steve Wilson (31) pursures. The action took place n the first quarter Saturday afternoon.

"We kept fighting and fighting and we finally won the close one.

The victory was Notre Dame's fourth in as many years over intersectional rival Southern Cal. The Citrus Bowl-bound Trojans finished the regular season 7-4.

The Trojans got three field goals from Don Shafer, including a school and Pacific-10 record 60-yarder on the final play of the first half.

Among Southern Cal's

terception return by cornerback

No. 18 Georgia 31, Georgia Tech 24 Georgia's Lars Tate, who rushed for 154 yards and three touchdowns, scored on a 5-yard run with 4:38 remaining to lead the Bulldogs. Georgia, 8-3, is headed for the Hall of Fame Bowl, where it will meet Boston College.

Tate's game-winning run capped a 10-play, 85-yard drive that completed Georgia's comeback from a touchdowns was a 58-yard in- also scored on runs of 4 and 8 goal yards, and the other Bulldog touchdown came on James Jackson's 20-yard pass to Nathaniel Lewis.

"There were many chances where we could have folded, but we were able to hang in there, keeping fighting and find a way to win in the fourth quarter," Goergia Coach Vince Dooley said.

The Georgia comeback began when Steve Crumley forged a 24-24 24-21 deficit in the final period. He tie with 10:10 left on a 39-yard field

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — Sam Houston State Coach Ron Randleman sat at the end of the conference table answering routine questions about his team's 48-7 loss to Arkansas State in the first round of the NCAA Division I-AA playoff Saturday.

Eventually, someone asked about ASU and Nevada-Reno. Randleman's Bearkats started the season with a 35-7 loss at Nevada-Reno, the topranked team in I-AA. ASU is No.

"They're both fine, fine football teams," he said. "Offensively, they have good skill position people and Arkansas State may have a little more quickness. Defensively, Arkansas State may be a little better.

"It would be a whale of a ball game," Randleman said. ASU and Nevada Rend are in separate halves of the playoff Moments after Randleman

Tinished. ASU Coach Larry Lacewell took his place and said he felt Saturday's game was typical of a wishbone team going against an opponent that had not seen the offense. ASU made 26 first downs, 455 yards rushing and 594 yards against the Bearkats. Sam Houston State managed nine first downs and netted 150 yards.

'Our defensive football team, other than the one drive, dominated the game," Lacewell said. "It was hard for them to keep our offensive team off the SAM HOUSTON page 3B

trouble with police

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) Th Miami football team's offfield troubles are continuing, with star receiver Michael Irvin and a teammate involved in unrelated police incidents, The Miami Herald reported Saturday.

Irvin allegedly ran over the feet of two law students after a campus argument, but did not seriously injure them. Reserve tight end Brian Smith was named as a suspect in a campus dormitory burglary and has been dropped from the team.

Neither Irvin nor Smith has been formally charged, but both were named as suspects in police reports, the Herald said.

Both incidents occurred Monday, two days before university president Tad Foote released a report expressing the hope that the team's legal problems were behind it.

On Saturday a university sports department spokesman said the players had the weekend off.

"Michael has not been charged with anything," said spokesman Karl Schmitt. "He is unavailable for comment at this Smith "was dismissed from the team this past Wednesday for disciplinary reasons," said Schmitt. "Coach (Jimmy) Johnson would not elaborate.'

Irvin, a sophomore who broke the team touchdown receiving record with his 11th reception against East Carolina on Thanksgiving, allegedly backed into the two students because they apparently were blocking part of a campus road, the Herald reported.

Law student Steven Naturman said he and two fellow students were standing in the road when Irvin drove by and honked his horn. When the students yelled back, Irving allegedly said "I'll just run you over," according to a police report.

The car then backed up and ran over the toes of Naturman's two friends, Geoff Marks and Jorge L. Lopez, but neither was seriously injured and both refused medical treatment, the newspaper said.

"You've got my license number. My name's Michael Irvin," Naturman quoted the driver as saying when he drove

Earlier in the season, Irvin was involved in another incident with campus police at the scene of an auto accident. Police said Irvin became abusive and refused to leave even though his car was blocking traffic.

The Herald said that when a reporter called to ask about the cases, Johnson hung up as soon as Irvin's name was mentioned.

Hurricane players in Zoeller wins big in Skins Game

LA QUINTA, Calif. (AP) — Fuzzy Zoeller won the most money but Lee Trevino created the most excitement Saturday in golf's Skins

Trevino holed out a wedge shot for an eagle-2 on the 347-yard seventh hole of the PGA West course and collected $55,000.

"There's no luck involved in that, folks. I've been working on that shot for 47 years," Trevino laughed.

'You expect great shots when you get the greatest players in the world," Zoeller said of Trevino's eagle. "Well, you just saw one."

Trevino also stroked a 5-iron to within two inches of the cup on the third hole, but failed to win the hole when Jack Nicklaus tied him by sinking a birdie putt of about 15

"Jack broke my heart back there on the third," Trevino said after holing out the wedge shot on the

"Now, if Fuzzy makes this shot (his approach on the seventh), I'm just going to jump in the lake.

Zoeller didn't match the eagle and Trevino got the skin. Each of the first six holes was worth $15,000 to the golfer who could win it outright, with $25,000 for each of the next six and $35,000 for each of the last six. If there is no winner on a hole, the prize money is carried over to the next hole. Zoeller, who won a record $255,900 in his first Skins Game appearance last year, won $60,000 when he dropped an eight-foot birdie putt on the fourth hole.

Arnold Palmer, at 57 the oldest of the four Skins Game players, rapped in a birdie putt of about eight feet for a $25,000 payoff on the eighth hole.

Nicklaus, the current Masters champion, made two birdies in the bright, warm, sunny weather, but didn't win a skin and, consequently, no money.

"I played pretty well, really, but I just didn't get a Skin," he said. With $25,000 carried over from the ninth hole, another $310,000 will be up for grabs over the final nine holes Sunday.

Fuzzy Zoeller of New Albany, Indiana raises his arms in victory after making the putt on the fourth hole to win $60,000 during the Skins Game.

He called it "kind of a matterof-fact" victory. He said the Bearkats' passing statistics four out of 22 for 53 yards reflected ASU's pass rush.

Randleman said he was surprised by the Indians' passing and was very impressed with quarterback Dwane Brown

"They throw much better than we expected from a wishbone team," Randleman said.

Brown completed seven of 11 for 145 yards and one touchdown. We needed to pass, Lacewell said. "They crowded us. When people are going to do that, they're going to find out we can throw the ball.

"It was up to me to hit the passes," Brown said. "They weren't showing anything that we hadn't seen in practice. All of our plays looked like an option and when we pass it, the defense sort of holds, looking for the run.'

The Indians scored on their first possession of the third quarter to make 27-7 and then Dennis Forrest broke loose for 63 yards and a 34-7 lead. "The way we came out in the third quarter, it was pretty obvious that we pretty much had the game in hand," Lacewell said.

ASU lost at Nevada-Reno in the second round of the playoff last year and in the second round in 1984 at Montana State.

Still reeling from an 88-84 overtime loss to Northeastern on Friday, Louisville shot only 28 percent from the field in the first half and was outrebounded 20-12.

Washington increased its lead to 23 points in the opening minutes of the second half before Louisville mounted a comeback. The Cardinals trimmed the lead to 15 with about five minutes to go but the rally faltered as Louisville lost players to fouls.

Zevenberger scored 14 points before fouling out with 6:25 to go. Herbert Crook led Louisville with 17 points. Ellison had 10 before fouling out with 5:57 left.

North Carolina State's Charles Shackleford fouled Lohaus during a scramble for a loose ball. Lohaus made the first free throw to give Iowa the lead, but Lohaus missed the bonus to give the Wolfpack one last chance.

son and the Los Angeles Rams arrive Sunday? "Just because we gave up so many yards to these guys is no reason to believe Dickerson will do the same," said Barry Bennett, who along with Tom Baldwin and Ben Rudolph is holding down what used to be the NFL's best rushing defense until Joe Klecko, Mark Gastineau and Marty Lyons get well.

But that may be some time, and almost certainly too late for Dickerson, whose 1,416 yards are 250 more than any other back in the league. Klecko, who has shown miraculous recuperative powers in the past, is the first due back, but he says that will be "in a couple of weeks or so.

But despite being tied with the Redskins for the NFC East lead, the Giants don't have to win this one. Even if the Giants lose, a New York victory over Washington next week would position the Giants to win the NFC East by closing with victories over St. Louis and Green

The Giants, of course, don't think like that. Last week's 19-16 victory over Denver was New York's fifth in a row — four against winning ding us of how bad the Giants used to be," safety Kenny Hill said, "We don't want to be compared to those teams that choked, those teams that didn't win. We want to be recognized as what we are -avery good football team.

The 49ers are in the midst of a brutal closing schedule — their final four games are against teams currently 37-11. They've shown more verve since quarterback Joe Montana returned three games ago, and will need more to beat out the Rams against the league's toughest closing schedule.

The Redskins, who can clinch their wild-card by winning, are in a sandwich. They crushed the Cowboys 41-14 last week to all but eliminate Dallas from a shot at the division title and get the Giants next week in the one that should decide it

But Coach Gene Stallings of the Cardinals, who may be without running back stump Mitchell, thinks that his team's 23-14 defeat of Kansas City last week may be an object lesson to the Redskins.

Find a team playing the New York Giants and you're bound to find a coach saying the key to controlling their offense is Joe Morris. Few have been successful stopping him.

'As far as running the ball and doing the things a runner needs to do, Joe is as good as anybody in the league," said Giants offensive coordinator Ron Erhardt. "I think he's proven that doing what he did last year and again this year." Despite missing a game because of an allergic reaction to medication, the 5-foot-7 Morris comes into Monday night's game against the San Francisco 49ers as the second-leading rusher in the NFL this season with 1,146 yards.

The former Syracuse runner has rushed for 100 yards in seven games this season and in five of the Giants' last six contests. At the present pace, Morris will break the Giants' singleseason rushing mark of 1,336 yards he set in 1985.

The numbers don't impress

"If you look at Minnesota, they held Joe Morris to 49 yards," Morris said, referring to a game two weeks ago. "Their defense did a very good job. However, what people don't see is that we had nine playaction passes and we gained good yardage on eight of them."

The ninth play resulted in a pass interference and another big gain, Morris said. 'If I can take them out of their pass defense by play action faking it, then I've done my job,' he said. "My job is helping us Since Morris became a starter halfway through the 1984 season, the Giants are 21-9 and we've been sticking with it," Giants quarterback Phil Simms said. "He's running hard and picking the right holes. He's also playing smarter. He's not taking the extra hits, and that makes him better the following week."

Morris actually didn't get off to a very good start this season after missing most of training camp because of a contract holdout. He signed just before the season-opener with Dallas.

"It wasn't so much that I was catching up," he said. "It was getting back into a familiar groove. Once you lose your rhythm with your offensive linemen it takes a lot to get it back. Being out of training camp hurt because I just didn't get enough repetitions.'

Giants offensive tackle Karl Nelson said the groove is a twoway street.

'You have to know where he's going to be at a certain time and how to read the guy your block-ing," Nelson said. "If you see your guy go inside, you know Joe is starting to make a cut and you have to get a final push on the guy.

Erhardt said that because of the timing between the offensive line and Morris, the back doesn't really need a big hole.

"The big back can probably get an extra yard or two because he can break a tackle or something," Erhardt said. "Joe's extra yardage comes with the line doing a good job for him and him hitting the crease and going through it just as it opens. Sometimes a big back may never get through that

And that may be one of the few nice things said about a little back. Morris certainly has heard a lot of negative things about his size.

"That's something I can't control," Morris said. "They are always going to say that. But what's going to ... happen, someday people are going to say he has a talent level and they are going to have to judge him

A one-room school, nestled in Chileno Valley, surrounded by the hills of northern Marin County, California's dairyland. The Laguna District School, founded in 1906, breaks the hot tub and luxury car image of Larin County. There are only seven one-room K-6 schools in California and three of them are located within a few miles of each other, on the quiet roads of rural Marin County.

One-room school satisfying and successful

NOVATO, Calif. (AP) -Marin County, known for hot tubs and luxury cars, also has three of California's seven one-room schoolhouses.

The schools, where kindergarten and grades one through six learn lessons in the same room, are clustered within a few miles of each other in the bucolic dairy country of northern Marin.

With gables, porches, attics and the original separate entrances and cloakrooms for boys and girls, the schools seem relics of the past. Inside, however, the throwback image vanishes: Each school has television, computers, projection equipment, a piano and a library.

"I particularly love what I can do in a school like this," said Elaine Boling, for 11 years the teacher, principal and playground director at Union School, built in 1895. "I can't even imagine teaching any other way."

Boling has 20 pupils, while Patty Pomi, her counterpart at nearby Lincoln School, founded in 1872, has 12. Bar- other. bara Armington at Laguna School a few miles away teaches 21 children in the one-room school built in 1906.

"Most teachers, in the larger schools, have a child for only a year," said Armington. "You're never really sure what impact you've made on their lives. But here, I and my students are part of each others' lives for as much as seven years. I get to know them, see them grow, see them mature, see them learn. It's enormously Virtually all the children come from area dairy farms. All will go on to Petaluma Junior High School when they graduate.

"I've yet to see any evidence that students from our one-roomers suffer any scholastic deficiency when they move on," said Rick Sheviakov, chief psychologist for the Marin County Office of Education. "It may be an older approach to education, but it still works just fine."

Sheviakov said instruction in the one-room schools is highly individualized.

'There's a lot more cooperation and a lot less competition," he said. "It's an absolute joy to watch them work together."

Armington said she teaches her students to read in kindergarten.

'We don't wait for the first grade like the larger schools

The teachers move from pupil to pupil, guiding each child at their own level in the subject.

The pupils also help each

"It's something you really only see in schools like this," said Boling. "The big help the little, the fast help the slow. They really don't compete with each other.'

Disciplinary problems are virtually nonexistent, the teachers said.

"There's enormous peergroup pressure not to disrupt the class," said Boling, poin-ting to a list of class rules posted on the wall. "My students drew up that list, not me. And they enforce it."

Barbara Armington helps six-year-old Maria Ortega with her computer lessons, as other students work of their lessons, in rural Marin County's Laguna District School. The school maintains its traditional one-room school house appearance, but on the inside, the picture is a little different with a television, computer, projection equipment and an extensive library.

Wedding

Leal-Huitt

Suzanne Leal, Gail Rt. Box 439, and Rodney Huitt, 1027 Stadium, exchanged wedding vows Nov. 20 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Y.B. Hodnett with Judge M.L. Kirby, officiating.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Y.B. Hodnett, 2609 E. 24th. Bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Lloyd, Sterling City

The couple stood before an altar decorated with blue and white carnations and a candelabra.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore an offwhite, street-length dress with lace overlay accenting the bodice and long sleeves.

She carried a bouquet of blue and white carnations.

Matron of honor was Brenda of Big Spring. Best man was Z.B. Rinehart of Big Spring.

Following the wedding, a reception was hosted. A three-tiered white cake was decorated with blue and white carnations and topped with wedding bells.

The bride's table, draped with a white lace cloth and blue overlay, featured a centerpiece of blue and white carnations with blue candles

Wife hates mummy's surprise visits

DEA ABBY: My mother-in-law just left one of her surprise visits, and I am ready to explode. Mummy has no husband and can come and go as she pleases. She lives 20 miles away and we never know when she's coming or how long she'll stay. (Ovenright? For the weekend? A week? Two?) It's maddening! Arthur and I work different shifts. We have two children and our free time is limited. I work from 11 p.m. until 7 a.m., so I need to sleep in the morning. Mummy always brings her dog, who barks all morning and ruins my sleep. I've asked her to please not bring him, but she brings him anyway.

Yesterday, Arthur and I spent our only day off together in two weeks entertaining her. We had made other plans, but had to cancel them when she showed up.

How can we tell Mummy to back off without offending her? Arthur is her only child. Lord have mercy on us! We've begged her to plese call and let us know when she's coming, but she says, "I'd rather 'surprise' you — that way I'm sure you won't go to any extra trouble.

Abby, can you - or perhaps one of your readers who has had to handle this problem — help me? Arthur says, "Just don't pay any attention to her." But you know that can't be done.

DEAR HATES: There appears to mother. be a communication gap here big her surprise visits. If your pleas are ignored, then your husband's solution seems the most practical. Don't change your plans; just go about your business as though she weren't there and spend whatever time you have available with her. The barking dog problem is one Arthur should handle — and firmly! Dogs can be trained to be quiet, you know. And if this one isn't, he should be banished from the premises.

DEAR ABBY: With the holidays just around the corner, many people are wondering what they can give an elderly parent or friend who "has everything." I'd like to HATES SURPRISES share with you a gift I gave my felt-tip pen in large block letters and put them into a three-ring binder under plastic-covered pages. We all enjoyed her delicious meals until she died at 89.

With a felt-tip pen, I made an alphabetized file of the addresses and phone numbers of all the friends and relatives she wished to correspond with. This, too, I wrote in extra-large letters, and easy-toread numbers. I included the doctors she saw regularly, utilities, store, emergency numbers, etc.

Mother was a thoughtful, active woman and these small things I did helped her to remain independent and better able to take care of herself.

BETTY JO MINGS, GARDEN GROVE, CALIF. DEAR BETTY JO: Thank you for an excellent suggestion. Helping an older person to remain independent is one of the greatest gifts one can give; it's also one that money can't buy.

DEAR ABBY: Here's a suggestion for the woman who felt frustrated and helpless because her mother's clothing kept vanishing in the nursing home:

Since your mother is either in bed or in a wheelchair and on view from one angle only, take a great big black indelible marker, and in large letters write her name across the seat of all her clothes - expensive ones and all. I guarantee that your mother's wardrobe will re-

DEAR ABBY: I recently learned I had breast cancer. While making the emotional and physical adjustments, then seeking treatment, undergoing surgery and radiation, I became inspired — you might say driven - to compose the enclosed verse. I believe it speaks a message to family members, close friends, casual well-wishers, and even cool-headed physicians, that they should hear. People don't seem to realize all the preaching, and even scolding, a cancer sufferer must endure in the way of pep talks:

Overdressed athletes take risk

By NYU MEDICAL CENTER Cold weather athletes who bundle up to exercise may be increasing their risk of injury, according to physicians at New York University Medical Center.

"Wearing too many clothes when you exercise can lead to hypothermia, a sudden loss of body heat that can result in shock and heart failure," said Dr. William Bernhard, associate professor of anesthesiology at the center.

"Overdressed athletes sweat and dampen their undergarments. Once wet, the clothes lose their insulating quality and facilitate the loss of body heat rather than pre-

Bernhard suggests layering clothing, taking off outer garments before sweating, and replacing them during the cool down. "Remember, you should feel cool when beginning to exercise," he

Other guidelines for coldweather sportspeople include keeping clothing clean and dry, to protect their insulating qualities; choosing fabrics specifically formulated for the athlete to guard against hypothermia, such as polypropylene and olefin; and bringing along extra dry socks, glove and mittens to replace those that become wet.

"These extra supplies can be carried comfortably in a backpack during exercise, along with powder to dry damp feet before changing into spare socks," said Bernhard.

scholarship.

BOSTON (AP) — An album by rock singer Cyndi Lauper, a videotape about "The Ugly Duckling" and Penny Power magazine are among the holiday gifts for youngsters recommended this year by Parents' Choice, a magazine that reviews children's toys and media.

"The purpose of the awards is to bring children of all backgrounds and skills together with material that will help them grow mentally, emotionally and as human beings," said Diana Green, editor of Parents' Choice.

Ms. Green said the non-profit magazine, based in suburban Newton, culled entries for the awards from publishers, toy companies, critics and parents. Then experts in each area, aided by groups of children, selected a dozen or more winners in each category.

This is the sixth year Parents' Choice, which claims a circulation of 90,000, has given the awards. Ms. Green said the judging process was handled differently than in the

"In other years, nominations had come from parents and children," she said. "It just was becoming unwieldy."

Groups of children in Atlanta, guided by a teacher and book reviewer, along with illustrators of children's books helped chose the prize-winners in the book category.

The winners, said Ms. Green,

"are those that are remarkable in art and stories and that are used (by children). We avoid what I call the for-kids-with-coffee-table books."

The recordings were selected

The recordings were selected with the aid of a children's librarian in Washington, D.C., she said, and final selection was made by Mopsy Strange Kennedy, a critic for The Boston Globe.

The toys were reviewed by a toy consultant in New Jersey with the aid of children.

The movies were chosen by William A. Henry III, a critic for Time magazine. Television shows were judged by David Bianculli, a television writer for The Philadelphia Inquirer, while radio shows were reviewed by Peggy Charren, founder of Action for Children's Television. Videotapes were judged by Joel Siegel of ABC-

Ms. Green said the magazine gave awards in rock music because "kids want it and parents ... want some kind of guidelines."

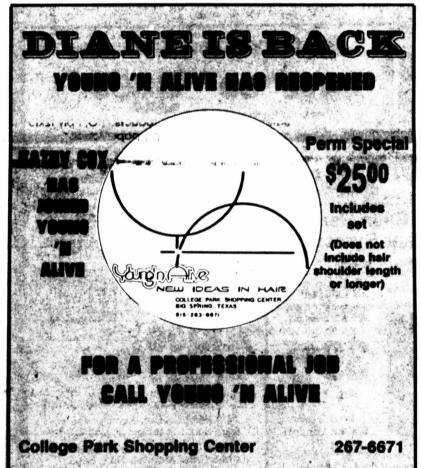

Boston Globe music critic Susan Wilson said she chose Miss Lauper's "True Colors" because "her messages and image are a lot healthier than Madonna's.

Low-fat diets aren't good for infants

By BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS A Meredith Magazine

Infants under age 2 who are put on fat-restricted diets develop "failure to thrive," reports researcher Dr. Michael T. Pugliese of the North Shore University Hospital in Manhasset, N.Y.

Pugliese explains in Better Homes and Gardens magazine that failure to thrive is a condition marked by lower-than-expected weight and height gains. Restoring the fat to their diets will put these children back on the road to normal growth within three months. Pugliese has found. He cautions parents against restricting infants' diets to skim milk, lean meats, fruits, vegetables and bread products.

Dr. Henry L. Greene, a pediatric nutrition expert at Vanderbilt University, says low-fat fiets may not provide children with enough calories. Pound for pound, infants under age two need three times as many calories as adults. Fat provides those calories in small servings

Greene also notes that low-fat diets may lack cholesterol, something a baby's rapidly growing brain needs. Most of this cholesterol is produced by the body, but babies may need some in the diet.

Osteoarthritis no problem for runners

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I wonder about all the running going on and the threat to leg joints. I mean to say, aren't we setting up a generation of people who are going to limp into their Golden Years on legs beset by osteoarathritis, the 'wear-and-tear" problem? I also have to wonder if you, being one of the exercise pushers, would be willing to admit this. - P.I.J.

If that were true, I'd first be quite surprised, and second, I'd be eager to report it. The fact is, it isn't true, and it has been studied in the best possible way, by examining the joints of veteran runners and comparing them with those of non-runners. Running, as you know, has not been without some very vocal critics, and arguments have been put forth to support your conclusion. So let me cite a study that refutes the idea.

The Stanford University Arthritis Center did it. Researchers there examined the leg joints and spines of 550 runners, each of whom had logged nearly 10,000 miles in their careers. They compared the results with those obtained from an equal number of comparable non-runners.

They found the expected negative and positive results in both, of course. But they found no evidence of cartilage damage among the runners. Cartilage deterioration is the hallmark of osteoarthritis. They did find some evidence of bony spurs in runners' knees and spines. But the overall assessment was that the runners were in better healthn and had fewer disabilities than did the non-runners.

Other factors lead to osteoarthritis, and they include obesity, trauma (chiefly acciedents) and abnormality of bone formation. Those kinds of things tend from the outset of eliminte running as an exercise option.

In another study, at the University of Florida, a group of Florida, a group of middle-aged runners were examined. They had averaged 28 miles a week. Again, a higher incidence of osteoarthritis was found in a counterpart group of nonrunners studied.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I enjoy your sports medicine column immensely. I hope you haven't been asked this before. What effect, if any, would aerobics exercise have in offsetting marijuana smoking or use of other drugs? The point I am getting at is regarding aerobic exercise and the euphoric effect you hear about. I've heard some say it has helped overcome pot smoking, tion of endorphins. Those are naturally made brain chemicals that have an action similar to narcotics' (endorphin high). This is said to produce a feeling of euphoria, a natural sense of well being.

I think I get your point, T.N. Exercise enhances the brain's produc- be thrilled by the idea.

In one sense, I can see how aerobics might be effective in offsetting drug abuse. But believe me, as helpful as exercise might be in this respect, it will take more than that to break any addiction. It takes a lot of determination and a lot of help. Expecting aerobics inany form to counterbalance one's men. need for artificial stimulation is stretching credulity. You're the first to ask

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Is there any particular advantage to training for a run at the same time of the day that the competition is to be held? — K.D.

Sure; when possible it's the best time to train. It would correspond to the general environmental situation, but more importantly it would fit in with your regular eating and sleeping habits. It's a good idea.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have an argument to settle. I say potato skin is good nutritionally. True? -Mrs. J.F. True. For example, most of the vitamin C in potato is in the skin. DEAR DR. DONOHUE: As a doctor interested in sports injuries, I wonder if you would think it wise to have ground level bases in baseball, sort of like the home plates are now? It might save a lot of sliding injuries. — H.C.M.

I guess it would, at that. But I don't think the base umpires would Tocopherols (toel-COE=fer-alls) are the biologically active parts of vitamin E. There are several of them — alpha, beta, gamma, etc. The alpha tocopheral is the most active of all. Therefore, the standard for the vitamin is its alpha activity in the body. For example, the daily allowance for vitamin E is stated as "8 mg alpha tocopheral equivalents" (for women), 10 for

The word, tocopheral, has an interesting history. It combines two Greek words: for "childbirth" (tocos) and "to carry" (pherein). Early nutrition researchers felt this vitamin was necessary for fertility. In fact, they felt that use of the vitamin would restore fertility those who had lost it.

Much was made of this for a few years until the idea had to be discarded, a dream that time bypassed. Texas' 'Jimi Hendrix of the Accordion' featured in film

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) -Esteban "Steve" Jordan is a frustrated man. For much of the past 20 years, he and his band, Rio Jordan, have been creating some of the most unusual and exciting music ever produced by Texans and yet few people - outside of South Texas' Hispanics — have heard his name or his music.

The music, as difficult to describe as it is easy to enjoy, is a unique blend of South Texas conjunto, jazz, blues and salsa that has earned Jordan the label of "the Jimi Hendrix of the accordion."

And now, in his 40th year of making music, a combination of events the "breaks" the 48-year-old Jordan has always longed for are finally happening.

David Byrne of New York's avant-garde musical group Talking Heads is featuring Jordan in a movie, "True Stories." Jordan will be seen playing the accordion and singing his autobiographical an-them "Soy de Tejas" ("I'm from Texas''). Byrne also used Jordan's accordion work on "Radio Head," a song from the group's next album. The movie and song will expose Jordan's sound to millions of new ears in the United States and Europe.

Earlier this year Jordan signed a three-year recording contract with RCA International. His second album with the label, "Turn Me Loose," has won critical acclaim although sales of the LP are low. Jordan, as he has done on many of his recordings, plays all the instruments on "Turn Me Loose" drums, bass, guitar, percussion, accordion as well as producing the

"There is something inside of Steve Jordan that wants to explode," says Miguel de la Higuera, vice president of RCA's Latin Music U.S. division. "But now it's up to Steve. We have to wait for

A recent article in Down Beat magazine praised Jordan's music, saying he combines "a swaggering stage presence, an inexhaustible supply of energy, and an impassioned experimentalism to create one of America's most unique musical experiences.

News of Jordan's legendary talents is spreading quickly in music circles. In June, a crew from Britain's Channel 4 television filmed a live performance of Jordan and his band to be broadcast next year. A month later he teamed with Jose Feliciano on a Budweiser radio jingle. And in a move that surely won't surprise his old friends, Jordan turned down an interview with MTV. "It was simple, bro," Jordan said with characteristic jazz lingo spicing his talk. "They just wanted to interview me. But I want my first exposure on MTV to be my music, not me sitting around B.S.-ing with some person who doesn't know anything about my music ' Just a few moments after Steve Jordan's birth in the tiny Rio Grande Valley town of Elsa in 1938, a midwife unknowingly placed a few drops of contaminated eye solution in both eyes, causing permanent scarring. The accident left him blind in his right eye and partially blind in the other.

Born to migrant farmworker Bobo. Jordan took his guitar parents (who still live near Edinburg) Jordan grew up with 15 brothers and sisters. His handicap made learning difficult and he dropped out of school in the first grade. By then he was already singing and playing guitar, and he began frequenting cantinas along the migrant farmworker trail.

"I would play and sing, run errands, shine shoes, do just about anything for a nickel," he said. "That's the way it was back in those days. You did what you had to to survive, but I know I missed out on a lot. I never played marbles or baseball with my friends. Ever since I was 7 I've been hanging out with people who were a lot older than me.

By age 10, he had learned to play the accordion and at 14 did his first studio recording work, in California. His musical future was being molded by the big band sounds.

"I started moving away from the polka scene into the Latin jazz," he recalls. By the time he was 20, he had mastered, by his own count, 32 instruments.

In 1961 he and his brothers began performing at the Lucky 13 nightclub in Oakland, Calif., playing "Jordanized" jazz and conjunto six nights a week. During the next eight years, Jordan, his wife Virginia (now divorced) and his brothers roamed the western United States playing to Hispanic audiences wherever they could find them.

onstage to sit in with Bobo and was hired that night.

"I had one week to learn all their songs and had to do it by listening to their albums," he recalled.

Touring with Bobo's band took Jordan to jazz festivals at Monterey, Calif., and Newport, R.I., and to gigs in New York's Spanish Harlem where he jammed with Jose Feliciano and George Benson. He left Bobo's band in 1970 'to do my own thing.'

Reuniting with his brothers over the next few years for performances in Arizona, New Mexico and Texas, Jordan fine-tuned his style and began playing his accordion through an Echo-Plex and Phase-Shifter, electronic devices used to alter the sound into the psychedelic sound popularized in the late '60s by Jimi Hendrix.

In a Roswell, N.M, tavern in 1973, Jordan almost died when he was stabbed just below his right rib cage. It took almost two years of rest before he could play his accordion again, but he returned to the Chicano music world with a hit song in 1976.

'La Camelia'' is one of Jordan's all-time classic ballads and it can still be found on many jukeboxes on Corpus Christi's West Side. Steve Jordan's legacy of 33 albums and more than 100 singles leaves little room for argument that he is best accordionist in South Texas and possibly the world.

"I said it on my show last week: Steve Jordan is the greatest accordion player we've seen in our time, and that's no bull," declared Johnny Canales, host of the nationally syndicated Hispanic music TV program "The Johnny Canales

"Steve is the Mexican-American musician whose music is best qualified to cross over into the maor pop market," Canales continued. Referring to Jordan's capricious nature, Canales said, "I think Steve would be like night and day if he can get the right management and focus all his efforts on be-

But there are those who think Jordan may be destined, like other musical geniuses, to be recognized for what he is only after he is gone.

"I think Steve may be in that category," says Roland Garcia, president of Corpus Christi's Hacienda Recording Studios, where Jordan has done his recording for RCA International. "I think the guy can record a million-seller in English, but it's got to be done on his time, not mine.

"Money is not that big a deal to Steve," Garcia continued. "If he decides he wants to go fishing for a month — he does it. And you know, sort of envy him. I've always thought of Steve as being like an eagle - he never stays in one place, he has the freedom to go whenever he wants and he doesn't worry about tomorrow.'

acorns grow big oak trees. And from little businesses come big companies. At least that's what Jo DuFault, 31, owner of the Alternative Clothing Store, hopes Capitalizing on the New Wave fashion trend, Ms. DeFault sells vintage and hand-painted clothing popular among today's teenagers and young professionals who want to make a unique fashion statement - from a cluttered and colorful store next to her home.

Ms. DuFault is looking for the trend to expand, and has dreams of a large warehouse with space for hair styists, artists who do airbrushed art on clothing, for her vintage and hand-painted clothing and for designers - of which she will be

"I am definitely going into design," she says. For now she's content with the shop, particularly with the location because it allows her to be with her daughters Sierra, 4, and Zoe, 8 months.

She has pieces ranging from the 1930s through the 1960s. "I have lace, linen, silk, overcoats, men's jackets, and everthing else," she says. Her shop is filled with clothing, as is her storage room and Airstream trailer.

"There's always an ample supply of clothing. I'm always getting in new stuff," she says. She began dabbling in handpainted clothing because I wanted to make the shop more exciting.

She buys her clothing from estate sales, auctions and at charity stores such as Goodwill and the Salvation Army. Although prices range between $5 and $35, none of the garments carries a price tag. "The price tags are all in my head. I know what the prices should be, but I can and will adjust the price according to the customer and their circumstances. Her reputation has spread word of mouth, she says, and only in the last few months has she decided to promote her shop. "I've had people come in here and tell me they've looked for my store for two years."

Babies are good travelers

By NYU MEDICAL CENTER Parents who worry about taking infants along on holiday trips to visit friends and relatives needn't worry: there is no reason to anticipate problems.

This timely and reassuring word comes from a leading child-health specialist at New York University Medical Center.

There is absolutely no reason why a baby should not be a good traveler," declared Dr. Sidney Q. Cohlan, professor of pediatrics. "It is a matter of attitude. If parents are anxious and expect problems, infants are likely to reflect that anxiety and be fretful as well. Start with the premise that the family will have a good time, and that is what is likely to happen.'

There is no age limit, he added; a one-month-old can be as good a traveler as a one-year-old.

Cohlan said there are certain sensible precautions that should be taken to ensure a successful trip. One is being sure the child is in good health to start with: it is not a good idea to travel with a baby who has a fever, rash or other sign of illness or potential illness although a slight cold or minor upset needn't prevent travel. (If in doubt, check with the pediatrician or family physician.)

It is Helpful if the trip can be scheduled during the baby's usual sleep time, since the infant will typically nap as usual. In air travel, the secret of preventing airpressure problems is to make sure the baby is sucking, whether from breast or bottle, during takeoff and landing. The baby must be held, or placed on the floor in a bassinet (the airline may, if advised ahead of time, provide a bulkhead seat), or — if old enough to sit up — provided with a seat and an appropriate restraint. Some infant car seats, but not all, meet Federal Aviation Administration standards and can be used for this purpose.

For car travel, an approved infant seat is a safety requirement and is legally demanded in all states, Cohlan said. Such a seat must be properly installed in the car, according to the manufacturer's directions; if a car is rented for the trip, an appropriate seat should be rented or borrowed as

The 'good ole toys' are still favorites

A Hearst Magazine

The good old toys are sometimes the best because they have passed the most critical panel of judges there is — generations of children who loved them.

Many new toys do not succeed in engaging a child's sustained curiosity and imagination the way the classics do, educational psychologist Helen Boehm wrote in the December issue of Redbook, and many of the classics still are in production and widely available.

Boehm, who heads Kid's Concepts, a New York firm that develops and evaluates childrelated products, offered her own list of toys she said never fail to entertain, educate and stimulate.

- Construction toys. They teach a child to play alone and they challenge his power of perception, balance and coordination. Multishaped wooden blocks offer children the opportunity to develop problem-solving skills, creativity and manual dexterity.

Dolls. Dolls not only stimulate the development of language, imagination and social skills, but also provide an important backdrop for fantasy play. Whether children are dressing their dolls, taking them to the doctor or teaching them, the dolls are valuable props that enable children to rehearse many of life's future responsibilities.

Fashion dolls are appropriate for girls from age 6 up, but every younger child should be given a baby doll. When making your selection, the more cuddly and huggable the doll, the better.

Stuffed animals. Stuffed animals offer a sense of warmth, security and well-being, and their appeal is unparalleled among children. Federal law now requires features attached to plush toys, such as button eyes, to be securely anchored to prevent accidental swallowing. The law also requires such toys be made with flameretardant materials only.

Role-playing toys. Toys such as doctors' kits allow children to rehearse a potentially scary experience in a safe, familiar setting to neutralize some of their fears.

Kid-powered wheels. Small, tough toy cars and trucks are as popular today as in generations past. Their appeal seems to lie in their durability and simplicity. They don't depend on batteries or microchips for power - just kid another classic that continues to fascinate kids, despite the popularity of computers and television.

Games. Games encourage cooperation, competition and good sportsmanship. At least one board game should be added to every child's toy collection, providing a focus around which family members can come together in shared leisure activity.

- Craft toys. A box of 64 perfectly sharpened crayons, an easel, fingerprints or clay provide children with a chance to develop a variety of skills, including the refinement of motor coordination and shape discrimination.

They also encourage a child to express creativity, and promote feelings of self-confidence and pride in accomplishment.

Because children's requests to Santa are greatly influenced by advertising, these favorite traditional toys don't always top their

An increasing number of married couples are looking over their lifestyle and choosing not to have

Child-free marriages no longer carry the stigma of failure or neurotic unfulfillment, according to an article in the December issue of Cosmopolitan, and Charles Westoff, director of Princeton University's Office of Population Research, has predicted as many as 25 percent of young women now in their 20s will remain childless.

Marriage counselors and therapists agree the key to making a decision about childbearing lies in asking the right questions and answering them honestly. These

- Do I have the energy for a job and a child?

Am I ready to give up the freedom to do what I want to do, when I want to do it?

Do I know how much money it takes to raise a child, and am I willing to make the necessary financial sacrifices?

 Can I deal with noise and confusion and 24-hour-a-day responsibility?

If I were angry or upset, would I take it out on a child?

 Do I want a child to prove I'm a woman — or a man — or to show how grown-up I am?

Child-free couples are primarily urban middle class. A recent University of Kansas study found that couples who chose childlessness were those experiencing rewards in their careers.

Freedom is one reason many couples cite for remaining childless, but the bottom line on freedom may be economics.

Population economist Thomas Espenshade of the Urban Institute in Washington estimates the average middle-income family spends $95,000 to raise one child to age 18. The $40,000 it takes to send one child to a private four-year college raises the cost to more than $135,000 per child.

Experts are unanimous in urging couples to actively make a decision, rather than drift into childlessness the way 1950s couples drifted into having children.

"I think it's critical to a couple's later adjustment to their decision for them to be able to say, 'We did this consciously. We may have regrets, but at least we weighed, we thought, we chose," said Gail Thoen, a psychologist and professor at the University of

She said couples must sort out the differences between having a child and being parents.

"Once they start thinking about it," she said, "they find they aren't that interested in raising children. These are the people who will be happier not having them.'

Sex therapists Max and Della Fitzgerald say the first decision is the woman's.

"Keep in mind," they said, "that it's your body, your marriage, and your life. Take a hard look at the values, you've been given and ask yourself, 'Do they suit me?"

A couple also must explore the parenting decision together, they said, to make sure each clearly understands the other's anxieties and concerns and that each knows exactly what the other means by "sharing child care."
