Insurance proof may be required

Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Texas drivers would be asked for proof of car insurance when buying license plates and having their cars inspected under legislation proposed in the Texas Legislature.

Sponsors of those bills are eager to clamp down on motorists who refuse to carry the mandatory liability insurance on their cars. The proposed legislation must be approved by the Senate and House and signed by the governor before it becomes law.

Currently, the only time drivers are asked for proof of insurance is when stopped by police for other reasons, making for sporadic enforcement of the law, said John Bradshaw, an aide to Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan.

Caperton has filed a proposal to require motorists to show proof of insurance before receiving license tags.

His bill also would make insurance companies notify the state license division before an automobile liability policy is canceled, or the policy would continue to be in effect, Bradshaw said. Also, policy owners would be required to provide proof of new insurance policies or face cancellation of their motor vehicle registration, he said.

Alcohol program initiates service

By ROBERT WERNSMAN
City Editor

"Recovery After Five," an outpatient alcohol treatment program that is less than a week old, has a bright future at Crossroads Recovery, the director is confident. After-hours treatment, initiated Monday, Feb. 2, has drawn interest from several applicants, and its potential market has not been tapped, says Reta Fambro. The program is available to persons 14 years of age and older.

Several applicants for the evening and weekend program have shown interest, although none of them qualified due to the level of their addiction, she said Saturday.

The program's design calls for "early to middle addiction" alcohol, Fambro explained. "Not someone who could go into withdrawal."

"There's a market," she said, it's just a "matter of reaching them." Insurance which covers inpatient treatment normally covers outpatient programs as well, she explained.

All applicants thus far were referred to inpatient programs because individual assessments showed that they would not be treated effectively on the schedule of the new program, according to Fambro.

"Recovery After Five" schedules treatment from 7-10 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, with hours of 7-9 p.m. on Thursday and 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday, according to information provided by Program Director Andrew Gramlich.

Fambro said that the best prospects for the program include "somebody who just got (arrested for) DWI, or just finished DWI class who needs further education on drug abuse.

"Our best referrals will come from judges or probation officers," Fambro predicted. She has directed Crossroads Recovery since its inception just over a year ago. Before that the certified alcohol and drug counselor was with the Big Spring State Hospital for three years.

She sees a particular need for such a program, as a result of decreased outpatient services available through the state hospital during the past two years. Bob Von Rosenberg, acting superintendent of the state hospital concurred. Funding reductions from the state have resulted in fewer outpatient alcoholism services, he said Saturday. The state hospital no longer has a fulltime alcohol counselor on its staff.

Fambro did not rule out entirely the possibility of the early applicants eventually benefiting from this program.

Those with greater alcohol dependency could go through detoxification before participating in the outpatient treatment. In explaining the program PROGRAM page 2A

Getting cleaner

Two more miles of Highway 87 roadway are cleaner this morning as a result of efforts by the ALSA club to gather trash Saturday. The organization "adopted" two miles of the highway and have agreed to maintain its cleanliness. It is one of several organizations that are participating in the Texas Highway Department program. Benito Paradez, Authur Palomino, Freddy Hernandez and Tony Rubio were among nearly 15 club members to participate Saturday.

Senate Finance to review oil fee

By WILLIAM GARLAND
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said Saturday he would use hearings next month on rising oil imports to boost legislation that would cap the amount of foreign oil the United States could consume.

Under the legislation, to be reviewed by the Senate Finance Committee, the federal government could not let oil imports exceed 50 percent of domestic consumption.

Bentsen, chairman of the committee, said imports rose to 40 percent of consumption early this year compared to 27 percent in 1985, prior to the plunge in crude oil prices.

"When we think of what happened in 1973 to 1974, in the long lines at gas pumps, in those days we were importing an even smaller percentage than we are today," said Bentsen. "So you can see how vulnerable we're becoming," he said.

Bentsen cited figures showing that oil imports from the volatile Persian Gulf region have increased to 15 percent of total imports, compared to 6 percent of imports in 1985.

If imports reached a level of 50 percent, the president would have to "immediate-ly move and ... propose those things that will increase domestic production, curtail domestic use (and) urge conservation," said Bentsen about his bill.

Bentsen introduced similar legislation last year related to oil import dependency.

Analysts have speculated that an oil import fee would be the most direct method by which the president could cut imports. The fee would set a floor under the price of oil and stimulate domestic exploration and production.

The Reagan administration also is expected next month to release a study on the effects of rising oil imports and the decline in domestic production on national security.

Residents favor pool shutdown

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Feedback Public Works Director Tom Decell has received from Big Spring residents has favored closing the city swimming pool this summer for extensive reworking.

Decell said he has heard from 15-20 citizens and received one letter in favor of the project, and the Parks and Recreation Board recommended it.

The issue will be discussed at the City Council work session Monday, he said. Work sessions are conducted at 3 p.m. at the Airpark.

Decell sought public input to the proposal last month.

The proposal calls for the pool remaining closed this summer in order to free $35,000 normally used for pool operations. The money would be used instead to match a Texas Parks and Wildlife Department grant for renovation of the pool.

With those funds, plus $17,000 the city budgeted earlier for pool repairs, the city could "totally rework" the pool and bathroom, he said. Facilities to provide access to the handicapped are among possible additions, he said.

If the city doesn't match the grant, it will forfeit part of the money, Decell said.

Young man earns Eagle Scout Award

By LYNN HAYES

Doug Abbott will receive the Eagle Scout Award today, the highest rank in Boy Scouts, in a special Court of Honor Ceremony at the First Baptist Church.

The honor will be presented on the first day of Scout Week, as the organization celebrates its 77th anniversary.

The Runnels eight grader qualified for the award by earning 21 merit badges, explained Bill Bradford, district commissioner of scouting and scout master of troop #5. In addition, he had to display responsibility and hold a leadership position for a minimum of six months while being involved in a community service project.

The son of Bob and Karen Abbott, he chose to work on the Scenic Mountain Medical Center Emergency Room entrance, painting the curbs and cleaning the area.

The ceremony is planned during morning worship at 10:50, Bradford said.

Bradford explained that once Abbott qualified for the Eagle Scout Award, approval was granted by the Lone Star district's board of review consisting of adult leaders. The necessary approval by the Buffalo Trail Council in Midland and by National Headquarters in Irving followed.

Abbott began his scouting career in 1982 as a cub scout "under the able leadership of Toni Hamby," Abbott's father said. He then became a Webelos scout and earned the Arrow of Light Award in October 1983. He was a senior patrol leader and member of the Leadership Corps.

Boy Scout Troop #5, of which Abbott is a member, made a visit to Alaska last June. The trip was made, Bradford explained, so the boys could "see the world" and gain experience of other cultures.

"The trip to Alaska helped to mature Doug," the scout's father said. Mayor Cotton Mize proclaimed the troop as Ambassadors of Big Spring.

Bob Abbott credits Bradford for being instrumental in emphasizing the need for advancement to Doug.

Parolee arrested for suspected burglary

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

A 31-year-old Big Spring man on parole was arrested by city police on a suspected burglary of a habitation early Saturday morning in the 1000 block of N. Runnels St.

Raymond Lopez Chavarria, 1217 W. Sixth St., was arrested by police officers Richard Lopez, Wynona Watson and Phillip Buys "as he supposedly came out of a residence at 1010 N. Runnels St.," District Parole Officer David Harman said Saturday morning.

Chavarria is believed to have been accompanied by three persons who fled the scene by foot, Harman said.

The suspect is being held in municipal jail in lieu of $1,000 bond set by Justice of Peace Willie Grant.

Harman said a parole violation report would be submitted to Austin within the next two weeks concerning Chavarria's parole status.

The state board of pardons and paroles will then decide if the suspect should be rearrested on a parole violation warrant, he added.

Chavarria was previously been sentenced to the jurisdiction of the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles for attempted murder in Nolan County and possession of a firearm in Howard County.

He was on parole status at the time of Saturday's arrest after serving a year in the state prison on a Howard County conviction for burglary of a motor vehicle, Harman said.

Earlier this week, two other parolees received new prison sentences from District Judge James Gregg after each pleaded guilty to their felony charge.

Joe Willis Gilbreath, 50, Route Three Box 111, will serve three years in the state prison for a driving while intoxicated felony conviction.

Donald Alton Ashcraft, 31, of Van Zant, was sentenced to eight years for forgery by passing. He was arrested by police at First National Bank while attempting to cash a forged check, Harman said.

He also has six forgery charges pending in other counties and in Arkansas. A felony theft warrant from Tyler and a misdemeanor issuing bad check warrant from Dumas is also pending for Ashcraft, Harman said.

Clements' figures show discrepancies

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements staff recognized Friday discrepancies between the governor's budget figures and those compiled in the legislature, but maintained their figures are correct.

"We realize there is a discrepancy in the figures, but we stand by our figures," said Clements' spokesman Jay Rosser.

Meanwhile, one budget examiner with the Legislative Budget Board staff said, "We've been tearing our hair out" in trying to figure out how the governor came up with his basic figures for a spending plan during the next two fiscal years.

The budget board is trying to compose a comparison between Clements' plan and appropriations bills filed in the House and Senate.

In many areas, Clements starts at a different point than that in the legislative bills.

In the public and higher education budget, Clements lists the current level of funding at $18.8 billion. Both the House and Senate levels are at $17.2 billion — a difference of $1.6 billion from Clements' plan.

Albert Hawkins, an assistant director of the budget board, said the legislative bills do not include tuition and fees, because lawmakers decided tuition should not be used to offset general revenue funding to the institutions.

But Hawkins said he could not determine if that was the reason for the difference.

Aside from Clements' $36.8 billion spending plan for the 1988-89 biennium, the legislative budget process is on two tracks.

The Senate bill, by Sen. Grant Jones, D-Temple, is called the "current services budget," meaning that spending will grow enough to maintain the present level of government services and cover increased demands. It totals $38.8 billion in spending and assumes a major tax bill will be needed to fill in a nearly $6 billion revenue gap.

The House bill, by Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, is the "available revenue budget," which assumes there will be no new taxes, and temporary taxes passed last year won't be renewed.

This proposal would require a 27 percent reduction in general revenue funding and a 16.3 cut in all funds.

Both bills are referred to by lawmakers as "dummy" bills, meaning they are just starting points for discussion. Neither bill has been aired in committee yet.

Both the Senate Finance Committee and House budget and oversight committees are taking testimony from agencies.

About $2.9 billion will be collected from Clements' plan to increase taxes Sept. 1.

originally, Fambro said that its design was based on the needs and requests from individuals, labor and management groups. The potential loss of an employee's skills during inpatient treatment is avoided when the program is available after normal working hours.

Klan members march

COLLEGE PARK, Ga. — A far lower than expected turnout of about 200 white-robed Ku Klux Klan members and supporters marched peacefully through this Atlanta suburb Saturday, outnumbered by more than 300 law enforcement officers in riot gear.

"Are you proud to be white? Does it feel good to be white?" yelled Ed Stephens of Jonesboro, Georgia grand dragon of the Invisible Empire Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, shouting through a bullhorn as he led the march.

Stephens said the rally was in response to the Dec. 3 killing of a 15-year-old white boy, not to a pair of marches that brought thousands of civil rights demonstrators to all-white Forsyth County last month. Four black teen-agers are charged with the killing.

"God bless that little white boy who was murdered," Stephens bellowed.

Klan organizers had predicted from 500 to 1,000 Klansmen would come from 26 states. They had no explanation for the lower turnout.

Welfare focus of week

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, kicking off a weeklong-focus on welfare reform, said today that the nation's assistance programs have turned millions of Americans into virtual wards of the state.

Reagan, in his weekly radio address delivered from the Oval Office, said he has invited the nation's governors to the White House to discuss the welfare reform he suggested in his State of the Union address on Jan. 27.

The president said he intends to release an administration study of his proposals later in the week.

"Welfare reform is not just important, but vital — vital to our economic well-being, indeed vital to our self respect as a nation," Reagan said.

Nine drown in accident

RIVERSIDE, Calif. — Tears rolled down the cheeks of Jim Sims as he told how he watched four friends and shipmates drown after a charter fishing boat sank, and how one of the four helped him and gave his life for another. "I knew if I stopped, I would die," the 29-year-old Riverside tile worker recalled during interviews at his home Friday. He credited Tim York, 25, of Huntington Beach, with helping him.

Eleven people were aboard the 53-foot Fish-n-Fool when it sank Thursday off the Baja California coastal town of Cabo San Quintin, about 150 miles south-southwest of San Diego. Only Sims and a crew member survived.

The Coast Guard found one body Friday and suspended its search for the others, leaving them presumed dead.

Sims said he spent nearly eight hours in the cold water clinging to a 2-foot-by-2-foot piece of wood before Mexican fishermen heard his shouts and helped him ashore.

Plainsclothes policemen wearing gas masks and helmets drag away a protestor on the streets of downtown Seoul Saturday during an anti-government demonstration. Police fired tear gas in the heart of the South Korean capital to disperse crowds seeking to attend an opposition rally for a University students who died in police custody.

South Korea Thousands protest student's death

SEOUL, South Korea — Tens of thousands of riot police fought for hours with anti-government protesters Saturday in the streets of Seoul, firing tear gas to prevent a memorial rally for a student tortured to death by police.

Clashes were also reported in the major cities of Pusan and Kwangju.

News reports said dozens of people, including 12 police officers, were injured across South Korea. Police said 551 people in all were detained.

Thousands of demonstrators, chanting and hurling rocks, confronted rank upon rank of police officers wearing gas masks and plastic helmets in the broad thoroughfares of this capital city of 10 million people.

The crack of tear gas canisters sounded as crowds swirled through the streets, dispersed and regrouped. Stinging fumes floated over a wide area, sending demonstrators and passers-by fleeing with eyes and noses streaming.

A local newspaper estimated that about 20,000 people took part in the Seoul demonstration. Other reports said about 70,000 police had been mobilized across the country, and that about 37,000 of them were deployed in the capital.

The memorial rallies were called to mark the Jan. 14 death of Park Jong-chul, a 21-year-old Seoul National University student. An official investigation showed Park died after his throat was pressed against a bathtub during questioning by police about anti-government activities. He was undergoing water torture.

Clashes on Saturday against the government of President Chun Doo-hwan began around 1 p.m. and continued sporadically until about 6 p.m. in a 10-block block area. By nightfall, clouds of tear gas hung over the downtown area and the streets were littered with rocks, broken bottles and spent tear gas canisters.

Later, the opposition New Korea Democratic Party said in a statement that the police had created a situation in which "our anger at the present regime (is) no longer bearable."

Opposition leaders had scheduled a 2 p.m. rally and memorial service at Myungdong Cathedral. The government declared the rally illegal and police Friday sealed off the area around the cathedral.

Demonstrators converged on the cathedral from different directions Saturday, but were pushed back by police.

At one point, more than 100 demonstrators attacked two police substations with stones and bottles, and a police bus was set afire.

Radio says Waite free

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Two radio stations said Saturday that Anglican Church envoy Terry Waite had been freed, 18 days after he dropped from sight in Beirut to negotiate with Moslem extremists holding two American hostages.

But police and militia spokesmen said Waite had not been seen anywhere in Beirut.

The Moslem-controlled Voice of the Nation said an anonymous caller told the station at about 11 p.m. (4 p.m. EST): "Terry Waite has been set free somewhere in a southern suburb of Beirut under the supervision of nationalistic forces."

Asked to elaborate, he replied: "I have plenty of calls to make to security authorities. I have no time to answer questions." He then hung up, the radio reported.

A spokesman for the Druse Progressive Socialist Party that guarded Waite after he arrived in Beirut on Jan. 12 said: "We have no such information."

42 dissidents freed

MOSCOW — Soviet authorities have freed 42 dissidents and human rights activists from labor camps, prisons and internal exile in the largest known release in more than 30 years, dissident sources said Saturday.

It did not appear to be a general amnesty, however.

Dissident sources said word was still coming in on dissidents who were being allowed to return home, including emigration activists, human rights monitors, Jewish and Christian religious activists and Ukrainian nationalists.

They were allowed to go home under an order of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, or national parliament, the source said. Some live in Moscow, but the others were scattered around Russia, the Ukraine and the Baltic republics.

There is no mass release of political prisoners of this scale on record since 1953, when Nikita Khrushchev's de-Stalinization drive began a period in which thousands of political prisoners were freed.

50 escape Mexican jail

CULIACAN, Mexico — Inmates at the Sinaloa state penitentiary seized rifles from the armory and fought a gun battle with guards, and 50 escaped during the uprising, authorities said Saturday.

They said the escapees took the warden with them as a hostage, but he was freed later.

Four inmates were reported killed in the shootout during the Friday night riot.

Mario Rocha Reyes, a spokesman for the Sinaloa district attorney's office, told reporters seven escapees were recaptured early Saturday by highway patrolmen.

He said the rioting continued early Saturday and about 500 state troopers surrounded the penitentiary where the inmates had started several small fires. By midday, the troopers entered the prison and peace was restored, according to Rocha Reyes.

Feats by youth deserve praise

It's impossible for us to ever give enough credit, praise and positive re-enforcement to the youths and students of Crossroads Country as a result of their many accomplishments.

At best, we occasionally call attention to some of the latest and biggest feats while daily overlooking the often more personal accomplishments of various individuals.

Today, however, we're drawing attention to both categories of achievement.

During this past week, two major feats were accomplished by two high school groups. Perhaps most readers immediately will think of the one — the first girls district basketball championship ever at Big Spring High School.

The district clincher was Tuesday night when the Lady Steers beat the Snyder Tigers. Then the girls ended their regular season play with a win Friday over the Fort Stockton Prowlers.

The team's record of 23 wins and 4 losses is a considerable improvement over last year's record of 8-17. And we know that one-year turnabout took long hours of hard work by the girls and Coach C.E. Carmichael.

The second major feat is just as important and should receive as much recognition, even though many of us may not have paid as much attention to the honor won by Coahoma High School students.

For the second straight year, Coahoma students won the small schools division in regional Academic Decathlon competition at Lubbock.

We have no idea how many hours of study or preparation were spent by the nine team members before they went to Lubbock, but we do know that too often academic achievement fails to receive the time, attention and fanfare that it should.

As to individual accomplishments, we're drawing attention to two other activities involving our local and area youth.

One was quite noticeable in recent weeks as thousands of area youngsters participated in livestock shows in Howard County and neighboring counties.

All of the livestock show participants are winners, even though most did not take first place honors or win grand championships. All are winners simply because of the learning experiences they received because of their participation.

The other activity, only involving a handful of youth, is featured on today's Lifestyle section front — page C-1. The participants are youth volunteers at a local nursing home.

Again, each of the participants is a winner as a result of sharing themselves, and because of the learning experiences they're receiving.

This last activity probably is typical of many involving small groups of youth volunteers who seldom receive the recognition they deserve. Each of us probably can think of several such groups.

In any case, whatever the activity — basketball, decathlon, livestock show or volunteering — each of the youths participating in these learning experiences need our support and encouragement, and not just when they win.

'...Ya' know, this reminds me of a humorous anecdote ...'

Lack of expected criticism stresses the unpredictable

By DARRELL BERKHEIMER

So many events and reactions are unpredictable. And you would think I should have learned that rule by now — after 20 years in the news business.

Yet I'm frequently surprised by the little reaction to something that I expected would create a furor or uproar. In reverse, I'm sometimes just as surprised when a seemingly innocuous event draws vehement rebukes and criticisms.

One of my latest surprises came a couple weeks ago when we received so little reaction to the suicide photo we published Jan. 22. It showed the Pennsylvania state treasurer putting the handgun barrel into his mouth before pulling the trigger. He staged the event at a news conference he had called.

I expected to receive a couple nasty letters to the editor and some even nastier phone calls about the photo.

Certainly I'm not disappointed because I didn't. Instead, I think I'm a bit proud that the members of this community either recognized the newsworthiness of the photo or at least did not disagree with its use strongly enough to complain.

Perhaps even a few readers recognized our discretion in placing it at the bottom of page 2 rather than at the top of the front page.

I did hear a few negative comments — mostly from other employees within our own building who wondered aloud whether we should be using the picture.

And I heard a complaint from our circulation office about a reader who called to accuse us of sensationalizing — just to sell papers.

We would be surprised, however, if use of that picture even sold one more paper.

We know from past experience that Big Spring has very little impulse buying of newspapers. Nearly all our sales are by subscription or habit. For instance, some readers have the habit of buying the Sunday paper only.

Newspaper managers also know

Berky's babblings

that the only way we can have much effect on impulse buyers is by placing the shocking headline or picture in the top half of the front page. There just aren't many impulse buyers who buy a newspaper after looking through it page by page.

Other pictures from the same suicide were available. They included some of him holding the gun before putting the barrel into his mouth, and some after he pulled the trigger.

The same questions of which pictures and how to use them were faced by news editors across the nation. The differences in some of their decisions were the topic of an article that appeared in one of our trade magazines — Editor & Publisher.

In our newsroom, the other staff members quickly sought my advice on which picture and how to use it.

A couple staff members were hinting I should find space for the picture on the front page. Some other employees in the plant asked whether we should use any suicide picture.

A few of the decisions were relatively easy because it was late in the morning, approaching our last deadline. We already had the front page space assigned, and to all local news.

Because we make local news our first priority, and because we strive to fill the front page with strong local news as often as possible, I had little trouble deciding it would not go on the front page.

I admit, however, that my decision was influenced by the suspicion that we would be criticized for sensationalizing if we put that picture on the front page. And that criticism might have been justified if we had to move strong local news off the front page to accommodate the picture.

Page 3 — our national/international page — already was filled and ready to head to the press. That page, of course, would have been the logical spot for the picture, and perhaps a story, had the event occurred two or three hours earlier.

That left just page 2 — only partly filled. The top-right corner was a likely spot, because the heavy volume of late news sometimes forces us to eliminate the weather information.

Again, thinking of the criticism we might receive, I simply said the bottom of the page is sufficient.

Earlier, I had concluded that we only had space for one picture and that it would be the "best" picture — the one with the gun barrel pointed into the mouth. It was best because it told the story better than any of the others, and because it was an exceptionally unusual picture.

As I stated in an earlier column, unusualness is one of the criteria used in judging news value. The more unusual, the more newsworthy.

I advised the staff and our publisher, Tom Watson, that I considered it important that we don't ignore what might later be judged one of the top 10 newphotos of 1987.

Two weeks later, I think we've concluded that we handled the photo and event about right for our community. If you have a different view, we'd sincerely appreciate hearing it. But, most particularly, we'd like to know your reasons for differing.

Jesse Trevino Two movies show good, bad trends

By JESSE TREVINO

The recent black-white confrontations in Forsyth County, Ga., provide additional evidence that a new racism is emerging in U.S. society today — threatening the social gains we have realized during the past 25 years.

Whoever coined the term "new racism" must know this simply is the old racism resurfacing. Throughout the country, reports of racial attacks are on the rise.

Texans and Hispanics have a particular reason to worry whether this new wave of discrimination can stall social development in Texas.

That's because the new immigration law can be a stalking horse for racism in Texas. In an unprecedented manner, it gives individual citizens the lawful power to make their own judgments about an individual's status in society.

The potential for misjudgment — and out-and-out racism by unscrupulous employers — is evident. Any employer now can doubt the legal status of any Hispanic job applicant.

Given the lack of mechanisms by which individuals can claim redress, the potential for discrimination is upon Texas.

Two recent Hollywood productions symbolize many years of struggle for equality achieved and the dangers we face in this new age of racial intolerance.

The one — the made-for-television movie "Thirteen Days to Glory" — recreates the fall of the Alamo and the rise of Texas liberty. It is one of the most even-handed treatments ever given the topic in 17 attempts.

The other is the dubious "The Three Amigos." It gives evidence that some shallow minds in Hollywood sometimes make defense of freedom of speech — and, by extension, moviemaking — difficult.

Let's dwell on the good first, and on why there is hope for progress even in the new dawn of a dark age.

In remaking the Texas epic about how the Mexican army overran the undermanned Alamo in San Antonio, the producers and directors followed closely Lon Tinkle's book on the subject.

In this production, the Mexicans were not bloodthirsty coyotes as previously portrayed.

The Texans, too, were not the oversized heroes of the history books. Instead, they were scared individuals, haunted by the mortal reality of their imminent and sure deaths.

This production of the saga of Texas' birth did infinite justice to the role Mexicans and Texans already had played in the creation of a society years before the Mexican Army crossed the Rio Grande to put down the rebellion.

How many viewers knew that Jim Bowie and the Mexican commander, Gen. Santa Anna, were related by marriage, and that Santa Anna used to, in effect, vacation in Bowie's house in San Antonio?

That the old Bowie home no longer stands is regrettable. It could have been as important a shrine to Texas as the Alamo — symbolizing the fusion of two peoples.

The unity that the house could have represented evaporated as the war fostered ethnic resentments. Those resentments produced a two-class society in which Spanish-speaking Texans lost out, and which plagues Texas today.

This brings us, then, precisely to what is wrong with the unfortunate "The Three Amigos."

The very stereotypes that have troubled Spanish-speaking Americans since the Alamo and the U.S.-Mexico War are exactly what this second movie hangs its hat on.

Close-ups of hateful, drunk Mexicans with rotting teeth and rapacious desire form the essence of the movie, which has as its central characters three rather feminine Anglos mimicking Mexican machis.

Had this purported comedy carried the social message of an Archie Bunker, who regularly fell victim to his own prejudice but inadvertently reminded viewers of basic democratic and civil values, then its Mexican-bashing would not have been as offensive.

I am writing this on behalf of West Side Community Day Care Center. When arriving to work at 7 a.m., I saw some paper sacks crowding the doorway. My first instinct was that somebody forgot to throw out the trash. To my surprise, the bags were full of toys.

A note was in one of the bags and it read as follows: "Please give these to the kids. We felt we should share our child's over-abundance."

The note had no signature. I want to thank the family that shared their blessings with us. It was a great feeling, and it was Christmas in February, as the kids couldn't go through the bags fast enough.

Citizen asks sewer plant answers

To the editor:

I keep reading article after article about how much more money will be needed to improve our city's sewer plant. These improvements have been in the making for a considerable length of time.

Can anyone place a time or money limit as to when our plant will be up to acceptable standards? Our Public Works Director, Tom Decell, seems to come up with many different and expensive projects. Maybe he can answer my question. I understand he spends much time attempting to solve our city's problems, and demoralizing one of the city's most valuable assets — its employees.

GLENDIA WASHINGTON 2406 S. Monticello St.

Editor's note: City Manager Mack Wofford, at the Herald's request, has said he will prepare a news release on the status of the city's sewer plant, including the improvements planned, estimated costs and the standards that must be met.

How Texas worms turn

By JIM DAVIS

AUSTIN — When it comes to matching campaign promises with reality in Texas in recent years, the worm has turned so many times that it's tied in knots.

Bill Clements blasted Mark White last year for pushing a temporary tax increase through the Legislature to help relieve a state budget crisis.

Clements said he would never sign a tax bill if the voters returned him to the Governor's Mansion.

Now that Clements and his wife, Rita, are tucking themselves into bed at the state mansion each night, the new Republican governor is advocating making those temporary tax hikes permanent.

Now, if no one did anything, those increases in the sales tax and gasoline tax would end on Aug. 31. To make them permanent, the Legislature must pass a bill and Clements, who earlier severely criticized even the tax boost's temporary status, would have to sign it.

But, says the new governor, that is not a tax increase because it only continues current levels. He's not going back on his campaign pledge to hold the line on taxes, he says.

So, what we have is a proposal to bring in $2.9 billion more in tax income without calling it a tax increase.

This isn't the first time Clements has used a little contortion of definitions to match reality with campaign promises.

When he successfully ran for governor the first time, in 1978, he promised to make Texas government so efficient and business-like that taxes could be reduced by $1 billion. When reality set in after the election, he found the job a bit harder than he had suspected.

But the opportunity for a definition contortion knocked, and Clements gladly opened the door.

It seems that the Legislature previously had decided to do away with the state property tax. To do so, lawmakers simply lowered the tax rate to an uncollectable level.

But later some universities who benefited from the tax sued to reinstate it, saying the Legislature couldn't get around the tax's constitutional provision simply by lowering the rate. If the suit had been won, it's possible that the state would have been ordered to

Man finds job on expressway

CHICAGO (AP) — An unemployed construction worker hit the road to get a job, standing nearly three hours in the safety strip of one of America's busiest expressways holding a sign: "Family Man Needs Job."

"I'm just a regular guy trying to live the American dream and have a job," a newly employed Art Fosle said Friday night in a telephone interview from his south suburban Sauk Village home.

Fosle, 25, said his road campaign generated about a dozen job offers. He plans to start work Monday for a Chicago area construction company.

"I've got a great family. We enjoy life, and now I'll be able to buy a few things."

Fosle said he had initially decided to take a bricklaying job, but said the offer from the construction company was better. He was doing construction work when he was laid off 2½ months ago.

Fosle and his wife, Barbara, have a 17-month-old daughter, Nicole. Barbara Fosle works as a waitress, but her husband's unemployment check and her income haven't been enough to cover the bills, including a mortgage, Fosle said.

"I was staying home baby-sitting and looking for a job," he said. "I was bored and we needed more income."

So his wife made him a placard saying: "Family Man Needs Job. Constr. Labor. Any." The sign also listed the couple's phone number.

Early Thursday morning, Fosle bundled up in a winter jacket and a Chicago Bears stocking cap. The temperature was about freezing.

At 7:30 a.m., he parked his car near downtown, walked down a Dan Ryan Expressway ramp to the safety strip with his sign and stood as rush-hour traffic drove past. Studies have listed the expressway as one of the 10 busiest in the country.

"People were very supportive," Fosle said. "They waved at me."

He stood with his sign until just before 10:30 a.m., when a state transportation worker "came along in a green truck and chased me off."

He said he was prepared to return to his post. "I planned to go out there until I got a job."

Now, he said, he's in a position to help others.

"People are calling asking me for jobs and I'm going to help people out if I can."

Fosle advises the unemployed never to give up, and to try different approaches, such as his.

"They can try it. It worked for me and it can work for you."

Police find video tape of explosion

TEXARKANA (AP) — Police Chief Lee Spradlin said Friday investigators have identified a person reportedly seen Monday evening with a video camera at the scene of the pipe-bombing that killed a drug company president as he attempted to start his car.

Daryl Crouch, 36, president of Walsh-Lumpkin Drug Co., died and his wife and daughter were injured when a pipe bomb ripped through his Mercedes-Benz in the company parking lot.

Spradlin, who did not release any names, said the person with the camera had been interviewed by investigators. He said investigators thought the video tape might provide some important clues, but did not say whether investigators had viewed the video tape.

Suspect in shooting spree dies

ODESSA — An autopsy report is pending for the cause of death of a 59-year-old man indicted in connection with a shooting spree at a Monahans mobile home park, officials said.

W.D. "Doug" Smith died late Thursday at Odessa's Medical Center Hospital, a hospital spokeswoman and Pathologist Dr. Robert Bright said.

Smith received gunshot wounds to his back and abdomen Jan. 6 after a six-hour stand-off with lawmen at his west Monahans mobile home. Three policemen and an 18-year-old bystander also were injured in the shooting spree.

Hobby to pay legal costs in suit

HOUSTON — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby must pay about $318,000 in legal costs to a man who won $1 in damages in a lawsuit stemming from the closing of a school for troubled teens, a federal judge ruled.

Elna Christopher, a spokeswoman for the Texas Attorney General's Office, which represented Hobby in the case, said Friday the state would appeal Hughes' order to the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

U.S. District Judge Lynn N. Hughes ordered Hobby on Friday to pay $280,000 in attorneys' fees, $27,932 in expenses and $9,730 in interest as a result of the lawsuit originally filed by two officials of the Artesia Hall school.

But even if the court rules against Hobby and upholds the award, she said, "We still feel it was worth $317,000 to close that school."

Hobby said the case isn't over yet.

The state closed the Liberty County school in 1973 after its director, Joseph D. Farrar, was charged with murder by neglect in the death of 17-year-old Danna Annette Hvolboll who swallowed rat poisoning.

"If you are familiar at all with the Artesia Hall case, you remember there were allegations of great seriousness about a home that had custody of children. A murder indictment had been returned in Liberty County. If I had the same information again about the possibility of a serious threat to children, I would do the same thing again."

The charge against him was dismissed in 1976 because the state's newly revised penal code did not cover the alleged crime.

Two million children alone during day

WASHINGTON (AP) — The end of the school day means an empty house and time left on their own for more than 2 million American youngsters, largely children of white, upper income families, the Census Bureau reports.

Known as latchkey children, these boys and girls have drawn considerable attention in recent years as sociologists and politicians expressed concern about their welfare.

The new Census study of children ages 5 to 13 found that 7.2 percent of them, or 2,065,000, are on their own for at least some time after school — a share ranging from only about 1 percent of those age 5 to nearly 14 percent of the 13-year-olds.

And for those without supervision, the white, upper- and middle-class neighborhood appears the more common scene for their free time than the low-income scene.

"Children whose mothers were better educated or in white collar occupations and children in higher income households were more likely than others to be reported as unsupervised by an adult after school," the study found.

In families in which the mother worked full time, the share of children on their own after school varied from 10 percent for those with incomes of $10,000 or less, to 16.6 percent for incomes over $35,000.

Mothers who did not complete high school left 7.8 percent of the children on their own after school, compared with 14.8 percent for college-graduate mothers.

And when measured by mother's occupation, the share of children left alone varied from 10.8 percent for service workers to 16 percent for executives and administrators, according to the study.

This may result from some higher-income families having fewer relatives available to care for youngsters, the study suggests. And those families may live in neighborhoods which the family perceives safe for older children to be on their own.

"Self-care was likely to be short-term," the study also found, with many on their own for less than an hour and only one in 10 for more than three hours.

While latchkey children have drawn considerable attention in recent years, the percentage of children falling in this category seems to have declined overall, the report indicates.

The new study, the most recent statistics available, is based on a survey of 59,500 households taken in December 1984. Compared with a similar, but not identical, study in 1974, there was a decline in the share of youngsters ages 6 to 13 whose mothers were employed full time who were on their own after school.

Overall, the new report found that of 28.8 million youngsters ages 5 to 13 in 1984, 21.7 million were cared for by a parent after school, 5 million by some other adult and the rest cared for themselves.

Woman ministers to 'latchkey' children

SHERMAN (AP) — Every school day, rain or shine, fair weather or foul, Loria McQueen pauses at 2:30 p.m., takes off her shoes, tugs on "walking boots" and hikes the mile-long journey to Jefferson Elementary.

Once at the school, she gathers her little band of grade school "latchkey kids" who have working parents.

When all are present — sometimes there are six, sometimes as many as a dozen — Mrs. McQueen guides the group out Jefferson's side door. They walk first to Fred Douglass school where two more children join the parade, then turn towards the city of Sherman's Glennie O. Ham Center, where the children play at until their parents arrive after work.

Insurance problems prevent the center from driving the kids, making the daily walk necessary.

She said she enjoys the walk, particularly when the weather is nice, but when the weather turns nasty, the stroll becomes an arctic expedition.

"One day a couple of weeks ago it was so cold, I took an extra sweater and tied it around one of the little girls. Another didn't have a hat, so I held my hands over her ears all the way to the center."

One day last week, the children broke into a "marching song," chanting in high, squeaky voices.

Mrs. McQueen talks to the children as they walk, asks them how their days went, listens to their problems.

"I give children time. Sometimes we're so busy, we don't have time to sit down and listen to what they say," she said.

Children have kept Mrs. McQueen busy for years.

She raised 18 children — four of her own and 14 others who needed help.

In Texarkana, where she lived before moving to Sherman four years ago, she organized a teen group to help children from low income families.

"We had one rule: every week you had to bring back a story of something good you did for somebody else," she said.

Her church, Mt. Carmel Church of God in Christ, voted her church mother several years ago.

"I don't know that I'm a good mother. But I'm concerned about children. And they know that," she said. "I try to tell children to love themselves, to love others, to love God."

"I tell them, 'Think on the things you want to be and want to do and then go for it and don't let anything stop you. I tell them that, no matter what, I love them and there's nothing they can do that will stop me from loving them.'"

Last week the weather was warm and Mrs. McQueen's latchkey kids peeled off sweaters for most of the mile-long walk.

People in cars tooted greetings to them and a very old lady sunning on a sagging porch asked a little girl for a hug as the group passed by.

"It's important to show children the right way when they're young," Loria McQueen said as her travellers crossed a railroad track,

Abilenian writes book on Nicaragua

ABILENE (AP) — After he first made his way out of revolution-torn Nicaragua in 1979, Jack Cox thought that he may never be able to go back to Central America.

However, in the past year the longtime Abilene resident has not only returned but has written a book about it and what he claims is the Communist plan for domination there. The book, "Requiem in the Tropics," is due out in May.

Cox said he conducted hundreds of interviews throughout Central America. He said his book details not only the strife there but attempts by Nicaragua's Sandinista government to use sex, drugs and money to gain influence in the United States.

Besides talking to former Sandinista officials, clergy and soldiers, he spoke with numerous poverty-stricken refugees, he said.

Born and raised in the oil fields of Stephens County in West Texas, which he later represented in the Texas Legislature, Cox first became acquainted with Central America during World War II, when he was part of a U.S. Naval air patrol squadron based in Panama.

In 1979, while filming a documentary on the political situation in Central America, Cox, his film crew and then Abilene Reporter-News staff writer Jim Conley were caught in the middle of the Sandinista revolution in Nicaragua.

The episode later became the basis for a budget film titled "Last Plane Out" which still plays on cable channels late at night. Meanwhile, Cox and Somoza, living in exile, collaborated in the writing of "Nicaragua Betrayed."

Children may be victims of devil cult

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Six ragged youngsters found with two well-dressed men in a park may have been victims of an international devil-worship cult whose adult members are forced to give up their children, investigators said.

The FBI, U.S. Customs, Interpol and authorities in Virginia and Washington, D.C., joined the investigation and sought to identify the children today after police arrested the two men on child-abuse charges Wednesday night.

"As far as we're concerned, this goes from coast to coast and from Canada to Mexico," said Tallahassee police spokesman Scott Hunt.

Evidence in a van at the Tallahassee playground where the children were found led to a search by District of Columbia police Thursday night of a warehouse and a home identified in court documents as having been used by a cult known as the Finders.

"The search warrant revealed that the organization is probably headquarters for some type of satanic cult," Hunt said. "Adults are encouraged to join this group and one of the stipulations ... is that they give up the rights (to) their children."

Virginia State Police and sheriff's deputies also searched a farm in rural Madison County, Va., early today as a result of the Washington search warrants, state police Lt. J.P. Henries said.

He said he had no information on any discoveries and did not know who owns the property. No arrests have been made, he said.

The six unwashed, insect-bitten children — four boys and two girls ages 2 to 6 — wore ragged clothes and were known to each other by such names as "Benjamin Franklin," "John Paul Pope" and "Honeybee," police said.

One girl had been sexually abused, Hunt said.

The men, dressed in coats and ties, had told police they were accompanying the children to Mexico to start a school for brilliant children, but police believe they were heading to Bradenton, Fla., where one of the men may have relatives, Hunt said.

The men said the children were being weaned from their mothers in Washington, and they denied any blood relationship with the children, police said.

"There are a number of possibilities and we don't want to prematurely form any conclusions," Washington police Capt. William White III said Friday.

"But you take into consideration it could possibly be a cult, some type of situation involving children who are being sexually exploited or the possibility of a kidnapping ring involving children."

Police identified the men as Douglas Edman Ammerman, 27, and Michael Houlihan, 28. They were being held in the Leon County Jail in lieu of $100,000 bond each.

The children, placed in shelters, were in good spirits and apparent good health as Washington police awaited their fingerprints and photographs, authorities said.

"All we have is six children and we don't know where they came from," Hunt said, adding that the children "evidently have come from such sheltered existences that they had no concept of what a telephone was, or TV or anything like that."

A couple in Washington had contacted police and said they were grandparents to one of the children, police said.

Reporters for WMAL-AM and WRC-TV in Washington entered the boarded-up warehouse Friday afternoon after police had searched it. They found living quarters, a sauna, a kitchen and signs that people stayed there until recently, said radio reporter Milagros Ardin.

Howard looking to improve pitching

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Howard College Hawks head baseball coach Bill Griffin went shopping for pitchers this summer, and if his new acquisitions can withstand the test, look for the Hawks to reach the state tournament like they did in 1985.

Last year Howard broke a three year string of reaching the state tournament, when they finished fourth in Region V play with a 7-14-1 record. The top two teams in the region qualify for state. The Hawks did finish with an overall winning record of 27-20-1.

In 1985, the Hawks pitching staff had an earned run average of 2.80. Last season it ballooned to 6.25. It's very simple — no pitching, no state tournament.

"Last year we could score runs, but we couldn't get anyone out," stated coach Griffin.

This prompted Griffin to go 'pitcher hunting' over the summer. What he came back with appears to be a blend of young talent mixed with veteran sophomores. Griffin kept two returning pitchers in right-handers Al Lopez and Thad Webber.

He also picked up three second-year players from the University of Southern Louisiana. They are lefties Howard Landry and Mark Hutchinson and right-hander Ted Herbert.

Webber and Lopez will be counted on heavily in the staff. Webber was in the starting rotation last season and posted an 8-3 record with a 5.20 ERA. Lopez was used mainly in relief. He had a 2-0 record with an ERA of 6.46.

Others Griffin has to choose from include lefties Ernesto Castro and John Medrick along with right-handers Al Benavides, Derek Matlock, Rickey White and Carl Romero. "Some are veterans and some will be going through a learning process," said Griffin. "Hopefully the veterans will come through and we'll get some mileage out of our young pitchers."

Like Griffin said, hitting was no problem for the team last season. Last season the Hawks batted .321 as a team while averaging six runs per game.

Howard returns seven players who are all relatively good hitters. Third baseman Chad Baker and shortstop Joel Chimelis lead the way. Last season Baker was the team's second leading hitter, batting .365 and driving in 17 runs. Chimelis was right behind Baker, batting .352, hitting six homers, driving in 28 runs and leading the team in stolen bases with 22.

Outfielder Frank Medina will give Howard power. Last season he drove in a team-leading 50 RBI's while batting .344. Outfielder-catcher Freddie Lopez returns with more power. Last season he hit .340 and drove in 20 RBI's.

Another returning catcher is Glenn Donnelly, who saw limited action last season.

Outfielder Jeff Shults adds more speed to the lineup. The part-time starter batted .265 last season. Griffin says he will use John Wiles as a first baseman or designated hitter this season. Last season Wiles pitched, posting a 2-4 record with a 6.75 ERA.

Newcomers that are also fighting for a starting spot include former Big Spring High School third baseman Randy Hayworth, and in fielders Joe Camarillo, Randy Deal, Juan Rodriguez, Doug Staley, Michael Rogers, Ruben Sosa and Trey Wolfe.

In the outfield, Griffin has Perry Shock, Phillip Kerne, Danny Cardenas and Chip Nugen to choose from.

"We went out of the state and got some transfers that can help us right now," said Griffin of his new players.

The Hawks will play their first regular-season games Saturday, February 14 at Jack Barber Field with a double-header against Vernon Junior College. The first game begins at 1 p.m.

Reserve paces UT over Baylor

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas guard Wayne Thomas scored 20 points off the bench to lead the Longhorns to a 78-74 victory over Baylor in Southwest Conference basketball action Saturday afternoon.

Thomas hit five of five shots from the field in the first half. The Bears, on the heels of their upset win over league-leading Texas Christian last week, dropped to 12-9 overall and 7-4 in SWC play. Texas evened its overall record at 12-12, 5-6 in conference play.

Texas won the game at the free-throw line, hitting 24 of 32 from the line and 13 of their last 17 points from there. The Bears, meanwhile, hit a dismal 13 of 23 from the line.

Darryl Middleton carried the Bears, hitting 10 of 13 shots from the field for a game-high 23 points. Michael Williams added 19.

Middleton and Williams are tied for the conference scoring lead with 19.2 points-per-game averages.

Alex Broadway and Travis Mays added 15 points each for Texas. The Longhorns' top two scorers, Patrick Fairs and Ray Davis, failed to score in double figures.

Baylor led 34-32 at the half, but the Bear's poor free-throw shooting kept them from opening up a more comfortable lead. Texas quickly got into foul trouble, putting the Bears into the one-and-one free-throw situation at the 12:01 mark.

But Baylor's Frank Williams went 0-3 and Robert McLemore 2-5 as the Bears went 8 for 17 for the first half in free-throw shooting.

Kansas 88, Oklahoma St. 63

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Danny Manning scored 28 points Saturday and ignited a quick Kansas getaway as the No. 18 Jayhawks routed Oklahoma State 88-63 in Big Eight basketball.

The Jayhawks, notching their 45th straight home victory, scored 21 of the game's first 23 points and raised their overall record to 17-5 and their Big Eight mark to 7-1. Oklahoma State dropped to 6-15 and 2-6.

Kansas guard Cedric Hunter, the school's career assist leader, suffered a sprained ankle early in the second half and his status for the rest of the season was not immediately known.

Nev.-Las Vegas 83, San Jose St. 74

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Freddie Banks scored 33 points, including nine on 3-point bombs, as top-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas rallied to beat San Jose State, 83-74, Saturday in a Pacific Coast Athletic Association basketball game.

Las Vegas, badly beaten off both backboards, trailed 60-54 midway through the second half after the Spartans went on an 18-4 tear.

Navy 78, Miami, Fla. 62

BALTIMORE (AP) — David Robinson scored 25 points as Navy held off a late rally by Miami to defeat the Hurricanes, 78-62, Saturday as the expected confrontation between Robinson and freshman Tito Horford failed to materialize.

Robinson operated against a man-to-man defense, and the senior center was very much a part of the Navy offense. Horford, 7-foot-1 like Robinson, was virtually ignored against Navy's zone defense in the first half and didn't touch the ball until 9:15 remained.

Temple 78, St. Joseph's 69

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Senior guard Nate Blackwell scored 24 points as sixth-ranked Temple won its 10th straight game Saturday, a 78-69 victory over city rival St.

Joseph's in the Atlantic 10.

The Owls, 23-2 overall and 12-0 in the league, have won 32 straight at McGonigle Hall. St. Joseph's fell to 12-7 and 6-5.

The Hawks led 60-56 with 10:12 left, but Temple went on a 11-2 run to take a 67-62 advantage with 3:58 remaining.

Kentucky 70, Alabama 69

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Ed Davender scored 29 points, including a 10-foot jumper with six seconds left, to give Kentucky a 70-69 victory over ninth-ranked Alabama in a Southeastern Conference basketball game Saturday.

Despite the loss, Alabama remained atop the SEC at 10-2 and is 17-4 overall. Kentucky, 14-6, is 7-5 for third place in the conference behind Florida.

After Davender's final shot, Alabama worked the ball in to its top scorer, Derrick McKey, but he missed a 14-foot jumper at the final horn.

Georgetown 89, Villanova 86

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Reggie Williams scored 21 points and keyed a second-half surge Saturday that lifted No. 10 Georgetown to an 89-86 Big East victory over Villanova.

The Hoyas never trailed in the second half, but could not clinch the triumph until Dwayne Bryant made a pair of free throws with two seconds left to give Georgetown a three-point advantage.

Ten seconds earlier, Bryant had made a free throw to give Georgetown an 87-83 lead. Doug West responded with a 3-point field goal with two seconds remaining to pull the Wildcats within a point, but Villanova then had to foul Bryant.

Houston 75, Rice 62

HOUSTON (AP) — Senior forward Greg Anderson scored 18 points and grabbed a career-high 24 rebounds to lead Houston to a 75-62 win over Rice in Southwest Conference college basketball play Saturday night.

Anderson also set a Hofheinz Pavilion record for rebounds in a game.

Rickie Winslow was game's leading scorer with 24 points for Houston, which improved its record to 14-7 for the season and 6-4 in the SWC. The Owls dropped to 7-15 and 1-10.

Anderson scored 11 points, including seven free throws, and got 14 rebounds in the first half, moving him ahead of Clyde Drexler for fourth place on the all-time Houston rebounding list with 960.

Arkansas 93, Texas Tech 75

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Junior Andrew Lang scored 24 points, had 15 rebounds and blocked eight shots to lead Arkansas to a 93-75 win over Texas Tech in Southwest Conference college basketball on Saturday.

It was a career-high effort in all three categories for Lang, who was nine of 11 from the field and made six of eight freethrows.

Freshman Mario Credit made eight of 10 from the field was the only other Razorback to score in double figures with 16 points.

The Red Raiders were led by Sean Gay with 18 points. Mike Nelson and Wendell Owens added 14 each for Texas Tech, which shot 39 percent from the field.

Arkansas took a 21-4 lead in the first eight minutes. Texas Tech came within seven points near the end of the first half, but never got closer.

Arkansas led by as many as 19 in the first half and scored the first three baskets of the second half. A 3-point play by Tim Scott gave the Razorbacks their largest advantage at 68-49 with 11:15 remaining.

Texas Tech closed the gap to 82-74 on a 3-point shot by Jerry Mason with 2:50 left, but the Razorbacks then sealed the game with 11 unanswered points.

Scenic Mountain — a beautiful place for one and all

By H. BOYCE HALE

Near our doorsteps is the Scenic Mountain trail, the Big Spring State Recreation Area, better known to most Big Springers as "Scenic Drive."

As early as 1927, the Big Spring Federation of Women's Clubs acquired some acreage on the mountain and deeded it to the Texas State Park Board for the establishment of Scenic Mountain Park.

Later more acres were purchased by the city and immediately deeded to the state.

Smaller tracts later were bought in order to add roads. Today the park has approximately 370 acres.

Entering the park you travel a paved road that winds around the perimeter of the park for 2.3 miles. Side roads lead to the picnic and headquarters area.

Garden clubs have planted wild flowers and transplanted cacti. Cedar trees grow in abundance interspersed with mesquite, hackberry, cacti and yucca.

Almost every day hikers can be found on the road. I recently observed several, including Mr. and Mrs. John Smith Jr., 1019 Stadium St.

John told me the park was their favorite place for exercise, and he jogs around the road every day. Mrs. Smith, a native of Germany, said, "I make two or three trips a week."

Farther on I met Joe Lomas and his wife Iris, who live in the northeast on Tubb Road. I asked them why come all the way across town.

"Because it is so beautiful, and we love it," Iris replied.

Later, I spotted a solitary jogger. I stopped and introduced myself to Mrs. Kim Jones of Big Spring who told me she is a kindergarten teacher at St. Mary's Episcopal School. She said she comes to the mountain as often as possible.

She recalled, "After marrying, I came to Big Spring with my husband and, upon arrival, I cried for days."

"Aw, come on, it couldn't have been that bad," I said.

"To me, it sure was, because I grew up in Michigan, and it wasn't until I discovered this park that I felt better about Big Spring," Kim related.

I could relate to her feelings because my wife, Jean, was reared in Missouri, and she expressed pretty much the same thing when I brought her many years ago.

Kim resumed her jogging and I moved on to the east side of the park, from where you can see downtown Big Spring. I also could see the Cosden Refinery and, farther away, Sand Springs and Coahoma.

More to the southeast and farther away looms Signal Mountain. In the crisp air of the morning, I could see smoke rising from the top of "Signal Peak." Perhaps the spirit of a long departed tribe was sending a message.

Then I spotted a pair of hikers coming the wrong way on the one way road. I stopped, and said, "I am Boyce Hale." But before I could say more, they interrupted me.

"We know who you are," they echoed. I was embarrassed, I had known both of them for many, many years.

Barbara Gage and Marguerite Schwarzenbach of Big Spring told me they have been walking the park for 10 years or more.

Barbara added, "Of course, weather permitting."

"Yeah and sometimes when it doesn't," added Marguerite.

When I returned to the entrance, more people were starting their walks. And as I was leaving, I wondered if today the hikers and visitors realize scenic drive has been a favorite courting place since the road was built.

Many of us can remember the days when cars starting coming equipped with radios. During these days, we would drive a car beside the pavilion, turn the radio up as loud as it would go.

We would jitterbug, listen to the hit parade and, on occasion, dance close when soft music came on. What a long time ago that was.

Trio leads tankers

FORT STOCKTON — Cade Loftin, Scott Ferguson and Geneviva Waight were the big winners for the Big Spring High School swim team at the Coker Invitational Swim Meet.

Loftin and Ferguson led the boys to a sixth place finish, as the boys team scored 42 points. Loftin finished second in the 50 yard freestyle in a time of 32.21. He won the 100 butterfly in a time of 56.94, almost four seconds ahead of the second place finisher.

Ferguson swam to a career best of 5:40.87 in the 500 freestyle. Waight, had the highest finish of the BSHS girls. Her time of 1:24.10 was good for fourth in the 100 breaststroke. The BSHS girls finished ninth in the meet with 18 points. (All Big Spring results can be found in scoreboard on 3-B).

Stadler takes Hawaiian lead

HONOLULU, Hawaii (AP) — Craig Stadler matched the course record with a 10-under-par 62 Saturday to take a one-stroke lead over Paul Azinger after three rounds of the $600,000 Hawaiian Open Golf Tournament.

"It was a positioning day. And I got myself in position where second isn't going to be very good," Stadler said, looking ahead to Sunday's final round of the chase for a $108,000 first prize.

"It's all or nothing," said Stadler, a former Masters champion who hasn't won in 2 1/2 seasons.

"It's been so long since I've been in position to win a golf tournament, I can't lay back and let somebody catch me. I've got to make birdies tomorrow," Stadler said. He made 10 of them in the ideal playing conditions Saturday — including a string of five in a row — and completed 54 holes in 200, 16 shots under par.

Stadler's third round effort tied the course record held by Hale Irwin and Nick Faldo of Britain, both in 1981.

"It could have been better; it could have been anything. But, I'll definitely take what I got," said Stadler, who finished off his 5-birdie string with a pair of 30-foot putts followed by a chip-in from 25-30 yards on the 17th.

With the course robbed of its natural defenses by the absence of wind, even Stadler's record-setting effort wasn't enough to open appreciable distance from the rest of the field. Azinger, who scored his first

PGA Tour victory in Phoenix last month, moved its second with a 65 that put him at 201. Fred Couples, who shared the second-round lead, battled back from a double bogey and salvaged a 68 that left him at 202, two off the pace.

Curtis Strange, John Cook and Lanny Wadkins were next at 204, 12 under par. Wadkins had a 67. Cook scattered 10 birdies across his card in a 64. Strange also had a 64, which included a bogey-6 on the final hole, where he took two to get out of a bad lie in a bunker.

"I was thinking 62 all the way," Strange said. "It's just terrible to have a round like that going then not shoot 62 or 63."

Doctor ready for last All-Star game

SEATTLE (AP) — Julius Erving's first appearance as a guard in his final All-Star game Sunday highlights two days of events at the annual showcase for NBA talent.

In addition to the All-Star game, featuring the NBA's top 24 players, the weekend also included: a three-point shooting contest won by Boston's Larry Bird; a slam-dunk contest won by Chicago's Michael Jordan; and an old-timers' game Saturday in which the West defeated the East, 54-43, led by Freddy Brown's 16 points. Sunday's game is a sellout at the 32,746-seat Kingdome. Saturday's events were scheduled for the Seattle Coliseum.

Erving, who will retire at the end of this season, joins Hall of Famers Bob Pettit and Rick Barry as the only players chosen as All-Stars every year of their career.

Boston's K.C. Jones, who will coach the Eastern Conference, has a starting lineup of Jordan and Erving at guard, Moses Malone of Washington at center and Larry Bird of the Celtics and Dominique Wilkins of Atlanta at forward.

Pat Riley of the Los Angeles Lakers, who will coach the Western Conference, will start two of his own players, Magic Johnson at guard and James Worthy at forward. Center Akeem Olajuwon of Houston and San Antonio guard Alvin Robertson also will be among the West's starters. The Rockets' Ralph Sampson was voted a starter at forward but he suffered a knee injury Tuesday night and will miss the game. Tom Chambers of Seattle will start for Sampson.

The Eastern reserves are Thomas of Detroit, Maurice Cheeks of Philadelphia and Jeff Malone of Washington at guard, Robert Parish of Boston and Bill Laimbeer of Detroit at center and forwards Kevin McHale of Boston and Charles Barkley of Philadelphia.

Barkley, Floyd and Carroll will be making their first All-Star appearance.

TCU guard coming back

FORT WORTH (AP) — Texas Christian guard Carl Lott should be back in the team's lineup by the Southwest Conference post-season tournament that begins March 6, his orthopedic surgeon said. Dr. James Beckley on Friday removed the splint from the player's right hand. Lott's hand has been immobile since he broke a finger Jan. 17.

Beckley and trainer Chris Hall said Lott might return earlier.

Leslie Foster, a sophomore at Forsan High School, feeds 80-year-old Paul Madison. Feeding the residents at Golden Plains Nursing Home is just one of the many duties the teen volunteers are allowed to perform.

A day filled with sunshine...

Zelma Doss, 84, and Shirrel Brumley, sophomore at Big Spring High School, read the Bible together. Doss said she really enjoys the company the girls (teen volunteers) provide for her.

For several residents at the Golden Plains Nursing Home, a teen volunteer is their only visitor of the day.

"We have 90-year-old patients here who have kids who are in their 60s and 70s — or some of the patients just don't have families," said Linda Johnson, director of nurses.

One lady thinks of Leslie Foster as her daughter, the 17-year-old teen volunteer said.

Shirrel Brumley, 16, likes being a part of the volunteer program because she thinks older people are fascinating.

"I plan to become an RN," she said, adding that the experience will be an asset to her future career.

Ramona Foster, 16, and Sandra Silva, 14, also devote one day a week to the nursing home.

Nursing home director Johnson said she had had the idea to create a teen volunteer program for a long time.

"The high school is so close and I thought they could come right after school."

The program, dubbed

TAV — Teen-age Volunteers — became a reality in October.

"In our mobile society, a lot of kids don't have grandparents and the grandparents don't have their grandchildren around. Both parties benefit," Johnson explained.

Before the program was implemented, the teenagers attended three one-hour classes.

"We trained them in things like how to talk to older people."

Most of the volunteers spend one day a week here. We have three shifts: weekdays from 3:45 to 6:15 p.m.; Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.; and Sundays from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m.

"The volunteers do the little extras the nurses don't have time to do," Johnson noted.

The volunteers feed the residents in the dining room; transport residents who are in a wheelchair or gerichair to the dining room and to activities; brush, comb or blow dry the resident's hair; help them put on their shoes, socks and bibs; water their flowers or plants; write letters for them; and wash their hands and faces, she explained.

Although they help with the functional things, the residents enjoy the interaction the best.

Four-year resident, Mary Sloan, 89, said she has a lot of fun with the volunteers.

"We talk about everything," she added.

The nurses also appreciate the extra help the volunteers give.

"We do appreciate the teen-agers who take the time out to visit with the elderly. It's uplifting to the older folks to have the young ones around. It's good for them," said Jean Clark, LVN.

Charlene Allmon, assistant director of nursing, thinks "the interaction is great. It's great for the elderly to just see what life is, besides all the things the teens do for them."

Johnson observed that "the more activities and socializing the residents do, the more they seem to respond."

Forsan eighth grader Sandra Silva leads a group of residents in a kicking exercise. All were ready and willing to join in a game of kick ball.

Ramona Foster, freshman at Forsan High School, joins in a game of cards with twin sisters, Barbara and Betty Brumley. The teenagers enjoy playing games, they said. "We play checkers and cards and play the radio whenever we go. Country music is our favorite," Betty said.

Hunt presents tips on cutting medical costs

By NAOMI HUNT

County Extension Agent
During February, I will be presenting the program, "Cut the Costs - Keep the (medical) Care" to Extension Homemaker Clubs throughout the county.

Call me if you'd like to attend the program or have the program presented to your group.

Current measures to control rising health care costs mean many families will pay a larger portion of their medical costs in the future. It may be necessary for you to budget money to pay your share of expenses for medical care.

To some extent, you can control your family medical expenses. Start by maintaining a healthy lifestyle that will reduce your need for health care. Follow home safety practices and wear a seatbelt in your car to help avoid costly medical bills from accidents.

Also, eat a healthy diet, stop smoking and get adequate exercise to reduce your risk of illness and the subsequent medical costs.

Plan to pay smaller health care costs yourself. Use health protection to provide coverage for the large expenses. If possible, get health insurance through a group, since it can save you money. Know your policy benefits, requirements, limits and exclusions and don't duplicate health insurance protection.

Focus on family

Regularly examine your protection against financial loss from expensive health care costs. Remember too, that both men and women need continued coverage in the event of divorce or loss of the spouse holding coverage.

When you use health care ser-

VICES, get the most for your money. Begin by asking your physician about lower cost treatment alternatives since physicians control about 75 percent of the use of health care services. Request lower-cost generic prescriptions and check all hospital bills for errors.

TWELVE PRACTICES TO KEEP HEALTH CARE COSTS DOWN

A recent national survey on health care issues conducted by Opinion Research Corporation shows that 90% of Americans think medical costs are too high. The following practices can help you keep your costs to a minimum. Practices can help you keep your costs to a minimum.

- Take good care of yourself and keep fit through regular exercise.
- Practice good health and safety habits.
- Provide accurate information when discussing your situation with health care professionals; ask questions when you don't understand or need more information.
- Be sure that your physician or clinic has good records of your medical history.
- Discuss health care fees before receiving services.
- Ask your doctor about substituting a generic drug for a brand-name drug.
- Use a hospital emergency room only in a true emergency situation; contact your doctor or clinic first.
- If you need testing, ask why you need it and what it involves, including the alternatives to testing.
- Get a second opinion before undergoing any nonemergency surgery. This may save you unnecessary medical risk, not to mention unnecessary expense.
- When you need surgery, ask if it can be performed on an outpatient basis.
- Before a hospital stay, ask if you can recuperate at home through a home care program.
- Study all health care bills to make sure that you or your insurance pays only for services performed.

Club notes

Mayor Mize to speak to retirees

Mayor Cotton Mize will speak to the National Association of Retired Federal Employees (NARFE) on Feb. 12 from 9:30 to 11 a.m. The group will meet at the Kentwood Older Adults Activities Center on Lynn St.

Coffee and pastries will be served before the meeting and a short business meeting will follow. Then the Mayor will discuss topics of concern to Big Springers.

All retired federal employees are urged to attend. The public is also invited.

Spots and stains removal is topic

A program on how to remove spots and stains was presented to the Center Point Extension Homemaker Club by Lennis Couch and Betty Cordes.

The group met at Kentwood Center with nine members and one visitor, Mrs. Mickey Harrington, present.

The club voted to donate cookies twice a year and bake cakes three times a month for the Big Spring State Hospital.

A delegate was nominated for the District T.E.H.A. Naomi Hunt, county extension agent, will present a program on controlling health care costs at the Feb. 10th meeting at Kentwood Center. Frankie Walker and Jen Davidson will be the hostesses.

Warm-ups are beneficial to exercise programs

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: For years, I have obediently followed the suggestion to warm up before playing racquetball. I have done this without really understanding why. Is there any real benefit, or have I just been following advice blindly for no good reasons? — S.P.

How do warm-ups help you? Let me count the ways.

1. Warm-ups increase body temperature, making muscle interiors less viscous.

2. They make muscles better at breaking down waste products of exercise.

3. They increase the transit of oxygen to muscles.

4. They increase the rate at which nerve ends fire, enhancing coordination and speed.

5. Most importantly, and as a consequence of all those other benefits, they reduce the risk of injury.

You haven't been wasting your time. Remember, though, warm-ups are not the same as stretching. Both are important, and both must be done. They should be part of any pre-racquetball ritual.

I'm asked about the kinds of warm-ups. One is passive, like sitting in a steam bath. This helps, but not as much as the other kind, the general warm-up. An example of a good warm-up for racquetball is jogging lightly in place for five

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a 16-year-old male and in good shape. I'm about to get started jogging. I have wondered about the idea of wearing ankle weights when I jog. I have been told that this would be harmful to the knees. Is this so? — G.P.

Ankle weights can be hard on knees and hips. They can also make you develop a stride that isn't natural for you. If you want a good way to enhance jogging, run with a backpack. That increases the difficulty of the run without throwing off your normal body mechanics. And you won't put undue stress on your knees and hips.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a 50-year-old male, and I feel as though I am in good shape. But I have a high pulse rate, ranging from 90 to 100. I am told this is not good for me. I don't understand. I have a good exercise program. I jog two miles a day and I do two sets of 20 sit-ups daily, also a lot of weight training. Why the high pulse? Isn't it supposed to be lower at rest when you exercise? — C.

It is supposed to be lower, and I don't know why you aren't getting that result. Maybe you are getting false readings because of the circumstances under which you take your pulse. When do you take it?

The best time for doing so is first thing in the morning. That will give you a true resting rate. Let yourself get over the shock of a jangling alarm clock. Rest in bed a full five minutes. Then take your pulse. I'll bet it is lower than at other times. If it isn't, maybe you should be checked. A person your age, in good health and engaged in the kind of fitness program you are, should be noting a definite lowering of the resting pulse rate.

The booklet, "Introduction to Fitness," discusses taking the pulse. Order by writing me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1.50.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please give me the correct number of calories burned in an hour of running at 5.5 miles an hour. Can you give it for both a 205-pounder and a 222-pounder? — K.R.

I can smell a bet here. You are correct in assuming that body weight makes a difference. The calorie loss for the 205-pounder would be 27 per minute; for the 222-pounder, 29 per minute.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What is "BMI"? It's some kind of index, I know. — B.V.

The initials stand for "body mass index." It is a metric way of telling how fat the person is. You get it by dividing the weight in kilograms by height in meters squared.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Where did the word, stroke, as in the brain disturbance, originate? — J.S.

I don't know, but my dictionary defines stroke as "a sudden and severe attack of apoplexy or paralysis." The medical name for stroke is "cerebral vascular accident." It means a sudden loss of blood supply to a brain area. It may refer to the onset, like a stroke of lightning.

"You Can Stop Sinus Trouble!" is the title of Dr. Donohue's booklet explaining what sinus trouble really is and what can be done about it. For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and one dollar.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

'Avon Man' doesn't mind being kidded

TAYLORVILLE, Ill. (AP) — When the doorbell rings, and a voice says, "Avon calling," it may not be the Avon Lady. It could be Ed Akers, the Avon Man.

Akers is one of fewer than a dozen men regularly selling the company's beauty products in central Illinois.

Akers, 49, of Taylorville, joined Avon in 1963, after 23 years as a speech therapist with the Taylorville School District and about a year after a divorce.

The father of two grown children remarried in November and acquired a new teen-age stepdaughter.

"I'm used to being teased about being the Avon Man," Akers said recently. "But most of the adverse reactions aren't to me personally." Some people, he said, don't like door-to-door salespeople, period.

After his divorce, Akers began looking for a supplemental income and a way to meet new people. He met Judy Driver, a local Avon sales leader at the time, at a friend's house. He asked her if men ever sold Avon.

"I told him, I didn't know why men couldn't sell," said Driver, who trained Akers and still offers consultation.

After training and paying a small start-up fee, Akers began selling. His first customer, a stranger, was another salesman who just happened to collect Avon beer steins.

"Other salespeople make the best customers," said Akers, noting they are sympathetic and offer advice.

Akers likes the traveling the job entails. He delivers 60 to 70 catalogs a month, travels 450 miles and averages 10 to 15 orders every two weeks.

Growing fruit trees risky with West Texas climate

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent
My fruit trees are about ready to bloom! Can I do anything about protecting them or postponing this early bloom?

Unfortunately, no — in both cases. Growing fruit in West Texas is always a hazardous risk because of our unpredictable climate. Our unseasonable warm weather we have been experiencing lately has broken the chilling requirements of many trees and shrubs in addition to fruit trees and without a doubt we are probably in for another round of winter — perhaps by the time you are reading this article!

If these trees do bloom and a freeze occurs, in all likelihood the fruit crop will be lost and we can only hope no severe damage will occur to the tree itself. It will do little good as long as the temperatures remain as warm as they have been lately, aside from the fact of aiding the psychological consciousness of the tree's owner somewhat in at least to say he tried, but watering trees well now to keep the soil moist will tend to keep the ground temperatures down some, or at least a more constant level and this might help. If it does not freeze again this year I am sure this winter will go down in the record books but I sure would not be in too big a hurry to put away those heavy coats yet!

What kind of fertilizer do I need for my pecan trees now?
Virtually nothing. Pecans actually require little fertilizer beyond a good treatment of a nitrogen heavy fertilizer such as 20-0-0 at the rate of about a pound per inch of trunk diameter. The main nutrient that affects pecans in West Texas is zinc. This should be foliar treated at least three times a year for young trees. Ground treatment is not nearly as effective due to the chemical properties of our soils which tends to tie up the zinc and make it unavailable to the trees. This treatment (using NZN) can be incorporated with insecticide treatments for the pecan nut casebearer and applied at the same time, there by conserving time and energy. A deficiency of zinc results in a problem called Rosette which is a stunting of the terminal growth of pecan limbs and branches forming a rounded rosette appearance. Die-back is often associated with zinc deficiencies as well as general unthriftiness of the tree and over-all stunted growth.

For your garden

History of Fort Davis presented

"The History of Fort Davis" was presented by Mrs. Walter Wheat at the Feb. 3rd meeting of the 1955 Hyperion Club.

Hostess was Mrs. Jay Cunningham and co-hostesses were Mrs. Wheat and Mrs. H.B. Perry.

Wheat shared facts about Fort Davis and said it's a nice town to take a vacation. Highlights of the town are: a museum, located four miles northwest of town, The Indian Lodge, the Prude Ranch and McDonald Observatory and Big Bend National Park.

The population of Fort Davis is 900, has an altitude of 5,050-feet and is located on U.S. Route 90, Wheat noted.

Refreshments were served to 20 members.
The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. James Cowan, 518 Edwards Circle, on March 3.

The

Forgiveness week: a divine opportunity

DEAR READERS: Are you holding a grudge? Don't feel guilty. Many of us are. But we don't have to hold it forever.

Did you know there is an International Forgiveness Week? Well, neither did I. I recently learned that there is such a week. It's from Feb. 8 until the 14.

Robert Muller, former assistant secretary-general of the United Nations, wrote this piece for International Forgiveness Week.

DECIDE TO FORGIVE

Decide to forgive
For resentment is negative
Resentment is poisonous Resentment diminishes and devoids the self.

Be the first to forgive,
To smile and to take the first step.

And you will see happiness bloom
On the face of your human brother or sister.

Be always the first
Do not wait for others to forgive
For by forgiving
You become the master of fate

The fashioner of life
The doer of miracles.
To forgive is the highest
Most beautiful form of love.

In return you will receive
Untold peace and happiness.

Dear Abby

Here is the program for achieving a truly forgiving heart;
Sunday: Forgive yourself
Monday: Forgive your family.
Tuesday: Forgive your friends and associates.

Wednesday: Forgive across economic lines within your own nation.

Thursday: Forgive across cultural lines within your own nation.

Friday: Forgive across political lines within your own nation.

Saturday: Forgive other nations.
Only the brave know how to forgive. A coward never forgives.

It is not in his nature.

ROBERT MULLER

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the letter from "Perplexed in Washington State" who wanted to preserve her husband's tattoo for posterity: She should find a good taxidermist and stuff her husband in toto with tattoo bared for all to see. He would make a great living room conversation piece.

After all, the leg of some Union general is on exhibition in the Medical Museum in Washington, D.C., for visitors to ogle.

JIM GRIFFITH, CINCINNATI

DEAR MR. GRIFFITH: I thought you were pulling my leg, but my research disclosed the following: After Maj. Gen. Daniel Stickles' leg was shattered by a cannonball during the Battle of Gettysburg in 1863, the general himself sent the flesh and bones to the museum in a little black "coffin." He frequently went there to visit his leg, and even brought visitors to view it. There is even an example of the cannonball that did the damage.

DEAR ABBY: Apropos the woman who wanted to preserve her husband's tattoo after his demise: How gross! Assuming it could be done, think of all the morbid things it could lead to. For instance, the husband of a well-endowed wife might decide he'd like "bookends."

ALSO PERPLEXED

CONFIDENTIAL TO C.O.W., WATERLOO, IOWA: Heed the words of the wise philosopher Schopenhauer: "It is easy to let the adulation of the Deity make amends for the lack of proper behavior toward men. And so we see that in all times and in all countries, the great majority of mankind find it easier to beg their way into heaven by prayers than to deserve to go there by their actions."

CONFIDENTIAL TO YOU: Please notice that I have a new post office box number. Send your problems to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. And for a personal, unpublished reply, please send a self-addressed stamped envelope.

To get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.

Handicap fails to deter boy

MADERA, Calif. (AP) — Seven-year-old Zachary Williams walks on two wooden legs, but he still plays soccer with the rest of his schoolmates.

That's probably because his parents have encouraged him not to think of himself as different from other children.

Zachary, who has a genetic defect that left him with no knees or lower legs, learned to get around on artificial limbs at a young age.

When people commented on his disability, "we'd answer as briefly as we could," said his mother, Barbara. "Eventually, Zachary started asking us why people were asking."

The Williams "always tried to downplay any problems with Zachary's legs," Mrs. Williams explained. "We just told him it was no big deal. We emphasize the positive and let him try anything he wants."

"And we've tried to build his self-esteem so he can handle it if he gets knocked down."

So, nobody tried to stop him when Zachary wanted to play intramural soccer during lunchtime at school in this community 160 miles southeast of San Francisco.

"I think Zachary felt good about being part of a team," said Charles Beckett, principal at Dixieland School.

"Zachary already knew a lot when he came in," said his coach, David Harwood, a 13-year-old eighth-grader who works with the school's youngest athletes in training. "He knew how to position his body in front of the ball, how to use his hands. He's doing fine."

Zachary's father, the Rev. Steve Williams of the Church of God, goes to the school at least once a week to roll soccer balls so the students can practice kicking.

Zachary plays goalie, the only player allowed to use his hands to stop the ball. But he still has to kick it to one of his teammates after stopping the other team from scoring.

"The best part of soccer is when the ball's coming at you," Zachary says. "I like soccer. And my coach is good."
