Water bill plaintiffs end testimony

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Plaintiffs Paul and Jerri Winn rested their case this morning and defense witnesses began testimony in a court case over high water bills.

The trial is being heard by a five-woman, one-man jury in Justice of the Peace Bill Shankles' court.

Jerri Winn's opening statement came soon after jury selection was complete, about 3 p.m. She and her husband are not represented by an attorney. Court was recessed at 5 p.m. and testimony resumed at 9:30 a.m. today.

City Attorney Hardy Wilkerson told the jury in his opening statement today that the Winns must prove the city has done wrong to win the case.

He noted witnesses, including the Winns, haven't complained about the city's actions. The Winns testified, under his questioning, that they don't believe city employees tried to cheat them by billing them for water they didn't use. Therefore, they reluctantly agreed, the problem must lie with their water meter.

The couple's water meter has been replaced twice within the last two years, Jerri Winn said.

Tests showed the meter to be accurate, she said, but she noted that the city employee who tested it told her he didn't believe they used 45,000 gallons. The Winns were billed for that amount in August, she said.

Upon testing, she said, the meter's 10-gallon hand moved, although no water was running in the house.

Wilkerson indicated he will attempt to establish that the city's billing system is sound and that the city has done everything in its power to ensure the Winns' bills were correct.

He noted Monday that the Winns' water usage figures for 1986 did not significantly differ from those of 1983-85.

Evidence shows the figures were approximately 162,000 gallons for 1986; 186,000 for 1985; 160,000 for 1984; and 182,000 for 1983, he said.

In June 1984, the Winns were billed for approximately 26,000 gallons, and for 25,000 gallons in June 1986, he said; however, the water rates were increased in 1984. He implied that could have confused the couple.

The base water fee was increased from $5 to $9, while water rates were increased 25 cents per 1,000 gallons, he said.

Jerri Winn contended that the figures are not comparable because she and her husband were away from home 139 days during 1986. In addition, her son previously lived at their home, she said.

The couple were home just three days in June, she said, but were

Educators tell both sides of teacher issue

From staff and wire reports

Two sides of the teacher certification coin are apparent in Howard County.

The Texas Senate has approved a bill that would require school districts to tell parents when their children are being taught by teachers not certified in the subject they are teaching.

Sen. Carl Parker, the bill's sponsor, said "I'll bet you not 10 percent of the parents realize that their child is being taught math by a health teacher, or something equally as ridiculous."

School officials in Big Spring and Forsan expressed divergent points of view on the issue, although both expressed favorable attitudes toward certification.

There are, however, times when the goal is impractical, according to J.F. Poynor, superintendent of Forsan schools.

But Bill McQueary, the assistant superintendent of Big Spring Independent School District, recently selected to replace retiring Superintendent Lynn Hise, said he agrees with the Senate's action.

Poynor said, "I'm for having qualified teachers, but a small school district like Forsan has different problems."

"Parents should be informed as much as possible concerning the certification of their children's teachers," McQueary said. "I don't doubt there are some school districts where this is a problem."

Poynor said, "I'm for having qualified teachers, but a small school district like Forsan has different problems."

He pointed out that a teacher may be asked to teach a subject that only a few students want to take. "Those teachers may be un-endorsed," but that doesn't mean they aren't qualified, he explained.

Both school officials also pointed out that the teachers in their districts have been certified to teach their respective courses.

Sen. Parker's measure was sent to the House on voice vote Monday after an earlier vote reflected the opposition of five senators.

Parker, D-Port Arthur, said more than 7,000 persons are teaching courses for which they are not certified. The Texas Education Agency says Texas has 178,894 teachers.

"If the parents in a district ... want to tolerate that, that's fine, but I think we need to bring it into very sharp focus," Parker said.

Sen. Grant Jones, D-Temple, asked whether Texas would have enough certified teachers to fill all the positions "if parents raise enough sand?"

"We will if they (parents) want them badly enough, we certainly will," Parker replied.

Oscar Franco, 5, son of Oscar and Mary Franco, takes a big swipe at his pinata during Big Spring's Cinco De Mayo festivities Saturday at Comanche Trail Park. The five-year-old was unsuccessful on his three attempts. However, when finally opened, it provided candies for the children, who scrambled for the treasure. ## Fiber Glass founder dies

SAN ANTONIO — One of Big Spring's industrial pioneers died Monday night in a San Antonio hospital.

V.F. Michael, 72, and a graduate of Big Spring High School, founded Fiber Glass Systems in 1968 in Big Spring.

Michael's wife, Margaret, said this morning her husband was diagnosed with leukemia in March. "We're just thankful he didn't suffer. He really didn't suffer," Mrs. Michael said.

At its peak in 1984, Fiber Glass Systems employed about 300 people in its Big Spring and San Antonio plants, said Bill Burnett, president of the company.

Michael moved the headquarters of his company from Big Spring to San Antonio in 1981, and sold Fiber Flex Systems to Kusan, Inc. in 1984, Burnett said. Michael remained as president of the company until 1986, when he retired.

The company now employs about 120 workers, including nine in Big Spring.

Michael and his wife, both chemical engineers, started the business when he grew tired of working to develop ideas and projects for larger corporations, Michael told the Herald in a 1983 story.

He had been the vice president for corporate research and development at Coke Industries in Wichita, Kan., for more than 20 years.

"He was a pioneer in the design and manufacture of fiberglass pipe — the kind used in the oil fields. He had a lot of impact," Burnett said.

Michael was born in Oklahoma on Dec. 7, 1914. Services are pending at Porter Loring Funeral Home in San Antonio.

Illegal aliens begin seeking residence today

Illegal aliens began applying for permanent residence today as legalization centers across the country opened for the first day of a year-long amnesty program.

Volunteers from Big Spring's three Catholic churches will assist immigrants in preparation of documents for legalization at 7 p.m. every Thursday at Immaculate Heart of Mary School, 1009 Hearn, secretary of Sacred Heart Church, Teresa Rocha, said. Approximately 40 people have gotten applications for legalization from the church, she said.

Omer Bangs, director of the San Antonio legalization center, said most of the people today would be picking up applications and some would be returning them as soon as tomorrow.

Richard Casillas, district INS director in San Antonio, said the turnout early today was slow but he expected more to come in later in the day.

"People will get courage when they see we are treating them humanely, with compassion, as they come in," he said. "The word is going to get out that we are not going to use this procedure to deport people."

In Harlingen, meanwhile, people began lining up at midnight to be among the first illegal aliens in the Rio Grande Valley to obtain amnesty. About 100 people were in line when the doors opened at 8 a.m.

"I've been here since midnight, because I thought there would be a lot of people," said Maria Sanchez, who is originally from Nuevo Leon, Mexico, but now lives in Mission.

Another alien who picked up an application form in San Antonio was Mauro Iglesias, 25, who came here in 1981 from El Salvador. Iglesias has been doing housework for Sam Rodriguez, a roof contractor, who said Iglesias may soon join his company.

"I left because I wanted to live in peace," Iglesias said. "I didn't want to be in any kind of war down there."

Clements, Hobby still negotiating

AUSTIN (AP) — Negotiations are still going on, Gov. Bill Clements' office said today, after a newspaper reported that "tentative agreement" had been reached to avoid cuts in vital state services by revamping the state sales tax to raise additional money.

The Dallas Times Herald today reported that the agreement followed a weekend of secret talks.

With Dallas philanthropist Peter O'Donnell and computer magnate H. Ross Perot acting as catalysts, Clements, House Speaker Gib Lewis and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby have each made concessions to produce an intricate accord, the Times Herald said.

The newspaper said the deal calls for Hobby and Lewis to yield to Clements' demands for increased authority to control state spending in budget emergencies and agreed to create an office of inspector general for education within the governor's administration to oversee spending for public schools and colleges.

Clements, who repeatedly has endorsed Comptroller Bob Bullock's plan to broaden the sales tax base as long it did not generate additional revenue, accepted a restructured sales tax that produces sufficient funds to protect education, prisons and human services, the newspaper reported.

Jay Rosser, the governor's deputy press secretary, said the discussions are continuing and progress had been made. But he said no deal had been completed.

"The negotiations are going on. All three sides are being flexible. But there is no compromise yet. There are a lot of details that need to be looked at," Rosser said.

"They're meeting. There is some progress. There's some give and take going on. Everybody's working together to try to find a workable solution to a major dilemma," Rosser said.

The continuing manhunt for a trucker wanted in connection with the assault and shooting of a mother and daughter in West Texas made recognition given to two local truckers especially meaningful.

Jimmy Darling and Billie Shults, both truck drivers for Western Container Corp. in Big Spring, received plaques this month honoring them for helping a stranded female motorist March 3 near Dallas.

The woman, Jerry Chiles of Grandbury, wrote to the owner of Western Container thanking the two truckers — whose names she didn't have. Plant Manager Ken Dunwoody said.

The truckers aided the stranded driver on Interstate 20 near Gordon, Chiles said in her letter.

"(They) restored my faith in our world that we still have some real super people," the letter said.

The letter said Western Container is very fortunate to have employees like the two truckers that came to her aid, Dunwoody said.

Dunwoody said the words of the letter were engraved on plaques for the drivers donated by Yes Business Services after the company determined who had helped the woman.

"They had remained anonymous," he said, explaining that no mention of the assistance was made by any of his truckers.

Dunwoody said he identified the two by searching through travel logs that all drivers are required to maintain.

Drivers must keep track of "up time," hours spent on the road and "down time," time spent off the road, Dunwoody explained.

Dunwoody said the logs showed that two drivers had spent "down time" on March 3 near Dallas.

Meanwhile, the trucker wanted

"The trucking industry is more upset about that than the civilian population," Dunwoody said. "Truckers are very intent on finding this guy."

"The trucking industry provides a tremendous benefit to Western Container and to all of West Texas," Dunwoody said. "Sometimes we need to step back and be thankful for all the conscientious drivers we have," he said.

Two injured in two-car collision

Two women were hurt and a man arrested after an accident at 12th and Donley Streets at 3:48 p.m. Monday.

Leta Estep Abel, 52, 1805 Thorpe St., is in stable condition at Scenic Mountain Medical Center, a hospital spokeswoman said this morning. She suffered a fractured elbow, and was to undergo surgery this morning, the spokeswoman said.

Darlene Dawson, 32, 1004 Howell St., a passenger in Abel's car, was treated and released from the hospital.

Police reports show both women were wearing a seat belt and shoulder strap.

Dennis Michael Richardson, 34, 3619 Connally St., was arrested on a charge of hindering a police officer executing his official duty. He is accused of refusing to give information about the accident and refusing to remain at the scene.

He also was ticketed for failure to yield right-of-way and failure to maintain financial responsibility, according to police reports.

The reports state Richardson was driving a 1976 gold Ford Elite west on 12th Street approaching the intersection, and failed to yield the right-of-way to Abel, driving a 1984 gray Mercury Grand Marquis south on Donley Street.

Richardson's right front struck Abel's left front in the intersection. The impact caused Abel's car to run over a tree and knock down a fence at 912 Donley St., the residence of Mrs. J.T. Anderson.

Coahoma to get new fire vehicle

COAHOMA — Coahoma will have a new fire truck within the next two weeks, said City Clerk Karen Bell this morning.

Bell said the council voted unanimously at Tuesday night's specially called meeting to purchase the truck from Riggs First Line Equipment in Forney.

Bell said the truck will cost $22,525, and that Coahoma has approximately $17 thousand in the "fire truck account." She said the remainder would be financed.

Bell said the city has two trucks, one of which is not in good shape. She said the council has not decided on what to do with the truck that will be replaced.

The new truck is not a long, traditional fire truck, but a "specially made pickup," Bell said. Some parts from the replaced fire truck will be transferred to the new truck, she said.

billed for 13,000 gallons of water. The August bill was the highest, for 45,000 gallons, she said.

"I can't believe two old people would use 45,000 gallons," she said. She said she had been careful to turn off the water at the house's outside valve before leaving town, and that she habitually watered only the front lawn.

Witnesses Vera Winn, 1310 Virginia St., Paul Winn's mother, and Fae Hall, 618 Dallas St., who lives across the alley from the Winns, both testified that they frequently checked the couple's house while the Winns were away.

They said as far as they knew, no lawn watering was done then, and they never heard any sounds from the water pipes indicating trouble.

Vera Winn said that once she contacted plumber Jim Murphy to ensure the water valves were off.

Murphy testified that he has found no significant water leaks at the Winns' house while checking three times within the last five months. He repaired a dripping faucet two months ago, but he called the leak minor, and said it would take 6-8 months for it to drip 3,000-4,000 gallons.

Under questioning, however, he said he did not check for a leak during the March to September 1986 billing period.

Murphy said he replaced practically all water pipes in the Winns' house after it was flooded in 1985. That occurred as a result of a water heater problem, Jerri Winn said.

Most of court time Monday was spent in preliminaries, including jury selection.

officials and groups working with aliens, the INS said it was ready to open amnesty centers nationwide today.

"The finishing touches were put on the legalization centers over the weekend," said Mario Ortiz, spokesman for the INS southern region based in Dallas.

"The biggest decision we had to make last week was what color of ribbon we were going to use for the ribbon-cutting ceremonies," he said.

The INS estimates that more than 3 million illegal aliens will apply for legalization in more than 107 special centers across the country.

Aliens living in the United States before Jan. 1, 1982, will be eligible to apply for residency and will have a year to apply for legal status. Aliens will pay the INS $185 each for processing and a total of $420 per family.

Other organizations, mostly church relief groups, have been designated to help prepare documents and provide other services for about 100. Those agencies, called Qualified Designated Entities, have charged that neither they nor the INS are prepared.

Ortiz said between 750,000 and 1 million aliens are expected to apply for legalization in Texas.

Legalization centers in Arlington, El Paso, Harlingen, Houston and Austin will have 30 employees each and will be able to process daily 300 applications each, Ortiz said.

The legalization center in Laredo will have 20 employees and will be able to process 200 each and the San Antonio center's 19 employees will be able to process 150 applications each, Ortiz said.

The Lubbock and Corpus Christi legalization centers will have 12 employees each and will be able to process 100 applications each.

John Abriel, INS deputy district director in San Antonio, on Monday attended the open house of the center in Austin, where he expected about 200 illegal aliens to apply for residency today.

"Under this new law, there's a great opportunity to gain a benefit that millions of people throughout the world would pay dearly to obtain — legal American residence," Abriel said.

A videocassette recorder will play a 13-minute tape, in English and Spanish, explaining to aliens how forms should be filled out, Abriel said.

Congress has appropriated, but not yet authorized, $422 million to implement the immigration law and the INS has had to borrow from its own operating budget to construct and staff the centers, Ortiz said.

Postage increase OK'd

WASHINGTON — The Postal Service took the first step today toward raising the price of a first-class stamp to 25 cents and said that the new rate, if it wins final approval, should take effect in about a year.

The service Board of Governors voted 5-1 to seek the higher rates, according to board Chairman John N. Griesemer, who declined to say who voted against the proposal.

The request now goes to the independent Postal Rate Commission, which will hold hearings on the request and either approve or disapprove it. Deputy Postmaster General Michael Coughlin predicted that process should take about a year.

Victim admits variances

NEW YORK — One of the four men shot by Bernhard Goetz on a subway train two years ago conceded he gave a grand jury a different story in some key aspects, including how close he was when he approached Goetz for $5.

"I remember it differently now," Troy Canty, 21, testified at Goetz's attempted murder trial Monday, using variations of that phrase numerous times under five hours of cross-examination by defense attorney Barry Slotnick.

Canty, who is in a drug rehabilitation center for a cocaine habit, conceded Friday he might have told the grand jury that he said to Goetz, "Give me five dollars," rather than "Mister, can I have five dollars," the wording Canty used on the witness stand Friday.

Nancy talks, not Regan

NEW YORK — Donald Regan says he's saving any discussion of his feuds with Nancy Reagan for his book, while the first lady says there's nothing wrong with her calling up White House staffers to talk about problems.

Regan refused to talk about the issue Monday.

"It would be tempting to answer that question, but since I'm writing a book I think I'll reserve on that," he said at his first news conference since leaving the White House Feb. 27.

At about the same time, Mrs. Reagan was talking about the role of the first lady in a speech at the annual luncheon of The Associated Press, held in conjunction with the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Landis case nears end

LOS ANGELES — John Landis' attorney, demanding an all-or-nothing verdict in the "Twilight Zone" manslaughter trial, told jurors Monday the director also is a victim of the movie accident and "his scars are deep and everlasting."

"Mr. Landis, we submit, is either guilty of all charges in this case or he's guilty of none," said attorney James Neal. "He either reasonably believed that the scene was safe or he didn't."

Neal, winding up his summation, told jurors they must resist the temptation to compromise and hold Landis responsible for the deaths of two children but not for that of actor Vic Morrow.

EPA inspects garbage

KEY WEST, Fla. — Federal environmental agents in breathing gear and disposable suits poked around an exiled barge loaded with 3,000 tons of rotting New York trash Monday, taking samples to determine if the waste is hazardous.

The fly-ridden barge, banned from six states and two foreign countries, was anchored about five miles south of this resort island on the southern tip of Florida for the Environmental Protection Agency inspection.

"EPA has declared war on us," said Capt. Duffy St. Pierre on the tug Break of Dawn. First mate David Soto called the protective suits "ridiculous. It's just ordinary garbage."

Mexico fears flood of workers

NUEVO LAREDO, Mexico (AP) — Mexico is bracing for what it fears may be a flood of undocumented workers forced to leave the United States by the new immigration law that takes effect today.

Recent reports from cities and towns along the U.S.-Mexican border and inside Mexico indicate Mexican workers have started to return to their homeland for fear the law will lead to massive deportations.

Others report that the new Immigration Reform and Control Act has made it harder for Mexicans to enter the United States illegally.

The U.S. law gives illegal aliens who can prove they have lived in the United States since before 1982 the right to apply for legal status. All others will be considered illegal aliens.

"The migration of Mexicans who seek to cross the border to work in the United States has diminished and the workers are finding it more and more difficult to realize their dreams of earning dollars," El Porvenir newspaper reported Monday as part of a series of articles it has published on the law.

Government officials have tried to quiet fears that thousands of Mexicans will return to a country beset by serious economic problems and vie with their countrymen for scarce jobs.

The Mexican Interior Department, which oversees immigration matters, said in a weekend statement that U.S. authorities had given formal assurances no mass deportations will begin because of the new law.

Still, it said President Miguel de la Madrid had ordered that an interagency commission be set up to handle any problems arising from the new U.S. law.

"The objective of this commission will be to confront in an organized way the consequences that the application of the law could have on Mexican migratory workers in the United States who might be obliged to return to their homeland or might decide to do so," the statement said.

Illegal immigration to the United States long has been considered an escape valve for Mexicans who struggle to find work in their country. Of the estimated 3 million to 5 million illegal aliens living in the United States, more than 75 percent are believed to come from Latin America, with Mexico accounting for half the total.

The question of absorbing the returnees has dominated discussions for weeks not only in Mexico but also in the impoverished Central American countries.

President Jose Napoleon Duarte of El Salvador in March appealed to President Reagan to give "preferential treatment" to Salvadorans under the new law.

Duarte told Reagan that El Salvador would be hard-pressed to absorb large numbers of returning workers, citing the 7-year-old civil war with leftist rebels and severe economic problems.

On Monday, El Salvador's foreign minister, Ricardo Acevedo Peralta, said Reagan has not responded but added, "President Reagan is a person who understands perfectly well the problems of El Salvador."

There are an estimated 500,000 Salvadorans living illegally in the United States.

In Monterrey, Mexico, a northern industrial city just a three-hour drive from the Texas border, newspapers and broadcast stations have reported extensively about the potential impact of the law.

But months of discussion and debate may have left many people more confused than ever. Despite repeated U.S. assurances to the contrary, there is fear that undocumented workers will be deported en masse from the United States.

The Mexican government recently issued an order to its customs and immigration authorities to allow returning workers into their own country without harassment.

The order came after returning citizens complained of being exploited by immigration authorities.

"They charged us $20 each to get into Mexico," Jesus Manuel Flores, a 30-year-old musician who had been working illegally in the Denver area for 10 years, told The Associated Press in an interview in the north central state of Durango.

"They treated us as if we were illegals in our own country," he said.

Soviets free Hebrew

MOSCOW — A Hebrew teacher who said Soviet authorities set him up for a three-year prison sentence on drug charges was released before completing his term, the wife of Jewish dissident Josef Begun said today.

Yuli Edelshtein was freed from a Siberian prison camp Monday, six months before the end of a sentence he received in December 1984, Inna Begun said in a telephone interview.

Mrs. Begun said Edelshtein was scheduled to arrive in Moscow by train Thursday morning.

Edelshtein, who was sentenced for illegal possession of drugs, charged that Soviet authorities arrested him after drugs were deliberately planted on him. There were reports in the West last year that Edelshtein was beaten during his imprisonment.

Arms talks open today

GENEVA — U.S. negotiators predicted significant progress in reducing, strategic nuclear weapons during the eighth round of talks beginning today, but were less optimistic than the Soviets about a speedy agreement on cutting medium-range missiles.

The round opened with a luncheon meeting at the Soviet mission between the top negotiators from both sides, headed by Max Kampelman of the United States and Yuli Vorontsov of the Soviet Union.

Kiribati seizes crew

TARAWA, Kiribati — Kiribati said today that it seized an American tuna boat and arrested its crew of up to 17 seamen on charges that the craft was fishing illegally in its territorial waters.

Babera Kirata, minister of natural resources and development, said the captain, not identified, faces a fine of up to $600,000 and confiscation of boat and catch.

He said the vessel, Tradition, was boarded Monday in a sea-air operation organized by his ministry and police.

Kirata told The Associated Press in a telephone interview, "We want to take them to court right away. We want to show our disgust with American fishermen."

Thousands protest

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Hundreds of thousands of black workers and students stayed home today in a nationwide protest against Wednesday's election for the white chamber of Parliament.

"Down with apartheid elections," read a flyer distributed around Johannesburg calling for a two-day boycott to continue through Election Day. "We refuse to tolerate this regime anymore."

The government meanwhile said a land mine explosion in the far north near the Zimbabwe border killed one person Monday night, and two blasts at Johannesburg's civic center early today caused minor damage and no injuries.

Rebels claim casualties

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Moslem rebel forces killed 50 Soviet troops in a battle in eastern Afghanistan late last month, Western diplomatic sources said today, quoting unconfirmed reports.

The sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said that according to the reports, the rebels also captured 28 members of the Soviet contingent that attacked the Moslem guerrillas in Nangarhar province in April.

They said the guerrillas shot down two Soviet or Afghan jets and two helicopters in two days of fighting. They did not report any guerrilla casualties.

Partial bee ban may do the job

We applaud City Council's quick actions to eradicate the potential bees problem within Big Spring. But we're also wondering if their reaction might not have taken them one step too far.

We agree that anyone who maintains 18 or 20 bee hives inside the city, and who allows them to swarm, should be forced to cease such operations.

Most people certainly don't want that many bees in their neighborhood. And the residents have good reason to worry about the dangers to them and their children when so many hives are kept nearby.

We wonder, however, if the Council's announced intention to enact a ban on all bee hives in the city might not be going from one extreme to another. Perhaps there's a middle ground that should be accommodated.

First, we believe a distinction could be made between having one or two hives as a hobby and operating more hives than that, which should be classified as an occupation or a vocation.

Next, a minimum acreage could be required for a bee-hive hobby inside the city.

Third, and perhaps most important, the repeated swarming of bees within the city could be prohibited.

Modern beekeepers are advised that it is not necessary for their bees to swarm. In fact, modern beekeeping experts say that bees swarm for only two reasons, and that both result from improper management.

We believe that Council members should at least consider granting an exception or permit for single, hobby-hive operations within the city because of the plant-growth benefits that bees provide.

That permit could be revoked if the hive operator allows his or her bees to swarm.

We're concerned that efforts by Big Spring property owners to beautify their land, with more flowers and plants, could be hampered without the availability of bees for pollination. We have heard and read about that happening in other communities.

City Council should consider that possibility before enacting a complete ban against bees. Perhaps a limited or partial ban, to allow for the hobbyist, will accomplish what the Council and most citizens desire.

Suggests laying off police officers

To the editor:
I read with interest the Herald's report of our city father's brain storming session to seek ways to reduce costs and expenses for the city. Now I begin to notice police cars working speed traps in various parts of town. I think one way to save some money would be to lay off those officers.

Plan to ban bees stirs questions

To the editor:
Well, I'll be. What's next? Will it be the annihilation of all the old folks over 50, like in the movie "No Blade of Grass"? And will it truly become "A Silent Spring"?

I am sorry about the child who was bitten by a bee. I am sorry that neighbor is against neighbor. I am sorry that our City Council has gone too far and become against everything that men fought and died for — freedom and equality.

I have been in the yard next door to Mr. Broseh and helped to take a swarm of bees out of the yard. Mr. Broseh may have too many hives, and may need to cut back on the number, but to ban bees totally is one of the most ridiculous statements.

Why does this good mother not ban the wasps also? And why does she not ask for the banning of everything that is unpleasant or harmful to some people? Including the beautiful buttercups and wild primroses that make some people sneeze? The grass, when cut, that makes eyes swell and noses run?

Why does she not ban Little League because some child got half his brains knocked out from being struck by a ball or a bat? Or cars that insist on running into each other, killing people?

Why does she not ban children from going to school because there is so much harassment of the teachers and children who do not see things alike?

If you really want to get up on a soapbox and voice an opinion, great. That is your right. But what right does anyone have to demand that a man can no longer be the king of his castle because of an insect sting?

How much more can man unbalance nature and still exist in our fair land?

I am nowhere near beehives, and yet my flowers and trees (redbud) are full of bees every year. I know that this must be so, because the cycle of pollination must be fulfilled for these things to grow.

It hasn't been too long ago that down toward Garden City, a complete bee farm was annihilated because a farmer a mile away sprayed his cotton to kill the weeds. It put the man with the honey farm out of business.

What right did the man have to keep bees or the man who sprayed the weeds?

Why don't you ban the birds who will peck out your eyes if you bother her young in their nest? Or the buzzards so thick above the city because of the carrion found around town?

City Council has tried to make the city perfect by listening to every whim of man about something that does, or doesn't suit him. But crime is still running rampant and bees will still fly.

The laws of nature are God's laws. But man-made laws come and go according to who is in office. Isn't it a real thrill to read our newspaper and know that man is so busy fighting over bees, snakes and coyotes while the real need is tending to the needy and the hungry?

Faulty management given blame for bees swarming

By ALISHA GOLDMAN
Copy Editor

A taste of honey. We all know and love it — nature's golden liquid sugar.

And its production is as fascinating as the product.

The only concern in the life of a bee is to pollinate flowers and make honey.

But lately a local situation has caused animosity towards the creatures. I believe the situation mostly is a result of irresponsibility on the part of the beekeeper involved.

In my hometown of Hobbs, N.M., my family had several hives for a few years — as many as six on our half-acre lot three miles from the city limit.

Our honey was a gift cherished by our friends suffering with allergies to various wildflowers and hay farms in our area.

My father is hypoglycemic, and honey became the natural substitute in pies and other desserts at our house.

When the local beekeeping issue arose, I was confused because I could not recall our bees swarming. So I called my favorite beekeeper to check.

My Dad, Larry Goldman, confirmed that our bees had never swarmed, and he attributed swarming to "bad management."

Big Spring area beekeeper John Hope agreed. "I think he (the beekeeper whose bees prompted local complaints) is very negligent. If they are swarming as his neighbors say, then he is not taking care of the bees."

According to a pamphlet distributed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, bees swarm when overcrowded. That can be avoided by simply adding more man-made boxes of combs, called "supers," to the hive.

Bees also may swarm when the queen becomes sick or old. But a responsible beekeeper will replace the queen when either honey production or the number of workers declines.

A queen can be bought through the mail for about $8, Hope said.

A responsible beekeeper wants to avoid swarming because it "may leave the remaining colony too weak to store surplus honey," the agriculture pamphlet said.

Around the rim

Man-made hives are provided so the bees don't seek an inconvenient location when they do swarm.

Some think bees sting when they swarm. But they only sting when antagonized unnecessarily.

Actually, the bees are swollen with honey when they swarm, making it difficult for them to bend enough to sting.

A pamphlet by the Texas A&M Agricultural Extension Service notes that "swarms are not usually a problem unless they land in an inconvenient spot or are molested."

Both have occurred in Big Spring. I recall my first reaction to bees. Because I was afraid of being stung, I would walk the long way around the yard to take out the trash.

But one day my father asked me to help in adding "supers" to the hives. I dressed in the special protective suits he has (he didn't, though) and watched with awe as he opened the hives and showed me their activities.

After that, I would walk by and even stop and watch their comings and goings. But I never swatted at them as I would a common mosquito, whose only apparent job in life is to suck my blood.

Beekeeper Hope said, "The honey bee is the only insect that is beneficial to mankind in so many ways." Hope noted that honey is used at burn centers because of its special antiseptic, and is a food source against allergies.

Bees have an active role as a pollinator of fruit trees and flowers. If there were no bees in the city, the gardens we enjoy would suffer.

Mike Bragg, County Extension Agent, said, "As far as pollination is concerned, it (removing bees) is liable to have an effect."

The argument that bees in the area outside the city will venture into the city to pollinate is unfounded, Hope noted.

Bees will stay within 100 yards of their hive if there is sufficient food, and will wander only a mile and a half at the most to find a pollinating source.

A responsible beekeeper will be aware of the amount of vegetation in his immediate area and keep only as many hives as can survive, Hope said.

"I think it would be very difficult in the city to keep more than a couple of hives because of a lack of vegetation," said Hope. They probably would not find enough food and begin to starve.

Bees can develop an aggressive mood, but this, too, can be attributed to irresponsible beekeeping. Hope explained that some hives may become hostile when a beekeeper fails to work with his bees.

My father recommended that City Council take action to limit the number of hives allowed as a hobby in the city limits, Hope concurred.

A complete ban is not the answer, he said.

"What happens when you have a neighbor whose dogs bark all night? Can the Council ban dogs? I have heard of dogs in the city that have bitten and even attacked citizens, but I never heard anyone suggesting a ban on dogs, said Hope.

I don't want anyone to die of bee stings, but I also don't want to see the gardens and fruit trees of this city suffer because of the irresponsibility of one beekeeper.

If a few rules and stipulations are necessary to prevent the banning of all bee hives in the city, it seems worth the trouble of the Council to do so.

A government volunteer

By ART BUCHWALD

According to the Tax Foundation, a typical American will have to work 19 days for the government to pay his taxes in 1987. Yes, for 19 days we will all be slaving for Uncle Sam before any money trickles down to us.

Unlike many, I consider it an honor and a pleasure to labor for my country. I'm ready to devote my 19 years to any department in the government that will have me.

There are so many to choose from. The first thought is to put in my time with the IRS. As a taxpayer I could teach them a lot.

I would like to revise the 1040 form so people can understand it. Even if I just simplified the first three paragraphs I could become a national hero and run for President.

My only fear is that if I do a good job, the IRS will get mad and keep me there as a hostage while they audit the last five years of my returns.

I wouldn't mind serving 19 days in the State Department. I understand you meet some very interesting people in State, and you go to a lot of nice parties behind the Iron Curtain with beautiful girls named Natasha and Olga.

You can't become an ambassador in 19 days, but there is nothing to prevent you from rising to Assistant Secretary of State.

Art Buchwald

Give me a bucket of acid rain and a school of whales and I'll negotiate any treaty the President wants.

One of the departments I would seriously consider is Defense. What I like about the DOD is that you get to spend unbelievable sums of money in a span of 19 days, and half the hardware doesn't work.

Besides spending money I could be a spoiler. My dream would be to wait until the disarmament people draft a complete arms-reduction plan and then sabotage it just as it was about to be signed.

I've never told this to anyone before, but I've always wanted to do a 19-day stint for the Justice Department. Justice lawyers have all the fun. They fight affirmative action, have oddball ideas about what the Constitution means, support prayer in school and launch attacks against the Supreme Court.

One of the reasons I want to be part of Justice is that it would give me a chance to sit next to Attorney General Ed Meese and devise a defense for him when he is asked why he covered up evidence during the Irangate investigation. Ed has had problems with his Irangate alibis, and he needs somebody for 19 days to make his tales jibe with the facts.

Although I'm big on the Justice Department, I doubt if I want to work for the CIA. They're always giving you lie detector tests and truth serum, and I'm in deathly fear they're going to find out what I did with the money which was supposed to have been turned over to all the sleazeball arms dealers in the Middle East with the CIA's blessing.

The one spot left where I could serve my government for 19 days is the White House. It would be interesting and at the same time restful.

Everybody has a different opinion as to what it's like to be on the inside. Don Regan says toiling at the White House is nothing to write home about. Yet Ollie North and John Poindexter both say it's a great place because you can do anything you want to and they leave you alone.

Jack Anderson South Africa still sending gold to U.S.

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — South African gold might be finding its way into the supposedly all-American Eagle coins being issued by the U.S. Mint, despite the clear intent of Congress to ban the importation of gold from that country two years ago.

And even if the mint were able to make its American Eagles entirely from gold mined in the United States — as Congress intended in the Gold Bullion Act of 1985 — South Africa could still benefit. Anglo American Corp., a South African conglomerate, owns 10.3 percent of the U.S. gold-mining capacity.

When President Reagan signed the law that banned importation of South African gold Kruggerand coins, the idea was to punish the Pretoria regime for its racial apartheid policy. But evidence found by our reporter Lisa Sylvester in a Bureau of Mines report indicates that South African interests aren't suffering nearly as much as Congress intended.

At least 44 percent of U.S. gold-mining capacity is owned by foreign firms, according to the Bureau of Mines' most recent statistics. Canadian companies own 30.6 percent of U.S. gold mine operations, but Anglo American's 10.3 percent is the largest share held by a single foreign corporation.

Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., heads a House subcommittee on consumer affairs and coinage that has been investigating the gold situation. What particularly upsets Annunzio and his staff is the U.S. Mint's apparently relaxed attitude toward industry practices that allow gold from any country — including South Africa and the Soviet Union — to be used in the Eagle coin series.

The law requires "U.S. newly mined gold" to be the source of bullion for the Eagle coins whenever possible. In a pinch, the mint can use old U.S. gold or gold purchased from certain foreign countries — not including South Africa or the Soviet Union.

But there is no "apartheid" policy in the gold refining business. Ore from all a refiner's suppliers is mixed together and melted into bullion. Thus there's no way to tell the exact origin of the supposedly "U.S. newly mined gold" in a given American Eagle coin made of bullion from a foreign refinery.

"There may or may not be any U.S. gold in those coins," an Annunzio staffer said. "They cannot prove that it doesn't come from South Africa. They cannot prove that it doesn't come from Russia."

Mint Director Donna Pope confirmed this charge in response to inquiries by the congressman. "All refiners," she wrote, "indicated that their normal production processes precluded them from tracing the gold from a particular mine to a particular bar. The industry's practice is to combine gold from all their sources ... in the process of melting to form new bars."

Insisting that refiners segregate their gold supplies and identify the sources for each gold bar would be prohibitively expensive, Pope said, and would force the mint to use other sources than "U.S. newly mined gold."

As it happens, Engelhard, the New Jersey-based company that has supplied the mint with 83 percent of the gold "blanks" for the Eagle coins, has refineries in London, where it is still legal to import South African gold bullion.

A company spokesman denied any South African connection at first, but then acknowledged that 30 percent of Engelhard's stock is owned by Minorco, a Bermuda-based company that is part of Anglo American, the South African conglomerate.

The American Eagle coin series isn't Engelhard's first venture in "all-American" coins by any means. The industry giant also made the blanks for the Statue of Liberty and Olympic commemorative coins. Engelhard is serving as a distributor of the Eagle series as well.

Jack Anderson's investigative report from Washington is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Local contract nursing service unique in state

By CARLEEN EVERETT
Lifestyle Editor

William Dee Warner of Warner Specialty Services is a nurse entrepreneur who provides contract nursing.

Warner offers one of the many types of nursing services in Big Spring and in recognition of Texas Nurses Week, May 3-9, local nurses will be featured this week in Lifestyle.

Warner's service is unique. "It's the only service like this in Texas. It's a pilot program that Abilene State School is trying," he said.

His office is located in the same building as the ARC (Association for Retarded Citizens), but he isn't affiliated with the organization, he said.

Warner's job is to provide contract nursing care to individuals in an after school day care program for the multi-physically handicapped, he said.

He is a registered nurse, a physician's assistant and is continuously involved in furthering his education in the nursing profession, he said.

His major contribution to health care is "providing an array of health care services and maintaining a high quality of care utilizing minimal personnel," he said.

Warner said that he provides cost effective quality nursing services by using a general contractors approach to nursing services, incorporating life experiences and his multi-faceted training and having low overhead.

He added that his services are kept at a minimum because he is trained in so many areas of nursing and provides several of the services himself — "so I don't have to pay someone else to do each task."

...nurse entrepreneur

Two children attend the day care and Warner employs one other person to help him.

"We give each kid 100 percent attention. We could only handle about four kids between the two of us," he explained.

The main services Warner provides are physical therapy under the direction of a physical therapist and lots of social stimulation, which includes talking and touching.

"They can't speak. I have to interpret their body language and determine if they're ill or in pain. We work with teenagers who have the mental capacity of a one to three-month child. We teach things like how to keep their diaper dry."

He said he runs his program at "about half the cost of an institution.

"If these kids were housed in an institution, there would be a lot more costs, more services that they don't need and less people on staff," he concluded.

Frustrated 14-year-old says a good boy is hard to find

DEAR ABBY: I don't know if you would really call this a problem, but I think I'm crazy. And so does everyone else.

I am 14 and I haven't had a boyfriend since January. I don't really want a romantic boyfriend, if you know what I mean. I just want a boyfriend who will be a friend to me so we could do things together as friends. I had three guys ask me since schools started, but I turned them all down because I want friendship only and they wanted more.

How come boys start out being a friend, then they end up with only one thing on their minds? When I tell them I am not ready for that kind of stuff, they hate my guts and there goes the friendship. Abby, what should I do? I want boys as friends, but I don't want to get pregnant at 14. Am I crazy? I need your help.

CAN'T SIGN, SMALL TOWN

DEAR CAN'T SIGN: Crazy? Absolutely not — you're smart. Most guys will try to see how far they can get with a girl, but that doesn't mean they are prepared to pursue it. They could be experimenting and testing your (and their own) limits. It's part of growing up. Keep your standards high. Trust your instincts. Keep saying no, no, no, until you are absolutely certain you can handle a yes.

DEAR ABBY: What an ironic coincidence that I read in your column in the Los Angeles Times a letter that said there are no hotel schools in the state of Texas! Only last week I was at the University of Houston to break ground for a new addition to the Conrad N. Hilton College of Hotel and Restaurant Management.

The Hilton College was formed in 1969 with a gift from my father, and the Hilton Foundation has been very involved over the years in an effort to make the Hilton College the top hotel school in the country. More than a thousand alumni of the school, who now occupy key executive positions in hotels around the world, are testimony to our successful efforts.

BARRON HILTON, CHAIRMAN AND PRESIDENT, HILTON HOTEL CORP.

DEAR MR. HILTON: I plead ignorance concerning hotel schools, but it would have done your heart good to have seen the many letters I received in praise of the Hilton College of Hotel and Restaurant Management. (P.S. Readers: This is not a paid advertisement.)

DEAR ABBY: What a laugh I had reading that letter from "Hurt," the lady whose lover asked her (right in the middle of making love) how much her gas bill ran her.

I would have asked him, "Why? Are you running out?"

LYNNE IN IRVINE, CALIF.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "PARTICULAR" IN GREENSBORO, N.C.: It's OK to be fussy, but the girl who thinks no man is good enough for her could be right. (She could also be left.)

Health Fair in Odessa May 17

Medical Center Hospital will sponsor its sixth annual Health Fair May 16 at the Permian Mall.

The all-day fair with the theme "We feel good caring for you" will feature free health screenings and informational booths represented by hospital personnel, according to a release from Medical Center Hospital.

The Odessa hospital schedules the fair every spring to offer health information to the public.

"As a community hospital, Medical Center is concerned with the good health of the public," said Kathy Wythe, health fair chairman.

"The annual health fair offers free health information and pertinent health screenings. It also gives area citizens a chance to learn more about Medical Center."

The hospital's blood bank will have a blood drive during the fair, noon to 6 p.m.

Names in the news

Chrysler Corp. Chairman Lee Iacocca and his wife Peggy appeared together publicly for the first time this year in an apparent effort to reconcile their marriage.

Author Colleen McCollough says she still needs publicity even though her 1977 book "The Thorn Birds" made her famous.

The Rev. Billy Graham plans to travel to China in the fall to conduct a low-key "preaching tour" with his wife, who spent her childhood in that country as the daughter of Presbyterian missionaries.

Seven dead, 19 injured in collision

BEAUMONT — A Trailways bus collided with a truck on a rain-slick interstate highway Monday, killing at least seven people and injuring 19, authorities said.

The impact tore off the front half of the bus and split the right side, leaving a trail of debris on Interstate 10.

The accident occurred in a heavy downpour about 1:50 p.m. in the westbound lanes of the highway, Fire Department dispatcher Bill Weiblinger said.

Michael Boudreaux of Thibodaux, La., said he was driving about 100 feet behind the truck.

"He jackknifed, came across the highway, hit this Trailways bus head-on," Boudreaux said. "I just ran over. When I saw what happened ... I started hollering at everybody to get on their radios, call the ambulances, because I knew it was bad."

"He had just gone by me and he was just going straight on. He wasn't going fast. He was just doing a little over 55, and all of a sudden he just jackknifed."

Wedding cooling-off bill advances

AUSTIN — Texans should be engaged for at least three days before they get married, the House has decided.

In a non-record vote, the House gave tentative approval Monday to a bill that would require a three-day cooling-off period between the issuance of a marriage license and the exchange of nuptial vows.

"We're just hoping that in some small way this might place a little emphasis on people being a little more sincere. The old adage, 'Until death do us part,' doesn't mean too much any more," said sponsor Rep. Bill Arnold, D-Grand Prairie, who knew his wife for two years before they married.

The bill faces a final House vote that would send it to the Senate. About 30 states have required cooling-off periods before weddings.

House supports auto dealer ad bill

The House also gave tentative approval Monday to a bill that would bar auto dealers from sticking their names on the center brake lights that are required in new cars. The bill is all that remains of Rep. Ed Watson's attempt to bar auto dealers from putting their name on a car without customer permission.

Also Monday, the House voted tentative approval to a bill that would set limits on vehicle window tinting. Under the bill by Rep. Glen Repp, R-Duncanville, windshield tinting could not block more than 67 percent of light. There would be different limits for a vehicle's other windows.

Repp said extremely dark windows can interfere with law-enforcement efforts.

The bill would not apply to any vehicles made before 1988.

House backs sales tax exemption

AUSTIN — The Texas House voted tentative approval to a bill that would exempt newspapers and magazines from the state sales tax.

Rep. Stan Schlueter's bill faces a final House vote that would send it to senators.

The state sales tax has included newspapers and magazines since 1984. Newspaper executives have said the tax can be difficult to collect because newspapers, in many cases, actually are sold by carriers who are independent contractors.

"Most of them are under 14 years of age, so it creates a very large problem for the newspapers to make sure that tax is collected equitably," Schlueter, D-Killeen, said Monday.

Former executives get prison terms

GALVESTON — Two former vice presidents of American National Insurance Co. who were convicted last March of using the mails to bilk the company of more than $640,000 were sentenced to prison terms.

U.S. District Judge Hugh Gibson sentenced James I. Minter and Stephen Morse each to five years in prison and five years probation. The two also were ordered Monday to pay $159,374 in restitution.

Also convicted in the case were Mack G. Sparks, former vice president and regional representative for Equifax Services Inc.; Ralph Parker Jr., owner of The Advisor Group of Avon, Mass.; and Otto Yelton, Jr., president of Selection Corporation of America. They were sentenced Friday.

Parker, who pleaded guilty before the trial and testified against the others, received a three-year suspended sentence and five years probation. He also was ordered to pay $38,874 in restitution and to perform 250 hours of community service.

New Dallas mayor assumes office

DALLAS — The first elected female mayor of Dallas said finding more jobs and business opportunities for citizens would be priorities during her term.

Annette Strauss, in her inaugural address to 1,500 people at City Hall Plaza on Monday, urged unity throughout the nation's seventh largest city.

"I call on my colleagues and all the people of Dallas to demonstrate our faith in the future by recommitting to pull together and build on our many strengths in addressing community problems for common gain," Strauss said in a 35-minute address.

She made appeals to minority voters who overwhelmingly supported her in an April 18 runoff and to conservative North Dallas businesses that largely opposed her in the city's most expensive mayoral race.

Slashed model case goes to jury

NEW YORK — The two men accused of slashing the face of model Marla Hanson did the "dirty work" for Steven Roth who was convicted of first-degree assault for hiring them, the prosecutor said.

The trial of Steven Bowman, 27, and Darren Norman, 20, both of Brooklyn, was expected to go to the jury today. They are charged with first-degree assault in connection with the July 5 attack on the west side of Manhattan.

In closing arguments Monday, Prosecutor Consuelo Fernandez said Bowman held the model down while Norman slashed her face with a razor. She said Roth, a makeup artist, hired them because Miss Hanson had rejected his romantic advances and because she demanded the return of an $850 deposit on an apartment she had rented from him.

Attorneys for the two men tried to shift the blame during closing arguments Monday.

Police use new technique for DWI

SAN ANTONIO — Law enforcement officers are making increased use of a field sobriety test that resulted in a record number of driving-while-intoxicated arrests last month.

The "eye-to-eye method" requires a suspected drunken driver to focus on an object in front of the eyes while the officer determines the driver's rapid eye movement, said Sgt. Billy Anders, head of the DWI Unit.

The test "is just gaining acceptance across the United States," he said, adding that more police officers now are trained to use the eye test as a screening step before the driver is asked to take a breath test.

The Intoxilyzer test uses breath measurements to determine the blood alcohol level.

Anders said traffic enforcement late at night has helped increase the number of arrests.

Students finish year at rival school

BAYTOWN — Students of Robert E. Lee High School invaded enemy territory and attended classes after their school was destroyed by a fire last week.

Fire destroyed the 59-year-old Lee school early Wednesday forcing the 2,200 students to travel across town for classes at rival Ross S. Sterling High School to finish the last three weeks of school.

Lee students will be attending classes, shortened by 15 minutes, in the afternoon. Sterling students attend their shortened classes in the morning.

For Lee students, Monday was like their first day of orientation at a new school.

Prison tax plan

Jane Wilson, representing "We, the People," an East Texas anti-crime group, left, joins State Rep. Bill Hollowell, D-Grand Saline, behind petitions with over 77,000 signatures. Hollowell and other lawmakers pushing for a new tax dedicated to building more prisons say they demonstrate how widespread public support is for the plan. Legislation would establish a Public Safety Fund as part of changes in the criminal justice system. The group was organized last year, following the slayings of three teen-agers who had been picnicking near Lake Hawkins. Janie Wilson said she is convinced that Texans would gladly pay the 3 3/4-cent tax increase if they were guaranteed the money would go to prisons. If approved by the House and Senate, the proposed constitutional amendment would be placed on the ballot Aug. 1. If voters approved, the higher tax could begin Oct. 1.

Tort reform bill review set

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. Bob Glasgow says the tort reform proposal is the only legislative measure he has known where different versions are timed by the hour, instead of by the day.

"The last version I have was at 1:30 a.m. Monday," Glasgow asked. "Is that the latest?"

"No," said Sen. John Montford. "There have been seven amendments proposed since then."

After the conversation Monday between Glasgow, D-Stephenville, and Montford, D-Lubbock, a special meeting of the Senate was called today to brief them all on the latest negotiated efforts.

By a Senate-wide agreement, no additional amendments will be considered after noon today.

Then at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday the big debate begins.

Montford, sponsor of the tort reform package, and Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, said last week they had reached agreement in the long-running controversy but a Friday debate date was postponed until Monday.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby arranged the new schedule after huddling with about 10 senators gathered around Montford's desk.

Montford said the main measure presented Wednesday will be an omnibus bill makes a large number of changes in court procedures concerning personal injury suits.

Also to be brought up Wednesday will be a bill by Sen. Grant Jones, D-Temple, tightening regulations on liability insurance companies, plus two bills by Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, concerning liability insurance for governmental units and charitable organizations.

Montford has led the movement to the Senate for revision of civil justice reforms that would make it more difficult for plaintiffs to collect large judgments in personal injury cases.

Caperton has negotiated in defense of current laws.

Sportscaster won't return

DALLAS (AP) — A sportscaster who was scheduled to return to KDFW-TV Monday after an arbiter ruled he should rehire has decided not to return to the station, officials say.

Kevin McCarthy, who was fired June 6, filed a grievance with the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists. Last week, an arbiter ruled that he should be reinstated and compensated for lost wages.

Station general manager Bill Baker said Monday, however, that McCarthy has decided not to return to KDFW.

Cowboys No. 1 pick used steroids

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboy No. 1 pick in last week's draft says he used steroids for several days to help him regain weight lost after getting sick in Japan.

Danny Noonan, a 6-foot-4, 280-pound defensive tackle from Nebraska, was among 20 players who tested positive for anabolic steroids at the NFL scouting combine in January, officials said. Noonan told the Dallas Morning

News his steroid use began upon his return from the Jan. 11 Japan Bowl all-star game and ended by Jan. 28, the day when 330 players arrived in Indianapolis for the league's most important scouting session.

"I had never tried them before," he said, adding that he had lost 15 pounds after getting ill in Japan. "I was weighing about 260 after the Japan Bowl and tried to build back up for the combine. Noonan from Lincoln, Neb. "The combine is a really important thing. So I used steroids. I just got sick on the plane on the way to Japan... I used the steroids when I came back from Japan."

DANNY NOONAN ...wanted to gain weight

Steroids are chemical compounds that can be used to add as much as 15 percent to 20 percent of normal body weight and build body mass, and are regarded as an increasingly dangerous problem in the NFL. The league, however, has no penalty for a player using steroids.

Steroids can have dangerous internal side effects, such as high blood pressure, heart disease and liver tumors, and can cause personality changes.

Cowboys president Tex Schramm said he was not concerned and was confident Noonan's steroid use would not be a factor in the tackle's career.

The NFL tested college players for steroids for the first time this year, along with controlled substances and alcohol.

Noonan said he didn't realize he would be tested for steroids and still has not been informed by the league of the results.

The league will test veteran players for steroids for the first time in this summer's training camp physicals.

The case of the hidden puck; Flyers win game in overtime

By The Associated Press

Neither Philadelphia's Ilkka Sinisalo nor Montreal goaltender Brian Hayward had any idea how the puck entered the net.

But the goal judge and the referee did, and that was enough to give the Flyers a 4-3 overtime victory Monday night and a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven Wales Conference final.

"I didn't even see the puck," said Sinisalo, whose second goal of the night gave the Flyers the upper hand in their bid to advance to the NHL's Stanley Cup final.

"I saw Peter (Zezel) jumping up and down," Sinisalo said. "I didn't know where the puck had gone. I think he (Hayward) pushed it over."

Hayward was just as confused.

"I don't know how it went in. I thought it was under my defenseman (Chris Chelios) in front of me," Hayward said.

"The next thing I knew, they (the Flyers) were throwing their arms up. It was a messed up scramble... I might have put it in myself."

"I was right there and I couldn't see the puck and then it squirted from behind, so I don't know how the ref could see it. The puck was nowhere to be seen," Chelios said.

John McCauley, NHL director of officials, said referee Terry Gregson was "in excellent position to call it. At no time was the puck ever covered."

Flyers' Coach Mike Keenan was asked when he realized the goal had been scored.

"When the red light went on, and the game was over," he said.

It was the only game of the night. Detroit plays at Edmonton tonight in the opening game of the Campbell Conference final. The winner of that best-of-seven series will meet the Montreal-Philadelphia winner for the Stanley Cup.

Sinisalo scored at 9:11 when he jammed the puck through a mass of bodies in front of the net. Zezel had brought the puck around from behind the net and took two shots that were stopped by Hayward.

Sinisalo drove the puck under the sprawled bodies of Chelios and Hayward and the puck just managed to trickle over the goal line by a couple of inches.

Bobby Smith had scored at 7:15 of the third period to give the defending Stanley Cup champion Canadiens a 3-2 lead. But Derrick Smith tied it with 3:51 left in regulation, beating Hayward from the top of the left faceoff circle with a slapshot into the far side of the net after taking a pass from Don Nachbaur.

Flyers goaltender Ron Hextall made two spectacular saves on rapid-fire shots by Guy Carbonneau in front of the net in the last minute of the third period.

The Flyers had brought the crowd of 17,222 at The Spectrum to its feet on Sinisalo's first goal, that tied the game at 5:49 of the third.

Defenseman Mark Howe had cleared the puck from his zone to Sinisalo as Montreal defenseman Petr Svoboda dived to stop the pass. Sinisalo skated down the right side and passed to Propp, who faked Hayward out of the net and fed across the slot to Sinisalo, who put the puck into an open net.

Bobby Smith's go-ahead goal came just 1:26 later when he skated into the right circle and swept a backhand toward the net that deflected off the stick of Flyers defenseman Brad Marsh and past Hextall.

Propp had scored a first-period goal for Philadelphia, and Shane Corson had countered for Montreal in this first playoff meeting between the teams since 1976.

It wasn't until late in the first period that any goals were scored, and the Flyers, who had a 2-0 record against Montreal this season, struck first on a power play.

The Canadiens tied it at 19:26 on a power-play goal by Corson.

Ryan Walter, Montreal's Game 7 hero in the Adams Division final against Quebec, had given the Canadiens a 2-1 lead with a goal late in the second period.

The Flyers were missing several key players, including leading scorer Tim Kerr, who bruised his left shoulder against the Islanders in the Patrick Division final, and captain Dave Poulin, out with a broken rib.

Attitude problems hurt Murray in NFL draft

DALLAS (AP) — Kevin Murray's throwing arm earned him back-to-back Southwest Conference championships. But, according to several sources in the NFL, it was his misdirected attitudes that cost him a position in last week's college draft.

All of the NFL scouting directors and general managers contacted agreed that the former Texas A&M quarterback from North Dallas High School has the physical talents to compete in professional football. Before the draft, he was considered among the top 10 or 12 quarterback prospects available, and was expected to be picked in the sixth or seventh round.

But because of his often arrogant attitudes, club officials said, Murray's name was not among the 336 college players (including 20 quarterbacks) drafted.

"We saw Kevin as a guy with real good athletic ability, with a very good arm, with good strength and movement within the pocket, and as a big-play type guy," said a scout for an East Coast team, who requested anonymity.

"He has that certain feel for the game. It's just that a red flag went up because of his attitude. We've heard the same things everybody in the state of Texas has been hearing for years. You get enough problems by mistake, so when there are telltale signs of a problem to begin with, why take a chance?"

An NFL general manager said "We were afraid of him character-wise. We just decided he wasn't worth the problem. He's got a chance to play. But you just don't go looking for trouble. I don't think anybody is going to invest a lot of money in him until he proves he won't be a problem."

Another team executive said, "He has some ability, but he's a pain in the rear. A royal pain in the rear."

Murray was one of four SWC big-name players who were not drafted Tuesday — along with SMU running back Jeff Atkins, Texas running back Edwin Simmons, and Texas Tech linebacker Brad Hastings. All four omissions were mildly surprising, considering their reputations inside Texas, but Murray's caused the biggest shock.

"We're all in deep shock down here," A&M quarterback coach Lynn Amadee said. "I just don't understand it. Abilitywise and knowing the kid, he's better than some of those guys drafted in the first round."

Dallas sports agent Steve Endicott, who represents Murray and began working to get him signed as a free agent with one of several NFL teams, said "I haven't figured it out either."

The day after the draft, Endicott said, he spoke with Murray "and he is pretty depressed. I'm just trying to get him the best opportunity available now."

Several of the team officials contacted said Murray was discourteous to scouts sent to College Station in recent months. Because Murray didn't decide to forgo his final year of eligibility at A&M until March, well after all of the NFL's major scouting combines, most teams had to make special visits to the A&M campus if they wanted to work out Murray.

"But we sent a scout down there," said one pro personnel director, "and Murray says to him, 'Why should I work out for you? If you want to send the quarterback coach down, I may be more interested.' That kind of stuff will make you enemies in a hurry."

Said another official, "If I were him, I'd go play in the Canadian Football League. I think with his ability, he can play. He might play for 20 years up there. But he's got a pretty bad reputation (in the NFL) right now."

The reason behind Atkins' exclusion from the draft were twofold. From a football standpoint, the 4.85 time he ran at the January combine was one of the slowest times for running backs.

But most damaging was Atkins' highly publicized problem with cocaine after his senior season.

"He just isn't fast enough to play running back in the pros, but even if he had the speed, the drug thing killed him," one official said.

SuperSonics won't talk about recent arrests

HOUSTON (AP) — Seattle's Dale Ellis anticipated some heckling tonight, a result of his arrest and that of teammate Kevin Williams for their involvement in a scuffle at a Houston nightclub.

"I can't let it bother me," Ellis said Monday after the SuperSonics finished a practice session for the second game of their NBA playoff series against the Houston Rockets. "It's just something that happened. It's not even a big deal. It's already been blown out of proportion."

Williams, a reserve guard, shoved a television camerawoman on Monday at the Summit, where the SuperSonics look to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven second-round series.

Williams refused to talk and told another television camera crew to get out of his way.

Ellis, the team's leading scorer, declined to discuss the incident, which occurred early Sunday, just hours after Seattle beat Houston 111-106 in the Western Conference playoff game.

"I'd like to tell you all just what happened, but at this time I've been advised not to do so," he said.

Williams was charged with resisting arrest and Ellis with hindering arrest, both misdemeanors. The two are scheduled to appear in court Friday.

Scott Shelton, manager of the Ocean Club, said Williams punched him and then struggled with two uniformed off-duty policemen who tried to take the player into custody. Shelton said the incident began after he asked Williams to move out of an area that allows waitresses access to the bar.

Shelton said Williams refused to move and used profanity.

"He (Williams) said, 'If you want me to move, you'll have to move me,'" Shelton said. "Then he pushed me in the face, like shoved me away."

Williams and Ellis were arrested about 12:45 a.m. and spent a few hours in jail before being released when Seattle Coach Bernie Bickerstaff posted $500 bond for each.

"He (Williams) walked up to Dale Ellis, who was standing by the speakers on the edge of the dance floor," Shelton said. "I couldn't hear what he said to him. Then the police came walking up and I tapped him (Williams) on the shoulder. He looked back and hit me on the side of the head in the jaw area."

"He struggled with police the whole time," the manager said.

Sleeping Giants awaken

By The Associated Press

The St. Louis Cardinals violated an old baseball adage that says you never awaken a sleeping giant.

And, while they paid the price, the ultimate loser may have been the San Francisco Giants.

The Giants will be without third baseman Chris Brown for an undetermined period. Brown sustained a broken jaw Monday night when he was hit by a pitch from Cardinals starter Danny Cox in the seventh inning with St. Louis ahead 7-3. While several Giants raced out of the dugout, a full-scale brawl failed to materialize.

But the incident certainly awakened the Giants, who scored five runs in the eighth and two in the ninth. The 10-7 victory lifted San Francisco to within a half-game of idle Cincinnati in the National League West.

"Don't take this the wrong way, but it was a pleasure to see how it affected the team," left fielder Jeffery Leonard said. "We just showed the character. We never gave up."

Chili Davis, who drove in five runs, said the scene had the makings of a bench-clearing brawl involving the Giants and Cardinals last July at Busch Stadium. San Francisco's Candy Maldonado, who hit for the cycle, homered prior to Brown's at-bat. Davis said Cox may have intentionally hit Brown.

"We've had some run-ins with these guys before," Davis said. "I'm not saying he (Cox) tried to hit him. I'm saying he tried to send a message. We don't like that."

In the only other NL games, Atlanta outsluged Montreal 10-7 and San Diego beat Pittsburgh 9-5.

The Giants registered their displeasure with a league season-high 21 hits. San Francisco had scored only two runs in its previous two games.

Maldonado and Leonard had four hits apiece, leadoff hitter Mike Aldreth had three, and three other Giants two each.

"I thought it was a matter of time before we broke out, but I didn't know if it'd be today or a month from now," said Giants Manager Roger Craig, whose team moved a half-game behind NL West leader Cincinnati. "We got some key hits tonight, and everybody contributed."

And the Cardinals got no relief from their bullpen.

"You don't know who to bring in," Manager Whitey Herzog said of a beleaguered bullpen that blew a three-run lead in the eighth inning of a 7-6 loss Saturday night against Los Angeles.

On Monday night, Perry, Dawley, Horton and relief ace Todd Worrell, the NL Rookie of the Year in 1986, combined to give up 10 hits and seven runs in 2 2/3 innings.

The outcome knocked the Cardinals out of first place in the NL East, dropping them a half-game behind the Cubs.

Cubs 5, Dodgers 4

The "Friendly Confines," as Chicago's cozy

Wrigley Field is often described, has become just that again now that Ryne Sandberg and Andre Dawson are getting to know each other.

"I know when Ryne Sandberg is up I'm going to have a chance to bat," Dawson said after going 2-for-4 Monday, including a ninth-inning single that followed Sandberg's two-out double and gave the Cubs the victory.

Braves 10, Expos 7

Ozzie Virgil and Dale Murphy homered and Dion James had four hits as Atlanta withstood three home runs and six RBI by Montreal's Tim Wallach, who had hit only one previous homer this season.

The Expos were leading 5-4 when the Braves scored five runs in the fifth inning. Gerald Perry singled to open the inning and Murphy walked. Larry Sorensen relieved Bob Sebra and threw Ken Griffey's grounder into center field, allowing Perry to score the tying run. Rafael Ramirez doubled to put Atlanta ahead 6-5.

Padres 9, Pirates 5

Carmelo Martinez, who hadn't driven in a run since April 16, hit a three-run homer and Benito Santiago also homered as the Padres staged their biggest offensive display of the year to snap a five-game losing streak.

The Padres had scored as many as six runs only three times while losing 20 of their first 26 games. Storm Davis pitched 5 1/3 innings for his first NL victory despite giving up seven hits and three walks.

Ex-Phils pitcher doing well for Yanks

CHICAGO (AP) — New York Yankees Manager Lou Piniella says he isn't surprised by the turnaround of pitcher Charles Hudson.

"We knew he had a great arm," Piniella said Monday night after Hudson raised his record to 4-0 with a route-going 6-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox. "He's getting his breaking ball over... and is locating his fastball well. Maybe the change of scenery helped."

That would be hard to dispute, considering the unbeaten start and an earned run average of 2.09. The right-hander posted a 32-42 record with a 3.98 ERA in four seasons with the Philadelphia Phillies.

"I'm making good pitches and hitting the spots when I need to. My intensity level is much better," said Hudson, acquired last winter for outfielder Mike Easler.

Unbothered by a 49-degree temperature and 15-mph winds at Comiskey Park, Hudson gave up eight hits and walked two while striking out one. He has allowed 30 hits in 43 innings.

The game was the only one played Monday night in the American League. Kansas City at Toronto was rained out.

With New York leading 2-1, loser Richard Dotson, 1-3, loaded the bases in the eighth with one out on walks to Willie Randolph and Wayne Tolleson around a single by Skinner.

Jim Winn relieved Dotson and struck out Rickey Henderson for the second out. But with the runners moving on a 3-2 pitch, Claudell Chicago White Sox shortstop Ozzie Guillen goes over a New York Yankees player while turning a double play in Monday's game in Chicago.

Washington hit a high chopper to first baseman Greg Walker and beat Winn to the bag.

"I fell off the mound on the right side, Claudell runs pretty good, and I just didn't get over there in time," Winn said.

Both Randolph and Skinner scored and Tolleson also came home when Winn threw wildly to the plate.

Winn then walked Don Mattingly intentionally but also walked Dan Pasqua and Dave Winfield to force home the final run.

The Yankees went ahead 1-0 in the second when Winfield tripled with one out and scored on Mike Pagliarulo's grounder.

The White Sox tied it in the bottom of the inning. Ivan Calderon led off with a double and went to third on Donnie Hill's fly ball. Calderon remained at third when Tim Lulett hit a soft liner to second baseman Randolph, but Ozzie Guillen singled him home.

New York regained the lead in the fourth when Washington led off with an opposite-field fly ball double down the left-field line, took third on a groundout and scored on Pasqua's grounder.

'Race Against Time' schedule for '88

LONDON (AP) — Sport Aid's "Race Against Time," the charity event run last year by some 20 million people in 89 countries, will be repeated in September 1988 on a grander scale to help deprived children worldwide.

"This time we hope to involve every country and inhabited territory in the world. We understand there are 218," said Sport Aid spokesman Nick Cater said today.

But Irish rock singer Bob Geldof, the brainchild of the anti-famine Band Aid drive begun in 1984 which spawned Sport Aid, will be absent.

"He has gone back to his career," Cater said. "He said after the last race that it was time now for someone else to do something."

Sport Aid said it has raised $35 million for famine victims in 25 African countries over the last year from several sporting events.

From the West African tropics to the foothills of the Himalayas and the capitals of Europe, millions of young and old crowded the streets and sidewalks of 279 cities for the six-mile global race on May 25, 1986.

Another year-long program to raise pledges, donations and merchandising to help needy children in mainly undeveloped countries will begin this Sept. 6, culminating with a second global jog on Sept. 11, 1988.

"Children are very interested in the aims of Sport Aid, and we want to focus attention on the suffering of children in the world," Cater said. "It is simply unacceptable that nearly 15 million children are dying every year" in the Third World.

Sport Aid '88 will be launched on Sept. 6 this year when children representing six continents will light a symbolic flame at the end of the World Track and Field Championships in Rome, Cater said.

Fishing news from all over

By H. BOYCE HALE

During the last week of March, a group of fishermen from the Big Spring area completed an annual fishing trip to Amistad Reservoir, located upstream from Del Rio.

"We have been making this trip for the past 19 years," said Paul Beasley of Big Spring. "And most of the time, the weather has been beautiful. But this year we had rain, snow and high winds that effected the fishing."

Beasley added that Elbert Long, who lives northwest of the city, is the camp coordinator — a position he has filled for many years.

BOYCE HALE

As many as 32 attended the encampment this year. They came in trailers, motor homes and pickups, and they all parked at Marker 23 after launching their boats at the Pecos River bridge.

Beasley said most of the fishing was for black bass, but an occasional catch of catfish and crappie was reported.

Because of the inclement weather, catches this year were not nearly as good as past years. But enough was caught for several good meals, Beasley noted.

"In previous years, we often caught more than a 1,000 pounds of fish," he said.

Among others who made the trip were Tom Yeats, E.O. McNeese, Jack Shaffer and Preacher Claude Cravens.

Smith School Road, Austin 78744 or call Dr. Gary Saul at 512-389-4862.

Lake Fork continues to be the hot spot for lunker largemouth bass. Recently Dennis Canada of Farmers Branch caught a 15 1/2-pounder.

The lake is located at Quitman, about 75 miles east of Dallas.

Dennis donated the fish to the "Operation Share a Lone Star Lunker" program. The lunker program offers fishermen the opportunity to loan 13-pound-plus bass to the state Parks and Wildlife Department for reproduction work.

These fish are held until after they are spawned through method known as milking the fish of its eggs, then the fish is returned to its owner.

According to David Campbell, superintendent of the Tyler Hatchery, it isn't uncommon for a largemouth bass to produce over 12,000 fry.

Port Aransas, according to the Parks and Wildlife Department, is yielding redfish in the 6 to 12-pound class on live perch and live shrimp in the flats back of California and Hog Holes.

At nearby Corpus Christi Bay, good catches of Speckled Trout up to 7 pounds were reported with live shrimp.

And at the Caldwell Pier, good catches of whiting, with an occasional small shark to maintain excitement, were reported.

A nationwide survey conducted by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service underscores the importance of fishing and hunting to the nation's economy.

Preliminary results show that 46.6 million, or more than one in four, adult Americans engaged in sport fishing during 1985.

The survey estimated that fishermen spent more than $25 billion pursuing the sport.

This same survey also showed 16.7 million Americans hunted during 1985, and that they spent an estimated $10 billion.

An additional $14 billion was spent on a variety of outdoor activities such as bird watching and photography by some 109.7 million of Americans, the survey said.

State Parks and Wildlife Department officials are asking people with documents or personal knowledge of striped bass in Texas' coastal waters around the turn of the century to contact the department.

Striped bass, commonly known as "rockfish" years ago, have been stocked in many Texas reservoirs, and today this program is giving many people a good deal of pleasure.

If you have any information about striped bass in coastal waters, and you would like to share it with the Parks and Wildlife Department, send it to the Fisheries Division, 4200

Frazier, Barry head list of new hoop inductees

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Forward Rick Barry and guards Walt "Clyde" Frazier and "Pistol" Pete Maravich are among five former players being inducted into the Basketball Hall of Fame.

Joining Barry, Frazier and Maravich in ceremonies today were Bobby Wanzer and Bob Houbregs, bringing membership in the game's shrine to 161, including 71 players.

The ceremony marks the first time in the hall's 29-year history that no coach, contributor, referee or team was selected.

Frazier averaged 18.9 points and 6.1 assists per game in his 13 NBA seasons, the first 10 with the New York Knicks. He was a first-team NBA all-star four times and played on New York's championship teams in 1970 and 1973.

Other Knicks of that era previously elected were the late club president Ned Irish, Coach Red Holzman and players Bill Bradley, Dave DeBuschere, Jerry Lucas and Willis Reed.

Maravich averaged 44.2 points per game in his four years at Louisiana State before becoming the third player picked in the 1970 NBA draft. He spent four of his 10 seasons with Atlanta and five with New Orleans before splitting his final season between Utah and Boston.

Remembering Zaragoza

An unidentified youngster finds the view from behind the band a bit loud for his liking as he watched the Cinco De Mayo festivities Saturday. The celebration, which included the band Los Gallitos playing Friday and Saturday, was conducted at the Old Settlers Pavillion in Comanche Trail Park.

The Mexican food ran out two or three times and more had to be made, said Raul Marquez, president of the League of Latin American Citizens.

That didn't discourage as many as 3,000 people from attending the two-day Cinco de Mayo celebration, however, Marquez said, adding that the Mexican food booths proved to be the most popular.

"We had a real good crowd," he said of the people who attended the two-day event at Big Spring's Comanche Trail Park commemorating Mexico's victory over the French during a 1862 battle against the French in Puebla, Mexico.

Marquez said there was "lots of food and lots of music and no incidents" at the celebration.

About $2,000 were raised at the Coke and beer booths to be used for LULAC scholarships for high school students, he said.

"I would like to see more participation from the whole community" at the celebration, Marquez said, adding that very few Anglos were present but those who did come seemed to have had a great time.

A Texan actually led the Mexican troops to victory in 1862, giving Mexican-Americans in Texas another reason to celebrate the Mexican holiday.

General Ignacio Zaragoza, from Goliad, led Mexican troops to victory against the French during a May 5, 1862 battle.

In December 1861, England, France and Spain entered into an agreement known as the Treaty of London, by which they were to send a three-fold fleet to Veracruz, Mexico to demand that Mexico pay its foreign debts.

Then-President Benito Juarez agreed to comply with the demands and England and Spain withdrew their troops.

But the French continued the invasion.

Following the battle at Puebla, the president changed the city's name to Puebla de Zaragoza to commemorate the Texan's victory.
