Willie's no stranger in Big Spring

By CARLEEN EVERETT Lifestyle Editor

Nearly 4,000 West Texans in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum made it official: Saturday was Willie Nelson Day in Big Spring.

The crowd screamed and whistled as the self-assured legend, wellworn guitar in hand, walked to the front of the stage.

"Whiskey River Take My Mind" was the first phrase he put to music.

He doesn't claim full credit for his label as a legend — he believes 'good press' has helped. "Plus, I've lived a long time," he said with a smile during his preperformance press conference.

He played several favorites, including "Hello There," "Crazy." and "Night Life (Ain't No Good Life)," before introducing the members of his band.

Other selections he played were "If You've Got the Money, I've Got the Time," "Blue Eyes Cryin' in the Rain," "Blue Skies," "Georgia," "Momma Don't Let Your Babies Grow Up To Be Cowboys," "On The Road Again," and "You Were Always On My Willie's down-to-earth style and personal touch were obvious throughout the show, as he responded to individuals in the audience and threw several colorful bandanas to the crowd.

The appreciative fans reciprocated by showering him with hats and bandanas, which he wore during his performance. Playing benefit performances has become a habit for Willie His decisions on such matters likes the idea, then he does it. "A couple of friends of mine came to see me in Vegas and asked me to come to Big Spring," he said, adding that he considers the park project "a wonderful idea."

Willie is no red-headed stranger to Big Spring.

He was once an automobile salesman here, he explained, and played nightclubs in Midland and Although Willie usually performs before much larger crowds than he entertained Saturday night, he said the size doesn't matter.

"I enjoy playing in a place with a couple of dozen people.

Willie saw particular value in his visit to Big Spring, especially during difficult economic times. When asked what he believes his music has to offer society, his response was simple and direct.

"I think music is good medicine, it always has been.

The decision to become a musician was an easy one for Willie: "I hate to work and love to play the guitar. Besides, I hear all the girls like guitar players," he said, with a Renowned performer Willie Nelson belts out a tune during Saturday's night Comanche Trail benefit concert in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Willie's performance was punctuated by an exchange of bandanas and head gear between the audience and the popular performer. The concert drew between 3,800 to 4,000 persons and raised approximately $30,000 for the renovation of Comanche Trail Park facilities, said City Councilman Johnny Rutherford who helped to bring Nelson to Big Spring.

Big Spring's use of federal prison labor for community service projects drew accolades from a state official and a renowned performer Saturday night.

State Attorney General Jim Mattox and renowned performer Willie Nelson spoke highly of prison inmates assisting communities such as Big Spring.

"I think it's a wonderful idea. I hope it spreads throughout the world," Nelson said. His remarks came shortly before he took the stage for a benefit performance in Big Spring to raise money for the current Comanche Trail Park renovation project.

Mattox, who said he is an ardent Willie Nelson fan, praised the performer for donating his time to raise 'seed money' for the park restoration projection.

Nelson agreed to waive his usual fee for the performance, to help raise money for the restoration project, with only expenses of his crew to come from ticket sales

City Councilman Johnny Rutherford projected a net income of $30,000 from the concert and said ticket-sales ranged from 3,800 to 4,000.

Nelson was first approached with the idea to perform a Big Spring benefit concert when his nephew, Freddie Fletcher, spoke to him about it in Las Vegas last December, Nelson said.

Although disappointed the net income fell short of a $100,000 projected goal, Rutherford said it could be "a sign of the economic times." which has recently battered West Texas.

Mattox arrived in Big Spring late Saturday afternoon and toured Comanche Trail Park and Big Spring's Federal Prison Camp.

He was accompanied by Rutherford and Prison Camp Warden Anthony Belaski.

Mattox said federal prison camp labor provided to the Big Spring community serves as a "good pilot project," with a number of possible applications on the state prison level. When asked if state prison inmates could be incorporated into community labor programs, Mattox said the state has already begun initiating such He said the Legislature approved last year of assigning state inmates to construct non-federal highways and undertake bridge repair activities. "We'd like to get (inmates) on a volunteer basis to

Mattox said there was a "strong likelihood" a smaller facility could be located in West Texas. A purpose of Saturday's tour of Big Spring's Federal Prison Camp was to view the camp's facilities, Mattox said. He said the state has the option to be given federally donated lands to build or locate state correctional institutes, but said the possibility of Big Spring housing a state correctional institute was not discussed.

Proposal spells serious impact on schools

By EDDIE CURRAN Staff Writer

A 17 percent reduction in state aid to school districts, under consideration by the Legislative Budget Board, could be disastrous for education in Texas the three Howard County superintendents said late

One went so far as to describe it as "a sneaky deal."

Most local school districts pay 33.3 percent of their expenses, and the state pays the rest, according to Texas Association of Community Schools. The proposed change would increase the local district's responsibility to

Big Spring and Coahoma schools would feel a serious impact on their systems, the superintendents said. Forsan, however, is a 'budget balanced" school, and Superintendent J.F. Poynor said a reduction "would not have much impact on us."

The damage to Coahoma would be serious, said Superintendent Jerry Doyle. He explained that the 17 percent decrease in state funds translates to approximately $470,000

"Back in November, using oil prices at that time, we were looking at a $1.90 to $1.95 tax rate. With the little rebound in oil prices in late December, that gave us a little relief rate in the fall.

'And what this does, were it to pass, would send us right back to that $1.90 level we thought we'd avoided," he said. This year, Coahoma's tax was $1.32 per $100,000 property valuation, Doyle said.

Big Spring Superintendent Lynn Hise call-to where we could look at $1.70 to $1.75 tax ed the situation a "Catch-22." He said the reforms, and is now considering making the local districts pay the price.

> "Big Spring is in the bottom 25 percent, and anything they do that affects our state funding is not going to be good for this school district or any other," Hise said.

The 17 percent reduction has been proposstate mandated expensive education ed in three options. The Legislative Budget Office presented information to the House Public Education Committee on Feb. 24 that outlines the options for reductions.

Option one would simply increase the local fund assignment from 33.3 percent to 48.8

Option two would eliminate: funding for vocational education, compensatory education, bilingual education and gifted and talented education; funding for the funding improvement and career ladder allotment; and funding for the experienced teacher allotment. Option three would eliminate: the price differential index; the small district adjustment; vocational education; funding for the experienced teacher allotment; and it would reduce the education improvement and career ladder allotment. Doyle said the state would save approximately the same amount of money by each of the three options. Hise said the 17 percent reduction proposal would occur if the budget proposed by House Speaker Gib Lewis is accepted. According to Hise, Gov. Bill Clements supports a $26 billion budget, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby supports a $29 billion budget, and Lewis wants a $23.2

Injuries in two accidents

Lee Ambulance paramedics responded to two separate automobile accidents in Big Spring Friday and transported victims to Scenic Mountain Medical Center's emergency room.

A 34-year-old Big Spring woman was reported in good condition Saturday night at the hospital after she was admitted from the emergency room, a hospital spokewoman said.

Susan Morris Casey, 34, 1706 Purdue Ave., suffered injuries when a car she was driving collided with a pickup driven by Max Odell Roberts, 66, Route Three Box 283.

Roberts' vehicle was northbound in the 900 block of South Goliad Street before he attempted to turn west on East Ninth Street, according to the police report.

Casey was traveling southbound on Goliad and collided with Roberts as he was attempting to turn onto Ninth Street

Roberts was cited with failure to yield right-of-way to approaching traffic. The accident occurred at 4:25 p.m., according to the police report.

Bostick was westbound in the 200 block of West Third Street, according to the police report.

After Dominguez's car struck Bostick's pickup, the car veered left and collided with a car driven by David Ray Gonzales, 16, 807 W. 18th St. who was traveling south on Gregg street.

Witnesses indicated a driver involved in the accident ran a red light, but no citations of that nature were issued by police.

Bostick was cited for failure to maintain financial responsibility, while Gonzales was cited for allowing an unlicensed driver to drive.

Attorney General Jim Mattox, left, and City Councilman Johnny Rutherford speak to media representatives shortly before Willie Nelson performed a Comanche Trail Park benefit concert. Both Mattox and Rutherford toured Comanche Trail Park and Big Spring's Federal Prison Camp Saturday afternoon. An intense low-pressure system centered over Kansas continued to produce gusty winds across much of Texas Saturday, but except for South Texas, skies were mostly fair.

West Texas should be increasingly cloudy through Monday with scattered showers. Overnight lows should be in the 30s and 40s, with highs ranging from the 60s in the north to the low 80s along the Rio Grande.

NEW ORLEANS — A husband and wife who make up a top-rated news anchor team are getting a divorce but say they will stay together on the air.

Garland Robinette and Angela Hill, who appear on the WWL-TV's 6 p.m. and 10 p.m. news shows and marked their ninth wedding anniversary Wednesday, said they expect to file Monday for a no-fault divorce, but will not discuss the split on the air.

U.S. airlift saves Soviets

POMONA, N.J. — A Soviet freighter carrying flour to Cuba rolled onto its side in rough seas 200 miles off the New Jersey coast Saturday, and the Coast Guard airlifted all 37 sailors aboard to safety, a spokesman said.

None of the crew on the 482-foot Komsomolets Kirgizii was reported injured, Coast Guard Petty Officer James Graham said from New York City.

Two helicopters carrying at least some of the sailors landed shortly after 2:30 p.m. at the Federal Aviation Administration Technical Center in Pomona. The sailors, carrying life preservers, were led into a hangar nearby.

Graham said an automatic distress cry was received at the Coast Guard station in Cape May, N.J., from the listing ship, which was 210 miles out in the Atlantic Ocean.

Goetz trial next on tap

NEW YORK — The end of reputed mobster John Gotti's seven-month Mafia trial clears the way for the beginning of subway gunman Bernhard Goetz's trial by freeing Goetz's Lawyer Barry I. Slotnick, who represents Goetz, also handled Gotti co-defendant John Carneglia. Gotti, reputed boss of the nation's largest Mafia family, and his six codefendants were acquitted Friday of racketeering and conspiracy charges.

Slotnick's commitment to the Gotti case repeatedly delayed Goetz's trial, which was expected to begin last fall. Goetz is charged with attempted murder and assault in the shooting of four teen-agers he accused of trying to rob him on a subway train on Dec. 22, 1984. Goetz is white and the four youths are black.

Mrs. Diane Olton mourns over her son's casket at a funeral in Paramus, N.J. on Saturday. Thomas Olton was one of the four teen-agers involved in a suicide pact in Bergenfield, N.J. Wednesday.

Suicides

Teen-agers' services conducted

By JULIA DOLAN Associated Press Writer

BERGENFIELD, N.J. (AP) - Funeral services were held Saturday for three of four teen-agers who died in a suicide pact, as a priest told grieving friends and relatives at one Mass that "Jesus is the way to peace, happiness and love. Suicide is not.'

The four had requested in a suicide note that they be buried together, but the families arranged separate

About 200 people crowded into a church in Oradell to mourn Lisa and Cheryl Burress, ages 17 and 18, who were found dead Wednesday along with Thomas Olton and Thomas Rizzo, both 19, of carbon monoxide poisoning in an idling car in a garage. A Mass also was held Saturday for Olton, and a service was planned Monday

In Oradell, at an hourlong Mass at St. Joseph's Church, the Rev. Thomas Iwanowski said that to think suicide is the answer "is to believe in a lie." He said that if the sisters could talk to loved ones now, "they would tell us, 'Choose life.'

Following the service, Linda and David Burress watched as their daughters were buried at the Flower Hill Cemetery in nearby North Bergen.

On Thursday, two young women were found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning in a garage in Alsip, Ill., and authorities in that state said news of the New Jersey suicides may have given the women the impetus to kill themselves

At the 11/2 hour Mass for Olton at the Church of Ascension in New Milford, the boy's uncle and godfather, Richard Olton, described the young man as "our fresh

"He was to carry out our dreams for the future," Olton said. "I wonder if we expected too much. Thinking only of ourselves, we passed down unwanted burdens.

He said news reports portrayed the victims as unloved, but that on Friday night many friends and family members joined together to share their love and grief. As people left the church, Thomas Olton's mother, Diane, rubbed her son's silver coffin and sobbed. Friends, many of them dressed in leather and denim jackets, stared blankly as they sat in the wooden pews during the Mass, celebrated by the Rev. Thomas E. Davis. Some shouted profanities at reporters assembled outside the church. One mourner collapsed while leaving the church. As the funeral procession left for the burial at George was taken away by ambulance. During both services, priests discussed the search for peace and the value of forgiving.

'We sometimes choose drugs and alcohol because they seem to offer us a way out of the pain, the shyness or the meaninglessness we may feel in our lives,' Iwanowski said. "But in the end, they only make (our lives) worse.'

"And sometimes in our search for peace and happiness in life, we choose the most destructive behavior of all, we choose suicide," he said.

In the beholder's eyes

PARIS - Europeans think Italian men and French women are the most seductive in the world, but Americans mostly have eyes for other Americans, according to poll results published Saturday.

A survey published in Madame Figaro magazine shows that Europeans rank Italian, French and Spanish men, in that order, as the world's best seducers and French, then Italian, then Swedish women as the most seductive.

Americans disagree, ranking themselves far and away the most alluring for each sex, the poll shows.

The survey of France, Belgium, West Germany, Italy, Norway, Belgium and the United States was carried out by TMO Consultants in the summer of 1986, the magazine said.

Thirty-five percent of the 5,911 European men and women polled consider Italian men the best seducers, followed by 28 percent for French men and 16 percent for Spanish men.

Collision saves man

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — A man choking to death was saved when the ambulance he was in collided with a car, the Aftonbladet newspaper reported Saturday.

It happened on Friday the 13th.

The 30 year-old Swede, whose name was withheld, was lunching in a restaurant in downtown Norrkoping, 80 miles southwest of this capital, when a piece of steak stuck in his throat

When we arrived he was lying on the restaurant floor, his face blue," the paper quoted ambulance driver Lennart Jelke as

Jelke said the man was dying as the ambulance rushed toward the nearest hospital. A few hundred yards from the hospital, the ambulance collided with another car.

Nakasone rating is low

TOKYO — A newspaper survey published today indicates support for Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone has plummeted to 25 percent amid increasing criticism of his proposed new sales tax and more defense spending.

The survey by the nationwide daily Asahi Shimbun said the number of people who back Nakasone, leader of the long-ruling Liberal Democrats, fell from 39 percent of those surveyed in December to 25 percent in March. That was the lowest point since Nakasone became prime minister in November 1982.

The newspaper, which has conducted 22 public opinion polls since Nakasone took office, attributed the sharp decline in his popularity to opposition to his proposed tax package and a planned increase in the government's defense spending in the budget for fiscal 1987, beginning in April.

Time to curtail use of steroids

We believe that steroid use is a problem, and that their use should be limited to only those occasions when they are prescribed by a doctor.

But in attacking the problem, it's necessary first to understand it. And to understand, we must know why users take

It's important to note that most steroid users are athletes, who take the drugs to get bigger and stronger. Local weight lifters claimed they must take steroids to compete successfully.

We also suspect that steroids use is widespread among collegiate and professional football players who consider steroids necessary to their success. Consequently, we're particularly concerned that high school athletes may think it's necessary for them to us steroids to achieve college and perhaps professional status.

Although we denounce all athletic uses of steroids, and think they should be outlawed, we also understand why they have been used.

What would you do if there was a drug that might help you excel in either your profession or hobby? A drug that might help you become more competitive, earn more money or receive more recognition?

Imagine you're an accountant and your fellow accountants are taking a drug that enhances their abilities. These accountants find new ways to manipulate numbers, and you worry that your clients will leave you for them.

What would you do? Would you take the drug even though it has potentially dangerous and long-term side effects?

That is the dilemma facing steroid users — some of whom say they would never take recreational drugs.

We believe, then, that the only way to curtail steroids abuse is to outlaw users from athletic competition — and to enforce that action.

Otherwise, as long as users believe the drugs improve their chances of success, and as long as they believe they can get away with using steroids, they will continue to do so.

Enforcement through frequent testing of competitors and players then becomes important, and the body building, weightlifting, football and collegiate organizations must take Steroid users themselves said that use of the drugs by anybody other than weight lifters is stupid. And we thought the same of that statement.

How often have we heard substance abusers admit that what they were doing was bad, then claim, "But I can handle

We believe the Herald's series on steroids this past week has made it obvious that the drugs pose many threats to body organs, appearance and temperament.

Particularly disturbing is our lack of knowledge about potential damages later in life. Because steroids use is relatively new, we don't have all the answers.

But we would be against steroids even if they did not pose a physical threat — because we think they are wrong ethically.

Success should come from hard work — by practicing and fine-tuning of skills — not from out of a bottle or a needle.

Finally, we're concerned about the message that steroid users send to our youth.

Doesn't it tell our youth that winning is all that's important? Doesn't it tell them that they should do whatever it takes to win, whatever the costs?

Isn't that the strongest argument for outlawing steroids

The phone calls were very much alike. In each case the caller said we could have an interesting story if we interviewed the the 87-yearold cancer victim, the 93-year-old man or the 89-year-old lady

Each caller also remarked how interesting the elderly person's life was, how giving or helpful they were throughout that life, the troubles that person had seen and the difficulties overcome.

And in each case, the caller was suggesting that we do a feature story because the elderly person was about to celebrate his or her birthday and, because of the age, he or she might not live until next In one case, I was told the lady suffered through several cancer operations and recently was the victim of a burglar who took her television and several of her prized possessions. In another, I was told the man was a diabetes victim who had many interesting stories to tell on the eve of his birthday. And the third caller recounted similar circumstances about troubles overcome

In each case, I advised that we would be happy to announce a birthday party or open house if one was being planned for friends and relatives

I also said that we could print an item afterward, telling how many people attended the party, the oldest and youngest there, and who traveled the farthest distance.

But with each of the calls, I faced the same all-important questions:

Berky's babblings

Is there something new or unusual about this situation? If we do a feature story this time, can we give similar treatment for all persons in similar circumstances?

Fair or similar treatment to all is an important concept in newspaper similar circumstances and work. We tend to take the position that if we can't do something similar for all, then we shouldn't be doing it for one. It would have been nice, of course, if we could have done a feature story in each case. Unfortunately, there wasn't that much unusual in any of them. These days, it isn't that unusual for someone to live to be 87, 89 or 93.

None of the circumstances outlined were that unusual, and I didn't hear one different idea or 'news peg" on which to base a feature story

It just isn't that unsual for the elderly to suffer from various ailments, to be known for their generosity, or to be the target of the Herald.

Statistics indicate that we have about 4,500 people age 65 or older in Howard County. A bit of arithmetic reveals we easily could be doing 60 to 85 elderly birthday features each week if we treated all the same

What would really be different is a person who lived that long without suffering difficult times, heartaches or some unusual experiences to talk about. But I know that I have not yet met anyone of retirement age who doesn't have many interesting stories to tell.

One of the callers was Dr. Burl M. Graham 3rd, the new chaplain at the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp, who later reported that our conversation set his mind to thinking

If there are that many elderly residents in the community, facing cerns, he concluded that perhaps there's a need for a special ministry to the elderly.

In his letter to the editor, published Friday, he reported that the initial meeting on forming a Task Force on Ministry to the Aging was conducted Sunday evening March 8. And he promised to keep us informed on further developments.

We wish good luck to him and the program. Meanwhile, we still hope to develop feature stories about unusual events in the lives of the elderly, but we can't use the occasion of their birthday as the news

Texas enters new phase

By JESSE TREVINO Texas is entering yet another phase in its political development, and the recent abrupt death of a proposed English-only amendment s more evidence of this new day. For some time, pundits have been writing that the change Texas has undergone during the last 20 years has been nothing short of dizzving. But the milestone achieved less than two weeks ago when Hispanic members of the House of Representatives combined with other supporters to kill the Englishonly amendment was a new wrinkle in state politics.

As with the election of Supreme Court Judge Raul Gonzalez and the superb race run by Roy Barrera for attorney general, Hispanics are making their presence felt.

The triumph over the Englishonly measure was especially important because the victory was in an arena of politics in which Hispanics have seen too few victories

With only 18 of 150 members of the House, State Rep. Al Luna of Houston corralled enough commitments to kill the amendment. Were a vote ever to come, Luna would have needed 51 votes to prevent the measure from receiving the two-thirds vote required by the Constitution to send it on to the Texas voters

But the vote may never come because Luna called a press conference and convincingly declared, in a gut-check vote, that he has 61 votes to stop the measure from leaving the House.

The key to Luna's apparent achievement lies in the political lineup of the House itself and the prevailing political atmosphere surrounding Gov. Bill Clements. Clements, who ordinarily would have proven a vociferous supporter of the amendment, is now apparently wounded by the unraveling scandal at Southern Methodist University. He now is unwilling to expend precious politicial capital on such a highly visible but nononsense measure as this when he has a severe budget fight on his

With that, the ground underneath the amendment - sponsored by Rep. L.P. Patterson of Bankston and the Texas Republican Executive Committee - seemed soft.

And soft, in fact, it was especially if one takes a moment to look at some of the other representatives who would have been by Luna's side on a rollcall.

An analysis of the districts of many current Democratic — as well as one or two Republican — incumbents suggests that more than one of Luna's supporters are looking at their changing composition.

As many as 47 members of the House represent districts that have significant Hispanic populations. Many of these Democrats have won office against Republican opponents only mariginally. Still others, who represent districts in which Hispancis form the majority, could be easy targets for Hispanic candidates.

It wouldn't take much to encourage young Hispanic county commissioners and city council members to take the plunge against an officeholder. What a rallying cry the Hispanic candidate would have if the incumbent had voted for the English-only amendment.

In any event, no one wants a recorded vote on this issue, and so it will probably, as Luna said, not even come to a vote.

Interestingly enough, the leverage Hispanics exerted on this issue has much to do with the critical mass Republicans themselves have achieved in the House. Their recent gains destabilize the structure of the Legislature to such an extent that they set the stage for the kind of politics Luna masterminded last

It is this kind of influence beyond the level of politics ordained by simple arithmetic — that felt as the session continues.

Judge skirts law on use of limousine

By JACK ANDERSON

and JOSEPH SPEAR WASHINGTON - Everyone remembers the kid who insisted that the sandlot game be played according to his rules — because he owned the ball. Now Chief Justice William Rehnquist has worked a grown-up version of this childish Rehnquist has written a legal opinion exempting himself from a law he was violating. And who can challenge an opinion of the nation's top jurist?

Here's the story of this latter-day Judge Roy Bean:

Last November, we reported that Rehnquist appeared to violate a new congressional restriction on the use of government limousines. Congress passed a law limiting the limousine set to a small, select list of top officials - and Supreme Court justices were conspicuously absent from the VIPs list

Yet Rehnquist continued to have a government chauffeur drive him to and from work each day, ignoring the congressional ban

As we reported at the time, Congress provided one loophole for officials who felt the need of limo service: On grounds of security, an official could get an exemption. Someone who had received a death threat, for example, could qualify. However, the law required that anyone seeking to use the limousine loophole must certify in writing that "highly unusual circumstances present a clear and present danger" to the official, and must give Congress explicit details.

But Rehnquist hasn't done that In fact, he barely made a stab at justifying his continued use of a limousine on grounds of security. As chief justice, he simply interpreted the law to suit himself

Sources who have seen the legal opinion filed by Rehnquist told us it makes these two points: First, it avers that Rehnquist needs a chasuffeur-driven limo so he can read the newspaper, converse on his car telephone and catch up on his homework while commuting between the Supreme Court and his Second, the opinion simply asserts that Rehnquist needs the limo service for seurity reasons, claiming that the chief justice has received death threats in the past. But it does not provide any specifics, as the law requires.

So the chief justice of the United States still appears to be violating the law, and there doesn't seem to be much anyone can do about it.

The question now is: If another limo-loving official, inspired by Rehnquist's example, challenges the law, is prosecuted and fights it all the way to the Supreme Court, will Rehnquist excuse himself from the decision?

Maybe he'll decide to write the opinion himself — in the back seat, on the way to work BIG BANKER'S BLUES:

American banking has fallen on hard times since the good old days of J.P. Morgan.

Confidential banking documents we've seen chronicle the humiliating slide of American banks from their world preeminence only a relatively few years ago. Consider this: In 1957, nine of the world's biggest and most powerful banks were American. The three biggest had headquarters in New York City. Today, only two American banks rank among the world's top 15. Citibank is No. 8 and Bank of America is No. 12.

One guess which country has taken over the American banking lead that seemed impregnable in the 1950s: Japan. The top four banks in the world — and seven of the top 10 — are based in Japan.

The documents we've seen make painfully clear why U.S. banks have lost to Japanese rivals: American banks simply no longer legislators appreciate. And it are competitive. In one vital parshows why Hispanic influence in ticular, Japanese banks offer the Legislature will be more keenly significantly better terms to their borrowers.

Oil exploring down, imports rise WASHINGTON (AP) - The collapse of the oil market last year greatly reduced U.S. exploration while consumption rose 3 percent and imports soared to 40 percent of domestic demand, according to a University of Texas study released by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen on Saturday 'We have a very current report by Dr. William

Fisher, who's an eminent geologist from the University of Texas, and he says that by 1990 we'll see domestic production cut by a third in this country," said the senator, who serves as chairman of the

According to Fisher's report, entitled "U.S. Oil Outlook," unless OPEC and the Saudi Arabians make major development efforts to expand capacity, demand will begin to lead supply before the middle of the next decade.

With U.S. exploration projected to be 60 percent of what it was in the first half of the 1980s, oil production will slip to only two-thirds of its 1985 level by 1990, according to Fisher, the Leonidas T. Barrow professor of mineral resources at the University of

"If consumption increases only at a modest rate of 1 percent annually, U.S. imports of crude and products will reach the 50 percent annual level in two years and reach 65 percent in the early 1990s, Fisher says in his report.

Evidence shows that the United States still possesses untapped resources capable of yielding enough oil production to keep imports at around 35 percent for 45 years, if exploration continues, the "Substantial undeveloped but discovered reserves exist in Alaska, and despite some disappointments in exportaiton in recent years, significant volumes of yet-to-be-discovered oil are likely," Fisher said. citing deep offshore areas as promising.

But in order to keep the drilling going, prices must rise several dollars a barrel, which will take place only if the U.S. "assumes responsibility for administering oil prices in its own interest.

DERSON SPEAR

> AUSTIN (AP) - A leader of the Texas House declared himself "a little disturbed" by an Austin legislator's bills that would abolish the boards of 10 state universities and place the schools under the direction of two newly created nine-man regional boards

The legislation proposed Friday by Rep. Wilhelmina Delco, D-Austin, "ain't going nowhere," said Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, the speaker protem of the House.

He expressed dismay that Ms. Delco included the proposal among an avalanche of last-minute bills that were filed Friday, the deadline for submitting bills for this session of the Texas Legislature.

The Delco bill would, effective Sept. I, create a new "University System of the North" and "University System of the South.

Losing their regents and coming under the control of the new northern system would be Midwestern State University, Wichita Falls; East Texas State University, Commerce and Texarkana; North Texas State University, Denton; Texas Woman's University, Denton; and Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine, Fort Worth. In the southern system would be Corpus Christi State University; Texas A&I, Kingsville; Laredo State University; and Pan American University, Edinburg and Brownsville.

For East Texas State, the bill also would prohibit the offering of freshman or sophomore programs on the Texarkana campus. The bill would restrict the metroplex computer program to those programs approved by the Coordinating Board "and that are nonduplicative of programs offered in the Dallas educational area."

The board would be empowered to establish different rules for the operation of the facilities and programs in each location.

Berlanga said he thought he made it clear to Ms. Delco that there are some delicate negotiations under way on the structuring of higher education in South Texas and that such a bill could cause problems.

However, Berlanga is vice chairman of the powerful House Calendars Committee, which schedules the flow of legislation to the House

"It may make it out of committee, but it ain't coming out of Calendars," he said.

Murder trial costs threaten county's fiscal well-being

GILMER (AP) — Poor counties like Upshur may end up going "bellyup" because of budget-wrecking trials such as the one pending against Jerry "Animal" McFadden, worried officials said.

One day after a pre-trial hearing concerning the capital murder case against McFadden last week, Upshur County commissioners were asked for more money to continue with the case. Prosecutors say they need over $1 million to do the job properly.

"We simply don't have the type of money they want," said Commissioner Gaddis Lindsey said. "That's 25 percent of the county's overall budget. We don't have that kind of money and we don't know where we are going to get it.' Commissioners are scheduled to meet in special session Monday to discuss the dilemman, but Lindsey said he doesn't know what solutions will come out of the meeting. "We set up our budget each year to pay for our county expenses and we are having a tough time just making ends meet," Lindsey said.

"Our revenue has already declined about 25 percent (from decreased oil and gas revenues), and now we have a $1 million trial bill dumped on us. McFadden isn't in our budget. None of these trials are budgeted. You

Sports BIG SPRING (TEXAS), HERALD, SUNDAY, MARCH 15, 1987 Mayfield soars to the heavens

Sports Editor

ODESSA - The Big Spring Steers put on a good show but fell short in their bid to win their second consecutive track meet Saturday at Ratliff Stadium.

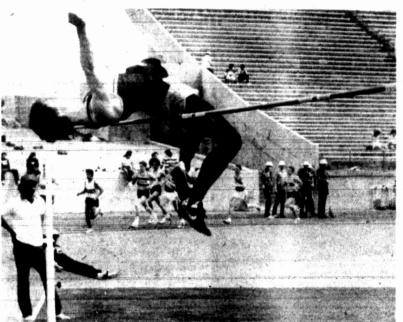

The Lubbock Estacado Matadors edged Big Spring out 145-122 for the West Texas Relays Division AAAA team championship.

While the Steers jostled for first throughout the track meet with Monahans and Estacado, the Lady Steers found the going rough, scoring 21/2 points. The only ones scoring for coach Mike Randle's Lady Steers were Cary Brooks and Teresa Pruitt. Brooks tied for fourth place in high jump. Her jump of 4-10 was three inches off her best. Teresa Pruitt jumped 16-4 in the long jump for fifth place.

But the boys put up a strong tussle against the speed-laden Matadors.

Big Spring did outdistance district rival Monahans, which beat the Steers in the Ft. Stockton Relays in the first meet of the year. Last week the Steers won the Andrews Relays. Monahans finished best 3:25.37. "It's no good when your anchorman has a disadvantage he can't make up. We had 50-flat quartermilers running 52's.

"But other than that we did a good job. Brian Mayfield is consistent in the high jump and long jump. Charles White is running the sprints better and our 400 relay did a good job with a new man.'

Mayfield scored 20 points by taking two firsts, in the high jump and long jump. He broke the meet record with a 6-84 jump. He jumped a career-best 22-4. He went out on 6-10 in the high jump.

"I felt pretty good today but next time I might start at 6-4 instead of starting at 6-0. I didn't have that explosion at the end of my jumps, Mayfield said.

Phillip Mathews followed Mayfield in the long jump, leaping to a season-best 21-10.

Distance runner Mario Gonzales had a banner day in the 1600 and 3200 meters. He won the 3200 by 50 meters. His time of 10:03 was just off a meet record.

"I really didn't have anyone pushing me. I really wanted that meet record." he said.

sophomore Ben Gonzales to score 18 points in the 1600. Ben (no relation to Mario) won in 4:40.53. Mario finished second in 4:42.08. Britton said Ben didn't practice all week because he had tonsilitis.

The Steers' 400 relay team of Danny Williams, Dennis Hartsfield, Charles White and Mathews finished third behind Estacado and Monahans in a season-best time of 43.13. Hartsfield, a sophomore, was running on the relay for the first time this season.

Big Spring also got top performances from quarter-miler Cedric Banks, who ran a personel best 49.92 for second place. He also anchored the 1600 relay, running a 50.4 and making up 10 meters on the second place Lubbock Dunbar runner. Estacado won the event in Half-miler Sean Jackson ran his fastest time of the season in the 800. His 2:00.82 was good for second

His Howard College Hawks had just swept a double-header from the Angelina Roadrunners, but head baseball coach Bill Griffin was slightly upset.

'The folks (in this town) are missing some exciting baseball,' Griffin said. "The way these guys are playing, the stands should be packed.

Indeed so. In front of a sparse crowd of about 50 people, the Hawks stormed from behind to win the first game 4-3. In the nightcap, Howard crushed the Roadrunners by an 11-2 margin.

In the bottom of the seventh inning, Randy Deal stepped to the plate with the Hawks trailing 3-2, and teammate Ernesto Castro on first base. In true Hollywood fashion, Deal smashed a Randy Loving fastball over the left field fence to give Howard the victory.

Deal's homer spoiled an otherwise fine performance from reliever Loving, who, along with starting pitcher Bobby Hurta, had limited the Hawks to just two runs on two hits for the first six innings. On the other hand, Deal's fourbagger brought joy to Howard pit-

The Runnin' Rebels trailed only once in the first half despite missing 14 of 16 3-point attempts, then went on a 12-1 run in first 41/2 minutes of the second half to take a 48-28 lead.

Kansas State trailed 36-27 at halftime and, after UNLV went on its early second-half run, the Wildcats could get no closer than 61-48 with 7:18 to go.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am into body building and I wonder about diet needs, especially protein. How much should I get in grams, and should I get it in supplements? - B.T.

The experts recommend .4 grams (4/10ths) for every pound of body weight daily. But you don't have to measure it. If you have a diet that contains 15 percent protein, you get all you need. Most of us get more than that without even trying

In fact, if you are exercising hard and are progressing in growth, then you can get twice that recommended amount. I'm pretty sure you have increased your total calories if you are body building. Just be sure that you increase the protein part of the diet along with the rest, keeping it at the 15 percent proportion. You won't need supplements. The 15 percent will serve your needs.

training. I have been told by friends that I should take a day off between workouts instead of using the day off for a light workout. Is this so? — V.F.

It's OK to have a light workout day between heavy days. But on the light days, don't exercise the muscles you did on the previous heavy day.

I asked two of my star bodybuilding patients about this. They tell me they work out arms and chest one day, legs the next. They never work the same body parts on two consecutive says.

And this makes sense, since muscle growth occurs not during exercise, but later, during rest. I can DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am 17 assure you these two gentlemen

Tenant's little secret is big surprise to landlord

DEAR ABBY: My husband and own and manage a very nice small apartment building. We've never discriminated against anyone, and have always rented to tenants based on their applications being approved through credit checks, references, etc.

We recently rented an apartment to "Douglas," a nice single man (or so we thought); then we noticed a strikingly glamours woman leaving and entering his apartment with increasing frequency. One night last week we saw this woman, beautifully dressed, leaving Douglas' apartment, so I went out and asked her where Douglas was. She smiled and in a very husky voice replied, "I am Douglas, but when I'm in this attire, you may call me Melanie."

Abby, we certainly don't want this type of person in our building. How can we get him out?

IN SHOCK DEAR IN: Unless he creates a disturbance, damages your property, falls behind in his rent, or in some way becomes an undesirable tenant, if he has a lease, you cannot legally get him out. "This type" of person isn't harming anyone, so if vou've never discriminated against anyone, please don't start now, and give Douglas high marks for honesty.

DEAR ABBY: I'm having problems with my husband of six years and need your opinion. I am 5 foot 5, 110 pounds and I'm considered very pretty. Yet I've been

DEAR ABBY: A 78-year-old gentleman is renting my spare room. He's good-natured and eventempered, but after living alone for 30 years, he has acquired some habits that are driving me right to the funny farm. He slurps his coffee. I don't mean just a noisy sip; it sounds like he's trying to suck up the ocean! He follows me around with his coffee, and after each slurp, he emits a long, drawn-out gasp, "Ahhhh!"

This morning I asked him nicely not to spit in the wastepaper basket. I need the rent, and he's a nice old fellow otherwise.

Anything you can suggest to make me more tolerant will be greatly appreciated. I wouldn't hurt his feelings for the world.

DEAR UP: Slurping his coffee is an unconscious habit, and unless you call his attention to it, he will never know that it irritates you. So tell him, nicely. But spitting in the wastebasket is more than an annovance - it's a health hazard. Be firm about both, but doubtly firm

MONEY, TAXES, AND CHILDREN

In the past, children have provided taxpayers with some very good tax sheltering opportunities. Putting investments in a child's name, setting up a short term trust, or having the child work in the parent's business were common tax-cutting strategies. The 1986 Tax Reform Act makes significant changes in how children can be used to cut the total family tax bill.

To begin with, children will no longer get a double personal exemption as they have in the past. A child who can be claimed as a dependent on his parents' tax return may not take an exemption for himself on his own tax return.

Children are entitled to use the standard deduction which will allow them in 1987 to earn up to $2,540 without paying tax. That increases to $3,000 in 1988. However, unearned income of children under the age of 14 is subject to special rules. The first $500 is tax-free, the next $500 is taxed at the lowest tax rate, and any additional unearned income is taxed to the child at the parent's highest tax rate. Furthermore, the untaxed investment income ($500) reduces the standard deduction that can be applied against earned income.

Short-term Clifford trusts no longer work as income-splitting vehicles. Trusts set up after February, 1986, will generally have t income taxed to the person who set up the trust. Even for trusts that were established before March 1, 1986, the under-fourteen unearned income rules apply to any income distributions

There are some alternatives parents should consider in trying to use children to cut the family tax bill. The child's investments might be shifted from income-producing to growth investments that could be sold when the child reaches fourteen. Tax exempt municipal bonds. tax-deferred U.S. Series EE Savings Bonds, and life insurance products with tax-deferral features are other possibilities for a child's investments. If you're a business owner, hiring your children to work for you is still a good way to shelter income.
