How's that? Pictures

Q. If I have an idea for a picture in the paper, can I call it in?
A. Any ideas for pictures in the paper may be referred to the editorial department at the Herald, 263-7331.

Calendar Jobs

Tuesday
• Tuesday is the last day for unemployed persons to advertise free in the Big Spring Herald their job skills that will aid in their search for full-time employment. Persons can call the classified department between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. which is the deadline.

Participants are asked to limit their ads to 25 words, and to contact the Herald if the ad helps them obtain a job.

Tops on TV James Bond

Dashing secret agent James Bond tracks a criminal who has purloined a top-secret British defense device from the waters off Greece in "For Your Eyes Only," at 8 p.m. on Ch. 2.

• "The Sound of Music," at 7 p.m. on Ch. 13.
• "The Alamo," at 2 p.m. on Ch. 8.

Outside Cloudy

Skies will be mostly cloudy today, with a 20 percent chance of showers this afternoon and tonight. The high today will be in the upper 40s, and the low tonight will be in the mid 30s.

Lounge only non-smoking

PONTIAC, Mich. — One line you won't hear at Adams Landing Bar and Restaurant is, "Excuse me, have you got a light?"

"A lot of people said you can't open a bar because when people drink they want to smoke," said Larry Adams, an ex-smoker who opened up his no-smoking place three weeks ago at the Pontiac-Oakland airport. "Well that's true for about 30 percent of the population, but 70 percent don't."

He said that business started off slow but has been growing, and the pub is a popular spot for those who, like him, have kicked the tobacco habit.

"There's definitely a market," he said. "The fact is that fewer people are smoking today and more are becoming concerned about the effects of secondhand smoke."

Manager Debbie Adams said she's taken cigarettes from customers, but none has complained yet.

One customer, John Hardy of Milford, said he quit smoking in May.

"We've gone to other restaurants and, so we don't have to wait, told the hostess it doesn't matter if we're seated in a smoking section," he said. "But it does make a difference. When you're trying to eat while others smoke nearby, it's not very pleasant."

Local holiday shopping good and bad

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

Some Big Spring merchants were pleased with their holiday sales and others were disappointed, but most agreed that Big Spring shoppers waited until the last minute to do their Christmas shopping.

"It started off real slow," said Terry Jenkins, the owner of P&P Stereo, "and it really picked up the week of Christmas. But we were worried for a while. It was still kind of below what I expected."

Mary Walls, the owner of The Cottage and The Guy Next Door, said her store exceeded its last year's Christmas sales.

"We had an excellent Christmas. It hit late, but our figures are above last year, so I'm pleased."

At Wal-Mart, where it was often hard to find a parking spot during the week before Christmas, Manager Jody Glover said he was "satisfied."

"We were pretty happy with what we did. Of course, we wish we could have done better, but that's natural in any business," Glover said.

Jerry Glickman, owner of the Record Shop, was one of several area merchants who experienced a big drop in business this season.

"It was only fair. It didn't start until the Monday a week before Christmas. It was quite a bit less than what it had been, at least 25 percent lower," Glickman said.

Owners of three holiday-oriented stores reported better-than-expected December sales.

"We did great. The media has been telling us that the economy is bad, but it's not that bad," said Virginia McMillan, the owner of The Candle Shop. "It really picked up the Sunday before Thanksgiving and was steady. We really were amazed at how good business was this year," she added.

Joy Boyd, owner of Joy's Hallmark, said she was pleased with December sales, and said she had more out-of-town shoppers than she anticipated.

Bill Draper, the owner of Faye's Flowers, called this December a "tremendous season. It was one of the best seasons this shop has ever had. It was really good at the end. There were a lot of last-minute shoppers," he said.

Glenn Zeman, the assistant manager at the new Wonder World store, said he was satisfied with basic sales but disappointed in sales of Christmas related items, like ornaments and wrapping paper.

"You never do what you hope you could do, but we did what we expected we could do. We learned this year some things we didn't know.

We made a few mistakes, but all in all we did pretty well," Zeman said.

Steve Trezise, the manager at K-Mart, said business was not as good as last year, but he added that the new competition from Wonder World was part of the reason.

"If not for that (Wonder World), we would have exceeded our sale projections," he said.

J.C. Penney's Manager Arthur Cleveland blamed the economy for what he said was a significant drop from last year's Christmas sales.

"It's only a reflection of what's going on in our area. It's not indicative of anything except that. MERCHANTS page 2A

Pecos River called a thing of the past

SHEFFIELD (AP) — B.B. Ingham Jr. grins, his arms outstretched, as he talks about catching 40-pound catfish that once swam in large numbers from the lower Pecos River.

But the 70-year-old Ingham, who has lived all his life along the river 30 miles southeast of Iraan, calls the Pecos a "dying river and a thing of the past."

His more recent memories of the river — about 300 yards from his home, about 90 miles south of Odessa — include seeing fish piled on top of one another in fresh-water tributaries, struggling for breath and seeking fresh water.

"They were thicker than sardines," he said, "and the water was chocolate brown."

The Pecos has been a river ravaged by killer tides of sulfating, toxic algae for the past two years.

The latest fish kill began Nov. 29 and is only now playing itself out in the upper reaches of Amistad Reservoir after killing an estimated 300,000 fish of all types.

Pollution from oil and gas exploration in the nearby Yates Field, not algae, is to blame for the river's demise, Ingham claims.

"Until the oil field got in, you could find the most beautiful, big fish in the river," he said, recalling days as a boy when he caught fish large enough to break the cotton line on his pole.

The Pecos River's pollution problems began about 1930, Ingham said, recalling that there was a major oil spill from a pipeline that ran from Iraan to Del Rio. Crude flowed into the river and had to be burned off.

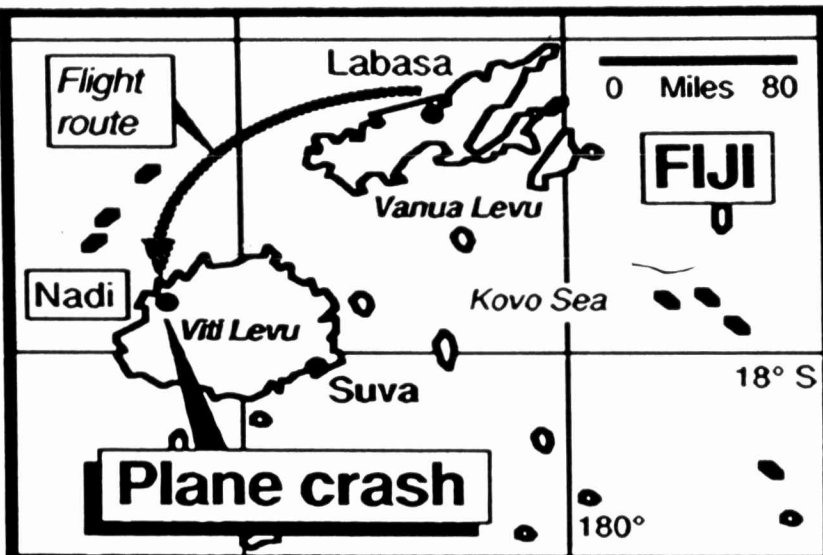

During the 1930s and '40s, the river took a beating as poorly cased, deep wells in the lucrative Yates Field leaked oil, gas and saltwater into the river, Ingham said.

"You could put your foot into a gravel bed along the river and see oil bubble up into the imprint," he told the Odessa American.

Some wells along the river were so shallow they could be dug by bulldozers, and greedy producers would let them flow into the river, literally "skimming" profits off the water.

But Olin Smith, 69, another longtime area resident, said he can't be sure the oil business is completely to blame for the river's problems.

He told of shepherds telling his Pecos River page 2A

11 killed in crash on Fiji

NADI, Fiji (AP) — An island commuter plane crashed just short of the runway at Fiji's Nadi international airport Saturday, killing 11 people, including six Americans, police said.

Three people were injured, two critically, in this South Pacific island kingdom's worst aviation accident.

It was not immediately known how many were aboard the four-engine De Havilland Heron aircraft or what caused the crash.

Witnesses said the plane was coming in to land when it plunged to the ground about 200 yards from the grassy runway.

A U.S. Embassy official flew to crash site Sunday to help identify the bodies of the Americans.

Police said further details of the mid-afternoon crash were being withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Four of the dead were identified as Sunita Swamy, 26, a dietician at Lautoka hospital near Nadi, and her 5-month-old daughter Simita; the pilot, John Dorney of Australia; and co-pilot, Andrea Drew of New Zealand.

Abshire says he has free hand Iran affair

By ROBERT J. WIELAARD
Associated Press Writer

BRUSSELS, Belgium — David M. Abshire said Saturday President Reagan has given him a free hand as special counselor in coordinating White House responses to congressional and other probes into the Iran-Contras affair.

Abshire, who is the U.S. ambassador to NATO here, indicated he planned to be special counselor to the president for "several months." He was appointed by Reagan on Friday.

Before accepting the job, Abshire said, he had "a couple of conversations with (White House Chief of Staff) Donald Regan and I told Don that I wanted a charter ... to spell out my mandate."

Asked during an interview with The Associated Press at his residence if this guaranteed him freedom of action, he said, "Totally ... I report to the president and I've got all the freedom of action I need."

Abshire, 60, said he told both Regan and the president he opposed a special White House probe into the sale of U.S. arms to Iran and the reported diversion of some of the profits to Contra rebels fighting the Nicaraguan government.

"There was no rationale ... to start a whole new investigation on a separate track," he said.

He said the NATO allies had "rallied around the United States" in its time of political turmoil "and I am sure that sent a message to the Kremlin." But he added, "I think the concern is that the Iranian issue might well become a distraction interfering with effective decision-making."

For that reason, he said, he welcomed the president's decision to seek a special counselor from outside the White House.

"This very decisive decision the president has taken is in the interests of the United States domestically and is in the interests of the United States and its allies internationally," he said. "It separates out these two functions so that they do not get scrambled together."

He described his new job as "a short-term assignment."

"I won't put a number of days on it," Abshire said. "But I do have other commitments to go back to. Those things are still on my agenda ... I think we can do a lot in the next several months."

Texans seem optimistic about state's future

By The Associated Press

As the state ends 150 years of independence amid its worst economic problems in decades, Texans are optimistic but believe significant changes lie ahead.

Many of those surveyed as the Sesquicentennial year drew to a close predicted lean times in the next few years and warned that Texas must wean itself from a dependence on oil and gas.

They said preparation through education and job training is necessary as the state ushers in a period that will see changes ranging from the way Texans earn their money to the way they fight crime.

"There's just a spirit about Texas that will never die, and through the difficult times, we'll learn from it and get stronger," said former Dallas Cowboys quarterback Roger Staubach. "The foundation is solid and I think the future is very bright."

"I'm betting with Texas," said U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm. "Anyone who bets money on the future of Texas and the future of America is going to be a big winner."

Despite difficult times in agriculture and the oil and gas industry, Gramm noted the state's increasing involvement in defense contracting and high technology.

"My batting average has been rather poor in trying to forecast the TEXAS FUTURE page 2A

Bank fined $25,000

SEATTLE — Seattle-First National Bank has been fined $25,000 by the Commerce Department, which said the bank gave Arab officials information related to the Arabs' boycott of Israel.

Seafirst lawyers neither admitted nor denied the accusations in the consent settlement, according to a statement from the department issued Friday.

A spokeswoman for Washington state's largest bank refused to comment, saying lawyers and executives were away for the holidays.

Federal law bars private U.S. entities from refusing to do business with others because of foreign boycotts and prohibits the furnishing of information about business relations with boycotted countries and blacklisted persons.

Soviet invasion decried

LOS ANGELES — Denouncing the Soviet Union as a "Satan" embarked on a policy of genocide, 250 to 300 Afghan immigrants rallied at City Hall Saturday to mark the seventh anniversary of the Soviet invasion of their homeland.

The demonstrators, some in their native dress of loose trousers, robes and flat cloth caps, brandished anti-Soviet signs and banners and listened to speakers praise the tribal warriors who are battling the communist government of Afghanistan and the Soviet forces that support it.

"We kicked out Alexander the Great, we kicked the British Empire out of Afghanistan, and — inshallah (God willing) — we will kick out the Russian Communists," Omar Khitab exhorted the crowd, branding the Soviet Union "Satan."

Reagan: '86 a good year

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, heading for a New Year's vacation far from Washington and the Iran-Contra controversy, all but ignored his biggest problem Saturday, saying 1986 "was a very good year."

In his weekly radio address, recorded in advance to be broadcast while he was flying to California for a holiday week in Los Angeles and Palm Springs, Reagan made only brief mention of the crisis that has enveloped his presidency.

"The Iran controversy has certainly been a disappointment for all of us," he said, reiterating his commitment "to getting all the facts and fixing whatever went wrong."

Taking a slap at the news media, which has focused attention in recent weeks on the secret arms sales to Iran and diversion of profits to Nicaraguan rebels, Reagan referred to a book by conservative commentator Ben Wattenberg entitled, "The Good News Is the Bad News Is Wrong."

The year 1986, Reagan told his audience, "will be remembered by you for some important and long-lasting events that the political pundits don't remember or may not have noticed."

Racial march Thousands protest attack

NEW YORK (AP) — Black and white clergy and civil rights leaders linked arms Saturday and led thousands of marchers into the neighborhood where a black man was chased to his death by a gang of white teen-agers a week ago.

The estimated 5,000 marchers were heckled by counter-demonstrators as they marched through the predominantly white Howard Beach district.

Police officers lined the route, police helicopters hovered overhead, and the march remained peaceful, though it ended with a tense, 20-minute standoff between the marchers, mostly blacks, and about 200 white youths.

The groups screamed at each other from different sides of four-lane Cross Bay Boulevard. The Rev. Hebert Daughtry, a march leader, appealed for calm on his side as the white youths chanted in unison: "Go home!" and screamed racial slurs.

The 250 police officers patrolling the march formed a line two deep to hold back the groups, and there were no arrests and no injuries, said police spokesman Lt. Thomas Fahey.

Earlier, the marchers paused to pray in front of the New Park Pizzeria, where last week's racial incident began.

"Racial hatred is stupid, mindless, heedless," said Benjamin Hooks, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People at a rally. "Racism is alive and well in America."

Police said Michael Griffith, 23, and two friends, all black, were chased and beaten early Dec. 20 by a gang of youths wielding bats and sticks. Griffith was hit by a car and killed as he tried to escape by running across the Belt Parkway. Three white teen-agers have been charged with murder in the case.

Three days later, a group of black youths beat up a white teen-ager waiting for a bus in Jamaica, Queens. Police called that an apparent retaliation for the Howard Beach attack.

State Assemblyman Edward Abramson of Howard Beach welcomed Saturday's crowd before the march and blasted "the wolf packs" that chased Griffith.

But not everyone along the route was as glad to see the marchers.

"Howard Beach is not racist. The march is a disgrace. We don't need the march. If we marched through their neighborhood, we wouldn't be going home," said Joseph Cumin, who said he has lived in Howard Beach for 23 years.

mand, watched the march proceed through the community of single-family homes and said, "It's kind of scary."

The marchers proceeded to the football field of John Adams High School, where the three teen-agers held on second-degree murder charges at school.

Civil rights and religious leaders spoke from a "largest truck." Each of them decried racism, some prayed, others sang. Most accused Gov. Mario Cuomo of not speaking out about the incident and blasted Mayor Edward I. Koch's administration for not doing more to curb racism.

Several speakers alluded to their experiences in civil rights marches in the South years ago.

Along the mile-long march route, the marchers waved banners and signs. Some said: "Howard Beach: South Africa, U.S.A. No More Lynching"; others, "Say No to Racist Violence."

They chanted, "Howard Beach, have you heard: This is not Johannesburg!" and sang "We Shall Overcome." The march lasted about two hours, the rally, about 45 minutes.

"Twenty-five years ago we marched to overcome in Selma, Birmingham and Jackson. We shall overcome in New York City," said march organizer Norman Seigal. "Today we have become the Northern civil rights movement."

C. Vernon Mason, a civil rights lawyer, urged the crowd to attend Monday's preliminary court hearing for the three youths charged in Griffith's death. He declared: "Howard Beach, have you heard: You are Johannesburg."

"I think the situation is very painful. It's a sickness," said one of the marchers, Jean Bonn, 47, of the Bronx.

Tanker probe begins

REYKJAVIK, Iceland — A marine court will begin a formal inquiry today into the sinking of a British tanker that ran into a rock marked by a lighthouse off Iceland, officials said. At least nine crewmen were killed.

Aircraft resumed searching Saturday for the bodies of three other crewmen still unaccounted for and presumed dead following the sinking of the 1,260-ton Syneta. It crashed early Friday into the 531-foot Skrudur rock off the east coast.

In London, the newspaper Today speculated the crew of six British officers and six deck hands from the Cape Verde Islands were having a Christmas party below decks when the accident happened.

36 injured in resort

LES ORRES, France — A pylon snapped at this alpine ski resort Saturday, sending two cable cars crashing 40 feet down onto a parking lot and injuring 36 people, 12 seriously, officials said.

"People were screaming with fear and pain," a witness said. "Vacationers, resort personnel, everybody rushed to extract them from the (cable car) cabin where they were stuck in the middle of skis and ski poles."

All those injured were in the two cars, and most of the injuries were fractures, officials said. Six helicopters and a fleet of ambulances took victims to hospitals in Marseille, Grenoble, Sisteron, Gap, Embrun and Briançon after emergency treatment at the restaurant.

Les Orres, opened 14 years ago, is near Lake Serre-Poncon, 28 miles from Gap and 435 miles southeast of Paris.

Michel Eymard, director of the ski school at Les Orres, said the whole top of the pylon broke off and crashed to the ground, carrying the two cable cars with it. The cause of the failure was not immediately known.

Captured man kills two

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — A captured black guerrilla broke loose from two police guards, grabbed a gun and killed both officers, police said Saturday. The guerrilla escaped.

The man was among a group of five suspected African National Congress guerrillas who crossed into South Africa on Christmas Eve, apparently planning to lay land mines on rural roads, the Defense Force said.

A farmer out hunting came upon the group Friday on his farm in the Weipe district in northern Transvaal Province, near the Zimbabwe border, the Defense Force said. The farmer fired at them, but they escaped and the farmer alerted the military.

In follow-up operations, security forces killed four of the guerrillas, captured the fifth and confiscated land mines.

The captured man was being taken to the regional center of Messina, near the border, at about 9 p.m. Friday but "managed to free himself, grab a loaded firearm and shoot the two (police force) members," police headquarters said in a statement.

Challenger explosion "an accident rooted in history"

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — The Challenger explosion was "an accident rooted in history," in the judgment of a presidential commission, which summarized the main fault in one paragraph:

"The space shuttle's solid rocket booster problem began with the faulty design of its joint and increased as both NASA and contractor management first failed to recognize it as a problem, then failed to fix it and finally treated it as an acceptable flight risk."

Challenger blew apart 73 seconds after it lifted off a Cape Canaveral launch pad last Jan. 28. All seven crew members, including New Hampshire schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe, were killed in the worst space accident in history.

The tragedy has had a profound effect on this nation's space program. NASA's management and safety practices have been overhauled, the redesign of the faulty booster joint has grounded the shuttle fleet until at least February 1988, a less ambitious flight schedule has been drafted and President Reagan has directed that most commercial payloads be shifted to unmanned rockets.

The investigative commission appointed by President Reagan and chaired by former Secretary of State William Rogers traced the problem to the original award of the solid fuel booster rocket to Morton Thiokol in 1973.

Four companies competed for the contract and a NASA evaluation rated Morton Thiokol second, but it was selected because "cost advantages were substantial."

Because of the Nixon administration's budget-cutting, NASA was forced to design a scaled-down vehicle. NASA originally proposed a craft that would not be boosted by solid fuel rockets, but by more controllable liquid engines.

Because Morton Thiokol was in Utah, the boosters had to be built in segments and shipped by train to Cape Canaveral. Joints had to be designed to connect the sections and prevent hot propellant gases from escaping.

Morton Thiokol proposed joints similar to those on the Air Force's Titan 3 solid rocket. But they were slightly different and not as gas-tight.

Leon Ray and John Miller, engineers at NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center, which managed the Morton Thiokol contract, wrote a report saying a new design for the joint "was mandatory to prevent hot gas leaks and resulting catastrophic failure."

NASA managers, however, accepted the design.

The decision seemed to be justified when shuttles

The Space Shuttle mission 51-L (Challenger) explodes shortly after liftoff from Kennedy Space Center in Florida, claiming the lives of the seven crew members on board in January 1986.

began flying in 1981 and, in flight after flight, the boosters seemingly performed flawlessly.

But there were danger signs. On the second flight, STS-2, NASA detected an "erosion" of a primary O-ring in one of the six booster joints. The O-ring is made of synthetic rubber and is designed to seal the joint. There is a primary ring and a backup ring in each joint.

Although the seal eroded on that flight, it did not leak.

The anomaly was not reported in the flight readiness review for STS-3, but engineers at Marshall and Morton Thiokol continued to study the problem.

In December 1982, the Marshall center determined that the secondary O-rings no longer worked after the joints rotated.

The joint was classified as "criticality 1," meaning that leakage of the primary ring could lead to "loss of mission, vehicle and crew."

Yet, NASA retained the design, based on the success of the Titan 3 with a single O-ring.

A rash of O-ring damage cases in 1985, including a severe instance in 53-degree weather, caused Morton Thiokol to reexamine the reliability of the seals. The company tested the effects of cold weather on O-ring resiliency and found that at 50 degrees it was virtually nonexistent.

In July 1985, NASA placed a launch constraint on the entire shuttle system. This meant that a launch could not take place if there was an unresolved question about a "criticality 1" item — unless there was reason to think that the problem would not occur in flight. Then, a waiver could be granted, which the agency proceeded to provide on each mission, right up to Challenger's disaster.

On Aug. 19, 1985, Marshall and Morton Thiokol engineers for the first time briefed NASA headquarters managers on the history and the potential of the problem, concluding the O-ring seal was a critical matter, but it was safe to fly.

They recommended an accelerated program to eliminate seal erosion and Morton Thiokol engineers made 43 suggested changes for the segment joints and 20 for the nozzle joints. But the design work advanced at a slow pace.

"The O-ring erosion history presented to Level 1 at NASA headquarters in August 1985 was sufficiently detailed to require corrective action before the next flight," the Rogers commission said. Jesse Moore, who headed NASA's shuttle program, missed that meeting and told the commission he had never been informed of the problem. Nor were the astronauts or several other high-level NASA officials.

On the night before the Challenger launch, temperatures at the launch site dipped to 24 degrees and remained below freezing for 10 hours. Several Morton Thiokol engineers familiar with the cold weather tests on the O-rings argued with Marshall managers that the launch should be postponed. In earlier manned flights, the burden of proof had been on the engineers and contractors to persuade NASA management that it was safe to launch. In this case, the Marshall officials put the engineers in the position of having to prove that it was not safe to launch.

Challenger was launched with the temperature reading 36 degrees.

The Rogers commission concluded the explosion was caused by the failure of O-rings in one of the right booster joints to contain the pressure of hot gases produced by burning rocket fuel. Flames burned through the joint, causing the booster to tear away from the external fuel tank, which exploded.

The report said the cold weather probably stiffened the O-rings to the point where they failed.

Biotechnology added to list of agriculture's concerns

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON — Add biotechnology to the concerns of the American farmer, who has historically been preoccupied with the weather, crop prices and more recently by the threat of bankruptcy.

Genetic engineers are tinkering with plants and animals to make them more productive or more resistant to pests and harsh weather. Futuristic though it may sound, the issue cropped up in 1986:

— A California company, Advanced Genetic Sciences, abandoned plans to test a frost-fighting bacteria in a strawberry field in Monterey. The company, which had been fined $13,000 by the Environmental Protection Agency for improper reporting and which faced a lawsuit on the strawberry test, said it would seek another site and hoped to test next year.

— Steven E. Lindow of the University of California won EPA permission to test altered strains of the bacterium Pseudomonas syringae, which he and others believe can protect plants against frost damage. The experiment is similar to the one proposed by Advanced Genetic Sciences, but involves potatoes.

— A controversy is just beginning on bovine growth hormone, which has been synthetically produced and can boost a cow's milk output by as much as 28 percent. No one can be certain what will happen to dairy farmers as a group if and when BGH becomes commonplace.

"The biotechnology revolution is no more stoppable than was the Industrial Revolution, and it holds similar potential for improving the future well-being of mankind," said Robert L. Thompson, the Agriculture Department's assistant secretary for economics.

Fire deaths ruled murder-suicide

EL PASO — Police said a 40-year-old man deliberately killed himself and his two sons by setting fire to his El Paso home.

Dale Perry had issued several warning signs of potential suicide, a psychologist said.

Police Lt. Paul Saucedo said Friday that the Christmas Day incident has been ruled a double murder and suicide.

The victims were identified as Perry, 40, and his sons Ian, 4, and Aaron Perry, 18 months.

"In this case, there are all the classical indications of suicide potential," said Dr. Luiz Natalicio of El Paso, referring to reports that Perry gave away everything he possessed shortly before the fire.

Natalicio said it is rare for someone to commit suicide using fire. "It is not a painless way of losing your life. He really wanted to send a big message to somebody."

Neighbors reported seeing Perry burning his and his sons' possessions in his backyard, including some of the boys' toys.

Natalicio said that action might have been a message.

"He was telling us something, and it's always after the fact we carry out an analysis that he was indicating suicide."

Perry had been trying to take care of his sons after his wife died last year in October, according to reports.

DPS Trooper shot in hand by driver

AUSTIN — A state trooper was shot in the hand when the driver of a car he had pulled over in northwest Travis County fired six times at him and sped away, officials said.

Department of Public Safety Trooper Lance Coleman, 25, suffered a gunshot wound to the right hand about 8 p.m. Friday after stopping a vehicle near the Cypress Creek Park on Lake Travis, officers said.

Coleman "pulled the car over because some of the taillights were out," DPS spokesman David Wells said. "After the vehicle stopped, he began approaching the vehicle and that's when the shots were fired."

Coleman was able to radio the DPS dispatcher that he had been shot, officers said. The dispatcher immediately issued a bulletin about the shooting with a description of the car and its driver.

DPS troopers and Travis County sheriff's officers used helicopters and set up roadblocks throughout the area but had not found the car by early Saturday, Wells said.

Three die in fire at rural home

GILMER — Two women and a man died in a fire at a rural home where the occupants used a wood-burning stove for heat and kerosene lanterns for light, officials said Friday.

The bodies were burned beyond recognition and were sent to the Southwest Forensic Laboratory in Dallas for identification, with results expected Monday, said Upshur County Sheriff Dale Jewkes.

"From the position of the bodies, it is very likely that they woke up with the fire and were trying to get out," Jewkes said of the pre-dawn Christmas morning blaze.

The two-bedroom frame home near this East Texas town had no electrical service for the past seven months, he said.

Amunition for a large number of guns in the house exploded from the fire, endangering firefighters as they tried to enter, Jewkes said.

State fair ride victim dead at 27

DALLAS — A woman who became a quadriplegic after the gondola she was riding in plunged 85 feet to the ground during the 1979 State Fair of Texas has died of complications from her injuries, her attorney says.

Cindy Nagle, 27, of Long Grove, Iowa, died Wednesday in an Iowa hospital of heart and kidney failure related to her being paralyzed from the neck down for more than seven years, Dallas attorney Winkle Turley said Friday.

Ms. Nagle was 20 when she and her husband were riding the half-mile-long ride over the Midway on the last day of the fair.

One gondola got stuck and three others piled up behind it, sending Ms. Nagle's and another car crashing to the ground in winds gusting up to 35 mph. One man playing an arcade game on the ground below was crushed to death.

Of the 17 people injured in the accident, Ms. Nagle — with a broken neck and the resulting paralysis — was the most seriously injured, Turley said.

"Like most quadriplegics, Cindy had lots of problems," Turley told the Dallas Times Herald. "They have problems with their kidneys, lungs and their hearts. Ultimately, it (the accident) killed her."

In a 1981 lawsuit, Ms. Nagle and her husband sought $11.7 million from the State Fair and the manufacturer and operator of the "Swiss Skyride," claiming the ride was operated despite warnings it was unsafe.

Three weeks into the trial, the couple settled out of court for $3.8 million.

Deaths in Texas

AMARILLO (AP) — BOB CRUES, a former minor league baseball player who made the record books when he hit 69 home runs in 1948 for the Amarillo Gold Sox, died Friday. He was 67.

Crues started his minor league career as a pitcher in 1940 when he led the Berger Gassers to the West Texas-New Mexico League championship with a 20-5 record.

He was signed by the Boston Red Sox, and in 1941, while sitting in a dugout in Greenville, S.C., was hit on the shoulder by a wild pitch. That ended his pitching career, and he moved to the outfield.

Crues had his best season in 1948 while playing for the Amarillo Gold Sox in the West Texas-New Mexico League. He hit 69 home runs to tie the minor league record of Joe Hauser, who had set the record in 1933 while playing for Minneapolis in the American Association.

Crues was born in Celina and moved to Amarillo in 1940 from Plainview. After his baseball career, he worked at Atex Oil Co. and managed a company service station.

Funeral arrangements were pending.

Survivors include his wife, Billie; four sons, three brothers and seven grandchildren.

HOUSTON — Funeral services were held Friday for GEORGE S. BRUCE JR., a lifelong Houston resident who helped organize KTRK-TV, the River Oaks Country Club and the Houston Sports Association.

Bruce died Thursday after suffering a stroke about six weeks ago, his son, William Bruce said. He was 86.

The elder Bruce founded George Bruce & Co. Insurance Brokers in 1938 and merged it with Alexander & Alexander, a national insurance firm, 30 years later. He worked as a senior vice president and consultant until his stroke.

He helped organize the Houston Sports Association, which spawned the Colt 45s that later became the Houston Astros. He also helped start the River Oaks Tennis Tournament in 1931.

Survivors include his wife, Laura Kirkland Bruce, two sons, a sister and grandchildren.

GAINESVILLE — JACK JOYCE, who served as managing editor of the Gainesville Daily Register for 22 years, has died.

Joyce, 67, died Wednesday at Oak Tree Lodge Nursing Home after a lengthy battle against multiple sclerosis. His funeral was Friday.

A 1949 journalism graduate of Texas Christian University, he worked at the Register for 29 years until his retirement in 1979.

Joyce started as a reporter and worked his way up to city editor, then managing editor. He also wrote a daily column, "Picked Up Passing By," until illness forced him to retire.

He headed several state committees for The Associated Press Managing Editors organization while at the newspaper. He was president of the TCU Journalism Exes in 1973 and served on TCU's journalism advisory board.

He is survived by his wife, Ila Joyce of Gainesville; a daughter and two sons.

HOUSTON — ELMER J. GRAY, the first student-athlete at Abilene

Christian University to compete in the U.S. Olympic trials in track and field, died after a bout with cancer. He was 78.

Gray died Friday afternoon at M.D. Anderson Hospital.

Gray, a businessman and member of the Hall of Fame of Abilene Christian, had the university's track stadium named in his honor in 1969. He graduated from Roscoe High School in 1928 and Abilene Christian in 1932.

Funeral services are tentatively scheduled for Monday afternoon in Baytown.

Gray was captain of the 1931 ACU track team. In 1932 he placed third in the NCAA half-mile and competed in the Olympic trials in Los Angeles, narrowly missing a place on the U.S. Olympic team.

He was the first athlete at ACU to run the quarter-mile in less than 50 seconds and he ran on winning relay teams at Texas, Kansas and Drake Relays. He also played football at Abilene Christian as quarterback and halfback.

Youth shelter given late Christmas gift

GARLAND — A woman known as "Grandma" to the people she helps says she'll be able to keep the doors to her youth shelter open after receiving a belated Christmas gift of the money needed to make back payments.

Eddie Lewis, 60, had been facing foreclosure of the mortgage of her house in Garland, a suburb east of Dallas. But on Friday she received a call from a man promising to donate $3,700 to make the back payments on her mortgage.

"When I got off the phone (with him), I broke down and started crying," Mrs. Lewis said. "I was so relieved for these kids."

Mrs. Lewis has had trouble paying bills since her husband, Charles, died 16 months ago. The Lewises had helped runaways and abandoned teen-agers for 20 years.

She said she had planned to close the shelter when she ran out of money, but there were more young people who needed to be helped.

"I don't want to quit," she told the Dallas Morning News. "I have such a good success rate with these kids. I just don't have enough money now, so if I want to keep doing it, I guess I'll have to learn how to beg."

The man who made the donation requested anonymity. Mrs. Lewis says she's grateful to the donor for fulfilling her Christmas wish of avoiding foreclosure.

"He's not a rich man. He's just a middle-class man who is retired. He wanted to buy us some time. He bought the kids the time they needed," she said.

Romanian defector in custody

HOUSTON (AP) — A Romanian sailor who jumped ship in Houston remains in custody because no relative, friend or interested agency could be found to take custody of him pending his application for political asylum, officials said.

A friend, Roman Sankowski, identified the sailor as Ivan Kraela, 28. Sankowski said Kraela left the ship, Giurgu, on the grounds that he did not have religious freedom in Romania. Kraela has been in custody since late Wednesday.

Ronald G. Parra, director of the Houston district office for the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said that the INS did not want to leave Kraela out on the streets without somewhere to stay because he does not speak English well.

"My concern was if we released him on the streets, he would be victimized ... because he was a stranger and doesn't understand the language," Parra said.

Calls made by The Associated Press to INS offices in Houston went unanswered Saturday.

Erin Holland, left, encourages Jodi Case, 11, to turn on a tape player as part of an exercise in muscle control. Erin is one of many students from the T.H. Rogers School in Houston who work with handicapped students.

Gifted students volunteer to aid handicapped students

By DEBORAH HURST
Houston Chronicle

HOUSTON (AP) — The frustration of four months of heartbreaking failures was forgotten the day Fabrice Schmidt took his first step.

Enrolled in the program for severely handicapped at T.H. Rogers School since he was 6, Fabrice and teacher Camille Hill had made real progress.

Eating, using the toilet, sitting and standing were skills slow in coming for the 12-year-old — but they finally came. Walking was another matter.

"We knew he could do it," said Ms. Hill, who teaches a multi-handicapped class at Rogers. "He just couldn't overcome his fear."

Even with a class of five students, Ms. Hill said it would have taken her about a year of working with Fabrice on a limited basis before he would have begun to walk. But the barrier of fear was beaten down in a matter of months by a 13-year-old volunteer.

Paul Grunenwald, a student in Rogers' Vanguard Program for gifted students, said he volunteered to work with the handicapped kids during his free time because he wanted to help others.

He and Fabrice, who was brain damaged at birth, worked together on a daily basis following the guidelines of Ms. Hill's carefully planned training program. But even though Fabrice progressed to the point that he could stand and walk with assistance, it seemed he would never take that first step alone.

"It was hard," Paul said. "We did everything we could think of

They get frustrated and you get frustrated, but you have to keep cool and keep trying."

It was hard, but it was also challenging, like a puzzle to be worked. Paul found the missing piece when he noticed Fabrice's fascination with balloons and suggested to Ms. Hill that they use one to lure Fabrice from his frozen stance.

Gripping two wooden blocks, instead of teacher's hand, Fabrice tottered toward the prize without even thinking, said Paul. "It felt so good to see him walking. I couldn't believe it at first. I don't think he could, either. We were all excited."

But Paul said the real reward came when Fabrice walked across the Rogers stage to be honored for his achievement as Handicapped Student of the Year. "To know I had a part in it, well, it just feels good," Paul said.

And feeling good is part of what the program at Rogers is all about.

"Research shows that when you put different (student) populations together, positive attitudes develop," said Sandy Streeper, principal at Rogers. "By integrating the kids, we are developing healthy attitudes about the handicapped."

The children are integrated in classes beginning in kindergarten, the principal said.

But attitudes of acceptance are often difficult for parents to develop. When the Houston Independent School District established the school in 1982, many of the parents of the gifted students were reluctant to send their children to school with the handicapped, said Mary Rapier, assistant principal.

"In the beginning, parents had reservations, sort of like, handicapped is catching," Ms. Rapier said. "Even now, one mother said she didn't know if she could handle it, even though her child really wanted to come here."

But Rapier said most parents take a cue from their children and overcome their apprehensions when they see the benefits of the program. Unlike other Vanguard programs, sign language classes are not only offered, they are required. David Moore, Vanguard coordinator, said the class is a big selling point among parents and children. The Vanguard program, which has 374 children in kindergarten and grades 3 through 8, is the largest of the four groups enrolled at Rogers.

At Rogers, sign language is more of a necessity than a frill. The school has 148 students, infants through eighth grade, enrolled in a program for the deaf that combines the deaf students and Vanguard students in many of the same classes.

"We want to see that those deaf kids are not isolated socially," said Brady Fisher, assistant principal. "They can do things the other kids can do. It also helps the Vanguard kids learn sign language better."

The two groups are combined for physical education, music, art and business classes. They also attend special plays and programs together and lunch at the same time in the school cafeteria, Ms. Rapier said.

The "CHRISTMAS GIFT" which only you can give!
Presented by St. Paul Lutheran Church, 9th and Scurry

During the Christmas-New Year period of the year the need for blood is at its highest — often due to traffic accidents. During this time of the year people often are so caught up in their busy schedules that they forget to take the time to give the "gift of life."

There are many traditions which we follow each Christmas Season and one of these traditions is that St. Paul Lutheran Church conducts a Christmas-New Year blood drive. This tradition will be carried out again this year on Monday afternoon, December 29 in the fellowship hall of the church at 9th and Scurry from 12:00 noon to 6:00 p.m.

Traditions are sometimes hard to establish. Giving blood seems to be an especially hard tradition to establish among some people. There is no way of anticipating what the blood needs of our community will be this year during the holiday season. We hope that they will be very small. But to be prepared for the event that a great amount of blood will be needed everyone is encouraged to "roll up their sleeves" and give the "gift of life" so that those who do need it will have it. If you or any member of your family needs blood this holiday season or any other time, the only place you can get it is from someone who cared enough to give it.

If you are between the ages of 17 (with parental permission) and 65, are in reasonably good health, weigh at least 110 pounds and have not given blood in the past 8 weeks, chances are pretty good that you are a potential blood donor.

If you are not able to give on Monday at the Lutheran Church from 12:00 noon to 6:00 p.m., then try to make it to the Courthouse from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon or the Big Spring State Hospital from 2:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. on Tuesday the 30th. These are the only places you will be able to give blood from December 24th through January 5th.

Place the "Gift of Life" on your Christmas gift list this year.

Year of highs and lows for hostages and families

By JOAN MOWER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON — For the Americans held hostage in Lebanon and their families, 1986 was a year of highs and lows that ended with the revelation that the United States had shipped arms to Iran in an effort to free the men.

The scheme — President Reagan denied it was ransom — was a failure. Even the relatives, who had conducted a media campaign to keep the issue alive and convince the administration to do something, were less than enthusiastic.

"I've made all kinds of suggestions to the administration, but none of those suggestions included selling arms to Iran," said Peggy Say of Batavia, N.Y., the sister of hostage Terry Anderson.

By year's end, there were five captives, excluding William Buckley, the political officer at the U.S. Embassy who is thought to have died in captivity in 1985, perhaps after torture sessions. His body was never found.

In a 12-month period, two Americans were set free and three were snatched in Beirut, the Mediterranean city where civil war has raged for more than a decade.

The high points of 1986 came when Father Lawrence Martin Jenco and David Jacobsen were released.

Jenco, 51, of Joliet, Ill., a gentle, soft-spoken man who spent 17 months in a windowless room, was freed on July 26 in Lebanon's Bekaa Valley. Jenco had been the head of the Catholic Relief Service's office in Beirut.

The ordeal of Jacobsen, 55, the former administrator of the American University Hospital in Beirut, ended about daybreak on Nov. 2 when he was released in West Beirut.

"I'm proud of the American government and the American governmental employees, and I would hope that all Americans would be proud of our government," said Jacobsen, of Huntington Beach, Calif.

Still in captivity were Thomas Sutherland, 55, the American University's acting dean of agriculture from Fort Collins, Colo.; and Anderson, 39, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press and a native of Lorain, Ohio.

Anderson was grabbed by gunmen on March 16, 1985, after a tennis game with a friend; Sutherland has been a hostage since June 9, 1985.

Those two were confined with Jacobsen, Jenco, and the Rev. Benjamin Weir, who was released in September 1985.

Captivity was tedious and unpleasant, the former hostages reported. They walked for hours around their small room for exercise, they used tin cans as a toilet, rarely saw sunlight and their food was adequate but monotonous.

Their captors were members of Islamic Jihad, a shadowy Moslem extremist group which leans toward Iran. The ex-hostages said they never saw their captors because they were ordered to wear blindfolds when the guards came into the room.

The Jihad, which periodically releases statements in Beirut and pictures of the captives, claims it is not responsible for seizing three Americans in September and October. State Department officials, however, believe the three are held by pro-Iranian elements.

The Revolutionary Justice Organization, which is likely made up of Shiite zealots, said it holds Joseph Cicippio, 56, of Norristown, Pa., controller for the American University; and Edward Austin Tracy, 56, a writer formerly from Burlington, Vt.

A group calling itself Revolutionary Cells-Omar Moukhtar Forces says it took Frank Reed, 53, of Malden, Mass., director of a private school. Cicippio and Reed were both married to Arab women, and Tracy was a long-time resident of Beirut.

At the time of Jacobsen's release, the American public did not know that Reagan had authorized weapons shipments worth millions of dollars to Iran nor that profits from such sales had been diverted to the Contras, the American-sponsored rebels fighting Nicaragua's Sandinista government.

News of the arms shipments first leaked to a pro-Syrian magazine in Beirut, which reported in November that Robert C. McFarlane, the former National Security Council adviser, had visited Tehran in May.

The president, who defended the weapons shipments on the grounds that his administration wanted to make inroads with moderates in Iran, said he was unaware of the cash-for-the-Contras scheme that officials said netted the rebels between $10 million and $30 million.

Three Americans formerly held as hostages in Lebanon embrace on being reunited in London in November. The trio, from left, David Jacobsen, Rev. Martin Jenco and Rev. Benjamin Weir, were preparing to meet Church of England envoy Terry Waite.

U.S. farmer enters new technological revolution

WASHINGTON (AP) — A d biotechnology to the concerns of the American farmer, who has historically been occupied with the weather, crop prices and more recently by the threat of bankruptcy.

Genetic engineers are tinkering with plants and animals to make them more productive or more resistant to pests and harsh weather. Futuristic though it may sound, the issue cropped up in 1986:

• A California company, Advanced Genetic Sciences, abandoned plans to test a frost-fighting bacteria in a strawberry field in Monterrey. The company, which had been fined $13,000 by the Environmental Protection Agency for improper reporting and which faced a lawsuit on the strawberry test, said it would seek another site and hoped to test next year.

• Steven E. Lindow of the University of California won EPA permission to test altered strains of the bacterium Pseudomonas syringae, which he and others believe can protect plants against frost damage. The experiment is similar to the one proposed by Advanced Genetic Sciences, but involves potatoes.

• A controversy is just beginning on bovine growth hormone, which has been synthetically produced and can boost a cow's milk output by as much as 28 percent. No one can be certain what will happen to dairy farmers as a group if and when BGH becomes commonplace.

"The biotechnology revolution is no more stoppable than was the Industrial Revolution, and it holds similar potential for improving the future well-being of mankind," said Robert L. Thompson, the Agriculture Department's assistant secretary for economics.

"Those who would slow or stop this new development remind me of the attempts by the Luddites who threw their wooden shoes into the gears of early Industrial Revolution factories."

Genetic improvements in crops have already made an impact, helping lead the way to huge U.S. and global surpluses, lower prices and agricultural policy upheavals.

James R. Donald, chairman of USDA's world agricultural outlook board, said higher yields have accounted for most of the world's increase in crop production in the 1980s.

"Productivity gains are particularly dramatic for some crops," Donald said. "To illustrate, wheat production abroad gained 3.5 percent annually, in spite of a 0.2 percent downturn in acreage, because of 3.7 percent annual yield gains."

In the United States, average wheat yields per acre rose 2.3 percent a year, more than offsetting a decline of 1.6 percent annually in the acreage.

Mercenaries say project was American

By JOAN MOWER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Betty Sosa says her life has fallen apart since her husband, a retired Army major she believes was hired as a mercenary by the U.S. government, was arrested in Brazil last March on gun-smuggling charges.

"This is killing me," said Mrs. Sosa, 57, in a telephone interview from Fayetteville, N.C. She has filed for bankruptcy and has been unable to find a job over the last nine months, she said.

Mrs. Sosa's husband, Steven, 57, is one of four Americans who remain imprisoned in Brasilia, Brazil. Four other Americans escaped Dec. 15 and three of them made their way to the United States Thursday.

Timothy Carmody, 39, of San Francisco; Sheldon Ainsworth of Virginia Beach, Va., and Steven Hedrick of St. Petersburg, Fla., flew from La Paz, Bolivia, to Miami, Carmody said in a telephone interview.

A fourth man — Fred Verduin of Sonoma, Calif. — escaped with the others and is safe, although he did not return to the United States immediately, Carmody said.

The men, all Vietnam veterans, were arrested

March 14 aboard a Panamanian-registered tug filled with machine guns, grenades, inflatable rafts and other military hardware.

The seagoing vessel was loaded with weapons in Argentina and was headed across the Atlantic Ocean to the West African nation of Ghana where the men were told they were to help in a mission to overthrow the government of dictator Jerry Rawlings, whose relations with Washington are frosty.

Carmody said he is convinced the project had U.S. government backing — either from the CIA or the National Security Council. He said he was promised $10,000 for his role, but only received $5,000.

The plan, however, went awry when the ship's captain refused to go through with the trip and returned to Brazil where the men were arrested at a port town 20 miles east of Rio de Janeiro.

They were charged and convicted of smuggling arms into Brazil, but the convictions were overturned by an appeals court last October. The men remained in jail facing extradition to Argentina on charges of violating export laws.

The plan, Carmody said, was for the Americans to train a force of 100 Ghanaian rebels, apparently on board a freighter after picking them up in the Ivory Coast, Ghana's neighbor. The invasion then would be launched in rubber boats from the ship.

Mrs. Sosa said her husband also believes he was working for the U.S. government. "They were doing the same thing that (Eugene) Hasenfus was doing," she said, referring to the Wisconsin man who was temporarily jailed in Nicaragua after a cargo plane crashed.

Hasenfus, who was pardoned by the Nicaraguan government and allowed to return to Wisconsin, said he was part of a government operation helping the Contras, rebels fighting the Managua government.

The CIA has denied any involvement in the operation involving the men arrested in Brazil. And the State Department says the men were operating as free agents. Pete Martinez, a State Department spokesman, said Friday he had no information on the men.

The mother of one of the men still in custody said Friday her son is a "red, white and blue American," who believed the project was backed by the U.S. government.

Mercenary Timothy Carmody tell of his escape from a Brazil prison using a hacksaw sent to him in a box of powdered milk. Four Americans are still imprisoned.

Engineer to complete shuttle video

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. — A NASA engineer said he decided to complete a music video about the space shuttle program despite the Challenger tragedy because it highlights achievements, not setbacks.

Craig Jackson, 35, watched at his console at the Johnson Space Center in Houston as the Challenger exploded Jan. 28, killing all seven crew members aboard.

At the time, he was putting the finishing touches on "Journey Into Space," a planned video and music tribute to the shuttle program. Jackson, a former record studio producer and engineer, had composed and recorded all the music and was waiting to add footage from the Challenger flight.

"I was sitting at the console at Johnson listening to the flight when it happened," Jackson said in a recent interview with The Huntsville Times. The shuttle's propulsion system that was ultimately blamed for the explosion was developed at NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville.

"I was down to the final editing on the video, but after that I didn't know if I would ever release it at all," he said. "I was afraid it might be taken the wrong way."

"Then someone suggested making it a tribute to the Challenger crew, but I didn't want that either," Jackson added. "I think the shuttle program should be remembered for its achievements, not its tragedy."

Jackson went ahead with production of the video, which includes footage from the first 24 shuttle missions and follows a typical flight in six segments from launch to landing. It does not show the Challenger explosion.

One section of the video, titled "It's Not All Work," has been aired on the cable music video channel VH-1, Jackson said.

He said the entire 30-minute video has been circulated among many NASA personnel and has been endorsed by Sen. Jake Garn who flew a shuttle mission. Copies are available for $33 each through mail order from Houston, he said.

Burglars caught red-handed

CLINTON, La. — One of two burglary suspects nabbed inside Detective Delmas Bell's house immediately realized he made a mistake, the East Feliciana Parish sheriff's deputy said.

"Man, if I'd known it was your house I swear to God I'd never gone in there," Bell quoted the suspect, Watson Grant Jr., as saying.

Bell and another deputy noticed a car that didn't belong there when they drove past Bell's house Tuesday after funeral escort duty.

"It met the description of a car involved in other burglaries. We drove in there and I saw all my stuff piled up under the carport," Bell said Thursday.

"They'd piled up two TVs, a VCR, a microwave, three brand new pairs of cowboy boots, my stereo, jewelry — they'd gone through all of Betty Lou's jewelry," he said.

"I said, 'Go get that sapsucker out front of my house and arrest him and I'm going in the house and get the other sapsucker who's stealing my stuff.'"

Other deputies who were also returning from escorting a funeral caught Grant, 27, of Kenner as he tried to drive off, and Thomas Hynes, 40, of Metairie was arrested that night.

Let's return football to the humans

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

It's time to climb the ladder that takes us to the moral high ground. It's time to change some priorities, set some rules, enforce them, and stick by them.

Maybe the NCAA finally realized this when it banned Oklahoma linebacker Brian Bosworth and several other players from competing in post-season bowls. Tests, long overdue, revealed that Bosworth had taken steroids. And steroids, from this vantage point, pose a nastier threat to college athletics than marijuana, cocaine, under the table payments; and all three put together.

Imagine you are the parent of very talented football player who chooses to play college football. Your son is a linebacker who believes that by eating right, lifting weights and practicing hard he can become an All-American. Your son might be naive.

On the other team is a linebacker who has a little extra going for him. He takes steroids. As a direct result of these synthetic hormones, he weighs 30 more pounds than your son and can lift 100 more pounds on the bench press. Your son notices that difference, and understands the reason.

In last week's game some freakishly big offensive lineman battered him, and he didn't like it. "Damn it", he thinks, "everybody's counting on me. My coaches, my teammates, my parents, my friends, they all are counting on me. I must make sacrifices, I have to do what it takes. Football is my life."

So your son, less because he wants to than because he thinks he has to, looks up the local voodoo doctor. Months later, he's bigger, stronger, and knocking all hell out of those offensive linemen. His coaches, teammates, parents, friends, can't say enough about the improvement. All those long hours in the weight room, they say, have really paid off.

The press notices, and pretty soon your son is referred to as the all-conference linebacker. Did you see the way he manhandled that chubby center last week?

What the coaches, teammates and others don't know about, or don't want to know about, is that your son is often grumpy, his blood pressure is shooting through the roof, his kidney's rotting, and his testicles are turning into sesame seeds.

Let's look at another scenario. Your son, and we've returned his innocence, lines up against an offensive tackle who hasn't taken steroids, but instead uses cocaine regularly. By the second quarter the guy is wheezing, and your son makes ten tackles.

The offensive lineman has punished himself. Had he taken steroids, he would have punished your son as well. Which is worse?

Steroids. And it's time these drugs get equal billing with the recreational drugs. Bosworth should have his Dick Butkus Award (for the nation's best linebacker) and his place on the All-America teams rescinded. They took away Jim Thorpe's gold medals for playing another sport, so we know it can be done. Give Bosworth's trophies to somebody who eats steak and potatoes instead of greenies and testosterone juice.

We hear estimates that up to 95 percent of NFL lineman take or have taken steroids. Give them a short grace period, start testing, and don't let them play for a year if they test positive. If that means 95 percent of the lineman in the NFL will have to be replaced next year by good, honest corn fed men, then so be it.

That's the way it's supposed to be anyway.

Arizona cruises to easy victory over Tar Heels

HONOLULU (AP) — Alfred Jenkins threw for 187 yards and a touchdown as 16th-ranked Arizona built a 30-0 lead then held off a late North Carolina rally to beat the Tar Heels 30-21 Saturday in the Aloha Bowl.

It was the first Bowl victory ever for the Wildcats, who had a 0-4-1 postseason record, dating back to 1921, going into the game.

North Carolina, stunned by five lost fumbles and shut out for most of the first three quarters, roared back from a 30-0 deficit with a three-touchdown rally that started late in the third period.

Arizona, which finished its season at 9-3, took a 13-0 first-half lead on field goals of 31 and 38 yards by Gary Coston, and David Adams' 1-yard touchdown run.

The Wildcats, of the Pacific-10, extended their advantage to 30-0 in the third quarter on a 52-yard field goal by Jeff Valder, Jenkins' 13-yard scoring pass to Jon Horton, and a 5-yard touchdown run by Art Greathouse with 3:19 left in the third quarter.

Jenkins finished the game with 12 completions in 22 attempts.

Reserve tailback Torin Dorn started the North Carolina comeback when he scored on a 58-yard run with 2:14 left in the third quarter. Dorn, who totaled four yards rushing in the first half, ran for 97 in the second.

A 6-yard pass from Mark Maye to Randy Marriott, capping a 78-yard march on their next possession, cut the deficit to 30-14 with 13:07 left to play.

Just four minutes later, Maye ran one yard for another touchdown after Norris Davis blocked an Arizona punt to give the Tar Heels the ball at the Wildcats' 18-yard line.

But Arizona's defense was able to hold the Tar Heels in check for the final nine minutes of the game to preserve the victory.

North Carolina finished its season with a 7-4-1 record.

The Tar Heels played the game without their regular tailback, Derrick Fenner. The Atlantic Coast Conference's leading rusher this season, Fenner did not make the trip because of academic problems.

Steroids downfall for two more

ATLANTA (AP) — Jim Davie, a starting Virginia Tech offensive tackle, said the detection of steroids in his system was the reason he was suspended from the team and will miss the Peach Bowl game.

Davie was one of two Virginia Tech starters barred from the Dec. 31 game with North Carolina State.

The other, senior defensive end Morgan Roane, could not be reached for comment, and Davie would not talk about Roane's suspension.

"I did it this summer while I was at home," Davie, a 6-foot-3, 261 pounder, said of the steroid use, which was detected in drug-testing ordered by the NCAA of bowl teams. "The last time I took one was late June, early July. It was a very minute bit."

"I'm pretty disappointed about the whole thing."

Stanford's rally falls short

Clemson holds on to Gator Bowl win

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Sophomore quarterback Rodney Williams sparked Clemson to a 27-0 halftime lead Saturday and the Tigers held off a furious second-half Stanford rally as the Atlantic Coast Conference champions posted a 27-21 victory in the Gator Bowl.

Clemson was forced to fight off a late charge by 20th-ranked Stanford, which watched its final chance for victory end when quarterback Greg Ennis underthrew an intended receiver on a fourth-down play with 1:24 left in the game.

Williams, who scored on a 1-yard keeper on the opening play of the second quarter, directed Clemson to 291 yards on offense and 15 first-half first downs as the Tigers took a 27-0 lead in the nationally-televised game.

Brad Muster scored all three Stanford touchdowns. The 226-pound junior tailback scored on a 1-yard run in the third period, and teamed with Ennis on scoring pass plays covering 13 and 36 yards in the final quarter.

Clemson, which finished the season 8-2-2, scored on its second offensive series on a 5-yard run by sophomore fullback Chris Lancaster. David Treadwell's extra point kick gave the Tigers a 7-0 lead midway through the first quarter.

Williams' score, a 14-yard touchdown run by Ray Williams on a reverse and two field goals by Treadwell gave the Tigers their commanding halftime advantage.

Stanford, which finished 8-4, could not get its offense started in the first half behind Ennis, Clemson's Chris Lancaster (49) breaks through the Stanford defense and goes into the end zone for the Tigers' first score Saturday in the Gator Bowl. Shown for Stanford is Joe Lortie (77) and Ray Huskstein (53).

who was making his first collegiate start in place of the injured John Paye.

The Cardinal were also without starting linemen John Zentner and Tony Leiker, who tested positive for steroids in a recent NCAA drug test.

By the time Stanford managed its initial first down of the game, Clemson had a 24-0 lead.

Ennis, making his first collegiate start, got off to a shaky start missing open receivers, several times.

Ennis, who passed for just 18 yards in the first half, finished with 20 completions in 40 pass attempts for 168 yards.

Muster rushed for 70 yards in 17 carries and caught four passes for 53 yards.

Terrence Flagler gained 82 yards in a dozen carries for Clemson, which finished with 244 yards rushing.

The victory gave Clemson a 7-6 record in bowl competition and a 3-2 Gator Bowl mark.

Stanford, 7-6-1 in bowl games, lost for the first time in 34 years in postseason play after four straight bowl victories.

Reserve quarterback will start against Chiefs

Jets' coach makes a big change

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — For the last five weeks, Coach Joe Walton has sat at the console of the Jets and watched the NFL team nosedive. Still, he kept Ken O'Brien as his pilot.

This week, as the Jets prepare to host the Kansas City Chiefs in the AFC wild-card game, Walton could wait no longer. On Wednesday, he benched O'Brien as starting quarterback and replaced him with Pat Ryan.

The move applies only to Sunday's game, Walton said, reiterating that "Kenny is still our quarterback, but I think Pat can give us a shot in the arm."

The attack desperately needs it. The Jets have scored only 61 points during the five-game losing streak which dropped them from 10-1, the league's best record, to 10-6. They've allowed 183 points, partly because the defense has been depleted by injuries, partly due to the offense's lack of productivity.

When they've fallen behind, the Jets have been unable to rally under O'Brien, who slipped from the league's top passer with a 111.1 rating after 10 games — an all-time league high — to 85.8, sixth in the NFL.

He led the NFL in passing last year.

"I will continue to strongly support Ken O'Brien as our quarterback," Walton said. "This has been a team thing."

"I told them that right now, I think it is better for him and the team. I felt we needed a change, that it was the right thing to do at this time."

"I think they both are men and both understand. I don't think he (O'Brien) has been pressing. The failure on offense is attributable to the whole team."

Walton also said that O'Brien's problem with a knuckle on his right hand was not a major factor in the decision.

O'Brien refused to comment on the change.

"I really have nothing to say about it," he said Wednesday as he dressed hurriedly and left the Jets' locker room.

Ryan, a nine-year veteran who led the Jets to a victory at New England and to a 13-0 lead in another win against Denver during New York's nine-game winning streak earlier this season, admitted he was surprised by the change. But he won't let it bother him, Ryan claimed.

"I felt more pressure the last time, to tell you the truth," Ryan said. "I guess I was kind of surprised after reading the newspapers Monday (which quoted Walton as saying he would stick with O'Brien), then finding out on Tuesday I'm starting."

Mired in a five game slump that has seen their offense produce only 61 points, the New York Jets have benched quarterback Ken O'Brien (left) for Sunday's AFC wild-card playoff game with the Kansas City Chiefs. Pat Ryan (right) will replace O'Brien.

"I have a lot of confidence in my abilities. I believe I can get the job done. I don't try to get crazy and I try to stay within myself and do what I am capable of doing."

Against New England and Denver earlier this season, that was plenty.

In his only full game, a 31-24 victory at New England in the sixth week of the season, Ryan completed 14 of 25 passes for 148 yards and a touchdown. He completed nine of 10 against Denver before injuring a rib and yielding to O'Brien.

In contrast to his fast start, O'Brien threw 12 interceptions and only two touchdown passes. Prior to that, O'Brien had 23 scoring passes and only eight interceptions.

Defensive end Marty Lyons, who has seen Walton make similar moves in the last four seasons, wasn't surprised at the latest decision.

"Pat stepped in and picked up the slack with those two performances," Lyons said. "Those stand alone as why he's a good quarterback."

"I'm not surprised. Joe always has been a man who makes decisions on what the team needs. We know he's behind both of them 100 percent."

The Jets' game against Kansas City is one of two wild-card games that will get the NFL playoffs started. In the other, the Los Angeles Rams face the Washington Redskins.

Whether Ryan succeeds as O'Brien's replacement will depend in large part how he comes off in a private game-within-a-game against the Kansas City Chiefs' linebacker corps.

"Our defense is built around linebacker play," Kansas City defensive coordinator Walt Corey said. "We ask our people to spill and chase, and the people who do the spilling and chasing are the linebackers."

The Chiefs' linebackers — Dino Hackett, Gary Spani, Louis Cooper and Tim Cofield — will be asked to slow down the Jets' short-passing game, which features 1,000-yard receivers Al Toon and Wesley Walker.

"You have to protect the underneath passing," Corey said. "It's the linebackers who protect there. You have to limit the gains of the running backs. It's the linebackers who limit the gains."

After a bad game against the Pittsburgh Steelers last weekend — Kansas City allowed 515 yards and 28 first downs — Corey sounded a warning.

"We stretched a little last week, more so than any time this season," Corey said. "But you can't afford to stretch like that too many weeks in a row because sooner or later it will snap on you. Then everyone will want to know, 'What happened to the defense?'"

Rams still remember last playoff game with 'Skins

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Robinson vividly remembers the final game of his first season as a head coach in the NFL.

After guiding his Los Angeles Rams to a surprise trip to the playoffs in 1983, Robinson watched helplessly as the Washington Redskins took a 38-7 halftime lead en route to a 51-7 rout.

Robinson said his team will not use the memory of that game as a motivational tool Sunday when the Rams visit RFK Stadium to play the Redskins in the NFC wild-card game.

"Our motivation is to win and stay alive in the playoffs," Robinson said. "That 51-7 game was years ago."

Maybe so, but not all the Rams have forgotten what was the NFL's biggest playoff rout since 1957. "More than anything I remember the low feeling, the fact that we didn't belong on the same field with them," recalled Los Angeles tackle Jackie Slater.

Rams rookie quarterback Jim Everett still was in college when that game was played, but he says several of his teammates have let him know what he missed.

"The veteran players have reminded everyone of what happened," Everett said. When asked if the veterans thought that the Redskins might have intentionally poured it on, Everett replied, "I'm sure it has something to do with that."

Los Angeles, 10-6, enters Sunday's 4 p.m. EST contest having lost two straight and four of its last seven games. Against Washington, 12-4, the Rams will be looking to return to the form that enabled them to open the season by winning seven of their first nine.

That means it is likely that running back Eric Dickerson, who amassed an NFL-best 1,821 rushing yards, will be carrying the ball at least until the Redskins prove they can stop him.

"We're going back to the basics," said Robinson. "We got off the track a little bit (toward the end of the regular season) and it was my fault."

Washington Coach Joe Gibbs has nothing but respect for Dickerson, who has accounted for three of the best 10 rushing seasons in NFL history.

"He's the best running back in the league," Gibbs claimed. "And he's running behind one of the best offensive lines in football."

Although Everett played his worst game of the season in the Rams' 24-14 loss to San Francisco last week, Los Angeles is confident it can turn to the passing game if Dickerson gets bottled up.

"Before, when we didn't have a quarterback no one took us seriously," Robinson said. "It's like playing poker all night with a pair of 10s. You can win, but it isn't easy."

Washington, meanwhile, hopes quarterback Jay Schroeder, who has thrown 11 interceptions in his last three games, will show the form he displayed in guiding the Redskins to 21 fourth-quarter points in last Sunday's 21-14 victory over Philadelphia.

"Jay was very bad for three quarters," said Gibbs. "But he peaked in the fourth quarter, and hopefully that will continue."

Schroeder, whose 4,109 passing yards is the best in team history, knows he can't afford to get off to a rocky start against the Rams. "If I play against Los Angeles the way I did in the first three quarters against the Eagles, we'll lose," he said. "It's as simple as that."

While Washington has a better record than the Rams, both Robinson and Gibbs say past performances mean nothing once the playoffs get underway.

"The past means zip," Gibbs said. "All 10 teams in the playoffs are 0-0," claimed Robinson. "The homefield is the only advantage."

Washington is 7-1 in playoff games at RFK, while Los Angeles has won three of its last five postseason contests on the road.

If the Redskins win, they will travel to Chicago next week to face the Bears. If the Rams win, they will remain on the road to play the New York Giants.

Loyola stuns Illinois

CHICAGO (AP) — Bernard Jackson scored 31 points, Keith Carter 18 and Andre Moore 17 as Loyola stunned ninth-ranked Illinois 83-82 Saturday in a non-conference college basketball game.

The Ramblers, 5-3 after winning their fourth straight game, sliced a five-point Illinois lead in the second half and went ahead of the Illini, now 8-2, by as many 10 points.

Jackson was almost flawless in the second half, scoring 18 points.

Lowell Hamilton scored 21 points and Ken Norman added 20 for Illinois. Norman's jump shot with about a minute left in the game trimmed Loyola's lead to one point.

The Ramblers patiently passed the ball around, but lost it with nine seconds left.

After a timeout, Illinois brought the ball up court, but Glynn Blackwell's long jump shot missed and the clock ran out.

Kentucky 85, Louisville 51
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Freshman guard Rex Chapman scored 26 points as No. 18 Kentucky dominated intrastate rival Louisville in posting a 85-51 victory Saturday in a nationally televised college basketball game.

It was the worst home loss suffered by Louisville in Denny Crum's 16 years as head coach.

Kentucky, 6-1, hit 11 of 17 three-point shots, with Chapman making five of eight. The Wildcats shot 54.2 percent on 32 of 59 shots, while Louisville managed 21 of 58 field goals for 36.2 percent.

Louisville fell to 4-6 as leading scorer Pervis Ellison was held to four points and the Cardinals' inside game never surfaced.

The smaller Kentucky squad outbounded the defending national champions 41-33. Richard Madison led the Wildcats with 17 rebounds.

Leading 38-28 at halftime, the Wildcats turned the game into a rout by scoring 10 unanswered points to start the second half for a 48-28 advantage with 15:25 left. Kentucky increased the lead to 60-32 when James Blackmon stole the ball and hit a shot with 11:34 left.

Tony Kimbro and reserve center Felton Spencer each scored 10 points for Louisville. Ed Davender added 16 points for Kentucky.

Kentucky took a 14-point lead in the first period behind Chapman's 7-for-10 shooting, which included three three-pointers. Seven of his 18 points came in the last six minutes.

Kentucky hit seven of 10 three-pointers in the first half while Louisville missed its two attempts. Kentucky led 36-22 with 1:50 left in the half before Louisville cut the lead to 10 at halftime.

La Salle, 6-4, had five players in double figures and shot 40 for 72 from the field, a 55.5 percentage. Simmons also came up with 14 rebounds.

The Explorers scored 12 straight points early in the game in building a 19-4 lead, but Northeastern came back with 12 in a row and tied the score at 44 by halftime.

Leading 58-55, the Explorers went on an 21-7 run and took a 79-62 advantage on a Simmons free throw with 8:30 left in the game.

Tim Legler had 22 points and Larry Korretz scored 16 for La Salle while Reggie Lewis had 34 points and Derrick Lewis scored 17 for Northeastern, now 5-6.

Pepperdine 91, Columbia 67
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Levy Middlebrooks and Dexter Howard scored 20 points each to lead Pepperdine to a 91-67 victory over Columbia in the consolation game of the Milwaukee Classic college basketball tournament Saturday.

Marquette, 6-2, host of the 25th annual tournament, faced South Florida, 2-4, in the championship game.

Pepperdine extended a 40-36 halftime lead to 10 points on baskets by Eric White, Middlebrooks and Michael Cumberland. Two baskets by White then helped the Waves outscore the Lions 8-0 for a 54-41 lead with 13:39 to play.

The Lions, 4-4, pulled within 66-58 after a basket by Sean Couch, two free throws by Joe Campanella and two free throws by Couch. A short jump shot and a dunk by Middlebrooks helped the Waves pull away again.

Pepperdine, 4-7, reeled off 12 points to build an 18-8 lead on a Howard dunk shot, but Columbia used two three-point goals by Matt Shannon to narrow it to 18-17.

Pepperdine built a 10-point lead at 29-19, and Columbia again rallied. A short hook by Guido Casparis with 5 seconds left pulled the Lions to within four points late in the half.

Couch led Columbia with 19 points, and Shannon had 18.

N. Carolina 81, Kansas St. 62
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Kenny Smith scored 19 points and Joe Wolf added 16 Saturday night to power fourth-ranked North Carolina to an 81-62 victory over Kansas State in college basketball.

North Carolina, 8-1, fashioned a 43-33 halftime lead and then put it away with a 24-8 run at the beginning of the second half which gave the Tar Heels a 67-41 bulge.

Kansas State, 8-3, never got closer than 19 points in the second half.

The partisan K-State crowd in Kemper Arena saw the underdog Wildcats trail early by 10 points and pull to within 29-27 with six minutes left in the first half.

But Wolf, a 6-foot-11 senior, and Smith triggered another Tar Heel run that resulted in the 10-point halftime advantage.

North Carolina, whose only loss has been to UCLA, also got 13 points from Jeff Lebo.

Knicks on a roll; with 3rd straight

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Cartwright scored 10 of his season-high 26 points during a 17-5 second-half streak that carried the New York Knicks to their first NBA victory over the Milwaukee Bucks in three years, a 114-100 decision Saturday night.

The Knicks had lost 15 straight games to the Bucks since last beating them on Dec. 17, 1983. The victory was the third straight for New York and snapped a five-game winning streak for Milwaukee.

New York led 76-73 late in the third quarter before Cartwright scored eight straight points in 1:04, giving the Knicks an 84-75 advantage. After the Knicks took an 84-77 lead into the fourth quarter, they outscored the Bucks 9-1 to start the period and didn't lead by less than 12 the rest of the way.

Gerald Wilkins added 23 points and Patrick Ewing 22 for New York. Ewing left the game early in the fourth quarter with a sprained right ankle, but the injury was not serious.

Terry Cummings led Milwaukee with 17 points, while Paul Pressey and Ricky Pierce added 16 each. All-Star guard Sidney Moncrief returned to the lineup after a 13-game absence with a knee injury and scored nine points.

have now won seven of their last eight and 13 of 16 to improve their record to 16-9.

Washington, which led through most of the game, went cold in the closing minutes. The Bullets failed to score for 2:20 after Moses Malone's three-point play gave Washington a 100-98 lead with 2:37 remaining.

Washington led by 13 early in the game, after scoring 15 unanswered points. But the Pistons worked their way back into it, and trailed 53-52, at halftime. The Bullets extended the lead to as many seven in the second half, the last time at 91-84, before hitting their scoring drought.

The loss dropped Washington's record to 13-14. It was the fourth time this season the Bullets have failed to win a game which would have put them over .500.

Malone led all scorers with 32 points. Jeff Malone added 25 for the Bullets. The Pistons were led by Adrian Dantley with 27 and Thomas' 26.

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J.
 (AP) — James Bailey came off the bench to score a career-high 35 points and teammate Orlando Woolridge added 24, sparking the New Jersey Nets to a 120-111 NBA triumph over the Cleveland Cavaliers Saturday night.

The Nets, who dropped a 121-112 decision Friday night to Cleveland in Ridgefield, Ohio, have now won three of their last four games.

New Jersey, 7-20, trailed throughout most of the first period and was behind 29-21 before scoring eight of the last 11 points to pull within 32-29 at the end of the quarter. Bailey, who had 26 points in the first half, scored four during the run.

Trailing 42-35 midway through the second quarter, the Nets reeled off 15 straight points, including six by Mike Gminski, to take the lead for good at 50-42.

A 12-3 burst midway through the third period that included four points by Woolridge enabled New Jersey to take an 80-64 advantage.

The Nets led by as many as 25 points in the fourth quarter before the Cavaliers put together a late charge.

Led by John Bagley, who scored 12 of his 23 points in the quarter, Cleveland pulled within five points in the game's final minute.

Bailey, who scored his previous NBA high of 34 points against Phoenix while with the Houston Rockets on Feb. 24, 1983, also grabbed 10 rebounds. He hit 14 of 19 shots from the field and seven of eight from the foul line.

Tony Brown added 21 points for the Nets.

Ron Harper led Cleveland, 12-15, with 25 points, while teammate John "Hot Rod" Williams had 21.

Hawks 119, Warriors 108
ATLANTA (AP) — Three free throws by Doc Rivers keyed a fourth-quarter surge that helped the Atlanta Hawks hold off the stubborn Golden State Warriors 119-108 Saturday night and win their 20th NBA game of the season.

Golden State got within four points for the second time in the final period when the Hawks staged an 11-2 rally to put the game away.

The spurt began when Rivers was fouled by Eric Floyd and sank two free throws. He immediately made another when Floyd was called for a technical foul.

Cliff Levingston added three points during the streak as Atlanta pulled to 116-101 with 1:53 left in the game.

The victory was Atlanta's 11th in 12 home dates.

Rivers led the Hawks with 21 points, while Randy Wittman had 20. Dominique Wilkins and Kevin Willis each added 16 points, Mike McGee had 13 and Tree Rollins and Levingston had 11 each.

Floyd led all scorers with 24 points, while Greg Ballard contributed 20. J.B. Carroll had 18 and Rod Higgins had 13 for Golden State.

Mavericks 123, Suns 97
DALLAS (AP) — Rolando Blackman scored 28 points as the Dallas Mavericks cruised to a 123-97 NBA victory over the Phoenix Suns Saturday night.

The victory, the Midwest Division-leading Mavericks' 14th in the last 18 games, was their seventh straight at home. It also put Dallas, 19-9, 10 games over .500 for the first time in the team's seven-year history.

After Dallas had built a 79-56 lead midway through the third period, Phoenix trimmed it to 90-79 with 17 seconds left in the period.

Dallas built its lead back to 19 early in the fourth quarter, 100-81, and Phoenix went on an 8-0 run to cut it to 100-89, with 7:26 left in the game.

The Mavericks made six of seven three-point baskets and had seven players in double figures. Mark Aguirre scored 24 and Sam Perkins 17 in support of Blackman.

Ed Pinckney, Mike Sanders and Rafael Addison each had 13 for the Suns, who fell to 13-16.

The Mavericks led 59-45 at halftime and trailed only once. They jumped out to a 10-2 lead, but Phoenix tied it at 12 at the 6:53 mark.

Houston Rockets' forward facing very trying times

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Rocket Rodney McCray says he lies awake at night, worrying about his 5-year-old daughter's malignant brain tumor.

Doctors found the growth in April's brain stem, an area which makes surgery impractical. She has a 10 percent chance of recovery, her father said.

"I've asked myself how it could happen. I've asked myself why it would happen," McCray said.

"Next thing I know, the alarm is going off and I haven't slept, but it's time to go back to practice or get myself ready for another game."

The diagnosis was made about three weeks ago. The child now is taking radiation treatments at M.D.

Anderson Hospital in Houston, considered one of the finest cancer research facilities in the country. The doctors there have not built up any false hopes, McCray said.

"The doctors told us that there haven't been any new breakthroughs in the last several years. So first they're going to try radiation and, then, maybe chemotherapy," he said. "Meanwhile, we just sit and hope. She's a real fighter."

"As long as there's the slightest chance, I'm going to believe, I'm going to hope, I'm going to pray," he added.

April, who lives in Louisville with her mother, had no symptoms of the illness until several weeks ago when her preschool teacher sent home a note indicating some kind of problem with keeping her balance.

A doctor's appointment was made but then the child suffered an attack during the Thanksgiving weekend while at her grandmother's house.

McCray said he learned about the problem in a phone call from his sister.

"At first I said, 'No, they've got to be wrong,'" the former University of Louisville basketball star recalled. "I said there had to be a mistake, that there was no way she had anything that wrong with her."

"If you looked at her, you'd never know it," he said. "Oh, she had colds and things, just like any other kid. But nothing that would have prepared you for something like this."

Missing one game, McCray returned to Louisville to bring his daughter back with him for treatment.

The small forward, who also has played both backcourt positions so far this season for the Rockets, tries to not let the crisis affect his game.

"I'm a professional and I can't let something in my personal life get in the way of my job," he said. "They pay me a lot of money to go out there and perform every day in practice and every night in the games and I can't ignore that obligation."

Pat Cash and John Fitzgerald defeated Sweden's world doubles champions Stefan Edberg and Anders Jarryd 6-3, 6-4, 4-6, 6-1 Saturday and moved Australia to within one victory of ending Sweden's two-year reign as Davis Cup champion.

The doubles triumph gave the Australians a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five final.

Cash, 21, who defeated Edberg in the opening singles match Friday, has the chance to clinch the championship when he meets Mikael Pernfors in the first singles match Sunday.

Paul McNamee is scheduled to play Edberg in the closing singles, a match that will be meaningless if Cash defeats Pernfors, the University of Georgia's two-time NCAA champion.

Cash and Fitzgerald, who have a 4-1 Davis Cup record, were in scintillating form in the 2 hour and 11 minute match against the reigning world titleholders to the delight of a noisy sellout crowd of 11,000.

"I'm very happy with the situation because we are obviously in a strong position now," Australian captain Neale Fraser said.

The Swedes are aiming to become the first team in 15 years to win the Cup three years in a row, but the doubles result dealt a major blow to their hopes.

Edberg looked as if his singles loss to Cash had left him dispirited. He served well, but made a number of unforced errors.

Cash's serves were sensational throughout the match. He was never broken and dropped only one point on serve in the first set and again in the third.

With Jarryd's serve always brittle and Edberg plagued by inconsistency, the Australian pair took full advantage. Fitzgerald was outstanding at the net, while Cash was a model of consistency.

"They played really well and we didn't get up to our usual standard," Jarryd said.

"They put pressure on us and didn't let us play our normal game."

ORANGE BOWL
 At Miami, Fla.
NO. 3 OKLAHOMA (10-1) VS. NO. 9 ARKANSAS (9-2)
 8:30 p.m., NBC

Big 8 champion Oklahoma takes on Southwest Conference runnerup Arkansas ... Oklahoma had been to the Orange Bowl 14 previous times, winning 10. Arkansas has gone to the Orange Bowl just once, defeating Oklahoma in '78, 31-6 ... Arkansas has won 12 of 22 Bowl games in their history, including last season's 18-17 Holiday Bowl victory over Arizona State. Oklahoma has an 17-8-1 overall Bowl record, highlighted by last year's National Championship Orange Bowl win over Penn State 25-10 ... Oklahoma will be with All-America LB Brian Bosworth, who was barred from participating after the NCAA found anabolic steroids in his bloodstream; the ban also fits for non-starting teammates OG Gary Bennett and DT David Shoemaker. Arkansas LB David Dudley will also miss the contest due to the use of steroids ... Oklahoma is 10-3 on New Year's Day bowl games ... Oklahoma's only loss this season came to No. 1 Miami 28-16 ... Coach Barry Switzer has been to 10 Bowl games, including 7 Orange Bowls. He has won 7 Bowl games overall and 5 Orange Bowls ... Oklahoma offense is led by sophomore QB Jamelle Holieway who threw just 88 times this season, but topped the nation in average rushing (404.7 yards). The Sooners also were first in points per game (42.4) and ran up victory margins of at least 35 points seven times ... RB Lydell Carr chipped in with 548 yards rushing ... PK Tim Lashar made 12 FGs and 60 extra points this season ... The Oklahoma defense gave up only 73 points this year while shutting out 5 opponents. They held foes to just 60.7 yards rushing per game ... Arkansas piled up 358.8 yards a game on offense, while allowing just 293.7 ... QB Greg Thomas topped the SWC passers, completing 67 of 109 for 1,032 yards, 6 TDs. He also led the team in rushing with 461 yards on 141 attempts in the Arkansas wishbone ... WR James Shibeast was the top receiver with 22 catches for 473 yards.

FIESTA BOWL
 At Tempe, Ariz.
NO. 1 MIAMI, FLA. (11-0) VS. NO. 2 PENN STATE (11-0)
 8:15 p.m., NBC

Showdown for National Championship features Miami's high-powered offense led by Heisman Trophy winner QB Vinny Testaverde against Penn State's aggressive defense headed by LB Shane Conlan ... Second time in three season Championship has been decided outside of four major bowls (Cotton, Orange, Rose, Sugar). In '84, Brigham Young defeated Michigan 24-17 to gain top spot ... Third time in five years Penn State has played for Championship in Bowl game. In '82, Nittany Lions beat Georgia 27-23 in Sugar Bowl and last year, Penn State lost to Oklahoma, 25-10 ... Miami going for second national title in 4 years, winning '83 Orange Bowl against then No. 1 Nebraska 31-30 ... This is seventh time No. 1 has played No. 2 in a Bowl game, with No. 2 winning in '78 (Alabama 14, Penn State 7) and in '82, both games involving Penn State ... Miami makes second trip to Fiesta Bowl, losing in '85 to UCLA 39-37. The Hurricanes are 6-8 overall in Bowl contests. Penn State has a 14-7-2 overall Bowl game mark, including a 3-0 record in the Fiesta Bowl ... The Miami offense starts with Testaverde, the senior signal-caller who completed 63.4 percent of his passes this year (175 of 276) for 2,557 yards and 26 TDs ... RBs Alonzo Highsmith (442 yards), Warren Williams (399) and Melvin Bratton (380) support the running game ... WR Mike Irvin was Testaverde's favorite target, catching 53 passes for 868 yards ... Defense allowed only 12.4 points a game. DE Dan Stubbs had 17 sacks and Jerome Brown was an All-America selection. DB Bernie Blades led the country in interceptions with 10 ... Penn State is headed by QB John Shaffer who completed 114 of 204 passes for 1,510 yards, 9 TDs and 4 interceptions ... RB D.J. Dozier was the club's rushing leader with 811 yards ... The defense (giving up only 11.2 points a game) is primed by Conlan and linebackers Trey Bauer and Pete Giftopoulos ... Penn State coach Joe Paterno is trying for his fourth undefeated season in 20 years.

Miami Hurricanes quarterback and Heisman Trophy winner Vinny Testaverde will lead the No. 1 ranked Hurricanes against No. 2 ranked Penn State in the Fiesta Bowl on January 2.

How much do you know about the NCAA manual?

By The Associated Press
EDITOR'S NOTE — Football coaches whose teams were ranked in the Top Twenty during the week of Nov. 2 were asked to take the following quiz. Eighteen coaches participated, one refused and one could not be reached in time to take the test. The questions are worded exactly as they appear in the NCAA Manual.

No. A prospective student-athlete may not be interviewed or otherwise featured in any type of telecast involving a member institution.
 Correct 15, Incorrect 3

No. 7 SITUATION
 An institution is limited to a certain number of initial minimum awards in football and a total limit in other sports.

QUESTION
 Is it permissible for an institution to offer more than the maximum initial awards in anticipation that all of the offers will not be accepted?

ANSWER
 Yes. However, the institution shall not exceed the limitation in the sport in question.
 Correct 15, Incorrect 3

No. 8 SITUATION
 An institution participates in a foreign tour after its intercollegiate season is completed and prior to the start of the next academic year. A student-athlete was eligible but did not participate during the institution's season just completed. The student-athlete did represent his institution's team on the foreign tour.

QUESTION
 Does such participation count as a season of eligibility for purposes of an NCAA championship event in the sport in question?

ANSWER
 Yes. Such participation shall be counted as a season of eligibility for the preceding season.
 Correct 11, Incorrect 7

No. 9 SITUATION
 An institution's athletics booster club proposes to finance an intercollegiate team's transportation expenses to a location that is not more than 100 miles from the campus for a recognition banquet. This is to occur prior to or during the season.

QUESTION
 Is this permissible?

ANSWER
 Yes, provided expenses are paid through the institution's department of athletics and the location is within 100 miles of the campus; further there can be no tangible award provided to members of the team.
 Correct 10, Incorrect 8

No. 10 SITUATION
 A student-athlete in injured going to or from class or while participating in classroom requirements, such as physical education.

QUESTION
 Is it permissible for the institution to pay the medical or hospital expenses for the student-athlete?

ANSWER
 No, unless similar services are provided by the institution to all students who are provided by terms and conditions of the institution's overall insurance program.
 Correct 16, Incorrect 2

No. 11 SITUATION
 A member institution's alumni group or booster club wishes to honor prospective student-athletes for outstanding athletic accomplishments and present an award to the honorees.

QUESTION
 Is the presentation of such awards permissible?

ANSWER
 No. The presentation of such an award would be considered an improper inducement.
 Correct 16, Incorrect 2

No. 12 SITUATION
 During the telecast of an institution's intercollegiate contest, the station televising the game proposes to show a videotape of competition involving high school or junior college players.

QUESTION
 Could the institution permit the television station to show the videotape of the competition under NCAA legislation?

ANSWER
 Yes.
 Correct 15, Incorrect 3

Implant changes lives

Surgery helps men with sexual dysfunction

By CARLEEN EVERETT
Lifestyle Editor

First, the bad news: 10 million United States males are affected by impotence. Now, the good news: not all of these men must live with their problem, as a result of the surgical procedure using penile prosthesis.

The process is for men who have sexual dysfunction — who have been investigated and failed to respond to conservative medical treatment," explains Dr. Rudy Haddad, neurologist at Malone-Hogan Clinic.

Use of the penile prosthesis has changed several lives, he added. In many instances, the implant has allowed couples to become parents.

For 24-year-old Johnnie Jones of Odessa, the implant meant the prospect of sexual intercourse for the first time in a year-and-a-half — after he had the surgery, he said. "It changed my life," said Johnnie (not his real name to protect his identity).

He is a parapalegic confined to a wheelchair as the result of a motorcycle accident.

The greatest outcome of the surgery, Jones said, is "my ability to interact with females. It was hard to be in a room with girls and feel normal. Before, I felt like I couldn't have sex and couldn't walk — now, I just can't walk."

In addition to that aspect of his life, his self-esteem has improved considerably, he added. Marriage plans now are a real possibility. All he has to do is "meet the right one," he said.

Victims of impotency range in age.

One 69-year-old patient, M.L.D. of Sterling City Route, underwent the implant procedure two years ago, he said.

"I had become — not a man. I'm single and it just wasn't much of a life to live."

His wife died in 1981 after a 40-year marriage. M.L.D. has four children and grandchildren.

After prostate surgery three years ago, he was unable to perform sexually. At 67, he decided to have the implant.

"It has changed me 100 percent. I can socialize with people now. And before I felt like I was a nobody. I had the desire before, but I couldn't perform — now I have the desire and I can perform. Plus, the enjoyment is there like it always was."

Not only has his confidence been restored, M.L.D. says he also is very open about his implant surgery.

"It doesn't bother me to talk about it. I'm not ashamed of it — I'm proud of it. I know a bunch of people who need to change their lives and I know this could help them. I feel great — I started a new life completely."

In addition to a more complete social life, M.L.D. says he now has wedding plans in his near future.

The neurological team — Haddad and Dr. James Cowan — do not perform the surgery unless "no other avenues to remedy the problem are successful," Haddad explained. "Prosthesis is permanent for irreversible impotency problems."

The first step is to determine whether the surgery is needed — established by compiling an extensive medical history and thorough laboratory testing.

"After receiving reports on history, lab tests can identify medical problems that can be treated without doing the penile prosthesis. We want to make sure the problem is organic and not psychological," Cowan said.

Some causes for sexual dysfunction are hypertension, diabetes, prostatitis, psychotropic drugs, alcoholism, hardening of the arteries, paralysis, pelvic injuries, chronic disorders and some types of surgery, Haddad reported.

"It's a very sensitive issue with any man. Many men feel it's an attack to their manhood... We take the attitude very seriously," Haddad said.

"They have to overcome an ego thing. God giveth and God taketh away has no place in modern medicine," Cowan added.

After the determination has been made that the problem is organic, a conference is conducted with the patient and, in the case of those who are married, the spouse is involved.

"It's a joint decision," Haddad said. "We don't do the surgery if both parties aren't in total agreement."

The surgery is simple and can be performed on an outpatient basis, Haddad explained. However, most patients elect to stay in the hospital for 48 hours.

Two types of prosthesis can be implanted — it's the patients' choice, Cowan said. "We explain the advantages and disadvantages of both, but they make the final decision."

The rigid implant is $1,500 and the inflatable implant is $3,000. Haddad said that the majority of his patients select the rigid implant.

Although price occasionally is a factor, Haddad says the surgery isn't considered cosmetic and insurance companies provide coverage

Dr. Rudy Haddad and Dr. James Cowan, neurologists at Malone-Hogan Clinic, discuss penile prosthesis. "Prosthesis is permanent for irreversible impotency problems," Haddad said. Left corner, two types of prosthesis can be implanted, it's the patients choice, Cowan — including Medicare. "The success rate is 100 percent," Haddad said. He added that he is confident with both prostheses, but the inflatable has greater risk of failure.

Prostheses have been around for more than 100 years, Haddad explained, but the methods have been improved and perfected.

"Basically it is our job as urologists to make the patient aware of the existence of the method of treatment. The final decision is up to him," Haddad added.

"Basically it is our job as urologists to make the patient aware of the existence of the method of treatment. The final decision is up to him," he added.

Beaumont woman finds caning chairs relaxing

By JENNY NARKIEWICZ
Beaumont Enterprise

BEAUMONT (AP) — The intricate rattan patterns resemble delicate lace and look as if they couldn't support a child, much less an adult.

But, as Claudia Deborah gently pulls a long thin strip of rattan into place, she tells a visitor the material is quite strong.

"If you take care of it properly, the rattan will last a lifetime," she says.

Mrs. Deborah, an office manager at an insurance agency, spends much of her free time caning chairs, a hobby she discovered about 15 years ago.

"I rescued four chairs from my family's camp house," Mrs. Deborah says. "The camp house was falling down around them and I asked my husband's aunt if I could have them. They were originally caned, but had leather covers over them. After I got them home, I decided to refinish them and to try to rescue them."

Mrs. Deborah says she wasn't pleased with the first chair after finishing it.

"I'm a perfectionist," Mrs. Deborah said. "The first one didn't turn out as well as I thought it would. When I finished recaning the fourth chair, I did the first one over and was pleased with the way it went the second time."

Claudia Deborah canes a chair with rattan at her Beaumont home recently. Mrs. Deborah, who discovered the caning hobby about 15 years ago, says her hobby fits perfectly with her desire to preserve antiques.

Those four chairs, which sit in Mrs. Deborah's dining room, have been recaned numerous times, but not because they were in need of repair.

"Sometimes, if I'm doing an arts and crafts show, I'll remove the caning from the chairs so I have something to demonstrate with, especially if I'm not working on something else."

Mrs. Deborah can choose from seven different patterns when she canes, including a basic pattern, a star, a spider web, a daisy pattern that has four variations, a lace pattern and a medallion pattern.

The basic pattern, Ms. Deborah says, involves seven steps, including two vertical, two diagonal steps, and a binder step, which is a decorative touch added around the edge of the caning.

As the number of steps increases, so does the strength of the caning, Mrs. Deborah says.

Depending on the pattern and the furniture's size, it takes Mrs.

Deborah between six and 18 hours to cane a piece of furniture. She also canes furniture that wasn't originally caned.

"It's a type of weaving process," Mrs. Deborah, 37, says of her hobby. "It's not a difficult craft, but it's a very time-consuming. The only prerequisite is that you need a lot of patience."

Although the craft is called caning, Mrs. Deborah uses rattan to cane chairs and other pieces of furniture. Rattan, a climbing vine found in tropical jungles and swamps, can grow to more than 500 feet in length and from one-eighth inch to 3 1/4 inches in diameter. Mrs. Deborah imports most of her rattan from a ready-to-use form from the Philippines.

Mrs. Deborah says her hobby fits perfectly with her desire to preserve antiques, an interest she's had since high school.

"A lot of antique furniture originally was caned," Mrs. Deborah says. "But, through time or through carelessness, the caning wore out and was replaced with something else."

She's also interested in keeping the craft alive.

"There really isn't a network for people in need of this type of work to refer to," Mrs. Deborah says. "Unless you know somebody who knows somebody else, it's hard to find someone who can recane chairs. Advertising is primarily through word-of-mouth and through arts and crafts shows..."

Once a chair has been recaned, Mrs. Deborah advises owners to moisten the rattan with warm water once a month to prevent it from becoming brittle.

Her husband, Jerry, also is involved in her craft. He does what is called rush seats, Mrs. Deborah says, wrapping fibers around the rails of a chair to form a seat.

"He enjoys that and does it very well," she says. "You have to have a lot of strength to do that. For me, though, caning is a fun craft. Once you get past the frustration of the first piece, it's a relaxing hobby."

Weddings

White-Harrell

Teresa Kay White of Forsan and David Harrell exchanged wedding vows Dec. 27 at the First Baptist Church with Rev. Jack Clinkscales of Forsan Baptist Church, officiating.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. George White of Forsan. Bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Harrell of Temple.

The couple stood before an altar decorated with a full archway with greenery and two candle spiral trees. Sprays of silk lilies, gladiolas and babies breath were flanked on each side of the candle trees.

Pianist was Clark Johnson and Beth Spence was organist. Jackie Henry and Don Wheeler were vocalists.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her dress featured a Victorian-style neck with toile inset and full puffed sleeves of peau de sole with chantilly lace overlay. The bodice was made of beaded peau de soi, chantilly lace tiers flowing from the waist to a chapel-length train. Gauntlets were made of rose point lace and pearls. A picture frame hat of lace and silk roses was accented with an toile elbow-length veil.

She carried a cascading array of baby roses and gardenias — all in white. Matron of honor was Joni Little of Big Spring. Bridesmaids were Vicky McDowell of Big Spring, Catherine Goodwin of Lubbock and Lisa Wunburger of San Antonio. Junior bridesmaid was Mandy Morgan of Carrollton, cousin of the bride.

Flower girl was Jessica Morgan of Grandbury, cousin of the bride.

Ring bearer was Matt Morgan of Carrollton, cousin of the bride.

Best man was Brad Robertson of Galveston. Groomsmen were Bobby Little of Big Spring, Preston Daniels of Big Spring and Kelly Long of Big Spring. Junior groomsman was Greg Evans of Keller, cousin of the bride.

Ushers were Bruce Dennis of Big Spring and Tab Morgan of Dallas. Greg Evans and Mandy Morgan, cousins of the bride, were candlelighters.

After the wedding, a reception was hosted at the church parlor. The bride's table, draped with a chantilly lace cloth, featured a three-tiered cake in white, accented with burgandy fresh cut flowers. The cake was topped with fresh cut flowers.

The bridegroom's table featured a German chocolate cake.

The bride is a graduate of Forsan High School and Texas Tech University. She has a bachelor of science in elementary education and a kindergarten certification.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Forsan High School and is employed at Cain Electrical Supply Corp.

After a wedding trip to Acapulco, Mexico, the couple will make their home at 1504 E. 5th St.

Barnes-Keaton

MRS. BUSTER KEATON
...formerly Alicia Barnes

Alicia Barnes, Rt. 3 Box 130, and Buster Keaton Jr., 1905 Wason Rd., exchanged wedding vows Dec. 5 at Big Spring Christian Fellowship with Lanny Hamby, officiating.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Covert Sr., Rt. 3 Box 130. Bridegroom's parents are Buster Keaton Sr., 1905 Wason Rd.

The couple stood before an archway that had ivy and a mauve ribbon with 15 candles across the top and seven candelabums with blue ribbon.

Laura Thornton was the pianist. Vocalists were Connie Keaton, sister of the bridegroom.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a dress featured with a close fitted bodice embellished with simulated pearls and sequins. Schiffl embroidery detailed the lace and stand-up collar and illusion-net front yoke. The full skirt with tiers of lace and polyester sheer extended into a heart-shaped train. Long buttons and loop closed the back. Schiffl embroidery, sequins and simulated pearls trimmed the headpiece while polyester lace trimmed the walking-length train. A veil and blusher of nylon netting accented her attire.

She carried a bouquet of white

Flower girl was Kristie Van Ness of Big Spring. Ring bearer was Sam Lacy, cousin of the bridegroom, of Midland.

Best man was Buster Keaton Sr. Groomsmen were Billy Turner, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, of Big Spring and Albert Overby of Big Spring.

Ushers were Ronald F. Covert Jr., brother of the bride, and Midland and Timmy Murphy, cousin of the bridegroom, of Midland.

Candlelighters were Roxanna Baker, cousin of the bride, and Chris Shaw, cousin of the bride, of Big Spring.

After the wedding, a reception was hosted at Big Spring Christian Fellowship. The bride's table, draped with a lace tablecloth, featured a three-tiered white cake with blue roses and mauve rose buds with a fountain. The cake was topped with a ceramic bride and bridegroom with a heart shaped archway.

The bride is a graduate of Coahoma High School. The bridegroom is a graduate of Big Spring High School and is employed by Cameo Energy Homes.

After a wedding trip to San Angelo, the couple will make their home in Big Spring.

Body typing inconsistent

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I've heard it said that coaches can pretty well gauge potential athletic ability by a system of body "typing." Can you explain this? — S.S.

You are referring, I'm sure, to somatotyping. It works to some degree, but it would be an unwise coach, no matter the sport, who would stake his career on its infallibility.

In somatotyping, there are three kinds of bodies — endomorphic, mesomorphic, and ectomorphic. A mesomorphic body is squarish and muscular with narrow hips and wide shoulders. The ectomorph is slender and tall with angular bone structure and thin arms and legs. The endomorph is heavy-set, of large girth, with thick legs and arms.

Most often, you find mixtures, but you can make pretty good guesses as to the particular athletic abilities of the three types. An endomorphic stature is probably the kind you would want on a football team as a tackle or guard. Mesomorphs usually show their abilities on hockey teams or as baseball players. The ectomorph can make a basketball coach drool in anticipation.

In fact, these are only the grossest of simplifications. More precise scientific formulas involving bone and body fat composition tell much more about somatotyping.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I play an aggressive net game, and my problem has been my big toe, the one I use to step forward on after a serve. It ends up pinning something terrible. Any way to correct this? — F.O.

It's common among tennis players, especially in those who step off very forcefully from their serves. And as you note, it becomes a hazard for those who emphasize a strong net game and want to move in to take advantage of their serves.

The pain is from the force of the toe against the surface. It bends upward (dorsiflexion). I can't tell you how to avoid it, short of altering your style of play or serve. Some are helped by taping the tip toe to the one next to it (buddy taping). That may add a bit of strength to withstand the stress a bit more. A firmer tennis shoe may help. You might have the foot X-rayed to see if there is some abnormality in toe structure that can be corrected.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please explain the sergeant's jump test, and how it is used to measure a player's jumping ability. How would you use it if you wanted to measure jumping ability in a group of young basketball players? — S.B.

Here's the sergeant's test. The player stands next to a wall and stretches a hand as high as possible up the wall. You mark the reach and measure the distance. The higher the mark, the better the reach ability.

Coaches combine this with an actual jump test. The player stands on a 14-inch platform at the wall.

He jumps down into a crouch, then leaps up in the same motion. You mark the top of his leap. If he does not equal or surpass the first (sergeant's test) mark, he needs work. The distance attained in the second mark over the first is a pretty good indicator of relative rebounding ability.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Our son is a wrestler. So was his father in school. The father has evidence of cauliflower ears. They are unsightly since he has gone into a short cut. How can it be prevented? — Mrs. F.L.

The simple answer is to insist on use of proper headgear at all times. Cauliflower ear develops when hematoma form. They are small blood deposits in ear tissue from repeated trauma of the soft tissue. Unless the buildup drains off into circulation it remains to leave permanent damage. Swollen and inflamed ear tissue after a match should be treated promptly by the trainer.

FOR S.F. — Your daughter's problem is a common one. Many runners get abdominal cramping, bloating and the urge to answer nature's calls while running. It is probably from leg muscles' stealing blood from the digestive tract. It is usually a temporary thing, an adjustment at the start of training as the body learns to adapt. Tell your daughter to cut down on her training a bit until she can manage it without such disturbances. Then she can gradually build up to her desired level again.

How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple — write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of the booklet, "How to Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and $1.00.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Reunion

SAND SPRINGS — More than 100 members of the Henry Paige family of Sand Springs attended their fourth annual Christmas gag gift party Dec. 20 at Paige Construction Shop.

The oldest member attending was Bertie Kirkland, 83, and the youngest was Tiffani Paige, 1. Family members traveled to the party from Odessa, Colorado City and Big Spring.

Exhibits depicts Ice Age lifestyle

NEW YORK (AP) — The title is intriguing — "Dark Caves, Bright Visions: Life in Ice Age Europe," and this exhibition at the American Museum of Natural History through Jan. 18 lives up to it.

It is made up of about 250 exhibits, which the museum says is the largest collection of original Ice Age artifacts ever assembled for an exhibition in the United States.

They illuminate an astonishingly creative period, the Upper Paleolithic period from about 35,000-10,000 B.C., in the history of our early ancestors — the first modern humans, anatomically our own kind. The exhibits include more than 100 original art objects — glimmers from those distant days of the evolving urge for beauty, distinct from function — in addition to body ornaments and skillfully designed tools.

A 10.5 cm-long fragment of carved reindeer antler sums up the message: it is part of a spear-thrower, and it is not only an ingenious device which enhances the power and accuracy of a thrown spear, it is sculpted elegantly into the fine-detailed form of a bison — which it did not need to be to do its job.

Anniversary

The Carbin Lawrences

Carbin C. and Louise L. Lawrence, 2501 Cindy Lane, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on Dec. 31 from 2 to 4 p.m. at College Heights Christian Church, E. 21st and Golind streets.

Hosts of the event are Mr. and Mrs. A.J. Billo, Pegg Sue Billo, JoAnn Brueggeman, Mr. and Mrs. W.C. Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cathey, Sr.

Lawrence was born in Albany, Ky. and Mrs. Lawrence, the former Louise Jones, was born in Quick City, Mo.

The couple met in Harrisonville, Mo. in 1936 and were married Dec. 31, 1936 at the Christian Church parsonage in Harrisonville with E.F. Leake, officiating. During their marriage, the couple has lived in several states until moving to Big Spring in 1949.

Mrs. Lawrence is retired from Civil Service and Lawrence is semi-retired. He still maintains his pipe and tank yard.

The couple is a member of College Heights Christian Church and enjoy church and their home.

"In 1949 we were sent to Cosden on a construction job. After it was completed, we decided to make Big Spring our home. We have never felt that we made a mistake."

Friends of the couple are invited to share the occasion with them. They request no gifts.

Reactivation of scout program considered

Insects were a major factor in this season's poor crop yields. For many years Howard County was blessed with practically insect-free conditions for growing cotton, the number one cash crop produced.

Entomologists now tell us we have reached a threshold in environmental conditions that make insects a permanent factor to consider in cotton production.

Timely control measures of these pests are critical in the effectiveness of an insect control program.

Several years ago a county pest management program was established when boll weevils were the only real cotton insect pest we were faced with and these were limited to the eastern portions of our cotton growing area.

An Extension Entomologist was hired at that time to serve Howard, Martin, and Glasscock counties. Local producers contributed funds to support a county scout program. These scouts were trained by the entomologist to survey cotton fields and alert farmers about the insect situation in each community.

Cotton production expanded and the insect situation increased in the area and the Extension Pest Management Program expanded to include Midland, Upton, and Reagan counties.

Another entomologist was hired and the area re-districted so that an Entomologist then served Howard, Martin, and Midland counties. The other now serves Glasscock, Upton, and Reagan counties.

Lack of an insect problem and poor cotton yields followed and funds for the local scout program depleted. Unfortunately destructive insect build-ups occurred in 1985 and 1986 and cotton farmers were caught unprepared and control measures were often applied "too little - too late."

Concern for the re-activation of the scout program developed and the county Extension Crops Program Area Committee took on the responsibility of trying to re-activate the program. Our Extension Agent - Pest Management serving Howard County, Richard Minzenmayer, met with our local committee to try to come up with a plan to re-activate this program.

For your garden

Around $7,000.00 is needed to hire two scouts to serve Howard County and these funds must come from local sources. A nominal assessment on a volunteer basis was discussed.

In January, a special informational meeting will be held for all local producers. In the meantime, contributions can be sent to Kelly Gaskins, Rt. 1 Box 23L, Knott, Texas 79748.

Other committee members spear heading this action include Larry Shaw, J.D. Bilbro, Bill Fryrear, Bruce Griffith, Joe Mac Gaskins, Geraldine Posey, Leon Langley, Paul Hopper, Mrs. Bertie Shaw, D.V. Cook, Clay Ingram, and Mrs. Laverne Gaskins.

If you need more information about this program, please contact Rick Minzenmayer at the past management office in Stanton at 915-756-2251, the Howard County Extension office at 267-6671, or any of the above mentioned committee members.

Smokers leave behind legacy of pain

DEAR ABBY: About a year and a half ago, a Gulfport, Miss., woman wrote a very moving letter about her sister who had died of lung cancer. Then a Denver woman wrote to say that that letter had caused her to quit smoking. Please run them again. Someone I love very much needs to see those letters in print.

WM. McD., TORONTO, CANADA

DEAR WILLIAM: Here they are:

DEAR ABBY: I am hurting more right now than I ever had in my whole life. My beloved younger sister died nine months ago. I still can't believe I will never be able to call her on the phone again to gossip and giggle as only sisters do. God, how I miss her!

I asked her doctor what actually killed her, and without batting an eye he said, "Cigarettes!" Now I feel so guilty because I, her older sister, smoked. Thank God, I was able to quit in time. She tried to quit, but it was too late for her.

Her husband and children are inconsolable. I have learned a lot from this terrible experience. A smoker has a lot more to worry about than dying. My sister's stay in the hospital with lung cancer wiped out her family financially.

Abby, why do advertisers make cigarette ads so attractive? Instead, they should run a before-and-after picture of a once-beautiful woman vomiting and bald from radiation therapy.

I know this letter is too long for your column, but if it will help just one person to reach into her purse (or his pocket) and throw that pack of cigarettes in the trash, it will be worth it.

GRIEVING IN GULFPORT, MISS.

DEAR ABBY: On April 5, I read a letter in your column in the Rocky Mountain News that did something for me that nothing else was able to do. It made me decide to quit smoking.

It was written by a woman signed "Grieving in Gulfport," whose beloved younger sister had died of lung cancer. Her doctor bluntly stated, "Cigarettes killed her."

"Grieving's" final paragraphs hit me like a thunderbolt. Abby, please tell "Grieving" that her letter made this 42-year-old, four-pack-a-day woman reach into her purse and throw her cigarettes in the trash! I've taken an oath to never smoke again.

Too bad she didn't sign her name. She deserves to be thanked publicly.

FREE IN DENVER

DEAR FREE: She did sign her name, but requested that her letter be signed "Grieving in Gulfport" if published.

However, I telephoned her to tell her what a terrific impact her letter had made, and asked if I could reveal her identity.

She said, "If you think it will help just one person, go ahead." So, orchids to you, Dorothy Sosebee in Gulfport, Miss!

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for your continuing efforts to get people to quit smoking.

My beloved brother, died last week. He was a special person, loved by many. He was a good Christian and we find some comfort in knowing that he is with our Lord, but selfishly, we want him here with us now. He knew that cigarettes could kill, but he never thought it would happen to him. He loved us and did not want to cause us all this pain and sorrow.

Abby, please give this message to your readers: If you can't quit smoking for yourselves, please do it for those who love you.

Year-end look assesses advances for women

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court decisions on abortion and sexual harassment were among the advances for women in 1986, but the ascension of William Rehnquist to chief justice was a major setback, according to a feminist group's year-end assessment.

Attacks against women's health centers also qualified as a setback while gains on the top-10 list included a landmark pay equity settlement and new political fund-raising prowess, said the NOW Legal Defense and Education Fund.

The fund, an arm of the National Organization for Women, looked at jobs, legal decisions, sports, politics, religion, Congress, health and family planning issues, and social and economic rights in ranking and reviewing the year's events.

Kathy Bonk, a senior staff member of the NOW fund, said there wasn't enough progress in 1985 to warrant a list.

"Nineteen-eighty-six was really a comeback," Bonk said. "By and large it was a pretty good year for women. The good thing is that the Supreme Court decisions could have been a disaster. We could have had major rollbacks and in fact what we had was some steady progress."

At the top of the advances list, the NOW fund cites the Supreme Court's June decision striking down a Pennsylvania law designed to discourage women from seeking abortions. The court said "a woman's right to make that choice freely is fundamental."

That same month, the court ruled that sexual harassment is a form of sex discrimination.

On the flip side, NOW rated Rehnquist's confirmation and the addition of conservative Justice Antonin Scalia as the worst development for women last year. Scalia is a strong abortion opponent and Rehnquist, while a lawyer for the Nixon administration, wrote a memo saying the Equal Rights Amendment was unnecessary and could destroy the family.

Second on the NOW list was violence against women's health clinics, with 135 attacks reported in 1986. In other major setbacks, a federal court dismissed a $20 million sex discrimination case against Sears, Roebuck and Co.; the government said households of women and children made up one-third of the nation's poor; and lung cancer became the number one killer of women.

The major gains ranged from a $101 million settlement in AFSCME's pay equity case against Washington state to The New York Times' decision to allow the use of "Ms." in news stories, abandoning its previous requirement that women be referred to either as Miss or Mrs. on second reference.

Other positive signs: More than 33 percent of medical students are women, up from 9 percent in 1969, and a Gallup poll finds that 56 percent of all women consider themselves feminists while 88 percent of women and 71 percent of men between 18 and 29 believe the women's movement has improved their lives.

Bonk said the NOW fund considered compiling a "terrible trends" list but decided to accentuate the positive. Asked for an example of the downside, she cited "the marriage crunch backlash," a reference to statistics that indicated older single women would most likely never marry. The statistics later were revised.

"There were attempts in this last year for women to be, if not manipulated, moved back into a much more traditional mold," Bonk said.

Local young woman to be in teen pageant

Michelle Fortune, daughter of Jim and Dixie Fortune, has been selected to compete in the 1987 Miss West Texas T.E.E.N. Pageant on Jan 10 in Midland.

To be a contestant, each young lady must have a "B" average or better in school and maintain that average throughout the pageant. She must also be involved in volunteer service.

Miss T.E.E.N. is not a beauty pageant and there are no points given for beauty. The young ladies are judged on scholastic achievement, volunteer service, interviews, speech or talent and formal presentation.

The 16-year-old will compete in the 13-18-year-old category.

Winner of the Miss T.E.E.N. Pageant will receive a $500 cash scholarship, 11x14 portrait, a crown, sash and trophy and an all-expense paid trip to Dallas for the state pageant to represent her area.

At state, she will compete for more than $3,000 in cash and prizes — plus the winner will receive an all-expense paid trip to the national pageant in Kansas City, Mo. where the scholarship and prizes total more than $70,000.

Man-made fabrics rival natural fibers for keeping warm in winter

Natural fibers like wool and down have been considered the warmest materials. Synthetics could not compete in frigid weather. Now, some man-made fabrics have been developed that rival the natural fabrics.

One such fabric, woven from polyester or nylon fiber, is pile. The thick bulky fabric is produced in manufacturing so that it retains insulating dead air for warmth in cold-weather clothing. Natural fibers like wool and down are effective because of this same dead air principle. But when they are wet, natural materials have their drawbacks. Down loses its warmth altogether. Wet wool is still warm, but its fibers readily absorb moisture, increasing its weight considerably. And wet wool dries slowly.

Pile is as warm as wool — even when wet. Unlike wool, however, moisture collects only in the air spaces between the fibers rather than in the fibers themselves. A wet garment made of pile can be shaken vigorously or squeezed to remove most of the moisture, and put back on.

Pile garments are good for use in a cold wet climate. And since pile does not absorb water, its light weight can always be counted on.

A practical pile garment is a jacket that zips up the front and is elasticized at the cuffs and waist. This jacket is ideal for sports enthusiasts, like skiers, who alternate strenuous activity with long rests. The jacket can be unzipped to cool off, and, conversely, zipped up to retain heat. A pile jacket works just like a wool sweater since it traps dead air, is porous and ideal for layering.

Layering several thin garments made of warm materials heightens the dead air principles. It also means you can adjust clothes to suit the activity, peeling off layers when overheated, adding them when chilled.

In case of the pile jacket, add extra warmth with a windbreaking shell over it. The type of shell selected depends on how it is to be used. A good choice for working outdoors, where a hard-wearing garment is needed, is a blend of 65% cotton and 35% nylon, which is extremely durable and abrasion-resistant. A nylon shell is not quite as windproof as the blend, but is lighter, dries faster and can be compressed to a tiny size when not in use. This shell is popular with skaters, skiers, snowshoers, and walking enthusiasts.

Check for size and comfort. The hood, for example, should allow enough room for a wool cap. And when the hood is pulled snugly around the head, it should turn with your head. Try to get a shell with large conveniently placed pockets. A waist drawing that keeps the garment from flapping is a plus, too.

A wise choice for everyday wear is a quilted coat or jacket. Quilting provides a bulky filling material for insulation with a fabric outer shell for strength so that much greater warmth is possible. Natural filling materials, like duck and goose down, are extremely popular. But polyester fills are proving to be efficient insulators as well. Thick layers of fine fibers are used to trap warm air. Like pile clothing, the synthetic fill retains much of its warmth when wet and dries quickly.

An alternative to the bulky quilted garment is a coat or jacket lined with microfiber insulators. These dense materials are about twice as efficient as bulky fillers when measured inch for inch. But they feel stiff on the body so the garment has to fit perfectly or it will bind. Furthermore, they weigh more than a bulky filler like down.

Nevertheless, microfiber insulators are popular, especially with skiers who appreciate the close fitting cut of a garment with this dense filler. The leanlines cut air resistance.

But natural fibers like wool and down continue to be winter favorites.

Man has best of two states

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Pete Aiken hasn't forgotten the pristine lakes and streams, the country atmosphere and accessible sandy beaches he knew as a boy growing up in St. Lucie County.

The criminal lawyer says those treasures have disappeared from south Florida, but he's found them again in Colorado.

Still, Aiken insists he has no intention of leaving Florida. Instead, he maintains separate homes and careers here and 2,000 miles away in Colorado. Although his dual life requires him to commute between the two states at least twice a month, he has no complaints about the 10-hour roundtrip flight.

"I read a novel each time I go," he said.

Born and raised in Fort Pierce, Aiken received his bachelor's degree from the University of South Carolina and his law degree in 1971 from the University of Miami.

He served six years as a federal intelligence agent and was an assistant U.S. attorney in Miami from 1972 to 1973, when he went into private practice. He moved his office to Fort Lauderdale in 1974.

As the years went by and south Florida grew as a retirement haven, Aiken noticed changes in the area. How much it had changed became vivid when, after a big trial, he visited a brother then living in Fort Collins, Colo.

"I needed quiet and to get away from people," Aiken, 42, recalled.

Lifestyle guidelines

We will be pleased to announce the news of your engagement, wedding, silver or golden anniversary in the Lifestyle section of the Big Spring Herald. We try to use the stories on the date you request, but sometimes space does not permit this. The information must be submitted to us on a form available at the Herald no later than Wednesday noon before the Sunday it is to be published. The form must include a name and telephone number of a person whom we can reach during the day for more information.

We will use a picture of the couple in the announcement. Or in the case of engagement announcements where a picture of the couple is not available, we will use one of the bride-elect. The picture must be a professional quality studio photograph. We prefer a 3 1/2 x 5 glossy black and white print. We ask for this kind of photograph so that it will reproduce well in the newspaper. Following the picture's publication, it may be picked up at the Lifestyle department.

The information for the story may be brought to the Lifestyle department of the Herald, which is located at 710 Scurry. Or it may be mailed to Lifestyle Department, Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79620. Call us at 915-263-7331 if we can help with more information or clarification of our policies.

ENGAGEMENTS
 Information of engagement announcements must be submitted to the Lifestyle department of the Herald anytime after the engagement is a reality until at least three weeks prior to the wedding. Anything closer than three weeks will not be published. The engagement form must be submitted no later than Wednesday noon prior to the Sunday it is to be published.

If the bride-elect, prospective bridegroom or their parents do not now or have never lived in our area, we need to know why you are submitting your engagement to the Herald. If only grandparents live in our area, please give their names and addresses.

WEDDINGS
 If a wedding writeup is submitted to the Herald after the wedding has occurred, the space allotted to it will diminish according to the length of time that has passed since the wedding.

BIRTHS
 Local hospitals supply information for Starclub. If a child is born elsewhere in the newspaper's circulation area, or is born to out-of-town parents with local or area grandparents, please contact the Herald Lifestyle Department with Starclub information.

Information needed for Starclub is: newborn's name, sex, time and date of birth, weight, place of birth, parents' name and address. If the baby is born outside the circulation area but has local grandparents, please include their name and address. The local grandparents serve as the area connection for the information.
