City to study ambulance takeover

By SPENCER SANDOW

Staff Writer

City staff members will examine the feasibility of a city or citycounty ambulance service, in addition to advertising for bids for a privately-owned service, officials decided at a meeting this morning.

City councilmen, county commissioners, members of the ambulance advisory committee, other city officials and Charles Ginn, owner of Lee Ambulance, attended the 45-minute meeting at the courthouse.

The committee will review bids

County Commissioners May 26, chairman Max Green said.

The meeting was called after Ginn announced he will terminate the contract to provide emergency ambulance services for the city and county, effective July 15.

Ginn has said a high percentage of uncollected debts is the reason he's ending the contract.

However, he said this morning that he plans to submit a bid for the contract, and that he does not plan to end a transfer service contract

May 21-26, and will recommend a course of action to City Council and with the Big Spring Veterans Administration Medical Center.

Officials agreed they would favor a privately-owned ambulance service without subsidy from the city and county, but believe such an option is impossible.

Councilman Russ McEwen suggested the city examine whether an ambulance service owned by the city or both the city and county would be feasible. An advantage to such a service, he said, is that the city could control quality directly.

The ambulance advisory committee was organized earlier this year when a Scenic Mountain Medical Center staff member asked permission to establish a transfer service in Big Spring. He said hospital officials and community doctors had complaints about Lee Ambulance, including delays in service.

McEwen said collecting unpaid debts would be less of a problem because the city has resources private businesses don't, such as ordinances. Also, officials would be prepared if no one bids for the contract, he said.

Councilman Johnny Rutherford said, "We're subsidizing the emergency service. We need to know how much it would cost."

He added that a city-owned ambulance service wouldn't face the financial problems of Lee Ambulance because it wouldn't need to make a profit.

City staff should examine the costs of operating a service, buying equipment for it, or purchasing Lee Ambulance equipment, he said.

High court will decide Texas case on securities

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court today agreed to hear an appeal by a Texas oilman who says he should not have to bear full financial liability for selling unregistered oil and gas leases.

The court said it will determine whether federal securities law requires that a promoter of the deal who also bought securities himself may be forced to share liability.

In another Texas ruling today, the court allowed the state of Texas to convert private beachfront property into a public beach after a storm caused erosion that shifted the natural line of vegetation.

The court, without comment, rejected an appeal by a Galveston couple seeking compensation from the state for the lost property.

The securities case appeal was filed by Billy "B.J." Pinter, head of Black Gold Oil Co., who sold oil and gas rights in Texas and Oklahoma to a group of investors in Maurice Dahl, a California real putting the deal together. Dahl was convinced the leases would be lucrative and promoted their sale to his friends and family members.

estate broker, was instrumental in

When the leases proved worthless, the investors - including Dahl — sued Pinter.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled a year ago that Pinter violated federal law by failing to register the securities. The appeals court upheld a federal judge's ruling that Pinter must reimburse the investors for their losses plus interest.

Pinter said that Dahl, because he promoted the investment, is himself a "seller" of securities who should be forced to share the cost of reimbursement

But the 5th Circuit court, noting that Dahl did not receive a commission for promoting the sale of the leases, said he was more a buyer than a seller. The appeals court said there is no evidence that Dahl was aware the failure to register the securities was illegal.

We believe that a rule imposing liability (without fault or knowledge) on friends and family members who give one another gratuitous advice on investment matters unreasonably interferes with well established patterns of social discourse," the appeals court said.

In the beachfront case, it was noted the justices already are examining the power of states to grant public access to privately owned beach property in a case from California involving owners who expanded their beach home. But the Texas case offered different issues.

A Texas appeals court ruled last May that the common law allows state officials to grant public access to property on Galveston Island owned by Robert and Anne Morgan Matcha.

The Matchas have a plot of beachfront land in the island's Sea Isle subdivision. On Aug. 18, 1983, Hurricane Alicia practically destroyed their frame beach house on the property.

After the storm, the remains of the house were located between the Gulf of Mexico and the natural line of vegetation on the beach. The vegetation line before the storm had been between the home and the

Sweetwater residents recall twister

SWEETWATER (AP) — Bad weather is a cause for panic for Maria Castro. A year ago, a tornado ripped her mobile home apart and hurled her three blocks away. 'When I know the weather's going to get bad, I panic. It really bothers me," said Mrs. Castro, who was paralyzed from the chest down by injuries from the April 19, 1986 twister.

The storm struck at about 7:15 a.m., killing an 87-year-old man and injuring about 100 others. The tornado ripped through the town, causing millions of dollars in damage.

Mrs. Castro's husband, Eddie, had just left for work when the tornado struck. Mrs. Castro was trying to turn over a sleeper sofa as a shelter for her 10-month-old daughter, Amanda, when the home's windows imploded.

She remembers clutching Amanda to her

"The wind had me," she said. "I was bumping against the furniture. The last thing I remember was hitting the TV.

When her husband found her about 10 minutes later, she was lying on her back, partially covered by debris, with Amanda tucked safely between her legs.

Amanda wasn't hurt, but Mrs. Castro required emergency back surgery at Rolling Plains Memorial Hospital. During the next three months, doctors operated on her lower back 10 times to combat infection.

Doctors could cure the infection, but they could do nothing to repair Mrs. Castro's spinal

Stormy weather also scares Mary Shumaker. During the months following the tornado, "if it started raining, we'd get paranoid and head for a cellar," said Shumaker, whose mobile home

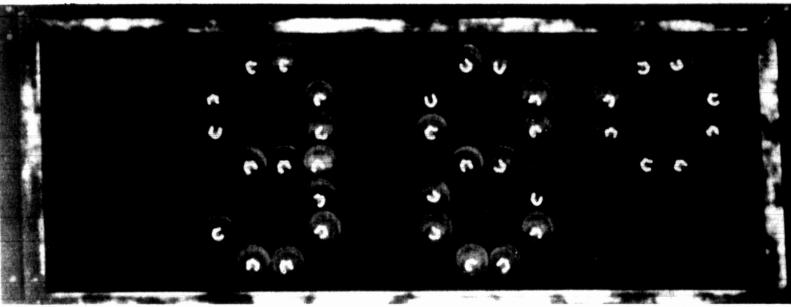

Mrs. Shumaker's husband, David, suffered only a slight head wound. But Mrs. Shumaker's brother, Albert West, who was living with them, suffered injuries that left him paralyzed below the neck.

The tornado disintegrated the mobile home, depositing the three men on the roof of a neighbor's home while throwing Mrs. Shumaker into the neighbor's living room.

Shumaker said he purchased a house with the help of a $17,400 loan from the Small Business Administration. "When we bought the house, we made sure it had a cellar," he said. In the past, Shumaker said, "when they'd say there was a tornado warning, I would just go out there and watch." But now, he said, "if it's a warning, we go to many of its former workers will get jobs with the buyers of the stores.

Most Safeway employees are being told by the new owners that they will have to apply for jobs just like everyone else.

Kroger spokesman Peter Larkin says that many Kroger personnel will be transferred to the eight

Safeway stores the chain is buying. Buyers of about 90 stores said they will reopen most within a few days. Another 41 stores have not been sold Safeway says, and all stores not sold by Friday will be

The Matchas said the state violated their constitutional rights by seizing their property without just compensation.

Yeutter says U.S. wants action rather than words

TOKYO (AP) — U.S. trade representative Clayton Yeutter was quoted today as saying Japan's efforts to stimulate its domestic market were insufficient and that the United States wants action rather than words. In a meeting with Japanese Foreign Minister Tadashi Kuranari, Yeutter said Japan's first priority should be to stimulate domestic demand to reduce its massive global trade surplus. "To carry that out is important and in the past year, this has been

"Frankly speaking, we need action rather than debate," he was quoted as saying. The official, speaking on condition of anonymity, reported Yeutter's remarks as translated into Japanese.

Yeutter arrived in Tokyo on Sunday for trade talks with Japanese officials and to attend a private forum on U.S.-Japan relations. His visit follows a U.S. decision to implement $300 million worth of tariffs on Japan's computers, power tools and other products in retaliation for its alleged violation of a trade agreement. Yeutter later told the private forum, the Shimoda Conference, that the United States was not singling out Japan in an effort to resolve its trade deficit. The Foreign Ministry official quoted Yeutter as telling Kuranari that Japan should expand imports from the rest of the world and especially from the United States and developing nations. He also said Japan needed to change its economic structure to promote imports.

Kuranari agreed that these points must be pursued, the official said.

The United States had a $58.6 billion trade deficit with Japan in 1986, according to U.S. figures.

The United States alleges that Japan broke the 7-month-old accord by selling computer chips at unfairly low prices in third countries and by failing to open its semiconductor market to U.S. products Japan denies it has violated the pact and called the U.S. sanctions unfair and discriminatory.

WASHINGTON - The Supreme Court, refusing to block the interstate spread of 'non-bank banks," today let a New Yorkbased bank holding company own one in Florida.

The justices, without comment, left intact a ruling that allowed U.S. Trust Corp. of New York to establish a subsidiary to run a nonbank bank in Palm Beach, Fla.

Non-bank banks also are called limited service banks because, technically at least, they offer either checking accounts or commercial loans but not both, as do full-service banks.

The new type of banks are springing up around the nation as major brokerage firms such as Merrill Lynch & Co. and leading corporations such as J.C. Penney and Gulf & Western enter the field.

Lost child recovered

HAMBURG, N.Y. - Police charged a father with endangering a child's welfare after his 2-year-old son was found wandering along a busy street "looking for the Easter bunny," authorities said today.

Patrolman Dwight Seufert said a motorist and his wife found the boy, James W. Salgot, crossing a busy intersection in this Buffalo suburb at 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

Seufert estimated the toddler was about a half mile from his home and could have been wandering for up to 21/2 hours because his mother left home for work at 8 a.m.

Police said the father, James B. Salgot, 24, was sleeping when officers arrived and said he was not aware of the boy's absence.

Treatment protested

ALEXANDRIA, Va. - Former U.S. Rep. George Hansen, jailed since Wednesday for alleged parole violations, says he is on a hunger strike to protest his treatment.

In a telephone interview in Monday's Fairfax Journal, the conservative Republican said he is a "political prisoner" being held because of his criticism of the Internal Revenue Service and the nation's prison system.

The former five-term congressman from Idaho said he hasn't eaten for four days. He is being held at Alexandria Jail.

Hansen, 57, was paroled from federal prison in December after serving six months of a five- to 15-month sentence for violating federal ethics laws in 1984. He was the first congressman jailed for breaking financial disclosure laws

As a condition of parole, Hansen, who lives in Arlington, was to file periodic financial statements and not travel outside the state without permission from his parole officer.

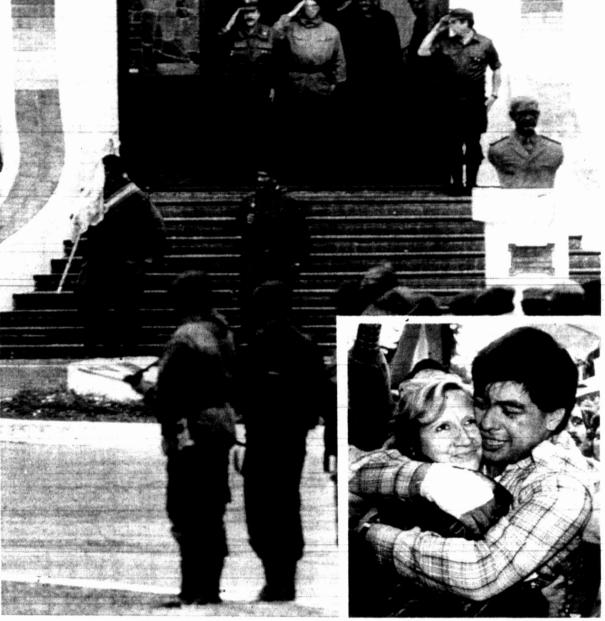

Hansen said he had recently stopped keeping his parole officer informed of his whereabouts because he believed the requirement went beyond the law.

Military mutiny ends dramatically

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — President Raul Alfonsin flew to an army base and talked dozens of officers into ending a three-day mutiny, bringing a dramatic and peaceful end to the worst crisis of Argentina's fledgling democracy.

"Today we can give thanks to God," Alfonsin told 400,000 cheering Argentines upon his return to the capital Sunday. "Our house is in order and no blood has run in Argentina. I ask all of you to go home, to kiss your children and celebrate Easter in peace.'

There was no immediate indication whether Alfonsin made any concessions in his meeting with the officer who led Argentina's second military rebellion in four days. Both groups of rebels demanded amnesty for officers accused of human rights abuses during the military regime that ended with Alfonsin's 1983

Alfonsin said the rebels would be "arrested and turned over to justice." But he said some were heroes of Argentina's 1982 Falkland Islands war with Britain who had taken a "mistaken position" and who assured him they were not trying to provoke a coup. The rebels had held nearly 2,000 troops at bay after occupying an infantry school Thursday at the Campo de Mayo army base 19 miles west of Buenos Aires. They declared their support for about 130 soldiers who rebelled Wednesday in Cordoba, 438 miles northwest of Buenos Aires. That mutiny failed Friday.

Sen. Adolfo Gass said there were 57 rebels at Campo de Mavo. but rebels said they numbered about 150.

The mutineers occupied the school's two-story main building and four barracks behind it, deploying light tanks and machine-gun positions around the building. Troops loyal to the government dug in about 150 yards from the school. There were no reports of shots being fired by either side.

Sunday afternoon, Alfonsin appeared before about 400,000 people in a plaza beside Government House, announced his intention to negotiate with the mutineers and boarded an army helicopter for Argentina's largest army base.

Returning to Government House a few hours later, the beaming president stepped to a balcony and told the crowd: "Happy Easter, fellow countrymen. The mutineers have changed their attitude."

He said rebel leader Lt. Co. Aldo Rico agreed to surrender in a meeting at a neutral site within the wooded compound. Details of the meeting were not available.

The crowd, waving banners supporting democracy. broke into wild cheers. Celebrations continued into the night across the country.

Political leaders, including several in the opposition, hailed the surrender as a victory for democracy in Argentina, where the military has seized power six times in the last 57 years.

Chinh may step down

BANGKOK, Thailand - President Truong Chinh of Vietnam has indicated he will step down when the newly-elected National Assembly convenes in June, the official Vietnam News Agency said today.

Vietnam's official radio, the Voice of Vietnam, reported Sunday that Prime Minister Pham Van Dong also plans to retire then.

Chinh, 79, and Dong, 80, were among founders of the Indochinese Communist Party in 1930. Their retirements would leave Deputy Premier Pham Hung as the only party cofounder left in the nation's leadership.

The two leaders indicated their retirement plans during Sunday's elections for a 496-seat National Assembly, in which neither was a candidate.

Vietnamese media, monitored in Bangkok, reported a high turnout in the polling but gave no results. A total of 829 candidates were running for five-year terms. All candidates had to be approved by the government.

The Vietnam News Agency, monitored in Bangkok, said a foreign correspondent asked Chinh about his failure to run in the election.

Penalty rule change to be incentive

The state's no-pass, no-play suspension is too long.

The six-week suspension from extracurricular activities for students who fail a course has riled Texans from the beginning. Many, in fact, who wholeheartedly support the public education reforms of 1984 take issue with the six-week suspension.

The reform package passed by lawmakers during that special session was excellent. But it wasn't perfect. Proponents conceded from the start that the reforms might have to be "fine-tuned" later...

But the point of fine-tuning is not to gut the rule's effectiveness. The point is to make it more effective.

The concept behind the no-pass, no-play rule is not simply to punish students. The rule is designed to push students to reassess their priorities. If they can't find the time to achieve at least a D-minus in the classroom, then they don't have time to devote to sports, band or other extracurricular activities.

But is also is important that students realize they can do both excel both in the classroom and on the field. Reducing the probation period to three weeks will give them more incentive to work toward that goal.

Two VA guards left in cold after whistleblowing charge

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON - Federal officials who are supposed to protect whistleblowers left two guards at a Veterans Administration hospital "twisting in the wind" after they accused their chief of brutality.

The two men started getting reprimands and were finally fired after their allegations led to an FBI investigation of the Cincinnati VA hospital's police chief, Daniel Wilson. Both men had nearly spotless records for years before they made the allegations.

Despite the peculiar timing of their dismissal, the Office of Special Counsel has refused to order the men reinstated.

A spokeswoman for the office said it did not have "reasonable grounds" to believe the firings were retaliatory.

Congress created the Office of Special Counsel in part to thwart punitive and arbitrary personnel actions — including reprisals against whistleblowers.

Rep. Patricia Schroeder, who chairs a House subcommittee that is looking into the case, told our associate Stewart Harris that, in her opinion, the dismissals should have been overturned.

Schroeder, a Colorado Democrat, and Rep. Frank Horton, R-N.Y., heard testimony from one of the guards at a hearing last month. They have demanded a new investigation by the VA inspector general and the Office of Special The guard, John Berter, gave Schroeder's Civil Service subcommittee chilling details of his allegations. He testified that when a panhandler was brought to Wilson's office, the chief kicked him in the groin, then stood on his calf and gouged a thumb into the man's collarbone. Wilson repeatedly kicked the man in the groin,

Jack Anderson

Berter said.

A few weeks later, another panhandler got similar treatment, according to Berter. Wilson stood on the man's groin, Berter testified, and asked him, "Who is God?" According to written testimony submitted by Berter, the man screamed in pain and blurted an answer, whereupon the police chief told him "Wrong! I'm God! And if you ever come back here again, I'll make a little girl out of you.

Chief Wilson told us it would be inappropriate for him to comment while the Office of Special Counsel was still investigating. But he noted that the FBI had closed its investigation of Berter's allegations.

The VA hospital's director, Don Zeigenhorn, confirmed this, quoting from a Justice Department letter that said the FBI closed its inquiry last month because 'evidence does not support criminal prosecution. Nevertheless, Berter's testimony and a stack of signed affidavits from individuals who claim to have witnessed or been victims of Wilson's brutality convinced Schroeder and Horton that the Office of Special Counsel and the VA inspector general should take another look at the guards' dismissals

Meanwhile, Berter and the other guard are still without their jobs. Berter even testified that the Office of Special Counsel refused to look at some of his most damaging evidence. A spokeswoman for the Office of Special Counsel said Berter was told to take his evidence to the FBI because it headed the criminal probe. Berter had already done that before the FBI closed its probe.

We talked with Tom Devine, counsel for the Government Accountability Project, a public advocacy group, about the plight of whistleblowers. He said they are often left "twisting in the wind" by the Office of Special Counsel.

"This has been a trend over the years," Devine observed. "The OSC continually declines evidence of reprisal and then says no reprisal occurs." Devine added that, during the Reagan years, the counsel has not stayed one dismissal for a whistleblower. The average was 20 a year during Carter's administration.

The Office of Special Counsel said it has halted at least 10 personnel actions against whistleblowers in the last few years.

Sense and nonsense in Baby M case

By STEPHEN CHAPMAN

In the New Jersey case of Baby M, the presiding judge has issued a verdict that is as clearheaded as it is courageous. Cutting through the tangle of legal and moral arguments raised by the issue of surrogate motherhood, Judge Harvey Sorkow declined to impose

Instead he dispensed unequivocal justice, in a way that protects the interests of all future parties to such agreements biological fathers, surrogate mothers and, not least important, the children produced by this

Sorkow's verdict was no less surprising for being so reasonable. He upheld the contract by which the child was produced, awarded custody to the father, William Stern, and denied visitation rights to the mother, Mary Beth Whitehead. By allowing Elizabeth Stern to adopt Melissa, the judge left no doubt that he thinks the child's place is with the Sterns

The basis of his decision was the contract, which provided for Mrs. Whitehead to be artificially inseminated by Mr. Stern and to bear a child to be raised solely by the Sterns. For her service, she was to receive $10,000. The mere fact that Mrs. Whitehead changed her mind upon giving birth was no reason to tear up the agreement

William Stern, after all. had agreed to father the child only because he expected to raise it. The judge noted that his verdict "must mitigate against the heartfelt desires of one or the other of the natural parents.'

Given a choice between disappointing the Sterns, who had kept their word, and frustrating Mrs. Whitehead, who had not, he harbored a legitimate presumption for The usual objections — that surrogate motherhood amounts to 'baby selling,' that it is monstrously unnatural, that it exploits poor women for the benefit of affluent ones - got the dismissal they deserve.

The Sterns did not "buy" the child. People who can be bought and sold against their will are slaves, and Melissa may not be treated as a slave. William Stern is her father not by purchase but by paternity

If anything was bought, beyond

Mrs. Whitehead's services, it was the right of guardianship. Such rights are transferred every day, in transactions involving large payments by would-be parents to lawyers, adoption agencies, doctors and hospitals. Yet no one regards adoption as commerce in

The charge that it is unnatural for a woman to give up her natural child is likewise disingenuous. The number of children given up for adoption indicates that the strength of this natural urge varies considerably. Some 500 women have done so in surrogacy agreements executed without dispute. If it is so unnatural, surrogate motherhood will vanish of its own accord. The real fear harbored by opponents is that it isn't unnatural enough. 'Exploitation" is likewise in the eye of the beholder. No woman is 'exploited' who doesn't choose to be, for a payment she deems fair. The true exploitation would be to usurp her right to make that decision herself, treating her as an irresponsible child.

In a society of unequal incomes. the affluent inevitably have more choices than the poor. This is no excuse for depriving poor people of an option that some of them would cheerfully exercise.

The fact that some infertile women cannot afford to hire surrogate mothers is no reason to deny the prerogative to those who can. To do so would not make any childless couple happier; it would only enforce equal misery on all.

The one sound reservation about surrogate mother arrangements concerns the interests of the person who has no say in them — the child. In cases where the child's welfare is endangered, courts should overrule the contract. But these will be

Couples willing to make such financial and emotional sacrifices to produce offspring are likely to place a high value on the child's welfare. As University of Chicago law professor Richard Epstein puts it, "They aren't going to spend $25,000 for the privilege of being sued for neglect."

As the practice spreads, the problem confronted in this case will tend to disappear. A more thorough investigation would have detected Mrs. Whitehead's unsuitability. This dispute will inoculate against future ones, compelling agencies setting up surrogacy arrangements to screen mothers more carefully.

That will help to ensure that surrogate mother contracts will leave all the parties satisfied with the outcome. In those unusual instances where they don't, the decision reached by Judge Sorkow will serve as sound guidance. It shows a proper concern for the interests of children, a proper respect for the freedom of adults and a proper distrust of what might be called, for lack of a better word, clubhouse in Cameron Park. Miss Nellie's Pretty Place was a last gift to the city from the late U.S. Rep. W.R. "Bob" Poage.

Poage donated $100,000 to establish a wildflower preserve in memory of his mother, Helen Conger Poage, known throughout her life by her nickname, "Miss Nellie."

One of the things that inspired Poage in his quest for an appropriate memorial to his mother was a snapshot of Mrs. Poage as a young woman, picking wildflowers near Proctor Springs in what is now Cameron Park. The wildflower preserve has been built Flood. The lower trail is about 1,200 close to that spot.

After Poage's death Jan. 3, it was discovered he had willed another $100,000 gift to the project, said Frances Sturgis, a former city council representative and beautification activist who worked with Poage on the preserve.

Money for the park also came in gifts from other citizens, who donated $60,000 after a fund-raising banquet featuring Lady Bird Johnson; from matching funds from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department; and from the Cooper Foundation, Mrs. Sturgis said.

The wild preserve was dedicated April 11, a date chosen by Poage before his death.

"He figured it'd be a time when the flowers are in bloom," Mrs. Sturgis said.

Graduate wants to ride gift horse right onto Wall Street

DEAR ABBY: I am graduating from high school in June and plan to send graduation announcements to friends and relatives, although many people think sending such announcements is just like asking for a gift. (I don't look at it that way.) The majority of my friends and relatives do not know my taste very well and tend to give things I honestly neither need nor want.

It has been a long-held desire of mine to invest some money in the stock market, talk with stockbrokers of my own ideas, and have more of a vested interest in the nation's economy — obviously on a small scale. Therefore, my question, Abby, is: Would it be inappropriate for me to include a note stating my wishes in the graduation announcement, asking friends and relatives for money instead of things — to be used for the sole purpose of investment? Maybe even including a clause asking for their advice on how to invest

Please hurry your answer; I have to send my announcements

> FUTURE INVESTOR, MONTEREY, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: Recently I ordered three of your booklets and enclosed three long, selfaddressed, stamped envelopes. Inadvertently, I sent an endorsed check for $10,000 in one of the envelopes. (The money was a loan to a friend.) I'm sure I don't need to tell you the turmoil I experienced while looking for that check for two days. On the third day, I received via overnight mail my check for $10,000. With it came this letter:

"Dear Mrs. R.: We fill orders for Dear Abby's booklets. Upon filling your order, we found this endorsed check for $10,000. I wanted to telephone you immediately to put your mind at ease, but your telephone number is not listed, so I am returning your check express mail at our expense in order to get it to you as quickly as possible. -Bob Bull, Kable News Co., Inc., Mount Morris, Ill."

Abby, I just thought you ought to know how your people handle things for you. That's what makes your organization so special BELLFLOWER, CALIF. DEAR MRS. R.: Thank you for writing as you did. To say that you made my day is an understatement. And to Bob Bull and all the fine people at Kable News Co. Inc., my profound gratitude.

(Problems? Write to Abby. For a personal, un-published reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90089. All correspondence is confidential.)

Farmers in Dell City resist foreclosures

DELL CITY (AP) — Concern for the future of Dell City has grown by leaps and bounds in the past two weeks since the Farmers Home Administration served notice it would begin foreclosure proceedings against area farmers.

More than half of the farmers in these parts could be affected by such action by the FmHA, which provides loans to farmers unable to get credit elsewhere.

About 100 farmers, farmer advocates, Texas Department of Agriculture representatives and civic leaders concerned about the area's future, met in the town's community center last week to talk about the foreclosures and their effects.

They predicted that what happened to Dell City, a West Texas community of about 500, soon would spread to other rural areas of Texas. "I don't think anyone here is denying owing the money," said farmer Larry Karr, who helped organize the meeting. "They are creating a death spiral for the community. They could reschedule or forgive part of the debt.'

The FmHA visited four Dell City farms to tag equipment for foreclosure sale, while three other farmers filed for Chapter 12 bankruptcy protection. Officials estimate at least 18 other farmers could receive similar visits in the Dell City area, where there are onbound by tougher loan requirements enacted with the 1985 farm bill, calling for a gradual phase-out of direct operating loans to farmers in favor of guarantees on loans by outside lenders.

Felipe Garcia, the FmHA's county administrator who presides over agency operations in El Paso, Hudspeth and Culberson counties, agrees with estimates that about half the farm land around Dell City will soon be changing hands.

"At one time before the energy crisis, the farmers were doing okay," Garcia told The Dallas Morning News. "Then, their fuel costs started rising. We refinanced most of the farmers out there in the early 1980s. We gave the farmers more time then, and it hasn't worked."

He said the agency has trouble unloading foreclosed land, and often holds it for more than a year before selling it for a fraction of its original value.

Farmer resistance to FmHA action in Texas last year produced a class-action lawsuit against the agency, alleging unlawful delays in approving and funding loans.

Lubbock attorney Bruce Magness, director of Operation Bootstrap, a non-profit association that holds seminars and distributes tapes providing information on FmHA regulations, was one of the attorneys in the class-action suit last year. The suit was funded with money from the Farm Aid concert.

Texaco employees back parent company in battle

PORT ARTHUR (AP) — Texaco Inc. may be based in White Plains, N.Y., but local residents know the company started here 85 years ago and the 3,300 employees in Jefferson County are backing the company as it continues its legal battle with rival Pennzoil Co.

News of Texaco filing for bankruptcy last week brought memories from September 1984, when Texaco announced it was shutting down half of its Port Arthur refinery and laying off 1,200

Texaco officials moved quickly to quiet fears about what the bankruptcy meant for local workers.

Plant workers were given a twopage letter from James W. Kinnear, Texaco's chief executive officer, reassuring them the bankruptcy filing wouldn't affect operation of the plants.

Only Texaco Inc. and two of its finance subsidiaries are part of the bankruptcy, Kinnear told workers.

The Texaco refinery in Port Arthur, Texaco research labs there and an asphalt plant in nearby Port Neches are operated by Texaco Refining and Marketing Inc.

A chemical plant in Port Arthur and two in Port Neches are operated by Texaco Chemical Co.

Kinnear's letter asked workers to tell their friends and relatives that "Texaco is strong and profitable" and that "Texaco is a good company to do business with and a good company to work for." He also said Pennzoil forced Texaco into bankruptcy.

Like their workers, local governmental officials also back Texaco. Jefferson County's Commis-

Brewers break win mark

The Milwaukee Brewers have only 150 games to go. Few people believe this season-opening winning streak will last until May, much less October. But the way things are going nowadays, it's going to take something special to beat this bunch.

One brave fan brandished a sign proclaiming "162 & 0" after the Brewers made it 12 & 0 on Sunday with yet another dramatic victory.

"It's like, 'Here it comes, it's going to happen,' " said one of Sunday's heroes, Rob Deer. 'The crowd was a big factor. I was just looking for something I could hit out of the ball park.'

Hit it he did, some 450 feet to pull the Brewers from a 4-1 deficit to a 4-4 tie in the home half of the ninth. Dale Sveum ended it with a two-run homer, and the crowd danced.

'The fans started getting into it and we started getting into it," Sveum said.

"They're on a high, just flying," Texas catcher Darrell Porter said. "They're not touching the ground. ... Somebody will zap 'em good.

"But this streak will carry them," he added. "It will be a stepping stone for their season. I'm not saying they're going to win it, but I don't think they'll finish last "

Over the long haul, that would represent a victory or sorts for a team figured to bring up the rear of the tough American League East.

"I did happen to notice in the paper the other day, all the teams that started out quickly finished with better records,' infielder Paul Molitor said. "So, a start like this means a lot.

"If nothing else than the mental side of the game, we have to become positive about our team and our chances of staying in the race.'

"You don't expect to be 12-0, not in anything," said center fielder Robin Yount, one of four Brewers left from the 1982 team that won the American League pennant.

We've done what we've had to and made very few mistakes," Yount said. "That's what you need to put a streak

Milwaukee's Dale Sveum tips his hat to the crowd at Milwaukee County Stadium after hitting a two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth Sunday to give the Brewers a 6-4 victory over Texas. The win was the club's 12th of the season, an American League record.

together. We just want to keep riding the wave."

Riding the crest is Manager Tom Trebelhorn, the polite, warmly open skipper whose most forceful admonition is "my goodness" and whose avowed intent throughout spring training was to teach his young team how to "manufacture"

"I'm just sitting back and letting them play and having fun watching like everyone else," says Trebelhorn, who is riding a 15-game winning streak dating to last season.

The problem with such a streak is that it takes weeks to build and one day to end. It could, for instance, come to a halt tonight at Chicago against the White Sox.

"Tomorrow comes quickly in this game," Molitor said.

Even if it does, and the Brewers fall short of tying Atlanta's major-league record for season-opening victories, the team won't be crushed.

"Sure we've opened a lot of eyes," outfielder Glenn Braggs said. "When we read all the comments of the publications about what place we were supposed to finish in, we knew they were false. We knew we were better than that. Now we're pro-

Astros Iose Ryan to hamstring pull

Houston Astros pither Nolan Ryan had to leave a game against Cincinnati because of a pulled left hamstring, but not before fanning his 4,300th batter.

Ryan's injury Saturday may cause him to miss his next scheduled start Wednesday when the Astros host Atlanta. Because of Sunday's doubleheader in Cincinnati. Ryan is going to try to come back on three days' rest instead of the normal four.

He has pulled his left hamstring three times in his career. He said he didn't think this injury was as

Ryan was twice put on the disabled list last year with an injured

The 40-year-old pitcher left Saturday's game in Cincinnati trailing 1-0 with two men out in the fifth inning. He made two pitches to Ron Oester before exiting.

Terry Francona fell victim to Ryan's 4,300th strikeout to end the third inning. Ryan has 4,302 strikeouts for his career.

In all, Ryan struck out six to run his season total to 25 in 17 23 innings. He allowed two hits, one a homer to Eric Davis.

After Ryan left, three Astros relievers allowed nine hits and the Reds won 8-0.

Cards lose top hurler in freak dugout accident

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Manager Whitey Herzog says left-hander John Tudor, injured when New York Mets catcher Barry Long barreled into the St. Louis Cardinals' dugout, could be sidelined longer than three months.

'I was worried about Lyons' getting hurt, and all of a sudden I lose my No. 1 pitcher," Herzog said of mishap in Sunday's 4-2 St. Louis victory. "You've got to hope you strike lightning in a bottle. It's tough to replace a guy like Tudor."

Lyons, making a rare start in place of Gary Carter, plowed into the dugout while chasing Jack Clark's foul pop. Unable to stop, he slammed into Tudor, breaking the tibia just below the pitcher's right knee. Lyons was uninjured and continued in the game.

Although the immediate outlook was for St. Louis' pitcher to spend two months in a cast followed by a month's rehabilitation, Herzog said it could be September before Tudor returns

"You're talking about two months in a cast, and then (atrophy) is going to develop. I'm not talking about pitching; I'm just talking about getting the leg back to where you can start throwing," the Cards' manager said. "And another thing you've got to be concerned about (is) if he's not right, then he's going to hurt his arm.'

Tudor, who has a 2-1 mark this year, is 36-16 since he was acquired by St. Louis from the Pittsburgh Pirates in December 1984. His 21-8 record in 1985, including 20 victories in his last 22 decisions, made him the runnerup to Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets for the Cy Young Award in the National League. He was 13-7 last Herzog said Tim Conroy, who is being recalled today from Louisville of the American Association, will take Tudor's spot in the Cards' rotation.

"Maybe all those (21) starts I gave Conroy last year will pay off," Herzog said. "He's got the stuff. He's got to pitch better than he did (5-11, 5.23 ERA) last year.'

Lyons, despite the futility of his all-out pursuit for a foul off Clark's bat that landed several rows behind the dugout in the right-field seats, said he thought he had a chance to make a catch.

"I couldn't really tell how close I was. I was just focusing on the ball, At the last minute I wanted to slide, but I guess I was already in the dugout," he said. "It's just a freak thing that happened, and I'm sorry that it happened. But all I was trying to do was make the play.

Stephenson nets elusive win

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) Jan Stephenson learned a hard lesson last month. Ultimately, it helped her earn her first Ladies Professional Golf Association victory in more than two years.

Stephenson carded a 1-over-par 73 over the 6,371-yard Sandpiper Golf Course Sunday to give her a one-shot win over Japan's Ayako Okamoto and Jane Geddes in the $300,000 Santa Barbara Open. Stephenson, who said before the tournament that Sandpiper reminded her of golf courses she played as a youngster in Australia, finished the inaugural playing of the 54-hole event at 1-under-par

Trailing Okamoto by one shot entering the final round and by three strokes with 10 holes to play, Stephenson surged into the lead by picking up four shots in three holes and then held on for her 14th career

The outcome was a lot different in the Circle K Tucson Open on March 22. Stephenson held a sixshot with 10 holes to play, but wound up in second place, behind Betsy King.

While admitting she was devastated at the time, Stephenson said that what happened taught her a valuable lesson.

The win was worth $45,000. boosting Stephenson's earnings for the year to $94,714. She jumped from 11th place to fifth on the 1987 LPGA money-earnings list. Okamoto, who had a 75 in the final round, and Geddes, who closed with a 68, earned $24,000 each. Geddes began the day six strokes behind Stephenson and seven behind Okamoto. She finished her round more than an hour before the other two. Okamoto just missed winning her second straight tournament she captured the $200,000 Inamori Classic at San Diego on April 12.

Short birdie putts by Stephenson on the ninth and 10th holes cut Okamoto's lead from three strokes to one. Then, on the 175-yard, par-3 11th hole, Stephenson hit her tee shot into a trap, but saved par by sinking a 10-foot putt after blasting out of the sand.

Meanwhile, Okamoto drove past the green before needing two chip shots to get on the green. She then two-putted from about seven feet away for a double-bogey 5.

Stephenson led the rest of the way, although she nearly lost her one-stroke advantage on the 17th

Love gets first PGA victory

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (A) — This wasn't the one Davis Love III was supposed to win. And he knew it.

"I'm excited to win on a golf course I really wasn't supposed to win on." Love said after a bizarre two-shot turnaround at the 72nd hole made him a winner in the Heritage Classic on Sunday.

Love went from one shot back to one shot in front while he was signing his scorecard in a tent beside the 18th green at the Harbour Town Golf Links

The tight little course, which winds through woods and marshes along Calibogue Sound down to the red-and-white striped lighthouse, is known among golf's touring pros as a course that places a premium on accuracy

A look at the list of former winners — including double-winners Johnny Miller, Tom Watson, Hubert Green and Fuzzy Zoeller confirms that opinion.

But the winner turned out to be a 23-year-old tour sophomore who hadn't won before, and the man who is the biggest hitter on the Tour Love won it with the driver in his bag. He used it only 17 times in the

"I was about to scream, looking at it. There's my best club and I can't take it out of the bag," Love

And he won the tournament after he thought he'd lost it.

"I thought I had to make birdie on 18 to have a chance," Love said. But he didn't. So he went to the scorer's tent to sign for a 4-underpar round of 67 that gave him a 271 total, 13 shots under par.

Steve Jones, an obscure journeyman who hadn't finished higher than sixth in a four-year career and who got into the tournament as an alternate, was standing on the 18th tee with a one-shot lead in hand and the biggest upset of the season in sight. He needed a par to win, a bogey to force a playoff. But Jones blocked his tee shot far to the right.

"A 70-yard fairway and I miss it by 30 yards," Jones said. The ball was out of bounds.

It led to a double-bogey six. It made Love a winner and left Jones thinking of what might have been.

Love's victory was worth $117,000 from the total purse of $650,000. More than that, the big hitter said it proved he "can play the game the way it was meant to be played.

Yankees sweep Royals

By The Associated Press

Entering the season, the Yankees' staring pitching presented a few questions marks, but so far New York has gotten some positive answers.

"I think we're good enough to win with what we have," said 43-year-old left-hander Tommy John, whose seven scoreless innings helped the Yankees to a 1-0 victory and a doubleheader sweep Sunday of the Kansas City Royals.

It was the first time the Yankees won both games of a doubleheader with shutouts since Sept. 25, 1977, against Toronto, and gave New York a 9-3 record.

In the first game, Charles Hudson, 3-0, pitched his second straight complete and first American League shutout for a 5-0 decision.

Dan Pasqua's eighth-inning sacrifice fly in the second game broke a scoreless tie and made a winner of reliever Pat Clements.

"Everybody questions our pitching," said Manager Lou Piniella, "but I think we're better than a lot of people think.'

In other American League games, Milwaukee improved its record to 12-0 with a 6-4 victory over Texas, Chicago defeated Detroit 7-2, Boston topped Toronto 4-1, Minnesota edged California 6-5, Seattle downed Oakland 8-1 and Cleveland swept a doubleheader from Baltimore, 3-0 and 8-7.

The Royals were shutout in a doubleheader for the first time since Sept. 9, 1974 but Manager Billy Gardner wasn't worried.

'We've been leaving a lot of people on lately," said Gardner, "But I'm not concerned. We'll score some runs."

They'll have to score for awhile, however, without third baseman George Brett, who pulled a ribcage muscle swinging at a pitch in the first game. Brett was examined by a Yankee doctor and told he could miss three-to-four weeks.

Forty-two-year-old Steve Carlton picked up his 324th career victory with four innings of relief as the Indians rallied from a two-run deficit to sweep a doubleheader.

In the first game, Greg Swindell's six-hitter and Joe Carter's home run led the Indians' attack. Swindell entered the game with an 0-2 record and 9.64 earned run average but he struck out nine and walked only two as the Indians snapped an eight-game losing streak.

Tim Hulett homered and drove in three runs to lead the White Sox's offense. Carlton Fisk, Greg Walker, and Daryl Boston also homered for Chicago.

Twins 6, Angels 5 Gary Gaetti snapped an 0-for-11 slump with a three-run homer and Jeff Reardon picked up his leagueleading fourth save for Minnesota. Gaetti's homer came off starter Don Sutton with the Twins trailing 2-1 in the sixth inning. Reardon, acquired from the Montreal Expos in the off-season, pitched the last two innings and earned the save despite allowing Ruppert Jones' two-run single in the ninth.

Sutton, 0-3, has lost five straight games dating back to last September.

Mariners 8, Athletics 1 Scott Bankhead won his third straight decision of the season and the Seattle took advantage of a team-record 10 walks by Oakland pitchers.

The Mets didn't score until Keith Hernandez hit a two-run double off Rick Horton in the seventh. Both runs were credited to Mathews.

NHL division finals gets underway

By The Associated Press Teams don't play games on three consective days in the NHL. At least, they don't under normal circumstances

The New York Islanders are used to unusual circumstances. There are few obstacles they haven't faced and overcome in their 15-year history, which includes Stanley Cup championships from 1980-83. Tonight, at the Philadelphia

Spectrum, the Islanders face the Flyers in Game 1 of the Patrick Division finals. They're coming off an epic, four-overtime 3-2 victory over the Washington Capitals, which began Saturday night and ended Sunday morning on Pat LaFontaine's goal at 8:47 of the seventh period.

Can the injury-riddled Islanders, undermanned to begin with, have anything left for the Flyers, who are fighting a rash of injuries as "We are all tired going into Philadelphia," goalie Kelly Hrudey said. "There is a disadvantage to our being so tired, but emotionally we are on a high."

Hrudey has every right to be exhausted — he played every minute of the seven-game series with the Capitals, including 128 minutes, 47 seconds in Game 7. Hrudey made 73 saves.

"We might look tired, weak and sick, but we feel good," LaFontaine added. "We're whipped, but we'll spring back."

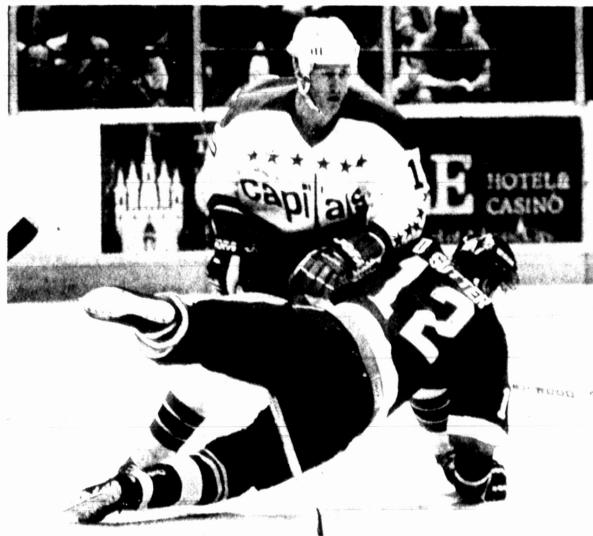

They did exactly that against the Capitals, who led the series 3-1 a week ago. The Islanders are one of only two teams ever to come back from such a playoff hole — they rallied from 0-3 against Pittsburgh in 1975, and Toronto did the same thing in 1942 against Detroit.

The Flyers have been off since eliminating the New York Rangers on Thursday night. Like the Islanders, who were missing stars Mike Bossy, Denis Potvin and Brent Sutter for the last three games with Washington, the Flyers are without several key players.

Captain Dave Poulin (ribs), Murray Craven and Ilkka Sinisalo (broken foot), Ron Sutter (back), and J.J Daigneault (sprained ankle) are hurting for Philadelphia.

And, like the Islanders, the Flyers played disciplined hockey to advance.

"It's been nice playing and winning tight playoff games," defenseman Brad Marsh said. "We out of the first round. Quebec, got so far ahead in our division that fourth in the regular season, surwe really didn't have any big games late in the season, and it was nice to get that feeling again.' The other game tonight is the first skirmish in the Battle of Quebec between the Montreal Canadiens and Quebec Nordiques.

On Tuesday night, Winnipeg is at Edmonton and Toronto is at

Adams Division

The NHL's most bitter rivalry continues with its fourth playoff edition. The Nordiques have won twice and the Canadiens once. Montreal, the defending NHL champions, were second in the Adams Division and swept Boston prised first-place Hartford in six games

Both teams enter the series brimming with confidence. The Canadiens have won 13 straight games, while the Nordiques rebounded after losing the first two games to Hartford.

"The Canadiens have a better team than the Whalers," Nordiques Coach Michel Bergeron said. 'I was surprised they didn't finish first, ahead of Hartford, during the regular season.' The second-place Canadiens finished 20 points ahead of Quebec at the end of the regular season, and they won five of eight regularseason games, including all four at the Forum.

Smythe Division

Most people expected a rematch of last year's division final between Calgary and Edmonton, in which the Flames upset the two-time Stanley Cup champs. But the Jets took care of that reunion by beating Calgary in six games. The Oilers took Los Angeles in five.

"Don't underestimate that team," cautioned Edmonton Coach Glen Sather. "They play awfully well in both ends of the rink."

"They're skating and checking well, doing all the little things well," Edmonton forward Glenn Anderson added. "They're playing great together as a team, so it's going to be a real tough series."

Celts gain homecourt bid with victory over Atlanta

By The Associated Press The Boston Celtics have not had a season to cherish, at least not by their stadards. But the defending NBA champs weren't exactly chumps, either. The Celtics clinched the second-best record in the league and the homecourt advantage throughout the Eastern Conference playoffs with a 118-107 victory over the Atlanta Hawks Sunday. The win guaranteed the Celtics one extra home game per playoff round until the NBA finals.

How important was the victory? It was the Celtics' 29th straight at home, a streak lasting more than four months, and 75th in their last 76 Garden outings. Boston was 39-2 at home and a mediocre 20-21 on the road this year. Obviously, the more home games, the better for Boston.

Dominique Wilkins led the Hawks with 28 points and Kevin Willis had 21.

Before the game, Erving was named "ambassador of basketball" in a joint House-Senate resolution. Rep. At Oakland, Purvis Short scored 20 points and rookie center Chris Washburn matched his high with 17, as the Warriors, playoff-bound for the first time in 10 years, snapped a fourgame home losing streak.

Beaches open despite shark attack

PORT ARANSAS - Beaches along Mustang Island remained open to thouands of Easter weekend visitors despite a shark attack that left a teen-age girl without an arm, officials said

"We've had people bitten before, but nothing as major as this,' Nueces County Commissioner J.P. Luby said of April Dawn Voglino being attacked by a 5-foot shark Saturday.

Ms. Voglino, 16, of Kingsland, remained in serious but stable condition Sunday after undergoing surgery at Memorial Medical Center in Corpus Christi, nursing supervisor D. Brown said. Her arm was severed about six to eight inches above the elbow in the attack.

Luby, whose precinct covers 211/2 miles of beaches, said the attack was probably an isolated case and he would not order the beaches closed.

Andre Landry, a fish behavior expert from Texas A&M University at Galveston, said there have been between 13 and 15 documented shark attacks along the Texas coast within the last 100

"We have one incident happening like this and this arouses the concern of bathers, but it's a freak occurrence, something that should not induce fear among the bathing populace," Landry said Sunday.

The fish expert said it is the time of year sharks swim in shallow waters to raise their young.

Suspect found in double homicide

HARRISON, Ark. — A Harrison Police Department detective was in Texas today to interview a man charged in the weekend shooting deaths in Arkansas of his estranged wife and her ex-husband.

"We believe this could be related to a domestic situation," Capt. Tom Duck, a Harrison police spokesman, said of the slayings early Sunday of Cynthia Hefley Bowden, 30, and Johnny Wayne Hefley, 39.

Duck declined further comment about the motive of the shootings, which police believe happened at about 1:50 a.m. Sunday. Duck said the couple had been shot several times with a 9mm semiautomatic

At about 1:15 p.m. Sunday, police in Waxahachie, Texas, arrested Michael Dale Bowden, 37, Mrs. Bowden's estranged husband, on a capital murder warrant issued Sunday by Prosecuting Attorney Gordon Webb of Harrison.

Sgt. Tommy Hale, a spokesman for the Waxahachie Police Department, said Sunday that Bowden was arrested without incident in the town, about 25 miles south of Dallas, after police told his relatives that he was being sought for the slayings.

Police found the bodies in the living room of Mrs. Bowden's house after her 5-year-old son ran to a neighbor's house. "The neighbors called police. Officers arrived at the scene and discovered both victims in the living room," Duck

Easter service held for LTV protest

DALLAS — The Rev. William "Jay" Geisler is conducting a personal crusade on behalf of U.S. workers, especially those in his hometown of Aliquippa, Pa., where the nation's second-largest steelmaker has closed all but a small portion of its steel works.

"We have 30 percent real unemployment and 50 percent underemployment," said Geisler, a fourth-generation steelworker who left the mills in 1981 to enter the priesthood.

Geisler, 31, was here to pray for LTV Corp. to reinstate pension and other benefits cut in July when the giant conglomerate filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code.

"Let us remember as we stand here in front of this modern empire that as Moses went to the Pharoah and told him to deliver his people, to give them freedom, we come here and say to the executives, 'Give our people justice,'" prayed Sunday on a patio behind LTV's towering headquarters.

About 20 people, mostly brawny former steelworkers, participated in the Easter Mass, held on the eve of what organizers hoped would be a large protest against the

One of the delegates, Augie Sanchez, 58, of Struthers, Ohio, said he was a "forced retiree" after working 33 years for Republic Steel, now owned by LTV Steel.

"We just want what's coming to us — no more, no less," said his

HEREFORD - Normally, development-minded citizens embrace people scouting for a site for new industry

But U.S. Department of Energy personnel aren't likely to get a warm reception in the Texas Panhandle.

Most people in these parts are not eager to win out in the search for a location of a nuclear waste dump site.

The DOE will soon send a crew of about 350 to determine whether Deaf Smith County would be a suitable site.

"Every time there's a DOE information meeting, there's trouble," said Mayor Wes Fisher, who's in the potato business. "There's demonstrations. Feelings start running higher.

Local farmers and cattle ranchers who fear their land will become worthless and their crops and livestock stigmatized have mobilized against the selection of the area.

A farmers and ranchers group called POWER, People Opposed To Wasted Energy Repository, has mounted a series of protests, radically changing the mood of the quiet but hard-working county.

Boyd Foster, a businessman who narrowly lost a city council race earlier this month, running on an anti-dump campaign says federal officials have been well-received by bankers and real estate people.

The study of this area as well as areas in Nevada and Washington state will cost about $1 billion, much of which will wind up in the local economy.

Women lead 3 of 7 largest cities

DALLAS (AP) - Three of Texas' seven largest cities have female mayors after weekend elections in which Dallas elected a woman for the first time as the head of city government.

Annette Strauss, who has served as mayor pro tem for four years, said her election Saturday shows the state's second-largest city has erased the prejudice that once hindered women and minorities.

Kathy Whitmire was elected mayor of Houston, Texas' largest city, in 1981.

Also Saturday, Corpus Christi voters elected Betty Turner as their first female mayor, turning back a Hispanic leader's bid for the post. The coastal city is the state's seventh largest.

Mrs. Strauss, the sister-in-law of Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss, defeated businessman Fred Meyer by a margin of 55.9 percent to 44.1 percent in a runoff election. She will take office May 4.

Wearing a hat with the slogan, "Ms. Mayor. Lace Over Steel," Mrs. Strauss said, "I think this proves one thing: that in Dallas one is judged by one's own energies, abilities and imagination, and that gender, or race or anything, nothing else like that can stand as roadblocks to one's success

Mrs. Strauss, 63, faces the formidable challenge of leading a city suffering from economic woes that have hit oil-poor Texas.

Mrs. Turner, who has served six years on the City Council, had 58 percent, or 29,649 votes, over Tony Bonilla's 42 percent, or 21,745 votes, with all of the ballot boxes counted Saturday.

Probe begun into police misconduct

ceded defeat in their runoff election for Dallas mayor Saturday.

DALLAS (AP) - A congressional probe begins this week into allegations of police misconduct in Dallas' minority community. The House Subcommittee on Criminal Justice, chaired by U.S. Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., expects to call 25 witnesses at the hearings set for Friday and Saturday. Police Chief Billy Prince says department officials will use the hearings to unveil a program for improving community relations. The plan would require the Dallas City Council to commit funds to expand police programs. Suggestions include spending about $1 million to add five community "storefront" stations as well as a state-of-the-art infrared simulator for police firearms training, Prince said. He also will lobby for more manpower and a public acknowledgement of the dangers police officers face.

'Our main concern is that we get a fair hearing, far and objective,' Prince said.

The public hearings were requested by local black elected officials and community leaders.

The House panel will not issue rulings on any shooting cases nor call witneses or evidence.
