Outside Warm

Skies today are sunny with a high in the mid 80s and gusty west winds at 15 to 25 miles per hour. Tonight will be fair with a low in the 50s. Monday, look for fair skies and a cold front to be moving in from the North, with highs in the 60s. Lake wind advisories may be required.

Rummage sale to benefit society

The Big Spring Humane Society will sponsor a rummage sale May 1-3 at 1001 W. Fourth St. Proceeds from the sale will go to the maintenance of the adoption center.

The center has two acres at 4200 Wasson Road where 100 dogs and 40 cats are cared for, Humane Society President Margaret Lloyd said.

A pick-up service is being offered for anyone with furniture, clothing, household goods, or miscellaneous items. Call Morris Molpus 263-3615, Garner Thixton 263-4874, or Margaret Lloyd 267-5646 for pick-up service. Items also can be brought to 1001 W. Fourth St. in the old R&R Electric Building if Lloyd is notified the evening before.

Lloyd said the Humane Society hopes to raise $1,000 to use for food and care of the animals.

The Humane Society has hosted four previous sales to raise funds for the center, she said.

Educators debate penalty period

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

It is similar to losing the battle while winning the war — earning semester credit for a high school class, despite failing during one of three six-week periods.

For Dwayne Anderson, winning the semester war meant losing more than the six-week battle. It also meant losing extracurricular activity privileges.

He was relieved to learn that he successfully completed his requirements in his computer class, but that success was due to his work the first and second six-week periods (grades of 92 and 84 respectively), and not the third — for which he earned a grade of 62.

As a result, he could not participate in varsity basketball or any other extracurricular activity for six weeks, despite successfully completing the semester's work.

Too many "Dwaynes" are being unjustly punished under the State Board of Education no-pass, no-play rule, area educators say.

The rule says a student who is failing a course at the end of a six-week period is ineligible to participate in any extracurricular activities for the next six weeks. A passing semester grade does not overrule a failing six weeks' report.

The penalty period is too long, educators say, and sometimes punishes students who have succeeded in their classes over the entire semester classes, but failed a single six-week grading period.

"It's just not logical," said Murray Murphy, Big Spring High School principal.

Although he sees benefits from requiring students to pass their courses in order to participate in extracurricular activities, he also said the penalty period is too long.

"I firmly believe six weeks is an eternity to high school students," he said.

The ruling has proven to be somewhat counterproductive because students could miss half of a sport season, which can eliminate their incentive to improve their grades, said Lynn Hise, Big Spring school superintendent.

One result, in the view of high school guidance counselor Lynn Calvert, are efforts by some students to take easier courses to ensure that they will pass.

They might avoid upper level math and science courses in favor of an easier class and might postpone a difficult class to avoid taking it while participating in an extracurricular activity, Calvert said.

"Once they (students) know we are serious about it, they will work in school," she said, explaining her support for the rule while favoring a reduction of the penalty period to three weeks.

To date, more than a dozen bills have been introduced into the state Legislature to change the ruling.

Most amend the penalty to a shorter period, Craig Bryant, Texas chief clerk for public education, said from Austin.

Howard County's three school superintendents support a reduction of the penalty to three weeks.

Current law requires schools to notify parents every three weeks when a child is failing. Thus, says Jerry Doyle, Coahoma Independent School District superintendent, the reduction to three weeks

Educator appraisal changes approved

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Board of Education Saturday took strides toward improvement by approving changes in the teacher evaluation system and rules aimed at reducing dropout rates, state Education Commissioner William Kirby said.

Although the teacher evaluation system was left mostly intact by the board, Kirby said the board action made refinements to the system.

After teachers complained about the evaluation system, the Texas Education Agency formed a 28-member panel that met in February to recommend changes in the way the state evaluates its teachers. The panel included 10 classroom teachers.

The panel presented its proposals to the board Saturday.

"We have tried to address the concerns of teachers and administrators," said John Prescott, chairman of the committee that proposed the changes. "Since they have voiced their concerns to us, I feel that we have done in this will address their criticisms."

With the 1984 education reforms, critics complained the state was taking away local control of education, Kirby said.

"Here it is so important that the people have the ability to analyze their needs," he said.

The biggest change in the teacher evaluation system came in how teachers are graded on their "exceptional qualities," Prescott said. The change gives the teacher more of a chance to be graded on an overall perspective, he said.

"It's just one more step in the refinement process. I don't consider that we are where we will eventually be and as a matter of fact, I consider that the appraisal process will be an ongoing process of improvement," Prescott said.

Kirby said problems with the current system stem mostly from misinterpretation.

'Lights out' for Gulf Coast town

CRYSTAL BEACH (AP) — The street lights were turned off along the main drag of Crystal Beach when darkness came. Trash barrels along the beach rattled in the wind and the public portable toilets were gone.

Citizens in this Gulf Coast resort community began learning last week what it means to abolish their city government.

Those opposed to City Hall said they were tired of paying taxes and proposals to spend money which would mean more taxes. They wanted the county to provide law enforcement and street repair and not have to spend extra money for it.

So they voted 314 to 245 to dissolve the 16-year-old city in the April 4 election.

The city's 48 street lights on State Highway 87 along the Bolivar Peninsula, illuminating businesses and access roads, were turned off last week.

There was no one to empty the two dozen trash barrels, bolted on their four-by-four supports. A waste management company was on the scene, negotiating with the more affluent and with businesses for trash and garbage removal.

On summer weekends as many as 20,000 people come to the 6 1/2-mile stretch of beach. The year-round population runs to about 2,400.

The police department is disbanded, with only the police chief and dispatcher to provide public safety. Galveston County Sheriff Joe Max Taylor made hasty assignments to expand his coverage of the peninsula.

Clements unloads: Democrats to blame

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements, likening liberal Democratic senators to prairie chickens thumping the ground, says those lawmakers have tried to turn the debate over state finances into a partisan brawl despite his willingness to compromise.

In an interview with The Associated Press, the Republican governor said a House majority and most Texans agree with him that state spending shouldn't rise above the $36.9 billion limit he wants for the next two years.

Clements said he has been conciliatory, agreeing to raise taxes by $2.9 billion. But he said liberal Democratic lawmakers haven't faced up to the "real world."

Discussing those lawmakers, Clements said they reminded him of prairie chickens.

"They have a genetic compulsion during the breeding season to ... thump the ground. It's a historical, genetic dance that they do. And so, I think, these Democrats have been going through a thumping period that they felt compelled to do," he said.

"My antenna tells me the thumping period is about over ... I'm glad that they've had their period of relaxation and fun and games. Now, hopefully, we'll get down to serious business."

With the Legislature's regular session now more than half gone,

Clements offered several observations during the Friday interview in his Capitol office. Among them, he:

• Repeated his vow to veto any tax increase higher than the $2.9 billion to be obtained by extending last year's "temporary" hikes in the sales and motor fuel taxes.

"That was not an easy decision for me to reach," he said. "I have met these people halfway. Now, I'm not going any further."

• Said conservative Democrats and some moderate Democrats in the House side with him, adding: "There is nothing, in my judgment, in the House that can't be solved."

• Described Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby as the leader of Senate forces favoring a "big tax increase" and predicted the Democrat would lose that fight.

• Voiced reservations about Hobby's proposal for a $1.1 billion CLEMENTS page 2A

Usage of surcharge challenged

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

A former city councilman says he will raise the question Monday of the possible misapplication of more than $50,000 annually in sewer service surcharges.

Jack Watkins, who served on the Council in the early 1970s, said he plans to bring that question before the City Council at its work session, set for 9 a.m. Monday at the Big Spring Airpark meeting room.

City officials estimate the meeting, a long-range planning session, will continue throughout the day. A regular Council meeting is set for 6:30 p.m. Tuesday at the same location.

A 1979 city ordinance set a $1.25 per customer per month surcharge on sewer system bills to finance the city's waterworks and sewer system revenue bonds, series 1979, according to city records.

The city code states the charge is now $2. Watkins said he believes the charge was increased in 1981. The code states the charge will remain in effect until the bonds are paid.

Public Works Director Tom Decell said the city has approximately 9,000 sewer accounts.

The figures indicate approximately $216,000 a year is collected with the surcharge. Of that, $160,000 is the minimum needed annually to pay the debt, Watkins said. The $56,000 figure is the difference.

City Manager Mack Wofford said he is not sure whether the $56,000 is being used to help pay the debt.

"I assume any funds not necessary to pay off the bond would go into the general fund" for the water and sewer system, he said.

Mayor A.C. "Cotton" Mize said Saturday that although he is not familiar with what was done in the late 1970s, he has seen nothing to indicate mishandling of funds.

He said that without further investigation he would assume funds collected in excess of the annual debt retirement would be applied elsewhere within the utilities system.

It is Watkins' contention that the funds were to be placed in an interest-drawing escrow account and be used solely for the retirement of the bonds.

However, the ordinance says nothing of an escrow account. In reference to the surcharge, the ordinance states it is to be used "... for the financing of the city's waterworks and sewer system revenue bonds, series 1979. This surcharge will remain in effect un-

Safeway and union agree to meeting

DALLAS (AP) — Officials for Safeway and its food workers' union have agreed to meet this week to discuss obligations owed to unionized employees once the store sells or closes 141 stores in its Dallas division.

The United Food and Commercial Workers International Union has asked for a meeting to discuss the future of store clerk and meat workers.

Earlier, union officials held meetings to brief employees about the effects of the closings. Officials said they would go as far as asking for a customer boycott to prevent the firing of current employees once the stores are sold.

Some Safeway store buyers have said current employees will have to apply for available jobs along with other applicants.

Representatives of the union and Safeway have agreed to meet Wednesday to talk about what will happen to the 7,400 unionized employees.

Harry J. Carter, head of the food clerks' union Local 368, said

Safeway should help workers with severance pay, paid vacation time and job training services.

"We intend to live up to our obligations," Brian Dowling, Safeway's spokesman, said Friday. Safeway has not spelled out obligations to current workers.

The company has said 1,200 non-union employees could get transfers and will receive severance pay, job training and other benefits.

Safeway Stores Inc. said earlier this month that by April 24 it would sell or close all of its Dallas division stores from Snyder and Big Spring east to the Oklahoma and Louisiana borders. About 8,600 workers are expected to be affected.

From 15 to 20 stores are expected to be bought by Affiliated Food Stores Inc. owners' cooperative.

Members of the distribution cooperative probably will not buy more than 20 Safeways, said Roger Fryer, Affiliated's vice president for finance at its Keller office.

til such time as said bonds are retired."

Finance Director Tom Ferguson was unavailable for comment. He is seeking medical treatment in Dallas and is due back in Big Spring by Monday, a city employee said.

Ferguson was city secretary at the time the ordinance passed.

The Council also will review an ordinance providing for a 15 percent fee on ad valorem taxes delinquent on July 1 of the year they are due.

Homestead tax exemptions for 1987 are on the Council agenda. The maximum exemption allowed this year is 30 percent, the same percentage allowed in 1985 and 1986, Ferguson stated in a memo. In 1988, the maximum exemption allowed decreases to 20 percent, he said.

Ferguson recommends the 30 percent exemption, plus an additional $5,000 exemption for the elderly and the disabled.

The Council also is to consider:

- A resolution transferring property from Big Spring Airpark to the Federal Department of Justice, Big Spring Prison Camp to be used for a new city softball park.
- The Council approved the location for the new park at its previous regular meeting.
- A resolution authorizing Mayor Cotton Mize to execute a contract for geotechnical engineering and testing services for Comanche Trail Dam repairs.
- Approving an alcoholic beverage application by the League of United Latin American Citizens for the Cinco de Mayo celebration May 1 at the Old Settlers Pavilion at Comanche Trail Park.
- Approving the 1987 Spring Clean project.
- Awarding bids for wastewater treatment improvements and Municipal Auditorium stage equipment renovation.
- Hear a presentation by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Weather

Forecast

West Texas: Mostly fair in the southwest Sunday but becoming partly cloudy except in the southwest later Sunday through Monday. Turning colder in the Panhandle Sunday and spreading to the south Sunday night and Monday. Scattered mixed rain and snow showers are expected in the Panhandle Sunday night. Widely scattered rain showers are expected in the South Plains Sunday night. Highs Sunday will be generally in the 70s in the north and 80s in the south and southwest. Lows Sunday night will range from upper 30s in the Panhandle to mid 50s in the extreme south. Highs Monday will reach the 50s in the north and 60s and 70s elsewhere except near 90 in the Rio Grande area of Big Bend.

State

Fair skies prevail across most of Texas Saturday, although gusty winds took the edge off sun-warmed temperatures in the 80s and 90s. A trough of low pressure angled across West Texas from the southeast corner of the Panhandle near Childress to the lower Pecos Valley area northwest of Del Rio, the National Weather Service said.

Disabled veterans van to be at mall

The Disabled American Veterans will have a van at Highland Mall Tuesday with experts on board to answer questions, a local DAV official said.

Rocky Vieira said the van will be at Highland Mall from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The vans, called field service units, are sent to communities throughout the nation to help veterans and their families file claims for veteran's benefits.

Veterans don't have to be disabled to take advantage of the free services.

Coahoma city agenda released

The Coahoma City Council will open bids for diesel fuel for the city.

In other business, the Council will:

- Appoint a new mayor pro-tem. Barbara Robertson, the previous mayor pro-tem, did not run for reelection on the board.
- Consider sending an employee to the Abilene Short School from May 5-7.
- Consider paying Permian Basin Water Utility Association dues and monthly mileage to meetings.

Review and possibly make changes in the Peddler's Permit Ordinance.

Review and possibly make changes in the lease agreement with John Wayne Metcalf for water and grazing rights at the city sewer plant.

- Purchase a pump for the water well serving city park.
- Consider using weed killer at the Coahoma cemetery.

Deaths

Mozelle Conway

Mrs. E.S. (Mozelle) Conway, 85, of Wason Road, died Friday, April 10, 1987, at Scenic Mountain Medical Center after a lengthy illness.

Services will be Monday at 2 p.m. at the Nally-Pickle & Welch Rosewood Chapel with Chuck McLean, minister, Cedar Ridge Church of Christ, officiating and the Rev. David Hutton, Abilene, assisting. Interment will follow at Trinity Memorial Park.

Mrs. Conway was born Jan. 6, 1902 in Mills County. She married E.S. Conway Sept. 25, 1920 in Goldthwaite, Texas. She came to Howard County in January of 1935. She was a homemaker and was a member of the Church of Christ.

Survivors include four sons, L.B. Conway and Aubrey Conway, both from Big Spring; Doyle Conway of Sand Springs; Delbert Conway of San Benito; two daughters, Wanda Wilkinson of Brady, and Lavelle Mikolajczyk of Biloxi, Miss.; one sister, Oneta Conway of Comanche; 15 grandchildren; 19 great grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her husband and by two sons, Bryon E. Conway and Garland Conway.

Pallbearers will be Ed Moore, B.H. Denson, Bob Calley, Kerry Denson, Quade Teague and Grady Teague.

The family of Mrs. Conway suggests that memorials be sent to Cedar Ridge Church of Christ at 2110 Birdwell Lane.

He had been a resident of Big Spring since 1970. He was active in the Retired Senior Citizen's Volunteer Program.

He had worked for the immigration service in the border patrol for more than 30 years until his retirement in 1970. He also was a rancher for most of his life in Borden County.

Clark was a member of the Wesley United Methodist Church.

Survivors include his wife Edith Clark of Big Spring; two sons, Norman V. Clark of Richardson, Texas; and Weldon B. Clark of Kansas City, Mo.; one brother, V.L. Clark of Gail, Texas; five grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be Roland Hamilton, Richard Clark, Elwood Hamilton, Thomas Clark, Rusty Wofforth and Slick Sneed.

Marjorie Bush

Marjorie Fields Bush, 73, Odessa, died Friday, April 10, 1987, at St. Paul's Hospital, Dallas, after a lengthy illness. She was the sister of a Big Spring resident.

Services are to be conducted at the Rhoton-Weiland Funeral Chapel, Carrollton at 10:30 a.m. Monday. Graveside rites and interment will be conducted at 4:30 Monday in Melvin, near Brady.

Survivors include one son, Jerry Bush, Dallas; one sister, Mrs. Troy (Evelyn) Drinkard, Big Spring; one brother, Dail Fields, Abilene; and several nieces and nephews.

Virgil Clark

Virgil R. Clark, 81, 2800 Apache, died Friday, April 10, 1987, at his home after a sudden illness.

Services will be Sunday at 2 p.m. at Nally-Pickle & Welch Rosewood Chapel with Rev. Johnny Robertson, pastor of Wesley United Methodist Church officiating. Interment will follow in the Gail Cemetery.

No-pass

wouldn't be an additional burden on teachers, said Jerry Doyle, Coahoma Independent School District superintendent.

Students should be expected to pass all of their courses, but shouldn't be given the "death penalty" for one mistake, Doyle said.

For the record

The Herald incorrectly announced the re-election of Doyle Fowler on Saturday's Business page. Fowler received the highest number of votes at the local election, but will not officially be re-elected as director of district 15 for Germania Farm Mutual Insurance Association until all votes from elections throughout the district are tallied. Joy Fowler, an agent of company, said they expect to know the first week of May. Also, if re-elected it will be his fourth term to serve.

The ruling applies to all extracurricular activities, and choir and band have perhaps suffered the most because of the numbers of students involved, Murphy said.

"It affected us more in the beginning, but now we plan for it," Big Spring band director Ricky Mitchell said.

Planning includes checking on students' past academic performances, preparing alternates and talking with teachers and students.

Because a marching contest is conducted after the first eight weeks of school, any student declared ineligible after the first six weeks cannot participate. They have, in effect, marched six weeks for practice, Mitchell said.

Mitchell said responsibility to maintain passing grades belongs to the students.

"I hate to see a kid knocked out with a 68 or 69 for blowing one test," he said. "It's a good concept (no-pass, no-play), but it definitely needs revisions."

Read about Dwayne Anderson's experience with the no-pass, no-play rule in Monday's Herald.

bond program to finance public works projects. "It translates into a bigger and greater bureaucracy, and I don't think we need that at this time."

In criticizing the Senate Democrats, Clements used some of his sharpest language since taking office Jan. 20.

But the Legislature so far hasn't produced a budget. And with some lawmakers still talking about raising taxes as much as $5.8 billion, Clements said the time had arrived to speak out.

"It's now come time to identify where the problem really is. I don't consider that I have any problems in the House. The problems are in the Senate. The people of Texas may as well understand this," he said.

Spies 'sold out' U.S.

LOS ANGELES — Allowing Soviet spies into the U.S. Embassy in Moscow was a severe blow dealt by individuals who were "selling out" America, President Reagan says.

Reagan offered his views Friday in a speech designed to offer a wide-ranging assessment of U.S.-Soviet relations on the eve of Secretary of State George P. Shultz's departure for a new round of talks in Moscow.

In his speech, Reagan deplored the spy scandal but insisted it should not deter progress toward a new arms control agreement.

He challenged the Soviets to set a date for a troop withdrawal from Afghanistan this year and to join the United States in an arms control pact.

Reagan also had harsh words for Soviet claims that they have been the victims, not the perpetrators, of espionage.

"I can't seriously believe that the Soviets are charging us with immorality in light of what has happened," Reagan said.

Mother to visit Baby M

TRENTON, N.J. — Surrogate mother Mary Beth Whitehead may spend two hours a week with the year-old girl she bore under contract, while she appeals the landmark Baby M case, the state Supreme Court ruled.

"It's a really good feeling to know they're giving me a chance," a beaming Mrs. Whitehead said after Friday's decision.

She last visited the child on March 31, the day a judge upheld the $10,000 surrogate contract, granted custody to the baby's father, William Stern, and stripped Mrs. Whitehead of all parental rights.

"I'm just so happy I'm going to see her again," the 30-year-old Brick Township homemaker said of her third child, whom she calls Sara. "She will be home, I feel it in my heart."

The visits will begin next week at a Bergen County center for youths. Mrs. Whitehead said she will be permitted to call the child Sara, even though Stern and his wife, Elizabeth, who has adopted the baby, call her Melissa.

"I think that says a lot from the Supreme Court," said Mrs. Whitehead.

Robertson may resign

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. — The Rev. Pat Robertson says he might resign his ordination as a Southern Baptist minister in order to serve as president of the United States.

The Virginia Beach evangelist disclosed his thoughts during recent closed-door testimony in Washington in his libel suit against former Rep. Paul N. McCloskey of California and Rep. Andrew Jacobs Jr., D-Ind., the Virginian-Pilot and Ledger Star of Norfolk reported Saturday.

"I'd think absolutely, a Protestant minister has no business taking arms and killing other people on the battlefield," Robertson said during four days of testimony. "He has a mission of peace to represent Jesus Christ."

Train derails

Toxic fumes prompt evacuation

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A Conrail freight train carrying toxic material derailed Saturday in the city's heavily populated East End and at least one car began burning, prompting the evacuation of hundreds of residents.

Six people were taken to a nearby hospital for breathing problems, and one was listed in serious condition, officials said.

About 850 people were evacuated by 5 p.m., said Dennis Doyle, a police communications clerk.

Traffic was halted along a parallel bus thoroughfare following the 12:30 p.m. derailment of about a dozen cars on Conrail tracks beneath the Bloomfield Bridge. No buses were passing when the derailment occurred.

Smoke billows out of a freight train that is believed to have been carrying toxic material when it derailed and caught fire in the Bloomfield section of Pittsburgh, Penn., Saturday. Hundreds in the heavily-populated area nearby have been evacuated.

The fire had not been brought under control by 5 p.m., and a cloud of dark smoke hung over the wreckage for most of the afternoon, said Dave Burns, a spokesman for the fire department.

The burning tank car was believed to be carrying the metal titanium and liquefied gas, said Police Sgt. Charles Mares.

The train also was hauling toxic toluene diisocyanate, a flammable substance that can irritate the lungs, skin and eyes when touched or inhaled, said Geri Charley, an information specialist for the Pittsburgh Poison Center.

Particularly susceptible are people who suffer from asthma or other breathing disorders, she said.

Acting Police Sgt. John Fitzgerald said no one was believed to have been injured in the derailment itself.

"It's a mess," said Barry Levine, 26, who lives three blocks from the site. "Picture trains all crashed into each other. It's like boxes all over the place."

Margaret Rizza, a spokeswoman for the city's public safety department, said people within 15 blocks of the bridge were asked to leave the area as a precaution. The city set up a temporary evacuation center at a downtown convention center, she said.

Mares said hazardous waste crews were called in to extinguish the blaze.

Numerous homes and businesses are located near the bridge, which connects the Bloomfield neighborhood to busy Bigelow Boulevard. Two major hospitals also are located within a mile or so of the bridge.

The bridge was opened last year following years of construction delays.

At least six people were treated at the emergency room of St. Francis Medical Center, about a mile from the accident site, said Sister Adele Meiser, the hospital's senior vice president. One patient was admitted in serious condition and was on a respirator, she said.

Sister Adele said the medical center's ventilating system immediately was turned off after the derailment so no fumes could enter the building.

"It doesn't seem to affect us in any way," she said.

At nearby West Penn Hospital, "We got a few walk-ins. They just heard they should get out of the area," said spokeswoman Jane Hoover.

"There were a few people who were panicking, but mostly people just got out," said Michael Joyce, 16, who lives near the bridge. "I took some money just in case I couldn't get back for a while."

Julie Hester, 21, a cashier at a shoe store about a mile away, said customers kept coming in to shop three hours after being warned to leave the area.

"Everybody's eyes are burning," she said. "People have gotten nauseated. But still, we're waiting on people."

"They're still coming into the store to buy shoes. It's unbelievable. Just because the people can't see it, they think it's not there."

Family accuses police

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The family of a television cameraman hacked to death during black factional fighting last year says his final shots, which might have shown the killers, were erased in police possession.

George De'Ath, 34, a South African freelance cameraman, died a few days after he was attacked June 10, 1986, during a fight between young militants and older vigilantes in the Crossroads squatter camp near Cape Town.

"That allegation that police had tampered with the tape is ridiculous," Lt. Attie Laubscher, police spokesman for the Cape Town region, said Friday. He said he could not elaborate until the inquest on De'Ath's death is completed.

Ian Robbie, an ITN film editor, said in an affidavit filed this week with inquest Magistrate W.J. Marais in Cape Town that the unfinished cassette, when returned, contained nothing but a freeze-frame picture of a black man with a bullhorn.

Robbie said a freeze-frame can be achieved only by an editing machine, not by a man operating the camera.

Holocaust author dies

TURIN, Italy — Italian author Primo Levi, an Auschwitz survivor who wrote of human suffering and the horrors of war, fell three flights down a stairwell to his death at his Turin home on Saturday. He was 68 years old.

The official cause of death was withheld pending an autopsy, but one Italian news agency described the death as a suicide.

"He was tired of life, demoralized," the news agency AGI quoted his wife, Lucia, as saying. He was also survived by a son and a daughter.

Levi, born to a middle-class Jewish family in Turin in 1919 and trained as a chemist, was deported to the Nazi death camp at Auschwitz in Poland in 1943. He later said the Nazis spared him because they needed him as a technician.

His death camp experiences formed the basis of three books: "If This Be A Man," published in 1947 and also known as "Survival in Auschwitz;" "The Truce" (1963), also known as "The Reawakening," and his last work, "The Submerged and the Saved" (1986).

Ferry capsizes in storm

BANGKOK, Thailand — A ferry capsized early today in the Gulf of Thailand, killing at least 16 people, marine police said. An undetermined number of passengers was missing and feared drowned.

The overnight ferry was taking tourists from the resort island of Pha Ngan to the Thai mainland when it was hit by a sudden storm and sank near Samui island, said the officer, contacted by telephone on the island of Samui.

He said 107 of the passengers were either rescued by marine police and local fishermen or swam to safety.

Benefit concert scam has police seeking promoters

WACO (AP) — An event billed as a benefit concert by country singer Rex Allen Jr. fell through, leaving police searching for the concert promoters and ticket holders looking for refunds.

The benefit concert, sponsored by the Waco Elks Lodge, was to have been Friday night. Tickets were sold by telephone solicitors, who said the proceeds would benefit handicapped children.

A company called Gold Crown Productions put up a $600 deposit at the convention center for the concert, officials said.

Carol Guinn, a spokeswoman for the city of Waco, said convention center officials learned the concert wasn't legitimate when they tried to contact Gold Crown promoters Scott and Heidi Reid about three weeks ago for the balance of the money due.

The Waco phone number for Gold Crown has been out of service for several weeks.

Bob Roberts, an Elk who showed up for the non-existent concert, said he talked to the promoters "fairly recently" but could not say when. He said he does not know anyone who worked with the Gold Crown Productions.

He said the Elks were sponsoring the program, but not handling ticket sales.

Police say they don't know how many tickets were sold for the concert. Detective Donnie Morgan said family package tickets sold for $20, a single ticket for $6 and tickets for couples for $10.

"With the family package, supposedly if you had 10 kids, you all could get in for the $20," he said. "The promoters apparently just came in, got their money and left."

An official of Jim Halsey Co., which advertises itself as the largest country-western booking agency in the world and represents Allen, said in a phone interview from Tulsa, Okla., that a contract date was set in Waco for April 10.

The concert was canceled March 16, however, when Gold Crown didn't return a contract or deposit.

"Gold Crown made an offer and we presented it to Rex," said Ron Baird, vice president. "He accepted it and we issued a contract on the offer."

"In early February, we asked when we would see the contract or deposit back," Baird said. "On the 16th, we saw we were getting nowhere and cancelled the contract. We tried to reach them and they were gone. As far as we know, they're history."

The contract issued to Gold Crown made it clear that no advertising or tickets are to be sold until the contract is completed and signed by the artist, Baird said.

Manager lists pros, cons then embezzles $198,000

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A bank manager embezzled nearly $200,000 after weighing on paper the prospect of travel, parties and women against the risk of running out of money, getting caught and going to jail, the FBI said.

David Hale Messer, 29, even jotted a note to himself saying "you won't get another chance," the FBI said in an affidavit.

U.S. Magistrate Elizabeth Jenkins issued a warrant Friday for Messer's arrest.

"Basically, we're working from ground zero" in locating Messer, said FBI spokesman Larry Curtin.

The FBI said bank officials discovered $161,000 in cash and about $37,000 in traveler's checks, money orders and government savings bonds missing Thursday after Messer failed to show up to open the Southeast Bank branch he managed.

"We had no qualms about him," said Ken Hall, a bank security officer. "He wouldn't fit any profile. He was a very poised ... outstanding young man, well groomed, very intelligent."

FBI agents found a note by Messer in a file folder in his office. It listed the pros and cons of the theft, agents said.

"Won't flip out with wife and kid, travel anywhere, live on islands, meet many women, party and prevent heart attack, life stimulation, believe that it's inevitable and ... the last time, can't get transfer, drugs, credit background and lie detector for honesty," were in the more weighty column, marked "pros."

Under "cons," were "loss of loved ones, regret with no return possibly; money won't last forever, can't get other ID, if caught will go to jail."

A co-worker of Messer's identified the handwriting, FBI agent Mark Bargmann said.

Also on the legal-sized piece of paper dated March 23 was the following:

"Dave, let's face the hard facts. You are a loser. This guilt and self doubt and vasiliating (vacillating) that you are experiencing is all very fatal. If you don't take it then you will regret it forever and you won't get another chance again."

The paper contained a heading "strategy" for the week of March 30 through April 4, including ordering cash toward the end of the week and getting a good night's sleep on Friday.

Messer, who had been employed by Southeast Bank since July 1978, was promoted to branch manager in October 1986.

He lived in Tampa with his wife, Evelyn, and 16-month-old son. Neighbors described him as a quiet man and an affectionate father, and said they were shocked at the news.

Messer's wife and son were with her parents in Miami, where neighbors said she had recently gone, Curtin said.

Besides $161,130 in cash missing from the vault and automatic teller machine, Messer is accused of stealing 300 American Express money orders, 389 American Express traveler's checks valued at $20,250.

Dream of oasis not just mirage

At last, construction can begin. Stacy Dam will be a reality.

The approval to build the dam has been 12 years in coming since planning the project began that many years ago.

And the project will have been 15 years in the making when construction is completed in 1990.

All who live in the Permian Basin have a stake in the project, for the area can't grow and progress without an adequate water supply.

Without plenty of water for both domestic and industrial growth, the children of Crossroads Country would be forced to leave for opportunities elsewhere. Now, at least, a lack of water won't be the cause of their leaving.

Everyone knows, of course, that a project as large and significant as the Stacy Reservoir requires much work by many people. It's appropriate to recognize those who have played major roles in making it a reality.

At least six men have played particularly potent roles in pushing the project when it was first conceived. They include two from each of the three cities that constitute the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

They are Jimmy Taylor and H.W. Wright from Big Spring, R.D. Fields and James Rosser from Snyder, and Duke Sampson of Odessa. The sixth, Cody Harbour of Odessa, a past president of the district, helped lead the charge.

The list, however, must be expanded to include all past CRMWD board members who have been farsighted enough to recognize the need.

Joe Pickle, district secretary-treasurer since 1949, put it simply when he said, "You can't outgrow your water supply."

Administratively, how can too much credit be given to Owen Ivie? Ivie has been general manager of the district since 1965, when he succeeded Col. E.V. Spence.

Current board members as well, led by President John Taylor, deserve the credit for the long, hard push needed to finish what their predecessors initiated.

They saw the need. They realized this area wouldn't even be considered for such projects as the superconducting supercollider without adequate water. They were building for the future because they have been concerned about the opportunities for their children and grandchildren.

Joe Pickle explains it all started in the spring of 1946 when J.B. Thomas, former president of Texas Electric Service Co., called the initial meeting in the Hotel Settles. That meeting resulted in the formation of the CRMWD three years later.

Thomas was not even a resident of this area. But he realized he couldn't sell more electricity here unless the area grew, and that the towns here couldn't grow without water.

No wonder the district's first reservoir was named after him.

Drugs are not the way to spiritual experience

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: What is so wrong with using recreational drugs? In fact when I use cocaine or some other drugs I almost feel like I am becoming one with God, because the feeling is so great. Don't you think it is possible that drugs are one way to find God? — A.B.

Billy Graham

DEAR A.B.: No, they are not; in fact the opposite is the case. I am convinced that one of Satan's greatest lies today is the idea that drugs cannot harm you, and even that they will give you a great spiritual experience.

But Satan (who is very real, I assure you) "was a murderer from the beginning, not holding to the truth, for there is not truth in him. When he lies, he speaks his native language, for he is a liar and the father of lies" (John 8:44).

You are perhaps aware that the New Testament was originally written in the Greek language. And it is interesting that the Greek word for a "sorcerer" — i.e. a person who uses demonic powers to try to influence events — is "Pharmakos" — from which we get words like "pharmaceutical" (things related to drugs) in English. There was a close connection in the ancient world between the use of drugs and occult or demonic practices like sorcery.

You are on a dangerous, dead end road — whether you realize it or not. Don't be deceived, thinking cocaine is harmless or that it somehow will help you become a better person. It simply is not true — as thousands of people who have become trapped by cocaine will testify.

You need to get off of drugs — but more importantly, you need to give your life to Christ. He alone can fill the emptiness and the restlessness you have in your heart, and He alone can give you real peace and meaning in life.

Don't let another day go by without Christ, but by faith ask Him to come into your life today. Then you will know what it means to experience God's presence and power.

Citizens must be cautious around nosy bureaucracy

By DARRELL BERKHEIMER

Occasionally I hear about, and tell about, someone's frustrating experience in dealing with bureaucratic red tape. The other day, however, I had one such experience myself.

Our 22-year-old daughter, after being on her own for more than a year and a half, has decided she wants to go back to college. And we're delighted by that decision.

She earned an associate degree at a junior college about three years ago, then proudly proclaimed that she had enough school for a while — after more than 14 years worth.

Since then she has learned that her wage-earning potential is somewhat limited as a result of her current skills. In other words, she wants to earn more money and has realized that she needs to develop more skills in order to command a better paycheck.

That low-earning capability also has prompted her to apply for federal financial assistance, since she anticipates shifting from full-time to part-time work as a result of becoming a full-time student.

That application for financial aid is what brought on the red-tape troubles.

Actually, it's not just a matter of red tape. It's more a matter of privacy and an agency asking to poke its nose into private family records that it really doesn't need.

Although federal law does not allow us, her parents, to claim her as a dependent for tax purposes unless she's a full-time student, 22 years old or less, and we have been paying most of her living expenses. I find no problem with that. That seems as it should be.

Berky's babblings

But the bureaucrats still want to snoop into our income tax records until she's 24 years old.

Although our daughter pays her own expenses now, she was told that her request for financial aid to return to college wouldn't even be considered until we, her parents, submitted a copy of our 1986 income tax forms.

I couldn't believe such a requirement, so I had to check for myself. Yes, that's what the university requested.

But I knew something was wrong, so I pursued the matter further. I simply doubted that the university has a right to a copy of our income tax filing now that our daughter has been out on her own for more than a year.

I was right. The university does not need a copy of our entire income tax form.

I learned that, until she's 24 years old, the regulations require documentation to show that we did not claim our daughter as a dependent in 1986.

I further learned that we can blank out the rest of the income tax form except for the dependents portion and our signatures.

I'm still puzzled. Why isn't a simple notarized declaration or statement of dependents claimed sufficient to meet that documentation? Or would they rather dupe or bluff us into providing the entire income tax form?

From me, they'll see only that part of my tax form that's necessary to meet the requirement — because I simply don't want others knowing our private business when they have no right to it.

No, I don't have anything to hide. And our income tax forms contain nothing that I'm ashamed of — other than my disappointment that I didn't earn more money and give more to charities.

But if an agency has no right to it, I'm not going to give it.

Although this is a relatively narrow set of circumstances, perhaps affecting only a very small portion of our population, I suspect many people too often are asked to submit private records to agencies that have no right to all that they request.

I suspect it's typical of many information requests from governmental and quasi-public agencies.

After this experience, and others that I've had, it's my suggestion that people not turn over such private information when requested until they first check exactly what is required.

Sometimes that can be a hassle, but often that's what it takes to maintain our constitutional rights.

Malaysia tinkers with its economy

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — There's a fascinating antique in the Malaysian national museum in Kuala Lumpur — a two-pronged pitchfork, known as an "amok catcher." It might be thought of as a primitive, colonial-era solution to a problem that still plagues the Malaysian government: How to pacify the native Malays who constitute about half of the country's heterogeneous population.

"Running amok" is a Malay phrase that means "rushing about in a frenzy to kill." In the old days natives who succumbed to the intense, humid heat would occasionally go temporarily crazy. The amok-catcher was a simple device that could stop the crazed victim of the seizure in his tracks and pin him to the ground.

The colonial amok-catchers have been relegated to museums since Malaysia gained its independence from Britain in 1957. Only once did the native Malays come close to running amok.

That was in 1969; it wasn't the heat, but the economic disparity between the indigenous population and the richer Chinese and Indian minorities that sparked violent riots that are still remembered vividly in Kuala Lumpur.

As an alternative to the amok-catcher, the Malaysian government in 1971 introduced what it called the "New Economic Policy." Despite the Leninesque monicker, the NEP was not a relaxation of government economic control, but a plan to redistribute Malaysia's wealth by giving a better break to the indigenous "bumiputras," or sons of the soil.

The evolution of this government effort to tinker with the free economy might be instructive to American leaders wrestling affirmative action in private business.

At the time the NEP was adopted, some 60 percent of the Malaysian economy was in the hands of foreigners. Of the rest, 35 percent was controlled by Chinese Malaysians (brought in originally by the British to work the tin mines) and Indian Malaysians (brought in by the Brits to work the rubber plantations). This left a pathetic 5 percent of the economy for the indigenous Malays.

Ethnic favoritism was the core of the new policy. The Malay "bumis" were given the bulk of new jobs. Quotas were set up for hiring.

But the New Economic Policy was based on an annual economic growth rate of 8 percent. Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad, himself a bumiputra, explained the problem in a recent interview with our associate Dale Van Atta:

"Growth was something we took for granted. And we said the redistribution of wealth must be based on growth. We don't take what already belongs to others. ... We don't expropriate wealth in order to redistribute it. We create new wealth. And from the new wealth we apportion a much bigger share to the have-nots in order that eventually they will balance out."

The policy succeeded in driving the foreigners out, and the businesses they left behind went to the bumiputras. Native Malays now own 18 percent of domestic business instead of 5 percent.

Meanwhile, however, the Chinese and Indian Malaysians also increased their share of the economy, thanks to the foreign exodus. And because of the recession Malaysia is experiencing from the drop in world demand for the commodities that fueled the country's growth rate, Mahathir has had to do a little retrenching in the New Economic Policy.

Generally, 'said' will say it all

By WAYNE MCGINTY
The Galveston Daily News
GALVESTON (AP) — "How can it be?" I pondered. "When and where did it happen?" I queried. "Who is responsible?" I probed. "Whatever happened to 'said'?" I questioned.

"Our high school and college English teachers must take all the blame," he asserted.

"Perhaps they are partly responsible," I responded, "but they can't take all the blame. We continue to abuse the language in our own writing."

"Good point," he affirmed, "but English teachers taught us not to use the same word twice, rather, to use variety so that our writing would hold a reader's interest."

"That's true, although the need for parallel structure sometimes overrides the need for variety," I interjected. "Teachers also taught us the more basic values of simplicity and directness." I maintained. "For example, 'use' is often a better choice than 'utilize' and 'offer' is often clearer than 'proffer'."

"All right," he retorted, "however, English teachers and journalism professors urged us to use 'action verbs.' Are you suggesting they were wrong?"

"Not all all," I explained. "Action verbs have their place — describing action. They're not as much at home with attribution of a statement. That is, when you need to let the reader know who said what. Why say 'he explained' or 'she argued' when the type of statement is clear from the content?"

"OK, but won't the reader get tired of reading 'said' over and over?" he whined.

"Do you? When was the last time you remember thinking, 'If I read one more 'said' I'm going to throw this book (or newspaper) in the trash!' Actually, most of the time we don't consciously notice the word 'said' when it's used routinely," I preached.

"What we do notice," I pontificated, "is the intrusive use of synonyms or near synonyms for the simple word 'said.'"

"Certain studies have shown that body language tends to cancel out or at least interfere with verbal language, creating a condition that the experts call 'cognitive dissonance,'" I revealed. "In much the same way, the use of inappropriate verbs for attribution tends to interfere with the statements when they are intended merely to identify the speaker," I sermonized.

"Wow! That's really exciting!" he exaggerated. "I never would have thought of that until you suggested it," he fabricated.

"Now that you mention it," he opined, "writing is one thing, but speaking is quite another. When we're talking with each other, we don't ordinarily use attribution words anyway, except when we're telling a story or a joke. And then we don't tend to use words like 'added,' 'allowed as how,' 'barked,' 'begged,' 'bleated,' 'blurted,' 'boasted,' 'bragged,' 'burst out with,' 'cackled,' 'came back with,' 'cautioned' or 'chattered,'" he clarified.

"Right. Nor do we conversationally employ such euphemisms as 'charged' (we save that for police and courtroom descriptions), 'chided,' 'chirped,' 'chortled,' 'claimed,' 'confessed,' 'confirmed,' 'contuded,' 'converted,' 'cried,' 'crowded,' 'debated,' 'defended,' 'echoed,' 'ejaculated,' 'empathized,' 'emphasized,' 'enjoined,' 'entreated,' 'exalted,' 'exclaimed,' 'exhorted,' 'exploded,' 'expounded' or 'expressed,'" I gloated.

"Well, I guess we've just about exhausted all the possible substitutes that can be misused in place of 'said,'" he gushed. "I mean here in one list we have all the words one could ever possibly think of to replace the word 'said,'" he gurgled.

"Wrong, thesaurus-breath!" I yodeled. "We've only finished with wording beginning with 'e.' According to 'Roget's Thesaurus,' Rodale's 'The Synonym Finder,' Allen's Synonyms and Antonyms, and an active imagination, there are some 153 more that we haven't even used or listed here, making a total of some 220-plus in all," I recited.

"Just think of it — more than 200 words that hardly ever need to be used in place of the word 'said,'" I gloated.

Texas to get AIDS funds

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas could receive as much as $300,000 in federal funds to teach public school students about AIDS, the Texas Education Agency said Saturday. The national Center for Disease Control in Atlanta is expected to grant the money to the state this summer, the education agency said. The agency said it would use the money to coordinate an AIDS education program for the 1987-88 school year.

The grant should be between $200,000 and $300,000, the agency said in a news release. The CDC is providing money to states with high numbers of cases of acquired immune deficiency syndrome. Texas has 2,149 cases of the disease that attacks the body's immune-fighting systems, the Texas Department of Health said.

40 years since Texas City explosion

TEXAS CITY (AP) — A neatly kept one-acre cemetery and an old anchor are about the only reminders of the nation's greatest industrial disaster.

The memories remain strong, however, in the minds of those who were in Texas City on April 16, 1947. Some forever carry physical scars that remind them every day of the series of explosions that rocked the huge waterfront petrochemical complex, leaving at least 576 people dead and 5,000 injured.

Fred Grissom, just a few months out of Texas A&M University, was a 23-year-old engineer at the Monsanto Chemical Co. plant.

"Things do get a little hazy, but in a way it seems like yesterday," Grissom says. "We had a perfectly good view."

What Grissom, his co-workers and hundreds of spectators watched that morning 40 years ago this week was the 7,176-ton French freighter S.S. Grandcamp, its holds filled with 1,400 tons of ammonium nitrate fertilizer, on fire at Warehouse Pier "O" in the Port of Texas City. A thick reddish-orange smoke billowed from the No. 4 Hold.

At 9:12 a.m., it blew up.

"It was so violent. I have a recollection of a flash of light, then a shock wave. Then everything caved in. The walls collapsed. It was a total mess," Grissom says.

"I got up and walked out after a time. I went through where walls had been. There were other explosions but they were small compared to the first one."

Grissom had difficulty making his way through the rubble. He couldn't see.

"I knew I had lost one eye," he says. "I had blood in the other eye and kept trying to wipe the blood out of it."

Years later, Grissom says he still plucked from his face splinters of glass that became deadly missiles when the ship exploded.

Despite months of hospitalization, the loss of an eye and years of refusing to sit facing a window because he feared a possible shower of glass, he considers himself lucky.

"There were so many people with big problems," Grissom says. "The guy next to me in the hospital had his leg blown off. I felt so lucky that I had survived to the extent that I had."

A college classmate who went with him to work at Monsanto was standing next to Grissom when the explosion hit. The friend died instantly.

A second blast erupted five seconds later, followed by others.

The explosions were so powerful that windows broke in Baytown, 25 miles away. Two small airplanes flying over the burning ship fire at the time of the blast were blown out of the sky, killing four people. A 15-foot tidal wave rolled away from the explosion site, lifting a 150-foot-long oil barge out of the water and dropping it high and dry 200 feet away.

The S.S. High Flyer, a 6,214-ton freighter also loaded with ammonium nitrate at an adjacent pier, was torn from its berth and caught fire. Volunteer crews eventually gave up attempts to pull the vessel from the area and 16 hours later it blew up.

Shrapnel-like debris from the Grandcamp peppered the Monsanto plant like a massive machine gun, triggering fires in huge propane and benzol storage tanks and severing pipelines that spewed out flammable liquids.

One of the fires burned for a week. The tidal wave left the area covered with a layer of oil and styrene.

Damage elsewhere in Texas City was widespread. Walls were toppled and roofs collapsed. A high school gym and bowling alley were converted to morgues.

A federal investigation of the disaster determined that someone smoking in the hold of the Grandcamp was responsible for starting the fire that ignited the 100-pound paper bags of fertilizer. A "No Smoking" rule was not enforced rigidly aboard the ship and inadequate amounts of water were pumped into the burning hold, the Department of Interior said in a report filed 10 months later.

Debris and shocks from the Grandcamp explosion were blamed for the destruction at Monsanto and other plants.

In sheer numbers, Monsanto sustained the greatest loss. Some 227 people — Monsanto employees and outside contractors — were killed. The $15 million plant — built in the dark World War II days of 1942 to produce synthetic rubber for the Above, a 1947 airview shows the extent of the Texas City explosion on April 16, 1947, which killed some 576 people and injured 5,000. The disaster occurred when the French freighter S.S. war effort — was destroyed. The $22.3 million insurance claim was then the largest single risk loss in the history of insurance. Total damage was put at $67 million.

Twenty-seven Texas City firemen, summoned to the Grandcamp when the crew was unable to extinguish the blaze, died in the blast.

Crewmen aboard the ships and spectators watching the original blaze were incinerated.

Authorities were able to identify 398 bodies. Another 178 were listed as missing, and 63 never were identified.

"I don't believe it ever could happen again," says Roy McKinney, Texas City fire chief. "Our industry is one of the safest anywhere. And they work at safety. We train and drill with each other. We go to school. We teach them and they teach us."

McKinney said a result of the 1947 disaster was a mutual aid firefighting pact involving the city and 11 major petrochemical firms. The plants have their own fire departments and equipment and are coordinated by radio.

"In a city of 44,000, we have equipment equal to a city of 220,000," he says.

As for the famous explosion, "It was something that happened in the past. It really was just a ship fire."

But the volatile nature of the petrochemical business still haunts Texas City. Six people were killed and 14 injured in 1978 during an explosion. Since December, at least four small explosions have erupted along the row of plants.

"Texas City is the kind of town where you tend to have explosions," says Grissom, who returned to work, married the secretary of a construction firm involved in rebuilding the Monsanto plant and retired two years ago as engineering superintendent.

For a long time, no one talked about the blast, but the reaction to other explosions was quick.

"Whenever there were small explosions or unusual noises, you'd leave the plant," Grissom says. "It was quite a while — three or four years — before I'd sit facing windows."

Today a small marker faces the port area a half-mile from where the explosion occurred. A 10,640-pound anchor is the centerpiece of the exhibit. It was blown there during the explosion.

And at the edge of town — within sight of the candle-like plant stacks, many topped with the orange flames of gas burned off from the refining process — 63 small pieces of pink granite mark the graves of the 63 bodies that never were identified. The stones, about the size of building bricks, are in rows on either side of a reflecting pool and bear only a number that corresponds to the numbers placed on the bodies when they were found.

A Bible passage from the Book of Psalms is carved in a memorial: "God is our hope and strength, a very present help in trouble. Therefore, will we not fear, though the earth be moved, and though the hills be carried into the midst of the sea."

'Super Dave', Dr. J, and Roy

By Eddie Curran

Thursday afternoon, showering and getting ready for a 5:15 appointment, I flipped the channel to ESPN to catch a few minutes of what is perhaps my favorite TV show, Mazda Sportslook, with host Roy Firestone. Roy introduced his guest, and it didn't appear to have the makings of one of his better shows.

Roy's guests are usually either superstars or super-talking coaches and sports personalities. Thursday, someone with the vaguely familiar name of "Super Dave" Osborne sat in the guest seat. "Super Dave", looking every bit the idiot, wore an Evil Knieval type motorcycle suit, complete with crash helmet.

"Super Dave" sat, unsmiling, taking himself very seriously, while Roy described him in superlative terms as some kind of daredevil extraordinaire. A clown like "Super Dave" made me appreciate Roy, who interviews a new subject each day. There are only so many athletes, and today Sportslook was feeling the pinch. I was thinking it might be time for them to start the cycle over again, and bring in some old faces.

Tying my shoes, I watched "Super Dave's" first stunt, and was dumfounded. The clip showed "Super Dave" sitting in what looked like a chair, holding what looked like a ski rope that was attached to a truck. Truck and stuntman were at one of those flat, test-site looking places.

Bam! Instead of pulling "Super Dave", the truck raced backwards, apparently crushing our hero and coming to a rest with him underneath. Unbelievable! They showed it again, and then in slow motion. Each time it looked like a brutal, sudden death.

"Super Dave" explained that his driver had fired up the engine, but hit the wrong gear. Though it must have hit him going at least 40 miles per hour, "Super Dave" had somehow prepared himself. As he told Roy, as soon as he saw the truck racing towards him, he began sliding his legs under the truck and altering his breathing.

"It's all in the breathing," "Super Dave" said, full of self-congratulation and pseudo humble seriousness. Nevertheless, I had to give him credit. He may be a joke, but he's also quite an athlete. He has to be.

This was getting interesting, but, dang it, I had to be at this meeting in 10 minutes. Lucky for me the meeting wasn't far away, so I kept watching. His next stunt was more amazing than the first.

I'm not sure what he had intended to do in the first place, but this stunt, like the first, backfired. "Super Dave" and an assistant stood together on a platform, high, high in the sky. I believe "Super Dave" planned to jump and land at a predetermined site, where other assistants waited with a trampoline.

But his assistant in the sky, leaving "Super Dave" alone to ponder his leap. Though the assistant didn't realize it, the door inadvertently struck "Super Dave", nudging him off the platform and sending him to an almost certain death.

His arms and legs flailing, there didn't seem to be any way out of this one. Roy made the comment that "Super Dave" lost control, but the daredevil, not one to ever lose his control, told Roy that he was signalling madly to his crew down below.

When he did land, it wasn't on the trampoline, but on a small pile of gravel on a rooftop. When the camera arrived, "Super Dave" lay face down in the gravel, but he turned his head slightly and told his crew he wasn't seriously hurt. Again, he explained to Roy, it was a matter of breathing.

This guy, I had to admit, was incredible, but I had to be somewhere in three minutes. Brushing my teeth, I watched the preparation for his next stunt. "Super Dave" climbed into a hole, with his helmet sticking out just above ground surface. Dave's assistants brought a pile driver above the whole, and like a huge hammer, the pile driver slammed into "Super Dave's" helmet.

The impact looked to me like it would have crushed an elephant's neck, but here was "Super Dave" in the guest chair, dull but alive. For about the tenth time in ten minutes, I exclaimed, "No way!" I hurried to the bathroom before Crest-juice spilled on the rug.

After a hurried spit and rinse, I took three giant steps back into the den and thought, but wasn't sure, that I'd seen something. Was that "Super Dave's" assistants carrying his helmet, with just his feet sticking out? Was this a joke? Was I stupid?

Again, I saw it at a bad angle, but all of the above seemed possible. But it didn't matter. I had to get to this meeting. I would watch the Sportslook rerun at 11 p.m. and find out.

Six hours later, now clad in sleeping garb, I again turned on the box, and soon Roy and "Super Dave" re-appeared. But "Super Dave" was a changed man. No longer was he a clown, but a comic genius. Where just hours ago I saw a man taking himself all too seriously, I now saw as subtle a deadpan acting job as I'd ever seen.

And Roy, no longer the amazed interviewer, was now the ultimate straightman. Where hours ago I had yelled in amazement, I now howled with laughter. The sight of "Super Dave's" feet hanging out of his helmet — confirmation of my earlier vision — erased the last of my suspicions, but the charade continued.

"Super Dave" started plugging his line of "Super Dave" toys, and Roy, protecting the dignity of his show, protested. But never, even after thanking his guest and talking about Friday's show, did Roy break down and admit it was just a joke. You waited for him to, but he didn't.

But there was more to Thursday's Sportslook than "Super Dave." In keeping with the format, Roy interviews his subject for the first 20 or so minutes, and short features and chats with Sportslook's resident experts fill the rest of the half hour.

On Thursday, Sportslook viewers saw a short feature on Julius Erving's final appearance against the Nets, his old ABA team.

We've seen similar scenes several times this season — each NBA city has honored The Doctor at his last stop in their town. I can't remember anything like it. The outpouring of affection witnessed on the Dr. J. parade has been nothing short of amazing, and it never fails to pluck your strings. But with the Nets, it was different.

We saw Dr. J. standing at midcourt, smiling, in control, and enjoying this moment with his old fans. Then we heard the P.A. announcer's booming voice instructing the crowd to look at a spot at the top of the building.

Then we saw a giant banner unfurl, with the Doctor's number in huge letters, a symbol that the Net's had retired their greatest player's number. The coliseum exploded, and The Doc, alone at center court, valiantly tried to stop, but couldn't.

He wept. We've seen his acrobatics, we've seen his dignity, and we've seen his humor, but we've never seen his tears. If you could watch that without a tear or two of your own getting loose, then maybe you were just pretending to yawn.

Steers blast to track title

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

ANDREWS — The Monahans Lobos fought it out with the Big Spring Steers for the District 2-4A track championship Saturday, but the Steers floored the Lobos with a one-two-three punch in the 400 meters that paved the way for a Black and Gold district championship.

As expected the meet did boil down to a two-team battle between Big Spring and Monahans. But coach Randy Britton's team scored 197 points, outdistancing Monahans by 141 points, and preventing Monahans from winning their fourth consecutive district championship.

So dominant was Monahans and Big Spring that third place Andrews scored just 58 points.

In all, the Steers qualified 13 individuals and both relay teams to the regional meet in Brownwood, May 1-2. The top two finishers in each event qualify for regionals.

Despite first places from Brian Mayfield in the high jump and Phillip Mathews in the long jump, Big Spring still trailed Monahans 48-44 going into the running finals.

All Britton had to say after the field events was, "I hope we never trail again after the 3200 meters." And the Big Spring coach was so right. Mario Gonzales and Ben Gonzales went one-two in the 3200 and Big Spring took the lead.

But the Lobos put up a tough battle, that is until the 400 meters. Going into the one lap race, Big Spring held a 113-104 lead. But Rodney Bailey, Cedric Banks and Sean Jackson closed the door on Monahans' title hopes by winning the first three places. All of a sudden, the Big Spring lead was 137-104.

Niether Bailey nor Banks were happy with their times of 51.25 and 51.28, but both realized what it did to Monahans' title hopes. "This Big Spring Steers Sean Jackson (left) Rodney Bailey (middle) and Cedric Banks cross the finish line one-two-three in the 400 meter dash at the District 2-4A track meet Saturday afternoon in Andrews. puts us in good shape," said Bailey. "I didn't realize everybody was so close to me. I thought I got out better than that."

Banks, who has finished second to Bailey the last four weeks, was displeased with his time. "I haven't been happy with my time the last four weeks. But if I'm going to lose, it might as well be to my teammate. I should have waited on the stretch to kick, but I kicked earlier and I didn't have much left."

Jackson, who about 40 minutes earlier finished second in the 800 in a season best 1:59.97, was happy with his time of 51.27. "I'm happy. We had talked about going one-two-three and we did. I feel better now, the 800 took a lot out of me."

After the 400, Big Spring cleaned up on Monahans as Mayfield won the hurdles in a season-best 38.44; Mathews, Charles White and Danny Williams scored 12 points in the 200; the Gonzaleses went one-two in the 1600 and the 1600 relay foursome of Bailey, Jackson, Mayfield and Banks won in a season best 3:21.42.

Big Spring got an unexpected second place in the field events from Paul Decker in the pole vault. Decker tied for first with a vault of 13-0, but was awarded second because Stephen Hines of Andrews had fewer misses.

Decker, who had a best of 11-6 going into the meet, said the 13-foot barrier was no big deal to him. "I wasn't surprised I cleared it because I had cleared it in practice. A couple of my vaults would have been over 14. But when I cleared 13 and realized that I was going to regionals I got so happy it seemed like I forgot how to vault."

The Steers 400 meter relay team of Williams, White, Dennis Hartfield and Mathews finally cracked the 43 second barrier. Big Spring's 42.40 was the fastest time in the prelims. In the finals, the Steers were edged out by Monahans, which ran a 42.53. Big Spring ran a 42.55 and Lamesa was third in 42.81.

There's a Shark behind Crenshaw

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — For the first time since 1985, Greg Norman is not leading going into the last round of one of golf's major championships. Ben Crenshaw and Roger Maltbie have broken that string.

But the man they call the "Great White Shark" is right there, one shot back with one round to go in the 51st Masters championship.

And the tall, blond-haired Norman, the free-spirited Australian who dominated world golf last year, now is the man to beat.

Both Crenshaw and Maltbie know that.

Those two were tied for the 54-hole lead, a position Norman held in the Masters, the U.S. and British opens and the PGA last year in a record-breaking season that produced 10 worldwide victories and about $1.2 million in winnings. Of the four majors, however, he won just the British Open last year.

"When he hits the ball, the ground shakes," Crenshaw said.

"He has physical tools that I don't have, but that doesn't mean I can't shoot a lower score," Maltbie said. "I'm just going to be itching and scratching and doing the best I can."

Maltbie, who has won five titles in a 13-year PGA Tour career, scratched and clawed his way to a hard-won 70 that enabled him to tie Crenshaw for the third-round lead Saturday.

But it was Crenshaw, that soft-spoken Texan known to his fellow pros as "Gentle Ben," and the dynamic Norman who made the big moves that set up an international, 10-man shootout on Sunday.

Crenshaw rode a string of four consecutive birdies to a 5-under-par 67 that tied him with Maltbie at 212, four under par after three trips over the flowered hills, wooded valleys and treacherous greens of the Augusta National Golf Club.

Seve Ballesteros of Spain, Bernhard Langer of West Germany and T.C. Chen of Taiwan are among 10 men locked within two strokes of the lead.

Crenshaw, who won the 1984 Masters then went into a decline, was four strokes back at the start of the day's play and five behind at the turn.

"I was just trying to be patient over the front," said the popular, soft-spoken Texan who is known to his fellow pros as "Gentle Ben."

"I kept telling my caddy, 'If we'll just be patient, I really think some good things are going to happen.' And darned if they didn't."

But he got his approach in a bunker and bogeyed the 17th, dropping back into a tie. He had to hole a 6-foot par-saving putt on the 18th to preserve it.

Corey Pavin, the leading money-winner on the PGA Tour this season, was only one stroke back after two rounds, then blew to a fat 81 that left him at 223.

Tom Watson, still struggling in the grips of a slump that has plagued him for two years, also was in the title-chase going into the day, but took a 74 that left him five shots behind with 12 players ahead of him.

Sidewinders headed for state

Big Spring YMCA Sidewinder Poppy Corley reaches a perfect balance on the uneven bars in Saturday's West Texas YMCA girls gymnastics championships. Corley won the overall title in her division.

The Big Spring YMCA Sidewinders girls gymnastics team hosted and won the West Texas YMCA gymnastic championships Saturday, thus qualifying for the state meet May 9 in Houston.

Coach Russ McEwen said Tracy Carpenter, Lindsey Wooten, Kendra Carey, Poppy Corley, Becky Tedesco and Renea Osborne each had their best meets ever.

The Sidewinders won the Class IV team trophy and the optional team trophy, competing against teams from Abilene, Canadian, Midland and San Angelo. The other team trophy, the Class III trophy, was won by Abilene.

Carpenter, competing by herself in the advanced optionals, naturally won her division. McEwen explained that the other teams didn't have anyone at her level.

In the age 9-11 Class IV competition, Big Spring's Lindsey Wooten captured first place and teammate Amy Miller finished second. Sarah Bristow, also a Sidewinder, won the vault in that division.

In the age 12-14 Class IV competition, three Sidewinder girls finished in the top three positions. Corley was first, followed by Bobbie Jo Elliot and Debbie Dennard.

Tedesco had the second highest score in the Class III compulsory floor exercise, and finished 5th overall in that division.

Osborne won the vault in the age 12-14 Class III compulsories, and was third overall. Teammates Lori Loftin and Sunny Fraser finished fourth and sixth, respectively, in that division. Loftin also won the floor exercise.

Carey won the beam and floor titles in the age 9-11 Class III optionals on her way to the all-around title in that division. Teammate Dawn Kennedy finished sixth.

Kristi Coots, in the 15-and-over optionals, finished second. Robin Cave was fourth in the age 12-14 Class III optionals.

Stiles upset by charges

DALLAS (AP) — Former Texas A&M assistant football coach Jess Stiles said he is upset to be the only person singled out for alleged NCAA rules violations in an in-house investigation report released by the university.

Stiles, now an assistant athletic director at Texas Tech, told the Dallas Times Herald Friday he does not know why his was the only name the university released.

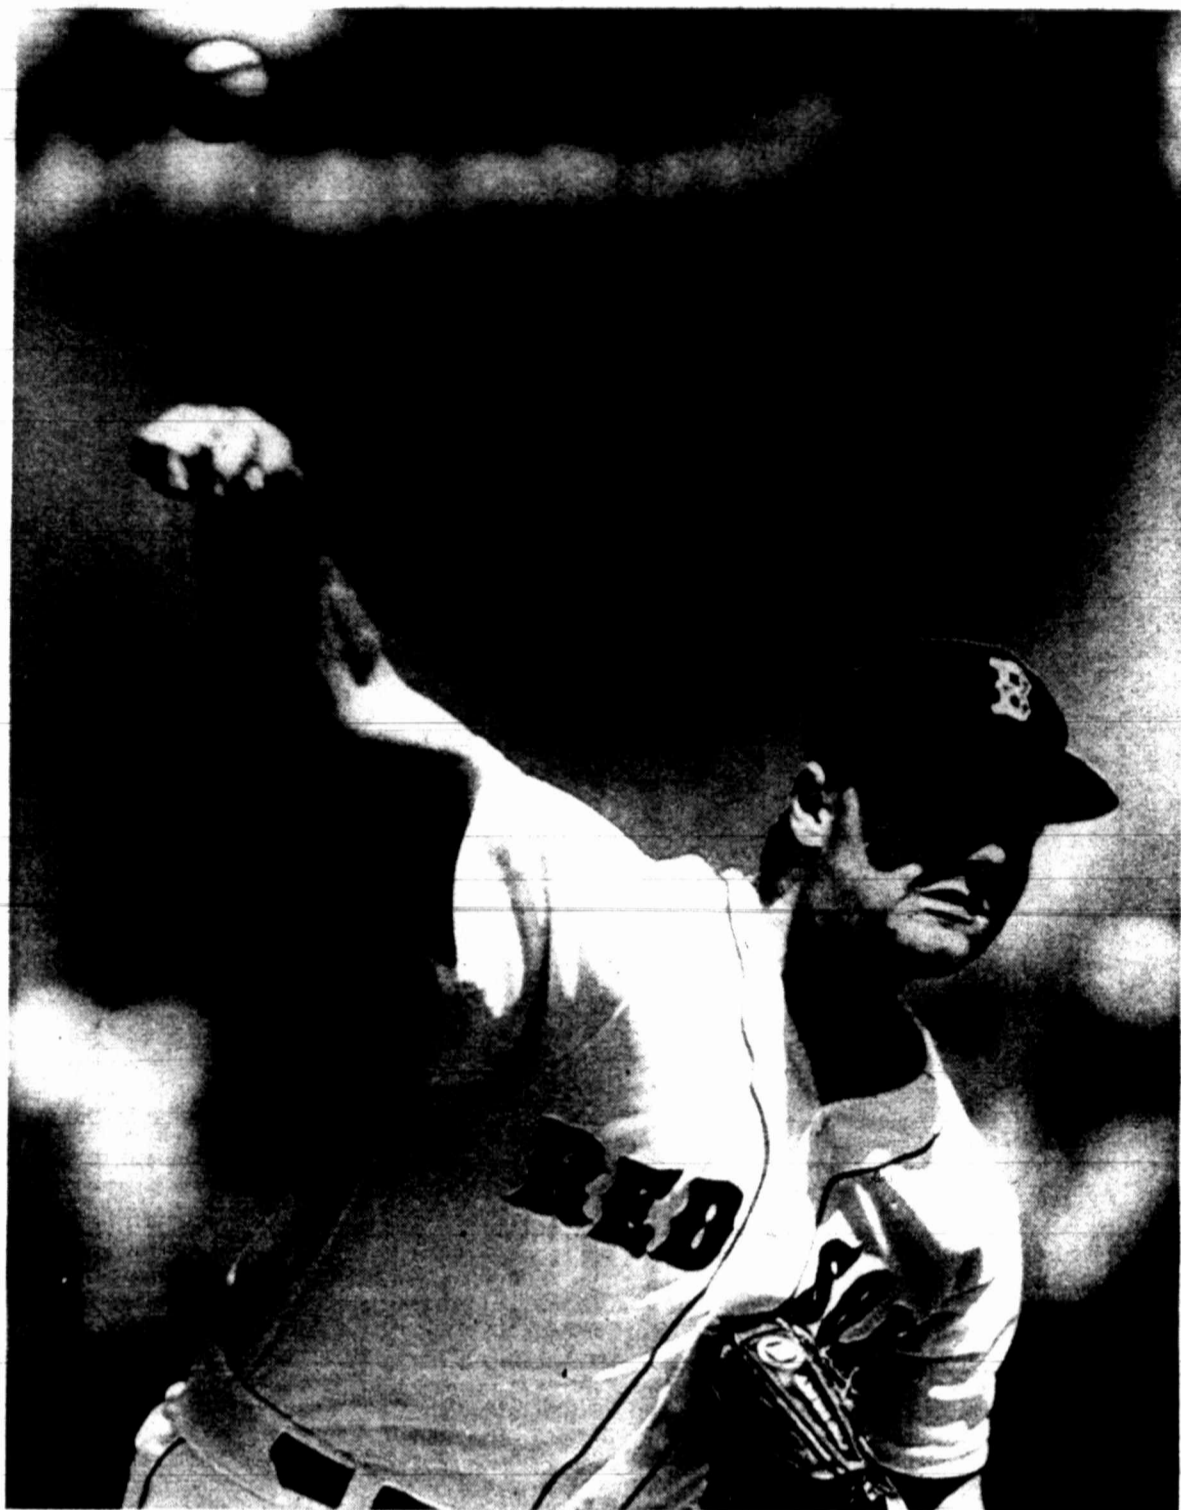

"It was a real surprise to me. I really don't know what their angle is," said Stiles, the Aggies' defensive coordinator under Coach Tom Wilson from 1979-81. "I had no hint that my name would be included in the report. I'm a little upset and a little hurt."

Stiles did not dispute findings of the in-house investigation, acknowledging he sometimes gave small loans for humanitarian reasons to help athletes and non-athletes.

"But I am not a cheater," he said. "I have never been a cheater. I've got a lot of moral principles in that area. You can ask any young man I've ever coached concerning that."

The in-house investigation uncovered rules violations on at least six occasions, but released only two, saying the others involved current or former athletes and that the information was privileged under the Buckley Amendment.

Aside from the Stiles report, the report also said the school was found guilty of violating NCAA rules concerning complimentary football tickets, although it released no details.

Boston Red Sox pitcher Roger Clemens throws a pitch against the Toronto Blue Jays during his first game back since his contract hold-out. Clemens was 24-4 last year and the Cy Young and American League MVP winner, but he took the loss Saturday.

Jays pound Clemens

BOSTON (AP) — Willie Upshaw capped a four-run fourth inning with his 100th career homer, a three-run blast, and Jesse Barfield hit a three-run shot in the seventh Saturday as the Toronto Blue Jays spoiled the 1987 debut of Boston pitching ace Roger Clemens with an 11-1 victory over the Red Sox.

Facing major league hitters for the first time since the fifth game of the World Series last October, Clemens allowed two singles for three innings before being shelled in the fourth.

The 1986 American League Most Valuable Player and Cy Young Award winner, who missed the entire exhibition season because of a 29-day walkout in a salary dispute, left after the fourth. He allowed four runs, five hits, struck out three and walked three while throwing 84 pitches.

Toronto left-hander Jimmy Key, who helped end Clemens' 14-game winning streak last July 2, allowed five hits in eight innings for his second victory of the season. Mark Eichhorn worked a hitless ninth for Toronto.

Brewers 8, Rangers 6
ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The unbeaten Milwaukee Brewers scored eight runs in an inning against Texas for the second consecutive game and won their fifth straight Saturday night to equal their best start ever, beating the Rangers 8-6.

Teddy Higuera, 2-0, was the winning pitcher despite giving up 12 hits and five runs in seven innings, including Pete Incaviglia's first homer of the season. Loser Charlie Hough, 0-1, went 3 1/3 innings, allowing six runs on seven hits.

The Rangers had Higuera in trouble in the first and third innings but managed only a run in the first when he threw a wild pitch with the bases loaded and one out.

In the third, Bob Brower doubled and took third on a single by Scott Fletcher, who went to second on the throw home. Higuera escaped when Ruben Sierra grounded into an unusual third-to-home-to-third double play. Brower was erased at the plate and Fletcher was thrown out when he tried to take third.

The Brewers, who have scored 39 runs in five games, scored eight runs in the first inning Friday night.

Tigers 7, White Sox 1
CHICAGO (AP) — Jack Morris pitched a five-hitter and seven different Detroit batters drove in a run Saturday night to lead the Tigers to a 7-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

National League

Cincinnati 5, San Diego 1
CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds remained unbeaten Saturday as Kal Daniels and Bo Diaz hit solo home runs to support Tom Browning's six strong innings in a 5-1 victory over the winless San Diego Padres.

Browning, 1-0, allowed one run and six hits, striking out seven in his second start. Relievers Rob Murphy and Frank Williams allowed just one hit the rest of the way, giving Cincinnati relievers 16 scoreless innings this season.

The Reds' 4-0 start is their best since they won their first eight games of the 1980 season. It's a dramatic change from a year ago, when the Reds opened 6-19 and never fully recovered.

Dodgers 5, Giants 1
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pedro Guerrero and Mike Scioscia hit solo home runs in the second inning and Orel Hershiser pitched a seven-hitter as the Los Angeles Dodgers ended a five-game losing streak with their first victory of the season, 5-1 over the San Francisco Giants.

The defeat was the first for the Giants, who had won their first five games for the first time since 1962. Hershiser, 1-1, struck out nine and walked one. A two-out RBI double by Candy Maldonado in the ninth inning spoiled Hershiser's shutout bid.

The Dodgers knocked out 20-game winner Mike Krukow, 0-1, after scoring all their runs in the first four innings.

Braves 4, Mets 3
NEW YORK (AP) — Ken Griffey's two-out single to right field scored Gerald Perry from second base, enabling the Atlanta Braves to hand New York a 4-3 defeat, the Mets' first loss of the season.

Gene Garber, 2-0, who pitched two innings of one-hit relief, gained the victory, snapping the Mets' three-game winning streak.

Cardinals 6, Pirates 3
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Rookie Jim Lindeman hit two solo home runs, Jack Clark added a two-run homer and Steve Lake had a solo homer to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 6-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Cubs 9, Phillies 1
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Chicago scored seven runs in the first inning, two on Leon Durham's single and three on a dropped fly ball, and Rick Sutcliffe allowed five hits in eight innings as the Cubs defeated Philadelphia, handing the winless Phillies their fourth setback.

Astros 3, Expos 2
HOUSTON (AP) — Eighth-inning doubles by Billy Hatcher, Jose Cruz and Kevin Bass accounted for two runs in the bottom of the eighth inning as the unbeaten Houston Astros defeated Montreal for their fifth consecutive victory and the best start in the club's 26-year history.

Hatcher opened the Houston eighth with a double off Jeff Parrett, 0-1, stole third and scored the tying run on Cruz's double. Cruz took third on Glenn Davis' grounder and came home on Bass' two-base hit.

Aurelio Lopez, 1-0, was the winner in relief of Mike Scott.

Saberhagen returning to form

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Bret Saberhagen knew baseball was a game of inches. Now he knows heartbreak can be, too.

"Six inches. That's how close I came to getting that ball," Kansas City center fielder Willie Wilson said of the smash that ruined Saberhagen's no-hit bid against the New York Yankees.

Hoping to rebound from a miserable 1986 season, Saberhagen made his season debut without yielding a hit to the dangerous New York Yankee lineup for seven and one third inings Friday night.

Then he served an inside fastball that Don Pasqua slugged into dead centerfield.

As Wilson drew a bead on the ball, it began slicing into left, and kept curving away as Wilson, one of the game's fastest outfielders, came up empty.

In the ninth, a single by Wayne Tolleson and a sacrifice fly by Don Mattingly ruined the shutout. But the Royals won 13-1 and Saberhagen, the 1985 Cy Young winner and World Series MVP, had the second two-hitter of his career. It was a good way to celebrate turning 23 on Saturday.

So is Bret Saberhagen back? Perhaps a sign of his greater maturity is that he refuses to be pinned down on that question.

"I'd like to think so," he said. "But one good game does not make an entire season. I feel like I still have a long way to go."

"It looked like the Saberhagen of old," Royals' second baseman Frank White said. "He hit the corners. He had his curveball really working well. He would put that fastball up and in.

Smoking bats power Hawks to rout

DALLAS — The Howard College Hawks sent 17 batters to the plate in the fourth inning when they erupted for 12 runs on their way to destroying Northwood College Saturday in Dallas.

The win boosted Howard's Region V record to 11-3 and their overall record to 27-5. Northwood dropped to 6-7 in the region. The teams will hook up for two games today.

In that big inning, Joe Camarillo,

Joel Chimelis, Randy Deal and Juan Rodriguez each had two hits, and Rodriguez did the almost impossible. He hit a grand slam and had an rbi single — five rbis in an inning.

Howard opened the scoring in the second inning, when Ernesto Castro hit a three-run double after three consecutive Hawks' singles.

"Our guys had their hitting clothes on. I just hope they save some hits for tomorrow. They really hit the ball well," said Hawks' coach Bill Griffin.

Ted Hebert pitched six innings for his 10th win without a loss. Castro pitched the seventh inning, which was the last because of the 10-run rule.

Dennis (Hartfield) and Phillip (Mathews) was great," said Britton. "I really wanted to win this thing, but I'm happy because we've got another chance to run it."

White got some revenge for his teammates in the 100 meters. The 6-1, 195-pound junior overcame a slow start and finished second behind Lamesa's Garry Woodberry. White nipped Monahans speedsters Charles Thompson and Dana Amos. Thompson and Amos did come back and finish one-two in the 200.

Mayfield turned in his usual high scoring performance. Besides setting a new meet record of 6-10 in the high jump, he finished third in the long jump, won the 300 hurdles, finished second in the 110 high hurdles and ran a 50.2 split on the winning 1600 meter relay. Banks had the best split on the relay, running a 49.6. Jackson clocked a 50.6 and Bailey ran a 50.8 out of the blocks.

After the meet, a relaxed Britton sported a big smile. "The kids performed well, just like they have all year. It's a super win and it feels good," he said of Big Spring's first district track championship in his nine year tenure.

LADY STEERS FINISH FOURTH
It was a day of near misses for the Lady Steers track team as coach Mike Randle's squad finished fourth by scoring 73 points.

Pre-meet favorite Sweetwater won the district crown by scoring 133 points. San Angelo Lake View finished second with 100 points and Snyder was third with 89 points.

The Lady Steers had five third place finishes. And all five times

Big Spring just barley missed out at finishing second. Perhaps having the toughest luck was freshman distance runner Evette Regalado. She finished third in both the 3200 and 1600 meters. Both times she led practically the whole race before getting passed at the finish line. "Evette ran the race I wanted her to run," said Randle. "She stayed in the lead but she just didn't have enough endurance to hold them off."

Teresa Pruitt finished fourth in the long jump and third in the triple jump. The Lady Steers' 400 and 1600 relays were also nipped at the tape, and finished third.

Pruitt did earn herself a trip to regionals by winning the 400 in a season-best 60.19. "I'm happy with my time," said Pruitt. "I was really upset with not making it in the long jump. I did better in the triple jump and the long jump is my best event."

Big Spring's other regional qualifier was senior discus thrower Yolanda Green, who finished second in the event with a toss of 114.2, a career-best for her. In fact, it looked like Green might pull off the upset of the meet when she was leading Sweetwater's Tara Lemons going into the final throw. But Lemons, who has one of the best throws in the state, uncorked a 128-0 on her final throw to win the event.

Nevertheless, Green was ecstatic at going to regionals. When asked how it felt to get out of district, she replied, "I really don't know yet." Then a pause and big smile, "It feels real good."

Probably the same kind of feeling Randy Britton and his Big Spring Steers have now that they are the District 2-4A track champions.

McEnroe charges into WCT finals

DALLAS (AP) — John McEnroe will meet Czechoslovakia's Miloslav Mecir in Sunday morning's championship of the World Championship Tennis Finals.

Regardless of the outcome of the match, scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. CDT, McEnroe has expressed regret that the tournament has slipped in prestige.

"I'd like to see this get back to where it was," said McEnroe, who only lost his serve once in defeating Sweden's Stefan Edberg, the hottest member of the Grand Prix tour, 7-6 (7-4), 6-7 (7-5), 7-6 (7-3), 6-4 in one of Friday's semis.

"Lamar (Hunt, the WCT founder) has put so much into the sport. I wasn't there at the start (1971, the first WCT Final) but I've been coming here for 10 years (actually nine). I was here to appreciate what Lamar did for the sport. It's embarrassing for these guys to do this."

Several of the top players skipped this year's WCT Finals.

Ivan Lendl, the top player in the world, begged off because of injury. Boris Becker, ranked second and the top WCT Finals seed, withdrew last Tuesday, the first day of the tournament, because of a stomach virus. Mats Wilander, ranked sixth, skipped Tuesday's press conference and didn't arrive until the morning of his Thursday semifinal.

McEnroe suggested a bonus points system to lure players to Dallas.

"Money isn't enough," said McEnroe. "Wilander is going to lose 15 percent of his bonus check for not showing up at the press conference and he doesn't seem to care."

"Because of the money involved you get a warped sense of who you really are. There are just too many tournaments. Half the time guys are hurt or just aren't fresh. It's a roll of the dice who's going to show up now."

McEnroe, continuing his comeback after taking six months' off from the tour last year, was pleased with his play against the third-ranked Edberg.

"I feel this is best I've played this year," said McEnroe, rated seventh by the ATP computer. "I hit the ball well. I was into the match almost the whole way."

Mecir was fortunate to have a day off to recover from his semifinal match, which took three hours and four minutes and wasn't completed until 1:12 a.m. Saturday.

Mecir, ranked fifth in the world, defeated 11th-ranked Andres Gomez of Ecuador, 6-7 (8-6), 7-6 (13-11), 6-4, 6-2.

"It's always trouble when you have to play at different times," said Mecir. "I had to come from Milan for this tournament and it took some time to recover."

.500 season assured for Rockets

HOUSTON (AP) — Forward Rodney McCray sparkled on both defense and offense as the defending Western Conference champion Houston geared up for defense of its crown with a 113-103 win over the Denver Nuggets Saturday night.

McCray scored 21 points to lead a balanced Rockets scoring attack and held forward Alex English, the league's third-leading scorer with a 28.9 average, to just 19 points.

"McCray is very important to the Rockets, especially defensively. He is an all-around good player, and even with both the twin towers at full strength, they wouldn't be as good without McCray," English said.

"I am very confident in our team," McCray said. "Tonight we had seven guys in double figures. But it is very important that we continue to improve in all phases of our game before the playoffs start."

The Rockets will finish the regular season with two games against their arch-rivals, the Dallas Mavericks, and one more with the Nuggets.

Houston also got a boost from second-year guard Steve Harris, who scored 10 of his 16 points in the fourth quarter.

Denver's Lafayette Lever led all scorers with 34 points, including two 3-pointers in the fourth quarter.

The Rockets led 51-44 at halftime as McCray scored 10 and Ralph Sampson came off the bench with nine points and six rebounds.

Lever scored 12 third-quarter points as the Nuggets closed the deficit to 79-76. The Nuggets outscored the Rockets 13-6 in the final four minutes of the period.

Houston started the fourth quarter with an 11-3 spurt for a 90-79 lead. McCray had a layup, Harris hit two jump shots and Robert Reid had a 3-point play during the run.

The Rockets assured themselves of at least a .500 season with the victory. The Nuggets are battling for one of the last playoff spots in the Western Conference.

Bucks 121, Cavaliers 93
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Terry Cummings scored 21 points, Randy Breuer had 19 and Ricky Pierce 18 as the Milwaukee Bucks trounced the Cleveland Cavaliers 121-93 in an NBA game Saturday night.

The Bucks, beating Cleveland for the fifth time in six tries this season, settled things early, opening a 23-point lead in the second quarter. The victory clinched the homecourt advantage for the Bucks in the first round of the NBA playoffs.

Milwaukee used a 20-10 run, including 10 points by Cummings, to build a 32-15 lead with 3:12 left in the first quarter, which ended with the Bucks ahead 34-25. They shot 70 percent to Cleveland's 48 percent for the first period.

After the Cavaliers scored the first basket of the second period, the Bucks ran off the next 16 points for a 50-27 lead with 7:53 left. Pierce scored eight of the 16 points.

Milwaukee led 63-47 at halftime and built the margin to 91-61 with 2:38 remaining in the third period, which ended with the Bucks ahead 98-65 after 11 points by Cummings.

The Bucks built their biggest lead, 40 points, three times in the first quarter.

Tyrone Corbin led Cleveland with 14 points, and John Williams and John Bagley added 13 each.

Breuer tied his career scoring high of 19 points for the second consecutive night.

Creative teaching Makes learning fun for children

Mrs. Hicks' classroom is filled with learning/fun centers for the children to enjoy when their work is finished.

Selma Hicks says she's been in school "all but eight years of my life — and I'm still in fourth grade."

The fourth grade teacher at Marcy Elementary is in her 35th year of teaching.

The thought of retiring within the next year or two prompts tears to roll down her cheeks as she reminisces about her teaching career.

"I've always said I want to stop teaching when school's still fun — and I'm not grouchy."

"I have mixed feelings when we do puppet shows or work with the marionettes. And I think, 'This is the last time I'm going to do it. I know I'm going to miss it because of the special things we do.'"

"I've done lots of things. I get ideas from other people. I get a lot from the newspapers and I look for things that will make neat centers."

Against the walls, around the front and side of the classroom, are learning/fun centers.

Each center focuses on a special lesson within the areas of reading, writing, arithmetic, social studies and science.

When the children finish their work early or on time, they are rewarded with time at the centers.

This month's centers are: math parfait, endangered species, roman numerals, hot dog division, egg-citing eggs contest, bunny fun (finger puppets), chicken chatter, book center, scrambled Easter eggs, rabbits multiply and bird identification.

She changes the centers at least once a month, she said.

"When I think the kids have had enough of it — I change them. Last year I had a really gifted class and changed the centers about every two weeks."

Mrs. Hicks' enthusiasm for her job is evident.

"It's exciting. No day is the same. I'm getting to help mold and shape the leaders of tomorrow. I'm making my contribution."

Although she says she takes her job very seriously, she believes that children learn more if they're having fun.

During her career, she has taught several grade levels, but likes the fourth grade best because, she said, the students are in a pleasant, youthful stage and know enough to have fun with.

"I try to motivate them to do the things I want them to do. Everyone can't make good grades, but they all can behave. Everyone can make an A in conduct. We stress self-discipline and reward them for being good."

Mrs. Hicks believes in lots of recognition. "Everyone needs to feel important. I give special awards at the end of the six weeks for honor roll and conduct."

She explained that the state's discipline management plan, which was implemented this year, has produced positive results.

"Every parent was informed on the type of disciplinary action that will be taken if their child misbehaves. It has really helped with discipline."

"If children can make themselves behave, they won't be in prison. If they habitually misbehave it will continue. They need to understand what they can and cannot do. These are principles for democracy."

Of course, Mrs. Hicks realizes no group of students is always perfect.

"When they stay in class because of bad weather, it affects their behavior, but the teacher must be wise enough to realize that children are children — and not adults."

The key to Mrs. Hicks' success is being "very positive and stressing how fun it is to learn."

Her enjoyment of art is evident from the creativity displayed in the classroom and the twice weekly art projects for her students.

Although she estimates spending $250 to $300 annually for materials she feels are important but not furnished by the district — "It's worth it to me because it makes it more fun" — creativity also enters the picture in use of other materials.

"We use a lot of throwaway items for art projects. Such as bottle caps and the egg-shaped container from panty hose. There are a lot of things you can do in art without having to buy things," she said.

For Easter, students have made chickens that are hatching out of eggs and have decorated eggs made from icing and sugar.

"We're going to make finger rings for Mother's Day."

She added that she rarely does the same thing from year to year.

When she began her career — "back in the dark ages," she says — she taught three grade levels in one class.

"We still had outdoor johns back then," she said with a laugh.

She has seen plenty of changes in children, including the transition from outdoor plumbing.

"Our children today know a lot more — good and bad. They are smarter and educationally and street wise."

She attributes this to television and vacations.

"Before, we didn't have the cars or money to travel."

She added that the children are harder to motivate and that they read less.

One of the ways she keeps their attention is by having a focus.

She has a puppet — Charlie the Duck — who introduces lesson plans or she'll perform a magic trick before a lesson plan.

"You have to think of creative ways to keep their attention," she said.

Another thing she has noticed is that the parents used to take more responsibility for the children's homework. She attributes this to one-parent families and that parent often maintaining a demanding schedule.

Mrs. Hicks does have a successful method of getting the parent involved.

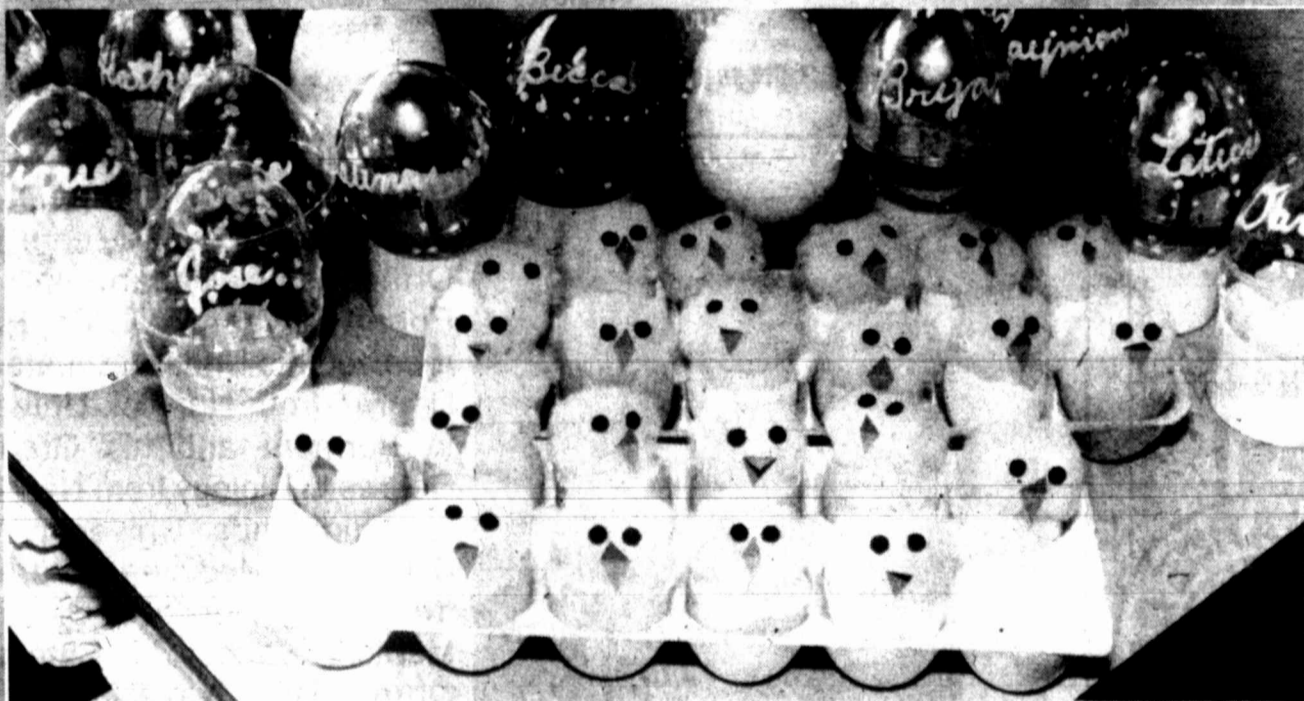

"I want the parents to see what their child is doing, so the parents must sign their homework paper or 10 points are taken off."

Mrs. Hicks says that "the most important natural resource America has is our children," and she lives by the motto: "My life must touch a million lives."

Arts and crafts play a big role in Mrs. Hicks' classroom. Projects — the sugar egg. Paul McKinney and Mrs. Hicks decorate one of the latest.

Hatching chicks, above, and plastic eggs inscribed with each student's name are Easter projects the children have been working on. Below, one of the ways Mrs. Hicks rewards her students is by giving them stars for each time they score 100 on their spelling tests.

Gary Smoot and Amanda Reegan are rewarded for finishing their work early and work at the endangered species learning center. It's a fun way to learn, Mrs. Hicks says.

Sensory changes may affect appetite

By NAOMI HUNT
County Extension Agent

The sense of taste and the sense of smell are both affected by the normal process of aging. Because these senses are so closely tied to the enjoyment of food, older adults may find it difficult to maintain a healthy appetite.

Taste buds decrease in number and sensitivity with age. The average 70-year-old, for example, has one-sixth the taste buds of a 20-year-old.

Studies show that the taste receptors to identify sweet and salty flavors are the first to atrophy while those that sense bitter and sour flavors tend to function into old age. That is one explanation for why some elders report that "nothing tastes good." Other older adults may eat excessively to try to capture the taste sensation.

The sense of smell may begin to decline in the late thirties. By age 80, about 40% of people have dif-

Focus on family

Difficulty in identifying common substances by smell. Because two-thirds of the taste sensation depends on the ability to smell, this can also affect an older person's appetite.

Smoking, poor dental hygiene and medications also contribute to a decline in the taste of food. When appetite is a problem, the older adult may want to stop smoking, improve dental care and discuss a change in medication with a physician.

To increase their enjoyment of eating, elders need attractively prepared and served meals. Distinctive and varied textures, colors and temperatures will add to the identification and enjoyment of foods.

Spices can be used to enhance food flavor and artificial odor will also improve flavor for some older persons.

Even as the ability to taste fades, the memories associated with certain foods can be quite pleasant and may be one way for elders to continue eating with satisfaction.

OLDER ADULTS: KEEP THE DIGESTIVE SYSTEM WORKING

As people age, lifestyle changes such as increased use of medicines, reduced exercise and changes in eating habits, may interfere with digestion. The following steps have been suggested by the National Institute on Aging to keep the digestive system working at its best:

- Eat a well-balanced diet, including a variety of fresh fruits, vegetables, and whole grain breads, cereals and other grain products.

- Eat slowly and, when possible, try to relax for 30 minutes after each meal.

- Exercise regularly.

- Drink alcohol in moderation, if at all.

- Avoid large amounts of caffeine.

- Use caution when taking over-the-counter drugs and always follow your doctor's directions exactly when taking prescribed medications.

Big Spring Rainbow Girls observe Founder's Day

Ten girls and eight adults from the Big Spring Assembly of the Order of the Rainbow Girls attended Wesley United Methodist Church April 4 in observance of Founder's Day.

The International Order of the Rainbow for Girls observes Founders Day on the Sunday nearest the 6th of April by attending church with members of their own assemblies.

Rev. Mark Sexson was the founder. After the local group attended church and went to lunch, the assembly hosted a "tea" at the home of Mrs. Adele Tibbs, honoring Rebecca Read, the grand representative from New York to Texas.

Approximately 50 guests attended the tea including members from Friendship Assembly in Odessa, Norman Read Assembly in Midland and Midland Assembly.

Big Spring Assembly honored their sponsoring body "Big Spring Chapter #67 Order of the Eastern Star" last month with a special "Celebrate Spring" dinner and program.

A new member (Joy Petty) was invited into the Rainbow Assembly. Guests from Midland Assembly were present.

Easter dinner and a business meeting will be conducted April 14.

Grand Assembly will be in Abilene this June 28-30 and July 1. Big Spring Assembly will co-host.

This may be the year of the boll weevil

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

What is the boll weevil situation expected to be this year?

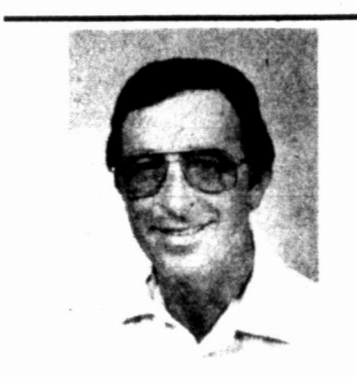

According to Rick Minzenmeyer, extension entomologist for Howard, Martin and Midland counties, this could be a bad year for cotton boll weevils and other insects in general.

Rick reported this at our extension crops program area committee meeting last week. He told the group that the boll weevil traps, which he has strategically located throughout the county, have more live boll weevils this spring than any on recent record.

Our very mild winter and abundant protection, such as dried weeds and grasses and unharvested cotton crops in the area has enabled this pest to survive and build up its numbers.

Rich also reported that these conditions have allowed other cotton insect pests to also build up in large numbers, including a very likely jumbo grasshopper problem.

All this points out to the real need Howard County has for an effective pest management program. Kelly

Ask the agent

Gaskins, Route 1, Box 23, Knott, serves as treasurer to the program, which needs additional funds to finance a scouting program this season.

County cotton producers have a real stake in this program. For anyone who hasn't joined, contact Kelly or Rick. A scout needs to be hired by May 1, and the funds are needed. An assessment of 25 cents per acre has been determined to be charge requested for this program.

I need to learn more about cotton insects. Will there be any educational programs available in 1987 to assist me?

Yes. April 13 two training programs will be offered to Howard County producers. The first will be at 8:30 a.m. at the Big Spring Co-Op Gin and the second will be at the Knott Co-Op Gin. These seminars are sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and will include the following discussions: •Herbicides, plant growth regulators and plant growth — speaker will be Charles Stichler, extension agronomist.

•Cotton varieties — speaker Stichler will discuss the need for a high strength cotton in the future and new varieties.

•Dr. Michael Hickey, extension soil chemist, will discuss nitrogen requirements vs. water availability; phosphorous application (plant needs and placement); nitrogen requirements (timing of application and method of application).

•Integrated pest management — speaker Richard Minzenmeyer will discuss the identification and management and scouting techniques of fleahoppers and aphids and

Dr. Charles Allen, extension entomologist, will discuss identification and management of bollworms and budworms and beneficials. Cotton producers in the county are encouraged to attend either or both of these training meetings.

I prune back all the freeze damaged growth to my plants now?

You could, but I would advise to wait a little while yet to determine the extent of your damage. We cannot yet tell just how severe the recent freeze actually was to our plants but we feel like it could be pretty bad.

With the return of warmer weather the damaged portions of the plants will dry up and then be fairly easy to see then where the plants need to be pruned. In most instances, plants will send out new growth directly beneath the damaged portions of their stems at the next node and recovery should be rapid. We do expect to continue to see some detrimental effects of this most recent freeze up into next summer as the hotter and drier conditions then will further desiccate the damaged tissues of some plants.

Engagement

COUPLE TO WED — Mr. and Mrs. S.G. Peach, 2503 Larry, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Sunny Lynn, to Dermot Patrick Hogg of Clonlara, County Clare, Ireland. The couple will exchange wedding vows May 2 at the First Methodist Church in Big Spring.

Holy Week activities planned

The First United Methodist Church has planned several activities during Holy Week.

April 15
• Noon — Special Holy Week Bible Study and Luncheon in Garrett Hall.

• 7 p.m. — "The Trial of Jesus" drama will be presented by the youth.

April 16
• 7 p.m. — "The living last supper" drama will be presented by the adults; the celebration of Holy Communion.

April 17
• 7 p.m. — Service of Darkness; Chancel Choir Cantata

April 19
• 7:30 p.m. — Sunrise Service, Comanche Trail Amphitheater, Keith Wiseman, speaker.

• 8:30 and 10:50 a.m. Worship Services — Easter Celebration.

Good feeling doesn't reign at end of wedding shower

DEAR ABBY: This is my first Dear Abby letter, and it's written because I am hurting. To promote good feelings, I volunteered to give a bridal shower for my stepson's fiancée. (I'll call her Marcy.) I had two invitations left over, so I gave them to Marcy for her bridal scrapbook.

Dear Abby

Later, I received a telephone call from my husband's first wife thanking me for the shower invitation! I told her that I had not invited her, and didn't know who did. She came anyway.

When I confronted Marcy, she explained that in her family it is traditional to always invite the groom's mother!

Abby, I have never heard of Wife No. 2 being asked to entertain Wife No. 1. I feel betrayed, angry and hurt and although I played the perfect hostess during the shower, I am still angry.

WIFE NO. 2

DEAR WIFE NO. 2: Marcy may have meant well, but she had no business inviting anyone to the shower without your permission. But be charitable. The bride-to-be may have been more naive than of this idea.

My parents divorced, and both remarried after I left home. How should I introduce their respective spouses? I would be comfortable with the "step" term, but my mother-in-law says it would be inappropriate. How about couples who are just living together?

WHACHACALLIT,
NORFOLK, VA.

DEAR WHACHACALLIT: You could say, "This is John, my mother's husband," or, "This is Mary, who is married to my father." Or you could sidestep your mother-in-law and introduce them as your stepparents.

And for couples who are living together without benefit of clergy, say, "I'd like you to meet Sarah, my father's friend."

DEAR ABBY: I just hate it when someone walks up to me and says, "Do you know who you look exactly like?" I am not complimented to be told that I look exactly like somebody else. In the first place, nobody wants to look exactly like another person. Everyone prefers to be an individual.

I find it specially annoying to be told that I look like someone who's about 20 years older and 40 pounds heavier than I am.

Please, Abby, do the world a favor and print this because I'm sure most people don't realize what a put-down it is to be told that they look "exactly" like somebody else whether they know them or not.

OFF MY CHEST

DEAR OFF: It's not unusual for a person to say, "You look like so-and-so" as a means of initiating a conversation. Everyone may not have a "double," but it's possible to bear a strong resemblance to someone else. (I do.) It could make a person's day to be told that she looks like Elizabeth Taylor or that he looks like Paul Newman.

DEAR ABBY: My gentleman friend and I are well into our retirement years. Each of us has lost a beloved spouse, so we understand each other's loneliness and needs, and we see each other often.

What can I say to relatives and others who ask (usually with a snicker) whether we are intimate? I do not want to confirm or deny it, but I would like to leave them wondering. I want also to cure them of the notion that the idea of sex for older people is something to laugh about.

I have enjoyed the sweetly uttered put-downs you suggest to others ("and why do you ask?" etc.) and now I need a ladylike — but cutting — remark to use myself. Please help me!

TONGUE-TIED

DEAR TONGUE-TIED: With a smile on your lips and a twinkle in your eyes say, "On the advice of my lawyer, I'm taking the Fifth."

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you had a collection of snappy comebacks for the question: "How come a nice girl like you never married?" The best response I ever heard was: "Because I never found a man who could stand to be as happy as I would have made him."

Medical survey says wearing uniforms critical

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A medical survey illustrates the importance of uniforms to professional images, says John A. Shiffert, executive director of the Professional Apparel Association.

The survey was published in a recent edition of the Journal of the American Medical Association. It reports that substantial percentages of hospital patients want their doctors, both male and female, to wear white coats and male doctors to wear neckties. They also prefer that doctors refrain from wearing blue jeans and sneakers.

"Patients clearly want to be reassured," Shiffert said, "that the physicians caring for them are truly qualified doctors."

Frostbite can last a lifetime

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I'm a skier, and for my efforts I have little else but a frostbitten finger to show. It happened months ago, but it still feels funny, especially when it gets cold or damp. Is it possible for frostbite to last so long? — P.A.

Yes, it can last this long and longer. For some people frostbite can be a lifelong problem. For most, though, the pain and aching in the frozen area diminishes in time. You just have to adapt to it and be sure to protect the finger from exposure to cold or dampness.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I use an exercycle to get my aerobic exercise. Because I have leg problems I don't tighten the tension much. Am I getting benefits just by pumping? — Mrs. N.O.

You're getting some benefit, for sure. And if you are getting into the range of the exercise pulse rate for your age, you're getting considerable help.

Here's a formula for finding what the range of your exercise pulse should be. Multiply your age by .62 and deduct that result from 210. That is your maximum heart rate. You want to get your pulse up to about 60 or 80 percent of that, starting at the lower end and working up. See my booklet "Introduction to Fitness" for further detail. Other readers may order by writing me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1.50.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: When I

play racquetball or tennis I sweat real hard. I take salt. I am constantly being told that this much salt isn't good me, that I'll die young. I am 85-years-old. — C.D.

I find it hard to come up with any advice for an 85-year-old racquetball player. But you give me an opportunity to talk about salt in general, which always become a hot topic in the summer.

It takes about two weeks for the body to acclimate to suddenly hotter temperatures. It does that on its own whether you take salt or not. During those two weeks, the body releases a hormone, aldosterone. Its job is to retain salt in the body and decrease the amount of salt in the sweat.

With this natural protection in force, artificially adding a lot of salt can cause an overload. You are also making your internal body a lot hotter than it would be without all the extra salt. And, a salt tablet is a great concentration of the mineral, and that can be a stomach irritant.

If a person feels compelled to use salt, a quarter teaspoon in a quart of plain water will do. And you certainly have no need for that once you are accustomed to the hotter temperatures.

I can only modestly suggest that you look more toward fluid replenishment. In older people, the thirst instinct may lag behind need longer than it would in a younger person. Serious dehydration can occur easily, and we need all the octogenarian players we can get.

You should weigh yourself before and after playing a game and compare the results. You need two cups of fluid for each pound of weight lost during exercise. That weight loss is not fat, but fluid.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: First, of all, why do weightlifters get back problems? Second, give me a good weight-lifting routine for an every-other-day program. — G.C.

Weightlifters get back problems when they try to lift more than they are capable of, when they used poor form, or when they fail to give their muscles the needed rest.

Here's one program among literally hundreds. Find the maximum weight you can handle once. Take 70 percent of that and lift it two times. Rest, then increase the weight to 75 percent of the maximum you started with. Lift that two times. Rest, then lift 80 percent of maximum twice. Repeat the process six times.

Jody Nix and His Texas Cowboys to play at benefit

Jody Nix and his Texas Cowboys will play at a benefit dance May 1 at the Stampede. Proceeds will benefit the patient need fund at the Big Spring State Hospital.

Volunteers at the hospital are sponsoring the dance. Tickets can be purchased at the volunteer office for $5 per person.

The volunteers provide newspaper subscriptions, fill special requests for bus tickets, G.E.D. tests, provide tickets for the annual rodeo, circus, football and basketball games and other community activities beneficial to the patients' treatment program.

Volunteer activities include sponsoring bingo parties, birthday parties, picnics, Halloween carnivals, special refreshments and dances for Valentines, St. Patrick's Day and Easter, as well as a Christmas party for the hospital and approximately 350 patients.

The Christmas events include a dance, a visit from Santa Claus with fruit and candy, sandwiches and desserts, and a gift valued at $20 for each patient.

For more information about the benefit dance, call Big Spring State Hospital, 267-8216, ext. 535.

China native shares testimony

Mrs. Elsie Yen, a native of Shanghai, China, spoke to the Women of the First Church of God on April 6 about her Christian experiences.

Yen arrived in the states on January 16, 1987.

When she stepped off the plane, she breathed several deep breaths in order to inhale the freedoms, especially religious freedom, that the United States citizens enjoy. Her native land communistic and they are unable to enjoy these freedoms, she said.

Through efforts, prayers and hard work of Christians, Shanghai has 22 churches. Her church has two services on Sunday mornings and approximately 3,000 people attend, Yen explained.

China is one fourth of the world's population and Yen is involved in an underground ministry in her native country. With no cars available, Yen promotes a walking ministry throughout the year.

Buelah Reynolds and Silvia Smith were special guests at the meeting.

After singing a song in Chinese "All the Way My Savior Leads Me," Marilyn Taylor pronounced the benediction.

Next meeting will be May 4 in the sanctuary.

Ultrasound can't assure perfect and normal child

By NYU MEDICAL CENTER
The diagnostic use of ultrasound in pregnancy has become commonplace, appears to be safe for mother and baby, and can be very valuable, according to a specialist at New York University Medical Center. However, it cannot provide complete assurance of a perfectly normal child.

"Ultrasound is a safe and wonderful tool," declared Dr. Jon R. Snyder, assistant professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the medical center. "It can reveal a great deal to help us provide better care for mother and child. But parents should be aware that it cannot show everything and does not absolutely guarantee the birth of a normal, healthy baby."

The technique, in which a visual image of the fetus is produced by the use of high-frequency sound waves, has been in use for approximately two decades. While conclusive proof of its safety has not been established, the NYU physician cited long-term studies that have followed up children for periods varying from 10 to 17 years and have found no adverse effects on either physical or mental development.

Ultrasound is not employed routinely, he said, largely because of its cost, which can range upward from $150. It is used chiefly to establish duration of pregnancy by documenting fetal size, to detect major fetal anomalies (deviations from normal development), and to confirm the presence of twins.

"Often," Snyder explained, "there is some question about the date of conception, hence about the due date as well. This becomes particularly important in a potentially high-risk pregnancy — when the mother has diabetes or high blood pressure, for example, or if we know that a Caesarean section will be required."

Ultrasound is also generally recommended if a woman has borne a child with a congenital anomaly; if there are symptoms, such as bleeding early in pregnancy, that suggest something may be amiss; when the date of delivery is near and there is a question about fetal position; and, especially, in a woman who has taken fertility drugs, to determine the presence of more than one fetus.

Stay slim by eating smart

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — One way to lose weight without feeling that you are cheating yourself is to trade calories from one meal to the next, says a food industry expert.

"Try eating a light meal at lunch, such as a salad, when you know you'll be going out to dinner," says Donna Higgins, director of Del Monte Kitchen. "That way you can enjoy yourself without gaining weight."

Higgins says weight gain is "a matter of calories consumed vs. calories burned. Reducing the amount you eat without skipping meals will do more to take weight off than a crash diet, and it is a technique that can be used anytime."

Buffalo Trail Council executive outlines new scouting plans

John Dee Johnson, new executive of the Buffalo Trail Council, outlined his plans for scouting when he met with the Lone Star District Committee in Big Spring.

Johnson succeeded Steve Odum, who retired March 1st. He is a native of Austin and earned a BBA degree at the University of Texas.

He has more than 20 years of experience as a scouting professional.

After beginning with the capital area as a district executive, he became field director and field services director at San Antonio, then served as council executive for Eastern Oklahoma at Muskogee and for Consquistador council at Roswell, N.M.

Program development at the hands of volunteers will be one of his emphases, he said, also the creation of a council calendar 16 months in advance.

JOHN DEE JOHNSON
...new executive of Buffalo Trail Council

One of the local goals, he added, will be to make the monthly roundtable for unit leaders the most important session in the district.

Among several staff changes, Johnson announced that in May Fred Yockey will succeed Phil Corbin, now retired, as district executive.

Planning has begun to make Camp Colorado City available to boys and leaders 52 weeks out of the year, he told Clem Jones, chairman, and the district committee.

He also urged women volunteers to take part in the Buffalo Gal Stampede at the Scout Ranch April 24-26. All district committees will meet in Midland April 23 with their council counterpart for a planning session, he added.

Lifestyle policies

We will be pleased to announce the news of your engagement, wedding, silver or golden anniversary in the Lifestyle section of the Big Spring Herald. We try to use the story on the date you request, but sometimes space does not permit this.

The information must be submitted to us on a form available at the Herald no later than Wednesday noon before the Sunday it is to be published. The form must include a name and telephone number of a person whom we can reach during the day for more information.

We will use a picture of the couple in the announcement. Or in the case of engagement announcements where a picture of the couple is not available, we will use one of the bride-elect. The picture must be a professional quality studio photograph. We prefer a 5 x 7 glossy black and white print. We ask for this kind of photograph so that it will reproduce well in the newspaper. Following the picture's publication, it may be picked up at the Lifestyle department.

The information for the story may be brought to the Lifestyle department of the Herald, which is located at 710 Scurry. Or it may be mailed to Lifestyle Department, Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720. Call us at (915) 263-7331 if we can help with more information or clarification of our policies.

ENGAGEMENTS
Information of engagement announcements must be submitted to the Lifestyle department of the Herald anytime after the engagement is a reality until at least three weeks prior to the wedding. Anything closer than three weeks will not be published. The engagement form must be submitted no later than Wednesday noon prior to the Sunday it is to be published.

If the bride-elect, prospective bridegroom or their parents do not now or have never lived in our area, we need to know why you are submitting your engagement to the Herald. If only grandparents live in our area, please give their names and addresses.

WEDDINGS
If a wedding writeup is submitted to the Herald after the wedding has occurred, the space allotted to it will diminish according to the length of time that has passed since the wedding.

BIRTHS
Local hospitals supply information for Storkclub. If a child is born elsewhere in the newspaper's circulation area, or is born to out-of-town parents with local or area grandparents, please contact the Herald Lifestyle Department with Storkclub information.

Information needed for Storkclub is: newborn's name, sex, time and date of birth, weight, place of birth, parents' name and address. If the baby is born outside the circulation area but has local grandparents, please include their name and address. The local grandparents serve as the area connection for the information.

FARWELL (AP) — The country of Holland and the town of Farwell don't have much in common, except for the Mesman family and their dairy.

Ben and Mary Mesman moved to the United States 27 years ago and have made their home northeast of Farwell for the past 18 years.

Decked in dairy cattle statues and Holland windmills, tulips and little Dutch girl figurines, their home brings a little bit of the old country to Texas.

The Mesmans and their four children, Ted, Tom, Johanna and Bernie, operate a dairy, and on the side Ben has started a cheese-making business — it's a hobby right now — using only original ingredients from Holland.

The family lived in California for nine years working with a dairy there, Mesman said. After saving enough money, they moved to Texas and bought a 110-head dairy operation.

Many improvements were needed at the place and Mesman made most of them himself, working 20 hour days, seven days a week, he said. The money he saved allowed him to expand into the 500-cow operation he has today.

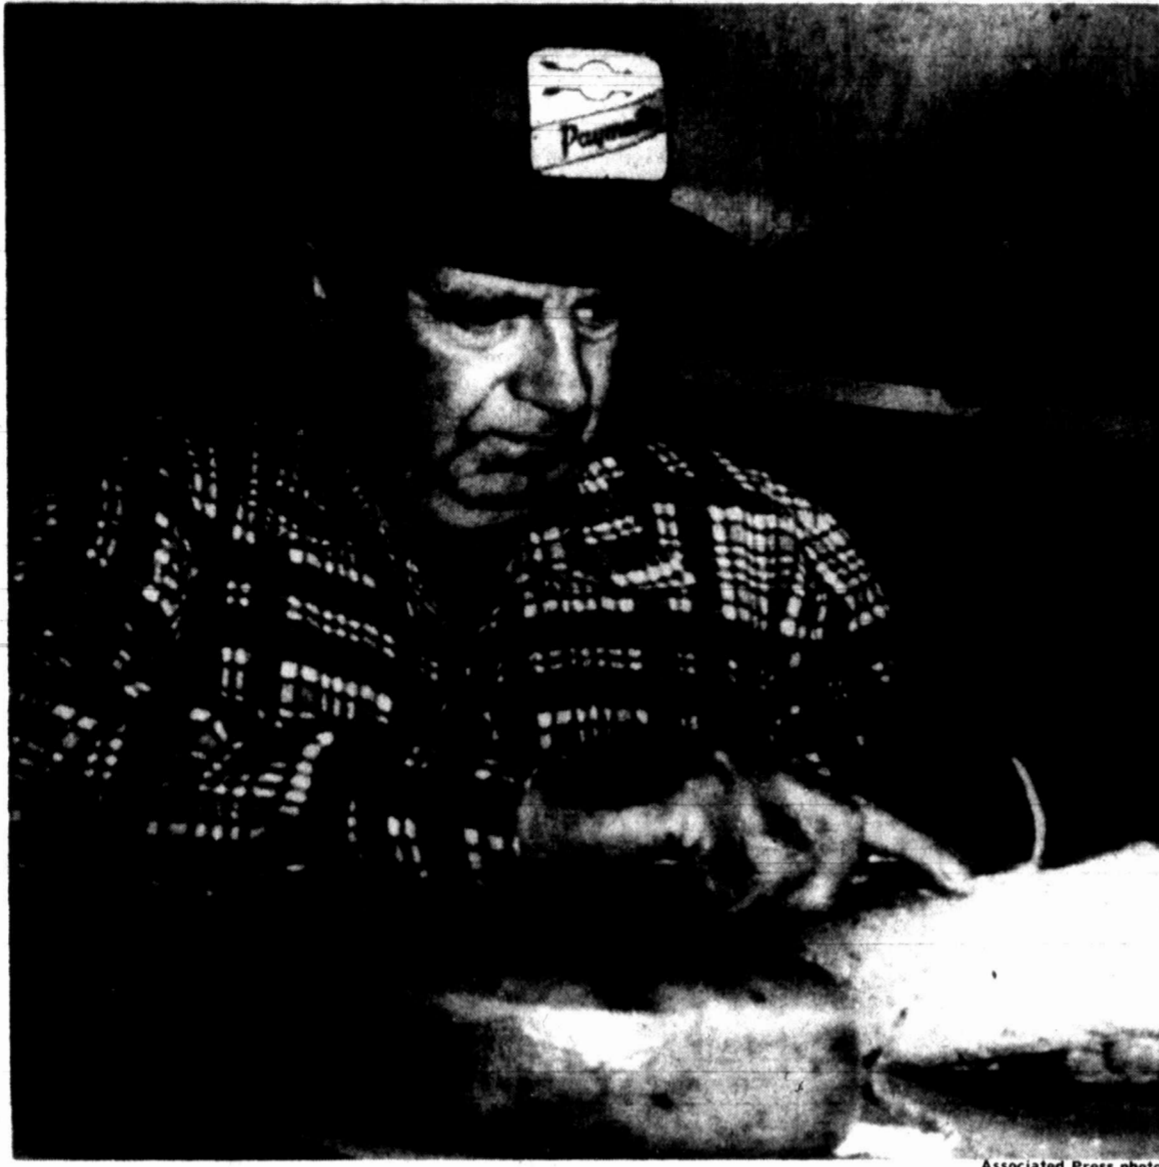

The 500-head operation produces more than 4 million pounds of milk a year, which is marketed in Amarillo. The cheese business only requires about 50,000 pounds of milk now, he said, estimating he sold 1,000 pounds of cheese last year.

The Dutch cheese hobby started two years ago after many requests were made of the Mesmans to bring back cheese when they visited Holland.

So Johanna went to Holland and learned the trade from relatives. Equipment was imported to Farwell from Holland, Mesman said, and he decided he would make the cheese himself.

"So far, it's kind of a hobby. I can't make a living on my cheese yet," he said. "Right now, I spend more money on the cheese than it's helping me make."

The cheese made at the Ben Mesman, a native from Holland, slices a piece of homemade Dutch cheese at his dairy located northeast of Farwell. Mesman, since moving to the United States 27 years ago, has been making cheese as a hobby and selling it out of his home. Last year he sold approximately 1,000 pounds of his Gouda Cheese.

Mesman farm is called Gouda, or in Holland, Goudse Kaas. It is relatively white and has no artificial colors or additives. The aging process turns it a soft yellow, he said.

"It's a cheddar cheese, and sometimes I add some spices to it. Most people like the plain, however I try different things," Mesman said.

Mesman said with his dairy already in operation, it took him about six months to get his license from the Food and Drug Administration.

Cultures from Holland are used, rather than pasteurization, he said, to give the cheese a better flavor. The process of making the cheese starts with pouring 80 gallons of milk from the dairy into a large vat. The cultures are added and the mixture is covered and left for 30 minutes to set up and get thick.

A piece of equipment resembling six knife blades is hooked to the vat and cuts through the thickened mixture for 15 minutes. This process works excess fluid up and 40 percent of it is then drained off.

Hot water is added to warm the mixture and it is again cut by the knives for 15 minutes. Another one-third of the liquid, which is milk sugar, is drained and more hot water is added. Any spices would then be added and it is stirred another 20 minutes.

It is then collected in a mold and basket and put under a press for 30 minutes. Mesman turns it over and puts it under the weight for three more hours. The weight is taken off and it is left standing in the molds for 10 hours, then soaked in salt water for 36 hours.

It is dried and after two days a plastic coating is put on with a sponge, Mesman said.

"It takes a week from beginning to cheese and then it has to ripen for 60 days before it's ready to sell," he said.

Delegates present report at homemakers meeting

The Howard County Extension Homemakers Council met so the delegates could report on the district meeting, which was conducted in Kermit last April 2.

Carolyn Reed, Myrl Soles and Frances Mason, T.E.H.A. chairman, were the delegates. Barbara Creager, district six director of Mentone, called the meeting to order at the First United Methodist Church.

Roll was called by Mrs. Marian Mitchell of El Paso County. There were 114 who attended.

Mrs. Mona Jamison, district six extension director of A & M extension offices at Ft. Stockton, introduced the 15 agents.

She discussed the uses of the 4-H educational fund. Mrs. Nell Finney, state F.E.H.A. president of Tulia, gave the message from the state board.

The business session consisted of CVU, 50 year member recognition, resolutions, district scholarships, state and national conventions.

A barbecue lunch was served in the educational building by the Pentecostal Church ladies.

Mrs. Cherry Hill of Midland was the motivational speaker. She discussed our many moods and illustrated them with hats. She gave God the glory for everything we are able to do.

Another highlight of the day was visiting the Pyramid House, 5,000-square-foot area, which is shaped like a pyramid from the outside. The sides are concrete or gray tile.

Mr. and Mrs. Greg Alexander and son live in the house that they had built after much planning. Their garage is a pyramid as well as the well house.

The Egyptians thought pyramids had special powers but Alexanders wanted a pyramid house because it interested them, according to a release from the group.

The reports were completed and a grace prayer was shared by Mrs. Vernon Kent before lunch. Vegetable soup was made by everyone contributing an item to go into it.

Soup, crackers, cake, coffee and tea were enjoyed by approximately 20. After lunch the regular council meeting was held. Irene Priebe gave the devotion "The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

The club presidents gave their regular reports as well as committee chairmen. The agent announced the Healthy Woman's Seminar April 11 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Cactus Room at Howard College.

April 29 there will be a leader's training meeting at the county library entitled "The first thing to do after a death" with Smitty Smith as speaker.

Program serves to discourage fire-bug kids

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Dennis and Patti Lazenby were at their wits' end after they found their son Paul, 9, asleep in a smoking bed, the result of an apparent attempt to burn a pencil and some socks in bed one night last December.

Though he was not harmed, they took him to the Regional Burn Care and Reconstructive Center at St. Vincent Medical Center. It has become a last resort for parents whose children like playing with fire and consider matches as toys.

"It's not like they have arsonists in the family. They are normal children who like to play with matches," said Colleen Sprenger, head nurse in the hospital's burn unit. "They (parents) are so frustrated" when punishment doesn't work, Ms. Sprenger says. "We've had numerous phone calls from parents who have done everything to stop that behavior, but the child still does it. One child (tried to ignite) rubber insects on the bedspread and it was singed all the way to the sheets. With another, it was striking a match. With another, he was fascinated by fire and when asked to burn the trash, would stir it up."

A visit to the burn center is not intended as punishment, or a scare tactic, she said. Children don't go to see patients, but to learn fire safety, fire prevention, and the dangers of fire.

Ms. Sprenger shows movies and filmstrips that focus on another child's experience with a fire or burns, and explains that lighters, matches and flammable materials are not playthings, but tools to be used only when necessary.

"Their immediate response is, 'I'm never going to touch a match again,'" Ms. Sprenger said. "Some ask for more information, and I'll show them a book" with graphic pictures of burn victims.

Ms. Sprenger says six to eight families have called the center for help in the past year.

"That may not seem like a lot, but it is such a large number to me," she said. "I'm happy they're finding us as a resource, and we can prevent a burn injury to a child."

The Lazenbys, of Toledo, brought Paul to the center after they found him asleep under smoldering bedclothes. His mother had smelled smoke, but they couldn't find the source of it, said Lazenby, a Lucas County sheriff's deputy.

When he entered the boy's bedroom, "I could see the smoke and I could smell it, but I didn't see anything on fire. I pulled back the covers and smoke came pouring out. He was sleeping on it," Lazenby said.

Paul had apparently been playing with a lighter he had found outside, and had tried to burn a pencil and some socks, his father said.

"The only thing that saved him was ... the sheets were depriving the fire of oxygen. He wanted to see if it worked. He chose a very poor place to do it. It was the first time (Paul had played with fire) we know of for about two years.

"We needed something that was going to shock him enough to put a stop to it now. Spankings didn't seem to do any good," Lazenby said.

"They showed a filmstrip and talked about fires on a level that the child can understand. They opened up a book on before and after pictures, in color, of people who had been burned. He didn't want to look at them," Lazenby said.

"He said he was never going to set another fire, and comments along that line. That was nice to hear for a change."

Ms. Sprenger says 70 percent of all burns happen in the home, and burns are a leading cause of death among children under age 14.

Leather look

Sophisticated designs appealing

NEW YORK (AP) — Leather clothing, once considered the uniform of bikers, is now showing up at board meetings, elegant evenings out and even in wedding processions.

Importers say new techniques for treating leather have made it as easy to cut, dye, stamp and print as any other fine fabric. As a result, leather has become increasingly popular with designers seeking novel fabrics for their new styles.

Tailored suits, trim, fitted dresses, and soft blouses were among the styles shown at the recent New York Leather Exposition.

Sophisticated styles in leather have widened the consumer market, says Isabelle Borbely, an analyst for the Italian Trade Commission. "We have finally broken down the American buyer's hesitancy to purchase leather clothing."

The new styles are appealing to an older, career-minded purchaser, according to Kari Allen, who imports the leather clothes of Australian designer Brigid Brock, through the Australian Wool Skin Co.

"All leather used to have a 'biker mole' (slang in Australia for motorcycle gang member's girlfriend) look," Ms. Allen said. "Now that you see real elegance and classic styling in leather, you're going to see older people and career women wearing it. I could see my mother in leather now."

Career women have finally realized that a leather outfit lasts forever and is great for long days on the road, she said.

"Leather doesn't wrinkle," Ms. Allen said. "You can get on a plane at 8 o'clock, arrive in a town for an 11 o'clock business meeting and still look fantastic."

With dry cleaning costs and the prices of other fine fabrics rising, a leather dress can be a sensible purchase, Brock said. The prices of leather dresses are competitive with those of other fabrics and never need professional cleaning, she said.

For the real devotee, the leather expo even featured a leather, suede and netting wedding dress in black, with matching leather gloves and bouquet, from Prima Sultana Inc.

In high-priced outerwear, more women are turning from fur to leather coats, especially lamb shearlings, because "it's more chic," said Alain Benveniste of the Parisian company, Mac Douglas.

Bomber jackets still monopolize the market for men's leather jackets in the United States, Benveniste said, while in Europe the latest styles incorporate leather with tent-weight nylon.

New styles in men's leather pants are also more tailored, with pleats and cuffs, made of soft, thin leather.

In leather accessories, textures, especially ostrich, are increasingly important.

Small structured handbags, such as the "Grace Kelly" bag, are returning to vogue, with alligator the most popular skin, according to Silvia Bosco of Silvia Bosco Imports. In larger sizes, roomy, "feed bag" styles will be featured next fall.

Demand for exotic leather evening bags has increased, industry experts say.

Today's status-conscious consumer is also coming back to leather luggage, said Teresa Brandani, of the Italian Aldo Navarro.

"Leather luggage is not precious but it's a symbol, and status symbols are always important," she said. "Classic looking clothing is coming back and people want nice luggage to put all those nice clothes into."
