Commission focuses on speed limit

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

Cars could be traveling to and from Big Spring on Interstate 20 at 65 miles per hour this summer. Action by the State Highway Commission after a Friday public hearing could result in the higher speed limit being put into effect in Texas.

The hearing will be conducted at 9 a.m. Friday in Austin to provide a forum for public comments and testimony on the considered change.

The Federal Government gave states the authority in March to increase the speed limit to 65 mph on rural stretches of interstate highway.

The Texas State Legislature, however, gave the Commission the authority to change the limit in September 1986.

The legislation was passed during a special session allowing the Commission to increase the speed limit if the Federal government approved the change, said Morris Wilkes, assistant to Sen. John Montford.

According to federal guidelines, areas of 50,000 or less population would be considered rural for the purpose of implementation of the 65 mph speed limit, Harvie Jordan, public information officer for the State Highway Department, said.

If the Commission approves the change, it must file its decision with Gov. Clements and Secretary of State Jack M. Rains, Jordan said.

The governor then must issue a proclamation of the change, which would take effect eight days after his proclamation, Jordan said.

The Highway Department doesn't know yet how close a 65 mph speed limit could come to a metropolitan area without being required to revert back to 55 mph, Jordan said. He said the Commission is waiting for guidelines from the federal government.

But, he said, approximately 2,400 miles of interstate could be affected if the 65 mph speed limit is approved.

The 65 mph speed limit took effect on rural interstate in Oklahoma April 15, said Mike Mayberry, spokesman for the Oklahoma Department of Transportation.

Social Security drive nets slow response

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

The Big Spring Social Security Office's drive to assign social security numbers to youngsters netted fewer responses than expected, Branch Manager Gloria Hopkins said today.

"I'm looking at it optimistically," Hopkins said of the 399 forms received from seven area elementary schools in Big Spring, Colorado City and Snyder. Approximately 17 percent of 2,887 forms were returned to the office, she said.

It may show "that parents have taken the initiative" to obtain a social security number for their dependent children, Hopkins said.

According to the Tax Reform Act of 1986, taxpayers will be required to list social security numbers for each dependent age 5 or older on their tax return due in 1988.

The requirement was added to enable the Internal Revenue Service to identify children who have been claimed as dependents on more than one tax return, explained Marlene Gaysek, Internal Revenue Service Public Affairs Officer from Dallas.

The problem lies mainly with divorced parents who both might attempt to claim the children on separate tax forms, she said.

Hopkins said she hopes parents will apply for the numbers as soon as possible to avoid a possible delay in filing their 1987 tax return next year.

It could take up to 10 weeks to receive a social security number during the busiest time, she said, estimating that it takes approximately one month right now.

Hopkins said she noticed a "marked increase of people coming into the office to obtain social security numbers for their children" since a Big Spring Herald article was published April 19 about the Social Security distribution of forms.

School ruling could benefit area districts

From staff and wire reports

AUSTIN — In the governor's office, halls of the Legislature and school offices in Howard County, officials are wondering "what's next?" now that a judge has ruled Texas short-changes poor school districts.

Some lawmakers said State District Judge Harley Clark's ruling Wednesday could be among the most expensive court edicts in state history — and that could prove beneficial to the local school system.

Bill McQueary, recently selected Big Spring school superintendent, said Big Spring probably will benefit from a restructuring of the financing system.

Big Spring is in the top of the bottom third of Texas school districts, based on per-student funding, he said. Big Spring spends about $3,200 per student per year, slightly less than the state average of $3,400, he said.

However, he added that Big Spring school officials are satisfied with the present funding system.

J.L. Poyner, superintendent of the Forsan school district, said the case is too complicated to predict ramifications.

States that have had similar occurrences have become one-school district states, or have developed a system of financing by the state alone, on a per-student basis, he said.

Poyner said that although some smaller districts are perceived as wealthy, Dallas, Houston and Austin districts were the targets of the case, and the biggest impact will be felt there. He said those districts, with a great many students, are wealthy.

However, he doesn't believe wealth will solve all the problems of smaller, more isolated school districts. Culture and job opportunities of the community also play a part, he said.

"Just dollars may not buy the same ability to provide a quality education," he said.

Gov. Bill Clements, voicing "dismay," said it would cast doubt over bonds local school districts try to sell.

"It will impact the bonding capability of the local independent school districts. That, in turn, will have an impact on the 22-to-1 (student-teacher) ratio, the building of additional classrooms, as well as other capital expenditures," Clements predicted.

Clements and state education officials said an ap-

Import fee

Study says cheaper to store oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's cheaper for the United States to store crude oil against a possible disruption in imports than it is to impose a protective tariff, according to a staff study for the Federal Trade Commission.

The study, released Wednesday and yet to be passed on by the commission, parallels an Energy Department report last month. That report said a tariff or import fee would cost the economy more jobs than it would save in the domestic oil production industry, hard hit by more than a year of low prices.

The FTC staff study by economists Keith B. Anderson and Michael Metzger estimated the loss to the economy of a $5-per-barrel tariff on crude oil and gasoline at $3.6 billion to $3.8 billion a year.

The loss figures consist of the amount that consumers would pay in higher prices and that refiners would suffer in reduced profits, even when taken against higher profits to domestic producers and increased revenues to the government.

Similar tariffs have been proposed in Congress, but have languished in the face of opposition by the Reagan administration and the consuming states.

"Even if there is a serious risk of a major oil shock and assuming that a tariff is capable of ensuring an adequate level of production in the future, it appears to be less costly to acquire and store the oil needed to maintain an acceptable level of consumption in the event of a disruption," Anderson and Metzger wrote.

The government has in fact squirreled away 520 million barrels of oil in salt domes along the Texas and Louisiana coasts, about 100 days' worth of imports. The study assumes there is no oil already

Children's feature will begin Saturday

Beginning Saturday, the Herald will run "the Mini Page," a weekly feature for kids. "The Mini Page" will appear in each Saturday's edition.

Each Mini Page is built around a central theme interesting to children, such as pets, space, holidays, popular entertainers or the dangers of drug abuse.

The information is packaged with features, quizzes, pictures, puzzles and games.

The page also can be an educational tool for parents and teachers. A teacher's guide is included in every issue to help parents and teachers promote children's reading skills and awareness of current events.

This week's Mini Page focuses on Mothers Day, May 10, and offers simple recipes children can make in connection with the holiday. It includes the first of a four-part miniseries on the Constitution, a profile of Texas Ranger outfielder Pete Incaviglia, jokes and games.

The Mini Page is created by Betty Debnam of Washington, D.C., a former first and second grade teacher who holds a master's degree in education from Duke University.

The page first appeared in the Raleigh News & Observer in 1969.

It has received numerous awards, including 10 distinguished achievement awards from the Educational Press Association of America, praise from the International Reading Association, and a Freedom Foundation honor for outstanding achievement.

Congressmen push oil tariff bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oil state congressmen introduced a pair of bills aimed at reviving the U.S. oil industry by placing tariffs on imported oil.

The Energy Independence Act of Rep. Joe Barton, D-Ennis, calls for an import fee to maintain a minimum $25 per barrel oil price, government purchases of oil from smaller producers (or stripper wells) and increased flow into the strategic oil reserve.

"We think that this bill, if passed, will go a long way to minimizing the country's energy dependence and maximizing our energy independence," Barton said.

Rep. Michael Andrews of Houston and nine other Democrats also introduced an oil import bill Wednesday identical to one submitted in the Senate by Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and Bennett Johnston, D-La., on April 9.

The Andrews-Bentsen bill calls for a $24 fee price, instead of $25. All revenues would be applied to reducing the U.S. budget deficit. It also seeks elimination of the windfall profits tax.

Barton said the import fee would add 21 cents a gallon to U.S. gasoline prices, and would generate $12 billion in revenues, $9 billion of which could go to servicing the national debt and $3 billion to buying oil from stripper well producers at $25 a barrel.

Neither bill includes an exemption for home heating oil. Northeastern representatives have long opposed an import fee because they fear it would raise the cost of home heating oil.

"What they fail to realize is that the OPEC countries have for years manipulated the price of oil down, and whenever they want to, they can manipulate the price back up," said Rep. Martin Frost, D-Dallas.

Co-sponsors of the two bills are all from southern oil states except for Dick Cheney, a Wyoming Republican. Some admitted that passing a bill will be tough in light of the opposition but said the climate is changing on Capitol Hill.

stored. The study calculated the cost of storing enough oil to provide a year's supply of 1.1 million barrels a day, which would be the amount of extra production stimulated by a $5 tariff on crude and gasoline.

Assuming a 3 percent loss of oil that cannot be retrieved, 413 million barrels would be needed.

At $17 a barrel for the oil and $3 a barrel to build a storage site, the first year's cost of storage would be $8.25 billion. The oil would be purchased all at once. The first-year cost of the tariff would be $3.8 billion.

However, storage costs would drop in the future to the costs of maintaining the reserve and the interest on the money to buy the oil, while the tariff cost would recur yearly.

Baseball equipment stolen

Approximately $600 in baseball equipment was stolen from the bed of a pickup owned by Ricky Robertson, 1315 Princeton Ave., parked either at his residence or Highland Lanes bowling alley, between 10 p.m. Tuesday and 4:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Taken were five baseball helmets valued at $100, two catchers mitts valued at $150, a $50 pair of shin guards, a chest protector and face mask valued at $50, and eight baseball bats valued at $250.

Bobby Marshall, 21, 401 Young St., was arrested at 900 E. Fifth St. early this morning on suspicion of possessing drug paraphernalia.

A suicide attempt on N. Main St. was reported. Lt. Jerry Edwards said that the individual received medical treatment for an overdose of pills and was released.

Local man fatally wounded

A 19-year-old Big Spring man apparently upset after a family disagreement fatally shot himself in the elevator of Scenic Mountain Medical Center, police Lt. Jerry Edwards said.

Ruben Trevino, 1002 N. Main St. Apt. 65, shot himself in the head at about 6 a.m. Wednesday, Edwards said.

Hospital spokeswoman Emily Ward said he was pronounced dead at 2:27 p.m.

Trevino, who apparently became overwrought after a family disturbance, entered the elevator on the fourth floor, Edwards said. A hospital receptionist found him, fatally wounded, when the elevator doors opened on the first floor, he said.

Ward said Trevino was taken to the emergency room and to the intensive care unit in attempts to save his life.

The handgun used in the shooting has been recovered, Edwards said, adding that police investigation indicated the death was a suicide.

Fraud Con artists play games with three

Three Big Spring citizens have lost approximately $14,000 during the past week as victims of con games, police Lt. Jerry Edwards said.

In one scheme, a victim is approached by a con artist, who asks if money he has found belongs to the victim, Edwards said. The victim sees the money, states it isn't his, and is drawn into the scheme on the pretext of finding the money's owner.

The victim is conned into withdrawing funds from his bank account as "good faith" money and a switch is made, leaving the victim with a bag of torn newspaper, he said.

Another scheme involves the victim being contacted by a stranger, who asks what he should do with money the con artist has just acquired, Edwards said.

The suspect usually says he is from out-of-state and has heard it's difficult to withdraw money from Texas banks after it's deposited. The victim is conned into withdrawing a large amount of money to show that it can be done, and a switch is made in which the victim loses his money.

Edwards said the victims are usually older citizens, and are chosen at random. The con artists are strangers to the victim, and are usually black males and females, but also may involve whites, he said.

He advised that anyone approached by a stranger attempting to persuade him to withdraw money from a bank account should immediately contact the police or the Howard County Sheriff's Department, with as much information on the suspects as possible.

BBB issues warning on piano ads

A mini electronic piano advertised through the mail in Big Spring is the size of a hand-held computer, Better Business Bureau President of the Permian Basin John Schmidt said.

A Big Spring woman received a postcard advertising the piano last week.

Mrs. Billie Falls, 1506 Nolan St., said her daughter called the Better Business Bureau about the piano and was told of its size.

"I'm not going to buy something I can't see," said Falls, explaining that no photo or picture of the piano appeared on the postcard, leading Falls to believe the advertisement might be phony.

The card says "the following musical instrument has arrived at our Las Vegas dispatch center and is now available for immediate shipment to you."

"Please return this card along with $12.49 for immediate release and insured motor delivery to your address."

Schmidt said his office called the Las Vegas Better Business Bureau for a report on Far West Electronics Warehouse, the seller of the product.

Schmidt said he was told the company has "insufficient customers to register its reliability."

Customers have complained about a different company selling a similar product from New York City, however, he said.

The Las Vegas bureau ordered the piano and discovered it was quite small, Schmidt said.

Schmidt recommended that people call the Better Business Bureau for a report on any companies with which they are unfamiliar.

He also cautioned about providing credit card numbers over the phone except to major retailers who have a reputation for ethical business practices.

School ruling

peal of the decision is likely, although details haven't been worked out.

"Certainly this surprises me. This situation in Texas and the concept of independent school districts has been going on all my life. Anybody that would not be surprised just doesn't know what the case is all about," the governor said.

If upheld, Clark's ruling could require massive consolidation of school districts and could change the face of rural Texas, according to a state lawyer.

"When you start messing with district boundary lines, in many places you're dealing with the very definition of why that community even exists or why it still exists. In many places in Texas the school district is the center of town, not just educationally, but socially and in other aspects," said David Thompson, the Texas Education Agency lawyer who unsuccessfully defended the school finance system.

The judge, in his order, said: "There is no underlying rationale in the district boundaries of many school districts." If the order is upheld on appeal, Thompson said state lawmakers would have to carve new districts to guarantee fair distribution of wealth.

Some legislative leaders predicted Clark's order would not stand up on appeal.

It took its present name in 1945 becoming the third ecumenical celebration to be sponsored each year by Church Women United. The others are World Community Day, the first Friday in November, and World Day of Prayer, the first Friday in March.

The local Church Women United volunteer their services at the Westside Community Center, Mountain View Nursing Home and the Big Spring State Hospital.

Goetz tells intentions

NEW YORK — Bernhard Goetz told police that had he been thinking more clearly the night he gunned down four youths in a subway car, he would have shot one of them point-blank in the head.

Instead, Goetz said in a tape-recorded statement played Wednesday at his trial, he fired a bullet into an already wounded Darrell Cabey's spine after telling him, "You look all right, here's another."

"My intention, I know this sounds horrible, but my intention was to murder them, to hurt them, to make them suffer as much as possible," Goetz said, describing his actions as "monstrous" and "disgusting."

Death blamed on U.S.

PORTLAND, Ore. — Angry family members blamed the U.S. government for the death of Benjamin Ernest Linder, an American hydroelectric engineer killed by Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

"The United States government killed my brother," said John Linder, the slain American's only brother. "The bullets that were used or the grenades that were used to kill my brother undoubtedly came from the United States."

"His death was not an accident. His death was policy," John Linder said at an emotional news conference that included friends and colleagues of Linder's in the pro-Sandinista effort.

Body buried in yard

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Searchers using infrared sensors found a decomposing body Wednesday buried outside a house where a man charged with killing six women once lived, authorities said.

The remains were discovered shortly after daybreak when a low-flying helicopter equipped with scanning gear pinpointed the site in area of modest homes, about four miles southeast of the state Capitol.

The body was found in the same yard where the remains of another victim, a young female, linked to Morris Solomon were discovered March 19, police spokesman Sgt. Bob Burns.

April snow brings shock

Snow flurries dusted northern Maine today as the late April storm that stunned New England with up to 21 inches of snow dwindled after knocking out power to thousands, tangling traffic and hindering the search for a downed pilot.

"After getting over the shock of it all, cleanup is going reasonably well," public works commissioner Worth Landers said in Worcester, Mass., which mobilized more than 150 snowplows Wednesday to deal with as much as 17 inches of snow.

Channell

Guilty plea may unravel Contra network

WASHINGTON (AP) — The guilty plea of conservative fund-raiser Carl R. "Spitz" Channell, who sometimes introduced contributors to President Reagan, opens the door for investigators to unravel how White House aide Oliver L. North operated his private Contra aid network.

Channell, who pleaded guilty on Wednesday to conspiracy to defraud the U.S. government of taxes on $2 million in contributions for military aid to the Nicaraguan rebels, also agreed to cooperate with independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh in his investigation of the Iran-Contra affair.

In a brief hearing following Walsh's filing of a criminal information against Channell, U.S. District Judge Stanley S. Harris asked Channell to name the persons with whom he conspired.

Channell replied, "Colonel North, an official of the National Security Council."

Walsh aide Michael Bromwich said prosecutors are not "at this time" bringing charges against North, who was fired from the NSC last November.

Channell has not implicated the president in his Contra aid effort. But he and others have confirmed that he took contributors to the White House on several occasions and that Reagan met with some of them.

Channell, who has been an activist conservative fund-raiser since the 1970s when he raised money for advertising campaigns against liberal congressmen, has said he had 14 meetings with North at the White House.

Channell's spokesman has said Reagan dropped in on sessions with Contra contributors to thank them for being patriotic Americans, but North wrote a memo on May 16, 1986, to his then-boss, National Security Adviser John Poindexter, saying, "The president obviously knows why he has been meeting with several select people to thank them for their 'support for democracy' in CentAm."

The memo was contained in the Feb. 26 report of the presidentially appointed Tower commission that investigated the clandestine U.S. arms sales to Iran and the diversion of payments to the Nicaraguan Contras.

Asked about that memo at a news conference several weeks ago, Reagan said he had thanked the contributors who supported a pro-Contra TV campaign, which also was organized by Channell.

Jane McLaughlin, who formerly worked as a fund-raiser for Channell, said Wednesday on ABC-TV's "Nightline" that for contributors to meet with Reagan they would have to give at least $200,000.

"None of my contributors gave in excess of $200,000. However, I do know that other contributors did meet privately with the president. It wasn't kept a secret," she said.

U.S. to probe slaying

MATAGALPA, Nicaragua — The U.S. Embassy said it was sending a team to northern Nicaragua to investigate the death of Benjamin Linder, a pro-Sandinista American volunteer killed by Contra rebels.

The circumstances surrounding Linder's death Tuesday remained unclear.

Foreign Minister Miguel d'Escoto, in a protest note to Secretary of State George Shultz, said Linder was "kidnapped and later murdered." D'Escoto said the attack was carried out "by a counterrevolutionary group under contract to the U.S. government."

Pope to honor victims

ROME — Pope John Paul II today began a five-day pilgrimage to West Germany during which he plans to hold up two victims of Nazism as models for Roman Catholics.

The special Alitalia DC-9 carrying the pontiff took off from Rome's Leonardo da Vinci Airport at 4:18 p.m. (10:18 a.m. EDT) for the flight to the Cologne-Bonn airport.

The beatifications of a martyred Jewish-born nun and a priest, and a visit to the grave of a cardinal who defied Adolf Hitler's Third Reich will highlight the pontiff's 11-city tour.

"The witnesses of the past should become signs of hope for all of us," the pope told the German faithful in a television address last weekend.

Soviets OK nationality

MOSCOW — An American woman married to a Soviet man said Wednesday that Soviet authorities had recognized the U.S. citizenship of their baby, ending fears that the infant might not be allowed to leave the country.

Susan Graham, of Spokane, Wash., said Soviet officials stamped "foreign national" on her 4-month-old daughter's U.S. passport Tuesday and granted the infant exit papers for a weekend trip with her mother to Sweden.

Ms. Graham said she thought the case may have received a boost from the April 14-16 visit to Moscow of Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

"I don't know if he mentioned us (to Soviet officials) but he was concerned," she said.

Abductors offer swap

BEIRUT, Lebanon — An Iranian Embassy employee has been kidnapped in west Beirut, and his abductors offered to trade him for missing Anglican Church envoy Terry Waite, a weekly magazine reported today.

The magazine Ash-Shiraa said unidentified "armed elements have kidnapped Mohammad Khatami, an employee of the Iranian Embassy in Beirut ... offering to swap him for Waite."

The weekly, which broke the story of U.S. secret arms sales to Iran last year, said Khatami was held "at an apartment run by a political party outside Beirut."

Opinion

Views of papers across the U.S.

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around the nation:

Warns U.S. of world economic role

There are two military superpowers and two economic superpowers. Since the United States is the only nation that fits both categories, its responsibilities to provide world leadership and stability go far beyond those of the Soviet Union and Japan.

While trade wars would not necessarily bring on nuclear holocaust, they would so depress the human condition on this crowded planet that consequent upheavals could bring on military confrontations leading to God knows what.

It is worth restating these truisms as President Reagan prepares for this week's summit meeting with Japan's Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone.

The assumption of a world role is always difficult, as Americans well know. Unless Japan changes dramatically to conform with its new status, the United States might lamentably go protectionist and precipitate a global recession of unknown consequences.

Baltimore Sun

U.S. should prohibit Soviet goods

For 57 years, United States law has prohibited the importation of goods made by slave labor.

Nowadays this legislation is generally ignored when it comes to materials produced in the Soviet Union.

There is overwhelming evidence from our intelligence agencies that within the Soviet Union there is flagrant disregard for human rights.

In this slave labor system are an estimated 4 million prisoners, 10,000 of whom are political and religious prisoners. The United States receives from the Soviet Union products such as tea, wood cabinets, agriculture implements and various minerals. All these products are suspected of having been produced by forced labor.

Quite simply, our government needs to uphold the law and stop the entry of goods produced by Russian slave labor into our country.

The Wheeling (W.Va.) Intelligencer

Opposes 'brave new world' fear

The U.S. Patent and Trademark Office has created a stir by establishing a new policy that allows patents on new forms of animal life developed by man.

The radical Jeremy Rifkin, president of the Foundation on Economic Trends, warns that "this decision is a harbinger of a brave new future" where animals are reclassified and "stripped of their species integrity."

Biotechnology developments always deserve cautious treatment, but banning patents on such developments only avoids balancing the economic and ethical considerations that are required when dealing with an emerging U.S. industry.

Cross-breeding, whether through the splicing of seeds or genes, has economic benefits that are more tangible than Rifkin's scenarios. Policymakers have balanced economic and ethical considerations concerning technology in the past and have produced generally minimal, warranted regulation. There seems to be no reason to deviate from this path.

The Detroit News

Officials close scheme operation

Opponents of President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative were positively gleeful over a pessimistic report that the most advanced weapons will require a decade more research.

So what? Of course, advanced science requires research and experimentation. Naturally, the obstacles to deploying exotic strategic defenses are formidable, but that does not mean they are insurmountable.

It is not politically, economically or strategically sound to wait until every last exotic defensive technology is fully operational before a system is deployed.

The first stages of a space-based anti-missile defense system will be in place late in this century or early in the next. The only question is: Will it be American or Soviet?

The Arizona Republic, Phoenix, Ariz.

Goetz's trial is New York City's trial

Two years and four months after shooting four teen-agers he said he feared were about to mug him on a New York subway train, Bernhard Goetz is finally being tried. Among charges against him are four counts of attempted murder.

Six of the 12 jurors have been victims of crimes.

It may be impossible in New York City to impanel a jury that does not include three or four or more crime victims and several members with friends or relatives who have been crime victims.

Whose fault is that? It is the fault of New York authorities who have been inadequate in the suppression of crime.

Goetz was the defendant when opening statements in the case began Monday. But it is New York City that is on trial.

The Indianapolis Star

Says high court OKs states murder

As if capital punishment laws weren't barbaric enough already, the Supreme Court (has) approved the death penalty for accomplices in crimes that wind up in a victim's death.

It's simply wrong for the state to take human life. It's doubly wrong for the state to take the life of a person who never intended that anyone be killed. The ultimate goal of the country's system of justice is to prevent murder. The Supreme Court's decision ... will just make murder — by the state — easier.

The Brattleboro (Vt.) Reformer

Bargain not enough for safe world

A proper bargain cutting nuclear weapons in Western Europe — a bargain kept by both sides — would be a gratifying step toward a safer world because it could diminish the fear and loathing on both sides that fuel tensions and the arms race.

But, beyond arms reductions, the need is for understandings between Moscow and Washington that could lessen the friction between the superpowers — that could soften U.S.-Soviet rivalry on the world stage, curb specific human rights abuses and promote more cultural exchanges between East and West, more East-West trade and more joint ventures in research, conservation and development.

Art Buchwald

Making bed first lesson in service

By ART BUCHWALD
Time magazine devoted a recent cover to the breakdown of service in the United States. Nobody seems to be able to get anyone to help them anymore.

"There is a simple reason for this," Frankie Melnick told me as we stood in line at the airport watching an airline attendant take 32 minutes to prepare one luggage tag.

"What is that?"
"All the trouble started a generation ago when the youth of America were permitted to grow up without making their beds."

"Why did we allow it?"
Melnick said, "It had to do with the wars. Men went off to fight and when they were asked what they were fighting for they couldn't think of anything so they said, 'I am fighting so my children will never have to clean up their rooms again. Our kids are going to become doctors and lawyers and investment bankers, and paid-up members of the Democratic and Republican parties, and they are not going to be distracted by household chores.'"

"I recall saying the same thing to my kids," I said as we inched slowly toward the ticket counter. "I remember years ago holding one of my children in my arms and saying to him, 'I will see to it that you will never have to stoop over your clothes as long as you live. I kept that vow — or let's say my son kept it for me. Whenever his mother or I yelled at him he replied, 'If I have to think about my room I won't have time to think about the human condition.'"

"We did it because we thought we loved them," said Melnick. "The message we sent out was 'When you lie down in your bed, there is always a dear person in your life who will make it up for you. This is not because that person necessarily loves you, but she can't stand walking by every day looking at your room.'"

"So you think," I asked, "that service has broken down in the United States since we let the kids have a free ride in their bedrooms?"

Melnick said, "You could make a case for it. The non-bed-makers are screwing up the entire government because they never used a laundry hamper. The retail business is filled with people who spent their childhood dumping their pants and skirts on the floor. There are millions of men and women in their prime who have never figured out what to do with a hanger."

"We moved up a foot in line. 'I assume that attendant trying to issue an airline ticket never had to make up his bed.'"

"It's worse than that," Melnick said. "The pilot of our plane didn't have to either."

I told Melnick, "I'm happy to say that we have been very strict parents in our family. Neither my wife nor I will tolerate a dirty room."

"How do you do it?" Melnick asked.

"We make the kids keep their doors closed so we can't see what is on the other side."

"The man standing behind us said, 'You don't necessarily have to be neat to do well in your profession. My son is a surgeon and he never made a bed in his life.'"

"Who adjusts the sheets for him before he operates?"
"His mother."

Pacemakers revisited shows signs of possible timebombs

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — In 1985, after a three-year investigation, a special Senate committee issued a report titled "Pacemakers Revisited: A Saga of Benign Neglect." Our own recent investigation shows that both the saga and the neglect continue.

The most startling discovery our reporter Lisa Sylvester made was that there is no way that someone depending on one of the sometimes life-sustaining devices can be sure of being notified if his or her pacemaker has been recalled by the manufacturer as potentially defective. Neither the manufacturer, the physician nor the federal government is legally bound to warn pacemaker patients that they could be wearing a deadly device.

Manufacturers are expected to notify the doctors and hospitals who bought the devices when a model is being recalled as defective — but they're not required to.

Physicians are expected to notify their patients — but they're not required to.

And the Food and Drug Administration, which regulates the multibillion-dollar industry, isn't even expected to notify the people most concerned when a potentially deadly defect is discovered. It's not FDA policy.

The system "doesn't work that way," an FDA spokesman explained. "FDA doesn't get involved."

A recall-notification "system" that holds nobody responsible is obviously foredoomed to failure. But if proof were needed, it was dramatically provided a few months ago by Charles Stein of Orlando, Fla., who runs a non-profit watchdog group called Pacemaker Recall Data Bank.

Stein's efforts were written up last November in the American Association of Retired Persons' magazine. The results of this publicity were astonishing — and alarming.

Stein's office was inundated with mail from pacemaker patients. Some of their pacemakers had been recalled by the manufacturer as long as four years ago. None of the patients had been notified that their pacemakers were even suspected of being defective.

Two thousand of those who wrote

Jack Anderson

Stein were wearing a pacemaker or lead (the wire connecting the device to the heart) that had been the subject of a Class One Recall. The FDA's definition of such a recall is "a situation in which there is a reasonable probability that the use of, or exposure to, a violative product will cause serious, adverse health consequences or death."

Stein received about 5,000 additional letters from patients implanted with pacemaker leads that had been cited at a 1984 congressional hearing for having been investigated as potentially dangerous.

David Duarte of FDA's Center for Devices and Radiological Health said it is up to the manufacturer to notify physicians and hospitals of a recall, but there is no law requiring the physician to pass the word along to the patient. Asked about this, Duarte said, "Well, it's his patient."

"It just wouldn't be logical and humane to contact the patients," said Jim Merritt of the FDA's recall branch. There is "no real requirement" that doctors let their patients know, he said. The FDA, he added, "tries to hold the firms responsible for 100 percent" notification of doctors and hospitals when the agency learns of a Class One Recall of pacemakers.

But the FDA is evidently willing to settle for less. In 1985, when Cordis Corp. of Miami ordered 28,831 pacemakers recalled, the company sent out 5,197 notices to doctors and got back a 79 percent response.

"The FDA was satisfied," a Cordis spokesman said, "and agreed we had gone out of our way to notify the physicians."

MONEY & THE MOB: As if federal banking officials don't have enough on their plates, a Justice Department source told us that organized crime is making a determined effort to take over banks and savings-and-loan associations.

This has already led to an explosion to financial institution fraud cases — 7,000 prosecutions in 1984, involving losses of $382 million. Losses due to fraud are expected to reach $3 billion in 1987, and about eight out of 10 cases involve insiders.

The FBI has never seen so many banks and thrifts go under because of ties to mobsters. More people are being assigned to these cases by the bureau.

MEMORIAL GAP?: More than $1 million in contributions has been raised toward a Korean War memorial in Washington, D.C. The total cost is expected to be about $6 million.

Oddly enough, when the memorial is eventually built, only World War II will be without a memorial in the nation's capital, even though there were more American battle deaths in "the big one" than in any other war in the nation's history.

Those who served in World War II have plenty of memorials elsewhere — in Honolulu, San Francisco and New York City, as well as several cemeteries overseas. Just none in Washington.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Rustlers are still prowling the Old West, only it's irrigation water, not cattle, they're after.

And the Interior Department, which should be playing Marshal Dillon, is helping the black hats soak the taxpayers Interior officials have reversed the rules that were supposed to enforce limitations on the amount of taxpayer-subsidized water a farmer could have.

Agribusiness giants will be able to evade the law by creating smaller parcels on paper and avoid the congressional limits. Rep. George Miller, D-Calif., calls it "a fraud being perpetrated on the Congress and the taxpayers." We couldn't agree more.

Jack Anderson's investigative report from Washington is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Constitution Daybook

Monday, April 30, 1787
PHILADELPHIA TODAY

Weather: 81, wind south, clouds, stormy, rain and thunder.

For April, the coldest was 25 degrees on April 2; the high was 90 today; prevailing winds were southwest; three inches of rain fell, and one inch of snow.

Charles Thomson received three boxes of plants, trees, and shrubs today.

CONFEDERATION TODAY
Congress was not in session today for want of a quorum.

William Samuel Johnson of Connecticut reports the weather in New York is showery. He attends the session of the Court of Appeals of the Confederation.

DELEGATES TODAY
George Washington departed Fredericksburg at sunrise, bound for home. Preparation and planting continued. A half acre of sweet potatoes was planted at Muddy Hole Farm. Corn was being planted at Ferry Farm. Parsnips and carrots are put in at Dogue

Run.
Robert Morris, merchant of Philadelphia, writes to John Langdon, merchant of Portsmouth, N.H., to introduce William Robinson Jr. Both gentlemen were chosen to represent their states at Philadelphia.
LOOKING BACK
Charles Thomson, Secretary

Charles Thomson, who received the plants mentioned above, was secretary of Congress, now sitting in New York. The plants were probably intended for his estate, "Harriton" in Ardmore, Pa.

Thomson was one of six children to sail from Ireland in 1739 with their widowed father. Their father died at sea and the orphaned children landed at New Castle, Del. Educated at New London, Chester County, Pa., Thomson settled in Philadelphia in 1750. He became a tutor in the Philadelphia Academy with Benjamin Franklin's assistance.

Thomson was appointed secretary to the First Continental Congress in 1774 and again to the Second Continental Congress in 1775. He continued in that office in Congress under the Articles of Confederation. Thomson resigned at the close of that Congress in July 1789. The new Congress under the Constitution chose not to continue Thomson's service and he retired to "Harriton" after 15 years of service.

Senate OKs corporate safety fine

AUSTIN — Senators have voted to increase the fines against corporations that endanger the safety of their employees.

"Texas has a proud tradition, but we certainly don't have one in the area of worker safety," said Sen. Chet Edwards.

"We lead the nation today in worker deaths—just in this decade we've had 645 workers killed on construction site jobs, some 200 more than any other state," he said.

"Right now we allow the state to fine some corporations $10,000 a day for killing fish, yet we have a maximum fine of $20,000 total for corporations whose unsafe working conditions might result in the death of a worker," Edwards said.

A bill sponsored by Edwards, D-Duncanville, would raise to $50,000 the maximum penalty when serious bodily injury is caused by a corporation's felony or Class A misdemeanor offense.

Dallas Council rejects gay nominee

DALLAS — The Dallas City Council rejected the appointment of a homosexual after a council member questioned the moral implications.

Council member Jerry Rucker said Wednesday it would be inappropriate to appoint Michael Milliken to the Cable Access of Dallas Board the day after Dallas parks director Jack Robinson was convicted on a misdemeanor charge of exposing himself.

"I have a difficulty when the matter coincides ... with what happened to the parks director," Rucker said after the meeting. "I have an obligation to uphold the expectations of the citizens at large."

The council had cast a 6-5 straw vote in favor of Milliken, but one member changed his vote after Rucker's comments and no one was appointed to the position.

Gay activists protested the action.

Death penalty bill sent to Senate

AUSTIN — The House has given preliminary approval to a bill that would make it illegal to threaten to tamper with consumer products.

The measure by Rep. John Smith, R-Amarillo, was approved Wednesday in a non-record vote, but faces a final House vote that could send it to the Senate.

destroy products that a caller said had been tainted.

The Smith bill would allow 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine for threatening to tamper with products.

Also Wednesday, the House gave its final approval, with no debate, to a bill by Rep. Larry Evans, D-Houston, that would make it more difficult for jurors to return death penalties against accomplices in capital murder cases.

The bill would require jurors to decide whether an accomplice was "a cause" of the death. Under current law, an accomplice, even if not the triggerman, can be sentenced to death.

According to a House analysis, a national food retailers group reported 1,892 cases of tampering threats in 1986, compared with only 200 cases of actual tampering. Threats of tampering have caused problems in Texas, including a Waco incident in which $400,000 was necessary to remove and

Convict says witness coerced to lie

SAN ANTONIO — A man sentenced to 1,000 years in prison for killing a policeman wants the conviction overturned, claiming the key witness lied.

Spencer's 1973 trial. State District Judge Archie Lee Brown initially sentenced Spencer to 10,000 years in prison in a gas-station robbery during which patrolman Antonio Canales was shot to death. Brown later reduced the sentence to 1,000 years.

Walker on Wednesday told U.S. Magistrate Robert B. O'Connor that he lied at Spencer's trial.

The witness agreed. Eugene Spencer, 43, was in federal court Wednesday, arguing that police, prosecutors and a probation officer coerced the witness, Samuel Walker, to lie during old boy were afflicted with brucellosis melitensis, which causes intermittent fever, headaches, weakness, sweating, chills and joint and muscle pain, the health district reported.

SAN ANTONIO — Unpasteurized goat cheese from Mexico has caused a vicious form of brucellosis in three San Antonio residents, health officials say.

None of the cheese eaten by the patients was store-bought. Either friends or a door-to-door peddler supplied the cheese.

The three patients, health officials said, are currently recovering, although both women required hospitalization.

"People should not buy, eat or allow in their homes cheese that is not labeled properly or packaged properly," warned Justus Baird, Metropolitan Health District coordinator of food and environmental services.

State aids county in prosecution

BELTON — The state has donated $50,000 to help Upshur County prosecute Jerry "Animal" McFadden, whose capital murder trial was continued until May 11.

Jury selection in the trial of McFadden, 39, was to begin Monday. But procedural matters held up the individual questioning of 90 potential jurors, trimmed from an original group of 250, officials said.

McFadden, a convicted sex offender, was accused in the May 1986 slaying of Suzanne Harrison, 18. Two others also were found dead.

McFadden escaped briefly last year from the Upshur County jail, sparking a chase across several counties.

The continuance motion was granted Wednesday by State District Judge F.L. Garrison to give defense attorneys more time to interview witnesses.

Spine defect can cause Sciatica

EDITOR'S NOTE: Today is the last day Dr. Donohue will run. It will be replaced by health articles written by NYU Medical Center.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I'm a 29-year-old woman. My question concerns my back. I have spondylolisthesis. The defect is at the L-5 vertebra. A specialist told me I also have spondylolysis. Could this cause sciatica? Is surgery an answer to this problem? — S.H.

Dr. Donohue

Spondylolysis can cause spondylolisthesis and that in turn might cause sciatica. It's not really as confusing as it looks.

"Spondylo" is Greek for spine or vertebrae, the spinal sections. The "lysis" part of the spondylolysis refers to a loosening or deterioration of one of those sections. That can be a defect with which the person is born or it can happen from a trauma, as in an accident. Such defects occur most often in the L-5 vertebra, far down in the spine.

Wherever there is such a loosening or deterioration of a spine section there is the threat of spondylolisthesis. And all that amounts to is a slipping of the bad section over the one next to it. It's like a loosened roof shingle that slips over the one beneath it.

Sciatica is pain in the sciatic nerve, which courses down the leg from the lower spine. If the slipped disc impinges on that nerve, sciatica can result. If that happens, one of the options is to correct things surgically to avoid nerve damage.

Some people with your problem find relief by strengthening the abdominal muscles. It helps maintain back stability. The booklet "Backache and Spine Problems" will help pinpoint your problem area. Other readers may order by writing me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and one dollar.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am the possessor of a rare disease called sprue. I would like to know what symptoms to expect from it. If you know of any contacts, like an organization where I can get information, I would appreciate the address. — A.H.

I don't think you'll find sprue as rare as you think it is. The actual incidence of it is clouded, since many may have it in such mild form that they don't get overly ill. But it is somewhat common.

In any event, sprue is a malabsorption problem, specifically an intolerance to wheat and wheat products. People with it cannot digest such substances. The wheat protein remains behind to accumulate in the small intestine, damaging its surface.

The symptoms are predictably diarrhea, weight loss, cramping and bloating of the abdomen. The answer quite simply is avoidance of such foods. Once you get on a wheat-free diet the symptoms disappear in a few weeks. I wish I had the name and address of a good organization that could tell you more about the problem. I'm sure, though, that a reader will tell us of a group that has been helpful in controlling his or her sprue. Your own doctor may know of a local group; I'm sure they exist.

CONFIDENTIAL TO R.R. — You're telling me about a dangerous event. Headache from cocaine use is not a trivial consequence. Cocaine causes an immediate acceleration of the heart and an increase in blood pressure. It is likely that you are experiencing increased pressure in your brain arteries. Given your already elevated blood pressure, it's a recipe for disaster. If you don't believe me, call the cocaine hotline 1-800-COCAINE. (You won't have to give your name).

Man tangos into Mother's life waltzes away with her estate

DEAR ABBY: Our mother, at age 79 — after having been a lonely widow for 10 years — fell in love with her South American dancing instructor. Against the advice of her family and friends she married this smooth operator, who flattered her and made her feel "young, beautiful and desirable" (according to her). Mother was 80 and he was 39 at the time.

She died four months ago at the age of 85, leaving her three children a mere token. Her seven grandchildren were left to take as well. Everything else went to her husband of five years.

Of course we are contesting the will because of Mother's bizarre behavior these last six years. Also, we feel that this young opportunist took unfair advantage of a lonely, rich, gullible old woman.

Abby, when a will is contested, who usually wins?

B.J. AND F.

DEAR B.J. AND F.: The side with the best lawyer. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Our telephone number has been the same for over 30 years. I get calls from relatives of my husband that start out with demands like: "Let me talk to 'John,'" or, "Who is this?" I'm talking about a man and a woman who are college-educated and have put three children through college. They also do this to other people, who have asked me how it makes me feel to encounter such rudeness, so you can see it's not just me they are ill-mannered to.

Abby, please, for the benefit of everybody who does not know: What are the requirements of good etiquette for telephone courtesy? Sign me...

FEELING BETTER NOW

DEAR FEELING BETTER: For openers, the caller should identify him/herself immediately: "Hello, this is Sarah Harding. May I please speak to Minnie Zack?"

If the caller knows the party who has answered the phone, it's good manners to ask, "And how are you, Sam?"

It's bad manners to quiz the person who has answered the phone concerning the whereabouts of the person you are calling: "Where did Minnie go? And when do you expect her home?" Simply leave the message that you called and ask that she return your call.

If you realize too late that you have misdialed and reached a wrong number, don't hang up. Say, "Excuse me, please. I have a wrong number."

Class dismissed. ***

(To get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (30 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

Anxiety good for speeches

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — What makes your knees knock and your hands tremble? Being alone in the dark? Looking down from the top floor of a skyscraper?

How about standing up in front of a room full of strangers to make a speech?

Getting a case of the pre-speech jitters is normal, say some speakers at R.J. Reynolds. Ralph Anguoli says he uses any nervousness he feels to make his speech more dynamic. "I don't get nervous, I get excited," he says.

Janet Wheeler says some nervousness can work to a speaker's advantage. "You don't want to become so overconfident that you feel that giving a speech is a piece of cake," she says.

Brown leaving Howard

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

Howard College Hawks' basketball coach Larry Brown announced this morning that he has accepted an offer to become assistant coach at the University of South Alabama.

Howard College President Bob Riley said the school is taking applications "just as quick as we can." He said the school hoped to have a new coach within a week to ten days.

Riley said that, due to rumors of Brown's leaving, he had already received approximately 25 calls from interested coaches.

"We're not going to make this a long drawn out affair," Riley said. He added that the school "intends to build a winner. Howard College over the years has been a winner."

Brown said it was a difficult decision, but he said he believed it was a career move that "needs to be made." He said his son's health has suffered because of allergy problems here, and that factored in his decision.

In a prepared statement, Brown wrote: "It is a decision that I have agonized over for the past two weeks. Through prayer and much thought, I now know that this is the right thing for my family and also for my career. It is a situation that we could not turn down."

South Alabama, which is in Mobile, Ala. recently hired successful San Jacinto Junior College coach Ronnie Arrow. Brown said he and Arrow became friends last summer when the two coached and roomed together at the National Olympic Festival.

Brown said South Alabama plans to build a $50 million domed basketball arena, and has doubled its recruiting budget over last year. He said their commitment to basketball and the offer they made him made the job too attractive to turn down.

Riley called the people at South Alabama "a persistent group." He said they had earlier offered Brown the position, and that he originally declined. He said they then "enriched their offer," and that the coach had been considering the move for the past two weeks.

"We knew Larry's aspiration was to be a NCAA Division I coach last year when we hired him. We hate to see Larry go, but we understand," Riley said.

Brown said he had talked to next year's recruits and their parents. He said they were disappointed, but he expects them to attend Howard College.

"They're really receptive to Howard College and I think we're going to keep them," Brown said.

Riley said he one of the reasons for filling the position as soon as possible is to allow the recruits to meet the new coach. He also said they are more "spots to fill," and that the sooner the new coach arrives, the sooner he can finish the school's recruiting.

Brown said he will go to Mobile this weekend for a "meet the coaches night," and that he would return to Big Spring next week for the Howard College sports banquet. He said he would be travelling back and forth in the next month.

Memphis takes golf titles

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

It was a Memphis sweep as both the Memphis boys and girls teams won the Region I-AA golf tournament concluded Wednesday afternoon at Comanche Trail Golf Course.

The Memphis boys dethroned defending regional and state champion Stanton, who was in third place after the first round of play Tuesday, finished the tournament in fourth place behind Memphis, Hamlin and Panhandle.

Memphis, which shot a 317 on the first day, finished the second round with a 323 for a 640 total. It was good for a 24 stroke win over runner-up Hamlin. Hamlin was fifth after the first round of play. But the Pied Pipers came back and took eight strokes off their first day score of 336 on a windy day.

Panhandle, which shot a 332 on the first day, shot 13 strokes higher the second day.

Coach John Stiles' Buffaloes also struggled. The Buffs shot a 335 for the first 18 holes, but saw their mark go up nine strokes the second day. Skip Hopkins had the best day for Stanton, shooting a seven-over-par 79. He finished with a two-day total of 162. Greg Avery shot a 81-84 for a 165.

In the medalist competition, Brent Hood of Ozona shot two 75's to win with a six-over-par 150. Runner-up Darrell Coffey of Memphis recorded a pair of 76's for a 152.

Stanton junior golfer Greg Avery chips a shot on the 18th green in the second round of the Region I-AA golf tournament Wednesday at Comanche Trail Golf Course. Stanton finished fourth in the tournament which was won by Memphis.

Thinclads off to regionals

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

The Big Spring Steers will try to continue to flex their muscles on the track scene when they and the Lady Steers compete in the Region I-AAAA track meet in Brownwood's Gordon Wood Stadium Friday and Saturday.

Coach Mike Randle has two athletes representing the Lady Steers. Teresa Pruitt will compete in the 400 meters and Yolanda Green will throw the discus.

Randle said the Pruitt's time of 60.09 ranks fourth in the region.

"I don't think she'll have any problem making the finals," said Randle. "There's a girl from Canyon who's run a 57.5 and one from Levelland that has run in the 58's. She's run against the girl from Levelland. I think she can beat her if she goes out and stays in front of her."

Green will have a harder road to hoe. Her toss of 114-2 gives her the eighth best throw in the region. Tara Lemons of Sweetwater leads the competition with a throw of 130-0.

"Yolanda has her work cut out for her," said Randle. She'll have to throw another 10 feet to get up there with the top girls."

Coach Randy Britton's Steers, who have won five of seven meets this year, go into the meet as one of the favorites. The Steers will send 12 individuals and two relay teams to the meet.

While the Steers look strong, defending state champion Lubbock Estacado has to be considered the team to beat. The Matadors and Steers competed against each at the West Texas Relays and Estacado finished first and Big Spring second.

Estacado qualified both relay teams and 11 individuals. But the Mats have several performers whose marks rank with the best in the state. High jumper Brian Mayfield is the only Steer ranked among the state's best.

Coach Britton feels that the relays hold a big key in the out-

Ranger sweeps Hawks

RANGER — The Howard College Hawks baseball season will go down to the wire by virtue of their losing a double-header to the Ranger College Rangers Wednesday in Region V baseball play.

The losses tighten the region race for second place, which is the last remaining state tournament spot. McLennan Community College has already won the region, and Howard and Ranger are vying for the second place spot.

Howard now sports a 33-10 overall mark and a 13-8 region mark. The Hawks will conclude their season this Saturday and Sunday at Jack Barber Field in a three game series against Ranger. To get to the state tournament, Howard must win two of the three games against Ranger. If not, Ranger has a three game series against Northwood next week in Dallas. If Northwood can win one of those of the meet.

"If we compete the way we can, the way I've got it figured it will be close between us and Estacado. We'll have to finish in the top three in the sprint relay and top two in the 1600 meter relay. Plus we'll have to get some help from the other teams in breaking up Estacado's points in the 100, 200 and 400," he said.
The Steers foursome of Danny Williams, Charles White, Dennis Hartfield and Phillip Mathews has the third best time in the 400 relay with a 42.3. They clocked the new school record last week in the regional qualifier's meet in Kermit.
Estacado leads the way with a 41.0 clocking and Lubbock Dunbar follows with a 42.0. Following Big Spring is Ft. Worth Poly and Monahan at 42.4.
"If we get some fast handoffs we can run in the 41's" said Britton.
A lot of the Steers hopes in the 1600 relay rest with the fate of Mayfield's ankle. He sprained his ankle last Friday playing basketball. He has run on it once all week, said Britton.
If Mayfield isn't up to full speed, it will definitely hamper the team. Besides running on the relay, he has the best high jump effort (6-10) and ranks fourth in the high hurdles and second in the 300 intermediates.
Even without Mayfield last week, Big Spring ran a 3:20.40, breaking the school record. Britton's make shift lineup included newcomers Ben Gonzales and Phillip Mathews and regulars Cedric Banks and Sean Jackson. All runners except Jackson ran in the 49's. This prompted Britton to say, "I really haven't decided who I'll run on it."

Estacado is the team to beat with a 3:18.0. Poly and Big Spring both have run in the 3:20's. "I really think it will take a 3:16 to win it," said Britton.
The Steers stack up well in the 1600 and 3200 meter runs with Ben Gonzales and Mario Gonzales. Both rank in the top three in the events. Senior Mario has the best time in the 3200 (9:47.42) and sophomore Ben has the better time in the 1600 (4:34.5).
The Steers also have two runners in the 400. Banks (49.92) and Rodney Bailey (50.39) rank third and fourth with their times. A runner from Estacado has run in the 47's and a runner from Burk Burnett has run a 48.3.
Half-miler Sean Jackson's time of 1:59.97 ranks sixth in the region. There are four runners who have run in the 1:56's.
Besides Mayfield in the field events, the Steers also have Paul Decker in the pole vault and Mathews in the long jump. The pole vault competition is tight. One vaulter has gone 13-6. Then there are Decker and three others at 13-0. Mathews' leap of 22-4 put him third in the long jump. A jumper from Poly had gone 23-0 and a jumper from Everman jumped 22-8 at his district meet.

Murray confused by lack of interest

HOUSTON (AP) — Former Texas A&M quarterback Kevin Murray says he still believes in his football abilities despite being bypassed in the National Football League draft.
Murray said he might try out as a free agent.
"I feel good about my ability," Murray told the Dallas Morning News Wednesday. "You've got to take the hand dealt you and play it. It seems like overcoming adversity is just part of my life."
Texas A&M offensive coordinator Lynn Amedee says he is puzzled that Murray wasn't drafted.
"I can't understand it," Amedee said. "I'm shocked. All of the scouts had come in here and everything we had heard had him projected pretty high. Not to take anything away from any of the quarterbacks drafted, but I know Kevin is better than some of them."
Amedee denied rumors that the two-time Southwest Conference offensive player is difficult to work with.

Amedee said he could not reach Murray Wednesday. Murray watched the draft on television with teammate Keith Woodside.
"Keith told me Kevin was very upset," Amedee said.
The Dallas Cowboys and Houston Oilers had scouted Murray, but both passed on him during Tuesday's draft.
"I was very surprised no one took him," said Mike Holovak, the Oilers' director of player personnel. "We had taken a quarterback earlier in the draft and you can only look at so many. We already had three quarterbacks and with the draft we had four."
Brandt, the Cowboys' vice president for personnel and development, said his organization was under the impression that Murray wanted to play outside of Texas.
"Holovak said he believes Murray could still have a future in the NFL."

games, Howard would go to the state tournament.
But Wednesday the day belonged to Ranger.
RANGER 10, HOWARD 2
The Hawks committed a season-high 11 errors in the opening game and Ranger romped to an easy victory.
Howard starting pitcher Howard Landry lasted just over two innings, gave up seven runs, including four unearned runs. He was relieved by Thad Webber.
"I really don't know what happened. We played the first 25 games of the season and only made 10 errors. Then we make 11 errors in one game," he said. "It's like our hands are made of concrete" now. We're making mental mistakes and booting routine plays."

Ranger scored four runs in the second inning and three runs in the third inning, and for all practical purposes, the game was over.
Howard scored a run in the second inning when Ernesto Castro singled, scoring Frank Medina, who had singled. Howard's last run came in the fifth when Chad Baker doubled and scored on a base hit by Randy Deal.

RANGER 13, HOWARD 11
Ranger erupted for 11 runs in the fourth inning and held on for the win.
The Rangers sent 15 batters to the plate, got five hits and took advantage of two Howard errors and five walks. They chased Howard starter Ted Hebert from the game in the inning. Hebert allowed 10 runs on seven hits. Four of the runs were unearned. Howard also used Derek Matlock and John Medrick on the mound.

Ranger led 2-1 after the first inning. Howard scored when Jeff Shults singled and eventually scored on a sacrifice fly by Joel Chimelis.
Howard added three runs in the third. Medina singled and Castro walked. Chimelis doubled, scoring them both. Fred Lopez singled and scored Chimelis.
In the fifth inning Howard got runs thanks to solo homers by Webber and Castro. Howard added three more runs in the sixth.

Baker singled and scored when Deal hit a homer. Medina followed with a solo homer.
The final two Howard runs scored in the seventh and final inning. Freddie Lopez singled and Al Lopez walked. Freddie Lopez scored on Deal's base hit. Al Lopez scored on Shults' single.
"I thought we could play with anybody, anytime," said Henry. "But every since the Vernon series we've been on a downslide. You want to go into the state tournament on an upbeat note. We've got to turn it around this weekend."
The Hawks will play Ranger in a single game Saturday starting at 2 p.m. Sunday the two teams will square off in a double-header starting at 1 p.m. Howard 103 023 2-11 12 2

Gooden scheduled to talk about drug ordeal

NEW YORK (AP) — Dwight Gooden, released after a 28-day stay at a drug rehabilitation center, was scheduled to publicly discuss his cocaine problem for the first time.
The New York Mets planned a press conference this afternoon at Shea Stadium with Gooden, General Manager Frank Cashen, Manager Davey Johnson and Dr. Allan Lanz of the Smithers Alcoholism and Treatment Center, which the star pitcher left Wednesday.
Gooden, 22, entered the facility on April 2, one day after he tested positive for cocaine. The center determined Gooden had occasionally used the drug, but was not a cocaine addict.
"I haven't talked to him and I don't know what he's going to say," Cashen said.
The team said Gooden would read a statement, but would not answer any questions about his cocaine use.

Gooden left Smithers shortly after 4 p.m. Wednesday and walked briskly through a cheering crowd of about 50 to a waiting car without making any comment.
Gooden, dressed in a windbreaker and sweatpants, turned around to wave to people gathered in a second-floor window of the center and then got into the car, which sped through a red light on Manhattan's East Side.
The Mets are hoping Gooden will be able to resume pitching in the major leagues by June 1. According to a schedule planned by the team, Gooden will work out in private at Shea Stadium for two to three weeks and then make one or two starts for Class AAA Tidewater of the International League.
Without Gooden, the team's ace, the Mets' pitchers have been in constant trouble.

as smooth as possible," he said.
Brown had a meeting with his players, and according to him they were "very understanding."
"They understand the process. They're disappointed, and a little worried about who's coming in," Brown said.
Riley indicated there is a good chance Brown's assistant, Scott Horstman, will stay at Howard.
"Our intention right now is to retain Scott because he's contributed so much to our program. Scott's sold himself to everybody," Riley said.

In Brown's only season at Howard after coaching Bryan High School to two state championships, the Hawks were 14-14 overall and 7-9 in conference play.
As part of the released statement, Brown wrote:
"The foundation is here to make Howard College one of the premier junior colleges in the country. With the players returning and the ones committed already, the future looks bright. The program will continue to grow because of the commitment to athletics and academics from the administration."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, MAY 1, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today brings a sudden desire to upset what is working. Avoid making waves since there are some unfinished tasks of importance that will unsettle your arrangements.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) An unexpected missive from a distance could deter some course of action you are working on.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study that monetary matter will. An up-to-date expert may give suggestions that will not fit your set-up.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are excited about ridding yourself of a present situation. Perseverance can work wonders now.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You want to run away from some task that is boring you, but don't. Show your mate your true devotion.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Some desire that impels you could be more expensive than you can afford. Get your affairs in better order instead.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Do what your family desires of you and gain their respect. Take it easy tonight and rest up.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You feel that by going off on a trip you will have greater happiness, but this could only bring depression.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't try to renege on a promise you've made. Listening to what your mate suggests is wise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try to agree with partners and then they go along with your ideas. Show your true intelligence.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You are restless because it is the end of the work week, but tone down and do your job conscientiously.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Although you want to have a good time, this doesn't seem to work out. Be patient with your mate.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't try to make any changes in your duties at home. Be happy with the work you get done today.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he, or she, will have all sorts of fine ideas and ambitions during childhood, so encourage your precocious child to express them. This one will love to study and upon reaching adulthood will have decided on the life's work that can bring the greatest happiness.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
