New driver classes set

Big Spring area residents ages 15 to 21 may register for driver education from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Saturday at the Big Spring High School main office.

Students should bring a birth certificate to prove age.

Spring classes will be conducted March 16 to May 18, from 7:20 to 8:20 a.m. and from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday each week.

Summer classes are scheduled June 1-23 from 7 to 9 a.m. and from 9 to 11 a.m. Monday through Friday.

In-car sessions are scheduled June 1-29 and June 30 to July 29. They will begin daily each hour between 7 a.m. and noon, and from 1 to 2 p.m.

State law requires attendance at 32 hours of the 34-hour class time and a grade average of at least 70 to pass the course. If a student misses a class, it will cost extra to attend a make-up session.

Students must be at least 15 years old on or before the first day of class. And they must pass the test for a beginning driver permit before they can begin in-car instruction.

The course will cost $170 — $85 of which must be paid at registration, with the other $85 due on the first day of driving. The part of the tuition will be refunded, and the tuition does not include state license fees.

Prison camp tells expansion plans

By SCOTT FITZGERALD Staff Writer

A 1984 Comprehensive Crime Control Act, expected to be fully enforced by October, will have long-range effects on Big Spring's Federal Prison Camp as prison officials here plan for the future, Superintendent Anthony Belaski said.

As a result, the prison camp is planning numerous changes and expansions to accommodate an anticipated increase in the inmate population, Belaski said.

Major short-range changes at the prison, expected within 18 months, will include adding property to the south, opening a prison detention center, and adding a new dining wing to the cooking and dining facility.

Belaski explained the Comprehensive Crime Control Act contains guidelines for federal judges that would eliminate "disparity in sentencing."

Under present federal sentencing guidelines, criminals who commit heinous crimes receive sentences of various lengths dictated by such factors as where the crime was committed and which judge hands down the sentence.

The act also abolishes federal parole and reduces "good time availability," Belaski said.

Good time availability was a reward system that reduced a prisoner's sentence if he satisfactorily proved he had adjusted to prison confinement, explained Assistant Superintendent Lloyd McMillan.

Credit time towards shortening a prison sentence will now be relatively small and identical for all prisoners, McMillan added.

More federal inmates now are serving longer sentences and the act is expected to increase the length of sentences. The act reflects the present administration's crackdown on crime, Belaski said.

In detailing the prison camp's 18-month, short-range goals, Belaski said camp officials want to better define the camp's boundaries.

He said camp officials want to acquire a strip approximately 100 yards wide along its southern boundary to "D" Street in the city's industrial park.

"We're surrounded by public streets on all four sides," Belaski said.

The strip would serve as a "buffer zone" and help eliminate public trespassing on prison grounds, he said.

"We have a lot of sightseers and it becomes disruptive. We lose time with traffic control," Belaski said.

If the land can be acquired from the city, prison officials would like to return it to its "natural state" EXPANSION page 2A

Casey's aide will succeed CIA director

WASHINGTON (AP) — CIA Director William J. Casey, recovering from surgery for a brain tumor, has resigned and will be replaced by his deputy, Robert Gates, a 20-year veteran of the spy agency, the White House announced today.

"It was Mr. Casey's decision to resign," said presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater. He said Casey, a longtime friend of Reagan's, would become a presidential counselor when he could return to work.

The resignation came at a time that many questions were being asked about the CIA's middleman role in clandestine arms sales to Iran.

Some members of Congress maintain the agency failed to comply with laws requiring that intelligence committees be kept abreast of such dealings. Casey, however, has contended that he did not break the law.

Fitzwater said Casey continues to improve steadily, is alert and has visited with other patients at Georgetown University Hospital.

Casey, 73, was named to head the spy agency in 1981 after helping manage Reagan's campaign for the presidency. Earlier, he served as chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission and had administrative posts during the Nixon and Ford presidencies.

Gates, who first joined the CIA in 1966 as an intelligence analyst, has been serving as acting director since Casey was hospitalized in December. He will continue to run the agency on an acting basis while his nomination is considered by the Senate.

Fitzwater said Casey had sent a letter to Reagan announcing his resignation. Reagan accepted it "with reluctance and deep regret," Fitzwater said.

It was fun and games time Saturday at the Celebrity Waiter benefit for the American Heart Association. More than $4,000 was raised at the second annual event at Highland Mall, Howard County AHA Chapter President Bob Coltrane reported. He said nearly 350 diners and 70 workers participated, about the same number as last year. Slightly more was raised last year, a reduction he attributed to lowered fees and extra expenses this year. State prison battle deadlocked

By SCOTT ROTHSCHILD

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — More than a week after Gov. Bill Clements announced he wanted emergency funds for prisons, the newly seated governor and Legislature have battled to a no-decision.

"Tensions are high. Everybody is looking for the best way to solve the problem," said Clements' press spokesman Jay Rosser late last week.

Hoping to avoid stiff federal penalties, Clements asked the Legislature for emergency authority to transfer funds for improvements to the Texas Department of Corrections.

But legislative leaders balked.

After bickering behind closed doors earlier in the week, Clements and lawmakers remained at odds over the amount of money needed, where the funds would come from and what would they be used for.

Rosser said Clements will reveal the specifics of his prison funding plan by Wednesday, which is when he is scheduled to address a joint session of the Legislature.

The prison system has been cited in federal court as not living up to agreements to improve prison conditions. The state has appealed the contempt-of-court ruling and hopes to restrain

Prison to host jobs fair

By SCOTT FITZGERALD Staff Writer

Big Spring Federal Prison Camp tentatively has planned a community workshop Saturday for those persons who seek employment in the federal prison system.

The time and site has not yet been confirmed, Assistant Superintendent Lloyd McMillan said this morning.

The job fair will be of benefit to anyone seeking employment in the federal prison system — in Texas or elsewhere, he said.

News earlier this month that the federal camp had about 20 openings — for correctional officers, secretarial positions, and physician and recreational assistants — brought 250 responses, McMillan said.

He reported records show 100 persons inquired directly at the camp and another 150 inquired by phone, McMillan said.

The prison camp now has six openings for correctional officers, two secretarial openings, one for a recreational specialist and another for an accountant, McMillan said.

Some training also will be hired, McMillan noted. He added that the hiring process usually takes two to three months after an application has been filed.

OSHA fine sets record

WASHINGTON — The $295,332 in penalties that the Chrysler Corp. agreed to pay the government to settle allegations that it under-reported job injuries at three of its auto plants is the biggest fine ever collected under the 1970 Occupational Health and Safety Act.

The previous biggest settlement penalty collected by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration was $122,000 from Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co. in Newport News, Va., in 1981 for alleged workplace health and safety violations two years earlier.

Deficit drop forecast

WASHINGTON — The U.S. trade deficit will decrease about $40 billion this year, thanks to lower interest rates and a declining inflation rate, Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III predicted.

"There's going to be a substantial deficit reduction in 1987, about $40 billion. That's a big reduction," Baker said Sunday in an interview on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley."

Last year, Baker's prediction of a reduction in the trade deficit to $135 billion was wrong, as the deficit rose to a record $169.8 billion. The year ended with a December deficit of $10.7 billion for the lowest monthly imbalance in 21 months, the government reported Friday.

Crash cause unknown

WASHINGTON — A helium-filled NASA research balloon launched from Australia on a trip around the globe crashed for unknown reasons in Paraguay, NASA spokesman Jim Elliott said.

Sunday's 1 a.m. EST crash near Concepcion, Paraguay, occurred a week after the balloon was launched from Alice Springs, Australia, he said. It had been expected to take 12 to 15 days to go around the earth.

NASA officials are trying to get to the 600-foot high balloon to determine what happened and the extent of damage to the balloon, which was designed to study solar flares, Elliott said.

Filipino vote favoring charter 3-1

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Early unofficial returns showed Filipinos voting more than 3-to-1 Monday in favor of a new constitution in a plebiscite seen as a major test for the 11-month-old government of President Corazon Aquino.

The military was on full alert after last week's failed coup attempt by ex-President Ferdinand E. Marcos' supporters, who oppose the charter. But the eight-hour balloting ended at 3 p.m. without reports of the kind of widespread violence that marked last year's fraud-tainted election between Marcos and Mrs. Aquino.

In the most serious incident, the government's Philippine News Agency said three Communist rebels were killed and three army soldiers wounded when guerrillas attacked several precincts Monday in South Cotabato province on Mindanao island.

Ramon Felipe, chairman of the Commission on Elections, said the nationwide turnout appeared to be more than 80 percent of the 25 million registered voters. The private National Movement for Free Elections, or NAMFREL, estimated voter turnout at 80 percent.

Definitive returns from the Manila area, traditionally the first to report, were not expected until late Monday. Election officials said final official results would not be available for days.

NAMFREL, which was conducting an independent count, said that scattered returns showed 359,776 votes for the charter and 103,816 against.

The charter sharply reduces the powers of the president, re-establishes a bicameral legislature, increases the authority of the judiciary and affirms Mrs. Aquino's six-year term.

In the Manila area, NAMFREL said it had tabulated 276,192 votes for approval and 74,259 against.

At a precinct at Villamor Air Base, where most of the voters were military officers, enlisted men and their families, 60 percent of the 13,939 votes were against the charter.

The mayor of the Manila suburb Makati, Jejomar Binay, said that 60 percent of the votes cast at the Fort Bonifacio military base there also were "no."

The government had predicted overwhelming approval of the 20,000-word charter despite opposition from right-wing, left-wing and some Moslem groups.

In a statement issued through her spokesman, Mrs. Aquino said the balloting was "clean, honest, orderly and exceptionally heavy."

"This proves the maturity of the Filipino people," she said. "My hope is that until the final results are in, this admirable demonstration of democracy in action will not only continue but also usher in the political stability we all desire."

Both election groups had launched campaigns to encourage voters, and signs at many precincts read: "God Said: Vote."

Fire kills 17 tourists

TAIPEI, Taiwan — A fire swept through a small hotel at southern Taiwan was packed with tourists Sunday. The blaze killed 17 guests and injured 14 others, authorities reported.

Firemen in Kaohsiung, 204 miles south of Taipei, said the fire at the four-story Tung Pao Hotel started around 1 a.m. and all the victims were Taiwanese tourists in the city for the Chinese Lunar New Year holiday.

The New Year came Thursday but the holiday period ends Monday.

Fireman Lin Yi-chao said in a telephone interview the fatalities included five children, and most of the victims were found on the upper two floors of the 27-room hotel which was fully booked.

Two of the injured were hospitalized in critical condition. The others were in satisfactory condition, officials said.

Terry Waite 'arrested'

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Shiite militia leader Nabih Berri said today Anglican envoy Terry Waite has been "arrested" by Shiite Moslems holding two American hostages. The kidnapers threatened to kill the hostages if the United States attacks Lebanon.

A Syrian newspaper claimed Washington is planning a military strike in response to recent kidnappings.

The underground group Islamic Jihad issued the threat on the hostages lives in a typewritten statement delivered to the west Beirut office of a Western news agency. It was accompanied by a photograph of hostage Terry Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press.

"Any military attempt against the Moslems in the region, particularly in Lebanon, will result in the death of the captives and America's interests in the region," the statement said.

Fonda film in S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — American actor Peter Fonda is starring in a movie about mercenaries being filmed in South Africa, according to a newspaper report.

The Sunday Times said it interviewed Fonda on the set of "The Fighters" and that he was unconcerned about possible adverse reaction to working in South Africa from the public or his sister, actress Jane Fonda, a liberal political activist.

"I spoke to Jane recently on the phone and she didn't say one word about the South African situation," the paper quoted Fonda as saying.

"My opinion about South Africa is that I love it here," he was quoted as saying. "It's a beautiful country."

Election may change U.S. military plan

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The plebiscite on a new constitution may affect the future of U.S. military bases in the Philippines, which are the linchpin of U.S. military power in the Pacific at a time when the Soviets are increasing their presence in the area.

The draft charter says that after the lease on the U.S. installations expires in 1991, no foreign military bases, troops or facilities will be allowed in the country except under a bilateral treaty. Such a treaty would have to be ratified by two-thirds of the Philippine Senate and approved by a majority of voters in a national referendum.

Another controversial provision declares that "the Philippines, consistent with the national interest, adopts and pursues a policy of freedom from nuclear weapons in its territory."

That could rule out the stationing of nuclear weapons at Clark Air Base or on board U.S. warships calling at Subic Bay Naval Base. The United States neither confirms nor denies the presence of nuclear weapons in the Philippines.

Interpretations differ on the potential effect of the provision.

In an interview Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press," former Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile said if the constitution was approved, "no nuclear-powered or nuclear-armed vessels or airplanes carrying nuclear weapons will be able to enter the American military facilities in the Philippines."

But Executive Secretary Joker Arroyo, Mrs. Aquino's closest adviser, said "we don't know" the effect of the provision because the United States does not disclose whether it has nuclear weapons in the country.

"Now if the United States should admit the existence of those nuclear weapons, then perhaps a problem will arise," he said.

If the United States was found to have nuclear arms on the bases, Arroyo added, then "the issue will arise whether it will be in the interest of the Philippine government" for them to remain.

But according to the transcript of a monitored telephone conversation with Mrs. Aquino in September, Arroyo said the United States would not maintain the bases if it was not permitted to have nuclear weapons there.

Views of other Texas papers

Here is a sampling of editorial opinions from around the state.

Lottery teaches negative values

Many people resist the idea (of lotteries) on religious and moral grounds. But the problem of lotteries goes far beyond that.

Teaching negative values. As Sen. Bob Graham of Florida says, "What the lottery says about success is the wrong message. What it says is that you don't have to work hard... All you have to do is take your roll of the dice."

It isn't the best form of "taxation." Most taxes cost states only a few cents of every dollar to collect. According to Dallin Oaks, a member of the Mormon Church Council of the Twelve Apostles that is fighting a proposed lottery in Idaho, operating expenses and prizes take between 60 and 75 cents of every dollar raised.

Texas will need more revenue to deal with its problems. But a lottery isn't the most efficient way....

El Paso Times

No total answer to prison problems

As Texas moves to ease its prison crisis, new ways of dealing with criminals need to be explored.

Merely building more fortress-style facilities in deep East Texas in which to warehouse felons is not the only way to go.

The state needs to consider a system of regional facilities in which to house non-violent offenders.

Another option the state should explore is contracting with private firms to build and operate some facilities. Such privatization is said to save both money and construction time.

Neither regional nor privately run prisons are the total answer to Texas' massive prison woes. They are only two of the many options....

San Antonio Express-News

Urges schools to follow example

Adversity can sometimes bring about good, as shown by the plans... by the two Denton universities to embark on some cooperative efforts.

Whether the new spirit of togetherness would have emerged even without the state's fiscal crunch is immaterial.

Other schools around the state, especially those in close geographic proximity, might emulate the effort.

A merger of the two schools, proposed largely on the sole basis that they are in the same city, apparently has been thwarted for now.

However, the plans... to explore and exploit possible cooperative projects should convince state officials and the taxpayers that the two schools are making a serious effort to save money.

Denton Record-Chronicle

Says Clements needs our support

The inauguration of Bill Clements as our state's new governor marked the changing of the guard at a pivotal time in Texas history.

Clements has been working on a variety of state issues since his election victory Nov. 4.

Now, as he officially takes over the leadership of our state government, Clements needs the strong support of all of the people of Texas to solve the pressing financial problems facing our state.

This is no time for partisan politics to create roadblocks along the path of economic recovery for our state. Too much is at stake to allow the pet projects of individual members of the legislature to stop legitimate efforts to eliminate the huge deficit Texas is facing.

Aquino must keep reform promise

Philippine President Corazon Aquino cannot overcome the setback her government suffered when her own troops fired into a large crowd of land-reform demonstrators by promising an independent investigation.

She also must proceed to keep her promise to institute land reforms if she is to head off a crisis on the verge of a vote on the new constitution....

The Aquino government is holding only tenuously to power, largely through her popular support. That may prove evanescent unless Mrs. Aquino can put out the brush fires that are growing perilously close together, threatening a conflagration that could bring down a leader who has been the best hope for democracy in the Philippines.

Speech shows Reagan in command

President Reagan successfully used the occasion of his sixth State of the Union address Tuesday evening to allay fears that his administration had been brought to a standstill by the Iran-contra arms affair.

The president dealt with the arms sales issue in a forthright manner and went on to spell out a broad agenda for the remaining two years of his administration.

By saying he was assuming full responsibility for the Iran-contra affair, Reagan showed he was prepared to deal with whatever findings the forthcoming investigations turn up.

Col. North knew in advance of secret 'sting' operation

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — Lt. Col. Oliver North knew well in advance of a secret "sting" operation that led to the indictment of 17 international businessmen last April on charges of trying to sell $2 billion worth of arms to Iran, we have learned. It was the biggest arms smuggling case ever brought by the U.S. Customs Service.

Jack Anderson

In fact, North helped the Customs Service case along for an interesting reason: He wanted to eliminate the competition. At the time, he was actively trading arms for hostages, and the $2 billion, straight-cash deal was undercutting his operation. North was later fired from the National Security Council staff for masterminding the Iran-contra deal.

North's manipulations were kept so secret that Customs Service officials won't know about his intervention until they read this. Nor have congressional investigators uncovered so much as a hint of North's hand in the Customs Service sting.

The businessmen were indicted April 22, and Customs Commissioner William von Raab's dramatic comments at the time make embarrassing reading in retrospect. It is clear that von Raab, a staunch Reaganite, had no inkling the Reagan administration itself was selling arms to Iran — the very offense the Customs Service had nailed the businessmen for attempting. The chief difference was that the businessmen merely tried to sell arms to Iran; the administration succeeded.

Describing the defendants as "brokers of death who operated a terrorist flea market," von Raab declared: "The Iranians would have used these weapons to make war against their neighbors or to spread international terrorism against the free West."

He added: "Without a doubt, the bloody hand of international terrorism would have been on the trigger of the TOW missiles — really an ideal weapon for this dirty business." Two months earlier, the secret White House operation had already delivered at least 506 TOW anti-tank missiles to Iran, and 1,500 more were to follow.

In a private interview last July 11, Dale Van Atta informed von Raab that the National Security Council's Ollie North was secretly supplying arms to Iran. Von Raab replied firmly that our information couldn't be correct.

Van Atta even warned von Raab that his $2 billion arms smuggling prosecution could blow up in his face — with the inevitable revelation that the defendants were allegedly trying to do only what the White House was already doing. North's specific role in the Customs sting is still sketchy, but his associates told us he knew about the private arms deal in its early stages. Indeed, one North intimate said the colonel boasted weeks before the April indictments that he had secretly "set up" the case to keep the decks clear for his own operation.

We can't confirm how North accomplished this feat, but there were a number of ways he could have done the trick. The key informer in the Customs case, Cyrus Hashemi, had been involved in North's transaction before he acted as an undercover agent for Customs.

Hashemi is a cousin of Hashemi Rafsanjani, speaker of the Iranian parliament, whom North considered a "moderate" in Tehran, — but who eventually blew the whole deal.

Even without Hashemi, who died mysteriously last July, North still would have had a contact with the businessmen. An American lawyer indicted in the scheme, Samuel Evans, was an associate of Adnan Khashoggi, the Saudi Arabian billionaire who was the key financier for North's arms deal.

In fact, Evans' lawyers say their client only went along with the private arms transaction because Khashoggi assured him the U.S. government had approved it.

In a 34-page memorandum, the lawyers said Evans met in June 1985 with Hashemi and two others — Manucher Ghorbanifar and Roy Furmark — and discussed the White House-sanctioned arms sale to Iran.

Sit back and enjoy the prosperity

By STEPHEN CHAPMAN
Some people are so addicted to pessimism that they can't be happy unless they're miserable. When things are bad, they mourn; when things are good, they wait gloomily for them to change. To modify what H.L. Mencken said, an economic puritan is someone who lives in constant fear that somehow, somehow, the economy is thriving.

Steve Chapman

This group includes the assorted experts who view our current economic prosperity with alarm. They have spent the last six years lamenting the policies pursued by the Reagan administration, and nothing so trivial as success will change their tune.

Take the stock market surge that began on Jan. 2 and racked up an unprecedented 13 consecutive daily gains, raising the Dow Jones industrial average to record levels. To some, this suggests that investors are highly optimistic about the economy's prospects.

To others, like Harvard economist John Kenneth Galbraith, it shows that investors are stupid — too stupid to see the 1929-style crash that looms.

The critics of Reaganomics have become Herbert Hoovers in reverse, endlessly foreseeing disaster just around the corner. When the 1981-82 recession ended, they said it wouldn't be long before the recovery would stall (due to those budget deficits) or re-ignite high inflation (due to those budget deficits. It hasn't happened.

In fact, we are the beneficiaries of one of the most potent expansions in the last century. Last year's GNP growth of just 2.5 percent may look weak, but it's better than a recession, which is what most recoveries have become by this stage. This recovery is now in its fifth year, making it the third longest in the last 50 years.

And it should grow longer still. Geoffrey Moore, head of Columbia University's Center for International Business Cycle Research, expects 1987 to be another year of moderate growth.

Equally important, this growth has not been accompanied by an outbreak of inflation, unlike the few stronger recoveries of recent decades. Just the opposite: In 1980, the inflation rate was 13.5 percent. In 1986, it was 1.1 percent — the best showing since 1962. The wholesale price index, a harbinger of consumer prices, actually fell last year.

And inflation has been cooled without freezing out jobs. Total employment has risen 14 percent, outstripping even the golden years of the early 1960s.

The seemingly high unemployment rate of 6.7 percent is due mostly to the high proportion of Americans who want to work outside the home.

Economist Alan Reynolds of Polyconomics points out that 69 percent of working-age Americans had jobs in 1985 — compared with 58 percent of Western Europeans, and compared with 64 percent of Americans in the period from 1965 to 1973.

These are not all jobs selling hamburgers and sweeping up around Japanese computers. Real after-tax income per capita, a measure of our standard of living, has risen by more than 11 percent since 1981.

Why shouldn't the stock market be doing well? Low inflation, stable growth, rising incomes and steady job creation are all signs of economic vitality, not impending catastrophe. The pessimists point with alarm to the swollen deficits in the trade balance and the federal budget. But neither is likely to prevent further economic gains.

The trade deficit is likely to drop considerably, thanks to the fall of the dollar against most currencies,

Trade with Mexico is examined

By Sen. Lloyd Bentsen
Mexico is more than just our next-door neighbor. In 1985 it was the third largest buyer of U.S. exports and our fourth largest source of imports.

We are Mexico's most important trading partner, providing 66 percent of its imports and buying 70 percent of its exports in 1985.

Communities on either side of our 1,933-mile border create a critical buffer zone for this binational commerce. It is this buffer zone that absorbs the shock when national policies or international economic conditions change.

The border still is recovering, in fact, from the impact of Mexico's peso devaluations that began in 1982. In Laredo, for example, merchants sold 80 percent of their goods to Mexicans before the peso devaluations. These sales taxes provided half of the city's revenues.

After the devaluations, sales dwindled, businesses closed and jobs were lost. From 1982 to 1983, unemployment soared by 148 percent in Laredo, 45 percent in El Paso, 46 percent in McAllen and 55 percent in Brownsville.

As a result of my request to the Senate Finance Committee in 1985, the U.S. International Trade Commission recently completed a study on the impact that increased trade between the United States and Mexico would have on the border.

As a condition of Mexico's entrance last year into GSTT — the General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs that governs international trade — many Mexican trade barriers have been eased. I wanted a comprehensive study on the effects this — and other government policies and programs now in place or proposed — will have on stimulating commerce and aiding in the recovery of the border economy.

The 343-page study was comprehensive and it may well serve as the standard work on the border region for some time to come. Both Mexico and the United States, it notes, already have many programs intended to benefit the border region in some way. We have more than 30 such programs that, the study concludes, are not working.

The International Trade Commission's study also examines flaws in many of the legislative proposals on the table for addressing border problems.

The study falls short, unfortunately, by failing to make recommendations for improving the border economy, as was requested. As Chairman of the Finance Committee, I will call hearings on the ITC study in the coming months to get recommendations for workable legislation.

particularly the Japanese yen and the West German mark. That's good news for American exporters, from farmers to computer makers, who can expect to sell a lot more in the world market.

The budget deficit, on the other hand, has never been the drag on the economy that the conventional wisdom predicted. It has not prevented interest rates from tumbling, inflation from almost vanishing or the recovery from proceeding.

In any case, it is declining with each year of prolonged growth, independent of Gramm-Rudman. A growing budget deficit may be grounds for concern, but a shrinking one isn't.

Some people are so convinced of the basic flaws of Reaganomics that they interpret every development, no matter how outwardly positive, as vindication. But after four years of missed predictions, they sound like Groucho Marx: "Who are you going to believe, me or your own eyes?"

No expansion lasts forever, but the end of this one is nowhere in sight, and a solid foundation for long-term prosperity has been laid. Ignore the distress of those who can't bear to see the nation grow richer under policies they detest. Just relax and enjoy it.

Durable and versatile clothes are best

By NAOMI HUNT
County Extension Agent

Clothing needs change quickly for children not only because of their physical growth, but also because of their varied interests and activities.

The Soap and Detergent Association offers several practical guidelines for selecting clothes that fit children and their needs.

Additions to a youngster's wardrobe need to be durable and versatile. Invest in clothing that can be worn for several types of activities. Look for clothing designs that allow for comfort, growth and safety.

A prime consideration is clothing care. Easy-care fabrics provide a low-maintenance wardrobe for children and hassle-free laundry days for you.

Check labels for fabric content and care instructions before purchasing. A care label should tell you what fiber or fibers are used in the garment and how to care for it. Hang tags should include information about the garment such as whether it is colorfast, spot and stain resistant, crease resistant, shrink controlled or how much it can shrink.

Focus on family

For easy care, permanent press clothes are a good choice for children because little or no ironing is needed. Other fabrics, such as terris, knits and corduroys, can also go straight from the dryer to a closet or drawer without having to cross the ironing board.

Ensure purchases of durable garments by checking their construction. Clothes cut on the grain have threads crossing at right angles. These clothes hang straight and retain their shape better than clothes cut on the diagonal, or off the grain. Seams should have about 12 stitches per inch and be tied at the ends to prevent splitting. Felled seams with two rows of stitching lend extra strength to garments, especially sleepwear and playclothes.

Garments last longer if they have reinforcements at stress points: knees, elbows, crotch, pockets and buttonholes. Look for signs of reinforcement, such as patches, extra stitching, bar tacks, metal rivets, linings and interfacings.

Get longer service from clothing by selecting styles with features of growth allowance. Unfitted waistlines, adjustable straps, and extra material in hems and cuffs extend garments as a child grows. A feature that accommodates both growth and comfort is sleeve design. Styles with room to grow include raglan, kimono and gusseted inserts.

Children should be seen and not hurt. Therefore, dress a child with safety in mind. Check for trims that are sewn securely to the garment to prevent accidents. Pants and jeans are less likely to catch on playthings, such as bike pedals, if he legs are hemmed instead of cuffed. Consider light and brightly colored outer garments that are easier for drivers to see on dark days. Conversely, look for a raincoat and snowsuit with a separate hood or hat so that a child's vision is not obstructed.

As a child's dexterity increases, select clothes with self help features. Examples include big buttons, front zippers, elastic waistbands and suspenders. In addition, a child should be able to distinguish easily between the fronts and backs of garments.

A child, when old enough, should be involved as much as possible in planning shopping trips for clothes and the actual selections. Also teaching a youngster how to care for new clothes will pay off later as a child increasingly assumes responsibility for a wardrobe and its care.

'Tis the season to plant pecan trees

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

When is the best time to plant pecan trees in Howard County and what varieties are best?

One of the keys to growing pecans, whether in the backyard or in a commercial orchard, is to plant the trees properly so that they get off to a good start.

Tree planting time is at hand — January and early February are the best times.

To begin, select a tree four-to-eight feet tall as soon as nurseries get supplies. Plant as soon as possible, using care not to let roots dry out or freeze.

Dig the hole only as large as the tree's root system. If the hole is too deep, the tree will settle and this can cause poor growth or death.

The taproot should sit in the bottom of the hole. If the hole cannot be as deep as the length of the roots, cut back the taproot to fit the hole.

Pack original soil around roots as tightly as possible. Packing the soil in two-to three-inch layers is better than watering to pack the soil. Use adjacent soil to complete filling the hole, not light soil, sand or potting soil. The tree can drown in rainy weather if light fill soil is used on clay land.

For your garden

Plant the tree at the same depth it grew in the nursery row. Look at the colors to determine the soil line: the bark is gray and the root is dark brown.

Cut off the top half of the tree at planting to balance the stem and roots and to force growth close to the soil line.

Wrap the lower 18 inches of the trunk with aluminum foil to prevent side shoots, sun scald and rabbit damage. On large plantings, use a mixture of white latex paint and water (one part paint to three parts water).

Build a basin around the tree to hold water and give each tree five gallons of water immediately after planting. Make sure trees do not go longer than 14 days without water.

In regards to varieties, everyone seems to have a favorite but the most consistently productive varieties in Howard County have been the Tejas, Mohawk, Wichita, Western, and Burkett. The Muhan is a popular tree and makes a beautiful yard tree, but due to its great demand for water, often fails to fill out well in West Texas.

 I am interested in building a greenhouse. Does your office have any information on greenhouses? ***

Yes, we do. We have some excellent plans available as well as other information on greenhouse horticultural production. We have such an extent and variety of such information you would need to drop by our office in the courthouse and choose what you specifically need.

 How can I get my soil tested?  Information and forms are available at the County Extension Office. Soil samples and accompanying forms can then be sent to either our labs at Lubbock or College Station for testing. Charges for the test are $6 for a regular soil fertility test and $10 if micronutrients are requested to be tested as well. Other tests for nitrates, salinity, boron and potting media are available. Our services also offers tests for water and forages and plants.

 What are the show schedules for the upcoming major stock shows Howard County 4-H members will be participating in? ***

Our youngster's projects leave for Fort Worth on Feb. 3. Judging will be Feb. 5th and 6th.

Other entries will leave and be judged on different days: El Paso's leave Feb. 6th and show Feb. 9th and 10th; San Antonio's leave Feb. 10th and show Feb. 14th and 15th; Barrow exhibitors show Feb. 16-18; Houston exhibitors begin on March 1 and last through March 7th.

For a schedule of each breed of animal show dates can be obtained by calling the county extension office at 267-1821 or 267-6671.

Couples who share fitness find exercising more fun

By HARPER'S BAZAAR
A Hearst Magazine

Couples who switch from solo sports to shared fitness routines find getting in shape twice as exhilarating.

Almost any sport can be "coupled," according to an article in Harper's Bazaar, with each partner feeling more constructive than competitive and encouraging the other to do tricky moves and challenging routines.

Many former jogging couples have switched to hiking, with a tramp through the woods developing aerobic power and endurance, relieving tension in a natural setting.

Tap dancing in sync is a good sport for couples, as are archery, golf without the golf cart, sailing and horseback riding.

The same "twosome" advantages apply to warmups and workouts, where you can have a safer, more effective regimen by using each other as resistance, instead of relying on weights and machines.

There are four components to a good workout for two — aerobic capacity, strength, flexibility and skill. All should improve if you exercise or play a sport at least three times a week for no less than 30 minutes.

Balance strenuous conditioning with both active and passive rest you can enjoy together — hiking or cycling for the first, a massage or leisurely soak in a hot tub for the second.

A good face-to-face warmup is indispensable — don't skimp on stretches.

Make your home or apartment your gym. When traveling, a hotel room will do as long as it is big enough for two people to lie down full-length. If you try this outdoors or on a bare floor, cushion yourself with a mat or towel, protecting knees, elbows, hips and lower back.

Some movements are enhanced if done together with a towel or broomstick. As one person pulls, the other resists.

Start with the major muscle groups. Stand apart, hold each other lightly, lower your heads and shoulders toward your legs. Each of you should work through a full range of motion, bending your bodies from right to left, left to right, up and down, backward and forward. Never force an exercise.

Here are some pre-sport exercise routines, suggested by Steve Adcock, author of "The Partner Workout."

— Rowing. Sit facing your partner, knees bent and braced together. Stretch two towels between your hands. Keep legs stationary, alternating hip and arm movements, back and forth. Keep towels parallel to the floor.

— Leaning seesaw. Stand facing your partner, three feet apart. Keep arms straight. Lean back with your shoulders, stretching on towel between your hands. Alternate up and down knee bends.

Steam room and sauna doesn't add to long-range weight loss

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am interested in firming up and losing weight. I go to the spa three or four times a week. I work out 30-40 minutes at a session. Then I sit in the sauna or steam room 20 to 30 minutes at a time. Please tell me the values, if any, that I might get from the steam room and sauna, plus anything negative I should know about them. — M.J.

The values of the steaming include a sense of relaxation, the warming of the body with increased blood flow to muscle and skin, a sense of well-being and perhaps some interesting conversation.

The negatives are increased heart rate and the increased temperature of the body, both of which can be harmful for those with heart disease, arteriosclerosis, or thyroid problems. There is also loss of body fluids and minerals, which may make one dehydrated. It can be too much for those on diuretics (water pills) to begin with.

P.S. I doubt that it is adding much to your long-range weight-loss or firming-up program.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a 17-year-old female who has small and weak wrists. I play tennis and would like to join our school team. Are there any exercises to strengthen the wrists? — C.R.

The wrists have no muscles, but there are tendons that attach to forearm muscles and lend stability to wrists. So the only exercises that will help are ones to strengthen those forearms. And you have to strengthen both the front and backs of the forearms.

You may have guessed one of the exercises — forearm curls. Use a pair of dumbbells. Support your forearms on a table or on your thighs with the knuckles of your hands facing up. Now bend your wrists down, then upward as slowly as you can. When you've done this as often as seems comfortable, turn your wrists over (knuckles down) and repeat the wrist bends.

In the first stage of the exercise you are exercising the forearm extensors, the muscles on the hairy part of your forearm. In the second, you work the flexors, those on the hairless side. Good luck. I'll bet your tennis coach will have other exercises for you.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a victim of cellulite. How does it differ from fat? — E.K.

It doesn't; it's fat. The dimpling and rippling of the skin is from the connective tissue, but the puffiness is plain old fat, the same kind found in other body areas. You get rid of cellulite the way you get rid of any fat, through exercise and ingesting fewer calories.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I don't have a cholesterol problem, but I do have high levels of triglycerides. I know exercise is good for lowering cholesterol. How about the triglycerides? Does aerobic exercise help lower those

Teens without control, want birth control

DEAR ABBY: I am 15 and have been going with this guy I'll call Brian for four months. (He's 17.) We are very much in love and need help.

We have been having sex regularly and we never once have used any kind of protection. Thank God I haven't ended up pregnant. I want to ask my mom to put me on the pill, but I'm afraid if I do, she will forbid me to see Brian again, then I'd probably end up running away. Brian keeps telling me to ask my mom to put me on the pill, but I'm scared. I'm scared I'll get pregnant, and I'm, scared to ask my mom. What should I do?

SCARED
First, a boy who uses no protection when he's having sex with a girl doesn't "love" her — he's using her. And a girl who would permit it is a child in a woman's body. Sex is for mature people who can handle parenthood should they accidentally have a child. You obviously don't qualify.

The best birth control is self control, but for me to tell you that you have no business having sex is useless because you already know it, and are not about to stop because I said so. You can either go on as you are and end up pregnant — which you surely will — or you can tell your mom that you are sexually active and want to go on the pill. Or you can go to a family planning clinic on your own and learn to protect yourself from an unwanted pregnancy or the possibility of a venereal disease. I do not approve of sex for children your age, but if you choose to continue, then you must protect yourself.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, "Wide Awake" wrote to say that her husband had been talking in his sleep about a "Jean" and a "Marion," but when she asked him who Jean and Marion were, he claimed that he didn't know any women by those names.

Abby, both you and "Wide Awake" must have been sound asleep. Her husband could have been referring to men named "Gene" and "Marion." I personally know three male Marions and innumerable men called "Gene," which is short for "Eugene." And if you think about it, you probably do, too. So don't judge the husband guilty until the facts are known.

ROLLAND G. JONES FROM SOUTH DAKOTA
DEAR MR. JONES: You're right. I shot from the hip. I know several Eugenes who are called "Gene," but only one male Marion comes to mind. He was born in Iowa in 1907 and was christened Marion Michael Morrison. He earned a football scholarship at the University of Southern California and played under the name of Marion Morrison from 1925 to 1927. But Marion had dreams of being an actor, so he changed his name from Marion to one he thought would be better suited to his macho image. His dreams came true and he made it big in films. Score: Marion Morrison, 0; John Wayne, 10.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 12 years. He was not exactly the man of my dreams, but he did provide me with the security I needed at the time.

Fifteen years ago I met a man I truly love. We have had a silent relationship (no communication) since he was married 13 years ago. He is now divorced and I am separated from my husband, because I can no longer tolerate his outside relationships with other women, which he made little effort to hide.

I would appreciate your advice. BEWILDERED AND PUZZLED

DEAR BEWILDERED: The man you truly loved 15 years ago is now divorced, and you are now separated from an unfaithful husband, which gives you a valid reason for getting rid of him.

If you need my permission to say farewell to your cheating spouse in order to renew a possible relationship with the man of your dreams, you have it. I am not suggesting that you take a nosedive into the sea of matrimony — but you could test the waters.

DEAR ABBY: A question came up, and we hope you can answer it. A widower gets remarried. Is he a widower any longer? Some say yes and some say no.

What do you say?
JERRY U. IN FORT MYERS

DEAR JERRY: I say he is no longer a widower — he's a married man.

LOST TICKETS
Unlike many areas involving the rights of air travelers, no federal regulations govern lost tickets. Every airline, however, has its own set of guidelines that become part of the contract that you and the airline enter into when you buy a ticket. Slight variations exist, but the basic procedure is standard: Your travel agent will report the missing ticket to the airline on whose form the original ticket was written. If the lost ticket is not used and not cashed in before the expiration date printed on the face of the ticket, usually 90 days to one year after the date of issue, you will be able to collect a full refund minus a service charge. You will receive this refund in the same form in which you paid for your original ticket.

The benefits of utilizing professional travel planners are numerous. We take the worry out and leave the pleasure in. BIG SPRING TRAVEL, 608 Scurry, offers the experience and resources that will make your next trip, whatever the purpose, more relaxing, more trouble free and, above all, more enjoyable. Nominations should be mailed or turned in the office by February 16.

The next community luncheon will be March 4 and this award will be presented at that luncheon.

Conner takes decisive 3-0 lead Kookaburra appears headed for that old gum tree

FREMANTLE, Australia (AP) — Stars & Stripes dominated Kookaburra III in moderate winds today, winning by 1 minute, 46 seconds to take a 3-0 lead and move within one victory of bringing the America's Cup back to the United States.

It had been in America for 132 years, ever since the competition began in 1851. But Australia won it in 1983. Skipper Dennis Conner, who lost it, is on the verge of regaining yachting's biggest prize.

The fourth, and potentially decisive, race is scheduled for Wednesday (12:15 a.m. EST). The next race had been scheduled for Tuesday, but Stars & Stripes requested an off day because of a forecast for light winds, conditions that make luck a factor in sailboat racing.

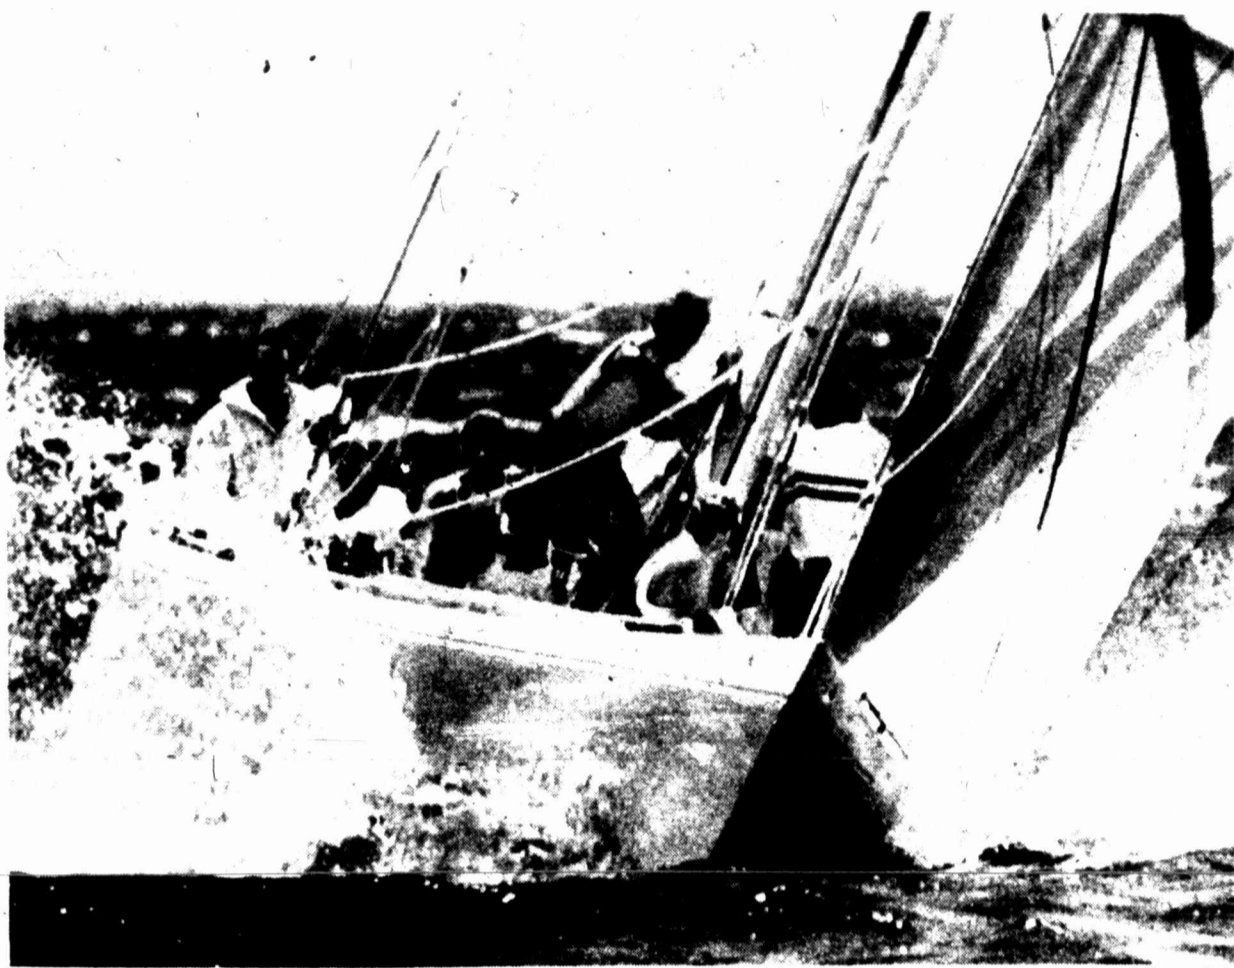

After the race, it was disclosed by police that the Kookaburra camp received a phone call saying there was a bomb aboard. A chase boat was sent alongside to inform the crew. No bomb was found.

Kevin Parry, chairman of Kookaburra's taskforce syndicate, said he had been called out of a board meeting and informed of the bomb scare. Parry said that although he was told it was almost certainly a hoax call, he was given the option of calling off the race and evacuating the boat. But when informed, the crew chose to finish the race.

"Our crew will fight the whole way," Kookaburra III skipper Iain Murray told a post-race news conference. "They're still in very high spirits."

"The boat we're racing appears to be faster than us. But we haven't lost it yet."

Conner won the first race Saturday in heavy winds by 1:41 and the second race, Sunday, in light winds in 1:10. He won today in moderate winds of 12 to 20 knots out of the southwest. Kookaburra III got off to its best start in the best-of-seven series in today's race. The boats crossed the starting line evenly, then engaged in the most aggressive competition of the three races.

The Australian defender was slightly in front when the boats crossed each other four minutes into the race. Seventeen minutes later they crossed again and this time Conner had Stars & Stripes ahead by about two boat lengths.

Conner never trailed again. Stars & Stripes led by 15 seconds at the first mark then pulled away on the second leg, a downwind run. It added a whopping 42 seconds to its lead to build its margin to 57 seconds.

Moments after the start and late in the second leg, Kookaburra III bowman Don McCracken went up the mast, apparently to work on a mainsail zipper, which controls the sail's shape and area.

The advantages at each of the next five marks were 1:21, 1:31, 1:29, 1:49 and 1:41, respectively. The Americans were so relaxed and confident that they joked among each other.

Conner, in fact, so enjoyed today's race that at one point he even surrendered the wheel to tactician Tom Whidden.

The American crew chatted and joked like yachtsman out for an afternoon's pleasure sail during the race as they pulled away from Australia and closer to victory.

"Let's go back to work," said Conner, a 44-year-old drapery wholesaler, as he took over the wheel again.

Whidden said of Conner: "He's sailing as well as I've ever seen him before," said the tactician who held the same job the day Conner became the first American ever to lose the America's Cup.

The yachts broke evenly after Conner fought off Peter Gilmour, the Aussie's combative starting helmsman, to take his favorite end of the line. Murray took over and had Kookaburra a length ahead five minutes into the race. Ten minutes later Conner had to veer away to avoid hitting Kookaburra as they crossed tacks. Murray tacked right on his bow a "slam dunk" in sailing vernacular.

Stars & Stripes moved into high gear, sailing faster to leeward. Conner was masterful, sailing in and off the wind in a scalloping motion to finally force Murray to tack away.

Then he gave his blue yacht her head to use her not so secret weapon, straight line speed.

Aussie hopes nonetheless rose as did the wind: 12-14 knots at the start and increasing to 19. But Conner reached the first of eight bouys on the 24.1-mile course three boat lengths ahead.

The ensuing spinnaker run, meant to be Stars & Stripes' weak point, was where Conner beat Murray, adding 42 seconds to his lead.

Safely in front, Conner sailed conservatively the rest of the way. Murray's only hope was for the Americans to suffer from gear failure as happened when Stars & Stripes lost her only race against New Zealand in the challenger finals.

That didn't happen.

Kookaburra continued after threat

FREMANTLE, Australia (AP) — America's Cup defender Kookaburra III of Australia was the target of a bomb scare during its race with American challenger Stars & Stripes Monday, police said.

Chief Inspector John Watts of Perth central police confirmed that an anonymous call had been made to a police station in Sydney claiming a bomb was on board the Australian 12-meter.

Kevin Parry, chairman of Kookaburra's taskforce syndicate, said he had been called out of a board meeting and informed of the bomb scare during the final leg of Monday's race, which Stars & Stripes won by 1 minute, 46 seconds.

The Perth millionaire said that although he was told it was almost certainly a hoax call, he was given the option of calling off the race and evacuating the boat.

He advised Kookaburra's tender to inform the crew of the threat but the crew decided to continue, Parry said.

"If it was just a hoax, then it was in pretty poor taste," Parry said.

Taskforce spokesman Grant Donovan said a security guard was either in the vicinity of Kookaburra all night and it was practically impossible for anyone to enter the compound.

"Neither (Skipper) Iain Murray nor the boys were really worried — they had other things to think about," Donovan said.

"We go over the boat every morning and there's not much in it which could hide anything we didn't know about."

Another number one falls to Irish

By The Associated Press
Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps used reverse psychology to inspire his team's upset victory over top-ranked North Carolina.

Guard David Rivers scored all of his 14 points in the second half to lead the Fighting Irish to a come-from-behind 60-58 victory on their home court. The Tar Heels played without their leading scorer, guard Kenny Smith, who underwent arthroscopic knee surgery on Saturday.

"I warned the players that losing a key player can help the opponent because they can make up for it," Phelps said. "My kids wouldn't even let me read the newspaper because they didn't want me to think of Smith not being in the lineup."

In other Top Twenty action Sunday, No. 3 Nevada-Las Vegas beat No. 18 Auburn, 104-85.

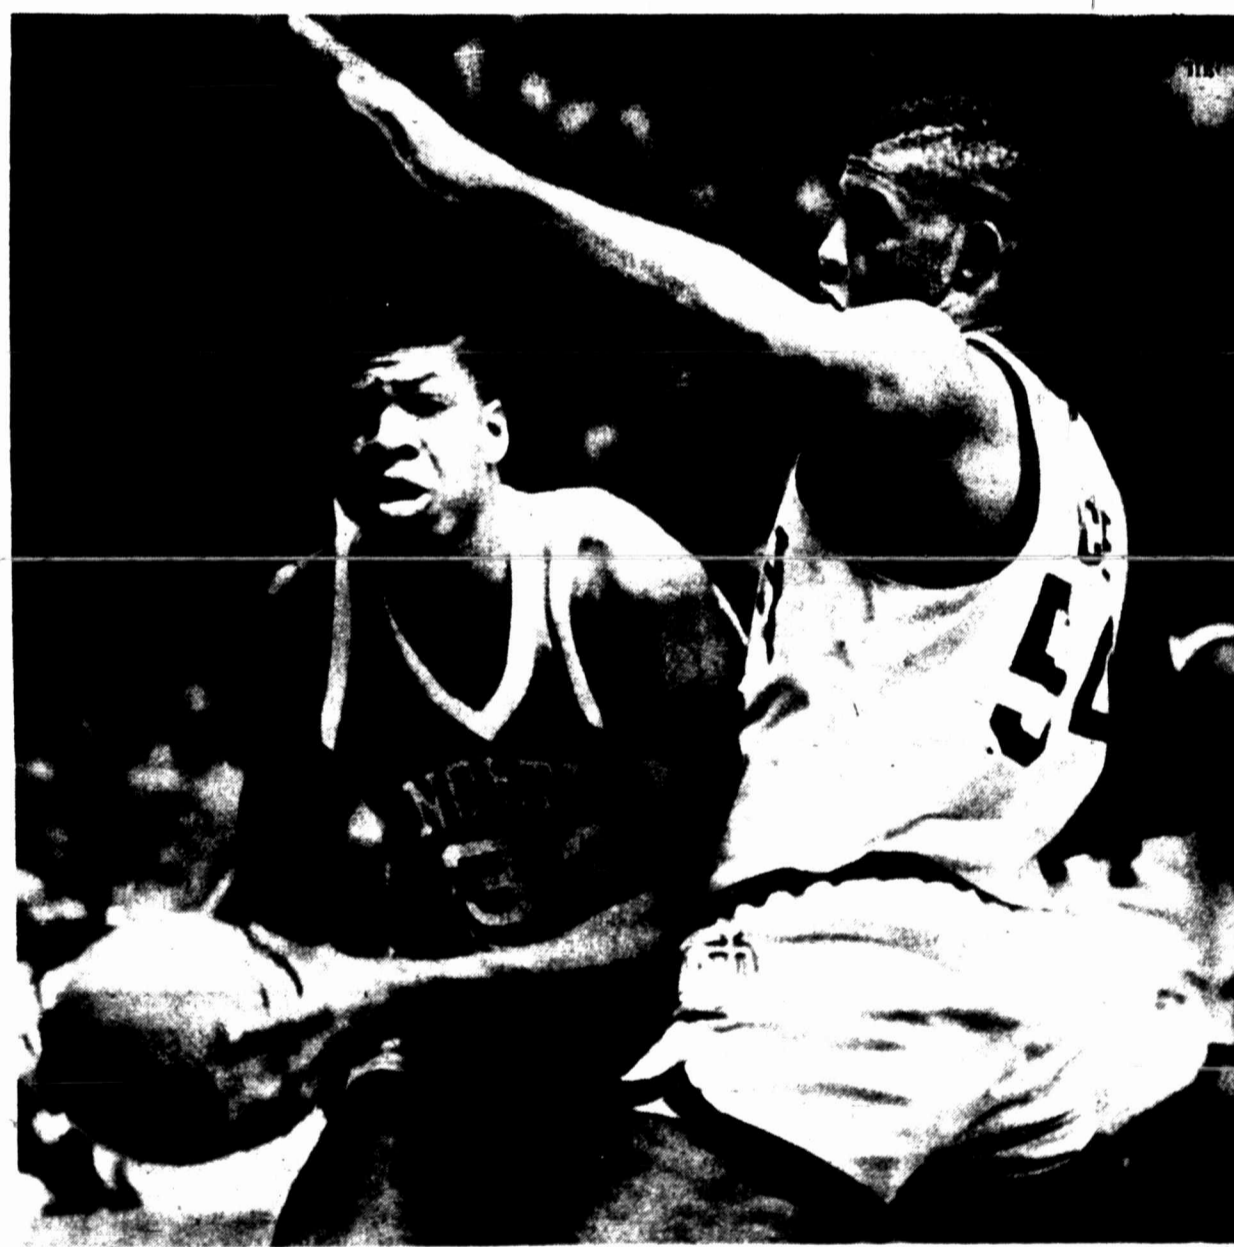

Notre Dame trailed by 16 points in the first half, but rallied to take the lead on a Rivers jumper with 1:06 left in the game. Rivers and teammate Gary Voce each hit two free throws in the final 16 seconds to seal the victory.

Notre Dame, 12-5, has beaten five No. 1 teams at South Bend, Ind., in the past 13 years. The loss snapped a 16-game winning streak for North Carolina, which dropped to 18-2.

At Auburn, Freddie Banks scored 36 points and Armon Gilliam added 31 to lead Nevada-Las Vegas. Twenty-seven of Banks' points came on 3-point field goals. Overall, the Runnin' Rebels hit 14 of 28 3-point attempts.

The Rebels improved their record to 21-1, while Auburn fell to 12-6.

Horned Frogs leaping over rest of SWC

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP SPORTS WRITER

Baylor and Texas A&M get the next shots at stopping the Texas Christian Horned Frogs' unbeaten Southwest Conference basketball barnstormers.

The 16th-ranked Horned Frogs are 18-3, the best start in the school's history.

They went 8-0 the first half of the SWC season then whipped Arkansas 73-66 Saturday night to start the second half of the season with a three-game lead over the field.

TCU's 22nd consecutive Daniel-Meyer Coliseum victory was also the Frogs' 14th consecutive victory, second-longest streak in the nation.

Southern Methodist's 75-73 upset victory over Baylor Saturday afternoon dropped the Bears into a 6-3 second place tie with Texas Tech, which beat Houston 55-54 in overtime in Lubbock Saturday night.

In a regionally televised game by Raycom on Sunday, Texas defeated the Rice Owls in Houston, 70-69, on a free throw with no time remaining.

TCU, the preseason favorite to win the regular season championship, is at Baylor on Wednesday night, then travels to College Station on Sunday to meet the Aggies in a 2 p.m. regionally televised (Raycom) clash in G. Rollie White Coliseum.

TCU also has games left against SMU at home on Feb. 12, at Texas Feb. 18, at home against Texas Tech on Feb. 21, at home against Houston Feb. 25, and at Rice on Feb. 28.

Carven Holcombe scored 29 points and guard Jamie Dixon had 11 points and 7 assists in TCU's second victory this season over Arkansas.

The Horned Frogs beat the Hogs 80-77 in their first league game of the season.

"We know we have a three-game lead, and I guess you could say we can afford to lose some games," Dixon said. "But that's not what we're planning to do."

TCU jumped to a 45-23 halftime lead and coasted home.

"We couldn't play much better than we played in the first half," said TCU Coach Jim Killingsworth.

Arkansas Coach Nolan Richardson agreed.

"They just flat out hustled us and outplayed us," Richardson said. "They went after every rebound and got it."

TCU outrebounded Arkansas 46-30.

Broncos, AFC win 10-6 sleeper

Fans must now resign themselves to seven months without

HONOLULU (AP) — Denver's John Elway and Karl Mecklenburg closed out the NFL season with a measure of consolation.

Elway threw for the game's only touchdown and Mecklenburg was a defensive standout Sunday as their AFC team beat the error-plagued NFC 10-6 in the Pro Bowl football game.

Although the Pro Bowl featured such high-powered offensive stars as Elway, Walter Payton, Eric Dickerson and Mark Bavaro, the defenses mostly controlled the contest.

The American Conference got all its points in the first half and the NFC could muster only a pair of field goals in the second.

The AFC came up with a couple of late goal-line stands to preserve the victory, just the third for the AFC in the last eight Pro Bowls.

"It feels good to end the season with a victory," said Elway, who threw a 10-yard scoring strike to Todd Christensen of the Los Angeles Raiders on the last play of the first quarter.

Tony Franklin of New England kicked a 26-yard field goal late in the first half and Morten Anderson kicked a pair in the second half for the NFC.

The game was the 24th game, counting the preseason, of the 1986 season for Broncos and Giants players.

The AFC victory halted the NFC's recent domination in postseason play. The NFC had won five of the last seven Pro Bowl games and five of six Super Bowls, including lopsided victories in the last three.

"There was no AFC-NFC carryover from the Super Bowl," Elway said. "Everyone on both teams just wants to come over here and win."

The NFC still leads the Pro Bowl series 10-7.

The National Conference made some critical errors in the game, including two fumbles on punts by St. Louis rookie return specialist Vai Sikahema, who had lost just two fumbles all season and didn't drop a single punt.

He fumbled three punts on Sunday, and the two he lost led to both AFC scores.

"I was a rookie playing with the best," Sikahema said. "I felt a little intimidated, with all my idols on this team."

Sikahema almost redeemed himself, rolling up 108 yards on punt and kickoff returns and coming close to breaking loose on a couple.

The game's most valuable player award went to a member of the losing squad, defensive end Reggie White of the Philadelphia Eagles. White had four quarterback sacks and pressured AFC passers on a number of other occasions. He was credited with seven solo tackles and two assists.

The AFC defense twice stopped the NFC from within the American Conference 10-yard line in the second half.

The Los Angeles Rams' Dickerson appeared to score on a 1-yard run to give the NFC the lead with about nine minutes to play. But the play was nullified by a motion call against Washington guard Russ Grimm.

On the next play, Kansas City's Lloyd Burruss came up with an end zone interception of a pass thrown by Jay Schroeder of the Redskins.

Earlier in the fourth quarter, the NFC settled for 19-yard field goal by Andersen after failing to get the ball into the end zone despite having a first-and-goal at the 4-yard line.

Shoe needs a fixed knee

By The Associated Press
The leading West Coast thoroughbred will be out of action for about 10 days because of knee surgery.

He's not a horse, but a jockey, 55-year-old Bill Shoemaker. The Shoe has had increasing cartilage trouble in the right knee and he decided it was time to act on it. An associate of noted sports surgeon Dr. Robert Kerlan will perform the surgery on Tuesday at Inglewood, Calif.

"It's the same knee operation as I had on the other knee around 1981," Shoemaker said.

"I'll go in during the morning, they'll operate, and I'll go home the same day," he said.

"When I'm riding, it doesn't feel too bad," he said. "It's walking afterward that bothers me. I didn't think I was going to make it back to the jockeys' room after the last race (Saturday)."

That race was a 4 1/2-length victory aboard the unbeaten filly Very Subtle in the $79,950 San Ynez Stakes at Santa Anita. It was the 8,630th victory of Shoemaker's matchless career and his 964th in stakes competition.

Shoemaker's knee malady forced him to beg off his scheduled mounts on Sunday, and Gary Baze filled in admirably.

In Sunday's feature, the $153,800 San Pasqual Handicap, Baze guided Epidaurus to a front-running one-length victory over Ascension that was worth a winner's share of $90,800. Ascension was second by a nose over Nostalgia's Star.

Epidaurus covered 1 1-16 miles in 1:42.2-5 and paid $3.

Miller no longer a 'dead horse'

PERBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Johnny Miller played word games with himself over the closing holes of a tournament he still refers to as "The Crosby." At the end he heard a word applied to him that hadn't been used in four long years — winner.

Miller's buzz word on Sunday was WOOD. "That means it Works Only One Day. I have a lot of little gimmicks like that," he said.

But this one was something different. "I've used it maybe once before in my whole life." It was designed to cure what he called "a terminal putting stroke." Miller said after coming from five shots off the pace with a brilliant 66.

"Over the last four holes, I didn't look at the putter. I looked at the hole," Miller said.

It worked on two occasions, a 6-footer for birdie that brought him to within one shot of the lead on the 15th, and a 15-footer that proved to be the eventual winner on the 18th.

But even WOOD wasn't enough on the 18th, Miller said. "I knew I couldn't make it. So I pretended my son was putting it. I figured he could do it. So I'm hanging over the putt saying, 'Come on, young John.'"

The ball found its way into the cup and, when the stricken Payne Stewart later bogeyed the 17th from a bunker, Miller was a winner again for the first time in four seasons.

"It wasn't exactly a gift, but it was reasonably charitable," Miller said after the one-shot victory in the tournament now known officially as the Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

"Most important," Miller said, "maybe the other guys on the Tour won't look at me like I'm a dead horse."

Four OT's make Floyd sleepy

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

Eric "Sleepy" Floyd had every reason to be tired.

Golden State's All-Star guard played 64 minutes, tying an all-time league record, in Sunday's 150-147 victory over the New Jersey Nets, the first four-overtime NBA game in three years.

Floyd had 29 points and 13 assists while equalling Norm Nixon's mark for most minutes. Nixon played 64 minutes in a four-overtime game for the Los Angeles Lakers against Cleveland on Jan. 29, 1980.

Center Joe Barry Carroll had 43 points and 24 rebounds in 55 minutes for the Warriors.

"If this isn't the most tired I felt after a game," Carroll said, "it sure makes the finals."

The Nets-Warriors game, which featured 26 lead changes and 21 ties, almost had a fifth overtime as Leon Wood's desperation shot from midcourt at the final buzzer hit the rim. The game was 108-108 at the end of regulation, 118-118 after one overtime, 127-127 after the second extra period and 138-138 after the third.

"I'm drained, just physically and mentally beat," New Jersey forward Buck Williams said after his 18-point, 27-rebound, 60-minute performance was not enough to stop the Nets from losing their fifth straight game and for the 21st time in 23 road games.

The Nets were led by rookie guard Dwayne Washington's career-high 29 points. Mike Gminski scored 25 and Orlando Woolridge 24 for New Jersey.

Pistons 94, Bulls 92

Adrian Dantley scored 25 points and Isiah Thomas had 14 points, 13 assists and 11 rebounds for Detroit against Chicago.

The Pistons led 90-78 with 5:49 left, but three-point plays by Michael Jordan and Mike Brown helped the Bulls cut the deficit to 92-90 with 1:31 remaining. Thomas hit two free throws with 1:12 left to put Detroit ahead by four before Charles Oakley's two free throws made it 94-92 with 57 seconds left.

The crowd of 38,873 at the Pontiac Silverdome was the largest in the NBA this season.

Rockets 106, Hawks 104
Houston knocked Atlanta out of a share of the Central Division lead with Detroit as Robert Reid scored 27 points.

The Rockets took a 106-100 lead with 1:51 remaining on two free throws by Rodney McCray, then held on despite going scoreless the rest of the way. The Hawks failed to get the tying basket with three shots, two of them tips, in the final seven seconds.

Spurs 120, Bucks 116
San Antonio won its fifth straight game after a 12-29 start, with Alvin Robertson scoring 28 points against Milwaukee.

The Spurs had to hold off a late rally by the Bucks that saw them outscore San Antonio 18-6 in the last eight minutes. John Lucas, making a comeback from drug rehabilitation, led the comeback with 16 of his 20 points in the fourth quarter for Milwaukee.

Artis Gilmore had 17 rebounds for the Spurs, who outrebounded the Bucks 50-26. Terry Cummings scored 32 points for Milwaukee.

Trail Blazers 133, Mavericks 117
Kiki Vandeweghe scored 38 points and Portland's nonstarters outscored the Dallas reserves 50-18.

Jim Paxson had 16 points, Caldwell Jones 15 and Jerome Kersey 14 to lead the Trail Blazers off the bench.

Dallas All-Stars Mark Aguirre and Rolando Blackman scored 36 points and 33 points, respectively, for the Mavericks.

Jazz 121, Kings 113
Rickey Green had 24 points and 13 assists and Utah survived four 3-point baskets by Sacramento in the final 75 seconds.

Lamar trails Tech by a game

By The Associated Press

Louisiana Tech lost its first Southland Conference game of the year 74-68 at McNeese State, preventing the Bulldogs from going two games up on the rest of the league for the first half of the season.

The Bulldogs Saturday night finished the first half of the double round-robin schedule with a 4-1 record while Arkansas State and Lamar University are 3-2.

The Bulldogs play four of their five remaining conference games at home, where they have not lost this season.

Arkansas State had a chance to tie for first place, but North Texas State beat the Indians 59-56 in Jonesboro Thursday night, the Eagles' first conference road victory since 1984.

North Texas State and McNeese State are both 2-3 while defending champion Northeast Louisiana has a 1-4 record.

In other action, Lamar University rallied for a 62-56 win over Northeast Saturday night.

Louisiana Tech seemed to have Saturday's game in control, holding a 67-57 lead with 3:17 left to play, but the Bulldogs scored eight straight points and eventually tied the score at 68 with 1:33 left. McNeese, though, scored the last six points, four at the free throw line, to win its second straight league game after an 0-3 start.

"Tech showed why they are where they are, when they came back from that 10 point deficit," McNeese State's Glenn Duhon, who won his 150th game as the Cowboys head coach, said. "But we showed our poise and didn't crack. We did a great job getting the ball into our scorers hands."

Jerome Batiste and Michael Cutright combined for 53 points for McNeese, with Batiste getting 29 points, including an 11 of 12 performance at the free throw line.

The win was the second of the week for McNeese, which had defeated Northeast La. 73-56 Thursday night behind Cutright's career-high 28 points.

Lamar rallied from a seven-point second half deficit in its 62-56 win over Northeast La., with James Gulley doing much of the damage.

Gulley, the No. 2 scorer and No. 1 rebounder in the league, scored 12 points in a nine-minute span, bringing Lamar from a 38-31 deficit to a 52-50 lead.

UT didn't treat him so nice, but Lemons is doing fine

By OWEN CANFIELD
AP Sports Writer
OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — After more than 30 years of coaching college basketball, Abe Lemons of Oklahoma City University still comes to work with a skip in his step and a smile on his face.

"I kinda like grass-roots coaching," he said. "You don't make a lot of money, but you have a good time."

This season has been especially enjoyable. His Chiefs are 21-0 and ranked No. 1 among the nation's NAIA schools.

"It's a pretty good team for NAIA," Lemons said in his typical self-deprecating manner. "We'll probably be No. 1 longer than any other team because there won't be anyone playing until after the first of January. We won't have a chance to get beat."

Lemons is as well-known for his one-liners as he is for his record, which stands at 535-303. A longtime associate, former Oklahoma State Coach Paul Hansen, says the Lemons schtick can sometimes disguise how well the man coaches.

"I think that has happened," said Hansen, now at the University of Sciences and Arts of Oklahoma in Chickasha. "But he's a tremendous basketball coach. He gets the maximum out of what he has, more than any coach I know."

Lemons spent 18 years, from 1955-73, at Oklahoma City University — which at the time was aligned with the NCAA — before moving on to Pan American for three years. That was followed by a six-year stay at the University of Texas that ended with his firing.

"When you're having tough times, it gets old," he said of the profession. "Certainly it does. But then I try to figure the alternatives and nothing takes its place. It's not the same every day, no two games are alike, it's different all the time."

"It's kind of a love-hate relationship."

Lemons stayed out of coaching the year after being fired by Texas, then decided to return home and take the OCU job.

"At this level it's not a business, it's a game," he said. "At the NCAA level it's a business, and certainly it isn't in the NAIA if you're talking about money."

"They've got more rules and regulations in the NCAA, and you fight too many battles," he said. "There's a hell of a lot more pressure. It's like anything else, the more money you make the more pressure there is."

Hansen, a former assistant under Lemons at OCU, knows the feeling.

"We're at a different level of competition," Hansen said. "It's not the glitter and tinsel, but it's a solid foundation, a much more realistic approach to athletics."

"I think it's more enjoyable than ever, and I think Abe's finding that out."

Lemons left Texas with a sour taste in his mouth. The Longhorns had been ranked as high as fourth in the nation the year he was fired, and he was highly popular with the media.

"That's the reason I laid out a year, to try to figure out if I wanted to do something else," Lemons said. "The answer was no."

Coaching is the only thing he has ever done, the only thing he ever thought about doing while growing up in the small farming town of Walters.

"I grew up in the Depression and there were not a lot of things going on," he said. "I learned to hang around teachers a lot, and the teachers were also the coaches."

"Ever since I was 13, I knew that's what I wanted to do — coach and teach," he said. "The reason I wanted to coach is because I thought it was important, because of what all my coaches did for me."

Now 64, Lemons is in the twilight of a tremendous career. Since returning to OCU, he has received inquiries from colleges interested in his services, but he expresses no desire to leave.

"I think it's important to live where you want to live," he said. "I'm a southwestern part of the country guy. I don't want to live in Minnesota or Wisconsin or places like that. I've had my day in the sun."

Most Americans think it is OK to shoot intruders

By LAWRENCE KILMAN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — People who keep guns for protection are no more likely to feel safe at home than those who don't have guns, according to a Media General-Associated Press poll.

In fact, gun owners are slightly less likely to feel secure from crime.

But whether they keep guns or not, a majority of Americans think people should have the right to shoot intruders, even if they're unsure the person is armed, according to the poll. Seven in 10 respondents feel that way.

Three in 10 Americans keep guns in their homes for security reasons, according to the nationwide telephone poll of 1,251 adult Americans.

Asked if they generally feel their home is secure from crime, 70 percent of the gun owners and 75 percent of those who don't have guns said yes. Overall, 73 percent of respondents said they felt their homes were safe.

Black and white respondents had significantly different feelings of security. Among blacks, only 57 percent felt their homes were secure against crime, and only 64 percent felt safe on their streets at night. Among whites, three-quarters felt their homes were secure against crime, and 80 percent felt safe on their streets at night.

Blacks also had less confidence than whites in the protection they received from local police. Only 39 percent of black respondents thought the police in their communities did a good job against crime, compared with 61 percent of white respondents who said police did a good job.

Gun owners were also less likely to have confidence in the ability of local police to protect them, the poll said. While 54 percent of gun owners thought local police were doing a good job, 61 percent of those who don't have guns felt that way.

Overall, 59 percent said police were doing a good job, 31 percent said they were doing a fair job, 8 percent said police were doing a poor job, and 2 percent didn't know or didn't answer.

The vast majority of gun owners believed they have the right to shoot intruders, even if they're unsure an intruder is armed. And while people who don't keep guns were less likely to approve, a majority of them also thought people should have the right to shoot intruders.

When it comes to perceptions about security, the poll found some interesting differences between rural dwellers and people who live in more populated areas.

People who live in rural areas are far more likely to keep guns for security than those who live in suburbs or cities. Forty-one percent of those from rural areas had guns, compared with about one-quarter of suburban and urban dwellers.

Rural residents were no more likely to feel secure against crime at home than urban or suburban respondents. However, rural and suburban respondents were more likely to feel their communities were safe than urban respondents.

Suburban respondents also had the more confidence in local police than either rural or urban respondents.

The poll also said:
• Eight in 10 people feel it is safe to walk on the street where they live after dark, with rural and suburban respondents more likely to feel that way than urban respondents.

• Nearly 9 in 10 respondents lock their doors regularly.

• Nearly 3 in 10 respondents said they or someone in their family has been robbed or assaulted in the last five years.

Respondents in the Media General-Associated Press poll included a random, scientific sampling of 1,251 adults across the country Nov. 7-14. As with all sample surveys, the results of Media General-AP telephone polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variation in the sample.

For a poll based on about 1,200 interviews, the results are subject to an error margin of 3 percentage points either way because of chance variations in the sample. That is, if one could have questioned all Americans with telephones, there is only 1 chance in 20 that the findings would vary from the Budget cuts threatening cooperatives

(AP) — Proposed federal budget cuts threaten the existence of rural electric cooperatives through which millions of rural Americans receive power, former Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said today.

"There will have to be some give," Bergland told a news conference that preceded the 45th annual meeting of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association. "There will either have to be give in the President's military recommendations or there will have to be a tax increase or something."

Some 1,000 electric cooperatives serve about 10 million families in 46 states, said Bergland, who served in the Carter administration.

"We in rural places are running against the law of large numbers. It is inherently more expensive to provide rural mail service or rural health care or rural telephone or electric service because of the density problem. Cities have the advantage because they are more densely packed," Bergland said.

"We think it is important to maintain a healthy balance between the rural communities of the United States and the great cities of America," said Bergland.

results of polls such as this one by more than 3 percentage points.

Of course, the results could differ from other polls for several reasons. Differences in exact wording of questions, in the timing of interviews and in the interview methods could also cause variations.

Texans say crime is biggest concern

DALLAS (AP) — Crime fed by drug abuse and a breakdown in families and parental discipline creates the greatest concern among those surveyed in the 1986 Texas Crime Poll.

"It is clear from this survey that Texans are overwhelmingly concerned about the Texas crime problem, and they want something done about it," said Dennis Longmire, an associate dean who supervised the study at Sam Houston State University.

The Huntsville school conducted the poll of 1,242 people between July and September, and released the results Tuesday in Dallas. A random sample of Texas drivers over age 18 was drawn from 162 of the state's 254 counties, officials said.

Researchers did not try to figure a margin of error because it was a random survey, and results could not be applied to the general public, Longmire said.

Fifty-four percent of the respondents said crime was their most serious worry; 51 percent said drug abuse; 34 percent said inflation and rising unemployment.

Sixty percent of those questioned said crime is a more serious problem today than three years ago, and 50 percent said they believe crime will increase over the next three years, Longmire said.

He said only 43 percent of Texans questioned in a similar poll in 1983 believed crime was getting worse.

Thirty percent of the respondents in this year's poll said they bought a rifle or shotgun in the last year to protect themselves from crime, and 26 percent bought a handgun.

More than a third of the respondents, or 36 percent, said they were crime victims in 1985. Forty-seven percent said they believed they may be a crime victim next year.

A majority said they would be willing to pay more taxes to build prisons, train police officers, develop better victim restitution programs and finance drug- and alcohol-treatment programs.

Officials said half of the respondents were men and half were women. Most of them were under 65 years old. About 79 percent of the respondents were white, 11 percent were Hispanic, 6 percent were black and 4 percent were Asian-Americans or other ethnic groups.

Cattle blood promising for humans

LUBBOCK (AP) — A derivative of cattle blood shows promise as a replacement for human blood, says a scientist working to perfect the substance.

Dr. Mario Feola, a professor of surgery at Texas Tech University's Health Sciences Center, has been developing a solution using the hemoglobin of cattle blood as a human blood replacement.

He said the solution could be used in situations where no human blood is available to transfuse to a person in critical need of blood.

The hemoglobin — a protein that carries oxygen to the body's cells — can be injected into a patient regardless of blood type and acts as a short-term substitute for human blood, the scientist said.

Bovine and human hemoglobin are similar in molecular structure, and cattle hemoglobin carries oxygen even better than the human substance, Feola said. The hemoglobin solution has been used successfully in experiments with mice, cats, rabbits and monkeys, he said.

New shuttle crew begins training

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The crew of the first scheduled shuttle flight since the Challenger accident is in place, ready to begin months of intensive training.

The crew, led by mission commander Frederick H. "Rick" Hauck, planned to meet early today at the Johnson Space Center to review their training schedule in preparation for a launch now scheduled for Feb. 18, 1988.

Five astronauts who will lead NASA back into space as the crew of the first shuttle flight since the Challenger accident are scheduled to start training Monday at the Johnson Space Center.

Others on the crew starting its training today for the flight are pilot Richard Covey, mission specialists George Nelson, John M. Lounge and David Helmers.

They are the first shuttle crew in which each member has flown in space. Hauck and Nelson have each flown twice, and the others have all been on one mission.

Guard troops invading Galveston

GALVESTON (AP) — This week, about 750 U.S. Coast Guard, Navy, Marine and Texas Air National Guard troops will invade Galveston to hold the largest mobilization ever in the area, officials say.

The troops will arrive Tuesday and be drilled for 10 days on what they'd need to do in time of emergency or war to protect and operate the port of Galveston.

The exercises will include two Navy minesweepers and a half dozen CH-53 or "Sea Stallion" helicopters, practicing on Thursday.

On Feb. 10, an Army National Guard helicopter gunship will swoop over Interstate 45, covering troops who will deploy on and around the railroad bridge that links the port to the mainland.

He estimated the exercise will pump about $500,000 into the local economy.
