School reform as analyzed by educators

Editor's note: This is the first in a series of Herald articles examining the results of two state laws aimed at public education reform. By EDDIE CURRAN Staff Writer

During its short life, House Bill 72 — the Texas education reform law of 1984 — has been misunderstood, according to local educators.

The "no-pass, no-play" rule that angered so many coaches, students and parents is but two paragraphs of a 368-page document referred to by many Texas educators as "the encyclopedia."

Howard County's three school district superintendents agreed during recent interviews that students in 1986 are getting a better education as a result of House Bill 72 and an earlier law known as House Bill 246.

However, the three — Big Spring Superintendent Lynn Hise, Forsan

Richardson says the world needs old and new

By SCOTT FITZGERALD Staff Writer

Human civilization is beginning what historians term "a third wave," said NAACP National Vice President Rupert F. Richardson Saturday night.

Richardson, of Baton Rouge, La., addressed the third annual Howard County National Association for the Advancement of Colored People banquet in St. Paul's Fellowship Hall. She also swore-in newly-elected President Hebrew

Jones who replaces Dock Vooehrs. "We don't have that love that runs heart-to-heart," Richardson said about a third wave society that came of age in 1980 and will run through 2000.

She told the county's NAACP "to become more conscious of what you need to do."

Richardson began her speech by drawing analogies between societal evolution — needing to

Millions given to Contras at U.S. behest

By HENRY GOTTLIEB Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department persuaded a wealthy Asian potentate to contribute millions of dollars to U.S.-backed Nicaraguan rebels earlier this year, and a published report says the money was sent to a bank account administered by a central figure in the Iranian arms scandal.

U.S. government sources, speaking on condition they not be identified, confirmed a report in The Los Angeles Times on Saturday that the ruler of oil-rich Brunei, Sultan Hassanal Bolkiah, agreed to give millions of dollars to the Contras in Central America.

It could not be learned whether Secretary of State George P. Shultz personally discussed the aid with Bolkiah on June 24 when they met at the sultan's 1,700 room-marble and glass palace on a hilltop in Brunei's capital, Bandar Seri Begawan.

Since the eruption of the furor over the Iranian arms sale and the administration's revelation that proceeds were funneled to Nicaraguan rebels, State Department officials, including Shultz himself, have taken strides to distance themselves from the operation.

Shultz opposed the sale of arms to the Iranians and the department took no part in the operation, according to President Reagan. On the other hand, the State Department has been active in formulating and carrying out U.S. policies in Central America, notably efforts to help the Contras in their fight against Nicaragua's leftist government.

The idea to ask Bolkiah for money came from Elliot Abrams, assistant secretary of state for Inter-American affairs, who provided the number of a Swiss bank account where the funds were to be sent, the Times said.

The newspaper quoted sources as saying the account was administered by Lt. Col. Oliver North, a National Security Council staff member under investigation by the Justice Department and is a key figure in the Iranian arms sale affair.

The sources did not know whether the ruler intended his money to go for medical supplies and other humanitarian aid or for weapons for the Contras.

At the time, the Reagan administration was prohibited by Congress from sending military supplies or supporting such shipments, but had been authorized to send $27 million in humanitarian aid.

There would have been nothing wrong, therefore, for Shultz to have asked Bolkiah for money if it was for humanitarian assistance, according to the State Department interpretation of congressional intent.

The department would not comment on the Brunei donation, but the matter will be raised when Shultz testifies before the House Foreign Affairs Committee on Monday. Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., chairman of the subcommittee that monitors U.S. relations with Brunei and other Asian countries said reading about the donation in his morning newspaper Saturday was "the first I'd heard of it."

Pearl Harbor commemorates 45th anniversary

By STEWART TAGGART Associated Press Writer

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii (AP) — After entering the narrow harbor channel here, visiting warships often order all hands on deck while a flower wreath is dropped near the sunken battleship USS Arizona, the tomb for 1,177 sailors.

The ships then tie up at newer landmarks known as Tin Can Alley and Hotel Pier, vital refueling and provisioning facilities that make Pearl Harbor Naval Base one of the American military's largest and most strategic Pacific ports.

On Dec. 7, 1941, a devastating surprise Japanese air attack killed thousands and left much of Pearl Harbor in ruins.

The base has since become a major employer for Hawaii as well as a critical repair and command headquarters.

Military, veterans and civilian groups planned to mark the 45th anniversary of the Japanese attack Sunday with ceremonies including speeches and the playing of taps.

As is traditional, a flower wreath will be dropped over the wreckage, where brightly colored tropical fish now swim around the twisted metal. Oil still leaks slowly from the wreck into the surrounding harbor.

"In the hearts of many Americans, it takes on much the character of a shrine," said Richard Brady, Pearl Harbor Naval Base deputy public affairs officer, speaking of the USS PEARL HARBOR page 2A

Pearl Harbor Naval Shipyard is pictured with its narrow channel opening to the sea. Now one of the United States' most strategic bases in the Pacific, it commemorates 45 years since the bombing by the Japanese in World War II today.

Arizona, which sank the fastest and with the greatest loss of life of 18 ships that were damaged or lost.

Each year, an estimated 1.4 million people visit the USS Arizona Memorial, taking a 7-minute boat ride across Pearl Harbor to see the wreckage from a gleaming monument built across its submerged hull. The bodies of those who died aboard the ship were never recovered.

There are other reminders of the attack.

A small plaque at Hospital Point, near the harbor entrance, tells of the voluntary grounding of the USS Nevada, the only battleship to get underway during the attack.

Arrest made for payment delinquency

Howard County sheriff's deputies arrested Frank Dwaine Baugus, 25, P.O. Box 2492, Friday night on a written order from Judge James Gregg. Baugus was found to be delinquent on five court payments. He was released on $1,000 bond.

Police transferred Larry Moreno Marquez, 29, 1402 Wood St., to county jail Friday night after he was arrested for theft by exercising control. He was released on $3,500 bond.

A Department of Public Safety trooper arrested Noel Wayne Truex, 42, of Midland, Friday night on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. He was arrested on Interstate 20, near Exit 181. He was released on $1,000 bond.

Deputies arrested S.T. Johnson, 63, 1310 Baylor Blvd., Saturday morning on a driving while intoxicated judgment. He will serve 10 days in county jail.

13 attend Farm Bureau convention

Thirteen voting delegates representing the Howard County Farm Bureau participated in the 53rd annual Texas Farm Bureau convention Nov. 30-Dec. 3 in McAllen.

Participating were June and Robert Nichols, Jewel and Horace Tubb, Bertie and Larry Shaw, Zirah and Edwin Bednar, Cindy and T. Paul Hopper, Lloyd Underwood, and Sheree and Mike Moates.

More than 1,300 delegates from 217 organized farm bureaus adopted policies directing the state's largest farm organization.

One policy adopted was the formation of a political action committee. Approved recommendations on national policies will advance to the American Farm Bureau Federation annual meeting, to be Jan. 11-15 in Anaheim, Calif.

Speakers at the Texas convention included Senator Lloyd Bensen, U.S. Rep. Kika de la Garza of Texas, organization president S.M. True of Plainview, and secretary/treasurer Neal Burnett of Plainview.

True was re-elected president by acclamation during the business session, which covered the final two days of the convention.

Representatives attended conferences on federal farm legislation, agriculture and the environment, commodity check-off programs and political action committees.

The ship's captain beached the Nevada rather than risk having it sunk in the harbor's 800-foot wide entrance, where it would have bottled up the remaining ships of the fleet.

World War II-era steel obstacles intended to stop attacking amphibious landing crafts have only recently been removed from near the harbor entrance, and the wreckage of the USS Utah, a decommissioned battleship at the time of the attack, also lies at the bottom of Pearl Harbor.

Fifty-eight men aboard the Utah that morning died, while 461 escaped.

From almost anywhere on the Pearl Harbor Naval Base, it is easy to see Kolekole Pass, the verdant, saddle-like trough in the Waianae Mountains west of Pearl Harbor through which slipped one group of Japanese Zeros on their way to the attack.

The pass enabled the planes to avoid radar detection until moments before the attack. Today, the mountains house sophisticated secret radar installations and transmission facilities used by various military commands under the jurisdiction of the Commander in Chief, Pacific, or CINCPAC, located at Camp H.M. Smith on Oahu.

CINCPAC has jurisdiction over all U.S. military forces between the west coast of the United States and the east coast of Africa.

The U.S. military has been a presence here since shortly after the United States negotiated in 1884 with the Hawaiian King Kalakaua for exclusive rights to the three-fingered, deep water lochs of the harbor.

The base at Pearl Harbor, named for the pearl oysters harvested in its brackish waters by native Hawaiians, pumps more than $1 billion a year into the roughly $14 billion Hawaiian economy, according to Brady.

The base employs 24,000 service personnel and 16,375 civilians, or roughly one of every 16 people who live on Oahu, Hawaii's most populous island, Brady said.

begin afresh — and the Scripture's philosophy of not forcing new wine into old wine skins.

She said historians defined a first wave from mankind's beginning to the late 1800s. However, historians overlook the advancement of early societies in Africa and the Middle East, she said.

"We should make America tell the truth in its history books," Richardson said.

Slavery's impact on the black race during the first wave is sometimes inaccurately interpreted, Richardson said.

"We cannot get so caught up in our beauty and blackness to think that we've come this far on our own," she said, alluding to instances of slaves advancing with the cooperation of their former owners.

A second wave coincided with the industrial revolution, Richardson said.

Slavery, and the emancipation were based on economics, she said.

Once emancipated, blacks were at a disadvantage in having to move from a rural lifestyle to the cities. Once there, they were denied opportunities, particularly in regard to education, Richardson said.

The rules of separation of blacks and whites were clear during segregation.

"I didn't like it, but I understood it," Richardson said.

That attitude of society remained intact until changes were slowly initiated through the civil rights movement beginning in the 1950s.

"The 56-year-old mother of eight, who has served as a citizen ambassador to Europe and Soviet Union, said the rules of society were not as easily understood once the 1964 Civil Rights Act was ratified.

Educated women and blacks have been overlooked in job promotions, she said.

"We've been told by word or deed that it's not for you," Richardson said.

The third wave with its new technology, jobs and informational overloads causes potential problems, she said.

Sex education, for instance, is no longer being taught at home and in the church and has become a responsibility of the school, Richardson said.

A man should be judged by his ability to take care of his children, she said.

She criticized Ronald Reagan's handling of the "international fur" that has resulted from the Iranian arms sale and channeling of funds to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

"We don't seem to have our priorities set straight," Richardson said.

"We need to get like we used to be — a time when we made sure the neighbor next door had enough before you closed your eyes," Richardson said.

She criticized society "for not using its wisdom," and "not making our government and politicians responsible."

She concluded her speech by once again referring to the biblical story of the wine skins: "We must begin to fill ... the vessel," Richardson said.

Truck rolls forward — kills man

A 53-year-old Howard County man died as a result of a single vehicle pedestrian accident that occurred Friday night in Borden County, according to a Department of Public Safety accident report.

Borden County Justice of the Peace Carolyn Stone pronounced Grady Lee Ayers, 53, of Jonesboro Road, dead at the scene at 9:30 a.m. Saturday. The accident occurred 5:35 p.m. Friday, two miles north of Vealmoor on James Gravel Precinct Road, according to the DPS report.

Ayers was driving a semi-truck trailer when he stopped to open a cattle guard gate. He had not opened the gate when the vehicle began rolling forward and struck him, according to the report.

Reform

I think it'll be something we'll enjoy," Doyle said.

"Basically, House Bill 72 was a complete revamping of school finances and the way that school districts will receive state funding. Much of the criticism of 72 really had to do with House Bill 246, now referred to as Chapter 75," Hise said.

Poynor said one of the primary goals of HB 72 was to provide more state financing to poor school districts. He said it helped poor districts while taking away from richer districts. Poynor added that he agrees with that principle because the poor districts couldn't meet state standards.

House Bill 246, also known as the curriculum bill, resulted from an extensive grass-roots campaign designed to standardize curriculums statewide, Poynor explained.

He said HB 246 was passed in 1981 but did not take effect until the fall of 1985. Most schools, however, began implementing it the fall of 1984, he noted.

House Bill 72 took effect in January 1985, and Poynor said it covers "everything other than curriculum — finances; no-pass, no-play; board training — stuff like that from A to Z."

Consequently, because each was implemented within a year of the other, both HB 246 and HB 72 have been lumped together in the public's mind, Poynor observed.

"House Bill 72 was the build-up of a big bunch of frustration on the part of a lot of people. There was the perception that kids weren't learning. It was an overreaction — it always is," he said.

SUPERINTENDENT POYNOR

... reform is beneficial

"By the time you get enough frustration to pass something, when you do get it, the pendulum goes too far."

Poynor added, however, that most of what was done has been beneficial, primarily because the reforms have redirected emphasis towards the classroom.

Three controversial elements of HB 72 were no-pass, no-play, teacher evaluation and the career ladder.

No-pass, no-play prohibits students with a below-70 grade in one subject, after a six-week grading period, from participating in extra-curricular activities for six weeks. They may rejoin the activities only after the grade is improved.

Perhaps the most vociferous opponents of no-pass, no-play have been the coaches. Big Spring High Football Coach Quinn Eudy disagrees sharply with the six-week punishment period.

"It was thought out by someone who had no compassion, who didn't care about kids, or at least they didn't know a thing about kids. They're asking kids to be perfect, when they ... who implemented the bill, are not," Eudy said.

"Athletics has been blamed for the ills of education," he added.

Billy Kind, Coahoma High School football coach and athletic director, said any comments he had about HB 72 would be unfit for print.

The three superintendents agree that the six-week punishment period is too severe, and that a three-week period would be more appropriate.

Hise said a change in the bill would require legislative action, and he said he expects it will come to the Legislature's attention.

The issues involved in teacher evaluations and the career ladder will be discussed later in this series.

Monday: Strengths and accomplishments of the two education reform laws will be discussed in Part 2.

Police beat

Entertainment items taken

Danny Sherman, 509 E. 18th St., told police Saturday morning that someone burglarized his residence between 7 p.m. Friday and 2 a.m. Saturday. The stolen items reported were one color television valued at $900, one videocassette recorder valued at $1,098 and one microphone valued at $80.

Police arrested Johnny Ray Payne, 28, 1002 S. Nolan St., Saturday morning on suspicion of driving while intoxicated and fleeing to elude. He was transferred to county jail where he was released on $1,000 bond.

Rory Jay Lawson, 3304 W. Highway 80 Apt. 39, told police Saturday morning that someone he knew broke two windows at his home at 2:57 a.m.

Floyd Klaus, 1309 Mulberry Ave., told police Saturday morning that someone burglarized his pickup at 3:05 a.m. and stole five gallons gasoline.

Police arrested Joe Louis Ontiveros, 28, 711 N.W. Eighth St., Saturday morning on failure to maintain financial responsibility — a subsequent offense. He was transferred to county jail and released on $500.

Police arrested Elida Chavez Rodriguez, 31, 503 Donley St., Saturday afternoon on a loose dogs warrant and failure to appear.

Two win sex bias suit

PITTSBURGH — A $3.3 million settlement of a sex discrimination suit against USX Corp. has won final court approval, said the attorney who represented hundreds of women denied coal mining jobs in two states.

"I'm delighted with the outcome," attorney Roslyn M. Litman said Saturday. "I'm very happy for the women. They'll get substantial money and that's a very good thing."

U.S. District Judge Alan N. Bloch gave final approval Friday to the settlement against the mining division of USX, formerly known as United States Steel Corp. He had tentatively approved the settlement in July.

The ruling culminates an eight-year court battle involving two USX mining districts in Pennsylvania and West Virginia with about a dozen mines, some of which are now idled.

TV arrest dismissed

CHANNELVIEW, Tex. — Cocaine possession charges were dismissed against a woman who was jailed for two days after her arrest was broadcast live on a national television special anchored by TV reporter Geraldo Rivera.

Terry Rouse, 28, was freed Friday after Judge Don Shipley ruled that there was no probable cause to pursue cocaine possession charges against her.

"It would appear that they'd have more sense than to pull something like this on live TV," Shipley said.

Freed Soviet speaks

BOSTON — Westerners visiting the Soviet Union should ignore the "Soviet censor inside their heads" and criticize human rights abuses there, even at the risk of expulsion, freed Soviet dissident Yuri Orlov said Saturday.

"Visitors to the Soviet Union don't speak their minds openly," the 62-year-old physicist said in his first formal appearance since reaching the West on Oct. 5 in the exchange that freed U.S. journalist Nicholas Danilov.

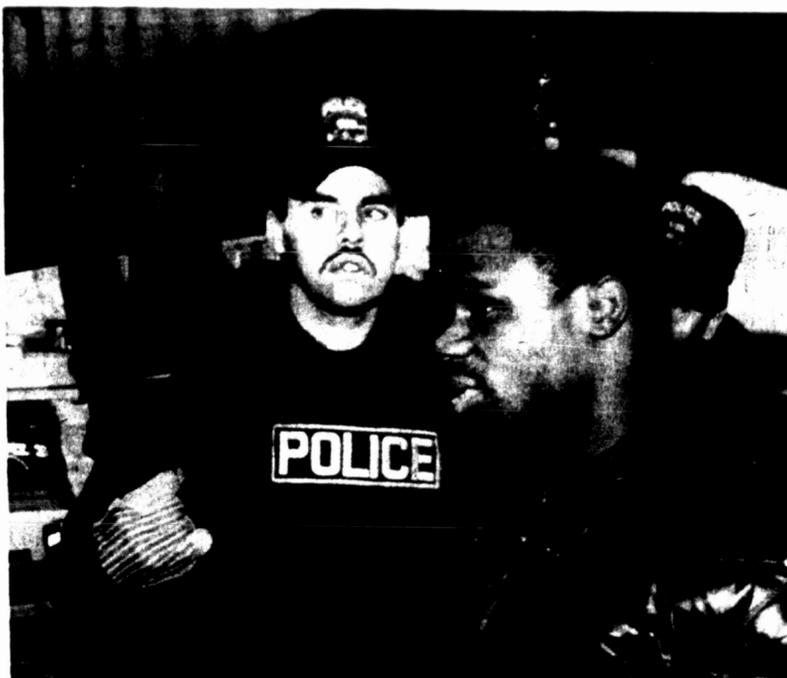

"In this sense, I think we dissidents are freer people than Western visitors."

Lava resumes journey

KALAPANA, Hawaii — Fiery molten lava resumed its march to the sea Saturday after apparently blasting through a jam in volcanic plumbing beneath the solidified surface crust, scientists said.

An erupting vent in the east rift zone of Kilauea Volcano has been sending lava coursing through an eight-mile tunnel network, said scientists at the U.S. Geological Survey's Hawaiian Volcano Observatory.

The tunnels apparently became jammed Thursday, causing lava to flow out through surface holes nearer to the eruptive vent, eight miles from the sea and far from threatened homes.

Larry Davis, a fugitive who eluded police for weeks after a shootout that wounded six officers, is escorted by police Saturday into the 48th Precinct in the Bronx, N.Y., after he surrendered peacefully, police said. Davis, 20, walked out of an apartment building after taking three hostages and barricading himself for nearly eight hours.

Manhunt ends

Fugitive surrenders after 17 days

NEW YORK (AP) — A fugitive who eluded police for 17 days after he allegedly wounded six officers trying to arrest him in the slayings of five drug suspects surrendered Saturday, freeing a mother and two children he held at gunpoint overnight.

The hunt for Larry Davis covered 48 states and included at least eight unsuccessful police raids involving hundreds of officers before a tipster led police Friday to the fugitive in a building less than two miles from the shootout with police Nov. 19.

Davis, 20, who reportedly had sworn never to be taken alive, kept police at bay in the top-floor apartment of a 14-story Bronx housing project from midnight until 7:15 a.m. Saturday, when negotiators persuaded him to lay down his .45-caliber pistol and hold out his hands to be cuffed.

No one was hurt. "Larry Davis put down his gun, removed his jacket and shirt to prove that he was unarmed" and surrendered, said police Commissioner Benjamin Ward. "He acted and looked exactly like a frightened 20-year-old."

About 30 residents of neighboring buildings leaned out their windows and cheered as police led Davis away. Police said Davis, a high-school dropout and aspiring rap musician, opened fire with a shotgun and a .45-caliber pistol as police tried to arrest him at a sister's apartment Nov. 19. Six officers were wounded and Davis escaped.

Police said Davis was sought in connection with the killings of four suspected drug dealers in the Bronx on Oct. 30 and a fifth in Manhattan on Sept. 16.

"I think he was tired," said Sgt. Peter Martin, one of two negotiators who talked with Davis through the night. "He wanted to come out."

Police said the net began to close Friday afternoon, when an informer said Davis was at the apartment of another sister. Heavily armed officers arrived minutes later.

Police brought Davis' wife, Melody Fludd, to speak with him by phone, although he made no specific demands of the police.

He said he was afraid police would hurt him, but agreed to give up after being assured that news reporters were present.

Ward said the charges to be lodged against him had not been determined.

Sikh temples guarded

NEW DELHI, India — Hundreds of troops were deployed around three Sikh temples in the capital on Saturday, a day after six people, including three security soldiers, were killed in rioting at one of the temples.

H.L. Kapur, the lieutenant governor of New Delhi state, also said the army was on standby in parts of western New Delhi, but that no soldiers had been ordered out on the streets. A curfew was in effect at all three temples.

Kapur ordered an inquiry into the deaths.

There were no reports of sectarian violence Saturday. In rioting Friday, six people were killed, more than 50 injured and about 160 arrested.

Kings talk about Iran

LONDON — Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger and one of his top aides tried in separate missions to mollify the kings of Morocco and Jordan about American arms sales to Iran, U.S. officials said Saturday.

The officials, speaking on condition of not being identified, said Weinberger and Morocco's King Hassan II held "extensive discussions" on Iran during six hours of talks Friday. Most of those talks were held with just the king and Weinberger present.

Assistant Defense Secretary Richard Armitage, meanwhile, spent the past week in Jordan attempting to soothe King Hussein, described by a source as "diplomatically angry" about the arms sales.

Europe supports U.S.

LONDON — Western European leaders said Saturday they stood by the United States in its time of trouble over the sale of arms to Iran.

"The world has need of the leadership of America," said British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher at the conclusion of a two-day European Community summit meeting.

Mrs. Thatcher, who presided over the meeting, said on behalf of the 12 European Community leaders: "Anything that weakens America, weakens Europe. Indeed it weakens the whole of the free world. Therefore it is my great hope that things will soon return to normal in the United States."

French minister resigns

PARIS — Hundreds of youths fought police in Paris on the third day of violent protests against a university reform bill, and 20,000 students marched to a hospital to mourn a young man who died Saturday after an earlier clash.

The author of the reform bill, Minister for Higher Education Alain Devaquet, sent a letter of resignation Saturday to Prime Minister Jacques Chirac. There was no indication whether the resignation was accepted.

The student, Malik Ousseki, 22, died early Saturday at Cochin Hospital.

The Paris prosecutor's office said an autopsy indicated that Ousseki probably died of "cardiac arrest caused by the previous kidney problem of the patient."

Soviets stoop to toy sabotage

In some parts of Afghanistan, children fear toys. They have learned that harmless-looking playthings sometimes conceal bombs that explode and maim them.

Who would booby-trap a child's toy? According to a report to the United Nations, the Soviets, in their zeal to subdue Afghanistan, have stooped to that level of barbarism.

The Soviets have relied on brute force since 1979 to keep a Marxist government in power in Afghanistan. But despite their announced withdrawal of 8,000 of the 120,000 Soviet troops stationed in that country, their struggle to end Afghan resistance has become more ruthless than ever.

The official U.N. report, prepared by Felix Ermacora, a law professor at the University of Vienna, described the horrors of a civil war that has sent 5 million Afghans — a third of the nation's population — fleeing for refuge to Iran and Pakistan.

Villages have been strafed and bombed; civilians have been choked with chemical weapons. Witnesses said that in Konduz Province on the Soviet border, Soviet soldiers crudely attempted to punish Afghan villagers for aiding rebels by kicking children to death and disemboweling one woman.

These are the atrocities of a desperate army of occupation. War-weary soldiers who can't go home lash out in vengeance against innocent Afghan civilians.

U.N. Under-Secretary Diego Cordovez again is trying to negotiate a timetable for the withdrawal of Soviet troops from Afghanistan. We hope the U.N. report helps convince the Soviets they should cooperate with him.

Ambulance refusal stirs infuriation

To the editor:
I am infuriated! I am the intensive care supervisor at Scenic Mountain Medical Center. Last week I had a critically ill four-month-old child admitted to my unit.

The physician contacted Lubbock General Pediatric Intensive Care concerning the severity of the baby's illness and it was agreed that the baby needed to be transported to Lubbock General Hospital to receive the necessary care he needed if he was to survive.

The parents are experiencing hard economic times — working hard but they do not have insurance. Lubbock General Hospital did not care about this monetary fact. The hospital proceeded to fly its REACT plane to Big Spring with a critical care team to get this baby.

Now, I will explain my frustration and anger.

Arrangements had been made for the child to get to the institution that is prepared to treat his type of illness — all we needed was for Lee Ambulance Service to meet the Lubbock team at the Big Spring Airport, bring the team to Scenic Mountain Medical Center, then transport the team and baby back to Big Spring Airport and the waiting plane.

The Lee Ambulance Service manager refused to do this because the parents could not pay the required fee — $160.

The extreme emergency of the situation was explained to the manager and he still required some sort of payment before he would send an ambulance. As a result, I, as a Registered Nurse, wrote a personal check to Lee Ambulance — just to get this child to the airport immediately.

Now I ask — how can this be justified?

This was a life and death situation! I consulted a county commissioner and he stated this ambulance service is supplemented monthly with $9,000. (Editor's note: Commissioners have said the amount actually is $3,000 per month.)

What kind of ambulance service do we have here in Big Spring if the ambulance manager does not act promptly in a crisis situation?

Must the nurses at the hospital pay the ambulance fees just to get their patients to destination for survival?

Something must be done to prevent this horrible situation from occurring again.

Examples set in drug abuse battle

To the editor:
At the Chemical People program on drug use prevention and treatment, we saw a dog sniff out a bottle of drugs. He is serving us by detecting the presence of drugs, especially in the schools.

His trainer and co-worker, Tammy, says he doesn't understand the danger of drugs. He doesn't know that millions of people, especially our young, are ruining their lives and usefulness to society by drug use. He is trained to do his job, and he does it enthusiastically and efficiently.

If Danny, a "dumb" animal, can be trained to sniff out harmful drugs, why can't we beings created in the image of the Creator be trained to do a similar task? The answer is we can. And some of us are.

Beverly Barron, Rita Fambrow, Tom Watson and Don Richardson put themselves out to present an informative program. Those of us who attended the meeting sense an urgency about eliminating the drug abuse scene in Big Spring and Howard County.

Cleaning up a mess sometimes is dirty work. It's easier to sit in front of a television set and watch some brave cop or newspaper person do

We had a brave cop in Big Spring — working under cover to bring down a powerful drug ring. Someone "blew her cover."

Drug use prevention and treatment are not political issues. We need our county judge and district attorney to become hard-hitting leaders against drug use.

Drug use prevention and treatment are family issues. At the same time we were meeting for the program on drugs, the high school auditorium was the scene of families enjoying a play at the Association for Retarded Citizens' fund-raiser.

That kind of activity — at which parents, grandparents and children have fun together — is one of the best deterrents to drug use. Close parental involvement is effective in keeping children and youth away from drug involvement.

Danny, the Dog can sniff out illicit stuff. Will we be so smart? The Big Spring High School Student Council members, their sponsor and the assistant principal are working to solve the drug problem among youth. Will we follow their example.

'Live' nativity scene helps stress reason for season

By DARRELL BERKHEIMER
Managing Editor

We were driving somewhere — I don't recall exactly where — when I noticed the sign outside a small church. It said: "Jesus is the reason for the season."

I do recall it was a Sunday, and we were on our way to dinner after attending church in Odessa.

I thought about the sign later, at home, while looking at a picture of a nativity scene. It was a picture of a "live" nativity scene and I was in it.

According to one of the jesters at the church, I was one of the three "wise guys."

That was in Utah, where the live nativity scene was started about four or five years ago. The idea, however, came from a Texan — a member who had participated in a similar scene elsewhere.

The suggestion came from Dr. Douglas Rowley, who grew up in the Austin area. He married a San Marcos gal named Quita, whom he met at the University of Texas.

Doug went to medical school in Denver, so I don't recall if he participated in the live nativity scene in Texas or Colorado.

He is an obstetrician-gynecologist. And last year he moved back to Colorado — to the Pueblo area to take over a practice and become associated with a hospital there.

Dr. Rowley explained that he had received a deep, spiritual feeling from being part of the live creche. He also reported that residents drove from throughout the area to see the manger scene.

He said the presentation was looked upon as a public service and feature event that emphasized "the reason for the season."

His impassioned account swayed

Berky's babblings

the church members and soon his wife and a few other members were busy sewing costumes while plans were drafted for a manger shelter. It was made from sawmill lumber unbarked on one side to give it a rustic appearance.

In addition, a small committee was formed to arrange for the animals. A farmer in the north end of the county provided a donkey, and a nearby rancher loaned three sheep.

Costumes were made for three shepherds, for "Joseph and Mary," and for three kings, or wise men. We used a child's doll for the baby Jesus.

Then the shelter was erected and spotlights were placed for the nighttime scene.

I was somewhat surprised at the makeup being applied to us when we showed that first night. That ordeal included fake beards for some of the men. I was advised, of course, that I was to be a wise man, because I already had a beard.

For three nights then — somewhat cold nights, I recall — a fairly large group of us took turns standing in the creche during four half-hour shifts — from 7 to 9 p.m.

while a speaker system broadcast Christmas music.

Although the event drew the attention of the news media, what was most rewarding were the oohs, aahs and other comments from the children, parents and grandparents who attended.

Despite the makeup, the cold and the aching muscles that developed from standing in the manger so still, it provided one of the most meaningful Christmas I had ever experienced.

The event was expanded to four nights the next year, and I participated for three or four straight years — helping to acquire the animals for those years. Then I learned that those tales about stubborn donkeys are just tales.

The last time I participated was in 1984. And now, for the second Christmas since, I'm missing the experience. I guess that's why I'm writing about it. It seems as if something important is missing from the season.

The only spiritual memory that is more vivid to me occurred when I was quite young — perhaps a preschooler.

It was at an Easter pageant in a theater where I was sitting near the aisle. I was moved to tears when "Jesus" came down the aisle carrying the cross on his back, and received a lash from the soldier's whip when he stumbled.

That was quite real for such a young fellow — too young to quite comprehend why someone would die for the sake of love, when I couldn't understand why it was necessary.

That understanding took quite a few years.

Texans must aid Mexico border trade

By JESSE TREVINO
Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's ascension to the chairmanship of the Senate's Finance Committee comes at a particularly crucial time.

Once again, the U.S. appears poised to blunder regarding Mexico — and in the process give the Japanese another golden opportunity to further penetrate U.S. markets.

Bentsen, a native of South Texas, may be one of few lawmakers who understands how U.S. trade with Mexico and the fight against the Japanese are intertwined.

The code word in this new phase of the U.S.-Japanese economic struggle is "maquiladora" — a phrase foreign to many Texans.

But maquiladoras — the twin industrial plants that have sprouted along the Rio Grande for the past 20 years — represent one of the few bright spots in the U.S. effort to compete with the Japanese.

The maquiladora (ma-key-ladora) allows U.S. companies to take advantage of Mexico's lower hourly wages to produce goods at prices that can compete against Japanese products.

Yet, a debate is brewing in Congress over whether the maquiladoras are hurting U.S. industry. Bentsen's challenge lies in stemming the evolving perception that Mexico is taking jobs away from U.S. workers.

From his Finance chairmanship, Bentsen can better influence congressional efforts to shape new trade legislation. Bentsen should have a powerful ally in fellow Texan Jim Wright of Ft. Worth, the next Speaker of the House.

While some industries have been hurt — such as some clothing and apparel assembling operations — the majority of the jobs being relocated to Mexico were scheduled for Korea, Taiwan, Singapore or some other Far East location.

When those jobs are located at or near the crucial, impoverished border area of Mexico and Texas, they fill a political and social stability need that even the most uninformed person should understand.

Yet the first shot across the bow was fired in the House when Rep. Ralph Regula, R-Ohio, and other Northern congressmen succeeded in blocking U.S. government participation in a maquiladora trade fair last week in Acapulco.

The next shot at the maquiladoras will be taken when a congressional committee considers the question of their impact on U.S. industry during hearings in El Paso next month.

What opponents of the maquiladoras do not understand is that Japan has targeted Mexico as a staging platform for its continued assault on U.S. industry. Given Mexico's idling economy, operating at only 30 percent industrial capacity, the Japanese are ready to annex a void into which U.S. companies naturally should be flowing.

Now that Mexico has changed its foreign ownership laws, the U.S. should understand that the Japanese, who reportedly are preparing to invest $1 billion in Mexico, constitute a real threat.

With increasing demands in Congress for a review of U.S. trade laws that allow U.S. companies to produce in Mexico, we could be on the verge of relinquishing to Japan — and other countries — a 2,000-mile economic zone from which they surely will torpedo and sink more U.S. industries.

Instead of arguing that the administration do something about the maquiladoras, congressmen concerned about losing jobs in their regions should focus on revitalizing their regional economies and on convincing Mexico to dedicate its economic frontier to U.S. companies.

Before he died, noted scholar-historian Theodore White warned that the global economic struggle between the U.S. and Japan would intensify. He would not be surprised to learn that Japan has opened a front along the Rio Grande in its economic war against the U.S.

Farabee to retain power

By JIM DAVIS
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A major reshuffling of power in the Texas Senate appeared possible recently with the news that Sen. Ray Farabee was in the running for chancellor of the University of Houston.

Farabee's withdrawal from consideration — either voluntarily because of commitments to his district, as he says, or reluctantly to avoid rejection, as some Capitol wags claim — put things back as they were.

That withdrawal undoubtedly brought sighs of relief from Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and sighs of disappointment from some senators. Those senators hoped to take advantage of a power vacuum that would have resulted if Farabee had headed off to the big city campus.

The senator from Wichita Falls is one of the most trusted and powerful members of the lieutenant governor's team in the east wing of the Capitol. Hobby spotted Farabee as one to trust soon after the Wichita Falls attorney arrived in the Senate in 1973, and he moved him ahead of some senators with more experience when committee assignments were handed out.

Thanks to Hobby's trust, Farabee now serves as chairman of the powerful Senate State Affairs Committee and holds a choice seat on the even-more-powerful Senate Finance Committee.

In addition to other nice, regular committee assignments, Farabee sits on the Legislative Budget

Jim Davis

Board, the Sunset Advisory Commission and the Select Committee on Higher Education.

If the Wichita Falls legislator had made a voluntary move to Houston, those choice Senate plums would have been open, and many of the 31 senators would have moved up in power and prestige.

Some realignment of power is in progress even without the loss of Farabee. That's because longtime senators Oscar Mauzy, D-Grand Prairie, and John Traeger, D-Seguin, won't be returning in January.

Mauzy, chairman of the Jurisprudence Committee and a leader among Senate liberals (or progressives as they call themselves these days), won election to the Texas Supreme Court. Traeger, Intergovernmental Affairs Committee chairman and gravel-voiced fighter for conservative causes, is retiring.

Sen. Gramm interprets

The lessons of Pearl Harbor

Editor's note: This guest column was written specifically for Pearl Harbor Day by Sen. Phil Gramm (R-Texas).

Guest
columnist

By U.S. SEN. PHIL GRAMM
WASHINGTON — On Dec. 7, 1941, most of our Pacific fleet was docked at Pearl Harbor in Hawaii. At anchor were eight battleships and numerous destroyers and cruisers.

Parked wing-tip to wing-tip in the middle of their airfields were nearly 400 U.S. combat aircraft.

It was a warm Hawaiian morning; the officers and enlisted men were cheerful.

America was at peace.
At 7:40 a.m., Imperial Japan launched a surprise attack on Pearl Harbor, destroying or severely damaging the bulk of our Pacific force.

That was 45 years ago, but the lessons seem very fresh.

People often ask how it could be that we were taken by surprise — certainly a fair question.

But perhaps more important is the question: How on earth could the Japanese, who clearly understood the massive productive power of our economy, have believed they could succeed with an attack on the United States?

The many Japanese military leaders educated in the United States understood our capability, but they equally understood our lack of preparedness and apparent lack of resolve. Japan believed we could not and probably would not immediately respond to their attack.

They judged our lack of preparedness correctly, but not our character and resolve.

After the First World War, the United States, as well as the European democracies, forgot that peace comes through strength. We came to view peace as a permanent condition and defenses as expensive and unlikely to be needed.

The U.S. Army was reduced to a mere 135,000 men, leaving us with the world's sixteenth largest army.

By 1939, as war erupted in Europe, the United States could muster forces of just 190,000 and the average infantryman carried a 1903 Springfield rifle.

When the Army conducted the Louisiana maneuvers of 1940, cardboard-covered trucks were used to simulate tanks, while men — my father among them — trained with wooden "guns."

Our unwillingness to pay for military forces also expressed itself in a search for peace through arms control agreements.

The five-power disarmament treaty signed at the Washington Conference of 1922 and the London naval treaty of 1930 imposed strict limits on the number, type, tonnage and armaments of our ships.

We also agreed, along with Britain, France and Japan, to ban the further fortification of military bases on Pacific island possessions.

Japan never lived up to the treaty, which it formally abrogated in 1940.

SEN. PHIL GRAMM
... recalls start of World War II

When war came, the Japanese swept through the Pacific and the Americans had to make do with the weapons on hand. If you visit the site of the bloody battle of Corregidor you will see the cannons our soldiers used with the place and date of manufacture — "Watervliet Arsenal, N.Y. 1890" — stamped into their barrels.

Our allies were similarly weak militarily. Britain rapidly demobilized her huge armies after 1918, largely dismantled her defense industries, and soon began a decade-long series of cuts in the defense budget.

In France, a war-weary country rested behind the fixed defenses of the Maginot Line.

Germany had walked out of the Geneva disarmament conference in 1933 and massively rearmed. By 1939, the German army was sweeping victoriously across the continent.

The Nazis' easy military conquests and the democracies' conspicuous weakness emboldened heavily-armed Japan, which desired to expand throughout Asia, much of it then under European or American control.

The United States and her allies were ill-prepared for reasons all too familiar today.

There was political opposition to spending money on defense, particularly when the economy was poor. The view of anti-defense ideologues was that money should go to "human needs," as if defending human life and freedom suddenly was not a human need.

Second was an overwhelming sense from World War I of the horror of modern warfare, coupled with the false notion that weapons cause war, while disarmament wins peace.

The horror of war was well-founded, but it was corrupted by a deadly unwillingness to prevent mass warfare by nipping aggression in the bud.

Finally, there was a plenitude of wishful thinking that war just could not happen, while realistic views of the rising threat to the democracies were ignored.

As always, those who saw defense spending as wasteful, or who ideologically objected to military preparedness, or who doggedly denied the existence of any threats, fell silent once war came, but by then it was more than a little late.

Winston Churchill, whose warnings had gone unheeded, called World War II "the unnecessary war," meaning that it could have been prevented by an early demonstration of resolve.

But by Dec. 7, 1941 it was a desperately necessary war into which the United States had been drawn. America was the only hope for freedom left in a world that had appeased the tyrants.

The bravery, valor and heroism of the American soldiers cannot be overstated. At a time when the price of failure was absolute, our soldiers met the challenge and triumphed.

Today we remember the lessons of Pearl Harbor by learning from the noble sacrifice of our citizen-soldiers and by keeping America strong enough to preserve the liberty that they won.

In a time of peace few want to think of — much less spend money — preparing for war.

But as George Washington so wisely counseled his countrymen, "To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual ways of preserving peace." Let those who would forget this historic truth think today about Pearl Harbor.

History shows that sadly and inevitably, unpreparedness and the seductive illusion of immunity force a nation into war, and at a time when it is least ready.

How many lives lost in battle were actually sacrificed in peacetime through a complacency that robbed a nation of its deterrent and its will? And through wisdom and readiness, how many future lives can we save today?

These are the questions at the heart of our national security. These are questions to think about on Dec. 7th, 1986.

GIVE NOW OR LATER?

Because the Tax Reform Act of 1986 changes the rules on contributions, every charity-minded taxpayer should review his/her plans for giving before the end of the year.

1986 is the last year that charitable contributions can be deducted by non-itemizers. Also, tax rates will drop next year for most taxpayers, so the tax benefit for any charitable contribution decreases next year (assuming you're in a lower tax bracket in 1987). To illustrate, if you're in the top tax bracket (50%) in 1986, a $5,000 charitable contribution will cut your 1986 tax bill by $2,500. The same contribution made in 1987 (top bracket, 38.5%) would cut your tax bill by only $1,925.

Donating appreciated property has been a tax-wise move and remains so for 1986. If you have stock, for example, that you purchased several years ago for $1,000 and today it's worth $10,000, you can give it to your favorite charity and take a deduction for $10,000. The $9,000 appreciation goes untaxed. However, beginning in 1987, that untaxed appreciation is considered a "preference item" and could trigger the 21% alternative minimum tax.

When you deduct donated property valued at more than $5,000 ($10,000 for non-publicly traded stock), you must provide a qualified, written appraisal. Appraisal costs are fully deductible as a miscellaneous deduction in 1986 if you itemize on your tax return. In 1987, such costs are combined with your other miscellaneous deductions and can be deducted only to the extent they exceed 2% of your adjusted gross income.

The timing of your contribution is important. If you make a pledge to contribute to a charity, you get the tax deduction when you actually make your payment. If you use a charge card to make a charitable contribution, you get your deduction in the year of the charge rather than in the year of payment. A charitable contribution made by check is considered delivered and deductible when put in the mail. Gifts of real estate are considered complete and deductible when legal title changes hands.

House GOP and Democrats elect leaders this week

By JILL LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats and Republicans meet this week to organize and elect their leaders, with a savvy and silver-tongued Texan in line to become the powerful speaker of the House after balloting Monday.

The Democrats, who hold a 258-177 majority, also will vote on proposed rule changes including banning age discrimination against House employees and allowing members to mention the word "Senate" on the House floor. They now must call it "the other body."

House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, will succeed the retiring Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. as speaker, a position to which he has aspired almost since entering the House 31 years ago.

His ascension paves the way for the Democrats to promote House Whip Thomas Foley to majority leader. With incumbents Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., and Mary Rose Oakar, D-Ohio, unopposed as caucus chairman and secretary, the only contest is the race to succeed Foley.

Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, is considered the front-runner. But Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., is also in the race and contended last week he was within 10 votes of Coelho.

There are no contests on the Republican side, where Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., and Minority Whip Trent Lott, R-Miss., will hold onto their posts. Other sure bets for re-election include Reps. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., chairman of the Republican Conference, and Richard Cheney, R-Wyo., chairman of the policy committee.

Wright, 63, a former bomber pilot whose first ambition was to be a football player, has risen through the House ranks through legislative skill and hard work. Reserved about his personal life, he is a flowery public orator. He writes his own speeches and relaxes by gardening.

Wright's No. 1 goal as speaker: to tip the balance of power, now tilting toward the White House, back to Congress "in a way that preserves the spirit of comity between the branches of government." Trade, agriculture and the nation's urban infrastructure are at the top of his legislative agenda.

Foley, 57, a genial Spokane native with a penchant for Baroque music, is considered knowledgeable, capable and fair by Democrats and Republicans alike. He also has a reputation as a conciliator, despite spending the last six years as whip — a job with party unity as its goal.

"What's done around here that has some lasting value usually has some element of bipartisanship about it," says the imposing 6-foot-4 legislator, who first came to Washington 25 years ago as an aide to the late Sen. Henry "Scoop" Jackson. He was elected to Congress in 1964.

The race for Democratic whip pits Coelho, a four-term congressman from California's agricultural Central Valley, against Rangel, who has been representing New York's Harlem for twice that long.

Rangel, 56, has been a deputy whip for the past four years. He would add geographical balance to the leadership, which has no members from East of the Mississippi River, and would be the first black to hold the whip post — a point made by black leaders who say they got out their vote last month and it was pivotal in a number of Democratic races.

For his part, Coelho, 46, has revitalized the campaign committee since taking over in 1980 after its chairman was defeated. He developed direct mail fundraising techniques and doled out unprecedented amounts of money and other help to candidates, among them the victors who will be voting for whip Monday.

Coelho said last week he had 52 more votes than he needed to win.

14-year-old organizes town parade

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Marching bands and floats drew a crowd to Main Street on Saturday for the town of Picher's first Christmas parade in memory, thanks to the efforts of a veteran community organizer, 14-year-old Jerry Coach Jr.

"Jerry's just a very unusual boy. He's just a hard worker," said H.C. Bauman, president of the First State Bank of Picher. "Some people say 'That can't be done.' And he just gets out there and does it."

Jerry described himself modestly as "coordinator of the parade." He invited color guards from as far away as Wichita, Kan., and asked firefighters, police officers, bands and floats to join the parade in this former mining community in the northeastern corner of the state.

His efforts paid off with 40 to 50 units following the five- to six-block parade route, said Assistant Fire Chief Bob Hayworth. He was on duty and could see only one intersection, but said there was "quite a crowd."

About 250 people watched the parade, said Picher police officer Jim Jones, who brought up the rear of the parade to block traffic.

When Jerry thought up the Christmas parade a few weeks ago, he solicited $25 donations from store owners to pay for prizes for parade entries and the first city decorations on Main Street in years.

"No one else just wanted to take responsibility for it," Jerry said in a telephone interview Friday.

He and his friends spent nine hours Nov. 29 decorating the downtown.

"I got garland tinsel and put it around a bunch of telephone poles downtown," he said. "The fire department put my tree up for me."

The 15-foot tree, donated by a farmer, was strung with $110 worth of lights, plus ornaments made by elementary school children. "I'm still hanging stuff on it," Jerry said.

"We've never had decorations in town," Bauman said. "I'm just overwhelmed almost at the community support. Jerry started it and got it all rolling."

Until Saturday, the Miner's Reunion each August had been the community's biggest event. In the 1920s, lead and zinc mines swelled the city's population to 16,000. The mines closed in 1977 and now about 2,200 people live in the town surrounded by slag heaps and ore-mill ruins.

The Christmas parade wasn't Jerry's first community project.

He recently was honored by the Muscular Dystrophy Association for raising $1,739 during an August fund drive. He got most of the money by standing in the middle of Main Street and asking motorists for donations.

"The next project, I'm trying to get new sidewalks poured," he said.

Louisiana wants another monkey trial, CLU says

By DAVID McCORMICK
Associated Press Writer
BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — A law requiring schools to teach creationism alongside evolution goes before the U.S. Supreme Court this week, a case civil rights lawyers say could lead to a repeat of the Scopes "monkey trial."

Louisiana is appealing a federal judge's decision that the 1981 law violates constitutional separation of church and state.

The American Civil Liberties Union challenged the law, which has never been enforced, as an attempt to teach religion disguised as science. The ACLU says the case could either end the creationism movement or open a new round in the conflict between Darwin and Genesis.

"It's the latest wrinkle in a century-old attempt to ban the teaching of evolution," said Martha Kegel, president of the Louisiana ACLU.

The Supreme Court is to hear arguments Wednesday and rule sometime next year. The court can either order a trial at the district court level or uphold the ruling declaring the law unconstitutional.

The ACLU says the issue is the same that confronted Tennessee schoolteacher John Scopes, who agreed in 1925 to challenge a state law prohibiting the teaching of Charles Darwin's theory that man evolved from lower life forms over millions of years.

Scopes was convicted and fined $100 but the verdict was later overturned on a technicality. His trial gave worldwide publicity to the evidence supporting evolution, and Scopes lived to see the Supreme Court strike down a similar Arkansas law in 1968.

Louisiana Attorney General

William Guste claims his state's law avoids constitutional pitfalls by requiring only that students be exposed to what scientific evidence may support both theories, not just one or the other.

"We are defending the student's right to be exposed to all the evidence," Guste said. "There is nothing in this act that implies the Bible should be taught, that God should be taught. All that it provides is that scientific evidence be taught."

Scientists debate whether there is any legitimate evidence to support creationism, which parallels the Bible's Book of Genesis in holding that the earth and most of its life forms were created suddenly about 6,000 years ago.

The state has submitted affidavits from two biology scholars contending there is a scientific basis for creationism. The ACLU will point to a brief filed by 72 Nobel Prize winners attacking the law.

"Teaching religious ideas mislabeled as science is detrimental to scientific education," the Nobel laureates' statement said. "It sets up a false conflict between science and religion and misleads our youth about the nature of scientific inquiry."

The author of the law, former state Sen. Bill Keith, was a lay minister who made no bones about the religious foundation of creationism. Keith told fellow legislators that evolution was a tenet of the humanist movement, which he called "a bona fide religion" itself.

The law was immediately challenged by the ACLU and the state Board of Elementary and Secondary Education, which argued unsuccessfully in state courts that the Legislature had no power to order specific subjects taught.

U.S. District Judge Adrian Duplantier ruled the law unconstitutional on the basis of a similar decision that struck down a comparable Arkansas law a year earlier.

Guste claims Duplantier was wrong to overturn the law without a trial. The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the judge last year on an 8-7 vote.

Guste, a candidate in the 1987 governor's race, says all he wants is a fair trial. ACLU state legal director David Whitmore says the issues have already been debated.

"All it would do is repeat the Scopes trial needlessly," Whitmore said. "If we lose here, we would take a step backward some 60 years."

State legislatures across the South were considering similar laws after Arkansas and Louisiana adopted theirs, but abandoned the proposals after the Arkansas law was struck down and officials there declined to appeal.

The ACLU fears another round of creationism battles if the high court revives the issue, Kegel said. "The movement is still very much alive," she said.

Arguing the case for Louisiana will be Atlanta lawyer Wendell Bird, a creationism activist once affiliated with a creationism textbook publisher.

Bird is working for free and soliciting contributions to offset the state's other costs in pressing the appeal. Guste refuses to estimate what the state has spent.

The ACLU's case will be argued by another volunteer lawyer, Jay Topkis of New York.

Students compete in contests

The Student Council is having their annual door decoration contest. The deadline for turning in entry forms was Dec. 5. The judging will take place Dec. 17. The winners will be announced at the Christmas Assembly. First place will receive $30, second place $25 and third place $20.

Dec. 8-12 classes will compete in the can food drive. Third period classes will be put in categories of 15 or less and 16 or more. The winner will be determined by the percentage of cans per member in the class. Prizes will be first place $30, second place $25 and third place $20. Winners for the canned food drive will also be announced during the Christmas Assembly Dec. 19. Deadline for entry forms from each class was also Dec. 5.

The Steer Band begins its concert season preparing for the Christmas parade and Winter concert. The band took approximately 40 members to the District 2-4A Region band tryouts.

The French Club is having a meeting Dec. 8 at 7 p.m. It will consist of Christmas carolling and fondue. All members are reminded to get the password from Mrs. Koger.

Seniors are also reminded to see the counselors for second semester schedule changes this week. The principal, Mr. Murphy, expresses these changes are important and no changes will be made after the second semester begins.

There will be ACT study sessions in the visitor classroom starting at 8 a.m. for all students who plan to take the college entrance exam and would like a test review.

Coahoma will be having a Christmas Dance on Dec. 13, from 8 p.m. until 1 a.m. The price of the tickets will be $3 for singles and $5 for couples.

On Tuesday, Dec. 9, the junior varsity and varsity girls will play their first District 5-AAA game against Abilene Wylie in Coahoma starting at 6:30 p.m. Colorado City will be hosting a junior varsity Tournament on Dec. 12 and 13. The junior varsity boys will be the only team participating for Coahoma.

Ozona will be hosting a varsity tournament on Dec. 11-13. The varsity girls and boys will be participating for Coahoma.

Goliad by Christopher Park

Goliad helps with food drive

The Salvation Army will be having its annual Christmas canned goods drive. It will start Monday, Dec. 8 and will end Friday, Dec. 12. Put the canned goods you bring, such as peas, corn and green beans under the Christmas tree in the foyer. This will help needy families of our community through the holiday season.

The Heritage Museum is having a Christmas Wreath and Tree Decoration contest Dec. 2-13. The Signal class, the Art Dept. and the Golden Girls will be participating.

The Art Dept. will be displaying student art work at the Big Spring Mall Dec. 7-14.

The Goliad Golden Girls will be attending basketball games for Goliad, Runnels, Big Spring High School and Howard College Hawks and Queens, providing support for these teams.

An assembly will honor students who have made the Maverick or Merit honor roll two times. Each of these students will receive a bumper sticker.

The last chance to buy an annual was Dec. 5th. Our first and last basketball pep-rally was Friday.

Garden City by LeAnn Seidenberger

Students play Restaurateurs

The Casa de Amigos Restaurant will be Thursday from 5 to 7:30 p.m. in the cafeteria. This is sponsored by Homemaking Dept. and proceeds will go to the scholarship fund for Homemaking students.

The Christmas band concert will be Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium.

Dec. 11, 12, and 13 the Junior High boys and girls will be playing in the Sterling City basketball tournament.

The Bearcats will host the Loraine Bulldogs on Friday night. Junior Varsity boys will play at 5 p.m., with Varsity girls and boys games following.

The Garden City Junior Varsity tournament will be Saturday beginning at 7:30 a.m.

On Monday, the Junior High will host the Sterling City Eagles with games beginning at 6 p.m.

On Dec. 9, the Varsity and Junior Varsity girls will travel to Miles for games starting at 5 p.m. The Varsity and Junior Varsity boys will play at Rankin at 5 p.m. on the same night.

Forsan by Ricky Hope

Forsan class favorites chosen

Class favorites were chosen recently for the current year. Freshman favorites are Laurie Roberson and Clint Tanis. Sophomore favorites are Shane Clanton and Kim Evans. Senior favorites are David Henson and Kerry Rawls.

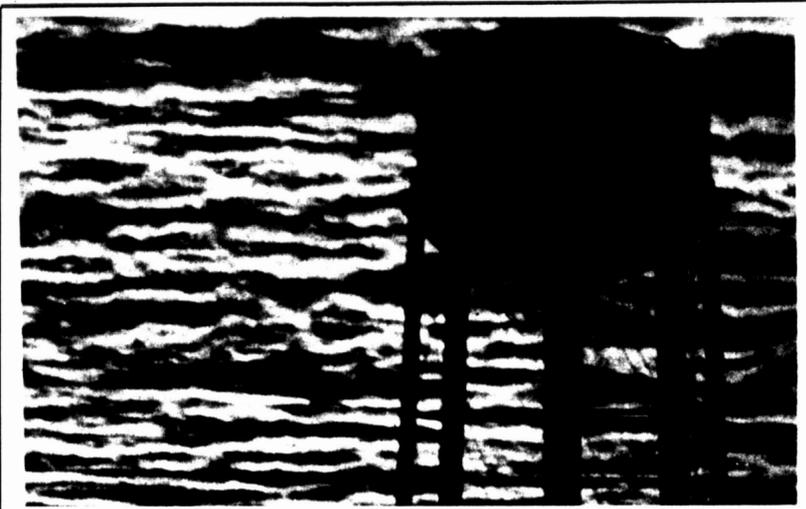

The Student Council is selling buttons for the basketball season. Anyone interested in purchasing a button needs to see Mrs. Sims or a member of the Student Council.

The junior high girls basketball teams played in Big Spring last Monday. The seventh grade girls played Goliad while the eighth grade girls played Runnels. Both teams were victorious.

The high school basketball teams hosted Coahoma last Tuesday night. The junior varsity girls were victorious while the other teams suffered losses.

The Student Council recently hosted a Teacher Appreciation Day. They held a buffet in the teachers' lounge. Food and drinks were served throughout the day.

Testaverde swamps competition in Heisman race

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Vinny Testaverde, the University of Miami's record-setting quarterback, won the 52nd annual Heisman Trophy in near record-setting fashion Saturday night.

The 6-foot-5 senior from nearby Elmont, N.Y., won the trophy as the nation's outstanding college football player by the second-largest margin ever over running back Paul Palmer of Temple. Jim Harbaugh of Michigan was third.

"Dad, we dreamed it together, we lived it together, and you can say we won it together," Testaverde said to his father, who was sitting in the audience with his mother when the award was announced at the Downtown Athletic Club.

Testaverde's father, Al, who said he once dreamed of winning the Heisman himself, and his mother, Josie, both cried openly as the trophy was awarded to their son.

"People have been saying that Vinny Testaverde is going to win the Heisman Trophy," Testaverde said, "but you can't get the real effect until you hear your name. I felt like crying, but I knew I had to talk, so I held the tears back."

Testaverde received 678 of 790 first-place votes and 2,213 points after leading the country in passing efficiency by completing 63.4 percent of his passes — 175 of 276 — for 2,557 yards and a nation-leading, school-record 26 touchdowns with only nine interceptions.

Palmer received 28 first-place votes and 672 points while Harbaugh had 25 first-place ballots and 458 points.

University of Miami quarterback Vinny Testaverde poses with the 1987 Heisman Trophy award at the Downtown Athletic Club in New York Saturday.

Testaverde won the award by 1,541 points. O.J. Simpson of Southern Cal won the 1968 Heisman by 1,750 points over Leroy Keyes of Purdue.

Linebacker Brian Bosworth of Oklahoma finished fourth, followed by Gordie Lockbaum of Holy Cross, Brent Fullwood of Auburn, Cornelius Bennett of Alabama, D.J. Dozier of Penn State, Kevin Sweeney of Fresno State and Chris Spielman of Ohio State.

Despite finishing fifth overall, Lockbaum, who played defensive back and running back and ran back kicks for Holy Cross, had 32 first-place votes, more than anyone besides Testaverde.

For his career, Testaverde completed 413 of 674 passes — 61.3 percent — for 6,058 yards and a school record 48 touchdowns. In his two seasons as a starter, he was 391 of 628 for 5,795 yards and 47 touchdowns.

As a freshman in 1982, Testaverde appeared in two games, completing five of 12 passes for 79 yards and one touchdown. He sat out the 1983 season as a redshirt and saw action in six games as a sophomore in 1984, completing 17 of 34 passes for 184 yards.

Testaverde considered transferring to another school after playing behind Bernie Kosar in 1984. But Kosar, who graduated well ahead of his original class, bypassed his final two collegiate seasons to turn professional, creating an opening for Testaverde.

He erased Kosar's marks and set Miami career records of 5,738 yards in total offense, 6,058 passing yards and 48 touchdown passes. He had more passing yards than total offense because of sacks.

Ironically, Testaverde, who turned 23 last month, is slightly older than Kosar.

With Testaverde as the starting quarterback, the Hurricanes are 20-2 overall. They went 11-0 during the 1986 season to earn a No. 1 national ranking and will meet runner-up Penn State in the Fiesta Bowl on Jan. 2 for the national championship.

Testaverde's best game this season came against then-No. 1 Oklahoma on Sept. 27. He completed 21 of 28 passes for 261 yards and four touchdowns in a 28-16 victory that lifted Miami to the No. 1 ranking. He also threw four touchdowns passes against Northern Illinois and Pitt and passed for 330 yards against Texas Tech, 315 against Florida State and 308 against Tulsa.

Ex-Steers coach takes Tech. helm

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Spike Dykes, Texas Tech's defensive coordinator for the past three years, was named the Red Raiders' 12th head coach Saturday, one day after head coach David McWilliams abandoned Tech for the University of Texas.

Athletic Director T. Jones announced Dykes' hiring at a 5:30 p.m. CST press conference in the Lettermen's Lounge overlooking Jones Stadium.

Dykes' previous jobs include head coach of the Big Spring Steers from 1967-1969 and head coach for Coahoma from 1964 to 1965. Dykes had a 24-2 record in his two years with the Bulldogs. He also coached at Midland Lee from 1980 to 1983, during which time he took Lee to the state finals.

Jones said Dykes would begin preparing the Red Raiders for their Dec. 20 Independence Bowl game with Mississippi, and that McWilliams would not be participating in Tech's first bowl game since 1977.

"It's the greatest moment in my life," said Dykes, who was born in Lubbock. "I pledge to do everything in my power to keep the program going in the right direction. Things happen fast, and that's probably good."

Dykes said it took him "about 45 seconds" to decide to take the job after Jones offered it to him earlier Saturday.

He said Red Raider fans should quit being angry over the defection of McWilliams to the Longhorns after only one year in Lubbock.

SPIKE DYKES

"It doesn't do any good to worry about what happened yesterday," Dykes said. "We have a football game in two weeks and need to center our attention on it."

It had been assumed McWilliams would coach the Independence Bowl game, which is played in Shreveport, La., but the Red Raider football team was up in arms about that possibility after he left.

Center Chris Tanner, a co-captain, met with Jones shortly before a hurriedly called press conference and said, "It was unanimous. We didn't want him (McWilliams) at the Independence Bowl."

Tanner added that "we didn't want that after we saw Mrs. McWilliams flashing the 'Hook 'em Horns' sign on television. That really hurt."

Bulldogs and Bulldogettes do it, but not the easy way

By ROBERT WERNSMAN
City Editor

You can't find fault with the Coahoma basketball teams when it comes to providing courtside excitement.

As if a Saturday night overtime tournament championship victory by the Bulldogettes was not enough, the Bulldogs did 'em one better — a double overtime championship victory over Stanton.

The Bulldogettes used a strong fourth quarter to overcome the Brownfield Cubs 51-48; before the night was over, the Coahoma Bulldogs treated the fans to a 55-53 double overtime victory over a tenacious Stanton Buffalo team in the Coahoma Invitational Tournament.

If you had watched only the first 2:13 of the Bulldog-Buffalo match-up there would have been little doubt in your mind on the outcome: Stanton was clearly in charge.

With nearly six minutes remaining in the first period, the visitors had jumped to a 10-2 lead and Bulldog coach Kim Nichols had already called time to attempt to regroup his forces.

He knew he was in for a battle, having been defeated by this same

Stanton squad by 11 points earlier this season.

Nichols said before the game he was confident his team had improved — in fact, the Bulldogs had jumped from a 1-3 record before this week began to a 4-3 record before taking the court Saturday in the championship.

This game, he said, would be a test of that improvement.

If that was the case, the Bulldogs passed the test.

They battled back during the first period to overcome the early eight-point deficit and close the gap midway through the second period when David Wood hit a field goal to forge a 25-24 Coahoma edge.

Wood was one of three Bulldogs to hit double figures, in a show of balanced scoring by the champions.

Coahoma was paced by a pair of 14-point efforts by floor leader Dee Jon Douglass and guard James White. In addition, center Jimmy King had nine and Marray Maddox hit eight.

Haying registered seven straight points to take the lead, Coahoma used a pair of field goals by Douglass, including one on a perfect assist by White, to own a 33-30 halftime lead.

That three-point difference failed to stand up during third quarter action, with Stanton hitting a field goal and an extra point in the closing 57 seconds of the period to fashion a 33-30 comeback with the final eight minutes of regulation play remaining.

That fourth period did not start well for the Bulldogs.

Stanton clicked on three straight goals to own a 47-43 lead with under five minutes remaining.

However, over a 43-second interval, Douglass hit a 25-footer, White added a field goal, and then stole the ball and nailed down another two-pointer to push Coahoma into a 49-47 lead before Stanton could catch its breath.

Free throws by Stanton gun Greg Avery thudded the game once again. He finished as leading scorer in the contest with 30 — one shy of the 31 he popped in during the earlier contest between the two teams.

Douglass stole the ball and went in for the basket with 1:48 remaining, before Stanton responded with a Skip Hopkins field goal for a 51-51 score with 1:29 remaining.

Lady Steers capture Hardin-Simmons title

ABILENE — The Big Spring Lady Steers fought neck and neck with the Sweetwater Lady Mustangs for four quarters before edging the Sweetwater girls 41-39 in the finals of the Hardin-Simmons Tournament.

In a late result, the Big Spring Steers lost 87-72 to Levelland in the finals of the Levelland Invitational. No details were available.

Teresa Pruitt, who scored 56 points in the three Lady Steers' wins, was named the tournament's most valuable player. Paige Clawson, who scored 23 in the win over Brownwood Friday, was named to the all-tournament team.

Clawson led the Lady Steers Saturday night with 13 points. The Lady Mustangs keyed on Pruitt, holding the high scoring forward to eight points. Sheri Myrick had 10 points and Katrina "I want to brag on our girls. We played extremely hard. Obviously in a game like this we made a few mistakes but we played hard.

"I'm proud of 'em but we don't have any chance to rest. We've got Sweetwater again Tuesday night in the district opener (at Steer gym)," said Lady Steers' coach C.E. Carmichael after the game.

The Lady Steers led 22-18 at the half, but trailed 30-29 at the end of the third quarter. Carmichael said it was by far the toughest game of the tourney.

The Big Spring girls improved to 8-1 with the win.

Coahoma girls win

Brownfield Saturday discovered what other teams are learning: when Coahoma Bulldogettes' Shanna Fowler is on, beware.

She was that, hitting in double figures in both free throws and field goals to score 31 points enroute to the overtime championship victory of the Coahoma Invitational, 51-48.

She received back-up assistance from Shona Drewery and Jancy Cunningham, who each had eight points.

A close game throughout the first half, the Bulldogettes saw Brownfield run off six straight points near the end of the third period to hold a 39-32 edge with 23 seconds left.

Coahoma responded with eight straight points during the next three and a half minutes to push to a 40-39 lead with 4:18 left in regulation play.

From there, the teams exchange

ed the lead four times before a Brownfield free throw with 35 seconds tied the game at 48-all to send the contest into overtime.

Drewery hit a field goal with 25 seconds elapsed during the 3-minute overtime and Fowler added a free throw with 1:33 remaining to conclude the scoring and ice the game.

Fowler, Hudson and Cunningham each made the all-tournament team from Coahoma. Also on the all-tourney team were: Teresa Davis, Stamford; Shannon Lawson, Tahoka; Tammi Hood, Tahoka; Kim Evans, Forsan; Kim Smith, Post; Sheryl Swoopes, Brownfield; Deborah Williams, Brownfield.

COAHOMA (51) — Fowler 10-11-31; Hudson 2-4-4; Hudson 0-0-0; Drewery 3-2-8; Cunningham 2-2-8. Totals: 18-15-51.

BROWNFIELD (48) — Bond 1-0-2; Williams 4-3-11; Swoopes 14-3-31; Smith 1-0-2; Timmons 1-0-2. Totals: 21-6-48.

Bradsher's "KB" stuns defenders

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

After chowing on either the fried fish, the chili, or the pot pie in the school cafeteria, the Howard College Hawks mulled through the student lobby before the next class and spotted Kevin Bradsher talking to the newspaperman.

After some needling and laughter, the players decide they want Norris Sumrall to do his impression of the "KB", which is evidently Bradsher's trademark way of stepping onto the dance floor.

"Do the 'KB' Morris, do the 'KB'," they beg their teammate. Even Bradsher wants to see it.

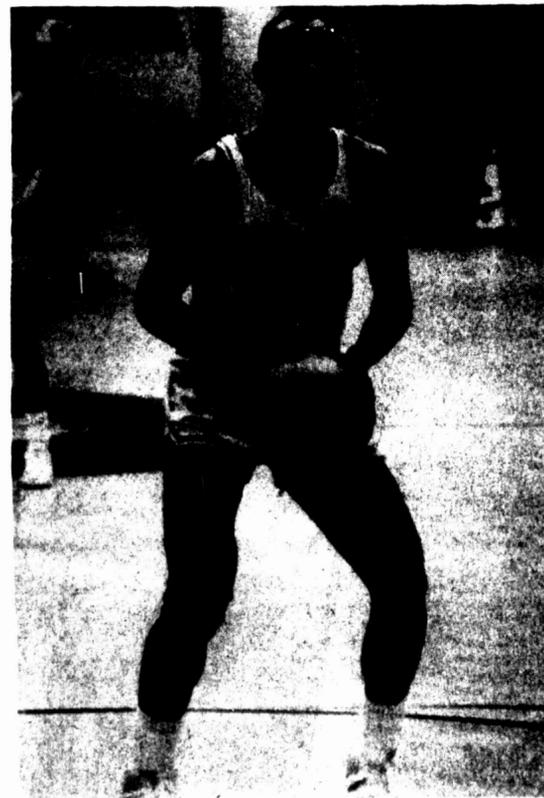

So Sumrall, after a little mental preparation, dips his back low and takes a giant moon step, as if he was trying to step over a picket fence and stay under the barbed wire. At the end of the giant step, he stands straight, as if to announce, "Here's the party, now let's dance." Everybody, including Bradsher, cracks up.

Anybody who has seen the Hawks play this year knows about Bradsher, and whether they realize it or not, they've seen the "KB," albeit a more useful variation. Bradsher uses the "KB" on luckless defenders, who remain in place shaking their heads wondering how that happened so fast.

In basketball lingo, the "KB" is simply an incredible first step and a defender's nightmare.

"What makes the difference is that first step," says teammate Sammy Jackson about Bradsher's giant, mosquito-quick first step.

When you have a first step like the "KB," and you add a silky sweet jump shot that knows no boundaries, then what you have is, essentially, an unfair situation. Bradsher's defenders just don't have a chance. He has too many weapons, and he will score, as demonstrated by his 23.9 points per game average after 13 games.

Howard College Hawks scoring machine Kevin Bradsher prepares to sink a free throw for one his 28 points in the Hawks' 71-70 win over Odessa last Monday night. The Hawks, 7-4, play New Mexico Junior College in Hobbs Monday, and will play West Texas Thursday night in Big Spring.

When Bradsher's asked if he ever knows he can eat a defender's lunch, he laughs. "All the time. It's the best feeling you can have. I feel I can use up any post man (center); anybody down low, and they've been had. Down low, either I'm going to score or I'm going to get fouled. And I prefer to score," Bradsher says, and he's not bragging. It's just that when you score 20, 30 points a game, the truth is a little more exalted.

As a sophomore in high school, the 6-1 Bradsher used defenders in much the same way he does now; only then, it was in P.E. class at Bryan High School. The basketball coach at Bryan was current Hawks' coach Larry Brown, and he had a policy of picking one player from the P.E. classes every year and putting him on the varsity.

"When I first saw him he was playing football in P.E. class, and I noticed him throwing the football and he had the biggest hands I'd ever seen. I asked about him and sure enough, he was a good athlete," Brown says.

Bradsher hadn't played organized basketball since the eighth grade, but he knew he could play. Watching Bryan in the playoffs his sophomore year he made up his mind, sort of, that he was going to play.

"I was sitting in the stands with my girlfriend and I told her, 'I'm going to be on that team next year.' But I still hesitated. The guys on the team said I wouldn't make it because of the running, and I agreed with them because I don't like running — period," Bradsher says, shaking his head and laughing as he talks about the running. He says Brown once made them run a 13-mile course.

Bradsher's commitment, and the running, paid off. In his first PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Army quarterback Tory Crawford ran for 94 yards and one touchdown to lead the Cadets to a 27-7 victory over Navy Saturday in the 87th football meeting of the military academies.

Army touchdowns by Crawford, Andy Peterson and Clarence Jones on the Cadets' first three possessions of the second half turned a 6-0 halftime lead into a rout.

The win gave the Cadets, 6-5, the Commander in Chief's Trophy for the best record in round-robin competition among Army, Navy and Air Force. It was the first time Army has had three consecutive winning seasons since 1966-68.

The loss was the seventh straight for the Midshipmen, who finished the season 3-8.

The series record stands at 41 wins for Navy, 39 for Army with seven ties.

With a 6-0 lead on two 24-yard field goals by Keith Walker in the first half, Army took the opening kickoff of the second half and drove 44 yards on six plays, with Peterson going up the middle for a 1-yard scoring run.

But Navy came back behind the inspired running of junior tailback Don Holl.

Holl ran the ball 11 times in the 14-play drive and picked up 55 of the Midshipmen's 71 yards. He went off-guard for a 3-yard touchdown run to cut the Army lead to 13-7 with the extra point.

A 1-yard touchdown run by Crawford gave the Cadets some breathing room as Army drove 79 yards on 17 plays, all on the ground.

The Army march consumed more than seven minutes on the clock and gave the Cadets a 20-7 lead.

Alford-led Hoosiers slide by Wildcats

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Steve Alford, Daryl Thomas and Joe Hillman scored two free throws apiece in the final 42 seconds Saturday, preserving third-ranked Indiana's 71-66 college basketball victory over No. 13 Kentucky.

The Hoosiers, 3-0, never trailed in the second half but saw an eight-point lead cut to one on the shooting of Kentucky freshman Rex Chapman, who finished with a career-high 26 points.

The Wildcats closed within one point three times in the final minutes, the last time at 65-64 on a basket by Chapman with 1:33 to go.

But Thomas started the Hoosiers' final string of free throws to push the lead back to three. Hillman added two more with 19 seconds to go, then Alford finished the scoring with two free throws with three seconds left.

Chapman, who also had three

3-point goals, got a layup at the buzzer.

Alford had 26 points, including a pair of first-half three-pointers. Center Dean Garrett added 13 points and Thomas finished with 12 for the Hoosiers.

Kentucky, 2-1, got 10 points apiece by Irving Thomas and Derrick Miller.

Alford sat out last year's five-point loss at Kentucky because of an NCAA-ordered suspension for posing for a charity calendar.

He had 12 points in the first half, including a three-point goal that gave Indiana a 7-2 lead in the opening minutes, and six points during a streak of 10 straight points in the closing minutes of the half.

Kentucky's first lead was at 12-10 on a three-point goal by Chapman, and the Wildcats' biggest lead was at 30-24 on a three-pointer by Miller with 2:30 left before halftime.

Bradsher

year, 1982-83, Bryan won the state 5-A championship. The next year they repeated, and Bradsher was named all-state. In his two years, Bryan was 64-12.

"That's pretty much of a rise out of P.E. to the top of the state. Kevin turned out to be a great player and he and I turned out to be pretty close. He's special to me because of all we've been through over the years," Brown says.

Bradsher enrolled at Hillsborough Junior College, but left after six weeks. For the next year, he played in the parks and didn't go to school.

"He played nowhere. That was probably the time Kevin realized how important basketball was to him. The next year we put him up at Carl Albert Junior College in Oklahoma," Brown says. When the coach landed the job at Howard in the spring, it just made sense that he and Bradsher should reunite.

Talking to Bradsher, it's clear he and Brown have a bond that transcends the usual coach-player relationship.

"He's helped me a whole lot. I wouldn't be in college right now if it wasn't for Coach Brown. Coach Brown and I are real good friends. He'll tell you what's on his mind if you screw up. But I try not to because he's a great person and he'll help you any way he can. I'll miss Coach Brown," Bradsher says.

But perhaps Bradsher won't miss the running. If you want to get a laugh out of him, ask him if the Hawks are in shape.

"We're in the best of shape, aren't we Sammy?" Bradsher says, laughing hard and slapping his chair.

"Gollee, practice was running. But it's easy (here compared to high school), that's what I keep telling the fellas. Whooo, it's always hard with Coach Brown. We can go another game after the game. Don't you feel like doing some more hoopin' after the game?" Bradsher asks teammate Matt Brown.

With that kind of enthusiasm for the game, it's obvious Bradsher wants to play next year. He's received letters from several Division I schools, including Providence of the Big East.

Brown says if Bradsher can make his grades and graduate, major college basketball should be no problem. Over the summer Brown coached in the Olympic festival, and he says Bradsher has more potential than players he coached there who are playing at Kentucky and Louisville.

"He's probably the catalyst of the team. It kind of seems that when he has a good game the rest of the team has a good game too. They look to him to score," Brown says.

Jackson echoes this. "That's who we look for. He's the best shooter on the team, and he knows he can get his shot off. All he has to do is jump," Jackson says, referring to Bradsher's nothing short of amazing ability to leap and create in mid-air.

Bradsher loves being back with his old coach, and he says he likes Big Spring, but not as much as he would if...

"I'd like it a whole lot better if people came out and watched us play. I'd feel a whole lot better," he says.

"That's who we want to perform for, the people of Big Spring," Jackson adds.

If nothing else, Bradsher would just like to show Big Spring his favorite dance step.

Rookies propel Cavs over Celtics

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Rookie John Williams hit two free throws with three seconds remaining Saturday night, lifting the Cleveland Cavaliers to an 88-86 triumph over the Boston Celtics for their fifth consecutive NBA victory.

Williams and rookie teammate Ron Harper led the Cavaliers with 26 points each.

The Celtics again played without forward Larry Bird, who sat out his third straight game with a strained right Achilles tendon. Boston had defeated the Denver Nuggets and the Philadelphia 76ers without Bird.

Cleveland led 83-80 after a Mel Turpin basket to 2:33 remaining, but Boston's Dennis Johnson made four free throws, while Williams made one for Cleveland, and the game was tied 84-84 with 1:25 left.

Turpin hit a 20-foot jumper to give Cleveland a two-point edge. Kevin McHale, who scored 31 points, followed with a short hook shot to tie the game again with 17 seconds remaining.

Williams then grabbed an offensive rebound off a Turpin miss and Robert Parish fouled him. Cleveland had made only four of 12 free throws before Williams hit two to put Cleveland on top.

Dennis Johnson missed a desperation three-point attempt at the buzzer.

Williams and Harper were the only Cavaliers to score in double figures, although Turpin scored all eight of his points in the final 5:48.

Johnson scored 16 for the Celtics, and Parish added 14.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Alvin Robertson scored 30 points and rookie Johnny Dawkins added 28 as the San Antonio Spurs rallied from a 21-point deficit to defeat the Chicago Bulls 106-97 in an NBA game Saturday night.

The Spur's victory offset the play of the Bulls' Michael Jordan, who had a game-high 43 points, his sixth consecutive game with 40 or more.

Sonics 136, Rockets 80
HOUSTON (AP) — Tom Chambers led a contingent of high-scoring SuperSonics with 29 points in three quarters as the Seattle SuperSonics routed the Houston Rockets 136-80 Saturday night.

Houston, playing without star center Akeem Olajuwon, absorbed its worst loss ever in the Summit, which opened in 1975, while losing its fourth straight overall and seventh of the last eight, all sub-100 point games. Only five games in NBA history have had a bigger victory margin, with the worst defeat a 162-99 decision by the Los Angeles Lakers over Golden State in 1972.

76ers 105, Nets 100
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Charles Barkley's basket with two seconds left and Julius Erving's two free throws in the closing seconds gave the Philadelphia 76ers a 105-100 NBA victory over the New Jersey Nets Saturday night.

The 76ers were ahead 101-100 when Barkley scored after a blocked shot off an attempt by New Jersey's Mike Gminski. Erving iced the victory with his free throws.

Barkley and Erving scored 20 points each to lead the 76ers.

Pistons 128, Nuggets 113
PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Adrian Dantley scored 32 points and Isiah Thomas added 24 Saturday night, leading the Detroit Pistons to a 128-113 NBA victory over the Denver Nuggets.

Coahoma

Seven turnovers and three missed shots between the two teams highlighted the first three minutes of overtime, which ended without a point scored.

Given a second opportunity, Coahoma made the most of it. White stole the ball once again and raced the length of the floor for a basket in the first five seconds of the second overtime period.

A rebound by Maddox gave him the ball and allowed the 5'7" player to push the lead to 55-51 with 2:01 to play.

The teams exchanged possession four times on turnovers during the next furious minute and eight seconds, before Avery hit two free throws and stole the ball with 44 seconds to go to threaten the Coahoma lead.

However, both teams gave up the ball on steals and a traveling violation by Stanton handed the Bulldogs possession with 13 seconds remaining.

A jump ball situation gave Stanton the ball, but a missed shot allowed White to rebound and hold on for the final two seconds — and the victory.

Nichols was pleased with his team's effort.

"They (Stanton) are good. We played better defense," than the first time the teams met, he said. "The key," Nichols said, was the way his team "handled the ball against their press."

Coahoma defeated Tahoka and Snyder's junior varsity to reach the finals, while Stanton dropped Colorado City and Big Lake to face the Bulldogs.

King and White were named to the all-tournament team from Coahoma, and Avery and Derrick Sorley represented Stanton. Others on the all-tourney team were: Marvin Lee, Post; Lance Soles, Forsan; Brian Morgan, Greenwood; Sam Thompson and Anthony Justice from Tahoka; and Ken Woods from Colorado City.

The Big Spring Steers junior varsity lost twice Saturday, 69-42 to Forsan's varsity, and 83-79 to Tahoka's varsity. Steers coach James Collingsworth praised his team's effort, and added that the lack of maturity hurt the younger Steers.

Steve Gill led the Steers with 31 points against Tahoka. He also had 10 against Forsan.

Collingsworth praised the play of Gill, Nick Gauer, Ben Gonzales, Fred Reid, Ian Walker, Kiley Jones and Thane Ruskey.

COAHOMA (55) — Douglass 6-2-14; Wood 5-0-10; King 4-1-9; White 7-0-14; Maddox 3-2-8. Totals: 25-5-55.
STANTON (53) — Avery 13-4-30; Sorley 2-1-5; Smith 5-0-10; Hopkins 2-0-4; Young 2-0-4.

U.S. POSTAL SERVICE

BECOME A POSTAL WORKER. TRAIN NOW FOR EXAMS TO OPEN IN WESTERN TEXAS IN JANUARY. WANT TO RELOCATE? WE CAN SHOW YOU THE SECRET OF GETTING ON THE HIRING LISTS OF MAJOR POST OFFICES NATIONWIDE IMMEDIATELY.

The Postal Service hires over 5,000 people a month with the average salary plus benefits being $27,500. There are no lay offs, no strikes, and no shut-downs. Men and women, regardless of age or experience are eligible to apply. These exams do not test general knowledge. Proper preparation is the key to getting hired, because people are hired for these positions based on their exam scores. The easy to learn techniques taught in this course were designed by Bill Harold. He is a former Postal Employee, the author of three postal exam guides, and has repeatedly scored 100% on Postal Tests.

3 HOUR WORKSHOP: SCORE 95-100%

A survey in January for Boston's new hiring list indicated that 39 of the first 40 hired had taken a workshop course. Of the 287 people who took our course last year in Northwest Indiana, 282 indicated they were offered positions with the Postal Service.

GUARANTEE: The time saving and accuracy-increasing methods taught in this course are so powerful that we will enter into a written agreement.

- *You will score 95% or higher or your money will be refunded.
- *If you do not receive a job application/interview within 90 days of your score, your money will be refunded.

WORKSHOP TUITION is $30 and includes the guaranteed workshop, 3 workbooks covering all 3 major exams, interview hints, study guide with 25 complete take-home exams, follow up consultation privileges with free information phone number, home study program kit, and the free Postal Alert Bulletin giving you postal exam dates nationwide... and more. You are invited to bring your tape recorder to record the workshop for personal review.

Building committee meeting a success

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

The highlight of the year for members of the County Program Building Committee was (when) at the Brandin' Iron Inn, sponsored by the First National Bank, State National Bank, and Coahoma National Bank.

The committee is responsible for planning and developing the extension education program efforts in Howard County.

Laverne Gaskins, vice chairman, chaired the event and committee reports were given by Larry Bristo, extension home economics; Ricky Hope, 4-H and youth; Geraldine Posey, field crops; Venora Williams, aging; Kent Robinson, livestock and range; and Edna Womack, horticulture.

A special program was presented by Bill Fryear, member of the crops committee. He discussed

For your garden

ed his work in North Africa. Mike Bragg, extension agent, and I presented a program on the development of the recently completed Long-Range Extension Program (LREP) and recognized those committeemen who helped develop it.

The by-laws of the organizations were reviewed and amended to accommodate the new name change of the organization as mandated by our state organization. The new titles for our organization now will be the Howard County Extension Program Council and our Central Planning Group now will be referred to as the Executive Board.

Tim Hall gave a report from the nominating committee. He recommended that the officers be elected for a two-year term to serve as leaders for the Howard County Extension Program Council and its Executive Board. It was approved.

Officers are Floyd "Smitty" Smith, chairman; Pat Porter, vice chairman; and Suncha Christensen, secretary.

Other extension activities this week included the 4-H and Youth Program Area Committee meeting. They discussed plans for expansion of the county 4-H program. Bob Nichols, Billie Christie, Vance Christie, Duncan Hamlin, and Kurt Henry met with local agents and Iris Kalich, state 4-H specialist from San Angelo, assisted the planning.

The Annual Howard County Pecan Show was Tuesday at the Highland Mall Shopping Center. Over 60 entries were exhibited by county growers.

Champion and reserve champion shelling division winner was Bennie McChristian with his Tejas and Western entries.

Champion in-shell division winner was Bennie McChristian and Roy Hester was reserve champion. Their entries were of the varieties Choctaw and Apache.

Jack Buchannon exhibited the champion native pecan and G.M. Pless won the reserve entry.

Tips to keep pounds off during holidays

By NAOMI HUNT
County Extension Agent

Some advance planning and a good deal of will power may help you keep off extra pounds and still enjoy the holidays.

The key is moderation. Think about the temptation to overeat before and after eating. Decide when you can eat less. Knowing ahead of time what and how much you will eat can make it possible for you to enjoy sweets and desserts without guilt.

Try these ideas for staying in control of your holiday eating:

- Allow yourself to enjoy holiday foods, but make it a rule to turn down second helpings.
- If you have the will-power, avoid rich desserts and eat fresh fruits.
- When you can't avoid rich desserts, ask for half a serving instead of a whole one or eat only the filling of the pie and not the crust.
- At parties, carry on your conversation away from the snack

Focus on family

- Look for fresh fruits and vegetables rather than nuts and chips.
- Plan ahead to limit what you eat at home so you can enjoy holiday eating with your friends.

Plan Holiday Party Meals With Dietary Guidelines In Mind

This year, think about following the new Dietary Guidelines for Americans in your holiday menu plans. The guidelines suggest reducing sugar, sodium and fat, while increasing carbohydrates and fiber in the average American diet.

Include fresh fruits and vegetables to add more fiber and carbohydrates to the meal, along with color, variety and texture to the holiday table. Steam or stir-fry more foods and become less dependent on casserole dishes that may be adding extra fat and salt to the meal.

Bake or roast meats and poultry to reduce the amount of fat as well. Include cheese and fruits in place of or as an alternative to traditional rich holiday desserts. Preparing healthy holiday meals will be an extra gift to your family and your guests.

Investigate Video Clubs Before You Join

Before you join a video club, investigate it just as you would a book, record or tape club.

If you know that you'll want to buy movies rather than rent them, and if you can't buy movies locally, then a video club may be for you. But read the fine print in any agreement before joining.

How many movies do you agree to purchase?

Do all the movies offered by the club count toward your fulfillment of the agreement. Will some movies not meet the contract requirements if you buy them?

What is the price of the movies that meet the contract requirements?

What is the length of the contract?

The rules of a contract are binding once you sign the agreement. You are agreeing to the stated terms — whether you read them or not. So make sure you understand your obligations as well as the club's offer.

Pre-game meals should be carbohydrate

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: When's the best time to schedule a pre-game meal and what should it emphasize nutritionally? If it's a breakfast, would bacon and eggs be better or worse, than say, pancakes? — F.B.C.

You should schedule the meal for three to four hours before the event. The kind of food makes a difference. It should be heavy in carbohydrates. I'd favor the pancakes over the bacon and eggs.

It takes time for the stomach to empty, and the rate of emptying has to do with the kind of food present. The stomach can empty a carbohydrate meal in about two hours. A high-protein meal takes three hours, and fat takes the longest — about five hours.

The idea is to empty the stomach so that it isn't competing for blood supply with other areas, muscles chiefly. The range of carbohydrates is wide, but most trainers today emphasize the complex kind, the kind found in such foods as grains, fruits, vegetables and starches. Carbohydrates to avoid are those from table sugars and foods rich in table sugars.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a 36-year-old woman and have low blood pressure. It is 100/80, I play racquetball twice a week. I am 5 feet, 6 inches. Is it dangerous to have low blood pressure? — D.D.

Good for you. People with pressures like yours live long. Your exercise and your leanness are serving you well. Keep it up.

Troubled with gout? To learn about new treatment for this painful disease, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "Gout — The Modern Way to Stop It." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and $1.00.

BILL MYERS
Funeral Director

Many people wonder about that when they look at Bill Myers' picture. They associate his face with a caring attitude... with personal feelings for them... though they're not sure they've met one of the owners of Myers & Smith.

But yes, they have... and he was a friend when, as an area funeral director, Bill served many families in this community, for many years. (He's still a funeral director but now, of course, a co-owner of Myers & Smith Funeral Home and Chapel.) Bill Myers remembers these families, too... and the caring times they shared in the past.

Long-time Coahoma resident to celebrate 80th birthday

COAHOMA — H.C. Harrington, Vincent Rt., will celebrate his 80th birthday at the Coahoma State Bank banquet room at 2 p.m. on Dec. 14.

He was born on Dec. 17, 1906 in Taylor County, south of Abilene, and came to Howard County in April 1920 with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C.C. Harrington, eight brothers (including his twin) and two sisters.

The Harrington family traveled by covered wagon with livestock and settled in Green Valley, north of Coahoma. He attended Coahoma school and is a member of the First Methodist Church of Coahoma.

He married Maggie Kyle Grisham on Dec. 23, 1931. They had five daughters, Garry Daughtrey of Colorado City; Mary Wilson of Lovington, N.M.; Rita Hull of Garden City; Lydia Sutphen of Amarillo; Cynthia Wintamute of El Paso; and one son, the late Harold "Frog" Harrington.

The couple has 11 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

H.C. HARRINGTON ...turns 80

Harrington has farmed all of his life and also worked as a blacksmith with Sam Cook in Coahoma. Later he and his son ran the blacksmith shop and added a welding shop. Harrington enjoys roping and sharpening plow points. Friends and relatives are welcome, but no gifts, please.

Adoptees don't deserve third degree

DEAR ABBY: I'm the mother of four beautiful children, two of whom we adopted from India and Korea. With international adoptions becoming widespread, it would be a great service if you would print the following in the hope of educating some of the clods and well-meaning but thoughtless people out there:

1. Please don't call my daughter Chinese. All Asians are not Chinese, just as all Caucasians are not German. She is an American of Korean descent and proud of it.

2. Please don't tell my children how lucky they are, as if they were poor little waifs in need of a hand-out. My husband and I are just as fortunate to have these wonderful children as they are to have us, and your attitude is patronizing. Anyway, a biological child owes his parents even more — he owes them his life!

3. Please don't compliment them on how well they speak English. What else would they speak, having arrived in the United States as tiny infants? Besides, they'll laugh themselves sick at your expense in the car on the way home!

4. Please give equal attention to our two biological children. All four will thank you — but don't spoil it by asking if they, too, are adopted. After all, it really is none of your business. And yes, Virginia, many people without fertility problems have chosen to adopt for other reasons.

5. Please don't tell us about your cousin, neighbor or other acquaintances who have adopted. We're really tired of being stopped on the street to hear these tales, especially the ones that end with the woman becoming pregnant and having a baby of "her own" after all.

6. Please spare us your speculations about what kind of villain their "real mother" (as the clods put it) must have been to give up such "cute" children. It takes a courageous and unselfish woman to give up a child she cannot care for, and it takes precious little character to get an abortion instead. Besides, you're very naive about the Third World culture and the conditions these women faced.

7. Please let us go about our business. We're a family, not a sideshow, and we're often in a hurry. My children have feelings identical to yours, and it makes them very uncomfortable to stand listening while nosy strangers quiz us about their adoptions. Forgive me if I seem brusque on these occasions.

8. Above all, M.Y.O.B. about my children's backgrounds: why they were given up, if their birth mothers were married, etc. I'm appalled by how often I have been asked such rude questions by friends, acquaintances and even strangers. This information is off limits to everyone outside our immediate family, and that means you, too, Aunt Mabel!

And to all you wonderful people who treat my children just like everyone else's, our sincere gratitude. You've got class with a capital "C"! Sincerely,

U.N. MOM

Thompson to be honored Dec. 17

Rebecca Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thompson 2711 Carol, has been selected by her senior classmates at Big Spring High School to receive the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution Good Citizen Award for 1986.

This award exemplifies dependability, leadership, service and patriotism and is awarded locally by the Captain Elisha Mack Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, according to a release from the group.

The chapter will present the award certificate and pin to Thompson at their Christmas dinner Dec. 17 at the home of Mrs. John Key, 2907 Stonehaven.

Thompson is a senior at Big Spring High School, vice president of the National Honor Society and president and section leader of the Meistersingers.

She was selected Miss April for the 1986-'87 Key Club Calendar and Sweetheart of the High School Choir. The faculty of the high school selected her for Who's Who at Big Spring High School in the 1985-'86. She also is listed in Who's Who Among American High School

REBECCA THOMPSON ...to receive award

Students. Thompson participated in the state level solo competition and was a member of All-Region Choir. She enjoys singing and playing the piano.

After graduation she plans to attend Abilene Christian University and will major in pharmacy.

Cattle Women change their name

A name change has resulted in the Texas Cattle Women's organization. Formerly known as the Texas CowBelles, the name change occurred at the 14th annual November convention of the group in Houston.

The group is organized to support the cattle industry and promote the use of beef products.

Lucille Sterling, longtime Howard County resident, is president of the state organization. She, her husband J.M. and their sons operate a ranch in the Vincent community. The local association, Tejas Cattlewomen, was organized in 1973, according to a release from the group.

"With as many people within our area who are involved in the cattle industry, we would like to see more women participate in this association," said Sterling.

For information, call Sterling, 965-3464; Maureen Morris, 728-5425; June Wall, 573-4449; or Lisa Buchanan, 399-4588.

Christmas Memory' is club's topic

Mrs. Nadine Hodnett presented a program "A Christmas Memory," written by Truman Capote, to the Planters Garden Club at the Christmas luncheon and gift exchange Dec. 3.

The club met at the home of Mrs. Gladys Sanderson with Adele Tibbs presiding. Darlene Hipp was a guest.

Next meeting will be a black-eyed pea party on January 1.

NARFE to have potluck luncheon

The NARFE (National Association of Retired Federal Employees) will conduct their semi-annual potluck salad luncheon meeting Dec. 11 at 10 a.m. at the Kentwood Older Adult Activity Center, Lynn St.

A business meeting will precede the luncheon and officers for 1987 will be installed. The public is invited to attend.

Eagles to host Christmas dinner

The Eagles Auxiliary will host its annual Christmas dinner party at K.C.'s Steakhouse, Interstate 20 West, on Dec. 9th at 7 p.m.

Members are encouraged to bring a gift for the gift exchange.
