High school exit test scores improve

Staff and wire reports AUSTIN - Fewer 11th graders passed a tougher graduation exam this fall, but the average scores of those passing were higher, Texas Education Agency officials reported Monday.

Eighty-three percent passed this year's higher standards on the TEAMS exit-level test, compared with 84.6 percent when the test was first given in October 1985, according to the TEA.

school scored slightly below the math, and 95 percent passed the state average, while Coahoma and Forsan students did better than the passed both tests. No seniors at state average.

Bill McQueary, Big Spring assistant superintendent for personnel and instruction, reported that 86 percent of Big Spring's juniors passed the math test, and 85 percent passed the language arts test. Seventy-nine percent passed both tests

Coahoma High School counselor Richard Moore said that 95 percent Students from Big Spring high of Coahoma juniors passed the Coahoma took the test because 100 percent passed the test as juniors. At Forsan, 94 percent of the juniors passed the math and 97 percent passed the language arts, said counselor Bob Evans. He said 91 percent passed both. He said three transfer seniors took the test and passed.

The 1984 education reform law, the requirement that students pass a basic skills test in math and English before they can receive a high school diploma.

School districts must provide extra help to students who fail one or both sections of the test. A student has four chances to pass the test. The TEA also reported that the passing rate was 65 percent this fall for 15,000 seniors who failed to pass as juniors. Results for local school districts, as well as ethnic breakdowns, are known as House Bill 72, brought in expected to be available from the TEA later this month.

Commissioner of Education

William Kirby said that despite the slight drop in the passing rate, the agency was pleased with the results because they "show higher average scores along with a stable passing rate on a more demanding test.

This year in order to pass, the 184,000 juniors taking the test had to answer correctly 39, rather than 36, of the 72 math questions, as well as 50, instead of 45, of the 72 language arts questions.

Ballot recount to begin in Shaw-Anderson race

Staff and wire reports

A recount of Reeves County votes cast in the House Representative District 69 race between Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, and Republican John R. "Rich" Anderson began this morning at 8 a.m. The ballots are being hand-counted, said Reeves County Clerk Catherine Ashley.

Six teams each consisting of a caller and two tallymen are counting the votes from 12 voting precinct boxes in addition to an absentee box, Ashley said.

The results will be announced sometime today, she said.

Anderson requested the recount on Dec. 3. He cited reports of possible inaccurate returns on the punch card ballots and "irregularities" occurring on election day.

The Reeves County grand jury met shortly after election day and began hearing testimonial evidence from 23 persons, said district attorney investigator Jack Brewer. They were scheduled to meet today, but were postponed to Dec. 20, Brewer said.

They will hear additional evidence from 12 to 15 persons before reaching decisions concerning indictments, Brewer said.

In other developments regarding the Nov. general election, finance reports filed with the secretary of state show that Shaw outspent and outcollected Anderson in their campaigns for the House District 69 seat. Since Jan. 1, Shaw has

Other Big Spring con-tributors included Robert E. Coltrane, $125, and Richard G. Goodson and Mary Thomas, $100 each.

Expenditures included $8,169 for advertising, $1,478 for phone bank work, $4,667 for labor and $2,422 for printing.

Between Oct. 28 and Dec. 4, Anderson received $9,925 in contributions and $10,939 in expenditures. Anderson loaned his campaign $389 during that period.

Odessa police firing sparks allegations

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — The fir- citing his appeal of the dismissal ing of a deputy police chief has sparked allegations of widespread corruption in the police department from the Ector County attorney County attorney Gary Garrison said Deputy Chief K.R. Jones, who was fired on Monday, is being "used as a pawn because of information I turned over to federal authorities — the FBI — within the last nine months, concerning corruption in the highest levels of the police department.

Garrison said he had turned over to the Midland FBI office information about alleged corruption in the police department, the Odessa American reported

Odessa Police Chief Alan Stewart said Garrison is wrong if he is implying corruption is in the "highest administrative levels" of the department

Stewart fired Jones, 44, a 22-year veteran, four months after Jones was placed on paid suspension pending an internal investigation of possible criminal mischief.

Michael McLeaish, Jones' lawyer, said his client was accused of associating with a known gambler, using a city car for a trip without authorization, and accepting free gifts, including a key to an Odessa nightclub, a case of whiskey and nine free tickets to a boxing match.

McLeaish said there may be other allegations of which he is not

"We don't have anything to rely on as to what the charges are,' said McLeaish.

Stewart and other city officials won't say why Jones was fired,

Garrison did not return phone calls by the Associated Press Friday.

Meanwhile, in another development, police Sgt. Anthony Calhoun, 33, a six-year veteran of the force, was suspended with pay Thursday pending the outcome of an internal investigation into matters of a criminal nature, said Cpl. John McAhon.

Officials also refused to give details on the reasons for that suspension.

Ron Butler, an agent with the FBI in Midland, refused to confirm that Garrison had supplied any information to his office. "We neither, confirm nor deny the existence of any investigations," he said.

The police chief said he doesn't know what to make of Garrison's allegations.

"I don't know what he means by (the allegations), so I can't respond to that," Stewart said. "If he's saying corruption is within the highest administrative levels of the police department, then he's incorrect.

McLeaish said his client is not trying to cause problems for the department.

"Personally, speaking for myself and Chief Jones, we're not out to investigate any other police officers or cause them any trouble," said McLeaish. "We're just out to get a iob back. Whatever Mr. Garrison is doing, that's his business.'

City personnel operations manager Allen Coco Jr. said Jones hand-delivered letters this week protesting his firing and asking for a hearing by Coco and Stewart.

said he also felt like he had a reason to "check on the votes," while FBI, postal inspectors and grand jury members review evidence concerning potential voting fraud.

Reeves County District Attorney Jack L. McGowan's office began investigating potential fraud in early October. McGowan requested and has received FBI assistance. Reeves County officials said $69,917 on his campaign. In reports filed since Jan. 16, Anderson reported collecting $68,379, which included $8,295 in loans from Anderson to his campaign, and spending $66,963.

In the most recent filing period, Oct. 26 through Nov. 29, Shaw reported $17,701 in contributions and $26,874 in expenditures.

Of those collections, $9,700

Of those contributions, Anderson received $5,900 in special interest donations, including $3,500 from Texas Republican groups and $1,000 from a group called Citizens for the Republic of Santa Monica, Calif.

Anderson's expenditures included $4,721 for advertising, $2,000 for a consultant and $1,458 for poll watchers.

For the past seven years, Wilkerson has charmed children and entertained Central Texas racing fans as Elmer Gene Suggins, the clown behind the wheel of the Bubble Gum Express.

"I don't plan anything," said likerson. "I never do. I (do) Wilkerson. slapsticks. Whatever comes into my mind, I do. I give a lot of credit to the good Lord because he's given me a lot of inner desire to make people happy."

Wilkerson, an engineertechnician for the Texas Highway Department, is a familiar fixture at the Longhorn Speedway in Southeast Travis County and at the San Antonio Raceway, where he gives away about 36,000 pieces of bubble gum a year, he said.

Besides entertaining the crowd between races, Wilkerson's duties include positioning cars and helping drivers out of wrecks. "Most of the time I'm the first one there," he said.

In 1983, while performing spins for the crowd, Wilkerson lost control of the first Bubble Gum Express, a 1973 Superbeetle. He survived with a separated shoulder and a twisted neck, but the car was destroyed.

State

Snow that covered a wide area of Texas early Friday melted under clear skies as the system that produced the storm moved out of the state.

High pressure was responsble for the mostly sunny skies, however. some scattered high level clouds lingered over the eastern part of Texas and along the middle Rio Grande, the National Weather Service said.

Air flowed clockwise around the high pressure center in Central Texas, producing a south wind at 5 to 10 mph over the western half of the state and a north wind at 5 to 10 mph over East and South Texas.

Afternoon temperatures were mostly in the 50s with some readings in the 60s along the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Some readings were in the 30s and 40s in far West Texas.

The 3 p.m. extremes were 38 degrees in Guadalupe Pass and 61 at McAllen, the weather service said.

The clear skies set the stage for a rapid drop in temperatures overnight Friday.

A freeze warning was issued for Friday night and early Saturday for inland portions of southeastern Texas, including Beaumont and Port Arthur.

The forecast was for generally clear skies over much of the state with partly cloudy skies over South Texas, the weather service said.

Bennett's office walls are covered with certificates referring to him as a doctor. He says he has a diploma from a medical school in Venezuela, but officials there said they have never heard of the school

'Sure it's hard to check out some of my credentials. So what?" Bennett told the newspaper.

Bennett and his attorney say a chemical face peel is not a medical procedure, but experts in the field say it should be performed only by a physician. Bennett said he is no longer teaching or performing face peels. Pompano Beach, Fla., police detective Gary Egan said police there are trying to determine whether Bennett committed fraud by presenting himself as a doctor to attract students, practiced medicine without a license by administering narcotics or took down payments for face peels he never performed. Bennett's move to Dallas briefly attracted the attention of the Texas State Board of Medical Examiners.

Lloyd McRae, Dallas-Fort Worth investigator for the medical examiners board, said he closed his investigation shortly after it began. "I just wasn't able to get any information about where he was,' McRae said.

However, this year's students had more trouble with the tougher English requirements. Only 87 percent passed that section, compared with 91 percent last fall.

Kirby noted that "it is especially encouraging to see that the passing rate on the math section of the test increased as the passing standard was made more stringent.

By Associated Press Tax boosts expected

WASHINGTON — Residents of 33 states will see their state income taxes increase, in many cases considerably, unless legislatures adjust their laws for the effects of federal tax changes, a bipartisan commission said Friday.

The Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations said the impact of the new federal tax law will be so broad that, "in reality, many states are likely to alter their income tax structures in response to federal tax reform."

Louisiana, with a 28 percent rise, would see the biggest percentage impact on individual state taxes as a result of the change, the study said. Colorado was listed next at 22 percent. The commission said 10 states would experience a net decrease in individual income taxes. The biggest decline, 11 percent, would be in Rhode Island and Vermont, followed by 10 percent in North Dakota, it said.

Leeway recommended

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, saying the test of a welfare system is its ability to get people off the welfare rolls, was advised Friday that state and local governments should have more leeway in structuring government aid to the needy.

A working group of the Domestic Policy Council, reporting on a study Reagan ordered in his State of the Union message in January, concluded that the present welfare system "fails the people it is designed to serve."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan will meet with governors, welfare experts, key members of Congress and others before deciding on the recommendations he will make when he again goes before the lawmakers for his State of the Union address next month.

The group recommended a change in the law to permit waivers so state programs "may differ in whole or in large part from established rules and procedures."

GOP '88 sites narrowed

WASHINGTON — The Republicans will hold their 1988 presidential nominating convention in either Kansas City, Mo., New Orleans or Atlanta, the Republican National Committee announced Friday.

The RNC's site selection committee narrowed the field to those three cities after evaluating th bids of 10 cities, including Houston, vying to host the Aug. 15-18 convention, said party Chairman Frank Fahrenkopf Jr.

He said Atlanta is on the list of finalists conditionally, because the city's Omni sports arena initially fell short of the seating space the GOP required. But said he had received a message from Georgia Gov. Joe Frank Harris and Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young this week saying they would modify the fixed-seating hall to construct about 1,000 more seats.

Former Defense Secretary Clark Clifford, right, is among candidates for the post of independent counsel to investigate the Iran-Contra affair, federal law enforcement officials say. In addition, one published report said former Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson, left, and Irving Kaufman, center, a judge on the federal appeals court in New York, also are possible candidates.

Iran controversy

Reagan determined to keep to agenda

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan vowed Friday not to let the Iran arms' crisis cripple his administration, as the chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee angrily accused Reagan's former national security aides of "deserting the country" by refusing to testify about the affair.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan, went on the offensive in a variety of forums, strongly urging the former White House aides to divulge all they know so the Reagan administration won't be paralyzed for months to come.

The White House confirmed, meanwhile, that Reagan met privately last week with two prominent elder statesmen that former aide Michael K. Deaver is said to have recruited in a campaign for the ouster of White House chief of staff Donald T. Regan.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said Deaver arranged the meeting in the White House family quarters Dec. 5 between Reagan and his wife, Nancy, and former Democratic National Committee chairman Robert S. Strauss and former Secretary of State William P. Rogers, to discuss the widening crisis.

Reagan reiterated Friday that "no doubt mistakes were made" in carrying out his decision to secretly sell arms to Iran, and said he would not be satisfied "until all the facts are before the American people."

But, discussing his forthcoming domestic initiatives with a group of newly elected state legislators at the White House, Reagan declared: "We cannot, and we will not, let this stop us from getting on with the business of governing."

It was the refusal to testify by a third White House national security aide, Marine Lt. Col. Robert Earl, that prompted Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., Intelligence Committee chairman, to charge that the three military men, praised as "national heroes" by their supporters, weren't heroes in his book.

"If they're such heroes, then why are they deserting the country when put to the true test?" Durenberger asked.

"Somebody is going to have to define what a national hero is," he added. "A national hero doesn't come in here and stiff the whole country."

Before Earl, former national security adviser, Vice Adm. John M. Poindexter, and Marine Lt. Col. Oliver L. North, had cited their Fifth Amendment rights in refusing to testify. Poindexter resigned on Nov. 25, and North, a NSC staff deputy, was fired the same day.

Durenberger made clear that he did not think their refusal to testify was any reflection on Reagan's pledge to cooperate fully in any investigations. "I think this is a personal decision on the part of an admiral and two Marine officers," he said.

Durenberger said Earl claimed that his one-week notice to testify was insufficient, but "I don't buy it. … We've had plenty of witnesses who've had less than a full week to prepare."

The Senate panel also was unsuccessful in efforts to question another witness, Howard Teicher, senior director of the National Security Council for politicalmilitary affairs, who claimed he needed more time to find a private attorney. Teicher's testimony was delayed until Tuesday.

In another developments, the two key Middle East middlemen in the arms deal, Saudi billionaire Adnan Khashoggi and Iranian representative Manucher Ghorbanifar, said on ABC-TV's "20-20" program that North apparently controlled Swiss bank accounts through which up to $35 million was deposited in the secret Iran weapons transactions that he coordinated.

By Associated Press Shultz wants facts

BRUSSELS, Belgium — Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Friday that Reagan administration officials should "get things out as rapidly as possible" about secret U.S. arms shipments to Iran and diversion of funds to Nicaraguan rebels.

Shultz told a news conference in winding up a two-day meeting with NATO foreign ministers that he had not found it necessary to rebuild the ministers' confidence in the United States and its handling of foreign policy.

But he said the facts of the weapons purchase and the secret fund should be "set out on the table" for the American public and all the world to see.

The secretary said President Reagan wants full disclosure, and compliance with his wishes would facilitate the conduct of U.S. foreign policy, including the pursuit of agreements with the Soviet Union to reduce nuclear weapons.

"We have a very complicated and difficult task of governing to do, as always, both domestically and internationally," Shultz said. "Let's get at it, and that's the strategy."

Oil cut agreed upon

GENEVA — Most OPEC members agreed in principle Friday to cut the cartel's oil production at least 5 percent in hopes of boosting oil prices to $18 a barrel from the current range of $13 to $16, two senior delegates said. No final accord was reached, however, and the cartel leaders were scheduled to open a third day of talks today, officials said.

Fernando Santos Alvite, the deputy Ecuadoran oil minister, told reporters that Saudi Arabia and some other delegations were consulting with their governments overnight on the proposed production cut, which he said would take effect Jan. 1 if approved.

Libyan Oil Minister Fawzi Shakshuki said that most of OPEC's 13 member countries, including his own, had accepted the proposal.

Soviet plane crashes

BERLIN — A Soviet Aeroflot jetliner crashed while approaching East Berlin's Schoenefeld airport Friday, and the state-run East German television said most of the 82 people aboard were killed.

The official ADN news agency said 17 survivors were pulled from the wreckage, and a later television report said most of those aboard died in the crash.

Neither ADN nor the television gave a precise death toll. East German television said most of the passengers were East Germans.

There were no Americans aboard the Soviet Tupolev-134 jet, a U.S. Embassy spokesman in East Berlin told The Associated Press by telephone. East German authorities released no immediate information on the passengers' nationalities.

The U.S. official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the area around Schoenefeld airport is mostly agricultural, reducing the possibility of casualties on the ground.

Quality control questions raised at nuclear plant

By FRED BAYLES Associated Press Writer

GLEN ROSE, Texas (AP) - The twin concrete towers rise from the Texas plains, waiting these past two years for nuclear fuel to make megawatts for Dallas and Waco.

Inside, multicolored inspection ribbons hang from pipes and cables like party decorations. In nearby offices, clerks work to keep up with the flow of documents verifying each inspection point is safe.

This is Texas Utilities' Comanche Peak, $4 billion worth of concrete, steel and technology stymied, in part, by paper.

Virtually completed in 1984, Unit I was put on hold by discrepencies in construction and 11 million pages of paperwork supposed to document its quality.

Comanche Peak is not an isolated case. Since 1980, doubts about documentation have contributed to the scrapping of billiondollar plants in Ohio, Michigan and Indiana and forced delays in more than half the 27 nuclear plants under construction.

These cases have fed criticism of how the Nuclear Regulatory Commission assures nuclear power plants are built right.

The NRC has been assailed by nuclear power's friends and foes for creating a paperhouse of regulation that guarantees little beyond the actual documents stored in mazes of file cabinets at plant sites.

Nuclear opponents say the quality control program is susceptible to cheating, where "good paper" can document bad work.

Nuclear advocates call it a hopelessly complicated process where simple clerical mistakes can force expensive reinspection of work that is ultimately proven good.

Even some within the NRC question its worth.

"The idea of the quality assurance program was that if the paper documentation was right, the plant is built correctly. In fact, we have found cases where the paper work is not there," said James Asselstine, one of the NRC's five commissioners.

The problem is reflected in NRC files

• A 1984 NRC report ordered by Congress called the quality control programs "short on technical expertise, long on bureaucratic paperwork and essentially isolated from the safety-related licensee programs they were designed to improve.'

• A separate 1984 report found "large number of quality-related deficiencies on the part of nuclear involving paperwork. Inspectors jobs. If the pipe fails, investigators director of the NRC's Division of can follow this paper trail to find the cause and trace similar defects.

with stories of shortcuts in quality control requirements.

Dobie Hatley was one of the whistleblowers.

'There was a lot of paperwork that wasn't signed correctly and there was a lot of people forced to sign documents in order to hold their jobs," she said. "They were asked to verify stuff they'd never seen.'

After similar allegations were raised at Tennessee Valley Authority plants under construction in Tennessee and Alabama, the NRC hired a private firm to interview workers about quality problems.

"A very large number of employees said they were aware of concerns but were unwilling to take them to supervisors because of fear of retaliation," said Asselstine, the NRC commissioner.

Billie Garde, a member of the Government Accountability Project, a non-profit group that provides legal services for whistleblowers like Dobie Hatley, said some utilities don't take NRC quality control programs seriously

"I don't think they perceive the possibility of an accident," she said. "They think the paperwork requirements are mostly Mickey Mouse and that all this regulation

Commanche Peak is an example of a nuclear plant with paperwork headaches. Begun in 1972, the 2,300-megawatt plant 45 miles kinds and quality of records outnwest of Fort Worth was Texas Utilities' first nuclear effort. Company officials were confident their experience building coal-fired plants could be translated to nuclear technology

But the rules changed as construction progressed. A 1977 fire at the Brown's Ferry reactor in Athens, Ala., and the neardisastrous 1979 accident at Three Mile Island brought new regulations requiring continual work changes.

Texas Utilities officials point to areas in the plant jammed with additional NRC-ordered pipes and supports and a control room ceiling replaced because it couldn't be proven earthquake-proof.

"The plant we started isn't what we'll finish," said spokesman Dick Ramsey.

The nuclear industry complains the blizzard of NRC design changes made it impossible to match paperwork to construction work

"If you needed a 6-inch steel support to brace something and then a new regulation comes out and says this has to be an 8-inch piece of steel, you have a piece of paper somewhere that doesn't agree with other pieces of paper," said Scott Peters, a spokesman for the Atomic Industrial Forum.

Peters and others point to Cincinnati Gas and Electric's Zimmer nuclear power plant as an example. The utility shelved the $1.7 billion plant instead of spending another $1.7 billion to fix massive documentation problems.

While federal inspections found numerous hardware problems at the plant, the industry blames Zim-.... mer's death on paperwork.

"If you can't come up with the they're looking for, you're not go ing to get a license," said Peters. "It becomes a economic decision as to whether it's worth it to come up with those records or throw the whole thing over the side.

Associated Press Writer NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Mac Wiseman's country music career has lasted through three wars and nine presidents.

He played his guitar in Appalachia in the 1940s, performed on college campuses in the 1960s and now has a whole new audience at bluegrass festivals

'It's very gratifying, but it sure makes you aware of your vintage,' the 61-year-old singer-musician said.

Wiseman has been performing bluegrass-style music for 42 years and playing the guitar for about 50. He's appeared in every state except Alaska, and he may yet go there.

"I'd like to tie it in with a visit to Japan some time," said the softspoken, bearded entertainer who will go to the Far East next spring.

His music has carried him to England, Ireland, Sweden, Switzerland, Germany, France and the Netherlands. He's appeared in Carnegie Hall three times, plus the Smithsonian Institution, the Kennedy Center, the Hollywood Bowl, at various folk festivals and on Atlantic Ocean cruises

He signed his first recording contract with Dot Records in 1951 and his tenor voice has been on more than 20 albums and 100 singles. His current album is "Once More With Feeling.

"It's the last type of music which lets the entire family attend,' Wiseman said in an interview. "The arena concerts cost too much because the tickets must be scaled so high. We're picking up on these kids now.

Wiseman's hits have included "Jimmy Brown the Newsboy," "Love Letters in the Sand" (also recorded by Pat Boone), "The Ballad of Davy Crockett" (another version was by Tennessee Ernie Ford), and "Tis Sweet to Be Remembered."

His concerts normally include his versions of "Wabash Cannonball," "This Land Is My Land" and his traditional closing number, "Will the Circle Be Unbroken," a tional country music and acoustical instruments: guitar, mandolin, banjo, fiddle.

They are a product of his upbringing in Crimora, Va., where he overcame childhood polio, though his limp is a reminder of the illness. He was raised in an area popularized by the hit TV series, 'The Waltons.'

Business Solutions to slump offbeat

HOUSTON (AP) - The problem of low oil prices has drawn sober calls for import fees and tax incentives. But Texans have also developed more offbeat suggestions for reversing the energy industry downturn.

One of the most innovative - or off-the-wall - remedies is from Houston oilman Danny Davis, who challenged T. Boone Pickens to a drilling contest. Davis reasons that a contest between his firm and Pickens' Mesa Petroleum would put Texans back to work and put idle drilling rigs to use.

Davis is president of Texas Ranger, an independent producer much smaller than Mesa. He proposed that each company put up $7 million to drill wildcat wells in Texas for a year. Other independents are welcome to join in the competition.

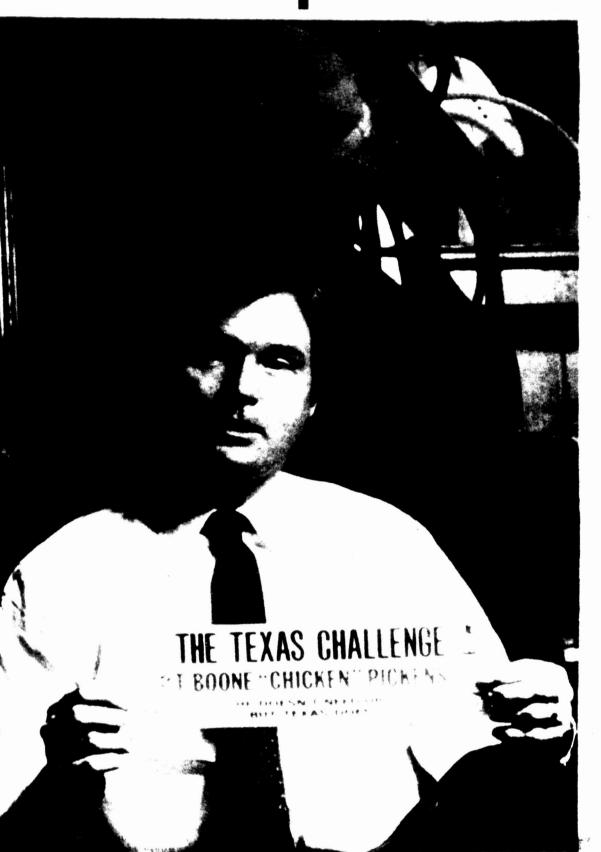

That amount of drilling won't threaten OPEC or put the Texas economy in the black, Davis wrote in a recent letter to Pickens. "Our combined $14 million will remove many geologists, landmen, engineers and rig hands from the unemployment lines.'

After a year, an independent engineering firm would review the reserves and designate the winner. The loser would donate two months' worth of oil and gas proceeds from his best well to the charity of the winner's choice.

Why pick on T. Boone Pickens? Davis said the Amarillo oilman has become famed more for making money in takeover battles than through finding reserves. But a real oilman, he says, "gets crude oil on his hands from the wells that he drills." And Davis asserts that Mesa's current drilling program isn't benefiting Texas, since it's centered on the Hugoton gas field of Kansas.

A Mesa spokesman acknowledged that the company isn't doing much drilling in Texas. "The company is based in Texas - we're not disloyal," he said. Of Davis' proposal, he said, "We're not interested. The company has its 1987 drilling program in place, and we see no reason to change it."

Davis maintains that drilling costs have fallen proportionately steeper than prices, which should spur more activity than is reflected ently wo

But analysts say an open contest wouldn't overcome the favorable supply and demand equation. which has kept prices depressed. Many oilmen are saddled with debt and have pared drilling to conserve cash.

And even with drilling costs lower, oilmen say they require a price in excess of $20 a barrel to justify the investment.

"It might be fun," Frank Culberson, managing director of Pace Consultants said of the proposal. 'But it doesn't offer any real incentive for the industry.

Another solution to the oil crisis that a number of oilmen have suggested is reducing production in Texas in order to boost prices, possibly in concert with Oklahoma and Louisiana.

Two Dallas oil producers have work and put idle drilling rigs to use.

asked the Texas Railroad Commission to reduce the state allowable rate of production by as much as 17 percent, William R. Edwards, a Houston energy consultant, said the allowable rate should be reduced by about 30 percent. At meetings in Houston during the past several months, he has suggested that producers shut production for 30 days.

"A shutdown would enlighten the country as to (its) absolute dependency on Texas oil," Edwards said Tuesday. "It's nice to think that we can take it or leave

The only problem with that approach, critics say, is that the world no longer needs Texas oil.

Texas production of more than 2 operators need the cash and that million barels a day represents only about 4 percent of Western World output. Even if Texas production went to zero, "the Saudis could cover that poker game in $3\frac{1}{2}$ seconds," said William Fisher, director of the University of Texas Bureau of Economic Geology. Saudi Arabia is currently producing between 4 million and 4.5 million barrels of oil a day, but could produce twice that amount. Other OPEC nations also are producing at less than full capacity.

Those who advocate cutting U.S production say oil companies are better off leaving oil in the ground if they can realize higher prices later. Opponents say that many the U.S. should be boosting production to lessen dependence on imports rather than cutting it.

Some in the oil patch have suggested that the United States negotiate quota arrangements similar to those used in steel. But critics say quotas don't account for seasonal shifts in demand and would be politically unwieldy.

That leads many analysts back to the much tallked about oil import fee, but keeps Danny Davis talking about a drilling contest. "Texans have changed the economic balance of the world with their oil-finding skills before, and they'll do it again," he says.

Leadership qualities profiled dream. One suspects they don't Mickey-mouse rules and political

By TOM PETERS

I've been exposed to a number of fine executives lately, from A. Ray Smith, owner of the astonishingly successful Louisville Redbirds, the minor-league baseball team that draws 800,000 fans a year, to Baltimore Mayor William Donald Schaefer, now Maryland's Governor-elect. Their surprisingly similar passions and obsessions match with my observations of exceptional leaders in general. Several traits (and their antitheses) stand out.

1. Notetakers and Learners. These people learn from any setting. They take notes obsessively. The reverse is bored arrogance: "This doesn't apply to us. Our industry, city, etc. is different. What can a report by a sixth-level person possibly tell me?'

2. Constant Improvement. No idea is too small for this bunch. They are starving for thousands of tiny improvements. The flip is those who relentlessly seek the "big idea," the short cut to success. Big ideas are fine, don't get me wrong, but the quest for them is a poor substitute for the backbreaking effort involved in getting better - inch-by-inch and day-byday.

3. Pleasure in Others' Efforts. Many claim that unlimited success awaits those who don't feel the need to hog credit. Our best leaders live this. They delight, publicly and sometimes with tears in their eyes, at the success of others - from on all in this 200-page strategic plan, high or from the bowels of the right here." But you can't ever get organization. The losers find no this bunch to talk about their

good idea too small to claim as their own. Or they exhibit gross indifference, callously walking past an employee's superhuman effort, without a hint of interest.

4. Details. These leaders seem to know, indeed revel in knowing, every detail of their operation. Their only mischievous tendency is one-upping subordinates with their knowledge of detail. The others espouse a "big -picture" view, and literally seem to pride themselves in knowing the details of a new system or piece of equipment.

5. Vision. Despite their fanaticism for detail, our stars have a simple, compelling and crystal-clear vision. It's emotional. It's graphic. It's succinct, the essence of strategy. The opposite is what I call the "planning mentality: Of course, I have a vision. It's

have infinite time to listen, to the hired mailroom clerk. Perhaps they are genuinely interested! The opposite of this is the tuned-out look or air of stiff formality or the need to talk in any setting.

7. Out of the Office. Star leaders understand that the action takes place on the street, in the plant, in the distribution center at 2:00 a.m., in the design room at 4:00 a.m. And they are there, curious, and with their finger on the pulse. The others believe that managers are paid to manage. And managing takes place in the office or committee room. After all, we spent scads on outfitting an office, let's use it if only to justify the $27,000-bill for the Persian carpet.

8. Rapt Attention. The best leaders have a way of making the person they're with, at any level, feel like the most important human being in the world for the five or 35 minutes they are together - as if they had nothing else to do. The bozos, on the other hand, seem to have the attention span of a gnat. They jump in and out of meetings. I've even seen some read mail during a presentation. It's clear that you, the subordinate, are a small potato in the very important world that they inhabit.

9. Passionate Hatred of Bureaucracy. The better leaders are unsparing in their hatred for posturing that delays action. 'Lawyers be damned, do occupy exalted spots, they seem to something," is their cry. The rest see the rules as the essence of the individual citizen, to the newly- properly-run firm. They are memo writers. They even laud wellwritten memos they receive - sending memos to that effect. 10. Focus. The world is complicated, yet the stellar performers bone in on a tiny handful of issues or parameters that allow them to accurately judge progress toward achieving their vision. The two or three "closely watched numbers," about which they are obsessive, are not perfect indicators. But they define priorities in unmistakeable terms. The losers wallow in thousands of indicators that may capture the world's daunting complexity; however, there is no observable pattern to their concerns. They live 273 top proprities, sewing confusion about what's important at every step of the way.

11. Love of the Product or Service. These heroes are like unrepentent kids. They are emotional, gleeful about what they sell. They love banking or carpets or computers. The rest exhibit the analytic detachment that befits the B-School's textbook boss. They have not been observed to smile for decades. They are grim "professionals," and darned proud of it.

I find these traits in leaders at all levels, in all sorts of firms – public and private, high-tech and low. How do you measure up?

Many stores around the state appear to have added nearly the any improvement there might be same number of temporary workers as in better economic times, even though industry executives are uncertain whether they'll ring up as many sales.

A big holiday sales payoff would help many stores recover from a slow year, said Maury Aresty, president of the Retail Merchants Association in Houston.

"If you're going to take a real gamble, you're going to take it in Houston merchants estimate 10,000 extra employees are working through the holiday crunch, which Aresty said is only about 100 fewer than last year.

"Retailers are making sure they have enough help on hand to realize (in sales)," he said.

A recent survey conducted for the Texas Retailers Association estimated sales in the first 10 months of this year were 3.76 percent below the same period of 1985.

TRA spokeswoman Lynn Huss said the sharpest declines were noted in areas hardest hit by the faltering energy and agricultural sectors - the High Plains and the Gulf Coast area — and along the border with Mexico, which has been hit by the peso devaluation. By STEVE BELVIN Sports Editor

If you ever wanted to see a total team effort, then the Big Spring Lady Steers-Andrews Mustangs basketball tilt Friday night was the game to see.

The Big Spring Lady Steers put on a show of team ball that would have left any basketball coach proud. And Lady Steers coach C.E. Carmichael was beaming with pride after his team demolished the Mustangs 69-42 in District 2-4A action at Steer Gym.

"We were much more consistent this game," said Carmichael, who has led his team to a seven game record. "We haven't been playing the whole game but tonight we played four good quarters of ball." Indeed they did. The Lady Steers showed the Mustangs it would be a long night right from the start. Big Spring hit its first seven shots of the guarter and led 15-4 with 1:45 left in the opening stanza. The Lady Steers ended up hitting eight of nine shots in the quarter and 14 of 19 in the half, for a remarkable 74 percent.

It came as no surprise when the Lady Steers led 37-22 at the half. The main reason Big Spring shot so well in the half and shot 57 per-half-court offense so well. Junior guard Paige Clawson was the main reason things went so smoothly. She took control of the game both offensively and defensively.

She ended the game by hitting seven of 11 from the floor, and eight of 11 from the line for a game-high 22 points. She also had three steals, four assists and seven rebounds. "Paige really played well tonight. I think it was her best game this season," said Carmichael.

Clawson got ample help from her teammates. Teresa Pruitt had her usual strong game with 20 points and eight rebounds. Guard Katrina winning streak and a 2-0 district cent for the entire game was Thompson bombed away from the suit up because of illness. Then there was the play of reserves Nikki Rodriquez, Peggy Smith and Tara Jones who filled in admirably for the starters.

Andrews coach Sam Johnston was really impressed. "We really didn't play that bad, it's just they played so good. They have some good shooters and we just don't have enough shooters." he said.

Fight Night Bonecrusher bonks Terrible Tim in one

NEW YORK (AP) - James 'Bonecrusher'' Smith, who got the fight as a substitute, knocked down Tim Witherspoon three times in the first round and won the World Boxing Association heavyweight championship Friday night at Madison Square Garden.

The shocking first-round victory will send Smith into a March 7 fight against unbeaten Mike Tyson, the World Boxing Council champion.

The third knockdown came with 48 seconds left in the opening round, and when Witherspoon hit the canvas, referee Luis Rivera halted the fight.

Smith, who got his second title chance when Tony Tubbs withdrew, claiming an injured left shoulder, came out firing, and Witherspoon never had a chance to adjust.

Witherspoon had spent several days fighting with promoter Don King and King's son, Carl, who is Witherspoon's manager. Witherspoon's attorney claimed a managerial contract — and also the contract for the fight - were null and void. But the New York State Athletic Association ruled the contracts were valid Smith, who says he is about 31, charged off his stool and hit Witherspoon with a right hand. Smith then flailed away for 30 seconds before he fell down. Smith stormed back to the attack and landed a right that put Witherspoon down to one knee. Witherspoon got up so quickly years after he was stopped in that Rivera didn't notice he was down and failed to call it a in a WBC title bid.

Skins, Denver game tops action

By RICK WARNER AP Sports Writer

The slumping New York Jets will try to clinch a playoff spot Saturday while two teams already headed for NFL postseason play, Washington and Denver, will maneuver for homefield advantage.

The Jets, who have lost three straight games, can gain a wildcard berth by beating the Pittsburgh Steelers in East Rutherford, N.J. The 5-9 Steelers are out of playoff contention, but have won eight straight against the Jets.

At Denver, the Redskins must beat the Broncos to maintain their slim chance for a division title in the NFC East. To capture the title. Washington must win its final two games and hope the New York Giants lose both weeks against St. Louis and Green Bay.

If that doesn't happen, the Redskins are assured of being the home team in a wild-card game. But they and the Broncos must keep winning to gain the homefield advantage for the playoffs. "If we win our next two, I think we have an excellent chance to be at home all through the playoffs,' Denver Coach Dan Reeves said. "You always like to play at home, and it's especially important in the playoffs.

In games Sunday, San Francisco is at New England; Minnesota at Houston; Miami at the Los Angeles Rams; Green Bay at Tampa Bay; New Orleans at Atlanta; Philadelphia at Dallas; St. Louis at the Giants; Buffalo at Indianapolis; Cleveland at Cincinnati; Kansas City at the Los Angeles Raiders and Seattle at San Diego.

Chicago visits Detroit in the Monday night game.

The Jets will attempt to regain the form that got them off to a 10-1 start this season.

The defense should be helped by the return of nose tackle Joe Klecko and end Marty Lyons, who have been sidelined with injuries for the past month. On offense, quarterback Mark Malone said.

right tackle Reggie McElroy is expected to return following a knee injury

"The people who are back will step in and contribute," Jets Coach Joe Walton said. "They are important players to us.

The key, however, could be the performance of quarterback Ken O'Brien, who has struggled the past three weeks and has fallen from the top of the league's passing rankings. The Jet offense, which averaged more than 30 points a game during a nine-game winning streak, has scored a total of 16 points in the last three games.

Pittsburgh has won two of its last four games, with the two defeats coming in overtime. The Steelers have been aided by the return of several injured players, including wide receiver Louis Lipps, who had eight catches for 150 yards and two touchdowns in a 27-17 victory over Detroit last week.

"We haven't had the big play on the passing game all year," Steeler balanced Illini scoring attack. Baylor was led by Drew Middleton who scored 19 points and Michael Williams who had 15. The victory Improved Illinois' record to 6-0, while Baylor fell to 3-4.

The Illini will play Saturday in the tournament championship against the winner of the game between Princeton and Illinois-Chicago, which was to be played later Friday night.

The Illini never trailed in the game. Sparked by the scoring of Norman and Altenberger and a pressing full-court defense, the Illini led 51-31 at the half.

pattern this time -a move they would not have made a few years World Series champion New York ago but felt they needed to make Mets got their man in Kevin now McReynolds, while Jack Morris

To get McReynolds, relief pitcher Gene Walter and minorleague infielder Adam Ging, the Mets traded two of their most prized prospects, outfielders Stanley Jefferson and Shawn Abner, along with highly regarded pitchers Kevin Armstrong and Kevin Brown, plus multi-purpose Kevin Mitchell

McReynolds, 27, batted .288 with 26 home runs and 96 RBI last season. He will play left field and combine with Darryl Strawberry and Len Dykstra to form one of the most versatile and all-around outfields in baseball

McReynolds will bat sixth in the New York lineup, behind Keith Hernandez, Gary Carter and Strawberry

Mitchell, a San Diego native and the only major-leaguer to start at six positions and bat in eight places in the lineup last season, will be the Padres' third baseman and Jefferson will start in center field.

Like the Mets, Morris and Dawson were also aggressive this week. The two free-agent All-Stars said through their agent Dick Moss that they would not return to their teams next season - Morris to Detroit and Dawson with Montreal.

In doing so, they will be taking on the owners' recent indifference to the free-agent market. Last year, top free agents like Kirk Gibson said they got no offers from other than their own teams, a practice that resulted in the players' union filing a charge of collusion.

Morris said he wants to play for either the New York Yankees, California, Philadelphia or Minnesota, and Dawson listed his preferences as the Chicago Cubs followed by Atlanta break ranks from the pack. So far, they are showing very lukewarm interest for the proven performers.

Still, it remains to be seen how receptive those targeted teams will who is inconsistent at the plate.

Morris, who was 21-8 in 1986, reportedly was offered a two-year contract worth $2.5 million by the Tigers, but had said he wanted a longer term on the pact. Detroit General Manager Bill Lajoie declined to say whether the Tigers would improve their offer.

The Mets' willingness to make a major trade was in sharp contrast to the stance most teams take after winning the World Series. The pitching-rich, hitting-poor Royals won the World Series last year and did not make a deal, turning down a winter meetings offer for San Francisco outfielder Chili Davis for pitcher Mark Gubicza and two lesser players.

This season, the Royals led the American League in pitching but finished 12th in batting and wound up 76-86 and tied for third in the weak AL West, 16 games behind.

This week, Kansas City got Tartabull from the Seattle Mariners for pitcher Scott Bankhead, Mike Kingery and a prospect.

Tartabull, who will play the outfield, was one of the most productive rookies in the league last season, batting .270 with 25 homers and 96 RBL

The Mariners made one other trade, sending reliever Matt Young the Dodgers for promising to starter Dennis Powell and a prospect. Young, an All-Star as a rookie in 1983, led the Mariners with 13 saves and had an 8-6 record with a 3.82 ERA.

The usually shrewd Dodgers also acquired pitcher Tim Leary from Milwaukee for first baseman Greg Brock. Leary went 12-12 with a 4.21 ERA while Brock is a power hitter Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Saturday, December 13, 1986

Quick home test for AIDS developed

By JEFF BRADLEY Associated Press Writer

TORONTO - A quick and easy test for exposure to AIDS has been developed and could be marketed for home use within two years if regulatory agencies grant their approval, sponsors claimed.

Tarrnie M. Williams, vice president of Pilot Laboratories Corp. of Vancouver, a medical finance company, said Thursday the test is "whether at home or the easy remotest section of the African plain," and would probably cost about $10.

The fastest test now available for acquired immune deficiency syndrome takes two to four hours, requires technical instruments and often triggers false positive readings, creators of the new procedure told a news conference.

The test was developed by the Murex Corp. of Norcross, Ga., and Pilot Laboratories said it is raising $4.3 million through a private stock sale to finance production.

Murex Vice President Jerry Hossom said the test should be on the market by March in some European, Far East or African nations free of regulatory barriers. He declined to identify the countries.

Hossom said the test has been tried on AIDS patients at the Institute of Cancer Research in San Francisco, and claimed an accuracy rate of better than 99 percent. He predicted the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and Canadian authorities would approve it by August.

At the U.S. Center for Disease Control, spokeswoman Gayle Lloyd said she was unaware of the test, but added: "A 10-minute, fast, reliable test for AIDS is great, if that's what it is. Just think of the people who go to be tested and have to wait with baited breath for the results.

FDA spokeswoman Susan Cruzan said reliability was as important as speed. "What difference does it make if you learn in 10 minutes or two hours?" she said, adding Murex would have to prove the test works before U.S. approval is granted.

Dr. Gerald Bush, director of systems development for Murex Corp. of Georgia, holds the SUDS test cartridges and reagents during a news conference in Toronto Thursday. SUDS is a quick AIDS diagnostic system that tests for the antibodies to the virus, and research is under way for an equally simple screen for the virus itself.

The World Health Organization son had been exposed to AIDS. But to bind the chemicals. In a positive estimates there will be 500,000 to 3 million AIDS cases by 1991, and Pilot Corp. said it expects the value of the AIDS diagnostic market to grow from $100 million next year to $421 million in 1991.

The test consists of mixing drops of a patient's blood serum with chemical agents to determine the presence of AIDS antibodies

A positive test would mean the individual's body has created antibodies to defend against invading AIDS antigens and, thus, the per-it would not necessarily mean the person has AIDS, which eventually destroys the immune system, leaving the individual vulnerable to infections and disease.

Murex is working on improvements that will make it possible to directly detect the AIDS virus rather than antibodies, and to test whole blood rather than serum. This would open the way for home test kits.

"If the regulatory bodies allow it, we will adapt it for home use,' Hossom said.

Murex already produces the U.S.-patented cartridge device known as SUDS, for Single-Use Diagnostic System - for rubella, strep throat and toxoplasmosis tests, marketed for it by Syntex Corp. of Palo Alto, Calif. The FDA has approved a SUDS pregnancy test that will be available next

Treatment costs less than first predicted

By BRENDA C. COLEMAN Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO - New studies indicate the cost of treating AIDS patients is much less than federal researchers expected, and could be kept down through more use of home care, hospices and nursing homes rather than hospitals.

Researchers who studied AIDS patients at hospitals in San Francisco and Boston found their hospital costs averaged only about a third of the $147,000 estimated by federal researchers in January.

A study of 445 patients with acquired immune deficiency syndrome at San Francisco General Hospital during 1984 found total hospital costs averaged $41,499 each from diagnosis to death over a median survival time of 11.2 months.

Researchers who studied 45 AIDS patients at New England Deaconess Hospital in Boston beginning in late 1984 found they incurred an average of $50,380 in health-care expenditures over a mean life expectancy of 13 months

The studies were reported in today's Journal of the American Medical Association.

"Possible reasons for the differences include much lower lifetime use of hospital services and somewhat lower cost per hospital day," said the Califor-nia researchers, led by Anne A. Scitovsky of Palo Alto Medical Foundation-Research Institute.

The federal researchers had estimated AIDS patients would average 168 days in the hospital at $878 per day after diagnosis. But a San Francisco patient surviving 11.2 months spent an average of 52.2 days in the hospital at $795 per day, the California researchers found.

The Massachusetts researchers said an AIDS patient spent an average 61.9 days in the hospital per year of survival.

That study, led by George R. Seage III of the Boston Department of Health and Hospitals, did not indicate a daily hospitalization cost.

San Francisco's homosexual community provides support services to AIDS-stricken members "that very likely help them to leave the hospital sooner or to stay out of the hospital completely," the California researchers said. They suggested the system might serve as a model for other communities in helping patients curb hospital expenses.

An editorial accompanying the studies said that although lower cost estimates are encouraging, AIDS will remain an expensive disease to treat.

"In the absence of a vaccine or a definitive cure, the Public Helth Service projects that 74,000 AIDS patients will be diagnosed in 1991 and 71,000 patients with previously diagnosed AIDS will be alive at the beginning of the year," said Ann M. Hardy of the CDC, who led researchers making the original cost estimates a year ago.

"The estimated direct healthcare costs for these patients will be between $8 billion and $16 billion, accounting for 1.2 percent to 2.4 percent of the expected total U.S. personal health-care expenditures in 1991," she said.

To reduce that burden, she, too, suggested that alternatives be explored to hospitals - home care, hospices and other longterm care facilities.

By Dec. 8, the number of U.S. adult AIDS cases reported to the CDC totaled 28,098, with 15,757 deaths.

Researcher finds clue to reactions of AIDS virus

This varied reaction to the virus which causes acquired immune deficiency syndrome has puzzled scientists for years, but researchers at the University of California. San Francisco, said Thursday they might have found an explanation.

The scientists say a group of white blood cells appear to influence the virus after it penetrates other target cells, inhibiting it the immune system that is under attack in AIDS to counterattack the disease, without using toxic anti-viral drugs.

In a study published today in the Dec. 19 issue of the journal Science, the researchers led by Dr. Jay A. Levy said this subgroup of white blood cells, called suppressor T-cells, appears able to control the virus in cell cultures by keeping it from kill the host cells, they added. The report said the suppressor cell activity in cultures was dose-dependent, that is, the viral inhibition increased in direct proportion to increased numbers of suppressor cells.

If the suppressor T-cells prove to control the virus in humans, the researchers said, it may be possible to boost the number of crease numbers of anti-cancer cells, he noted.

"This is the first indication that individuals have in themselves a means of controlling the virus," Levy said in a telephone interview. "This discovery could be the first step toward an effective therapy for AIDS, using a person's own immune cells rather than drugs that are

"We now have a mechanism that could explain this.

Dr. Anthony S. Fauci, director of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases and a leading federal AIDS researcher, said the California findings should be pursued and confirmed.

previously unexplained cases of United States believed to have been AIDS most likely were caused through heterosexual transmission of the deadly disease, federal researchers said.

The Centers for Disease Control said Thursday that it was reclassifing 571 AIDS cases as heterosexually transmitted.

All the cases involve people born outside the United States, in areas such as Haiti and central Africa, where heterosexual contact is the major means of transmission for the disease.

Fifty-six percent of those diagnosed with AIDS in this country have died.

Heterosexual cases are growing faster than other cases and could make up nearly 10 percent of all U.S. AIDS cases by 1991, said Dr. Tim Dondero, an AIDS specialist with the CDC.

During the last 12 months, heterosexually transmitted AIDS cases among U.S.-born patients were up 232 percent — from 120 in the 12 months ending December 1985 to 279 in the most recent period. In that time, total AIDS reporting was up 58 percent.

In the reclassified cases, evidence points to heterosexual transmission because some of the patients have other sexually transmitted diseases and because some of the male AIDS patients reportedly have had contact with prostitutes.
