Policemen scotch bars

DALLAS (AP) — Passengers in luxury limousines won't be able to order one for the road following a police crackdown on backseat bars.

Drivers from four agencies were arrested Thursday night after Dallas police investigators posed as clients and asked for alcoholic drinks.

The investigation was prompted when a man from one of the services asked the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission for a license to serve alcohol in his car, said Lt. E.W

"He said, Everyone else is doing it," Smith said. "We want everybody else to cut it out," he said. "It's unfair for somebody to go out here and violate the law, and have an unfair advantage over someone that's abiding by the law.

Smith said state law prohibits the car agencies from serving the beverages

The drivers arrested were all released early Friday after posting $200 bond. They were charged with transporting illicit alcoholic beverages without a license, a Class B misdemeanor.

'The only legal way they can do it is if the person brings their own alcohol or they stop somewhere and let them go out and buy it," Smith said. Several of the Ilmousine services listed in the Dallas Yellow Pages advertise bar services among their amenities

Big expectations for Association

Projecting a 200 to 300 percent increase in "craziness," the local American Heart Association has big expectations for its benefit dinner. This year's AHA Celebrity Waiter benefit dinner will be "like last year, but multiply the craziness by two or three," according to Bob Coltrane, president of the Howard County Association chapter.

Approximately 50 Big Spring personalities will participate as waiters, selling tickets for the benefit and recruiting diners to sit at the tables on which they will wait, Coltrane said.

He expects 500 diners to attend the event that begins at 7 p.m. Jan. 31 at Highland Mall. Tickets are $20 a person and can be purchased from any waiter — but not at the Last year's Celebrity Waiter benefit, which was the first, attracted 385 people, Coltrane said. The fee was reduced this year from the $25 charged last year.

The fee for the dinner, plus all tips the waiters collect, will benefit the American Heart Association's efforts to fund research and provide educational materials, cardiopulmonary resucitation classes and related activities, Coltrane said.

In addition to a "heart healthy" dinner of boneless chicken breast, vegetables, salad and coffee or tea, the event will have an open bar and dancing, he said. Waiters will provide dessert for the diners at their tables.

However, the "tables" need not be actual furniture, he said. Last year, celebrity waiters Gary Don Carey and Tony Geanopulos' "table" was an oriental rug on which diners sat, Arabian-style, complete with throw pillows, belly dancers and Middle

'Tough choices' oft-heard

By MICHAEL HOLMES Associated Press Writer AUSTIN - Tough choices. It's this year's most-used phrase in the halls of the Texas Capitol.

Legislators say it. The former governor said it. The new governor said it. The Speaker of the House

The reason everyone seems to be talking about tough choices is simple. No money.

In what seems like 5.8 billion headlines, Texans have been told their state government faces a debt of $5.8 billion over the next 21/2

Grasping the problem is easy. Eliminating the problem isn't.

'We will be required to ask fundamental questions about the very purpose of state government ... about how we pay for that government. We may find that fundamental changes are required, changes that will break with traditions whose roots lie deep in the Republic," said House Speaker Gib

City container laws exceeding authority

Staff and wire reports

ARLINGTON (AP) - A city considering prohibiting drinking behind the wheel probably will drop the idea, now that the Texas attorney general says such ordinances exceed cities' authority, a state representative

And cities who already have those ordinances may have to re-examine them, officials say. Big Spring has no such ordinance, according to City Manager Mack Wofford. Wofford said Big Spring's ordinance "basically tracks the state

State Rep. Al Luna of Houston requested the attorney general's opinion on ordinances in Arlington and Corpus Christi that make it illegal to take a drink while driving, although possesson of open containers is legal. State law does not prohibit drinking and driving, unless the driver is legally intoxicated. Luna said the Houston City Council, which was considering adopting a similar ordinance, probably will not do so now. Houston officials had asked Luna to study the matter.

The attorney general's office says it isn't sure how many cities have similar ordinances, but that those that do are infringing on state authority.

The reason Big Spring's code follows state practice, he said, is that it "puts you on very good footing as far as enforcement He explained that the state's rule is more likely to be upheld in court if challenged, because it's based on past court

According to an opinion issued Jan. 16, the state's alcoholic beverage code reserves for the state the exclusive right to regulate the manufacture, sale, transport and possession of alcohol in Texas Because a police officer must actually see the driver take a drink before issuing a citation, the laws are difficult to enforce, officials in Corpus Christi and Arlington said.

In Arlington, only 135 such citations were issued in 1986. mostly to teen-agers caught drinking along a popular cruising strip, said police spokesman Dee Anderson give Gov. Bill Clements the appropriation authority he wants to use to find emergency money for the state's troubled prisons, according to Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Delegation of authority in question

'I can't conceive of the Legislature delegating authority while they're in session. I spoke to Gov. Clements about that several weeks ago. He apparently did not understand," Hobby said Friday.

Clements said late Thursday that lawmakers probably would grant him what is known as 'budget execution authority' to shift $82 million in state funds to the Texas Department of Corrections.

The governor said the money is needed to show the state's "good faith" effort to carry out court-ordered reforms in the prisons.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas lawmakers won't Tyler has said he would fine the state $800,000 a day if the state does not comply with his orders by April 1.

Hobby said legislative authority over appropriations extends back to the 13th century.

'It goes back to the Magna Carta. The Magna Carta said, 'King, you have to have a parliament, which is going to appropriate money,' Hobby said.

Even if lawmakers approved a tax bill that went into effect immediately, it would not generate enough money in time to meet the prison needs, according to the lieutenant

"Gov. Clements campaigned on no new taxes and lock 'em up and throw the keys away. He vetoed a prison unit in 1979, and now he's got to face up to that problem," said Hobby, a

"It's incumbent on him - not upon me - to say how much he is going to take out of education, highways, whatever, and he has not done that," he said.

Clements, a Republican, has said he vetoed appropriations for a prison in 1979 because the Department of Corrections was not in a position to use the money.

The governor's staff has not yet searched the state budget to find money for prisons, according to Rider Scott, Clements' general counsel and prison expert.

"It would be premature (to look for the money) until the Legislature provides us the avenue for transfering the funds," Scott said. Hobby said the prison system needs an additional $1 billion for construction. In addition to any emergency funds, Clements wants prison expenditures to increase by about $500 million during the next two fiscal years.

"If it's persuasive, I'll advise the City Council to drop the ordinance," he said.

Grand Prairie authorities said their ordinance has been unchallenged since it went on the books in 1964, said assistant City Attorney Tom Allensworth.

"(The opinion) is supposed to carry great weight, but it's not unheard of for a higher court to reject an attorney general's opinion," Allensworth said.

"A lot of cities do have ordinances like this, and if someone is arrested for violating one of them, the opinion would certainly help them contest it." said assistant attorney general Jennifer Riggs, who drafted the opinion at Luna's request.

The opinion isn't binding, but it will be persuasive," she added. "I understand what these cities are trying to do, but if they're really concerned about this, they need to get together and launch a lobbying effort to get the state law changed."

Arlington City Attorney Jay Doegey said, "At this point, we respectfully disagree with the (attorney general's) opinion," Doegey said.

Reagan offers plan

WASHINGTON-The Reagan administration, embroiled in trade disputes in both hemispheres and confronted with a record $170 billion-plus trade deficit, is seeking to blunt protectionist pressure in Congress with a new package of "competitiveness"

The proposals, to be highlighted by President Reagan in his State of the Union Address on Tuesday, comprise a grab bag of measures designed to help U.S. businesses compete overseas while strengthening some U.S. trade laws, said adminstration officials.

The officials, who spoke only on the condition of anonymity, said the administration's package would include, among other items,:

 A partial relaxing of export controls that now restrict shipment of thousands of U.S. products to Eastern bloc nations, with an eye toward lifting bans on those products that are not considered to have strategic or military applications.

• A proposed easing of anti-trust laws to enable U.S. firms to engage in more joint ven-

Chief suspended

WASHINGTON-The Central IntelligenceAgency has suspended its station chief in Costa Rica after learning that he failed to fully disclose his participation in a secret network flying military supplies to Nicaraguan Contra rebels, U.S. intelligence sources said

The suspension of the station chief, who used the pseudonym Tomas Castillo, follows his recall earlier this month and two internal CIA investigations that cleared him of illegal

The sources, insisting on anonymity, said Castillo was suspended within the past few days when CIA officials were notified, apparently by the FBI, that documents belonging to fired White House aide Oliver L. North showed Castillo more deeply involved in the aid resupply network than he had admitted.

Racists demonstrate

CUMMING, Ga. - Ku Klux Klansmen in robes, teen-agers in blue jeans and businessmen in ties jammed the streets of downtown Cumming on Saturday, waving Confederate and U.S. flags and shouting "Go back home" at civil rights demonstrators.

"The niggers going. The white people staying," said one person in the crowd as the activists returned to their buses and cars after a march and rally in front of the Forsyth County

The counterdemonstrators pressed against a wall of 1,700 National Guardsmen who lined the 11/4-mile route of the "anti-intimidation" march from a shopping center to the courthouse.

Standing among the more than 1,000 counterdemonstrators was former Gov. Lester Maddox, a one-time segregationist.

3 Americans, Indian kidnapped

By RODEINA KENAAN Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Four kidnappers disguised as police and carrying rifles seized three American teachers and an Indian professor at a west Beirut college Saturday and then fled with their hostages in a jeep, police reported.

The kidnappers duped the foreign teachers into assembling in a Beirut University College office by claiming to have been assigned to protect them, police and school sources said.

The abductions came as Anglican Church envoy Terry Waite was reported to have concluded five days of secret negotiations with Shiite Moslem captors of two Americans held captive since

The latest kidnap victims were the only foreign male professors who remained at Beirut University College, a private, American-founded college, according to college officials.

Both Beirut University Collage and the American University of Beirut still have about a dozen American women working for them at their campuses in Moslem west Beirut, according to the Police said Saturday's victims probably were the last American men who remained in west Beirut following an exodus of foreigners who feared they could become kidnap victims. Some went to east Beirut, which is predominantly U.S. Ambassador John Kelly held crisis talks with senior aides at the embassy in east Beirut's Christian suburb of Aukar to discuss the latest kidnappings. Embassy spokesmen declined to comment.

Twenty-five foreigners are reported missing and believed kidnapped in Beirut, including 10 seized since Waite arrived in Beirut on

Police and university officials, all speaking on condition of anonymity, identified the Americans abducted Saturday as Alann Steen, 48, a journalism professor; Jesse Turner, assistant instructor of mathematics and computer sciences, and Robert Polhill, assistant professor of business studies.

The Indian was identified as Mithileshwar Singh, chairman of the business studies division. The Green card, which makes him a and shouted, 'Don't move.'

Cameramen film the pictures of four professors, three Americans and an Indian, from the directory of the Beirut University Saturday a few hours after the four were snatched by gunmen disguised as legal U.S. resident alien.

Beirut University College, which has 3,000 Middle Eastern and African students, issued an appeal to the captors and said Polhill and Singh were diabetic and need medication.

Four men wearing olive-green police uniforms entered the campus at 7 p.m. in a police patrol jeep and said they were assigned to provide protection for all foreign teachers, police said.

They asked that all foreign staff members assemble at the office of the campus services supervisor, Raja Nahhas, saying "We need to meet with them.

A student who was at the office said the assailants "acting perfectly as Squad 16 policemen, were armed with M-16 and AK-47 assault

"The foreign professors along with their wives came to Nahhas' office. It was then that one gunman college said he had an American pointed an AK-47 to Nahhas' head

"Another aimed his M-16 at the foreigners and said, 'All men, come with us.' The four walked out without resistence," the student said. He spoke on condition of anonymity for security reasons.

Nahhas said the kidnappers handcuffed the teachers.

"As Professor Steen walked away, he looked back and told his wife, Virginia Rose, 'Don't worry darling, it's only a demonstration. the student said.

The four hostages were taken about 50 yards to the jeep, "where the kidnappers bundled them in and sped off," according to the

A Lebanese guard at a school gate said he thought the gunmen were regular police when they entered the school, "I was astonished to see them about 10 minutes later racing out in the jeep with the professors. They were pointing guns to the professors' heads. One of them yelled at me, 'If you talk we shall finish you!'

Brother is suspect

FRANKFURT, West Germany - Government officials suspect the brother of a Lebanese man who is jailed in West Germany ordered the kidnappings of two West Germans in Beirut, a top government source said

The jailed suspect, Mohammed Ali Hamadi, is wanted by U.S. officials on murder and air piracy charges in the 1985 TWA hijacking in which a U.S. Navy diver was killed in Beirut.

Chief government spokesman Friedhelm Ost, meanwhile, reported no progress in efforts through unidentified "middlemen" to secure the release of the hostages — businessman Rudolf Cordes and engineer Alfred Schmidt.

'We have no new knowledge in this case,' Ost told The Associated Press. A special government crisis command has been working around the clock on the case.

Quake hits China

HONG KONG — A strong earthquake shook the northwestern Chinese province of Xinjiang Saturday, the Hong Kong Royal Observatory reported Sunday. It said it had received no reports of casualties or damage.

The observatory said the quake, measuring 6 on the open-ended Richter scale, was recorded at 4:16 p.m. and that its epicenter was near Wushi in the northwestern sector of Xinjiang Xinjiang province borders the Soviet Union to the north and Pakistan to the west. Wushi is about 2,910 miles northwest of Hong Kong.

In July 1976, an earthquake of 8.2 on the Richter scale struck Tangshan, China, and 800,000 people are reported to have died. China did not release information on that disaster for several years.

Helpers abducted

PARIS — Dozens of armed men invaded an Ethiopian refugee camp in northern Somalia and kidnapped 10 members of a French medical team, a French medical relief organization said Saturday.

Medecins Sans Frontieres, or Doctors Without Borders, said the four men and six women from the organization, known as MSF, were abducted Friday night.

The camp is outside the town of Tug Wajale, 560 miles northwest of Mogadishu, the Somali capital, and six miles east of the border with Ethiopia.

The identity of the kidnappers was not clear, but the director of the relief organization, Francis Chardon, said the kidnappers told witnesses they did not intend to harm their captives. They reportedly said the operation was carried out for publicity.

The relief organization said it was informed of the kidnapping by the Geneva office of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees. The Foreign Ministry in Paris confirmed the kidnapping.

County voting reform needed

In 19th Century Texas, communications and news dissemination were slow or non-existent. Transportation was limited and cumbersome. Few persons were acquainted with others who lived more than a few miles from their homes.

Bitterness over treatment by Yankees in the aftermath of the war between the states left Texas as a one-party state in political matters. Yet many became aware of the uses and abuses of political power that occurred in that environment.

In many instances the only thing that voters knew about a candidate, even for most local offices, was provided by the party's backing or lack of it.

There may have been some good reason in those days for candidates for school, city and county offices to run on ballots carrying the party label. Whatever those reasons, none of the conditions of the 19th Century exists today.

Communications are rapid; news is plentiful. In fact, we often are overwhelmed with it. We can get almost any information about a candidate that we care to, and some we don't care to. Transportation is convenient. Candidates can travel easily to meet voters personally and acquaint them with their views. During this century, as Texas has evolved into a two-party state, our Legislature has been wise enough to take partisanship out of city and school political arenas. Candidates run on their own merits, raise their own campaign funds and serve according to their consciences instead of according to party dictates.

This same enlightened approach now should be extended to the election of county officials throughout Texas. It is especially critical in less populated areas of the state, where the voters are both neighbors and potential customers for a candidate's business or employer.

How many well-qualified, potential candidates have declined to seek county offices because of a possible detrimental effect on their companies from members of the opposing party?

How many county elections have been determined by lazy voters who make no effort to learn about the candidates, but simply vote for a party and not the person? Just look at the high percentate of voters who punch a straight-party ticket — which, incidentally, also ought to be abolished in How many times have actions — or inactions — of an office holder been enhanced or obscured because of citizens' perceptions based on a poltical label? How many of us have judged the results of an officer's programs in light of the officer's party affiliation in relation to our The most compelling reason for making county offices non-partisan is the elimination of voting choices as a result of one party dominating in a county or area of the state. In many areas, most county officers are elected in the Democrat primary and face no opposition in the general election. If an important race exists in the Republican primary, every voter must choose to vote in one primary and forfeit a choice in the other.

A case in point was the Howard County primary in May 1986. The Republican primary boasted one of the most fiercely contested races for governor in history. The Democrats, meanwhile, presented a race for county judge where a well qualified businessman was running against the incumbent. No one filed for office on the Republican ticket. Voters who had a strong interest in both races had to give up their vote in one of them. The incumbent won the county race, but enough votes were cast in the other primary to make a difference in a non-partisan primary. When the challenger was asked why he didn't run in the Republican primary, he replied that he didn't think someone with a Republican label could get elected

He probably was right, because two Republican candidates for other county offices didn't even come close in the general

Many voters seem to display a strange contradiction by exercising independence in voting for statewide legislative and constitutional officers but displaying a fierce partisanship when the race is closer to home.

Many will oppose county non-partisan elections by saying both parties ought to field a full slate of candidates for county offices. One might be tempted to reply that such a sentiment comes from persons whose major interest is in maintaining a partisan advantage rather than in providing good government.

Both arguments miss the point, however.

Our interest should be in removing any barriers that discourage the best qualified candidates from contesting for county offices.

The same conditions that affect our state also affect operations of our local governments. We need the best heads possible to cope with those problems. Their ideas and programs should not be accepted or rejected because of knee-jerk reactions based

We should urge our legislators to remove partisanship from the election of county officials.

I commend the state, county and city road crews for the oustanding job they perform during the icy weather conditions. I know this can be a thankless job.

Reading instructor shows caring is main ingredient

By DARRELL BERKHEIMER I attended the morning session at Saturday's workshop on the techniques of teaching non-reading adults how to read.

The all-day event was conducted at the Adult Basic Learning Center at Howard College.

Despite the hard seats that became more uncomfortable as the morning progressed, the session was most enjoyable and instructive. A major reason was the enthusiasm and obviously caring attitude displayed by Leslie Earnst as she discussed the characteristics of the adult learner, and the psychological factors involved in teaching an illiterate adult.

I was fascinated by Earnst, an adult reading instructor at the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, as she presented the issues so well.

I have no doubt that it is the depth of her caring about others that creates her enthusiasm. As a result, I was motivated to pay close attention to the expertise she had to Earnst is one of many special people I've met who displayed that caring attitude as a result of their involvement in various charities and human service agencies.

On Saturday, however, Earnst presented an excellent example of the most important ingredient necessary to teaching anyone. That ingredient is caring — very strongly — about each person you're trying to teach, whether adult or enough, we will find a way to resolve questions of technique. I find it difficult to describe or put into words the caring attitude she brought to my mind as a result of her presentation.

I suspect one of the best ways is to refer to several television shows in which that caring is so evident. Such shows include The Waltons, Little House on the Prairie, Fame, Highway to Heaven, M*A*S*H and so many productions

Those shows often affect the sentimental, old softie feelings in me as my eyes grow misty and tears roll down beside my nose.

Most recently I've been affected that way by some of the shows about the lives of retired persons and the elderly.

If you've spent much time watching any of the shows that I've mentioned, you know the feelings and attitudes I'm referring to.

wide range of ages and careers represented at the CANtRead workshop.

That's important because the adults who need assistance in learning to read come from an even more diverse group, Earnst indicated during her presentation.

She emphasized they will be creative and talented in many ways even though, for differing reasons, they never learned how to read.

Earnst added that tutoring adult non-readers is a two-way learning event because the students often teach or share their knowledge on other skills.

Texas could benefit from Mexico plans

By JESSE TREVINO

In today's complex world, keeping informed on emerging political issues is difficult enough. For us here in Texas, it is especially difficult because it involves a foreign country — Mexico — as well.

Mexico appears ready to embark on a series of economic adventures that Texans need to monitor because some of the decisions will have, paradoxically, beneficial effects on our state.

Those decisions, however, must be understood in their proper context.

Experts on the Mexican economy believe the Mexican government is going to opt for a policy of growth for the next two years — despite predictions that inflation will rise to a rate of 120 percent, at a minimum.

Whatever we may think of that, the growth policy will help the continuing economic boom along the Texas border. As the maquiladora industries create more jobs in Mexico, the spillover effect into the Texas economy should continue.

While the impact will not be that of the oil boom, the entire Earnst pointed out that each phenomenon of the maquiladora nevertheless is a growing influence on the Texas-Mexico regional economy

Ironically, the worsening economic situation in Mexico benefits the border Mexican states and the Texas Border Region because the government appears ready to create an artificial "era of good feelings" to ensure the 1988 presidential election proceeds without turbulence.

To accomplish this, the government is expected to increase spending and may announce next year a sweeping economic reform plan that will replace the peso with a new Azteca currency

The government hopes, as the election draws near, that the new economic reform plan will boost confidence in the economy and create a new economic boom similar to the boost Brazil's economy received after that country overhauled its economy with a new currency and wage and price

Should international oil prices begin to climb duriing 1987 and 1988, the government will have shouldered its present political difficulties well, especially since easier credit and new investment monies are pumped into the northern states where the most antigovernment violence occurred in the past two years.

The thinking guiding the Mexicans lies in their unwillingness to end the six-year administration of President Miguel de la Madrid as a period of no growth.

This may appear foolish pride at work, but the decision is a sound one, given the basic philosophy of the Mexican political system: That a continuing social revolution produces social progress year after

To have a period in which the economy did not grow is to admit that the revolution has stalled in its social development of Mexico. whose fate is entrusted by the people into the one major party.

That kind of failure would be used to solidify opposition to the government in precisely those northern states that are Mexico's main squeaky wheel today. They will become the object of intense government attention as the government throws money at its main source of opposition - Mexicans disenchanted with the economy

Thus, the driving objective behind the decision to go for growth is the mounting pressure on the government to produce jobs for the millions of Mexicans out of work. and for the new workers entering the economy.

To that end, the government will push hard to make the border industrial sector play an even greater role in the economy - to Texas' advantage.

- Remember that scene in "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid," when our two loveable heroes must choose between fighting a heavily armed posse and jumping off a cliff into a raging stream far below?

Sundance confesses he can't swim. Butch tells him it doesn't matter, they probably won't survive the fall anyway. They do survive, of course, and continue on their merry, wicked ways. Some Texas legislators are facing a similar dilemma these days as the state struggles to deal with a large budget deficit. Their choice is whether to, as they say, "vote their districts" or vote with their powerful presiding officers. The issues are whether, when and how to raise more state revenue. Our current presiding officers — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby in the Senate the Senate and then-Gov. Mark White in supporting a tax hike could have been a major embarrassment for Lewis. That embarrassment would have been enhanced because, at the time, Lewis' bid for re-election in his Fort Worth district was being challenged by a Republican. Several Republicans, who for years had supported Lewis and been rewarded with choice com-

Starting on wrong foot

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements is starting the legislative session on the wrong foot by coupling a call for spending cuts with a threat to keep lawmakers in Austin all year, a state senator told teachers Saturday.

"I don't give a damn what Clements said. I think it's irresponsible in 1987, with a $5.8 billion deficit, to say right now, 'We are going to cut $2 billion or I am going to keep the Legislatuure in town until this time next vear," Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, told a Texas Federation of Teachers seminar.

Clements, a Republican who took office last Tuesday, said during the week that he would not be hesitant to call special sessions of the Legislature if lawmakers do not approve cuts he will support. The regular session is scheduled to end June 1, but the governor has the authority to call special sessions.

Patient is a non-patient

SAN ANTONIO - While doctors at Brooke Army Medical Center worked to save the life of 17-year-old Will Greer, hospital officials twice told people looking for him that the traffic accident victim was not a patient at the facility.

Army officials are investigating why the teen-ager's parents and police searched for the boy almost 24 hours before he was found by a San Antonio Light reporter.

The boy was last seen about 3:30 p.m. Thurs-

Although no other charges have been filed against the boy, county police said a marijuana deal may have been completed sometime before Flores attempted to board a Trans World Airlines flight to San Antonio. Two tally sheets reflecting profits from a suspected deal for 205 pounds of marijuana were found in the boy's luggage, police said.

Battle lines are drawn

AUSTIN - Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said Saturday he is ready to go to political war with Gov. Bill Clements.

"He wants a fight — he's going to get one," Hightower said.

It took Clements, a Republican who was inaugurated Tuesday, only three days to initiate a battle with a Democratic office-holder. The governor opened the sparring Friday by endorsing a task force recommendation that the agriculture commissioner should be appointed by the governor instead of elected by the

Hightower said the recommendation caught him by surprise, as did Clements' endorsement

"I listened to brother Clements at the inaugural talk about how we needed all this cooperation and to work together. Then the next thing I know, he's holding a press conference assailing me and my performance in office, enjoying himself and saying a feature point of his economic development plan was going to be appointing the commissioner of agriculture rather than electing him," Hightower said.

Oklahomans consider state's 'budget fiasco'

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Republican Gov. Henry Bellmon, embarrassed by what he calls a "budget fiasco," goes before the Democrat-controlled Oklahoma Legislature this week to begin a selling job for a $2.1 billion budget that is balanced by a major tax in-

Bellmon refused to discuss his budget ahead of Monday's address to a joint House and Senate session, despite the fact that details of his tax increase and funding proposals have been extensively reported in

The governor apologized late last week to legislators that details of his budget had been disclosed prematurely.

Bellmon plans to explain his budget at a briefing with key legislators Monday morning. His budget address to the full session is scheduled for 2 p.m.

Sources have confirmed that Bellmon will propose eliminating various sales tax exemptions to raise the bulk of the money that will be needed to wipe out a $363 million projected budget shortfall.

course may head north

AUSTIN (AP) - A controversial crude oil pipeline to be built across the Edwards Aquifer may run north of the aquifer, a route a federal agency said it prefers.

Pipeline

The Bureau of Land Management gave tentative approval Friday to an alternate northern route for the All American pipeline in a preliminary environmental report. In the report, the agency said it preferred the alternate route, which runs from McCamey in West Texas to just south of San Angelo and Brownwood and east to McGregor before veering south to the Gulf Coast.

Pipeline sponsor Celeron Corp., a subsidiary of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., initially proposed to route the pipeline south of Austin through Blanco, Hays and Caldwell counties.

"We are satisfied with what we have read in the report and with the whole review process," Lou Resweber, a Celeron spokesman, told the Austin American-Statesman. "It confirms that all three routes are acceptable and no route is cléarly superior.'

Several lawsuits were filed early last year when the initial route was proposed, including one by Attorney General Jim Mattox. Environmentalists and politicians said the Edwards Aquifer, a major source of drinking water in the region, could be in danger if a break occurred along the pipeline.

The suit filed by Mattox brought a temporary halt to construction of the pipeline in Texas until an environmental impact study could be carried out.

In choosing the northern route as the preferred route, the bureau concluded in its report that no choice - three routes and a noroute alternative - is significantly better than the others.

The report said all three cross a number of aquifers and all could significantly affect the habitat of the endangered Attwater's greater prairie chicken.

The three routes considered were the initial route, the northern route and a southern route that would run south of San Antonio.

Resweber said the Santa Barbara-based company would decide on the pipeline route based on recomendations in a final report from the bureau later this year.

The underground pipeline will originate in Santa Barbara.

Jasper Mallicote

I'm a preneed counselor here. Helping others with their funeral service decisions before the actual time of need is a very gratifying experience. With each family that preplans, I am reminded how much it benefits the "significant others" in the lives of those that choose to prearrange their funeral. The loss of a loved one is difficult enough without having to struggle with funeral service decisions. Preplanning takes away that burden. That's why I'm involved with preplanning. I truly enjoy helping others.

Rushing game key for Broncos Giants hoping to remain hot

PASADENA, Calif. (A) — The Denver Broncos' rushing effort ranked a wimpy 20th in the 28-team NFL this season, averaging just 104.9 yards per game. Yet it is that very attack that holds the key for a Broncos' victory in Super Bowl XXI Sunday.

Broncos Coach Dan Reeves is not anticipating 100-yard games by Sammy Winder or Gerald Willhite. After all, the New York Giants statistically have the best defense against the rush in the NFL. What Reeves will gladly settle for is a semblance of å ground game, enough to keep the Giants from turning their fearsome pass rushers loose on every play.

The key for us is to run well enough to keep them off-balance, and then give John (quarterback John Elway) time when we want to throw.

"We have to try to keep them honest," agreed Elway. "If you let them get in their pass-rush mode, you can't stop them. That's the key. If we're going to win, we've got to slow down their pass rush, and a running game they have to respect is the way to do

Defensively, the Broncos are most concerned about keeping Giants' running back Joe Morris in check.

"Our main goal is to contain their running game," said linebacker Karl Mecklenburg. "We pride ourselves on stopping the run.'

Reeves also mentioned turnovers, sacks and special-teams play as crucial to a victory.

'The times we've been successful this year are when we've made very few mistakes," he said. "We've won every game this year when we've been on the plus side in turnovers and traps (sacks).

"We must play error-free football. We must keep from getting trapped and put some pressure on (Giants quarterback Phil) Simms.'

Reeves noted that the punting game was a 'deciding factor' in the Giants' 19-16 triumph over Denver in the regular season.

"We punted poorly and gave them good field position several times," he said. "Special teams play is always vital in a Super Bowl."

The Broncos appear to have eliminated that potential problem. Chris Norman was Denver's punter in that meeting. He since has been replaced by Mike Horan, who has been remarkably consistent. Philadelphia Eagles Coach Buddy Ryan suggested this week that if the Broncos' stunting, confusioncreating defense can keep the score close, Denver has a chance to win at the end - as they did in the AFC championship game against Cleveland.

Reeves agrees. "If we keep it close, I think we'll have a good chance to win it in the fourth quarter,'

If the game gets out of hand and Denver has to throw the ball 50 times, the Broncos know they will be in big trouble.

"There's no way we have a chance to win if we have to throw it that much," Reeves said.

Several individual matchups will be important, but none more so than whoever lines up opposite Giants linebacker Lawrence Taylor.

"If we don't do a good job up front against Taylor, it's going to be tough on John," said Reeves.

Added tight end Clarence Kay, who will at times be blocking Taylor, "The coaches have made it a point for us to know where Lawrence Taylor lines up on every down. You can't let him go unnoticed or he'll hurt vou.

Elway noted that the Broncos "had some success offensively against the Giants the first time," gaining 405 yards to the Giants' 262. But Denver wasted several scoring opportunities.

"When we got it down there close, we just couldn't put it in the end zone," he says. "We've got to do that

For his own part, Elway says he needs to be patient. "They play a lot of zone coverage, and it's going to be tough to get the big plays against them," he

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — There might be a simple way for the New York Giants to beat the Denver Broncos in the Super Bowl — just continue to play as they did in the playoffs.

The Giants are in high gear, riding an 11-game winning and with a 16-2 record that includes two playoff victories in which they out-scored their op-

In beating San Francisco and Washington in the playoffs, the Giants for the first time were able to combine a potent offense with their defense, which ranked No. 2 overall in the NFL.

'We feel when we do our best is when we have a good mixture of run, pass and pass action, and we don't try and come in and say we're going to run or throw it," said Giants offensive coordinator Ron

New York runs a no-frills offense. It has little razzle-dazzle, and in recent weeks has not turned the ball over at crucial times.

The focal point of the offense is halfback Joe Morris, who rushed for 1,516 yards in breaking the Giants' club record for the second straight year. "We have to establish the running game," said Giants tackle Karl Nelson. "We have to control the line of scrimmage, that's going to be a real big key.'

Denver has been very good against the run, allowing opponents 121 yards per game. That ranked first in the AFC and fifth overall in the league. 'They do a lot of things up front,' said Nelson.

They use multiple formations with lots of twists and blitzes and if you let it get to you it can confuse you. With two weeks to prepare, I think we are feeling comfortable with the fronts. If the New York running game works well, it will make it easier for Phil Simms to throw. Simms hit 55 percent of his passes and had 21 scoring tosses, two more than John Elway of Denver. But if the rushing game is shut down, New York has been able to go to the pass effectively — as it did in rallying from a 17-0 deficit against San Francisco in early December. Tight end Mark Bavaro, a good blocker, has been think if you have to drive 80 yards against them all

Quarterback Phil Sims of the New York Giants has had the hot hand in playoff action. He will try to lead the Giants to the Super Bowl crown.

Raul Allegre has been an effective place-kicker. He booted four field goals in the regular-season victory over the Broncos.

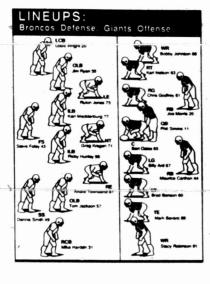

"Punishing and swarming" best describe the Giants defense, which finished second overall in the league and first against the run.

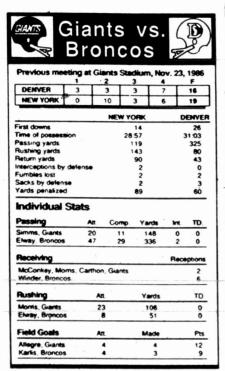

'Stop the run, control the passing game, don't give up the big plays and keep them out of the end zone,' said defensive coordinator Bill Belichick in describing the Giants' game plan. "It's the way we go into every game.'

With what may be the best front seven in football, New York has limited opponents to 80.3 yards per game rushing. Denver got 80 yards on 22 carries last game with Elway getting 51 of that.

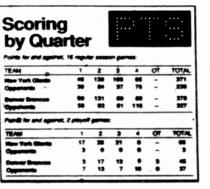

Containing Elway is the Giants' major concern, and one of New York's linebackers will shadow his every move.

The weakest element in the Giants defense is its secondary, which surrendered Denver quarterback on Nov. 23.

Dan Reeves, coach of the Denver Broncos, has led the Broncos to the American Conference championship. Today he will try to lead them to a Super Bowl championship.

Sports Briefs Lady tankers finish fifth

MONAHANS — The Big Spring High school girls swim team turned in a strong performance by finishing fifth in the Monahans Invitational Saturday. The Big Spring boys finished eighth.

The girls did it on the strength of a fourth, fifth and sixth place finish in the 500 freestyle by Janie Gonzales, Amber Thompson and Kristy Geanopulos. Victoria Logan added a fifth place in the 200 yard individual medley.

Cade Loftin led the Big Spring boys by winning the 200 butterfly and finishing second in the 50 freestyle. The Big Spring 400 relay team Loftin, Mark Lynch, Lance McCune and Johnny Webb finished third. BSHS coach Harlan Smith said that diver Sherman Powers injured his hand when it hit the board on a dive. The extent of the injury was not known at the time. Monahans won the girls team championship and Lubbock High won the boys team championship. (See results, scoreboard 4-B).

Pavin leading Phoenix Open

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Corey Pavin, a winner last week, birdied two of his last three holes for a 5-under-par 66 that gave him a one shot lead over Paul Azinger Saturday after three-rounds of the $600,000 Phoenix Open golf tournament.

'Sure, I'd rather be leading," Pavin said, looking ahead to Sunday's final round of the chase for a $108,000 first prize. 'I'd rather be leading by five or six. But leading by one, well, that's just one more shot I have to play with."

Pavin completed three trips over the new TPC course at Scottsdale in 200, 13 shots under par.

But there was a group of 16 players — including Fuzzy Zoeller, defending title-holder Hal Sutton and PGA champion Bob Tway within five strokes

Azinger was the closest but didn't know it until the 18th hole.

Whether she's walking down the hall or shooting a jump shot, it seems Teresa Pruitt is always the center of attention.

The senior forward on the Big Spring Lady Steers' basketball team is really raising evebrows with her play on the hardcourt this season. She's one of the main reasons the Lady Steers are sailing along in first place in District 2-4A with a 9-1 record, which goes along with a sparkling 19-4 overall mark.

According to stats by the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, the 5-8 Pruitt is the leading scorer in West Texas, averaging 23 points per game. She's also ranked in the top 10 in rebounding, grabbing 10 caroms per contest.

Second year Lady Steers' Coach C.E. Carmichael says he remembers the first day he met Pruitt. "It was in the P.E. gym and I heard all this noise in the hall," said Carmichael. "I looked out and saw Teresa coming down the hall making enough noise for 10 people.

"I asked someone, who in the world is she? They told me she was one of my prospective basketball players, and I thought; 'Oh, my

That was two years ago. Since then, Pruitt has developed from a inexperienced and sometimes out-of-control sophomore, to a mature senior leader. She remains quite vocal, however, and Carmichael thinks that attribute has helped the team.

"Teresa and I have a little saying," said Carmichael. "It goes like this," he continued. "She's come 100 miles, but she's still got a few

"Obviously, she's improved a great deal. Her basketball skills, attitude and grades are good. She's really developed into a leader for us. She's always full of life, but when it's time to play, she lets the others know it's time to get

"I've always been the type person that's always laughing and trying to pick people up when they are down," she said. "It carries over in practice, we're all happy and we have lively practices. But when it's time to play, we get Pruitt, who earned some varsity playing time as a freshman, has seen many changes in the BSHS girls' basketball program. She's had three coaches in her high school career, and says Carmichael has made a remarkable difference in the program.

"With all those different coaches it's been frustrating. Coach Carmichael was more strict and we've become more disciplined. He opened

"Coach Carmichael is the first coach who opened the gym for us. He's trying to put girls' basketball at the top at Big Spring High School. We never heard of staying in gym after practice until Coach Carmichael came," Pruitt Even when she was a freshman, Pruitt showed signs of developing into a dominating force. After getting her feet wet as a frosh, she started as a sophomore and averaged eight points and seven rebounds per game.

Using a wild, reckless style of play, she made first team all-district last year while averaging 15 points and eight rebounds per game.

The pace of her game has slowed a bit and her temper has subsided. She says those are two of the biggest reasons for her improvement.

'I know I've matured a lot. I play under control and I hold my temper. I thought being on the varsity I had to act tough. I thought I had to be all bad and cool. I found out you can be a good person on and off the court with a good

Although they have been plagued with injuries, Pruitt says the Lady Steers are destined to win the district crown. "When Sheri (Myrick) and Kathryn (Burrow) hurt their knees, I felt like we really pulled together as a team. We were down for Lamesa - the Lady Steers' only district lost — and Monahans, but we pulled it back together. But we really haven't played as well as we did in the first of

"I think we'll win district. If we prepare ourselves and take care of business," we'll win it," she firmly stated.

Pruitt is proud of this team and thinks it might be the start of something big. "Although I played a little on a pretty good team my freshman year, with Monette Wise, Debra Rubio and Paula Spears, I think this team will go down as the best team so far in Big Spring High School history. I think it will be a program, the younger girls will be proud to be in.'

Carmichael says that college scouts have started taking a second look at his star forward. 'I really think Teresa's best basketball is in front of her. She's just gotten serious about basketball over the past year." gym, playing in pick-up games. "A lot of people

Pruitt says her priorites are shifting toward basketball. "I never really thought much about playing college basketball until recently," she

What did she have planned for the future? Somewhat hesitantly, she replied, "I always wanted to be a Dallas Cowboys cheerleader. There she goes, the center of attention again.

White-tail deer and Minnesotans By H. BOYCE HALE Did you ever pay a large sum, hunt your heart out, and never see a deer? Have you ever cursed your bad luck, and said, "I'll never hunt again. Snowbirds come to Texas from a variety of places, including Detroit, Chicago,

Cleveland and Minneapolis. Many are people who "fly" south each year in their motor homes or travel trailers to spend the winter in south Texas.

One such flock passed through Big Spring recently, and while they were having lunch at a local fast food place, I was attracted by their Scandinavian accent. I introduced myself.

Lee Rue III from J.B. Lippincott Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hargreaves from Clontarf, Minn., were on their way to Weslaco.

"How is the hunting and breeding as well as their fishing up your way?" I asked. "I counted 40 deer in our hay meadow the morning we left," Clarence said with pride. Mrs. Hargreaves added, "In the summer we catch walleve. perch, northern pike and smallmouth bass by the hundreds.'

Before I could interrupt and tell them about our great striper fishing at Lake Spence, she asked if we had any deer down here.

"You bet," I shot back, "and OUTDOOR page 4B

Giants fever has been running high for months in both New York and New Jersey, where the Giants play. And it was hard to avoid Super Bowl excitement.

But there will be at least a few places where the game will not be a major topic on Sunday.

Two Indian restaurants in New York, Nirvana Club One and Nirvana, have signs proclaiming that they have no TV and no radio and that "An ideal place to spend Super Bowl Sunday where the only bowl is a soup bowl.'

And at the Old Homestead Resaurant in Manhattan, 15 women wearing T-shirts bearing the legend "Football Widows" plan to spend the afternoon celebrating not the Super Bowl but the end of the football season and getting their husbands back again.

One of the woman, asking to remain anonymous, said, "The future is still bleak, though. If the Giants win, our husbands will talk football for two months. If Denver wins, they will be miserable to live with.'

However, both in the New York metropolitan area, where the crown of the Empire State Building has been lighted this weekend with Giants' red and blue, and in Colorado, where some snow resorts have been dyeing their runs Broncos' orange, most of the inhabitants will apparently be celebrating like it was New Year's

A wedding was scheduled to coincide with halftime of the big game at Manny's Lounge and Restaurant in Moonachie, N.J., in the shadow of the Giants Stadium in East Rutherford.

'We're having one big party here," said Paul Malin, a bartender at Manny's, known as a frequent hangout of Giants Coach Bill Parcells and some of the players.

Malin said Saturday that reservations for the gala have been booked solid for about a month. Among the 250 Giants fans who will be able to watch the Super Bowl on one of six television sets will be Dr. Thomas Greco, a Ridgefield Park, N.J., dentist, and Claudia Briscoe, his hygienist, who will be married in the halftime ceremony.

Greco said he promised two years ago: "If the Giants ever make the Super Bowl, I'll marry Claudia at halftime." Claudia, also a rabid Giants fan, agreed it was a

Perhaps the biggest party in New York will be at the Ritz, where more than 1,000 people are expected to be on hand to eat free hot dogs and watch the game on a 20by 30-foot screen, billed as the largest in the New York area. Programs, pennants and pins will also

DALLAS (AP) — Mark Aguirre scored 35 points and Brad Davis came off the bench to add a seasonhigh 21 Saturday, carrying the Dallas Mavericks to a 132-117 NBA victory over Los Angeles that snapped the Lakers' six-game winning streak.

Aguirre scored his points in three periods and watched from the bench for all but two minutes of the fourth quarter as the Mavericks ran away from the Lakers, who were playing their fifth road game in Dallas led 102-89 at the end of the third quarter, and the Mavs built the lead to 22 points over the tiring Lakers midway of the fourth quarter.

Davis scored 11 of his points in the period in the rout, which delighted a sellout crowd of 17,007 fans.

The Lakers, now 32-9 and leaders of the Pacific Division, were led by Magic Johnson, who scored 25 points, and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who had 24.

Johnson played despite Friday's death in Lansing, Mich., of his sister, Mary Johnson. The Lakers' star guard returned to the family home in Lansing immediately after the game.

Sam Perkins contributed 22 points and 12 rebounds to the Mavericks, who lead the Midwest Division.

The Mavericks scored the most points against the Lakers this year, and the defeat was only Los Angeles' third in 17 games.

Aguirre needs two points to join the 10,000-point

Retrenchment NASA preparing veteran launch team

By HOWARD BENEDICT AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. - A year of remorse, retrenchment and repair is ending at Kennedy Space Center, where NASA is assembling a team of veteran launch officials to prepare plans for returning the nation's surviving shuttles into space during 1988.

"People are busy, they're not marking time," says the new NASA director here. Air Force Lt. Gen. Forrest McCartney. "This time next year we'll have a bird on the pad.'

Throughout the space center, technicians and engineers clamor around the shuttles — Atlantis, Discovery and Columbia — fighting to keep up morale and working to ready the ships for the post-Challenger era of spaceflight.

The man put in charge of repairing the damage revealed by last January's Challenger accident speaks with optimism for those here who believe that man's destiny is still tied to a machine like the space shuttle. 'The first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth priorities ... have a successful mission," the new boss says of his safety-first orientation. He emphasizes. that he won't cut any corners to meet the Feb. 18, 1988, target for the next launch.

Deputy center director Thomas E. Utsman was named to head a team of veteran space workers to guide the center through the first

'The intent was to gather people who have a lot of experience and concentrate all that experience on getting those first couple launches off," says Utsman. "We call ourselves the overthe-hill gang.

Discovery, which flew six times before, is to be the first shuttle sent into space since the Challenger explosion revealed NASA's spindly safety legs, led to layoffs and put McCartney in charge of launch operations.

The memories of last January are close to the surface here.

The Challenger crew cabin is being buried in two abandoned missile silos along with tons of other shuttle wreckage. Launch pad 39A is simply on standby status; pad 39B, used just once, by Challenger, is down for repairs.

(And the Vandenburg Air Force Base launch pad, 3,000 miles away and once scheduled for its debut this year, instead has been mothballed until 1992 for use by the ship being built to replace Challenger.)

The quiet in the American space program has been practically deafening, with the shuttles awaiting improvements that begin with redesigned solid rocket boosters and end no one knows quite where.

Atlantis, attached to an external fuel tank and two solid fuel boster rockets, stands upright on a mobile launch platform in the cavernous Vehicle Assembly Building. Discovery and Columbia are surrounded by work platforms in Workers are making modifications recommended by the Rogers Commission, which investigated the Challenger accident, for several shuttle systems besides the faulty booster rocket joint blamed for the explosion. They include changes to the main engines, external tank and launch support equipment.

"I don't think any of us really perceived the impact the loss of Challenger would have on the nation," McCartney said in an interview. "All of a sudden we realized, with the loss of the shuttle and the problems we had with the Titan and Delta rockets, that we just didn't have the strong launch program that we once perceived

Now, a year later, "morale is on the upswing," he said. "The uncertainty of the layoffs is behind us, and we are getting a better fix on the modifications that will be required" to prepare the shuttles for 1988.

Nearly 2,400 workers, out of a work force of 16,000, were laid off after the Challenger accident as a combined result of the suspension of shuttle flights, the termination of the shuttle-Centaur upper stage contract and the completion of various work projects at the space

The accident prompted NASA to conduct a detailed self-analysis of the entire space shuttle system, and as a result, says McCartney, "We found a lot of things here that, while they did not contribute to the 51-L (Challenger) accident, should be addressed in a more disciplined system." He cites training, quality control, work hours and shuttle processing methods.

The Rogers Commission said NASA had too few quality control inspectors and was critical of the great amount of exhausting overtime by shuttle workers in the weeks before the launch, mainly because the previous flight had a record seven postponements and Challenger had five. New procedures will allow managers to get some rest, even in the face of numerous postponements.

"What happens if we get behind?" McCartney said. "If at any time we feel we are not comfortable with that (February 1988 launch) schedule, you're looking at a fellow who is going to stand up and say I want to extend that "All you have to do is think of what happens if we break another one of those birds.

The leaking seal in the lower joint of the right Solid Rocket Booster began a chain reaction causing the Challenger accident.

Third O-ring position will prevent leakage when the joint billows out during combustion.

Metal lip limits rotation and stabilizes joint. Redesigned insulation contains gases and flames better.

Decision makers Where are they twelve months later?

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — On the evening before the Challenger liftoff last year, 12 men took part in a three-state telephone conference to discuss concerns by Morton Thiokol engineers that the shuttle should not be launched after a night of sub-freezing temperatures.

The engineers in Utah lost the argument.

Most of the dozen, as well as some top NASA officials involved in the decision to launch, have retired or have been reassigned to other duties in the wake of the Challenger explosion and the death of its crew of seven.

Directors of the Kennedy Space Center in Florida, where the shuttle was launched on its ill-fated flight, and the Marshall Space Flight Center, which oversees propulsion systems, Jesse Moore, head of the shuttle program at the time of the accident but whose appointment as director of the Johnson Space Center in Texas had been put in the works, assumed the Houston post briefly and went on a leave of absence. The argument for postponement was led by Allan McDonald.

director of solid rocket motor special projects for Thiokol, who was at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida, and Roger Boisjoly, a Thiokol senior scientist at the firm's headquarters in Utah. Wasatch, Utah, the Marshall Space Flight Center in Alabama and the Kennedy Center were overruled later by four higher Thiokol officials.

Joe Kilminster, the vice president of space booster programs who signed the company's OK for launch, now is director of quality and engineering in another Thiokol plant. Robert Lund, vice president of engineering, is now vice president of advanced technology in support services.

Jerald Mason, who was senior vice president of Wasatch operations, retired. Arnold Thompson, supervisor of structures design, is the only one of the six who has essentially the same iob at the firm.

Stanley R. Reinartz, manager of NASA's special projects office at Marshall - who said he told his center director about the Thiokol worries, but not top launch officials — was reassigned at his own request, then retired. Lawrence B. Mulloy, manager of the booster project at Marshall, who six times signed waivers so the shuttle could fly despite evidence of leaks at the booster joints, also has retired.

George Hardy, former deputy director of science and engineering at Marshall, who told Thiokol engineers he was 'appalled' at their recommendation against launching Challenger, retired. Dr. Judson A. Lovingood, who had advised unsuccessfully that the issue be brought to a higher level at NASA, was promoted to associate director for propulsion said it found nothing amiss.

Two decades of sorrow wisen Apollo 1 widow

HOUSTON (AP) — The woman widowed by an Apollo 1 fire 20 years ago urged the families of crew members killed in the Challenger explosion to file lawsuits because NASA and space contractors "don't care anything about you."

Betty Grissom, widow of astronaut Virgil I. Grissom who died with two others in an Apollo spacecraft fire in 1967, said she believes NASA today is as negligent and uncaring of the Challenger families as it was of herself and the other Apollo

"I'd file a lawsuit, because I know right now that they don't care anything about you," Mrs. Grissom advised the Challenger families. "They don't care about me, financially or morally.'

Her remarks were contained in a recent Houston Chronicle copyright story.

Grissom and astronauts Edward White and Roger Chaffee died when a fire erupted inside their Apollo 1 spacecraft while they were conducting tests on a launch pad at the Kennedy Space Center.

Mrs. Grissom said she would have received no financial judgement for her husband's death if Houston attorney Ronald D. Krist had not filed a lastminute lawsuit for her in 1972. The suit resulted in a $350,000 award from North American Rockwell, the prime Apollo contractor.

Krist, now representing Cheryl McNair, widow of Challenger astronaut Ronald E. McNair, filed suit last fall against Morton Thiokol, Inc., the manufacturer of the solid rocket booster blamed for the Challenger accident.

The attorney also represents the parents of two financially and morally — of the Challenger famililes as it was of the Apollo 1 widows.

"They didn't care about me," says Betty Grissom who clings to her husband's memory through pictures, such as the Norman Rockwell painting of the crew of Gemini 3, of which Virgil "Gus" Grissom was a crew member. She said the National Aeronautics and Space Administration today is as negligent and uncaring - other Challenger crew members.

Department of Justice officials recently announced that four Challenger families had agreed to a settlement of about $1 million apiece in return for not suing the federal government.

"That's still kind of cheap," Mrs. Grissom said. "I don't want to give the Challenger families advice, but they might learn something from my experience. "I got smart after 20 years. I should have found it out sooner. I didn't know anything about the statute of limitations, and all of that," she said. Next Tuesday will be the 20th anniversary of the Apollo 1 fire that killed Grissom, Chaffee and White. Mrs. Grissom waited almost four years to file a lawsuit against North American Aviation, now known as Rockwell International, the prime contractor of the space shuttle. The statute of limitations was within three days of running out in Florida. The two other Apollo widows received payments of $125,000 apiece from North American Aviation as a result of Mrs. Grissom's legal action. Mrs. White has since died, and Mrs. Chaffee lives in Houston.

"I think the general public has gotten behind the Challenger tragedy, in sympathy and understanding that it may not have had for Apollo 1 fire, because Christa McAuliffe the schoolteacher was aboard," Mrs. Grissom said.

"But we didn't have a schoolteacher on Apollo 1 We had military men.

Mrs. Grissom said her husband had graduated from Purdue University and that the university gave her two sons scholarships, "or else we would never have made it.

Faced with a child who may be mentally retarded, La Gene Woodard carries on a Gene Woodard remembers the day her baby was born.

By CARLEEN EVERETT Lifestyle editor

The 15½-hour labor; her mother providing moral support in the delivery room; and a huge sense of relief when the ordeal finally ended.

Now, the 15-year-old single parent faces the possibility that her child may be mentally retarded.

Stephanie Hope Woodard is a happy and content 4-month-old baby. Although she looks alert and responsive, like a normal child there is a major difference: she was born without a thyroid.

Stephanie's birth defect wasn't detected until she was three weeks old, the baby's grandmother, Shirly Woodard explained.

"She wouldn't eat or take a bottle when she got home. She constantly slept. She started chokin' one day and her tongue was swollen, so we took her to Dr. Owen."

Dr. B.R. Owen, pediatrician at Malone-Hogan Clinic, said that the birth defect couldn't be discovered on a routine physical exam.

"In the nursery, we do a screening test (blood test) for four diseases. The thyroid screen is one of the tests. It showed that the thyroid was functioning abnormally. The tests are done by the time the babies leave the nursery, and in 2-4 weeks they're tested again."

Results of the tests are returned from a lab in Austin within two to four weeks, Owen said.

"We received a letter instructing us to repeat the thyroid test because the lab test was abnormal. We repeated it and she has hypothyroidism — poor, low functioning thyroid. Then we sent her to Lubbock for a thyroid scan — and there was nothing there," Owen explained.

Dr. Surendra Varma, professor and associate chairman of the department of pediatrics at Texas Tech Medical School, is a pediatriac endoctrinologist (a gland specialist).

One in 5,000 babies are born without a thyroid, he said. Owen's figures are comparable, as he noted that this was the second such case he's treated in his 14-year Big Spring career, dealing with an average of 600 babies annually.

"We don't know why it happens," Varma said, although both heredity and pre-natal care have been eliminated as possibilities.

Explaining that it's congenital (existing at birth), Owen said that "If the diease isn't detected in the first three months of life, mental retardation can occur. All babies are screened; once detected, they are treated."

Treatment for the disease is "simple and inexpensive," Varma said, "the patients take one tablet a day."

Dosages for the thyroid medicine must be monitored, he added. Patients are tested once a month for the first two years. After two years of age, they see the doctor once every six months.

Varma said it's too early to tell whether Stephanie is mentally retarded. "By the time she's two years old, we'll be able to tell if she has normal development. If you catch it early, there are no problems," he explained.

"We're just hopin' and a prayin' that she'll be all right," Shirley said. "Gene's a good mother and very committed to her baby."

"The thyroid hormone is externely important for mental development in the first year of life and later for daily activity, growth, sleep pattern and weight."

Varma is considered the pioneer of the Newborn Metabollic Screeing Program in Texas. He and Senator Ken Hance advocated the passage of a bill in 1977, which mandated that the screening process is required in the state of Texas. The screening began in 1980, Varma said.

Shirley said she thought something was wrong before Stephanie was born.

"We both sensed it," referring to her daughter La Gene. "I've always been able to do that. When my other grandchildren were born I could see them at different stages of their life. With Stephanie, I could only see her so far.

"I'm no fortune teller, I don't believe in that, but we weren't surprised when we found out."

Although Shirley wasn't surprised, she was very scared when she learned that her granddaughter was born with the disease.

When the mother and daughter took the baby to Lubbock for the tests, Shirley said she panicked.

"I took that baby out of her mother's arms and started runnin'. I made my brother bring us back to Big Spring," Shirley explained. A visit from a child welfare agent the next day resulted in an explanation concerning the importance of treatment for the newborn. "He (the welfare representative) told us if she wasn't treated, she'd die," Shirley said.

"I'm sorry I done anything like that now," she added, referring to initial reaction against treatment.

Despite facing the possibility of mental retardation, La Gene's affection for her daughter seems reinforced as she said: "It won't change my love for her."

"We're just hopin' and a prayin' that she'll be all right," Shirley said. "Gene's a good mother and very committed to her baby."

About her pregnancy, La Gene said: "I was big enough and old enough to get thataway. So I took the pain of havin' her. I don't believe in abortions," even though she said the father of the child favored that option.

"At school I got talked about a lot, but I didn't care," she noted.

School is no longer a part of La Gene's life.

"I keep tellin" her to get an education, but she says she owes it to Stephanie. I tell her I'll watch Stephanie so she can go back to school, I never got an 'education and now I can't find a job. I don't want that to happen to Gene."

Shirley said that it has been difficult — enough so that she has had to sell furniture to make ends meet.

"But I just want to thank everyone for helpin' us when we've needed it," she added.

Community members have donated numerous items to the women in order for them to have a benefit rummage sale.

"This will help us pay-off some of Stephanie's hospital bills," Shirley said.

Wilson-Moore

Robin Wilson, 2411 E. 24th St. and Garry Don Moore, 1311 Princeton, exchanged wedding vows Jan. 23 at Trinity Baptist Church with Brother Gary Bandy, associate pastor of the church, officiating.

Parents of the bride are Robert and Sheri Wilson of Big Spring. Bridegroom's parents are Shirley and Don Brashears of Big Spring and Johnny Moore of Midland.

The couple stood before a massive setting of candelabras trimmed with cream-white enchantment lilies, Queen Ann's lace and foliage. Matching arrangements of pink rose gladiolas, cream-white enchantment lilies and Queen Ann's lace. Completing the setting were spiral candelabras and potted ferns.

Instrumentalist was Julie Shirey, pianist. Vocalists were Steve Moses, Kae Wise and Garry Don Moore.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a candlelight silk organza gown with a fitted bodice with embroidered flowers, pearls and Elizabethan sleeves. A full skirt fell to ruffles with a chapel-length train.

Many volunteers are responsible for local Junior Livestock Show

By DON RICHARDSON County Extension Agent

The Howard County Junior Livestock Show are just completed. Who is responsible for putting this event on?

A group of volunteer men and women from throughout the county who serve as a board of directors is responsible for the livestock show. The board selects superintendents of the various divisions who in turn select their own assistants and committeemen.

These directors develop show rules and regulations, set up for the show, assist during the show, seek community assistance for the premium auction and do the cleanup afterwards.

Officers for the organization are Ronnie Wood, president; Bob Nichols, vice president; Bruce Griffith, treasurer; and Don Richardson serves ex-office as recording secretary. Vocational Agricultural Teachers, and County Extension Agents serve in an advisory capacity.

I have had bad luck with trying to grow tomatoes here in Big Spring. Are some varieties more tolerant to our harse conditions than

They certainly are!! Tomatoes are by far the favorite garden vegetable local gardeners try to produce, but unfortunately they often have the most problems. Varieties do make a difference. Tomato fruit set is very sensitive and West Texas growing conditions with extremes in temperature and humidity make the culture of tomatoes quite difficult.

For your garden

One variety that has consistantly performed well in Howard County is the new hybrid, Celebrity. It matures in 70 days with strong plants that are resistant to Verticillium, Fusarium I and II wilts, tobacco mosaic virus and root-knot nematodes. It as a heavy fruit set of medium-sized, globe-shaped red fruits are crack-resistant averaging about 7 oz. It is an all-purpose variety with firm flesh and good flavor.

We want to plant a garden this year but bermuda grass has always been a problem. Is thre an effective way to rid gardens and flower beds of this pest?

Yes. Bermuda grass is a great plant for yards but can be a real pain when it comes up in flower beds and gardens. About the only thing that gardeners could to in the past was to hand dig it out which certainly took most of the joy out of gardening. Most herbicides are non-selective and will kill any green-growing plant. Two fairly new chemicals are on the market now that has been about as close to a selective herbicide as can be offered to day. They are Fusilades and Poasts which can be applied directly on most ornamental plants infested with bermuda grass with no harmful effects on the ornamentals. This is the good news! The bad news is that these chemicals have not received clearance for home gardens. So be a little more patient

- Help is on the way!! Bermuda grass must be actively growing and not drought stress for the chemical to be effective. Both herbicides are slow killers and you must allow about 3 weeks for noticeable kill of the plant. As with any chemical be sure and read the label and follow instructions to the letter! As helpful as these chemicals are they are only as good as they are made for. Also these chemicals have shown some damage to Junipers and Rosemary. Other sensitive plants are listed on the label.

I have read where blueberries can be grown in Texas. Can I grow them here in Big Spring?

Answer: The sandy, acid-type soils of East Texas are well suited to growing the Rabbiteye blueberry. It requires an acid soil (optimum PH 4.5 — 5.0). In Howard County our soils are much to basic (PH of 6.5 or above), for successful cultivation of this crop. Attempts to grow the blueberry in soils that have been altered have not been very successful as the PH level around the treated area soon raises.

Workaholic live-in ruins woman's social life

DEAR ABBY: I am living with a very well-to-do businessman in this rather small town. We fell in love three years ago when I lived in another area. "Cliff" finally told his wife about us and asked for a divorce because I told him I would not continue seeing him unless he promised marriage.

I'm in my mid-30s and have been divorced twice (no children). Cliff's wife moved to another town with their three teen-aged children.

To make a long story short, I have made his home into a charming, welcoming residence, but I am bored to death. Hardly anyone visits us. Cliff is not very sociable, is a workaholic and doesn't seek friends. I like people and want some kind of social life.

I suppose the local people are unfriendly to me because of the circumstances. Please don't lecture me. I need to know how to get people to accept me as a person and

Dear Abby

'us" as a couple. I do not see marriage for us in the near future because Cliff's wife's lawyer is a shark, and a settlement may take forever. Bless you if you can help me.

BIG PROBLEM, SMALL TOWN DEAR BIG PROBLEM: The circumstances may not be entirely responsible for your unhappy plight. An unsociable workaholic who doesn't seek friends is not apt to be sought out socially unless he's a generous giver in the community. (Is he?) There are still some big people in small towns who do not judge others, so get out and make a few friends by volunteering your services. You won't have to look far to find organizations who will welcome your help. If you and Cliff contribute enough, you will make vourselves sufficiently attractive to be accepted. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Can you find that letter from a person who did not like to be touched? I read it several years ago, but never saved it. Now I wish I had because it described my feeling to a "T."

I need it to show a friend of mine who thinks there must be something wrong with a person who does not like to be touched. ONE OF THEM

DEAR ONE: Found it:

DER ABBY: I do not like to be touched - meaning grabbed or clutched or jabbed - even in a playful or non-threatening manner. My reaction (I naturally draw away) is taken as a rejection by some people, but I can't help it - that's just the way I am. Am I alone or not? I am a male, age 37, if that makes a difference.

TOUCH-ME-NOT DEAR TOUCH: You are not alone. Many people dislike being touched. They feel a certain violation of their space — and they react

Skinny outlifts hefty companion in workouts

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I need an explanation to heal my fractured ego. I recently joined the fitness craze and enlisted in a health club near me. I do the weight routine, and found a little guy as a partner. He must weigh 120 soaking wet and looks as though I could break him like a matchstick. I am nearly 200 pounds and considered big boned, and strong. Wrong. This little guy outlifts me regularly. How can a little runt outperform people like me? - J.W.

You want me to betray a secret we little people have guarded so closely from the Goliaths of the world? OK, I will. It's called recruiting, and I will lay odds your partner has been at it for some The longer you train muscles the more of their individual fibers you recruit into the work. It's like filling an army with a draft call. With training, nerve signals spread to more of those muscle fibers. As the recruitment progresses, you are able to make greater efforts.

In time, when your body has learned to call on all the muscle fibers available, you reach a peak performance. Put another way, in time you too will start massive recruitment of your own muscle fibers, and, as much as I hate to admit it, be able to outlift your partner, or me.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have torn a ligament in my knee. How long will it take to heal? — C.G.

The healing time will depend on the amount of damage to the ligament. If only a few fibers are torn, then it might heal in a matter of weeks. If the ligament has been torn completely apart, then it may never heal properly on its own. Such tears often require surgery to reattach the torn ends.

Not all back pain originates in the back. In his newest booklet, Dr. Donohue explains the spine, its muscles and nerves and howyou can help yourself avoid back problems or ease those you may already have. For a copy of the new booklet, "Backache and Spine Problems," send $1.00 and a stamped, self-addressed envleope to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Cheiago, IL 606111. Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters.

Don't move if you're in doubt

By NAOMI HUNT

County Extension Agent With the current oversupply of rental housing in some areas of Texas, moving up to a larger apartment or a new neighborhood may seem like a good idea.

But before you commit yourself to renting a particular house or apartment, take some time to determine if you can really afford

Start by looking at your regular monthly take-home pay and estimating monthly expenses, including an amount for savings and irregular expenses.

Subtract your expenses from your take home pay. Then reduce this amount by about 10%. This will give you an estimated housing allowance, or about what financial advisors recommend spending for housing expenses

The next step is to compare what you can afford with some typical costs for the rental units you are considering. Be sure to figure in utilities, insurance and other fees that are not covered by rent.

If the monthly housing costs are higher than what you can afford, consider some alternatives. Can you reduce or eliminate some expenses to afford the housing you

Would you consider a roommate to share housing costs? Would the landlord reduce your rent in exchange for help with maintenance? Or do you need to reconsider your choice in favor of a less expensive

When the monthly housing costs are in line with what you can afford, there is still one more set of expenses to consider. What will it cost you to actually move in? These expenses could include utility deposits; security, cleaning, pet or damage deposits; or a month's rent in advance.

Unless you have savings or other income to cover these fees, you may still have difficulty affording the house or apartment.

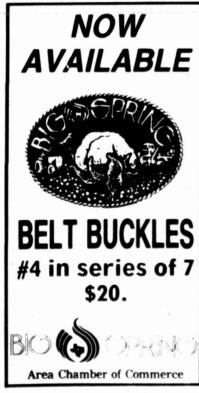

If you are in doubt about supporting a "new place", postponing a move until you have more resources may be a sound financial decision.

RENTER'S INSURANCE IS IMPORTANT

Your landlord's insurance policy covers the structure only and not your personal belongings as a renter. That's why a tenants or renters policy is useful. It insures the contents of your rental unit and your personal possessions against perils such as fire and lightening. wind and hail, explosion, smoke, vandalism and theft. It may also provide for personal liability protection and medical payments to

The cost of the policy depends on the value of your property, the amount of protection, the number of perils protected against, location and type of structure. Costs for the same coverage can vary widely, so comparison shopping can save you money. Most policies have a $50 or $100 deductible clause, and policies with larger deductibles are available.

Remember too, that most insurance coverage takes depreciation of your property into account. For example, if a stereo purchased for $500 is destroyed by fire after five years, the insurance will pay off the actual cash value at the time of loss, not the original cost. Full protection for replacement is available, but usually at a much higher premium.
