County to ask for lease of range

By SCOTT FITZGERALD Staff Writer

Howard County Commissioners decided Monday afternoon to negotiate with the city concerning lease agreements for a firing range and an industrial park building.

The firing range, located south of the former Webb Air Force Base golf course, is part of the city's industrial park property.

Sheriff A.N. Standard told Commissioners he had spoken with Industrial Park Manager Hal Boyd concerning a lease agreement that could range from $1 to $350 annually.

The range would also be offered to all law enforcement agencies in the County, Standard proposed.

Deputies now train with their firearms "where we can," Standard told commissioners.

Those sites have included isolated creek beds and other encampments throughout Howard County, he said. On Commissioner O.L. Brown's suggestion, Commissioners stipulated the County enter into agreement with the city for a $1 annual lease fee for a firing range at the Webb location. The other proposed lease, concerning the Spring City Senior Citizens Center, was tabled until the Feb. 9 meeting. County Judge Milton Kirby said minor details must be worked out before Commissioners discussed it. During Monday's meeting, Commissioners were informed of the indigent health program and funds pertaining to the County's computer system

They conducted a closed session with Irene Rodriquez, who serves as the County's welfare and indigent health care director.

Commissioner Bill Crooker said they discussed her job duties, but took no action.

The county has approved 29 cases and denied 12 since indigent health care began Oct. 1, Rodriquez reported. Approximately $72,000 has been spent, said County Auditor Jackie Olson.

Olson also warned Commissioners of a possible budget overrun in the County's computer program.

Howard County has spent $9,279 so far as compared to $8,800 last year. Commissioners allocated $20,000 to cover expenses. Although the amount spent thus far represents 46 percent of the total amount, it covers only a third of the

State of the Union

President to present 'strong message'

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan, out of the public eye for a month, is returning to center stage tonight with a State of the Union address intended to show him in command, undaunted by the Iran-Contra scandal and promoting an agenda for arms control and economic strength.

Reagan will go before the nation and the Congress at 9 p.m. EST in a nationally broadcast address from the rostrum of the House of Representatives.

It will be his first major speech of the year, and it is expected to be the first time since before Christmas that he publicly mentions the secret arms sale to Iran and diversion of profits to Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

Stacy Dam bids flood project offices

Contractors and suppliers are showing interest in the Stacy reservoir project, according to Joe Pickle, secretary-treasurer of the Colorado River Municipal Water District...

Robert A. Thompson, project engineer for consulting engineers Freese & Nichols, said he anticipates a large number of prime bidders for the $40 million project.

"The phone here has been ringing almost constantly since we advertised the bid opening date," he said.

John Arthur has been named Freese &

Nichols job inspector and has opened offices in Coleman, Pickle said. He and Jerry Crouch. CRMWD's office engineer for the Stacy project, will be available to take bidders on tours of the site, 25 miles southeast of Ballinger.

Freese & Nichols sent 171 notices to potential contracting or supplying bidders, and the bid is being advertised in newspapers and trade journals, Pickle said.

In anticipation of a large crowd for the bid opening at 10 a.m. March 5, the CRMWD has engaged a meeting space at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, CRMWD Manager O.H. Ivie said. Trinity Engineering Testing Co. of Austin has been selected to perform testing on the Stacy site, he added. Invitations have been issued for 22 heavyduty tractors to be used in clearing the dam and basin site. These bids will be opened Feb. 3, on the eve of the next CRMWD board meeting. Radio communications will be completed by the end of the month to put Stacy in touch with the remainder of the system.

State services funds may be cut 27 percent

By SCOTT ROTHSCHILD

Austin Bureau AUSTIN - Funds fueling state services will have to be slashed by 27 percent if lawmakers compose a budget based solely on expected revenue, legislative budget writers were told Monday. Appropriations Committee members, the budget-writing panel of the House, began the arduous task of drawing a spending plan for consideration by the full House Legislative Budget Board Director Jim Oliver said general revenue spending for the 1988-89 budget period would have to be cut across-the-board by $6 billion if lawmakers tried to fit services to incoming revenues. Appropriations Chairman Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, responded to the figures, saying, "This is a starting point. It is a base from which we start.

Rudd said the panel will get no where near those kinds of cuts "if the sacred cows are off limits." Rudd said some of the "sacred cows" protected by legislators are highways and education.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock has estimated that the state faces a $1 billion revenue shortfall for the current fiscal year ending Aug. 31 and a $4.8 billion shortfall for the next two years new revenues would result in a 27 percent cut in most governmental areas, including human services, state employee benefits and law enforcement. It would also mean a 20.6 percent cut in education.

If spending reductions also were applied to higher education, the cuts would amount to 23 percent, Oliver said. In 1986, funds to colleges and universities were reduced by about 10 percent.

In other business, Sen. John Leedom, R-Dallas, introduced two bills limiting state workers' eligibility for state insurance.

Leedom said the two bills would save the

Oliver said writing a budget without any $11.2 million over two years. But after protests were raised by state employee representatives, the bills were referred to a subcommittee for further study.

> State employee representatives blasted the proposals saying it would place a great financial burden on low-income state employees and hurt morale.

SB 99 would make temporary state employees ineligible for the state insurance program, while SB 100 would prevent a new state employee from being eligible for state insurance benefits for 90 days after being

Smaller schools to receive more aid

AUSTIN — A rule change to help more needy students pay tuition at private colleges and universities will mean more money each year for students at smaller schools, including Lubbock Christian College

The change, given final approval Friday by the state's higher education Coordinating Board, will be phased in over the next four years, said board spokeswoman Janis Monger.

At Lubbock Christian College, she said, the change will bring in another $71,572 by the end of the phase-in period. Students there now receive $194,186 a year, but that will increase to

Those numbers are estimates based on the number of needy students enrolled this year at the private colleges. The estimate also assumes that the Texas Legislature will not increase funding for the tuition program.

The program, known as the state's Tuition Equalization Grant Program, provides Texas students with part of the money the state would spend if the students attended a state university. Money goes to the state's 46 private colleges and universities, and their financial aid offices make the awards to needy students.

Under the new rules, the allocation will be based on the number of needy students at each school. The change will bring more money to smaller schools and less to larger ones.

When the program originally was established. those data were not available. The program was based on total number of students, and that eventually resulted in lower average grants going to those colleges with the greatest number of needy students, Coordinating Board officials

The change will be phased in beginning next fall and will cause a massive reallocation of grant funds from the larger schools to the smaller ones, they said.

Among those schools that will lose money are Baylor Southern Methodist and Texas Christian universities. Baylor alone is expected to lose $1.2 million of its current $3.2 million, while SMU will lose $420,144 and TCU will lose

The Texas Legislature appropriated $16.7 million for the tuition grants during the current state budget year, which Coordinating Board officials say meets only about half the need.

Supreme Court to study moments of silence

By RICHARD CARELLI Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) Supreme Court today agreed to study the validity of a New Jersey law providing daily moments of silence for public school students.

The court, if it finds it has the proper jurisdiction, will decide whether the law, which tells school officials to let students use the silent moments "for quiet and private contemplation or introspection," violates the constitutionally required separation of church and state.

Two lower courts said the New Jersey law represents an unconstitutional, back-door attempt to return organized prayer sessions to public schools.

The Supreme Court in 1985 1984, including President Reagan, strongly reaffirmed its 1962 ban on organized prayer in public schools by outlawing daily moments of silence if students are encouraged to pray during that time

In that ruling, the court voted 6-3 to strike down an Alabama law that allowed such periods for "meditation or voluntary prayer.

But the justices did not say in the Alabama case that all moment-ofsilence laws are invalid. They indicated that if a law does not mention "prayer" and if state legislators did not intend the law to endorse or promote school prayer it is valid.

Polls say Reagan lied

NEW YORK - As President Reagan prepares his sixth State of the Union message, public apprehension about the course of the nation and the economy is higher than it has been in at least four years, according to two

And while Reagan has halted the sharp decline in his popularity that followed the Iran-Contra revelations, he has lost a fifth of the supporters he had a year ago, according to a New York Times-CBS News Poll released Monday.

Fifty-two percent of the 1,590 adults polled Jan. 18-21 said they believe Reagan lied when he said he did not know that money from the sale of arms to Iran went to help the Contra rebels fighting the Nicaraguan government.

Americans, however, still have a reserve of affection for the president, with half of them seeing him as more honest than most people in public life, the poll indicated. Even within the majority that believes he lied about the Iran-Contra controversy, about a third still think he is more honest than most public

Shultz faces Iran panel

WASHINGTON - Secretary of State George P. Shultz faces questioning today on the Reagan's administration's arms-forhostages bargaining with Iran which some lawmakers say may have spurred the latest round of kidnappings in Lebanon.

The Shultz appearance before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee also represents a chance for senators to ask him in public about his private but widely reported statements that the CIA in early December continued talks with Iranian contacts even though he had ordered those talks halted because the Iranians were demanding additional U.S. arms shipments.

Hashemi Rafsanjani, the speaker of Iran's parliament, said Monday in an interview with the CBS Evening News that a State Department emissary met with Iranian arms buyers as recently as "a few weeks ago" with suggestions for continuing a relationship between the United States and Iran.

But we told them that we no more receive any suggestions because we have lost faith in you," Rafsanjani said.

1986 home sales soar

WASHINGTON — Sales of existing homes, spurred by a dramatic fall in interest rates and surging demand in the Northeast, last year posted their best performance in seven years, and analysts predict 1987 could be just as good.

The National Association of Realtors said Monday that sales of existing homes totaled 3.57 million units last year, 10.9 percent ahead of 1985 and the best year since 1979, when 3.83 million homes were sold.

In December, sales hit an all-time monthly high, a gain attributed to unusually mild weather in the Northeast and eager sellers taking advantage of expiring tax breaks

Four-alarm fire 19 injured at penitentiary

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A four-alarm fire broke out at a state penitentiary early today and at least two guards and 16 inmates were injured as numerous fights broke out among convicts evacuated to an open prison yard, officials said

Scores of state troopers and city police armed with shotguns and wearing flak jackets were called to the. State Correctional Institution at Pittsburgh, also known as Western Pen, near the Ohio River, authorities said.

Two guards and an unidentified person were taken to Allegheny General Hospital and 15 inmates were treated in the prison's infirmary. Their injuries ranged from smoke inhalation to lacerations, said Margaret Rizza, spokeswoman for the city Department of Public

City fire units were called to the huge stone prison, prison basement, Miss Rizza said.

Heavy smoke forced guards to evacuate hundreds of inmates from the 640-cell north block, and some from the upper tiers of the south cell block, and moved into the outdoor prison yard, prison spokesman Thomas Seiverling said.

The evacuated prisoners were kept behind outdoor fences inside the walls, and all could not be accounted for immediately, he said.

The temperature in the yard was 4 degrees, and scores of fights broke out among inmates and between guards and inmates in the yard. Guards fired shots into the air to control the prisoners, Seiverling said.

Inmates broke up and burned picnic tables in the yard in an effort to keep warm.

The trouble began when a fire broke out in a utility tunnel, in a section separate from the cell blocks, and inmates broke down interior fences, said Ken Robinson, spokesman for the state Department of Corrections in Harrisburg.

Aquino foils takeover

MANILA, Philippines - President Corazon Aquino said the military today crushed a coup attempt by mutinous soldiers and warned she would use force to oust as many as 300 rebels holed up in a broadcast complex.

The attempts to take over military bases and media centers in the Manila area was the most serious effort by disgruntled soldiers to grab power since Mrs. Aquino became president in February Military chief Gen. Fidel V. Ramos said the mutineers were supporters of deposed President Ferdinand E. Marcos out to destablize the country before Monday's national plebiscite on Mrs. Aquino's proposed constitution.

The military said it put down attempted predawn takeovers of two military bases and quashed planned revolts at three camps in the Manila area. One mutineer was killed and 16 were injured at Villamor air base in a sporadic four-hour gunbattle. As many as 180 rebels were arrested.

Embassy stays open

WASHINGTON - The Reagan administration is keeping the U.S. embassy open in perilous Beirut, in defiance of terrorists and despite the president's advice that Americans get out of Lebanon.

The embassy serves as a political listening post for the State Department, while providing visas and other services. It was the target of a bomb attack in April 1983 in which 17 Americans and nearly 50 other people were

Many have taken the advice. Those remaining are mostly U.S. citizens married to Lebanese or dual nationals of the two countries, said the official, who demanded anonymity. A handful are teachers, like the three Americans taken hostage Saturday along with an Indian professor.

Leftists to release Hall

MANAGUA, Nicaragua - The leftist government said it will release jailed American Sam Nesley Hall because of health reasons, dropping plans to try him on charges of spying.

Angela Saballos, a spokeswoman for the Foreign Ministry, said Monday night the government made the decision "because it is impossible to place him in Nicaragua in the type of institution doctors recommend for

Ms. Saballos declined to specify Hall's illness, but government sources who spoke on condition of anonymity said he suffered from a mental disorder.

TRADE

Public decides public interest

A frequent scene in old Hollywood westerns depicted a cowboy, crouched behind a huge rock, lifting his 10-gallon hat on a stick to test if there were enemies about. If the hat got riddled with bullets, there were bad hombres out yonder.

Historian Arthur Schlesinger Jr. raised his hat on a stick by urging the United States to copy Brazil's "civilized example" of giving political parties free prime time on network TV. It was in the public interest, he said.

His hat now has more holes than a Swiss cheese.

One critic replied, "Such time would not be free, but would be a multimillion-dollar subsidy to political parties, ordered by politicians, and paid for by the broadcast industry.'

The networks' business is selling time. Under Schlesinger's plan, instead of a soap commercial that pays for the entertainment, viewers would get political spiels that don't. Besides, soap ads are cleaner than most political campaigns. And, usually, the guy with the "ring around the collar" is more entertaining than the guy with his hat in the ring.

Another critic, recalling his stay in Brazil during its recent election campaign, recognized "the tedium of the incessant, nightly, free political programming." Intelligent Brazilian viewers, he added, dubbed the program the "nightly comedy hour."

One of the bullets in Schlesinger's hat was from a lady who gunned down his view that free political debates would be in the public interest.

A free and competitive market spurs networks to air what they think the public wants, she said. The network most successful in this endeavor will capture the largest audience and hence the most advertising dollars.

"If what the public demands is 'Dynasty,' then that is in the public interest," she maintained. That argument is hard to dispute.

The main issue here is who should be the final arbiter of what appears on TV?

Schlelsinger is a distinguished scholar with two Pulitzer Gabor, who won fame singing Prizes, one in history, one in biography. Should people such as he, solely on the basis of academic credentials and literary accomplishments, decide what the public's interest ir - or should the public itself decide what it accepts on TV or any marketplace?

With due respect to Schlesinger, the public can best decide what is and what isn't in its interest.

To the editor,

Once again I am writing in regard to our city park.

As president of the Parks Board. Lam heartily in favor of the proposed temporary closing of our city pool, and using the funds assigned for this summer's operation toward restoring the pool to topnotch condition.

Opinions in article bring response

I commend Carl Taylor and Everett Bender on their opinions about Oral Roberts' latest stand for

Out of all the other upinions published in the Friday, Jan. 23, edition of the Big Spring Herald, these two men are, in my opinion, true Christians. They didn't take upon themselves the judgment role of God in this controversy about Oral Roberts.

As Everett Bender said, anyone who knows Oral Roberts and the works God has done through him in the past 30 years can plainly see God is in control of his life. The miracles God has performed through Oral Roberts and the fruits of the spirit which flow from him speak for themselves.

Anyone choosing to set themselves up as judge in this controversy clearly is playing God.

We mere men cannot allow ourselves this judgment. If Oral Roberts says God told him he would die if he did not raise the millions of dollars by a specific time, who are we to doubt God's spoken word or such a great man as Oral Roberts and his conviction

The statements of Taylor and Bender tell me that if I had a choice of any of my loved ones going to church and being taught Biblical scripture in Big Spring, it would be under the supervision of one of these two men.

Gabor, who was a beauty queen planned to notify other members of herself once (Miss Hungary, year uncertain), held firm on the $5,000, which her manager told us was "a third of her usual fee." On March 17, the Turkish charity group accepted Gabor's terms, and a few days later transferred $5,000 to the Kal Ross Management account at the Crocker Bank in Beverly Hills, as instructed.

But on April 14, U.S. planes bombed Libya. Four days later, Ross wired the foundation to say that Gabor felt it would be dangerous to fly to Istanbul in May, and to ask that the beauty contest be put off until June.

The Turks replied that there was absolute "tranquility and security" in Istanbul, and said the pageant could not be postponed. Ross wired back that he might be able to persuade Gabor to come in May anyway, on two conditions: that she fly Swissair instead of Pan American, and that she stay at the Istanbul Hilton instead of the Pera

Simplicity isn't in the reform plan

By ART BUCHWALD I picked up my 1040 form at the IRS the other day and couldn't believe how complicated the instructions were.

"I thought you people were going to simplify things under the new tax reform bill.

The man behind the counter said, 'Who told you that?

"You did. You said you wanted to make life easier for the little taxpayer who bore the largest burden of financing the nation's debt."

'If we said that, we lied. In order to have a tough country, you have to have a tough tax return.

'I don't want you to make it too simple," I said. "But this is ridiculous. Neither Price nor Waterhouse can figure it out.'

'Oh, yes, they can, but it takes a little ingenuity. Everyone thinks he can get from column 1 to column 7 without going through column b. It can't be done. You have to approach it like Rubik's Cube and then you can get the solution.

"Why did you make it so difficult in the first place?

Because too many people solved the 1985 form and it teed us off. We were getting refund requests from every state in the union. We believe we have taken out the glitches, and with luck not more than 1 percent of the population will get it right the first time around."

'What you are doing is encouraging people to make mistakes. Doesn't that bother you?

"Not if the taxpayer is willing to pay for them. The reason the IRS makes its instructions so difficult is we want everyone to realize that paying taxes is a very serious matter and not a game for amateurs. We think our 1986 form does the

"Can't you at least give us some hints as to what figures go on what

"That would be cheating," he

"How can we be cheating when we want to pay you what we owe you? All we're looking for is guidance.

"That's the rub, son. If we tell you, we'll have to tell the next fellow, and pretty soon everyone will know how to fill out the IRS form. By adding mystery we can slow down the rate of returns so we can process them one at a time."

"Someone said you people work secretly for H&R Block, and that's why you won't simplify your returns.

'That's a lie, boy,'' he said angrily. "If we worked for Block we would have eliminated the short tax form years ago. The IRS works for the people. If you can't follow our instructions, there is nothing we can do about it.' "Suppose I forget to subtract line

34 b from 34 c on line 35 — what will you do to me?" "If it's an honest mistake, we'll take your house away. But if it's intentional, we'll have to resort to more serious action. "How serious can you get?"

"Serious enough so that you'll be in the hands of one of our computers. You've never seen an IRS computer at work. It can add, subtract and countermand, all at the same time, and also send your refund check to Nome, Alaska. Once your return goes through our computer the game is over for you and anyone you love." "What happens if I get lucky and fill out the form correctly?" "Then Ed McMahon will stay at your house for a week.'

Marshall, a former councilman and mayor of Big Spring, served as Lone Star district chairman in 1973-'74. Since 1977 he has been a vice president of the 15-county council. He was cited for YMCA and other civic achievements.

Carl Bradley of Big Spring was installed as vice president of the council. Bill McQueary and Clem Jones, district chairman, were installed on the executive board.

Holdovers are S.M. Smith, Stan Partee, Sam Hunnicut and Ben Johnson. President of the council is Charles Spence of Midland.

A special citation was presented to David and Bill Winkler for rescuing an injured and stranded boy at Scout Ranch last summer.

Steve Odom, who has devoted 17 years of service, will retire as council executive at the end of January. Roland McFarland will also retire.

More than 200 volunteer scout workers attended.

Woman wonders if fruit giver is a fruitcake

DEAR ABBY: During the holidays someone left a beautiful big basket of fruit on my doorstep. I thought it a wonderful gesture, but after careful examination, I found there was not a card or any sort of identification on it anywhere

Now, I'm not usually the fraidycat sort of person, but after thinking about it, and having checked with friends and co-workers (all to no avail), I became rather concerned. Who would leave such a lovely basket with no card? Any other time I would have no qualms about eating it, but because of the Tylenol deaths and other such scares, there is no way I would eat it or give it to anyone else. It's a shame. Maybe I am being overly cautious, but then again, what if

To the person, or persons, who left it, please don't ever do anything like that again. If there was nothing wrong with it, a lovely basket of fruit went to waste. And if there was something in it, well, God help you.

the doorstep. If anyone knocked or rang our bell, nobody heard it. Only a few people at work even know where I live, and I checked with the neighbors to see if it could have been delivered to us by accident, and maybe their relatives were asking if they'd received it. Nothing. It seems so strange that no one knows where it came from, who delivered it, and no one saw anyone leave it on the step.

DEAR ABBY: This is not tragic or world-shaking, but I would like your opinion and possibly the opinion of your readers.

I just discovered that my collegeage daughter does not wear underwear (panties). I was shocked, and told her I thought it was indecent. She replied, "I don't want panty lines.

She is a hard-working student, works part-time in a department store and does not drink, smoke or use drugs. I am very proud of her, but this really bothers me. Am I hopelessly old-fashioned? Or is this a common practice among young women today?

SHOCKED DEAR SHOCKED: Oldfashioned? Not really. But in your ties has more to do with vanity than "decency."

DEAR ABBY: You advised 'Miffed in D.C." that her weight was her business. What about people who have to live with an obese spouse? As the wife of a very obese man, I am subjected to constant "jokes" and even laughter in regard to our habits, my cooking and even our sex lives.

So, please do me a favor, Abby. and let me (and others in my unhappy situation) know if there is a support group for family members of an obese person that my children and I can join so we can at least learn to accept the fact that "Dad" might not be with us for very long.

Check with doctor before using salt substitute

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have heard of salt substitutes for people on salt-free diets. What is in the substitute that gives the salt taste? Are they safe to use? — Mrs. V.J.

Potassium is the flavor enhancer in the substitutes. Used sensibly, they are OK. Overused or used with certain medicines (such as beta blockers) they can cause symptoms from potassium buildup. Those symptoms would include muscle weakness or numbness, the same, in fact, that one might get from potassium deficiency.

Some of the salt substitutes contain more potassium than others, some twice as much. People using the substitutes would do well to check with their doctors to see if it is all right to do so.

Can anxiety bring them on? Can they develop into something more dangerous? Is there special medicine to regulate these rhythms? I am 55 years old and in good health otherwise. -R.W.S.

A more common name for these are premature beats. They are almost always harmless quirks. Yes, anxiety can bring them on. So can nicotine and caffeine.

They seldom develop into anything more serious than the disturbing symptoms. It is especially important that you had the electrocardiogram (ECG) tests. For if they showed an underlying disease, then the extra beats might take on great significance. Then you might need settles out into joints to cause gout medicine aimed at abolishing them. They can be dangerous in such situations.

From what you tell me, you don't need the medicine. You wouldn't want to take such drugs just to remove harmless premature beats. Why put up with the side effects you must might get from those drugs?

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have been diagnosed as having rheumatoid arthritis. I have nodules on each of my elbows and I was told these were symptoms of this disease. Can nodules of this kind appear elsewhere on the body, including the head? - N.E.

One out of five rheumatoid arthritis patients will develop skin nodules. They are small and usually painless bumps. The most common sites are at the elbows, the fingers, and the back of the head. But they can form wherever there is pressure against the skin. I have seen people who have formed them at the bridge of the nose from the pressure exerted by their eveglasses.

DALLAS (AP) — A tracking convicted for delivery of a controlldevice worn on the body serves as an electronic leash for eight prisoners whose sentences require that they stay at home under house arrest.

The Texas Adult Probation Commission has asked the Legislature to approve $5.8 million for a twoyear program that would put 1,000 people on electronic monitoring, as the state searches for solutions to prison overcrowding.

'It's fairly costly, but it's dirt cheap compared to building said David Spencer, prisons," general counsel for the commission.

Randall Kearney, a 24-year-old tampered with. Richardson resident, one of the eight prisoners in the project, was being ordered to serve the re-

The Dallas program costs $11 per day per individual, or less than half the $24.84 daily cost of housing a prisoner in a state penitentiary.

The TDC could not enforce a claim or lien against the estate "if the inmate has a surviving sporse or a surviving dependent or disabled child."

If the cost of enforcing claims or liens exceeded benefits to the state, the Criminal Justice Policy Council would direct the Texas Department of Corrections to discontinue the practice.

Tonight's game doesn't appear to be a fan's dream. The Lady Steers are 19-4 and first in district with a 9-1 record. The Eagles are bringing up the rear with 6-12, 1-8 records. J.V. action begins at 6 p.m. and the varsity follows at 7:30.

Hawks, Wranglers battle for spot

The Howard College Hawks travel to Odessa Thursday night for a game that might decide which team gets the fourth and last conerence playoff spot. Howard is currently 12-9 overall and fourth in the conference with a 4-3 record.

Odessa is 13-7 overall and in fifth place with a 3-4 district mark Howard has beaten the Wranglers twice by a total of three points this season, though the first win didn't count in the conference standings. In their third game of the season the Hawks won 76-74, and in the Dec. 1 conference opener they edged the Wranglers 71-70 in Big Spring.

Though Odessa lost 100-90 Monday night to conference leading New Mexico, the Wranglers are a better squad that the team Howard edged twice. Guard Dave Swan, ineligible first semester, has averaged 26.1 points per game in four games since returning after Christmas.

Hawks' coach Larry Brown has said this game may decide the last playoff spot. The Hawks tip-off at 8 p.m. at the Odessa College Sports

By The Associated Press The Portland Trail Blazers, usually one of the NBA's best defensive teams, tried to outgun the high-scoring Denver Nuggets - and it worked

"This was no place for the faint of heart tonight," Portland Coach Mike Schuler said after the Trail Blazers got past Denver 145-141 in overtime Monday night.

Kiki Vandeweghe scored 35 points, Steve Johnson had 32 and Clyde Drexler added 22 as host Portland improved its overtime record to 5-0 this season.

The Trail Blazers tied the game in the final minute of regulation on Jerome Kersey's two foul shots and Terry Porter's layup. In overtime, Drexler's basket broke a 141-141 tie with 20 seconds left and Vandeweghe made two free throws with two seconds remaining.

In other games, Phoenix beat Detroit 120-118 in overtime, Seattle downed Utah 108-95 and Milwaukee defeated the Los Angeles Clippers 114-94.

Lafayette Lever scored a career-high 36 points with 12 rebounds and 10 assists for Denver, but Coach Doug Moe said the Nuggets got little else. Moe said the officiating was so bad that Portland fans "were even laughing.

"We played great and every call was against us," Moe said.

Suns 120, Pistons 118 Walter Davis sank two free throws with one second left in overtime, breaking a tie and lifting Phoenix over Detroit.

Davis finished with 32 points. including six in overtime. Davis' two foul shots with 29 seconds left regulation made it 111-111 and forced the extra period.

The host Suns, who trailed by 17 points early in the third quarter, were down 117-113 with 1:55 left in overtime. Field goals by Davis and Jeff Hornacek and a free throw by Kenny Gattison made it 118-118 with 30 seconds

"As much as I'd like to believe where people rank us, in my heart I know we're not that good. I think we've got excellent talent. But I'd probably be more surprised than anybody if we ended up being that good.'

Crum can now say he told them

"Everybody was overrating us. You can't replace three seniors with freshmen and sophomores," Crum said. "The press — they thought I was blowing smoke at them.

Crum has changed the starting lineup five times in search of the right combination. The team has had its bright spots in wins over Western Kentucky, Florida State and Wyoming on the road. But the Cardinals got whipped at home by Kentucky 85-51 and have been inconsistent shooters. "I said we'd be a very up and down team," Crum said "We've probably won a few we shouldn't have and lost a few we shouldn't have. We're about right where I thought we'd be. Signs of improvement have come in the past two games, with conference wins over Virginia Tech and Cincinnati. The Cardinals dominated the inside play and were able to build large leads. They still up in outside shooting.

Carolina State in addition to their Metro Conference schedule.

"Louisville is the team to beat" in the Metro Conference, Virginia Tech coach Charlie Moir said. "Give them a couple more weeks and let them gain some confidence and they could get on a roll. They can hurt you in a lot of ways."

The national championship team was led by three seniors - forward Billy Thompson and guards Milt Wagner and Jeff Hall - who accounted for half of the Cardinals' scoring. This year's squad has two seniors and neither one starts.

"We don't have the senior leadership, the experience," Crum said. 'We don't have the same level of

One returning player who was a factor last year is 6-foot-9 sophomore center Pervis Ellison, the most valuable player in the NCAA Final Four. Although he is averaging 15 points and eight rebounds, he has been hampered by three sprained ankles and sagging defenses that deny him the ball.

In losses to Southern Mississippi and Purdue, Ellison had just three and two rebounds. But he grabbed a career-high 18 last week in the 84-62 win over Virginia Tech.

"It's hard not to be timid and not be aggressive" with the injuries, Crum said "He knows he hasn't played well, but he's working

While the Cardinals retained a big front line, the departures of Hall and Wagner left Louisville with no one experienced at guard. Crum has experimented with four players, including 6-7 Tony Kimbro who played forward last year. The lack of experience has shown

Former New Mexico Norm Ellenberger (right) is welcomed by New Mexico coach Cary Colson at New Mexico's University Arena Monday

The 'Pit' gives coach heartwarming welcome

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) They came to watch two teams bafe ed away, the crowd and anticipatling to remain contenders in a tion grew. And when Ellenberger tight Western Athletic Conference came into view halfway down the basketball race. They were there to tunnel that leads into University witness the renewal of one of the fiercest rivalries in the west.

But for many in the overflow crowd of 18,150 that packed the boos. "Pit" Monday night, it was a chance to relive New Mexico basketball's prime-time past.

Norm Ellenberger always brought out the most in New Mex-

The former Lobo coach, who lost his job in a 1979 recruiting scandal, returned to Albuquerque Monday night as a volunteer member on the staff of Texas-El Paso Coach Don Haskins.

It was Ellenberger's first courtside appearance in Albuquerque in seven years. At UTEP, he is trying to make a comeback and erase the memory of the transcript-altering scandal that cost him his job and a seemingly bright future in coaching.

UTEP and New Mexico were tied for third place in the WAC going into the game, both trying to stay on the heels of league-leader Brigham Young. But at least for one day, the game was overshadowed by Ellenberger's return to the arena where he orchestrated 134 victories in seven seasons and took the New Mexico's basketball program to national prominence.

One of the Albuquerque newspapers featured Ellenberger in a front page story on game day and fans began arriving two hours before tipoff for what one called "the spectacle."

As the pre-game minutes dwindl-Arena, the pros and cons of Ellenberger's past resurfaced in a deafening crescendo of cheers and Ellenberger, a fashion shadow from the days when turquoise jewelry and long hair were part of his calling card, trailed the imposing Haskins onto the court. The turquoise and long sideburns have given way to grey suits and a receding hairline.

Fans reached over the tunnel's railing to applaud Ellenberger, and in the midst of the inevitable boos, a banner in the student section proclaimed, "Welcome Back Norm."

By the time Ellenberger reached the Miners' bench, he had shaken enough hands to run for office.

"I wasn't scared," said Ellenberger later of his sold out appearance. "I'd been down there enough times to know what to expect, and I wasn't disappointed." But at the same time, he tried to downplay his part in the drama. "It's the same old Pit," he said. But whether it's here or New Mexico State or elsewhere, it's just great to have the opportunity. Ellenberger had said before the game he expected some negative reaction, and "would be disappointed" if the New Mexico fans who once cheered him didn't boo him now that he's in an enemy

But there are fans who remain convinced that Ellenberger's heart will always be in Albuquerque.

to tie. But the ball rimmed out and the Lobos grabbed the rebound. As New Mexico worked the clock down to 14 seconds, the Miners' Hernell "Jeep" Jackson fouled Kelvin Scarborough. Scarborough hit both ends of the one-and-one to put New Mexico on top 73-69.

After the Miners turned the ball over, Scarborough scored on a layup with three seconds to end the

The victory improved New Mexico's season record to 16-5 and lifted the Lobos into a tie for second place in the WAC race with Wyoming at 6-2. UTEP dropped to 15-5

The win also ended years of frustration for New Mexico. The Lobos had lost nine straight games and 14 of the last 15 in play against UTEP. New Mexico's last win over the Miners was a 63-49 victory in

HOW!... HOW COME I RATE THE ROYAL TREATMENT?

Texas advertisers seek Hispanic image

By FELIX SANCHEZ Corpus Christi Caller-Times CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) -Fernando Allende is certainly not M-M-Me-Me-Mel Tillis.

For one thing, the popular Mexican motion picture star and singer - who has done some American acting work on "Miami Vice" and "Flamingo Road" — is a little younger and somewhat more handsome than

But the stuttering Mel and the suave Fernando have the same job — to m-m-move them Whataburgers.

And that points up a growing trend among many Corpus Christi businesses: the drive toward capturing more of the Mexican-American economic market through advertising campaigns specifically aimed at that ethnic group.

Corpus Christi-based Whataburger, for instance, has had a long-time advertising campaign featuring country and western singer Mel Tillis as the hamburger chain's spokesman.

But for the past year, Whataburger has been using Allende as Tillis' Spanishlanguage counterpart, acting as spokesman on Whataburger commercials aired on major Spanish-language media outlets in most major Texas cities as well as Arizona and New Whataburger has long been acknowledged locally by some Spanish-language media outlet representatives as a leader in its Hispanic-oriented advertising.

But the latest campaign featuring Allende is seen as representative of a larger movement, particuarly locally, in earmarking advertising campaigns for Hispanics.

And behind all the activity in Hispanic-targeted advertising campaigns is the drive to cash in on what is acknowledged as the significant economic clout among Hispanics.

"As Hispanics have grown ineconomic power, it has become an economic necessity to attempt to gain more of that market," said Robert "Moe" Morehead of the Corpus Christi advertising firm Morehead, Dotts & LaPorte.

"There's been a fairly radical change in advertisers' thinking in the last five years," adds Servando Caballero, general manager of Spanish-language television station KORO-TV

"I think it's because of the realization that the Hispanic is a growing minority and that Hispanics, as the years have passed by, now have more money to spend on purchases,' Caballero said.

"Substantial monies have gotten into Hispanic pockets and they are willing to spend," Caballero said, adding that Anglo advertisers are realizing that "just like everyone else, Hispanics like to have nice things, brush their teeth, take their baths and use products that are marketable.

Several officials with Spanishlanguage media outlets here -KCCT and KUNO radio, and KORO-TV, Channel 28 acknowledge an increasing number of Spanish-language commercials and advertising campaigns done by local businesses that used to shy from such activity.

"People are realizing that the most efficient advertising buy is Spanish-language radio," said Manuel Davila, president, general manager and partowner of KCCT-AM.

"They realize there are a lot of Hispanics out there listening to Spanish radio and willing to buy products," he said.

Luis Munoz, vice president and general manager of KUNO-AM Spanish-language radio, said his station has seen a 7 percent advertising increase over the past year because of more commercials geared toward the Mexican-American audience

Carolyn Paxson, owner of the El Paso advertising firm Paxson Advertising Inc., said the Allende campaign, which her company is packaging, has proved to be an excellent move, spurring growth in sales of Whataburgers in Hispanic

County ousts dominoes from courthouse

DECATUR (AP) - Elderly men who play dominoes, smoke cigars and drink coffee in the basement of the Wise County Courthouse are stewing over a directive that they vacate the premises.

County commissioners voted to bar the handful of men who play dominoes in the basement lounge every morning and afternoon. Their last day to congregate is Tuesday.

"They just told us the courthouse wasn't the place to play dominoes," said Glenn Stockton, Commissioners voted Jan. 12 to prohibit domino playing in the courthouse and gave the players 15 days to vacate. Commissioner Max Weaver said if the men merely sat around drinking coffee, smoking cigars and discussing life, there would be no problem.

"This is their courthouse, too," Weaver said.

Gene Rhine, 81, said he didn't know the reason domino players were being booted from the basement room

"They didn't say nothing about us being too noisy or nothing," said Rhine. "They just said there had been complaints, but they wouldn't say who complained.'

A sign on a basement wall, above one of the domino tables, was posted before the commissioners'

"Notice to Domino Players," it read. "There have been a number of complaints about domino players parking on the courthouse square, not keeping the domino playing area clean and throwing tobacco cuds in the flower beds. This needs to be corrected for the benefit of all. County Judge Willard Howell said he hadn't received any complaints about the basement group. But increased liability and the belief that the courthouse should not be a domino hall prompted the court's action, he said.

"They took it in good grace," said Weaver. "The courthouse is not a proper place for a domino parlor.

Former County Judge Bob Holloway, defeated in November by Howell, said several of the men had asked him if they could play in the basement

New program gives caretaking relatives a break

DALLAS (AP) — An elderly woman checked at Gaston Episcopal Hospital. She wasn't in need of medical treatment; she just wanted to give her family a

She was of the first to participate in the hospital's Respite Care program, an idea gaining popularity as hospitals around the country look to expand health-care services and make use of hospital beds that otherwise would remain empty.

"It's designed to give the caregiver a break from the duties of taking care of their loved ones," said hospital administrator Charles Cooper. "They need the relief."

For a fee of $175, the hospital takes in Respite Care "guests" for the weekend, from 6 p.m. Friday to 6 p.m. Sunday.

The respite program combines a hospital's watchful accommodations with the schedule of a get-away weekend. The "guest" — an elderly or disabled person gets a private room with television and individual bathroom and is cared for by the nursing staff.

The family members who otherwise must stay home to provide their relative feeding, bathing and medical care are free to travel away from the home - or to stay and enjoy it all to themselves, program organizers said.

Cooper estimated that 60 percent of those dependent on others' care live in the homes of relatives. Most common, he said, are elderly parents staying in the homes of sons and Daughters.

While families most often provide an elderly or disabled person with the most personal attention, the situation can be draining for family members who feel tied down with responsibilities. "It can really wear you down," said Susan Early, who helped organize the Respite Care plan. "This can give the caretaker a break, a respite."

In Gaston Episcopal, a four-story independent hospital tucked into the Baylor University Medical Center at 3505 Gaston Ave., administrators have set aside 10 of the hospital's 100 beds for the program, said Early.

The staff will take care of any dependent person 16 or older, including those who have chronic disease or functional disabilities, hospital officials said. They are assisted with meals, bathing, dressing and in taking any medication they need. The staff also takes care of such minor procedures as changing bandages. Early said officials at Gaston Episcopal decided to try the program after reading about similar ones at hospitals elsewhere in the nation. The hospital is advertising the service through newsletters to senior citizens groups, visiting nurses organizations and a brochure.

The program may catch on at other hospitals, Early said, because most institutions experience heavier vacancies over the weekend, when patients who have had elective surgery check out to finish recuperating at home.

Argentine torture suspect arrested in California

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - A December 1983, ending nearly man described as a former Argentine general accused of torturing prisoners during that country's 'dirty war' in the 1970s appeared before a federal magistrate Monday and was ordered held without Carlos Guillermo Suarez Mason was arrested Saturday at his home in Foster City, a suburb on the San Francisco Peninsula.

He was held on a warrant issued by a U.S. District Court in New York City on Thursday at the Argentine government's request, charging him with false imprisonment. Other charges against him in Argentina include torture and misappropriation of government funds. Argentina says Suarez Mason is its most-wanted military Suarez Mason, 63, appeared at a 10-minute hearing before U.S. Magistrate F. Steele Langford.

"You are Carlos G. Suarez Mason?" Langford asked. "Yes," the man replied

But his lawyer, John Philipsborn, told reporters later that he was "not sure whether or not it's the same person" and had not seen the government's proof of identity.

Langford said he would deny bail at the request of the Argentine government. U.S. bail laws do not apply to extradition cases, Langford said.

Suarez Mason was commander of the Buenos Aires-based First Amry Corps from 1976-78, when he became head of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. He retired from the military in 1981 and was named president of the state oil monopoly, a post he held until 1982. Shortly after Raul Alfonsin became president of Argentina in eight years of military rule, he ordered Suarez Mason tried on human-rights charges.

The former general was stripped of all military privilege in April 1984 for refusing to appear before a question him about abductions, tortures and murders in the late 1970s. At least 9,000 people disappeared during the armed forces campaign that became known as the "dirty war." Alfonsin's government has set a deadline of Feb. 22 for indicting former military and police

U.S. Marshals Service spokesman Steve Boyle said U.S. authorities discovered that Suarez Mason had been in contact with his son in the New York City area, and traced phone calls to the home in

Foster City. Also in the courtroom Monday were two men who said they spent time in Argentine prisons under Suarez Mason's jurisdiction in the late 1970s without formal charges or trials. Neither said they knew the former general by sight. "We want this man to be sent back and put on trial in Argentina," said a man identifying himself only as Antonio. He said he spent five years in prison in Argentina before coming to the United States in 1980.

"You can compare him with leaders of the Nazi Party in Germany," said his companion, Hector Morales, who said he spent 41/2 years in prison in Argentina, where he had been a labor union activist.

On Wednesday, Jensen is to schedule a "criminality hearing" where identification and other matters related to extradition would be decided. The Argentine government has 45 days to submit documents supporting the charges.

Miss Clark suffered only minor frostbite. Six others who had taken shelter in the cave died, and three hikers were found dead on the mountainside, making it the worst hiking accident in the mountain's history.
