Q. What United States city is known as the "Gateway to the West?"
A. St. Louis, Mo., is commonly referred to as the Gateway City. City fathers in the 1940s agreed to the construction of a steel arch monument to enhance and commemorate the city's gateway reputation. The downtown arch was dedicated in 1966.

DALLAS (AP) — Merchants say all of the unsold Texas Sesquicentennial merchandise gives them little to celebrate.

"The party's over and we're all broke," joked Glen Courson, owner of Glen's Sporting Goods in Irving, a major purveyor of sesquicentennial and Texas Wagon Train souvenirs. "But it was fun, wasn't it?"

A surplus of souvenirs from Texas' 150th birthday has left merchants counting losses rather than profits they had projected from the yearlong celebration.

Courson said he invested about $3 million in Sesquicentennial merchandise and contributions to the wagon train. He's had a return of about $2.7 million.

"There's still a chance of breaking even," Courson said. "If we sell all the stuff we have left, we just might make it."

At the beginning of the year, state officials predicted sales of officially sanctioned merchandise — souvenirs allowed to bear the state's sesquicentennial logo — would top $400 million.

Trillion-dollar plan has record cuts

By TOM RAUM
AP Economics Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan today proposed a $1.024 trillion budget for fiscal 1988 and invited Congress to join him in dealing the federal deficit "a crucial blow" with record cuts in farm and other domestic programs, but without raising taxes.

The spending proposal, Reagan's seventh and the first ever submitted by any president topping $1 trillion, calls for $42 billion in cuts, program eliminations and other savings, many resurrected from previous Reagan budgets.

The president said these measures would trim the federal deficit to $107.8 billion, a shade under the $108 billion level called for by the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law.

"In submitting this budget, I am doing my part of the bargain — and on schedule," Reagan said in a message accompanying the budget. "I ask Congress to do the same. If the deficit-reduction goals were to be abandoned, we could see unparalleled spending growth that this nation cannot afford."

At the same time, the new budget would establish a new $1 billion program designed to help workers displaced from import-battered industries to find new careers. And it calls for a $500 million program to combat AIDS disease and $1 billion in new funds to modernize the nation's air traffic control system.

The budget would raise defense spending authority to $312 billion — the smallest military increase yet sought by Reagan, but up from $292.9 billion this fiscal year. The $292.9 billion figure, however, includes a $2.8 billion supplemental spending request which Congress has yet to approve.

Spending authority, usually used when discussing the military budget, is a measure of legal authority for current as well as future outlays. In terms of 1988 outlays alone, the defense budget would rise to $297.6 billion next year under the new Reagan budget, up from $282.2 billion this year.

The new budget calls for $1.7 trillion in military outlays over the next five years. Reagan said this represents what is "minimally necessary to maintain national security."

Still, the defense budget promises to be among the most hotly debated of the presidential proposals.

The year-old Gramm-Rudman law seeks to eliminate annual deficits by 1991. Although partially invalidated by the Supreme Court, Reagan told Congress the law's targets should be heeded anyway to guard against "potentially fiscally irresponsible congressional action on a multitude of spending programs."

"If this deficit is not brought under control by limiting government spending, we put in jeopardy all we have achieved," Reagan said.

The administration anticipates a budget deficit of $173.2 billion in the current year, down from the record $220.7 billion of 1986, and says that in 1988 the deficit would decline to $150 billion even in the absence of additional measures — a level the

$1 billion asked to assist jobless

By MATT YANCEY
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan asked Congress today for a new $1 billion Worker Adjustment Assistance Program to help laid off factory workers and dislocated farmers find and train for new jobs.

Reagan, calling present programs ineffective, listed the expanded job-training program as one of the measures in his proposed budget for fiscal 1988 that will "help make our economy more competitive."

The program, which was won by Labor Secretary William Brock over the objections of White House Budget Director James C. Miller III, also is aimed at helping deflate mounting support in Congress for new restrictions on imports to address the nation's $170 billion trade deficit.

The new program is aimed at helping more of the 2 million workers who lose their jobs each year to farm and factory closures, technology changes and imports. When fully implemented it will serve nearly 700,000 people annually at a yearly cost of $980 million.

Brock said the new program will help the nation better "respond to dislocation pressures triggered by international competitions, technological change, economic shifts and changes in consumer preferences."

The current Job Training Partnership Act and Trade Adjustment Assistance programs financed at one-third that level reach about 250,000 people a year.

The budget also would combine under the Labor Department two other job training programs for teen-agers.

The $103 million Work Incentive Program administered by the Department of Health and Human Services as part of its Aid for Families with Dependent Children would be folded into the Labor Department's $750 million Summer Youth program that states would have the option of expanding year-round.

While Congress repeatedly has appropriated $750 million for the summer youth program, several states have had trouble spending it all in just three months.

Labor Department officials said the combined effort still would serve 600,000 to 700,000 youths a year, the same level as the two programs.

Worst for Amtrak

Firemen look through the wreckage of a highspeed Amtrak passenger train in Essex, Md., on Sunday night. The train derailed after hitting three diesel engines in the Baltimore suburb. At least 15 have died in the accident, described as the worst in Amtrak's history. Another picture and story are on page A-3.

Legislator launches juvenile justice effort

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — After the rape of her 70-year-old mother, State Sen. Cyndi Taylor Krier has moved to the forefront of an effort to strengthen the state's juvenile justice system.

Too many juveniles become repeat offenders and new legislation is needed to address the problem of juvenile delinquency and often-related substance abuse, the senator said.

Ms. Krier's mother was attacked in the early morning hours of Dec. 8 at a Beeville home. The elderly woman said a teen-ager tied her and then raped her while holding a pocketknife to her throat.

Beeville police arrested a 16-year-old boy at the scene and said he smelled of spray paint. Officers said the boy told them he was searching for money. Later, cans of spray paint were found in a creek bed where he had created a makeshift home.

Two weeks after the attack, the jailed youth, who had several prior convictions, hanged himself with a sheet, officials said.

Ms. Krier told the San Antonio Light she will work in the Legislature for proposals addressing juvenile justice when the 1987 legislative session begins Jan. 13. One of the legislative proposals would lower the age at which a teen-ager could be certified as an adult — from 15 to 13 — in cases of violent crimes such as aggravated assault and rape.

Another would allow juvenile court records to be included in the punishment phase of an adult's trial when the defendant has a record of committing felony offenses as a juvenile.

It is aimed at repeat offenders,

Ms. Krier said. "So many of them have long juvenile records. At some point, especially where violence has been used, I think it does become relevant."

A third proposal is to move offenders from the Texas Youth Commission to the Texas Department of Corrections to finish their sentences when they turn 18. Now they are released at 18, even if they have not served all of their time.

Two get probation in narcotics cases

By SCOTT FITZGERALD

Two men arrested recently on drug charges today were given eight-year probation sentences by 118th District Judge James Gregg.

Both defendants agreed to plea bargain arrangements with the district attorney's office prior to their guilty pleas.

The cases were scheduled for jury trial this week.

In addition to the probation sentences, each defendant was ordered to pay $102 court costs and $300 attorney fees within six months.

Lyndon Trent Fraley, 26, 1506 Stadium Ave., pleaded guilty to possession of a controlled substance on July 3, 1986.

According to police reports, he was in possession of less than 28 grams of heroin at the time of his arrest.

Police Detective John Sautter investigated the case, according to Assistant District Attorney Robert Morris. Fraley was one of five people arrested during a July 3 raid at 1504 B Lincoln Ave., Morris said.

Others arrested were: Manuel Moreno Renteria, 30, 1504 B Lincoln Ave.; Tammy Lynn Atchley, 28, 1504 B Lincoln Ave.; Randy Karl Wilbert, 26, 1506 Stadium Ave.; and Gary J. Leeper, 30, 2615 Dow Dr.

Their cases still are pending, Morris said.

Fraley was indicted by a grand jury in November, Morris said.

Dennis Williams, 39, Sterling City Route Box 102, pleaded guilty to delivery of marijuana on May 8 at the Sandra Gale Apartments.

According to police reports, Williams sold 3.13 ounces of marijuana to former undercover police officer Kimberley Phillips.

He was indicted and charged with the offense by a grand jury in August, Morris said.

Town to vote whether to keep grocery store

NOVICE (AP) — The owner of the only grocery store in this West Texas town of 200 people said she will be able to keep it open only if she is allowed to sell beer and wine.

As a result, Coleman County commissioners have scheduled an election Tuesday to decide whether to legalize the sale of alcoholic beverages in Novice, but that has set off ripples among others in this town 40 miles south of Abilene — especially leaders in the community's three churches.

Novice's church members oppose the sale of beer and wine, David Coffman, minister of Novice's Church of Christ, said. Coffman placed an ad in the Coleman Chronicle and Democrat-Voice asking that Novice residents vote against beer and wine sales.

Novice's three churches — the Church of Christ, the Baptist Church and the Methodist Church — paid for the ad.

"Liquor loosens a person's inhibitions so that he not do things while drinking that he would not even think of doing while sober," Coffman said.

County commissioners called the election after Martha Smith, owner of the Novice Grocery and Cattle Company, presented a petition last month with 26 signatures on it.

Texas's economic slump has cut deeply into business, Ms. Smith said.

"If something doesn't happen, I may have to close my doors," she said. "I'm having a great deal of trouble paying my bills."

Closing the store will cut off the only food supply for elderly residents who have no means of transportation, Ms. Smith said. About a third of Novice's elderly residents need help to get to the grocery store and she delivers groceries to six people, she said.

Rex Cate, who lives just outside Novice, said liquor sales "would be a just reward" for residents and would force the city to hire a policeman. If the grocery store closed, the town's elderly residents would take people who don't have transportation to Coleman to buy groceries, he said.

"There's plenty of us here that would bring groceries in to them," he said. "I would rather do that than have beer and wine here."

However, Mayor Owen Casey is on Ms. Smith's side.

"People like Martha," Casey said, "and if they can help her keep the store open, some will vote for beer and wine. We have to have a store, for the coffee drinkers, if nothing else."

Casey said he does not think beer and wine sales will have a big impact on Novice. It is only about 15 miles from Novice to Coleman, the county seat, which is already wet.

"I don't think it would cause a lot of problems. If people want to drink, they'll drink anyway," he said. "If you don't have to drive to get it, you won't have to drive drunk."

Before Coleman approved liquor sales, he said, people drove to Ballinger and San Angelo — 30 and 60 miles respectively — to buy it.

"A lot of people died on that road," Casey said.

Congressional Budget Office says is about $19 billion too optimistic.

Reagan said this decline is "a major turn for the better" but that further progress through additional spending cuts is needed.

Many of the same programs Reagan unsuccessfully put on the chopping block in previous budgets — Amtrak rail service, college loans, food stamps, housing programs and mass transit — again are targeted in the new proposal for deep cuts or elimination.

Reagan proposed eliminating federal Amtrak subsidies entirely and selling the rail passenger corporation's Washington-New York-Boston line.

Farm programs would come in for some of the deepest cuts of all in the new budget.

Spending on all farm programs would be slashed to $26.3 billion from the current $31.1 billion, with spending reduced to $18.2 billion by 1990.

The proposed changes would reduce government farm target prices by 10 percent per year "to reduce incentives to overproduce." The current maximum $250,000 that an individual farmer can receive would be slashed to $50,000.

Reagan said current farm subsidies are far too high. "This situation is untenable and must be changed."

Along with his budget, Reagan sent Congress his actions on proposed pay increases for federal officials. The presidential action, which will take effect unless overturned by votes of both chambers, would raise congressional salaries to $89,500 a year, up from the current $77,400. Reagan's proposal on congressional pay was less than the $135,000 recently suggested by the president's pay commission.

Reagan also proposed that the vice president be paid $115,000 annually and a $110,000 salary for Supreme Court justices.

Some programs would get increased aid under the new budget proposal.

The budget calls for a 28 percent increase, or $118 million, for the government's program to combat acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS), calling the usually fatal disease "the administrator's highest public health priority."

Break-in reported

Jimmy Hare, of Baird, reported to the Howard County Sheriff's Department Saturday night a break-in of his motor vehicle parked at the Stampedo on the Snyder Highway north of Big Spring.

The burglary occurred between 9 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. and a .22 caliber rifle valued at $50 was stolen.

Big Spring Police transferred Lee Cortez Jr., 19, 1903 S. Johnson St., to county jail Monday morning after he was arrested for driving while license suspended. He was released on $500 bond.

grams benefitted separately.

"Since most members of AFDC families are concentrated in central cities, this comprehensive new program would better target resources to young people most in need of training and employment assistance," said Brock.

While the president's budget calls for $980 million in federal commitments for the new program to aid dislocated workers, actual cash outlays would total only $490 million in fiscal 1988, which begins next Oct. 1. The rest of the spending could spill into future years.

That still is more than double the $210 million that the government actually spent in 1986 and anticipates spending this year on the separate Trade Adjustment and Job Training programs for dislocated workers.

"In the first year of a new program, your outlays never equal the budget authority because of the lag time needed for states to let contracts and get it established," said Tom Komarek, a Labor Department budget official.

Elsewhere on the job front, Reagan wants to substitute what he called "hidden" within-grade pay raises of 3 percent for federal employees with a "performance-oriented" merit system based on each worker's productivity.

Elizabeth Wooldridge

Elizabeth Wooldridge, 66, 1010 1/2 S. Nolan, died Tuesday, Dec. 30, 1986, at Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital after a one-year illness.

By Associated Press Fire victims arrive

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — Eight people injured in the Dupont Plaza Hotel fire in Puerto Rico arrived on stretchers aboard an Air Force plane to begin treatment closer to their homes.

The injured, who live in Connecticut, New Jersey and New York, had suffered either burns or fractures and were in stable condition, said Dr. Carlos Gomez-Marcial, an emergency medicine specialist who helped attend the injured on the 3½-hour flight.

The New Year's Eve blaze at the luxury beachfront hotel in San Juan killed 96 people and injured about 140 others. About 800 people were staying at the hotel. Investigators have declared the fire arson.

138 banks failed in '86

WASHINGTON — Nearly one of every 10 U.S. banks is in some kind of financial trouble, and a post-Depression record of 138 institutions failed last year, many of which were casualties of troubled oil and farm industries.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. said 1,484 banks as of mid-December were on its list of troubled institutions needing special monitoring out of the 14,948 banks whose deposits are insured by the FDIC.

During 1986, Texas had 26 bank failures, the most of any state, followed by 16 in Oklahoma, 14 in Kansas, 10 in Iowa and nine in Missouri. California and Louisiana had eight failures each; Colorado and Wyoming, seven each; and Nebraska, six.

"Economic performance has not been favorable for all sectors of the economy," FDIC Chairman L. William Seidman noted in congressional testimony last year. "The agricultural and energy sectors have been exceptionally weak and are in the midst of a painful adjustment process."

Seidman said many banks were reluctant or unable to diversify their lending and thus were more vulnerable to economic woes in oil and farming.

The 1986 failures marked a six-year surge of bank collapses. The 138 failures compared with 120 in 1985; 79 in 1984; 48 in 1983; 42 in 1982; and 10 in 1981.

Reagan surgery routine

WASHINGTON — President Reagan underwent what was described as "very routine" prostate surgery at Bethesda Naval Hospital today, and his doctor said afterward a preliminary examination "shows no suspicion of cancer."

Army Col. John Hutton, the presidential physician, issued a brief statement saying the operation "began at 8:15 (a.m. EST) and took about an hour. It was a very routine transurethral resection."

"The procedure went very smoothly. There was nothing out of the ordinary."

The operation, to relieve what a spokesman described as "mild, recurring discomfort," was performed after a weekend physical examination that found no new evidence of colon cancer, which Reagan suffered in July 1985.

The Amtrak passenger train, the Colonial, travelling from Washington to Boston, is derailed in Essex Sunday as seen in this aerial photograph. Passengers were trapped inside and several died after the train collided with three Conrail diesel engines.

Amtrak crash

Rescue effort continues at site

CHASE, Md. (AP) — Rescue workers using cranes today pulled more bodies out of a crumpled Amtrak train that derailed after a high-speed collision, killing at least 15 people and injuring 175 in Amtrak's worst accident ever.

The collision Sunday with a freight engine piled three passenger cars atop each other, blocking traffic on the busy Northeast rail corridor at the end of the New Year's holiday weekend.

At least 24 trains had been canceled, Amtrak officials said. Service was expected to be restored this afternoon or Tuesday morning, the railroad said. Meanwhile, Joe Nall, of the National Transportation Safety Board, said seven investigators had arrived to begin a four- to five-day inquiry.

Crews working throughout the night had pried 11 bodies from the mangled wreckage by 4:30 a.m. today. As dawn approached, rescue workers found two more bodies, and another two were found shortly afterward, said Sue Martin, an Amtrak spokeswoman at the scene. The dead included an Amtrak engineer and a 6-year-old boy.

The Colonial, bound from Washington, D.C., for Boston and Springfield, Mass., with about 520 people aboard, was traveling at least 90 mph when it slammed into a line of three Conrail locomotives on a switch that merges four tracks into two.

The Conrail diesels, which like the Amtrak train were northbound, had apparently run a stop signal, officials said. Larry Case, an Amtrak spokesman in Washington, said the Amtrak train normally would be traveling 110 mph at that point, seven miles east of Baltimore.

The two electric Amtrak locomotives derailed, along with all 12 cars of the train, and five of the passenger cars toppled on their sides, said Case.

"You were sitting there, and there were a few bangs, and then you were on the floor," said passenger Larry Habbor, 37, of New York City.

Carol Bourne, 30, also of New York City, said she helped pull a 4-year-old girl to safety. "She was screaming. I just grabbed her, and got out of there. I couldn't look for my bags."

Ten of the bodies were found in the top car, one in the car beneath and another outside the train, said Baltimore County police spokesman Jay Miller.

By Associated Press Students burn papers

PEKING — About 500 Peking University students, upset by official press accounts of their pro-democracy rallies, burned copies of Peking's main newspaper today and cheered as scraps of flaming paper rose into the air.

In another development, high-ranking officials belonging to the reform-minded circle around top leader Deng Xiaoping spoke out today for the first time against the student protests staged in at least 10 cities in the past month.

"Creating 'movements' does nothing to help the construction of a democratic government," Bao Tong, a senior official in the office of Prime Minister Zhao Ziyang, wrote in a commentary in the People's Daily newspaper.

Hidden Jew dies at 82

CAIRO, Egypt — A Jewish man who hid in his sister's basement for 22 years because he feared deportation has died at age 82, police said today.

Col. Mohammed Farid Hassanein, head of the police station in the Dokki section of Cairo, said Cesar Yakoub Doweik took refuge in his sister's basement in 1956, when then-President Gamal Abdel Nasser forced about 65,000 Jews to leave Egypt.

Doweik's sister, Akila, who was allowed to stay because she converted to Islam and married an Egyptian lawyer, kept him hidden in her villa basement until Egypt, Israel and the United States signed the 1978 Camp David agreement.

That pact led to a peace treaty the next year between the two former Middle Eastern enemies.

"They kept him hidden in the basement for 22 years until Camp David was signed," Hassanein said. "After that he moved to the first floor of the villa, but he still didn't go out a lot because he was an old man."

Cardinal visits Herzog

JERUSALEM — Cardinal John O'Connor said he had a very friendly meeting today with Foreign Minister Shimon Peres at his Jerusalem home but that their differences on the Palestinian question were not bridged.

The 75-minute visit followed a face-saving agreement reached Sunday between the Roman Catholic archbishop of New York and Israeli leaders to hold informal meetings at their homes rather than their offices.

Under the agreement, O'Connor met Sunday with President Chaim Herzog at the presidential residence. The meeting was held in the building's office wing, but the archbishop said it was an informal visit that did not violate a Vatican ban on meeting Israeli leaders in their Jerusalem offices.

The 66-year-old prelate wore a plain black priest's suit instead of his robes to both meetings in an apparent effort to stress the visits' informality.

Trains derail in Oregon, New York

A derailed freight train spilled nearly 8,000 gallons of a flammable solvent, forcing the evacuation of about 70 people in rural New York state, while a freight train that jumped the tracks in Oregon delayed holiday travelers for hours.

Work crews near Callicoon, N.Y., early today stopped the leak of acetaldehyde from one of the 27 Conrail freight cars and two locomotives that derailed about 6:15 p.m. Sunday near the Delaware River.

Fire Chief Frank Hahn said a Conrail crew was to arrive by 7 a.m. to pump the rest of the solvent from the 27,000-gallon tank car.

Homes a half-mile away were evacuated and all 13 patients at Community General Hospital in Callicoon were taken to another hospital, officials said.

Some residents began returning early today despite warnings from police and fire officials to stay away until the tank car could be removed.

The cause of the derailment was under investigation, Conrail spokesman Bob Libkind.

Holiday travelers en route to Seattle aboard an Amtrak passenger train from Chicago were delayed about two hours after 18 Union Pacific Railroad cars derailed in the Columbia Gorge near Hood River, Ore., about 9 a.m.

The Pioneer had to be rerouted onto Burlington Northern tracks. There were 311 passengers aboard when it left Portland, said Lynn Halsey, Amtrak station agent in Portland earlier.

Halsey said workers hoped to replace 1,600 feet of track and reopen the line by 2 p.m.

The cause of the derailment was believed to be a loose wheel on one car, said George Skorney, a United Pacific spokesman. There were 102 cars in the freight train.

Skorney said at least six Union Pacific trains and one Amtrak train would be rerouted because of the accident.

Opinion

Views of other Texas papers

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around the state.

Farewell said to Sesquicentennial

Durn. Just when everyone finally learned how to spell it, it was over. The Texas Sesquicentennial.

It was quite a bash, almost enough of one to take Texans' minds off the state's unprecedented problems.

The celebration was a success. It involved in one way or another, as participants or spectators, just about everyone in Texas and a few million short-term visitors.

The Sesquicentennial brought people together in myriad common purposes. It made them think beyond themselves and beyond today.

At times, it was even glorious. Congratulations, Texas. And happy birthday, one last time. Fort Worth Star-Telegram

Washington should stick to point

Administration officials haven't gotten down to the Nixon defense ("Think of future presidents") yet, but they have shown quite a bit of ability to come up with excuses for selling arms to Iran in exchange for hostages and diverting part of the proceeds to Nicaraguan contras.

The other day, Atty. Gen. Edwin Meese III was hinting that President Reagan OK'd the deal while under sedation. When that hit the streets, the denial machines went into action.

Now it is reported that Meese has told Congress that Lt. Col. Oliver North told him that the idea of diverting proceeds to the rebels came from a senior Israeli official. Wonderful. The Israelis made them do it. Couldn't the White House resist the idea?

It hardly matters whence the idea came — what matters is that the deed was done. What also matters is who knew what and when, and that is what investigators are at pains to find out. The administration should be at pains to facilitate the process rather than engage in diversionary tactics. Austin American-Statesman

NCAA rules found trivial, complex

As college sports come under fire for the way rules are often ignored, certainly the National Collegiate Athletic Association should come under fire for making those rules nearly incomprehensible.

It also deserves scorn for making some rules that are so nitpicky that they are virtually irrelevant to the quest for clean, honest sporting activities in a collegiate setting.

First, the NCAA manual. An Associated Press survey demonstrated that the NCAA rule book is so complex that even those most affected by it, the coaches, cannot understand it. The manual is over 400 pages long. Next, the rules themselves. The NCAA has straitjacketed many of its colleges from basic flexibility in handling players.

How absurd it is that the Alabama football team, which took a charter flight to attend the funeral of a teammate, was slapped by the NCAA for a rules violation.

The NCAA, in having rules too complex and too trivial, hurts its own case. In the process, it may encourage violation of the rules it tries to enforce. Waco Tribune-Herald

U.S. given credit for U.N. progress

The United States has finally seen a bright light at the end of a long tunnel of trouble at the United Nations.

For the first time in 40 years the General Assembly has decided to restructure the world body's administration in accordance with complaints the U.S. State Department has been expressing for a long time.

Washington's complaints have included the presence of a costly and cumbersome bureaucracy on the banks of the East River.

The General Assembly finally responded by giving the U.S. and other heavy contributors a more effective voice in the budget process.

Awakening U.N. leaders to their wasteful ways has not been easy, but it is a credit to the Administration leaders that they persisted until action was taken. Laredo Morning Times

Today in history

Today is Monday, Jan. 5, the fifth day of 1987. There are 360 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Jan. 5, 1896, the Austrian newspaper Wiener Presse published the first public account of a discovery by German physicist Wilhelm Roentgen — a form of radiation that became known as X-rays.

On this date:

In 1589, Catherine de Medici of France died at the age of 69.

In 1781, a British naval expedition led by Benedict Arnold burned Richmond, Va.

In 1895, French Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, convicted of treason, was publicly stripped of his rank. He was later declared innocent.

In 1925, Nellie Tayloe Ross became the first woman to become governor of a state as she assumed office in Wyoming to finish out her late husband's term.

In 1933, the 30th President of the United States, Calvin Coolidge, died at his home in Northampton, Mass., at the age of 60.

In 1943, educator and scientist George Washington Carver died in Tuskegee, Ala., at the age of 81.

In 1949, in his State of the Union address, President Harry S. Truman labeled his administration the Fair Deal.

In 1970, Joseph A. Yablonski, an unsuccessful candidate for the presidency of the United Mine Workers, was found murdered with his wife and daughter at their home in Clarksville, Pa.

In 1981, police in England arrested Peter Sutcliffe, a truck driver later convicted of the "Yorkshire Ripper" murders of 13 women.

Ten years ago: Senate Democrats named Hubert H. Humphrey to be deputy president pro tem of the Senate, one day after Humphrey withdrew from the race for Senate majority leader, won by Robert C. Byrd.

Five years ago: California Gov. Edmund G. Brown declared a state of emergency in six counties hit by floods and mudslides that claimed about two dozen lives.

One year ago: Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi charged the U.S. had mobilized 40 warships in the Mediterranean, and warned, "If America commits aggression against us, then we will commit aggression against it inside America itself."

Today's birthdays: Former Vice President Walter F. Mondale is 59. Actor Robert Duvall is 56. Choreographer Alvin Ailey is 56. Pittsburgh Steelers coach Chuck Noll is 55. King Juan Carlos of Spain is 49. Actress Diane Keaton is 41. Actress Pamela Sue Martin is 34.

"SAY, THAT'S JIMMY CARTER! HE LOOKS GOOD... IN FACT HE'S LOOKING BETTER ALL THE TIME"

Hussein has dodged bullets throughout lifetime as king

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — Jordan's diminutive monarch, King Hussein, has survived more than a half-century — despite the worst intentions of over a dozen assassins.

"I've always been a fatalist," the king explained in a recent interview with Dale Van Atta. "I've believed that, right or wrong, one has to do one's best at any given moment, and that when life is ended by the will of God, that's what happens."

Then, using "one" to replace the royal "we" in a masterpiece of understatement, Hussein added: "One has been through a lot."

Hussein's first narrow escape was bloody and traumatic — and could easily have convinced "one" that he led a charmed life. It occurred on July 20, 1951. Hussein, then 15, was standing beside his beloved grandfather, King Abdullah, at the Al Aksa Mosque in Jerusalem when an assassin opened fire at close range.

Abdullah was killed with a bullet to the head, and as the assassin and the royal bodyguards exchanged fire, Hussein, though unarmed, ran toward his grandfather's killer. The boy was struck by a bullet, but legend has it that the slug bounced off a medal on the uniform that Abdullah had insisted Hussein wear that day.

Was that really the way it happened? Van Atta asked.

"Yes," replied Hussein. "There was a medal, and (the bullet) actually glanced off it." Hussein began carrying a pistol the next day.

In 1957 Hussein drove alone to the Zerka army base to put down an officers' rebellion. He drove into the mutineers' midst and dared them to shoot. Some of them did — but said he could "feel the heat" of bullets whizzing past him — but most were too ashamed.

On another occasion, he succeeded with a daring twist — but with a daring twist. He demanded that all 700 rebellious officers approach him, salute and pledge their allegiance to him. The procession took 90 minutes.

There were more bizarre attempts on his life. For example: "I had sinus problems," the king recalled. "I still have them to this day. I used (nasal) drops. One day I came in and felt that I needed to use them."

Hussein had been warned by his intelligence chief that there would be an attempt on his life by someone on his personal staff. A taped conversation was played in which a would-be assassin boasted to a royal spy: "We've recruited somebody in his residence to finish him off and it won't be long now. If (the king) had only stuck to a proper routine, we would have got him days ago."

On the day his sinuses began throbbing, Hussein reached for the nose drops, but luckily examined the bottle. "It looked a little old so I poured it down the sink and it started to froth and bubble." The acid in the medicine bottle was so strong it ate away the chrome trim on the basin drain.

"I didn't use it, consequentially," Hussein added sardonically. Equally bizarre was the tragic case of the royal cats.

"I have always had cats around," the king said. "My grandfather, Abdullah, loved them. And one day I saw that the cat population (on the palace grounds) was getting a little smaller. I wondered about it. And it turned out that someone had been trying some poisons, unfortunately, on the cats."

An assistant cook soon confessed that he had been recruited by a cousin in Damascus and was to be paid a large sum if he poisoned Hussein. But he didn't know the proper dose, so he experimented on the palace cats. Seven were found dead on a single day, six the next. The king himself came upon three dead cats while strolling on the palace grounds.

Characteristically, the king turned an enemy into a friend by pardoning the would-be assassin and setting him free.

SBA SLAPPED DOWN: Charles Heatherly, acting head of the Small Business Administration, was admonished recently by the comptroller general because his agency prepared and distributed to the news media "suggested editorials" that supported the Reagan administration's position on elimination of the agency.

"The editorials, prepared by SBA for publication as the ostensible editorial position of the recipient newspapers, are misleading as to their origin and reasonably constitute 'propaganda' within the common understanding of that term," the comptroller general wrote. Federal agencies are forbidden to distribute "publicity and propaganda."

Billy Graham

Atheist says religion is superstition

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My mother is a very religious woman, but I'm a scientist and believe that religion is little more than superstition. She doesn't understand me, but don't you think she ought to respect my opinions and let me live the way I want to? — H.S.

DEAR H.S.: Some of the most intelligent people I've ever met — including some of our most distinguished scientists — have been committed believers. In talking with them about their commitment to Christ, they have pointed out to me that science has its limits, because it is limited to the study of the physical world. It therefore cannot deal with the spiritual area of life. They also have told me that their scientific investigations have confirmed their religious convictions, because they realize this intricate and marvelous universe could never have happened by chance. "The heavens declare the glory of God" (Psalm 19:1).

Don't confuse genuine faith in Christ, therefore, with ignorance or superstition. Yes, your mother's faith may be "simple" in your terms — but does that make it untrue? Not at all. A person may be an excellent cook and be able to produce mouth-watering meals from the kitchen — and yet know very little about the chemistry of food. And there are many people who have deep faith, and who demonstrate that faith in their lives every day, although they may never have had formal training in theology.

I challenge you to use the abilities God has given you to investigate Jesus Christ as He is found in the Gospels — openly and honestly. Don't let your pride get in the way, or your selfish desire to run your own life. Jesus promised, "Ask and it will be given you; seek and you will find" (Matthew 7:7). The greatest discovery you can make is the discovery that God loves you, and you can know Him personally by committing your life to Jesus Christ.

Billy Graham's religious column is distributed by Tribune Media Services.

Long-awaited year-end awards made

By DONALD KAUL

It is now too late to do your Christmas shopping early; it's too late to do it late for that matter, so forget about it. It is, instead, time to announce the eagerly awaited "Incredible Man of the Year Awards." Oh, you haven't been awaiting them eagerly? You don't even know what they are?

You needn't get huffy. They're as good as Time magazine's awards and, in some cases, better. What happens is that the Incredible Poll, an outrageously unreliable public opinion survey agency, calls up as many people as it can for $14 and asks them who they thought were the outstanding personalities of the year. It then makes projections based on the results and guarantees their accuracy within 68 percent.

The names of the winners then are sent to me by secret courier in envelopes whose contents are known only to three pollsters and Ivan Boesky. I then publish them. Here. Now. Ivan, the envelopes please:

For his ability to keep his good humor when all around him were losing theirs, for his unique management style that allows him to delegate authority without giving it a second thought, or a first thought either, for his loyalty to his staff without regard to race, creed, or ability, Ronald Reagan has been named the Incredible Man of the Year.

"He is truly amazing," said a candlewick tester from Salt Lake City. "He's forgotten more about running the country than he'll ever know and he's forgetting more every day. If he forgets three more things we might as well have Van-na White running the country."

"His handling of the Iran-contra controversy has been masterful," said a Nebraska Sanskrit scholar. "He has not only kept himself free of guilty knowledge, he has shown himself untainted by knowledge of any kind."

Asked what presidential qualities Mr. Reagan possessed, 68 percent responded with "a cute smile." Sixty-three percent said Mr. Reagan would go down in history. Two percent said he wouldn't. Thirty-five percent were watching reruns of "I Dream of Jeanie."

Here are the other awards given by the Incredible Poll:

The Difficult We Do Immediately Award — To Marine Lt. Col. Ollie North, White House aide who bypassed the President, Congress, the CIA, the State Department, the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Girl Scouts of America in giving clandestine aid to the contras in Nicaragua. Asked how he did it, he said he couldn't tell without damaging the Constitution.

Hip-Deep in the Doo-Doo and Sinking Fast Award — To Vice President George Bush, who lost his front-runner status in the 1988 presidential sweepstakes when the Iran-contra affair broke. He now is trying to convince voters that, while he is the president's right-hand man, he didn't know what the left hand was doing.

Sherlock Holmes Award for Excellence in Investigation — To William Webster, director of the FBI, which, after looking into the fact that there have been 40 burglaries at anti-contra organizations in this country during the past three years, concluded that they were unrelated.

Albert Speer Good Taste Award — To television producer David Wolper who put together our Statue of Liberty centennial celebration, complete with 200 Elvis Presley imitators.

The Impossible Takes a Little Longer Award — To General Motors Chairman Roger Smith who invested $40 billion of his company's money in improvements over the past few years, only to lose sales to Ford and Chrysler. When one of his board members, H. Ross Perot, criticized him for it, he bought him out with $750 million more of his company's money.

The Zsa Zsa Gabor Feminist Award — To White House Chief of Staff Donald Regan for saying that boycotting South Africa wasn't a good idea because American women weren't "prepared to give up all of their jewelry."

Chip off the Ol' Blockhead Award — To Ronald Reagan Jr., who made an American Express commercial asking "Do you know me?" then acted surprised when nobody did.

The Lucky Luciano What Mafia? Award — To New York Gov. Mario Cuomo who, in a heated campaign debate on organized crime, said there was no Mafia.

Where There's Smoke, Pour Kerosene On It Award — To White House aide Pat Buchanan for his vigorous defense of his friend, Oliver North. Buchanan argued that North probably hadn't done anything wrong, but if he had we should thank him for it.

Oxymoron of the Year — Justice William Rehnquist.

Those are the awards. Winners will be given symbols of their achievements, a four-sided triangle, at a banquet held at a Budget 8 motel, somewhere in the midwest, sometime this spring. If you can't make it, don't.

Language immersion

Children in United States learn in foreign tongue

By ARLENE LEVINSON
Associated Press Writer
HOLLISTON, Mass. (AP) — Dianne Nault was teaching her first-graders words with "m" sounds. On the blackboard she wrote: monstre, maman, ami and moulin.

One impish student asked the word for teacher. The class giggled and cried in unison, "Oui!"

So Mrs. Nault added "maitresse" to the list.

The 26 children in the class at Fred W. Miller Elementary School are in their second year of a voluntary program called language immersion, in which the students do all course work in a foreign tongue.

Culver City, Calif., became the first American school district to adopt immersion in 1971. By 1983 an estimated 5,000 elementary school students nationwide were immersed in Spanish, French or German.

Today that number is about 9,000 students in 23 school districts with more on the way, according to Nancy Rhodes, a researcher at the Center for Applied Linguistics in Washington.

"People are realizing the importance of a second language ... for national security, for international business. We have to know a language other than English," said Ms. Rhodes.

Supporters of the method see it as a more natural and effective way to learn language than conventional repetition and memorization. They cite studies showing that immersion improves children's performance in all their courses.

Holliston, a small district 30 miles southwest of Boston, began its immersion program in 1979. It now has 125 students in kindergarten through fourth grade. Fifty youngsters in sixth and seventh grades who have been through the program take some classes in French to keep up their fluency. A Spanish immersion program is offered to fifth-graders.

In kindergarten, the teacher speaks French while the children can reply and converse in English as they build a basic vocabulary.

In first and second grades, only science, gym, art and music are in English, for about 20 percent of the school day, while the rest is taught in French.

Third-graders begin formal study of English along with their regular lessons "en francais." By this time, they've already taught themselves English by what educators call "decoding" or using their French to solve the linguistic puzzles of English.

Bilingualism teaches children tolerance, said James Palladino, a Holliston elementary school principal. "They learn there is more than one way to do things."

Palladino is a font of stories about Holliston children going to Maine with their parents and translating for French-Canadians who lost their way, about kindergartners singing French songs in their sleep, and about the boy who announced to a baffled friend, "I'm cinq (five) today."

Among immersion's drawbacks is a lack of enough qualified elementary school teachers fluent in a second language. Also, the method is inappropriate for youngsters unable to master the basics of even their own language.

Among the advocates of immersion are the children themselves.

"You feel like you know something other people don't," said Terry Febo, 8, who says she helps her 17-year-old sister study for French tests.

"It's fun," said 7-year-old Jovan Conde, who says another language is useful for insulting prospective bullies without getting beaten up.

Teacher Dianne Nault works with students Julianna Evett, 6, (left) and David Fogg, 8, recently in a second-grade classroom at the Fred W. Miller Elementary School in Holliston, Mass. These students are two of 26 children in their second year of a volunteer program called language immersion, under which they do all their course work in a foreign tongue.

Father's kids want woman to be mistress, not wife

Cancer victims trust their teachers

DEAR ABBY: I am 52 years old and read your advice daily. I need help. I am in love with a 55-year-old man whose wife is an alcoholic. She's in a home for people who are brain-damaged from drinking, and will probably be there for the rest of her life.

My problem is that his grown children have threatened him with complete isolation if he divorces her to marry me. Last year he initiated divorce proceedings, and his children carried out those threats, so he dropped the divorce action. Now he expects me to accompany him to the homes of his children and socialize with them and his grandchildren.

His children want him to have a "girlfriend," but they don't want their mother upset, so she is not to know about me. Abby, I do not care to socialize with people who think that being a mistress is good enough for me. My friend is angry because I refuse to attend dinners and social events with his children. Money is a big factor in his children's actions. As things presently stand, everything will go to their mother, and then to them. He can replace me much easier than I can replace him because of the law of supply and demand. What can I do?

CONFUSED IN NEW YORK

DEAR CONFUSED: Not much. Your gentleman friend has already decided this his children's approval is more important than your desire for marriage. Now you must decide if the privilege of being his companion is worth the anger and resentment you are feeling.

You are right. The law of "supply and demand" does put you in a tough spot.

His children may appear selfish and controlling, but their mother is still alive — though institutionalized and ill — so don't be too harsh in your judgment of them. How many children would feel good about a father who would divorce an institutionalized mother to marry another woman?

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I disagree about this problem: We have a friend who we think has "I" trouble. She brags about herself constantly. She is absolutely shameless when it comes to praising herself. Examples: "I was by far the best-looking woman at the party." And, "Oh, she's a good player, but, of course, she's not as good a player as I am." "It was a good group, but I was by far the most intelligent one there."

I say this woman is suffering from an inferiority complex. My husband says she is suffering from a superiority complex. What is your opinion?

SICK OF BRAGGERS: Actually the "sufferers" are those who have to listen to her. Knowing nothing of her qualifications, it's clear she has a very high opinion of herself — a deserved or otherwise. But her apparent need to constantly build herself up would indicate that she needs constant reassurance of her worth — which is typical of one with an inferiority complex.

DEAR ABBY: Oh, those "dirty rats"! You know — the ones who get "mad as hornets" when they hear the expression "Killing two birds with one stone." If they insist on revamping the English language because they read hostile feelings into harmless expression, let's be fair. Birds are no more sacred than God's other creatures, so why not stop saying "silly goose," "blind as a bat," "eats like a pig," "stubborn as a mule," "sly as a fox," "mean as a snake," "I'm so hungry I could eat a horse," and all the other similar phrases I could think of in five minutes.

RICHARD ANDERSON, BURBANK, CALIF.

DEAR RICHARD: Those time-honored figures of speech have been around since Pike's Peak was a pimple, so here's one writer who is not about to "kill the goose that lays the golden eggs."

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — When children have cancer, the people who can best teach them about their illness and what to expect during treatment are their parents.

Joan Whittenberg of the University of Rochester Cancer Center says she has developed a comprehensive educational program to help parents explain the ins-and-outs of cancer and treatment to pediatric patients.

"By using parents as teachers, children learn about their disease from people they trust and who know their words," says Whittenberg. "Parents are especially effective in explaining radiation therapy to young patients in a way that is informative and non-threatening."

BIG SPRING TRAVEL TALK

by Mary Valli

KIDDING AROUND

Airline ticket discounts are generally the rule for children accompanied by an adult. Lap-sitting infants under age two travel at no cost. Children two through eleven years of age who sit in their own seats get twenty-five percent off normal coach fares. Advance-purchase fares and special kid fares may be even less expensive. Unaccompanied children pay adult fares. A fairly standard rule is that children under the age of five are not allowed to fly alone. Children age five through seven may fly alone on nonstop or direct flights. Those eight through twelve years of age may take connecting flights but must be escorted between gates by airline personnel. There may be a slight supplemental charge for this service.

The options, timetables, connections and other points of concern when traveling are complex. At BIG SPRING TRAVEL, 608 Scurry, we are the professionals with the experience and resources to find the most favorable options of all such considerations. For convenience, need and even cost savings, we invite you to come to BIG SPRING TRAVEL for all your travel plans. Tel. 263-0225. Open 8:30-5:30 Mon.-Fri.

— HINT —
Most airlines will only release an unaccompanied child to a person who has been designated by name in advance, and who can show identification.

Companies seek private reorganization

HOUSTON (AP) — Firms trying to avoid the stigma of bankruptcy are turning more to private parties to help arrange Chapter 11-style reorganizations outside the courts.

Financially troubled companies are finding they can complete a private reorganization faster, cheaper and with fewer hassles with the help of a professional workout person than through formal legal proceedings, says Bill Turney, a 10-year veteran of the workout business.

"Chapter 11 is not always the thing you want to start with when you have a business problem, nor is it the thing you always want to end with," Turney said. "If there is a way to do it outside the court, you can certainly do it more effectively for everybody."

Houston business bankruptcies almost doubled in 1986, according to a Dun & Bradstreet study. Filings increased 98 percent to 1,374 from 694 in 1985, a phenomenon that has seriously taxed the court system.

As a result, it can take up to two years to get a reorganization concluded through legal channels.

Jerry Lutz, manager of the 80-year-old Houston Association of Credit Management's business workout division, says a private workout can be accomplished in two to six months, and costs about one-tenth the expense of filing under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code.

The normal retainer in a bankruptcy case is $15,000 to $25,000, and Houston lawyers charge fees of $150 to $175 an hour.

A private reorganization proceeds in a similar fashion to a formal one, but without the preponderance of paperwork and accompanying filing fees, said Joel P. Kay, a partner with Sheinfeld, Maley & Kay, a law firm active in the workout area.

A drawback to an informal reorganization, however, is that if even one creditor fails to cooperate, it can void the whole plan, Kay said.

"In a formal reorganization, you don't need the approval of every creditor to get a plan of reorganization approved by the court," he said. "(But privately) if a little guy out-bucks the plan approved by the major creditors and files suit, it could potentially destroy the whole company."

Depending on the terms of the workout, the debtor may make periodic payments to unsecured creditors, or the debtor can agree to a compromise settlement if the creditor will accept less than the total amount of the claims immediately.

NASA begins burial of Challenger shuttle

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Nearly a year after the Challenger explosion that killed seven astronauts, NASA is burying the wreckage of the space shuttle.

Starting today, the wreckage is to be lowered by crane 90 feet underground into two abandoned Minuteman missile silos two miles down the beach from where the shuttle was launched Jan. 28.

A pair of 10,000-pound concrete caps will be placed over the silos, sealing nearly 125 tons of twisted metal in unmarked tombs. The burial is expected to take about two months.

Among the debris waiting to be hauled to the seaside site on flatbed trucks is Challenger's crew cabin, which survived the shuttle's breakup and tumbled nine miles before smashing into the Atlantic Ocean.

Giants smash 'Niners, Montana

Lopsided whipping puts New York on Super Bowl warpath

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — After watching the New York Giants play football the way San Francisco played it in the Super Bowl years of 1981 and 1984, the 49ers could do nothing except shake their heads.

"We just got shattered by a great team," Bill Walsh said Sunday after the Giants' 49-3 playoff rout, his worst loss since taking over as the 49ers' coach in 1979. "I think the Giants played a perfect game. They didn't make a mistake."

New York took a giant step toward its first Super Bowl appearance as Phil Simms threw four touchdown passes, Joe Morris ran for two more and the Giants' defense limited the 49ers to 184 yards total offense and sent quarterback Joe Montana to the hospital with a concussion.

All that separates the Giants from the Super Bowl are the Washington Redskins, who the Giants beat twice during the regular season. The two will meet here at 4 p.m. on Sunday, with the winner heading to Pasadena, Calif., for Super Bowl XXI.

The 49ers, with the exception of Montana, who spent the night hospitalized in New York City, simply headed west Sunday, to pack and go home.

The 49ers made enough mistakes for two teams, beginning on their fourth play from scrimmage when wide receiver Jerry Rice fumbled after breaking into the clear with what seemed to be a 50-yard touchdown pass from Montana. Kenny Hill of the Giants eventually recovered in the end zone for touchback, giving New York the ball at its 20.

Ten plays later, Simms hit Mark Bavaro on a 24-yard touchdown pass and the Giants had a 7-0 lead instead of Rice and the 49ers. Morris, who gained 159 yards on 24 carries, scored on a 45-yard run one play after Herb Welch picked off a Montana pass, making it 14-3. A blown 49ers' coverage on a fake field goal and a dropped interception by Ronnie Lott eventually led to a 15-yard touchdown pass from Simms to Bobby Johnson with 50 seconds left in the half.

Lawrence Taylor made it 28-3, intercepting a Montana pass 22 seconds later and returning it 34 yards for a touchdown.

Montana, who was eight of 15 for 98 yards, was hit by Giants nose tackle Jim Burt on the play, suffered a concussion and never returned to action, leaving backup Jeff Kemp to face the Giants.

"They were playing like wolves," Kemp said. "They had a fabulous day. We didn't start off well and we didn't get any better."

Neither did the score as Simms threw touchdown passes of 28 yards to Phil McConkey and 29 yards to Zeke Mowatt, and Morris capped the scoring with a 2-yard TD run, all in the third quarter.

"If they get somebody on a roll they will beat them just as badly as the Bears beat people last year and as badly as we beat people the year before," said Randy Cross, a three-time All Pro guard. "I've got all the faith in the world if they win the next one, they'll take Pasadena."

Fuller, a 49ers safety, said he has never seen the Giants play better. "Right now they are the best team," safety Jeff Fuller said. "I don't think the Redskins can beat them if they (the Giants) play with the same intensity as today."

Giants linebacker Harry Carson, who helped his team hold San Francisco to 29 yards rushing, said the club has a mission this year.

"We're cool, but we know it ain't over," he said. "It's good we won, but we still have some things to do and we have a ways to go. We played pretty good, but it's only one game."

It's one game in a series of good games for the Giants. They have now won 10 in a row and 15 of 17 this season. They are undefeated in nine games at home, the only team to do that this season.

"All I wanted to do was play next week," said Simms, who completed nine of 19 passes for 136 yards. "I knew sooner or later we would hit some passes and make some big plays."

The 49 points were the most ever scored by the Giants in a playoff game, two more than the team scored in defeating the Chicago Bears 47-7 in the 1956 NFL championship game.

The loss was the 49ers' worst since a 59-14 decision to Dallas in 1980, and second worst in club history, exceeded only by a 56-7 loss to the Los Angeles Rams in 1958.

It was also the most lopsided playoff game since the merger of the NFL and AFL in 1970.

Bears won't be two-timers

By JOE MOOSHLIL
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim McMahon stood on the sidelines, and, outrageous to the end, his arm was in a fur-covered sling as he watched the game behind dark sunglasses.

Above, the skies were ominously split over Soldier Field Saturday. Dark clouds crept over the north side of the field where Chicago lined up to take the opening kickoff.

On the south side of the field, high above the Washington Redskins, the skies were clear.

By the time the game was over, the skies were dark throughout for the Bears who had been knocked out of the Super Bowl derby.

Their hopes to become the first team to repeat as champions since Pittsburgh accomplished the feat in 1978-79 were dashed by the NFC wild-card Redskins, 27-13.

"I had a dream, it didn't come true," said Coach Mike Ditka, putting an end to the Bears' season.

In retrospect, the quest to repeat ended for the Bears on Sept. 7, the day they opened defense of their Super Bowl title. They walloped the Cleveland Browns 41-31 but McMahon suffered a shoulder injury that would turn out to haunt the Bears throughout the season.

Despite sporadic starts by McMahon, ailing shoulder and all, the Bears captured their first six games topped by a 20-7 victory over Houston.

That was when Ditka first warned that the team "was not playing well" and he chided the offensive line for lack of blocking.

Ditka proved prophetic.

The following week, with veteran Steve Fuller starting at quarterback, the Bears suffered a 23-7 loss at Minnesota, their first defeat of the season.

That was the same week the Bears had acquired the rights to Doug Flutie from the Los Angeles Rams, a move that was openly criticized by McMahon who asked, "Where's the team's loyalty to the players?"

In time it would become apparent why the Bears signed Flutie. There was the possibility that the oft-injured McMahon might not play again. Also, Ditka apparently lost all confidence in Fuller who was to get his last start of the season in a 20-17 Monday-night loss by the Los Angeles Rams.

Fuller was yanked in that game in favor of Mike Tomczak, whose starts depended on the condition of McMahon's shoulder.

The Bears continued to win under Tomczak, although McMahon returned for his final start in a 12-10 victory over Green Bay.

In that game the Packers' Charles Martin knocked McMahon out of the game with a very late hit and drew a two-game suspension.

More important was the fact McMahon was examined by Los Angeles orthopedic specialist Dr. Frank Jobe who said the star quarterback had to undergo surgery and was out for the season.

The Bears finished the football season with seven straight victories, four of which were by three points or less.

Tomczak remained the starter but with McMahon out, Ditka started working Flutie in gradually.

His first game was a relief role in a 48-14 romp over Tampa Bay. The following week Tomczak was injured early against Detroit and Flutie took over, completing 13 of 24 passes for 130 yards.

Ditka, critical of Tomczak through most of the season, decided to give the 5-foot-9 Flutie his first start in the final game of the season at Dallas.

The Bears won it 24-10 as Flutie passed for two touchdowns. Despite all their problems, the Bears finished the season at 14-2.

Ditka immediately announced Flutie would be his starting quarterback in the NFL playoffs.

Flutie completed 11 of 31 passes for 134 yards but threw two interceptions which led to a field goal and a touchdown.

"He didn't have his best day," said Ditka of Flutie. "But the kid will bounce back. We may have lost the battle but not the war."

Flutie was looking ahead to next season, contemplating a battle for the job with McMahon.

"There's no question Jim is No. 1 when he's healthy," Flutie said. "I know I have a long way to go. But I'm a competitor."

McMahon was in another corner of the dressing room, displaying no emotion but holding out his right arm with the fur-covered sling.

Someone reached out to feel the fur and McMahon smiled, saying: "You like that, huh?"

Broncos crush Patriot Super Bowl hopes

DENVER (AP) — The New England Patriots entered the playoffs hoping to make up for last year's rout in the Super Bowl. They left with still another loss to atone for.

One day after the Chicago Bears, who ripped the Patriots 46-10 in the 1986 NFL title game, were knocked out of this year's playoffs, New England suffered the same fate.

"It's not what we started out hoping for," said Stanley Morgan, who scored both Patriot touchdowns in Sunday's 22-17 loss to the Denver Broncos. "That's to go to the Super Bowl. It just didn't work out."

New England linebacker Andre Tippett said the idea that it is difficult for a team to go to the Super Bowl in consecutive years is overblown.

"We had an opportunity to go back and actually win the game," Tippett said.

But Patriots' quarterback Tony Eason felt that winning a conference title a second time is tougher than doing it the first time. "After you win it, you're not going to sneak up on anybody," he said.

The Broncos would be happy to be in that position.

Denver, which also lost its last Super Bowl appearance, a 27-10 setback to Dallas in (January) 1978, will meet the Browns next Sunday in Cleveland for the AFC title and a Super Bowl berth. Washington, which beat Chicago Saturday, meets the New York Giants for the NFC championship next Sunday.

"I am relieved and overjoyed to win this playoff game," Denver Coach Dan Reeves said. "We have a tough assignment in going to Cleveland. The Browns are an excellent team and have an excellent attack with (quarterback) Bernie Kosar."

After being routed 41-16 by Seattle in their regular-season finale, the Broncos bounced back Sunday against a team which had lost just one of its eight road games.

"We had to put the Seattle loss behind us," Denver linebacker Karl Mecklenburg said. "We know we're a good team. We had to have a lot of confidence."

"This is a big win," Broncos' quarterback John Elway said. "We've gotten over the hump and this adds confidence to everyone. This is the biggest win I've ever had and I hope it will get bigger next week."

It was a team victory for Denver. The Broncos' defense limited New England to 104 yards in the second half. For the game, Denver sacked Eason six times and held the Patriots to 271 yards and just 12 first downs.

On offense, Elway threw for 257 yards and a 48-yard touchdown to Vance Johnson. Sammy Winder ran for 102 yards to lead a 188-yard ground attack, Denver's second best of the season.

"We thought we could run the ball at them," Elway said. "The Patriots have great team speed. We had to mix it up with traps and outside plays to throw them off."

Elway sprained his left ankle late in the first half but played the entire second half.

"I had plenty of time" to pass, he said. "I did not have mobility in the second half, so we ran the ball a little more."

Trailing 20-17, New England had a chance to come back.

But on a fourth-and-1 play from their own 19-yard line, the Patriots decided to punt with 4:04 left in the Denver Bronco's running back Sammy Winder cuts past New England safety Fred Marion for a few of his 102 yards rushing in the Broncos playoff win over the Patriots.

game. "I was tempted to go for the first down, but there was too much time left on the clock," Berry said. "Four minutes is an eternity in an NFL game. I thought our defense could hold them."

The Patriots didn't get the ball back until just 1:41 remained and they were back on their 10. On the next play, right guard Ron Wooten missed a block on defensive end Rulon Jones, who sacked Eason for a safety. The Broncos recovered the inside kick on the free kick that followed, ending New England's hopes for a return to the Super Bowl this year.

Curry, Sloan leave jobs to take Alabama posts

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Bill Curry says he never thought he would leave Georgia Tech, but the "Alabama mystique" was just too strong to resist. Curry signed a multi-year contract Sunday to become the 21st football coach at the University of Alabama, where he follows legends such as Paul "Bear" Bryant and Wallace Wade.

Also Sunday, Steve Sloan left his coaching job at Duke to return to Alabama, his alma mater, as athletic director.

They replace Ray Perkins, who held both posts until he resigned last week to become head coach and vice president of operations of the NFL's Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Perkins led Alabama to a 10-3 record and a No. 9 ranking in his final season.

"This is the right thing to do and that's why I'm here," said Curry, who compiled a 31-43-4 record in seven seasons at Georgia Tech, his alma mater. "I would like to earn a spot in the Alabama family."

Curry said he is a friend of Perkins, but that "had nothing to do with me coming here."

Several prominent coaches had been mentioned as candidates for the Alabama position, including Florida State's Bobby Bowden and Louisville's Howard Schnellenberger.

But Alabama President Joab Thomas said Curry was "our first choice without any question."

Thomas said the search committee which he headed to find successors to Perkins considered three main criteria.

"First and foremost, we wanted people who had unquestioned integrity," Thomas said. "Second, we wanted people who would assist in the continuing efforts to improve academic records for our student athletes. And third, we wanted to win."

Thomas said he received a lot of calls from people asking that he get a coach who had ties to Alabama, either as a player or coach.

"I did not disregard the Alabama family," he said, "but I did what I thought was right."

Curry, 44, said that until he received the offer from Alabama, he never thought he would surrender the coaching job at Georgia Tech.

But, he said, after talking it over with his wife and children, he had an "intuitive compulsion that this is the right thing to do."

"I've always been fascinated by the Alabama mystique," Curry said.

"I want to thank the incredible Georgia Tech family that I thought I would never leave," he added. Curry said he would meet with his former players at Georgia Tech on Tuesday and with his new team on Wednesday.

Sloan said he believed that Bryant, who died shortly after he retired in 1982, "would be extremely pleased" with the selection of Curry as football coach.

Alabama's new head coach, Bill Curry, right, stands with new Athletic Director Steve Sloan after a news conference Sunday announcing their hiring.

Seton Hall dumps Hoyas in Big East battle

By The Associated Press
The Big East, traditionally one of the strongest conferences in college basketball, is already showing it may be one of the most balanced.

Villanova sent No. 10 St. John's to its first loss of the season, 62-54, on Sunday — one day after visiting Seton Hall trounced No. 8 Georgetown, 74-53.

"We think we're as good as anyone in the conference, so we don't look at this as an upset," Seton Hall Coach P.J. Carlesimo said after handing the Hoyas their first loss. "The score, though, was absurd."

Villanova rolled to a 34-19 lead at halftime and the visiting Redmen never got closer than five points the rest of the way.

Only two ranked teams played Sunday. In addition to the Villanova-St. John's game, No. 6 Indiana downed Ohio State 92-80.

Villanova Coach Rollie Massimino said the Wildcats wanted to concentrate on defense against St. John's, which had averaged 78 points per game in winning its first nine of the season. The Redmen attempted just 50 shots from the field in losing.

"Our goal was to hold them down inside. And we accomplished that," Massimino said.

"We played outstanding defense," Massimino said. "We've been giving up a lot of points inside but we didn't today. ... We'll get our shots, but defense is the key to how successful we will be."

Harold Jensen and Doug West scored 16 points each for Villanova, 9-3 overall. Willie Glass led St. John's with 19 points, but was one of three Redmen to foul out.

"It was a very physical game, and that's what happens when Villanova plays St. John's," Massimino said.

Villanova led 48-31 with 11:03 remaining in the game before St. John's went on a 14-2 tear to pull within five points with 4:11 left. The Wildcats still led by five with 1:30 left and then scored the next four points.

In Landover, Md., Seton Hall beat Georgetown for the first time since 1977, a span of 17 games. The defeat, in the Hoyas' conference opener after nine straight league victories, was the worst for Georgetown since a 21-point loss to Alabama in the 1982-83 season.

Mark Bryant led the Pirates with 24 points and 15 rebounds. Seton Hall, 9-1, led 67-41 late in the second half. Georgetown senior Reggie Williams, averaging 25 points per game, was held to seven and did not make a basket until 14:55 was left to play.

No. 1 Nev-Las Vegas 114, UC-Irvine 72

Armon Gilliam and Garry Graham each scored 20 points and Nevada-Las Vegas topped the 100-point mark for the fifth time in its last five games.

Freddie Banks added 19 points for the Runnin' Rebels, 12-0. UNLV led 64-40 at halftime and went on to avenge last season's loss to California in a Pacific Coast Athletic Conference game.

No. 2 Purdue 87, Michigan St. 72
Everette Stephens scored 22 points, and Purdue rallied from an early deficit to beat Michigan State. The Boilermakers trailed 21-11 with 12:18 left in the first half but scored 14 straight points to go ahead. Stephens had six points in the rally.

Purdue, 9-1, also got 21 points from Melvin McCants.

No. 3 Iowa 80, Northwestern 44
Iowa, off to its fastest start in history at 13-0, won its Big Ten opener by routing Northwestern.

Kevin Gamble, Brad Lohaus and B.J. Armstrong scored 11 points each for the Hawkeyes. Iowa led 37-15 at halftime after holding the Wildcats scoreless for 4:07.

No. 4 N. Carolina 79, La Salle 72
Jeff Lebo made two foul shots with 1:26 remaining to give North Carolina a 73-72 lead, and the Tar Heels held off La Salle. Lebo scored 13 of his 14 points in the second half for North Carolina, 11-1.

Kenny Smith scored 22 points as North Carolina won its ninth straight game.

No. 11 Kentucky 63, No. 5 Auburn 60
Guard Rex Chapman scored 21 of his 24 points in the second half and Kentucky held off Auburn in a Southeastern Conference game. Chapman made five three-point shots in the second half in helping the Wildcats to a 13-point lead with 3:23 to play.

The Tigers got within 62-60 on Frank Ford's three-point play with 46 seconds remaining. Auburn guard Johnny Lynn missed a three-point shot with five seconds left that would have put Auburn ahead.

No. 6 Indiana 92, Ohio State 80
Keith Smart scored 31 points and Steve Alford added 22 as Indiana won in Columbus, Ohio.

The Hoosiers, 10-1, led 56-39 early in the second half before Ohio State rallied to take a 75-74 lead with 4:08 left in the game. But Indiana's Ricky Calloway, who also finished with 22 points, made two free throws and an outside shot before Alford scored the Hoosiers' next 10 points.

No. 7 Syracuse 88, Connecticut 71
Sherman Douglas scored eight of his 20 points during a 16-2 streak midway through the second half as Syracuse put away Connecticut.

Center Rony Seikaly had 16 points for the Orangemen, 12-0.

No. 9 Navy 72, UNC-Wilmington 58
Guard Cliff Rees scored 26 points and Navy, despite the ineffective play of All-America center David Robinson, beat North Carolina-Wilmington in its Colonial Athletic Association opener.

Robinson, averaging 30 points, fouled out with 4:30 to play after scoring just 12 points. The 7-foot Robinson had 14 rebounds for Navy, 6-3.

No. 13 Oklahoma 68, McNeese St. 63

Oklahoma won its own Sooner Invitational as Darryl Kennedy scored 20 points against McNeese State.

The Sooners, 10-2, led 56-55 before a technical foul on McNeese State Coach Glenn Duhan helped Oklahoma score the next six points.

No. 14 Temple 81, Rhode Island 68
Nate Blackwell scored 31 and Temple beat Rhode Island in a fight-marred Atlantic 10 game. A bench-clearing brawl that lasted five minutes broke out midway in the second half, and some Rhode Island fans had to be kept away from the court.

No. 15 DePaul 80, Dayton 64
Kevin Edwards scored 24 points and Dallas Comegys 21 as unbeaten DePaul broke a five-year losing streak at Dayton.

The Blue Demons, 10-0, outscored the Flyers 7-2 in the final 2:12 of the first half for a 39-34 lead and then pulled away in the second half.

No. 16 Illinois 95, Michigan 84
Ken Norman scored 29 points and Glynn Blackwell 28 as Illinois beat Michigan in the Big Ten. The Illini, 9-2, scored 14 straight points early in the game.

No. 17 Pitt 76, Providence 67
Pittsburgh overcame a 12-point deficit and beat Providence as Charles Smith scored 22 points, including four free throws in the final minutes.

Pitt trailed 60-59 before running off nine straight points, the first four by Curtis Aiken. The Panthers, 9-2, were playing their fourth game of the week after winning the Rainbow Classic in Honolulu.

No. 18 Georgia Tech 65, Wake Forest 59 (OT)

Duane Ferrell scored five points in overtime and Craig Neal finished with 18 as Georgia Tech, 7-3, sent Wake Forest to its 18th straight Atlantic Coast Conference defeat.

Wake Forest's Tyrone Bogues made a three-point shot with 58 seconds left in regulation to make it 56-56 before teammate Mark Cline missed a jump shot with three seconds remaining.

No. 19 N.C. State 69, Maryland 47
Vinnie Del Negro and Bennie Bolton each scored 12 points as North Carolina State, 9-2, beat Maryland in its ACC opener. The Wolfpack trailed by two points at halftime before using their height advantage to take control early in the second half.

No. 20 Duke 70, Virginia 63
Kevin Strickland scored 18 points and keyed an 11-0 burst that rallied Duke over Virginia in an ACC game.

The Blue Devils, 9-1, trailed 48-43 in the second half when Strickland's three-point shot started their comeback. The Cavaliers have lost eight straight to Duke.

Krum guard has it in his genes

KRUM, Texas (AP) — Since his father and three uncles played on various Krum High School state tournament teams in the past, Bobcat guard Randy Hall has always had certain expectations to live up to when he stepped on the basketball court.

But Krum Coach Troy Hamm said Hall has handled his situation well during his four years as a starter. "He's done an exceptional job of handling the pressure put on him because of the Hall tradition in Krum," Hamm said of the 5-foot-11 senior. "He's learned he's just got to be himself and not try to be any other of the Halls."

Krum is about 10 miles northwest of Denton.

Randy's father, Bill Hall, played on Krum's state tournament team in 1965, while his uncle Jack played on the 1967 team and his uncle Kent played on the 1976 and 1977 teams. Kent Hall is now the girls' basketball coach at Lake Dallas.

But the uncle that is perhaps most famous is Chuck Hall, who now is Hamm's assistant. He started on four state tournament teams from 1976 through 1979, one of which won the state championship. Later, he won small-college All-America honors at Midwestern State University in Wichita Falls.

"Chuck doesn't show a bit of favoritism. He's as hard or harder on me than anybody. Maybe it's because he wants me to be as good as him. But I'm not trying to be as good as him. I can't think of anybody that can right now," Randy said.

"But it's been fun because we're the seniors now, plus him being the assistant coach."

Randy said both his father and Hamm have also been important influences.

"If it wasn't for my dad, I'd probably still be doing some things I did when I was a freshman and sophomore. There have been a lot of times I've disagreed with him, but then I'd start to think about it and I'd try to work to improve that point."

Hamm gave him confidence by starting him when he was a freshman, he said.

"Plus, his just being a friend means I can be a little more relaxed around him. There's not as much pressure."

By averaging 19.8 points, five assists and three rebounds per game during his first three years in high school, Randy hasn't done a bad job of upholding the family tradition. The only thing missing has been a Krum team at the state tournament — an oversight the youngest Hall hopes to rectify this season.

Since Krum moved up from Class 1A to 2A this season, it may be harder for the Bobcats to realize their ambitions. Krum could still have to contend with Archer City, the school the Bobcats lost to, 74-67, last March in the regional championship.

"It was rough for a few days (after the loss)," Hall said. "We knew we played good and they played better. They got some breaks and we didn't. It would have been worse if we hadn't played good, but I wouldn't want to go through (losing) again."

In helping the Bobcats to a 33-3 record last year, Hall averaged 21 points, 7 rebounds and 5 assists per game. Krum is off to a good start this season despite the loss of 6-foot-6 postman David Dry to graduation. Hall was averaging 22.8 points, 6 rebounds and 5 assists through 13 games, with the Bobcats going 10-3.

"He's a tremendous shooter, but he's become more of a complete player this season," Hamm said.

"He's doing a lot more for us than just scoring. He's doing a good job defensively and helping us on the boards. This year, he's had to take a bigger load on his shoulders."

Several colleges have expressed interest, but Hall said he doesn't know if he will try to play college basketball.

One reason for the indecision is his skill in baseball. He was Krum's ace pitcher last year as the Bobcats reached the regional finals.

"In basketball, I prefer basketball. In baseball season, baseball. But I'm leaning a bit toward baseball, mainly because of my height. But that shouldn't make that much of a difference."

Magic double triples the Jazz

By The Associated Press

Everyone knows Earvin "Magic" Johnson is a great passer, a fine rebounder and a pretty good scorer. But this season, Johnson is also a super shooter.

"It appears to me that he's shooting so much better than I've seen in the past and that makes him so much more dangerous," Utah Coach Frank Layden said Sunday night after Johnson paced the Los Angeles Lakers past the Jazz 121-113.

The Lakers, leading the NBA with a 25-6 record, won their seventh straight game as Johnson had 26 points, 11 assists and 10 rebounds.

Johnson is averaging 23.4 points per game and leading the Lakers in scoring for the first time in his seven seasons. Johnson, 12th in the NBA in scoring, has averaged 18.3 points in his career.

"Magic is Magic," Utah's Kelly Tripucka said. "He doesn't have too many slumps and that's the mark of a great professional. He does more this year, but he's capable of it: rebounding, assists, shooting."

In other games, Phoenix beat Golden State 104-101 and Portland defeated Sacramento 128-111.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 21 points and James Worthy 19 as the Lakers beat Utah for the eighth straight time dating back to the 1984-85 season.

Karl Malone, who scored 35 points for visiting Utah, capped a 10-0 streak that pulled the Jazz within 99-89 with 8:07 left in the game. But Johnson responded with eight points and Michael Cooper had five during a 13-4 burst as Los Angeles took command.

The Jazz lost for the third straight time following a 12-game winning streak.

Suns 104, Warriors 101

Rookie guard Jeff Hornacek scored four points in the final 33 seconds, helping Phoenix end a five-game losing streak.

Hornacek made a jump shot with 33 seconds remaining to give the Suns a 102-99 lead and, after Eric Floyd had a layup for the host Warriors, Hornacek was fouled grabbing a rebound and sank two free throws with five seconds left.

Alvan Adams scored 13 of his 25 points in the fourth quarter, sparking a 21-5 streak that rallied Phoenix from an 86-74 deficit with 7:57 remaining.

Joe Barry Carroll scored 23 points for Golden State.

Trail Blazers 128, Kings 111

Clyde Drexler scored 26 points, including 16 in the third quarter, as Portland won for the 14th time in its last 18 games.

Steve Johnson added 20 points and Jim Paxson scored 19 for the host Trail Blazers. Derek Smith scored 25 points for Sacramento.

Maryland chancellor wants freshman ineligible

BALTIMORE (AP) — University of Maryland Chancellor John B. Slaughter says he will ask the NCAA to make college freshmen ineligible to participate in some sports when the association meets this week in San Diego.

Slaughter, head of the Presidents Commission of the NCAA, told the Baltimore Sun he would present the body with a resolution on eliminating freshman eligibility to see where it might gain support.

"We are using this as a means of testing the waters, to see what extent there is going to be receptivity," Slaughter said. "If we know half the people are in favor of it, that is different from knowing 80 percent are in favor of it. I think it will give us some idea where we need to focus."

Slaughter told the newspaper he doesn't foresee legislation to ban freshmen from some varsity sports until the January 1988 convention, at the earliest. Universities must take a closer look at whether eliminating freshman participation might affect costs, he said.

The resolution, item 54 in the official convention handbook, is sponsored by Maryland, UCLA, the University of Miami, the University of Minnesota, the University of North Carolina and North Carolina State.

Slaughter said he was firm on some areas.

"Freshman athletes in the revenue sports should not participate. They ought to have a limited practice regimen, perhaps 15 hours a week or so. I don't think freshmen should begin practice before school begins in the fall. I don't think there ought to be freshman teams.

Slaughter has long backed freshman ineligibility. However, the death of Maryland All-American Len Bias last June, and subsequent revelations about his failing academic performance, have helped rally support for Slaughter's reforms.

Booster Club meeting for tonight

The Big Spring High School Sports Booster Club will meet at 7 p.m. tonight at the high school cafeteria. Plans for the Fall Sports Banquet will be discussed.

Montana to be released today

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Montana, the San Francisco 49ers quarterback who suffered a concussion in Sunday's loss to the New York Giants, was to be discharged from a hospital today, a spokesman said.

"Joe Montana's still hospitalized and routine tests are being done this morning," said Richard Kearns, a spokesman for the Hospital for Special Surgery-Cornell Medical Center, where Montana spent the night. "He will be discharged today."

Swede caps first World Cup win

MARIBOR, Yugoslavia (AP) — Sweden's unheralded Camilla Nilsson won her first World Cup event, posting a stunning victory of one minute, 23.59 seconds Sunday in the slalom by coming from the unfavorable 24th starting position and sweeping past two Swiss favorites.

Switzerland's Vreni Schneider and Corinne Schmidhausen, second and third in 1:23.84 and 1:24.37, respectively, also expressed delight with their showing on an icy 49-gate course.

Masur tiebreaks Scanlon for title

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — Wally Masur of Australia held off American Bill Scanlon with a second-set tiebreaker Sunday to win the championship of the South Australian Men's Open tennis tournament 6-4, 7-6 (7-2).

Scanlon, from Dallas, did get one title Sunday, combining with Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia to beat Australians Peter Doohan and Laurie Warder in the doubles 6-7, 6-3, 6-4.

Kookaburra III wins with help

FREMANTLE, Australia (AP) — Kookaburra III clinched a berth in the America's Cup defender trials Sunday with a neighborly assist from stablemate Kookaburra II.

Kookaburra III won the start over her elder sister by 15 seconds, way above the norm for most starts in this Cup elimination series.

The two companion yachts from the same syndicate raced fairly closely for half the race, but Kookaburra III's Iain Murray sailed the last leg remarkably faster — 5 minutes, 33 seconds. Kookaburra III won the race on the Indian Ocean by 8:57, a huge margin by current Cup standards where two minutes is considered a thrashing.

Irwin cruises at Fiddlesticks

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Hale Irwin's three birdies on the back nine helped him post a final round 2-under par 70 for a 9-under 207 total and a five-shot victory Saturday in the $250,000 FIIA Invitational at Fiddlesticks Country Club.

Scott Verplank and Calvin Peete were tied at second with a total of 212.

Bosworth finished as a Sooner

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — University of Oklahoma football coach Barry Switzer announced today he has asked linebacker Brian Bosworth to forgo his senior season of eligibility with the Sooners.

Bosworth, who led the 11-1 Sooners in tackles this season, did not play in the Sooners' Orange Bowl victory over Arkansas after being banned from the game by the National Collegiate Athletic Association because steroids were found in his system.

Montana hit frightening for Burt

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The play was frightening, exactly the kind of moment Joe Montana-watchers have feared ever since the day the San Francisco 49ers quarterback returned from back surgery on Nov. 9.

He was flat on his face, motionless, after he had absorbed his second devastating hit from a New York Giants defense that dominated the 49ers in Sunday's 49-3 playoff victory.

"It was eerie," said Giant nose tackle Jim Burt, who leveled Montana. "I was a little concerned for him."

Understand that Burt, with his own history of back problems, has a special feeling for those who share that painful affliction. But he is a nose tackle and the job description includes arriving at the quarterback by the most direct route and in ill humor. That is what he did with Montana in the final minute of the first half.

"I got around the center," Burt said, reconstructing the play. "Joe was back on his heels. He couldn't scramble because I was too close to him. He tried to dump it off because he didn't want to take the sack. I hit him a good lick."

The ball hung out to New York linebacker Lawrence Taylor, the NFL's most valuable player, who took the interception into the end zone for a touchdown and a 28-3 halftime lead. It was very much like an earlier pass that New York's Herb Welch picked off as Montana was being leveled by linebacker Carl Banks.

He got back up the first time. "I figured he would," Banks said. "He's tough. He's used to taking hits."

The second time, though, Montana stayed down for an agonizingly long time. Burt, whose attention had been diverted by the interception as he tried to block for Taylor, returned after the play to the quarterback's side.

"I was concerned because he was hurt and I did not want to hurt him," Burt said. "He was laying there, not moving. The referee told me to get back. I didn't want to see that, someone lying there, motionless. That's scary."

Scariest, probably, because it was Montana, the surgically repaired quarterback. Every time he gets hit, the logical thought is, "Uh, oh, there goes his back."

San Francisco 49ers' quarterback Joe Montana is helped off the field Sunday after suffering a concussion during the second quarter of the 49ers' loss to the Giants.

This time, all that went was his head. The diagnosis was a concussion, serious enough for Montana to spend the night in the Hospital for Special Surgery — Cornell Medical Center, at the direction of Dr. Peter Tsairis, a neurosurgeon.

"There was concern because he was falling off to sleep, had double vision and headaches that wouldn't go away," Tsairis said. "He is stable and neurologically intact with a normal brain scan."

Montana was expected to be released later today.

And his back? "He is not complaining, so there is no need to examine it," the doctor said.

This time, Montana is in a high-risk business. Earlier this year, he underwent the kind of delicate operation that grounds people for long periods. The recommended recuperation does not include playing football.

Montana, however, recuperated not only by playing, but by playing brilliantly, so well, in fact, that the 49ers won their division and went into the playoffs as a distinct Super Bowl threat.

But Montana was at permanent risk. Quarterbacks are in the business of getting hit. Football is not a contact sport. It is a collision sport. Creaky backs need not apply. The Giants deck quarterbacks all the time. Montana was their fourth in a row this season after they broke Joe Theismann's leg, ending his career last season.

"I was coming full speed," Burt said. "I got my helmet up under his chin. I came in square up. He showed a lot of guts. He knew he was going to take a hit. I've hit him that hard before and he always got right up."

This time, however, he did not. "I'm not here to hurt people," Burt said. "A thing like that puts a damper on this for me."

It was not, of course, exactly wonderful for Montana, either.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JANUARY 6, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Make sure that you are alert and wide awake to the opportunities around you. It's not time to present them for approval to those high in the office.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A fine day for getting in touch with good friends and stating your aims. Personal happiness is important now.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Sit in the privacy of your study and make plans for the future with only your trusted advisers.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Contact persons with experience and find out how to make your personal life more rewarding and satisfying.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Anything of a political nature should be handled in a more up-to-date fashion. Be cautious.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Be wide awake to new changes that can prove profitable to you. Get your work organized more intelligently.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If you use more modern methods, your daily routines will be easier to handle. Be happy with your mate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) An outside partner can give you good suggestions that should be followed to your great advantage.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Add a worthwhile touch to whatever you are doing and this work becomes more valuable.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get your talents working more efficiently and make a fine impression on another.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Give more attention to your home duties and please your family. Save personal wishes for later.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study your correspondence from a different angle and get better results with it.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make new arrangements where finances are concerned. Don't permit an old-time friend to monopolize your time.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be eager for knowledge, especially that of a modern nature, and will get into all kinds of activities since there is an open mind here. There are many talents here, and a college education is wise to attain since there can be much success.
