Causes of fire and explosion being probed

The Big Spring Fire Department is investigating the cause of a fire that resulted in $10,000 damage to a house, and the explosion of what may be a homemade bomb.

The explosion occurred on Sheppard Lane at 8:13 p.m. Sunday, according to reports. Firefighters discovered no fire and nothing damaged, but found drifting smoke and fragments of what appeared to be a homemade explosive.

Fire Chief Carl Dorton said that a juvenile is involved.

"When you were 12, 13 years old, your adventurous nature occasionally let you try things," he said. "That's what happened in this case."

No one was reported injured in the explosion or the fire, which occurred at 9:47 p.m. Saturday at 810 Creighton.

The wood frame house is owned and occupied by Art Arview, fire department reports said. Dorton said the residents were at home when the fire started.

Although fire department officials are not sure of the cause of the blaze, it appears to have been a bathroom heater, he said.

The bathroom and two adjacent bedrooms were heavily damaged, he said.

Reagan wants budgeting changes

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will use part of his State of the Union address Tuesday night to lambast the federal budget process, but Democrats say it's the players, not the game, who are the real culprits.

As deficits have soared above $200 billion annually and deadlines for composing the spending plan have been missed repeatedly, the president has called for overhauls in the way the government puts together its budget.

"Budget procedures are cumbersome, complex and convoluted," Reagan said Jan. 5 in delivering to Congress his proposed budget for the coming year. "They permit and encourage a process that results in evasion of our duty to the American people to budget their public resources responsibly."

Some Democrats, however, think the real problem lies elsewhere.

"We keep trying to find a way that will force us to do what we haven't had a will to do," Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., Senate Budget Committee chairman, said of efforts to revise the process. "And that is a very collective we."

The president hasn't been willing to come to grips with the deficit, and Congress hasn't been willing to challenge the president," Chiles added.

"It's like saying I need a new carriage when it's what you put in the carriage that is smelling up the place," Rep. William H. Gray III, chairman of the House Budget Committee, said of administration complaints about the budget process. Gray said budgets proposed by Reagan in recent years have been "irrelevant" because of their priorities and vast amounts of red ink.

"The bottom line is the political will needed to make decisions: cuts, where to make them and the revenue side," he said.

The president blames Congress for ignoring some of his spending cut proposals and for approving "excessive and wasteful spending."

But Reagan also wants changes in the budget process, in which Congress is supposed to approve non-binding spending and revenue targets, pass laws establishing government programs and then set out to pass 13 separate bills to finance government agencies each year.

The most recent change was the 1985 Gramm-Rudman law, which requires gradual reductions in the deficit until it is eliminated in 1991. But many of that law's teeth were pulled last year when the Supreme Court invalidated a provision that automatically would have imposed spending cuts.

Reagan probably will not discuss specific revisions in Tuesday's nationally broadcast address to both houses of Congress, budget director James C. Miller III said last week.

"He'll mention the problem (with the process)," Miller said. "We anticipate... specific suggestions and recommendations going up (to Congress) after the State of the Union."

Miller and White House spokesman Albert Brashear have said in recent days the president still is deciding which revisions to suggest. A group of 11 executive branch officials, headed by White House counsel Peter Wallison, have been studying possible BUDGETING page 2A

City Council set to act on bar closings

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

The City Council will address a proposed ordinance to extend the sale of alcoholic mixed beverages until 2 a.m. at its regular meeting at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Airpark conference room.

Also at Tuesday's meeting, the Council will vote on specifications and permission to advertise for bids for a city insurance program.

The Council decided at a work session earlier this month to allow owners of public clubs to decide for themselves whether to remain open the extra two hours from midnight to 2 a.m.

City code now allows private clubs to remain open until that hour, but prohibits public clubs from doing the same. The state will grant a public club a permit to continue selling alcoholic beverages until 2 a.m. if the city ordinance allows it.

The proposed ordinance would allow the sale of mixed beverages, beer and wine until 2 a.m. for establishments with a mixed beverage permit. It would exclude establishments with a permit for beer and wine only.

The issue was raised when a business owner complained that the law is unfair and causes him to lose business.

An ordinance setting the deadline at 2 a.m. for both types of businesses was on a previous Council agenda. However, Councilmen decided then to change the deadline to midnight for private clubs as well, incurring the opposition of some local citizens and business owners.

When Councilmen decided at the Jan. 12 work session to allow the sale until 2 a.m., they said that the change in their decision reflects the wishes of their constituency.

On the insurance issue, the Council decided at the Jan. 12 work session to search for a lower insurance premium when City Finance Director Tom Ferguson revealed that the city's premiums would jump by $100,000 this year.

The increase is for all types of insurance except health, he said, adding that the city pays approximately $425,000 a year for the insurance. The city now insured by Texas Municipal League insurance COUNCIL page 2A

Short honeymoon for Gov. Clements

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — It might have been one of the shortest political honeymoons in recent years. It's only Gov. Bill Clements' second week in office, and the sparring has begun.

Here's the line-up as it now stands:

• Clements said the agriculture commissioner should be appointed, not elected. The current elected agriculture commissioner responded with a comment about Clements' program being made of Silly Putty.

• Clements wants lawmakers to give him authority to transfer emergency funds for prisons. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said Clements "apparently did not understand."

• A Democratic state senator said the Republican governor is not helping by threatening to keep lawmakers in session all year if they don't balance the budget Clements' way.

Despite the spats that could brew into fights, this week in the Legislature is expected to include a harmonious note. The Senate is expected to approve Clements' nomination of Jack Rains as secretary of state, possibly today.

Rains, a lawyer and businessman, won a 6-0 backing from the Senate Nominations Committee last week.

Also on the Senate schedule is the Economic Development Committee's first hearing on bills.

The House Ways and Means Committee and House Appropriations Committee have scheduled organizational meetings this week.

Kidnappers take two more hostages

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Gunmen today kidnapped two men in Moslem west Beirut and one witness said they were foreigners in Moslem west Beirut and one witness said they were foreigners. Police said they had no indication that a group claiming to hold three Americans and an Indian carried out its threat to kill a hostage.

Police said four gunmen snatched the two latest kidnap victims from an office equipment store in the Sanayeh residential district of west Beirut at 11:30 a.m. Police did not identify the victims or their nationalities.

A witness who spoke on condition of anonymity said two gunmen "jumped out of a white Mercedes-Benz, pointed pistols at the two men and dragged them out of the Najjar Continental Store." The witness said the victims spoke broken English.

An employee at the store who also spoke on condition of anonymity said the two victims were "definitely foreigners."

The Reagan administration today condemned the seizure of foreigners as hostages in Lebanon as a declaration of war against civilization, but told Americans there to get out, warning that "there's a limit to what our government can do" for them.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said the government "will not make concessions to terrorist groups despite their threats."

He said it would only endanger other

Americans "to yield to their demands."

Speakes said President Reagan met with his advisers, including Chief of Staff Don Regan and national security adviser Frank Carlucci, to discuss the seizure of three more Americans over the weekend in Lebanon and "certain decisions" were made. But he declined to go into specifics.

Speakes said the U.S. embassy in Beirut would not be closed. Some members of Congress proposed such a measure in view of the danger to Americans.

"Americans who ignored this warning clearly did so at their own risk and their own responsibility," Speakes said.

Girl injured in accident

A Big Spring girl is in satisfactory condition at Lubbock General Hospital after she was injured in a two-car accident Saturday night, Jill Hinckley, public relations director at the hospital, said this morning.

A spokeswoman at Scenic Mountain Medical Center said that 16-year-old Kathryn Burrows, 211 Circle St., was transferred to the Lubbock hospital in stable condition, suffering from head injuries.

Police reports said Burrows was a passenger in a blue Datsun pickup driven by Shauna Jane Adams, 16, 2510 Larry, which was north bound in the 1800 block of Gregg St. when the accident occurred.

The other car, a brown Ford Granada, was driven by Jeremy Jodaniel Weaver, 17, 1209 E. Fifth St. Both drivers and two passengers in Weaver's car, 15-year-old Brian Glover, 1905 Wasson Drive, and 17-year-old Arthur Karwedsky, 609 Caylor, were unhurt.

Weaver, south bound in the 1700 block of Gregg Street, increased his speed above the speed limit in an attempt to clear a traffic light that had turned yellow, police reports said.

The reports said Adams was turning left onto 18th St., failing to yield the right-of-way to Weaver. The cars collided.

Weaver was ticketed for acceleration and failure to maintain financial responsibility, and Adams was ticketed for failure to yield right-of-way.

Budgeting

options. But there are certain proposals that would be palatable to the president.

Reagan has long favored a constitutional amendment that would require a balanced budget, a requirement opponents say would not work because it evades the question of how to achieve it.

He also believes presidents should be able to exercise a line-item veto, which would enable them to reject specific parts of spending bills. Currently, the president can either sign or reject entire appropriations bills, each of which can amount to hundreds of billions of dollars. According to Brashear and Miller, the president may embrace budget process revisions including:

• Placing the government's capital expenditures — money spent to build federal assets such as buildings, highways, sewer systems — in a separate budget.

• Supporters say a capital budget, commonly used by state and local governments, would accurately reflect the costs of federal assets. Opponents say it would mask the true size of the deficit.

• A two-year budgeting process. Supporters say it would reduce the amount of time spent on spending decisions.

Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., ranking Republican on the Budget Committee, says he will introduce a bill Tuesday that would provide for a two-year process.

But opponents say constant fluctuations in the economy — which affect the government's spending and revenues — would make a two-year procedure just as time-consuming.

• Making the congressional budget resolution actual legislation that would have to be signed by the president.

Congress currently approves a non-binding resolution each year, setting the limits for spending and revenue bills the lawmakers consider.

Congress frequently ignores those limits, but supporters say they would be more likely to obey them if the resolution had force of law. Opponents, though, say Congress would not give the president such power.

Many Republicans agree with Reagan's criticisms.

House minority whip Trent Lott, R-Miss., says the process is "too time-consuming, too inhibiting, too confusing and too inefficient," and he has introduced a bill calling for a government-public commission to study the process.

group. Other items on the Council agenda include:

The Council will vote on a request for professional services and permission to advertise for bids for engineering services for the dam.

• Second and final reading of an ordinance authorizing Mize to execute a contract with Parkhill, Smith & Cooper for engineering services to support construction of an airport runway.

• First reading of an ordinance revising the revenue sharing budget.

• Selection of engineers for the Texas Department of Community

Affairs street repairs program.

• Proposed specifications and permission to advertise for bids for portable police radios and vehicles.

• A request from the Howard County Water Control and Improvement District No. 1 to tap the proposed 12-inch Cosden water line.

• First reading of a resolution authorizing Mize to execute an agreement with Howard County regarding the lease of Industrial Park Building No. 487 for the Senior Citizens Center.

• Authorization for the staff to negotiate for right-of-way and land for the South Mountain water storage tanks.

• Consideration for renewal of two mobile home temporary permits.

• Second and final reading of an ordinance authorizing Mize to execute an agreement with the Rain-bow Project for the continued lease of a building.

Gas prices increase

LOS ANGELES — A 3-cent jump in gasoline pump prices over the past two weeks is probably part of a trend as retailers try to recoup mounting costs, an oil industry analyst said. "The price increase appears to be accelerating," Trilby Lundberg, publisher of the Lundberg Letter, said Sunday.

The average retail price, including all grades and all taxes, was 90.96 cents a gallon in the just-completed Lundberg Survey of gasoline prices across the United States.

It was the second time in a row the increase in U.S. average wholesale prices exceeded retail by about 1 cent, Ms. Lundberg said.

"Which tells us two things," she said. "Retailers lost another 1 cent a gallon of their apparent gross margin, and ... there is mounting pressure for wholesale increases to get passed through to motorists."

Trade talks continue

WASHINGTON — U.S. and European negotiators say they will continue talks this week in hopes of averting a bitter trade war over American grain exports.

Willy de Clercq, top trade negotiator for the 12-nation European Community, said both sides would engage in "necessary consultations" and then "resume contact within the next few days in the light of these consultations."

Talks broke off Saturday following a six-hour session with no agreement reached.

"We have been unable to reach agreement today," De Clercq said in a statement. However, he added that "the positions of the two sides have moved closer together."

Roger Bolton, a spokesman for U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter, agreed that the two sides had come closer together "and that's good."

Hostages felt dedication

The four professors kidnapped in Beirut knew of the dangers for Americans in that city, but a dedication to educating their Lebanese students kept them from leaving, according to friends and relatives.

"Very assuredly I would say they were all there because they wanted to be there," said Ina Clare Turner of Moscow, Idaho, the wife of Jesse Jonathan Turner, one of three Americans taken hostage Saturday at Beirut University College.

The others abducted Saturday were Alann Steen, a 47-year-old journalism professor; Robert Polhill, 53, assistant professor of business studies; and business studies division chairman Mithileshwar Singh, an Indian and a legal U.S. resident alien.

In a letter received about 10 days ago by Pete Wilson, a former colleague like Seemann at Humboldt State University in Arcata, Steen wrote, "I feel an obligation to my students for the rest of the year."

Agents of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation wrestle an unidentified man to the ground Saturday at Cumming, Ga., during a march to the Forsyth County Courthouse by more than 20,000 people. Fifty-five people were arrested. Civic leaders are worried about their community's image following the march.

Leaders fret over county image

CUMMING, Ga. (AP) — A white supremacist vowed to oust the politicians who welcomed 25,000 civil rights marchers to white Forsyth County as civic leaders fretted over the community's image as home to "fire-breathing racists."

"The politicians and system stooges are through here," Frank Shirley of the militant White Patriot Party was quoted as saying in Sunday's Forsyth County News. "We're going to put our own candidates in in the next election."

Meanwhile, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference has asked for a federal probe of racial discrimination in housing and employment in the county, said the Rev. Joseph Lowery, president of the civil rights group.

Community leaders, intent on showing the world that most of the county's residents are not racist, had strung a "Welcome To Forsyth County" banner across the route of Saturday's march.

The Cumming-Forsyth County Chamber of Commerce installed portable toilets around town and set up telephones and a vacant storefront for use by reporters; members of the City Council and county commission, local religious leaders and others welcomed the march leaders at the courthouse.

But about 1,000 Ku Klux Klan members and sympathizers jeered the marchers, waving Confederate flags and chanting, "Nigger, go home."

A march a week earlier by about 75 people through the rural county where blacks were terrorized and driven out in 1912 was cut short by rocks and bottles hurled by a mob of about 400 whites.

That prompted the second demonstration, on Saturday, when about 600 police officers and 1,700 National Guardsmen protected the marchers. Three people were treated after being hit by flying objects, and 56 counter-demonstrators were arrested.

Forsyth County will have to overcome the publicity if it wants to attract industry and jobs, said Roger Crow, president-elect of the Cumming-Forsyth County Chamber of Commerce and community spokesman during the disturbances.

China blames reporter

PEKING — The Foreign Ministry today ordered the French news agency Agence France-Presse to transfer from China one of its reporters, an American who allegedly accepted information from a Chinese student.

The reporter, 32-year-old Lawrence MacDonald, has been in Hong Kong for the last few days. It was not clear if he would be allowed to return to Peking.

The action against MacDonald, announced by the official Xinhua News Agency, came one day after the government said a Chinese student was arrested for alleged "secret collusion" with MacDonald.

Xinhua on Sunday quoted the State Security Bureau, China's intelligence agency, as saying that the student, Lin Jie of Tianjin University, had provided intelligence information to MacDonald. Tianjin, a port city east of Peking, was one of at least 11 cities where students held pro-democracy demonstrations in December and early January.

Kohl wins, party loses

BONN, West Germany — Chancellor Helmut Kohl's conservative coalition was elected to another four years in office despite his party's worst showing since 1949 and impressive gains by the anti-NATO Greens.

Kohl's conservative Christian Democrats and their Bavarian allies, the Christian Social Union, won just 44.3 percent of the vote in national elections Sunday, down 4.5 percentage points from 1983.

It was an embarrassing setback for the party that guided West Germany out of the ashes of World War II under Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

"It's like a wedding where the bride doesn't show up," said a commentator on ZDF television.

The official results showed the opposition Social Democrats also slipped from their 1983 returns, winning 37 percent of the vote compared with 1983's 38.2 percent.

Saudi makes claim

PARIS — Saudi millionaire Adnan Khashoggi, a key figure in the Iran arms deal, claimed a British businessman who lent him several million dollars actually owes him $50 million and illegally seized two airplanes and other valuable possessions.

However, the British businessman, Roland Rowland, denied Khashoggi's allegation Sunday.

It is "very sad he is saying these things. He must have gone mad," Rowland said in a telephone interview from London.

He said he lent Khashoggi $2.5 million against a promissory note to back the first of Khashoggi's payments in brokering the secret U.S. arms sales to Iran. Khashoggi, he added, was "the last person man from whom I would borrow money."

Philippines protest deaths

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Government forces fell back today as Cabinet ministers led more than 15,000 marchers arm-in-arm past the presidential palace gates to demand justice for at least 12 protesters slain last week by the military.

President Corazon Aquino, disregarding warnings from advisers, agreed to let the marchers come near her office. She did not put in an appearance.

The protesters marched across Mendiola Bridge, the main approach to the palace where the protesters were shot last Thursday. Then, instead of turning down a side street as planned for a rally, they pressed forward toward the palace gate.

About 600 riot police and 1,000 soldiers deployed in front of Mrs. Aquino's office withdrew. Four firetrucks blocked the street leading to Mrs. Aquino's residence, which is across the street from the palace.

The protesters had planned to hold a rally about 200 yards from the palace. But as their front ranks crossed the bridge, Agriculture Minister Ramon Mitra began shouting, "You're marching through, you're marching through."

Social Services Minister Mita Pardo de Tavera said Mrs. Aquino asked about a dozen Cabinet ministers to join the marchers and insure there would be no clash with the military.

Many of the protesters raised clenched fists, while others wept and sang "Bayan Ko" — "My Country" — the unofficial anthem of the struggle against former President Ferdinand E. Marcos 20-year authoritarian reign.

After passing by the palace, the crowd dispersed without incident.

The government and hospitals have said 12 people were killed in Thursday's shooting when militant farmers demanding land reform tried to push through a police blockade on Mendiola Bridge. Opposition groups put the toll as high as 18. In addition, 94 people were injured.

Presidential spokesman Teodoro Benigno said Mrs. Aquino met for 90 minutes with the march organizers before today's protest began and accepted their demands to remove troops and barriers from the bridge.

"There will be no soldiers, no barricades, no barbed wires," he said. "The march will be allowed to go through unimpeded."

A masked demonstrator holds a sign against the draft constitution during a march Sunday in Manila, Philippines. Thousands of Filipinos demonstrated against the marine shootings last week that left 12 dead.

Benigno said Mrs. Aquino's military advisers told her they could not guarantee her safety in the palace if the protesters were allowed to cross the bridge, but that she overruled them. However, the marchers were not expected to go through the palace gates.

Bayan, the nation's largest leftist organization; the May 1st Movement, the largest labor union; and several student groups took part in the march.

Thousands of leftists set out from a rally at the post office carrying banners denouncing a proposed new constitution and demanding the dismissal of Defense Minister Rafael Ilete, military chief Gen. Fidel V. Ramos and others for Thursday's shootings.

The military was put on "red alert" in the Manila area, and police and constabulary troops set up roadblocks on the city's edge to control people headed for the march.

Several schools along the march route called off classes as a precaution.

Views of other Texas papers

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around the state.

Soviet oil ban an expensive lesson

Texas could be the big winner in the Reagan administration's decision to lift, at long last, a ban on sales of oil and gas drilling equipment to the Soviet Union.

The ban has been in effect for nine years, and it has been a costly period for Texas, which is home to half the U.S. manufacturers of such equipment.

The ban, begun by the Carter administration, was intended to punish the Soviet Union because of the jailing of a number of dissidents, including Anatoly Scharansky. It has failed to do that.

Prior to the ban, American firms had controlled about 35 percent of the world market in oil and gas drilling equipment. Today, the U.S. share has shrunk to .04 percent. The ban has cost U.S. firms almost $2 billion in sales.

It has been an expensive nine-year lesson.

Fort Worth Star-Telegram

Says Hill's 'Texas Plan' superior

In 1982, some 23 incumbent Republican judges were swept from office in Texas because they had the misfortune to be Republicans in a year when a lot of Texas voters pulled the Democratic Party lever.

Two years later, 16 incumbent Democratic judges lost their jobs when partisan fortunes shifted and a lot of Texans voted the straight GOP ticket.

That's why judicial reform is so important. Texans can't afford to continue allowing judges to be elected and rejected on the basis of blind luck, partisan fortunes or mere whim.

The question facing Texas lawmakers is whether any of the proposed alternatives to popular election promises better results. The answer is yes — John Hill's so-called "Texas Plan," promises higher quality nominees while retaining the public's right to remove any judge from the bench.

Social Security plan commended

The responsibility Texas employers must shoulder under terms of the new immigration reform law will be made easier as the Social Security Administration this month begins a pilot program to allow employers to determine whether job applicants are illegal aliens.

Texas' Sen. Phil Gramm gets credit for suggesting a Social Security number verification system and a new tamper-proof card.

Employers who use the system will receive a written record of the verification as evidence they complied with the law by making an effort to determine whether new employees have legal status.

The plan is a step in the right direction and should be welcomed by Texas and the nation's employers.

Rep. Wright is 'off to a right start'

Will Rep. James C. Wright Jr. make a good Speaker of the United States House of Representatives?

Jim Wright's partisan colleagues expect him to be a loyal leader, a sort of automatic spokesman for policies, while others expect him to be above narrow confines of party politics.

Speaker Wright cannot be stereotyped, but there are clues, if not conclusions, as to how history's verdict may treat him. He is a man of conviction, as he has demonstrated in such sensitive areas as the deficit and tax reform, and that means he is a party man of principle.

Secondly, and significantly, he said the other day he believes in cooperation rather than confrontation. With that, Jim Wright is off to a good start as the 51st Speaker of the House.

Supreme Court ruling gives hope

Women's movement leaders might disagree on whether the Supreme Court's decision on leaves for pregnant women is a victory. But the ruling does give hope for equality — for men and women.

Perhaps the most revealing comment was made by Justice Thurgood Marshall in the opinion he wrote for the court. "By taking pregnancy into account, California's pregnancy disability leave statute allows women, as well as men, to have families without losing their jobs."

The important phrase here is "as well as men."

El Paso's new parental leave law might well be taken as an example. In December, City Council voted to give new fathers three weeks parental leave. A new father had requested the six weeks leave given to women.

The now-legislated three weeks, plus up to two more in sick leave, reduced time off for women ... to five (weeks). But it was a compromise that granted equality to new fathers and mothers.

Hinckley pass seen as mockery

Perhaps we shouldn't be surprised to learn that John Hinckley Jr., the man who shot President Reagan and three other men in 1981, was temporarily freed from the mental hospital where he has been held to enjoy a 12-hour Christmas reunion with his family.

After all, the verdict in his trial of not guilty by reason of insanity made a mockery of justice, so why shouldn't the miscarriage continue with an occasional vacation for Hinckley?

But even though the handling of Hinckley's case has disappointed many Americans, we would have at least hoped that he would remain incarcerated in some manner, even if it's at the comfortable mental hospital where he has been since 1982.

The real tragedy in this whole affair is that a man who committed one of the most serious crimes possible in America has escaped real punishment.

New reason is found to stay in bed

By STEPHEN CHAPMAN
I don't ask a lot of the people who decide what goes out over the TV airwaves. Most of the time our paths don't intersect at all. We have a deal: They broadcast what they please, and I leave the set off.

Not that I'm a snob on the subject. I avoid not only "Dynasty" and "The A-Team" (if there is still an A-Team), but the Sunday morning news programs and all those nutritious documentaries on public TV as well.

But anyone with a job, a commute, a wife, a small child, a few books and a VCR has more than enough to occupy himself without a regular commitment to ABC's Tuesday night lineup. So if the network moguls want to broadcast wall-to-wall toxic waste every day and night, they won't bother me.

With one exception. For 30 minutes or so every morning before work, it would be nice to be able to catch up on events with a brisk, no-nonsense news program. A run-through of the day's top stories, an interview with a Cabinet officer or senator, a couple of reports from overseas correspondents, an update on the price of gold and the weather in Montana — it's not much to ask, is it?

As far back as I can remember, anyone with that preference could tune in the CBS Morning News. Now, I am nothing if not loyal. I have watched the Morning News through a succession of anchors — Hughes Rudd, Sally Quinn, Morton Dean, Connie Chung, Charles Kuralt, Diane Sawyer, Bill Kurtis, Phyllis George and more. Some I liked, some I detested, but my loyalty to the show was steadfast.

My reward is "The Morning Program," which debuted recently on CBS, taking over most of the time formerly occupied by the news. (The Morning News, in a stripped-down form, airs earlier.) It is to the Morning News what the National Enquirer is to the Sunday Times of London.

It features a homey set, game show music, a ditty blonde, a golden retriever and a comedian. Or two comedians. Or three. Also news — about 13 seconds of it every half hour.

The irrepressible Phyllis George won't be suggesting, at the end of an interview with Cathy Webb and Gary Dotson, that the two hug. (The suggestion was declined.) You ain't seen nothing yet. The hostess of "The Morning Program" makes Phyllis George look about as warm as Richard Nixon.

"Friendly" is the relentless theme. "We want to be your friendly morning wakeup call," Mariette Hartley pleaded on the first day. Everyone who shows up on the set is "a personal friend. Anyone who shrinks from public displays of affection will find an appearance unpleasant."

That is apparently how Hartley's co-host, Roland Smith, finds it. Assailed by Hartley's dumb jokes and presumptuous questions, he maintains a tense smile, looking as uncomfortable as an Episcopalian at a nudist camp. The first day, Hartley said Smith is a "newsman and journalist." From his demeanor, he probably knew what some viewers were thinking: "Not anymore, he's not."

Journalists do not preside over shows which feature taped personal ads from people looking for mates. The only conclusion to be drawn from this innovation is that there is no limit to what some people will endure in order to get on national TV.

Some of us got all the laughs we needed from the old show's interviews with politicians. Now we have to sit through a daily comedy routine.

Loyal fans of CBS' morning programs have put up with a lot. With each disaster, we have consoled ourselves with the confidence that things can't get any worse, only to be proved wrong. What's alarming to consider is that "The Morning Program" may not be the worst show CBS can produce. Come back, Phyllis George. All is forgiven.

Pentagon studies possible Russian invasion of Iran

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's defenders have invoked the specter of a Soviet invasion of Iran as justification for the backdoor arms deal with the Ayatollah Khomeini's henchmen. This would give the Soviet Union a stranglehold on the Persian Gulf, source of half the Western world's oil.

Critics of the secret arms deal have scoffed. But in fact Pentagon strategists have been warning for years of a possible Soviet invasion during the chaos that is expected to follow Khomeini's deaths.

This is a contingency that must be reckoned with — and planned against. As early as 1982, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger focused his secret "Defense Guidance" on the assumption of just such a Soviet attack.

So White House apologists at least have the Pentagon's scenario writers to point to. Whether the military's fears are valid, and whether clandestine actions should have been taken on the basis of war-game scenarios, is open to debate.

In any case, details of the "Defense Guidance" documents make fascinating, if macabre, reading. Our associate Donald Goldberg has obtained some of the secret strategic planning papers, which are prepared annually to cover military planning for the following five years. The armed services use these guides to allocate their people and material around the world.

The Pentagon's concern over a Soviet invasion of Iran is nothing new. As we first reported in 1981, the Soviets staged a mock invasion of their neighbor in the fall of 1980, testing their command, control and communications system near the Iranian border.

The timing of the exercise suggested that it may have been merely a show of strength intended to dissuade President Carter from a second military attempt to rescue the American hostages in Tehran.

By 1984, when the Defense Guidance for the years 1985 through 1989 was prepared, a Soviet invasion of Iran was the most important "illustrative planning scenario" upon which to base force development planning for the 1993 time frame and to assess risks in programmed forces.

The scenarios "realistically portray enemy capabilities as indicated by current intelligence estimates," although they were not intended as "a prediction of future events."

The chilling scenario used in that document supposes that 24 Soviet divisions would invade some two months after the central authority in Tehran begins to break down, presumably following Khomeini's death or some disruption of equal magnitude. Full-scale — but not nuclear — engagement between Soviet and U.S. forces begins 30 to 40 days after the Soviet invasion.

Meanwhile, according to the war-game scenario, NATO and Warsaw Pact troops begin fighting in Central Europe, starting with a Soviet bloc attack by 90 divisions. Simultaneously, North Korea attacks South Korea, necessitating a swift American infusion of reinforcements there.

The 1984-88 Defense Guidance written a year earlier uses roughly the same sequence of events on which to base U.S. military capabilities, though it includes a warning that the scenario should not be regarded as "approved war plans." However, the invasion scenario is intended to be the basis on which the armed services allocate their resources.

Interestingly, the main scenarios set out in the Defense Guidance do not include an escalation of superpower hostilities to the point of nuclear exchange.

But a contingency plan does postulate the delivery of 19 nuclear bombs by B-52 bombers against the Soviet troops invading Iran. This "limited strategic option" suggests that somehow nuclear warfare could be confined to Iran.

DRAFT DODGERS: Since 1982 the Soviet puppet regime in Afghanistan has been conscripting 15-year-olds to fight the mujahidin.

It's one way of keeping teenagers from joining the anti-communist guerrillas as soon as they're big enough to hold a rifle.

But despite its continuing need for cannon fodder, the regime defers one whole group of youngsters who might be expected to be zealously pro-Soviet: students in families of Communist Party members.

These elite offspring are allowed to continue their studies, in some cases even going to the Soviet Union and elsewhere for university training.

MINI-EDITORIAL: The ethnic/nationalist riots in Soviet Kazakhstan are obviously an embarrassment to the Kremlin, but they appear to have totally unhinged Soviet Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov.

On a recent visit to Helsinki, he characterized the rioters as "youth from a degenerate class."

Jack Anderson's investigative report from Washington is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Constitution Daybook

Friday, Jan. 26, 1787
PHILADELPHIA TODAY

The weather was still with a morning temperature of 35 and light rain.

The Philadelphia Street Commissioners met, all six present, and paid Michael Wartinan 50 pounds on account for cleaning the streets, as scavenger for the Northern District.

Stable-keeper, local official and diarist Jacob Hiltzheimer reported today that he and five others, including Wartinan, had met with the street commissioners in Front Street below Dock yesterday evening, perhaps to determine the value of the work Wartinan had done.

Philadelphia brewer Thomas Morris brewed 60 bushels of malt and 86 pounds of good hops and produced 15 barrels of keeping beer and nine barrels of small beer.

CONFEDERATION TODAY
Delegates from five states and Arthur St. Clair of Pennsylvania continued to wait for a congressional quorum. New York appointed new delegates for 1787 — John Haring, Melancton Smith, Abraham Yates Jr., Egbert Benson and John Lansing Jr.

John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, commissioners for negotiating a treaty with Morocco, wrote Congress enclosing the treaty, reporting a lack of information on the status of the treaty with Portugal, and noting that money was so scarce that they would spend no more on thout further orders. They also wrote His Excellency Sidi Hadq Taher Ben Abdellack Fennish, secretary to the emperor of Morocco, to thank him for forwarding the treaty.

DELEGATES TODAY
Connecticut's William Samuel Johnson reported it was foggy in New York. He spent the day reading and writing, paid Barrows' room rent of 52 shillings and had daily expenses of 13 shillings. Madison and Mr. Griffith left Mt. Vernon after breakfast; the former for New York and his seat in Congress. George Washington then rode to his plantations, starting the ditchers at work on the boundary between the home and Ferry plantations.

Benjamin Franklin paid John Hall 40 pounds on account for carpentry and Benjamin and Enoch Taylor 35 pounds on account for laying brick — all at the houses he was building on Market Street.

LOOKING BACK
Morocco and the Barbary Pirates

In 1787, the United States had treaties of friendship and commerce with France, the Netherlands and Spain, and was about to ratify one with Portugal, and had signed one with Morocco. What put Morocco ahead of Prussia, the Italian states, Russia, Denmark and Turkey?

The reason was hostage-taking by countries along North Africa's Mediterranean coast. In 1787, the Barbary states — Algiers, Morocco, Tripoli and Tunis — supplemented their revenue by seizing foreign ships and holding the crews for ransom. On Jan. 26, 1787, Algiers was holding two captains, four mates and 15 seamen. The estimated ransom, at $6,000 for each captain, $4,000 for each mate and $1,500 for each seaman, totaled $50,500.

Holiday mail brings men in uniform joy

DEAR READERS: Don Grimes, chairman of the America Remembers Campaign, asked me to help America remember their men and women in uniform who would be away from their homes during the holidays. "We'll call it 'Operation Dear Abby II,'" he said. I said, "Yes! Dear Abby readers are the nicest people in the world." Well, you didn't let me down. Don called to say that when he arrived in Germany and visited the offices where our servicemen were working, they were inundated with bags of mail. Handmade cards and decorations sent by school children covered walls and hung from Christmas trees.

Dear Abby

These young men were 18, 19 and 20 years old, and many of them had never been away from home before. Shouts of laughter filled the air as they opened the envelopes, exchanging with others so each would get mail from their home state. After working a long hard day, they were still up until 3 a.m. opening mail!

The avalanche received in Korea was so voluminous that they had to ship some of the mail to our troops in Japan! Read on:

DEAR ABBY: A great big thank you from all of us on Okinawa. I'm assistant charge nurse of the Newborn Nursery at the U.S. Naval Hospital here, and cards and letters made their way up to our ward.

Being away from family and loved ones during the holidays is extremely difficult, but that mail assured us that we had not been forgotten. A heartfelt thanks to all who participated.

CONNIE PENNELL, LT., U.S. NAVY

DEAR ABBY: I am a sergeant in the U.S. Air Force stationed at Osan Air Base, Korea. You cannot imagine the excitement that mail created when it hit this base! I hope that everyone who wrote to us receives a response. Thanks, Abby, for making this the best possible Christmas the troops could have so far from home.

TOM CASTLE

DEAR ABBY: The men and women of the 122nd Signal Base in Korea want to express our sincere appreciation for all the wonderful letters and cards that came our way because of Operation Dear Abby II. It made us all feel closer to home during the holidays.

GINNY PARKER, CAMP CASEY

DEAR ABBY: When you printed the addresses of remote bases, I decided to write to someone just for fun. Since then, I've been corresponding with Col. Ken Jones. He's stationed in Cuba now, but he'll be out in April and I'm sure we will meet. My own brother goes in to the Army in a few weeks and I hope somebody writes to him. Thanks, Abby, for making sure our troops were remembered.

KELLY ROGERS

DEAR ABBY: I am on a ship overseas. I have a beautiful wife and two lovely children back home, and I miss them very much. I couldn't believe the sacks of mail from good-hearted people from all over the U.S.A. Our ship alone got at least 10,000.

The outpouring of love and support was unbelievable. Please tell your readers how grateful we are.

TIMOTHY WOODS, ON THE U.S.S. VINSON

DEAR ABBY: Just a note to say thank you! I haven't been in Seoul, Korea, long enough for my own family to send cards and letters for Christmas. But when I went to the recreation center yesterday, there they were — stacks of mail! I picked out those from my home state, and one of those letters contained the warmest holiday greeting I had ever received.

Tell your readers that this was the most wonderful thing they could have done for all of us serving our country so far away from our loved ones.

PVT. J. JOHNSON, SEOUL, KOREA

P.S. And now I am hearing from readers saying they were delighted and surprised to receive letters of warm gratitude from our men and women in uniform who were the recipients of their holiday greetings. Aren't people wonderful!

DEAR ABBY: My co-workers and I have a supervisor I'll call John Smith. To make a long story short, John got a college graduate degree by correspondence. It took only a short period of time, and to my knowledge the college (in California) is not accredited.

Anyway, there is now a diploma on the wall in John's office that says: Doctor of Philosophy in Small Business Management. He is beginning to introduce himself to new clients and in correspondence as "Dr. Smith." So far, he hasn't asked any of us to address him as "Doctor"; but what should we do if he requests it?

G.R. IN NORMANGEE, TEXAS

DEAR G.R.: Since he is your supervisor, should he ask you to call him "Doctor," though it may be a hard pill to swallow, call him "Doctor."

Get stiff joints examined

By NYU MEDICAL CENTER

Joint stiffness should not be attributed to the normal aches of aging unless a doctor confirms that diagnosis, according to an expert at the New York University Medical Center.

"Although some stiffness may be associated with normal aging after age 50, it can also signal serious underlying disease, especially if pain occurs," reported Dr. Marshall A. Mundheim, assistant professor of clinical medicine and a rheumatology specialist at the center.

Mundheim explained that as we age, there is some loss of moisture and elasticity in the tissues that surround our joints. In particular, the back, shoulders and hips may become flexible and may feel stiff, especially in the morning. He stresses this should be painless.

However, Mundheim urges a complete evaluation for anyone who experiences joint stiffness. "It is important to determine whether joint symptoms are due solely to aging or whether further diagnostic studies are needed to identify the underlying cause of the problem," he said.

Stiffness without pain may be an early warning sign of neurological illness, such as Parkinson's disease, or muscular disorder. When pain is present, Mundheim noted it often indicates there is some sort of rheumatic disorder, or a form of arthritis. He added that the same symptoms can indicate thyroid disease, a medication reaction, hidden infections of the heart or other organs, or cancer.

In older people, the most common cause of joint stiffness, swelling and pain is osteoarthritis, a degenerative joint disease that affects almost everyone beyond a certain age.

Surgery tried in chronic headache

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a man, 45 years old, healthy and holding down a responsible position. Things have become difficult for me, for I am one of those people who have the cluster-type headaches, so diagnosed several years ago. Of late (last year) they have become worse, happening just about daily. Medicine now does not help them, either in avoiding or alleviating the pains. My sympathetic doctor has referred me to a well-known local neurologist, who is considering me for surgery. Do you know of surgery for this problem and how successful it is? — V.R.

Dr. Donohue

The surgery is to deaden or destroy the nerves causing the pain. I am sure you are aware this surgery is not without potential after-effects, like chronic numbness in nerve area. Nor can success in ending the headaches themselves be assured.

It's an option for those in whom the headaches have become disabling. Your situation is not unusual. Some people experience cluster headache in two phases. In the first, they have the headaches in clusters for weeks or months only to have them disappear entirely for extended periods. They then live in dread of the next episode. Some of these people subsequently enter a chronic phase, with headaches occurring daily and continuously.

For these people, the surgery is considered. Many have suffered such headaches for years. I cannot cite for you chances of emerging from surgery pain-free. In a recent report, doctors at the Mayo Clinic performed surgery on 26 cluster headache patients. Based on follow-up studies, they reported that results were excellent in about 50 percent of them, good to fair in 15 percent, and poor in the rest.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: It is a fact that women should take calcium for good health. I am 58 and in excellent health except for some burstitis in the shoulder. Will calcium tablets help the burstitis, make it worse, or have no effect at all? — Mrs. O.B.

The calcium tablets will have no effect at all on the burstitis.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am 59. Recently, my doctor told me X-rays showed some calcification of my aorta. He told me to go on a low-fat diet. Will you discuss calcification of the aorta and how rare it is? Will the diet correct it, or just keep it under control? — Mrs. H.

Plenty of 59-year-olds have some aortic calcification. It would be nice for all of us to have a clear arterial system, but some amount of calcification is inevitable.

Calcification is the body's way of plastering over stress points, and the aorta, being the largest of the body's arteries, gets its share of stress over the years.

Your low-fat diet will help minimize further calcification. If fatty buildups occur in arteries, they, too, become calcified with time as the body continues its never-ending patch up work.

In another part of your letter, you tell me you passed the recent checkup with good marks. If that included a blood pressure well within limits, you can mark that as another plus factor for aortic health. High blood pressure is a negative factor in connection with aortic calcification. I'll bet this never becomes a serious problem for you.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: In your booklet on fitness you explain how to take a pulse to measure aerobic exercise effectiveness. My question is, can a person take that pulse at the neck artery? — Mrs. W.J.

Stick with the wrist artery to get your pulse. Compression of the neck artery can produce a reduced heart rate. Are you having trouble getting your wrist pulse? Many people do and give up too easily. Keep it up and you will get the hang of it.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What is aphakia? What causes it? How is it treated? — Mrs. A.L.

It means absence of the eye's lens. It almost always refers to the situation after cataract surgery (where the lens is removed). And you tell me in another part of your letter you have had that done. Treatment? Today, a plastic lens can be slipped into the place vacated by the old natural one, or special magnifying lenses can be used to provide vision.

Millions of out-of-shape men and women desire fitness, but shy away from formal programs because they think it's all too complicated and difficult. Dr. Donohue's newest booklet, "Introduction to Fitness," puts the exercise terminology of aerobics in to plain language and offers a fitness program anyone, regardless of age, can adapt.

Deliberations set in Fredeman case

BEAUMONT — About five of the 26 present or former employees of marine-service companies who testified against William F. Fredeman Jr. and Henry F. Fredeman were granted immunity, an assistant U.S. attorney said.

During closing arguments Friday in the Fredemans' trial, defense attorneys said prosecutors were misled by former Fredeman employees who hated their bosses or wanted to cover up their own misdeeds.

But some of those witnesses who said they knew of widespread fuel thefts from Fredeman customers still work for the family-owned companies on their own and had no reason to lie, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Mike Bradford.

Deliberations were set for today in the federal racketeering trial of the Fredeman brothers, their three towing companies and eight other employees.

The jury in U.S. District Judge Sam Hall's court was to consider racketeering, obstruction of justice and mail fraud charges.

If jurors find William Jr., 49, and Henry, 46, both of Groves, and their companies guilty of racketeering they also will decide if the brothers must forfeit ownership in the companies to the federal government.

Hall will assess any penalties against individual defendants. Each racketeering conviction has a possible penalty of up to 20 years in federal prison.

A federal grand jury last April charged the brothers, their father, William F. Fredeman Sr. of Port Arthur, and 15 employees with conspiracy to steal $40 million of tow boat fuel from customers of Port Arthur Towing Co., Channel Fueling Service and Fredeman Shipyards.

Woman charged with selling baby

HOUSTON — Authorities say a woman tried to sell a 7-week-old baby for $10,000 to an undercover police officer after she allegedly drugged the child's mother.

Ronda Elaine Harris, 32, remained in the Harris County Jail in lieu of $22,000 bond on charges of aggravated kidnapping and child sale, a jail spokeswoman said Sunday.

Houston police juvenile Sgt. J.B. Woodruff said Ms. Harris had spread the word on the street that she had a baby for sale. An undercover vice officer contacted Ms. Harris about buying the baby and arranged to hand over $10,000 in cash for the child.

Before leaving the apartment she shared with the baby's mother, Ms. Harris allegedly put a strong drug in the woman's drink, incapacitating her so the baby could be taken, Assistant District Attorney Pat Kelley said.

The baby's mother, Michelle Berge, 27, said she met Ms. Harris several weeks ago at a food stamp office and later offered to house and shelter her and the baby in return for housekeeping chores and child care.

Justice Department may sue firms

WASHINGTON — A Baker International Corp. executive said he was optimistic about a proposed merger with Hughes Tool Co. despite opposition from the Department of Justice.

The Justice Department's anti-trust division.

The Justice Department had indicated it would drop its opposition to the merger if Baker were to sell off its rock bit and pump operations, said Max Luken, vice president and chief financial officer of the Orange, Calif., firm.

"We're still in the negotiation process and we're very happy and optimistic about the eventual outcome," Luken said in a telephone interview from his California home. He wouldn't say how the company was willing to change the merger agreement to meet the department's objections.

Customs agent says rules unfair

HARLINGEN — American chambers of commerce are helping Mexican truckers gain an unfair advantage over U.S. truckers along the border, says a veteran U.S. Customs agent.

The twin plants, or maquiladoras, straddle the U.S.-Mexico border where Mexican workers assemble American parts into various products.

Tijerina said allowing Mexican trucks to make deliveries along the border unfairly competes with local truckers because Mexican drivers are paid only about $3 a day. And their trucks aren't subjected to the same rigid safety inspection requirements as U.S. trucks.

Tijerina, who has spent most of his 17-year career along the border, said the Mexicans need to do business in the U.S. worse than Americans need to do business in Mexico. He said the Mexicans would adjust to regulatory changes much like they do to bridge toll and fee increases, which also are usually opposed by border town chambers of commerce.

Remains of missing woman found

AUSTIN — Authorities have identified the skeletal remains found in the back of a submerged car as those of a woman missing for over three years.

ly things we've discovered are her belongings," Bayardo said.

The car was removed from Town Lake near the Interstate 35 bridge Saturday by firefighters who removed several vehicles from the water.

The remains were discovered in the back seat of the car, Bayardo said. He said the car's ignition was on and the gearshift was between reverse and park.

The remains were those of Betty Ratliff Bewley, 58, who disappeared July 13, 1983, after leaving the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Austin, said Dr. Robert Bayardo, Travis County medical examiner.

The bones were found Saturday inside a car that was submerged in Town Lake.

A suspect is in custody in another state on an unrelated charge, police said Sunday. Officers said the man was questioned by police at the time of Ms. Bewley's disappearance but was never charged because he body was not found.

The man was in custody at an undisclosed location before the body was found, but police would not discuss evidence linking the man to Ms. Bewley's disappearance.

The condition of the remains made it impossible to determine the exact cause of death, Bayardo said. He said there is no evidence that Ms. Bewley was shot or stabbed, but he could not rule out strangulation as the cause of death.

The medical examiner said the woman apparently died soon after she was reported missing by her son, Robert Bewley.

"There is no sign of a struggle inside the car," said Bayardo, who conducted the preliminary autopsy.

Officers spent much of Sunday searching Ms. Bewley's car.

"We've been all through it looking for bullets or a knife, but the on-

Farmers watch first few Chapter 12 cases

FORT WORTH — Analysts predict a new provision in federal bankruptcy laws designed to help farmers stay in business may have the negative effect of scaring away agriculture lenders.

Congress established Chapter 12 of the bankruptcy code in November to give farmers last-chance protection from creditors while the landowners reorganize their debts.

But some industry observers say the law may cause bankers to shy away from making new loans to farmers.

The Chapter 12 provision forces lenders for farmers with up to $1.5 million in farm-related debts to write off the difference between the face value of the debts owed and the depressed value of today's farm assets.

Experts say the write-offs probably will run in the tens of thousands of dollars, often into the hundreds of thousands of dollars on each loan.

"We definitely will take a stronger look at repayment ability," said Gary Vaughn, vice president for loan administration at the Federal Land Bank of Texas in Austin. "And that's not to say we haven't already been doing so in the past."

The Federal Land Bank has $2.5 billion in farm real estate loans and is one of three Farm Credit Banks of Texas, the largest single lender to farmers in the state.

Chapter 12 will not necessarily cause his institution to refuse farm loans, Vaughn said. But provisions of the chapter might cause the system to set limits on farm loans based on the Chapter 12 write-downs for the value of the collateral, he said.

Only seven of about 50,000 borrowers in the Farm Credit Banks of Texas have filed Chapter 12 petitions, Vaughn said.

About 30 West Texas Farmers are said to be in the process of filing Chapter 12 petitions, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Sunday. Officials at the U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Fort Worth say only two Chapter 12 petitions have been filed there, both from Wichita Falls-area farmers.

Bruce Magness, a Lubbock lawyer who specializes in farmers' legal problems, says only about 5 percent of the nation's bankrupt farmers have been able to get the required creditors' approval to reorganize and continue under the Chapter 11 bankruptcy code.

Chapter 11 is the common route for troubled businesses seeking protection from creditors.

Chapter 12, like Chapter 11, forces the farmer to develop a plan to reorganize debt.

Giants Super Bowl champs

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The New York Giants had it all. They were relentless. They were innovative. They were lucky. And they had the one ingredient that was doubted: the quarterback.

In the Super Bowl which would certify John Elway's status as football's most dynamic and dangerous quarterback, it was Phil Simms who starred. He merely was the hottest quarterback in NFL playoff history, setting a record for passing efficiency by completing 22 of 25 — 88 percent — as the Giants won their first NFL championship since 1956 Sunday with a 39-20 romp over the Denver Broncos.

They did it with all the power they displayed during a 14-2 regular season that was capped by a nine-game winning streak, and in two playoff games they won by scoring 66 points and allowing three.

They did it with a big-play offense bolstered by some trickery and piloted by Simms, a quarterback who silenced his critics with a near-perfect passing performance.

"This dispelled for the last time any myth about Phil Simms," Giants Coach Bill Parcells said. "He was absolutely magnificent today. ... He quarterbacked as good a game as ever had been played."

Simms passed for 268 yards and three touchdowns. He dueled Elway on nearly even terms in the first half, then led a Giants assault in the second half by hitting a Super Bowl-record 10 straight passes.

"In my wildest dreams, I couldn't have hoped it would work out this way," Simms said. "Everything we tried I felt was there. I didn't throw one ball today where I said, 'I wish I had that one back.'"

"It was really close to perfect." In the first quarter, it was exactly that for Simms and Elway. They staged a dazzling shootout in which Simms hit all six of his passes on a 78-yard TD drive. Elway came right back by connecting on four straight throws and scoring from four yards on a quarterback draw.

No Super Bowl had ever seen such precision passing from the outstart.

a sweep of the World Series-Super Bowl crowns for the 1986 seasons, were supposed to win this game with defense. And their defenders were superb in the third quarter, holding Denver to two yards total offense. But they had been pushed around in the first half and, team captain Harry Carson said, the difference was Simms and the offense.

"Phil Simms really came through in the clutch," Carson said. "He's probably the biggest reason we won it."

Simms was near perfect

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Tears, hugs, joy and most of all relief.

It was also the biggest moment of Simms' life. He completed a Super Bowl record 22 of 25 passes for 268 yards and three touchdowns, once and for all proving the Giants made the right choice in making him a No. 1 draft pick in 1979.

"In my wildest dreams I couldn't have hoped it would work out this way," said Simms, named the game's most valuable player. "I don't know what everyone will think of when they think of the Giants, but it doesn't matter. They can't say that we were never world champions and I'm proud of that."

The New York Giants exorcised the ghosts of seasons past with a 39-20 victory over the Denver Broncos Sunday in the Super Bowl.

"No matter what people say about our team, whether the Giants don't look good anymore or what they want, as long as I live I'll always have a Super Bowl ring," NFL MVP Lawrence Taylor said. "For one time in my career, we'll be considered the best in the world." There was no question about that after the second half at the Rose Bowl. The Giants dominated in winning their 12th straight and for the 17th time in 19 games this season.

Breakdowns doom Broncos

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Leading 10-7 in the second quarter, Denver had first-and-goal at the Giants 1-yard line. The Broncos were poised to take command of the Super Bowl and force New York out of its game plan.

Then the Broncos broke down. Denver didn't get the touchdown, failing on three running plays. Worse still, they didn't even manage a field goal as Rich Karlis was wide right from 23 yards.

And as if that weren't enough to kill their momentum, moments later quarterback John Elway was sacked in the end zone by George Martin for a safety. Then Karlis missed yet another field goal, also to the right, from 34 yards.

Denver, although up 10-9 at halftime Sunday, was left to ponder in the locker room what might have been.

With scarcely a dissenting voice, the underdog Broncos had proclaimed all week the necessity of playing a perfect game if they were to defeat New York. What they got instead was a series of decidedly imperfect breakdowns that spelled a 39-20 Giants' victory for the NFL championship.

In approximate order of importance, the errors were:

— The two missed field goals by Karlis, who ironically had been the hero of Denver's 23-20 AFC championship game victory over Cleveland.

— Faulty execution on the first-and-goal at the 1.

— Only two net yards on their first three possessions of the second half.

— The Broncos even lost a pair of instant-replay decisions.

"To have a chance, we knew we had to do something with every scoring opportunity," Denver Coach Dan Reeves said. "We had a first-and-goal at the 1, and instead of seven points (or three) we came away with none."

"I called those three plays and I felt good about each one. I'd like to have them back. I don't know what happened. On the first-down play, the fullback and guard are supposed to be out front. That was really disappointing."

On their next series, Elway was dumped for the safety. On the previous play, tight end Clarence Kay dived for a low pass, which the officials ruled he trapped. Instant replay official Art McNally let the incomplete call stand, saying the replay was inconclusive.

"I had the ball all the way," Kay said. "There was no doubt in my mind. That was probably the biggest play of the game right there, and when they got that sack it changed the momentum of the game."

Added Reeves: "I wear glasses, but he caught the football. I don't care what the instant replay said."

A subsequent replay review let stand an incomplete call on an Elway pass to Steve Denver Broncos kicker Rich Karlis wipes a tear as he talks to reporters after the Broncos lost to the New York Giants in Super Bowl XXI. Karlis missed two field goal attempts in the first half.

Sewell. "Certainly the missed field goals hurt us," Reeves said. "How much, I don't know. We should have had about 10 more points in the half."

Whether 10 more points would have significantly affected the second half is anybody's guess. By the time the Broncos made their initial first down in the second half, the Giants had taken a 33-10 lead.

"We couldn't get our offense going in the second half," Elway said. "Give the Giants credit for playing great defense."

And for playing great offense. Phil Simms, who completed 22 of 25 passes for 268 yards, led the Giants to 24 straight points.

"They kept us off-balance," Denver linebacker Jim Ryan said. "They threw more than we thought they would on first down, and they ran on second down. They also ran a lot against our nickel coverages. They went counter to many of their tendencies."

A tearful Karlis blamed faulty mechanics for his two misses.

"I pushed them, I blocked them to the right," he said. "I just didn't get my hips through. Maybe I tried to steer them. I just really hurt our momentum at the time. I feel like I let everyone down."

Despite the disappointment, the Broncos quickly adopted a wait-til-next-year attitude.

"You don't come in here satisfied to just be here," Reeves said. "We'll handle it better the next time."

Gridders make all-state

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Three Big Spring Steers were named to the Class AAAA All-State football team, selected by coaches and sportswriters throughout the state.

Leading the way was junior safety-punter Brian Mayfield who made first teams by as a defensive back and punter. Also named to the all-state team were junior offensive tackle Matt Burrow and senior defensive end Deeg Young. Both made the second team. It was the most players Big Spring has had named to the all state teams in the last five seasons.

Mayfield, a 6-5, 185-pounder was just recently named by the Abilene Reporter-News as the All-Area Defensive Player of the Year. He also made the squad as punter. Ironically Mayfield shared punting duties with John Olsen. Mayfield was also named to the All-District, Crossroads Country, All-West Texas and All-South Plains teams.

As a punter he averaged 43.2 yards per punt and had a longest of 72 yards. As a safety, he led the Steers in interceptions with six and made 34 tackles. He also ran a fake punt for an 88 yard touchdown.

Coach Quinn Eudy had nothing but praise for his junior star. "Anytime we got down deep in our own territory Brian would do the punting. He has great leg strength and quickness. He's also very intelligent and made a lot of defensive adjustments. He developed into a real good hitter this year and was always aware of where the ball was," said Eudy.

Burrow, a 6-2, 200 pound right offensive tackle adds his all-state selection to a list of honors. He made the all-district, Crossroads Country, All-West Texas, All-Area and All-South Plains teams. He is a two year letterman.

Big Spring defensive coordinator Scott Knippa says Burrow's mental game keeps him ahead of the rest.

"Matt Burrow is probably the most talented lineman I've ever coached," said Knippa. "He's very coachable, you can tell him to do something and he'll do it. He catches on real quick."

"He's so smart, on and off the field. He's got a grade average of about 96 and it carries over on the field. That's what makes it so fun coaching someone like Matt, you don't have to keep repeating yourself. When we needed short yardage, 90 percent of the time we ran to his side."

Young, a 6-0, 185-pounder, had a stellar season for the Steers. He was the team's second leading tackler with 66 stops, playing a position that sometimes called for him to drop back into pass coverage.

Young hurt his knee in the season's last regular season game against Andrews and had to miss Big Spring's bi-district game against Hereford. In addition to being one of the team's top tacklers, Young had two fumble recoveries and two quarterback sacks.

Young was chosen Defensive Player of the Year for Crossroads Country football and was named to the All-District squad.

Eudy says there are few who had a "bigger heart" than Young. "He played hard all the time on Friday night," said Eudy. "He was all over the football field, he busted his butt hard and gave a great effort."

"I really enjoyed watching him play because you never knew what was going to happen, but most of the time it was always good. He was excellent against the run and did a good job of pass coverage. He could also put some heat on the quarterback with his pass rush."

Azinger wins first tourney

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Paul Azinger, who had let so many get away from him, had a little talk with veteran Andy Bean before the final round of the Phoenix Open golf tournament.

"I told him I'd learned a lot from his last year at Kapalua (in Hawaii, where Bean won), the way he played his own game and didn't worry about anyone else," said the lanky young man called "Zinger" by his fellow pros.

"He told me, 'Play your own game, kid. Shoot at the middle of the greens, take what it'll give you, and go.' That's what I did."

"I was as patient as I've ever been in my life. And I hit the ball better than I ever have in my life," Azinger said.

The result was a solid 4-under-par 67 on Sunday and the first victory of a pro career that had been slow in developing.

"A dream come true," said Azinger, who twice lost his playing rights due to lack of performance and made a total of four appearances at the Tour's Qualifying School.

The victory was secured with a four-day score of 268, 16 shots under par, and was worth $108,000 from the total purse of $600,000.

He won by a single stroke over defending champion Hal Sutton, who had a share of the top spot until he missed a 5-foot putt and bogeyed the final hole on the new TPC course at Scottsdale.

"I don't want to sound like I'm making an excuse, but I was putting through my shadow," said Sutton, who played about 15 minutes in front of Azinger.

Paul Azinger of Bradenton, Fla. fired a four-under-par 67 which provided him with his first pro victory, winning $108,000 dollars Sunday in the Phoenix Open.

"I put a good stroke on it, but I just didn't have it lined up right. There was nothing wrong with the stroke. Something about the shadow. I never got it lined up right."

That miss gave Azinger the margin he needed and he brought it home with a great sand save on the 16th and decisive pars on the 17th and 18th.

Azinger said, "I don't doubt myself anymore. Until you do win, there's always the element of doubt that you can win."

Sutton, who blitzed the front with a 30 and scored an eagle-3 on the 15th, was second alone at 269 after a closing 64.

For the third week in a row, Mark Calcavecchia tied for third and pushed his season's earnings to $122,200.

Celts dominate 76ers Simms

BOSTON (AP) — Charles Barkley thinks his Philadelphia 76ers are "the most dangerous team in the NBA, everyone fears us."

Barkley may just have to alter that brash statement, adding: except the Boston Celtics.

Boston's defending NBA champions dominated the 76ers almost to the point of boredom Sunday in rolling to a 111-96 victory before a national television audience marking time for Super Bowl.

"We may stink on a certain day, but there's always a good chance we are going to blow someone out of the building," Barkley said after scoring 18 points, but only one in the second half.

The Celtics didn't give the 76ers a chance to even get started as they charged to their fifth consecutive Super Bowl Sunday victory.

"We just played terrible," Barkley said. "We got beat by a great team. A lot of people were thinking about the Super Bowl out there, not the game."

Erving, who had only six points after a stalling ovation, joined in by the Celtics, before the game. "We can't play half court basketball with Boston and hope to contend. Our game was not there."

The victory was the Celtics 55th straight against an Eastern Conference rival at Boston Garden since a loss to Milwaukee just before the 1985 playoffs. It also enabled the Celtics to reach the halfway mark of the NBA season with a 30-11 record, seven games ahead of the 76ers in the Atlantic Division.

With Bird scoring nine of his 17 points in the first period, the Celtics charged to a 27-17 lead. Philadelphia closed to within three, 42-39, but Boston went on a 12-6 run for a 54-45 halftime lead.

Then McHale, Bird and Parish took total command and Boston outscored Philadelphia 33-15 in the third period to widen the lead to 87-60.

NBA

That didn't include the Celtics, who dominated the game with the big front line of Kevin McHale, Robert Parish and Larry Bird.

McHale scored 30 points, including 14 in a third period blowout which padded Boston's lead to 30 points. Parish had 21 and Bird 17.

Danny Ainge had 16, while backcourt partner Dennis Johnson took only one floor shot and finished with five points and nine assists.

"It was a mud fight in there and we came out on the good side," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said. "Our defense was tremendous. Defense was the thing that did it for us. Our guys were really scrapping and coming up with the ball."

"They had a very simple game plan and stuck with it," said Julius

Leading 56-48 in the second minute of the quarter, the Celtics went on a 22-3 spree, including 17 points in a row.

Then, after two baskets by the 76ers, Boston went on another 9-2 run for a 30-point advantage.

The Celtics went ahead by 31 points at the outset of the final period. Philadelphia ran 13 consecutive points on an 18-2 charge, but Boston quickly regrouped.

"We've played good defense the past week," Bird said in noting blowout victories over Indiana and Atlanta. "We're getting better and better on defense."

"They seem to have a sixth sense out there," Philadelphia Coach Matt Guokas said. "They know where everyone is going to be. When you play the Celtics in their building, it's understandable, but not acceptable. We can't cry over this game."

Spurs happy with Berry

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — San Antonio Spurs Coach Bob Weiss made it clear when 6-8 forward Walter Berry joined the team last month.

"I told him there was no pressure on him. I didn't expect any real production from him until the last quarter of the season," Weiss said. "I felt he was way behind. He was out of shape, didn't know the offense. It was a big adjustment."

But about 10 days after Berry joined the Spurs he began to shine, Weiss said.

"Unless I'm crazy, I'd have to be pleased with Berry," Weiss said Saturday after the Spurs defeated the New York Knicks 108-101.

"He's ahead of where I expected him to be," Weiss added.

Berry, last seasons' College Player of the Year at St. John's, was the Portland Trail Blazer's first-round draft pick last year, the 14th player chosen overall in the NBA draft.

The Spurs acquired him on Dec. 18 in a trade for 7-foot rookie Kevin Duckworth.

Berry has started the last four of the 15 games he has played with San Antonio. In the last eight, he has averaged 19 points. "I think I'm coming along real well," Berry said Saturday night after scoring 19 points and pulling down 10 rebounds as the Spurs improved their record to 12-29.

Last season Berry set St. John's single-season scoring record with 828 points, won the John Wooden Award and the Adolph Rupp Trophy and was named an All-American.

Simms took the Giants 78 yards in nine plays, hitting all six passes for 69 yards, including a 6-yarder to Zeke Mowatt for the touchdown and a 7-3 lead.

He couldn't get the Giants any more points in the first half — New York's George Martin did sack Elway in the end zone for a second-period safety — but the eighth-year pro was unstoppable in the second half.

"They took many more chances and they were more wide open with their offense," Broncos All-Pro linebacker Karl Mecklenburg said. "It wasn't anything we couldn't handle on defense. They just outplayed us."

Trailing 10-9 entering the second half, the Giants gambled with a fake punt on fourth-and-1 from their 46. Backup quarterback Jeff Rutledge sneaked for two yards.

"I think that was a big play," Rutledge said. "It was really minor on my part. I was really surprised they called it. That's the first time I've ever done it."

From there, the Giants moved to the go-ahead touchdown, a 13-yard pass to Mark Bavaro. The Broncos

Banquet speaker finalist for Hall

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Big Spring High School Fall Banquet guest speaker, Don Maynard, heads a list of seven finalists for induction into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Maynard, who grew up in Colorado City, will speak at the banquet which begins tonight at 7 at the Big Spring High School cafeteria.

Maynard caught 663 passes for 11,834 yards and 88 touchdowns — mostly from Joe Namath — during a 15-year career with the New York Giants, New York Titans, New York Jets and St. Louis Cardinals. The 6-1, 185-pound wide receiver was named to the All-AFL team in 1969. He also played in the Canadian Football League with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Fullback Larry Csonka and center Jim Langer, key members of the Miami Dolphins' perfect 1972 season, are also finalists for induction into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

The seven were named by the Hall of Fame's Selection Committee from a list of 16 candidates chosen by the 30-member board of selectors.

were broken. "It took a while to get going," running back Joe Morris said. "But we knew we would."

Morris ran for 67 yards on 20 carries and scored one touchdown. That was set up by a flea-flicker pass on which Simms handed to Morris, who pitched back to Simms, who hit a wide-open Phil McConkey for 44 yards to the Denver 1.

"Bill is so conservative," Morris said of Parcells' approach to such skullduggery. "If we don't make it every time in practice, he won't use it. But we tried it 12 times this week and made it all 12 times. Bill said, 'We'll use that in the game.'"

McConkey caught two passes for 50 yards and a touchdown and returned a punt 25 yards to set up a field goal. He also was the Giants' main cheerleader, leading them onto the Rose Bowl field before the game and at halftime, waving a towel and "getting the crowd involved," he said.

"It tastes as sweet as I ever imagined," McConkey said. "I couldn't have dreamed of this at the start (of the season) when I was in Green Bay."

McConkey served a five-year hitch in the Navy before joining the Giants, was cut in training camp, then reacquired after the fourth game when Lionel Manuel hurt his knee.

"You think about this your whole life," he said. "Every pushup you do, every game you play, every catch you make, it's all for a goal — to be the best."

The game was a culmination of the Giants' greatest season in three decades. They hadn't been in an NFL championship game since losing their third straight in 1963.

But they have been in the playoffs four of the last six years, including the last three seasons. In 1984 and '85, they lost playoff games to the eventual Super Bowl winners, San Francisco and Chicago, respectively.

All of which made this victory even more satisfying.

seem to be coming at all. Elway had taken the Broncos on drives of 45, 58, 74 and 47 yards in the first half. He had the Giants' vaunted defense off-balance, and confused.

But Denver managed only 10 points out of those drives, on a 48-yard field goal by Rich Karlis, tying the Super Bowl distance record, and Elway's TD. The Broncos failed to score after a first-and-goal from the New York 1 when Karlis set a dubious Super Bowl mark by missing from 23 yards, the shortest miss ever. He also botched a 34-yarder with 13 seconds left in the half.

"It hurt us so badly when we couldn't get into the end zone in the first half when we were first-and-goal," Elway said. "What a turning point that was! You know that anytime you don't get points when you have the opportunity, it hurts."

It hurt Karlis the most. The barefoot kicker's eyes were red from tears after the game.

"I feel like I let everyone down," said the kicker who beat Cleveland 23-20 with an overtime field goal in the AFC Championship Jan. 11.

tion into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Csonka and Langer were joined by defensive lineman Joe Greene, running back John Henry Johnson, quarterback Len Dawson, and guard Gene Upshaw.

The inductees will be announced Tuesday. The seven were named by the Hall of Fame's Selection Committee from a list of 16 candidates chosen by the 30-member board of selectors.

The Broncos also lost in their other Super Bowl appearance in 1978 to Dallas. Cornerback Louis Wright played in that game, too.

"I thought this one we had a better chance," Wright said. "It's the way we lost that hurts."

It is the way the Giants have beaten everyone the last 12 games. Just like the 49ers and Bears the last two seasons, the Giants were the NFL's best team in the regular season and they became the fifth NFC team in this decade to win the Super Bowl.

Continued from page 1B second-half points and the vaunted New York defense rebounded from a tentative first half to shut down John Elway and company until it didn't matter anymore.

"It was the realization of a dream come true, not only for me, but for the whole Giants organization," said linebacker Harry Carson, now a champion after 12 seasons. "It has been a long time coming. I just wish I didn't have to wait so long."

The wait has been even longer for Giants owner Wellington Mara, whose family has owned the franchise since its inception in 1925. The club's last title was in 1956.

"Two weeks ago, I told (Chicago owner) Virginia McCaskey that if there were words to express my opinion I didn't know them yet and I'm not any smarter today," Mara said in accepting the Super Bowl trophy. "But I'm very proud."

Many of the Giants were not even born the last time the team won a title, but many have dreamed about it more than once.

"This is one of those games I've played in since I was a kid," linebacker Carl Banks said. "I wasn't very nervous because it seemed like I played the game over and over again since I was a kid. I've dreamed of being here. I loved it. I'm just about in tears. This is the biggest moment of my life."

What people might think is that things could have been different had the Broncos not squandered so many chances in the first half.

Placekicker Rich Karlis missed two easy field goals, one coming after Denver was stopped on three straight plays after getting a first and goal at the New York 1.

"If they had scored that would have made it tough for us," Taylor said. "We would have been down 17-7 and that a long way to come back from."

Actually, the Giants only trailed 10-9 at the half after George Martin tackled Elway for a safety late in the second quarter with "just another play he learned from Knute Rockne."

Martin ran a dummy stunt with rookie Erik Howard on the play, baiting Denver tackle Ken Lanier.

"As they came to the line, I yelled to Erik, 'We're going to play the game,'" said Martin, the oldest Giant at 33. "He (Lanier) looked up and thought a stunt was on. I faked inside and ran outside and there was Elway standing there and we embraced for a while."

At halftime, the Giants held a huddle of their own, especially the defense.

"We felt very fortunate being down only one point," said nose tackle Jim Burt, who carried his son on his shoulders in the final minutes of the game.

"We knew we could come back," said Burt, "but we had to start playing up to our capabilities. We knew it would be crucial for us to stop them the first couple of possessions."

The Giants did, giving Denver a total of eight offensive plays in its first two possessions of the second half.

For their effort, the Giants earned $36,000 per man, bringing their playoff take home to $64,000 counting the NFC playoffs games. Commissioner Pete Rozelle awarded the biggest prize, the Super Bowl Trophy.

"I can't understand that Pete Rozelle is handing out the trophy and we are sitting here in this dumpy little room," Giants guard Chris Godfrey said. "We should be in the Plaza or someplace. I rather be here though than at the Plaza. I just can't believe we won the Super Bowl."

Probably, neither can the many Giants fans who have suffered through many a losing season in the past three decades, years that have been marked by bad teams, bad draft choices and, of course, The Fumble.

Super Bowl notebook

When George Martin tackled Denver quarterback John Elway in the end zone in the second quarter, it was the fourth safety recorded in a Super Bowl. The others were scored by Pittsburgh's Dwight White against Fran Tarkenton in the 1975 Super Bowl, Pittsburgh's Reggie Harrison against Dallas punter Mitch Hoopes in the 1976 Super Bowl and Chicago's Henry Waechter against Steve Grogan last year.

A late arrival at the Rose Bowl was Washington Redskins defensive end Dexter Manley, who sat on a stairway near the top of the stadium with some Giants fans and signed autographs for about 20 minutes until ushers finally helped him locate his seat.

All 13 passes in the first quarter were completed by Phil Simms and John Elway, but both quarterbacks' streaks ended on their first attempts of the second quarter. Simms finished with 22 completions in 25 attempts, an NFL playoff-record 88 percent completion rate. The previous record of 84.2 was set in the 1983 AFC championship game against New England by Miami's David Woodley, who completed 16 of 19 passes.

The Giants' 39 points against Denver gave New York a 105-23 scoring margin for its three playoff games this season. The Giants' 82-point margin was one better than the record set by the Chicago Bears last season. New York's 105 points fell seven shy of Chicago's total.

Despite missing field goals of 23 and 34 yards, Rich Karlis tied the Super Bowl record for the longest field goal when he hit a 48-yarder to open the scoring. The 23-yard miss was a Super Bowl record for the shortest failed three-point attempt. Baltimore's Lou Michaels missed a 27-yarder in the 1969 Super Bowl.

The crowd of 101,063 was the smallest of the four Super Bowls contested at the Rose Bowl. The largest Rose Bowl crowd was 103,985 for the 1980 Super Bowl between the Pittsburgh Steelers and Los Angeles Rams.

New York Giants owner Wellington Mara accepted a Super Bowl championship trophy named for an old college classmate. Both Mara and Vince Lombardi, the coach whose Green Bay Packers won the first two Super Bowls, graduated from Fordham University in 1937.
