County OKs funds for handicapped

By SCOTT FITZGERALD Staff Writer

County commissioners this morning approved funds for a local association to aid the retarded and sought additional information about possible funding for juvenile supervision salaries.

The Howard County Association for the Retarded will receive $500 monthly from the county, as a result of unanimous Commissioners' approval of O.L. Brown's motion for that amount.

The money will be used to offset expenses incurred when the association recently moved its center from 901 to 905 Johnson St., Association President Carol Green said.

She and Treasurer Mike Cowley requested financial support from the county when they addressed commissioners earlier this

Commissioners then agreed to support the association, but requested a financial statement before taking action.

According to a financial statement prepared by Cowley and presented to commissioners this morning, the association has a monthly expense totalling $1,857.45 and a monthly income of $958.28.

The current building expenses was listed at $1,308.39. The expenses incorporated remodeling and utility maintenance costs, Green earlier told commissioners.

Green and Cowley told commissioners they would also seek funds from the city. The commissioners did not take action but requested Commissioner Brown to inquire further with The Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission about fund availability for juvenile detention supervision. County judge Milton Kirby told commissioners he understood the regional commission was providing funding to its member counties through grants for juvenile law enforcement.

The regional planning commission stipulates the grant request receive commissioner court approval.

Kirby suggested the funds be used to pay salaries for part-time supervision when juveniles are detained here

The county will begin detaining its juvenile offenders here when the county courthouse annex opens at the end of March, Kirby said.

The annex will provide four cells and the county will not have to detain its juvenile offenders in Abilene, Kirby said.

Commissioner Bill Crooker suggested commissioners should know more information about the grant before they approved application for the funding.

"I'd like to know what we are getting into. It could be a situation where we get free money for awhile and zap -- we're stuck with the responsibility when it runs out," Crooker said.

Commissioners requested Brown, a member of the commission's board of directors, to obtain additional information.

Nurses raising Proctor funding

Sharon Walker hopes to have to return to the printer and arrange to have more tickets printed for the Howard College Allied Health class

The 37 graduating registered nurses are selling chances on several prizes contributed by area merchants as a fundraising device for the Christie Proctor fund established by the Big Spring Rotary Club. Proctor, the granddaughter of Ralph and Lynette Brooks of Big Spring, was abducted more than a year ago near her north Dallas home.

The 11-year-old is the daughter of Laura Brooks Proctor, who is originally from Big Spring. She is a 1974 graduate of Big Spring High Walker, who is chairing the committee of R.N.s, said that if others in her group enjoy the success she's had selling the $1.50 tickets, "more will have to be printed." That's a problem she would be happy to resolve.

She said one person simply made a $5 contribution and suggested his tickets be given away.

Paul Shaffer, Rotary Club president, Friday said that $16,000 has been raised to finance the efforts of a private investigator hired by the club to help the search efforts. Lynette Brooks said Saturday that "the response has been just great. I'm so happy that the nurses thought of doing something like Aubrey Stokes, L.S. McDowell, Bud Rankin, Connie Edwards, Dr. Jim Mathews and Dr. Don Crockett contributed funds to purchase a half of a beef to be dressed by Hubbard Packing Co., Walker said. It will be the main prize in an April 15 drawing in the Horace Garrett Library at Howard College.

"Right at tax time," she said with a smile Friday afternoon. "It will give you something to look forward to.

Other prizes include a $50 Safeway gift certificate, a $20 Coahoma Little Super gift cèrtificate, and a decorater item from each Carter's Furniture, the Kat's Meow and Joy's Hallmark Cards, Walker said.

Anyone interested in purchasing tickets or making contributions of any kind can contact Walker at 399-4457, or call or visit Blum's Jewelers, which the Brooks own and operate. The phone number is

Other committeee members for the class project are Carrie Sanderson, Olga Sanderson, Debra Watkins and Jo Williams.

Shoppers and passers-by were treated to a gymnastics demonstration at the Big Spring Mall Saturday afternoon, when YMCA instrucfor Ken Werner's students performed three shows. Bill Carey, in the photo below, performs a flipover, while seven fellow-gymnasts await his safe landing. He's the son of Gary Don and Donna Carey. At right, Hank Tonn, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Terry, does a flip with a half twist while the spectators watch. Both performers have been developing their gymsastics talents for two years, Werner said.

Budget occupying legislators, Clements going to Washington

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas lawmakers will continue working toward a state budget this week while Gov. Bill Clements travels to Washington to push for a project he says could be part of the state's economic Clements said he would make the supercollider a project that could mean thousands and jobs and billions of dollars for Texas - a top priority for his trip. The governor said he would discuss the project in his meetings with President Reagan, congressmen and heads of federal agencies.

The supercollider, which will be the world's largest atom smasher, includes a 52-mile underground tunnel

In addition to his meetings with federal officials, Clements will attend sessions of the National Governors Association meeting.

Clements also will be pushing for an oil import fee he says can give oil prices a boost that would benefit Texas. Reagan opposes the fee.

At the Capitol in Austin, various House and Senate committees will continue their reviews of budget request from state agencies

The Senate has scheduled Monday debate on two prison-related bills filed by Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin. He wants to require the Board of Pardons and Paroles to consider consecutive sentences individually, not as one sentence, in parole reviews.

Under the Barrientos plan, an inmate whose sentences include one for an aggravated offense could not begin to earn credit toward parole on the second offense until he has qualified for parole on the first sentence.

The other Barrientos' bill would require that before the release of an inmate, the Board of Pardons and Paroles would have to notify officials in both the county of conviction and the county where the prosecution originated.

Tim Conger, spokesman for House Speaker Gib Lewis, said the House was scheduled to consider a resolution calling for construction of a memorial to Korean and Vietnam war veterans.

The House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee Wednesday will consider a bill by Rep. Betty Denton, D-Waco, aimed at curbing DWI by requiring the installation of breath-checking machines in cars of convicted drunken drivers. The machine prevents the car from being started unless the driver properly implements a special code.

Yanez death case before jurors today

Jurors were scheduled to reporteat 1 p.m. today to 118th District Court to hear evidence in a voluntary manslaughter case. A juvenile hearing concerning a 15-year-old male suspected of stabbing a man to death recently was also scheduled at the time in county court.

The district court case involves Preston Crawford, 34, 3606 Calvin St., who is charged with voluntary manslaughter in the November 1985 death of 17-year-old Jimmy Yanez.

Yanez died from pistol shots fired in the 800 block of West Fourth Third Street.

Police initially charged Crawford with murder, but the charge was dropped to voluntary manslaughter by a Howard County grand jury.

County Judge Milton Kirby said this morning he would make a ruling this afternoon on whether a 15-year-old male would continue to be detained in the Abiliene juvenile detention

The suspect was transported to the facility Feb. 13 by a sheriff's deputy after he was arrested in connection with the stabbing death of 24-year-old Marc Rutledge.

Rutledge was stabbed on that date once through his heart in the backyard of his home on Hilltop Road.

County unemployment up 1 percent

The unemployment rate for Howard County increased a percentage point in January over the previous month, according to figures from the Texas Employment Commission. The rate is more than 3 percent higher than that of a year ago. Joe Wallis, Big Spring TEC general manager, this morning said the rate increased from 9.1 percent in December to 10.1 percent in January. The rate for January 1986 was 6.5 per-

The total Howard County civilian labor force for January was 15,818. For December it was 15,815 and for January 1986 it was 15,469. The number of employed was 14,215 for January; 14,369 for December; and 14,463 for January 1986, he said.

The number of unemployed was 1,603 for January; 1,446 for December; and 1,006 for January 1986

Wallis said he is unable to pinpoint the cause for the increase in unemployment in January over December.

Pigures indicate that the labor force has increased by nearly 400 in January over last year. That could mean that more workers have moved into the area, or that more women are work ing or looking for work because their husbands are unemployed, he said.

For February, placements have increased slightly because of the co-generationn plant construction, although progress on the plant appears slower than expected, and fewer construction workers have been hired, Wallis said. However, he expects no overall reduction in the number of jobs at the plant. Unemployment claims for February have remained constant so

Insulin reaction triggers accident

By SPENCER SANDOW Staff Writer

A Big Spring man's insulin reaction resulted in an accident Saturday night that left him and another driver injured; and a 19-year-old was arrested as a minor posessing alcohol when a local woman was injured in an earlier accident Saturday night.

Ronald Blake Hicks, 31, Route 1 Box 748, was treated and released from Scenic Mountain Medical Center after he suffered an insulin reaction and was injured in the accident at FM 700 and Goliad Streets at 11:24 p.m. Saturday. An insulin reaction occurs when a diabetic receives too much or too little insulin, accor-

Linda Fay Banks, 21, 1509 Bluebird St. also was treated and released from the hospital after she was injured in the accident, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Hicks was driving a maroon Chevrolet pickup east in the west-bound lane of FM 700 and Banks was driving a light blue Chevrolet Chevette south on Goliad Street, turning right onto the highway when the two cars collided in the intersection, according to police reports. No charges were filed.

Lisa Moore, 18, 103 E. 24th St., was treated and released from Scenic Mountain Medical Center, the hospital spokeswoman said, after Moore was hurt in an accident at 1700 S. Gregg

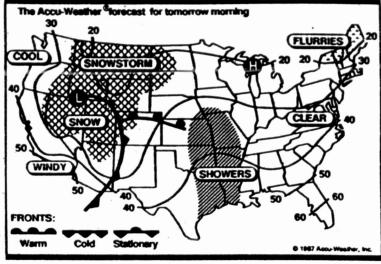

Moore was a passenger in a green GMC pickup driven by Carl David Johnson, 35, of the same address. Neither Johnson nor 15-year-old passenger Tammy Moore of that address were injured.

The accident occurred when a brown Chevrolet Citation driven by 19-year-old Ruben Trevino, 1002 N. Main St. Apt. 65, struck Johnson's truck from behind.

Johnson was stopped on Gregg Street, waiting for the vehicle in front of him to turn left. Trevino failed to see Johnson in time to stop, police reports state.

Trevino was arrested, charged with posession of alcohol while under age 21, driving without a license, failure to maintain financial responsibility and following too closely.

Aliens win in lottery

WASHINGTON - It's not exactly a $10 million sweepstakes win, but 10,000 foreigners soon will receive notices that they have won a lottery of a different kind: The offer of American residency.

The lottery was offered under a unique law designed to help people in 36 countries whose emigration to the United States has decreased since 1965. Under the one-time offer, 5,000 people this year and another 5,000 in 1988 will be allowed to come live in America regardless of special preferences, desirable skills or relatives living in the United States.

About 1.3 million people have applied for U.S. residency.

The lucky 10,000 won by mailing their entry forms to the State Department at the right moment, just after the stroke of midnight Jan.

The Irish won the most slots, 3,112, then Canada, 2,078; Britain, 1,181; Indonesia, 810; Poland, 592; Japan, 518; and Italy, 315.

WASHINGTON-Police departments turned into dial-a-cop operations by flooded 911 emergency lines should spend more time figuring out how to reduce crime and less on answering unimportant calls, a Justice Department study says.

'What we've done is turned police cars into fire stations," University of Maryland professor Lawrence W. Sherman said in the report released Sunday. "They're just out there to be a ready response. They just keep putting out fires, but they never take away the Sherman analyzed 321,174 calls received by the Minneapolis Police Department between Dec. 15, 1985, and Dec. 15, 1986.

He found only 5 percent of the city's locations — addresses and street intersections produced 64 percent of all calls to police.

Pastor admits crimes

WILLIAMSVILLE, N.Y. — A minister who passed out condoms from the pulpit two weeks ago said he was overwhelmed by the support shown by his congregation after he acknowledged his criminal past.

"I have no precedent in my life for this kind of feeling," said the Rev. Carl F. Thitchener after receiving two standing ovations and numerous hugs of support Sunday at the Unitarian Universalist Church in this Buffalo suburb.

Thitchener gained national attention when he passed out condoms during a Feb. 8 service at the church to increase awareness of the spread of AIDS.

The Buffalo News reported on Feb. 18 that Thitchener had an arrest record that included convictions for disorderly conduct, driving while intoxicated and exposing himself.

Jewish activist returns to cheers

By ANDREW ROSENTHAL

Associated Press Writer MOSCOW (AP) — Jewish activist Josef Begun came home today to a tumultuous welcome from cheering friends and said he was "insanely happy" to be free after more than three years in prison for his political Begun was hoisted onto the shoulders of some of the dozens of friends and supporters who turned out at the Kazan train station, where he arrived from Chistopol Prison, 500 miles east of Moscow.

He vowed to do "all in my power to see that all prisoners of Zion are freed as soon as possible.'

Begun, 55, was given a seven-year sentence in 1983 on charges of anti-Soviet activity stemming from articles he wrote on the teaching of Hebrew. He was pardoned last week by the Supreme Soviet, the country's nominal parliament, and was released from jail

Today he called his freedom a sign that the Kremlin is trying to present a more liberal image to the world. But he said only freedom for all political prisoners and a lifting of emigration barriers "will show how real is the process of democratization that is so widely declared" in the Soviet Union.

Begun was freed as part of what Soviet officials have said is a continuing review of sentences for dissidents sent to labor camps and prisons under laws that prohibit "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda" and "anti-Soviet slander.

The Supreme Soviet released about 150 dissidents this month and officials say it is reviewing the cases of another 150 still in jail. Authorities said those released asked for pardons and promised not to resume any activities deemed anti-Soviet.

But Begun said he did not ask for a pardon nor agree to stop any activities. "I wrote that I do not seek a pardon, but that I never committed any crime and was never guilty of anything," he said.

"We shouldn't undertake any obligation to stop our activities," he said. "On the contrary, we will continue to fight for real civil rights.

The Soviet Union's most prominent dissident, Andrei Sakharov, on Sunday called for the release of another human rights activist Genrikh Altunyan, who refused to pledge not to engage in "anti-Soviet" activity if he is Altunyan, 53, was a founder of the Initiative Group for the Defense of Human Rights, created in 1969.

Rebels stir red alert

MANILA, Philippines — Troops clashed with Communist rebels in three widely scattered areas in weekend fighting, and the army was on red alert today as the country celebrated the ouster of President Ferdinand E. Marcos one year ago.

Maj. Gen. Eduardo Ermita, the vice chief of staff, said the alert began Sunday and was aimed at preventing Marcos loyalists and Communist rebels from staging attacks to disrupt the festivities.

The commemoration began with a solemn Mass Sunday for those killed in the Feb. 22-25. 1986 uprising. The four-day celebration was to include fireworks, religious services, speeches, flag-raisings and street dancing.

Reports of clashes in remote areas often take days to reach Manila because of poor communications. The latest reported over the weekend bring to at least 83 the number of people killed since a 60-day cease-fire ended

Survivor ID's ex-Nazi

JERUSALEM — Sobbing in his chair, a survivor of the Treblinka death camp today identified John Demjanjuk as the sadistic Nazi guard known as "Ivan the Terrible" who beat prisoners with pipes and bayonets and mutilated their corpses.

"That's him sitting over there," said Pinchas Epstein, pointing to Demjanjuk after being asked to identify a picture of Ivan from an album of photos.

The Ukrainian-born Demjanjuk, who settled in Cleveland after World War II, is accused of being one of two guards who turned on the gas chamber engines to kill 850,000 Jews at Treblinka in Nazi-occupied Poland from 1942

Demjanjuk, 66, who was stripped of his U.S. citizenship before being extradited to Israel last year, denies the charges. He says he never was in Treblinka and is a victim of mistaken identity.

"Georges Ibrahim Abdallah, I am an Arab fighter," the defendant said in answer to the first question by the court president as the proceedings started 15 minutes late.

Abdallah, 35, is accused of complicity in the murders of Lt. Col. Charles Robert Ray, the U.S. deputy military attache in Paris, killed Jan. 18, 1982, and Yacov Barsimantov, second secretary at the Israeli Embassy, killed April He also is charged with complicity in the at-

Missourian seeks presidency

By MIKE GLOVER Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Missouri Rep. Richard Gephardt, acknowledging he is a dark horse, officially announced today his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination with a pledge to "make America first again.'

Gephardt, in remarks prepared for delivery at a downtown rally, said his campaign will center largely on trade issues. "The first task of national leadership is to remove the barriers that limit what people themselves can do,' he said. "The clearest case is international trade."

His aides said their campaign strategy will be to portray the congressman as a middle-of-the-road Democrat who has appeal beyond the ranks of party activists to independents and Republicans. Summarizing his strategy for winning the nomination, Gephardt said, "We will do it by being the first to work each day and the last to quit each night." Gephardt has been campaigning in Iowa and New Hampshire since January 1985. He acknowledges

Texas options include income tax

Campaigns cost too many millions

Enough now has been said and written about Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen inviting lobbyists to breakfast in return for $10,000 contributions to his campaign fund.

Anyone who wonders why officeholders play patsy with lobbyists need only consider costs of campaigning vs. salaries, even with the most recent increases.

Election reform is often discussed, such as limits on total expenditures, free television time, public financing. But there hasn't yet been a better way proposed. Surely there must be some way to corral campaign costs.

It's time to seriously consider the changes in campaigning or in financing those campaigns. Otherwise, there will always be some form of breakfast clubs in which legislators and lobbyists exchange information and dollars

Toxic transport law needs changes

Just because Texas has been spared a major disaster involving toxic materials doesn't mean its luck will hold out forever.

The deficiencies (in the law), which are pointed out in a report by the House Transportation Committee, demand the prompt attention of lawmakers

The first thing that officials should do is get a better fix on the problem by requiring accidents involving toxic materials to be reported to a central agency, such as the Department of Public materials do.

Next. Texas should tighten its standards for anyone who hauls hazardous substances.

Another of the Transportation Committee's sound suggestions is to make sure that emergency personnel are properly trained to resond to toxic spills and similar

Law will reinforce common sense

The committee answered her plea by giving unanimous approval to a bill which would require prison officials to do just that

The victim was protesting the release of the "choker rapist" who was paroled after serving only eight years of a 123-year sentence assessed in Waco after the trial was moved here from Austin.

The rapist is back in iail in Houston in connection with more attacks on women that occurred after his parole.

Texas already has a law which requires victims to be notified when a dangerous offender is released, but it went into effect after the Austin rapist was released.

More legislation is unlikely to replace the common sense that should be used by all officials who deal with the release of prisoners.

Poll of readers says press treats president unfairly

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON - Last month we asked your opinion of the media's treatment of President Reagan: fair or unfair. The responses have been tabulated, and we're understandably concerned at the outcome: By a 3-to-1 margin, you think the press has treated the president unfairly.

The results of our Peoples Poll. conducted under the supervision of Dr. Vincent Breglio of Research/Strategy/Management Inc., were as follows: 27,297 telephone callers "voted" against the press by dialing the special number reserved for the view that we have been too hard on the president, only 7.691 dialed the number specified for the opinion that press treatment of Reagan has been fair.

This overwhelming support of the president was not matched in the post card response, which showed 9,196 "unfair" and 4,131 "fair." The total of 48,315 responses broke down into 36,493 combined telephone-post card votes against the press and 11,822 approving its treatment of the president.

This means that almost exactly 75 percent of the respondents didn't like the way we in the Fourth Estate have been covering the president.

This is troubling, not because we want everyone to love us, but because it is bound to undermine the effectiveness of an alert, aggressive press. We relish the hostility of crooks, cover-up artists and other contemptible betrayers of the public trust; their shrieks of anger are our good housecleaning seal of approval.

But if our thoughtful, concerned readers — those who take the time and trouble to articulate their opinions with a phone call or a post

We take comfort in the fact that the comments of those who submitted written responses clearly indicate a gut reaction of sympathy for a popular president who's down on his luck at the moment. The comments did not indicate approval of everything the president has done, particularly on the Iran/contra affair.

To be quite candid, we suspect that the press would have lost a popularity contest to any president, with the possible exception of Richard Nixon at his nadir of devious deceit.

So all is not lost; bloodied but unbowed, chastened but not cringing, we'll continue to do what we have always tried to do: just give the facts, ma'am, and not distort them with our personal opinions. It's when the press mixes fact and opinion without clearly identifying them that the public gets uneasy, we think.

Incidentally, the president's former press spokesman, Larry Speakes, was asked the very question we asked you, and replied: "By and large they (the press) have given the Reagan administration a fair shake ... and they probably gave us a longer honeymoon than we deserved.

Meanwhile, our next Peoples Poll poses a question that concerns every American's pocketbook: the budget deficit. Almost everyone seems to agree that the federal deficit must be cut before the national debt soars hopelessly out of control.

The only disagreement is over how to do the job — and the only practical options are not pleasant. Congress must either raise taxes or cutting back on programs dear to the hearts of millions of Americans

If you think Congress should cut the deficit by raising taxes, dial 900-210-3280. If you think Congress should do it by cutting federal spending, dial 900-210-3284

The telephone company will charge you 50 cents for the call. If you prefer not to call — or if you have a problem completing your call — write the telephone number of your choice (and any comments) on a post card and mail it to Peoples Poll, P.O. Box 2300, Washington, D.C., 20013.

Telephone companies deceptive

By JIM MATTOX Attorney General

Since the breakup of AT&T, a number of quite reputable long distance telephone companies have been offering their services to

Unfortunately, in addition to these good companies, a number of dishonest operators are in the long distance telephone service market. And my Consumer Protection staff tells me that in the dishonest group are several companies that combine poor long distance services with pyramid marketing techniques.

The numerous complaints we have received from consumers who signed with dishonest companies indicate that the companies promise one thing and deliver another. Lines that are advertised as "state of the art" have proved to be outdated and in poor repair. What was sold as unrestricted or unlimited telephone service has in fact been subject to time limits as short as 10 minutes in some

On the pyramid side, consumers who joined one company as salespersons report that they have not received the promised commissions. And recruiters for these companies often tell unsuspecting customers that they will be able to pay for their long distance service simply by signing new subscribers. But those promises are never kept.

It is a common tactic of pyramid recruiters to tell prospective customers that they will get the product or service "free" if they sign enough other customers. Whenever you hear this kind of presentation, you should be suspicious and proceed with Long distance companies are not regulated by any particular state agency in Texas, except for AT&T, which is still under the jurisdiction of the Public Utilities Commission. This means that neither the rates charged nor the quality of service provided by carriers other than AT&T are reviewed by the PUC or any other state agency.

Since no state agency oversees long distance telephone companies, consumers are on their own and should be very careful. Of course, telephone companies that practice deceptive sales techniques or that engage in pyramid marketing schemes are liable for prosecution under the Deceptive Trade Practices Act and other appropriate statutes. But the easiest thing is to be on your guard and not fall for the scams in the first place.

This is especially true about pyramids. I have talked about the dangers of pyramid schemes quite lot recently. I repeat: every pyramid is bound to collapse sooner or later.

If you choose to sign for long distance services through a pyramid operation, you are risking the money you invest and opening the door for endless frustration in using your telephone.

If you have had a problem with long distance telephone service, or any other consumer problem, ask for assistance through the mediation services provided by the Consumer Protection office nearest you. Offices are in Austin, Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, McAllen, Lubbock and El Paso.

LOOKING BACK

Breweries in Philadelphia Breweries in the late 18th century operated right in the heart of Philadelphia. Grey's on Sixth Street and Pott's on Fifth were only half a block from the convention delegates' meeting place at the State House. One block east, Caspar Haines ran a brewery on Fourth, and another with his brother Reuben on the north side of Market Street just south of Fourth. William Dawson had the old Morris brewery on Chestnut Street, just east of Third. In 1774, an insurance surveyer described the latter property, giving us a typical layout of Philadelphia breweries. Behind the three-story brick house on Chestnut Street, where William Pusey, the then-owner must have lived, stood the long, two-story brewery, 80-by-20 feet. The kiln, which heated the water, or liquor, for brewing, adjoined the brewery. In 1786, William Dawson insured a new house and a large new malt house on the property, so business surely was booming during the Convention.

Beer was a very popular item, drunk routinely throughout the day. Brewer Thomas Morris indicated in his journal that he produced two grades of beer. One, the small beer, was by definition diluted, possibly to make it more affordable to low-income

Most laborers' wages included a liquor compensation, sometimes rum, and sometimes beer. Drinking for the 18th century man was far more a daily fact of life than it is today, but the associated alcoholism we acknowledge in our society seems not to have been such a recognized problem.

When our 3-year-old grandson visits us, we do not allow him to eat and drink anywhere he wants to in our house. Neither do we allow him to jump on beds or walk on the furniture. When we are at his house we keep our mouths shut. However, when he comes here, we set the rules. This seems to satisfy him, and our daughter (his mother) respects our feelings. SAN DIEGO GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: I caught a lot of flak on my "only one set of rules" reply. I assumed (erroneously) that all grandparents allowed their grandchildren to get away with behavior that would not be tolerated in their parents' home. I was wrong. Thank heavens for grandparents like you. Unfortunately, I fear you're in the silent minority.

Passive smoke harmful

By NYU MEDICAL CENTER An increasing number of research studies have shown that eigarette smoking not only is bad for smokers but is hazardous for their children as well, according to a pediatrician at New York University Medical Center.

'If adults need help finding a reason to quit sm.oking, they should think of their children, who inhale smoke passively," stressed Dr. Hedi L. Leistner, director of pediatric pulmonology at the Infants whose mothers smoke have a significantly higher incidence of respiratory problems, including asthma. Pneumonia and bronchitis occur twice as often in such infants as in those whose mothers do not smoke.

When both parents smoke, the risks are even greater. Children of smokers experience tonsillitis, pharvngitis and middle ear infections more frequently throughout the childhood years.

Infants and children of mothers who smoke have higher death rates appear to begin even before birth. Researchers believe this may be due to the combined effects of smoking during pregnancy and babies have a lower birth weight.

mothers feeding their babies while they smoke," explained Leistner. "So the infant gets a constant stream of second-hand smoke. which delivers the same 'tar,' nicotine, carbon dioxide and other chemicals received by the Leistner acknowledges that pulmonary-function testing is difficult in very young children because they cannot cooperate to breathe on command. However, when those older than five are tested, abnormalities in lung volume and small-airway function can be clearly detected in children of smokers. "This means that when they get to be adults, such children will not be starting with normal lungs," said Leistner.

Dialysis patient gives birth to healthy baby

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal LUBBOCK (AP) — The miracle of birth has taken on a new meaning for Janie Martinez, one of only a small number of women who have successfully given birth while undergoing dialysis treatment.

'I call him my miracle baby," Mrs. Martinez said of her healthy 5 pound 1 ounce son, Joshua, who was delivered at Methodist Hospital on Jan. 29.

There are approximately 20 documented cases of women who have become pregnant while undergoing dialysis treatment, but in only 10 of those cases has the pregnancy not resulted in miscarriage, said Dr. Glen H. Stanbaugh, Mrs. Martinez's nephrologist.

According to Stanbaugh, most women with kidney failure, even with dialysis, have a high level of waste products in their bodies which cause changes in their female hormone levels. Because of those changes, ovulation usually does not occur and if it does, it is infrequent, he said.

Therefore, Mrs. Martinez, who already had given birth to two children before her kidney failure, said she was told that she probably could not become pregnant again and that if she did become pregnant she would probably miscarry. When Mrs. Martinez first suspected she was pregnant and told her physician, Stanbaugh said his first reaction was, "No way." However, when tests confirmed that Mrs. Martinez was pregnant, Stanbaugh said it became a team effort among himself, her obstetrician Dr. Mike Owen, and the staff at the South Plains Kidney Disease Center, where she undergoes dialysis, to ensure that the pregnancy was successful.

Stanbaugh said that studies of the women who had become pregnant while undergoing dialysis showed that the high level of waste products in their bodies had often lead to miscarriages.

To ensure that her waste levels did not reach dangerous levels. Mrs. Martinez said she had to undergo dialysis for 41/2 hours a day five times a week rather than the usual four hours a day three times a week.

In effect, simply undergoing the dialysis became a full-time job for Mrs. Martinez. From the time she left home until the time she returned was almost eight hours each day, said Judi Holmes, a social worker for South Plains Kidney Disease Center.

"She appeared very calm, cool and collected, although inside I knew she was concerned," Mrs. Holmes said.

Mrs. Martinez admitted that she was very worried about the possibility of a miscarriage during her pregnancy, especially because she was taking so many

Even with all of the stress that she was under, Mrs. Martinez never complained, Mrs. Holmes "Her family was very said. supportive.'

Janie Martinez, who suffers from kidney failure, holds her 11-day-old son, Joshua, who is one of only ten babies born to a mother undergoing kidney dialysis treatment.

Prisons

open doors Tuesday

- The HUNTSVILL Texas prison system closed last week when the inmate population topped the state-mandated limit, won't open today, officials said.

Texas Department of Corrections spokesman Charles Brown said the system, traditionally closed on weekends, will remain closed

However, Brown said Sunday there's a chance the prison system could start accepting new inmates by Tuesday.

The current closure is the third in three weeks for the prison system, which is mandated by state law to stay under a 95 percent capacity mark to ease overcrowding.

"I think the earliest we could be open would be Tuesday," Brown said.

Prison officials will make that decision after reviewing population figures taken at midnight Friday. Those figures will be available sometime after noon today, and Brown said he expects the population to be below 95 percent.

The latest inmate headcount.

taken at midnight Thursday and announced Friday, totaled 38,589 inmates, or 95.51 percent of capacity, TDC spokesman David Nunnelee said. That number amounted to 206 inmates over the 95 percent

At least 115 inmates were released on parole Friday, Brown said. More will be let go today if the system receives parole certificates allowing their release.

It is the fourth time this year that the prison system, the nation's second-largest behind California, has had to stop admitting new inmates until the population sank below the limit.

Prisons reopened last Tuesday for the first time in six days, but the corrections department was soon forced to shut down again after a record number of inmates were transferred from county jails.

The open-and-close cycle will be repeated until later this year when trusty camps and a new maximum security prison are completed and provide additional beds, prison officials said.

Surrogate: 'Fulfillment and reward'

DALLAS (AP) — With three children of her own, Renee Thrasher says she considers being a surrogate mother the one thing she can do to make things a little better for someone else.

"I'm not doing it for the money, but for the fulfillment and reward," she said. "I can't do a lot for humankind. What can one little person do?"

Mrs. Thrasher, a realtor, says she's not advertising her decision to be a surrogate mother, but she's not keeping it a secret either.

"I'm proud of the fact that I'm doing this," she said. "I'm not going to run around in a T-shirt saying 'I'm a surrogate mother,' but I am telling people. You can't keep a pregnancy secret for long.'

She said most of her friends support her and she's not paying attention to her critics.

Mrs. Thrasher, 25, has been accepted into a surrogate program and has talked with a Michigan couple about bearing a baby for them. If the couple chooses her, Mrs. Thrasher will undergo psychological and physical tests before being artificially inseminated.

She will receive a $10,000 fee for bearing the child, along with payment for birth-related expenses. Her husband, Joe, supports his wife's commitment to becoming a surrogate mother. Two deaths believed murder-suicide

Hospitals cope with declines by diversifying

HOUSTON (AP) - Some hospitals are offering catering services, exercise classes and other non-medical services in an effort to cope with patient declines and attract more business

"Any type of service hospitals have that is not operating at full capacity, they'll try to market,' said Ken Peters, senior vice president for planning and operation for the Texas Hospital Association

Garrett Graham, president of the Greater Houston Hospital Council, believes Houston's sluggish economy is the reason hospitals are trying different methods to raise money.

"People who are out of work von't have elective procedures done," Graham said. "There's a whole bunch of economic factors causing less inpatient days.'

Some services, such as food and laundry services, are used less when there are fewer patients to serve.

The Woman's Hospital of Texas provides food service to a nearby hospice and has catered private parties. The hospital also operates six "satellite" locations with physicians' offices as well as exercise and nutrition classes.

"I can't think of a service that we either don't already provide or aren't getting ready to provide," said Judith Novak, the hospital's chief executive officer.

If people are attracted to a hospital through such programs, they may choose the facility when they get sick, hospital officials said.

Memorial Care Systems of Houston provides laundry service and also food service to two psychiatric-care facilities.

'We have a tremendous capacity in our laundry. We do laundry for other hospitals and a number of agencies," said David Lopp, vice president for marketing and business development at Memorial.

At Westbury Hospital, the institution went from 123 beds to 72 to accommodate a concentration of outpatient care for back problems. Administrator Mel Bishop said he sensed a market for such a service because back problems are second only to the common cold as a reason for missing work.

The added space from the vacated beds was turned into areas for physical therapy and outpatient assessment. Two patients rooms were converted into a store that sells waterbeds. specially designed chairs and athletic wear for jogging.

"We get a cross-section of people because back problems are so widespread," said store manager Flo Alpha.

Bumpus no match for Honeyghan

WEMBLEY, England (AP) - Lloyd Honeyghan and Donald Curry could be heading for a rematch, at the junior-middleweight level, however, instead of welterweight.

Honeyghan created one of the biggest upsets in boxing when he beat Curry last September to become the undisputed world welterweight champion.

And, after his four-minute demolition of another American, Johnny Bumphus, at Wembley Grand Hall on Sunday, Honeyghan's manager, Mickey Duff, said the 26-year-old Briton might well run out of opponents and be forced to follow Curry into the ranks of the junior-middleweights.

'The way he's boxing right now, I would put Lloyd in with anyone," Duff said.

When he has cleared up the welterweight division, maybe we will have to put him up to

Honeyghan blasted out a warning to the watching Mark Breland, the World Boxing Association welterweight champion, that the victory over Curry was no fluke.

Bumphus, 26, of Mount Laurel, N.J., entered the ring as a former world junior welterweight champion with one defeat on a 30-fight record. He left after a spectacular four-minute blitz by the Briton, who thrilled a 3,000-strong hometown crowd by defending his World Boxing Council and International Boxing Federation titles in the way he wanted. "I had psyched myself up to go to war. He wasn't going to win," Honeyghan said. "It was all Rambo stuff. It was rough-him-up business, no messing around. I didn't want to dance around the ring. I was here to fight because that's how I earn a living. "I was ready to eat him alive. When he went down for the second time, I was going to keep punching. It was up to the referee to pull me off," the champion said.

Duff said his fighter seemed "possessed" by the the will to defend his titles. Honeyghan went to the United States for seven weeks to train, sparring with IBF middleweight champion Buster Drayton. "I did the right thing by training in America," Honeyghan said. "You should have seen some of the hills I ran up. And you cannot get that kind of sparring in the U.K. Bumphus, a tall lefthander with a reputation as a cagey boxer, never had time to settle.

From the first bell, Honeyghan launched a whirlwind of attacks and floored the challenger with a minute left of the the first round. Referee Sam Williams of Detroit ruled that a second knockdown, at the start of the second

Softball meeting slated tonight

There will be an important Big Spring Softball Association Meeting at 7 tonight at the Highland Lanes meeting room.

Bill Bailey, the president of the association, said the meeting has two purposes. He requests that anyone who wants to get a league started — be it men's, women's, fast pitch, slow pitch, church or otherwise — to come to the meeting and begin getting organized.

In addition, Bailey is trying to get area softball players to help sell tickets to the Willie Nelson concert. Because of the summer flooding, money that would have otherwise been spent on renovating softball facilities is instead being used to repair the damage.

HOUSTON (P) - Veteran Houston Astros outfielder Jose Cruz is the subject of trade talk between the Astros and Minnesota Twins, according to the Houston Post

The newspaper reported today that Cruz, who holds several career Houston batting marks, is being sought by the Twins, who are in the market for a right fielder or designated hitter.

Cruz, 39 and a career .295 hitter, is entering the final year of a contract that pays him about $755,000 a year.

Astros Manager Hal Lanier has said his starting left fielder will come from among Cruz, Terry Puhl and Ty Gainey

By The Associated Press The Philadelphia 76ers wanted to make sure Earvin 'Magic' Johnson did not beat them. He didn't.

But James Worthy and the Los Angeles Lakers did.

'We have more than one threat," Worthy said after making a running one-hander with three seconds left in overtime Sunday, giving the Lakers a 112-100 NBA victory over Philadelphia.

Johnson's layup with 1:16 remaining in overtime put Los Angeles ahead 110-108, and after Philadelphia's Tim McCormick tied it from close range with six seconds left, the Lakers called timeout.

Worthy took the ball on a set play, drove the middle and made his 10-foot shot. The Sixers had a final chance, but Charles Barkley kicked the ball out of bounds while driving to the basket as time expired.

"If I had drawn attention, I would have passed off," said Worthy, who scored 24 points.

"If Worthy is going to take a running one-hander, that's the kind of shot you would like him to take," Philadelphia Coach Matt Guokas said.

Philadelphia took a 103-102 lead on two free throws by Barkley with one minute left in regulation. A jumper by Johnson, who finished with 16 points and 18 assists, put Los Angeles ahead 104-103 with 15 seconds left.

Barkley was fouled six seconds later, but missed a free throw before making the second to send the game into overtime.

The Sixers led 52-46 at halftime and held their largest lead at 61-50 with 9:29 left in the third period.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar added 18 points for the Lakers. Barkley scored 29 points and Andrew Toney 26 for Philadelphia, which had won three straight. Trail Blazers 124, Bucks 129

Clyde Drexler scored 29 points and Terry Porter's three-point play with 47 seconds left put Portland ahead for good against Milwaukee, ending the Bucks' seven-game winning streak.

Porter's play gave the host Trail Blazers a 121-120 lead and Drexler added two foul shots with 11 seconds left. Porter finished with 24 points and 17 assists.

Bulls 102, Cavaliers 98 Michael Jordan scored 43 oints and Dave Corzine made a tiebreaking jump shot with 47 seconds remaining as Chicago sent Cleveland to its 14th straight road loss his career-high 25 points in the second quarter and Indiana wiped out a 19-point deficit to beat visiting Sacramento.

Carlton off to good start

By The Associated Press Steve Carlton's comeback try with the Philadelphia Phillies is off to a good start. "His old slider seems to be back," Phillies pitching coach Claude Osteen said Sunday after watching Carlton and 16 other pitchers at spring training in Clearwater, Fla. "It looks entirely different from what I saw last year.'

"He's throwing the ball better. ... He's got a good chance to get a lot of people out," Osteen said.

Carlton, a four-time Cy Young winner, is with the Phillies as an unsigned, non-roster player. The lefthander, 42, was released by Philadelphia last season, and pitched for San Francisco and the Chicago White Sox later in the year, finishing with a combined 9-14 record.

Around The Camps

The Cleveland Indians' pitchers and catchers are scheduled to start spring training today, and there is plenty of optimism — predicated on the team's pit ching staff.

"It's important we pick up where we left off last year, and obviously, pitching will be the key,' General Manager Joe Klein said.

The Indians showed an improvement of 24 games last season, finishing at 84-78, the club's best record since 1968. Cleveland was fifth in the American League East, 1112 games behind first-place Boston, and it was the closest the Tribe has been to the top since 1959.

The Indians led the major leagues in runs scored last season, but their earned run average of 4.58 was third-worst in baseball. In the off-season, they signed free-agent relievers Dennis Lamp and Ed Vande Knuckleballer Joe Niekro, after missing the New York Yankees' first two workouts, reported to camp on Sunday and immediately began receiving treatment for a strained lower back.

Niekro, 42, was hurt Jan. 27 when he was picking up wood at his home.

Three weeks from now, if I'm still sitting here. I'll have to start wondering about it," the 19-year veteran said. "But I don't think it will be that long." Manager Lou Piniella expects the right-hander to be able to join workouts late next week.

"He's very important," Piniella said. "He's a veteran-type pitcher who's been a winner. We're counting on him. We don't want to rush him, that's the big thing.

Orangemen, 72-71

By The Associated Press For the second time this season, Perry McDonald was the Orange crusher.

The Georgetown forward scored a career-high 26 points Sunday to lead the No. 8 Hoyas to a 72-71 Big East Conference victory over No. 11 Syracuse before a record crowd of 32.602 at the Carrier Dome.

McDonald's previoushigh of 23 points came against the Orangemen on Jan. 31, when he made the game-winning basket in an 83-81 overtime victory.

'The combination of free throws and Perry McDonald did us in," Syracuse guard Sherman Douglas said after Sunday's game. The Orangemen missed 18 of 34 foul shots during the contest.

Georgetown needed McDonald's scoring because Hoya senior star Reggie Williams had a poor shooting day and finished with only 12 points. McDonald, a 6-foot-4 junior, was able to get inside and score against a Syracuse front line led by 6-11 center Rony Seikaly and 6-9 forward Derrick Coleman.

"My competitiveness allows me to be able to play against them,' McDonald said. "I like to go right at them and get them into foul trouble. Then they have to go to the bench."

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Contact those who have the information or articles that you want and get them with ease. GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study those practical affairs that mean so much to your mate. Be inspired and work into the night MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You know how to gain the cooperation of employees for the projects you have in mind.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Now that you are caught up with your work you can get your surroundings improved considerably. VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan how to get more pleasure from the amusements you regularly include in.

pearance and make a better impression on others. They can do big favors for you now. AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Forget the social for now and get down to serious business. Do something thoughtful for your mate. PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get in touch with your staunchest friend and gain the assistance you need to gain your personal wishes.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one of those delightful young persons who can plan virtually anything of a practical genre, so teach this one to smile more when dealing with other persons and your progeny will be a true winner. The charm here will be part of this child's great success.

Illiteracy among migrants shows some progress a trait passed through generations of migrant farm workers. Many become economic migrants stuck in a cycle of poverty; as families move from harvest to harvest, the children move from school to school, taking with them little of what they learn. This is another in an intermittent series of stories exploring illiteracy in America.

By SCOTT McCARTNEY

Associated Press Writer PHARR (AP) - Each year, Gerardo Gamez enrolls in school a month or more late. Each year, he leaves early to help his family harvest sugar beets in Oregon. Six older brothers dropped out of school, and when he takes home his report card, his parents can't read

With all that going against him, young Gerardo will graduate from high school this spring — even though he'll be back in Oregon by graduation day. Gamez will be the first in his family to get a diploma, the first to break the cycle of illiteracy that has crippled migrant workers for generations.

'My mom was determined to not have me be a migrant laborer." the 17-year-old senior at the Pharr-San Juan-Alamo High School said. 'That's what I want to get away from.

For decades, migrant laborers have been among the most illiterate people in the United States, experts say, and their children were destined to the same lowpaying, back-breaking work because they traveled from school to school, missing classes, losing credits, never advancing, seldom learning.

In Mexico, the term for illiteracy is "analfabetismo," which literally means "no alphabet." For migrant laborers in America, it might as well mean "no chance" - no chance for a steady job, no chance for a better life.

Yet this school year, the 20th of federally funded migrant education programs in southern Texas, educators armed with a battery of special programs, tracking computers and classroom aides are seeing some slim signs of progress.

"It's safe to say this is the first generation to break the cycle," said Jesus Vela Jr., program coordinator for the Texas Migrant Interstate Program.

In 1973, 75 percent of all migrants dropped out of school, and only 3 percent went to college, Vela said. Unable to read or write, most returned to the fields. Now, 25 percent make it to college or technical school, he said.

As recently as 1980, less than 30 percent of the migrant students in the Pharr-San Juan-Alamo school district finished high school. By 1983, more than 55 percent were graduating.

Still, the problem remains enor-

EDITOR'S NOTE — Illiteracy is rate for Texas' 94,000 migrant students is about 50 percent, 30 percentage points lower than the graduation rate for all state students, according to the Texas Education Agency.

Reading levels and test scores for migrants fall short of those for other students, and some who do graduate are functionally illiterate unable to read an Englishlanguage newspaper or fill out a job application, educators say.

It all boils down to movement. Migrant students spend less time in class. They're always trying to make up work, regain last semester's credits, catch up to classmates.

'We go to Minnesota before school is over, then we go to Ohio after school there has already started," explained 16-year-old Josie Beltran. "I do the same stuff sometime, and Ohio doesn't send a grade here because I'm not there long enough, so I have to make that Josie, a junior, is a solid B student, and an exception.

Those that migrate two and three times a year from their home base have a dropout rate of 90 percent, said Pharr-San Juan-Alamo High School principal Felipe Alanis, a former migrant child himself who spent six recent summers in Idaho and Michigan, living in labor camps and helping local schools cope with the influx.

"If the migrant student settles in and stops moving, it's not a pro-blem — it's erased. For the current migrant, it's drastic," Alanis said. Southern Texas sees much of the migrant population because it's home base to many families, offering winter work in citrus groves. Nationally, the Migrant Student Record Transfer System, based in Little Rock, Ark., counts 750,000 students in migrant programs scattered at any given time across all states but Hawaii.

But director Joe Miller says that may be only half the migrant student population. "They're not counted because there's not the money to serve them all," he said. The Department of Education's annual budget for migrant programs is about $260 million.

Gerardo Gamez, left, a senior at the Pharr High School poses with Phillipe Alanis, principal at the Pharr, San Juan and Alamo high schools. Each year, Gamez enrolls in school a month or so late and then leaves early to help his family harvest sugar beets in Oregon. Six older classroom has a teacher's aide. Students meet with tutors and special counselors who keep track of tests and grades and chase down credits from other states.

The strategy marks a philosophical shift of sorts for educators, who a decade ago commonly placed migrants in afterschool sessions and holiday classes. The result was to make school an even greater burden.

"Frankly, that did not work very well," said Ramon Billescas Jr., director of migrant programs for

In some school districts, night classes in reading and writing are held for parents, and school buses pick up parents for required sessions with counselors. In the PSJA district, bimonthly parental education meetings for migrants offer sessions on everything from nutrition to financial planning to communicating with teen-agers.

"A lot of our work is with the parents. By teaching the parents to read and write, we are helping the child," said Irma Gonzalez, directhe PSJA school district. "Students tor of federal programs for "People don't realize how good migrant programs are," said Norma Cantu, an attorney with the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, who has pursued equal education lawsuits. The kids actually have a very coherent, systematic process.'

But cutbacks in federal funds, as well as new requirements tied to education reforms in Texas and other states, threaten that progress, educators say.

school, and all field trips for migrant students have been cut out," she said. In Texas, general education reforms have created more problems for migrant students. Core credit requirements were raised, and exit tests are given at times when many students are on the

There are other peculiar quirks to the system. Band practice starts two weeks before school opens, so most migrants are ineligible. State football rules say any player not on the team by the fourth day of school has to sit out 30 days. Teachers say popular classes such as driver's education, photography, typing and bookkeeping are often filled by the time many migrants arrive.

In a humid, windowless temporary trailer of a classroom, the front lines of one of the nation's toughest education battles, a 10th grader named Flora reads aloud:

"Colin looked at me with growing ves. Uh. glowing eves? stumbling through the words. "He disagrees he learned," she says, only to be corrected, "By degrees he learned." One student doodles,

"They don't want to work in the fields the rest of their life," said Linda Taormina, a Weslaco High School migrant counselor. "I have yet to find one that wants to leave school and work in the fields. They want out of that system."

"This is a business concept," Lewis said. "We're here to have a first-class, Cadillac operation, where we have something to give to the people, as far as a controlled environment. We stress safety first, (teaching) people how to control and handle handguns."

Shooter's Palace even has a chain-operated, clanking shooting gallery built in Brooklyn, N.Y. for use at Coney Island in 1927. For a buck, you can plug away with smallpowered slugs at the moving birds, bullseyes, bears and other

You also can shoot on the supervised pistol range for $7.50 an hour, and on the rifle range for $7.50 a half-hour.

There also is a computerized shooting gallery where law enforcement officers, security guards and others can practice reacting quickly to good-guy, bad-guy target situations.

"That's a new concept," Lewis said. "No one has anything like that. We will be contracting with private security people, maybe some sheriffs' departments or police departments.'

Lewis had hoped the shop would be in the black within nine or 10 months. But he admits the economic downturn that is plaguing the state's budget is also giving his business partners white knuckles.

"I'm hoping on a good economy in Texas," he said.

The mystery of insider trading scandal

By CHET CURRIER AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Amid all the whos, whats and whens of Wall Street's insider trading scandal, the most puzzling question may be why. Why, as so many people are alleged to have done, would anyone cheat in a game he could win, and win big, playing strictly by the rules? Given the promise of a long, lucrative career, wouldn't anybody who had gained a place in the rarefied world of investment banking take pains not to jeopardize that position? Above all else, Wall Streeters are supposed to be clever at weighing risk against reward, at taking calculated chances but shunning reckless gambles.

Yet, according to accusations by government investigators, some of the industry's most successful and respected individuals staked everything they had going for them against a perilous possibility — the chance that they might get caught.

For supertrader Ivan Boesky, the cost of losing such a bet included paying $100 million in penalties, agreeing to plead guilty to an unspecified charge, and being barred from the securities industry for life.

For mergers-and-acquisitions star Martin Siegel, it meant guilty pleas to felony counts of conspiracy and tax evasion, for which he could go to prison, and a similar expulsion from the Obviously, there is no simple, blanket answer to this riddle. Those charged and those who have pleaded guilty aren't offering any public explanations at the moment, and no one else can know their various motivations. Yet as the scandal has widened, some observers see some common themes that link individual cases: To the ordinary citizen, a dealmaker or trader who takes home $200,000, $500,000, $1 million or more a year might seem successful enough to satisfy anyone. But people in the securities industry say it doesn't always work

"For some people there never seems to be enough money," said Raymond F. DeVoe Jr. at the firm of Legg Mason Wood Walker Inc., a veteran of the business

"But it's not just a question of money, DeVoe said. "They get hooked on power and prestige. They revel in the adoration they get.' Some old hands in the industry compare the generation of young investment bankers that has arrived on the Street in the 1980s to professional athletes, with the amounts of money they can make and the style in which they can live. To generalize about this group, like any other, would be unfair. But along with its outsized rewards, investment banking offers some special problems and temptations.

As DeVoe put it: "Wall Street has a way of insulating people from reality.

In the eyes of some observers, the scandal is symptomatic of the current ull market atmosphere, and of the sky's-the-limit mentality generates. But as the top executive of one investment
